SUSAN OVERDORF was all smiles after being crowned the 1985 Chelsea Fair Queen before a capacity crowd at the fairgrounds. Susan, a senior at Chelsea High school, was crowned by last year's queen, Mary Grifka. She was sponsored by her class, which also took first place in the float competition the next day. Susan topped eight other worthy candidates for the crown.

Susan Overdorf Is 1985 Fair Queen

Susan Overdorf topped nine other candidates and was named the 1985 Chelsea Fair Queen in competition last Friday evening.

Angie Welch, 15, was the runner up.

Overdorf was sponsored by the senior class of Chelsea High school. Welch was sponsored by the sophomore class.

Overdorf has been exceptionally active in school extracurricular activities. This year will be her second as editor of the yearbook. She has two year's experience in debate, forensics and the orchestra. She was involved in the musical production of "Cinderella," and has been a member of the Chelsea Players pit orchestra. Her hobbies include reading, writing, music, backpacking and cross country skiing. She is the daughter of Rand and Meridene Overdorf of 13620 Riker Rd.

The queen's court included Jennifer Swaringen and Chris DeFant.

Also on hand was the 1984 queen, Mary Grifka, who sang and played guitar at the outset of the pageant.

Margo Koenn, the 1980 fair queen, talked about the difference between the fairs of yesteryear and today, noting the growth of the fairgrounds and the changing of fair queen fashion.

After a welcome by fair president Bill Stoffer, Rita Wilson-Howard guided the program as mistress of ceremonies. Howard is the leader of the Chelsea Charns, the local baton twirling corp and is a veteran of such pageants, having been Miss Tennessee at one time. She has been in movie and television and has competed in more than 80 beauty and talent pageants.

All nine candidates had performed the talent portion of the show for the judges earlier in the week. They re-created their performances for the crowd Friday night. Their personal interviews with the judges had also been conducted earlier.

However, as in other pageants, each girl had to answer a question before the audience of several hundred folks on Friday night. The questions were based on each girl's personal interview and were sealed in individual envelopes. The first time anyone but the judges knew what questions would be asked was when the envelopes were actually opened before the audience. Some of the girls were visibly nervous but all were well-poised.

The questions were not easy ones to answer. They ranged from "How has the threat of nuclear war changed your attitude toward life," to "What would you tell a friend who you knew wanted to commit suicide."

All nine girls were elegantly dressed in floor-length gowns at the outset. However, many of them changed clothes for the talent portion of the show.

Overdorf, who was the last to perform, acted out readings from Pollyanna, linking together a medley of tunes that she played on the violin.

Welch, accompanying herself on piano, sang "The Rose," by Bette Midler.

The Chelsea Kiwanis Club's Julie Stacey played "The Entertainer," on her clarinet. She was accompanied on piano by her mother, Joy.

Shanda Friday, sponsored by Chelsea McDonald's, sang an original song by Thad Bell titled "Nobody's Boss."

Rose Grifka, of the Terrific Tailors 4-H Club, sang the John Denver tune, "Sunshine on My Shoulders," acappella.

Chelsea Big Boy's Heidi Hosner performed a dramatic reading from "A Chorus Line."

Vanessa May, sponsored by the Class of 1989, played a classical piece on the cello.

Attendance, Entries All Show Increases Over Previous Years

Attendance at the 1985 Chelsea Fair was up five percent, according to fair officials. If those figures are correct, then slightly fewer than 37,000 people took part in the festivities from Tuesday through Saturday.

No doubt nearly perfect weather played a big part in the larger turnout. With the exception of a rainy Friday morning during Ladies Day activities, sunshine generally prevailed.

Not only was attendance up, but the number of folks who exhibited their flowers, vegetables, hobbies, antiques, baked goods, and livestock also increased, although no exact figures were available.

"I know for a fact that there were at least 100 more entries in the hobbies exhibit than there were last year," said Maryann Guenther, fair secretary.

"We arranged things a little differently this year, so it may not have looked at though there were so many."

Guenther said the numbers of entries in the demolition derbies were also about the same.

"That was kind of surprising because demolition derby cars cost a lot more now than they have," Guenther said.

A major area of cost for the fair itself is liability insurance.

According to Guenther, insurance costs tripled this year over last year, although she wouldn't mention any precise figures.

"We have to be well-protected, because when somebody sues, they name everybody in the suit," Guenther said.

"I can't recall that anyone has ever brought suit against us. We've been real lucky."

Guenther also said that fewer insurance companies are carrying the kind of insurance the fair board needs each year, which further complicates the problem.

Although it's much too early to tell for certain, a raise in ticket prices next year wouldn't be too surprising since gate receipts are the only revenue used to pay the insurance bills.

All in all, Guenther said, the fair was "highly satisfactory" to everyone who made it go, from the management, to concessionaires, to the exhibitors. She reported no major complaints.

Although everybody has his own favorite part of the fair, some of the highlights of the fair might be the following.

Dawn Murphy taking second in the feature event of the Cavalcade of Thrills Demolition Derby.

Record turnout for the Children's Parade.

Jon Herrst and his two Grand Champion rabbits.

First ever pickup heat in the demo derby.

The 100-year-old quilt (a Grand Champion) found years ago in Alice Vogel's attic.

Susan Overdorf's huge smile upon finding out that she was the 1985 Fair Queen.

The ventriloquism show by Miss Michigan of 1984, Barbara Crandall.

The child models of the Dancer's Fashion Show—the Laylor and Bycraft twins.

Charlie Koenn's Grand Champion dairy cattle.

One child dragging his partner across the finish line in the three-legged race.

More than 100 runners showing up for the Fun Runs, a few of whom got lost on the three-mile course.

The senior class parade float. The queen candidates' talent performances.

Margot Koenn, former fair queen and this year's co-superintendent of the fair queen contest, telling the pageant audience that her favorite part of the fair, "is when it's over."

Village Officials Wait, Hoping for Word on Sewage Plant Grant

Still waiting and still hopeful.

That is the stance of Chelsea officials as they await word on whether the village will receive a grant for a new wastewater treatment plant.

"I haven't heard anything official, but the unofficial assurances continue to be good," village administrator Frederick Weber said. "Everything I hear is favorable. I'm optimistic."

The grant should have been made before the end of August, but wasn't because the federal budget has not been finally passed. The budget bill is on the president's desk waiting to be approved, rejected or line-item vetoed.

When and if Chelsea does get a grant, it will come out of the Congressional appropriation to the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). The Michigan Department of Natural Resources will "pass it through," taking something off the top to handle administrative costs.

Chelsea has been trying since 1974 to obtain a grant to help build a new sewage treatment plant and has been continually thwarted by a rigid state priority system.

At one time the village could have obtained 95 percent financing. The best that can be hoped for now is a 55 percent grant of $2.475 million toward a $4.5 million project. The long delay has cost local taxpayers a lot of money.

"We've turned in every bit of documentation and taken every legal step that we have been ordered to do," Weber said. "They (the DNR) have really rushed us the past few weeks, and that is probably a good sign. We've done our part, and now it's up to them. All we can do is wait."

"Every time the phone rings, I think maybe it's a call about a grant offer. It hasn't happened yet, but I keep hoping."

LET THE GOOD TIMES ROLL was the theme of the float of the Class of 1988 that took first place in the youth division of the Chelsea Fair Parade. The fair queen of 1985, Susan Overdorf, is seated squarely on the back of a mock 1957 Chevy. Behind her, to her right, is court member Chris DeFant. To the right of Susan are Jennifer Swaringen, Mike Goodwin, Jennifer Lindsay and Mark Mull. Not shown, on the other side of the float, are class president Steve Whitesall, Mindy Tiedgen and Dan Bellus. The driver of the float was Brian Myers, not a member of the class. Susan's brother, Jason, operated the far sign that alternated messages.

Tuesday, Sept. 1, 1981—

Packed in the bleachers like sardines in a can, hundreds of local demolition derby buffs perused the arena filled with beat-up old clunkers, crashing into one another in hopes of emerging as the final running vehicle in the massive, dust-filled arena Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

The demolition derby, according to Art Steinaway, is presented as a means of helping finance the Chelsea Community Fair, and indeed it does. Crash-crazed patrons "ooh" and "ahh" as the dilapidated vehicles race around the arena grounds, careening off the front, back and sides of similar vehicles.

Reigning over the 1981 Fair is Beth Heller, daughter of Robert and Else Heller of 1610 Guenther, also parents of the 1980 Fair Queen, Nancy Heller.

Erna Schultz of Cedar Lake Rd. was the recipient of the 1981 Michigan State Fair Champion Homemaker award.

A second Chelsea resident repeated in the position of runner-up in the competition. Anna Laban of Grant St. was the runner-up for 1980 and for 1981 in the state fair contest, and also received the 1981 Chelsea Community Fair Award plaque.

Kathryn Marie Rybka, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Rybka of Old US-12, has accepted the position of assistant professor in the Journalism Department at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks.

She will be teaching journalism, advertising and public relations classes.

U.S. Army Spec 5 Guy W. Freysinger, 20, of S. Fletcher Rd. has been awarded the Silver Star for gallantry in action in Vietnam.

Freysinger, the son of George Freysinger of S. Fletcher Rd. and Jean Freysinger of Manchester, is now recovering at Walter Reed Hospital from wounds received in combat. He is a graduate of Chelsea High school.

Eileen Bristle, a 1971 graduate of Chelsea High, will be attending Central Michigan University this fall.

Lisa Schairer had a little help from Danny Grau and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Schairer, when she showed her Reserve Champion Pen of lambs. Joe Merkel of the Wolverine Bar purchased Lisa's three lambs weighing a total of 260 pounds for 33 cents a pound.

Record Funding Available To College Students

More than 62,000 students, an increase of more than 14,000, will be eligible to receive a record $76.7 million in student financial aid in the 1985-86 fiscal year.

In addition to increased state support, all four-year public colleges have agreed to a tuition freeze and according to Governor James Blanchard, "1986 will be a landmark year for making a quality college education affordable to more Michigan students."

"Not only have our four-year public colleges and universities agreed to freeze tuition, but our state's comeback allows us to offer more direct assistance to students than ever before in the history of our state," Blanchard added.

More than 20,000 Michigan students will receive $21 million, an increase from $14 million, through the Michigan Competitive Scholarship Program. The average scholarship is expected to be $1,100, up from $905. Eligibility is based on financial need and academic talent.

Over 15,000 financially needy students attending private colleges will receive an average grant of $2,100, up from $1,300, through the Tuition Grant Program. Nearly 15,000 students will receive a maximum grant of $300 through the Differential Grant Program.

A new program recommended by Blanchard is the Part-Time Independent Student Financial Assistance Program.

This will make $2 million available to 5,000 older, part-time students as a response to the challenges faced by finding new employment for dislocated workers and workers who need to return to school to upgrade their skills.

The Michigan College Work-Study Program, recommended by the Governor's Commission on the Future of Higher Education, will help approximately 7,700 students with $5 million in grants to institutions which will arrange on- or off-campus part-time work for students in financial need.

The Governor said further legislation is needed, and expected, this fall to get the program underway.

Additional funding is also available through the Guaranteed Student Loan Program.

This is a co-operative effort between the state and federal governments and the private sector to make $240 million available to more than 100,000 Michigan students.

Toxic Commission Releases Guidebook To Study Environmental Risks

The Michigan Toxic Substance Control Commission has released a 179-page research book entitled "Citizen's Guide for Community Health Studies" for citizens concerned about personal health effects from exposure to chemicals in the environment.

"The guide will aid citizens to gather data in a useful format to obtain the support and assistance of government agencies and officials for investigation," said Larry Holcomb, executive secretary to the commission.

He said the guide will provide confirmation and documentation of possible health problems related to environmental exposure, help determine the extent of the problem, and provide a framework for presentation of the information to appropriate officials.

The development of the guide was authorized and funded by the commission in 1983.

Historic Landscape Designer To Present Slide Show, Lecture

Scott Kunst, Ann Arbor teacher and historic landscape designer of antique gardens, will present a lecture and slide show, Monday, Sept. 9 at the Crippen House at 7:30 p.m.

"Antique Gardens" outlines the changing styles of gardening over a century, and offers suggestions for people who would like to develop an "old-fashioned" garden, perhaps to fit the historical style of their home.

A wide range of subjects is covered in the lecture: Pioneer and Greek Revival gardens (to 1860); Downing landscapes (1850-1880); Victorian carpet-bedding (1870-1910); the English perennial garden (1900-1930); the use of vines; picket, cast iron and woven-wire fences; flowering shrubs, heirloom flowers, fruits, and vegetables; and Victorian garden ornaments.

For further information contact the Chelsea Area Historical Society, 475-8971.

Some quality of work life programs include area, industry and plant labor-management committees; worker participation programs, and gainsharing plans, according to a U. S. Labor Department fact sheet.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Onct in a blue moon research pays off. Per instant, polio vaccine was a bargain at any price, no ifs or howevers. But most research, like what give us atomic energy, is filled with buts. The feller got into the but kind Saturday night during the session at the country store.

For openers, Bug Hookum come with a report where research at the University of Minnesota has showed a diet of oats and barley cuts back cholesterol in the blood of laboratory animals. Bug took this to mean if a feller eats enough oatmeal and drinks enough beer he'll live forever. All beer drinkers got to do is triple the prescription the doctor wrote. To keep the kidneys flushed, and if they double that they'll git so much barley they won't need the oats. With medicine, after all, Bug said, if a little is good a whole heap is wonderful.

The but here, Bug went on, is that drunks give medicine takers a bad name. Part of this confusion is that "one school" calls drunks drunks and another school insists they are victims of disease. Bug is of the drunk school. He said the direct cause of no disease is advertised, bottled, sold and taxed under Government license and caught on purpose. Alcohol is a disease the way arsenic and cocaine are diseases, and agreeing on that is a good place to start research, was Bug's words.

On the other hand, Zeke Grubb broke in, you can see the benefits if you look. He heard a feller say the only hard licker he drunk was Mexican tequila that has a dead worm in the bottle to prove that if you drink it regular you won't have worms. And another friend of Zeke recalled when his aircraft carrier was sunk in the Pacific he and his buddies were stranded on a island for weeks. The Navy brought in beer in bottles and water in canvas bags and rationed it out. The feller couldn't stand beer, but he had to stand in line for it every day. When he passed up his beer ration on the way to the water sailers behind him would fight for his bottles. The feller said the water bags were half full of leaves and bugs and he's had stummock trouble ever since. By drinking a couple of beers a day he could of perverted daily riots and saved his stummock in the deal, Zeke noted.

Speaking of research, Clem Webster said he wasn't comfortable with the University of Arkansas Medical School's study of how drunks breath when they're asleep. The school paid volunteers $100 to drink and sleep it off for two weeks to see how alcohol worked on their breathing. After that test, Clem said the volunteers ought to move straight into liver research. As fer perductive study, Clem picked up on a rare chancet in Boston to compare ways to git bugs out of ears. Some pore feller come to the hospital with a live cockroach in each ear. After arguing over their favored treatment, doctors put mineral oil in one ear and lidocane in the other. They were able to settle a long standing medical question and issue a bulletin that roaches don't mind a few drops of mineral oil, but lidocane will flat git a bug out of a ear.

As fer ears, research in Japan has showed that the world's loudest snorer rumbles at 8.7 desibels, with bursts to 9.4, about the level of a jackhammer. The good news here is that the champion snorer bothers his wife not at all. She's deaf in one ear and she learned quick to sleep on the good one.

Yours truly,
 Uncle Lew.

Two employees of the Chelsea A&W have been arrested in connection with an after hours theft at the restaurant on Saturday, Aug. 24.

According to police, Aaron Adamson, 17, entered the restaurant illegally after working his shift. Police said Michael Lutz, 17, was an accomplice who did not enter the building. A VIEW from the CLOCK TOWER

Bill Mullendore

Some short shots of comment on the local scene:

The estimate that it will take nearly four years to complete and finally certify a new wastewater treatment plant once a "go" is given is startling at first thought, but further thinking suggests the timetable is probably realistic.

After all, it has taken 11 years to get to the point of being ready to begin. Planning for the new facility began in 1974. Applying that time perspective, another 47 months seems like hurrying up.

The project shouldn't take anywhere near that long, but it likely will. Government is not known for accomplishing anything quickly, except in time of war or other drastic emergency.

Chelsea officials are at the mercy of the federal and state bureaucracies, consulting engineers and attorneys. None of those is noted for speed, and the pace of village government can most charitably be described as cautiously paced. It's seldom that anything happens fast. The built-in system calls for a lot of deliberation and delay, which is nobody's fault, really, but it can be exasperating when something urgently needs to be done.

Chelsea has needed a modern sewage plant for a long, long time—a period measured in decades rather than years. The existing inadequate facility is a severe restraint on economic growth. One can only hope that the state will finally give the green light and the countdown on the 47-month timetable started.

When it comes to delays, Amtrak is setting some kind of a record for foot-dragging in its promised sale of the old Chelsea railroad station to the Chelsea Depot Association.

All that is needed is a signature on a drawn-up agreement that has been kicking around in the Amtrak offices for months. Both parties have endorsed the terms. It has been a mighty frustrating experience for the local group which wants to buy the depot and do something with it before it rots away. Every day that goes by makes the repair and rehabilitation task more difficult.

Amtrak's stalling has extended through the summer season during which work on the outside of the building might have been done. It is highly doubtful that much could be accomplished yet this year if the sales agreement were signed tomorrow.

What is incredible is that Amtrak officials have so far disregarded the efforts of Congressman Carl Pursell to expedite the sale. Pursell has considerable clout as a member of the appropriations committee which determines Amtrak's federal subsidy required to keep operating. If he can't get their attention, who can? One begins to wonder if even President Reagan could get Amtrak off the dime.

Village trustee Mac Fuls and I have an honest difference of opinion on the requirement that utility lines in Chelsea's industrial park be put underground. Fuls has suggested that the rule may be too strict and therefore scaring off potential new businesses.

He has a point, in the sense that it costs considerably more money to bury utility lines than to string them overhead. Development costs are a prime consideration for any business looking for a place to locate. There is keen—even cut-throat—competition among local units of government to attract new industry. Chelsea is into a game of hard-ball, and has not so far scored very many runs.

I don't think the solution lies in softening the rules, and hope the authorities stick to their original concept which calls for a clean-looking, attractive industrial park. Utility poles and wires don't contribute to that image. I believe that a policy of keeping the park visually pleasing will pay off in the long run.

What the village does need to do is promote the industrial park much more vigorously than it has to date. Potential buyers of lots in the park aren't going to come around knocking on the door begging for the opportunity to come in. They are going to have to be sought out and sold on the idea.

Too much faith has been placed in the Washtenaw Development Council to do the selling job. There are no doubt benefits to membership in the WDC, and it is not suggested that the village should withdraw from it. However, the WDC is making a county-wide sales pitch. Its aim is to attract new business into Washtenaw county, not specifically to Chelsea. The village needs to supplement the WDC effort with energetic promotion at the local level. That, rather than relaxing the rules at the industrial park, should be the next step. It would cost some money, but it could pay off.

A newsman assumes considerable risk these days by commenting on a legal matter that is still pending in the courts, and so I am going to be very careful about what I write concerning the Kozminski involuntary servitude case. Judges issue contempt citations at the drop of a hat these days. Freedom of the press has been narrowed considerably in recent years, thanks to a series of adverse legal decisions made and sustained by the highest courts in the land.

So, I will simply say I am convinced that the full story of the Kozminski matter is yet to be told. When the case is finally decided—and it will take a long time if an appeal is made to the U. S. Supreme Court—I hope to have the opportunity to dig out the rest of the story and tell it. Some mighty strange things have come out so far. All my instincts insist there is more to be told.

NOW Meeting Will Feature Two Prominent Women

Erma Henderson, Detroit Council president, and Edith Swanson, a teacher at Willow Run Community Schools' Edmonson Middle school and a member of the National Education Association's board of directors, will be guest speakers at the Tuesday, Sept. 10 meeting of the Ann Arbor/Washtenaw County chapter of the National Organization for Women.

They will discuss their experiences at this summer's concluding conference marking the end of the "United Nations Decade of Women," held in Nairobi, Kenya.

Swanson, one of two women selected by the NEA to attend the conference, and Henderson were involved in the Non-Governmental Organization Forum section of the gathering which included 13,000 representatives from 150 nations.

The meeting will be held at the First Unitarian Universalist church, 1917 Washtenaw, Ann Arbor. A social half-hour with refreshments precedes the meeting which begins at 7:30 p.m.

The public is welcome. For more information call the NOW office at 995-5494.

Mrs. Margaret Dietle and Mrs. Leora Noll leave tomorrow by plane for a seven-week tour during which they will visit points of interest in 10 European countries.

The sophomore class float, with Laurel Hanson as the queen candidate, won first place in the youth activities and school category of Saturday's Community Fair parade.

Ellen Merkel and Carol Hepburn attended the State 4-H Show, Monday and Tuesday of last week, in Lansing.

The Bollinger family brought their two-seater top buggy with a clothesline stuck on behind for "dad's long-handled underwear" to the Chelsea Fair parade.

The children, dressed in potato sacks and following the buggy on foot, brought chuckles all along the parade line of march. Judges gave the entry honorable mention, saying it added considerable interest to the event.

Thursday, Sept. 6, 1951—Doris and Arlene Haist, their father, Erwin Haist, and their grandfather, George Haist, all exhibited sheep at the Michigan State Fair in Detroit this weekend and all were getting top honors in various divisions.

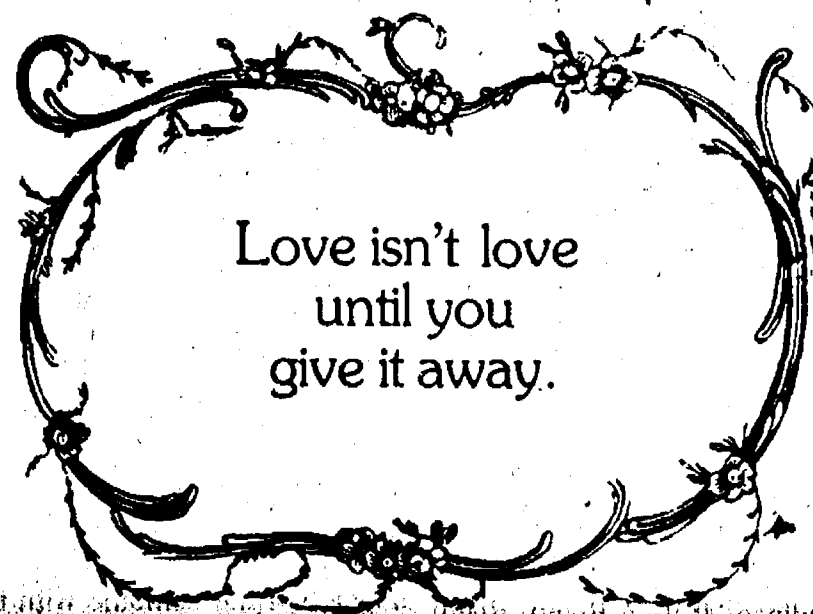

At latest reports yesterday, the girls had received two champion awards and two reserve champion awards in the junior show, and their father and grandfather had been tied for the banner award on their Blacktop Delaine Merino sheep. In final judging the Haists lost out on the banner.

Competition was unusually keen on all sheep, more animals being exhibited this year than ever before and all fine quality stock.

Doris exhibited Corriedales while others of her family featured the Blacktop Delaine Merinos. The girls' brother, Kenneth, helped them with the care of their sheep at the fair and also helped show them.

Music appreciation classes at the Chelsea Public Library will be resumed Wednesday evening, Sept. 12, with the Rev. David Bryce, pastor of the Methodist church, presenting the topic, "Symphonic Poems."

The music appreciation classes were very well received when they were presented last spring as a new project at the library. It was pointed out that it is not necessary to have attended any of the spring classes to take part in the series now beginning.

Record Bid for Top Lamb Leads Fair Livestock Auction

Prices paid for champion livestock at the Chelsea Community Fair were generally up from a year ago, topped by the record $11 a pound paid for the grand champion lamb.

Joe Merkel, owner of Wolverine Food and Spirits, won out in the bidding for the top lamb, owned and exhibited by Lori Nixon. Last year's champion lamb brought $9 a pound, which was a record at the time.

The grand champion hog went for $4.50, more than double last year's top price of $2 but below the record $6 set in 1983. The prize-winner, shown by Kathryn Morgan, was bought by Polly's Market.

Ryan Nixon's grand champion steer was bid in by Dr. W. C. Lane for $1.80 a pound, up from $1.60 for the price paid for the winner a year ago. The all-time record is $3.

One reason that the steers earned conservative prices may be that the animals keep getting bigger, thanks to the introduction of new breeds such as Charolais which weigh up to 1,400 pounds when ready for market. A champion steer sold at auction costs more than $2,000.

The reserve champion lamb went for $8.50 a pound. Owned by John Heller, the animal was bought by Polly's Market.

Lamb prices began to drop after that. The championship pen (two lambs) and the reserve champion pen were sold for $2.50 a pound to Gambles and Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home, respectively.

Those prices are deceptive in the sense that the grand champion lamb was, in effect, entered twice—once as an individual and again as part of a pen. The same thing happened in hogs.

A record number of lambs was entered, and they brought high prices, the best ever on average at the fair. Lowest price paid was $1.50, and some of the lower-placed animals were bid in for as much as $4.

Hog prices also ranged higher than a year ago. Lowest price paid was 90 cents a pound, a nickel more than last year.

Eddie Monaghan's reserve champion individual hog went for $4.25 to Domino Farms. Polly's Market bought Kathryn Morgan's grand champion pen at $9.50, and Klink Excavating Co. bid in Pam Brassow's reserve champion pen for $2. Lowest price paid for a hog that made the price list was 95 cents a pound.

Hogs entered in the fair were on the heavy side. Several would have been disqualified under rules of the state fair, which put top weight at 260 pounds.

Steer prices ranged from the top $1.80 paid for the grand champion down to 95 cents. Low price last year was 80 cents.

The reserve champion, shown by John Heller, went to Polly's Market for $1.40.

The high price paid was for the very last steer put up for auction. It was bought for $1.80 by William Bott representing Citizens Trust. Marty Heller was the lucky winner in an unusual set of circumstances.

Bott had promised his bank employees cuts of choice beef from prize stock. He bid in one steer at $1.05, then realized very late in the game that he needed another one to fulfill his commitments.

He had another person bidding against him for the last steer offered for sale, and wound up paying as much for it as the grand champion brought.

"I could have bought the champion and gotten my name in the paper," Bott said afterward. He got his name in anyway, but it cost him a little more than he had bargained for.

A complete list of sellers, weight of animals, price per pound and purchasers follows.

Humane Society Names Director

The board of directors of the Humane Society of Huron Valley has announced the appointment of Julie L. Morris as executive director of the society.

Board president Paul Kuwik said, "It was the unanimous decision of the board to appoint Ms. Morris as executive director for the society. It was with our deepest regrets that we accepted the resignation of Susan J. Schurman, but we are looking forward, with great excitement, to the professional leadership that Morris will provide to our society in the years to come. Morris brings to this position a long history of experience in animal welfare and organizational management."

Morris began her career at HSHV as a shelter worker seven years ago in March, 1978. Since that time she has held a variety of positions within the organization, including assistant shelter manager, director of community education and most recently associate director. Morris holds a bachelor of science degree from Michigan State University in zoology and a secondary teaching certificate from Eastern Michigan University. In addition, Morris has attended Bowling Green State University in Ohio and Eastern Michigan University for graduate studies in secondary education and psychology. She is active in numerous animal-related organizations, including the Ann Arbor Dog Training Club and the Michigan Federation of Humane Societies.

Schurman, who had been the Society's director since September, 1980, has accepted a position at the University of Michigan's Institute of Labor and Industrial Relations.

August Ends On Cool Note

August ended on a cool note, and September entered the same way, but advance forecasts suggest that we may get some summer after all.

Temperatures are expected to reach into the high 80's later in the week.

August produced 5.5 inches of rain, about twice the normal amount for the month, and was unusually cool, with day-time highs reaching as high as 85 on only three days.

Housing Bureau for Seniors Seeking Volunteer Help

The Housing Bureau for Seniors, which offers counseling about housing options for senior citizens, is currently holding its annual fall drive for volunteer counselors.

Volunteers are trained to provide a variety of services, including information on housing for older adults, or assistance in exploring the range of choices that exist for independent or semi-independent living. They can also arrange matches for those wishing to share housing, or help find home services for those who need them.

Exploring housing options is one way older adults and their families can come to terms with their particular life situation. "A person forced into an ideal living situation fares little better than the person living in a poor situation," claims Carolyn Hastings, executive director of the bureau. The Housing Bureau attempts to identify various housing options, thereby enhancing the choices for those affected.

Outreach sites throughout Washtenaw county, and local workshops designed to help seniors and their families review their housing needs, are planned for this next year. Volunteers will be involved in the design and implementation of these and other information projects.

If you are interested in becoming a volunteer counselor with the Housing Bureau for Seniors, please contact the bureau at 763-0970 by Sept. 9. A screening interview will be arranged, after which free training in housing counseling will be provided.

The Housing Bureau for Seniors, located at 1010 Wall St., Ann Arbor, is affiliated with the Turner Geriatric Clinic of the University of Michigan Hospitals. Funding for the project is provided by local organizations and businesses, government grant, private donations, and University of Michigan Hospitals.

Here's a moose of a story. There's evidence the charmingly homely creature early French explorers dubbed "l'original" has returned for good in the Northeast, says National Wildlife magazine. Yes! More than 25,000 moose now live in Maine. That's a 10-fold increase over the past 50 years.

BookCrafters Observing 20th Anniversary

BookCrafters is celebrating 20 successful years in September. Presently employing over 400 in Chelsea and Frederickburg, Va., BookCrafters has enjoyed steady growth during the past 20 years.

William G. Nuffer, president of BookCrafters, founded the company, then known as LithoCrafters, in Ann Arbor in 1965. Housed in a small building on Industrial Highway, LithoCrafters originally employed 20 people to print and bind books.

By 1967, growth forced a move to larger facilities on Jackson Rd. between Ann Arbor and Chelsea. The addition of case binding equipment in 1968 enabled LithoCrafters to offer complete book manufacturing services.

In 1971, American Business Products, Inc., an Atlanta-based New York Stock Exchange company became the owner of LithoCrafters. Continued success resulted in the opening of a new manufacturing facility in 1972 located in Frederickburg, Va. This sister company, BookCrafters, boasted a state-of-the-art, fully automated Cameron belt press.

Moving to its present location in Chelsea in 1977, LithoCrafters prospered in the new and supportive industrial climate. In 1979, LithoCrafters of Chelsea and BookCrafters of Virginia merged to form the new company known today as BookCrafters.

Today BookCrafters operates sales offices in California, New York, Chicago, and Washington, D.C., as well as three divisions. These divisions include the Chelsea plant and headquarters, the Virginia plant, and the Distribution Center located in Chelsea's Industrial Park and recently completed in 1985.

BookCrafters manufactures books of every category including trade, scientific, religious, educational, and technical for corporate giants to individuals printing a book for the first time.

Proposal To Solve Trinkle Rd. Flooding Shaped for Sept. 17

A decision remains to be made by the County Road Commission on what to do about the flooding problem on Trinkle Rd. between Freer and Fletcher Rds.

"We have a report from our soils consultant and are studying it," chief engineer Fletcher Desautels said. "The report appears to support the idea of installing synthetic fiber mats to correct the condition."

"We are meeting with suppliers of the synthetic material and expect to have a report and recommendation ready to present to the Board of County Road Commissioners at their meeting on Sept. 17."

"I can't give you a cost estimate until we have some more definite figures, but it looks like our best bet to take care of the situation at reasonable cost."

Members of the County Road Commission staff are very cautious about what they say publicly these days, following a recent shake-up in which Thomas

J. Vaillencourt was demoted from managing director to assistant engineer.

Michael Anderson has been appointed acting managing director pending appointment of a permanent director. Desautels kept his position as chief engineer.

Complicating the situation is the Board of County Commissioner's insistence on getting into the act of selecting a new director, which is legally none of their business.

The county commissioners appoint the three road commissioners, but their authority to control road board ends right there.

The road body is made up of chairman Norman E. Kennedy of Ypsilanti, vice-chairman Herman L. Koenn of Chelsea, and Ulrich W. Stoll of Ann Arbor.

About 75 applications for the directorship of the Road Commission have been received and, at the insistence of the county commission, have been turned over to Washtenaw personnel director Jasper J. DeMaria for screening.

County board chairman Meri Lou Murray has appointed a 15-member committee to oversee the appointment process, a guarantee that it will take a long time to complete.

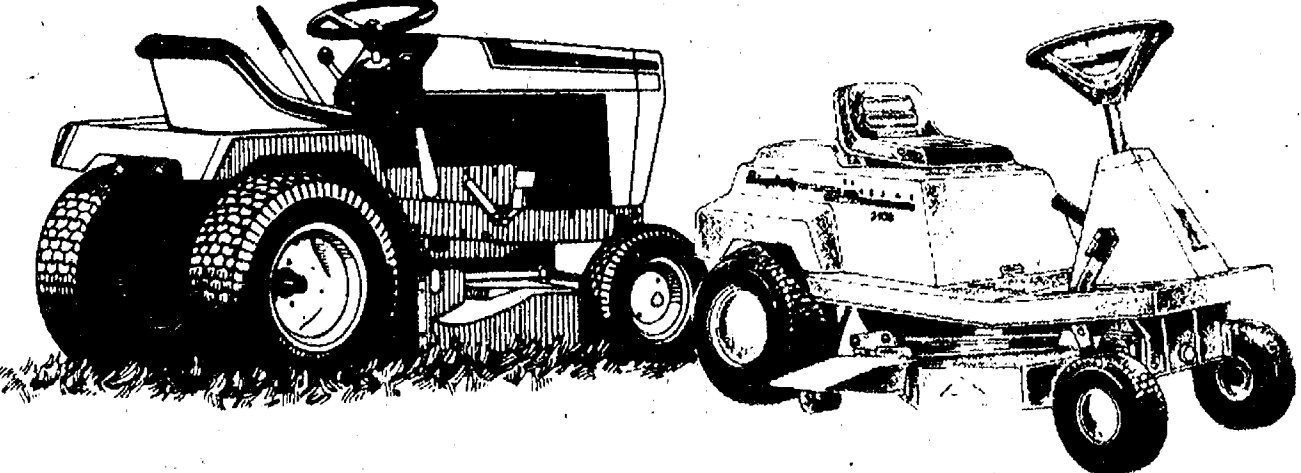

Meanwhile, the Trinkle Rd. flooding continues. The road is under water for a distance of about 500 feet at a low spot through a swamp about a quarter-mile east of Freer Rd. It is a recurring problem that has defied past attempts to solve it permanently.

A deep bed of muck under the flooded stretch has swallowed up periodic dumpings of gravel, and the roadbed has continued to sink below the water line.

Trinkle Rd. remains closed to through traffic between Freer and Fletcher. Residents along the road can reach their homes from either end, but can't drive through the big and treacherous puddle.

Chelsea To Open Grid Season Here Against Brooklyn

With high hopes and an honest shot at the Southeastern Conference championship, Chelsea High's varsity football team will open its season here Friday night against a strong Brooklyn Columbia Central foe which promises to offer a rugged test.

The game will begin at 7:30 p.m. on Niehaus Field, which is in perhaps the best condition that it has ever been, the result of two years of work to make it into an excellent natural-grass playing surface.

The old scoreboard at the south end of the field will be working, athletic director Larry Reed said, although it was touch-and-go for awhile.

"We have repaired it (the scoreboard) one more time and will have all functions operating if nothing else goes wrong. It was put up in 1956, is 29 years old, and is long overdue to be replaced. It broke down during the Blue and Gold scrimmage, but we have it fixed for now. The board is so old that it's hard to find replacement parts."

Reed said he is shopping around for a new scoreboard, which would cost about $6,000, and is also looking for money to purchase it.

"We don't have any money in the budget to buy a new scoreboard and will have to rely on volunteer funds if we get it this year. I have contacted several people and am waiting to hear back from them."

"If we do get the new board, we can have it in place in time for our second football game on Sept. 27 against Lincoln."

"Scoreboards are built to order. Nobody carries them in stock. That's why it would take a few weeks to have a new one installed."

Among other things, the new board would post running times on the Niehaus Field track to the nearest tenth of a second, besides recording scores, downs, yards to go and time left in periods of football.

"We have perhaps the best basic high school athletic facility in this part of the country," Reed noted, "and a new scoreboard is a finishing touch that ought to be added to help make it complete."

Repairs are being made to the pressbox to make it temporarily safe from a structural standpoint, but it still won't be possible to see the ends of the football field except from the roof.

"We definitely need to put up a new, modern pressbox, and it's in the plans," Reed said. "I can't tell you when it will be built, but promise you that it will be. Meanwhile, you won't have to worry about the old one falling down while you are working in it."

Reed said he hopes to announce soon other prospective improvements to the high school athletic plant. "Everybody is very positive and working together to get some needed things done. I have had a lot of co-operation in my new role as athletic director, and I feel good about the way things are going."

Back to Friday's football game—

Class B Columbia Central shapes up as a solid team which will test the Bulldogs. Brooklyn replaces Novi as Chelsea's traditional opening opponent.

"We'll find out right away how good we are," Bulldog coach Gene LaFave said. "All I know about Columbia Central tells me that they are a good team and will come to play. I'm sure they would like to beat us and get some recognition."

"One thing we can't afford to do is look past Brooklyn to our game at Saline the next week. The Saline game is a big one for us, but so is the opener. We have to take them one at a time. The early part of our schedule is very demanding."

The Bulldogs have been touted as among the top contenders for the Southeastern Conference championship, and LaFave has made it plain he doesn't disagree with that appraisal.

"We could be very good if everything comes together and we have some luck," he said. "We have to avoid injuries, especially at some key positions where we don't have much depth."

Defense could be the key to Chelsea's success. The offense, manned mostly by veterans, is expected to be strong with a good balance of passing and running. Most of the defensive unit is untested and will have to prove that it can hold opponents and get the ball for the offense.

Pep Rally Set Tomorrow Night For Grid Team

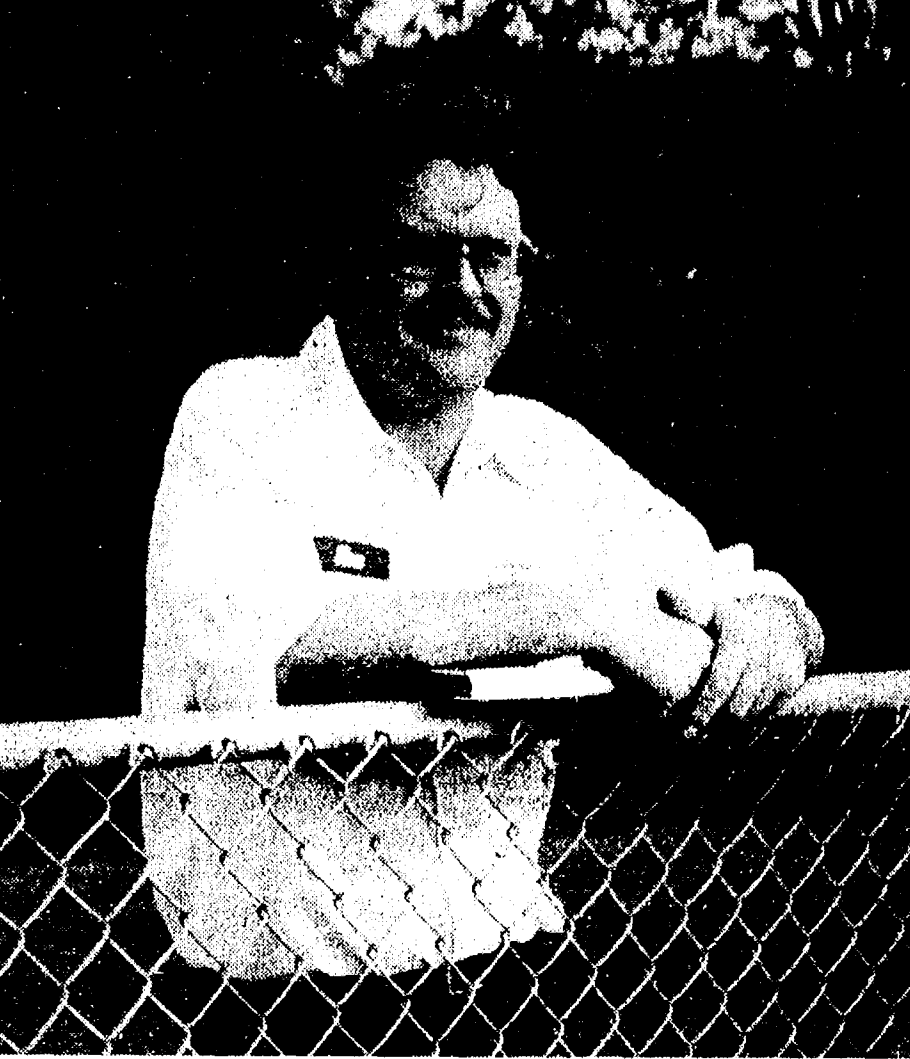

A pep rally to boost the Chelsea High school football team will be held starting at 6:15 p.m. tomorrow on the practice field south of the school.

Coaches and team captains will be present to talk about prospects for the season which will open on Friday here against Brooklyn Columbia Central. Cheerleaders and the pep band will be on hand.

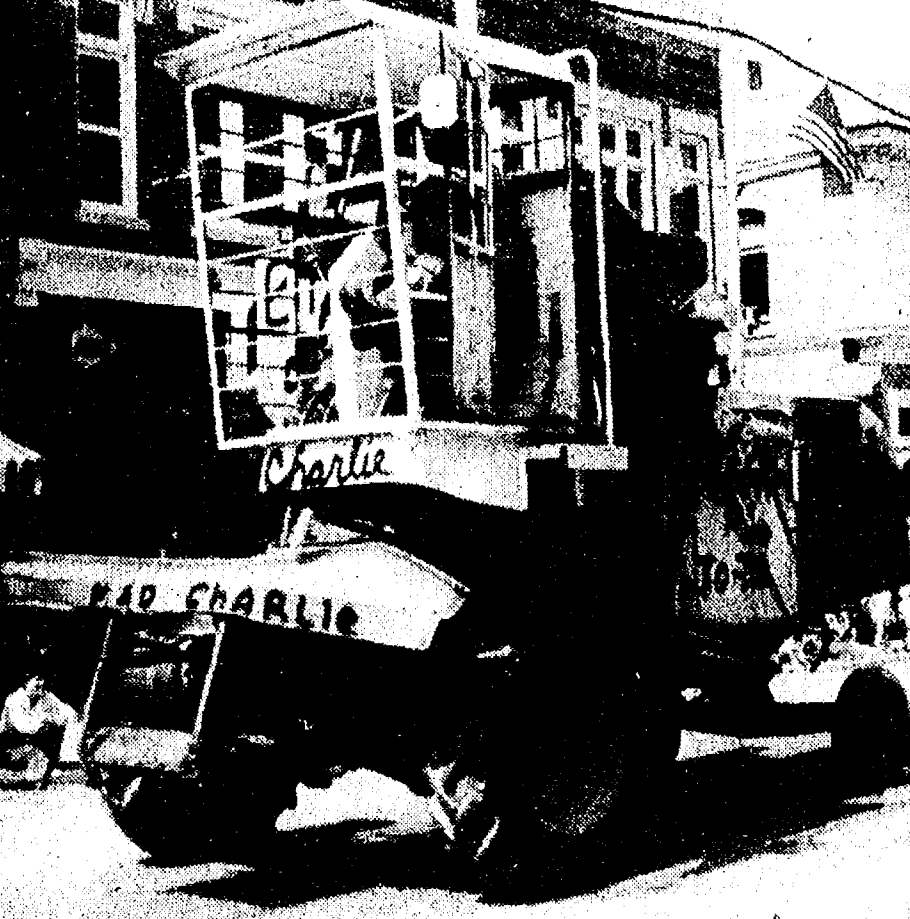

The rally is open to all, and a large turn-out of students, parents and members of the community is hoped for.

MATT VILLEMURE holds the four iron that he used to score a hole-in-one on the 177-yard seventh hole at Inverness Country Club. It was Villemure's second ace. He sank a tee shot on the same hole 12 years ago.

RON SCHUYLER headed up the Chelsea adult recreation softball program, this year, keeping track of both the men's and women's leagues. He is an active player as well as a worker.

CHARLES TRINKLE'S COMBINE is still in good enough shape to drive down Main St. during the fair parade even though it went through a battering as he tied for second place in the combine heat of the Cavalcade of Thrills Demolition Derby last Wednesday night. There were eight contestants in the event. Trinkle tied with Allen Thompson and was beaten by Elmer Diuble.

Mike Foster Leads Softball Champions

Mike Foster, a patrolman in the Chelsea police department, was manager of the McGibney's Bar and Grill team which won the championship in the Ann Arbor Co-Rec softball league.

DEMO DERBY WINNERS: Scott Dault (top) won both the pick-up heat and the feature in last Wednesday night's Demolition Derby at the Chelsea Fair. Tied for second in the pick-up heat were Jim Zenz and Don Marshall (below).

DEMO DERBY WINNERS: Andy Fletcher and Dawn Murphy were the big winners in the Tuesday night Demolition Derby at the Chelsea Community Fair. Fletcher won the feature. Murphy won the Powder Puff heat and was second in the feature.

Golf Team Opens Dual Meet Season

Chelsea's golf team opened its dual meet season at Howell yesterday after competing in three early-season invitational. Results of the Howell meet were not available in time for today's news deadline.

The Bulldog golfers were to play in competition on their home Inverness Country Club course this year for the first time today, matching up against South Lyon.

League competition will begin next Tuesday, Sept. 10, in a double-dual meet against Dexter and Saline at Inverness.

The young Chelsea squad performed well in the three invitational, at Lakeshore, Jackson, County Western and Tecumseh. Jon Lane, Rob Murrell, Matt Kemp, Tom Roth and Greg Boughton emerged as the "top five" scores in the early going, with Lane leading the way.

The Bulldogs placed a respectable ninth in a field of 18, including several Class A teams, at the Lakeshore Invitational. Roth was sixth in individual scoring.

Lane had an 81, good for 20th place, as the Bulldogs came in 16th as a team in the 24-school Western Invitational. Murrell shot 84, Roth 87, Kemp 88 and Boughton 89.

Western won that meet, and repeated with a victory at the Tecumseh Invitational, in which Chelsea finished ninth out of 11 teams over the very tough Tecumseh Country Club course.

Lane carded 87, Murrell 88, Boughton 91 and Kemp 94.

Saline, Tecumseh and Pinckney have so far shown themselves to be the top teams in the Southeastern Conference, followed by Chelsea, Milan, Dexter and Lincoln.

The Bulldogs are in a rebuilding year under new coach Loren Winn, having graduated a fine group of players who won high league and state honors in 1983 and '84.

SPORTS NOTES

BY BILL MULLENDORE

Long ago I learned the folly of trying to predict the outcomes of single sports events, let alone full seasons. If I could do it right with any consistency, I would have been a millionaire many times over.

Gambling on athletics, from the professional leagues right on down through high school, is a multi-billion-dollar business, and the odds favor bookies who make their illegal living at it. They protect themselves by jiggering the point spreads so that they can't lose no matter what happens.

Legal gambling, such as the Michigan lottery, is similar. When somebody is taking 55 percent off the top and paying out only 45 percent in prize money, there is no way you can win over the long haul unless you are awfully lucky, make a big "hit," and quit.

You can't beat the odds at the race track with the state skimming 20 percent of the cream off the pari-mutuel pool. Your best bet may be bingo. The take off the top is only five percent, so the odds against you are 20-19 going in.

All that said, I will venture a few cautious guesses about some football teams of local interest. Don't bet on them. I certainly won't.

Let's start from the premise that you don't win football games without football players. The greatest coach who ever lived can't turn an inferior team into a winner. If he doesn't have the horses, he is going to be a loser. So, don't bet on coaches. If you must gamble, put your money on players.

Detroit Lions—New coach Darryl Rogers has made a good impression by creating some kind of order out of what has been chaos for the past several years. He appears to have his troops organized to the point where they know when they are supposed to go out on the field and do what, and that is an improvement. The Lions for a long time have been the sloppiest, most disorganized, most penalized team in pro football.

That's the good news. The bad news is that the Lions just plain don't have the personnel to be champions. They will be going once again with second-flight quarterbacks and a questionable corps of receivers. Their failure to land Anthony Carter when he was up for grabs tells me that the management is still more interested in nursing nickels than in acquiring quality players.

Billy Sims, the Lions' chief offensive threat as both a runner and pass receiver, probably won't play at all this year and may never play again, thanks to a nasty knee injury suffered last fall that hasn't healed. Don't look for anybody on the Detroit roster to take his place, or even come close.

If the Lions manage a break-even season, they will be doing very well indeed.

University of Michigan—It's been a long time since the Wolverines went into a season figured to be also-rans. They are unranked and unheralded. All the prognostications that I have seen put Michigan somewhere in the middle of the Big Ten pack, with championship and major bowl possibilities somewhere between slim and none.

Coach Bo Schembechler is one of the winningest coaches in college football, but he suffered through a break-even 6-6 season a year ago, his worst ever. Injuries hurt, but the truth is that the 1984 Wolverines just plain weren't quite as good as the opponents that beat them.

Jim Harbaugh may or may not be a topnotch college quarterback. He didn't get a chance to prove himself last year before he went out for the season with an injury. The Wolverines are thin in pass receivers, and passing is the name of the game in college these days. Nor do they appear to have the power runners who can control the ball and grind out sustained drives.

Much is being made of a supposedly outstanding crop of freshman recruits. Even if they turn out to be as good as they are cracked up to be, freshmen won't win very many, if any, games for Michigan this fall.

Starting out as a darkhorse not figured to be big winners may help the Wolverines. They could sneak up on and surprise some teams that will be heavily favored. Their schedule is murderous, maybe the toughest in the nation.

Putting it all together, a 6-5 regular season and an invitation to a minor bowl is probably as much as Michigan can realistically hope for.

Chelsea High school—The Bulldogs have the potential to be very good. I believe coach Gene LaFave when he says this fall's squad is possibly the best at Chelsea during his seven years here, in terms of talent.

The Bulldogs figure to have an outstanding aerial game with proven quarterback Dan Bellus throwing to an excellent group of receivers. The rushing attack, which was so-so last year, looks to be better. Defense is a question mark until several new players prove themselves.

If Chelsea can get past arch-rival Saline in its second game of the campaign on Sept. 13 there, it could be an outstanding season for the Bulldogs. It's too bad that such a key contest comes so early on the schedule. Chelsea looks to be a team that will get rapidly better game by game.

A Southeastern Conference championship is by no means out of the realm of reason, especially if the Bulldogs beat Saline. Certainly Chelsea should improve on its 4-5 1984 record.

Dexter High school—These are difficult days for Dexter football. The Dreadnaughts were 1-8 last year, but did win their last game after taking some bad lickings.

Second-year coach Rich Grannis has a good but small group of veterans back, and will have to rely heavily on newcomers including sophomores and possibly even freshmen to fill out the squad. Lack of size and experience definitely are problems.

Grannis is rebuilding a program that has been floundering for the past several years. The guess here is that the Dreadnaughts are at least another year away from a winning season, but will be better than they were in 1984.

THE POWDER PUFF HEAT was the opening of the Cavalcade of Thrills Demolition Derby last Tuesday night and the women proved they could handle the automobiles as well as the men. Above, Debbie Schantz, in left car, collides with Theresa Broderick early in the heat. One of the winners of the heat, Dawn Murphy, went on to place second in the feature heat, in direct competition with the men.

in showmanship; Val Muck aboard Velvet Val, judged grand champion of horses; Kim Gregory riding Billy, grand champion pony.

Wurster, Carey Schiller, Annette Wurster, "Bif," played by Eddie GreenLeaf, Joelle Armentrout, Casey Schiller, Jodi Armentrout, Jodi Rainey, Angela Dove, David Buku, Heather GreenLeaf, Rob Lyerla, and Kathy GreenLeaf, coach.

Dundee Teams Claim Top Spots in Horseshoe Pitching

Two teams from the Dundee Horseshoe Club took the top spots in the horseshoe pitching contest at the Chelsea Fair last Saturday.

Chelsea's Al Grammatico and Grass Lake's Jack Richmond took third place.

The first place team was composed of Frank Pentieris and Chuck Brososky. Second place went to Larry McCrea and Gil Jaeger.

Like many big animals, bison like to scratch their hides on tree trunks or rocks. It helps keep them clean. This habit proved a problem for 19th century communications across the North American West, says International Wildlife magazine. Telegraph poles looked just like trees to itchy bison. The shaggy animals scratched, poles and lines went down and the telegraph crews were busy repairing the mess.

FACE PAINTING was one of the activities during the North Lake Co-op Nursery open house recently as parents and children had a chance to see what the nursery is all about. There's a 90 percent return rate for beverage containers in states with deposit laws, reports International Wildlife magazine. That impressive figure may soon prompt Florida, New Jersey and Pennsylvania to join nine other states which already have bottle bills. Some environmentalists believe this will greatly boost the chances of a national law requiring deposits on all beverage cans and bottles.

BEST-LOOKING ENTRIES: Donnie Bollinger (top) had what was judged the best-looking entry in the farm combine heat of the Demolition Derby at the Chelsea Community Fair. Al Roskowski (below) had the best-appearing car. It was kind of too bad that both had to be wrecked in the self-destructing event.

THE PEN HOUSING geese and ducks at the Chelsea fair proved to be a big attraction for mother Kathy Vigue, son Glenn and daughter Barbara. "They are fascinated by animals," Mrs. Vigue said, "and so am I."

Free Methodists OK Fund-Raising Campaign

The Society of the Chelsea Free Methodist church has approved a five-year plan for debt retirement and additional development of buildings.

The finance committee recommended to the official board that a capital stewardship campaign be conducted using the services of Cargill Associates. That action was unanimously approved by the official board.

The programs presented by Cargill Associates are based on sound principles of biblical stewardship. These programs do more than just raise money. The total ministry of stewardship is strengthened as people give with generosity that far outlives the initial program.

The approach which is used by Cargill Associates is no experiment. It has been proven effective time and again. Elements of the program include: a planned giving system, factual promotion, friendship cultivation, church family banquet, commitment response opportunity, follow-through program.

An experience program director, Dr. Fred Lehrer has been assigned to the Chelsea church and he will conduct a pre-campaign survey, design an effective individualized program, guide in the selection of leadership, enlist program leaders, train and motivate leaders and volunteers, supervise the program.

The Capital Stewardship Campaign will begin Sunday, Sept. 8, with a message by Dr. Fred Lehrer.

Volunteer Recognition Picnic Set By Red Cross

Washtenaw County Chapter of the American Red Cross will hold its annual Volunteer Recognition Picnic, Sunday, Sept. 8, at the Chapter headquarters. All of those who have supported the chapter through volunteering or sponsoring Red Cross programs are welcome to attend.

The program will begin at 2 p.m. with activities including a dunk tank, clowns and a magician and special games for children. At 4 p.m. there will be a pot-luck dinner with sloppy joe's and liquid refreshments provided.

At 5 p.m. awards will be presented to all of those who deserve special recognition for their volunteer efforts in support of American Red Cross services and programs. Swim-A-Cross prize winners will also be announced at this time.

At 6 p.m. there will be hot air balloon rides. A Huron Valley ambulance and an Ann Arbor fire engine will be on display during the entire picnic. There will be an unscheduled appearance by the Survival Flight and Air Two helicopters.

Washtenaw County Chapter is located at 2729 Packard Rd. near Eisenhower adjacent to Buhr park in Ann Arbor.

Traffic Slowdown In Effect Near Weber's On Jackson Ave.

Eastbound and westbound traffic on one-half mile of Interstate 94 Business Loop (Jackson Ave.) in the city of Ann Arbor, from the I-94 overpass west to Weber's Inn, is slowed by intermittent lane closures for the addition of a left turn lane, the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) said today.

One lane of traffic will be open in each direction at all times. The work is estimated to be completed by Nov. 15.

LEADING THE CHELSEA CHARMS were Jeremy Feldkamp carrying the flag, and Ryan Dunlap, toting the rifle. Jeremy is the son of Reuben Feldkamp and Ryan is the son of Tom Dunlap.

MISS MICHIGAN OF 1984, Barbara Crandall, delighted a Ladies Day audience with her ventriloquism performance. Barbara showed her humor and diversity with two different dummies—Grandma, and the one you see above. She closed her performance with the dummy singing a tricky rendition of "The Auctioneer's Song."

THE LAYHER FAMILY was in the spotlight at the Dancer's Fashion Show during Ladies Day last Friday at the Chelsea Fair. Above, Jeff pulls his twin daughters, Erin Michell and Sarah Louise while Karen pulls up the rear. The entire family was modeling jogging suits. Several hundred women filled the stands for the morning's events.

BEING A JUDGE for the baked goods competition at the Chelsea Fair involves a lot of eating. And that's just what Lucinda McCalla, left, and Jane Sias did. Since they were judges for both the youth and junior divisions, they had to test more than 200 entries. Pepto Bismol, anyone?

JANICE MARTIN was named Homemaker of the Year in the senior division during Ladies Day activities at the Chelsea Fair last Friday. Janice proved superior in a number of categories that she entered.

ELIZABETH MAURER was named Junior Homemaker of the Year during Ladies Day activities last Friday at the Chelsea Fair. Elizabeth entered the categories of antiques, baked goods, needlework and hobbies. Entrants must enter four of seven categories.

PHYLLIS BROKAW gave an informative demonstration during Ladies Day about cooking in the microwave oven, with emphasis on how to prepare beef. Brokaw, a freelance home economist, prepared several dishes, including a roast beef, stuffed mushrooms, and sweet and sour meatballs.

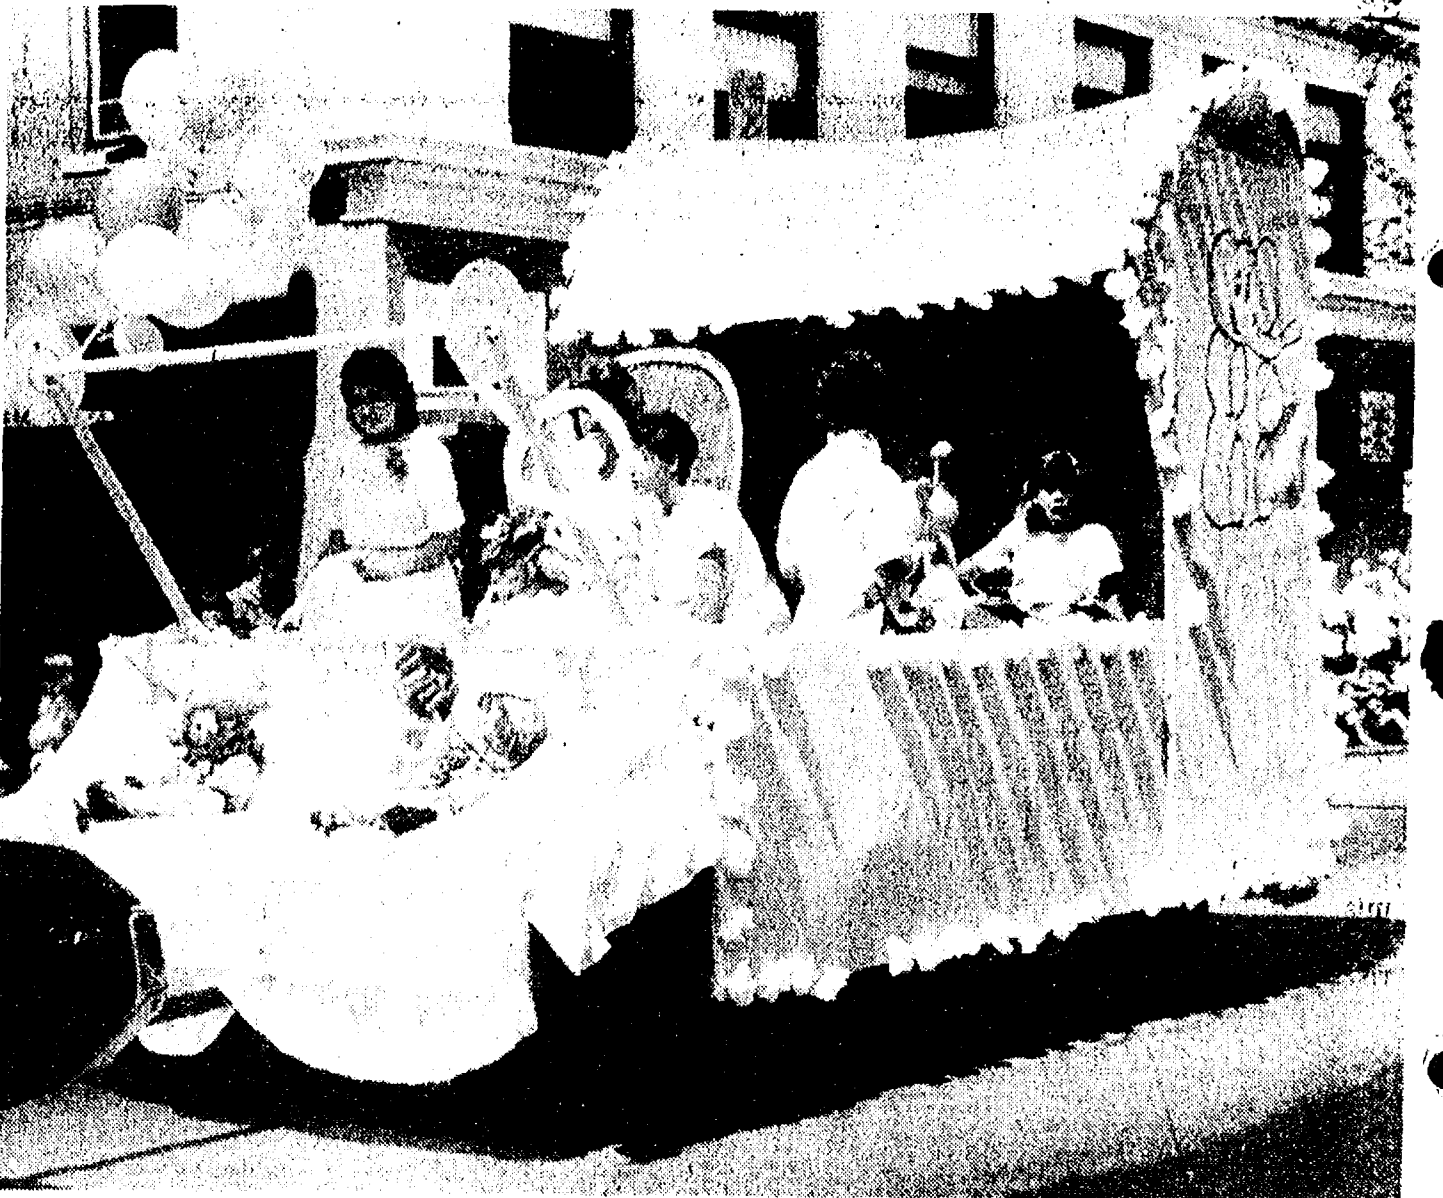

CYNTHIA BEAR, chosen as Woman of the Year by the Chelsea Chapter, American Business women's Association, rode in the Chelsea Community Fair Parade last Saturday.

HEIDI HOSNER, one of the fair queen candidates, is the center of attraction in the Chelsea Big Boy float. Hosner, in the white dress, was sponsored by the restaurant. This float took fourth place in the adult division. From left are Beth Ann Goss, Hosner, Jon Bristle, Alan Fineran, and Julie Worden. Walking beside the float is Cary Walkowe.

JENNIFER KOCH and Dan Elrod took the top two places in the 9-12 age bracket in the Children's Parade last Tuesday. This age bracket had a lot of entries and a lot of stiff competition, but these children prevailed.

JESSICA HEATON took third place in the finals of the tricycle race for three-year-olds last week during Kid's Day events at the Chelsea Fair. Jessica made the final heat by qualifying second in her initial heat.

THE GUENTHER BOYS, Jeremy, left, and Ryan, took third place in the miscellaneous division of the Children's Parade as Bo Peep and a single sheep. Judges had their hands full as children jammed the Municipal Parking Lot to take part in the annual event.

THEY DIDN'T DROP IT ONCE. Jeannie Moullestle shows off the egg that she and teammate Tom Goetz used to win the egg toss for ages 6-7 during Kids Day last Tuesday at the Chelsea Fair. More than a dozen pairs of children entered the contest, which didn't last more than a few minutes but produced a few messy accidents.

ED VASAS, one of the winners of the fourth heat on the first night of the Cavalcade of Thrills Demolition Derby, has his car towed during the Chelsea Fair Parade. Vasas went on the feature heat that night but didn't place.

LOWELL SPIKE of Grass Lake was the Grand Champion in the hobbies competition with this handcrafted cradle entitled "Noah's Ark." All the animals in the ark were hand carved and showed both sexes of each animal on opposite sides of each piece.

THIS FANCY QUILT, more than 100 years old, was the Grand Champion in the antiques exhibit. The quilt, found in Alice Vogel's attic, was made by a number of area women, and their initials are sewn into it in various places. Initials representing families like Congdon and Palmer can be found. The quilt was in such good condition that it looked as though it could have been completed yesterday.

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS of the fair board and their spouses piled on to a flat bed and took one of the few moments of rest they had for the entire week. The officers and directors were William Stoffer, president; Jerry Herrick, vice-president; Lloyd Grau, executive vice-president; Maryann Guenther, secretary; and Debbie Stapish, treasurer. Also included were Archie Bradbury, Richard Bollinger, James Dault, Tom Dault, Harold Gross, Earl Heller, Jerry Heydlaff, Gary Houle, John Klink, Charles Koenn, Jeff Layher, Reuben Lesser, Ralph McCalla, Joe Merkel, III, Bill Nixon, Mark Stapish, Harold Triickle, and Edson Whitaker.

BOB FITZSIMMONS of Chelsea took a first place award in the hobbies exhibit with this hand-crafted horsedrawn wagon. The wagon and horse reins were all hand-made. Fitzsimmons had two other entries, one of which took a second place.

THE DOLETZKYS OF DEXTER brought some family and friends to the Chelsea Fair parade on their vintage tractor that Earl and Arthur Doletzky used for thrashing many years ago. Up front, in the cab, are Dick Doletzky, left, and Jim Finch of Chelsea. On the wagon, among others, are Earl Doletzky, in the cowboy hat, Jim and Mary Ennis, Ruth Doletzky, Tecla Doletzky, Mary Ann Doletzky, and Dick Miller.

THIS HEFTY PUMPKIN was the largest vegetable entered in the agricultural exhibits in last week's Chelsea Fair. Arthur Kuhl was the man who nurtured it along. No one knew exactly how much it weighed, but there was no other entry even close to it in size.

A STRANGE-LOOKING ASPARAGUS PLANT won a prize at the Chelsea fair for Joseph Hafner. The plant is unusually thick-stemmed and doesn't look much like the tender shoots that people eat in the spring.

UNITED WAY HONORARY CHAIRPERSONS: Charles and Helen Lancaster, co-chairpersons of the Chelsea United Way campaign, rode in the fair parade.

THE NEW PICNIC TABLES and benches placed around the Chelsea fairgrounds got a lot of favorable attention and use. Bruce Baron, Dena Stevens and Kristina Steffenson found this one a good place to sit and relax.

Sweet Adelines Prepare For Fall Show on Sept. 7

The evening will be further enhanced by guest performances by the "Ivy League" a men's quartet from the Ann Arbor area, "Top Priority," third place Sweet Adeline International Medalists and "A Touch of Magic" 1985 championship quartet winners from Region 2, and many of the choruses other chapter quartets will be performing as well.

THIS HAS BEEN A GOOD YEAR for growing things, and some mighty big vegetables were entered in the Chelsea Community Fair. The two photos show a small sample of an impressive display. The large object in the lower picture is a head of broccoli that has begun to bloom out.

THESE RASCALS IN THE PEANUT GALLERY ranked each of the models in Dancer's Fashion Show during Ladies Day festivities, similar to the way gymnasts and figure skaters are rated. However, the thumbs up and down signs added a humorous twist to the proceedings. The men generally got the lowest marks from the all-male judges. Of course, their judgments were all in fun.

CHELSEA HIGH SCHOOL'S state softball champions were a relaxed group as they rode in the Chelsea Community Fair parade. The man in the cap, riding in the trailer with his legs hanging out, is coach Charlie Waller, the most successful athletic coach in Michigan in terms of won-lost records.

JULIE STACEY, the Kiwanis Club's fair queen candidate, sits amid a dazzling array of flowers on a simple, yet elegant float. The fair queen candidates, as usual, rode on some of the best of the floats.

MICHELE GUENTHER exhibited the duck which was judged grand champion of poultry at the Chelsea fair. Holding the bird is Mickey O'Neill, superintendent of the poultry department at the fair.

"BIG, BAD" JON HERRST was the star of the rabbit exhibition as he had two separate Grand Champions. The New Zealand White on the left was the Grand Champion in the over 10 pound division and the "Best of Rabbit Show." The Black Rex was the Grand Champion in the under 10 pound class. The white rabbit was also the first place winner in the senior doe over 10 pounds while the black rabbit was the first place winner in the junior doe under 10 pounds.

Tax Reform Will Help Farmers, Says USDA

Most farmers would be better off under President Reagan's tax reform proposals, according to a new study by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Ron Durst of the USDA Economic Research Service said that if the proposals are adopted, and estimated three-fourths of all farmers would be taxed at the lowest, 15% rate. Currently, he said only about half of the farmers pay at that rate or below.

Some people thought that they could ensure more milk from their cows if they put green branches around their houses.

Farmland Values Continue To Drop

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reports that farmland prices are continuing to decline in the second quarter of this year, dropping 4.6% from three months earlier and a full 20% below a year ago. Declines varied considerably in different parts of the district. Illinois reported the sharpest drop, more than 6.5%, in the recent quarter. Iowa, which had recorded the steepest declines in the past several quarters, found only a 5% drop, while the district portion of Michigan found land values down 4%, and Indiana and Wisconsin with 3% drop for the quarter. Compared to a year ago, the range of decline ran from 12% in Michigan to nearly 26% in Iowa.
