Forensics Team Qualifies 15 for State Tournament

Fifteen Chelsea High school boys and girls qualified for the state forensics tournament with their performances at Southeast Michigan Regional Tournament, Saturday, April 20 at Dearborn Edsel-Ford High school.

The state tournament will be held May 4 at the University of Michigan. In that tournament, all classes of schools compete against each other, although awards are given to the best schools in each class, according to team coach Bill Coelius. Chelsea was the 1982 Class B champion.

Sophomore Jeff Mason qualified in the Humorous Reading category with an original selection by Douglas Foreman, a former Chelsea High school student.

Serious Reading, sophomore Alison Chasteen and senior Mark Neff read prose and poetry.

Junior Laura Goderis and sophomore Kirsten Erickson qualified in Oratory.

Senior Laura Koepele qualified in Sales, with a presentation on bottled water.

Chelsea qualified two teams in Duo Interpretation. One team is composed of juniors Mike Goodwin and Chris Herter. The other team has seniors Susie Nye and Kim Howard.

The final team, to qualify in the Games category, were seniors Doug Otto, Mark Stebelton, Eric Schaffner, Scott Miller, and Rod Satterthwaite. This makes the third consecutive year Satterthwaite has qualified in the event.

SAAD is seeking additional funds to help defray costs of the party. Donations may be sent to SAAD, care of Chelsea High school.

Six Walk Away from Area Prisons

It's been a bumper week for walkaways from area correctional facilities. Since Tuesday, April 16, four men have left Cassidy Lake Technical School and two left Camp Waterloo, according to Chelsea Police.

In the most widely-reported incident last Tuesday, two men serving time for murder left Camp Waterloo at approximately 6:15 a.m., although they were captured that night by Chelsea Police.

George Leroy Woodfork, 34, serving time for first degree murder, and James Harold Williams, 22, serving time for second degree murder, were in custody.

Academic Games Team Leaving Saturday Night For National Tourney

Seventeen boys and girls from Beach Middle school are leaving this week-end for what should be a highlight of their young lives when they compete in the Academic Games National Tournament in Georgia for four days.

The youngsters have earned their way to the competition in more ways than one. They have consistently scored well in local competition, most recently at the Michigan League Academic Games state tournament at Eastern Michigan University in March. Many long hours have been spent learning details about the 40 presidents, about current events over the last two years, and about U. S. history from the 1920s through 1940s.

Lately, though, the mental challenge has been only a small part of their preparation. They've had to raise money, lots of money, to even get to the tournament. And they've done it by soliciting the help of what seems like half of Chelsea. To use sports vernacular, they want it "bad."

Parents have been involved in making Easter baskets, which earned $200 for the cause, according to teacher Betty Cox, who has co-ordinated the whole affair. This is the fifth year Cox has worked with the academic games children, but the first time they will have competed in a national tournament.

Parents have also chaperoned a dance, which raised over $300. Saturday there was a car wash, Monday night a pancake supper at McDonald's, and Tuesday a basketball game between school district faculty and the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department. The entire trip will cost $3,765 when it's all over and nearly $2,000 of that will have been raised by various ways and means. Each parent put up $100 for his child.

Several groups have donated money, including the Child Study Club ($500), the Lions Club ($200), and the Lioness Club ($20).

"There seems to be an awful lot of support for us," Cox said. "I don't think I would have tackled this if I didn't think that support was there."

The competitors will be traveling by bus with the team from South Lyon Saturday night. They'll be staying in a 4-H camp near Athens, Ga., where the tournament will take place, and will make the return trip next Thursday.

The Chelsea team will compete in four categories: adventurous equations, a math game; Mr. President, a fact game about U. S. presidents (How much do YOU know about Warren Harding?); linguistics, a grammar game; and World Card, a current events game covering the last two years. It also features a category on events during the 1920s through 1940s, which tests not only their knowledge, but how quickly they can look up an answer in for instance, a world almanac.

"They are much better at it than I am," Cox said. "I try to stay out of competing with them."

For those who follow the academics game team, here are a couple of trivia questions: Who invented the games and where did they begin? The answer to the second part is Michigan. The answer to the first part is Layman and Robert Allen, two University of Michigan professors. The games began about 20 years ago and spread quickly.

SEC Arts Festival Set at Chelsea High

The fourth annual Festival of the Arts will be held this week-end at Chelsea High school featuring work by students from all Southeastern Conference schools.

The show runs from 10 to 10 Saturday, April 27 in the high school cafeteria.

The Festival will feature works in both the visual and performing arts. In the evening will be a College Concert at 8 featuring the Chelsea band, orchestra, and choir.

In addition to the traditional art media, several departments from Chelsea High school will be involved for the first time. Math teacher Ken Sullins will demonstrate a computer design program written by students; WCHS, Chelsea's forensics department radio station will broadcast the entire event, within

CINDY KVARNBERG

JOSHUA SMITH

Chelsea High Students Vie For State Academic Honors

Two Chelsea students have been nominated for state-wide honors which if won, will place them among Michigan's high school academic elite.

Cindy Kvarnberg, daughter of Donald and Carol Kvarnberg of 5470 Conway Rd., is Chelsea high's nominee to participate in the Summer Institutes for the Arts and Sciences sponsored by the State Board of Education.

Joshua Smith, son of Don and Judith Smith of 18185 North Territorial Rd., has been selected for a place on the All-State Academic Team named by the Michigan Association of Secondary School Principals and Detroit magazine.

Kvarnberg, 16, is a Chelsea High junior who carries a 10.6 grade-point average on an 11-point scale. She considers her academic strengths to be science and mathematics, and is looking toward a career in hospital pharmacy.

"I like to deal with people, and I like the sciences of chemistry and biology," she told a reporter. "A hospital seems like the perfect place to put my interests together, and I want to work in a hospital. I plan to apply to the University of Michigan for enrollment in its pharmacy program."

Before that, she would like to be selected to attend either Central Michigan University or Grand Valley State College for a special two-week course in July under the Summer Institutes program.

"I'm not setting my hope too high because I know that only 475 students from all over the state will be chosen, and only 18 will be picked from Washtenaw county. I'll definitely attend if I get the chance."

Guidance counselor Chris Dimanin said Chelsea High was allowed to pick just one student for consideration, adding that Cindy was selected from among 45 sophomores and juniors who received one or more mentions from faculty members asked to submit names.

The ground rules state that nominees must "show evidence of unique talents, high productivity and motivation in one or several areas of the arts and sciences."

"It is an honor for Cindy to be Chelsea High school's choice," Dimanin commented. "We consider her to be very well qualified."

Besides her academic achievements, Cindy is active in the National Honor Society, Key Club, volleyball and drama. She is an acolyte in Ann Arbor's Trinity Lutheran church and also does some tutoring.

"I keep busy," she says, "but I leave some time for fun and socializing."

Smith "is not an ordinary student," according to Dimanin, and the 17-year-old senior who will almost certainly graduate first in his class this June has impressive credentials for the All-State Academic Team.

He carries a 10.86 GPA. He is an outstanding musician, and plays and teaches the alto saxophone. He leads the Chelsea Pep Band. He records all high school band and orchestra concerts, and works as a lighting technician on school plays and musical productions.

What sets Joshua apart is that he is the president of a small corporation, called Tutorix, which produces computer software for education use.

"Our company has developed several courses for use on small computers in school or at home," he explained. "We have one for a typing course and another to teach children how to read. We're working on some others, and are seeking more contracts."

It's a family business. His mother, two sisters and a brother are also involved. "It was my parents' idea originally, but I'm in charge of the company now," Joshua says.

"I started working with computers when I was in the seventh grade, and my interest has built up from that point. Now I'm experimenting with the electronic interfaces of computers—switches, that sort of stuff."

Joshua has won a scholarship to Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N. Y., but tentatively plans instead to enroll at Worcester Polytechnic in Worcester, Mass.

A TRIBUTE WELL DESERVED: John Wellnitz (right) accepts a plaque of tribute from Chelsea Community Fair Board president Bill

Stoffer. Wellnitz was recognized for his 17 years of service to the fair and, in his words, he isn't through yet.

John Wellnitz Cited By Fair Board for His Long Service

John Wellnitz, who retired Jan. 1 this year as manager of the Chelsea Community Fair service center building, received a plaque and considerable praise at a meeting of the fair board last week.

Wellnitz, who is 80, was honored for his service to the fair during the 17 years since 1968, when he became treasurer of the board. He began managing the service center in 1971 and continued until last Jan. 1, explaining when he submitted his resignation that "I am getting a little old and a little tired."

He continues to attend board meetings and prepare summaries for publication in The Standard, among other volunteer duties.

"I suppose I'll go on doing that as long as they'll let me," Wellnitz said. "The fair has been part of my life for so long that I'd be lost without it."

Nobody who knows anything about the fair or Wellnitz is inclined to suggest that he stop. He just may know more about the fair than anybody else connected with it, and he's a mighty young 80 besides.

The tribute presented to him last Thursday night consisted of a wood-mounted aerial photograph of the fairgrounds and inscribed, "John Wellnitz—in appreciation for your years of service—1968-1985." There were many nice words spoken as well.

In the notes he brought to The Standard the next morning Wellnitz dutifully described the presentation and editorialized a bit by calling it "beautiful."

He reported for the record that the meeting was attended by president Bill Stoffer, executive vice-president Lloyd Grau, secretary Maryann Guenther and directors Archie Bradbury, Tom Dault, Jerry Heydlauff, Jeff Layher, Ralph McCalla, Mark Stapish and Ed Whitaker.

Nothing of news-making importance was done at the meeting other than the award to him, Wellnitz said when questioned by a reporter. "I guess maybe they did it mostly for me."

"I really appreciated it," he added, "but I wonder why they put '1985' on the inscription. I hope they don't think I should quit and were trying to tell me something."

Editorial comment: No way, John. Keep up the good work. Your notes are easy to work with. You should see some of the stuff we get from people less than half your age.

Prison Officials Pressed To Comply With Overcrowding Order

A request for enforcement of a court order against prison overcrowding will be filed quickly if state officials do not voluntarily take steps to ease the problem, an attorney who originally initiated the court action said recently.

Corrections officials acknowledged overcrowding has become worse than expected since Governor James Blanchard in December declared he would no longer approve early releases of prisoners, but had no plans to use the overcrowding act.

Prison facilities are virtually certain to remain substantially at capacity until the end of summer when at least 1,000 additional beds are added to the system, Gail Light, spokesman for the Department of Corrections said.

She said delays in adding the new beds as well as an "incredible number of commitments" from Wayne county courts are responsible for the increasing problem.

"Things are just getting a lot worse now, but we have been out of compliance (with the court order) for six months. We'll just have to be out of compliance for a while," she said.

East Lansing attorney Zolton Ferency, who won the 1980 Ingham County Circuit Court order setting standards for inmate space, said he would try to meet with officials as soon as possible to see if they will voluntarily reduce the flow of inmates into the system, release some quicker or a combination of the two.

"I hope that we can work out a program to return the population to an acceptable number as quickly as possible. It might come down to working out an emergency release program to replace the one the Governor refuses to use," he said.

A motion will be filed in circuit court if an agreement is not reached, Ferency said.

The April 3 count showed 13,093 inmates in the 12,600-capacity men's system and 570 in the 477-capacity women's system, with the most severe overcrowding in minimum security facilities, Light said.

Coincidentally, the number of walkaways so far this year for minimum security facilities, where prisoners are sleeping in activity rooms and gymnasiums, is over twice as high as last year—82 compared to 20, she said.

Some medium security facilities, such as Muskegon and the Michigan Training Unit in Ionia, are also housing prisoners in areas such as study rooms, Light said.

She said the situation will not be eased until the addition of the Detroit House of Corrections and a vacant building at the Wayne County Hospital this summer, and then only if Wayne county judges slow their rates of commitment to prisons instead of county jails.

Light said inmate populations would, with luck, probably then stay within capacity through the end of the year.

Blanchard's press secretary, Richard Cole, said no consideration is being given to early release of prisoners to deal with the problem.

"For the time being, we are doing everything we possibly can to build new prisons and keep dangerous felons off the street. Our position is we are not in violation (of the court order). We are exploring and pursuing every alternative to deal with it administratively."

The Governor in his State of the State message called for amendments to the Prison Overcrowding Powers Act, but does not yet have a specific proposal.

How To Catch A Leprechaun

One day I found a leprechaun. He was lazy. I caught him. I blinked my eyes and he was so lazy that he bumped into me and made me fall down with a big boom on the ground. It hurt my head, but he fell on me, but then I got up. I didn't blink my eyes. He didn't make sure that anyone was stealing his gold. He didn't notice another kid getting the gold, putting a fake pot in its place. I ran off into the woods to help the other kid with the gold. The end.

Breast Cancer Awareness Week Set By Health Agencies

The week of April 29 through May 3 has been selected as Breast Cancer Awareness Week for Washtenaw county. Local health care providers, including staff from all area hospitals and the Washtenaw County Health Department, have been meeting to plan for this special event since last September.

It is the hope of this Task Force that Breast Cancer Awareness Week will be an opportunity for many health care providers to influence women's attitudes toward breast cancer and its early detection.

The over-all goal is to encourage women to become confident and competent in doing breast self-exams (BSE).

Impetus for these efforts is based on a recent survey conducted by the Washtenaw County Health Department. 170 randomly selected county physicians were asked which medical self-tests they believe would most benefit the general public. BSE's lead the list, identified by 70% of the respondents as an important test.

Significantly, early detection of lumps by the use of Breast Self-Exam drastically helps the chances for cure, and also decreases the need for radical disfiguring surgery.

It is vitally important to inform women about the facts and risk factors associated with breast cancer and stress and value of performing BSE as a key method of detection.

Approximately one out of 11 women in this country develop breast cancer during their lives, and although 80% of all breast lumps are not cancerous, it is still one of the highest causes of cancer deaths among women.

"The focus of this week is on the prevention and early detection of breast cancer," says Beverly Chethik, county health educator, who organized the project. "When two out of eight women in my tennis league developed breast cancer, I decided it was time to get the message out about the importance of breast self-exam and the new options of breast cancer treatment."

Enlisting the help of local health educators, physicians, and former breast cancer patients, Chethik and others designated the end of April and beginning of May as Breast Cancer Awareness Week.

Each participating agency of the Task Force has made a commitment to provide education programs, and other services.

During this week, Chelsea Community Hospital will offer a community education program on Tuesday, April 30 in the Hospital Conference Rooms. The program is free and will cover how to do breast self-exams, breast cancer risks, and recommendations regarding diagnosis and treatment. Community residents are welcome to attend and should register by calling the Health Education Department 475-1311, ext. 354.

Chelsea Community Hospital will also offer programs to a variety of community groups. These groups include the American Business Women's Association, Chelsea Hospital employees, Chelsea Methodist Home employees, Chelsea High school faculty, Manchester schools faculty, Chelsea Methodist Home residents, Chelsea High school Health Occupations students, and Health-of-the-Lakes Junior Women's Club of Brooklyn. For more information about dates, times and location of these programs call Chelsea Community Hospital's Health Education Department.

Breast self-exam and mammography are two important methods in early detection of breast cancer. Since 80-90% of cancerous lumps are found by women themselves, it is important that women know how to successfully do breast self-exams and when to go for mammograms.

Chelsea Community Hospital offers a breast cancer screening clinic through its Radiology Department. Women may schedule screening mammograms directly without a physician referral by calling the Radiology Department at 475-7020. As part of the screening clinic, there will be a $75 out-of-pocket expense for this procedure which will be collected at the time of the examination. However, the fee may be covered by the patient's insurance with a physician's order. Examinations are provided between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. by appointment only, Monday through Friday.

"It is important to perform breast self-exams monthly and if you find a lump don't delay treatment," says Courtland Schmidt, M.D., surgeon at Catherine McAuley Health Center. "With newer surgical treatments, lumpectomy and breast reconstruction, a woman's options in dealing with breast cancer are increasing."

Warning signals include: A lump, thickening or dimpling in the breast, a change in size or shape of the breast, or discharge from the nipple. It is significant to note that it is normal for a woman's breast to feel lumpy, therefore, it is important to do breast self-exams on a regular monthly basis to detect any changes which may indicate a mass.

Last year in Michigan, there were 4,400 new cases of breast cancer diagnosed. Approximately 100 of those cases occurred in Washtenaw county. With this county-wide health education effort, these statistics could be drastically lowered.

ARBOR DAY CONFEREES meet at North Elementary school to make plans for the planting of 200 Colorado Blue Spruce seedlings on school grounds donated by the Chelsea Rod & Gun Club. On the school lawn, left to right, are Barbara Locks, media specialist; Ken Sullins, math teacher at the high school; Bill Wescott, principal of North school; Eric Smith, fourth grade teacher; Joe Torrice, chief forester of the conservation club; Don Young, science teacher at Beach school; and Peggy Moore, fourth grade teacher.

Chelsea Arbor Days Set for Friday, Saturday Tree Plantings

Friday and Saturday of this week will see the first observance of Chelsea Arbor Days.

Some old timers feel that the event is a revival of Arbor Days held years ago but can't come up with the dates. Others herald the 1985 observance as a new, and long overdue, event. Either way, village council president Jerry Satterthwaite has issued a proclamation setting April 26-27 as Chelsea Arbor Days.

Arbor Days will take place under the joint sponsorship of the Chelsea Rod & Gun Club and the Chelsea School District. The club is presenting the Dwight E. Beach school with an array of maturing Colorado Blue Spruces for the south lawn of the Charles E. Cameron pool. The club is also providing the school system with 200 spruce seedlings for planting on school grounds by students of various grades.

In a special meeting held Friday afternoon at the North school, Joe Torrice, chief forester of the Chelsea Rod & Gun Club, counseled faculty members on the planting and care of conifer seedlings so they will have the best chance of survival. Present were Bill Wescott, principal of the North School, Barbara Locks, media specialist (new name for librarian) and teachers Ken Sullins, Eric Smith, Peggy Moore and Don Young.

Student tree plantings will take place on Friday and home owners are urged to participate by planting new trees and shrubs on Arbor Saturday.

Pre-School Screening Registration Completed

More than 130 pre-schoolers each sat through an hour-and-a-half screening and registration process last week as Chelsea school officials got acquainted with next year's group of kindergarten students.

The registration, which took place at the Chelsea United Methodist church, was the first of its kind in the Chelsea district. The lengthy screening was designed to evaluate each child's level of development in his motor, language, and conceptual skills. In some cases, the tests also pointed out children who may have special learning problems, according to Jackie Rogers, director of community education. She said turn-out for registration was high. The district expects a total kindergarten population of about 150 children.

"This is something we've wanted to do for a few years now," Rogers said. "The educational audit we had awhile ago showed that we needed a Young Fives Program and the only way we could know who would be in that program is to have this kind of screening."

The young five program is a special class designed for children who may be of age for kindergarten but have been slower to develop in one or more areas.

Rogers said the screening will also help distribute the children more evenly, according to skills, among the classes so there is a "homogenous representation." It will also help each teacher know what skills each child has at the beginning of the year "rather than taking half a year to find out" in some cases, Rogers said.

The tests included a basic hearing and vision examination. Then, each child went to three substations where they were tested for their basic skills, including their awareness of concepts like "over and under," or "empty and full."

"The children were great, even though the tests took about a half hour longer than we thought they would," Rogers said. "There were only one or two apprehensive children. And the parents were really supportive."

Rogers said that those who missed the registration should contact the Community Education Office in August.

Note Received from Iowa Owner of Balloon Found Here

A couple of weeks ago it was reported here that Chelseaites Fred Lewis found a burst balloon with a note in it as he was out walking on his Kalmbach Rd. property. The note said, "If you find this balloon, please send Clara Larson birthday wishes for her 80th." Mrs. Larson lives in Hubbard, Ia., and celebrated her 80th birthday on Dec. 1. Relatives released the helium balloons as part of the celebration.

Fred sent her a postcard of Chelsea, complete with the clock tower, and, in return received a letter and newspaper clippings from Mrs. Larson, who lives in "The Hub of the Corn Belt," in the middle of the state.

Hubbard has a population of 830 and was recently featured in the Des Moines Register as one of Iowa's successful small towns.

Among other things, Lewis found out from the handwritten letter that Mrs. Larson is Norwegian in a town dominated by Norwegians. She has lived there for 55 years.

"I work now and then in my boys' plumbing shop, and I eat out a lot," she said.

In addition, if the project is ready in time, the metals department will demonstrate a kinetic moving sculpture.

The festival is free and open to the public.

KATHERINE BECKER of Chelsea High school was recently named a winner of a National Merit Scholarship sponsored by the Warner-Lambert Co. Katherine plans to attend the University of Houston, a school with 31,000 students, next fall but has yet to decide on a course of study. "I've been to Texas, but never as far south as Houston," she said. Becker, the daughter of Mark and Pat Becker of 13765 Riker Rd. is a bicyclist and has completed trips of 450 miles.

• Do you need to make the change?

If your medicine cabinet looks like a pharmacy, if you are taking pain pills, high-powered vitamins, tranquilizers, aspirin, sedatives, harsh laxatives, B-12 shots, if you are using home remedies, ointments, or rubbing liniments...

You ought to think about making the change.

If you suffer from recurring headaches, if you have pains in your shoulders, neck, legs, or back or if your arthritis forces you to take a couple more aspirins daily from a year ago...

It may be time for you to make the change.

If your blood pressure is still too high, if you have dizzy spells, if you are tired, or depressed, if you are very nervous, or suffer from insomnia, if daily stress makes life unbearable...

It is probably time for you to make the change.

If you are still trying to convince yourself that there's nothing wrong, if your chest pains are still noticeable, if surgery has been suggested, if the pain pills don't kill the pain anymore...

You'd better make the change to Chiropractic.

A VIEW from the CLOCK TOWER

Bill Mullendore

The clock on the tower is working again and running right, and maybe so am I. The clock was stopped when I came back on the job, and it stayed stopped for a week, then started. Perhaps the stop and start symbolized my time of trial in learning again how to put words on paper.

It has been a strange, humbling experience. I thought I knew my craft. After nearly 40 years of doing it, I figured I had mastered the skill of writing. It turned out that all I had accomplished was to learn how to write while drunk.

Writing while drunk is easy, a statement that may surprise you. Alcohol deadens the front part of the brain, the thinking center. Turn that off, and you act on instinct. If you have accumulated some knowledge of English vocabulary, grammar, and syntax, you can call on it to write words fast. The words may not be very readable, but they come quickly.

Writing while thinking is an entirely different game. You become critical of what you produce, and ask yourself if you are grinding out garbage. You recall a lot of garbage that you wrote over the years, and feel ashamed that you ever allowed it to be printed. The stuff seemed publishable at the time but was actually pretty bad. I've sorted through a couple of home desk drawers full of manuscripts, including rough drafts of two books, and thrown most of the junk away. Read in the light of sobriety, it was just plain that—junk.

I'm re-learning how to type. The keys on the typewriter haven't changed, but I have. The top line still spells "qwertyuiop," which is almost pronounceable, but my fingers don't recognize the letters and they keep striking other keys.

So why am I telling you all this personal stuff? It's simply because I am convinced that abuse of alcohol and other mind-altering chemicals is an insidious, dangerous, deadly problem that threatens us all, whether we are victims or not. It's worse than the prospect of nuclear war, terrifying as that is. We can avoid nuclear holocaust if we have our brains in order and working right, a sort of doubtful proposition considering the silly things being said these days in Washington and Moscow. Substance abuse destroys ability to think rationally, and one has to wonder if the statements of world leaders are the products of healthy minds.

I've enrolled myself in the ranks of crusaders intent on lifting the chemical curtain that clouds us, and I'm going to keep hammering away. If I can get the message across to anybody out there, I will have accomplished something worthwhile.

Reliable studies have shown that from one-third to one-half of all professional communicators are chemically addicted. I had a lot of company during the 38 years that I abused alcohol. Thinking back, I know that many—maybe most—of my associates at work were fellow drunks. What we had in common was that we trooped together to a down-the-street bar to celebrate the end of a work day, and most of us didn't stop with just a couple of drinks. We got drunk, and we stayed that way.

The lesson is that much of the information you get from the news media was prepared by persons who were out of their minds at the time they wrote or said it. You might be amazed if you knew how many by-lined newspaper writers, television commentators and radio news announcers were stoned when they sent their messages to you. They include many of the most famous names in journalism.

A few of those afflicted men and women have "gone public" recently by telling the world about their disease of addiction and what they are trying to do to recover. I have joined them, and I hope more will follow. As people who have some influence because of the work we do as communicators, we might be able to do some good.

That isn't easy, because we addicts tend to be very shy people. We drink alcohol or use drugs to overcome a flaw in our personalities which makes it hard for us to relate to others unless we are pumped up on some chemical. We are loners, and we lack confidence. Taking some substance into our systems to provide a "temporary lift" is the easy way to get through the day. Learning to relate and reach out is far more difficult, but it's the only relief that is more than temporary. No matter how high you get on chemicals, you eventually fall back to earth, and the landing hurts. Waking up hating yourself is an every-day experience for abusers.

The 24 days that I spent as a patient in the Substance Abuse Program at Chelsea Community Hospital taught me a lot, and over the next several weeks I will share that knowledge with the hope that you may find some of it useful.

I found out, for example, that there are many, many more of us chemical addicts than is generally realized. I discovered that addiction is spread throughout our society. Anybody can be a victim, regardless of age, sex, family background, intelligence, education, employment or whatever. I learned a lot about drugs other than alcohol, which I had previously known very little about. (They all work about the same way, incidentally.)

Above all, I got it through my head that the only cure for an addict is total abstinence, an "all or nothing" approach. For those of us who have the disease, there is no such thing as having one social drink, smoking one joint of marijuana, snorting one line of cocaine, injecting one shot of heroin or swallowing one capsule of an "upper" or a "downer." Once we start, we don't stop. That may seem simple, but it took me almost 40 years to learn.

Senior Citizens Plan Country Craft, Folk Art Show

Have you ever wondered how bobbin lace is made, Nantucket Lightship baskets are constructed, or how theorem painting is done?

In September, visitors at the Country Craft and Folk Art Show will see these and many other country crafts being demonstrated, and a large variety of high quality crafts will be available for purchase.

The Country Crafts and Folk Art Show is being sponsored by the Chelsea Senior Citizens organization as a fund-raising project. Besides the craft exhibits, a lunch menu and baked goods will also be available, which is being prepared by the Senior Citizens.

The Craft show, which takes place on Saturday, Sept. 21, will be held at Chelsea High school. The gymnasium and cafeteria will be full of many exciting, colorful displays.

Marcy Stump, who is co-ordinating the craft show for the Senior Citizens, says she feels the show will be a popular attraction because people are really into the country and folk art theme. All exhibits at the show will be of country flavor.

Information may be obtained about exhibiting at the craft show by contacting Marcy at 475-3429.

Humans aren't the only ones with babysitters, says Ranger Rick magazine. If a mother animal has to hunt, she will often leave her young with an "auntie" or teen-age animal. Apparently, it is a shared duty and animal sitters don't get paid.

A PERSONAL BIOGRAPHY, believe it or not, is what these children are working on for kindergarten student Stephen McDonald, right. Richard Mason, a sixth grader at Beach Middle school in Joe Beard's class, is interviewing young Stephen in order to write a short 10 to 20 page book about him. Every year, sixth graders are paired with North school kindergarten children in this exercise in creative writing. The books will be presented to their subjects in May.

Basic Digital Communications Course Will Be Offered at WCC

This spring Washtenaw Community college's Telecommunications area is offering a new introductory course, announces Albert D. Robinson, dean of computer and electronic education at the college. "Digital Communications I" will present basic digital communications principles and techniques. Offered for three credits, the course will meet Mondays and Wednesdays from 6:30 p.m. to 8:10 p.m. in Room 207 of the Student Center Building.

Course topics will include communications media, circuit types, data codes, interfaces, protocols, data transmission, integrity, and other aspects of this fast-growing technology, Robinson reports. Students will explore digital transmission, multiplexes, and data processing network types and services as well. Eugene Gray, Jr., technical trainer for Ameritech Network Switching Center, will teach the course.

Established last year in response to local industry needs, the telecommunications curriculum trains technicians for the new jobs created by the growth of communications networks and the addition of computers to telecommunications technology, Robinson notes.

This Week's Thought

DONALD COLE

Lots of people are planting gardens these days. Want an idea on how you can plant the finest garden of all — even indoors?

First, plant five rows of Peas: . . . Presence, Preparation, Promptness, Purity and Perseverance . . . Next, plant three rows of Squash: . . . squash Gossip; squash Criticism; squash Indifference . . . Then, plant four rows of Lettuce: . . . Let us be Faithful to Duty; let us be Unselfish and Loyal; Let us be True to our Obligations and let us Love One Another . . . And then plant Turnips: Turn up for important meetings; Turn up with a Smile; Turn up with New Ideas; Turn up with Determination to make everything count for something and Be Worthwhile . . .

Plant the seeds. It's easy. Try it. You'll have a fine garden with less effort than you can imagine. In fact, this sort of P. S. L. T. garden is always guaranteed to grow with guaranteed satisfaction — quickly!

AMERICA & ME ESSAY CONTEST winners from Beach Middle school were recently announced by the Farm Bureau Insurance group, who sponsored the competition. Meredith Hall, center, was named the winner for her essay on teen-age suicide, which appears in this issue. Eric Frisinger, right, earned second place honors, and Mindy Ryan placed third.

'America & Me' Essay Contest Winners Named at Beach School

Three students from Beach Middle school in Chelsea have been named local winners in the 16th annual America & Me Essay Contest, sponsored by Farm Bureau Insurance Group.

The three, who earned the first, second- and third-place awards for their school, are Meredith Hall, first; Eric Frisinger, second; and Mindy Ryan, third.

All three received award certificates for their achievement. As the school's first-place winner, Meredith Hall's name will also be engraved on a plaque for permanent display in the school.

Meredith's first-place essay now advances to the state level competition, from which the top 10 essays in Michigan will be selected.

The top 10 state-wide winners, who will be announced in April, will receive plaques and U. S. savings bonds ranging in value from $200 to $1,000, totaling $4,000 in prizes for the top 10 essayists. In addition, the top 10 winners will be honored at a banquet in Lansing and a meeting with Michigan's top governmental leaders.

A team of finalist judges that includes Gov. James Blanchard and Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths will determine the top state-wide winners.

Several thousand eighth grade students from more than 550 Michigan schools participated in the 1984-85 America & Me Essay Contest, which was conducted with the help of Farm Bureau Insurance agents across the state.

The topic of the 1984-85 contest was "My Hope for America—And How I Can Help Achieve It."

Started in 1968 and open to all Michigan eighth grade students, the contest encourages Michigan youngsters to explore their roles in America's future.

As sponsor of the contest, Farm Bureau Insurance Group, has earned 11 national awards from the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge.

MY HOPE FOR AMERICA

By Meredith Hall
Beach School 8th Grade

My hope for America is to try to prevent teen-age suicide. Suicides are a serious problem in this country and nobody seems to care about it except the families and friends of the "victims." People have to take action about this terrible problem that's facing society today.

One thing society could do to prevent suicides is to have family members and friends watching the teen and keeping track of what is going on in school and other places (i.e. work, sports, personal life.) The parents should be helpful and caring during the teen-age years because that's when most of the "growing up" is happening. If the teen is having any problems in anything in his/her life, try to talk about it with them. Find out how they feel about the problem and how they want to solve it. If the teen doesn't want to talk, ask their best friend about what has been going on and how the teen is handling the problem.

Another way to help prevent suicide is to keep a loving relationship between the teen and parents. The parents should always support the teen in everything they do. Also be proud of them when they succeed and tell them how much you love them and how much they mean to you.

If the teen-ager does need professional help contact someone who knows how to deal with this problem. They could set up counseling sessions for the teen. Once a week the teen could attend a session with other kids his/her age and learn how to deal with their frustrations and also how to share his/her feelings. They also will be learning about how other people deal with their frustrations and feelings. They could also learn how to share ideas and give each other help and advice.

If we can stop this terrible problem we would have saved a lot of beautiful people and given them a chance to live a great life. We could tell every one of them that life is worth living.

Arbor Day Started in Nebraska

A visit to Nebraska today wouldn't disclose that the state was once a treeless plain. Yet it was the lack of trees there that led to the founding of Arbor Day in the 1800s.

Among pioneers moving into the Nebraska Territory. In 1854 was J. Sterling Morton from Detroit. He and his wife were lovers of nature and the home they established in Nebraska was quickly planted with trees, shrubs and flowers.

Morton, as a journalist and an 1854 graduate of the University of Michigan, soon became editor of Nebraska's first newspaper. Given that forum, he spread agricultural information and his enthusiasm for trees to an equally enthusiastic audience. His fellow pioneers missed their trees. But more importantly, trees were needed as windbreaks to keep soil from blowing and for fuel and building materials, as well as shade from the hot sun.

Morton not only advocated tree planting by individuals in his articles and editorials, but he also encouraged schools, civic organizations and groups of every kind to join in. His prominence in the area increased and he became secretary of the Nebraska Territory, which provided another opportunity to stress the value of trees.

On Jan. 4, 1872, Morton first proposed a tree planting holiday to be called "Arbor Day," at a meeting of the State Board of Agriculture. The date was set for April 10, 1872. Prizes were offered to counties and individuals for planting properly the largest number of trees on that day. It was estimated that more than one million trees were planted in Nebraska on the first Arbor Day. Arbor Day was officially proclaimed by the young state's Gov. Robert W. Furness on March 21, 1874, and the day itself was observed April 8, 1874.

In 1883, Arbor Day was named a legal holiday in Nebraska and April 22, Morton's birthday, was selected as the date for its permanent observance. The idea spread to other states in subsequent years, though it is observed on different dates according to the best time for planting trees.

Correction

Due to an inadvertent error by a reporter trying to sort out the abundance of high achievers who scored 100 percent on the Michigan Educational Assessment Test from Chelsea High school, the name of Doug Poley was mistakenly dropped from the list.

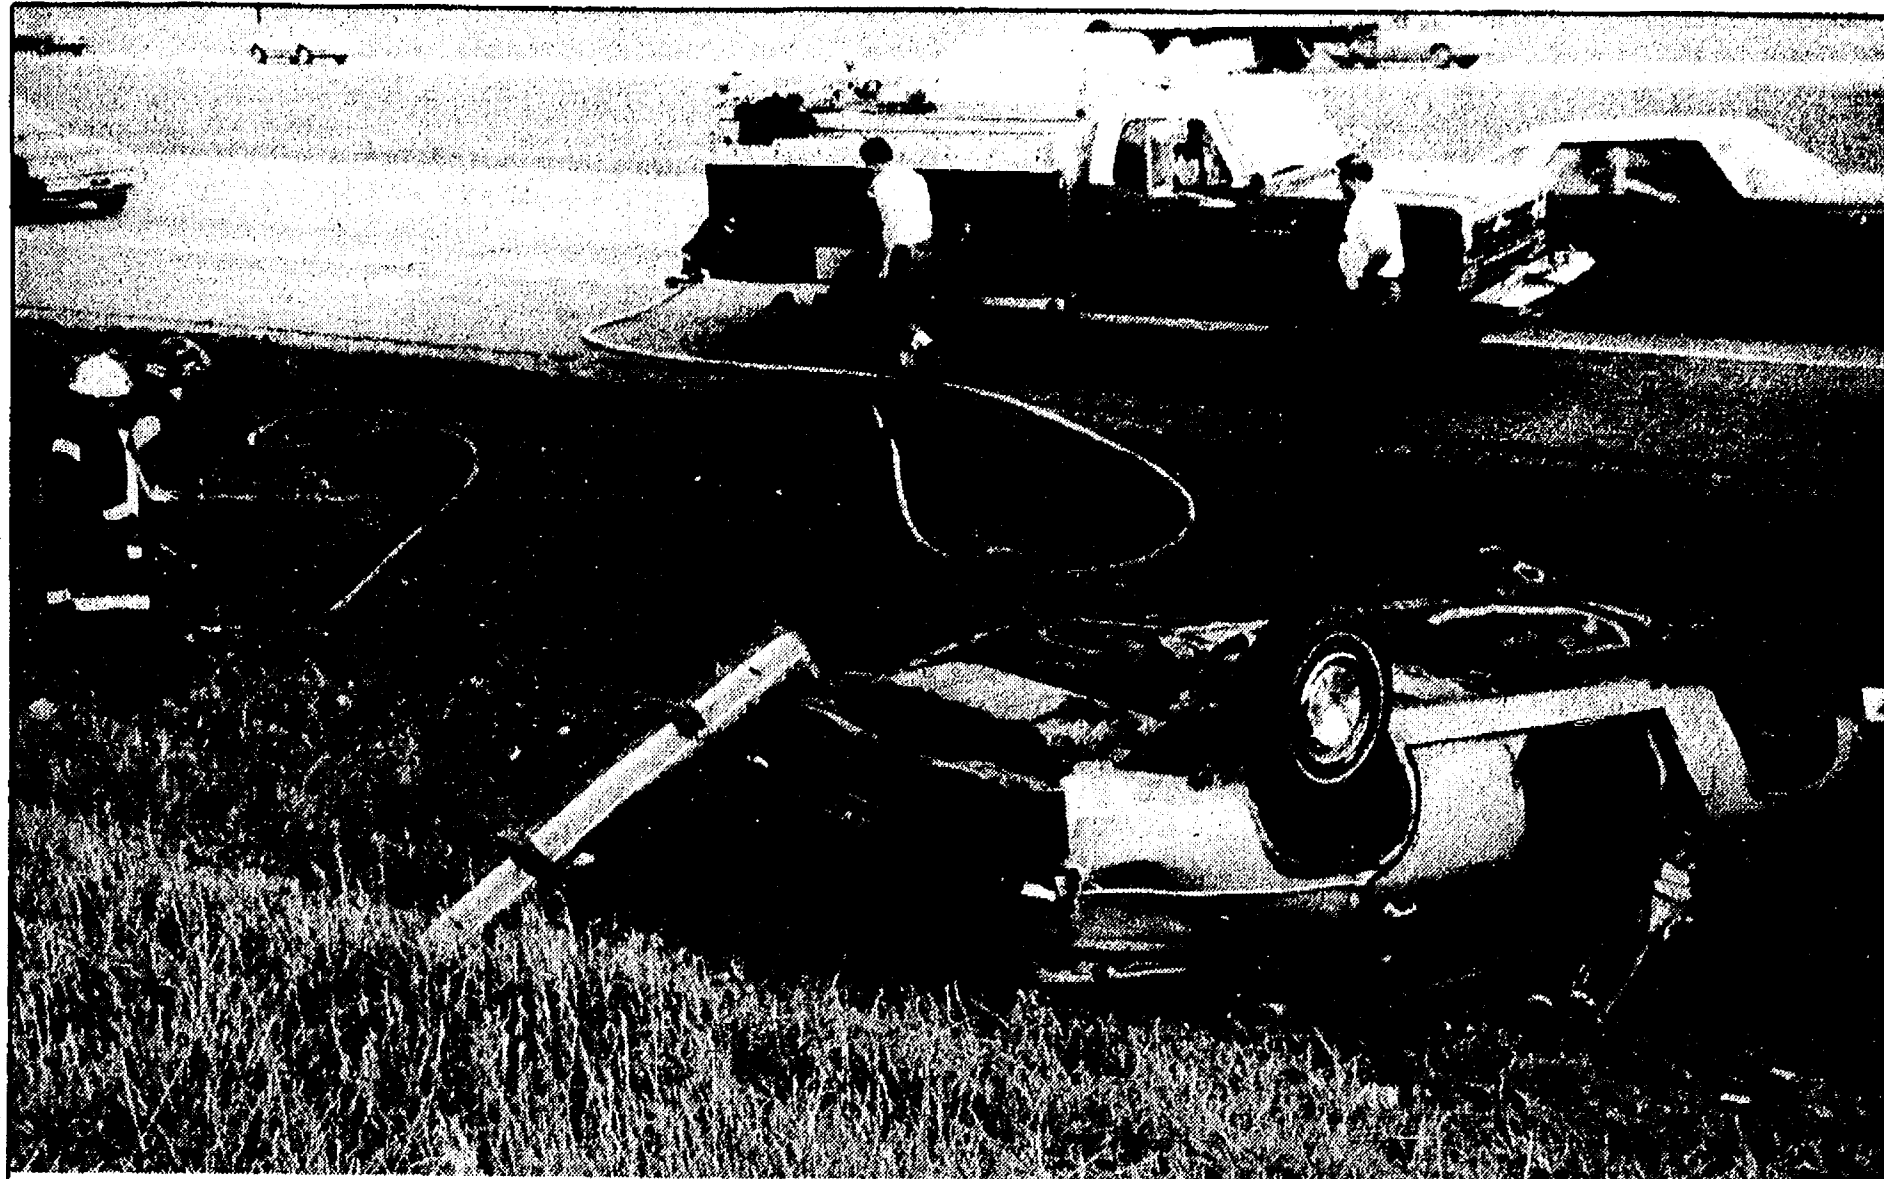

If you still have your last Standard, you'll see Doug on the far left of the front row in the photograph on page nine. Sorry Doug.

Fire Department Has Busy Week

The Chelsea Fire Department had its hands full last week, making 17 runs from Tuesday, April 16 through Sunday, April 21.

Eight of the runs were in response to grass fires. None were larger than an acre or so, according to chief Paul Hankerd.

Most of the rest of the runs were due to medical emergencies or personal injury accidents.

"We're ready for a rest now," Hankerd said.

Poem . . .

One day I was walking along a street when:

I got hit by a car.

They took me to a bar.

They made me tear off my nose

They made me eat a hose.

They sprayed me with black paint.

"I said I look like a paint faint."

I went to the hospital.

My last name is Faint.

The nurse gave me some fried worms.

When I saw the worms I let out a squirm

I heard something start.

They came in with a cart.

I saw a mouse.

I went to my house.

Spinners Start With Basics By Raising Their Own Sheep

The Yarn Spinners was formed about seven years ago as Barbara Ullman of Chelsea and Mary Jane Coble of Dexter joined forces to engage in something which interested them both.

They attended the Pioneer Craft Fair in Dexter, Saturday, March 16, where they gave the many people attending a chance to see a spinning wheel and to observe samples of the wool which they spin into yarn for warm and often very style-filled garments. Their yarns are the product of wool from sheep which each of them raise, as well as from several other area farmers' sheep.

Barbara Ullman, a Chelsea area resident, explained she and her husband, Joseph spent a year in England during 1975. Their family, which includes two daughters, Sara, now 22, and Katie, 20, shared a farm cottage in the English countryside during that year.

Joseph was on sabbatical from his position teaching mathematics at the University of Michigan, and was doing research overseas.

Barbara had a chance to observe sheep in the area, and their habits, first-hand.

Her daughters had learned to weave in classes they attended at the YMCA in Ann Arbor, and she pursued her interest in weaving and learned to spin as well. Upon their return to Michigan, the Ullmans sought a home in the rural area in which to settle, and began raising a few sheep.

She and her entrepreneurial associate, Mary Jane Coble, who resides in the Dexter area, teamed up about seven years ago. They are members of the Spinners Flock, a group of 50 or so people in Washtenaw county who meet Saturday mornings in people's homes to exchange information of mutual interest.

Barbara has a traditional type French Canadian spinning wheel, a Leclerc, on which she spins the wool from sheep into yarn. She also owns a Louet spinning wheel, which is a Dutch wheel and is purchased in kit form. She confided the Louet is her favorite of the two wheels, saying, "It runs very smoothly, and I do really prefer to work on the Louet."

"We do have several colors of yarns available in our business," she added, "but we do our own dyeing, using natural dyes."

Mary Jane explained a friend sold her some of the hand-spun yarn in which she was very interested, the family bought a home in the Dexter area, and things sort of came together all at once. She and Barbara had known each other when they both lived in Ann Arbor. In fact, their daughters attended the same school there.

Mary Jane's spinning wheels are one of each of the same type as her partner owns, and she too prefers the Louet. "It can be packed up and taken along so easily," she confided.

Jennie Coble, who is 21, often assists her mother when there is hand-carding to do. Both the partners in The Yarn Spinners send most of their wool to the Frankenthum Woolen Mills to have it carded on a big machine, but once in a while they want special effects and hand-card the wool.

Michael Coble helps his wife a great deal with the sheep, she says, and their older boys, Bob and Jeff, did the same when they were at home.

Girls Track Team Surprisingly Strong In Early Contests

Chelsea girls track coach Bill Bainton was grinning as he talked about his team's first week of competition. His squad won two dual meets they didn't figure to win and finished a strong third among 17 entrants in the invitational Chelsea Relays.

The Bulldog girls upset Jackson Lumen Christi, 65-63, on April 16 and came back to defeat Saline, 75-53, two days later. Last Saturday they were just eight points behind winning Dexter in the invitational.

"I'm not ready to say yet that this is the best team I've ever had at Chelsea, or to predict how it will do from here on. Our toughest competition is coming up. After we have run against Milan and Lincoln this week, and in the Mason Invitational on Saturday, I'll have a better idea about just how good we are."

"I do know this. We have strong entrants in every event, and that is something we haven't had before. We are a threat to place in every dual meet we run."

"We weren't supposed to beat Lumen Christi or Saline, and we won both meets because of our superior over-all strength. Our showing in the invitational pleased me. We were third behind Dexter and Milan, but the scores were close enough to make me think we have chances against them in dual meets."

Dexter won with 42 points, followed by Milan with 37 and Chelsea with 34. Tecumseh was fourth, just a point behind at 33, suggesting that the Southeastern Conference race will be very tight this year. Lincoln, which did not compete in the invitational, figures to be strong, too.

The victory over Lumen Christi was Chelsea's first ever in competition with the Titans, and was not decided until the final event of the day.

Chelsea gradually nibbled away at the lead in the running events, starting with a convincing win from the 3,200 relay of Amy Wolfgang, Kasey Anderson, Melanie Flanigan and Sallie Wilson, and a victory from the team of Laura Damm, Chris Neuman, Edie Harook and Tami Harris in the 800 relay.

Sallie Wilson won the 1,600, setting a school record with a 5:32.7. Freshman Kim Allen was third. Laura Damm won the 800 with Kim Collins third. In the best race of the meet, state placers Alana Davis of Lumen Christi and Amy Wolfgang of Chelsea went head-to-head in the 300 hurdles. Wolfgang pulled away over the final hurdles to edge her rival, 47.5 to :48.9, excellent times for early in the season. Debby Tiff's third pulled the Bulldogs to within three.

Tami Harris and Susan Jaques followed with a 1-2 in the 200 to boost Chelsea to a 59-55 lead, but Lumen Christi took the lead back with a 1-2 in the 3,200. However, Melanie Flanigan's third place with a career best 12:28.2 kept the Bulldogs in position to win.

A determined effort from the 1,600 relay of Anderson, Neuman, Damm and Wolfgang pulled out the relay in a 4:18.

Other scorers in the strong team effort were Edie Harook, third in the long jump; Anne Becker, a third in the high jump; Debby Tiff, second in the 100 hurdles; Susan Jaques and Stephanie Harms, second and third in the 100; Anderson second and Neuman third in the 400.

The girls got the SEC season off to a good start with its victory over Saline. Leading the way for Chelsea were Wolfgang with firsts in the 100 hurdles, 400 meter dash and 300 hurdles in :48.3.

Zerkel won the shot put and defeated defending SEC champion Franchois Benoit in the discus.

Sallie Wilson was also a double winner for the Bulldogs with victories in the 1,600 and 800 runs; heading a sweep in the 1,600 with Kim Allen second and Mary Ann Richardson first.

Other first places came from the 3,200 relay of Anderson, Collins, Flanigan and Damm, and Flanigan in the 3,200 as Chelsea took nine of the 16 events.

Chelsea took the early lead in the field events as Harook was second in the long jump and Anne Becker and Andrea Worthing placed 2-3 in the high jump. Besides Zerkel, the Bulldog throwers had fine days as Kathryn Morgan placed second in the shot and Rachel Schmell third in the discus.

Tiff took a third in the 100 hurdles and added a second in the 300 hurdles. Jaques in the 100 and Harris in the 200 added seconds in the sprints and Anderson was second in the 800. Damm was third in the 400 and Jennifer Rossi earned her first varsity point with a third in the 3,200.

The Bulldogs' 34 points in the Chelsea Invitational came on five second-place finishes in the 11-event meet.

In the field events, where two performers' best marks are added together, Chelsea's discus team of Kris Zerkel and Rachel Schmell were second with a 176-5 total.

Chelsea placed in four of the seven relays. The shuttle hurdle team of Kerry Henderson, Shannon Dunn, Debby Tiff and Amy Wolfgang placed second with a 1:11.4. Kasey Anderson, Laura Damm, Sallie Wilson and Melanie Flanigan combined to run an excellent 10:16.2 3,200 relay, good for second.

The spring medley, with Tami Harris running the 200, Susan Jaques and Stephanie Harms running 100's and Amy Wolfgang running the 400 ran 1:56.0, cutting .7 of a second off the school record set last year, on the way to their second-place finish.

Kasey Anderson, Chris Neuman, Laura Damm and Amy Wolfgang combined for an excellent 4:16.6 in the 1,600 relay for a convincing second behind Livonia Ladywood's meet-record time of 4:07.7.

UP AND AWAY: Mike Loftis, a sixth grade student at Beach Middle school, shows excellent form as he executes a long jump of 12 feet 4 inches during competition at the high school track last week.

Netters Improving Despite Defeats

The meet scores may not show it, but Chelsea's boys tennis team is getting better. The netters are 0-4 on the season after losing to Williamston, 6-1; Brooklyn Columbia Central, 4-3, and Howell, 6-1, this past week.

"We should have beaten Columbia Central," coach Rahn Rosentreter said, "and that loss was a disappointment. We hope to turn that around when we play them again on Friday. Williamston and Howell are just too strong for us at this point, but we weren't disgraced in either meet."

"We're playing better tennis as we go along. The boys are working very hard to improve, and their efforts are showing on the court. They may lose, but they aren't being blown away."

Rosentreter was especially pleased with No. 1 singles player, Mark Henson, who won a three-hour marathon match at Howell on Monday afternoon, 6-3, 1-6, 16-14.

"That last set was kind of unbelievable," Rosentreter said. Mark could have folded several times, but he kept reaching back for something extra, and it finally paid off. He wore the Howell boy out.

"It was a big win for Mark, who has to take on the other team's top player in every meet. That isn't easy considering our schedule. The victory at Howell meant a lot to him. He was very tired but very happy during the ride home."

Rosentreter also applauded the performances of No. 2 singles player Kirk Lawton, a freshman "who will get better as he gains experience"; Biff Bunten, No. 3 singles, and the No. 1 doubles duo of Steve Worthing and John Popovich. The latter won against both Williamston and Columbia Central.

Ken Nadeau of Chelsea is playing on the Tri-State University baseball team at Angola, Ind. He is a 1983 graduate of Chelsea High school, where he excelled in baseball as a pitcher and all-around player.

Bulldog JV's Again Victims of Bad Inning

Bad innings continue to plague Chelsea's junior varsity baseball team. The Bulldog JV's dropped an 8-5 decision to Brighton last Thursday, giving up five unearned runs in the fifth frame of an otherwise well played game. "We were cruising along and had a 5-2 lead going into the fifth against a good Brighton team," coach Jim Ticknor said. "We gave them eight outs in that inning, making five fundamental errors. We came back and played good ball afterward, but it was too late."

"We can't seem to shake the habit of playing bad defensive ball in one inning of every game. When we do, we'll be a good team."

Greg Haist pitched strongly for Chelsea despite taking the loss. "It wasn't Greg's fault," Ticknor said. "He pitched well enough to win, but his support let him down."

Matt Bohlender drove in two runs, and Jeff Harvey, Matt Koenn and Mark Bareis one each. The second game of a scheduled doubleheader was called by darkness after four innings with Brighton leading, 10-6.

"It was pretty sloppily played on both sides," Ticknor commented. "A highlight for us was some good pitching by Bareis."

The loss to Brighton made the JV's season record 1-3.

Bulldogs Lose Tough Game

Losing coaches usually don't want to talk about it, but varsity baseball mentor Wayne Welton wasn't unhappy to report his team's 5-4 loss to Brighton there last Thursday afternoon.

"You never like to lose, but this was a defeat we don't have to apologize for," Welton said. "Brighton is very good, and we played well against them. It was a fine ball game that could have gone either way."

"I just hope the boys don't get down on themselves, because they shouldn't. They've played good ball. We're 2-2 on the season, and both of the losses were to strong Class A teams. With a little bit of luck we could be 4-0. The breaks even up, and we'll get our share."

Chelsea took a 1-0 lead in the first inning against Brighton and held onto it until the fourth when the home team rallied for three runs off starting pitcher Dan Bellus.

The Bulldogs came back to tie the count at 4-all in the sixth, on a single by Todd Starkey, a two-run homer by Jim Toon and a clutch pinch-single by Keith Neibauer driving in Evan Roberts who had walked and moved to second on a sacrifice.

With Eric Schaffner pitching for Chelsea, Brighton advanced a runner to third in the bottom of the seventh, and a bloop single over the pulled-in Bulldog infield scored the tie-breaker.

"Eric made an excellent pitch, but the boy got just enough of his bat on it," Welton said. "The ball never left the infield and would have been caught if we had been playing at normal depth. It was one of those things, a piece of bad luck."

"It was too bad for Eric, who had pitched well and didn't deserve to lose. Dan threw pretty well, too, except for a couple of pitches that were hit a long way."

"We have a lot of pitching depth, several boys with good arms. What we don't have, yet, is a dominant pitcher like Jay Marshall was last year. I expect somebody will move into that role, but can't predict who it will be."

A second scheduled game at Brighton was called off after three innings because of darkness.

Dexter Area Youth Completes Air Force Basic Training

Airman Laurence T. O'Toole, son of Thomas F. and Helen M. O'Toole of 2530 Newlyn Rd., Dexter, has graduated from Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex.

During the six weeks of training the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

He is a 1984 graduate of Dexter High school.

Freshman Baseball Team Showing Improvement

Chelsea's freshman baseball team has lost its first four games, but coach Ted Hendricks isn't discouraged as he looks at the rest of a very tough schedule.

"All but six of our 18 games are booked against Class A schools," he noted. "We play Milan four times and Saline twice. They are the only other two schools in our league (Southeastern Conference) that play freshman baseball. All of our other opponents are Class A."

"It doesn't help any that our first six games are away from home."

"We have good talent and great desire. The boys are willing to be coached and want to learn the mechanics of the game. Even though they lost the first four, they improved in every game by cutting down on basic mistakes."

Thirty-seven boys turned out for freshman baseball. Hendricks had to cut the squad to 21, to get it down to manageable size. "I wish I could have kept all 37, but a coach just can't handle that many kids and do justice to them," he said.

The frosh lost a doubleheader to Howell there on April 16, 9-4 and 6-5. The second game went six innings. (A regulation freshman game is five innings.) At South Lyon last Saturday the freshmen dropped a twin-bill, 8-2 and 6-5.

"We had one bad inning in each game," Hendricks commented. "Otherwise, we could have won at least two and maybe three."

Greg Boughton and Mark Monroe have shown pitching promise. Boughton has impressed Hendricks with his control by giving up only one walk in each of two complete games.

Todd Thurkow, Randy Ferry, Rob Finch, Clay Hurd, Bobby Clouse, Tim Anderson, Chris Cheng, Chris Acree and Mark Skiff, among others, have gotten their bats on the ball and registered timely hits.

Diving Accident Seminars Slated

Michigan's water rescue teams, emergency medical technicians and hospital emergency room staffs can become better prepared to handle victims of diving accidents by attending seminars organized by the Marine Advisory Service of the Michigan Sea Grant College Program.

The seminars will feature presentations on sport diver training and knowledge of first aid, the EMT's response to diver injuries, cold water near-drowning, emergency room response and building a dive accident response network.

Jon Peterson, district extension sea grant agent, organized the series of four seminars to meet a growing need for professional development in this medical specialty field.

"We now have approximately 40,000 people diving in Michigan waters each year and have been fortunate to deal effectively with the few diving accidents we've experienced so far," Peterson says. "We believe our response to any accident can be more effective if we plan and train in advance. These seminars offer an excellent opportunity for professionals, as well as sport and commercial divers, diving instructors and captains of diving charter boats, to learn the latest techniques for treating victims of diving accidents and to establish plans and communication networks for responding to diving emergencies."

The meetings are April 27 at Western Michigan University, in Kalamazoo; May 4 at Lake Superior State College, Sault Ste. Marie; May 5 at the Forest Inn, Munising; and May 11 at the Huron Community Center, Bad Axe.

The seminars are being co-sponsored by the Michigan Sea Grant College Program. The Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service, Bronson Methodist Hospital, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration Diving Program, the Michigan Department of Public Health

Emergency Medical Service, Upper Peninsula Emergency Medical Services, the U.S. Coast Guard, the Divers Alert Network, the National Association of Underwater Instructors, Mid-America Branch, Huron County Emergency Management, the Great Lakes Shipwreck Historical Society and Munising Memorial Hospital.

The Michigan Sea Grant College Program is a co-operative effort of the University of Michigan and Michigan State University in Great Lakes research, education and extension.

For more information about registration for the seminar series, contact Peterson at (517) 362-3449.

Cedar Ridge Pony Club Sponsoring Training Clinic

Cedar Ridge Pony Club is sponsoring their fourth annual Combined Training Clinic at Waterloo Hunt Club This Spring. This open clinic will be held on Saturday, May 18 from 9 to 6:30 p.m.

The event offers riding instruction with question and answer periods for all three phases of combined training at all levels. Each class will be 1 hour 15 minutes, with five or less riders. Riders will be scheduled according to experience. Riders interested in beginning any of the three phases are encouraged to participate.

Instructors this year are: dressage, Sue Ashley; stadium jumping, Richard Williams; cross country, Jeane Metsker.

You must be pre-registered to ride. The deadline is May 3. Because of small class size entries will be limited.

For pre-registration forms, please contact: Mary Beth Rosenberg at 475-9736, or Marica Piper at 426-8876.

Amy Unterbrink Coming Back from Arm Surgery

Amy Unterbrink perhaps should have quit while she was ahead during the April 12-13 weekend softball series between the University of Michigan and Indiana University played at Ann Arbor.

Unterbrink, who pitched Chelsea High school to a state Class B championship in 1982, threw a pair of shut-outs for Indiana in the four-game series, recording a no-hitter and a one-hitter.

Her coach called on her to pitch both ends of Saturday's doubleheader, and that proved to be too much. She gave up four runs in the first two innings of the second game and eventually became the losing pitcher.

Unterbrink received shoddy support from her Hoosier teammates in that loss. They committed four errors, including three in a row which set the stage for a bases-loaded triple that put the game out of Indiana's reach.

Amy is coming back from surgery on her pitching arm. The operation relieved pressure on a nerve that sensitizes the two middle fingers of her right hand. The fingers had "gone dead" to the point where she had no feeling in them.

Many years of throwing softballs long and hard brought on the problem. Unterbrink hasn't been pitching as much this spring as she did in former seasons when she routinely hurled both games of double-headers and sometimes worked as many as four games in two days.

Her arm isn't 100 percent yet, but is getting better. Her season record as of April 13 was 10-5-1, and her victories included four no-hitters. Three of her losses were one-run defeats, two of them 1-0 heart-breakers.

Amy remains one of the best college softball pitchers in the country and will improve as her recovering arm gets stronger, according to her coach, Gayle Blevins. She maybe tried to do a little too much in the Michigan series, and she didn't get a lot of help from her infield in her final start.

DAN KEANE of the Michigan Department of Agriculture inspects a Colorado blue spruce, tagged for transplanting from the Chelsea Rod & Gun Club forest to the lawn of Beach Middle school. At right is Fred Klink, Jr., president of the club.

Rod & Gun Club Donates Trees

Anticipating Chelsea Arbor Days, 10 Colorado blue spruce trees have been selected for removal from the Chelsea Rod and Gun Club forest for replanting on the south lawn of the Charles S. Cameron Pool at Beach Middle school.

The trees chosen for transplanting are about seven years old. From now on they will grow about one foot a year and are expected to attain a height of 80 to 100 feet.

Before removal, each of the gift trees had to pass a health inspection by a representative of the Michigan Department of Agriculture. The inspection was made last Sunday morning by Dan Keane of the MDA plant industry division. Because he lives on Clark Lake Rd., close to the club forest, the task of inspection was a pleasant morning outing.

All of the selected trees were in fine health and received Keane's approval. With him during the in-

Advice Given For Proper Tree Planting

Home owners and other property owners are urged to celebrate 1985 Chelsea Arbor Days by planting trees and shrubs in their own soil. "Properly planted and cared for, various trees will flower in the spring, provide shade in the summer, nest havens for the songbirds and nuts for our squirrels," said Fred Klink, Jr., president and chief conservation officer of the Chelsea Rod and Gun Club. "There is the continuing pleasure of watching them grow and the knowledge that their beauty will be enjoyed for generations to come."

Klink offered this list of do's and don'ts which he attributed to the Washtenaw County Soil Conservation District:

THE DO'S

DO PLANTING TREES
DO water your trees freely the first year. Saturate the soil at least weekly the first year.

DO mulch around your trees. Mulch on the surface will hold the moisture in the soil.

DO plant your trees as soon as possible after they are received. If you can't, be sure to keep the packing material moist and store the seedlings in a cool spot.

DO look up when choosing a spot for a shade tree. Are there overhead utilities such as power lines? Will the tree be too close to your home and mar the siding or dump leaves in the gutter when fully grown?

DO control weeds and grass around your trees. Your newly planted trees will not compete with established vegetation.

DO protect your small trees from lawnmowers and other equipment. They are small and will be hard to see.

THE DON'TS

OF PLANTING TREES
DON'T fertilize your seedlings the first year.

DON'T put mulch in the hole with the roots of your tree. Mulch will absorb the moisture and dry the roots of your tree.

DON'T let the roots dry out when planting your trees. Carry them in a pail of water, removing one plant at a time as planting progresses.

DON'T plant trees over underground utilities such as sewers and tile. Also, tree roots are powerful and can lift or break sidewalks and foundations if planted too close.

DON'T plant your trees more than 1/2" deeper than they were in the nursery. Holes for the trees should be large enough that the roots are not bent.

DON'T choose a tree just because it is supposed to be fast growing or "you like it." Choose a tree that has a form, color, flowers, or fruit that fits your needs and will grow well in your soil and climate.

spection was Fred Klink, Jr., president and chief conservation officer of the club. Other officers and members used heavy earth moving equipment and chain saws to complete a one-acre opening in the forest for recreational and educational purposes.

ORV Safety Classes Promote Trail Caution

Michigan's Off-Road Vehicle (ORV) trails are safer for all users, thanks to youth safety education courses funded by ORV registration fees. ORV safety certificates are required for all users from 12 to 15 years old, unless the vehicle is used on land owned or directly controlled by the parent or legal guardian of the child.

Since 1977, youngsters in this age bracket have been allowed to operate ORV's on designated trails after completing the training classes. These classes are offered by clubs, schools and other community organizations. Students receive a comprehensive training manual with units on trail riding techniques, riding apparel and trail survival and first aid. Respect for the environment and other users is also emphasized.

ORV registrations, required for users in Michigan, will expire on April 30. Renewal of currently registered vehicles may be done by mail, with users returning the forms they received with their payment. New owners, or owners of previously unregistered vehicles, must take proof of ownership and paid sales tax to the nearest Secretary of State office. Registrations purchased this year are $9 and are valid for three years.

Exploration Days Registration Date Near for 4 H's

Time is running out for 4-H members to register for Exploration Days, the annual state-wide event held June 19-21 at Michigan State University.

The deadline for registration is May 1. The event attracts approximately 4,000 4-H members and leaders from across the state, who participate in learning activities on topics ranging from rocketry and computer programming to fine arts and animal science.

This year's theme, "4-H—Passport to Understanding," emphasizes many international options and activities, including an international bazaar.

Safety Tips Important For Wading Anglers

Each year at this time thousands of sport fishermen take to Michigan's lakes and streams in waist-high waders or hip boots to drop a line and bring in that "bigunker."

For the vast majority of anglers wading can be rewarding and fun, but for the few who are not careful, the sport can bring trouble and sometimes tragedy.

As the state's fishing season gets underway, Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC) and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) are urging anglers to use common sense and observe certain rules when using waders and hip boots.

According to Ray Rustem, MUCC northern Michigan field representative, anglers who are trying a fishing area for the first time should play it safe and take some extra precautions. He recommends carrying a staff or tree limb to test the riverbed in the area they are fishing.

"Stream anglers should use a small staff or a fallen tree branch to poke the riverbed for drop-offs or mucky areas," Rustem advises. "Once they're sure the area is safe, they can jab the stick into the riverbed and use it the next time they move further out."

Rustem says anglers can also use a stick or a small tree limb to get themselves out of trouble while wading.

"One time I was wading a stream in southern Michigan when I stepped off a ridge into some heavy muck," Rustem recalls. "I used a tree branch to steady myself while I got back to safety."

Eric Olsen, DNR marine safety program co-ordinator, advises anglers to plan ahead, use good equipment and proper safety procedures and, above all, remain calm if they get into trouble.

Olsen says anglers wearing hip boots or waders can get into trouble for several reasons:

—They forget to wear a flotation device while wading.

—They forget to secure a belt around the waist of their waders.

—Once in trouble, they try to fight the current in the stream or lake.

"Most fishermen and women have common sense, use the right equipment and stay close to shore and out of trouble," Olsen says, "but for those who do fall in, they'd better prepare for it ahead of time or just be lucky."

Olsen, who conducts water safety demonstrations for individuals and groups, says people are always surprised to learn that water-filled waders will float to the top. "For years, people have been told that if you fall in the water with hip boots or waders you will sink like a rock. You don't. You float right to the top, every time."

Olsen says the key to reaching safety is to relax, remain level-headed, and avoid wild, panicky movement.

"When you start fighting the current and swimming, then you have a tendency to go down," Olsen says. "If you get down there and start fighting, you might stay down."

The marine safety expert advises anglers who do slip into the water to bend their knees, trap air in their waders and float to the surface.

"If you don't fight the current or try to swim under water, you will float to the surface," Olsen says. "Once your head is above water, try to remain vertical and use a steady breast stroke until you reach safety."

Both Olsen and Rustem note that the best way for anglers to avoid trouble is to plan ahead and use good quality equipment.

Rustem advises wading anglers to use quality waders that are secured at the waist by a belt to help trap air. The MUCC staffer notes that securing waders at the waist also prevents water from rushing in if the angler should accidentally slip on the stream bed.

Olsen recommends the use of a life jacket or buoyant fishing vest that will act as a flotation device if the angler slips into the water.

"The angler that's in the best shape is the one that wears a life jacket or flotation vest," Olsen says. "The angler that has one of those has it made. He or she is going to survive no matter what happens."

OUT IN THE OPEN

By BILL MULLENDORE

Last week I wrote about some mixed memories of past trout season opening days. Three days from now the 1985 season will start on the stroke of midnight.

I won't be there in body to participate. Two bad falls and a near-drowning convinced me a couple of years ago that I had grown too old to wade in streams which became more treacherous every spring. The sunken logs, hidden rocks, shifting sands, and depths that change from knee-high to over-the-head in a single step got to be more than I could handle.

I don't swim very well at best, and I sure don't set any records when encumbered by waders, layers of heavy clothes and a load of tackle. After floundering out of a deep hole, crawling ashore and coughing up a quart of so of mighty cold water, I decided that was enough. No mess of fish is worth that much.

I'll be there in spirit next Saturday morning, however, and will be envying the younger men and women who still have the strength, stamina, agility and courage to seek for trout by wading into their aquatic element. If humans had really been intended to enter the water in search of fish, they would have been born with gills and fins.

Perhaps the best I can do in salute to this year's opening day is quote from notes I recorded a long time ago when I religiously kept a diary of experiences in the out-of-doors. The two sets of words were written 366 days apart back during the early 1950's. They tell of two opening days and, if nothing else, reflect the extremes of angling. Both days were spent on the west branch of the Maple River in Emmett county west of Pellston, a stream that was then loaded with brook trout and is still said to offer fine sport for those who know how, when and where to fish it.

Opening Day, 1953—
"Had the best first-day trout fishing ever in my life. Still can't quite believe it. River low and clear, about like mid-June. Water warm enough to wade comfortably with only one suit of insulated underwear inside waders. Local people say it was a comparatively snow-free winter followed by an unusually warm, dry spring. The river showed it."

"Got into the stream at crack of dawn, a dumb thing to do but woke up early and decided I might as well be fishing as fretting because I wasn't. Spring trout aren't active until mid-day, a bit of knowledge acquired the hard way from many years of trying to prove otherwise. Beautiful sunrise, one of the prettiest. The world looked like gold for a magical few minutes. Never felt better about being alive."

"No signs of fish activity early. Tried variety of dry flies, wets and streamers with no takers. Put on a small gray nymph and finally aroused some interest—four hits in the deep run just below the hemlocks. Hooked two trout and kept a nine-incher. The other might have been legal but deserved to grow, so put him back."

"Hungry by 10 o'clock. Ate lunch on the high bank underneath the hemlocks. No matter how much food taken along, I never seem to have enough. What was supposed to last all day went down in half an hour. Leaned back against a tree and snoozed. Bright sun delightful. Awoke to splashes of feeding trout. Three fish rising in pool below me. Small flies hatching. Scooped one up. Looked a little like a March Brown, so tied one on, size 16. Hooked all three risers and creeled the last, a 14-incher—lovely trout."

"Had a track meet the next three hours. Fish rising in every pool and pocket. Last count of rises, must have had to be at least 50. Wore out three March Browns, before quitting after landing 26 trout. Kept eight needed to finish limit. Smallest the nine-incher caught first. Biggest the 14-incher taken right after lunch. Rest 10-12 inches. As fine a bunch of brook trout as I've ever caught. Creel barely held them. Could have filled a bushel basket had I wanted to violate."

"Some day!"

Opening Day, 1954—
"Hope springs eternal, but any thought of repeating last year dashed when it started to snow just north of Clare on the drive up last night. Crept, crawled and skidded rest of way. Should have turned back, but still haven't gotten that smart."

"Six inches of snow on ground and more coming down at daylight. A thoroughly miserable morning—gray, cold, wet, slippery. Went fishing anyway because that is what I was there to do."

"River out of its banks, running all over the woods. Water the color of creamed coffee and cold enough that it would have been iced over, but for current that kept it moving. Got into the stream at a gravel shallow normally just deep enough to cover ankles and was in water up to waist."

"Went through the motions of fishing. Saw nothing, caught nothing, and didn't expect to. Any trout with a grain of brains was hiding under a log and holding on to keep from being washed away."

"Gave up after a couple of hours. Have been as cold and miserable before at some time in life, but can't remember when. Back to the car, ran the engine with heater on full for half an hour before getting enough feeling in fingers and toes to drive. Someday will learn it's sometimes better to stay home, but haven't yet."

What a difference a year can make!

4-H Spring Achievement Award Recipients Announced

The annual 4-H Spring Achievement Program was held on Saturday, April 13, at Saline High school. The day-long program included the exhibition and evaluation of 4-H projects in woodcraft, leathercraft, demonstrations, cultural arts and crafts, clothing construction, and crocheting. Along with these activities, there were two modeling style shows presented in the afternoon and evening.

Facts on Drinking Brochure Offered To Teen-Agers

For many teen-agers it is easier to get a six pack than to get basic facts about drinking and what alcohol can do to you.

With that in mind, as a community service Brighton Hospital is making available free copies of "Playing It Smart: Facts for Teen-agers About Drinking," a brochure prepared by the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism. "Playing It Smart" answers some questions teen-agers frequently have about drinking and shows how alcohol can affect driving ability by interfering with judgment, muscle co-ordination, vision, and reaction time. The brochure also suggests ways of coping with pressure from friends to drink and what to do if a friend who has drunk too much wants to drive. Single copies of "Playing It Smart" may be obtained by contacting Brighton Hospital's Community Relations Department at (313) 227-1211, ext. 276.

The Surgeon General has called smoking "the most important of the known modifiable risk factors for coronary heart disease."

Junior Models—1st, Sarah Weidmayer of Ann Arbor; 2nd, Jill Sherill of South Lyon; 3rd, Jennifer Bennett of Dexter. The other seven of the top 10 were Laurie Honbaum of Chelsea, Nick Gordon of Saline, Marie Ball of Manchester, Debbie Koenn of Chelsea, Michelle Stimpson of Ann Arbor, Robin Silvers of South Lyon and Beth Wolfrom of Ann Arbor.

Senior Models—1st, Kelly Bristle of Manchester; 2nd, Kim Bailey of Manchester; 3rd, Teresa Brown of South Lyon. The remaining seven top 10 finishers were Tricia Horning of Manchester, Jan Ehnis of Whitmore Lake, Amy Wolfgang of Chelsea, Christine Pearson of Northville, Diane Braun of Ann Arbor, Sara Samonek of Manchester and Laura Shope of Ann Arbor.

For more information on the Spring Achievement Program or on any other 4-H programs and learning opportunities, please call the Washtenaw County 4-H office at 973-9510.

VERY PRETTY, but also very practical: These young ladies modeled the clothing they constructed at the Washtenaw County 4-H Spring Achievement Style Show at Saline High school,

Saturday evening, April 13. They are from left, Christine McLaughlin, Becky Kern, Tara Roehm and Michelle Smith, all of Chelsea and members of the Terrific Tailors 4-H Club.

SISTERS MARY AND ROSE GRIFKA of Chelsea won leathercraft awards at the Washtenaw County 4-H spring achievement show held at Saline High school earlier this month. Mary was last summer's Chelsea Community Fair queen.

"Pansies are another flower we use for our dyes, and milkweed is very good," the ladies agreed, "also birch and alder leaves."

"Blues and greens are very difficult colors for us to produce in our dyes," the pair noted, "so we buy indigo and woad."

Barbara Ullman's sheep are mostly crossbreeds, she explained. She has 13 sheep and a pair of Angora goats. Her sheep, she says, are Corriedale, Romney and Finn.

Karakul sheep originated in the Bokhara region of Russia, which is still the leading producer of this breed of sheep. Karakuls also are raised in India, in southwest Africa, and in southeastern Europe.

"Importation of the Karakuls to this country, where the breed is not well-known, took place between 1900 and 1920," Barbara noted.

DAVID ROEHM does the sheep-shearing for Barbara Ullman. He is shown in the photo above as he collects some of the wool which will be used for spinning into the interesting yarns which Barbara and Mary Jane Coble offer from their unusual business, "The Yarn Spinners." Barbara is a Chelsea area resident, and her partner, Mary Jane, live in the Dexter area.

RAM LAMBS are as curious as people, and when something unusual is taking place, they hurry to investigate. These lambs part of the animals owned by Barbara Ullman of Island Lake Rd. were sired by a mostly Romney ram. Each of the sheep in her flock has its own name and its own personality, Barbara explained, and in fact, she can identify each animal even in the dark. Barbara has 13 sheep in her flock, mostly crossbreeds. Mary Jane Coble, her business partner in The Yarn Spinners, raises purebred Karakuls. The two ladies found a mutual interest in raising sheep, wool gathering, dyeing and spinning novel yarns.

Marijuana Facts To Be Discussed at Brighton Hospital

"What a Family Should Know About Marijuana" is the topic of Brighton Hospital's May 7 Community Education Program.

The free program begins at 6 p.m. with a lecture by a member of the hospital's counseling staff who works with patients who are dependent on alcohol and marijuana. Afterwards the counselor will answer questions from the audience and discuss how family members can obtain help for a loved one who is chemically dependent and for themselves.

According to the Michigan Substance Abuse Information Clearinghouse, regular marijuana users are more likely to experiment with other drugs such as hashish, hallucinogens, amphetamines, and occasionally, barbiturates and heroin. Regular users also combine the use of alcohol with marijuana, which is more hazardous than the use of either drug alone.

Brighton Hospital's Community Education Program is held on the first Tuesday evening of each month and is currently concentrating on providing family members with basic information about alcoholism and substance abuse.

The hospital is located on E. Grand River, near Exit 151 of the I-96 Freeway. For additional information, contact the hospital at (313) 227-1211, ext. 278.

Some 5,200 new animal species are discovered every year, reports, International Wildlife. According to a French zoologist, more than 1.2 million types of animals have been identified, 70 percent of them insects.

FREE HEARING TESTS

Jackson, Mich.—Free electronic hearing tests will be given on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, April 29, 30 and May 1 from 9 A.M. to 5 P.M. at Beckord's Hearing Aid Center.

A hearing aid specialist will be available to give these free tests at 2922 Wildwood Ave., Jackson, Mich.

The tests have been arranged for anyone who suspects they are losing their hearing. Such persons generally say they can hear but cannot understand conversation. Testing with the latest electronic equipment will indicate whether it can be helped electronically.

Everyone, especially those over 60, should have an electronic hearing test at least once a year. If there is a hearing problem, a free electronic hearing test may reveal that newly developed methods of correction will help, even for those who have been told in the past that a hearing aid would not help them.

For those wishing the free test but want to avoid waiting, an appointment for a specific day and time may be arranged by phoning 517-782-5724.

These free hearing tests are given for the purpose of making selections and adaptations of electronic hearing instruments.

Available for inspection on the test days will be the All-In-The-Ear hearing aid which is especially designed for nerve deafness.

CATHY McCLUNG and friends display one of her paintings at the Ducks Unlimited Banquet held at the K-C Hall in Dexter, April 12. Cathy donated several of her artistic pieces to the event. A wildlife artist whose home is located in the Dexter area, Cathy combines a love for nature with her natural artistic talents. She explains she is "self-taught" in her art work which features mainly watercolors. Most noted for her songbird originals and prints, Cathy was a finalist in both the 1982 and 1983 MUCC Artist of the Year competitions, as well as placing with the top artists in the current year's contest. Shown with Cathy are committee members Walt Brown, left, Tom and Jack Ceo, and at far right, Craig Wales, Department of Natural Resources official for Michigan.

Ducks Unlimited Banquet Held at Dexter K. of C. Hall

Western Washtenaw Chapter of Ducks Unlimited members and guests met April 12 at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Dexter for their fifth annual banquet.

Co-chairing the 1985 Ducks Unlimited committee were Tom Serwell and Bill Clark. Fred Swope serves as treasurer and Larry Larson as secretary. Donation chairman this year was Tom Ceo.

Bill Pierce served as the 1985 dinner chairman, he was also master of ceremonies for the event.

David D'Hulster serves in the position of Ducks Unlimited regional director.

In their greeting to the members and guests attending this year's banquet and auctions, Serwell and Clark said:

"Spring is that special time of year which not only marks the change of seasons, but also signals a new beginning. We are fortunate to experience the flights of migrating waterfowl briefly stopping at local lakes and rivers on the journey to their northern breeding grounds.

"We are indeed fortunate and proud that monies raised by Ducks Unlimited through events such as this help to procure, develop and protect waterfowl breeding habitat in Michigan, the United States and Canada. Your generosity in the auctions and raffles will help to preserve these precious natural resources for this and future generations."

The evening's program included a cocktail hour followed by a hearty meal prepared by Romanoff and his staff. As the plates were cleared away, the silent and live auctions commenced.

Major donors this year included Deb Wales, Wild Wings, The Loft, Herb Loner, Curtis Mathes, Klave's Marina, Daniel Giardina, Hearts and Flowers, Village Flowers & Gifts, Mark Hettig, Casey Charters, Rammy Chevrolet-Datsun, Inc., Gallup-Silkworth, Inc., First Impression Printing, Ann Arbor Rod and Gun, Sportsman's Village, Ann Arbor Animal Hospital and 4-Fun Charters.

Listed among the artist donors contributing to the excitement this year were Cathy McClung, Bob Bolle, Charles Mosher, Larry Larson, John Wurster, Mike Van Housen, Tim Widener, Rod Lawrence, Jim Foote, Harry Antis, Nancy Pallen, Tom Serwell and Harry Wilsher.

A host of additional donors who contributed merchandise, services or cash to support the annual event and help make it a success each year were named in the banquet program for 1985.

Impressive bidding was encouraged by professional auctioneers Lloyd Braun and Jerry Helmer at the live auction, their delight in helping support the project was only exceeded by the dozens of successful bidders who trudged home after such an exciting evening with smiles of satisfaction matching the gleam of accomplishment in their eyes as they viewed their newly acquired prizes.

Committee members continued their traditional role as grand champion clean-ups again in 1985, weary but remaining until the wee hours before they departed, even though thoughts of "next year" were already forming in their heads.

"WHITE-THROAT, YELLOW VIOLET" was part of the artistry auctioned at the Western Washtenaw Ducks Unlimited Banquet, April 12, in Dexter. Wildlife artist Cathy McClung was there to personally sign her works for delighted successful bidders. She is shown with Bill Clark, left, and Tom Serwell, who co-chaired the 1985 banquet event.

Farm Accidents Are Very Costly

During periods of financial strain, farm managers need to make an extra effort to minimize hazards and risks that can lead to accidents and huge medical bills.

"An accident that prevents someone from working is costly, especially on a farm," says Howard Doss, extension agricultural safety specialist at Michigan State University. "The costs of an accident to a family member in care and lost work could push a family over the financial breaking point, especially if the one injured is the primary operator," he says.

Accidents are more likely to occur when people are under stress, because they tend to be distracted by their problems and not concentrating on what they are working on at the moment.

Costs due to accidents can add up quickly, Doss says. In one case, a 12-year-old boy lost an arm in a piece of farm machinery. The resulting costs for the hospital stay, surgery, rehabilitation and other incidentals totaled $143,559 one year later.

If the accident had necessitated hiring replacement labor, farm modifications in response to a permanent disability, or lost wages, the total cost of the accident would have been even higher.

To avoid this situation, all possible measures should be taken to reduce farm hazards and risks. Make sure every family member and hired laborer knows and follows all of the proper farm safety procedures, and never allow a child to try a job he/she is not ready or able to do.

Doss says having family health insurance is mandatory, no matter how financially strapped the operation is. Health coverage can provide the necessary cushion to keep the farm afloat if an accident should occur.
