Fair Continues Through Saturday

INJURIES MINOR: Because they were wearing harness restraints, the occupants of what was a 1985 Chevrolet Corvette (foreground) escaped with minor injuries in a collision with a large motor home at the intersection of Stofer Rd. and Island Lake Rd. last Friday evening. A passenger in the motor home was also slightly hurt. In the road are (left) sheriff's deputy Joe Yekulis and Chelsea fireman Dan Ellenwood.

Demo Derby, Rodeo, Stock Sale, Ladies Day, Queen Contest Coming

Chelsea's 1985 Community Fair got off to its usual amusing good start with yesterday's successful Children's Day Parade. As of Monday afternoon it was uncertain whether the kids would be better off having a raft race instead. Rain most of the week-end, and well into Monday, made the fairgrounds somewhat swampy. There was standing water all over town.

The first round of the Cavalcade of Thrills Demolition Derby also got off to a slightly mucky start, both for the regular event and the special Powder Puff heat.

Tonight's demolition derby will feature the first ever pickup truck event. Enough trucks were entered in the last week for the event to go on.

The event will feature half-ton, two-wheel drive pickup trucks, the basic standard pickup and will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Tonight's derby action will also have the crowd-pleasing farm combine heat.

Tomorrow's fair activities include the Livestock Auction at 7 p.m. and the B bar J Rodeo at 8 p.m.

The auction will be conducted by Price Brothers and the Chelsea State Bank will handle all financial transactions. Fat lambs, hogs and steers will be auctioned off to the highest bidder.

The B bar J Rodeo will include the usual events, such as bronc riding, steer wrestling and calf roping and a professional rodeo clown, Warren Follins of Wapakoneta, O.

The first of the tractor pulls, the antique tractor pull, takes place at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

Friday features two major fair attractions, Ladies Day, with registration beginning at 8 a.m., and the Fair Queen Pageant beginning at 7 p.m.

Ladies Day speakers include Miss Michigan of 1984, Barbara Crandall, who is a talented ventriloquist; Chelsea physician Steven Yarows, who will speak on staying healthy; and Phyllis Brokaw, a freelance home economist, who will speak about cooking beef in a microwave oven. The Homemaker of the Year winner will also be announced.

Ladies Day participants will also be eligible to win any of 150 door prizes donated by local merchants, but women have to be present to win.

Nine local girls will compete for the right to call herself the 1985 Chelsea Fair Queen. They are Shanda Friday, Julie Stacey, Judy Boreis, Heidi Hosner, Angie Welch, Tana Herrinillo, Rose Grifka, Susan Oyerdorf and Vanessa May.

Rita Wilson-Howard will again serve as the mistress of ceremonies for the pageant.

Out-of-town judges have also been named. They are Pat Carlson of Coldwater, Charles Bliss of Saline, and Patricia Yohey of Ann Arbor.

Howard, director of the Chelsea Charms, is a veteran of the beauty-talent pageant business. She has been a winner in 89 such contests. Some of her titles include: Miss Teen, 1961; Miss Dixie, 1962; runner-up to Miss USA for Miss World, 1962; Runner-up to Miss Majorette of America, 1959; and National Strutting Champion, 1959. She was also Tennessee state Twirling and Strutting Champion for seven years.

Howard graduated from high school cum laude and went on to attend the University of Mississippi and Northwestern University, where she graduated cum laude with a degree in dramatic arts. She later earned a master's degree in dramatic arts and speech from UCLA.

Professionally, Howard has been a school teacher, and an actress in television and film. As a singer and dancer she has performed both on stage and in night clubs.

Fat Carlson has been associated with the Branch county Junior Miss program for eight years, including serving as its

Three Only Slightly Injured In Spectacular Crash Friday

Two persons in a Chevrolet Corvette that was shattered in a collision with a large motor home last Friday evening on the curve at Stofer and Island Lake Rds. came out of it with minor injuries.

The 1985 Corvette (see photo) was reduced to something that looked like a go-cart. Hood and top were torn off by the impact.

Both the driver and the passenger were wearing shoulder harnesses, sheriff's deputy Joe Yekulis said. They were restrained in the car and escaped with cuts and bruises.

"There is no doubt in my mind that wearing restraints saved their lives," Yekulis said. "Otherwise, we would have had two more traffic fatalities to record."

Yekulis said the Corvette, driven by Michael J. Ulberg, 21, of Ann Arbor, was southbound on Stofer about 6:50 p.m. and came into the curve at Island Lake Rd. too fast. The road bends there at a near 90-degree angle, a nasty hazard even for drivers who are familiar with it. The curve is posted for 25 miles per hour, and the safe speed is slower than that.

Ulberg lost control of the car, Yekulis said, and veered into the left lane, hitting an oncoming motor home driven by Robert D.

Both vehicles came to a stop without overturning.

"The car went underneath the motor home," Yekulis said, "and then came back out with its top and hood demolished."

Ulberg and his passenger, Frank D. Tennent, 59, of Ann Arbor, were taken to Chelsea Community Hospital by Huron Valley Ambulance, where they were treated and released.

Stackpole was unhurt. His wife, Brenda, was treated at Chelsea Community Hospital for minor head injuries and released.

Ulberg was charged with reckless driving for rounding the curve too fast.

The Chelsea fire department was called to the scene to wash away a small gasoline spill.

Fund Started To Help Fire Survivors

Chelsea VFW Post and Auxiliary is collecting money for the 19 survivors of the Sylvan Hotel fire.

Canisters have been placed at local area businesses and will remain there for two weeks.

Donations may also be mailed to the VFW Post 4076, 105 N. Main St., or dropped off at the hall. All donations should be marked, "fire victims." The VFW promises that all money will be accounted for.

"Put yourselves in their burned shoes," says the VFW. "Their many personal and cherished possessions were lost by fire, smoke and water. Some can never be replaced. Being homeless at the present, their personal needs are many and we must help. All community organizations and individuals are urged to do their best."

For further information call 475-7015. The chairman of the project is Gary Erskine.

School Lunch Prices Increased

School lunch prices in Chelsea have been raised by 15 cents across the board for the 1985-86 school year.

The new prices will be $1.25 for students and $1.80 for adults. The price for extra milk has been raised by five cents to 20 cents.

The reduced-price lunch is 40 cents.

BARNEY BEYER was a resident of the Sylvan Hotel for 17 years and served as its manager for 13 of those years. Beyer, like many of the hotel's 21 residents, saw his home, and many memories along with it, destroyed in last week's tragic fire. His life will never be quite the same.

Sylvan Hotel Was Home for Many Residents Over Years

The Sylvan Hotel may not have had the most elegant of reputations before it was gutted by fire last week. Drunks and transients were said to have made up many of the clientele. It wasn't unheard of for troubled young men, who didn't even live there, to sit in the lobby and nurse a bottle of booze. Police answered many calls for help when liquor would best a man's better judgment in the Sylvan.

But the Sylvan Hotel was home, a permanent home, for many of its tenants until last week's tragic fire in which Shirley Campbell, 52, and Morris Flint, 55, lost their lives and many others lost everything they owned but their lives.

Campbell and Flint had lived there nearly eight years. Jim Kosinski, a 10-year resident, lost an impressive rifle collection.

Harry Butterfield, who recently retired and had just received his first social security check, figured "he had it made," according to Barney Beyer, who managed the Sylvan for 13 years and lived there for 17. The rent, about $50 a week, was just right. Now Harry is living at the Rose Arbor motel on Jackson Rd. wondering what's next.

Beyer says only one tenant in the entire hotel had renter's insurance.

Most of the other tenants have found at least temporary housing, some due to the work of the Red Cross and Chelsea's Faith in Action group.

Barney Beyer is another story altogether. Not only is he trying to help the former tenants piece their lives together, but he has his own to worry about, too.

He's temporarily living in a trailer, owned by Sylvan owner George Merkel, in the back of the hotel. He's spent his recent days trying to inventory what's left of the place, along with helping

Kozminskis Will Appeal To Supreme Court In Slavery Convictions

Ike Kozminski said Monday that he intends to carry his case to the U. S. Supreme Court in an effort to overturn conviction on charges of holding two farm laborers in involuntary servitude (slavery).

Kozminski, his wife Margrethe, and their son, John, were declared guilty in February, 1984, following a two-week jury trial conducted by Judge Charles W. Joiner in Ann Arbor's U. S. District courtroom.

The Kozminskis appealed the verdict on grounds that it was based on insufficient evidence and that Judge Joiner erred in his charge to the jury and in admitting hearsay testimony into the trial.

By a 2-1 vote, the three-judge Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati upheld the convictions, declaring that the evidence introduced at the trial was sufficient to support the jury's verdict.

"We will appeal further because we believe in the United States system of justice," said Ike Kozminski, a Polish Jew who barely escaped death during the holocaust that claimed the lives of millions of European Jews during the reign of terror under dictator Adolph Hitler in Nazi Germany.

"I believe that justice will eventually prevail," Kozminski said. "We did nothing wrong. The evidence presented in court was almost all from persons who came onto our property without permission and without warrants, including police officers."

"We have been persecuted in

State Having Growing Role In Foreign Trade
Nearly all states are now involved in programs of some kind to promote exports, with 30 having established overseas representation, according to a report presented at a recent meeting of the National Governors' Association.

The survey by the group's Committee on International Trade and Foreign Relations showed 49 states holding export seminars, 45 states using computers to match exporters with trade prospects and 10 states (including Michigan) are operating export finance programs to help companies with overseas sales.
Noting the record $123.3 billion U. S. trade deficit in 1984, the report said "a growing export sector is essential to the long-term health of the U. S. economy."
The report said overseas visits by governors leading trade delegations are highly successful in fostering close economic relationships.
Trade shows and regional export ventures, such as the Great Lakes Commission, are also helpful, the report said.
The report added the auto industry is the third largest source of the trade deficit (after consumer goods and petroleum products) and is rapidly getting worse, more than doubling to a deficit of $35.9 billion in 1984 compared to 1982.
That has contributed to a slower growth in exports of Michigan manufactured goods.
The state ranked fifth in such exports in 1981, but had grown at about half the rate of the nation as a whole from four years earlier.
The report said an important source of trade revenue is tourism, which was the largest export service industry, contributing $14 billion to the national economy in 1984, and states can take a greater role in promoting that activity.
It further noted 43 states have travel development offices as part of agencies responsible for commerce and economic development.

Legislation to Provide Great Lakes Protections
Gov. James Blanchard has signed into law legislation designed to protect the Great Lakes from diversion plans and to guard their water quality.
The signing of the bills represents Michigan's first action toward fulfilling goals outlined in the Great Lakes Charter signed in February by the Governor and

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:
Right now, Ed said, at least 50 of the country's military bases ought to be shut down. But none of the lawmakers is about to take the first step toward saving hundreds of millions of dollars. That's because ever one of them installations is in somebody's district, and ever one of them districts has voters. So ever member of Congress will go back to talking deficit spending. If they can't buy enough perfection for all "local economies" in this country, Ed had saw a plan is afoot for the Army to take out a $400 million mortgage to build a base in New York, just like a taxpayer would take out a loan to build a house. It ain't enough to run up the defense budget on money borrowed from our grandchildren, Ed said, now we're borrowing money to build Army bases so we can spend more borrowed money.
If that pig won't sing, Ed went on, we can allus work new strategy in the war on poverty. We spent billions 20 year ago to set up all the battle stations, and two year ago Governments at all levels spent $107 billion operating em. Now we see the more programs we run the more pore we got, and we're stuck with more annoyed pigs.
Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

Gilberts' Dahlias Are Highlight of Southfield Show
Robert and Margaret Gilbert's dahlias were once again a highlight of a flower show put on by the Tri Town Garden Club at Southland Mall in Detroit.
In addition to placing two flowers on the honor table, the highest honor, the Gilberts garnered 22 first places, 20 seconds and eight special awards. They showed a total of 75 flowers.
On the honor table were S.R. Lee, a "big red one," and Magic Moment, a white flower.
The Gilberts have a spectacular garden at 8155 Marshall Rd. in Dexter, and Robert says anyone is welcome to come by and tour it.
The next competition for the Gilberts is this Saturday and Sunday at Westland Mall.

Established in 1849, the Michigan State Fair is the oldest state fair in the country. The fair runs from Aug. 23 through Sept. 2 (Labor Day) at the fairgrounds in Detroit.

Washtenaw Historical Society Will Tour State Headquarters

Washtenaw County Historical Society will tour the headquarters of the Historical Society of Michigan in Ann Arbor's historic Tuomy house, 2117 Washtenaw, at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 8.

Thomas L. Jones, HSM executive director, will talk about the history of the house and the state society outdoors before the tour. It is open to the public free of charge. Refreshments will be served. Tip: Those wishing to be seated during the talk should bring a lawn chair.

The Tuomys built the large Italianate house in the 1880's incorporating a smaller 1850 Greek Revival house.

Although the house is used for offices and is not a museum, many of the Tuomy's antique furnishings remain.

RSVP Schedules Seniors Training To Help Children

The Retired Senior Volunteer Program has scheduled a training session for seniors who are interested in becoming presenters of BABES (Beginning Alcohol and Addictions Basic Education Prevention) program for children.

The program, consisting of a series of six puppet presentations, provides an opportunity for senior volunteers to assist children in the development of a positive self image and a better understanding of how to protect themselves from alcohol and chemical dependency situations among their peers and within the family structure.

Any senior, who is interested in working with and helping children, is encouraged to contact Sharie Reznich at the RSVP office, 996-4777 for more information about the September BABES training.

Red Cross Seeks Volunteers To Man First Aid Vehicles

Washtenaw County Chapter of the American Red Cross has for several years fulfilled a community service to the area by providing first aid stations at many of the community events. You may have seen the Red Cross vehicles at the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, 4-H Horse and Livestock Shows or the 4th of July Fireworks and Air Show, for example.

The people who work at these stations are volunteers that have been trained in standard or advanced first aid by the American Red Cross.

Each year the Red Cross receives more requests for these first aid stations and additional trained volunteers are needed to help out.

If you hold a current American Red Cross certificate in either standard or advanced first aid, and would like to put your training to practical use, contact the Red Cross office at 971-5300.

Volunteers are needed daytime, evening and week-end hours.

ALLEN ANDERSON and his wife, Carrie, plan to open the Half-Pints Acre day care center at the Florence Howlett Memorial School on Dexter-Chelsea Rd. The center can accommodate 20 youngsters. The Ypsilanti couple plans a Sept. 3 opening.

New Child Care Center Opening

A new day care center, Half-Pints Acre, is moving into the site of the former Chelseas Co-op Nursery on Dexter-Chelsea Rd.

A Montessori school had planned to open in the building this fall after the co-op nursery decided it couldn't afford to stay in business. However, the Montessori school ran into financial problems this summer in the beginning planning stages. For a while it looked as though the building, known as the Florence Howlett Memorial School, would simply sit vacant.

Then came Allen and Carrie Anderson, owners of the Half-Pints Acre in Whitmore Lake. They were contacted by the Department of Social Services about the availability of the building and decided to take advantage of it. The new business will also be called Half-Pints Acre.

The Andersons became owners of the Whitmore Lake school in March.

"A day care center is what we've always wanted," says Allen. "We'd been looking around for a couple of years. Now all of a sudden there are two places."

Allen will handle the maintenance and the accounting parts of the business. He was most recently in computer repair.

Carrie, a certified teacher for students in kindergarten through eighth grade, will work with the instructors. She has worked in various day care facilities in the Ypsilanti area, where the Andersons live now. She has most recently been a private tutor, teaching English to Pakistani children.

For the Dexter-Chelsea facility, the Andersons plan to hire a director and one or two care givers. The business will be licensed for 20 children.

The Andersons want the center to be for children of all ages. He and Carrie want parents of children of different ages to be able to leave them there together.

Half-Pints Acre is scheduled to open Tuesday, Sept. 3 if all goes well. Allen concedes that there is a lot of work to be done to the inside of the building in terms of cleaning or organizational work. He says the Chelsea Co-op Nursery, still the owners of the building, are going to install a new roof.

In addition to the usual games and toys, the nursery will have at least one computer on hand, along with a few programs Allen has written for it.

For children under two and one-half years, the cost will be $75 per week. For older children the fee is $55.

"Right now we're putting everything we have into getting the business going," Allen says. The Andersons have two children, Dustin, 5, and Nicholas, 1.

Pursell Demands Action on Sale Of Chelsea Depot

Congressman Carl D. Pursell has taken a fresh initiative in getting Amtrak to fulfill its promise to sell the Chelsea rail station to the Chelsea Depot Association.

After months of effort in dealing with administrative officials of the rail passenger system, he has written directly to W. Graham Clayton, Jr., president of Amtrak.

In his letter, Rep. Pursell writes:

"It is with this letter that I am hoping that the sale of the Amtrak Depot in Chelsea, Mich., can be completed without further delay.

"As I understand it, a sales agreement is in process, but this process has taken an unusually long and drawn-out course. Mr. Fred Weiderhold, the director of government communications has been most helpful in facilitating our inquiries and concerns, but it appears that an additional effort must be given to completing what seems to be a very straightforward matter.

"Your attention to this problem would be greatly appreciated. If there is any information that I could further provide to you, please do not hesitate to contact me."

Copies of the letter were also sent to Will Connelly of the Chelsea Depot Association and to Fred Weiderhold of Amtrak, one of the rail officials involved in the foot-dragging.

Clayton is a lawyer and an honors graduate of Harvard Law School. He has decades of experience as a legal advisor and director of large railroad systems and as a director of the Association of American Railroads.

Fire.
The word recalls a lot of memories from my 40-year career as a newsman. Not one of them is good.
I'm glad I was driving home from a family reunion in Indiana when the Sylvan Hotel burned a week ago Sunday night, and so did not have to cover the story, which fellow reporter Brian Hamilton did very well indeed. I have had my fill of fire stories and would just as soon never have to write another one, especially when deaths occur.

There are many ways to die, and we all will succumb to one of them eventually, but I can't think of anything worse than burning or asphyxiation. Either has to be a very bad way to go, slow and agonizing. Fire victims typically can't get out of the places where they are, and so have to wait while death overtakes them. That is a bothersome thought which I won't dwell on.

For a news reporter there is nothing more frustrating to cover, write and photograph than the story of a major fire. The scene of a big fire is organized mass confusion. Nobody knows anything for sure, and nobody has time to tell you whatever little piece of the story he may know. You stand around, watch and wait until it's all over, meanwhile trying to take pictures through clouds of smoke which you know darned well won't show anything except smoke. Flame doesn't register on film if there is smoke in front of it.

If you are lucky and know somebody, you may be allowed onto the burned-out scene after the fire is out. The smell is just plain awful, especially when it includes the odor of charred human flesh. I have smelled it many times but will never get so I can take it in stride as part of the day's work, any more than I can look at the body of a traffic accident victim without getting sick. I would not have made a satisfactory ambulance attendant.

After a big fire is finally declared extinguished, which usually takes a long time, a reporter begins tracking back, trying to find out what happened. He assembles the story in little bits from many sources. With some luck, he may have most of it together 24 hours later, but there will be fragments missing. No one person ever knows all there is to know about a fire, at least not until days or weeks afterward.

Murphy's Law operates in fires. They almost never occur during the hours that a news reporter normally works and, if they do, the reporter is occupied with something else at the time and is unavailable. That holds even more true for firemen, who sleep with one eye open for good reason.

The most-damaging fire I ever covered occurred back during the 1950's when old Haven Hall on the University of Michigan campus burned down. It was a $4 million loss, and that was a lot of money in those days. The blaze broke out late in the afternoon, which would have been all right except that it happened on a Thursday when the whole staff of the Ann Arbor News was let out of work an hour early to play in an employer-sponsored golf league, a fringe benefit.

I was on the seventh tee, as far from the clubhouse and the parking lot as you could get and still be on the course, when the sirens sounded and the clouds of smoke arose. We could hear and see that something big was burning, but were a long way from whatever it was.

I may have set a record that day for the 700-yard dash carrying a bag of golf clubs. As chief editor, it was my job to organize the flock of reporters and photographers who had run with me, gotten into cars and driven madly to the scene. We worked the rest of the day, all night and well into the next morning before we put the coverage together. It was one of a few jobs of which I am particularly proud. I can't honestly remember writing the lead story—I was numb from lack of sleep when I did it—but it must have been all right because it won a prize in state competition for stories written under deadline pressure.

Firemen back then had a superstition that major fires occurred in threes, and newsmen tended to share it. Ben Zahn, who had been chief of the Ann Arbor Fire Department for about 30 years, assured me there would be two more big ones within the next several days after Haven Hall burned.

Sure enough, about two weeks later a big department-store warehouse erupted into flames one night.
That was the only time I ever got hurt in line of duty. The top floor of the four-story building was filled with gallon cans of oil-base paint which exploded into flames and flew like skyrocket. One would have hit me on the head if I hadn't dodged, and it burned me slightly on one arm. That was the last time I ever ventured inside a fire line without asking somebody and getting an escort.

There was another major fire in Ann Arbor a few days after that. It turned out that a young man had touched off all three in order to impress his girl friend. He spent several years in prison after being convicted of arson, perhaps pondering if there might be a better way to pursue the course of true love.

I certainly hope the "rule of three" will not work here following the Sylvan Hotel tragedy. That kind of news we don't need and don't want. If there is never another major fire hereabouts, it will be just fine with me and my bosses.

Still, it must be admitted that the potential exists. There are many old buildings, in and around Chelsea—buildings constructed long before there were fire safety codes. Many of them, I suspect, have old, frayed electrical wiring and other fire hazards. There is always the possibility of human frailty, such as smoking in bed or doing something else foolish. That, apparently, was the cause of the hotel fire.

In any case, I hope I never see another fire, but am uncomfortably sure that I will.

Meeting called to order at 8 p.m. by President Schumann.

Board approved the minutes of the Aug. 5 meeting.

Superintendent Van Meer indicated that he had received notice of review of apportionment for the Palmer-Baldwin drain. The hearing will be held on Aug. 29 in the Drain Commissioner's office. The school district does not have an assessment.

Assistant superintendent Mills reviewed the operating and maintenance millage expirations as follows: the 20.50 operating mills voted June 14, 1982, must be renewed in June, 1987; the 2.90 operating mills voted June 13, 1983, must be renewed in June, 1986; the 0.50 maintenance mills voted June 14, 1982, must be renewed in June, 1988; and the 0.50 maintenance mills voted June 13, 1983, must be renewed in June, 1988.

Principal John Williams shared with the board his experience at the five-day Dick Manatt teacher evaluation workshop. Manatt is a professor of education at Iowa State University. The workshop dealt with identifying the characteristics of good teaching and eliciting group effort, multiple administrators/teachers in the evaluation process to strengthen performance.

Assistant superintendent Mills reviewed the energy cost avoidance for 1984-85. Mills indicated that since the 1982-83 school year, we have a cost avoidance of approximately $176,000 due to the energy management computer system. Mills complimented the staff at each building for the excellent results.

Dr. Henry DeYoung reviewed with the board the survey results to date. He indicated that the sample has been verified and is statistically reliable. He compared the Chelsea response to Michigan and national responses as follows: Chelsea's 77% "A" or "B" rating of our schools compared to 50% reported by the State of Michigan's 1984-85 survey; in the Gallup Poll of nation-wide attitudes toward public schools, 42% gave the schools an "A" or "B" rating. DeYoung indicated that the comments to open-end questions are being compiled, and that the administration and board should be reviewing any specific data they may wish to have.

Board approved the following lunch prices for 1985-86: $1.25, students; $1.80, adults; $1.15, milk; $1.40, reduced-price lunch.

Board authorized the following tax levy for 1985:

Board approved the parking lot paving bid of $19,247 from Klink Excavating.

Board accepted, with regret, the resignation of Betty Cox, who will be moving to North Carolina. Betty taught mathematics and was Academic Games advisor at Beach school.

Board approved an additional board policy: AA—Non-Discriminatory Policy—The Chelsea School District is an equal opportunity employer and will not discriminate on the basis of race, color, sex, religion, or national origin in employment or

Living With Your Loss

Over the years, much has been written about what people experience when someone they love dies. However, one thing we've learned is that grief is a very individual process a person goes through.

There are no rules to go by, but there are some helpful guidelines. Many of these are discussed in our unique brochure entitled, "Living With Your Loss" written by noted bereavement expert and author, Dr. Earl A. Grollman.

Village To Build Sidewalk on Lot On W. Middle St.

The village will construct 84 feet of sidewalk on the property at 520 W. Middle St., site of a house recently moved from the 100 block of the same street. The village owns the property and will offer it for sale at public auction on Sept. 27. Minimum bid is $30,000. "I think the property will be more attractive to prospective buyers if the sidewalk is in," administrator Frederick Weber said in recommending that the job be done. "Besides, it will help to establish grade levels on that lot and one next to it that we also own. Council agreed, and the walk will be part of a contract for village sidewalk construction to be awarded after bids are opened on Friday, Aug. 30.

One of the world's most nutritious root crops is perhaps this country's best kept secret. National Wildlife magazine says groundnuts, about the size of golf balls, are as tasty as potatoes and have four times the protein. They were not always unwanted and forgotten, however. The Pilgrims may not have survived their first winter without these nutritious nuts. And now, after some 300 years, scientists are trying to make this wild vine vegetable a household word, that may one day compete with potatoes.

Kozminskis Appealing

the press, particularly by the Ann Arbor News and the Detroit Free Press. Because of that publicity, we could not get a fair trial before an impartial jury."

Kozminski said he could have saved money by paying the imposed fines. He was ordered to pay a $20,000 fine and serve two years on probation. John Kozminski was fined $10,000 and put on probation for two years. Margrethe Kozminski was given a two-year probationary term without a fine.

"We could have paid the fines and spent far less than the appeals are costing," Ike Kozminski said. "There is a principle involved. We are not guilty and will use everything we have to try to prove it."

The next step in the appeal process is a formal petition to the U. S. Supreme Court, requesting a hearing on the appellate court's ruling.

The Kozminskis live at 4678 Peckins Rd. in southwest Lima township. They formerly operated a dairy farm there and for nine years employed Robert Fulmer and Louis Molitoris as herdsmen.

They were accused of holding the two mentally retarded men on the farm against their will as "psychological hostages," forcing them to live in an old trailer with inadequate plumbing, heat and food.

The Kozminskis denied the charges, saying the two men chose to live by themselves in the trailer rather than in a bunkhouse provided for employees on the farm, and could have left at any time they became dissatisfied with their working and living conditions.

Fulmer and Molitoris have since been placed under the custodial care of the Michigan Department of Social Services and are in foster homes. The Kozminskis are under court order to pay them about $6,000 each in back wages. The original claim was for more than $100,000 apiece.

The Kozminski family has gone out of the dairying business and has converted the Peckins Rd. farm to raising grain, principally corn.

"I have some other possible business possibilities in mind," Ike Kozminski said, "but I want to get this (the involuntary servitude case) cleared up first. After that, we would like to live like other people and keep our personal affairs private."

"We don't want any more publicity. I wish you didn't think you have to put a story about us in the paper. We have suffered enough. I still have faith in the U. S. system of justice and that is why we will appeal to the Supreme Court."

Minnesota has been cleaning up toxic dump sites four times faster than the Environmental Protection Agency, reports National Wildlife magazine. The reason: a state law passed by Minnesota that allows private companies to be held liable for personal injuries caused by exposure to leaking toxic chemicals. The law, passed in 1983, was the first of its kind in the United States, and may be the model for tougher federal Superfund legislation.

Grazing Day Set Sept. 14 at Chatham

Are you feeling a squeeze on your farm's profitability? Attend the Grazing Day on Sept. 14, at 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Chatham, Mich., to learn how controlled grazing can lower cost and/or increase production.

Walker Riley, with eight years experience and 20-plus pasture projects, will discuss "Indicators for Controlled Grazing." Arthur Snell, president of Snell Fencing Systems, San Antonio, Tex., will talk on "Fencing and Controlled Grazing."

Tours of controlled grazing include stops at a lactating dairy herd, growing young stock, and a sheep flock.

Prizes are available for those who can best estimate pasture quantity and quality. Other stops include a snow seeding on forest land that was clear cut in August 1984.

Gary Wright, from The Granary, Jonesville, will discuss and demonstrate fence design and construction.

Drs. Steve Rust and Margaret Benson from Michigan State University, Animal Science Department, will respectively discuss the pasture trial at the U.P. Experiment Station and head a tour of a sheep flock maximizing pasture to produce lambs.

Come to the Grazing Day and learn how controlled grazing can squeeze more profit from your farming operation.

Domino's Pizza Said Interested In Property Here

Domino's Pizza has expressed an interest in buying the property at 520 S. Main St. now occupied by a gas station in front and a house behind it, as a site for a sales outlet.

The matter came before the village council last week as the result of an informal inquiry into zoning considerations.

The gas station, Fletcher's Friendly Service, is a non-conforming use in a residential area, and zoning would automatically revert to residential if the property were sold. The occupants of the house have a legal life-interest in it as a dwelling.

Rezoning would be necessary for Domino's or any other commercial firm to use the property as a place of business.

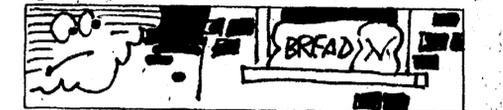

"I understand that Ralph Fletcher wants to quit operating the gas station and sell the property," trustee Herman Radloff commented. "The house could not be taken down or moved unless some agreement was reached with the people who live in it."

"From what I understand, most of Domino's business is done by delivery. Only about 10 percent of their customers are drive-ins. They wouldn't need a lot of parking area, and the gas station site might be enough for them."

"Domino's is an exceptionally successful business. They know what they are doing. They wouldn't be interested if they didn't see a potential here."

RECEIVES SCHOLARSHIP: Mary Ann Richardson, left, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Richardson of Chelsea, has received a $500 Royal Neighbors of America scholarship. She will attend Michigan Technological University, studying engineering. Mary Ann was vice-president of the National Honor Society at Chelsea High school, and participated in cross country, track and band. Presenting the plaque emblematic of the scholarship is Vera M. "This association has given me the opportunity to participate in most of the great musical comedies of our day," Charles says. "The most recent was a March production of 'Fiddler on the Roof.' My own favorite roles have been as Captain Brackett in 'South Pacific' and singing the barber-shop version of Lida Rose in 'Music Man'."

Charles is beginning his third year in the Ann Arbor Civic Chorus.

Patricia Yohey is the program director for the Dairy Council of Michigan. In this work she conducts nutrition education workshops for educators, school food service personnel and consumer groups. She also provides nutrition information for radio and television.

A graduate of Wayne State University, Yohey has a bachelor's degree in home economics with minors in science and business. Her professional background includes working as a senior home service advisor for eight years with Consumers Power Co. Before joining the dairy council she was with Sharp Electronics.

Yohey is a member of various civic and professional organizations as well as church and community groups.

The Chelsea Fair Parade will begin at 1 p.m. sharp on Saturday.

All participants are to be lined up by noon. Floats to be judged should be lined up by 11 a.m. for judging. Those arriving after noon will not be judged.

Floats should line up on the north side of Park St., beginning at East St.

Bands and marching units should line up on East St. between Middle and Harrison Sts.

Antique cars are to line up on the south side of Park St. starting at East St.

Fire equipment will line up on the west side of East St., beginning at Park St.

Horses and horse-drawn wagons should line up on the south side of Park St. beginning at East St.

The Chelsea Firemen's Association asks that all members of a group should try to arrive at the same time, and that cars dropping people off for the parade not stay in the area for long.

Saturday has a full slate of events, beginning with the Fun Run at 9 a.m. Anyone who decides to run one of the three events, 1, 3 or 5 miles, at the last minute can register that morning at the Chelsea Community Hospital, where the runs begin.

After the fair parade there will be a compact tractor pull, a horseshoe pitching contest, a 4-wheel drive speed pulling contest, a livestock sweepstakes show and a livestock raffle.

Even if you missed yesterday's events and most of today's, there is still plenty for everyone to do at the fair the rest of the week.

Warrants Sought in Vandalism Incidents

Warrants are being sought for two 17-year-old Chelsea boys in connection with two separate incidents in which windows were broken at both Beach Middle school and North Elementary school and toilet facilities were destroyed at Vets Park.

In addition, two 15-year-old boys will be petitioned to juvenile court in connection with the incident.

Another juvenile boy who was present when the damage took place but did not participate in it, will not be petitioned, according to Chelsea Police Chief Lenard McDougall.

All five boys are Chelsea residents.

McDougall said that in both cases the boys had been drinking alcohol, which was furnished by one of the older boys. McDougall said he apparently obtained the alcohol in Ann Arbor.

The damage to the windows on both occasions was caused by beer bottles being thrown through them.

McDougall said the toilet, sink and water fountain at Vets Park were all vandalized, the sink being ripped off the wall.

As of press time, the total extent of the damage had not been determined. Damage to the windows at both schools totaled $462. McDougall said the damage to Vets Park facilities was probably at least that great.

Both older boys are technically adults under the law. One of them will be charged with damage to property at both Beach and North schools, damage to facilities at Vets Park, and serving alcohol to minors. The other adult will be charged with damage to property at both Beach and North school. All are misdemeanor charges, according to McDougall, and carry a maximum sentence of 90 days in jail, and/or a $100 fine.

The first incident occurred on the night of Aug. 17 and the second one late Aug. 21, overlapping to Aug. 22. Police caught the boys on a stake-out at Vets Park.

TV Film Being Made at Chelsea Methodist Home

A medical adventure of world significance is taking place in Chelsea and will soon be seen on National Public Television (PBS). The presentation will show how Wesley Hall in the Chelsea United Methodist Retirement Home has been structured and staffed to enrich the lives of seniors who are victims of Alzheimer's disease.

The Civic Foundation of Chelsea is sharing in the funding of this television/motion picture production with a grant of $5,000. This sum is 10 percent of the total cost of making and distributing the informational film. Participation by the Civic Foundation resulted from hearings by the CFC distribution committee under the chairmanship of Bill Nuffer. The grant was made to the Institute of Gerontology of the University of Michigan.

Wesley Hall an experimental project for the treatment of persons with Alzheimer's disease. It is based on the belief that in a small, structured environment people with serious memory and orientation problems can still perform many tasks for themselves and lead more satisfying lives.

The videotape will be entitled, "Wesley Hall: A Special Life," and will be produced under the direction of Prof. Dorothy H. Coons, an audio-visual specialist.

A previous grant of $4,949 was made to the university and Wesley Hall by the Civic Foundation of Chelsea for a sound slide film on the Alzheimer's project, "Self Care With the Mentally Impaired Elderly." This film will be a feature of the CFC 1985 annual meeting scheduled for Oct. 24 at the Chelsea Community Hospital.

Council Considers Joining Public Power Cost Study

Chelsea may officially become a partner in an electrical power needs study being conducted by the Michigan Public Power Authority (MPPA) of which it is one of 14 members.

The village municipal utility presently buys electricity from Consumers Power Co. but has interests in two plants—Campbell No. 3 and Belle River—which are scheduled to come on line in the future.

An MPPA study was begun late in 1984 to determine how the 14 member utilities could meet their electricity needs during the years through 2003.

Chelsea officials at the time decided not to participate in the study, which would have then cost the village $12,000 as its share of a consulting engineering firm's fee.

Instead, the village opted to negotiate with Detroit Edison Co. to find out if Edison might sell electrical power cheaper than that now supplied by Consumers.

"We have met twice with Detroit Edison, and my impression is that they are not really interested in selling power to Chelsea," village administrator Frederick Weber said. "I think they (Edison) are being very careful not to take a customer away from Consumers, which is still in a precarious financial situation and could yet go into bankruptcy because of its losses on the Midland nuclear plant."

"In any case, it would cost the village at least $1,000,000 to hook into the Edison system if we were to reach an agreement with them."

Meanwhile, the MPPA study has shown that the members can meet their own power needs by entering into a "pooling" system, and save money in the process. Some of the members—Lansing, Holland, Grand Haven and Traverse City—generate electricity and have a surplus to sell to the other 10 members, including Chelsea which have no generating capacity.

The preliminary figures, subject to later change, show that Chelsea would save an average of 13.2 percent in wholesale power costs annually through 2003 by entering into such an agreement, based on prices that the village is presently paying to Consumers. Consumers is expected to ask for a large rate increase soon, on the order of 17-20 percent, in its continuing effort to stave off bankruptcy.

Chelsea cannot get the savings available by joining the MPPA power pool unless it agrees to pay its part of the study's costs, Weber said. "We're looking at more than $2.5 million in possible savings," he noted.

Weber estimated that the village would have to pay about $15,000 to pick up its back share plus current costs of the study, and added that a decision probably would have to be made within two months.

Council took no action, but trustee Mac Fulks commented, "I don't like the idea of having to negotiate with Consumers as our only possible source of electricity. They would have us by the throat. I think we should take a serious look at this MPPA option, now that we have found out Edison apparently isn't interested in selling to us."

The matter is expected to come up again at a near-future council meeting.

Sylvan Hotel Was Home for Many Residents Over Years

former tenants, and relatives of the dead and injured retrieve burnt and water damaged memories from the rubble.

For Barney, the reality of the whole ordeal hasn't really sunk in yet. Helping the others has helped relieve the pain, or helped him put it out of his mind. Barney is usually a wisecracker, which also helps him cope, but not so much today.

"No, I don't suppose it really has sunk in yet," Beyer says. "I guess that's part of the reason I haven't even really looked at my stuff yet."

Barney probably has more memories stuffed into the seams and cracks of the old hotel than anyone. He's an inveterate collector. He has more than 20 years worth of stuffed owls and hunting mementos, gun and knives, photographs, statues of all sizes, shapes and subjects, lamps, a bearskin rug, and an assortment of odds and ends too numerous to mention. At first glance his room looks like an elegant junk shop, or maybe a ramshackle pawn shop. It's hard to imagine anyone living in it, even in the best of times.

The entire ceiling of his room was papered with pages from the National Geographic. He even claims to have had some fairly valuable antiques that he has since moved. He shows photographs to prove it. However, there are so many one-of-a-kind items in his room that it's doubtful anyone but Barney could pick out the valuable ones, anyway.

Most of his collection was spared total destruction. There was some smoke damage, and some of the plastic items melted and warped, making them look "like valuable pieces of modern art," in his words. Some of the owls are featherless.

The memories, nothing, except perhaps old age, can take from him are the memories of all the tenants he has known in his 17 years at the Sylvan. He was like a bartender who listened to his patron, a lay psychiatrist.

"It's like Grampa Merkel used to say. 'When you run this place, you got to be a Pa to all of them,'" Barney says. "If you ain't in trouble, you're going to be living at home, not at some hotel. Almost all of them over the years had problems and it seemed like they'd all come in and tell me their troubles. Some of them wanted advice, some of them just wanted to talk. Someone gave me a doctor sign years ago, you know the kind with the snakes, and I put it on my door. It melted."

Barney spent the holidays with the tenants many times over the years. Shirley Campbell's family had Thanksgiving dinner in his room. Some of the items in Barney's room were Christmas gifts from tenants through the years.

"It wasn't anything to spend $25 on a present to add to his collection," says Mike Merkel, George's son, and one of Barney's best friends. "He was such a good friend to everyone. When I think of all the times I came over here to talk things over and ask advice . . . well this really hurts."

Barney hasn't figured out exactly what he's going to do next, except that he expects to be employed by George Merkel in some capacity. He's worked for George since he owned the Union Bar in Ann Arbor, what is now the Old Town. The only thing he's sure of is that he'll stay in the area. He has a daughter and other relatives nearby.

In the meantime, he'll keep busy cleaning up the mess.

Fun Run Set For Saturday Morning

A fun run beginning at the University of Michigan's Family Practice Center at Chelsea and ending at the Chelsea Fairgrounds will be held on Saturday, Aug. 31 at 9 a.m. The run is being sponsored to encourage people to participate in running as a healthy and fun activity. Runners will have a choice of entering a one-, three-, or five-mile course.

All finishers will receive a t-shirt and be eligible for drawings for prizes. Refreshments will be provided at the finish line. Participants should finish the race and festivities thereafter in plenty of time to enjoy the fair prior to the beginning of the parade.

Applications for the race may be obtained by calling the Department of Family Practice at 763-7120. The fee for entry is $8. Late registration will be taken the morning of the race from 7:30 to 8:30 a.m. The race is sponsored by the Chelsea Recreation Council and Family Practice Center.

For more information call Peggy Campbell at 763-7120.

Fire, Police Departments Commended

Village president Jerry Satterthwaite will send official letters of commendation to the Chelsea fire and police departments for their work on the Aug. 18 Sylvan Hotel blaze which claimed two lives and gutted the building.

The six members present (Stephanie Kanten was absent) at the Aug. 20 council meeting unanimously praised the effective efforts of the two departments in keeping the death and damage toll as low as it was.

"They did an outstanding job," Satterthwaite said. "The fire was bad enough, but it could have been a lot worse. That whole block could have been destroyed, and many more people killed. I'll be happy to write the letters."

Volunteers who assisted at the scene in various ways will also be commended.

THESE HANDSOME FOLKS will be models for a day as Dancer's department store hosts a fashion show this Friday during Ladies Day festivities at the Chelsea Fair. The theme of the show will be "Active Sportswear" and the models had an opportunity to try on some of the fashions last week after hours at the store. Above, on the bottom right, are Karmel Bycraft and her

Industrial Pre-Treatment Ordinance Approved By State

Chelsea's industrial pre-treatment waste disposal ordinance has been approved by the state and is in effect.

The village had no choice but to adopt the ordinance, which is mandated by state and federal laws.

Under the new measure, village officials are supposed to detect possible discharges of 13 toxic substances and keep them from getting into the wastewater treatment plant.

Of those, only one—chromium—is known to be used by any Chelsea industrial firm, and Longworth Plating Co. is already pre-treating it to render it harmless before discharge.

Fulks aired his worries during last week's council meeting. The matter came up in connection with a request from Roberts Paint & Body Shop, which is relocating in the industrial park from its present site on Old US-12.

The Roberts firm asked for an exception to the rule that all utility lines must be underground. Burying the electric wires that will serve the shop will cost an extra $5,000 or more, Fulks said.

"I just wonder if we aren't being too strict with this and some other requirements," Fulks said. "People haven't been breaking down our doors trying to locate in the industrial park, and maybe that's a reason. Things have been going pretty slowly out there."

"After all, this is an industrial park, not a residential subdivision or a beauty spot. I frankly can't see where overhead power lines would hurt anything, especially when they are so much cheaper to install."

"I'm not making any judgments at this point, just asking a question. I think it's something we need to look at."

Village administrator Frederick Weber said the requirements that utility lines be buried was made to keep the industrial park clean-looking and attractive, "a nice place to do business."

He suggested that the matter

The other 12 substances which the pre-treatment program is specifically supposed to monitor are zinc, copper, nickel, cyanide, lead, cadmium, mercury, arsenic, selenium, silver, phenolic compounds and polychlorinated bi-phenyls (PCB's).

"We were required to adopt the ordinance, and now we have to enforce it," village administrator Frederick Weber said. "It will take some time and cost some money. Essentially, we will be looking for things that we know don't exist in our waste treatment system, but that's what the law demands."

"If we hadn't adopted the pre-treatment ordinance, our permit to operate the sewage plant could have been revoked. We didn't have any choice but to go along with the state's requirements.

"We will test waste discharges for all 13 prohibited substances, even though we know 12 of them can't possibly be there and we believe the 13th is being successfully pre-treated."

The state's total list of prohibited pollutants includes 126 items altogether, ranging from asbestos at the top of the alphabetical order to vinyl chloride (a plastic) at the bottom. It includes such chemicals as dichlorodibromomethane, hexachlorocyclopentadiene and n-nitrosodimethylamine, to name just a few of the tongue-twisters. The village will have to be on the lookout for those, too, just in case they should sneak into town.

Industrial Park Restrictions Called Possibly Too Severe

Village trustee Mac Fulks is concerned that the ground rules for establishing a business in Chelsea's industrial park may be too strict and therefore scaring some potential clients off.

Fulks aired his worries during last week's council meeting. The matter came up in connection with a request from Roberts Paint & Body Shop, which is relocating in the industrial park from its present site on Old US-12.

The Roberts firm asked for an exception to the rule that all utility lines must be underground. Burying the electric wires that will serve the shop will cost an extra $5,000 or more, Fulks said.

"I just wonder if we aren't being too strict with this and some other requirements," Fulks said. "People haven't been breaking down our doors trying to locate in the industrial park, and maybe that's a reason. Things have been going pretty slowly out there."

"I'm not making any judgments at this point, just asking a question. I think it's something we need to look at."

be referred to the committee which oversees development of the park, and that was done.

Roberts will be the second business to locate in the park since it was established two years ago. BookCrafters was the first, and its utility lines are buried. BookCrafters occupies one lot in the park and has options on two more to accommodate predicted future expansion of its "fulfillment house" operation.

Lewis Publishers has optioned a lot, but has not bought it. Otherwise, the 80-acre park is vacant land with no known active prospects for additional tenants.

New Swim Coach Hired as Reed Finds AD Duties Demanding

Chelsea High school has a new girls swimming coach following the resignation of Larry Reed, who discovered that his duties as athletic director and pool director just plain didn't leave enough time to be a coach as well.

The new swim coach is Mike Keeler, 24, of Grand Rapids who took over last Thursday. Keeler will also serve as a member of the Cameron pool staff, Reed said. His combined duties equate to a full-time position.

Keeler coached both girls and boys swimming at Grand Rapids Union High school last year. He is a graduate of Central Michigan University with a bachelor's degree in physical education.

A native of Rhode Island, Keeler has been a Michigan resident for the past 14 years and has been involved in swimming and coaching for much of his life. His coaching experience spans eight years at various levels.

In high school at Grand Rapids Union, Keeler was captain of his swim team and selected as "most valuable." While attending Grand Rapids Junior College, he qualified for the nationals in the long-distance freestyle events, his specialty.

Reed said: "After I decided that I couldn't keep the position and do it justice, we went looking for a coach. Fortunately, I have some good contacts in the swimming field, and so we were able to interview several candidates."

"All were technically qualified, but Mike came across as a man who is dedicated and enthusiastic, and will carry on the kind of program we have been building in Chelsea. He was looking for a full-time position, which he didn't have in Grand Rapids, and we were able to offer one to him. I'm very, very pleased with the way things worked out."

"He came in here today (last Thursday) and I announced the change to the girls. They related to him right away, and he took up where I had left off. The transition could not have been better."

Keeler, who is single, is commuting between Grand Rapids and Chelsea but wants to change that as soon as possible. "It's a long drive (about 100 miles) and I will move to Chelsea as quickly as I can find a place to live here."

His marital status may also change soon, he added. "I'm working on it. This opportunity to come to Chelsea with a full-time job will help that along. I'm really excited. The facilities, the staff, the kids—everything seems to be super." I'll work my tail off."

In turning over the coaching duties to Keeler, Reed said he expects the girl swimmers to be "good but not great" this upcoming season.

"Last year we were 7-7 in dual meets and finished 11th in the state meet, improving dramatically toward the end of the season," Reed noted. "This year I think we will win more meets than we lose, and a 'top 10' finish in the state isn't unrealistic."

"We have 24 girls out for the team, and there are some fine swimmers and divers among them, including several back from last year. We don't have the potential to be state champions, but should be strong."

Explaining his decision to give up his coaching duties, Reed said:

"When I accepted the position as athletic director earlier this month, I assured superintendent Ray Van Meer that I would be the first to say so if I found the job to be too much in addition to my duties as pool director and coach."

"During the past few weeks I have learned that I couldn't handle all three and do justice to any of them. There just aren't enough hours in the day to get everything done right. There is a tremendous amount of detail in running the pool program and directing athletics.

"To be honest, I wasn't entirely sure what all the athletic director had to do. I've found out in a hurry that it's a demanding, time-consuming job. Now I know why Ron Nemeth was a very busy man. He got some criticism for trying to do too much. Believe me, it was all there to do."

Reed informed Van Meer of his dilemma, a search was begun for a new swim coach and pool staff assistant, and Keeler was hired.

"I feel a lot more comfortable now," Reed said. "I still have a lot to learn about the athletic directorship, but I'm confident that the job is manageable the way it's now set up."

Scott Rowe Wins Third In National

Scott Rowe, 16, won third place in the tricking event at the U. S. Water Skiing Championships held in DuQuoin, Ill., Aug. 15-18.

Skiing against 28 boys from across the nation, Scott tricked his way to the bronze medal.

When asked by the judges how he felt, Scott replied, "I just can't believe it. There was some tough competition here."

The tricking event consists of a skier performing as many tricks, as possible in two 20-second passes before the judges. All tricks are prescribed in the rules, with the more difficult having a higher point value.

Scott is the son of Norris and Marge Rowe of Cavanaugh Lake.

Coach Schreiner Optimistic About Girls Net Team

Things are looking up on the Chelsea High school girls tennis front, coach Terry Schreiner believes, as she puts a squad of 17 through their practice paces in preparation for their opening meet against Howell there on Sept. 4.

"We have several experienced girls returning and some good players coming up," Schreiner said. "We are getting more 'club' players, girls who play the game year-around at clubs in Ann Arbor and Jackson."

"We won't be great, but I think we have a good shot at a .500 or better season this fall, and I see a strong team coming along a couple of years from now. The program is improving, and I'm enthused about our progress."

Four seniors—Chris DeFant, Karen Killelea, Anne Acree and Jackie Boosey—head the squad which is working out daily on the high school tennis courts. Also back from last year are Melanie Dils, Jenny Pichlik, Angie Miller and Deana Slusher.

"Those girls will form the nucleus of the team, and we have some new people who will fill the gaps in the lineup," Schreiner said. "I'm looking forward to a good season."

"There are a couple of schools on our schedule that are probably too strong for us, and we play them each twice, but I think we will be competitive against the rest."

Fourteen dual meets are slated, followed by the regionals (and the state if any of the girls get that far).

15 Girls Turn Out For JV Cage Squad

Four sophomores—including co-captains Leah Enderle and Laura Torres—lead a squad of 15 Chelsea junior varsity girls basketball players working out under the direction of coach Paul Terpstra.

Peggy Hammerschmidt and Shannon Dunn are the other second-year players returning.

Freshmen include Kim Easton, Anna Harden, Jannie Heim, Shannon Losey, Vanessa May, Heather Neibauer, Christi Petty, Kelli Scott, Jenni Smith, Laura Unterbrink and Lisa Unterbrink.

The JV girls posted a 15-4 record last year, 9-3 in the Southeastern Conference which was good for a second place. Most of that group has moved up to the varsity.

"We have very little experience on this year's JV squad, but we do have some good size and some good talent. Three of the girls are 5-10 or over, and three others are 5-7 or better. It remains to be seen how well we play as a team."

The twin Unterbrink girls are carrying on a tradition in Chelsea sports established by their older sisters, Amy and Beth, both of whom were outstanding athletes.

"It's too early to tell much yet," Terpstra said, "but I believe they have some ability and will develop. Even though they are twins, one is a little bit bigger and stronger than the other. That is kind of unusual."

Terpstra has had his squad working on fundamentals of dribbling, passing and shooting in practice sessions. A scrimmage against Jackson County Western is scheduled at 3:30 p.m. tomorrow in the high school gym. It is open to the public without charge.

The JV's will play their first regular season game at 5:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 5, here against Adrian.

SPORTS NOTES

BY BILL MULLENDORE

A new high school sports season is starting, and this is therefore a good time to say some things about how our two papers—the Chelsea Standard and The Dexter Leader—cover the local athletic scene.

For starters, I will be covering Chelsea sports, and fellow reporter Brian Hamilton will be handling Dexter. That is a change in the sense that, for the first time since I've been here, there are two of us who have considerable background and experience in playing and writing about sports.

Brian has been a sports editor for both a daily and weekly newspaper, and worked in the news bureau of a major university. He is still an active athlete, he knows what sports are all about, and he can write. From there on, he can speak for himself. He may do things a little differently than I do, but I suspect the end result will be about the same. We are both competent professional reporters who take pride in our work and want to do the best possible job within our limits.

I wish I could say that I am still an active athlete, but honesty compels an admission that I'm getting old, to the point that slow running (jogging) and some fooling around with a basketball are about all I have left. I'm young enough at heart to appreciate sports, especially high school sports, the last bastion of pure amateurism in athletics. High schoolers will make mistakes that pros won't (or shouldn't) make, but they won't stand around and look bored. Spirit and enthusiasm—doing your darndest whatever your abilities and limitations—makes high school sports just plain fun to watch and write about.

So, how do we cover high school sports? In a perfect (for me) world, I would get out to see every single event on the schedule in every sport. That just plain isn't possible, no matter how much coaches, players and I might wish it were. Every Tuesday afternoon, after the current week's edition is put to bed, I sit down, look at the schedule and draw up a list of events that should be covered in next week's paper.

In a typical week there will be at least 15, sometimes as many as 20. I might have time to go and watch one or two—in a rare week three. As a reporter for a weekly paper, I have other things to do, too. I cover the total grist of news, and it's surprising how much news a town the size of Chelsea or Dexter can generate in a week.

I sympathize with the coach (and players and their parents) who can't understand why I didn't come out and cover their game. When you are forced to pick and choose, you are bound to make a few people happy and many more unhappy.

Here are my ground rules:

1. I do my best to get around and watch every team in action at least once during the season, trying to select a key contest that figures to be close and/or has a bearing on a possible championship.

2. For rather obvious reasons, I concentrate on varsity games. The boys and girls playing on varsity teams have earned a right to recognition by working their way up, and I try to give it to them. Besides that, varsity games draw the larger crowds, a rough measure of public interest. In the news business, you try to satisfy the wants of most of your readers. A varsity football game may draw 2,000 spectators, a JV game 200.

3. I stand ready to be flexible, and change plans when circumstances suggest. For instance, I spent a lot more time covering softball last spring than I had originally intended to, once it became apparent that Chelsea had an outstanding team with an excellent chance to win the state championship. That turned out to be a good (and lucky) educated guess. I won't always be right about such judgments.

4. Also for obvious reasons, I tend to pick games at home rather than away. It's a matter of both economics and personal preference. Driving to Tecumseh or Milan and back doesn't thrill me, and it costs money besides. Accommodations for visiting members of the press tend to be just plain awful at "away" contests. Even when equipped with press credentials, passes, notepad and camera, I have had to argue my way through a lot of gates. It's not that I can't afford to pay a couple of bucks. There is a principle involved.

5. Last, and it probably should have been first, I rely heavily on coaches for help. That deserves some elaboration.

Let's say I'm looking at a schedule of 20 events, ranging from junior high through varsity in five sports, for the coming week. I'm going to attend two or three, assuming I can keep up with the other, non-sports news that I am supposed to handle. That leaves 17 or 18 to be taken care of in some other way.

The "other way" comes down to coaches. I have to rely on coaches to tell me what happened. The easy way is for them to call me, and I am happy to pre-arrange times when I will be assuredly available, either in the office or at home. I don't in the least mind taking calls at home; that's part of the job, and I keep a stack of note paper and a pen handy on my desk at 1240 Astor Dr., Ann Arbor, telephone 995-0772.

The hard way is to track down the coaches, which takes time that I can't afford to waste. Coaches are human. They are quick to call when their teams win, much slower when they lose. I can understand that, but let's face it, the game is news—win, lose or draw—and that's the way I have to look at it. It would be great if we could report nothing but wins, but the real world doesn't work that way.

Some coaches go out of their way by writing and bringing in suggested news stories. That isn't really necessary, but I appreciate the effort, so long as it is understood that I am probably going to do some editing and/or rewriting, and I definitely will write the headline. And, please, if you are going to turn in a story, type it double-spaced. The best handwriting is hard to read, and most of it is like mine—just plain awful. I can't decipher my own hand-written notes if I let them "go cold" for more than 24 hours. The double-spacing gives me some room to make editorial changes between lines without having to re-type the whole piece.

I'm looking forward to the fall sports season and promise my best effort to give good coverage. Two-way co-operation will get the job done better, and everybody will benefit.

LaFave Continues To Be Optimistic About Chelsea Grid Team

"I'm not going to try to fool you or anybody else, or hide in the weeds and hope to sneak up on people. We have a fine football team, potentially the best during the seven years that I have been here as a coach. We could be very good—and I'm still very excited."

That was varsity football coach Gene LaFave's summation of his squad after two weeks of workouts in preparation for the Sept. 6 opener here against Brooklyn Columbia Central.

"We have made a lot of progress these past two weeks. Our practices have been very good, showing day-by-day improvement. The weather has been cool, and that has helped. We haven't had to worry about heat exhaustion. And we haven't had any serious injuries. Everybody is healthy."

"Everybody" includes the 26 players—12 seniors and 14 juniors—on the varsity squad. For the time being anyway, no sophomores will be added to the ranks. One of the original 27 squad members has been lost because of a medical condition unrelated to athletics.

"We have 17 excellent football players on the varsity, and the other nine aren't far behind and are pushing to be starters," LaFave said. "That's all we need for now."

"We have identified several boys on the JV squad who could be brought up if we need them to fill gaps because of injuries or other reasons. Meanwhile, they will get experience by practicing and playing on the junior varsity."

Varsity seniors include Jim Eisenbeiser, Matt Harshberger, Dan Bellus, Brian Robeson, Rob England, Steve Wingrove, Mark Mull, Steve Whitesall, Allen Fromm, Jeff Larson, Gary Johnson and Rob Polens.

Bellus and Mull are the co-captains. Bellus will be the starting quarterback. He is a strong-armed, accurate passer who can run when he has to but prefers to drop back, set up and throw. At 6-1 he is tall for a high school quarterback, an advantage in throwing over onrushing defenders.

Mull, who has grown considerably, will play at end on offense and linebacker when the other team has the ball. Mull is 6-2 and weighs 185.

Starkey has filled out a bit since last year and registers at 5-10 and 150 pounds—not big but bigger than he was a year ago when he set a school record by catching 53 passes. He will play as a flanker on offense, free safety on defense.

Heard and Eassa appear to have the inside track on the two starting halfback positions. Both have good size, speed and quickness.

The last of the Steinhauer brothers—Matt—appears ready to take his place in the family legend which also includes Marty and Dave. He is big, strong and quick, and will play at tight end and linebacker.

Bohlender has been designated as the back-up quarterback, and will see game action as a pass receiver and a defender in the secondary.

Other starting positions are still being sorted out.

Bellus and Hafley will share the punting duties in the important kicking game. Bellus is also being groomed to boot kick-offs, points-after-touchdowns and field goals, and has, according to LaFave, "come along real well in practice."

LaFave was worried earlier about finding a place-kicker but said he feels "a lot better about it now after watching Dan's progress."

LaFave added: "Maybe I'm sticking my neck out by predicting we will be good before we have played a game. You never know what will happen once the season starts. But I honestly think we have a good, solid football team that will match up against everybody on our schedule. And, if everything works out and we get our share of luck, we could be very good. The potential is there."

MIKE MITCHELL

Mike Mitchell Stars On Top Soccer Team

Goalie Mike Mitchell of Chelsea played on the under-15 Ann Arbor Arsenal soccer team which won the championship of the "B" Division in the Michigan State Youth Association.

Mitchell was the top defensive player on the team, according to coach Mike Malley of Ann Arbor. All but three of the team members are Ann Arborites.

Mike, son of John and Gloria Mitchell, gave up just two goals during a three-day tournament involving teams from Kalamazoo, Midland, Troy, Waterford, Canton and Warren.

The team posted a 9-2-1 record for the season.

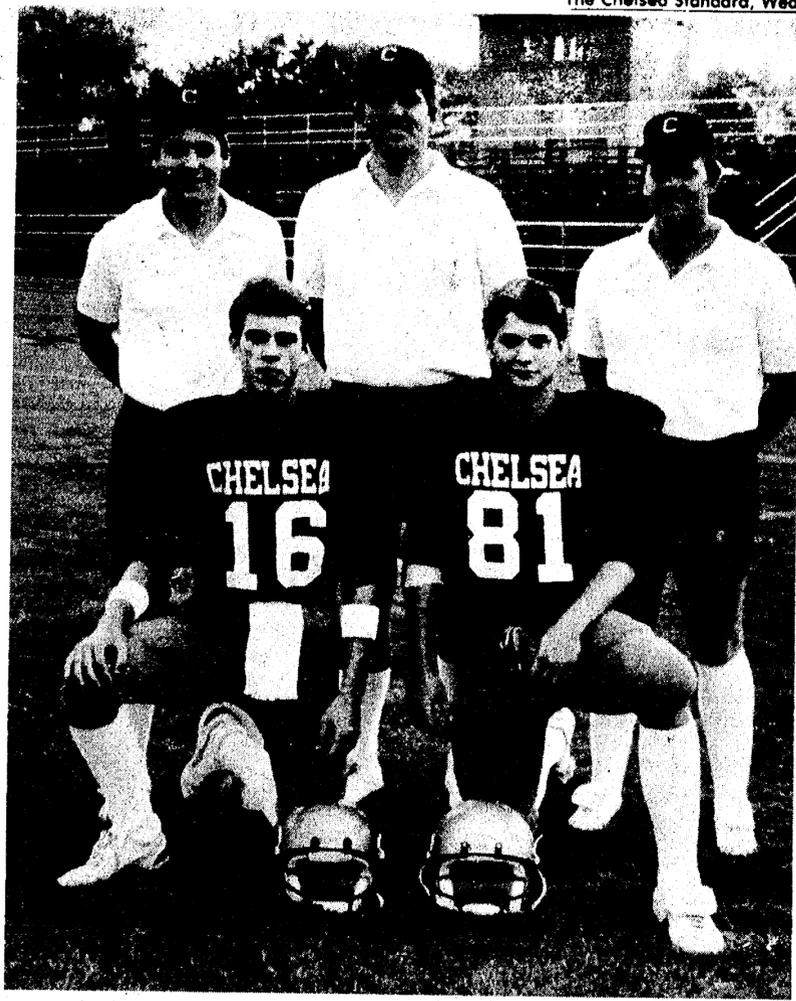

He will be a sophomore at Chelsea High school this fall. Chelsea does not have an interscholastic soccer program.

Both Harrier Teams Look To Be Strong As Season Nears

Pat Clarke, coach of Chelsea High's boys and girls cross country teams, won't be around to see them run in their first two meets on Sept. 7 at West Bloomfield and Sept. 12 at Saline.

He is scheduled for thyroid surgery on Sept. 6 and will be sidelined for a week while recovering. Assistant coach Bert Kruse will be in charge while Clarke is gone.

"The kids will be in very good hands," Clarke commented. "By the time the season starts, there isn't much more I can do to get them ready. I can't go out and run for them."

Clarke quickly added that he wishes he could be present for the Saline meet, which is critical to this year's fortunes of both teams.

"Saline figures to be our toughest Southeastern competitor in both boys and girls cross country this season," Clarke said, "and that meet will be important to our hopes for winning league championships. I figure we have a solid shot at both."

Twenty girls, headed by senior co-captains Laura Damm and Amy Wolfgang, are practicing to defend the SEC title the girl harriers won last year. The Bulldogs were second in the regional and fourth in the state.

Returning from that team are Wolfgang (all-league and all-region), Melanie Flanigan (all-league two years in a row), and Kasey Anderson (all-league and all-region), a strong group to build around.

Clarke also looks for good things from Damm, Debbie Tiff, Susan Jaques, Cathy Burkel, Jennifer Rossi (JV champion last year), and freshman Debbie Koenn.

Also returning is Robin Mock, who was hampered by an injury last year but is running well in practice. Sallie Wilson, a star on the girls track team, has come out for her first try at cross country and could help.

On the negative side, Kim Allen is moving to Arizona and Kim Collins has decided to drop the sport. Both could have been expected to win points this season.

"The girls squad is strong, and I suppose we will be considered the favorite in the league," Clarke said. "Saline will be very good. They have 57 girls out, and that is an astounding number."

"I know they have one outstanding runner (Dawn Toth, who won the SEC individual crown last year), and I suspect they have some more very good ones. They will be tough."

They boys team finished second behind Saline last year and has only two seniors—Jeff Wheaton and Tim Bowdish—on this fall's squad. Bowdish was all-league and all-region a year ago. He placed high in the regional meet despite being ill with flu, a sickness that kept several other Chelsea boys out of the competition.

Also returning are juniors Lee Riemenschneider, Jason Crefield and Tucker Lee, and sophomores John Cattell, Larry Moore and Chris Zuehlke. A junior newcomer, Greg Brown, and freshman Paul Hedding have shown promise in practice, Clarke said. The squad totals 22.

"The boys team will be very young and inexperienced," Clarke commented. "It all depends on how the younger boys come along. There are a lot of question marks right now."

"I think we have a chance for the conference championships."

Saline and Pinckney appear to be our toughest competition. Both will have strong teams, and I hope we will, too."

Villemure Aces 7th At Inverness

Matt Villemure, Sr., watched a four-iron shot from the seventh tee at Inverness Country Club drop into the cup on the 177-yard hole during a foggy, rainy round of golf last Saturday morning.

History was repeating itself, in a way. Villemure aces the same hole 12 years ago. That time he used a five-iron.

"I'm a little older and a club longer," Villemure said. "I couldn't reach that green with a five-iron now."

The ball hit on the front of the green about 20 feet from the hole, bounced once, and rolled slowly into the cup, hesitating on the lip before dropping.

"I watched it all the way," Villemure said. "I could see it was dead-on the pin, but wasn't sure it was going to roll far enough. It was close to stopping just short. It took one last roll and, plunk."

The shot was witnessed by his son, Matt Villemure, Jr., Jim Myning and Art Clemes, who were playing in the same foursome. With the help of the ace, Villemure scored a par 36 for the nine-hole round.

Villemure went out and played a second round before the heavy rain came and drove him and his partners off the course. He declined to reveal his score but said "it wasn't nearly as good" as his earlier effort.

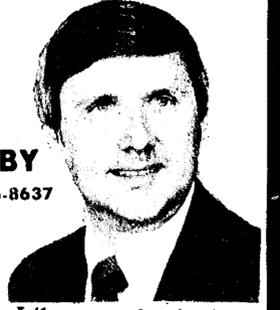

"I was shaken up a little bit by the hole-in-one," he said. "It's happened to me twice now, but it's not something you get used to and take in stride. This one was as big a thrill as the first one. A lot of good golfers play a lifetime and never score an ace. I've been very lucky to get two, and I'll keep on hoping for another one. That's what the game of golf is all about—trying to hit the perfect shot every time."

High School Athletes Do Parking Duty

Chelsea High school athletes and their coaches are handling parking lot assignments during the Community Fair this week.

Yesterday, the varsity, JV and freshman football team members were posted from 5 p.m. onward.

This evening, cheerleaders and baseball players were to do parking lot duty starting at 5 p.m.

The rest of the schedule:
Thursday, Aug. 29—Volleyball team at 5 p.m., boys basketball team at 7 p.m.

Friday, Aug. 30—Boys and girls track and cross country teams beginning at 5 p.m.

Saturday, Aug. 31—Girls basketball team at noon, softball team at 2:30 p.m., boys and girls tennis teams and girls swimming team at 5 p.m., wrestling, boys swimming and golf teams at 7 p.m.

"We have plenty of athletes to go around," said CHS athletic director Larry Reed, who is coordinating the effort. "If we all work together, nobody should have to be on duty more than once. This is a community service project, and we want to do it right. We are pleased to be a part of the fair."

Coaches and team captains have been assigned responsibility for seeing to it that the lots are manned.

Entrance fees for the fair are collected at the gates. Parking is free once vehicles are inside the grounds. The athletes' job is to direct traffic in the parking lots.

Craft, Daniels Win Horseshoe Event

Oakley Craft of Manchester and Jim Daniels of Chelsea teamed to best a field of 16 pairs of horseshoe pitchers at the Manchester Fair last Friday.

Ann Arbor, Dundee and Jackson, as well as Chelsea and Manchester.

It was a double-elimination tournament, and Craft and Daniels won it the hard way by coming back through the loser's bracket with six successive wins, including two against the runners-up.

Craft and Daniels have been winners in state-sanctioned horseshoe events but agree that the win Friday was especially gratifying because of the quality of the field. One participant was fresh from a win in his class at the world tournament in Indiana two weeks ago, and several others had been state champions in their respective classes.

The turning point, according to Craft, was a game in which they were behind 16-0 against the pair that won the event last year and went on to win it 21-17.

This was Daniels' fourth win in nine years at Manchester and Craft's first time in the event. Both are employees of Chelsea Lumber Co.

Elk Hunt Application Sept. 1 Deadline Nears

Only a short time remains for Michigan residents, 14 years or older, to apply for an elk hunt license by the Sept. 1 deadline, says a spokesperson for the Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

licants will be required to pay $100 for the license within two weeks of notification.

This year, 120 licenses will be issued for the Dec. 10-15 elk hunt season, as approved by the State Natural Resources Commission.

Thirty hunter's choice licenses will be available for taking either a bull, cow or calf elk; the remaining 90 licenses will allow taking of antlerless elk only. A special drawing of all 120 qualified licenses for the 30 hunter's choice licenses will be held on Dec. 9 at a mandatory half-day training session in Atlanta (Montmorency county) conducted by DNR Wildlife Division personnel.

The application fee for the elk license is $4; application forms may be obtained from licensed dealers, at all DNR Regional, District and some Field Offices, and at the Department's Information Services Center in Lansing. Last season's elk hunters are not eligible for elk licenses in 1985.

The elk hunt site will cover a 300-square mile area where the elk herd is causing the most agricultural and forest damage. This area lies within the counties of Montmorency, Otsego, Gheboygan, and Presque Isle. DNR Wildlife biologists estimate Michigan's elk population at 1,100.

A lottery drawing will be conducted to determine the 120 successful applicants. Only those successful applicants will be notified by Nov. 1. These ap-

Judge Rules Dove Hunt Is Illegal

Unless it is overturned by a higher court, a decision by Ingham County Circuit Judge James Kallman has blocked this fall's scheduled open hunting season on mourning doves.

Judge Kallman ruled that the Natural Resources Commission (NRC) had no legal authority to allow the dove hunt, which was slated to open on Sept. 15 and run for 22 days.

He ruled in a suit brought by the Michigan Humane Society (a separate group from the American Humane Society). The Michigan Humane Society is strongly opposed to hunting of any wildlife species and is expected to file a legal challenge against an elk hunt also planned for this fall.

Judge Kallman accepted the Michigan Humane Society's argument that the dove season would "cause irreparable harm" if it were allowed to take place.

It may have been a legally right decision for the wrong reason.

The facts are that 50 million doves will be shot this fall in the 35 states which allow them to be hunted. The continental dove population is 500 million, which means there will be a 10 percent harvest of the available crop.

An open season in Michigan would have meant slightly lower hunter success in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and other states to the south, which Michigan-reared doves pass through during their fall migration. The same number of doves will be taken in any case. It's a matter of where.

In his decision Judge Kallman indicated that he is not open to any further argument on the issue and that his so-called "temporary" injunction is, in effect, permanent unless a higher court over-ruled him.

Lawyers on the Michigan attorney general's staff, who represented the NRC in the case, said they were undecided what, if anything, to do next. They can either let Judge Kallman's ruling stand or appeal it in hope of a reversal.

The Legislature earlier this year passed a law designating mourning doves as "game birds," a necessary action under the binding federal laws and international treaty which say that doves are, indeed, game birds.

However, the Legislature did not prescribe an open hunting season on doves. The NRC went ahead and set one anyway, defying the established legal principle that all Michigan hunting is subject to specific legislative authorization.

That issue remains to be resolved, and could be the basis for an appeal by the NRC.

"Michigan is, and has been a 'pleasant place of shelter' for the mourning dove," Judge Kallman said. "In light of this court's finding that the Legislature has not chosen to establish an open season on the dove, the court believes that the Michigan Humane Society and the many Michigan residents it represents would be irreparably harmed if a dove hunt was allowed to occur."

Brighton Hospital Offers Help for Troubled Parents

Topic for Brighton Hospital's next Community Education Program on Sept. 3 is "How Can We Talk to Our Children About Alcohol and Drugs."

The free program will begin at 7 p.m. with the showing of "Sons and Daughters, Drugs and Booze," a film that helps parents recognize the signs of alcohol and drug abuse and suggests how to confront their children. After the film a trained counselor will answer questions and discuss how to obtain professional help.

Although Brighton Hospital specializes in treating adults for alcoholism and related chemical dependency, parents frequently ask the facility to help their children, notes Ivan C. Harner, the hospital's president. Harner adds that many of the hospital's patients began drinking and using drugs in their teens or even earlier.

"This evening's program will be helpful to parents of teenagers and to others concerned about the drinking habits of a family member or loved one of any age," says Harner.

The hospital's free Community Education Program is held on the first Tuesday evening of each month. For additional information and a schedule of programs, contact the hospital's Community Relations Department at (313) 227-1211, ext. 276.

Waterloo Youth Group Sponsoring Carnival for Muscular Dystrophy

The youth group of the Waterloo Village United Methodist church is sponsoring a carnival to benefit muscular dystrophy research this Sunday, Sept. 1 on the church grounds.

From 12:30 p.m. to 6 p.m. there will be games and refreshments on the church grounds. Admission is free.

Two levels of pre-ballet will be offered, one for ages 2-4, the second for ages 4-6. Pre-ballet is described as an informal "fun" program for improving physical co-ordination and strength, and developing creativity and musicality.

The ballet program will provide instruction in classical ballet technique for all ages and levels. Buck says that if there is enough demand, she will offer classes in tap and jazz.

For more information call Buck at 769-0745.

Germans may be paying a higher price than they realize for the freedom to hit the gas pedal, says International Wildlife magazine. Exhaust fumes from speeding cars, traveling faster than 100 miles per hour on "autobahns," are now thought to be a leading culprit of acid rain—killing spruce trees throughout the fabled Black Forest in southern Germany. No government speed limits are yet in sight, and auto emission standards, in effect in the U.S., are still years away.

VISION TIPS

If you want to save money on eyeglasses, keep in mind that tinted lenses cost more than clear, plastic may cost more than glass, and that designer frames and oversized lenses may up costs. Don't stint on quality, though. Protect the only pair of eyes you've got.

SUSAN BUCK

Ballet Studio Opening Here

Budding ballerinas and boys who want to learn to pirouette will have the chance this fall without having to travel to Ann Arbor.

Susan Buck, of Ypsilanti, is opening a Dance Arts Academy. Classes will be held every Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon at the Chelsea Rebekah Hall on S. Main St. opposite Village Motors.

Buck, a former principal dancer of the Texas Ballet, has both a bachelor's degree and master's degree in ballet from Indiana University. She performed internationally with the Texas Ballet and danced in major U.S. cities.

The first semester begins Sept. 17 and ends Jan. 18. Registration for the first semester is Saturday, Sept. 7 from 9 a.m. to noon.

Two levels of pre-ballet will be offered, one for ages 2-4, the second for ages 4-6. Pre-ballet is described as an informal "fun" program for improving physical co-ordination and strength, and developing creativity and musicality.

Unadilla, Pinckney Police Arrest Illegal Cyclist

The rider of a Yamaha trail motorcycle was arrested last Tuesday, Aug. 20, after he rode through Gregory without license plates or lights, and eluded police who attempted to stop him for the violations.

According to Officer Larry Owen of the Unadilla Township Police Department, Joseph Leon Cook, 17, turned off the road down the railroad tracks when police tried to stop him. After Owen requested help from the Livingston County Sheriff's Department and the Pinckney Police Department, Pinckney police found Cook approximately four miles away hiding behind a barn about half an hour later.

Owen said Cook was charged with fleeing and eluding an officer and having an unregistered motorcycle.

Village Board OK's Option on Property At 145 Park St.

The Chelsea board of trustees has approved taking an option on a piece of property at 145 Park St. as a possible site for a future village office building.

Option price is $58,000, village administrator Frederick Weber said.

"I think the application was based on a possible alternative use of the property in case the village does not buy it," Weber said. "We (the village) apparently are not the only party interested in the site. However, we do have a binding option."

The property is on the north side of Park St. next-door to the building occupied by Poma's Pizzeria on the top floor and the Micro-Farm sprout-raising firm in the basement.

Owner Ann Wood recently applied to have the site rezoned from residential to commercial, but no official action has been taken on the request.

Rezoning would not be necessary if the village goes ahead and makes the purchase. Under the law, village-owned property can be used for whatever purpose the government decides.

Engineering Firm Estimates 47 Months To Build Sewer Plant

The consulting engineering firm working with the village to design and construct a new wastewater treatment plant has laid out a 47-month timetable to get the job done when and if a grant is offered.

Local financing, advertise for bids and award contracts.

Construction would begin a month after that. Assuming the grant is offered either late this month or early in September, as is anticipated, ground would be broken in the summer of 1987.

The board of trustees approved the stretched-out program at its Aug. 20 meeting. The proposal to take nearly four years to construct the facility and put it into operation was made by Finkbeiner, Pettis & Strout of Toledo, and was adopted as part of the village contract with the company.

Construction would be completed 16 months after that, and the plant would receive final certification another 13 months down the road. That puts the completion date somewhere in 1989.

Federal water pollution control grants are administered by the DNR, which determines who will get what according to an elaborate priority system based on computer criteria. Chelsea is believed to be 17th on the list of grant applicants this year, having risen from about 300th since 1974.

Four years seems like a long time to build anything, but the village board adopted the timetable without discussion or comment. Chelsea is under order to have the plant operating in 1988. The engineering timetable extends into 1989.

Village administrator Frederick Weber said he remains optimistic that Chelsea will receive a 55 percent federal grant toward construction of the new treatment plant, which has an estimated $4.5 million price tag.

The "top 20" or so are expected to make the 1985 cut. If a federal grant of 55 percent is offered, it would amount to approximately $2.475 million. The village would have to come up with the other $2.025 million, and that could be a sticking point.

The "schedule of activities" suggested by the engineers and approved by the village board includes, among other items:

At least one call or a letter almost any day now," Weber said. "We have been rushed to complete and submit all the necessary documentation. The DNR has put a lot of pressure on us. I don't think they would do it if we weren't in line to receive a grant this year."

Some combination of higher user fees and bonds would probably be necessary. Depending on the type of bonds, a public referendum might be needed. The uncertainty over whether a general-obligation bond issue, pledging the faith and credit of the village (taxpayers), would be approved may account for the engineers' prognosis that it could take 21 months to start construction after the grant is offered.

A period of 21 months after a federal grant is offered is suggested to do paperwork, complete plans (which are supposed to be done), receive state approval (also supposedly done), arrange anything for sure until the federal money is finally appropriated and released. Funding to continue the wastewater treatment

Life Action Revival Team Coming to Gospel Church

Life Action, America's family-centered revival team is coming to Dexter, Sept. 8-15. This dynamic group, from Buchanan, is one part of the extraordinary Life Action Ministries, which was founded in 1971 by evangelist Del Fehsenfeld, Jr.

lems and ideas with someone who understands and cares about their needs; two-day youth seminars; Dynamite Club, for boys and girls in grades 1-6, with special children's programs, multi-media, and a talking bear named "Cuddles"; also, Happiness Club, a sparky group of four- and five-year-olds.

Revenue bonds, to be paid entirely out of user fees, would not require a public vote. The Detroit law firm of Miller, Canfield, Paddock & Stone has been retained by the village to advise on local financing.

From its inception, this revival team has had a strong ministry direction. Dedicated young college students from across the nation make up this unique team. They represent different states, schools, races, and economic backgrounds. However, they have one thing in common—their personal devotion to Jesus Christ whom they serve with indomitable energy.

According to a recent poll by the Gallup Organization, 78% of people with someone in their household who has had training at a trade or technical school rate that training as good or excellent.

This Life Action Revival team presents life worth living, America worth having, people worth living, authority worth respecting, education worth obtaining and God worth serving.

The Life Action Team will be holding a series of evening services with concerts and seminars at the Dexter Gospel church.

The Life Action Crusade at Dexter Gospel church will begin Sunday, Sept. 8 at 9:45 a.m., and will continue each weekday evening from 7 p.m., Monday through Friday, and will conclude with the evening service at 6 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 15.

This week-long program will feature musical concerts by the Life Action Singers, using a unique multi-media, audio visual presentation that will further enhance the team's "old-fashioned gospel presentation."

In addition to the Life Action Singers, each crusade includes family seminars; young adult seminars; master control, an informal, open discussion time for teen-agers to share their prob-

Zoning Inspector Granted Special Hearing Request

Village zoning inspector Rosemary Harook has been granted a private hearing by the board of trustees on Tuesday, Sept. 3, to review her hours and working conditions.

The hearing will take place before the regular council meeting scheduled at 7:30 p.m. on that date.

Mrs. Harook is incensed about a decision made at a special meeting held by the board on July 23, when she was not present because, she claims, she was not informed that her job was going to be discussed.

At that meeting, the council voted to limit her hours to 15 per week.

"I want to meet with you and discuss my job," Mrs. Harook told the council last week. "You have placed me in a very bad situation. I have to put in more than 15 hours a week to get my work done. I'm having to volunteer extra time, and that isn't fair."

"Even though I'm not supposed to, I get calls at home about zoning questions. When (a prominent merchant) phones me at home and asks for assistance, I can't tell him to wait until I'm officially on duty. That happened last week."

Mrs. Harook says she was "double-crossed" by the council's July 23 action limiting her working hours. "I had been promised that nothing concerning zoning would be discussed at any council meeting unless I had been notified in advance and given a chance to be there."

That promise was made, she said, when her performance was reviewed after a six-month trial period and she was granted a pay raise to her present rate of $6.36 per hour.

"I had no idea that the question of my work hours was going to come up on July 23," she said. "It wasn't on the agenda for the meeting. If I had known, I certainly would have been there."

Mrs. Harook said she needs to spend 20-22 hours per week to fulfill her duties as zoning inspector. She acknowledged that the demands on her time might drop during the winter months.

Trustee Joe Merkel suggested that some kind of flexible schedule might be worked out—more hours during the busy warm-weather period, fewer in the winter. The full council will take up the matter on Sept. 3, and Mrs. Harook said she definitely will be there.

Disabled Veterans License Plates Now Available

Special blue and white license plates for disabled veterans are now on sale, Secretary of State Richard Austin has announced.

According to Austin, the plates are authorized under a law signed into effect in July of this year. To be eligible to purchase the special plate, veterans must show proof of honorable discharge and proof from the Military or Veterans Administration of a service-connected total or permanent disability for compensation or retirement.

Applications for such plates may be obtained from any Secretary of State branch office and should be sent to: Michigan Department of State, Special Registrations Unit, Lansing 48918. The $5 fee should be enclosed. Further instructions will be given at the branch office.

The blue plates carry white letters "DV" followed by a combination of four letters and numbers. The words "Disabled Veteran" appear on the bottom. Plates expire on the owner's birthday.

Austin said an estimated 4,200 individual veterans may be eligible to purchase the plate. Only one plate per veteran will be issued.

Official Permission Granted for Banners

Someday a shock wave may be sent through the community, when and if the village board of trustees for any reason decides to deny permission to place a banner across Main St. advertising some long-standing locally sponsored event.

As a news reporter remarked at last week's council meeting, "It would make a real good story if you ever turned the fair board or St. Mary's church down."

The board had approved banners for the Chelsea Community Fair and the St. Mary's Catholic church Fall Festival. Actually, the fair banner was already up before the board gave the go-ahead.

Village law requires that a request to put an advertising banner across any street must have the board's blessing. There must be a formal application and a pre-advertised public hearing. Sometimes the rules get bent a little bit, as in the case of the fair banner.

Sponsoring organizations provide the banners, but occasionally forget the month or so of lead time that it takes to obtain official approval. Village employees put up the banners and take them down, using public works department equipment. There is a legal liability issue involved, and that is the reason for the approval procedure.

Want to fight indoor air pollution in your home? Try household plants. According to National Wildlife magazine, thousands of people may be poisoned in their homes each year by toxic substances such as carbon monoxide and nitrogen dioxide. Luckily, houseplants, particularly spider plants, are excellent air cleaners. So put some greenery in your home and breathe easier.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor,
 As friends of Shirley Campbell's we strongly feel that The Chelsea Standard owes us an apology! The front page article (Aug. 21) stated that "Campbell had a terrible problem with alcohol," according to an "anonymous" source. As often happens the reason this source and other anonymous sources wish to remain anonymous is because they most often don't have any truth to their opinions and they are afraid to be confronted by someone who knows the truth!

Chief of Police Lenard McDougall stated that the fire was caused by "human error," which told the full story. We feel that Shirley was a warm, loving, considerate friend. Whenever we needed her she was always ready to help! This fire may have been caused by "human error" as most things are but let's not forget that Shirley paid dearly—with her own life!

We strongly disagree with the Standard's "standards" of reporting.

Gary and Robin Scripter.

To the Editor,
 Only God can make a tree—Only Village of Chelsea officials can authorize the destruction and cutting down of beautiful soft maple trees.

The trees I'm referring to were in the lot vacated recently next to Chelsea Glass. The trees were harming no one. If they were too close to the new construction, then why were not the building plans modified to protect the maple trees? This could have been done with a minimum of effort.

Are we to expect more trees being lost for no reason?

Power Company Granted Easement

Consumers Power Co. has been granted an easement along the old inter-urban right-of-way between Wilkinson St. and what would be a southward extension of Cleveland St., a distance of about 1,300 feet.

The village council approved the deal for a token price of $1. Consumers sought the easement to guarantee access to its Washtenaw sub-station located west off Wilkinson.

As part of the agreement, the company agreed to install a gate at the Wilkinson St. end of the access roadway.

The U. S. Department of Labor has a toll-free number (1-800-368-1008) which farm workers and others may call to check the validity of farm labor contractors' certificates, according to a U. S. Labor Department fact sheet.
