Chelsea Girls Are Softball Champions

STATE CLASS B SOFTBALL CHAMPIONS: This group of ecstatic girls returned to Chelsea Monday evening after having reached a goal they had set long ago. They had just won the State Class B Softball Championship in Lansing a few hours earlier. A very vocal group of parents and friends met them, and led by a fire truck, they were escorted through town on a victory tour. Members of the championship team are, front row, from left to right, Lisa and Laura Unterbrink, Kelly Stump, Jill Schaffner, Pam Brown, Trisha

Girls Defeat Richmond, 7-4, in Final Game Of State Tournament

State Champions.
Chelsea's softball team earned that title at Lansing's Ranney Park Monday afternoon with a hard-fought 7-4 victory over Richmond in the final game of the state tournament.

The contest was supposed to have been played on Saturday, but was rained out. It was played between showers on Monday on a muddy infield and slippery outfield grass.

Ace pitchers Kelly Hawker and Beth Unterbrink combined to close down a fine Richmond team that didn't know the meaning of the word "quit." The Blue Devils hung tough all the way.

Chelsea jumped off to a big lead on a four-run first inning, and made it stand up. Anne Weber and Lori Folcik both were safe on ground-ball errors, and Weber scored on a throw-away of Laura Anderson's bunt. Folcik crossed the plate as Beth Unterbrink grounded out. A single by Chris DeFant and a ground-out by Joann Tobin produced two more runs.

The Bulldogs got another run in the second on successive hits by Folcik, Anderson and Unterbrink, and appeared to have the game in hand. It didn't work out that way.

Richmond scored a run in the fourth on a single, a stolen base and a solid RBI hit. Chelsea got that one back in its half of the fourth as Unterbrink doubled and crossed the plate on DeFant's clutch hit.

The Blue Devils threw a scare into the Bulldogs by tallying three times in the fifth on two hits and a couple of Chelsea boo-boos as the girls just plain got mixed up on who was supposed to catch what in the outfield.

The lead-off hitter in Richmond's sixth smacked a line drive to right that Tina Paddock grabbed, and Chelsea coach Charlie Waller decided to make a pitching change.

"Kelly (Hawker) had thrown a courageous ball game even though she didn't have her real good stuff," Waller said. "Her rise ball wasn't jumping up. She only had three strike-outs. It may have been the heavy, wet air. That can make a lot of difference."

"My game plan was to let Kelly pitch as long as she could, and then bring in Beth, who is a super athlete and a great competitor. Beth didn't have a lot of time to warm up, but she has the ability to come in cold and do the job."

Unterbrink needed to get five outs to save the game and the championship, and she got them on a total of 12 pitches with some fine defensive help from her teammates.

Kris Mattoff made a great catch in center while sliding on her knees. Tobin caught a pop fly at first to end the sixth inning.

In Chelsea's half of the sixth, Unterbrink gave herself an insurance run by tripling over the left-fielder's head and trotting home after the catch of Paddock's fly to center.

Richmond went down in order in its last time at bat. Bulldog second baseman Anne Weber scooped up a grounder for an easy put-out at first, Paddock gathered in a routine fly, and Anderson made sure of the last out by picking up a ground-ball and rifling it to Tobin at first.

Right then and there the Bulldogs were State Class B champions, proud owners of a 37-5 season record, a share of the Southeastern Conference title, and—the most coveted prize of all—a state championship.

Chelsea won the state crown in 1982, lost in the regional final in 1983, lost in the final game last year, and won it all again this time.

Asked which of the two state championships excited him the most, Waller turned diplomatic.

"I really didn't expect we would win in 1982. Amy Unterbrink carried us to a victory that was kind of a surprise. I thought from the start that this year's team had a good shot at winning it all, and I've pointed toward it. Winning is very satisfying."

"It's by far the best team I've ever had, strong at every position. When you have two pitchers like Hawker and Unterbrink, you don't have to be a great coach to decide your pitching rotation. You can't go wrong with either one. It was comforting to have them both available today, and to use them both."

"A sign of our strength and depth is that we were able to play over the loss of our starting shortstop (Jennifer Cattell who suffered a fractured right thumb in the second inning of last Friday's semi-final game against St. Joseph)."

"We had to have some luck, and we got it in our district tournament games against Pinckney and Saline. We could have lost either one of those. We got a break on that balk call against St. Joseph in the semi-final."

"When you get into tournament games, luck is important because everybody is good and there isn't much difference between winners and losers."

"I'm very, very proud of this team. They have a lot of ability and a lot of dedication. Our seven seniors are all outstanding players, and the younger girls did their part."

Hawker acknowledged that she was tired when Waller relieved her in the sixth inning. "I didn't have my best stuff," she said. "It was a very tough game all the way. They hit me pretty good."

Unterbrink said she didn't have time to warm up enough to throw as hard as she can, but added, "I had good control and could put the ball where I wanted to. I didn't strike out anybody, but the defense got the outs. We play team softball. That's what's important."

New United Methodist Home Building To Be Consecrated on Sunday

The new Nursing Center at the Chelsea United Methodist Retirement Home will be consecrated in a ceremony set for 3 p.m. Sunday, June 23.

Public tours of the building, the major part of a $7.6 million expansion and remodeling project, will be conducted between 1 and 3 p.m.

The new facility will contain 110 beds for nursing home patients. Construction under a contract awarded to Granger Project Management and Development Corp. of Lansing, has taken a little more than a year. Ground was broken in May of 1984.

Two floors of the existing main building are to be renovated and converted from nursing care to retirement home use. A new boiler and laundry building is to be erected, and some other sprucing up done.

The home provides housing for two types of persons: retirees who are in good health and able to take care of themselves with minimal assistance, and nursing home patients who require hospital-type care.

The United Methodist Home offers a "continuum of care" for residents who pass from one category to the other as they grow older.

A drastic change in the makeup of the general U.S. population, which includes many more older persons than formerly, has created a higher demand for nursing home care, and the Methodist Home expansion is designed to meet that need.

When the project is completed, the home will accommodate 48 more nursing home patients than can presently be cared for. There will also be a small increase in spaces available for retirees.

Guidelines Adopted By School Board for Gifted, Talented

The Chelsea school board recently voted to approve a 14-page proposal on how to educate the district's gifted and talented students.

The 12-member committee that worked on the proposal included teachers and administrators from all the schools—Bob Benedict, John Williams, Darcy Stielstra, Bill Westcott, Margaret Nance, Pat Clarke, Marie Crouch, Jackie Rogers, Sally Schlup, Marcia Quilter, and Anita Todd-Parks. They turned out an almost painfully-detailed document after many months of work.

"This is not a radical change in our approach, per se," said Stielstra, who chaired the committee. "We're basically learning from the past and making alterations."

While there are changes, Stielstra said, most of them will not be tangible in the sense that a new program or course would be. Most of the new approach involves modifying the way every teacher conducts his class, and, to some extent, reorganizing the program with available resources.

One of the document's main functions is to co-ordinate how the gifted and talented are taught, from day one in the school system through high school graduation. It details at all three levels of education—elementary, middle and high school—what resources are available and how they might be used. This includes how students can be accelerated in their coursework (for example, by being grouped with students of similar abilities or by taking

Cavanaugh Lake Store Robbed of $155 By Gunman

Cavanaugh Lake Store at Cavanaugh Lake and Glazier Rds. was held up and robbed at gunpoint last Wednesday night. The gun-wielding robber fled with $155 in cash.

The crime remains under investigation by the sheriff's department. Possible suspects have been questioned, but no arrests have been made, detective Paul Wade said.

The armed robbery occurred at about 9:30 p.m. when the store was empty except for the female clerk on duty. Several customers had left the store a few minutes earlier.

The robber came into the store, which is isolated and not visible from any nearby neighboring dwelling or business place, selected several items of merchandise, walked to the cash register counter and offered money to pay for what he had apparently purchased.

As the clerk was sacking the merchandise and making change, the "customer" pulled a gun, apparently a small-caliber pistol, and told her, "Give me all the money or I'll blow your head off."

She handed over $155 while the pistol was pointed at her head. The gunman ordered her to lie on the floor and not get up until he had made his escape. He fled on foot. As soon as she was certain the robber had left the premises, the clerk got up and called the police.

Sheriff's officers brought a tracking dog to the scene. A scent trail was followed to Kalmbach Rd., a short distance south of the store, where it ended. Investigators believe the bandit got into a car there and drove away.

The incident was a rare armed robbery in this area. Break-ins (burglaries) and larcenies (thefts) are fairly common, but hold-ups involving the use of threatening weapons seldom occur.

His selection as a member of this delegation was made in recognition of leadership qualities and educational background. This delegation is exclusive and private, and each participating delegate pays his or her own way.

Van Meer will depart from Los Angeles, Saturday, June 11, and after a brief stop in Tokyo, Japan, will visit Peking (Beijing), Tientsin (Tianjin), Shanghai, Guangzhou (Canton), and Hong Kong. He will return to Chelsea, Saturday, July 25.

A rose is a rose, but 1981 Chelsea High school graduate Karen Moore was surely surprised to receive 16 orchids from her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Moore of Mountain View, Hawaii, formerly of Chelsea. Karen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moore of Ivey Rd.

As anticipated all season, league champion Chelsea dominated all voting by coaches last week in the All-Southeastern Conference softball team for 1981. The lady Bulldogs were able to place four players on the first team and one player received honorable mention.

Judge Refused Request for Corporate Campaign Activity
U. S. District Court Judge Roger Hillman has refused to permit corporations to make independent expenditures on behalf of political candidates, but said the issue is a close one involving issues of free speech and equal protection.

The denial of a temporary injunction against provisions of state campaign finance laws was the opening round in a lawsuit described by a State Chamber of Commerce official as "the next case that frames the issues of corporate speech in the political arena."

The Chamber brought the suit to enable political activity in the July 10 special House election, but vice-president for political affairs Robert LaBrant said he hopes now for definitive court action in time for the 1986 elections.

Assistant attorney general Richard Gartner and Joel Boyden, attorney for the Chamber, both said the judge said it was a close question of whether the law is constitutional, but did not have enough information at this time to take the drastic step of enjoining its enforcement.

A plaintiff must show a substantial likelihood of winning the suit and of suffering irreparable harm in order to obtain a temporary injunction.

The federal government and at least 21 other states limit in some way corporate political activity. But unlike the federal government, which bans direct expenditures on behalf of candidates by both corporations and unions, the Michigan law affects only corporations.

According to Boyden, Hillman said he would be "looking very closely" at the equal protection argument to see the distinction between corporations and labor organizations.

"We have somehow got to produce an evidentiary record to show that the purpose of the law is to prevent corruption and the appearance of corruption. The Supreme Court has said a proper governmental interest (in campaign finance restrictions) is preventing corruption," Gartner said.

Boyden said it is difficult to see how the specter of corruption arises by corporate entities and not by labor.

The suit cites a recent U. S. Supreme Court decision striking federal campaign restrictions against independent expenditures by political actions committees.

Blanchard Objects to Oil and Gas Tests Under Lakes

Governor James Blanchard recently said he opposes a request by a Texas oil company to test for oil and gas deposits beneath the three largest Great Lakes, saying he could not encourage a project that could lead to drilling for the energy supplies.

"The risks of oil drilling and exploration within the Great Lakes are simply unacceptable," Blanchard said in a letter to Grant-Norpac of Houston.

The company has asked the Department of Natural Resources and similar agencies in Wisconsin and Minnesota for permission to use air guns to yield seismic information on types and quantities of oil and gas beneath Lakes Superior, Michigan, and Huron.

The technique is apparently not covered by a 1982 law banning oil and gas drilling in lakes bottomlands, but Blanchard said the law was aimed at both exploration and actual taking of oil and gas.

"It is my opinion that the Legislature expressed the clear intent of the people of Michigan to prohibit all oil and gas exploration or drilling in the Great Lakes. I share this sentiment," he said.

The company submitted a request to the Land Resources Division of the DNR two months ago.

Morgan Nielsen, a division official in charge of Great Lakes submerged lands, said Michigan law does not cover surveying for oil and gas, and studies indicate the technique has no impact on fisheries.

He said Wisconsin and Minnesota approved the seismic technique, but with restrictions.

When was the last time you ate seaweed? Probably yesterday. According to National Wildlife's Ranger Rick magazine, seaweed that's been heated, dried and ground to a powder is commonly used in making ice cream, bread, salad dressing, chocolate milk, pasteries, and milkshakes.

It's surprisingly easy to attract hummingbirds to most yards and gardens, says National Wildlife magazine. Planting red flowers, or hanging red-colored vials of sugar water are particularly enticing to hummingbirds, which are in constant search for energizing flower nectar and tiny insects.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Ed Doolittle never has been keen on tinkering with anything for the sake of change. If it ain't broke, Ed says, don't fix it, which Democrat Clem Webster says is another way of saying that Ed is a mossback Republican that can look progress square in the eye and never blink and never think. To Ed, the only good day is a old day.

So the fellers was suprised Saturday night when Ed griped about "heritage days" all the schools are having as their year winds down. The children and the teachers dress up like olden days and talk about how school use to be and how much better everything is. All this stuff that passes for reliving history, Ed declared, is nothing but a pore excuse fer everybody to play even more of the school day. Showing the children how yarn was spun on a wheel and lye soap was made in a wash tub has as much to do with education as them movie stars that recent cried to Congress has to do with farming and ranching, was Ed's words.

General speaking, the fellers was disagreed with Ed. Them that spoke was of a mind that folks ought to have some idee of where they come from in order to understand where they are and decide where they want to go. Clem said show and tell can give children relief from books and usual do as much fer em. But Clem admitted he was ashamed last month to be in the same party with that Senate committee that brought in wimmen that had played farm wives in movies to tell the Government how bad it is treating farmers. Clem said he onct was a shepherd in a church play, so he could of done better testifying on the state of agriculture. The sad fact is, Clem went on, Government under Democrats and Republicans can't decide whuther to control farm prices and production or turn em loose in a free market. As long as he can recall, he said, they have tried to do both and they have give farmers and ranchers the worst of both.

It was Zeke Grubb that allowed there is somepun to be said fer performing, if it ain't no more than life imitates art. Zeke said the Senate testimony was fer the TV cameras. No Republicans was allowed, so the 12 Democrats could show how bad farmers have fared under President Reagan without fear of conderdiction. What we need now is, Zeke went on, is fer the Administration to come with "Star Wars" stars to tell how good their weapons work, then maybe the Lone Ranger and Tonto, that cracked some tough nuts in their time, could come in and pick out the good guys and bad guys in Nickeraga so we can git that nasty little matter cleaned up.

Practical speaking, Bug Hookum said he sided with Zeke. Nobody would of remembered a farmer on TV talking about farming. The Democrat Hollywood show was like all farm programs. They come in like fresh spring showers, but they never bring enough rain to wet the roots. As fer reliving the past, Bug said we need to remember the gas lines of the 70s cause the way we're driving more in bigger cars it looks like we have fergot history can repeat itself. Even Ed wouldn't favor going back to them back old days, was Bug's words.

As fer farming, Bug said he had saw a Gallup Poll where parents named it most necessary, but last in work they'd like their children to go in. Maybe that's their heritage days tell us, Bug said, it's a tough job somebody has to do, but it ain't as tough as it was.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

True Grist Theatre Offering 'Annie'

True Grist dinner theatre in Homer, is geared up for their production of the Broadway musical hit "Annie" which opened on the mainstage June 13 and will continue through Aug. 25.

"Annie," a Thomas Meehan/Charles Strause/Martin Charnin musical, is based on the adventures of the lovable comic-strip character Little Orphan Annie, set in the 1930's depression era. It is a show filled with warmth and nostalgia; villains, goodguys, a 1930's-style radio show, a visit with F.D.R., a Christmas celebration, seven adorable little girls and a dog.

True Grist is welcoming back Daniel Yurgaitis as director for "Annie." Yurgaitis is managing director for Detroit's Attic Theatre and has directed several productions at Tibbits Opera House in Coldwater including "Miracle Worker" and "Robber Bridegroom." He has directed a number of Michigan premieres, among them "Talley's Folly," "Tintypes" and "March of the Falsettos." He has twice been named Best Director by The Detroit Free Press for his work. Yurgaitis came to Michigan seven years ago to assume the position of artistic director at the True Grist dinner theatre where he directed nearly 40 productions before assuming duties at the Attic Theatre.

Musical direction is provided by the talents of Barb Robinson, and the production is further enhanced by scene designs by Dan Vicary.

The cast is a mixture of new and familiar faces at True Grist. Kristy Graves is Annie. She has performed the role in two previous productions of the show, most recently at a professional dinner theatre in Naples, Fla. True Grist's producer, David Rhinard takes the stage as Daddy Warbucks, and Gail Betts-Trader is Miss Hannigan, the loud villainous guardian at the orphanage.

With the recent approval of a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts, True Grist is adding a Saturday matinee for performances of "Annie" available at a special low children's rate. True Grist hopes to encourage family participation in live theatre by providing an opportunity for children to attend. "Annie" is a show that the entire family can attend and enjoy. It promises to be well-worth seeing.

MAKING LIFE SIMPLER

Making life simpler can begin with cleaning out your closets, the basement and the attic—and holding a garage sale. Take a break in the midst of all that clearing, packing, sorting and pricing, and relax with a frosty glass of iced tea. Just think, with all that extra closet space coupled with the money you make from the garage sale, you'll be able to fill that closet with some fashionable new additions to your wardrobe.

CHS Class of '35 50th Anniversary Reunion Additions

Others not attending the reunion, but still very much alive, include Mary and Margaret Staphish, both living in Mason; Marjorie Sott of San Antonio, Tex.; Geraldine Mast Gieske, Chelsea; Charles Malott of Detroit; Charles Preston of Kalamazoo; Zilpha Shaver of Atlanta, Ga.; Dorothy Boyce of Redford; Leona Culhane of Wayne.

Those class members reported to be deceased include Leo "Pete" Allshouse, Shirley Carpenter, Lynn Dancer, Gladys Hinchey, John Leman, Herbert Mauch, William "Billy" Seitz, Dick Sowers, and Max Young.

Faith Lutheran Services To Focus On Revelations

For the next several months, beginning July 7, Faith Lutheran church, at 9575 North Territorial Rd., will be centering its worship services around the Book of Revelations.

As a conservative Lutheran, Pastor Porinsky will be steering a course between the modernist approach on the one hand, which sees Revelation mainly as a human reaction to the problems of the early church, and the futurist approach on the other hand, which looks for the major fulfillment of Revelation in a future rapture, 7-year tribulation, millennial reign of Christ on earth.

Anyone who is undecided concerning the interpretation of Revelation, or the Bible in general, is invited to attend the services as a guest. Pastor Porinsky believes the Book of Revelation is loaded with comfort and guidance for today.

Services are at 10 o'clock Sunday morning or 7:30 Wednesday evenings, each Wednesday service being a repeat of the previous Sunday service.

Airman Kenneth R. Cole, son of Robert W. and Sharon Cole of 15660 Van Syckle, Gregory, has been assigned to Lowry Air Force Base, Colo., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex., the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airman will now receive specialized instruction in the munitions and weapons maintenance field.

He is a 1984 graduate of Stockbridge High school.

Guidelines Set By Schools for Gifted, Talented

talented students may be exposed to new topics and given a chance for independent study.

Another function of the document is to detail exactly how to screen and identify the gifted and talented. Essentially, parents, teachers and, in some cases, students may nominate a student for placement in the program. A student who scores in the top 10 percent on a national achievement test will also be considered. From there, a screening committee at each school ranks the students according to a variety of criteria, including test scores and creativity measurements, among others. One of the goals is to keep the "talent pool," as it is called, to less than 25 percent of the over-all enrollment.

One fairly significant change in the program is that once a student is placed in the talent pool, he will remain there until he graduates from high school. The idea is that a gifted/talented student may not be that way all the time, just as an athlete may hit a slump from time to time.

The program is designed to be implemented with the funds that already exist for these programs.

Bobby Pratt To Help Missionaries in Mexico

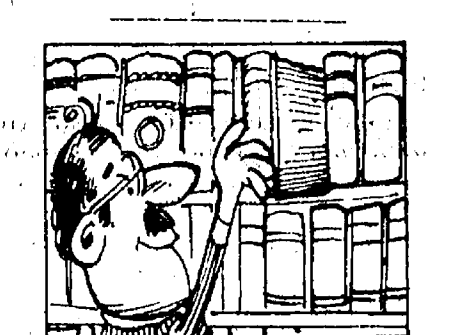

Bobby Pratt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pratt of 625 N. Main St., has been invited by David and Yvonne Roller, Free Methodist missionaries in Mexico, to assist them this summer.

Bobby, who will be a sophomore at Chelsea High school this fall, will leave on July 6 for five weeks. He will help the Rollers in the care of their young son as they travel throughout Mexico. Bobby will also take part in work projects with a team of U.S. college students.

He intends to use the Spanish he has learned to help him communicate with the Mexican families with whom he will be living, and hopes to chronicle his trip by keeping a journal and taking slides.

He will share these at Chelsea Free Methodist church after his return.

Friends and members of the church presented Bobby with a generous love offering to assist him in air fare and other related expenses.

A VIEW from the CLOCK TOWER

Bill Mullendore

Continuing the story of my mother and dad, who are going on 84 years old and recently celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary:

Dad rose quickly through the ranks of employees in the Detroit division of Standard Oil of Indiana. Starting as a 50-cents-an-hour helper in a gas station, he was promoted to station manager after a few months because, as he says without bragging, "I showed them I could work harder and better than anybody else at the station. That's where my farm background helped. If there is one thing you learn on a farm, it's how to work."

Somebody up the line in management decided Dad might have the makings of a salesman, and he was given a job peddling motor oil, tires, batteries and other auto accessories to outlets around Detroit. He did so well that he was sent to Holly as the local Standard Oil agent and from there to Monroe to be in charge of an office-warehouse complex.

About the time my folks got settled in Monroe, the Great Depression hit. That meant, among other things, that I was destined to be an only child. "We were starting to think about giving you a brother or sister when the crash came," Dad recalls. "My salary was cut twice in six months. For a while, I wondered every day when I went to work whether it was going to be my last day. Adding to the family was just out of the question."

Mother and Dad are full of horror stories about the Depression. I could write a book about them, and may someday. As Dad proudly recalls, "I never missed a day's work. The company kept me on the job through all those awful years. I didn't make much money, but we always had a roof over our heads, enough to eat and clothes to wear, and we paid our bills on time. In those days that was a lot to be thankful for, all you could really hope for. A lot of people—good, honest, hard-working people—didn't have that much. I hope to God that this country never has to go through anything like that again."

My own memories begin about 1931, when I started to school. I recall, among other things, making friends when school started in September, only to have them disappear when cold weather came on. Not until much later did I learn that they had to drop out because they didn't have shoes and coats.

I remember Mother standing at the front door, handing out slices of buttered bread to kids who came knocking and begging for something to eat, and her crying when she ran out before all could be fed. She walked 10 blocks to and from the bakery every day to buy day-old bread for a few pennies a loaf. Dad got the butter from a local farmer who owed him money. Dad was something of a soft touch. He loaned quite a bit of money, a few dollars at a time, to people in need, and got very little of it back.

Dad also made a lot of friends. One of them, an employee at the bank where Dad kept his few hundred dollars of savings, called him one day and said, "Come down and take your money out. Ask for me, and I'll see that you get it." The bank closed two days later, never to re-open. Thousands of depositors lost all they had. There was no such thing as government-insured deposits back then. When a bank went belly-up, and hundreds did, that was it.

I saw Dad cry only once. He had an opening for a job, a clerk at $80 a month, and he made the mistake of advertising it. Next morning he had to fight his way through a milling crowd of more than 200 applicants who had come from all over.

"That may have been the worst day of my life," he remembers. "Every one of those men wanted that job, needed that job, was desperate for it. I finally decided on a man named Eddie who had a wife and 11 kids. He told me he was going to kill himself so his family could collect on a $500 insurance policy if he didn't get the job. I believed him then, and I still do."

"I gave him some pretty straight talk about how to keep from making more babies and loaned him money to buy some decent clothes to come to work in and food for his family. He turned out to be the best employee who ever worked for me. He paid back the loan out of his first paycheck, and he never quit thanking me. I heard from him several times a year until he died."

Dad sat down and cried at the kitchen table on the evening that he came home after hiring Eddie. "When I had that many people wanting to work, and had only one job to offer, it was just too much. I couldn't take it."

So much for tales of the Depression, which are just plain terrible to write. For that reason, the possible book I mentioned may never be written.

From Monroe, Dad was transferred back to Detroit, and from there to Lansing where he was assigned to sell industrial lubricants in a triangular territory bounded by Lansing, Jackson and Ann Arbor. That opened up a bright new phase in our family life. More about that later.

D. Harsh To Head Red Cross Board

Washtenaw County Chapter American Red Cross held its 68th annual meeting June 5 at the Ann Arbor Women's City Club.

Daniel R. Harsh was re-elected chair of the board of directors. He was also recently appointed to the governor's Emergency Preparedness Advisory Committee and was asked to chair the Legislative Subcommittee of the Council. Since 1979 Harsh has been director of Emergency Management for Washtenaw County. Dan, his wife Donna and three daughters have been residents of Dexter-Chelsea area for six years.

John Hochrein, director of government and community relations for Michcon accepted the Washtenaw county chapter American Red Cross 1985 Outstanding Community Service Award on behalf of Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. Hochrein is currently on the board of directors for Washtenaw county chapter and has been instrumental in facilitating the involvement of Michcon in Red Cross services. John, his wife and four children have been residents of Dexter for the past 18 years.

The Dexter Leader was presented with a communications award by the Washtenaw County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

THE CLASS OF 1925 of Chelsea High school gathered for a 60th reunion last Friday, June 14 at the home of Luella Weinberg. The group dined at an Ann Arbor restaurant then returned to the Weinberg home for general conversation. The class, which originally had 23 members, graduated from the school which stood on the site

Funds Assured To Continue Marine Safety Programs

Governor James J. Blanchard has assured Michigan sheriffs that state funding grants for sheriff's marine safety programs will be maintained at 1984 levels, thus averting the threat of crippling cutbacks in marine safety activities for the 1985 boating season.

The announcement was made by Sheriff Schebil of Washtenaw county, following a meeting between representatives of the Michigan Sheriff's Association (MSA) and a representative of Governor Blanchard in Lansing. MSA was assured by an official from the Michigan Department of Management and Budget that the governor is fully committed to maintaining adequate state support of marine safety, patrol, search and rescue services performed by Michigan sheriffs.

"We're delighted with the governor's response," Schebil said. "Now we can get on with our task of enforcing marine safety laws and providing critical search and rescue services without worrying about how to pay for them."

"This action is a clear indication that Governor Blanchard fully understands the importance of maintaining marine patrols on Michigan's rivers, inland lakes and Great Lakes," Schebil said. "It's good news for Michigan sheriffs, but more important, it's great news for boaters who rely on Michigan sheriffs to protect lives and property on state waters."

The problem surfaced when the state cut reimbursement grants for sheriffs' marine safety programs to bridge a deficit in the Marine Safety Fund.

While pleased with the Governor's commitment to extend funding for the program at 1984 levels, MSA will continue pressing for legislative action on measures that revamp the funding distribution formula to guarantee adequate state support for sheriffs' marine safety activities.

Softball Champions

Chelsea had eight hits in the game and drew three walks. Unterbrink led the attack with three hits, including a double and triple. She drove in two runs and scored two.

Richmond managed five hits, all off Hawker, who was the winning pitcher.

"They definitely are the best hitting team we faced this season," Waller said. "The middle of their lineup is awesome. Their 3-4-5 hitters have a combined batting average over .500. I'm not at all surprised that they scored four runs against us. I'm just glad they didn't get more."

"Cheryl Hein is an excellent pitcher. She throws mostly fastballs, and we're a good fastball hitting team. We got to her early. When she started to vary her speed and throw some soft stuff, we had trouble. That four-run first inning, before Hein settled down, was what made the difference."

"Just give the Richmond girls a lot of credit. Usually, when you get a team down by five runs early, the game is over. Richmond didn't quit. They came back and made us earn the win. That wasn't an easy victory out there."

Seven seniors—Hawker, Unterbrink, Tobin, Anderson, Weber, Paddock, Folcik—played their last games for Chelsea, and all contributed to making the finale the biggest game of their lives.

Catcher Michelle Easton, outfielders Mattoff and Chandy Hurd and shortstop Cattell will be back next year to form the nucleus of the team that will defend its state championship. Coming along is a junior varsity team that was 23-0 this season.

Substance Abuse Task Force Establishes Three Objectives

The Chelsea Substance Abuse Task Force has been formed to assist in developing and carrying out programs of drug awareness, intervention and prevention in the local community.

The organization has three major goals:

1. Awareness—to increase community knowledge of drug use, abuse and dependency.
2. Intervention—to carry out strategies for early and effective identification and treatment of drug abuse and dependency problems.
3. Prevention—to stimulate discussion and action on how to prevent substance abuse.

The all-volunteer group is open to anyone interested. It is composed of representatives of schools, churches, police agencies, health and civic organizations, and individuals.

Dr. Ronald Denkowski, head of the Substance Abuse treatment program at Chelsea Community Hospital, is the task force chairman. Susan Carter, guidance counselor at Chelsea High school, is the secretary, and Ken Larson, assistant principal at the high school, is treasurer.

The task force meets at 7:30 p.m. on the second and fourth Mondays of the month in Conference Rooms A and B at Chelsea Community Hospital. Anyone interested is invited to attend any meeting.

The group was founded last February following a meeting of interested citizens at St. Paul church at which it was decided that Chelsea needs a citizens organization to help deal with local problems of substance abuse.

The Task Force has received a grant of $1,000 from the Civic Foundation of Chelsea as "seed money" to help it get started. The grant is earmarked for promotional materials and training activities.

Funds are being sought to send citizen members to a training workshop to be held at Howell in August.

Members of the Task Force in addition to the officers previously listed include: Marlene Allen, representing Chelsea Citizens Against Drug Abuse; Carol Bogdanski, Chelsea Citizens Against Drug Abuse; Bruce Boughner, Chelsea High school; Peg Dancer, Chelsea Community Hospital advisory board; Mary Beth Detting, St. Louis School for Boys; Donna Dotson, hospital substance abuse program;

Ed Humenay, Kresge House Alumni Association; Bud Janick, Chelsea High school and Students Against Drunk Drivers (SADD); Donald Joseph, Kresge Alumni Association; Michael Joseph, CCH Psychiatric and Substance Abuse Out-Patient Clinic; Kerry Kargel, high school;

The Rev. Erwin R. Koch, Chelsea Ministerial Association; Lenard McDougall, police chief; Joseph Redding, Chelsea Board of Education; Joe Rossi, Knights of Columbus; Marla Rubenstein, high school; Dale Schumann, board of education;

Dr. John Severin, Chelsea Hospital Family Practice Center;

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter in due respect to the North Sharon Bible School. I want to thank the Rev. Booth, the principal, Mr. Tompkins, and all the teachers at the school for recognizing my son, James Smith, as a human being instead of an animal. Thank you, the staff for bringing out all of James' potentials. For teaching with love, patience, and understanding. I feel I have met the greatest teachers. I will meet in a lifetime. People who care about every child as if that child were their own. Teachers who are not there for a pay check, but who are there to teach your child a good education.

Any parent who has ever thought about sending your child to North Sharon Bible School, take it from my experiences, if you want your child to be treated like a human being, and taught with love, patience, and understanding, try this school. I'll grant you that you will never have any regrets. I also grant you, that you will see a whole new personality in your child.

Again, I just want to say thanks to the staff of North Sharon Bible School, I shall always be grateful to you. I shall always remember all of you in my prayers. And may God bless each and everyone of you always.

Shirley M. Hairdar.

UNUSUAL, TO SAY THE LEAST: Rob Winans of 154 Park St. managed to get a good close-up picture of one of the partial albino fox squirrels running around on the east of the village. The animals, born this spring, have white tails and are partly white on legs, feet and belly. Otherwise, they are normally colored fox squirrels. A white-tailed squirrel is definitely unusual, the result of a mix-up in genetics. Should any of the five in the litter manage to survive until spring, which is unlikely because they are easily spotted targets for predators, it will be interesting to see what their offspring look like. It's possible that they won't be able to mate except with one another. Off-color animals of any species are usually rejected for mating purposes, part of nature's selection process to insure perpetuation of the norm.

Scott Richardson Will Be Brazil Missionary

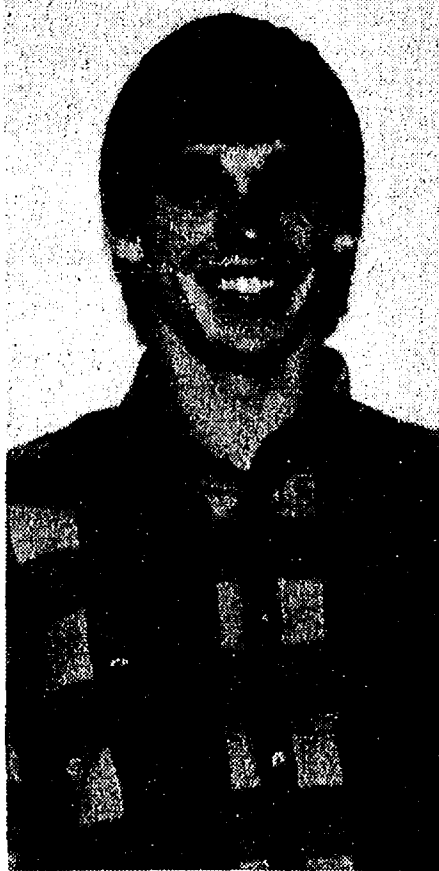

Scott Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Richardson, of 744 N. Freer Rd., will spend the summer involved with Teen Missions International. Teen Missions is a non-denominational organization whose purpose is to get teens involved in the mission field.

Scott will leave Chelsea on June 24, heading to Merrit Island, Fla. There he will undergo jungle survival training and will learn building construction.

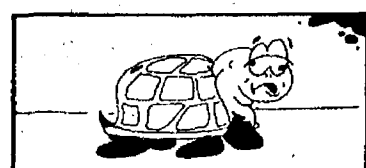

On July 15 he will fly from Miami to Manaus, Brazil. From there he will board a river launch for a journey to Belem, at the mouth of the Amazon River. While in Belem, Scott will help build a training camp similar to the one he will attend in Florida, enabling Brazilian teens to prepare themselves for missionary work in their own country.

Scott was responsible for raising the expenses for his own trip and also for the expenses of a teenager from a Third World country. He did it by contacting friends and relatives and by speaking at local churches and to civic organizations.

Scott will come home on Aug. 30 in time to start his senior year at Chelsea High school. He will share his experiences during an evening service at Chelsea Free Methodist church.

County Sheriff's Department. He has been police chief since June 25, 1970.

Golden anniversary of the Huffman family from Eaton county was held Sunday, June 13, at Pierce Park.

Arriving for the pot-luck dinner were 53 relatives, seven of whom were present for the first organizational family gathering 50 years ago.

Chelsea relatives who acted as officers included Mrs. Mac Packard, president; Laurence Boyer, vice-president; Winston Boyer, secretary.

Other families represented from the area were Larry Wengren, Lauren Boyer, Duane Boyer, Warren Greenleaf, Jack Collins, Gary Packard and Fremont Boyer, and wives and families.

24 Years Ago . . .

Thursday, June 22, 1961—

Tuesday, June 27, the Carson and Barnes Circus will be in Chelsea. It's always a big day for every youngster and for those adults who are still young at heart. The big white trucks and vans of the Carson and Barnes three-ring, wild animal circus will roll into town early Tuesday morning and will move directly to the Community Fairgrounds where the work of setting up the tents and other circus props will get under way.

With the willing assistance of neighbors, former neighbors and other friends and relatives, Earl Heim is replacing the barn which was destroyed in a disastrous fire at his farm on Heim Rd. last Nov. 13. Reminiscent of old time "barn raisings," the many volunteers had reached the stage of construction where the barn's giant shell was definitely visible in just one week of spare time effort during the busy, summer season.

Construction of the cement block foundation had been done by R. B. Rosentreter in preparation for the carpentering "bee" which began Friday, June 9.

The new barn is 36 feet wide by 72 feet long. Heim is hoping to complete the barn as soon as possible in order to return his cows which have been housed at the farm of a neighbor, George Blalock, since the fire last fall.

The dignity of the village president's office took a severe jolt Sunday night at the first scheduled rehearsal of the "Swine Lake Ballet."

The ballet is a featured act in the Showboat production in which President Bob Daniels along with several village council members are to be ballerinas in a short version of this famous ballet.

To add quality to the group, such local dignitaries as "Big Daddy" Ringe, Ren Hutzel, Digger Fitzsimmons, Ringer Wellnitz, Clark Eder, "Little Daddy" Layher and Six Gun Boyer have been allowed to participate in the activities of the troupe. Great things have been predicted for this group. Of course, quite appropriately the evil spirits will be represented by Dudley "Feed Bags" Foster.

The cupola and bell section of the older portion of Chelsea Junior High school on East St. is in the process of being removed because of rotting timbers. The cupola has been a familiar sight for several generations, but was considered a fire hazard. To be removed to a point where the old school bell is located, the cut-down cupola will be re-roofed to keep out rain and snow.

34 Years Ago . . .

Thursday, June 21, 1951—

A representative of a parking meter concern was present at Monday evening's meeting of the Chelsea Village Council. He demonstrated the meters and explained methods used in various communities for financing their purchase. No action was taken by the council regarding the parking meters.

The Waterloo Garage, operated by Glenn Rentschler, is this year celebrating its 25th anniversary. The business was originally called the Waterloo Ford Service because Model T Fords were then the predominating car in the community, and Glenn Rentschler, owner of the garage, relates many interesting experiences of those first years of repairing cars. He recalls that Daniel Emmons and Milton Riethmiller were his first customers.

The garage opened for business in the village of Waterloo in a building which had been previously used as a blacksmith shop.

Three years ago, a new building was constructed at the corner of Waterloo and Clear Lake Rds., and since that time, each year a benefit Ice Cream Social has been held in the building for the Salem Grove and Mt. Hope Methodist and Waterloo United Brethren churches.

The Waterloo Band has very graciously furnished music each year and has kindly consented to give a concert again this year.

More than 90 gallons of ice cream have been consumed each year.

With an attendance of 25, the "Gay Nineties" met at the home of Mrs. J. E. McKune, Wednesday, June 13.

A report of this meeting of Chelsea High school graduates of the nineties states that there was much reminiscing while the bountiful pot-luck luncheon was being prepared.

Mrs. Otto Luick called the roll of classes and the Class of 1895 won the honor of having the largest number of members present, with eight attending.

Mrs. Florence Howlett was honored as the oldest graduate of Chelsea High at the luncheon.

The afternoon's entertainment included original poems read by Mrs. Faye Palmer and a quiz contest on the history of Chelsea and Chelsea High school, led by Miss Lillie Wackenhut.

Schools Orchestra Director Appointed

Jed Fritzemeier, 26, a master's degree student at the University of Michigan in music, has been appointed the new orchestra director for the Chelsea school district, effective Aug. 29. His appointment was approved by the school board at its regular meeting June 10.

Fritzemeier, a strings specialist, brings some impressive credentials to the position. He has played with the Toledo Symphony Orchestra, the Ann Arbor Chamber Orchestra, and both the Flint and Jackson symphonies. He has also been assistant director of Interlochen, in the university division. His primary instrument is the double bass, which he has played since the fifth grade. "I was the biggest kid in my class," he said of his original impetus toward the bulky double bass.

Fritzemeier has spent the last year as the teaching assistant in double bass at the U. of M.

"My job is to build the program from the elementary school on up," Fritzemeier said. "The idea is to enrich the whole music program and build one that fits into the community. I'd like to have as big an orchestra as possible. In the past the Chelsea orchestra hasn't been able to compete with other orchestras, like Saline's. I really don't know why, but I'd like to change that."

Fritzemeier said he'd like to bring some of the area's major music ensembles to Chelsea for concerts to help promote the program. Possibilities, he said, include the Ann Arbor Chamber Orchestra and the Adrian String Quartet.

From now through July 11, Fritzemeier is conducting a summer orchestra program at Beach Middle School, from 9 a.m. to noon, Monday through Thursday, for sixth, seventh and eighth graders. The cost is $3 per week. Anyone who is interested in participating may contact Fritzemeier at his Ann Arbor home at 995-5987.

Fritzemeier is a native of Sioux Falls, S. D. He and his wife, Nancy, plan to move to Chelsea "as soon as possible."

Advice to Grads

By Brian Hamilton

Recent stories in both The Chelsea Standard and Dexter Leader have shown that the percentage of students planning to attend college from this year's graduating classes is high, maybe higher than you'd expect. It was for me.

I went to college once or twice not too long ago, and I thought you graduates out there might benefit from my experience. I think I'm somewhat uniquely qualified to give this kind of advice because I attended two very different colleges, actually universities, if you want to be technical about it. One was a very expensive private university, Emory University, the one where Jimmy Carter is building his library. The other was Georgia State University, where I earned my degree. Georgia State is nothing like Michigan State. It is one of the country's largest commuter colleges, which means you can drive right through the campus and never know you were on it. It looks like the rest of the city of Atlanta.

My first piece of advice is: Don't major in philosophy unless you sincerely want to be a philosopher.

This also applies to many other courses of study, like Russian literature, Latin, history, and just about any foreign language. I remember the first time I went to meet my future in-laws (none of us knew they were my future in-laws at the time) and my future father-in-law asked me what I was majoring in.

"Political science, sir," I said.

"Oh my God!" was his reply.

I suspect he wondered what I would do with my life.

If you do decide to major in philosophy it would be wise to talk it over with your parents first since they'll probably be supporting you for a few years after you graduate.

My second piece of advice is: Do major in pre-med. Although I've never heard of a college that had an actual major entitled "pre-med," tell your parents that's what you're majoring in anyway. It will make them happy. It will also sound good if you're ever on a game show and they ask you what your major is, especially if it really is philosophy.

My third piece of advice is: If you get two C's your first quarter or semester, give up on pre-med, unless you are very adept at taking standardized tests like the med-boards, which are somewhat similar to SATs. That's because you'll find that there are people who will spend, almost literally, their entire lives in the library pouring over books on advanced calculus and organic chemistry.

They will do almost anything to get an A. They know medical schools don't want to see anything less. You'll have to be prepared to make that kind of sacrifice.

I entered college with the idea of becoming a veterinarian—I guess you could say I was pre-vet. For the sake of explanation, I'll say the requirements for vet school and med school are roughly the same. My first quarter I got a C in calculus. My second quarter I got a C in some elective like prehistoric eating habits. That summer I went to talk to the Dean of the vet school at Ohio State to find out what it would take to get in and I found out that the average grade point average of new vet students was about 3.8. Knowing my proclivities and my tendencies on standardized tests, I decided then and there to save myself the agony of trying. Now I just have two dogs and two cats at home, instead.

I have several other bits of wisdom to share. Most of them don't need much elaboration.

Don't be surprised by the habits of your new roommate. You'll probably never be able to understand them anyway.

Don't eat at the school cafeteria if you can help it.

Don't schedule gym class for 8 a.m. unless you like punishment.

Don't pledge a fraternity or sorority the first week there, like I did. Despite all the brotherly love stuff they tell you, fraternities are really nothing more than social clubs that need a certain number of recruits to stay in business. Frat houses don't come cheap. Band parties don't come cheap. Law suits don't come cheap.

Don't ask your parents for money more than once a quarter unless you're dying. This will make them think you're studying hard.

Don't assume you know your subject once you earn your degree. Experience is everything.

Public Meeting Called July 8 at Lima Hall On Escape Problem

A public meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday, July 8, in the Lima Township Hall to discuss the problems of escapes from Cassidy Lake Technical School and Camp Waterloo.

The meeting is being arranged by County Commissioner Ellis Pratt of Manchester, whose district includes most of the areas plagued by the walk-away problem.

Through last week, there had been more than 60 escapes from the two institutions so far this year. Most of the fugitives have been recaptured; a few are still at large.

Cassidy Lake is located in Lyndon township, about five miles northwest of Chelsea. Camp Waterloo is on Maute Rd. just across the Jackson county line. Most Waterloo run-aways flee east into Washtenaw county to gain access to main roads.

State Rep. Gary Owen of Ypsilanti, speaker of the House, has demanded a report from Department of Corrections officials on the number of escapees, the crimes for which they had been sentenced and estimates of what it would cost to fence the two facilities.

Owen said he may request a special appropriation from the Legislature to increase security at both institutions, which are now classified as "minimum security" (unfenced and patrolled by unarmed guards).

Area residents have complained that both Cassidy Lake and Camp Waterloo are being used to house dangerous criminals, including murderers, although they are designed to confine only young persons convicted of relatively minor, non-violent offenses such as burglary and larceny.

Corrections officials blame over-crowding in the total state prison system for the fact that criminals not considered to be good minimum-security risks are being sent to Cassidy Lake and Waterloo.

"We've either got to get them (inmates convicted of violent crimes) out of there, or devise measures to keep them in," Owen declared at a special meeting of the Board of County Commissioners on June 10 in Ann Arbor.

William Kime, deputy director of the Department of Corrections, protested that two weeks was too short a time to prepare the report that Owen asked for, but Owen stuck to his guns. The report will be discussed, at the July 8 meeting.

Owen also rejected Kime's argument that the problem will eventually be eased as 8,000 new medium-security prison spaces are made available over the next four years, 2,000 of them within the next eight months.

"The problem exists right now, and it has to be solved right now," Owen emphasized.

Washtenaw sheriff Ron Schebil has asked that, at the very least, the state reimburse his department and other local police agencies for the cost of capturing the escapees and holding them in the county jail.

Schebil estimated the cost to county taxpayers at $60-70,000 a year. "The prisoners come from all over the state, but Washtenaw has to foot the bill because the camps are located here," he noted.

State Sen. Lana Pollack of Ann Arbor said she would support a proposed bill to shift the cost burden to the state. Rep. Margaret O'Connor of Lodi township said she would oppose it.

Also in dispute is the practicality of fencing Cassidy Lake, which occupies 83 acres of ground. Corrections officials claim it is impractical to fence and patrol that much area. Proponents of fencing say it would not be necessary to enclose the whole camp, just that much smaller portion where inmates are actually housed and where most activities are centered.

Two new dormitory buildings are under construction at Cassidy Lake at a cost of $1.8 million appropriated by the Legislature last year. Two existing old dormitories are being torn down.

Area Students Named To Dean's Honor List At Adrian College

Four area students were named to the Dean's List at Adrian College for the second semester.

Tobin Boyd, of 19945 W. Old US-12, Chelsea is a junior education major; Vivian Townsend, of 321 W. Main St., Manchester, is a junior accountancy major; Lori Voegeding, of 14355 Bethel Church Rd., Manchester, is a senior accountancy major; and Anita Dancer, of 12243 Dewey Rd., Munith, is a junior business administration and German major.

Students on the Dean's List have a 3.5 grade point average or better on a 4.0 scale while carrying at least 12 credit hours.

Violation of the safety belt use law is a civil infraction.

Conviction of a safety belt violation is not reported to the Secretary of State. No points are entered on a person's driving record.

GRADUATES OF THE ADULT EDUCATION PROGRAM were honored in commencement ceremonies Thursday, June 8 in the Chelsea High school auditorium. Superintendent of schools Ray Van Meer was the guest speaker and Art Dils of the board of education presented the diplomas. Jackie Rogers of the community education program presented the class to the audience. The invocation and benediction were given by the Rev. Franklin Giebel of Our Savior Lutheran Church. Above, the members of the graduating class are FATAL ACCIDENT: Linda E. Vandervoort, 23, died Saturday morning in this crash of a pickup truck. She was a passenger in the vehicle driven by Gary C. Skodak of Grass Lake. Sheriff's deputies are continuing their investigation of the accident.

Chelsea Woman Dies In Traffic Accident On M-52 Saturday

A 23-year-old Chelsea woman was killed in a traffic accident shortly before 10 a.m. last Saturday morning on M-52 between Werkner and Waterloo Rds. north of the village.

The victim was Linda E. Vandervoort of 777 S. Main St. She was a passenger in a pickup truck driven by Gary C. Skodak, 31, of Grass Lake, who was taken to Chelsea Community Hospital and reported in stable condition.

The exact cause of the accident remains under investigation, sheriff's deputies said. Alcohol may be involved, but no formal charges have been made.

A report on file at the sheriff's department Scio sub-station gave this account of the accident:

A pickup driven by Skodak with Vandervoort in the passenger seat was towing another pickup by a chain with a person steering the towed vehicle. The linked vehicles were headed south on M-52 and had passed the Waterloo Rd. intersection.

M-52 is straight at that point, but there is a slight down-hill slope. Skodak apparently lost control and veered across the center stripe into the northbound lane. The trailing vehicle came unhooked from the two chains. It was safely stopped a short distance farther south.

The lead truck went on across the road rammed an embankment and rolled on its top.

Vandervoort was declared dead at the scene from head injuries, but was taken to University Hospital on the possibility that she might be revived. She was pronounced dead a little more than an hour after the accident occurred.

Skodak was able to walk to the ambulance, in handcuffs, protesting all the way.

"I think we may be looking at some kind of manslaughter charge," said a sheriff's deputy who asked not to be named. "We need to get some answers, including the results of a blood alcohol test."

The fatality was the 18th in Washtenaw county so far this year.

Father, Son Suspect In Area Crime Spree

A father and son suspected in a crime spree is probably responsible for a series of break-ins in the Chelsea-Manchester area, according to Washtenaw County Sheriff's Detective Paul Wade.

Most of the break-ins occurred between Chelsea and Manchester near M-52, Wade said, although a break-in on Werkner Rd. can also be attributed to them. He said they are not suspected of committing any crimes within the village.

Toby Wayne Kelly, 19, was in Jackson county jail last week and is scheduled to be arraigned in Chelsea this week. Wade said the break-ins netted more than $150,000 in loot. Kelly's father, John William Morgan, 37, is in jail without bond in Colorado on a series of felony cases unrelated to the Michigan cases.

Wade said Kelly has confessed to taking part in the crimes and can implicate his father. Morgan is wanted for questioning.

Kelly first met his father about three months ago after Morgan was paroled from Southern Michigan Prison at Jackson. The two reportedly began their crime wave shortly thereafter. Kelly, who was previously convicted on a stolen goods charge and has been accused of other crimes, admitted to both he and his father having loaded guns during the commission of the crimes, Wade said.

According to Wade, the crimes were all similar in nature. Windows were smashed between 9 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. and guns, stereo and video equipment, and computers were stolen.

Ron Nemeth Resigns As Athletic Director To Take Sales Job

Ronald Nemeth has resigned as Chelsea High school athletic director, effective July 1, to accept a position with Balsam Athletic Surfaces, the world's largest manufacturer of synthetic urethane sports fields—track, football, field hockey, soccer and possibly others.

Balsam is headquartered in West Germany and will soon open North American branch offices in Houston, Tex., and West Bloomfield. Nemeth will head up the latter.

"It's a great opportunity and a challenge, too good to pass up," Nemeth said. "This is a new industry just starting up, and I'm getting in on the ground floor."

"We like Chelsea and hope to continue living here. I'll be doing a lot of travelling, primarily on the East Coast and in the Midwest, but want to keep Chelsea as home if I can."

Nemeth had directed athletics at CHS for the past five years. During that time he has overseen reconstruction and upgrading of sports facilities in the Chelsea school system, including the new urethane track at Niehaus Field, said to be the finest at any state university or high school.

Four new tennis courts have been built, the football field remade, baseball and softball diamonds refurbished, and better lighting installed at both Niehaus Field and the high school gym.

"There are still many things to be done, sprucing up around the edges, but I think the main part of the job is finished," Nemeth commented. "I've had outstanding support from both the school board and the administration in carrying out the program."

"In fact, it was the board's decision to put down the urethane track that led to my opportunity to go with Balsam. We showed that the surface is affordable, and I'm confident it will last a long time. It was a big breakthrough, and it put Chelsea out in front. We have the best track anywhere in Michigan, maybe the best in the country."

Nemeth explained that the synthetic surface, which is a mixture of rubber particles and urethane (a plastic bonding agent) can be put down over any stable soil—dirt, sand, gravel.

"It's not like artificial turf, which is a carpet laid on top of an asphalt base. You can make a gym floor out of this rubberized urethane material. It will work as well as wood and last a lot longer. I'm really excited about the possibilities."

Nemeth, 41, has a bachelor's degree in business administration from Northern Michigan University and a master's in health and physical education from Eastern Michigan.

He worked at Eastern as an athletic administrator and tennis coach for 10 years, was superintendent of parks and recreation at Michigan City, Ind., for two years, and held positions at Niles and Fowlerville before coming to Chelsea in 1980.

He and his wife, Judy, live at 53 Butternut St. They have two sons, Tom, a sophomore at Michigan Technological University, and Jeff, who will be a junior at Chelsea High this fall.

Van Meer added that the position of athletic director is being "re-evaluated" to determine ex-

School superintendent Ray Van Meer expressed regret over Nemeth's resignation, saying, "Ron has done an excellent job here and we are sorry he is leaving. We all wish him well. He appears to have an excellent opportunity to advance himself, and I can certainly understand why he decided to take advantage of it." He added that duties Nemeth's successor should carry out.

"We do that whenever an administrative position becomes vacant," he said. "It is in no way a criticism of Ron's performance. It could be that there will be some different combination of assignments to fit the background of the new person."

Van Meer said he presently had no specific candidates in mind, and that the job probably will be advertised. He indicated the process of selecting a new athletic director probably will take several weeks.

Tennis Players Have Opening for Tour of Europe

There is an opportunity for a tennis enthusiast, either high school or college age, to join the small group of tennis players from Chelsea High school on a seven-country tour this summer. The tour, planned to start Tuesday, July 23, will include travel to France, England, Italy, Switzerland, Venice, Germany and Austria.

The trip will extend over a 23-day period, ending Aug. 14.

Sponsored by Happy Tours, the trip's leader will be Theresa Schreiner, Chelsea High teacher who also serves as tennis coach.

For further information, interested young people may contact Schreiner at 475-2536.

There are about 290 species of pigeons in the world.

car which her mother had decorated after she rushed back from Lansing. These seniors will be greatly missed next year but capable replacements will come from a JV team which posted a 23-0 record for this year.

trophy designating Chelsea as 1985 Class B softball champions. Knowing the dedication of this crew we expect they are already planning strategy for next year's campaign.

Girls Softball Team Plays Near Perfect In State Semi-Finals

It was a classic high school softball game, just maybe the best that this reporter has ever seen. Two excellent teams went at it, and both played beautiful ball. Chelsea wound up defeating St. Joseph, 2-0, in eight innings in the state tournament semi-final at Lansing's Ranney Park last Friday afternoon.

Neither team made an error in the field, and super defensive plays on both sides converted what looked like sure hits into outs. The pitching was just plain great on both sides. It was softball at its best, a pleasure to watch. Neither nine could possibly have played any better.

Chelsea's Kelly Hawker and St. Joseph's Michelle Hall went head-to-head in the pitching duel. Hawker was the stronger, Hall the more cunning. Strength eventually prevailed. Hawker did what she had to do at the end, getting the final two outs with the tying runs on base.

It was some kind of game.

Chelsea threatened in the first inning leaving two runners stranded. Beth Unterbrink and Tina Paddock led off the Chelsea fourth with back-to-back singles. Unterbrink tried to score on a ground-out and was called out on a bang-bang play at the plate.

"I thought she was safe," Chelsea coach Charlie Waller said. "But the umpire at the plate has a better angle than I have from the third-base coaching box. Let's just say it was very, very close and could have been called either way."

St. Joseph also threatened in the first, putting a runner at second on a walk and a stolen base. Bulldog shortstop Jenny Cattell suffered a dislocated right thumb on the steal as she knocked down a wide throw with her bare hand.

Cattell was removed from the game and taken to a nearby hospital for examination and treatment. Chris DeFant came in from the outfield to replace her at short, and Kris Mattoff took DeFant's place in left.

Anne Weber, who had already hit safely twice, led off Chelsea's eighth inning and drew a walk, the only one issued by Hall. She moved to second on Lori Folcik's sacrifice bunt, and went on to third after Laura Anderson's fly to right was caught.

With the runner on second, Hawker whiffed two St. Joe batters to end the threat.

There were no more real scoring chances through the regulation seven innings as both pitchers stayed in command.

With Unterbrink at the plate, Hall committed a balk, stopping her delivery in mid-pitch, and Weber was waved home with the game's first run.

Unterbrink lined Hall's next delivery up the middle for a clean swing, stole second, and came home on Paddock's triple up the alley in right-center. Paddock was left on third as the inning ended.

It wasn't quite over. With one out St. Joseph put the tying runs on base on a single and a walk. Hawker had a victory in sight, and she wasn't about to let it get away. She called on something extra, got an out on a foul pop fly to catcher Michelle Easton, and finished with a flourish by striking out the last batter on three rise-balls that just plain couldn't be touched.

This reporter, who was watching from close to the plate at that point, is willing to swear that each of those pitches jumped at least a foot as they came in. The St. Joe hitter swung well, but never came close to connecting.

Hawker had 15 strikeouts, walked two and gave up three hits. One of the safeties was solid; the other two were grounders that found their way through gaps in the infield.

Chelsea collected seven hits—two each by Weber, Unterbrink and Paddock, the other by Joann Tobin. Four drives that appeared headed for extra bases were caught by the Bears' star outfielder, Lisa Hall, who played a remarkable game.

"Against anybody else we have played this season, at least three of those balls would have been hits," Waller commented. "That girl was kind of unbelievable out there."

Gracious in defeat, St. Joseph coach Rick Bloodworth lavished praise on the Chelsea team. "We played as well as we possibly could have played," he said, "but we just weren't quite good enough. Chelsea is excellent, and Kelly Hawker is a superb pitcher. We had a couple of chances to get to her, but she bore down and got the outs when she needed them."

Bloodworth said the balk call that produced Chelsea's first run was "absolutely correct" and added, "It was my fault. I was yelling from the bench to tell my pitcher not to give Unterbrink anything good to hit, and Michelle got rattled. She was trying to pitch and listen to me at the same time. I should have called time and gone out and talked to her. It was a bad mistake on my part."

Waller said he was "honestly sorry and a little bit surprised" that the balk was called at that critical point. "It was clearly an illegal pitching motion," he added, "but umpires tend to overlook those things late in a close game. I really wish it (the balk) hadn't been called until after Beth got her hit. Hall pitched a fine game against us, and it's too bad she had to lose it that way."

"In a game as tight as this one was, though, you take a run any way you can get it. As I've said before, you need some luck to win in the tournament, and we got a break."

Hall struck out only one while yielding seven hits and no walks. She had pinpoint control and threw a variety of off-speed pitches that had Chelsea hitters trying to figure out what was coming next.

Good as Hall was, Hawker was better. She struck out the side in the first two innings and didn't give up a hit until the fifth. That cost her a bid for her seventh no-hitter of the season, but she stayed in command all the way.

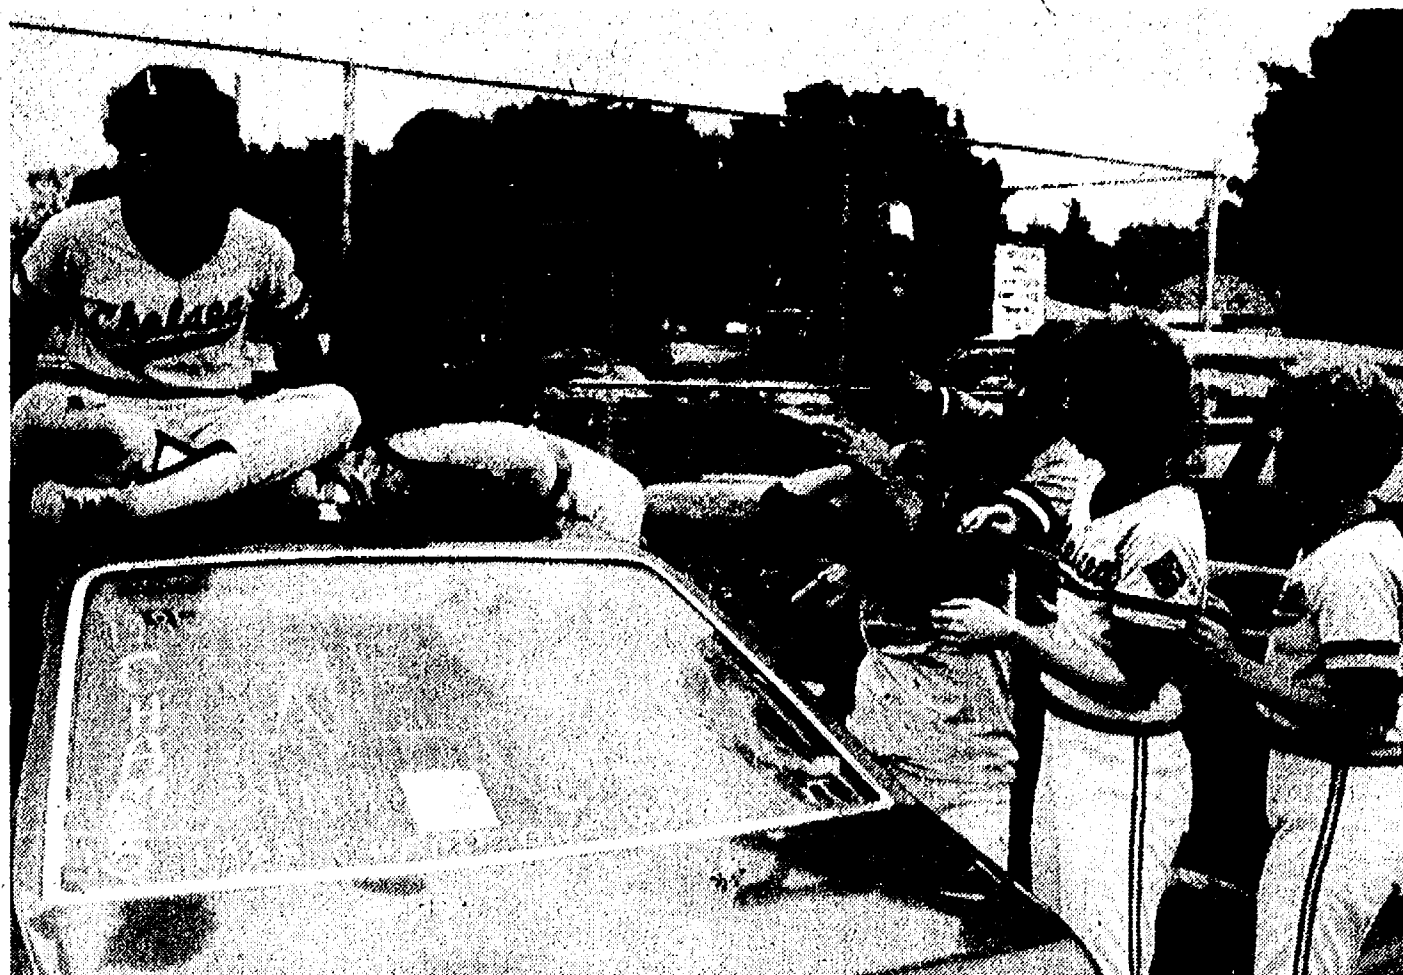

"Kelly dominated the game, pure and simple," Waller said. "The couple of times she was threatened, she stayed in control and got the outs she had to have. Anybody who hasn't batted against her before is going to have trouble adjusting to her rise ball. It starts out about waist-high, then jumps up around the shoulders. It's some pitch."

St. Joseph tried three times to bunt against Hawker. All three efforts were popped into the air, and third baseman Laura Anderson grabbed them for outs.

Despite the fact that the Bulldogs produced only two runs, Waller said he felt the girls hit the ball hard and well. "Give credit to the St. Joe defense," he said. They took several hits away from us with their fine play in the field. The are a very good team, as good as any we have played this season. When you beat a team of that quality, you have to be proud and happy."

It was the second time this season that St. Joseph bowed to Chelsea in an extra inning. The Bulldogs beat the Bears, 4-2, during the Chelsea round-robin tournament on May 17 in another eight-inning game.

"There may be a better team somewhere around," St. Joseph's Bloodworth said, "but I sure haven't seen it. We're very good, and Chelsea is just a little bit better. We gave it our best shot against them twice, and lost both times. Chelsea is outstanding. There is no other word to describe them."

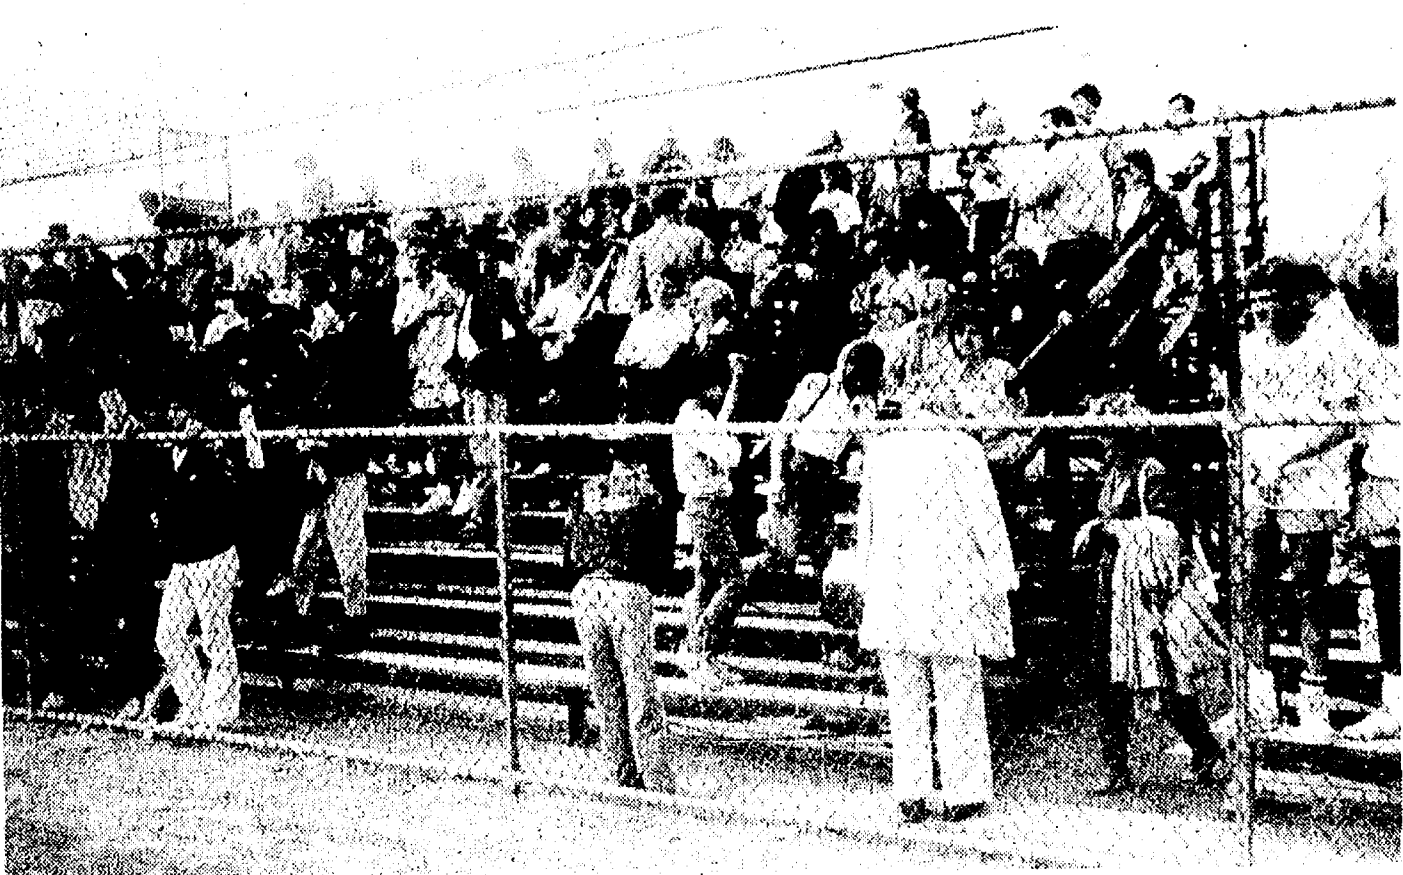

LITERALLY BUBBLING with excitement of the championship are this group being sprayed with a champagne shower by David Steinhauer.

CHINESE FIRE DRILL: Repeating a tradition of the 1983 championship team, current champions, on signal, pour out of their van, race around the vehicle, turn around and repeat the process.

MANY CHELSEA FANS attended the State Class B Softball Tournament final game in Lansing Monday afternoon as shown by the section of the stands filled with Chelsea boosters. The game which Chelsea won, 7-4, over Richmond was played between showers after having been rained out Saturday.

Here's the Record of State Champs

This is the record of the Chelsea High school softball team which won the state Class B championship Monday. The girls finished the season with a 37-5 won-lost record. Three of the defeats were inflicted by Class A teams.

The Bulldogs were 5-3 at the end of the first week of their schedule, and had some doubters wondering if they were as good as they were supposed to be. They lost only two more the rest of the way, and won 16 in a row after being beaten by Class A Flint Mott in the final game of the Royal Oak Dondero tournament on May 15.

The victory skein included eight must-win in state tournament play, in which a loss means elimination. Chelsea won two pre-district qualifiers, two in the district, two in the regional, and the final two in the state finals.

The season record:

Chelsea 8, Webberville 0.
Chelsea 9, Webberville 4.
Chelsea 5, Ann Arbor Pioneer 6 (loss).
Chelsea 4, Pioneer 7 (loss).
Chelsea 3, Webberville 9 (loss).
Chelsea 7, Gabriel Richard 1.
Chelsea 6, Morenci 5.
Chelsea 5, Morenci 11.
Chelsea 11, Lincoln 0.
Chelsea 11, Fowlerville 1.
Chelsea 6, Brighton 2.
Chelsea 5, Okemos 2.
Chelsea 8, Tecumseh 0.
Chelsea 10, Dexter 0.
Chelsea 3, Pinckney 1.
Chelsea 2, Saline 4 (loss).
Chelsea 12, Saline 0.
Chelsea 14, Milan 2.
Chelsea 19, Milan 4.
Chelsea 17, Lincoln 6.
Chelsea 1, Harper Woods Regina 0.

Chelsea 9, Flint Kearsley 0.
Chelsea 5, Clarkston 4.
Chelsea 4, Romeo 0.
Chelsea 1, Warren Cousino 0.
Chelsea 1, Flint Mott 5 (loss).
Chelsea 9, Jackson Northwest 1.
Chelsea 4, St. Joseph 2.
Chelsea 6, Grand Rapids Northview 0.

Chelsea 5, Clarkston 1.
Chelsea 9, Saline 3.
Chelsea 9, Dexter 1.
Chelsea 4, Tecumseh 0 (pre-district qualifier).

Chelsea 10, Tecumseh 0.
Chelsea 4, Pinckney 2.
Chelsea 14, Monroe St. Mary's 0 (pre-district qualifier).

Chelsea 2, Pinckney 1 (district).
Chelsea 2, Saline 1 (district).
Chelsea 14, Riverview 0 (regional).

Chelsea 8, Royal Oak Shrine 2 (regional).
Chelsea 2, St. Joseph 0 (state).
Chelsea 7, Rockwood 4.

If there were any games the Bulldogs would like to play over again, they might be the losses to Webberville and Saline, their only really bad outings of the season. Ann Arbor Pioneer was just plain better on the day they beat Chelsea twice, and the loss to top-ranked Class A Flint Mott came as the Bulldogs ran out of gas when called upon to play their eighth game in three days.

Bread in Scotland is often made of barley meal and is called an oatcake or bannock.

Memorial Day
 Our heroes are not forgotten on Memorial Day as new and old traditions rouse respect and pride for American servicemen.
 "In Flanders fields the poppies blow..." In 1918, those words of poet and Canadian Colonel John McCrae so inspired Monia Michaels she began what is today a Memorial Day tradition. It was Michaels who first distributed small red poppies as a symbol of hope, life and the sacrifice of many fallen soldiers.

Al G. Kelly & Miller Circus
 Coming to Chelsea July 6
 You'll see a virtual United Nations of performers and all the glittering spectacle of Al G. Kelly & Miller Bros. 3-Ring Circus Grand Entry, plus aerial acts without equal, performing elephants, jungle bred wild animals, clowns and more. It's the kind of show that stirs the memory and heart of every grandparent or parent. They will remember it as America's finest circus which was founded in 1938 by Obert Kelly and Dorcas Miller.
 It was 17 years after the signing of the Declaration of Independence that Bill Ricketts founded America's first circus in Philadelphia. The first performance was attended by George Washington, then President of the United States. A fine horseman himself, Washington was amazed at the feats Ricketts performed on his horse, Cornplanter. The two men became good friends and struck a bargain for the circus to display as an added feature Washington's famous 28-year-old horse named "Black Jack." Thus the Father of our Country and the Father of the American Circus joined hands in bringing the country family entertainment that has never had a censor.
 David Rawls will be bringing his Al G. Kelly & Miller Bros. 3-Ring Circus to Chelsea on July 6 for one day only. With performances at 2 and 5:30 p.m. The Circus will be at the Chelsea Fairgrounds. A quick look at the professional sports scene.

If Kareem Abdul-Jabbar isn't named the athlete of the year for his performance in the National Basketball Association championship series, the selectors ought to be ashamed.

I find it hard to get excited about basketball in June, but did get pumped up over Kareem's performance as the Los Angeles Lakers wiped out the heavily favored Boston Celtics, four games to two.

Basketball, especially professional basketball, is a young man's game. Thirty-six is "old" in basketball, and nobody that age has any business playing the game, let alone playing it as marvelously well as Jabbar did. There was no stopping him.

Boston's Larry Bird and the Lakers' Magic Johnson were supposed to be the two best players in the series, but neither came close to matching Kareem. He was absolutely awesome, dominating, over-powering, pick your own superlatives.

Watching Jabbar float in his patented sky-hook shot, which he seems to be able to hit from anywhere on the floor inside 15 feet, I recalled a couple of coaches who told me in no uncertain terms that a hook shot is a no-no, something you just plain don't even try to learn. I always wondered why.

Short of knocking down the shooter or grabbing his arm, there is absolutely no way to defend against the hook. The shot is going to get off, and the player who can make it with any consistency is going to score a lot of points.

As a footnote, I hope the series taught Bird a lesson. He needs to learn to keep his mouth shut. He's an excellent player, but he isn't as great as he proclaims himself to be. His performance in the final game was pretty bad. Top professional players don't put up air balls.

Herschel Walker supposedly set a record last week by rushing for 2,129 yards during a single season of professional football. It's a record that won't be recognized.

The problem is that Walker plays for the New Jersey Generals in the United States Football League, and the USFL has yet to gain respect as anything more than a minor league organization. Nobody pays much attention to it. Football hasn't caught on as a spring-summer sport.

The USFL has made headlines by signing a few top college stars—Walker, Anthony Carter, Doug Flutie and some more—for ridiculously high prices. You can't blame those players for taking the money offered to them. Not many 22-year-olds have the opportunity to become instant millionaires, set up for life financially, provided they hire a competent agent and money manager.

The fact is, however, that almost all of the players in the USFL are rejects from the National Football League, athletes not quite good enough to play at the top of the game of football.

You have to wonder what Walker would do against NFL defenses, and I suspect Walker wonders, too. He might or might not gain 2,000 yards in the season. He might or might not join the ranks of football's all-time elite running backs—Jim Brown, O. J. Simpson, Eric Dickerson.

Carter has said that he wants out of the USFL so he can test his skills in the NFL and find out how good he really is. The only way to discover that is to play against the best. Money isn't everything in sports. Proving you belong at the top means a lot to any competitor worth his salt. Pride is important, maybe worth more than money in the long run.

I almost decided to attend at least one day of the U. S. Open golf tournament at Oakland Hills north of Detroit, but common sense prevailed. Of all spectator sports, golf has to be the worst from a viewing standpoint.

You have two choices. You can (1) select a threesome and follow them around the course, seeing no other golfers, or (2) plant yourself at some point on the course and watch the parade go by, observing maybe an approach shot and a couple of putts by each player. Neither is very satisfactory.

Lacking access to the Goodyear blimp or a hot-air balloon, you just plain can't see much of a golf tournament spread out over a couple of hundred acres. You are much better off watching on television, which provides hole-by-hole coverage of the leaders.

The Detroit Tigers aren't out of the race for first place in the American League East, but they desperately need to start playing the kind of team ball that carried them to a World Series title last year.

The players are the same, but their performances have been vastly different. With a few exceptions—Lou Whitaker, Willie Hernandez, Tom Brookens and a couple of others—they have been playing like fat cats, showing up and going through motions. The Tigers, so far, have not been the "hungry" ball club that they were in 1984.

The AL East is the best and most competitive division in the Major Leagues. Its recent history shows that winners one year tend to drop out of sight the next. New York, Milwaukee and Baltimore have performed in that pattern in the past, and Detroit just might join them, unless they pull themselves together.

It's the kind of show that stirs the memory and heart of every grandparent or parent. They will remember it as America's finest circus which was founded in 1938 by Obert Kelly and Dorcas Miller.
 It was 17 years after the signing of the Declaration of Independence that Bill Ricketts founded America's first circus in Philadelphia. The first performance was attended by George Washington, then President of the United States. A fine horseman himself, Washington was amazed at the feats Ricketts performed on his horse, Cornplanter. The two men became good friends and struck a bargain for the circus to display as an added feature Washington's famous 28-year-old horse named "Black Jack." Thus the Father of our Country and the Father of the American Circus joined hands in bringing the country family entertainment that has never had a censor.
 David Rawls will be bringing his Al G. Kelly & Miller Bros. 3-Ring Circus to Chelsea on July 6 for one day only. With performances at 2 and 5:30 p.m. The Circus will be at the Chelsea Fairgrounds. Discount advance tickets are on sale and may be obtained from members of the Chelsea Lions Club who are the local sponsors.

Products on Parade

This series of stories by Paula Blanchard, Michigan's First Lady, spotlights the products of Michigan's farms, forests and factories. Some are as familiar as the Ford in your driveway or the jar of Gerber's baby food on your kitchen shelf. Others are less well-known, but equally interesting and important to the Michigan economy. This week's story: "Super Soys: Say 'Oishii!'"

By Paula Blanchard
 Recently, a Japanese woman shopping at a department store in downtown Tokyo stopped to inspect the Michigan products for sale there. I offered her a toasty brown soy nut, lightly salted. It was love at first bite!

Soybeans have been cultivated in Japan for at least six centuries. But for the woman, the soy nut from Michigan was the newest thing under the (rising) sun. "Oishii!" she said. Delicious!

The woman wasn't the only one to like the soy nuts. More than a ton of them were sold during the first three days of the five-day Michigan Trade Fair at one of Japan's largest department stores.

The soy nuts, or Super Soys, their trade name, are produced by INARI Ltd., of Mason, a small town just south of Lansing. INARI is an acronym for International Nutrition and Resources, Inc. INARI also is (I was told) the Japanese word for the Japanese patron god of farmers. A lucky coincidence!

Turning a soybean into a soy nut is a neat trick. Len Stuttman, INARI's globe-trotting president, came across his first soy nut in 1973; it had been cooked up by a soybean farmer's wife in Nebraska. "It was good—but not great," Stuttman recalls. "Tough to chew, for one thing."

Nonetheless, Stuttman, who has a degree in biology and formerly worked for the American Soybean Association, thought the soy nut had commercial potential. After all, soybeans are super-nutritious, with more protein (and less fat) than peanuts, and easily lend themselves to adaptations in taste and texture. So he set out to produce the perfect soy nut—the super Soy!

"Our prices, developed with the help of food scientists at Michigan State University, did the trick," he said. "Our Super Soys are plumped up and then roasted. And that's what makes them super!"

INARI's soy nuts—all made from Michigan-grown soybeans—may be purchased plain or fancy—with or without salt; flavored with onion-garlic, jalapeno or smoky barbecue; or enrobed in creamy white yogurt, butter toffee or carob. Watch for them in your food dealer's produce case. They're definitely oishii!

And let's keep making it—and buying it—in Michigan!

Plan Devised To Reduce Walkaways

A plan to prevent the growing problem of walkaways from state prison camps in Jackson and Washtenaw counties has been announced by State Senator Lana Pollack of Ann Arbor and State Representatives Michael J. Griffin of Jackson and Philip E. Hoffman of Horton.

The plan was developed at the request of the state lawmakers by Washtenaw County Sheriff Ron Schebl and Jackson County Sheriff Henry Zavislak and has support of Governor James Blanchard and Corrections Director Robert Brown.

"There are approximately 800 inmates who pose a potential threat to the people who live in Washtenaw and Jackson counties," Senator Pollack said today. "Over the years, the communities in Washtenaw and Jackson counties have been supportive of the prison camps because they understand the need for adequate housing of inmates."

"However, the residents of Washtenaw and Jackson counties must be protected in the event that a walkaway occurs," Senator Pollack explained. "I believe this plan would provide the kind of protection they deserve."

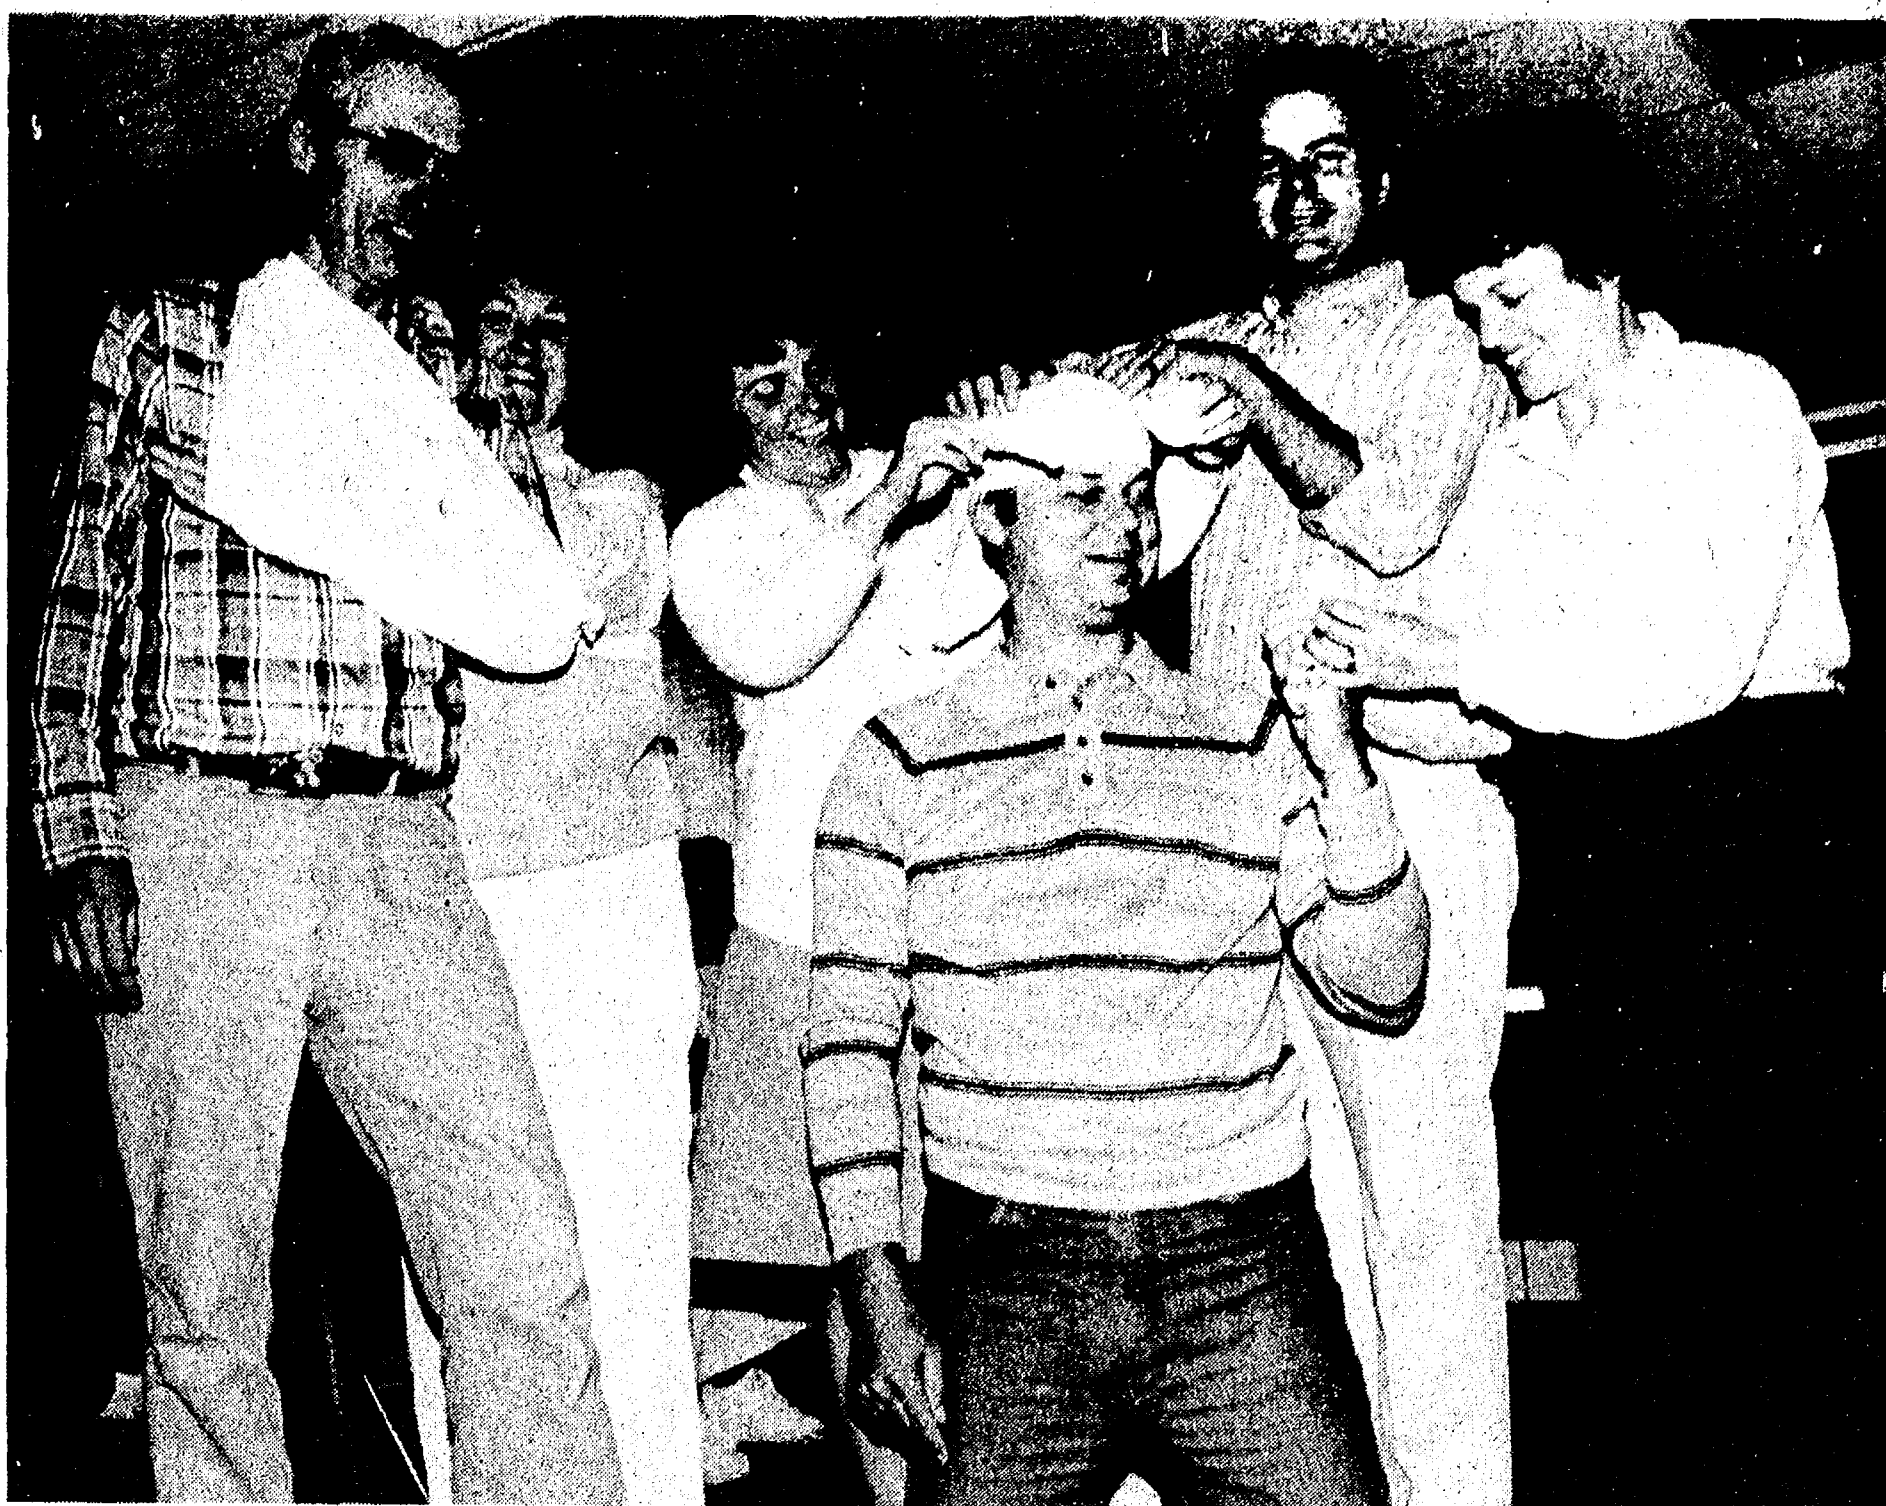

Representative Hoffman, a former Jackson County Sheriff employee and author of that county's Crime Prevention Program explained the plan and its ramifications.

"Under the plan the two sheriff departments would work together in providing stepped up patrols on property adjacent to the prison camps and would have authority to mobilize eight additional officers in the event of a walkaway," Representative Hoffman explained. "Those improved patrols would include use of the Washtenaw County Sheriff Department's helicopter, the Jackson County Sheriff Department's canine patrol and a mounted sheriff patrol as well."

Representative Hoffman said the plan would be implemented with existing departmental employees but could be supplemented with state funds to pay for the additional eight officers.

"Senator Pollack and I will be asking for a state grant of up to $150,000 that could be used to pay for the officers who would be hired only to apprehend an inmate," Representative Hoffman said. "Fortunately, there is every reason to believe that money is available."

There are four prison camps that would be affected by the plan including the Lily Farm, the Root Farm and Camp Waterloo in Jackson county and Cassidy Lake Technical School in Washtenaw county.

A NEW PRODUCTION OF M*A*S*H? No, but Chelsea school principals and office staff recently took an all-day course on multimedia standard first aid led by Mary Ellen Miller, RN. The purpose of the course was to teach the administrators how to deal with basic school emergencies. They learned how to make splints, perform mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, and even basic bandaging. Joining the fun above are, from left, Bob Benedict, principal at South school, Charlotte Bentley of South school, Valerie Scriven and principal John Williams of the high school, Bill Wescott, principal of North school, and Sally Proctor of North school.
