Council Accepts Bid For New Dump Truck

Chelsea Village Council accepted a bid by Palmer Ford Co. for a new public works dump truck at its regular meeting June 3.

Palmer Ford's bid of $22,615.84 was the lowest of five submitted that met all specifications prescribed by the village. Varsity Ford of Ann Arbor submitted the second lowest bid at $22,946. Other bidders included Lee GMC of Lansing, Y International Trucks, and Great Lakes Ford.

The truck will be equipped with both a plow and a blade scraper for snow removal, according to Village Manager Fritz Weber.

In other village council news, the council renewed the village's pole attachment agreement with Clear Cablevision, Inc., the supplier of cable television service to Chelsea. Under the agreement, the company will pay Chelsea $5.50 per pole attachment per year. The new agreement runs through Dec. 31, 1991.

Council voted to extend the sales agreement with BookCrafters, Inc. for two lots in the village's industrial park on Sibley Rd. for 90 days, through Oct. 22 of this year. BookCrafters vice-president of administration Chuck Presley says the company "needs additional time to review the situation," which was the reason for the request. He said the request was neither a positive or negative sign about the company. (Continued on page three)

"WE'RE VERY PROUD OF LESTER," related colleagues at Chelsea Milling Co. Sharing in the celebration of Lester Esch's graduation from Dexter High this week, fellow workers at the plant gave him a gold watch and an engraved plaque. Each of the three shifts at the mill hosted a party honoring Lester. "It was just so nice of them," he said. "The people here are all friendly and hard-working. It's a good place to work," Lester added. He should know, he's a longtime employee at Chelsea Milling Co. Encouraging anyone who has yet to complete the requirements for their high school diploma, Lester has praise for the Adult Education program which allowed him to complete those requirements. It took a lot of hard work, he confirmed, but it's worth it. He addressed his classmates and others attending commencement at Dexter High, Friday evening, June 6, on the athletic field. School Board OKs Budget of $8.16 Million

After a sparsely-attended public hearing Monday night, the Chelsea School Board approved expenditures of $8,166,428 for 1986-87.

The operating budget is based on revenues of $8,189,661, the bulk of that in the form of local tax money. Less than $1 million in total revenues comes from the combination of state and federal aid, and transfers from other programs.

With the passage of the 5.8 mill proposal in the Monday elections, Chelsea's operating millage stands at 38.52 mills.

School Millage Request Ok'd By Voters; Wales, Cherem Named to Board

Chelsea School District voters overwhelmingly approved the school district's request for 5.8 mills in operating millage for three years in Monday's annual school elections.

Also, conservation officer Craig Wales, 58 Chestnut St., and Spring Arbor College assistant professor Barb Cherem, 18255 Cavanaugh Lake Rd., easily beat out nine other candidates for the two open school board seats. Wales drew 758 votes, and Cherem, 530. The next closest candidate, former Chelsea teacher and basketball coach Robin Raymond, received 380 votes.

The millage issue, which combined a 2.9 mill renewal with a 2.9 mill increase into one proposal, passed 1,140 to 717. There were seven invalid ballots. Assistant superintendent Fred Mills apprised the Chelsea School Board, all four principals, and teachers and other interested people gathered in the Beach Middle school media center of the results at 8:45 p.m. Monday. What resulted wasn't quite dancing in the streets, but administrators were obviously relieved.

"It's a good feeling that the millage passed, and that it passed by so many votes," said superintendent Ray Van Meer.

"The voters have shown that they have a good feeling about the schools. There were a lot of people involved in (the millage campaign) and we are grateful for their help. We spread the jobs around, and people were wonderful to support us. We need to acknowledge that."

Van Meer said he had anticipated a total vote of about 2,100, about the same number who voted in the last millage election in 1983. This year 1,964 voted.

"We received more 'yes' votes this time, and about 300 fewer 'no' votes," Van Meer said. "Three years ago, economic conditions were far worse than they are now," which probably made the difference, he said.

In 1983 the millage issue passed by 76 votes as Michigan was in the middle of a recession.

Van Meer attributed part of the millage issue's success on the school district's year-around communications programs, such as "The Chelsea Challenge" newsletter, and the "See For Yourself" school visitation program.

"We're open, very candid, and we can't be accused of waiting until we need something before we communicate," Van Meer said.

Van Meer, who will be installed as president of the Michigan Association of School Administrators June 19, said his group will be pushing for changes in the way out-of-formula school districts are funded by the state.

Out-of-formula districts essentially receive too much local tax money to qualify for additional state aid. Consequently, when property values fall, or don't rise sufficiently, districts like Chelsea find themselves in a financial bind. Van Meer said the failure of property values to rise was the main reason the district had to ask for 2.9 additional mills.

"This question has to be addressed," Van Meer said.

There are a lot of out-of-formula districts like Chelsea being hurt.

Dexter, another out-of-formula district, had its 2.9 mill proposal defeated. Manchester voters passed their millage issue.

Generally speaking, the school board candidates who advertised heavily also drew the most votes. Wales and Cherem, among others, used newspaper advertising and had lawn signs all over town. Raymond, who has a lot of local name recognition partly due to his years as a local teacher and basketball coach, was the exception.

"I'm obviously happy, and I was shocked that I got so many votes," Wales said Tuesday morning. "I'm glad to know people have so much confidence in me. I'm also glad the millage got so many votes. It shows how strongly people support the school system."

Wales said his top priority is maintaining the high quality of Chelsea teachers.

Like Wales, Cherem said she was also surprised at the number of votes she received.

"I thought about 350 votes would be enough to win," she said.

"I didn't think anyone would go above 500."

Cherem said she "ran such a hard race," in terms of her advertising because she was aware that most of the candidates weren't widely known.

The voting breakdown was, Wales, 758, Cherem, 530, Raymond, 380, Tom Flynn, 383, Rochelle Martinez-Mouillesaux, 346, Ray Coulter, 151, Pam Holmway, 147, Robert Kinsel, 145, Barbara Rose, 143, Leonard Kitchen, 117, and Roger Katakowski, 107.

P.S.C. Imposes Long Distance Access Charges

Residential and business customers will pay access charges for long distance calls within Michigan under orders issued recently by the Public Service Commission. The PSC said the $11 million in increased annual access charges would be about offset for some customers by a $13 million reduction in an interim rate hike given last year to AT&T Communications of Michigan.

The PSC also ordered a 27 percent, or $21.6 million, increase in monthly rates for Michigan Bell's private customers. It said the three orders "represent the commission's second opportunity to analyze the proper assessment of telephone and telecommunications service charges necessitated by the breakup of AT&T and the resulting reorganization of the communications industry." The commissioners said the "cost-sensitive conclusions" are applicable only until it is presented with another opportunity to address the issues.

The access charges, effective

June 1, will be 22 cents for customers of Michigan Bell, 29 cents for General Telephone and 37 cents for all other local exchange companies.

The commission, which two years ago opposed federal long distance access charges, said in a statement customers are "direct beneficiaries of access and should reasonably be expected to share some portion of the cost."

The money collected by the telephone companies is to be used to directly reduce the charges they require for connection to long-distance companies such as AT&T, MCI or Sprint.

The AT&T/MCI rate cut was a final order in the case, and terminated a 19.8 percent surcharge customers have been paying since April, 1985.

It was made possible because of the reductions the company will see in access charges to the local telephone companies.

The PSC also authorized Michigan Bell to institute a Value Plus Service that will reduce rates for some large-volume toll customers.

The PSC also authorized Western Union Telegraph Co. to offer long-distance service between the five local access and transportation areas. Michigan Bell and General Telephone are the only others authorized to handle calls that originate and terminate within those areas.

Attorney General Files Suit in Groundwater Pollution Case

Attorney General Frank Kelley has filed suit in federal district court in Grand Rapids seeking to recover for damages plus penalties and reimbursement of state funds to investigate and remedy groundwater pollution in the Battle Creek area.

The action involves three contamination sites identified as sources of the toxic chemicals that polluted water in and around the Verona Well Field, which provides the Battle Creek municipal water supply.

The sites are the former Thomas Solvent Co., Raymond Road Facility, the solvent company's former annex facility and the Grand Trunk Western Railroad Marshalling Yard.

The two solvent facilities were used to store and transfer solvents and other hazardous chemicals until 1984 at which time an earlier suit forced their closure. Grand Trunk has used chemicals for cleaning and maintenance in its marshalling yard.

Kelly said that investigations by the Departments of Natural Resources and Public Health, along with the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency, have identified the sites as sources of "massive" groundwater pollution.

The suit asks the court to order reimbursement for the costs of investigative, enforcement and remedial actions, payment of damages for the injuries to the state's natural resources and payment of civil penalties of $10,000 for each day of violation of the state water pollution law.

DNR Director Gordon E. Guyer said the suit reflects years of investigative and enforcement work on the part of the department and the staff of the attorney general's office.

He said there would be a strengthening of the working relationship between the DNR and the attorney general's office to further protect the environment.

"We will use all appropriate legal means to force those responsible to compensate the people of this state for clean-up costs and damages to our natural resources," Guyer said.

Yours truly,
 Uncle Lew.

Council voted to forward a letter from village attorney Peter Flintoft to the village planning commission concerning zoning problems created by adult bookstores.

Crickets, long the insomniac's enemy, have been considered fortunetellers, doctors, and athletes the world over. International Wildlife magazine reports that Europeans once thought the cricket bite cured warts; the Chinese placed bets on cricket fights; and, the Kayapa Indians in Brazil still believe the song of the cricket portends death.

At auditions in early May, the cast for "Camelot" was selected. Joe Diederich of Chelsea was chosen to play the lead part of King Arthur. Joe has appeared in numerous C.A.P. productions including "South Pacific" and "Annie."

Playing the part of Guenevere is Becky Boeve who last appeared as Agness Gooch in the C.A.P. production of "Mame."

The part of Lancelot will be played by David Andrews who previously played the part of Patrick Dennis in "Mame."

Rounding out the leading roles are Dan Reed as Merlyn, John Williams as Pellinore, Larry Garvin as Mordred, Sue Williams as Morgan Le Fay, and John Vorus as Tom of Warwick.

Also in the cast in other roles or in the chorus are Art Finger, Dan Paulsell, Tom Layher, Dale Cole, Norma Graflund, Sue Schmunk, Julian Vorus, Tammy Browning, Jerri Cole, Susanne McDonough, Sue Saunch, Joann Schnalid, Clara Smith, and Nancy Van Blaricum.

This year's production is being directed by Burnette Staebler. Rehearsals began at Beach Middle School after auditions with a pot-luck dinner for the cast and crew to meet one another. Rehearsals have continued at Beach and will move to the high school auditorium after the end of the school year.

The musical is set to open on July 17 for four performances including an afternoon matinee on Saturday, July 19. As in the past, the opening night performance will be followed by an AfterGlow at a local area home where the theatre-goers will get a chance to socialize and meet the cast. Tickets for the musical and AfterGlow will go on sale later this month.

There are still parts available for young adults and children aged 8 to 18. Auditions will take place for these people at the high school auditorium on June 16 at 7 p.m. There are also many openings backstage for those who want to see what it takes to put on a spectacular production such as "Camelot."

For more information call Pat Paulsell, this year's producer, at 475-9818, or write the Chelsea Area Players, Box 575, Chelsea. Come enjoy the magic of "Camelot" this summer, July 17, 18, 19.

Painting Chosen for Toledo Exhibit

A painting by the daughter of a Chelsea couple was selected for display in the 68th annual Toledo-area artists' exhibit, held May 11 through June 1 at the Toledo Museum of Art.

Rayma Adkisson's canvas titled "Garland and Wreath" was one of over 1,000 entries originally submitted for the exhibit, reported Adkisson's mother, Mrs. Richard J. Smith. Of that total, a jury chose 132. Artists from 17 counties in northwestern Ohio and southeastern Michigan participated.

The painting, done in acrylics on canvas, showed a country village scene at Christmas. Mrs. Smith said her daughter is a self-taught artist.

QUITE A CROWD stood in a steady rain to cash in on the going out of business sale at Stricker's Men's Wear last Thursday morning.

Once the doors opened, it was wall-to-wall people inside, and many shoppers left with as much merchandise as they could carry.

Summer Reading Program Starting

McKune Memorial Library will again have a Summer Reading Program for children, starting June 16 through Aug. 29. The theme of this year's program is "The House of Many Stories."

Where great adventures in reading lie just beyond the door. Children are encouraged to read 14 stories for the summer. Names will be drawn and prizes awarded.

THIS'LL HELP YOU
KEEP YOUR COOL
THIS SUMMER.

This brochure tells you how a heat pump can save you cash—year-round.

A heat pump keeps you cool through a high-tech adaptation of an old reliable appliance—your refrigerator. A refrigerator cools by moving heat from inside the refrigerator to the outside. The more heat moved outside the refrigerator, the colder it gets inside. In the summer, the heat pump works the same way.

By removing heat and humidity from your home, the heat pump provides energy-efficient central air conditioning. And because it provides cool, clean air free of dust and pollen, a heat pump can make a healthy difference in your home.

HEAT PUMP

HEATS & COOLS

How a heat pump saves you cash in winter.

In the winter, it reverses itself to gather heat from the outside air or ground water and moves it inside to comfortably heat your home.

By moving heat, instead of making heat as other conventional furnaces do, the heat pump can reach efficiencies in excess of 180%. Energy savings from a heat pump can range from 15% to 45% of your present oil or propane heating costs.

Estimates based on a typical family home at energy prices effective March, 1986.

Get the Heat Pump brochure. It's available from Consumers Power Company or any of these local heat pump dealers:

A VIEW from the CLOCK TOWER

By Will Connelly

Doesn't it give you a feeling of pride that the Statue of Liberty is being restored entirely with private funds? The federal government contributed nothing to the creation of the statue since it was a gift by the people of France. The foundation was that of Fort Wood on Bedloe's Island in New York Harbor, a piece of public property. The erection of the statue cost $250,000—all derived from private sources, much of it under the leadership of publisher Joseph Pulitzer.

Today's restored statue called for private and corporate gifts of $39 million during the past several years. Since 1986 is the 100th year of this symbol of liberty standing in the gateway to America, it is an awesome achievement to have the restoration completed in time. Lee Iacocca, son of Italian immigrants, led the campaign to raise the immense amount of restoration money. His success so outraged the bureaucracy of the National Park Service that they fired him from the NPS commission which has jurisdiction over the Statue of Liberty as a national monument.

Soon we can celebrate the rebirth of our 106-year-old Chelsea rail depot. The restoration of the building inside and out, hopefully, will be accomplished without one cent of federal or state financing. Landscaping will be locally financed through our Downtown Development Association. Many more local gifts will enhance this historic Chelsea structure over the years.

The Chelsea Depot Association recently received from Attorney General Frank Kelley a license to solicit charitable contributions. This will help to accelerate official recognition of the Chelsea Depot by the Michigan Historical Commission and lead to the depot's listing in the National Historic Register.

The Chelsea Historical Society has applied to the Michigan Sesquicentennial Commission for a grant of several thousand dollars from a state fund of $300,000 for the improvement of historical buildings and sites in Michigan's 150th year. If the request is approved, the Society will use the grant for the acquisition of Chelsea antiques as well as office furniture, display cases and other items of equipment.

As the Chelsea depot itself obtains historical recognitions, it will also be eligible to apply for state and federal grants. Some members of our Depot Association are in favor of seeking such grants, but I feel that it is better to pay for community improvements ourselves. Once a powerful government camel gets its nose under your tent, you will soon have the entire beast inside telling you how to run the show.

Back in 1971 our family decided to double the size of our house, which we had purchased the year before, and also to double the size of our pond so we would have three full acres in our back yard for fishing, swimming and boating. At that time, one of the permits required for the project had to be obtained through our local federal soil conservation agency. We were advised that for such a pond project, we would be eligible for a federal $500 soil conservation grant. We said "Okay" and signed the papers.

As work on the pond proceeded, the federal supervisor on the project began to introduce requirements and design features not included in the original deal. One of them was a 12-inch drain pipe pouring from the pond into the north branch of Mill Creek which flows through our property. The pipe recommended by the federal conservation expert extended so far into the air above the pond water it would take a Noah's Ark flood to get it wet. There were other bewildering decisions about the shape and depth of the expanded pond. In the meantime we were involved in overseeing the reconstruction of the house which included a 42'x18' addition. The whole affair involved quite a bit of money and we reached the point where we went to the federal soil supervisor and explained our feelings about his mandates. We managed to arrive at a satisfactory compromise, and this was fortunate. Since we were putting $30,000 cash into the house and pond project, and the federal government was investing $500, it was a temptation to advise Uncle Sam to toss in his cards and cash in his one white chip.

Since then I have had a growing awareness of how federal agencies have been invading our personal lives, usurping the rights of sovereign states, and invading the operation of industries, agriculture, health care, education and transportation. All this, and other evils of misgovernment, could eventually bankrupt the nation and perhaps bring about a taxpayer's revolt where millions of rebellious citizens would throw their 1040 forms in the wastebasket.

As a Michigan taxpayer I will live through it if our state historical commission awards a few thousand dollars to the Chelsea Historical Society. But I feel strongly that we must get rid of the curse of federal revenue sharing where our dollars are laundered, shredded and divided before some pennies or mills come home—perhaps after additional shrinking in Lansing.

The closer to home we have governmental taxing and spending, the more we get for our money.
The more we accept in federal revenue sharing the more interference we will suffer in our personal lives.

Looking back 10 years or so, it was a sad day for a lot of Chelseans and Americans elsewhere (who used sweeteners as substitutes for sugar) to have the sale of cyclamates such as Sucaryl banned by the U. S. Food and Drug Administration. No such thing was done in Canada and I have heard of no reports of a rising epidemic of cancer in the provinces to our north.

We Americans are suddenly required to spend millions on curb cuts for wheel chairs in our cities. I have never seen a wheelchair cross one of them since they were installed in Ann Arbor though I helped pay for them through my revenue sharing. In my generation, if a disabled person in a wheelchair needed to cross the street, every able-bodied man in sight would rush to the person's assistance.

There is also revenue sharing for our interstate highways. We would be far better off to pay fewer federal taxes and more state taxes to control I-94 and other major Michigan highways than having the feds boss us around. Those roads were built for safe travel at 70 mph. When I drive on I-94 I set my speed control for 60 and very rarely pass another car. I am passed at 65 and 70 by hundreds of other drivers. (Please don't send me the statistics on saved lives at 55. I've read them. We could save thousands more by outlawing bathtubs.)

Now $5 million has been proposed in Congress for a program to do something for "Latchkey Kids" whose parents are at work. This new bureaucracy will swiftly swell in size, managing grants of $25 million or more. And what will it accomplish? Put more social workers and family counsellors on federal, state and municipal payrolls. Period.

MICHAEL MORRISON, crawling, and Nicholas Say, afoot, are two Ann Arbor five-year-olds perplexed about whether to buy oils or watercolors at the Chelsea Artists' 13th Annual Art Show and Sale. Wayne and Julie Say, rear, offer no advice—only warnings about dragging home any of that dreadful postmodernism and about entering the investment market unprepared.

Auditions Slated For Many Roles in Musical 'Camelot'

Auditions for young adults and children aged 8 to 18 who are needed as knights, squires, heralds, pages, and May dancers for this summer's musical "Camelot" will be held at the Chelsea High school auditorium on Monday, June 16 at 7 p.m.

Some of the parts are for non-singers and some are for dancers. If any youth is interested in appearing in this summer's magic musical "Camelot" or you know of someone who would like to appear on stage, let them know and be at the auditions. This could be the start for some unknown to a famous acting career.

For more information, contact Pat Paulsell at 475-9818 or write the Chelsea Area Players, Box 575, Chelsea.

VFW Post, Auxiliary Hold Joint Installation

A joint installation for the new officers of the VFW Post No. 4078 and its auxiliary was held Saturday, May 31.

Joan Taft chose her mother, Mrs. Lucy Platt, as her installing officer.

The post commander chose Fremont Boyer to install the new officers. Those unable to attend will be installed at a regular meeting in June.

A bountiful pot-luck supper preceded the installation.

Flower arrangements were presented to non-members who helped in the sale of Buddy Poppies.

A gift was given to Gert O'Dell and Mac Packard by chairman

Bertha White for help they gave her.

Officers will take their respective stations immediately following the Department of Michigan convention in Lansing, June 19-22.

The auxiliary meets the second Monday of each month, and the Post meets the second Wednesday of each month.

General chairpersons will be given their charges at the next regular meetings.

About 50 members and friends enjoyed a social hour following the installation.

This Week's Thought

DONALD A. COLE

Is this wishful thinking for Father's Day? ... Do you think Dad should have the right to choose whatever TV programs he wants? Will he have the right to "hold the phone" for as long as he wants? Will he have undisputed use of bath room facilities—before anybody else? And without pleading or argument? Will he have the right to do what he wants—without excuse? Will he be given the newspaper ahead of anybody else? And intact, without prior use? Should not incoming phone calls from far away-places come in prepaid; and not collect? Especially to wish him a happy Father's Day? If the kids use the car, would it not be nice if it was returned with a tank full of gas, on this one day especially?

Obviously, this is only a partial list. ... Does any Dad expect any or all these things on Father's Day? Of course not! He knows better than to even wish for it!

To all fathers everywhere, we hope it is a day of love and understanding, minus some of the frustrations of other days. HAPPY FATHER'S DAY!

Flat Plate Antenna Introduced

The future of satellite communications is here today. Future Communications of Colorado Springs, Colo., has introduced the flat plate satellite antenna known as PhaseCom. The flat plate antenna can be installed in a window, inside a house, on a roof and, in some cases, in an attic. The flat plate technology has been tested by NASA and used by the military since 1967. It is only now becoming a reality for a consumer market.

The unit is roughly five feet square and less than two inches thick. The unit appearance resembles that of a solar panel when mounted flat on any surface. The flat plate antenna weighs about 20 pounds. Future Communications' PhaseCom antenna opens up the satellite communications market to people who live in apartments, condominiums, townhomes, mobile homes and motor homes. The price ranges from $421 to $1,189 with regular and deluxe units available.

Future Communications, Inc. is marketing the flat plate PhaseCom and establishing a dealer network throughout the United States. For more information, contact Fred White, Future Communications, Inc., 740 E. Citadel Dr., Suite 202, Colorado Springs, Colo. 80909 or phone (303) 591-9683.

Extension Study Group Hosts Cedar Knoll Party

Rogers Corners Extension Study Group hosted a pie party recently for the residents of Unit Four at the Cedar Knoll Rest Home, Grass Lake. Sandy Widenhofer, social director for Cedar Knoll, told Joanne Fredal, co-ordinator for the day's event that it was the first such party given for residents at Cedar Knoll.

Rogers Corners Extension Study Group members baked more than a dozen pies for about 40-48 residents of Unit Four and every piece was enjoyed. An important part of Extension Homemakers membership is to be involved in community projects and this event was one of the most appreciated and enjoyed.

Rogers Corners Extension Study Group was organized Oct. 24, 1952 at the home of Lorena Wenk. Anna Brown (extension home agent at the time) and Helen Wolfgang (county council member) were present to explain what Extension had to offer. There were seven ladies present who showed interest in forming a club. The Study Group celebrated its 25th year in December 1977, meeting at the Zion Lutheran church for a pot-luck dinner, inviting former members to be guests. Corsages were given to the 25-year members. There are five charter members still active in the group: Lorena Wenk, Edna Wenk, Dorothy Wenk, Dorothy Koenigter, and Lois Schenk.

The group grew from the original membership of seven to as high as 32 as new people moved into the community. The group now has a membership of 19.

Some of the group's members have served in office on the Washtenaw Extension Homemakers Council: Mildred Huehl, treasurer 1968-69, Joanne Fredal, secretary 1982-83, and Council President since September, 1984. Helen Wolfgang was Council President 1953-54 when a member of the South Sylvan Group.

Rogers Corners Extension Study Group enjoys working on community projects. The first one was to make scrapbooks for the children's ward of the U. of M. Hospital. Other worthwhile projects have been making tray favors, valentines and Easter and Christmas decorations for nursing homes. They have also given money for the Caro and Plymouth Hospitals, Chelsea Methodist Home Alzheimers Floor, Home Meals Service, scholarships, besides giving to members and friends in need.

Be somewhat skeptical the next time you hear a story or see a movie with a gory piranha attack. The piranha's ferocious reputation is simply not accurate, according to International Wildlife magazine. Piranhas will rarely attack a large living mammal and their usual meal is made up of fruit and seeds.

Katherine Ullman Earns Graduate Fellowship

A 1982 graduate of Chelsea High school, who has so far devoted her scientific attentions to mutant mice and amazing microbes, will be graduated today from Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., with a bachelor of science degree in microbiology.

Katherine S. Ullman, daughter of Joseph and Barbara Ullman, has already received a prestigious National Science Foundation Graduate Fellowship. She plans to enter a PhD program in microbiology at Stanford University, Palo Alto, Calif., said her mother.

Katherine will concentrate her doctoral research on problems in immunology, a field she became acquainted with through a work-study program at Northwestern, where she worked in the laboratory of an immunology researcher.

"Katie has been an exceptional student," Mrs. Ullman said, noting that her daughter was named a Phi Beta Kappa after her junior year at Northwestern.

Last summer, Katherine worked at Jackson Laboratory in Bar Harbor, Me. The lab breeds genetically distinct laboratory mice for research purposes. The animals she cared for were "moth-eaten" mice that have immune system deficiencies resulting in a ragged coat.

The NSF fellowship, which carries a generous stipend, was awarded to just nine other Northwestern seniors and recent graduates.

At the May board meeting of the Chelsea Area Plays, the courtroom murder/mystery "The Night of January 10th" by Ayn Rand was selected for presentation next winter.

In the tradition of Agatha Christie, this play will leave the audience guessing up to the last minute as to "who done it." In fact, some of the audience may be asked to be part of the jury and decide who is telling the truth and who is the murderer.

More information about this interesting and unique play will be announced at a later date.

This year's scholarship given to a graduating senior was presented to Shawn Quilter at Senior Class Night. Shawn, who has participated in band, orchestra, and school musicals among his many activities, plans to attend Indiana University in the fall. Who will forget his humorous portrayal of Baptiste in the Chelsea Player's production of "Kiss Me Kate." The Chelsea Area Players congratulate and wish good luck to Shawn in all future endeavors.

The membership drive for the Chelsea Area Players is still in progress. A membership entitles one to all newsletters, voting rights at the general meeting and other benefits from time to time. This year's family membership allows children in the family to attend the Chelsea Players children's workshop at a reduced price. Registration for the workshop which begins at the end of the school year is through community education.

Remember, membership dues allow the Players to provide for a scholarship, donate to the Chelsea Fair, mail newsletters to keep members up to date on theater happenings and continue to present high quality entertainment such as this summer's production of "Camelot" which promises to be one of the more spectacular of the Players' productions. Come enjoy the magic of "Camelot" this summer, July 17, 18, 19.

"WE'RE DOING QUITE WELL, considering the weather and being stuck down here in the basement," said Gregory artist Dolores Boos during the Chelsea Artists' 13th annual Art Show and

The dairy herd buyout program must be viewed as a temporary solution to the industry's oversupply problem, according to Hollis Hatfield, American Farm Bureau Federation dairy specialist, who predicts that production will continue to outpace the gain in sales during the next 15 years.

During a meeting with Minnesota dairy producers this week, Hatfield said the industry has two options—acceptance of market discipline in the form of a flexible support price, contracts or some form of purchase limitation, or the acceptance of market discipline in the form of mandatory marketing quotas.

Jim Hoeft, social studies and English teacher at Beach Middle school, has been named a Michigan Asian Summer Institute Fellow and will be attending the 1986 Michigan Summer Institute for teachers in Asian studies at the University of Michigan in June. He is one of 50 teachers chosen from throughout the U.S. to take part in the institute.

The institute offers intermediate and secondary school educators the opportunity to attend lectures and discussion sessions presented by University of Michigan Asian studies specialists on the history, culture, and modern transformation of India, Southeast Asia, China and Japan. Tours of the Asian exhibits in the University Museum, films, lecture-demonstrations, dinners featuring Asian cuisines, and opportunities to share and learn from foreign students from Asia are all part of the institute. Workshops focusing on teaching materials and methods for intermediate and secondary schools will complement an extensive display of print and audio-visual materials.

JIM HOEFT, a black teacher at Beach Middle school, will take part in a summer institute at the University of Michigan.

The institute is co-sponsored by the University of Michigan Centers for Chinese, Japanese and South and Southeast Asian Studies, with The Association for Asian Studies, Inc. acting as fiscal agent.

Chelsea Students Earn Degrees at Hillsdale College

Two Chelsea students earned bachelor's degrees from Hillsdale College during May 17 Commencement exercises.

Robert Benedict, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Benedict, 7411 Bush Rd., earned a bachelor of science degree in physics and math. He was vice-president of Sigma Zeta, the national science and mathematics honorary society, past-president, vice-president and treasurer of Alpha Psi Omega, the national dramatics honorary society, and was captain of both the varsity cross country and track teams.

Jeffrey Lantis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heard, 405 Freer Rd., received a bachelor of arts degree in business administration. He was a member of Student Federation, Phi Beta Lambda, the business honorary society, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Men's Council, vice-president of the H-Club, and played varsity football.

At the third annual Southeastern Conference Academic Awards Banquet honoring eighth grade students (from six of the seven member schools in the conference) who maintained outstanding year-long academic performances for 1985-86.

Pinckney notified the hosts they were unable to participate in the banquet this year.

Saline Middle school hosted the gathering, which opened at 6 p.m. Tuesday, June 3, with introductions by David Mills, principal of Dexter's Wylie Middle school and president of the SEC Middle School Administrators group.

Superintendents, principals of the middle schools and assistant principals include: from Chelsea, Ray Van Meer and Darcy Stielstra; representing Dexter, John Hansen, David Mills and Valerie Berryman; from Lincoln, Donald Chalker, Michael Bewley and Jerry Sherman, and president Margaret Crawford from Lincoln's Board of Education; representing Milan, Clayton Symons, Kenneth Spurr and Dave Pennington; Saline representatives, Maurice Conn, Joseph Schwartz and Ellen Ewing; from Tecumseh, Gene Cooley and Donald Berkley.

Welcoming students, parents, his colleagues among the school administrators and special guests, Joseph Schwartz, principal of Saline Middle school, explained the idea which originally resulted in holding the SEC awards banquet for middle school students had been received well, and Saline was pleased to be the host school.

Jill Stephenson, student at Wylie Middle school, gave the invocation.

A tasty chicken dinner was topped with fresh strawberry tarts.

The meal was planned, prepared and served under the direction of Dorothy Vogel, head cook at the school, assistant cooks Roberta Randall and Anna Reese, and their supervisor, Paula Haarar.

Both the student council and the school's PTO provided a lot of help with the event. Mrs. Peggy Walker organized the parent help.

When the group had finished their meal, everyone was invited to the auditorium where Joe Schwartz introduced the main speaker for the evening, Mark Scharenbroich from Minneapolis, Minn.

The speaker kept his audience at close attention throughout his talk. He shared many personal experiences from the days of his youth, bringing with them a mixture of humor and sensitivity seldom successfully shared from a speaker's podium.

Reviewing "how it was" at elementary school, he reminded his audience of the "little teeny desks" and recalled how nearly every student raised a hand to be "called on" by the teacher during those early school days.

It really didn't matter so much if you knew the right answer—the main thing was you were "called on" and how wonderful it was, he explained while dozens of heads in the audience nodded in agreement.

Everyone knew (or soon found out) where the girls' area was on the elementary school playground, as well as the place where the boys hung out during recess, he said. More nodding heads were evident.

Taking the group with him in memory to the middle school (or junior high), he spoke of the change in social life, the major event of being assigned "my own locker" and talked a bit more solemnly of how only part of the students now raised a hand to answer the teacher's inquiry.

Having reached this stage of their lives, Scharenbroich told the eighth grade students they were about to enter high school.

He suggested to the young people before him high school would be "The Best Days of Your Life—So Far!"

Social life will pick up some from what it was in elementary or middle school, the desks will be much bigger, unfortunately only a handful of students will usually raise a hand to answer the inquiry of an instructor. Many of those will make wild promises to the creator, "Please, don't let the teacher call on me—I'll do anything, Lord, anything—if you just won't let her call on me."

When the inevitable happens and the teacher calls out the student's name, an inner voice responds quickly in retaliation, "Well, thanks a lot, Lord. Now, you can just forget those promises."

You will have to start taking charge of your life, he warned the students, adding they would be the ones to determine the course of their future. Although you may have lots of support from parents and other family members, from your teachers and classmates, from the community, you will need to take charge and start making the decisions in your life, he explained.

Scharenbroich stated there would be three groups of students during high school days. One group would be the good citizens, the responsible leaders of the class, another would be those who sought to oppose that first group and 60 percent would be the lookers—the ones who looked to see what was happening before deciding which group to follow.

Recounting many more special moments from his high school days, and from the days of his post high school time, as well as times during the first few years of his marriage.

He shared with the group details surrounding the birth of his first son, and explained his family now included two sons.

Scharenbroich explained he was sorry to speak and run, but he wanted to catch a return flight to Minneapolis scheduled within a short interval. "My wedding anniversary is tomorrow," he told the audience, and added he wanted to be at home for the occasion.

He left the group, wishing the students "Luck, success and love during those best days of your life—so far."

Certificates noting their academic accomplishments were presented to the students by the administrators from their school.

Honored students from Beach Middle school, Chelsea, totaled 19. The group included James Alford, Allison Brown, Mark Chasteen, Melissa Danforth, Garth Girard, Trevor Harding, Chris Isberg, Holly Jorgensen, Heather Keane, Grant Kidd, Jill Kies, Susan Maynard, Kerry McArthur, Lisa Park, Lance Satterthwaite, Chris Sawicki, Charity Strong, Sara VanGunst and Wendy Welch.

Beach principal Darcy Stielstra presented the certificates and congratulated each one.

From Wylie Middle school, Dexter, 17 students were honored as the top 10 percent (academically) in the eighth grade class.

They were Nicole Balcom, Scott Bell, Jacqueline Bohl, Jennifer Buchanan, Denise Clore, Timothy Davidson, Lydia Fink, Deanna Fox, Timothy Karns, Janna Kottke, Andrea Melzian, Maria Melzian, Felicity Messner, Valerie Muck, James Root, Jill Stephenson and Karen Woodward.

Board of Education president Ron Woodward represented the school district at the honors banquet and awards ceremony, and eighth grade class sponsors Carolyn Hutchings and David Dirlam joined the group for the event, as well as John Hansen, David Mills and Valerie Berryman, who handed students their certificates, commending each of them on their accomplishments.

Climaxing the evening of honors, SEC Middle School Administrators expressed their gratitude to David Mills of Wylie Middle school for his service as president of the group for the previous year.

Post-Season Honors Pour in for Seniors on Varsity Baseball Team

Post-season honors are pouring in for seniors on the Chelsea Bulldog baseball team.

Mark Mull, Chuck Downer and Kevin Maynard were all named to the All-District first team. Mull and Downer were selected as infielders, and Maynard was selected as a designated hitter.

At the baseball banquet last Thursday, Downer and Mull were named co-winners of the Most Valuable Player honors. Rob Murrell was named Most Improved player.

Downer, who was also named Pitcher of the Year, with a 7-1 record, and one of three Sluggers of the Year, with a .437 average. His 56 hits set a school record.

Mull and Maynard were the other sluggers. Mull was 49-112, for a .437 average. His 49 hits also broke the previous record. Mull had 21 extra base hits for the season, including 14 doubles, three triples and four home runs. Maynard hit .404, going 44-109. He had 18 extra base hits, including four home runs.

Coach Wayne Welton said senior Ray Spencer, although not named one of the Sluggers of the Year, deserved special mention as he had seven game-winning hits.

Four seniors received the Coach's Award, for the most commitment, leadership and dedication to the baseball program over their careers. They were Downer, Maynard, Mull and Dan Bellus. Bellus sat out much of the season due to injury.

"We don't always give the Coach's Award, but this year I thought we had four outstanding candidates," Welton said.

Brian Robeson won the Dugout Award, given to the player who exhibits the best spirit and attitude.

"Brian was a great guy to have this season," Welton said.

Todd Starkey, the junior centerfielder, was named next year's team captain.

"We're really going to miss our nine seniors," Welton said.

"We'll miss them as much for the kind of people they are."

Chelsea finished the year ranked eighth in the state in class B.

Chuck Downer Picked For West High School All-Star Game

Chelsea senior Chuck Downer will be a member of the West squad for the annual Michigan High School All-Star game next Thursday, June 19 at Tiger Stadium.

Chelsea coach Wayne Welton was named the head coach of the West team several weeks ago. Game time is 10 a.m.

Chelsea Students Compete in U. of M. Open Track Meet

In the 400-meter relay for boys 9-12, the Chelsea team of Chris Dunham, Matt Capper, Dana Schumuk and Colby Skelton ran a 1:01.2.

In other individual events, Colby Skelton was third in the long jump in his age group at 12' 10".

Bryndon Skelton was sixth in the 800-meter run in 3:01. He's nine-years-old.

Dana Schumuk was third in the 110-meter hurdles in :21.1.

Girls Track Awards Given

Laura Damm and Cris Zerkel were named co-winners of the Most Valuable Player awards on the Chelsea High school girls track team.

Damm ran the 400-meter dash, and anchored two all-state relay teams. She set a school record in the 400 at 1:00.6.

Zerkel was the Bulldogs' prime competitor in the field events. Her best in the shot put was 35' 3" and her best in the discus was 107' 9".

"Cris kept us in it in the field events all year," said coach Bill Bainton.

Jennifer Rossi was named Most Improved performer. She set a school record in the 1,600-meter run at 5:23.5.

The team had 29 letter winners.

SPORTS NOTES

BY BRIAN HAMILTON

All high school sports programs I've ever covered have had certain characteristics in common.

There are, of course, the athletes. Some are better than others. Football and basketball teams have cheerleaders. Some schools have more than others.

Girls sports play second fiddle to the boys programs.

Some coaches in every program complain about parental harassment. I remember one coach in another time and place who swore to me that he twice paid a kid to let the air out of the tires of the car belonging to his star player's father, just to get the guy out of the gym for two key games. And yes, believe it or not, I've heard about parental pains-in-the-butt in Chelsea, too.

More common denominators—

Some coaches complain about scheduling problems.

Most varsity athletes receive letters. Some show them off to their friends. Some burn them. In my day, some kids used them to patch the seats of their bell-bottom jeans. One guy even tried to make an earring out of one, much to the horror of his parents (they were thankful the jewelry turned out to be unwearable because it kept getting tangled up in his hair). Some, like me, toss them in a bottom drawer and forget about them.

And, one final common thread. To paraphrase Yogi Berra, "It ain't over 'til the sports banquet."

Last week, every spring sports team held its banquet. All the best and hardest working athletes were honored. Coaches made "atta boy," "atta girl" speeches. Everyone ate like starving bulldogs. Everyone went home. It's the same way every year.

It occurred to me that some year the students ought to have one big year-end banquet for all the coaches. Some coaches, like Pat Clarke, would be eligible to eat three helpings of everything since they coach three sports. Students could pass out awards and tell their favorite embarrassing anecdotes about their favorite coaches. It could be moderated like a television "celebrity roast," with a glib senior like Mike Goodwin doing the honors. What a swell time.

In lieu of that, I thought I'd pass out a few of my own awards to some of Chelsea's fine, hard-working, and most deserving coaches for their achievements this year.

BEST LOOKING COACH: Forget it, there weren't any nominations.

COACH MOST DIFFICULT TO LOCATE: Ted Hendricks, JV basketball. What else would you expect from a guy who lives in Ypsilanti?

COACH MOST ORGANIZED AND HELPFUL TO ME: Tie, Pat Clarke, too many sports to name, and Bill Bainton, girls track. They are consistently on time with just the right information. And they put it in writing. Thanks, guys.

MOST KNOWLEDGEABLE OF SPORT: Bill Wehrwein, boys track. I bet he could still go out and win his events in the conference meet, too.

MOST BUSINESS-LIKE COACH: Gene LaFave, football. Enough said.

COACH WHO COULDN'T WAIT FOR THE SEASON TO END BUT PROBABLY WOULDN'T ADMIT IT, OR THE MAN OF IRON AWARD: Rahn Rosenreiter, basketball. Nobody deserves a season like last basketball season.

COACH I WOULD EMULATE IF I COULD COACH: Kerry Kargel, wrestling. He has the universal respect of his wrestlers, because he knows how to relate to them. They also perform for him.

BEST GAME COACH: Wayne Welton, baseball. There's a reason he was chosen to coach the West all-stars.

COACH WHO GOT THE MOST FROM HIS WORD PROCESSOR: Mike Keeler, swimming. He also has the most legible handwriting.

COACH MOST LIKELY TO DIE IN THE LINE OF DUTY: Pat Clarke. Someone ought to set him up a cot at school so he doesn't have to bother going home.

FRIENDLIEST COACH: Charlie Waller, softball. Truly a pleasure to know.

I'd also give a couple more miscellaneous awards.

PARENT MOST HELPFUL TO ME: Bill Hanna. He's learned his Minolta pretty well. I'm glad he still has sons in the wrestling program.

PARENT MOST DISTRESSING TO ME: Tie, three mothers, but none of them identified herself.

One final FIRST YEAR ACHIEVEMENT AWARD would go to Athletic Director Larry Reed, who has always been co-operative despite taking over what must be one huge headache of a job.

If you could pick out the most exciting play or moment in Chelsea sports this past season, what would it be?

Certainly every coach and every parent would have a different answer.

For me, the most thrilling game was the final 14-inning softball game against Pinckney, even though the Bulldogs lost. However, the most exciting play was Ken Martin's jump shot at the buzzer to beat a line in the first conference basketball game. Boy that seems like a long time ago.

If I could pick one athlete who will have the greatest impact on Chelsea sports in the next couple of years, it would be Junior Morseau. It's likely he'll make the varsity football, and baseball teams as a sophomore, and be a key contributor.

Along that line, I've been trying to come up with an Athletes To Watch list for next year. I've just about decided to give up, though, because, 1. There are quite a few kids who fall into that category, 2. There are quite a few kids who don't fall into that category whose parents probably think they do.

To all Chelsea athletes, thanks for a great sports year. To all senior athletes, good luck if you continue your sport in college. In any event, good luck at whatever you try.

To all Chelsea recreation softball coaches/captains/designated managers, both men and women: When you turn in your results, please, please, include the date of the game, and the name of your opponent. Also, please make sure all names are spelled correctly. It's also nice if you add a little information beyond the score. Thank you, thank you, thank you.

Get Yourself in Gear: Bicycle Events Listed

Whether it is a casual spin along a winding river or an intense 200-mile marathon, bicyclists can choose a ride or race to match their fitness level this summer, AAA Michigan reports.

Fifty-eight organized bicycling events are listed in AAA's Bike Michigan '86 Guide. The events range from an early summer tour around Maple City in the Leelanau Peninsula to a racing classic expected to attract the best bicyclists in the country to Detroit.

The guide also includes the increasingly popular triathlon, which combines running, swimming and, in one case, horseback riding, with bicycling.

"Many events are teamed with festivals and benefits and might encourage individuals to climb back on their bikes even if they haven't ridden in several years," said James Zwick, general manager of Auto Club Life Insurance Co. "The beauty of bicycling is that you can start slowly, gradually build your endurance and have fun at the same time."

Bicycling is gaining favor throughout the country as more than 72 million Americans, including 4.5 million in Michigan, ride regularly. After swimming, it is the second most popular participant sport in this country.

Zwick notes these health benefits: —You can use up about 200 calories by bicycling five miles in one hour. By stepping up the pace to about 15 miles per hour, you will burn about 800 calories—more than you would in tennis, aerobic dancing or handball.

—Individuals with mild hypertension can reduce both their systolic and diastolic pressure five to 10 millimeters by bicycling regularly.

—Bicycling is good for rehabilitation because a person can bring up the heart rate but not expend a lot of energy.

—Because weight is supported, bicycling is easier on the body than jogging.

AAA Michigan recommends those interested in any events listed on its guide to call ahead for details. "A 30-mile route might not seem too ambitious until it is discovered that it is mostly hill terrain," said Zwick.

Some events also have restrictions. Children under 12, for example, cannot participate in the races.

"Before beginning any fitness program, persons should have a medical evaluation or clearance from a physician," said Zwick. "And, once they have an OK, individuals should dress properly and warm up first for the maximum benefits."

The most essential piece of bicycling equipment, after the bicycle itself, is a helmet.

Most Valuable on CHS Track Team Is Paul Hedding

Freshman Paul Hedding was named the Most Valuable Player for coach Bill Wehrwein's track team.

Hedding is a distance runner. The Most Improved award went to hurdler and sprinter Pete Janik.

Jiffy Mix Lady Bowlers Leading State Tourney

They're leading the bowlers in the State Women's Bowling Tournament to date—bowlers on the Jiffy Mixes team will have to wait out the remaining four weeks of the state competition, but if no one surpasses their record, they will be the number one team for 1986.

Delores Fouty, captain of the Jiffy Mixes, has bowled for 27 years and she thoroughly enjoys the competition. Ladies on the Jiffy Mixes take their bowling seriously. This is the second consecutive year they have placed with the top teams in the state.

Bowling with her are Joyce Mock, Pat Petterson, Lois Orlewski, and Peggy Goodman. The group has bowled together about five or six years.

The team bowls regularly on Wednesday nights in the Summit Ladies League at Summit Lanes near Jackson.

The 1986 tourney is being conducted in two locations, Monroe and Flat Rock. It began the last week of January and continues through the month of June. Delores explained. Two locations are required because of the large number of teams entering the tournament. Approximately 4,000 teams are participating in the 1986 tourney.

If no team passes their record, Jiffy Mixes, the team sponsored by Chelsea Milling Co., will

TIM BOWDISH

Tim Bowdish 7th in State Track Meet 800-Meter Run

Chelsea's Tim Bowdish took seventh place in the 800-meter run at the state track meet in Jackson, May 31.

He finished with his best time of 1:59.1.

"It was real unusual to do that coming out of the slow heat," said Chelsea coach Bill Wehrwein.

Bowdish was Chelsea's only entrant in the meet.

receive an invitation to the banquet to be held July 19 in Romulus, Delores said. "Teams may attend the banquet by invitation only," she added.

By the first week of July, the waiting will be over and bowlers on the Jiffy Mixes team will know whether or not they were able to hold the lead they now have. If that be true, they will be the recipients of a giant trophy, to be presented to the top team at the banquet.

Nemeths Moving to Houston

The family of a former Chelsea High school athletic director has moved to a Houston suburb to take a new position with a company that installs artificial playing surfaces and running tracks in high school and college stadiums.

The Ron Nemeth family, formerly of 3120 Chisholm Trail, headed for The Woodlands, Tex., Tuesday, June 10, said Nemeth's wife Judy. Nemeth accepted a position as purchasing agent with Balsan Co. and had been commuting between Chelsea and Houston for a month.

"We're sad to be leaving Chelsea, we really are," said Judy Nemeth, who left her job as a teacher's assistant at St. Louis school.

The Nemeths have two sons, Tom, 20, and Jeff, 17. Tom will continue his studies in mechanical engineering at Michigan Tech, she said.

Before coming to Chelsea, Nemeth was athletic director at Fowlerville High for three years. He also coached tennis at Eastern Michigan University.

Since last fall, he had worked as a salesman for Balsan out of the company's Bloomfield Hills office.

Judy Nemeth said The Woodlands is a planned community with two golf courses and three swimming pools. "It's a nice area."

The family's new address is 14 Fiddleleaf Ct., The Woodlands, Tex. 77381.

Kurt Eisenbeiser Aces 7th at Inverness

Kurt Eisenbeiser ached the seventh hole at Inverness Golf Club on Tuesday, June 3.

Eisenbeiser used a seven iron on the 177-yard, par three hole. The feat was witnessed by Dan Ewald, Stan Schiller, Al Orlov, Joe Toma and Mike Sweet.

CHELSEA AREA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE recently donated $500 to the Historic Chelsea District Courthouse organization, the group organizing the drive to renovate Chelsea's District 14 courthouse on Main St. Laurie Smith, treasurer of the chamber, presents the check to Randy Mushbach, secretary of the district courthouse group.

IN CASE MOM COULDN'T FIGURE IT OUT, young Matthew Kennedy decided to help out in the election booth last Monday morning at Beach Middle school. Matthew's mom, Debbie, was one in a steady stream of people who cast their votes during the day. The millage issue passed by a wide margin, and Barb Cherem and Craig Wales were elected to the school board.

R. T. Brokaw in Top 100 Fastest Growing Firms

A Dexter firm that specializes in the design of automated painting and welding devices has been recognized as one of the 100 fastest-growing firms in Michigan. Yet one of the company's top executives says there is no desire to sustain the present rate of growth.

R. T. Brokaw, Inc., 7455 Newman Blvd., is ranked 28th on the list, published in the May issue of Michigan Business magazine. The ranking was compiled on the basis of performance records from 1981 to 1985. R. T. Brokaw averaged a 44-percent annual growth rate during the period.

Rick Overdorf, vice-president of sales and engineering, likened the business—which he runs with his brother, Rand Overdorf—to a child of 16. The child's parents know that maturity is at hand, but they find themselves unwilling to release control.

"We're probably at a point where we're not actively seeking more growth," said the Clinton resident.

The Overdorfs are natives of southern Indiana. Both have electrical engineering backgrounds. Rand Overdorf, of Chelsea, is company president. He bought the business in 1980. (It was founded in 1958.) Rick Overdorf joined him soon afterward, and the two have guided the program of vigorous expansion.

Revenues increased from $242,000 in 1981 to $4.15 million in 1985, according to Michigan Business. Overdorf said $7 million worth of business is booked for 1986. The number of employees has increased from 10 in 1981 to the current 45, including a total of 14 engineers.

The company's 10,000-square-foot facility, completed last May, has four computer-aided-design workstations. Sixty percent of the area is devoted to the company's own manufacturing operation. The remaining total is for offices.

Overdorf said space is already getting tight in the building, and a 4,000-square-foot addition is under consideration.

The company's clients include GM, Ford, Chrysler and Honda of America. Owens-Corning is a non-automotive client, and Overdorf expects another major corporation to become one soon. The company serves its clients by providing electronically controlled mechanisms that perform painting and welding functions in manufacturing processes.

Overdorf said hopes are to shift some attention to a second business that is housed in the Dexter facility: Delta Technologies International. Founded last July, that company is a distributor of the Mitsubishi line of consumer electronics products. It currently has a staff of three.

Asked what he attributes the growth of R. T. Brokaw, Inc., to, Overdorf responded simply: "A lot of hard work."

Michelle Hellner Listed in Who's Who Of American Colleges

Michelle L. Hellner, the daughter of Dorothy and Leo Hellner of Lima Center Rd., Chelsea, has been selected for the 1986 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

She was among the 56 Siena Heights College students chosen as national outstanding campus leaders.

Campus nominating committees and editors of the annual directory have included these students based on their academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extra-curricular activities, and potential for continued success.

They join an elite group of students selected from more than 1,500 institutions of higher learning in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, and several foreign nations. Outstanding students have been honored in "Who's Who" since it was first published in 1934.

Siena Heights College is a private, co-educational liberal arts college offering associate, bachelor, and master degrees in 34 programs of study. The college was founded by the Adrian Dominican Congregation in 1919.

Pinckney Area Youth Completes Navy Recruit Training

Navy Seaman Recruit Robert A. Childress, son of Robert A. and Julia M. Childress of 3191 Shehan Rd., Hamburg, has completed recruit training at Recruit Training Command, San Diego, Calif.

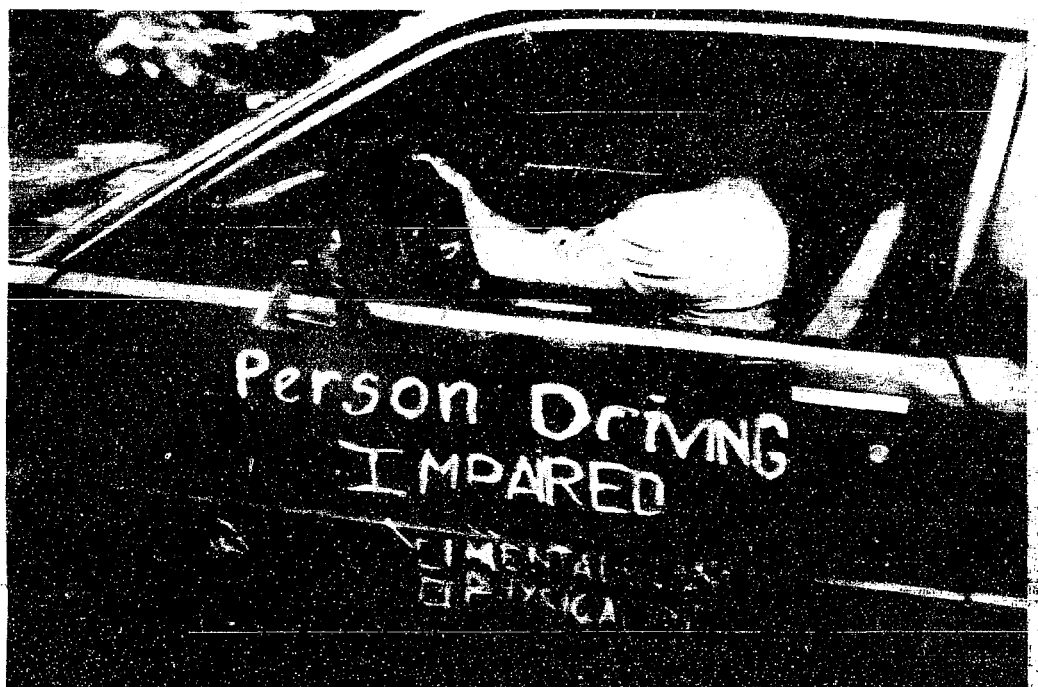

During Childress' eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 65 basic fields.

Childress' studies included seamanship, close order drill, Naval history and first aid. Personnel who complete this course of instruction are eligible for three hours of college credit in Physical Education and Hygiene. He is 1982 graduate of Pinckney High School, Pinckney.

A PLYMOUTH-SALEM HIGH SCHOOL GIRL, a passenger in this car, was killed when the car vaulted from Silver Hill Rd., and hit two trees before rolling over. Dead was Georgenna Christine Nix, 18. The car was driven by 18-year-old Charles David Triplett of Tecumseh.

"PERSON DRIVING IMPAIRED"—SERIOUS MESSAGE to the young people who frequently paint messages in jest on the vehicles they drive during the days preceding or following high school graduation. "If only the kids would realize how irresponsible it is to drive after drinking alcoholic beverages and/or using drugs," commented Washtenaw County Sheriff Ronald J. Scheibel this week. The vehicle shown in this photo was seen being driven along the entrance road to Silver Lake State Park, where two 18-year-olds were involved in a fatal car crash, Wednesday, June 4—just a week ago! Although most messages painted on the vehicles driven by the youth are meant to be funny, all too often they hit very close to cold, hard reality. Last week, the crash at Silver Lake State Park resulted in the death of Georgenna Christine Nix of Canton, Plymouth-Salem High school senior, and hospitalization of Charles David Triplett of Tecumseh, driver of the car which vaulted from Silver Hill Rd. after hitting a 30-foot cherry tree, traveled 43 feet on an airborne path and struck an oak tree, ripping off sections of bark, before it rolled and came to rest on its roof in a grassy area beside the road. The accident report has been turned over to the Washtenaw County Prosecutor's Office for review and recommendation, explained Deputy Joseph Yekulis of the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department. Yekulis heads the team investigating the crash.

Plymouth High Senior Dies In Crash on Silver Hill Rd.

An 18-year-old Plymouth-Salem High senior was fatally injured in a one-car crash beside an entrance road leading from Silver Lake State Park, just off Dexter-Townhall Rd., at approximately 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 4.

Georgenna Christine Nix, 42769 Shadowlawn, Canton, was riding in a vehicle driven by Charles David Triplett, 18, of Tecumseh.

The vehicle was heading southbound on Silver Hill Rd., after exiting the park. Other motorists on Silver Hill Rd. confirmed the vehicle had passed three vehicles and was traveling at excessive speed as it approached a downgrade and curve.

The driver apparently lost control of the vehicle, which veered off the road on the left shoulder, then returned, sideslipping as it did, left the road's opposite side and struck a 30-foot cherry tree, vaulted and remained airborne for at least 43 feet before smashing into an oak tree growing in a brushy area on the west side of the road.

After ripping sections of bark from the oak tree, the car rotated left and rolled onto its top before coming to rest in a green-brush area to the right of the road.

Two occupants, the driver and the young woman passenger, were pinned inside the vehicle, although those first to arrive at the scene explained they were not immediately aware the young woman was in the vehicle.

Neither of the occupants was wearing a safety belt at the time of the accident.

A young Ann Arbor couple explained they were leaving the park after an hour or so's visit when they observed a vehicle, traveling "too fast" headed out the park exit road, pass more than one car.

The man said he and his wife did not witness the accident itself because of the curve of the road, but arrived at the crash scene within minutes and stopped to assist.

Several young people were standing near the vehicle which lay on its roof. "No one seemed to be doing anything to try and get the driver out of the car," related the man.

Several of the youth were calling messages like, "Don't worry, everything will be all right."

"I told the kids to stand back from the car, to bring me any crowbars and other tools we might use to pry open the doors and to notify park authorities," he said.

He gave this account of the next few minutes, "After forcing open a rear door, I pulled a cooler out and crawled into the back seat from which I reached up to grasp the crash victim's arm—I felt a pulse."

After Triplett was removed from the vehicle, rescue workers discovered the body of the young woman, obscured earlier by Triplett.

A rescue squad from the Dexter Area Fire Department and deputies from the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department responded to the accident scene.

Personnel from Huron Valley Ambulance also assisted at the scene.

Both victims were taken by

NO ONE WAS SERIOUSLY INJURED in this accident on I-94 just east of the Fletcher Rd. overpass last Friday afternoon. Phil Campagna, 42, of Maumee, O., was westbound on I-94 when he used the right lane to pass a car, according to Michigan State Police. Police said Campagna's vehicle moved into the left lane too soon and struck another car belonging to Darren Nemer, of Oak Park. After hitting the second car, his vehicle hit yet another car driven by G. Lewis Schweitzer, of Grogan, N.Y. Campagna's car was pushed into the median where it rolled over. Police said there were no passengers in Campagna's car, and that he was wearing a seat belt. He was cited for improper passing.

IT WAS A LONG, TEDIOUS JOB counting and sorting through all the ballots Monday night after the school elections, but, from left, Lorena Wenk, Dorothy Koenigter, and Toni Hawker managed to keep a sense of humor through it all. They were just three of many Chelsea women who gave their time to working at the elections.

TO THE EDITOR:
Good sportmanship was shown on the part of Elias Bros. Big Boy mens softball team.
The June 2 game between BookCrafters and Chelsea Big Boy was declared a 6 to 6 tie due to an error in the BookCrafters scorebook. The men of Big Boy came forward and pointed out the error which resulted in their defeat by one run.
It's great to play softball with such a fine group of honest men.
Ed Blissick
Coach of BookCrafters.

TO THE EDITOR:
For the first time in 45 years, I attended a Class Night at CHS for all the boys and girls who received awards and scholarships, congratulations. No one gets something for nothing. A lot of hard work and years of studying went into all this. You have earned what you received.
To the school, you leave a bad taste in my mouth. This was not class night, it was awards night. The same as a football banquet. There were 189 boys and girls in the senior class, all worked as hard as their ability allowed them.
None of us are the same, we all have different capacities for doing things, for some of us books are a little harder than others, so while 1/2 of the class was getting their just rewards, the other 1/2 sat through more humiliation, just as they have for all of their years in school, ignored. This was supposed to be for 189. I should think there would be a better way of honoring all of them. It might be a small thing to some, to others it's just one reason for not caring how they do in school. I think the school should consider a way of congratulating everyone. After all, maybe some of them have been struggling just to stay in school, and it's a happy day for them too, to get a diploma and go out into the world knowing they got there too. So please in the future, give them a pat on the back also.
Roland Heim.

COAX THE QUEEN into the hive. That was Frank Kornel's strategy when a swarm of bees mysteriously appeared at Ishmael Picklesimer's house, 460 W. North St., Monday. Kornel, a plumber and amateur beekeeper, took the hive home with him to Kalmbach Rd.

My arthritic joints would never let me plant my whole garden in one day without my Garden-Ease-All. It roils so easily—even on freshly tilled ground, up hill. It came in handy as a cart to transport my seeds, tools, and plants. Weeding and picking will be done in comfort this year. The Ease-All is wide enough to hold my trays or pots and me!

John Muncer's First Novel On Sale To Help Depot Fund

John Muncer compares writing and publishing a novel to building and marketing a house.

"It's like being a builder with a spec-home," said the former Chelsea resident, a captain with Republic Airlines, a writer and a current resident of Issaquah, Wash.

Muncer's 345-page novel "The Cascadians" was recently published by Golden Adler Books of Seattle. The firm is what's known in the trade as a "vanity press."

"I paid to have the book published," Muncer explained. And he continues paying: $2 to the Chelsea depot restoration project for every copy of his book sold Saturday, June 14 at Dayspring Books. He will also donate two copies to the McKune Memorial Library later this summer.

As for Golden Adler, their imprint is just about all the support they offer. Most of the production and marketing efforts are left up to the author.

For instance, Muncer commissioned the book's jacket illustration by Ann Arbor's Tom Petiet. It presents a lavish mountain landscape set behind the pensive face of the story's heroine, Janet. A bird of prey and a jet aircraft fly in opposite directions through the picture.

Muncer and Petiet, who heads Ann Arbor's Comic Opera Guild, have been friends for years. Petiet's original oil painting for the cover now hangs in Muncer's Issaquah home.

For the first edition, Muncer printed 5,000 hardcover copies of the $15.95 book. Why not paperback, which is cheaper?

"I think maybe there was a little ego involved," he admitted.

But the format also is more durable, obviously, and allows for more creativity during the design process. The printer, Cushing-Malloy of Ann Arbor, was chosen on the recommendation of Ted Richardson, of Strawberry Lake, another friend and one who formerly owned a typesetting company in Dexter.

Muncer even wrote his own jacket blurb. He said it was a last-minute consideration.

In part it reads: "And here in this unique setting is cast an amazing story of intrigue and love. People set on an irrevocable course of self destruction. Unique in its conception. Unique in its telling. The characters are real enough to the author. For he has conjured them up for you out of a bold imagination. He is Johann Muncer, airline pilot, skier and wanderer among high mountains."

Johann Muncer? "There's probably no more appropriate or better name than that," he said. John Muncer's grandfather called him Johann, and so do his many friends in Austria, where he has traveled widely.

So far, sales of "The Cascadians" have gone slowly, but things are looking up. Pacific Pipeline, a West Coast distribution apparatus, and Book Inventory Systems of Ann Arbor have each agreed to handle the book, Muncer said. With 1,000 copies in stores now, and a break-even point of 1,800 books, Muncer actually stands to make some money in the near future.

He hopes that after 4,000 copies are sold and a track record is established, a "legitimate trade publisher" will take a serious look at issuing the novel in paperback.

Considering the treatment first-time authors receive from publishers, Muncer said he preferred to go the self-published route. He said the first book is virtually a gift to the publishing company and the author sees little if any return.

The complimentary copy that Muncer sent to one of his favorite novelists, Ernest K. Gann, author of "The High and the Mighty" and "Fate is the Hunter," was greeted as an "impressive effort" in a letter, he said.

And the story prompted a pilot-friend and second Strawberry Lake resident, Bill Barber, to remark, "We're all God's children." Muncer said that statement seems to sum up his own intent most succinctly.

Muncer wrote the novel over a two-year period, carrying a typewriter along on the airplanes he flies. The 29-year Republic Airlines veteran noted that he isn't the only author at the company. One wrote a primer on the aviation industry for would-be commercial pilots. Others have written fiction on flying and non-fiction on finances.

A native of Washington, where he grew acquainted with the Cascade Mountains, Muncer lived in Chelsea for 15 years. With his ex-wife, Phyllis Muncer, he owned and operated the Village Bakery in 1983. The couple still owns the building at 103 W. Middle St.

Muncer has two children, Kristen, 18, and Anna, 15, who live in Chelsea with their mother. Now residing on the eastern fringe of the Seattle metropolitan area in Issaquah, he still manages to spend time in Chelsea thanks to his regular flying on the Republic route between Detroit and Seattle.

And he continues writing. He has a novel that is set in Austria half-finished, and another manuscript is sketched out.

The way it looks, by the time he retires from the airlines he'll have a full-time writing job to go to.

Two Chelsea Students On Dean's List at Hillsdale College

Two Chelsea High school graduates have made the dean's list for their spring-semester work at Hillsdale College, school officials have announced.

Joseph Simon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Simon, 20345 Gene Dr., and David Wojcicki, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Wojcicki, 716 Taylor, maintained grade averages of 3.4 or better on a 4.0-scale.

Hillsdale College is a private four-year liberal arts institution founded in 1844. Officials boast that the school has never accepted government funds to cover its operating costs.

Accident . . .

HVA to University of Michigan Hospital, where Triplett was hospitalized with head and other injuries, and Miss Nix was pronounced dead by a Washtenaw county medical examiner.

Special accident investigator Joseph Yekulis of the WCSO, working with James Westrick, heads the crew seeking more information concerning the accident.

Yekulis explained on Sunday afternoon, June 8, follow-up investigation revealed the crash vehicle had been involved in a hit-run incident in the parking lot of the park just previous to the car's departure. It struck another vehicle, he added. Theorizing the driver was trying to depart the park hurriedly because of the parking lot incident, Yekulis noted measurements taken at the location of the accident confirm the passenger vehicle was apparently traveling at approximately 80-mph. A 20-mph speed limit is posted.

Investigation continues on the matter.

Baggy Paragraphs

By Ronald Aronson

This morning I went to the corner of Main and South Sts., Chelsea, and bought a newspaper. It was not just any newspaper, but rather something known as a national newspaper. As far as I can tell, a national newspaper differs from a metropolitan daily by virtue of its having more coin-operated newspaper stands; they are even at places like Main and South.

There used to be no such thing as a national newspaper. But now satellite technology makes it possible for publishers in New York and Washington to decide what people buying papers at the corner of Main and South, Chelsea, will read the next morning. Personally, I think it's a plot to do in the weeklies. Publishers in New York and Washington never did like weeklies anyway.

Well, I have a question for them. Do they know how rusty their newspaper stands are?

Sure, this particular national newspaper's coin-op mechanism worked OK, once I got my Canadian quarter back and put in an American one. That's a special hazard that goes with living in Michigan. Being so close to the border, you get an awful lot of Canadian coins in change. I estimate the percentage to be up around twelve or so. Our friends in Canada can't be faulted for much, but their quarters aren't worth a nickel in our vending machines.

For a moment, while I was still stuck at "Insert Coin in slot," I thought I might have to dial the toll-free number listed on a sticker atop the coin box and report that some funny money had clogged their rusty machine.

"Which machine would you be speaking of?" the toll-free operator would answer.

"Unit 6249," I would answer, reciting the series of numerals.

A moment would follow in which she clicks away at her keyboard, entering the numbers in order to find out that Unit 6249 is at Main and South, Chelsea. I could have told her the same if she had asked.

"Main and South, Chelsea, Michigan," she would answer.

"That's the one."

"We'll send someone out right away."

"While you're at it, maybe you could do something about the rust."

"I'm sorry, but for rust you have to call another number. Would you like that number, sir?"

By this time that feeling would be coming over me—a feeling of futility, the feeling you get when you want to ask a post office employee to please just hurry up, but you know the line won't move any faster.

It could be worse at newspaper stands. They could talk, like Coke machines. Yes, they could have loudspeakers that play a recorded message every time you get a foreign coin stuck.

"Help! You're choking me. Stick to 'E Pluribus Unum.' Buster. Unit 6249, over and out."

It's times like this that you hate rust, toll-free numbers and national newspapers (no matter how comprehensive their sports coverage is). And you feel glad for Main and South, Chelsea, "In God We Trust" and struggling weekly newspapers.

But just wait until we get our hands on satellite technology! New York and Washington will never be the same.

Robert W. Marans

Named to HCMA Board

A member of the faculty of the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, has been appointed to represent Washtenaw county on the Board of Commissioners of the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority, which has 13 Metroparks serving the citizens of the counties of Washtenaw, Wayne, Macomb, Oakland and Livingston.

He is Robert W. Marans, professor, College of Architecture and Urban Planning, University of Michigan. He is also director, Urban Environmental Research Program, Institute for Social Research and associate director, Ph.D. Program in Urban, Technological, and Environmental Planning, both at the University of Michigan.

The appointment was made by the Washtenaw County Board of Commissioners on Wednesday, June 4. Marans will serve a six-year term ending May 18, 1992.

He succeeds James B. Cosgrove, retired postal supervisor, U.S. Postal Service, Ypsilanti, who had served since May 18, 1980. Cosgrove did not seek reappointment for reasons of health, and is a resident of Ypsilanti.

Marans was born in Detroit and moved to Ann Arbor in 1986. His first contact with the Metroparks came in 1951 when he was a seasonal lifeguard at Metro Beach Metropark.

He received his Bachelor of Architecture degree from the University of Michigan in June 1957; a Master of Urban Planning from Wayne State University in January, 1962; and his Ph.D. in Urban and Regional Planning from the University of Michigan in February, 1971. He has held several professional and administrative posts, including the Detroit City Planning Commission.

MICHIGAN BELL cable installation crew at work on lawn of home along McKinley Rd. The former overhead cable is now underground eliminating unsightly wires which were also vulnerable to storms and accidents.

Underground Phone Service Laid Along McKinley Rd.

A new underground cable line has been established by Michigan Bell along three miles of McKinley Rd. from Letts Creek to the new subdivision of McKinley Heights.

Pale green metal pillars about six inches square and three feet high, called pedestals, stand close to the roadside at varying intervals and mark connecting points.

Each cable contains 200 wires providing incoming and outgoing service for 100 subscribers. The presence of one of the new pedestals also marks the elimination of unsightly overhead cables which have been vulnerable to damage by storms and accidents.

Using highly efficient equipment, the crew completed the job in less than a week.

Similar cable burying operations are taking place in Manchester, Whitmore Lake and other rural areas with growing populations.

Asked if this cable laying presaged the advent of pushbutton phones for the McKinley Rd. route, a crew member replied, "All the communities around here are hollering for modernized push button phones as well as mobile cellular phones. Equipment of that sort is coming, but it's going to take awhile."

GOLDEN RETRIEVER barks thankful farewell to phone crew for installing new pole on his front lawn.

BECCA LEE, left, will direct youth volunteer activities this summer at Chelsea United Methodist Retirement Home, said Sandy Schmunk, activities director there. Becca is a 1985 Chelsea High school grad who just completed her freshman year at Northwestern University.

Summer Volunteer Program Repeating at Methodist Home

Once again the Chelsea United Methodist Retirement Home is gearing up for its Summer Youth Volunteer Program. This will begin on Monday, June 16 and run until Friday, Aug. 22. Those interested in this program should be 12 years old or older. This is a wonderful opportunity for students to gain experience while helping others who really appreciate what they do. Volunteers will be needed for both mornings and afternoons.

Some of what youth volunteers do is give wheelchair rides, help write or read letters, visit with residents, help with the float building, craft activities, special programs and many other valuable services. This is excellent job experience and a good way to feel great about yourself.

The supervisor for this year's Youth Volunteer Program will be Becca Lee. Becca is a 1985 graduate of Chelsea High school and is currently a student at Northwestern University. Becca is familiar to many of the young people in Chelsea as she has taught German in the talented and gifted program at North and South schools and taught french horn for the sixth grade band students. At Chelsea High she was active in the band, orchestra, swim team and National Honor Society. She is in the Flag Corps at Northwestern University and works in the Student Finance Office. She is presently planning to major in communications.

Bonnie Reardan and Sandy Schmunk, social services coordinators at the Chelsea Methodist Home announce that they are very pleased to have Becca on the "team" and are planning a great summer experience for all involved—the youth volunteers, the Home staff and especially the Home residents.

Anyone interested in being part of this program should contact Becca Lee as soon as possible at the Chelsea Home, 475-8633, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

George M. Webb Performing in South Carolina

A former Detroit resident whose parents lived at North Lake has taken his skills as a performer to the Deep South and is earning considerable acclaim, according to the man's sister.

George M. Webb, son of the late Dr. and Mrs. Harmond J. Webb, has performed in three productions at the Beaufort, S.C., Little Theater since he moved to Beaufort last year, said Joyce Grames, Webb's sister and the owner of Webb's North Lake Orchards near Gregory.

Recently, Webb played Frank Butler during a six-show run of Irving Berlin's "Annie Get Your Gun." Mrs. Grames reports that her brother received excellent reviews and was interviewed on a Beaufort TV station.

Webb teaches high-school-level special education courses in the Beaufort County Public Schools. He holds a master's degree in special education from Eastern Michigan University and is currently studying for a PhD in education.

With wife Barbara, Webb lives in an oceanfront condominium near Beaufort.

The couple has five grown children. A son, Kelly, recently graduated from Wayne State University with a degree in psychology and will pursue graduate studies at Boston University. Another son, Kory, who works for a Detroit insurance company, sings at the Premier Center in Sterling Heights in the show "Putting on the Stars."

Chelsea Pet Shop Opens

A desire "to be with the baby more" has led a rural Chelsea woman to quit her job with Domino's Pizza in Ann Arbor and start what she and her husband think is Chelsea's first pet shop.

Sue Sanderson opened Chelsea Pet Shop, 112 E. Middle St., Saturday, June 7 in store space she's renting from Carolyn Strieter, owner of Garnett's Flowers and Gifts.

The two businesses will share quarters, and the owners of both plan to expand them in different directions. Strieter said she will add more green plants in her greenhouse just as soon as a coating is applied to the glass, allowing cooler temperatures to be maintained inside the structure year around. Meantime, while still carrying greeting cards, she has cut out much of her line of gifts.

Sanderson starts with a basic selection of animals and supplies she chose with the help of a wholesale distributor. The most expensive individual item is a fancy cockatiel for $129.95. She has leashes and collars, dog bowls and chew toys, dogfood and milkbones (including a charcoal-colored bone said to eradicate bad canine breath). She also carries bird cages and food, aquarium supplies and fish.

For now, there are no dogs or cats, however.

"Not the day we open the door, we're not gonna have 'em," she said. If demand warrants, dogs and cats will be added to the offerings. But before that, she expects to add more fish and a selection of reptiles to the inventory.

Sanderson, and husband Tom, who works for an Ann Arbor book manufacturer, said they are offering the best merchandise.

"Everything that we got, we got good quality stuff," he said.

Sue Sanderson held a position in public relations and marketing at Domino's Pizza world headquarters, but according to her husband she "got tired of running to Ann Arbor." The Sandersons have an 18-month-old daughter, Amanda.

But they also believed Chelsea needed a pet shop.

"We've got high hopes for it," Sue Sanderson said of her first private business venture. "The response we're getting already is overwhelming."

At times, the Sandersons will be able to supply some of the shop's inventory from their own menagerie at home. They have four horses, a pony, four dogs, two cats, a conure parrot, innumerable canaries (including babies) and goldfish for Amanda.

If nothing else, the pet shop owners can at least get food for their herd at a wholesale price.

Depot Association Board Holds Meeting in Rail Station Itself

For the first time ever, the trustees of the Chelsea Depot Association convened a board meeting in the station itself. They had walked through it after their April meeting, but now they could see the effect as the demolition of unwanted barriers created two spacious rooms, one for public meetings and the other for a historical museum.

The formal meeting was held in a circle of chairs supplied by Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home and pots of fresh flowers on the windowsills were provided by Charles Shiver Restoration.

The report of secretary Marjorie Hepburn revealed that the depot building was registered in deeds with the County of Washtenaw, and was covered by title, fire and liability insurance.

Treasurer Gloria Mitchell reported that depot donations up to June had risen to $38,968, that total payments, including purchase of the property from Amtrak, amounted to $34,386, with a balance on hand of $4,582. Donations of about $1,038 are needed by June 20 so the cost of restoring the exterior, other than chimneys, will be paid in full.

Preliminary estimates for restoring and modernizing the interior, plus two chimneys to replicate those of 1880, were estimated at $45,000. This will include interior repair of woodwork and floors, heating, cooling, plumbing, insulating, door hanging, painting, architectural fees and miscellaneous expenses.

The association also received a license to solicit charitable contributions, issued by Attorney General Frank Kelley.

Trustees present at the meeting were General Dwight E. Beach, Will Connelly, Lee Fahrner, Mrs. Hepburn, Dudley Holmes, Jr., Lynda Lange, Gloria Mitchell, Scott Tanner and Veretta Whitaker. Mark Heydiauff was missing due to conflicting ap-

IT WAS A DAY AT THE FARM for these South school kindergartners Tuesday, June 3, as they had a chance to visit the Dottie O Dairy farm, and the Haist farm. All kindergarten children from both North and South schools had a chance to partake in the 12th annual event. Above, Leah Thompson feeds a calf, while Katherine Jaques, left, and Angie Munsau, look on.

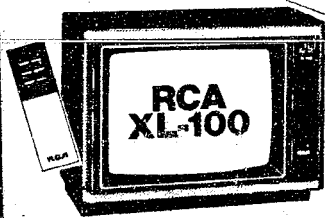

WATCHING THE RABBITS was a fun part of the annual visit to the Dottie O Dairy farm owned by the Van Riper family, and the Haist farm, by Chelsea's entire kindergarten population last Tuesday, June 3. The children had a chance to see cattle, sheep and chickens, and go on a hayride. Above, from left, Joey Foster, Chris Hatch, Billy Paul and Mark Taylor try to figure out what's going on.
