Two Die in Sunday Evening Blaze

FIRE FIGHTERS DOUSE the last of the flames that engulfed the Sylvan Hotel on Sunday night. Although the fire destroyed most of the interior of the hotel, the adjoining businesses, Winans Optical and Gambles, sustained relatively minor smoke damage. The fire itself did not spread beyond the hotel. Firemen from Chelsea, Dexter, Manchester and Pittsfield township battled the blaze.

RESCUE WORKERS remove one of the victims of the fire at the Sylvan Hotel Sunday night. Two residents of the hotel were killed in the blaze and two were injured, one seriously. Firemen were still on the scene Monday morning.

THE LAST OF THE VICTIMS of the Sylvan Hotel fire was pulled through a room window on the north side of the building. Two residents were killed in the fire that started in the room of Shirley Campbell. Only 21 of the 30 rooms were rented and only about half of the tenants were present when the fire began.

Eight Sylvan Hotel Roomers Led to Safety, Two Others Injured

Two Chelsea residents died Sunday night in a fire that swept through the Sylvan Hotel on N. Main St. in downtown Chelsea.

Dead were Shirley Jean Campbell, 52, and Morris Flint, 55, both long-time residents of the hotel, owned by Chelsea resident George Merkel.

According to Chelsea Community Hospital, Flint's cause of death was cardio-pulmonary arrest due to smoke inhalation. He also had burns over 90 percent of his body. Campbell died of asphyxiation due to smoke inhalation, according to the Washtenaw county medical examiner's office.

Injured in the blaze were Maurine Ann Snay, 43, and Clarence Duty, 72, who were taken to Chelsea Community Hospital. As of Monday, Snay was listed in critical but stable condition. Duty suffered relatively minor injuries and was released Monday afternoon.

According to Chelsea Police Chief Lenard McDougall, the cause of the fire was "human error."

Firemen were called to the scene at 8:33 p.m., and the fire was under control at 8:58 p.m., McDougall said. Chelsea, Dexter, Manchester and Pittsfield township fire departments battled the blaze.

According to Danny White, a Chelsea resident who was visiting a friend at the hotel at the time, the first smoke detector went off in the two-story building at 8:10 p.m.

Police said the fire started in Campbell's room, number 16, on the first floor on the north side of the building. The cause of the fire, as of Monday, was suspected to be a smoking accident. Campbell was known to be a cigarette smoker. Police said it was likely she had either fallen asleep while smoking or had dumped smoldering ashes into a trash can.

Flint lived in the apartment next door. Duty lived at the back of the building on the main floor and Snay lived upstairs, almost directly over Campbell.

According to one resident, who asked to remain anonymous, Campbell had a "terrible problem" with alcohol and may well have passed out in her bed before the fire broke out.

The fire is being investigated by the Chelsea Fire Department, Chelsea Police Department, and the Washtenaw County Fire Investigation unit. Sgt. John Fatchet of the state fire marshal's office in Jackson was also on the scene and will assist in the investigation.

According to Barney Beyer, 54, manager of the hotel who lived in the building, Randy Case and Clyde Hayner first smelled smoke as they sat in the lobby, which was only a few yards from Campbell's room. They then notified Beyer, who opened Campbell's door with his pass key.

"When we opened the door, there was a lot of heat and black smoke," Beyer said. "When we opened the door, it probably didn't help any because it fanned the flames. We tried to put it out with the extinguisher to no avail. That's when I called police and Randy ran up to the police station. This will make an old man out of you real quick."

Beyer said that although the hotel has never had to call the fire department in his 13 years as manager, a fire almost started once before in Campbell's room. He said a frying pan overheated while Campbell slept, but he was able to contain it with a fire extinguisher.

Chelsea policemen Frank Kornexi and Mike Foster, with the assistance of Beyer, Case, White, Hayner and resident Jim Kosinski hustled most of the residents out of the building. According to McDougall, there were about a dozen of the total 21 residents in the building when the fire broke out. He said that apparently many of the residents left town for the week-end. The hotel had 30 rooms.

"If that fire had occurred at 2 a.m. there probably would have been about 10 or 12 dead," McDougall said. "I've got to hand it to the fire departments. If they hadn't gotten the fire under control so quickly, the whole block might have gone up. Give that fire another 10 minutes and who knows."

The old building had a plaster and lath construction, and a lot of plywood was used, McDougall said. Beyer described the building as "older than God."

Somehow, the adjoining businesses sustained relatively minor damage. Winans Optical shared a wall with the apartment in which the fire started, yet appeared to be almost completely intact. Gambles, on the south side of the hotel, still smelled like smoke on Monday morning. The upstairs, which serves as a furniture showroom, was inundated by smoke, but structurally appeared to sustain little damage. Owner Sam Johnson was scheduled to meet with an insurance adjuster Monday to determine the extent of the damage.

The Springer Agency, which handles the hotel's insurance, refused to comment on the extent of the damage. Merkel could not be reached for comment.

Beyer said that Morris had been a hotel resident since 1978 and Campbell had been there "at least that long."

In addition to the rescue squads and a couple hundred spectators, eight volunteers from the Washtenaw county chapter of the American Red Cross were on hand to assess the damage and generally help out with food and other concerns. Also on hand were members of Faith in Action. Both organizations helped some of the displaced tenants find temporary housing and food.

"Most of the residents were able to stay with friends or relatives," said JoAnn Carruthers of Faith in Action.

As of Monday afternoon the building was boarded up.

Trinkle Rd. Flooding Problem Will Take More Time To Solve

The problem of how to dry up the big puddle on Trinkle Rd. between Freer and Fletcher Rds. is even more complicated than first thought, and the County Road Commission is proceeding very carefully before deciding what corrective steps to take.

"We're studying the situation, and we are going to do something," said Fletcher Desautels, chief engineer for the road commission. "But we aren't going to do anything until we are sure what we do will be right."

A soils engineer has been called in as a consultant, and his report will be awaited and considered before any decision is made.

The fact is that we made a mistake when we put two feet of gravel on that stretch of road awhile ago and upset the soil equilibrium to the point where the roadbed literally sank into the ground.

"We have made some measurements and determined that there is at least 27 1/2 feet of muck under Trinkle Rd. along the 500 feet or so where the flooding problem is. There may be more than that in some spots. We couldn't get into the middle of the 'pond' without risking the possibility that somebody might sink into the muck and drown. We may have to use a boat to take more measurements."

The standing water is located about a quarter-mile east of Freer Rd. It varies in length and depth according to day-by-day rainfall, but is impassible in any case.

The best guess is that the water is about a foot deep at the lowest point on the road, but there is a lot of mucky soup underneath that is liquid for all practical purposes such as trying to walk or drive a vehicle through it.

James Evison of 10980 Trinkle Rd. said he approached to within two feet of the east side of the puddle and suddenly found himself sinking. "I went down over my knees, about two feet I'd guess, and had to grab a tree branch and pull myself out. It was like quicksand. It's definitely a dangerous situation. Somebody could die out there."

Trinkle Rd. has been posted closed at its intersections with Freer and Fletcher Rds. Traffic is being detoured onto Old US-12 and Dexter-Chelsea Rd. All Trinkle Rd. residents can reach their homes, but may have to go a long way around to get to them.

"I think our signing and barriers are adequate," Desautels said. "We know it's a dangerous situation. We hope the public will co-operate by staying well away from the flood zone, and that people will be patient and understanding. It's going to take awhile and cost some money to correct the problem."

Desautels said that four possible repair options are being considered:

1. Excavate the muck, or at least some of it, and back-fill with gravel.
2. Put in a "surcharge," a big mound of fill material, and let it sink into the ground, hoping it

State Hopes for Highest Note Rating

State officials are optimistic this year the state will obtain the highest possible rating on its short term notes for the first time since 1978, which combined with lower interest rates and a smaller loan, could cut borrowing costs in half compared to last year.

Treasurer Robert Bowman said the success of convincing New York rating agencies to boost the state's credit standing will determine if the short term borrowing will be made without outside support for the first time since 1981.

The $350 million note, down from $450 million last year and $500 million for each of the prior five years, is needed to meet initial school aid, college, and local government payments when the fiscal year begins Oct. 1.

"Our fiscal picture has improved dramatically, more than any other state. I'm optimistic (the state will get a higher rating)," Bowman said. He blamed the presence of the Proposal C tax cut amendment on the November, 1984 ballot for preventing the state from getting the highest credit rating on its own then.

The notes required a letter of credit backing from outside banks for the third straight year to obtain the Moody's Investors Service highest rating of MIG 1. That support cost the state $1.8 million in addition to the $31.5 million in interest costs.

Bowman said this year's costs should be about half of that total — $33.3 million.

Interest costs are currently lower than the 7 percent paid last year although he said they are beginning to increase and will be higher by the time the notes are sold in September.

By that time, the state will be about two months away from retiring an accumulated debt that reached about $1 billion in 1982. Less than $100 million of the debt, which had not been shown on state books because of accounting changes, remains.

"We have talked about our plan being in place. Now, we'll be 60 days away from the darn thing being done," Bowman said.

The $350 million the state is planning this year is the smallest amount borrowed for cash needs since $200 million in April, 1978, at the onset of the late-70's recession. That was also the last note that carried a MIG 1 rating, without outside backing.

Bowman said he will also be talking with officials at Moody's, and at Standard and Poor's, about upgrading Michigan's long-term credit ratings.

Michigan now has an A rating from Moody's, a full three steps from the highest possible which it shares with only three other states, and an A-plus from Standard and Poor's.

Bowman said the discussions will occur near the end of the month or early September.

Beach School Band Parade Schedule Told

Beach Middle school marching band will hold a rehearsal at 8 o'clock Monday morning for its two performances in the Chelsea Community Fair, director Warren Mayer has announced.

The band will march in the Children's Parade on Tuesday and the Fair Parade on Saturday.

New band shirts will be issued at Monday's rehearsal, Mayer said. The band uniform will consist of the new shirts, dark blue shorts with white trim, and Chelsea tube socks.

The band will form at 5:30 p.m. in the village parking lot off Park St. for Tuesday's Children's Parade, which will step off at 6 o'clock.

For the Saturday Fair Parade the band will assemble at "the rock" at East and Harrison Sts. at 12:30 p.m. The parade will start half an hour later.

The new shirts will be available on both parade days for band members who have not obtained them earlier, Mayer said.

WINDOWS WERE BROKEN Sunday night at Beach and North schools by vandals who threw beer bottles at them. Sarah Joseph, a maintenance worker at North school, points to some of the damage.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Ed Doolittle had a reminder at the opening bell of the session at the country store Saturday night. It is a cold, hard fact of life right now that energy is good as gold, he told the fellers and if pump prices ain't convinced us the gas and power bills have. With that in mind, Ed went on, from what he's been reading we got a good chance of living where the streets are paved with gold and without dying to git there.

Ed had clippings about waste-to-energy projects all over the country. Governments and private companies are moving into this field that uses garbage and burnable trash to fuel big incinerators that make steam from the heat and make electricity from the steam. Under Federal law the nearest power company has got to buy the electricity.

For all the laws and clean up campaigns, Ed said, litter has been with us always. With these plants in operation folks might come to realize they're throwing good money in the street. The way it looks, Ed reported, everybody comes out ahead. The cities and counties pay the waste burning plants no more than it cost them to bury the garbage in landfills, so they win with 10 times longer life on their burying grounds. The power companies buy the electricity for what it would cost them to make it, and they don't have to build so many plants to keep up with demand. The waste-to-energy companies make a profit on sales while they create energy from thousands of tons of garbage that otherwise would rot useless in the ground.

Practical speaking, Ed said, waste disposal is one of the country's biggest challenges, and this looks like a way to ease the problem more than somewhat. You just can't throw stuff away any more, Ed went on because your "away" is somebody else's "here." Some radioactive and toxic waste can only be stored in a place we hope is safe, Ed noted, but any plan that gets rid of waste and gits energy in the bargain deserves a good look.

The fellers were solid with Ed on this one. Even Clem Webster was, and he rather climb a tree to argue with Ed than stand on the ground and agree with him. Like the old preacher said, Clem allowed, the good Lord ain't making no more land, and if we let ourselves think on what we call progress we got to see down the pike a country filed with asphalt, graveyards and landfills. Recycling helps, Clem declared, and recovering energy while disposing of waste will help more.

Bug Hookum got with the program. It's another proved fact, he said, that we got the technology to take a sow's ear and make a purse that no expert could tell from real silk. If we can git steam from burning garbage and we can git gas from garbage to far gone to burn, Bug wanted to know, how far is it until we can hook up generators and storage tanks to Congress and all the state legislatures and capture more than enough energy to run the country?

Just the other day, Bug declared, he had saw where the same bunch of honorables in North Carolina that said a politician has a constitutional right to lie when he's campaigning now says a bill to make elected politicians conduct public business in public is a bad bill because it would keep good people from running fer office.

You got to wonder, Bug said, how a roof stays on a building filled with air that hot.

Yours truly,
 Uncle Lew.

Birdseed is the ecologically safest stuff to toss at the bride and groom, says a Connecticut lawmaker who has introduced a bill banning instant rice weddings, reports International Wildlife magazine. Innocuous as it seems, instant rice kills birds that eat it by absorbing moisture, causing severe bloating, says Mae Schimle, the legislator introducing the birdseed bill. She does not advocate policing weddings, but simply wants wellwishers to convert to birdseed.

Chelsea Residents Enjoy Guided Tour of Europe

A European tour sponsored by Happy Tours was a success, according to the four Chelsea students and their leaders who participated.

The group visited England, France, Switzerland, Italy, San Marino, the Adriatic beaches, Austria and Germany.

On the tour were students Melanie Dils, Sarah Noah, Debbie Gatton and Linda Lair. They were chaperoned by Theresa Schreiner, a teacher at the high school, and her mother, Mrs. Grace Schreiner.

Said Theresa Schreiner: "We had a wonderful time with our own small group tour headed by Rainer Froehlich. This was a personal tour and therefore we all received special attention. Froehlich was with us through the whole trip and helped with the languages, points of interest, ordering meals, shopping, hotel accommodations and money exchange."

"All plans were made ahead and things went smoothly. We flew Air Canada to London and then took the Hovercraft to Calais and then a train to France. We traveled by van the rest of the way. We had picnics on the longer trips and then a dinner in the evening. All breakfasts and dinners were paid by Happy Tours.

"We would recommend this type of trip to anyone who takes a European vacation."

A VIEW from the CLOCK TOWER

Bill Mullendore

If your food appetites are at all like mine, this is the season to feast.

Michigan-grown cantaloupes, tomatoes, sweet corn, blueberries, peaches and a whole lot of other fresh farm and garden goodies are available in abundance and at realistic prices. The season, alas, is all too short. You have to cram a lot of delectable eating into about six weeks. The first killing frost normally occurs in mid-September and puts an end to it all.

Most of my life I have been trying to decide which is my favorite food—field-ripened strawberries or vine-ripened cantaloupes—and have concluded that it's a stand-off. Each has its own short season, and I never get enough of either before they are gone until another year.

The imported strawberries we get during the other months of the year look good, at least sometimes, but they are picked green for shipment and ripened artificially. Their flavor is neither good nor bad. It isn't much of anything—sort of bland and mushy.

The shipped-in cantaloupes from California, Florida, Texas and, recently, some countries in Central and South America are an abomination. They are about the size of softballs and are nearly as hard. I've never tried to eat a softball but doubt if it would taste much worse.

To me, there is nothing better than a Michigan melon picked fully ripe off a green and growing vine. The strong, musky aroma and flavor is disagreeable to some. It's one of those tastes you either do or dislike intensely.

I would write a poem of praise to the cantaloupe if I could think of some rhyming words besides "antelope," which isn't very useful for the purpose.

The best Michigan melons are those coming onto the market right now. Later ones, picked off dying and dead vines, aren't as sweet and full of flavor, a fact learned a long time ago when we grew honeyrocks in the garden.

Selecting a "good" cantaloupe is an art that my father taught me many years ago. A choice melon should be heavily netted, should feel "heavy" when held in the hand, and should have a "ripe" odor when the stem end is held to the nose. It should show some yellow on one side. If it's green all over, it was picked too soon.

Tomatoes are at their best right now—red, juicy, flavor-filled—nothing like the hard, tasteless objects offered in the market the rest of the year. The later-maturing varieties are better than the early ones, and they are here right now. Enjoy them while you can, because they won't be available a whole lot longer. Tomatoes are especially susceptible to frost.

Sweet corn. There was no such thing during my early years of growing up. Our "roasting ears" were young ears of field corn picked while "in the milk" stage.

They were tender but not at all sweet. I never quite understood why people ate the stuff, because it just plain wasn't very good. Fine for livestock maybe, but not for human food.

Along came some pioneer plant hybridizers, led by W. Artlee Burpee, and as I got into my teens there was "golden bantam" sweet corn. It was delicious, and better varieties have been introduced at intervals ever since.

If you can find a consistent source of "Silver Queen" sweet corn, cherish it. It's the absolute best there is—white corn with a high sugar content. It's difficult to grow and matures late. Most producers won't bother with it, and that is a pity. It's simply the best sweet corn there is. I haven't been able to find any hereabouts for two years. If somebody would agree to plant a small patch from which I could harvest a few dozen ears, I would happily underwrite all costs and contribute toward the labor.

As I was writing this, a man brought into the office a beautiful peach that was just a little bit smaller than a softball—the largest and best-looking peach I have ever seen. I wanted to pick it up and eat it, but settled for taking a picture.

Michigan peaches are far better than the "hard rock" Georgia peaches which are shipped into the state early every summer. For some reason, fruit raised in the south is dry and tasteless. Maybe it has something to do with the climate down there, or perhaps it is simply a matter of harvesting before the fruit is ripe. You can't pack ripe peaches, which are soft and easily bruised, into shipping boxes without spoiling them, and growers don't try. They pick 'em green. The peaches look all right but taste terrible.

The price of blueberries in the store is high enough to make you back away from buying them. Go out to a U-pick patch, and they are reasonable, about a dollar a quart. Picking blueberries is time-consuming work, which explains why they cost so much in the store. It takes quite awhile to fill a gallon bucket, but the rewards in pies, jellies and jams, and blueberries-and-cream with a scoop of orange sherbet on top make the effort well worth it.

There are lots of other good, fresh items of produce here for the buying right now—plums, early apples, green beans, cabbage, broccoli, several kinds of summer squash (not as flavorsome as fall squash but still eminently edible), lettuce (both head and leaf), cauliflower, carrots, beets, and many more.

You'll never eat better or cheaper. Enjoy the bounty of Michigan's fruit and vegetable harvest while you can. Unfortunately, it doesn't last long.

For the record, a "fruit" is anything that contains seeds. Tomatoes, beans, peas, corn, squash are all technically fruits. "Vegetables" are roots and leaves—beets, carrots, radishes, onions, cabbage, spinach, lettuce, swiss chard, kale and the like. Broccoli is somewhere in between. We eat the flower buds before they bloom. They would bear seeds and be fruits if we let them.

PREPARING THE HIGH SCHOOL for the new school year is local contractor Warren Porath, right, who is replacing sidewalks and steps. His helper is Harold Mark. Porath is scheduled to begin work next week at North Elementary school.

What's A Funeral For, Anyway?

Occasionally we're asked such questions as, "Why do we have funerals?" "What purpose do they serve?"

More than anything else, the funeral is for the living. It's our way of saying goodbye, giving recognition to a life that was important to us.

Saying goodbye is very difficult. However, it's the first important step in accepting the reality of death, and recognizing that life still has meaning for those who remain.

If you would like more information on funerals and their value to the living, please call or write for our informative brochure.

Little Letts Creek Just Keeps Flowing Along

Letts Creek is a little stream with a big job to do.

It trickles through town less than a foot deep and 12-15 feet wide, carrying a flow that varies with the seasons and the amount of precipitation but probably never exceeds a million gallons a day.

That may seem like a lot, but a million gallons a day is trifling as stream-flows go.

During the hot, dry months of summer the flow drops by half or more. Right now the creek is at a low-water ebb, but it still keeps burbling along.

A short distance north of where it crosses McKinley Rd., Letts Creek picks up a lot of water from Chelsea's sewage treatment plant—600,000 gallons on an average day when there isn't any rain and therefore no storm-water runoff—filtering into the village sewer system.

On rainy days the discharge volume may go to 800,000 gallons or more, and the excess is untreated water that the sewage plant can't handle because of its limited capacity.

When and if a proposed new village treatment facility is completed and put into operation, the discharge into Letts Creek may reach 1.2 million daily gallons, about twice the amount of normal natural flow.

That is asking a lot of a little creek that wasn't designed by nature to carry anywhere near that volume of wastes.

Letts Creek has its beginnings in a trickle of outflow from Goose Lake in the southwest corner of Sylvan township. Goose Lake isn't much in terms of size as lakes go, and neither is the rivulet that empties it.

(Sylvan township's Goose Lake should not be confused with a much larger lake of the same name a few miles west in Jackson county, nor with Wild Goose Lake off Goodband Rd. in Lyndon township. Early settlers who named lakes didn't have a lot of imagination, as suggested by the fact that there are more than 100 Mud Lakes in Michigan.)

After leaving Sylvan's Goose Lake, Letts Creek meanders northeast. Much of its original channel has been straightened into an agricultural drainage ditch. Tributary ditches add more water, but not much, and the creek is only about a foot wide as it passes under Sylvan Rd. 1 1/2 miles south of Old US-12.

The stream goes on north, passes under Old US-12 just west of the former Weinberg Dairy, ducks below I-94, then heads northeast along the Conrail tracks paralleling Garvey and Cavanaugh Lake Rds., crossing Pierce Rd. in the process.

Just south of Cavanaugh Lake Rd. west of the Chelsea village limits, Letts Creek gains considerable water from a drainage ditch system flowing in from the south, then makes a left turn, and goes more or less straight north across Sibley Rd.

A couple of hundred yards farther on, the watercourse makes a U-turn, crossing Bush Rd. and then back south under Sibley before heading into Chelsea. It almost reaches the railroad tracks before making another sharp bend east through the northwest part of town, runs through Veterans Park, under N. Main St. and McKinley Rd., and on to the sewage treatment plant.

After gathering its big load of wastewater, Letts Creek empties into the north fork of Mill Creek about half a mile farther on, and ceases to exist. Letts Creek's total length is about 20 miles.

Mill Creek's north fork comes straight east from Mill Lake before dipping far south into Lima township to join up with the south fork near the intersection of Jerusalem and Steinbach Rds. From there, what is known simply as Mill Creek runs north through the west side of Dexter and dumps into the Huron River.

Letts Creek is a pretty little stream—clear and sparkling throughout its length, including that portion below the sewage plant. The normal discharge from the plant looks pretty good to the eye, not particularly dark or cloudy.

... Through Sylvan Center.

... Under Old US-12.

... Past Pierce Rd.

... Below the railroad tracks.

... Sibley Rd. west.

... Then Bush Rd.

Solids have been settled out and chemicals added to clear the water.

However, the Water Resources Commission says the discharged wastes are unacceptable at best because they carry high levels of nitrates and phosphates which are considered to be pollutants. At worst, when the plant's capacity is exceeded, some raw sewage enters the stream.

Although Letts Creek flows almost entirely through agricultural land, it is not heavily silted with eroding soil. Especially where the stream passes through rock riffles and gains speed, the water looks almost clear and clean enough to drink (although that is not advised or even remotely suggested as a good idea).

This reporter's inspection showed that Letts Creek is far from biologically dead. It supports a large population of various minnow species (mostly chubs), several kinds of aquatic insects and larvae (mayflies, stoneflies, damselflies and others).

It's conceivable that small specimens of gamefish (bluegills, sunfish, rock bass, perch, smallmouth bass and pike work their way into the lower reaches of the creek during spring high water, coming up from the Huron River and Mill Creek, but in no way could Letts Creek be considered a fishing stream.

The only recreational use made of the creek is along the short stretch through Veterans Park, where it provides a pleasant background for picnics and offers kids a chance to catch crayfish and dip for minnows.

Local history is obscure as to how Letts Creek gets its name, and further enlightenment on that point would be appreciated.

The stream apparently received its present name from a farmer named Letts who about 50 years ago owned the land now occupied by Lane-wood subdivision. Presumably, the creek had another name before that, going back another hundred years or so. It is unlikely that the settlers who came into the area during the 1830's failed to call the stream something.

What does seem apparent

... And Sibley Rd. east.

... Through Veterans Park.

from early recorded history is that the creek helped determine the site of what is now the village of Chelsea. Residents of scattered settlements—Sylvan Center, Davidson Station, Gunntown, and Pierceville—gradually moved to Kedron, which started out as a five-family hamlet on the north side of Letts Creek close to where it crosses Main St. today. Kedron became Chelsea. All the other settlements except Sylvan Center passed out of existence.

Chelsea is unique among Washtenaw county municipipalities is that it is not sited on a substantial river. Ann Arbor (Huron), Ypsilanti (Huron), Saline (Saline River), Dexter (Huron), Manchester (Raisin) and Milan (Saline River) all were located where they are in large part because there was a river available to power a grain-grinding mill. There never was a millpond or a water wheel in Chelsea. Letts Creek—or whatever it was called back then—just wasn't big enough.

The irony is that Chelsea today is the home of one of the nation's largest grain milling companies, while the county's other cities and villages have none, big or small. Six generations of the Holmes family have been in the milling business here, and the lack of water power obviously hasn't kept them from growing and prospering.

That is one big job Letts Creek hasn't been called upon to do.

... Pipeline at McKinley Rd.

... On toward Mill Creek.

SENIORS FOOD, FUN and FARM DAY

BEEF CASSEROLE RECIPE WINNERS: Detroit Edison executive Jim O'Hara, far right, introduced the 10 winners in the Beef Casserole recipe contest when Washtenaw county senior citizens were hosted by Edison and the Washtenaw County Community Services Agency, Aug. 14, under the tent in downtown Ann Arbor. Catherine Mikeska, at far left, was the winner from Dexter, and Betty Chestney, the Chelsea recipe winner, is shown fourth from the right among the winners.

BAND REHEARSES: Chelsea High school's marching band, the "Pride of Chelsea," is shown practicing at South school under the leadership of director Bill Gourley. The band, recognized as one of the area's best, performs at home football games and other special events and is now preparing for the Chelsea Fair parade on Saturday, Aug. 31.

HELLO DEXTER, HELLO CHELSEA! Shirley Gregory Bailey of Dexter is caught by the photographer with her great aunt, Marion Rutledge, who played piano with the Chelsea Senior Citizens Kitchen Band as they entertained at the Food, Fun and Farm Day hosted by Detroit Edison and the Community Services Agency last week in Ann Arbor. Marion is Grandpa Walter Page's sister. Grandpa Page is well-remembered by many of the DEC veteran workers who helped welcome the seniors to the party, and Shirley follows the family Edison tradition. Her father, Jim Gregory, was also a long-time Edison employee.

CHARLIE KOENN of Chelsea was recognized as one of the top 14 4-H dairy judges in the state at the MABC-Select Sires 30th annual Dairy Recognition Day held in mid-June in Elsie. Charlie attended the day-long program with his father, 4-H leader Charles Koenn. They heard a discussion on careers in agriculture by Dr. Russ Erickson of Michigan State University and an explanation of linear trait evaluation of cattle by Jim Day, MABC-Select Sires dairy coordinator. Linear trait evaluation involves ranking individual traits on a cow from 1 to 9. These skills were used by the group in a judging contest at Green Meadows Farms, where Charlie finished 3rd high individual in the youth division. He received a door prize for his accomplishment.

ROSE GRIFFKA, 16, has the Terrific Tailors 4-H Club as her sponsor in the 1985 Fair Queen Pageant. Among her school activities, Rose has been a varsity cheerleader, a member of the yearbook staff, and a member of the French Club. Her community activities include being a teacher's aid at St. Mary's church, and a member of three 4-H clubs, the Terrific Tailors, Galloping Good Guys, and Sharon Valley. Her past fair activities have included cooking, canning, sewing and gardening. In her spare time Rose keeps busy with horseback riding, sewing, cooking, knitting, doing needlepoint and gardening. Rose's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Grifka, 12180 Scio Church Rd.

TANA ANNE HERMSILLO, 16, is running for the title of Chelsea Fair Queen under the sponsorship of the Chelsea High school class of 1987. At school, Tana sings in the choir, was a member of the year book staff, was in the school play, "Cinderella," and was in the Spanish Club. She also participated in the community play, "Annie," and has worked in a booth for the Sidewalk Days sale. Tana has entered hand-made clothes in past fair competitions and has also worked in a sno cone booth. Her hobbies include singing, acting, going for walks, dancing and fishing. Tana said Amy Dunlap and Kim Hamrick will be the members of her court. Tana's parents are Domingo and Hazel Hermsillo, of 3191 Jeanett Dr.

The 48th annual Chelsea Community Fair gets under way Tuesday with a five-day round of fair activities, beginning with the traditional Children's Parade. Fair activities wind down on Saturday with the closing livestock raffle drawing.

Between those two events, more than 30,000 people are expected to attend a wide variety of events, ranging from livestock competitions, to demolition derbies, to a ventriloquism performance by Miss Michigan of 1984.

The Children's Parade will leave the Municipal Parking lot at 6 p.m. on Tuesday. Children 3-12 may enter and judging of decorations (bikes, tricycles, wagons, carts and themselves) will be held at 5:30 before the parade begins. Participants are encouraged to be on hand a minimum of half an hour before the parade begins. Children will be judged in four age categories. First place receives $5, second place, $3, and third place, $2.

The Chelsea Kiwanis Club sponsors the parade, which will travel from the parking lot to the fairgrounds via Main St.

No motorized vehicles will be allowed in the parade for the safety of the children.

Immediately following the parade, Kid's Day events get underway in the main arena, including a tricycle race for children 3-5. Events include a penny toss, egg toss, obstacle course and three sack races.

The final big event of the day is the opening of the Cavalcade of Thrills Demolition Derby at 7:30 p.m. It includes three heats and a Feature, plus a Powder Puff heat for women only.

The action picks up again at 9 a.m. on Wednesday with the judging of horses in the horse arena. There will be a horse show, halter and showmanship. Western performance classes will follow in the afternoon.

The judging of beef and swine are at 1 and 7 p.m., respectively, in the multi-purpose arena.

The final day of the Cavalcade of Thrills Demolition Derby gets underway at 7:30 p.m., this year featuring a new event for two-wheel drive, half-ton pickup trucks. Farm combines will also mix it up in what promises to be an exciting event.

A full day of events gets underway Thursday with an English Performance Horse Show at 9 a.m. in the horse arena. At the same time, the antique tractor pulling contest begins in the main arena. Antique, in this case, means those models built in 1940 or earlier.

The judging of dairy cattle in the multi-purpose arena commences at 10 a.m. Goats will be judged at 3 p.m.

A Kiddies Peddle-Power Tractor Pull revs up at 5 p.m. in the main arena.

At 7 p.m. Price Brothers will auction off fat lambs, hogs and steers to the highest bidders at the popular Livestock Auction. Chelsea State Bank handles all the financial transactions. Trucking and other arrangements may be made through the sheep, swine and steer superintendents.

The B bar J Rodeo gets out of the blocks at 8 p.m., to cap Thursday's events. This is the fourth year of the rodeo, and many of the Midwest's top contestants are expected to compete in events including bareback bronco riding, calf roping, saddle bronc riding, steer wrestling, and bull riding.

The contestants won't be the only attraction. Warren Follins, a professional rodeo clown from Ohio will amuse spectators.

Friday is traditionally Ladies Day and this year is no exception. Registration begins at 8 a.m. and the program begins at 9. The first 500 women who register may partake of free coffee and doughnuts. More than 150 door prizes will be given away.

Heading the Ladies Day program is an appearance by Miss Michigan of 1984, Barbara Crandall. Barbara is an accomplished ventriloquist who will perform her specialty. Also on the Ladies Day agenda is a talk by Chelsea physician Steven Yarows on disease prevention; a demonstration on cooking beef in a microwave oven by home economist Phylliss Brokaw; a fashion show sponsored by Dancer's Department Store with the theme, "Active Sportswear"; and the presentation of the Homemaker of the Year Award.

A volunteer band, led by Floyd Cook and friends, will be on hand to entertain.

Each woman who attends will receive a "Goodie Bag" full of useful items.

While the women are off gathering helpful information at Ladies Day, men may attend the second of the tractor pulling events. Lightweight class competition begins at 9 a.m. Tractor pulling will go on much of the day, with Farm-Stock Speed Pull and the Weight Transfer Sled Classes beginning at 7 p.m.

One of the highlights of the day is the selection of the Fair Queen and her Court, with the talent competition scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. in the multi-purpose arena. This year there are nine contestants, sponsored by a variety of organizations. Those competing are Shanda Friday, Julie Stacey, Judy Bareis, Heidi Hosner, Tana Hermsillo, Angie Welch, Susan Overdorf, Vanessa May and Rose Grifka.

The re-instated Fun Run, sponsored by the Family Practice Center and the Chelsea Recreation Council leads off Saturday's events at 9 a.m. Three races, one, three and five miles, will take area runners on various routes through the village. All races begin at the Family Practice Center.

Also at 9 a.m. are an Open Horse Show in the horse arena and a Compact Tractor Pull in the main arena.

The best parade of the year, the Chelsea Fair Parade, leads off from the intersection of Park and East Sts. at 1 p.m. and ends at the fairgrounds. Everything from floats to marching bands to the Chelsea Charms shows up for this one. It's advisable to avoid driving in the Park St. area during the morning due to the large number of folks getting ready to participate.

The compact tractor pull resumes at 1:30 and the horseshoe pitching contest begins at 3 p.m. Those who saw last year's competition will remember that women dominated the event.

The Four-Wheel Drive Speed Pulling Contest combined with the Mini-Modified Tractor Pull is the final ear-piercing event of the day. It begins at 7 p.m. in the main arena.

Livestock events fill out the day, with the Sweepstakes Show at 7:30 in the multi-purpose arena and the raffle drawing at 10 in the main arena.

Day passes are $3, while children under 12 get in free. A season pass is $10, students with identification may buy one for $7. Senior citizens may acquire a season pass for $6. Seniors also have free passes on Thursday.

Parking is free in all the fairground lots.

High School Trying New Process In Scheduling Student Classes

Chelsea High school will be doing something different in the way of student scheduling next Monday and Tuesday.

The normal scheduling procedure could not be carried out last spring because some staffing changes were made too late to complete the master schedule and have students select their classes for the 1985-86 school year. As a result, the students were scheduled by a computer, as they are in most school districts.

However, we like students to have at least some opportunity to request certain teachers and specific periods for some of their classes, principal John Williams said.

"Because we were not able to run a full scheduling process last spring, we're going to try to do a change process next Monday and Tuesday."

The computer scheduled each student as best their course requests would allow. Most of the students, as a result, have a complete schedule for fall. Some do not and they will be able to go to the high school Media Center Monday and Tuesday to select the rest of their classes.

According to Williams, all students were mailed a copy of their schedule, and a copy of the courses they had requested.

Students who do not have a complete schedule will be allowed to start at 9 a.m. on Monday to finish up their schedule, with seniors being allowed first.

Truck Crash Causes Traffic Snarl on I-94

Traffic on I-94 was closed down to one lane in both directions for several hours yesterday morning following a collision between two semi-trucks half a mile west of the Clear Lake Rd. interchange in Grass Lake township, Jackson county.

The accident occurred at 6:30 a.m., and the wreckage had not been completely cleared away four hours later.

A trooper at the Jackson state police post said both trucks were east-bound when one rammed the other in the rear. The lead truck went across the median and into the west-bound lane. The other came to rest in the median.

Seniors who have a complete schedule but who would be interested in trying to change it to get certain teachers or classes in certain periods will be allowed to try to do so beginning Monday afternoon.

Juniors with a complete schedule who want to try to change may come in Tuesday at 9 a.m. sophomores, at 10:30 and freshmen, at 1 p.m.

Williams said that even though the idea was born of necessity this year, there are potentially many benefits to the high school. One is that the scheduling process normally takes four days during the school year that is lost instructional time.

Also, in the past, the first several days of school have been fairly unstable for some students who were making class changes after school started.

Under the new system, all students have a complete schedule chosen before school opens on Tuesday, Sept. 3. Because the vast majority of students already have a complete schedule, personnel at the high school should be able to handle the rest during the two days rather than four days as in the past.

Williams also stressed that students who have a complete schedule do not need to be present next Monday and Tuesday. Only those who have a problem or want to make a change should come at the appointed time to work it out.

Marvin W. Edwards, 33, of Preston, Ia., driver of a truck hauling a load of hogs, was taken to Chelsea Community Hospital with cuts and bruises and a possible broken finger.

The other driver, Jerry W. Gill, 45, of Montague, Ia., declined treatment. He was driving a truck owned by the Wade Shows, a carnival operator.

The hogs did not escape from Edwards' truck.

As of mid-morning yesterday, traffic was restricted to one lane in both directions, creating severe traffic jams on the heavily travelled freeway. The state

LaFave Enthused As Varsity Gridders Look Good in Drills

If a coach's enthusiasm means anything, Chelsea's varsity football prospects look bright this fall.

"I'm excited about this team," head coach Gene LaFave said at the end of the first week of drills. "We've got some good football players and have had some good practices even though the weather hasn't been the greatest."

The 27 juniors and seniors who make up the varsity squad began working out in pads this week, getting ready for Friday night's Blue and Gold intra-squad game. Two or three sophomores may be brought up from the junior varsity team before the Sept. 6 opening game against Brooklyn Columbia Central here.

"We don't put sophomores on the varsity unless they have the potential to play a lot," LaFave explained. "It's better that they play on the JV's and get experience than sit on the varsity bench."

With such small numbers, the Bulldogs will not have a lot of depth, but that is nothing new. LaFave said he thinks it likely that five or six boys will play on both offense and defense.

"That's normal for us and for almost all schools our size," he noted. "As usual, injuries could hurt us, especially if they hit key players. That's a possible problem we face every year. Some years we're lucky, and some we're not."

LaFave sees rebuilding the defense as his chief concern so far in the practice period. "We lost more boys through graduation on defense than we did on offense, including several at key positions. We don't have a lot of experience returning, especially at linebacker and in the deep secondary, and we'll be looking for kids who can fill the gaps."

The offensive outlook is brighter at this stage, primarily because there is more experience available especially at the "skill" positions—quarterback, wide receiver, tight end, running back.

Heading the list is quarterback Dan Bellus, who sparkled as a junior last season, improving steadily game by game.

Also back is junior wide receiver Todd Starkey, who set a school record as a sophomore in 1984 with 53 pass receptions. Returning with him is senior end Mark Mull, another fine receiver.

"Actually, we have half a dozen boys who can run good patterns and catch the ball, and Bellus has shown he can get it to them," LaFave said. "Our passing game should be very good."

The coach will be looking for a stronger rushing offense to balance the passing attack, something the Bulldogs lacked last year.

"We had to go to the air too much last season because we couldn't move the ball consistently on the ground. I'm hoping for better balance, and I think we have several boys who can help provide it."

LaFave mentioned Curtis Heard, who played some in 1984 but was hampered by injuries, and Joe Eassa, up from the junior varsity, as leading contenders for the halfback positions in his split-back offense.

"We have some others who can carry the ball and find the holes if the blockers do their jobs," he said. "I feel a lot better about our rushing game than I did a year ago."

Summing up, LaFave said: "We have good size, decent speed and quickness. We have at least five boys over 200 pounds or close to it and quite a few 175 and over, which is big in high school. We have some boys who can run fast. The challenge from a coaching standpoint is how to put it all together and get the most out of our talents. That's my job, and I'm enthused about it. I like this team. They have a lot of spirit and desire."

Asked about Chelsea's prospects in the Southeastern Conference grid race, LaFave didn't hesitate.

"People are saying we are among the favorites, and I agree," he said. "I honestly think we will be strong contenders." LaFave mentioned Saline, Lincoln, Pinckney and Tecumseh as challengers along with Chelsea, quickly adding that he isn't overlooking Milan and Dexter.

"We looked past Milan last year, played our worst game since I've been here as coach, and lost it. This is a very competitive league. You can't afford to let down against anybody."

He sized up the competition this way: Saline—"They won it (SEC title) last year, and they have a good nucleus coming back. They are always strong. I respect them. They have an excellent football program."

Lincoln—"They have a bunch of good athletes, maybe more raw talent than any other school in the conference. If they jell, they could be very tough."

Pinckney—"They tied with us in the league standings last year, and had the strongest JV team in the conference. If those JV boys continue to improve, Pinckney could be very good."

Tecumseh—"They were 4-2 in the league last year and finished ahead of us. I think you have to consider them as at least a darkhorse."

Milan—"I don't know much about them yet but, let's face it, they beat us last year on our home field. I don't like to remember that game, but it's on the record books. They won and we lost."

Dexter—"Their 1-3 record (0-6 in the SEC) may be deceiving. They improved as the season went along and won their last game. They may have built some momentum. I know they always play tough against us."

Chelsea was 3-3 in the league last year and 4-5 over-all. The Bulldogs lost a couple of conference games, to Milan and Lincoln, that they probably should have won.

LaFave sized up Columbia Central as "a strong, solid team from

Athletic Eligibility Rules Are Stiffened

Beginning with the fall sports schedule, new athletic eligibility rules will be in force at Chelsea High school, athletic director Larry Reed announced.

The new rules laid down by the Michigan High School Athletic Association state a student must be passing a minimum of four classes to be eligible for athletics. The former standard was three.

The Chelsea board of education has decided to interpret "four classes" as meaning four academic courses. Special programs such as student aide and work study will not be counted in determining eligibility.

Student athletes will be checked weekly to see if their academic standing meets the requirement, Reed said. If it does not measure up, athletes will be declared ineligible for a minimum of one week, or until they are passing at least four academic subjects.

Ann Arbor Pacers Lose in Nationals

The Ann Arbor Pacers, sponsored by Stein & Goetz, are out of the Women's Major national softball tournament being played this week in Lansing after losing their first two games in the double-elimination affair.

Amy Unterbrink and Nanette Push of Chelsea pitch for the Pacers. The scores of the two games were 3-1 and 1-0.

what I know about them. They will give us a good test in our opener. They certainly won't be a push-over."

Kelly Hawker Pitches Well In Tourney

Kelly Hawker of Chelsea pitched the Detroit Tartars softball team to victory in the Great Lakes Class A regional tournament held at Waterford the week-end of Aug. 17-18.

Hawker, who was a stand-out pitcher on the CHS team which won the 1985 Class B championship, is enrolled at Wayne State University this fall. The Detroit Tartars are made up primarily of Wayne players present and future.

Hawker won two of the Tartars' four victories in the tournament by scores of 2-1 and 1-0.

The team has an opportunity to go to Redding, Calif., to compete in a national tournament this week-end, according to Kelly's father, Larry Hawker. Whether they will make the trip is uncertain, he said, because of the cost involved.

"Kelly has found out this summer that she can pitch and win at a higher level of competition than Class B high school," Hawker said. "It has been an excellent experience for her."

Three Seniors Back To Help Defend Girls Basketball Crown

Three seniors head up a squad of 10 girls who will seek to defend Chelsea's Southeastern Conference girls basketball championship won last year.

Chelsea and Pinckney tied for the league crown in 1984 with 10-2 records. The Bulldogs were 15-6 over-all. Six players graduated off that team.

"The three girls we have returning all played well for us last year and give us a good nucleus to build around," coach Jim Winter said, "but it's going to be hard to replace those who are gone."

Returning are Jennifer Cattell, Kristi Headrick and Kris Mattoff.

Filling out the squad are seven girls who played on the junior varsity last fall—Trisha Mattoff, Cris Zerkel, Kim Ferry, Mary Lazarz, Karen Weber, Jodi Keezer and Pam Brown. All are juniors.

Last year's JV team compiled a 14-5 record and was 9-3 in league competition, good for second place behind Saline.

"Our first week of practice was good," Winter said as he issued game uniforms to his troops last Friday morning. "I pushed the girls hard, and they all stuck with it."

"We don't have a lot of height and may have trouble rebounding against taller teams as we did last year. Beyond that, it's too soon to tell much."

The lady Bulldogs will open their season against Adrian here on Thursday, Sept. 5.

Fall Sports Schedule At High School All Set, Reed Says

Everything is on track as the fall high school athletic season approaches, says new Chelsea athletic director Larry Reed. "All of our schedules are complete and all officials contracted for and assigned," Reed said. "All coaching responsibilities are in place. "Ron Nemeth (former athletic director) left things in very good shape, which I expected because of the excellent job he has always done. There were a few odds and ends that had to be taken care of, things that came up during the period between his resignation and my appointment." Reed said that Rahn Rosentretre will not be a co-coach of girls tennis as he was a year ago. "The girls tennis team will be solely the responsibility of coach Terry Schreiner," he said. "I suspect that Rahn may help out on a volunteer basis, but he will not be assigned and paid as a tennis coach."

Reed announced a late change in the girls basketball schedule. The girls cagers will open their season here against Adrian on Sept. 5. South Lyon was supposed to be the home opponent on that date, but dropped the game from its schedule.

"It took three weeks to call around and find a school that would agree to come here and play on that date, and Adrian obliged," Reed said. "I'm grateful. We have had good athletic relations with Adrian in the past, and we will try to accommodate to our mutual scheduling needs in the future."

Brandon, a school at Ortonville southeast of Flint, replaces Class A Lansing Everett as the final foe on the varsity and JV football schedules. Everett had another commitment for the date.

"We're finishing up the scheduling for junior high teams and will have it done before school starts," Reed said. "I've been busy, but things have fallen into place real well."

Coaches in football include: Varsity—Gene LaFave, head coach, assisted by Wayne Welton and John Dunn.

Junior varsity—Jim Ticknor, head coach, assisted by Ken Sullins.

Freshmen—Jim Tallman, head coach, assisted by Jeff Dilts.

Dilts, a former outstanding player at Chelsea and later a star at Hope College, is a newcomer to the grid coaching staff. Dunn, a former CHS quarterback, has moved up from the freshmen to the JV team as an assistant.

Jim Winter is the head coach of girls varsity basketball, and Paul Terpstra tutors the JV squad.

Pat Clarke is in charge of both the boys and the girls cross country teams.

Reed coaches the girls swim team.

Schreiner coaches girls tennis, and Loren Winn is the newly appointed golf coach.

Helen Bareis will again instruct the varsity cheerleaders, and Sue Starkey returns as advisor to the JV group.

LOREN WINN is the new coach of the Chelsea High school golf team, succeeding Ken Larson. Winn, an industrial arts teacher at the high school, is an enthusiastic golfer and joins his squad for practice rounds early every week-day morning at Inverness Country Club.

Golf Team Draws A Large Turnout

More than 20 boys have turned out for the Chelsea High golf team under new coach Loren Winn, and players and coach are teeing off for practice rounds at 7 a.m. every week-day morning.

"We have 21 boys so far, and I expect we will get a couple more," Winn said at the conclusion of last week's practice rounds.

"They are mostly freshmen and sophomores, which means we don't have much experience. What I have seen is a lot of interest and enthusiasm, and that can go a long way toward making up for lack of experience."

"Many of our early-morning practice rounds have been played in pretty discouraging weather (rain, fog and dew-drenched grass), but that hasn't dampened spirits. The boys have hung in and played over the conditions. It hasn't been easy out there on most mornings."

The team practices at Inverness Country Club, Chelsea's home course.

The Bulldog golfers were second state Class B in 1983 and seventh last year. Almost all of that group has graduated. This year's young team opened its season at the Lake Shore Invitational meet on Monday, earning the honor of becoming the first Chelsea fall athletic team to get into competition. They will play in the Jackson County Western Invitational on Friday.

SPORTS NOTES

BY BILL MULLENDORE

Anybody who has ever competed or coached in athletics will tell you that emotion is just as important as physical talent when it comes to being a winner or loser. Yet the element of emotion remains elusive in the sense that how it works cannot be readily explained.

How, for example, do you account for the come-down of the Detroit Tigers team which a year ago was riding high on top of the baseball world? They are the same players playing the same game against the same opponents. There the similarities end. The 1985 Tigers definitely will not repeat as champions. They are floundering badly and will be fortunate to finish respectably.

Detroit will not be the first professional baseball team to fall apart after a year at the top. Baltimore did it a couple of years ago, dropping to fifth place in the American League East after winning the World Series the season before. Milwaukee did much the same thing a few years before that. You can find countless examples in all sports, not just baseball.

The puzzling question is, simply, why?

Athletes—good ones—don't suddenly lose their ability to play. There is a gradual deterioration that comes with age. The turning-point for most pros seems to come after about 33 birthdays. Up to then, they tend to get better as the years go by.

With a couple of exceptions, the Detroit Tigers are a relatively young team composed of players who could reasonably have been expected to be even better this year than they were in 1984. Instead, they haven't come close as a team to playing the way they did a year ago.

The Tigers have had some injuries, but no more than normally afflict a baseball team over the course of a season. Nor can the luck element be used as an excuse. Detroit has not been losing close games, for the most part. The defeats have been thorough thrashings.

Why does a whole group of good hitters collectively lose the ability to deliver hits with runners on base in scoring position? Why does a bench that consistently produced when called upon in the clutch suddenly come up empty? Why does a bullpen that got the big outs start giving up key hits that cause late-inning losses?

The psychology of sports has always been at least as fascinating to me as the physical aspect. I confess to a great lack of understanding, especially when an entire team goes into a prolonged slump and can't pull out of it. Individual athletes have their ups and downs over the course of a long season, but why should a whole 25-player roster come unglued?

It isn't that the Tigers haven't had their chances this season. They got off to a fine start, winning their first five games, and stayed on top or close to it through most of the early going. They fell six games behind the pace-setting Toronto Blue Jays, then rallied to close the gap to two. It's been mostly all down-hill ever since as they have played themselves out of contention.

Give credit to the Blue Jays, who have been playing extremely well, reminiscent of the Tigers of '84. Whenever it has looked as if somebody might make a real run at them, the Jays have put together a winning streak to stay comfortably in front. They could still be caught—especially by the New York Yankees whose superiority in sheer talent is finally beginning to show—but it will take some doing.

Meanwhile the question remains: Why does a team of professional athletes fall from super-stardom to also-rans in a single season? If I knew the answer, I wouldn't be pounding a typewriter for a living.

It probably has something to do with loss of enthusiasm, a natural emotional letdown after winning a championship. Mix in a bit of complacency, a feeling that "Well, we did it once so what do we have left to prove?" There may also be a "tradition" factor at work. In recent years nobody has managed to stay on top long enough to become accustomed to the idea of being year-after-year winners.

JUNIOR MORSEAU

Morseau Wins National Tourney

Junior Morseau of 12302 Roepke Rd., who will be a freshman at Chelsea High school this fall, won the softball throw at the Hershey Foundation national track and field meet in Hershey, Pa., Aug. 17.

Morseau competed in the 13-14 age group and won with a throw of 72.3 meters, more than three meters farther than his closest competitor.

He represented an eight-state region consisting of Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio and Wisconsin, and was chosen to carry the Michigan flag in the tournament-opening parade.

The regional team placed first in the over-all meet.

Morseau had qualified for the nationals by winning the regional competition last month with a state-record throw of 73.4 meters, and won an all-expense trip to Hershey.

While there he toured the Hershey chocolate factory, Chocolate World (a theme park) and an honors banquet. He received a medal as a national winner.

Junior made the trip to Hershey by air. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Morseau, drove to the meet, as did his coach, Bill Wehrwein.

"It's a great achievement for the boy," Wehrwein said. "He's a fine young athlete, and has worked hard to improve his throwing technique. I don't know that I helped him a whole lot but did try to put him in touch with people who could. (Former Detroit Tiger pitcher Fred Holdsworth, who lives in Chelsea, was one of them.)"

Waterloo Hunt Club Hosting Horse Trials

Waterloo Hunt Club in Grass Lake, will host its annual Horse Trials on Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 24-25. The event is sanctioned by both the Michigan Combined Training Association and the United States Combined Training Association. Combined training is the equestrian sport which originated as a test for military horses. Today, horse and rider must complete three separate tests. The first is dressage, which tests the suppleness and obedience of the horse. The horse and rider must complete a pre-set pattern in which each movement is assigned points by a judge. The next phase is cross country which is the most physically demanding. The rider must guide his horse over a course of obstacles which the horse has never seen within a given time limit. The final phase is stadium jumping which tests the horse's obedience and willingness to go on. The jumping test is typically eight to 10 fences set up in a stadium ring. At Waterloo, the dressage and stadium tests will be completed on Saturday with the cross-country scheduled for Sunday. This year the USCTA will be holding its Area VIII training

IT TOOK AN EVEN TALLER CRANE to erect a 100-foot radio antenna at the village fire hall last week. The huge machine was rented from an Ann Arbor firm. Volunteers from the fire department and Chelsea Radio Club contributed labor to the job. The new tower will improve the department's radio coverage.

Nature Program Set At Hudson Mills Park

Waterloo Hunt is located on the corner of Katz and Glenn Rds., near Grass Lake, east of Jackson. Competition begins at 8 a.m. on Saturday and spectators are welcome. Characteristics, habits and values of these animals, will be held at Hudson Mills Metropark near Dexter on Wednesday, Aug. 28 at 1:30 p.m. Meet at the new Activities Center Building. This program is "free" and advance registration is required. For information/registration, contact the Nature Center at Kensington Metropark, phone 1-800-552-6772. A vehicle entry permit is required.

Chrysler Cooling Employees Defeat Canadian Team

It wasn't a beautiful softball game but it was fun nonetheless. The Cooling Departments of the Chrysler Proving Grounds and Highland Park topped Canadian Fram in a game at Dana Field, Saturday, Aug. 10. No one was sure of the exact score, only the end result. The game is an annual event with alternating locations. Canadian Fram of Chatham, Ont. is one of the Cooling Departments' suppliers. Actually, the game appeared to be an excuse to get together and have a party. Monte Howard, a Chrysler employee and Island Lake Rd. resident, had the whole gang back to his house for a pig roast afterward. How many times do you have a party at home and have a chartered bus parked in front? That's an indication of how many people were on hand. More than 30 made the trip from the other side of the border. The winning Chrysler team was composed of Howard, Guy Belleau, Lee Hazelman, Big and Little Phil DeMontigny, Bill Panagos, Bob Wirtz, Glen Suszko, Mary Walker, George Psaros and his sons Emanuel and Steven, George Woronowycz, Joe Ozdowy, Lori Navock, Gary and Joey Medley, Lee Carducci, Dick Smith, Doug Bowen, John Hermann, Ray Charles and Don Heck.

Jerry Ledwidge Senior Champion At Inverness Club

Jerry Ledwidge of Dexter won the men's senior golf tournament at Inverness Country Club with an 18-hole score of 74. Lloyd Mull, also of Dexter, won the first flight. In ladies senior citizen handicap tourney, Arlene Howe was the winner with a net score of 109. Ruby West was second at 110. Evelyn Hunter won low gross honors, with Arlene Howe second.

Demolition Derby Adds Pick-Up Heat

A few more entries are needed to fill out the field in the first-ever, half-ton pick-up event in the Cavalcade of Thrills Demolition Derby. The new event, for two-wheel drive vehicles, is planned for Wednesday, Aug. 28 at 7:30 p.m.

A total of 10 trucks are needed, according to fair secretary Maryann Guenther. As of last Friday, six vehicles were entered, but event organizers were confident that at least 10 would turn out. Today is the final day to enter. For more information contact John Klunk at 475-7631.

Prize money is the same for the new event as for all the car heats. First and second place of each of the first three heats receives $25. Those six then meet in the final heat in which the winner receives $200 and runner-up $100.

Women who have an itch to go out and crunch a few fenders are encouraged to enter the Powder Puff Derby on Tuesday, Aug. 27 at 7:30 p.m. This event is for women only and it is always one of the most popular with the fair crowds. Be sure to check out the specific rules for the event on page 114 of the Fair Premium Book.

In other last-minute fair news, volunteers are being sought to help with the barn and building set-up tomorrow, Thursday, Aug. 22 at 7:30 p.m. This is when all the partitioning and fences are set up that separate the sheep from the hogs, for one example. Anyone interested in helping out should stop by the fairgrounds that night.

Entry fees for the Fun Run, sponsored by the Family Practice Center and the Chelsea Recreation Council, increased to $8 as of last Saturday. However, it's still a good deal to enter. Entrants receive t-shirts and have a chance to win prizes after the races have completed. There will also be refreshments. Elsewhere in this edition is an article with more detailed information on the event, including a map of the race course.

Many organizations around town are looking for people to help out with float-building for the Chelsea Fair Parade, which begins at 1 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 31 at the intersection of Park and East Sts. Check with your class officers or clubs for details.

Farm Numbers Down, Part-Timers Up

The U.S. Department of Agriculture reports that the number of farms in the nation declined nearly 2% in the past year, to an estimated 2.2 million. The average size of remaining farms rose slightly. Countering that trend, however, was an increase in the number of part-time farmers. USDA placed the average size of a farm at 445 acres, up from 438 the previous year. The number of large producers, with sales of $100,000 or more, declined only one-tenth of a percent, to 13.8% of all farms.

C. of C. Reviews Current Planning, Promotional Ideas

Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce had their regular board meeting on Tuesday, Aug. 13 with Gabe Cherem and Dr. Fritz Wagner as guests. Dr. Wagner, a former Chelsea resident and now with the Department of Urban Planning at the University of New Orleans, was invited to comment on the Chamber programs. Cherem presented ideas for a logo to be used on Community Interpretation materials recommended by the Eastern Michigan University study. The first item to be printed will be a Chelsea coloring book featuring pictures of local landmarks and unique features of the area along with a brief description of each. Other brochures and tour pamphlets will follow at a later date.

Police Nab 3 Waterloo Escapees

Three escapees from Camp Waterloo were captured Wednesday morning, Aug. 14 near M-52 and Roepeke Rd. in a joint effort by the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department and the Chelsea police. The men had left the facility Aug. 13.

According to police reports, Sheriff's Det. Paul Wade called the Chelsea police for assistance at 8:43 a.m. after he had one of the suspects in custody. While Wade nabbed the first man, Eric Eugene Young, the other two ran west, away from M-52.

Two tracking dogs were called to the scene, one from the Washtenaw Sheriff's Department and the other from the Michigan State Police. The men, Randy Rae Jones and Wade Scott Loose, were subsequently captured at 10:38 a.m. and 10:56 a.m., respectively. Young, 22, was serving six to 15 years for breaking and entering. Jones, 28, was serving six months to five years for carrying a concealed weapon. Loose, 21, was serving three to 15 years for breaking and entering.

Always wash the bowl and beaters with hot soapy water and rinse well before using to beat egg whites. Even a trace of grease will sabotage your best beating efforts.

YOUR FUTURE WON'T WAIT... AND TIME'S A WASTIN'!

KLINK EXCAVATING won the contract to pave the high school parking lot. The bid of $19,247 was accepted by the Chelsea school board at its regular meeting Monday, Aug. 19.

Parking Lot Being Paved

The south portion of the Chelsea High school parking lot is being black-topped and will be ready for use when school opens this fall.

Cost of the project is $19,247, Superintendent Ray Van Meer said. Funds were provided from a special maintenance tax levy.

"We moved the parking lot paving ahead on the timetable of projects being paid for out of the special maintenance fund," Van

Meer said. "It was a bad situation we felt we couldn't live with any longer. There was a constant problem of either mud or dust, depending on the weather, and it kept getting worse no matter what temporary measures we took."

School district voters approved a half-mill special maintenance levy in 1978, and renewed it for a full mill in 1982. Scheduled to expire in 1988, the tax raises about $183,000 a year based on current property valuations in the district.

Klink Excavating Co. is doing the work on the parking lot, which includes two coats of asphalt and line marking for parking spaces.

"It will eliminate a real nuisance," Van Meer said, and I believe the public will appreciate having the lot completely paved. I know that we at the school will."

A NEW ONE-PIECE RUBBER ROOF is being installed at Bea Middle school by Gundrum Roofing Co. of Ann Arbor at a cost of $60,474. The roof is called a Carlisle roof and was chosen for its durability.

What Americans Eat And Drink in A Day

During a typical 24-hour period, Americans eat 3 million pounds of butter, 1.5 million pounds of lard, 1.2 million bushels of potatoes, 5.8 million pounds of chocolate, and rinse with 17 million gallons of coffee, 28 million six-packs of beer and 1.2 million gallons of hard liquor. That information comes from a new book called "In One Day."

Foster Homes Needed for Troubled Kids

Where do kids go when they can't go home?

That is the question Huron Valley Child Guidance Clinic is seeking to answer.

The agency is currently in the process of developing a therapeutic foster home program. This is to meet a growing need for program alternatives to psychiatric hospitalization and other types of institutional care. The program is designed for youth aged 10 to 18 who have a history of emotional problems, and currently are unable to live with natural family members. Many of these kids are already in an institution and have made sufficient progress to live in the community. It is in response to this growing need that Community Mental Health of Washtenaw county is seeking to develop this foster home program.

Huron Valley, which is the children's services branch of Community Mental Health, is currently looking for parents who would be interested in being licensed, and trained to care for the youth identified above.

Paul Gassios, MSW, is the program co-ordinator. He states, "We are looking for parents who are willing to commit themselves to anywhere between six months to three years of care for a kid. We are not looking for parents who necessarily have all of the answers to raising kids. In fact, we need parents who are open to learning and willing to hang in there with a kid when things get difficult. One of the things I like about this program is that parents will receive a lot of support and training from our agency. They won't be on their own."

Interested parents would need to go through a licensing evaluation as required by state law. This can take anywhere from four to six weeks.

Gassios goes on to say, "It is unfortunate we have to keep kids institutionalized longer, and outside of our county because we do not have an adequate program for children in their home county, especially when they do not need to be in an institution."

Gassios would welcome any calls from parents interested in becoming a foster parent. He may be reached at 434-1150.

Detroit Edison Hosts Seniors At Farm, Food, Fun Day

Detroit Edison Ann Arbor Division, in conjunction with the Washtenaw County Community Services Agency and 4-H, hosted a Food, Fun and Farm Day in downtown Ann Arbor, Aug. 14, for Washtenaw county senior citizens. More than 500 seniors visited the "farm," near Detroit Edison's new building in Ann Arbor.

The event was highlighted by Detroit Edison's presentation of a Grand Champion steer, purchased by the company at the 4-H Youth Show Livestock Auction, and donated to the Washtenaw County Community Services Agency Nutrition Program, a luncheon program for senior citizens.

The Grand Champion steer, weighing in at 1,280 pounds, was raised by 4-H'er Lori A. Nixon, of Dexter. Lori and her parents, Bill and Sherry Nixon, were guests of honor at the Farm Day.

The program also included judging of the best "Grand Champion beef casserole recipe." Seniors at each of Washtenaw County Community Services Agency senior nutrition centers submitted their favorite beef casserole recipes and an entry from each center was selected as a finalist. Their recipes are featured in a booklet of winning recipes published by Detroit Edison.

Chelsea winner was Betty Chestney, while Catherine Mikeska was the winner in Dexter.

The Kitchen Band, a unique old-fashioned orchestra formed by Chelsea seniors, performed at the Seniors' Farm Day, followed by the Spinning Stars, senior square dancers.

"Fat" Bob Taylor, of WJR Radio, was the master of ceremonies.

Other events included a sheep shearing demonstration by the father of a 4-H member, Dale Weidmayer, the opportunity for seniors to milk a goat, pet rabbits and bottle feed the animals.

The Golden Age Showcase exhibited senior art and needlecraft work.

Box lunches provided by Washtenaw County Community Services Agency were served to seniors.

Official presentations were made by James K. O'Hara, manager, Ann Arbor Division, Detroit Edison, to Peter K. Yelorda, executive director, Washtenaw County Community Services Agency.

Palmer Ford Auto Agency Expanding On S. Main St. Site

Michigan's oldest Ford automobile dealership and the second-oldest in the United States, Palmer Ford-Mercury of Chelsea, is expanding again.

"It's part of a continuing effort to maintain our downtown location, which we feel is very important, while improving our service to customers," owner George Palmer said.

The Palmer agency traces its history to 1912 when Leigh Palmer, father of George, began selling and servicing cars in what was even then an old house at 222 S. Main St. That house, which sits behind and is connected to the showroom fronting on Main St., will be torn down to make room for new offices and added indoor display space. "Dad bought that house on a 99-foot lot in 1911, remodelled the ground floor into an office, showroom and shop, and lived on the second floor," George Palmer said. "I don't know how old the house is today, but it's well over 100 years."

The house is kind of a bridge between the present showroom in front and the body shop in back.

In 1966 Palmer bought a piece of property to the south, and had the house on it moved to 665 Mayer Dr., where he still lives. "It was a good house then and still is," he said. "I haven't found any reason to move."

A year later a house on the north side of the agency was bought. It was burned down deliberately as a training exercise for the Chelsea fire department.

Other pieces of property were acquired until today Palmer Ford-Mercury has 300 feet of frontage on Main St. and enough depth to display 100 or more new cars when the current remodeling and expansion project is completed.

The new L-shaped indoor showroom will have room for at least five cars, Palmer said. Some paving work also remains to be completed.

He declined to reveal the cost of this latest in a series of expansion moves, other than to say that it is "considerable," and added:

"We expect to get it back and then some with improvements to our level of service, which we take a lot of pride in. We will save 50 percent on energy (electricity) and fuel costs alone."

While most auto sales agencies have moved out of downtown areas into the suburbs, Palmer has striven from the start to stay in Chelsea's central business district, and intends to remain there.

"There are many advantages to being downtown, provided you can get the space you need for display, sales and service. Our location is convenient for our customers. They can bring in a car for service, walk to their jobs, and walk back to pick up the car."

"The excellent police security we enjoy makes it possible for us to leave our display lot open and lighted at night, so people can

NOT FOR SALE: A mobile home and a motor home sitting at one end of it aren't for sale at the Palmer Ford-Mercury agency, 222 S. Main St. They house the temporary offices of the business while remodeling and expansion work continues. The center section (dark upper story) of the building at right is being torn out to make way for new offices and an enlarged showroom. Actually, the portion coming out is an old house which was the original headquarters of the agency and the home of founder Leigh Palmer.

Farmers Spending More on Repairs

Farmers, coping with their depressed economy, are expected to spend 13% less on new and used machinery this year than they did last year. That means more money will be spent on repairs. Last year, 59 cents of each dollar farmers spent on machinery went for repairs. In 1979, repairs took only 32 cents of each machinery dollar spent by farmers.

Children's Parade Will Open Fair Tuesday Evening

It's been a tradition that a parade by Chelsea's children opens the fair and this year is no exception. And it's just one of the many events that will keep children occupied on Tuesday, Aug. 27.

The Children's Parade will begin at 6 p.m. Children between the ages of 3 and 12 can decorate their bicycles, tricycles, wagons, carts, and even themselves and join in the fun. Those who wish to participate should be at the Municipal Parking Lot before 5:30 p.m. Judging is based strictly on the originality of the decorations and three premiums in each of four age divisions will be awarded.

The parade, which will also include the bands, will march from the Municipal Parking Lot to the Fairgrounds. No horses or motorized vehicles are allowed.

Immediately following the parade, children 3 to 5 years old can compete to see who's the Big Daddy Garlits of the tricycle set during the tricycle race. A ride ticket will be given to each participant and ribbons will be awarded to the first three winners in each age group.

While the rest of the family is preparing for the Demolition Derby, children ages four to 10 can take part in Kid's Day events in the Main Arena, also following the parade. The events include a penny toss for ages 4 and 5, and egg toss for ages 6 to 7, an obstacle course for ages 8 through 10, and sack races for ages 5 through 10.

Ribbons will be awarded for all first, second and third places winners, as well as free ride tickets.

The Ashley Combination Coal-and-Wood Heater assures winter comfort with maximum fuel economy.

Always a fuel miser, the improved Ashley Combination Coal-and-Wood Heater now makes even better use of fuel. New synthetic door gaskets seal better for better combustion control, longer intervals between fuelings. And a new positive thermostat makes combustion more complete, extracts more heat from the same amount of fuel.

Other benefits include:

- Special cast-iron rotating shaker grate, thick firebrick liner and cast-iron firebrick retainers permit fueling with either coal or wood.
- Heats 4-5 average size rooms.
- Holds a fire overnight; just add fuel in the morning.
- Louvered top lifts and locks open for emergency cooking.
- Cabinet stays cooler than radiant heater — so it's safer for children.
- New attractive contemporary styling.
- UL LISTED, your assurance of safe operation.

What Happens to Past Fair Queens?

Whatever happened to Fair Queens of the 1960s? In last year's fair supplement, the question was answered for the queens of the 1950s, the first decade of Chelsea Fair Queens.

The 1960 queen, Margot Murphy, married Charlie Koenn. She, and another queen from the 1960s, Cindy (Schumm) Bradbury, are in charge of the contest this year. Margot attended Central Michigan University, has three children and resides on a Chelsea dairy farm.

The 1961 fair queen was Nancy Carter. She died due to a diabetic condition.

Judy Weinkauff was the 1962 fair queen. She attended Western Michigan University and earned both a bachelor's and master's degree in education. She is now a teacher in Fairfax county, Va.

and is known as Judy Oates. She has two children.

The 1963 queen was Carol Mayer, who married local attorney Peter Flintoft and still lives in Chelsea.

Cindy Schumm, the 1964 queen, went to Wittenburg College in Ohio, taught eighth grade in Chelsea for a couple of years, and in 1970 married Archie Bradbury. She is now living on a Dexter dairy farm. She on the Board of Trustees at the Chelsea Community Hospital, and on the Board of Directors of the Ann Arbor Women's Bowling Association. She has two children.

The 1965 queen was Charlene Powers, who now resides in Lodi, Calif., and is known as Charlene Lange. Charlene attended Michigan State University and finished with a degree in agricultural communications. She spent some time in Greece as an exchange student, and now farms 1,000 acres of vineyards with her husband Randall, a boy she first met in the sixth grade when her family lived in California for a year. She also serves as liaison for the City of Lodi. She has three children.

Roxanne Shears was the 1966 fair queen. Roxanne married Kenny Blaess and now lives in Saline. She operates a day nursery, and has two children.

In 1967 Diane Stoffer was crowned queen. She now lives outside Jackson, and works at Jacobson's.

Sarah Lindauer, the 1968 queen, attended Michigan State University and now lives in Ann Arbor. She works with animals.

The 1969 queen was Jane Mann. Jane attended Texas Women's University and earned a degree in physical therapy. She is now a clinical specialist in orthopedics at the University of Michigan Hospital.

Fun Run Back Preventive Health For This Care Offered Year's Fair At Ladies Day

Back by popular demand after a year's hiatus will be the Fun Run, Saturday, Aug. 31, at 9 a.m.

Two years ago, the Fun Run drew 125 runners but was discontinued last year due to organization problems. However, due to the persistence of area runners, and the organizational work of many people including Peggy Campbell and Jackie Schiller, the event has been rescheduled for this year's fair.

The run is being sponsored by the Family Practice Center and the Chelsea Recreation Council.

The Fun Run will actually be three different runs of varying lengths for runners of different stripes. The first will be a one-mile run, the second a three-mile run, and the third a five-mile run. They all begin at the same time at the hospital, and they all end at the fairgrounds. The courses will wind through the village streets.

There will be no awards for winners, as such, although all participants will receive t-shirts with the inscription, "Fun Run to Meet You at the Fair." There will also be drawings for prizes when the races are completed.

The entry fee is $6 until Friday, Aug. 16. After that date, the late registration fee is $8. Runners may register the day of the event.

Registration forms will be available at the Family Practice Center and at various businesses around town.

RODEO ON WHEELS!

CRASHES-LAUGHS-THRILLS!

Feel like busting up some Detroit pig iron? Get a jalopy and join the action at the Chelsea Community Fair. All you need is a valid driver's license and, if under 21, parental consent.

The whole idea, of course, is to drive onto the track arena, with a number of other contestants, and proceed to wreck as many other cars as possible, while keeping your own car running. No holds barred, except deliberate head-on collisions and driver's door crashes are prohibited. The survivors will share in cash prizes and trophies. There will be heats at each Derby scheduled plus a feature event for the finalists.

Drivers interested in competing should contact the Fair Secretary at 475-1270.
