Two Blood Clinics Set This Week

Chelsea residents have two easy chances to donate blood this week in separate drives at Chelsea High school today and the VFW Hall on Saturday.

You may donate blood at the high school from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. today or at the VFW Hall on Main St. on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday's drive is sponsored by the Chelsea VFW. Last year's drive netted 136 pints of blood.

As warm weather approaches, blood needs in the community begin to rise.

It takes all types of blood to ensure a safe and adequate supply of blood for the community. In southeastern Michigan, more patients are type "O" positive than any other blood type. Fortunately, more of the population are also "O" positive.

Out of 100 donors in the region, 36 are "O" positive, 32 are "A" positive, 11 are "B" positive and 4 are "AB" positive, 7 are "O" negative or "A" negative, 2 are "B" negative and only 1 is "AB" negative.

To learn more about your blood type, donate blood at one of the Chelsea blood drives. Not only will you learn your blood type, you will also help save lives.

Blood may be donated by anyone in good health who weighs a minimum of 110 pounds and is between the ages of 17 and 65.

CHELSEA HIGH SCHOOL CLASS OF '59 recently donated $250.82 to the Chelsea Scholarship and Financial Aid Committee. The class voted to give the money at its 25th reunion last year. Presenting the award to committee chairman Dick McCalla, in the striped shirt, is class president Pat Merkel. From left, behind them, are Don Wood, Sue Wood, Jerry Satterthwaite, Gus Steger, and Veretta Whitaker, all members of the reunion committee. Members of the Chelsea chapter of the National Honor Society will be selling tags this Friday and Saturday to support the work of the committee.

"I don't know who Mrs. Boyle is," a school district spokesperson said, "I don't know her first name and wish I did." One of the honor students named her as the most influential teacher in her life, the rules don't require that the teacher be in the Chelsea district, and we've had some from other school systems named in past years. We invited Mrs. Boyle to the honors banquet but she can't get here."

Three Escapees from Camp Waterloo Caught

Three Camp Waterloo inmates who escaped around midnight, Monday, April 29 have all been recaptured, according to Chelsea Police.

The three men, who all left at the same time, were found in different places.

One of the men, Michael A. Williams, 31, serving five to 10 years for assault to murder and two years for possession of firearms, was picked up at a phone booth at Cavanaugh Lake Rd. and Glazier Rd. on Tuesday, April 30 by police. He was reportedly wearing a blue jogging outfit with brown dress shoes at the time of his capture.

Another man, Clifford L. Boone, 27, serving three to 15 years for breaking and entering, was caught by Chelsea police, with help from the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department, near I-94 and the Chrysler Proving Grounds. Boone offered no resistance, police said. Police were tipped off to Boone's whereabouts by a Pierce Rd. resident.

The final man, Oliver Harris, 28, also serving three to 15 years for breaking and entering, was caught near Detroit.

Ron Fosters Find Life Very Different in Saudi Arabia

Some might say Ron Foster was out of his mind. He and his family moved to a place where the police control how they dress, where the possession of alcohol is a jailable offense, where women can't walk the streets by themselves or drive a car, and where teenagers can't date.

And, where gasoline is 41 cents a gallon.

"I find it fascinating to work in different cultures," Foster says of his move almost five years ago to Saudi Arabia, to work with the U. S. Bureau of the Census under the umbrella of the Saudi Arabia Joint Commission on Economic Co-operation. "It's about as different there as you can get." In addition to experiencing the culture, the pay is exceptional, he has free use of a car, and there are other economic incentives.

Foster was in town recently to celebrate the 50th wedding anniversary of his parents, the Allen Fosters. He is a 1956 graduate of Chelsea High school, and his brother Dick is a Chelsea police officer. He works in Saudi Arabia as a computer programmer and analyst, conducting many types of statistical surveys for the Saudi government. The program was established by Henry Kissinger in 1975.

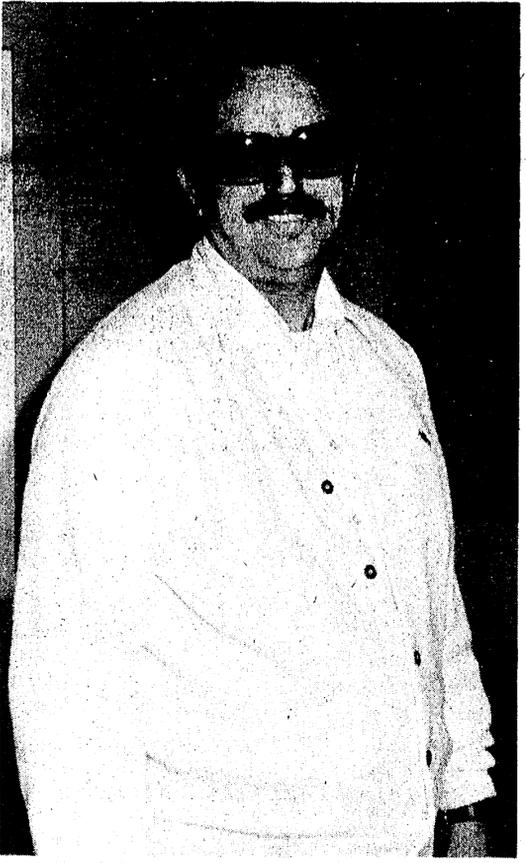

His, and wife Christine's, home for the past four years four months has been Riyadh, the capital city, almost in the center of the country. It's also the home of King Fayd, the country's Islamic ruler. The Fosters live in a compound, which is essentially a building with a wall around it, that holds 24 families, mostly Americans. Family life, he says, is a very private matter in the country, which is the reason for the wall.

As an American worker, he is merely a guest in the country, with no special privileges or diplomatic immunity. He and his wife have to obey all the rules and customs, which can seem overwhelming to an outsider. For example, he has an American friend who is serving a six-month jail term for making wine. Their sons Steven, 21, and Jeffery, 18, escaped most of the fun, though because after ninth grade they had to go outside the country to complete their educations. Jeffery is currently finishing high school in Mayorca, Spain.

"Everytime my wife leaves, she says its like getting out of prison," Foster says. "The culture there is very restrictive, and it's especially difficult for women."

A woman in Saudi Arabia is required to be fully clothed, he says, from her neck to her ankles, and she is supposed to be covered to her elbows.

"American women don't have to wear the veils, though," he says. "The religious police control the way people dress, and we don't mess with them," he says. (Continued on page five)

RON FOSTER has spent more than four years working in Saudi Arabia as a computer programmer in a restrictive culture. Ron, a 1956 graduate of Chelsea High school, recently visited his parents for their 50th wedding anniversary.

Tires Slashed Saturday At 8 Homes

A vandal or vandals slashed automobile tires at eight separate residences on Saturday night, May 4, causing approximately $1,000 damage, Chelsea police have reported.

Five of the eight incidences occurred on Chandler St. The others were on Dale St., Arthur St., and in the parking lot of Chelsea Lanes. At one of the Chandler St. homes, four separate vehicles had a total of six tires slashed.

All the incidences appear to have occurred roughly between 8 p.m. and midnight, according to police.

"We haven't had anything like this for seven or eight years," said Chief Lenard McDougall.

McDougall said he doesn't think there is any link to festivities connected with the prom.

According to the police reports, the vandals appeared to have used a knife and most of the slash marks were less than an inch long. All but one of the incidents were reported the next day.

McDougall said he suspects that pre-high-school age children were involved, but that the incident is under investigation.

Most of the cars were parked in driveways.

SCHOLARSHIP MONEY is presented to Dick McCalla, chairman of the Chelsea Scholarship and Financial Aid Committee, by Debbie Peck, the president of the Modern Mothers Study Club. The check, for $500 will be used to fund a scholarship for a worthy, graduating Chelsea High school senior.

Police, FBI Hold Seminar On Robberies

Chelsea Police Department, in conjunction with the Detroit office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, held a seminar on what to do during a bar robbery for Chelsea bank and savings-and-loan personnel.

The seminar, held Monday, April 29 at Citizens Trust, was conducted by Jerry Craig of the FBI. It covered a wide variety of topics including who to contact and how to avoid antagonizing robbers. It also covered who an employee should and shouldn't talk to about the details of the robbery. A short movie was also presented on the subject.

The seminar might fall into the "it never hurts to be prepared" category because it has been eight or nine years since a Chelsea bank has been robbed, according to Chelsea Police Chief Lenard McDougall.

CHS Forensics Team Captures Fifth in State

Chelsea High school's forensics team took fifth place in the state in class B with their performance in the Forensics State Meet at the University of Michigan, Saturday, May 4.

More than 50 teams throughout the state took part, some with as few as one competitor and others with a "busload" of team members, according to coach Bill Coelius.

Individual rankings were calculated without regard to school size.

Chelsea's duo team of Chris Herter and Mike Goodwin took sixth place for their Duo Interpretation and won a trophy for their efforts.

In the Multiple "Games" category, the team of Doug Otto, Mike Carignan, Rod Satterthwaite, Mark Stebelton, and Scott Miller finished eighth, which is the best any Chelsea multiple team has ever done, Coelius said.

The other Duo Interpretation team of Susie Nye and Kim Howard finished 13th.

Laura Koepele finished in 10th place for her sales presentation on bottled water.

Laura Goderis and Kirsten

Erickson, competing in oratory, finished in 15th and 18th places, respectively.

In the serious reading category, Alison Chasteen was in 18th place.

Jeff Mason took 20th place for his humorous reading.

Mark Neff finished in 20th place for his serious reading.

Scholarship Fund Drive Slated Friday, Saturday

Members of the Chelsea Chapter of the National Honor Society will be on the streets this Friday and Saturday, May 10 and 11, selling tags to support the work of the Chelsea Scholarship and Financial Aid Committee.

The local chapter will be collecting from 2:30 p.m. to 6 p.m., on Friday, and from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday. Participating students will be properly identified. All money donated will go into the Chelsea High school scholarship fund.

The money is distributed to qualified Chelsea High school students to help them continue their education. The awards, which are given on Class Night in June, are for scholarship, leadership and participation in school activities. The minimum award is usually $100.

"We cannot say too often how important the community's participation is to the success of the scholarship fund," said committee chairman Dick McCalla. "We are so grateful for all the past support we have received. We appreciate everyone's effort."

Last year there were 22 scholarships awarded, five more than the previous year. This year, McCalla said, he hopes there will be even more.

For those who miss the fund drive, contributions may also be mailed directly to the Chelsea Scholarship Fund in care of Chelsea High school.

Legislature Completing Farm Loan Proposal

The Legislature is nearing completion of a $70 million loan subsidy program for farmers which is the cornerstone of a four-part package proposed by Governor James Blanchard to aid the agricultural industry.

The loans are intended to help cash-poor farmers with spring-planting needs but planting is now underway and the loans will be just behind the greatest need period.

Blanchard's package also includes a speeded-up farm financial survey, due in early May, to determine the scope of the problem, a toll-free hotline to coordinate assistance and an expanded emergency management assistance team to help farmers evaluate their management practices.

Michigan's agricultural diversity has helped minimize the financial crisis compared to some other states, Blanchard said, adding, "We will do what we can to cope with it so we do not separate the family from the farm and create serious long-term problems. This program is not a panacea to a problem that is national and international in scope."

The loan program, supported by certificates of deposit from the state's common cash fund in farm-area bands, would be a "couple of points" below market interest rates and made available to farmers shut out of other financing sources, State Treasurer Robert Bowman said.

He said the first priority for loans would be for seed, fertilizer, chemicals and breeding stock.

"Our goal is to help farmers who do not qualify otherwise for loans," Bowman said. The lower interest rate would make the difference in many instances on whether a loan would be feasible for some farmers, he added.

The program, similar to a $150 million loan made to Chrysler Corp. in 1980, will cost the state about $1 million, he said, because of the difference between what the money would otherwise be earning on the interest rate paid on the certificates by the banks.

The proposal does not have a maximum amount for an individual loan, nor a cap on interest rates, although Financial Institutions Commissioner Eugene Kuthy said, "It is not likely we would be looking at loans of any great size." Loans would be made available for up to two years.

Tim Taylor of the First American Bank of Holland, said a survey of banks indicated 10 percent of farmers were having serious financial problems because of high debt, eroding equity in farm land values and low incomes.

Agriculture Department Director Paul Kindinger said the survey is designed to help determine the size, scope and seriousness of the problem, with officials ready to expand the loan program if needed.

He added it would help to design programs at both the state and national levels.

Senate Agriculture and Forestry Committee Chairman Nick Smith (R-Addison) said he was "delighted" the Governor was attempting to do something for farmers, but was critical of the timing of the program.

Smith said action should have been taken in February for the state to be of any real assistance and said the state should lower some of the tax costs for all farmers to help "the 96 percent" who could be faced with a bad situation a year from now.

The Senate has already approved a $107,500 supplemental appropriation, now pending in the House, to assist farmers with toll-free hotlines, additional farm financial advisors, and expanded management analysis teams and computerized decision-making workshops.

LPN Week Designated

Michigan Licensed Practical Nurses Association (MLPNA) has designated Thursday, May 9 as Licensed Practical Nurse Day in Michigan. LPN Day takes place during Michigan Nurse Week, May 6-10. Governor James Blanchard will issue a proclamation in recognition of LPN Day.

The purpose of LPN Day is to honor Michigan's 38,000 LPNs. For more than 30 years, LPNs have provided direct bedside care in hospitals, nursing homes, clinics, physician's offices, and private homes. Their continued role in health care is reaffirmed by the Michigan State Health Plan for 1983-87.

Licensed Practical Nurses follow a one-year state-approved curriculum and are required to pass a state licensing examination. LPNs must work under the direction of a physician or RN but may be trained to perform a wide variety of nursing tasks. On-the-job training, experience, and individual health care facility policy help determine the duties LPNs are expected to perform.

On May 9, LPNs and their supporters will be wearing buttons based on this year's theme, "LPNs Alive in '85." Hospitals and nursing homes across the state will hold special events honoring their LPN employees. MLPNA will hold its first annual LPN Day dinner at the Lansing YWCA on May 9 at 6 p.m.

A VIEW from the CLOCK TOWER

Bill Mullendore

Medical miracles are commonplace these days, but I never cease to marvel when they unfold in front of me.

I was sitting on the porch of my parents' home a few days ago talking to my 83-year-old father. He was wearing a patch over his left eye, having undergone cataract surgery a week before.

I know about those patches, having worn them in the aftermath of operations on both eyes. They are designed to prevent infection which might result from getting water or dirt into a healing eye. The patches have small holes in them, and you can see through them.

Dad suddenly got out of his chair. Octogenarians don't jump, but he came close.

"I can see the bricks on my neighbor's house!" he exclaimed.

"I can count them! I can see the mortar in between them!"

The wall of the house that Dad was looking at was maybe 75 feet away. Until his operation, he hadn't been able to see the wall, much less count the bricks. His eyesight was gone for all practical purposes.

In a few more weeks he will have an operation on his right eye and, if it goes well, will be able to see as well as anybody who has normal vision. He will have a couple of "implants"—soft plastic lenses sewn into his eyes—that will give him 20-20 sight without glasses.

Dad was darned near blind. He obtained his last driver's license only because a careless clerk in a secretary of state's branch office let him have it rather than argue. My two sons-in-law and I pitched in together and bought him a color television set for Christmas. He hadn't seen anything other than a fuzzy image until he got his new eye. He dearly loves to watch sports, especially basketball and baseball, but hadn't been able to tell one team from the other. Now he can read the call letters during station breaks, pick out the numerals on players, and differentiate Larry Bird from Ishiah Thomas.

All of that may seem kind of unimportant, unless you have had the experience of not being able to see very well. I have, and I owe my ability to write this to the fact that a highly skilled surgeon at University Hospital restored sight to a pair of eyes that had all but ceased to work.

I know what it is to get up one morning and be able to see. It happened to me, and I'll never forget it. My first cataract operation didn't go well. I had a hemorrhage, a tiny drop of blood leaked through the incision and blotted out everything for more than two weeks. The surgeon, who was embarrassed by the complication, counseled patience.

"I'm sorry it happened, and it shouldn't have," he told me, "but I guarantee the eye will clear up. You'll wake up one morning and be able to see, better than you ever have."

I'll never forget that morning. I was sitting at the breakfast table, looked toward my wife, and there she was, clearly visible. I glanced out the window, saw the tree I knew was supposed to be there, and counted three sparrows perched in the branches.

"There are three birds in the tree, aren't there?" I anxiously asked Vivian.

"There sure are," she answered, and I felt as if I had been born again.

During my stay in the hospital I had seen another miracle transpire. A man blind for seven years had come in from Coldwater to receive a cornea transplant. Without getting into a lot of medical detail, let it be said that an eye without a cornea is sightless. Corneas can be removed from the eyes of a freshly dead person and implanted into living eyes. It's a touch-and-go thing, a matter of hours before the cornea tissue dies, and then a surgical procedure done under a microscope. The operation takes about an hour.

My roommate couldn't see anything when he was brought into the hospital. Three hours later he was wheeled back from the recovery room, and the bandage over his eye taken off. "Hi, Bill," he said. "It's nice to see you."

That's the kind of remark people make when they are trying to be polite. This one was different. Paul had never seen me before, and never would have but for a medical miracle.

Eventually, I had corrective surgery on my second eye, and I see so well that it is still kind of unbelievable. Readings signs down the road before other passengers in the car can make them out has become one of my favorite things to do.

Dad put off his eye surgery far too long. He's a big, strong man, a former athlete, but he is extremely sensitive to pain, a trait that I inherited from him. He was afraid the operation would "hurt." Believe me, it does hurt, for about five seconds. When the anesthetic needle goes into your optic nerve, you might set a record for the lying-down high jump if you weren't strapped to the table. The rest of the experience is strange but painless: You lie there knowing that your eye is being taken apart and put back together, and listen to the surgeon and his assistants discuss what they are doing. It's kind of scary.

All I can say is that I'm grateful for the medical miracle that restored my eyesight, and it's wonderful to see (the word "see" is used for a reason) Dad have the experience that I did.

Homemakers Week Being Observed

Michigan Association of Extension Homemakers (MAEH) president, Claudia Brown of Eaton Rapids, announces that Gov. Blanchard has signed an Executive Declaration designating the week of May 5-11 as Michigan Extension Homemakers Week.

MAEH was organized in 1936 as an outgrowth of Farm Women's Institute. Affiliated with Michigan State University, which was founded in 1855 as a Pioneer Land Grant College for Agriculture, extension personnel were assigned for off-campus teaching as early as 1908. The purpose of agriculture extension was to serve all the people with useful and practical information on agriculture, home economics, and related subjects. Today Cooperative Extension Service is four-fold in Michigan: ag/marketing, family living education, natural resources/public policy, and 4-H.

Michigan extension homemakers benefit by the programs presented through family living education home economists. This past year some of the lessons given were medication interactions/osteoporosis, and new food trends. A master canner course in June and small home business classes in May and September are also offered. Membership in MAEH today number 9,214 in 750 study clubs. In Washtenaw county we have 237 members and 15 study clubs.

Washtenaw county celebrated Extension Homemakers Week Tuesday evening, May 7, at United Methodist church, Saline, with a spring rally. Members joined for dinner at 6 p.m., followed by the singing of the Madrigals of Chelsea High school. A display of Cultural Arts and Crafts made during the past year by members was judged and ribbons awarded.

Saudi . . .

"Prisoners are known to be beaten."

Women there can't legally drive, and can't walk the streets without an escort. Parties, he says, are especially unusual because men and women generally don't attend the same ones together.

Friday mornings are also special in Riyadh. That's when "head choppings" or "hand choppings" are conducted in the public square, and Foster is quick to admit that he's never seen one. No guillotine is used, simply a big, sharp sword. Murder and rape are the capital offenses. Hands are not chopped off for the first offense.

"You can't possibly understand what the culture is like until you experience it—you have to see it," Foster says. "There are many little things that always remind you where you are. For example, nobody touches food with his left hand." That hand, he says, is customarily used for certain hygienic purposes.

Foster is working on his third, two-year contract, and it will be his last, he says, partly because the government won't allow him to stay longer. The only reason he has stayed as long as he has is that computer skills are in high demand. But, he says, he's had enough, anyway. In 1986 he'll be looking for a regular old American job.

The dumbwaiter was invented by Thomas Jefferson.

This Week's Thought

DON COLE

Mother's Day is rightfully one of our most significant, sentimental days of the year. It is a day especially set aside to be thankful for her devotion; a special day to express love and gratitude to her. Many men and women for many years have publicly praised their mother. Read some of these quotes for example:

"The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world."—Wm. Stewart Ross . . . Napoleon, when asked what was the greatest need of France, replied "Mothers" . . . Theodore Roosevelt said, "The mother is the one supreme asset of American life. She is more important by far than the successful statesman, or businessman or artist or scientist." Lincoln gave his mother credit for all that he ever was or hoped to become . . . Gaspard Mermillod said, "She who can take the place of all others, but whose place no one else can take." Wm. M. Thackeray said, "The name for God in the lips and hearts of little children."

Countless other quotes could be mentioned . . . With it all, we sincerely hope all mothers everywhere share a delightfully happy Mother's Day . . .

Products on Parade

Paula Blanchard

This series of stories spotlights the manifest products of Michigan's farms, forests and factories—the products proudly stamped "Made in Michigan." Some are familiar. Others are less well-known. But all are important to Michigan's economy. This week's story: "Eclipse, Daisy and Pete Michaux."

By Paula Blanchard

Okay, I'll give you a word and you give me a name associated with it. The word is "bicycle." If you are an historian you may say Pierre Michaux, the Frenchman who invented the velocipede, or bicycle, in 1861.

If you are a romantic, you may say Daisy, the girl in the 1922 song who rode to her wedding on a bicycle built for two. "Daisy, Daisy, give me your answer true..."

And if you are a cyclist—bicycle or motorcycle—you may say "Eclipse USA," the Ann Arbor-based company whose cycle accessories (mainly soft luggage such as tankbags, panniers, pouches and packs) have become the product-of-choice among bikers around the world.

The company's products, manufactured in both Ann Arbor and Kinross, in the Upper Peninsula, are a fine combination of form and function: they are beautifully designed by a master, Shaun Jackson, president of the company, and finely engineered and crafted to ensure that they will do the job for which they were designed.

Eclipse's bike luggage may be soft but it doesn't sag, even when fully packed. When you attach it to the handlebars, seat, frame, sides, fore and aft, or wherever, it stays put, and in shape, thanks to the aircraft-type struts, racks and hardware developed and patented by the company's engineers. And for those who prefer walking to biking, Eclipse also makes a wonderful line of easy-to-carry tote luggage.

I have gone through the company's equipment catalog and picked out a couple of things that I need. One is a newly-developed product, an electric vest that was designed for the pilots of motorcycles and other open-air vehicles. I figure I can plug it into my car's cigarette lighter and ward off the "Big Chill"—the time I spend waiting for the heater to start heating.

The other thing I need is the Eclipse handlebar pack with the space-age attachment. It will replace the battered wicker basket on the front of my bike. One of the leather straps that bind it to the handlebars is broken and it sags badly!

So, watch for the distinctive Eclipse label when you go shopping for the luggage you need. And let's keep making it—and buying it—in Michigan.

Be Kind to Animals Week Being Observed

The oldest recognized week in the nation, Be Kind to Animals Week has been celebrated during the first full week of May each year since 1915. During this week, May 5-11, the Humane Society of Huron Valley, in conjunction with humane organizations and animal lovers nation-wide, hopes to increase public awareness about humane animal treatment.

The Humane Society announced this week that Ray Spokes, life-long resident of Ann Arbor, will serve as 1985 Be Kind to Animals Week chairperson, in recognition of his great concern for the humane treatment of all animals and his outstanding service to the Humane Society over the years.

Spokes, born in Ann Arbor in 1897, one year after the inception of the Humane Society, attended the University of Michigan, receiving a master of science degree in chemistry in 1920. He went on to become vice-president and research director of Abex Corp., (now a division of Illinois Tool) and an internationally known expert in friction and non-friction materials.

He is currently retired from Abex, but does private consulting in industrial research. He has been active in a number of civic and philanthropic organizations throughout his life.

He has been a member of the HSHV board of directors for over 10 years; most notably serving as chairperson during the 1982 capital campaign, resulting in the much needed Humane Education Center and renovation of the animal shelter. He has shared his home with HSHV adoptees since the age of four! When asked about his philosophy on pet ownership, he readily exclaims that "they must be made a member of the family!"

In celebration of Be Kind to Animals Week, the Society is planning a number of events and displays for members and friends; Walk-a-thon VI will be held Saturday, May 11. Walkers will walk to raise funds for the Society's cruelty investigation and animal rescue programs. Dogs on leashes are welcome to accompany their human friends. Sponsor sheets are available at the shelter or phone 662-5545 for additional locations.

A pet food drive to collect food for the shelter animals will be held May 5-9. Donors may bring food to the shelter or phone 662-5545 for participating stores with collection barrels.

Letters to the Editor

Mr. Editor
Somewhere along the line of the year there has been a day set aside each year to honor MOTHER. It's with us once more. Sure, MOM'S special day is commercialized, and one is bombarded with all sorts of remembrance selections for MAMA. That is OK for it helps to make up for the times we take her for granted the rest of the year.

MAMA will love being loved by each of her children whom she helped God to give the gift of life to. That is a fringe benefit that goes hand and hand with Motherhood. The many times in your life that you recall, or not, when MOMMY sat with you in some illness. Dried your tears when you were hurt as a little child, and yes, as you grow up she still helps to dry the tears and calm the fears that fall into everyone's heart and mind at one time or another. Her reassuring smile when you're in doubt.

MAM, will spend many hours in quiet inward prayer for each of her children all of her lifetime. A true friend. A protector when your littlest, a praise avenue when you need it most. MUM is often who understands, sometimes without words exchanged between you.

Oh, those times MAMMY corrected us for our good and well-being are branded in our memory banks of mind. To have to be firm because she loves so deeply, hurts her, more than you will ever know. Those quick kisses on the cheek as you pass her, are a thousand words.

Our MOTHER has a habit of wearing "many hats" to fulfill her role in the "Play called Life." Why she is nurse and doctor, mechanic, chauffeur, teacher, preacher, cook, maid, shopper, banker, politician, seamstress, baker, dentist, decorator, barber, to name a few and as you review her talents she uses each day is it no wonder MOM gets tired now and then?

Yes, no matter what name you call her by, Mother, Mom, Ma, Mommy, Maw, Mum, Mammy, there is only one of her. The next time you look into her eyes you will be looking at yourself, for each of us carries a part of our Mother within us.

Thank you Mother for so much, and we love you 365 days a year, forever.

Millie Warner.
P.S.—May all Mothers' called Home by God, from their place in Heaven, somehow know this writing is for them as well.

To the Editor,
I won't bore you with copies of past correspondence with legislators who have been ducking the issue of prison overcrowding and management, but am sending you a copy of a letter to our Corrections Director to whom I have not previously vented my frustration.

I do not send people to prison lightly, but when I do I want them to stay there and to have the kind of programs that might minimize the risk of recidivism. Nor do I want dangerous offenders confined in minimum security camps or released early.

My wife and I enjoy The Standard and have followed the Cassidy Lake problems with interest. I have added some of your area's legislators to the list of those getting copies of the letter.

William R. Peterson,
Circuit Judge,
Cadillac

Mr. Robert Brown, Jr., Director
Department of Corrections
Stevens T. Mason Building
Lansing, Michigan 48909

Dear Mr. Brown:

Recently I sent to friends in the legislature a copy of a news report of two inmates, a rapist and a murder-rapist, who walked away from a minimum security camp. Representatives of the Department of Corrections and the Michigan State Police were quoted as saying that no particular effort would be made to find the escapees because of lack of funds. If true, that is a matter for legislative action.

Equally of concern is the question as to why young men, shortly after their conviction of such serious offenses, should be in a minimum security camp. I am aware that the Department gives inmates psychological tests to identify violent offenders. You may be aware that most judges view the test as a sham to justify moving persons convicted of assaultive offenses into minimum security facilities. We have seen too many instances of volatile, assaultive convicts who have been classified as non-assaultive to believe that the Department has much concern except to try to get around its space problems.

The Chelsea Standard recently noted that 48% of Cassidy Lake Camp "residents" had been convicted of violent offenses, including murder. You are, no doubt, aware that Chelsea area residents are concerned that violent offenders should be placed in a minimum security camp—indeed, until about a year ago, I believe that the Department was denying that that was the case. Last week one of a number of walk-aways from Cassidy Lake was serving a mandatory life sentence for first degree murder!

I spent my first 17 years as a circuit judge urging Gus Harrison and Perry Johnson to seek, and the legislature to provide, more personnel and programs rather than to think only in terms of brick, mortar and steel. For the past eight years I have been reduced to begging legislators to just provide the place to keep serious offenders. I am optimistic now that we may be ready to make a start at catching up with space needs, and I urge you to keep up the pressure... and to be brutally candid in describing the Department's problems.

Some legislators have, in the past, expressed skepticism about the credibility of Department of Corrections statistics, seeing them as slanted to justify larger appropriations and to build a bigger empire. On the other hand, much of the public, and many judges, have come to believe that the Department has dissembled, has lacked courage in making its needs known, and has tried to disguise its problems by changing labels. But you should know that our judges are ready and eager to support your efforts to turn things around.

Good luck.
William R. Peterson,
Circuit Judge.

P.S.—I have to express my personal predilection against the Department's practice of referring to inmates, probationers and parolees as "clients." I hope that silliness can be discouraged.

To the Editor,
In answer to Henry DeYoung's article on Special Education, I'm sure you won't bother to print this, but I am going to try anyway. He claimed everyone was so grateful for his program.

Well, I happen to be one parent that is not grateful, and I am sure there are more, if they would speak up or you would bother to print the other side of his story. In the first place, they mislabel children, and then they refuse to do anything about it.

My child was mislabeled mentally impaired, which he wasn't. He was put in a classroom with the mentally impaired children and taught on their level, which was about a second grade level. These children were allowed to pick their nose and wipe it on my son. He was made to eat at their lunch table where they picked their nose and ate it. I could go on and on, on gross things that happened in that classroom. My son was also seated in the back of the room with a curtain drawn around him by his teacher, because he had an allergy problem and his nose sniffed.

Their assignments are put in boxes instead of the teacher giving them out. So at all times children are up out of their seats. You tell me how he could concentrate and learn anything in this environment. My son's nerves were so bad that he came close to going over the edge.

With the help of his grandmother and a special tutor, for just one month, my son is now in a private school in a regular classroom on a fifth grade level and doing well. In the three years in special education, he was never taught his measurements, how to make change for a dollar, what a noun, pronoun, verb, adverb, or any English definition, which he now knows all of these. So, I definitely feel Henry DeYoung deserves an answer.

My son was even taken to a reputable physiologist from U. M. Hospital, who in return wrote to Dr. DeYoung telling him if my son were to be transferred from that classroom he would positively respond much better and that he was afraid my son's motivations would be turned off if he were kept in that classroom.

Like I say, I am not one of the wealthy Chelsea people, so maybe that makes the difference. If all this money from the wealthy people is going into special education, then I think they have the right to hear the other side of Dr. DeYoung's story. Also my son is now able to read and has learned how to break down the large words, which he was never taught in the Chelsea schools. Also, I have taken special efforts to check into special education programs in Michigan. You must sign your child in each year and even sign them out of special education. I never signed for my son the last year, but they did as they pleased.

Well, as I said in the beginning, you probably won't bother to print the other side of the story.

But at least after you read this you will know.

Respectfully yours,
Shirley Haidar.

New Tourist Guidebook Now Available

The Travel and Tourist Association of Southeast Michigan (TTA) has announced publication of an all-new full-color guidebook to activities, attractions, accommodations and dining in the 11-county Southeast Michigan area.

Entitled Travelfun, the publication presents an overview of the region's component counties plus detailed listings of things to see and do as well as places to stay. TTA President Sid Baker calls it "a new and valuable asset" to people traveling in and to Southeast Michigan.

"We feel," said Baker, "that we are presenting the most complete guidebook to Southeast Michigan ever published. Hours of research and planning went into the editorial and pictorial design of Travelfun. It will be an important information item for anyone living in or visiting this area."

The newly designed Travelfun breaks the 11-county region into three districts: The North Counties of Sanilac, St. Clair, northern Macomb, northern Oakland and Livingston; the Urban Counties of southern Macomb, southern Oakland, eastern Washtenaw and Wayne; and the South Counties of Jackson, western Washtenaw, Hillsdale, Lenawee and Monroe. Headings in the book are color-coded so that readers may know at once what district the pages refer to.

Included in the publication is a reproduction of the portion of the state highway map that includes Southeast Michigan and cross reference index of popular areas and attractions.

The best part about the book is that it is free to the traveling public. It is available at the TTA office at 64 Park St. in Troy and at the regional tourist association offices in Bay City, Grand Rapids and Iron Mountain.

The book is also available at Michigan Highway Travel Information Centers, at participating AAA offices, at the Michigan Travel Bureau's office in Lansing and other selected outlets including the Downtown Detroit Visitor Information Center.

Travelfun also may be obtained by mail by sending $1 to cover postage to: "Travelfun Kit," P. O. Box 1590, Troy 48099.

Farm Group Opposes Higher Spending, Taxes

As amendments to the U. S. Senate Leadership/White House budget compromise pile up, Farm Bureau members across Michigan and the nation are continuing their drive for fiscal responsibility in federal government.

According to Al Almy, director of public affairs for the Michigan Farm Bureau, members of the largest farm organization are contacting their senators outlining their opposition to any amendments that would increase spending.

"Farm Bureau supports the budget compromise as the best way to achieve fiscal responsibility," Almy said. "Our support is strong and unwavering because 3.2 million Farm Bureau member families decided in January that fiscal responsibility in federal government is their organization's number one priority. "Farm Bureau members want to improve net farm income through a strengthened market place—not a strengthened government bureaucracy. Therefore, we strongly oppose amendments to the compromise that would increase federal spending," he said.

Almy said Farm Bureau also opposes any amendment that would increase taxes to balance the federal budget and reduce the deficit.

"Our economic problems stem from too much spending—not too many taxes," he said.

Largest Award Against Road Comm. Made in Dexter Cycle Fatality

A Washtenaw county jury returned what is said to be the largest verdict ever against the Washtenaw County Road Commission in connection with a fatal motorcycle accident at the intersection of Dexter-Pinckney and Dexter-Chelsea Rds. in 1982.

A verdict of $1,574,000 was returned Friday, April 26 in the Washtenaw County Circuit court after a six-week trial. A net award of $472,000 was given after the gross verdict was reduced by 70 percent by what is known as a comparative negligence factor, which is a measure of the negligence in the case between the plaintiff and the defendant.

The plaintiff in the case was the widow of a computer engineer who was killed in the accident just west of downtown Dexter. The accident occurred July 7, 1982 when Robert Williams was attempting to make a left turn from Dexter-Pinckney Rd. to Dexter-Chelsea Rd. on a motorcycle and skidded into the side of a garbage truck.

According to the plaintiff's attorneys, Terrance O'Hagan and Thomas Darnton, the cause was originally thought to have been the late afternoon sun interfering with Williams' vision. However, expert witnesses argued that the design of the intersection was faulty and that gravel and broken pavement had prevented Williams from stopping quickly enough. They said the faulty design of the road caused the driver of the truck to begin turning at a point where it could not be seen by Williams.

Lawyers for the defense reportedly argued that negligence of one or both of the drivers was the primary cause of the accident.

DAVID HEYDLAUFF gives a friendly wave from atop of the tractor as he paused for a moment, Saturday, May 4, while "working the ground" on his father Jerry's property along Dexter-Chelsea Rd. in preparation for the corn-planting this year. David was one of the dozens of farmers who were tractor users during the warm days recently.

Safety Belt Law Signs Going Up at Rest Areas

The first of 100 signs alerting motorists to Michigan's new safety belt law are going up at freeway rest areas and border points around the state.

Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) sign crews will place the three-by-four-foot signs at all 77 rest areas along the state's 1,788 miles of freeways in advance of the law's July 1 effective date.

Another two dozen signs will be erected at major highway entrances to the state, alerting visitors to Michigan's safety belt law.

The signs at the rest areas read: "Buckle Up . . . It's the Law!" and replace existing "Are You Putting Me On?" signs the transportation department placed there several years ago to encourage motorists to use their safety belts.

"We want to help save the lives of motorists and their passengers traveling on Michigan highways," said MDOT director James P. Pitz. "We believe that if just 70 percent of front seat occupants buckle up regularly, between 200 and 300 lives would be saved annually in Michigan."

Michigan is the fifth state in the nation to enact safety belt use legislation. Seven states have adopted such legislation during the past 10 months.

The new law requires the driver and all front-seat passengers of motor vehicles to wear safety belts. Failure to comply can bring a fine of up to $10 until January 1986, when the fine will increase to $25.

Bike Safety

While there, cyclists may register their bikes with the police department for $1 and receive a license good for one year. This helps police to identify lost or stolen bicycles.

At 12:30 p.m., the police department will auction off unclaimed bicycles. Call the police department for further information.

Try-Outs Scheduled For Players 'Mame'

Chelsea Area Players have scheduled try-outs for their summer production of "Mame" for May 20-21-22. A general information meeting is set for Tuesday, May 14 from 7:30 to 9:30 at Chelsea High school.

Anyone who is interested in participating, a little or a lot, should attend the general meeting. In addition to the large cast, volunteers are needed for all aspects of the production. If you're a handy-man, seamstress, or can use a paintbrush, telephone or typewriter, the Players need you.

"Mame" is scheduled for four performances on July 18-19-20. First performed as a musical in the late sixties on Broadway, "Mame" starred Angela Lansbury and ran for 1,508 performances.

The character Mame (and she is a character!) is the only living relative of her 10-year-old nephew, Patrick. From her Manhattan penthouse to a Southern plantation, through rich times and poor times, it's a treat to share in Mame's antics.

Versatility is the key in "Mame." Young and old, for Patrick's friends and Mame's parties, please apply! There are many chorus numbers, and musicians are needed for the pit orchestra. If you have lots of time or no time, there is the opportunity for all types of involvement.

Jan Koengeter, director, stresses the community in community theater. She urges all who are interested in having fun to come to the general meeting. It's a great way to participate in a community activity.

For more information call Jan Baltzell, 475-2577 (evenings and week-ends) or send a note to Chelsea Area Players, Box 575, Chelsea 48118.

More Drivers Now Using Safety Belts

Don't wait until July 1 to buckle up—get in the habit now—it could save your life.

That's the advice from Secretary of State Richard Austin who reminds all motorists that Michigan's new safety belt law goes into effect July 1.

Austin said that from his own personal observation on the highway, more motorists have begun wearing belts since the law was passed. "Wearing a belt is a no-cost, simple way of substantially cutting highway deaths and injuries—a good habit to get into," he said.

Six other states—New York, New Jersey, Illinois, Missouri, New Mexico and Indiana, in addition to Michigan's neighbor, Ontario, now have safety belt laws.

SUBSTANCE ABUSE

An In-Depth Look

By Bill Mullendore
(2nd in series)

The one out of 10 persons among us who are substance abusers are "different." We have an "X factor" in our body chemistry that we inherited at birth. Nobody is quite sure exactly what the difference is, but it's there.

Our bodies can't cope with sedatives—alcohol, barbiturates, tranquilizers and other drugs. We are "sedativists," according to Dr. Hardee Bethea who teaches in the Chelsea Community Hospital substance abuse program and lectures at 7:15 p.m. every Thursday evening in the hospital dining room.

If you want to learn about substance abuse, by all means go to Dr. Bethea's lectures, which are open to the public without charge. He knows the story, and tells it like it is. He's a recovered alcoholic, a former plastic surgeon and medical school professor who now devotes his life to helping other substance abusers get their lives under control and stay sober.

Much of what I will write in this and later articles I got from Dr. Bethea, one of the most brilliant persons I have been privileged to know and learn from.

There are many fine, excellently trained professionals working in the Chelsea substance abuse program. To me, Dr. Bethea is the best, an inspiring person. More than anyone else, he turned me around and is keeping me straight. I just plain won't miss any of his Thursday evening lectures.

If you want to hear Dr. Bethea, get there early. He packs the place, and it's standing room only when he begins to speak.

Dr. Bethea tells some shocking stories about substance abusers, and he has treated more than 13,000 of them. He knows of drunks who consumed three fifths of whisky and a 12-pack of beer every day Monday through Friday, then got down to their "serious" drinking on week-ends. He recalls patients who were swallowing 40-60 heavy-dose tranquilizer capsules a day.

"The remarkable thing is that these persons weren't drunk or even high. They needed that much to reach a state of mind that is normal for most people. They were sober, even though they were carrying enough chemicals to kill an ordinary person."

Extreme high tolerances characterize substance abusers. A person who finds that he or she continually needs more to "feel it" is on the way to becoming an addict.

As Dr. Bethea puts it, "Show me somebody who can hold his liquor or can drink everybody else under the table, and I'll show you an alcoholic. That is the first sign of addiction."

I know something about that. Three fifths of booze with beer chasers would have been more than I could handle, but I could drink a fifth and not really notice it. That was about the right amount to set me up for the day.

We abusers of sedatives aren't affected by them the way the other 90 percent of the population is. As time goes on, and we use more and more, we literally can't get enough into our systems to satisfy our cravings.

To those of us doomed to the disease of addiction, all drugs are alike. Listen to Dr. Bethea again:

"I can put you on a table and shoot any sedative drug you can name into your veins, and you won't be able to tell one from the other. They all have exactly the same effect."

So-called cross-addiction, as between alcohol and marijuana, for example, is common, especially among young people.

By the way, forget the foolish idea that cocaine is not addictive. It is the only drug that laboratory animals will continue to consume until they kill themselves. Rats and mice will stop short of death on other drugs, and in that way are smarter than some people.

Alcohol is the favored drug of choice for most addicts, because it is relatively cheap and also legal to buy. Most addicts can satisfy an alcohol habit on $10-$15 a day. Other drugs can cost many times that much, and they carry the risk of arrest besides. You can be fined or jailed for abusing alcohol, but not for merely buying or possessing it if you are over the legal age of 21.

In fact, we are encouraged to buy and use alcohol. It's part of our culture, an adjunct to most social occasions.

Listen once more to Dr. Bethea: "When you go to somebody's house, your host doesn't ask you, 'Do you drink?' He asks, 'What do you want to drink?' He assumes you drink alcohol, because most people do."

For the record, about seven out of every 10 people consume alcohol. Six of those seven are so-called social drinkers. The seventh is an alcoholic.

The social drinker quits after one or two or three. He may get drunk on rare occasions, but he doesn't make it a habit. His tolerance doesn't increase. During all of his life he will feel tiddly after a couple of stiff shots, and most of the time he will have the good sense to stop right there.

The alcoholic is different. He doesn't stop. He goes right on, needing more and more to feel less and less. His biochemistry is different.

Beth Unterbrink Hurls Perfect Softball Game In Win at Tecumseh

Beth Unterbrink recorded her name in Michigan high school softball history by pitching a perfect game last Friday at Tecumseh.

She retired 21 batters in a row, 13 by strikeouts, as Chelsea chalked up an 8-0 victory. She walked none, and her teammates made no errors behind her.

The closest thing to a safety was a fly ball to deep left in the last inning, on which Kelly Hawker made an excellent running catch to keep Unterbrink's perfect game intact. Hawker is the Bulldogs' other starting pitcher when she isn't playing in the outfield. Unterbrink, who plays first base when not hurling, owes her one.

Unterbrink pitched two no-hitters last year enroute to all-state honors, but this was her first perfect game, a rare event in high school softball. Usually, somewhere along the line a walk will be issued, an error made of a ball bunted or looped somewhere safely. It is also common for a perfect-game bid to be wiped out under the mercy rule.

None of those things happened as Unterbrink threw almost all strikes, and such pitches as were hit were handled cleanly in the field, including Hawker's fine catch.

"You can't pitch much better than that," Bulldog coach Charlie Waller said of Unterbrink's perfect-game gem. "Tecumseh is a good team, capable of hitting the ball off good pitching. Beth was very strong. She struck out the side in the first inning and went on from there."

Chelsea got the only runs that really mattered in the top of the second inning, scoring twice, and padded the lead as the game went on to establish the eventual 8-0 margin.

Unterbrink also had a good day at bat with two hits, as did Anne Weber. Tina Paddock hit a double.

The victory put Chelsea at 11-3 on the season, 3-0 in the Southeastern Conference, and also left Waller in something of a quandary going into last Monday's home game against Pinckney.

Hawker had thrown an excellent game against Dexter earlier in the week, and Waller was wondering who to start against the Pirates.

"Maybe I'll let them both pitch some so they'll both be fresh and ready for our showdown games with Saline next week. I have a feeling we may know who the conference champion is when

Balk Call Opens Way For Chelsea Baseball Victory Over Dexter

The balk rule in baseball is as difficult to understand as any regulation in any sport, much less explain to somebody else, and a reporter dreads having to do it.

An umpire's balk call was the turning point in last Wednesday's 6-5 Chelsea victory over Dexter as the Bulldogs rallied for three runs in the bottom of the sixth inning. But for the balk, Dexter probably would have been the winner.

A balk is some kind of a wrong motion by a pitcher as he delivers a ball towards the plate. The pitcher is supposed to stop, or at least hesitate, in his wind-up before throwing the ball. He's also supposed to be looking at his catcher when he throws, and his back foot is supposed to be planted solidly on the ground. If he lifts his heel (the left one in the case of a right-handed pitcher) he's committed to throwing the ball.

Chelsea varsity baseball coach Wayne Welton is a former pitcher, a good one. When asked to explain the balk rule, he said simply, "I can show you the difference between a legal pitch and an illegal pitch," and he proceeded to demonstrate with a series of imaginary throws in his tiny office.

"He (the Dexter pitcher) had been making illegal pitches all during the game," Welton said. "I talked to Duane (Dexter coach Duane Clark) about it, and he agreed. I decided not to appeal to the umpires because we weren't getting hurt. The boy was doing what we call 'quick-pitching,' throwing without coming to a pause in his delivery. I throw batting practice that way because it saves some time."

"I'm really surprised that the umpire called it when he did, and I feel kind of bad about it. It's not the way you like to win a ball game, but we'll take it. Let's just say we got a break."

The situation was this: Down 5-3 in the bottom of the sixth, Chelsea came to bat. Ray Spencer drew a walk with one out, and Rob Murrell ran for him. Murrell stayed on first during a strikeout, and the Bulldogs' hopes were all but dead.

Jim Toon lifted a fly to right that was caught for what appeared to be the inning-ending out. That was the pitch on which the balk was called. Murrell was waved to second base and Toon returned to the plate. Given another shot, Toon socked a solid double to right, sending Murrell home.

Evan Roberts drove in the tying run with a line-drive single to left. Roberts stole second on the first pitch to Chuck Downer, and went on to third as the ball was thrown away.

Downer's game-winning hit never got past the infield grass. It was a high chopper to second that bounced about 20 feet into the air on the second hop. Downer beat the throw to first as Roberts scored.

Bulldog pitcher Dan Bellus put the Dreadnaughts down in order in the top of the seventh to seal the victory, helped by an excellent play by first baseman Keith Niebauer who turned what could have been a two-base error into an out by digging a low throw out of the dirt.

Bellus was not at his best, giving up eight hits while striking out seven. "Dan didn't have his real good stuff, but he hung in there," Welton said. "He has a lot of courage. The Dexter boys hit the ball well. They're a good team, tough for anybody to beat."

Both teams got a run in the first inning. Chelsea moved to a 3-1 lead in the third. The Dreadnaughts rallied to tie in the fourth, then scored single runs in the fifth and sixth to take what looked to be a safe lead, only to be undone by the balk call.

Chelsea collected 10 hits, including two each by Toon, Mark Mull and Roberts. Downer and Toon each drove in two runs. Todd Starkey crashed the game's longest blow, a triple to right-center.

For Dexter, Dan Brown and Darren Heiber hit safely twice.

Walks Hurt In JV Loss To Dexter

Walks—free passes to first base—hurt in a baseball game—and Chelsea junior varsity pitchers issued nine of them during a 5-4 loss to Dexter there last Wednesday afternoon.

"We gave up only four hits, but there were always runners on base because of the walks," Bulldog coach Jim Ticknor said. "When Dexter got their hits they scored runs."

"Except for the walks, it was a very good ball game. Both teams played well."

Chelsea collected six hits by as many players—Matt Koenn, Matt Bohlender, Greg Haist, Jeff Harvey, Mark Bareis and Scott Frisinger.

Chuck Downer's Clutch Hit Propels Chelsea To Win Over Pinckney

With the bases loaded and the game tied 3-3, Chuck Downer came to bat against a Pinckney pitcher who had brought a 6-0 record into the game at Chelsea on a windy afternoon last Monday.

Downer looked over a couple of pitches, picked out one he liked and hit it deep into left-center field to bring all three baserunners around. The result was a 7-3 win for Chelsea over a Pinckney team that up until then had been undefeated in Southeastern Conference play.

Downer's double, which might have been a triple had he tried to stretch it, gave him four RBI's for the afternoon. He hit the game-winner into the teeth of a strong wind blowing in toward home plate. But for the wind, which held the ball up, it would have been a grand slam homer.

"Chuck came through when we had to have a big hit," his coach Wayne Welton said. "He's an excellent hitter, but is sometimes impatient. This time he waited for the right pitch, and he connected solidly."

Dan Bellus went all the way on the pitching mound and, given the lead, shut Pinckney down on three fly balls in the top of the seventh.

Considering the way the wind was blowing, gusting to 30 miles per hour, catching those flies was an achievement. Left fielder Evan Roberts grabbed two and shortstop Mark Mull clutched the last one for the final out. He had to chase it almost to the third base foul line as the wind-blown ball kept drifting away.

Bellus turned in another gutty performance, tough when he needed to be. "Dan hasn't had his usual good stuff in his last couple of games," Welton said, "but he throws strikes when he has to. When he has a lead to protect late in the game, he bears down hard. He's a winner."

Going into the game, Pinckney was sitting on top of the SEC with a 5-0 mark, and threatening to run away in the league race.

"We had to beat them to stay in contention," Welton said. "Now it's a race again, and we're definitely in it." Pinckney is 6-1, Chelsea 3-1, which leaves Pinckney still on top but vulnerable.

Chelsea scored first in Monday's game, getting two runs in the opening inning on a single by Jim Toon, a triple by Evan Roberts and a single by Downer. Pinckney tied it up with two runs in the fourth.

Toon's RBI single put the Bulldogs ahead again, but Pinckney matched that with a run in the top of the fifth.

Eric Schaffner singled to open Chelsea's sixth, Todd Starkey walked, and Roberts reached base to set the stage for Downer's clean-up double. The Bulldogs got another run on an infield out

Chelsea Softball Team Plays Near-Perfect Game in Dexter Win

If a ball team always hit the ball hard, played perfect defense and got shut-out pitching, it would never lose.

The Chelsea softball team put all of those elements together on the Beach school diamond last Wednesday afternoon. Result was a 10-0 victory over Dexter in a game that had figured to be close.

"If we always played that well, we would win every game," Bulldog coach Charlie Waller said after the contest was merciful at the end of five innings. "We did everything about as well as we can do it."

"Don't discredit Dexter. They are a good team, and their pitcher, Betty Ulrich, is very good. She pitched well against us today. We hit everything she threw. It could be different another time."

Lori Folcik and Michelle

Easton each knocked home runs, and Joann Tobin banged a triple. Laura Anderson had three hits and Chris DeFant two.

The Bulldogs scored twice in the first inning and three times in the second. From there on it was a question of whether they would get the 10 runs required to end the game under the mercy rule, and they did with three in the fifth.

The heavy hitting all but overshadowed a fine pitching performance by Chelsea's Kelly Hawker who fanned 10 of the 17 batters she faced while giving up one hit and one walk.

"Kelly has pitched some strong games and lost them," Waller said. "This time she had everything going right for her. It may not have been her best game ever, but it was very good. She needs to gain a little more confidence, and I think this game helped her. She's a fine pitcher, and I'll put her in against anybody."

"We don't have a No. 1 and a No. 2 pitcher. We have two No. 1 pitchers, and I'll go with either one of them, depending on the opponent. You can't have too much pitching depth, and we're fortunate to have a lot this year."

Beth Unterbrink is the other top pitcher, and Tobin and DeFant have both shown that they can throw when called upon.

Chelsea played errorless ball against Dexter. The Dreadnaughts committed four miscues which made the Bulldogs' job a little easier but had no impact on the game's outcome.

The victory raised Chelsea's season record to 10-3, 2-0 in the Southeastern Conference. Dexter was 4-3 over-all and 1-2 in the SEC.

Softball Team Overcomes Wind To Beat Pinckney

It was tougher than expected, but Chelsea's softball team came away with a hard-earned 3-1 win over Pinckney on a blustery afternoon at Dana Field on Monday.

Kelly Hawker pitched a no-hitter and would have recorded a shut-out but for an error which allowed the visiting Pirates to score their only run without benefit of a hit. Hawker has given up just two hits in her last three starts.

The wind, which was blowing at about 30 miles per hour from centerfield toward home plate, definitely was a big factor, according to Chelsea coach Charlie Waller.

"There was no way any ball hit into the air was going to get out of the infield," he said. "The wind made some strange things happen to pitches, and I'm not surprised it was a low-scoring game. The ball was sailing. The hitters couldn't tell where it was coming from."

"Considering the conditions, it was a very good win for us. Pinckney has a good team, and their pitcher, who throws with a stiff arm, was especially effective in the wind."

The Bulldogs put across a first-inning run, and added another in the fourth on a key RBI hit by Anne Weber. They got their third in the sixth and would have had more but for a questionable umpire's call for base-running interference.

"We had five hits in that inning and got only one run," Waller noted. "I'm not sure if (the interference call) was right, but I didn't complain about it because I figured we had the game in hand."

Had the call, which involved a collision between a Chelsea base runner and a Pinckney infielder, not been made, the Bulldogs would have scored a bunch of runs and put the game out of reach.

As it turned out, the umpire's decision allowed Pinckney to make the game a squeaker. The Pirates got a run in the top of the seventh on a walk, an error and an infield out, and had the tying run at the plate with one out.

Hawker took care of that by striking out the last two hitters.

Chris DeFant continued her solid hitting with three safeties. Beth Unterbrink didn't get credit for a hit but was instrumental in Chelsea's first two runs. She sacrificed the first one home and opened the door for the second with a hard slide that caused an error.

Junior High Track Girls 4th At Tecumseh

Chelsea junior high girls track team placed fourth among the 12 schools competing at the Tecumseh Relays held last Friday.

The shot put team of Heather Neibauer and Tiffany Moore placed second with a combined effort of 50'3".

The sprint medley relay team ran well, placing second. It was made up of Calissa Tucker, Anne Steffenson, Danica Disbro, and Kim Roberts.

The 400-meter relay team of Tiffany Moore, Heather Neibauer, Jenni Smith, and Debi Koenn placed fourth.

Also, placing fourth was the distance medley team of Steffenson, Disbro, Tucker, and Suzanne Cooper.

The 100 shuttle hurdle relay team of Anna Harden, Debbie Webb, Shannon Losey, and Helen Cooper placed fifth.

Tecumseh took home the championship trophy with Hillsdale finishing a close second.

Although the anteater is officially designated as a mammal, it seems to be part bird, mammal and reptile. The bear, classified in 1884 as a mammal, has a long, skinny beak like a bird, lays eggs like a snake and has a pouch like a kangaroo. It also eats dirt.

It would be an exaggeration, but not much, to say that I've never met a coach I didn't like. Among the dozens I have known, there have been two or three who didn't belong in the business. There are a few bad apples in every barrel.

I especially admire the coaches who work to develop the talents and skills of young athletes—the players at the junior high, freshman and junior varsity levels. They work hard, get very little credit and don't make much money for the time and effort they put in.

Having tried and failed to teach academic skills, I appreciate the work of the instructors who do their darndest to teach kids how to play games. I doubt that it's any more difficult to put across how to write acceptable English words than to show some boy or girl how to swing a bat and connect with the ball. The latter may, in fact, be harder.

About 10 days ago I went to a freshman baseball game between Chelsea and South Lyon, intending to watch an inning or two and maybe take a picture. I stayed through the whole contest, fascinated by a lesson in learning what coaching is all about. I blew the picture, but got a story.

Ted Hendricks is one of my favorite people, a young man who could do a lot of things but has dedicated his life to coaching because he loves it and doesn't want to do anything else. He has enjoyed some success in basketball and is starting into baseball. If he isn't employed to coach the Chelsea golf team come fall, the people who do the hiring have their heads in the sand.

The ball game I watched was pretty good, considering that it was played by a bunch of 15-year-olds who were enthused but not experienced. There were many fine plays, and a few bad ones. Chelsea won it, 6-3, but that didn't matter much. What impressed me most was that a couple of coaches were out there teaching young boys how to play the game and conduct themselves like the men they will come to be.

I didn't get the name of the South Lyon coach, and should have. He was doing a good teaching job, along with Hendricks, and I salute him.

Maybe the most impressive thing about the game was a time-out called in the second inning. The visiting pitcher was having a hard time putting the ball over the plate, a not uncommon problem for young throwers, and the boys in the Chelsea dugout were razzing him.

Hendricks waved for time, trotted over to the bench and told his kids to shut up. "Cheer as much as you want for our team, but I don't want to hear any derogatory remarks about the other team."

The message was loud and clear to me, from 50 feet away, but it didn't quite register on the boys. Two pitches later, Hendricks called time again, and there was no mistaking his time this time. If you were listening, you would have heard him all the way downtown. The dugout was very quiet after that.

It was a lesson in sportsmanship, much more important than the mechanics of baseball. "Whatever else they learn, they are going to learn how to behave," Hendricks told me after the game. "I insist on that."

Good for him.

Along about the third inning, a Chelsea batter smashed a base-loaded triple which should have brought home three runs but didn't because a Bulldog runner missed second base and was properly called out.

Hendricks went out on the field and talked to the umpire. "Sir," he said (and I suspect that ump had never been addressed as "sir" before in his life) I want to know for sure which of my runners missed the bag. I didn't see it."

The umpire identified the culprit, and there was a quiet conversation in the dugout between coach and player on the necessity to touch all the bases if you intend to score.

Hendricks kept up a running fire of encouraging words to his players as the game went on. So did his fellow coach. Through all five innings no boy was bad-mouthed. When they did the right things, they were applauded. When they goofed, as they sometimes did, their mistakes were explained and instructions given on how to do better the next time.

After the game, a parent of a player came up to Hendricks and protested that this son wasn't being given enough playing time. Ted listened and answered respectfully, and promised that "every boy will get a chance to play." He had used 16 kids in the first game of the double-header, and had gotten all the others of his 21-boy squad into the second. You can play only 10 people at a time (including the designated hitter) in baseball.

Hendricks shrugged it off. "That's part of coaching. Sure, the kids want to play, and their parents want them to play. I do, too. At the freshman level, it's real important to give everybody a chance. You never know. Some boy may be coming along a little bit late.

"As a coach, I try to win games, not for me, but because I think it's important for kids to have the experience of winning. It gives them confidence and makes them believe that all the practice time they put in is worth it."

When the game was over, coaches and players congratulated each other, and they meant it. It was an enjoyable and instructive time for an onlooker who learned a little bit more of what kids' sports are all about.

Chelsea Netters Win Two Meets

Chelsea's improving boys tennis team won two meets last week, defeating Pinckney, 4-3, and Monroe Jefferson, 7-0, to bring their season record to 4-5. A scheduled meet against Howells was cancelled at Howell's request.

Victories by Biff Bunten and John Stevens at Nos. 3 and 4 singles proved important to the Bulldogs, as did wins by David Bareis-Chris Herter and Mike Merkel-Rick Proctor in doubles play. Those points added up to the four that Chelsea needed to win.

Coach Rahn Rosentreter praised Stevens for coming back after being down, 0-3, in the first set of his match to win, 7-5, 6-1.

Chelsea swept Monroe Jefferson with Kirk Lawton, Mark Hen-son, Bunten and Stevens winning in singles play, and Bareis and Herter, Merkel-Proctor and Larry Moore-Bob Pratt winning in doubles.

The Howell meet was called off because Howell had scheduled too many opponents under Michigan high school rules. It could have been played as a non-counting scrimmage, but Howell opted not to play at all.

Ann Arbor Huron came to Chelsea for a scrimmage on Monday. No meet score was kept, but the visitors showed up to play for fun and practice. The Huron visit has not previously been scheduled as a meet.

JV Softball Team Wins Two More

Like Old Man River, Chelsea's junior varsity softball team just keeps rolling along. The JV girls breezed to 13-2 and 19-2 wins over Dexter and Tecumseh, respectively, last week, to run their season record to 11-0. Both games were mercied at the end of five innings.

The Bulldogs scored 11 runs in the first inning against Dexter there on May 1 and added two more in the fourth. Dexter rallied for a pair in the bottom of the fifth, but that wasn't enough to keep the game from being closed out under the mercy rule.

Chelsea's 13 runs resulted from just seven hits, abetted by walks and errors. Mary Lazarz stroked a bases-loaded triple in the big first inning. Angie DeFant and Kelly Ghent each had two hits.

Bulldog pitcher Pam Brown gave up just one hit while striking out eight.

Against Tecumseh, Chelsea plated 13 runs in the first two innings and put across six more in the fourth. Coach Pat Clarke got all 21 of his players into the game, and 13 of them collected hits. Freshman Alisha Dorrow had two hits including an RBI double. Kelly Ghent and Ceia Murphy also had two-baggers.

Jenny Pichlik, Dawn Weatherwax and Peggy Hammerschmidt took turns on the mound, with starter Pichlik getting credit for the win.

Chelsea coach Pat Clarke continued to decline to call his young team "great" but acknowledged that it has so far played very good ball.

"The teams we have beaten are not patsies," Clarke said. "So far, we have done what we needed to do in every game."

"My big problem as a coach is that I have 21 girls who want to play, and deserve to play. I have six girls who want to pitch and deserve to pitch. At this point I don't think we have any great players, but we have a lot of good ones."

"Giving all of them enough playing time to show what they can do and keep them interested is a challenge."

Girls Track Team Wins Another Close Contest

The Chelsea girls track team hasn't had an easy dual meet all season, but has won all but one in close scores in which swings in a couple of events could have turned the results the other way.

The girl tracksters' latest triumph was 71-57 victory over

Jackson County Western there last Thursday.

A sweep of the 3,200-meter run and a first in the 1,600 relay, the last two events of the meet, clinched the win. The Bulldogs also swept the 1,600, continuing to show strength and depth in the distances, and Amy Wolfgang again won both hurdles events. Chris Zerkel won both the shot put and discus.

Chelsea place-winners included:

Shot-put, Chris Zerkel 1st; long jump, Christie Favers 3rd; 3,200 relay, Chelsea (Kasey Anderson, Amy Wolfgang, Kim Collins, Rachel Schmell) 1st; discus, Zerkel 1st, Schmell 3rd; high jump, Ann Becker 3rd.

100 high hurdles, Wolfgang 1st, Kerry Henderson 3rd; 100 dash, Susan Jacques 2nd, Edie Harook 3rd; 1,600 run, Kim Collins 1st, Kim Allen 2nd, Maryann Richardson 3rd; 400 dash, Anderson 1st, Chris Neumann 3rd; 800 run, Laura Damm 2nd, Melanie Flanigan 3rd; 300 low hurdles, Wolfgang 1st.

200 dash, Tami Harris 1st; 3,200 run, Flanigan 1st, Richardson 2nd, Jennifer Rossi 3rd; 1,600 relay, Chelsea (Anderson, Jacques, Neumann, Wolfgang) 1st with season's best time of 4:15.2.

HUGS FOR THE VICTORS: Heather Nelbauer (in sweats) hugs Debi Koenn, still grasping the baton, after the 400 relay team posted the winning combination in the final event of the Dexter-Chelsea track meet at Dexter, Wednesday, May 1, to give Chelsea the victory. Heather ran the first leg, with Kim Roberts and Anne Stephenson each taking a turn before Debi ran the final distance for the win.

OUT IN THE OPEN

By BILL MULLENDORE

I had to go to central Florida to see my first poisonous snake in the wild, and to southwest Texas to see my second. I have yet to see one in Michigan, even though we have them here and I have spent a lot of time in places where they are supposed to be.

The Florida snake, a cottonmouth moccasin, was lying in a cluster of water hyacinths. It wasn't impressive, about three feet long, slender and motionless. Our boat approached to within five feet before the reptile wiggled to betray its presence.

My host, who was running the boat, didn't hesitate. He picked up an oar and whacked the snake with an expert edge-wise blow that bashed its head. "I kill a lot of them," he said. "We have too many of them around here, and a couple of people have been bitten. Moccasins are dangerous. They aren't afraid of anything. They would just as soon attack as leave you alone."

That particular cottonmouth had shown no signs of aggression, but had exhibited no fear either. It didn't retreat when confronted, and got killed because it held its distance. It could easily have escaped, but didn't try.

The Texas snake, a diamondback rattlesnake, crossed the road in front of my car in Big Bend National Park. It was in no hurry, and I could have run over and killed it easily. National Park Service rules strictly prohibit harming wildlife of any kind, even poisonous snakes, so I stopped and let the creature crawl to the shoulder, where it coiled and rested.

The snake intrigued me because it was the first live rattler I had ever seen outside of a zoo. To my wife's consternation I got out of the car to get a closer look and take some pictures. I didn't get really close. The snake looked to be about four feet long, and I had read somewhere that a rattlesnake can't strike more than two-thirds of its length. I stayed a healthy six feet away.

It was a stand-off. The snake didn't threaten me, nor I it. I tossed some pebbles to try to make it rattle, but provoked no response. It finally slithered slowly into the brush beside the road. I had the feeling that the snake wanted to be left alone and was tired of my intrusion on its privacy.

That isn't to suggest poisonous snakes won't bite. They will, at times, and a few people get mighty ill or die every year as a result.

Snakebite isn't a major out-of-doors hazard, but it does happen now and then. You are much more likely to be struck by lightning, but the possibility of a fatal injection of snake venom can't be ignored entirely.

Michigan has just one poisonous snake, the little massasauga rattlesnake, and it is not plentiful. I've never seen one, and have spent a lot of time over the years in places where they are supposed to be. I even went on an organized "rattlesnake hunt" once, conducted by a naturalist who practically guaranteed that we would find one before the half-day hike through the swamp was over. We got mighty muddy and tired, but encountered no snakes of any species.

A friend who owns a cottage on the Portage chain of lakes did his best to show me a massasauga. He had brushed out a six-foot path through a swamp which intervenes between his cottage and the lake-shore, and rattlesnakes were accustomed to sunning themselves in the cleared area. He had seen and killed several. I went out there many times and enjoyed his hospitality, but the snakes never performed.

The so-called "Michigan rattler" is small. The average length is about two feet, and a 30-incher is a big one. It is said that no healthy adult human has ever been killed by the bite of a massasauga, a proposition that I don't care to test. I'll accept it on faith. Fatal or not, the experience can't possibly be pleasant.

It is also said that a massasauga won't bite unless irritated, another notion that I prefer not to test.

No poisonous snake is really interested in people. People aren't of eatable size. Snakes are looking for creatures that can be swallowed whole, something on the order of a mouse, frog or toad. A snake may bite if threatened, a reaction of instinct, but my impression is that it would rather be ignored.

That pretty well sums up my feelings about snakes—poisonous and non-poisonous alike. Live and let live. I'm neutral. If snakes will leave me alone, I will reciprocate.

I have caught snakes, handled them, kept them in cages. They aren't slimy. They are dry and scaly to the touch. They are remarkably muscular. Even a small garter snake or green snake is hard to hold onto. Let loose, a snake can crawl with amazing speed.

We used to have a cat whose specialty was catching snakes. So far as I know, she never caught a mouse, but no snake was safe around her. She didn't kill snakes, just picked them up and carried them up on the porch to be admired.

Peanut—she was a runt that weighed about four pounds—never found a rattlesnake, or at least I'm pretty sure she didn't. She would have tackled it if given the chance and no doubt would have died before she reached the age of 18, a long life for a skinny little cat with a penchant for hunting snakes.

Morel Crop Expected To Be 'Good'

One-half million persons are expected to tramp through aspen stands, forest of hardwoods and meadows this spring in search of Michigan's most delectable fungi—the morel mushroom, according to AAA Michigan.

THE PRIZE: What every morel mushroom hunter will be looking for during the next couple of weeks is the so-called white morel (morchella esculenta) which grows widely around here when the weather in May is right.

Most sources surveyed by AAA expect the mushrooms will appear by the first or second week of May and last through early June. This year's crop is expected to be better than the last and possibly at peak production.

Weather determines the quality of morel growth and this year's warm and rainy conditions in many areas have been near ideal.

Hunters should learn to distinguish edible morels from poisonous mushrooms which often grow nearby and not to pick them if uncertain.

festivals which have become part of the rites of spring in areas where the tasty species flourish.

A Michigan Department of Natural Resources guide describes and recommends three types of morels for eating among Michigan's 2,500 mushroom species.

Major events are the Mesick Mushroom Festival, May 4-11; Morel Mushroom Festival, May 11, Lewiston; National Festival and Art Fair, May 11-12, Harrison, and Mushroom Mania, May 11-12 and 18-19, Grayling.

Chelsea Still Has Chance in Ann Arbor Baseball Tourney After Splitting Pair

After splitting two games in the Ann Arbor baseball tournament last Saturday, Chelsea still has a shot at getting to the finals and a possible championship this weekend.

Nearly 50 percent of the 326 private campgrounds listed on AAA's 1985 guide indicate business increased in 1984 and most forecast an even better year in 1985.

Tecumseh Loss Disappoints

Turnabout may be fair play, but Chelsea varsity baseball coach Wayne Welton wasn't at all pleased with his team's 6-5 last-inning loss to Tecumseh there last Friday.
The Bulldogs had rallied from behind to defeat Dexter by an identical score earlier in the week, but the Tecumseh defeat wasn't at all the same, according to Welton.
"We had a 5-1 lead after three innings, and we got too comfortable and tried to sit on it, thinking we had it won. Tecumseh came back and beat us while we watched them do it. It was a very disappointing loss, and it hurt our chances for the Southeastern Conference championship."
"We should have been 3-0, and instead we're 2-1. We aren't playing with the intensity we must have if we want to repeat as SEC champions. We're getting some good individual efforts, but we aren't playing together as a team."
The Bulldogs knocked seven hits and scored five times in the first three innings, but got only one hit and were shut out the rest of the way.
Tecumseh clawed back to tie the bottom of the fifth and won the seventh on a walk, a sacrifice and a single that barely bounded through the infield. The winning run scored on a bang-bang play at the plate.
"He was safe, but it was very close," Welton said. "We should never have been in that situation."
Eric Schaffner started on the mound for Chelsea and pitched four good innings before giving way to Chuck Downer in relief. Downer took the loss.
Mark Mull and Jim Toon each banded two hits. Toon, Downer and Keith Neibauer all had doubles.

Boys Track Team Dumped by Western

There were few bright spots for the Chelsea boys track team as Jackson County Western overran the Bulldogs, 114-23, there last Thursday.
"We just plain didn't do well at all," said Chelsea coach Bill Wehrwein. "We have some boys hurt, and they might have scored points for us had they been able to compete, but that doesn't excuse our poor showing. It was by far our worst performance of the season."
Tim Bowdish took Chelsea's only first place by winning the 800-meter run. He was second in the 1,600. Curtis Heard and Scott Miller were the only other Bulldog runners to place in two events. Heard was second in the 100-meter dash and third in the 200. Miller was second in the low hurdles and third in the highs.
Chelsea earned only three points in the field events, on Ed Brosnan's second-place in the pole vault.
Bulldog place-winners:
Pole vault, Ed Brosnan 2nd; 100 high hurdles, Scott Miller 3rd; 100 dash, Curtis Heard 2nd; Jorge Castillo 3rd; 1,600 run, Tim Bowdish 2nd; 400 dash, Kyle Kemmish 2nd; low hurdles, Miller 2nd; 800 run, Bowdish 1st; 200 dash, Heard 3rd.

JV Diamond Team Beats Tecumseh, 6-3

"We finally played a good game from start to finish," was junior varsity baseball coach Jim Ticknor's comment after his team defeated Tecumseh here, 6-3, last Friday.
Pitcher Jeff Harvey threw a steady four-hitter, and got support at the plate from Jon Lane (double and triple), Phil Patterson (triple) and Brian Coy and Greg Haist with runs batted in.
The Bulldogs stole seven bases as Ticknor had his boys running at every opportunity.
"We played good ball all the way, and that's what I've been looking for all season," Ticknor said. "We've been having bad innings that hurt us, making mistakes at the wrong times. In this game we put things together, and it made the difference."
The JV's scheduled game at Pinckney last Monday was postponed because the Pirate field was flooded by week-end rains. The contest will be played at a later date.
Also postponed was the junior varsity softball game slated at Pinckney. The softball diamond was also unplayable.

After-the-Prom Party Enjoyed

LACING UP THEIR BOWLING SHOES, Randy Ehnis and Karen Killelea prepare for a late night game of bowling at Chelsea Lanes at the Party After the Prom. Parents, teachers and other members of the Chelsea community pitched in to give the seniors and their hosting juniors a whale of a party following the prom at Chelsea High, Saturday, May 4. All the students attending both events agreed it was a good time.

MELINDA FLETCHER SHED HER SHOES and popped in some eyedrops (she has contacts), then took a quick rest at the Party After the Prom, Saturday, May 4, at Chelsea Lanes. Melinda was one of nine students who participated in the marathon bowling competition, trying for a summer's complimentary bowling.

CATHY BURKEL shows her bubble-blowing prowess at the Party After the Prom held late Saturday and early Sunday, May 4-5 at Chelsea Lanes. Still wearing the string of pearls she wore at the prom, Cathy inflates the bubble gum for a photographer from The Chelsea Standard.

CHECKING TO SEE who had the most strikes when they bowled at the Party After the Prom held at Chelsea Lanes, Pam Brown and Brian Robeson were part of the many student bowlers who attended. At one time during the party, 110 young people were counted. Some stayed until after the sun rose, but others wandered in and out as they put in appearances at open houses at their's or friend's homes as well. Chelsea Lanes closed for the private party during the evening, Saturday, continuing into Sunday morning. Parents of many of the students appeared in shifts to help share the fun.

EVEN THE HARDEST ZONK OUT eventually, and Cathy Burkel found an empty bench on which to "take 40 winks" as the sun readied itself to rise. The event was the Party After the Prom at Chelsea Lanes, Saturday (and early Sunday), following the high school prom. The party was organized by students in the SADD group (Students Against Drunk Driving) with the assistance and generous co-operation of Ed GreenLeaf, owner of the Chelsea Lanes, and dozens of parents, business people and organizations in the Chelsea area, explained SADD advisor Bud Janich.

IT SURE DOES BURN: John Harris gets some liquid band-aid on his ailing thumb at the party held after the Chelsea High prom at Chelsea Lanes, Saturday, May 4. Applying the stingy stuff is Vicky Wurster, manager of the establishment. Sore thumbs abound as the young people bowled for several hours.

Better Speech, Hearing Month Being Observed

This article has been prepared by the speech therapists serving the Chelsea School District to commemorate May as better speech and hearing month.

Communication is the exchange of information, ideas, and feelings between people. Although people exchange information in many ways, oral language or speech is our primary mode of communication. Oral language abilities have a widespread impact on a child, because they affect all learning and social interactions.

Well developed linguistic skills are directly correlated to ease in learning to read. Good articulation and fluent speech promote feelings of competence and self-assurance. On the other hand, speech difficulties can interfere with the process of communication. They call attention to themselves and away from the important exchange of information, ideas, and feeling between people. They may make learning in the classroom more difficult.

There are many different but interrelated components of oral language: articulation, fluency, voice, and language. Language can be further subdivided into language comprehension, expressive language, and auditory processing.

Articulation is the ability to correctly pronounce the sounds of our language. This skill develops over a long period of time and should be completed by the age of seven years. A five-year-old who says, "Du tat time up du tee" for "The cat climbed up the tree" is demonstrating difficulties learning the sounds of our language.

Fluency is the ability to speak smoothly without repetitions or noticeable breaks. Although all children undergo a period of normal dysfluency between the ages of two and four years, stuttered speech is marked by multiple repetitions of words and sounds, sound prolongations, and stops in midspeech. "I I I I went to to the shu-shu-shu-show yesterday," illustrates a fluency disorder.

Voice is the ability to speak at acceptably loudness and pitch levels with an appropriate vocal quality. Because there is no single standard for vocal characteristics, voice differences must be fairly prominent before they are considered to be disordered. A child whose voice habitually sounds like he has laryngitis is demonstrating a voice disorder.

Language comprehension or receptive language is the ability to understand grammar and vocabulary. Language acquisition is a life-long process since we are continually expanding our understanding of words and their relationships. A child having difficulties recognizing the subtle differences between words is depicted in the following: Gym teacher says, "Everyone crouch down on the floor" and John begins to crawl across the floor.

Expressive language is the ability to use the rules of grammar to form words and sentences. This skill develops throughout the elementary years. "My mother have a giant bowl of ice cream and full of cake," reflects difficulties in employing the rules of our language in speech.

Auditory processing is the ability to remember speech, hear differences in speech, selectively attend to important speech, and retrieve words. These skills also develop throughout the elementary years. The child experiencing difficulties remembering will not be able to follow directions. When asked to get out a pencil and then turn to page 25, he will have gotten out his pencil, but will not know what page to turn to.

The child having problems hearing differences in words will respond "boat" to the question "Please give me a work that begins with the t sound." A child who cannot selectively attend will not be able to listen to a story if someone in the room is tapping his pencil on a desk. Finally, the child with word finding problems (Continued on page 20)

Schulze, a 1981 graduate of Chelsea High school, lives at 20086 Brown Drive. Bush, a senior at Dexter High school, lives on Dexter Town Hall Rd.

Faith in Action Asks Community Support

Faith in Action, Inc. (FIA), has begun its third year in providing assistance to Chelsea residents and as a supplement service to surrounding areas.

It started out some years ago as a phone number in someone's home and has grown into an incorporated community service with walk-in availability.

Services have expanded to include transportation, shelter, a free health clinic, information and referral, crisis intervention and advocacy, in addition to the food, clothing and financial assistance.

New programs have received community identity through FIA such as the Parent to Parent program and Parents Anonymous program. Volunteers are available seven hours a day, five days a week to assist with food and clothing. A part-time, volunteer director provides effective program operation and paraprofessional intervention.

The organization is growing daily, originally serving between 5-10 families per week, now serving 15-25 families per week. Nine hundred forty-five services were provided in 1984, serving 1,948 people with food alone. Financial assistance was provided 109 times, ranging from $10 to $175 each time. The Parent to Parent program provided weekly, individual support to 10 families last year and Parents Anonymous also had 10 families participating in a weekly group support. It is evident already this year, that services will exceed those of last year.

Contrary to some belief, these services are not limited or primarily provided to "generational welfare" people. Services are provided to many others too, i.e., senior citizens on fixed incomes, low-income families (as well as unemployed), single individuals searching for jobs or employment opportunities, and victims of disaster, tragedy or temporary difficulties who receive help on a limited or one-time basis.

What does this all mean; or what is the point of this? The point is, FIA has grown as a result of community needs. There are still needs not yet being met and unidentified people needing help but too proud to ask or the service is not available. To be quite blunt about it, manpower and money are needed.

FIA is "bursting at the seams" for more space to be able to expand existing services and implement new ones. Financial support has been infrequent and unreliable; minimum overhead enables most donations to go toward food, financial assistance and back into the community. 1985 presents a problem in that FIA is required to take on more financial responsibility for facility space and operation costs, not to mention increased requests for assistance.

In an effort to address these specific problems as well as to provide a more effective program for the community and clients, an Operations Committee has been developed to plan and implement yearly fund-raising projects and to brainstorm new funding ideas and sources. This committee will be vital to the continuation of FIA so community members are urged to take part in this community project by coming to an Operations Committee meeting scheduled for May 15, 7 p.m. at the FIA House located behind the Chelsea Community Hospital. Membership, organization and function will be discussed.

A "Human Needs" conference was held in Detroit recently which focused on and promoted government involvement in providing human needs services and the need for mandatory "sharing of the wealth" through taxation. FIA prefers to promote a more traditional philosophy of "helping thy neighbor"; or a "community helping its own." To do that, people are needed to come forward, offer a few hours time, realizing that someone once came forward for them, or may yet need to.

Recreation Wrestling Club Concludes Its Season

Ten members of the Chelsea Recreation wrestling team travelled to Portage Central High school April 20 for the Michigan Federation wrestling regional tournament.

In the 8-and-under division, at 46 pounds, David Paton took a first-place gold medal by pinning all four of his opponents.

The 8-and-under age group does not advance beyond the regional tournament, and so David ended his first year of wrestling with a 16-0 record, all of his victories decided by pins.

At 64 pounds, Jordan Dyer took a second-place silver medal, ending the year with three first-place and two second-place finishes. Jeremy Feldkamp, wrestling at 67 pounds also took a second-place silver, ending his season with one first and three second-place medals.

In the 9-10 division, Matt Powell and John Bobo participated in the regionals but did not qualify for the state finals. Both boys wrestled well throughout the season to qualify for the regionals.

At 55 pounds Bryndon Skelton wrestled to a fifth-place finish, and Colby Skelton took a first-place medal. Jeremy Wolf, at 85 pounds, won a third-place bronze medal, as did Steve Grau, at 95 pounds. All four qualified for the state finals.

In the 11-12 division, Joey Wolf, at 105 pounds, took a fifth place, which also qualified him for the state tournament.

On April 26-27 the five qualifying boys went to Grand Rapids for the Wrestling Federation state tournament. Jeremy Wolf suffered a hand injury in the first round, but wrestled well before being eliminated after his second match.

Steve Grau, matched against 11 competitors in his weight class, turned in a fine performance with a sixth-place finish. Bryndon Skelton, after a heartbreaking 5-6 loss in his first match, finished in 10th place; ending the season with a 12-5 record.

Colby Skelton wrestled to a third-place finish, ending the season with a 20-1 record. Colby actually defeated the first-place finisher by a score of 12-5 and suffered his only loss of the year to the silver medalist.

Joey Wolf, after finishing fifth in the regionals, was seeded against the first-place finishers from the other regional tournaments, and wrestled very well before being ousted after the second round.

The state tournament ended the season for the Recreation Wrestling Club. After only four years of existence the club has experienced much success. Persons involved included Howard McCalla, Tom Dyer, and Paul Stahl for their coaching; Peg Skelton and Jim Rincho. Parents have provided transportation.

The scooter was invented by a 15-year-old London schoolboy, Walter Lines, in 1897. But he didn't take out a patent. His father didn't think it would catch on.

Dexterite Heads Dominos Division

Domino's Equipment & Supply has added Domino's Pizza Emporium, forming four operating divisions effective April 9. Gary Josefczyk, who lives at 5571 N. Zeeb Rd., Dexter, will be general manager of the division.

Domino's Pizza Emporium is responsible for sales of premium and incentive gifts, with both the Domino's Pizza logo and the Detroit Tigers logo. "The function of the Emporium is to promote Domino's Pizza identity throughout the country at reasonable prices to anyone who wants it," says Josefczyk.

In addition to the Emporium, the Tiger Sports Shop, located one block from Tiger Stadium in Detroit sells items promoting the Detroit Tigers baseball team. Josefczyk is quite excited about the store, which opened its doors April 8. "The unique advantage to the Tigers Sports Shop is that approximately 20% of all items can only be purchased at that location." The store is open seven days a week and after every home game, whether it's a day or night game.

Josefczyk is planning to have fall retail catalogs for both Domino's Pizza Emporium and the Tigers Sports Shop this year.

Gary has been with Domino's Pizza Distribution Corp. since 1977. Sales in 1979 when he became general manager of the Equipment & Supply Division were $900,000. Projected sales for 1985 are $55 million.

The microscopic organisms commonly found in topsoil can do many a unique thing, says National Wildlife magazine. Some soil microbes can consume 99 percent of the DDT sprayed on them within a few weeks. Too often, though, toxic chemicals get into groundwater before any bacteria can get to them.

BEST MUSIC YOU EVER HEARD was played in the backyard of a home on Flanders, Sunday afternoon, May 5. Liz Olsen and her husband, Bob, were host to a group of friends and the professional musicians played in the Olsen's yard where a giant pink-blossomed tree in full bloom and majestic pines formed a natural stage. Choosing many of the musical selections from the 40's (with some a little earlier and others a bit later), the group provided some fine listening. Many of the musicians played at Bimbo's in Ann Arbor with the Gaslighters, and at least three now appear at

Thornton Buys Ann Arbor Realty Firm

Chelsea realtor Bob Thornton has expanded his business into the Ann Arbor market with the recent purchase of Dalitz Realty, of 417 S. Fourth Ave. in Ann Arbor. No purchase price was announced.

"Entering the Ann Arbor market has become necessary in order to provide support for our relocation business," Thornton said.

Thornton, Inc., is a member of Relo/Inter-City Relocation Service, a network of 1,100 member companies with more than 2,800 offices serving about 13,000 real estate markets throughout the United States. According to Thornton, Relo is the nation's largest referral network of independent real estate brokers.

Dalitz is a very good commercial and investment business," Thornton said. "We should have a better opportunity to do more in Chelsea in that area."

Thornton said that he believes that expansion of his relocation business will also help support the Chelsea real estate market in general.

Under the terms of the agreement, Thornton said, previous owner Morris Dalitz and the present staff will remain with the organization. Dalitz will reportedly devote more time to developing real estate and serving his commercial, industrial and business clients.

Thornton has been in business in Chelsea since 1970. In 1976 he was president of the Ann Arbor Board of Realtors and is immediate past president of the Michigan Association of Realtors.

Better Speech Month . . .

may say the following, "Um I err went to that you know special store to buy um that thing."

Hearing acuity is an important prerequisite to the development of oral language skills. Many children with speech and language difficulties have or have had a history of hearing loss. Therefore, the importance of hearing conservation cannot be overstated.

In order to help children who demonstrate difficulties in speech and language skills, school districts have developed programs in speech correction. The Chelsea School District currently employs two speech therapists to provide evaluation and therapy services for pre-school and school-aged children.

If you would like additional information about this program or have questions regarding age appropriate speech and language skills, please feel free to call Ann Andraska at South Elementary school (475-9131, ext. 65) or Jean Meconi at North Elementary school (475-9131, etc. 60). They would be happy to answer your questions.

Chelsea Hospital Offers Handbell Choirs Plan Workshop on Alcoholics Mother's Day Festival

Chelsea Community Hospital will offer in co-operation with the Michigan Alcohol Addiction Association a workshop on Treating Adult Children of Alcoholics, conducted by Robert J. Ackerman, on Monday, May 13. The workshop is for professionals in the field.

Dr. Ackerman is a co-founder and member of the board of directors of the National Association for Children of Alcoholics. He is a member of the sociology faculty at Indiana University in Pennsylvania, and has spoken at many national conferences.

The workshop is part of the continuing program by the Chelsea

Community Hospital to meet the needs of the community. Substance abuse services at the hospital include in-patient, out-patient, and residential care.

Individuals interested in learning more about the services offered by the substance abuse department should call 475-1311, ext. 215.

Humans aren't the only ones with babysitters, says Ranger Rick magazine. If a mother animal has to hunt, she will often leave her young with an "auntie" or teen-age animal. Apparently, it is a shared duty and animal sitters don't get paid.

Handbell Choirs of the Chelsea First United Methodist church will present a bell festival on Mother's Day, Sunday, May 12, during both the 8:45 a.m. and 10 a.m. worship service.

The Rainbow Ringers (Junior High Choir) will ring "Meditation" by Melton as the call to worship, and "Passacaglia" arranged for bells and organ by Alinda Couper for the offertory.

The Tintinnabulators, the Senior High choir, will present "Antiphon" by Moira Boynton with Fayola Ash, organist and Christina Steffenson, harpist; "Beside Still Waters" by Starks; and Haydn's "Glorious Things of Thee Are Spoken" with Mrs. Ash at the organ console and Becca Lee on French horn.

The choirs are directed by Dorina Palmer. June Warren is the director of music.
