THIS HOUSE WILL BE TORN DOWN before Palmer Ford expands its lot into the vacant land just south of the current lot. Village council voted to change the zoning of the parcel from residential to commercial at the group's regular meeting last Tuesday, Oct. 18.

Mall Project Killed When Council Denies Re-Zoning Request

Chelsea Village Council voted not to change the zoning of 3.86 acres of land to allow a Farmington Hills developer to construct the village's first shopping mall.

The action came after a well-attended public hearing last Tuesday, Nov. 18 in the village council chambers. There was standing room only as the council listened to arguments by Hubert Garner, a partner in Rogar Development, of Farmington Hills, his attorney, landowner Chuck Broderick and other interested citizens.

Council voted 3-1 for a motion by trustee Gary Bentley to deny the request by Rogar Development to rezone the property, located behind Broderick's Shell station on M-52 near the southern village limits.

The request would have changed the zoning from C-3, highway access businesses, to C-4, restricted commercial.

Only trustee Richard Steele voted against the motion. Joining Bentley were trustees Stephanie Kanten and Herman Radloff. Trustee Joe Merkel abstained due to a conflict of interest (he said he was interested in renting space in a Chelsea mall, should one be built), and trustee Phil Boham was not present.

Village President Jerry Satterthwaite also cast a precautionary vote. At the time of the vote, village officials were not sure if four total votes were enough to make the count official. Satterthwaite, who had said he would not cast a vote in the event of a tie, then sided with the majority.

The audience included many downtown business owners, many of whom were known to oppose the project due to concerns about its impact on the downtown business environment.

Broderick, who stood to lose the sale of his land to Rogar Development, presented a petition that he said was signed by more than 200 of his customers. According to Broderick, they agreed with the proposed use of the land.

Garner's lawyer, Michael Feiler, of Southfield, also questioned the legitimacy of the ordinance allowing C-3 zoning, saying there was very little distinction between the C-3 and C-4 designations.

"This is a very unusual ordinance, maybe the only one of its kind," Feiler said.

Garner said late last week that he "is not in the business of suing," and that as far as he's concerned the project is dead and he will look elsewhere.

Broderick also said that he was not interested in resorting to legal tactics, saying "what good would it do?"

"The council had their mind made up before they ever went in (to the public hearing)," Broderick said.

"The downtown merchants are worried about competition and they had been having meetings about it. I don't know what kind of coercion might have been involved, but they had their minds made up."

"It's awful bad to have property and you can't do what you want to with it. I've been paying taxes all these years."

Bentley made his motion on the same premise the village planning commission used to recommend against the change. He said the request did not jibe with the village's General Development Plan.

Satterthwaite, when he voted, also added the argument that two other parcels of property (one next to Polly's Market and the other between Chelsea State Bank and the fairgrounds) were zoned for shopping malls and that changing the zoning would not be fair to the owners of those parcels "who had been paying taxes on the property for a long time."

Palmer Ford To Extend Lot As Council Re-zones Parcel

Chelsea Village Council voted unanimously to change the zoning of a parcel of land on S. Main St., allowing Palmer Ford Co. to build a parking lot for new automobiles.

The action came after a public hearing last Tuesday, Nov. 18 in the village council chambers.

The land in question is immediately south of the current dealership lot. It has approximately 99 feet of frontage on S. Main St. and extends west from Main St. approximately 375 feet.

The area was zoned for residential use. The council's action, based on a recommendation by the Village Planning Commission, changed the zoning to C-5, the downtown business district.

Company owner George Palmer showed preliminary plans for the property during the hearing. He stressed that he wanted to avoid creating an eyesore for both the sakes of the nearby neighbors and Chelsea in general.

"I'm in business and if I got a shoddy looking place I don't think anyone will want to do business with me," Palmer said.

Palmer said the victorian home at the end of the lot will probably have to be torn down.

"It's pretty old and there's not enough there to make it economically feasible for even office space," Palmer said.

Palmer said that he wants to preserve as much of the "greenery," as possible and will not remove a large magnolia tree on the land. He said he will also do as much as possible to hide the lot from neighbors.

The lot will physically be graded lower than the existing lot, which he said will tend to hide it from southbound traffic on Main St. After the required setbacks are taken into account, the lot will be able to hold approximately 40 additional automobiles, Palmer said.

The large public crowd, most of whom were on hand for another public hearing, did not have much to say about the plans.

However, a lengthy letter from R. A. Steger with a long list of grievances about the project, as well as a rebuttal from Assistant Village Manager Lee Fahrner, were read into the official record.

Palmer said he doesn't have any specific timelines for having the project completed although his architect has begun site plans which will eventually have to be approved by the planning commission.

"When a piece of property next door to yours is available, you got to be interested in it," Palmer said.

Trustee Stephanie Kanten voted for the change with the stipulation that the planning commission be particularly concerned with how the lot is lighted. Kanten said that issue was of particular concern to the neighbors in the area, especially to those on W. Summit St. whose back yards adjoin the property.

Two Developers Continue Plans To Construct Malls in Chelsea

While Chelsea Village Council may have stopped one shopping mall from being built by refusing to re-zone 3.86 acres of land on M-52 near the southern village limits, there are still two other likely possibilities.

Mike Kennedy, manager of Polly's Market, is still determined to build his 43,000-square-foot mall next to Polly's behind Great Lakes Federal Savings on M-52. He has tentatively scheduled to present his plans to the Chelsea Village Planning Commission at the group's next meeting on Tuesday, Dec. 9.

Also, late last week, Rene Papo, who earlier this year announced his intentions to construct a strip mall between Chelsea State Bank and the Chelsea Fairgrounds on Old US-12, said he is still pursuing the project.

So it's possible Chelsea may end up with two small shopping malls within a quarter mile of each other some time next year.

"I've got so many people calling me it's ridiculous," Kennedy said.

"I've had a hairstyling place, Frank's Nursery, Revco Drugs, Perry Drugs and Virginia Farm Bureau (which manages a clothing store) all call me."

Kennedy said he is trying to iron out problems with the state highway department concerning entrance and exit driveways from the mall. The state is involved because M-52 is a state highway and there are specific rules to follow, he said.

In order to comply with state regulations, Kennedy said he has to make an arrangement with Great Lakes concerning one of their driveways.

Papo would not elaborate on his plans.

The parcel each man plans to develop is zoned for a shopping mall. All they would have to do is meet village land use requirements and sewer and water requirements.

Officer Assaulted In Chelsea Lanes Lot

Charges are being sought against at least two and as many as four Chelsea people in connection with a near brawl involving Chelsea police and a citizen who came to their aid.

According to police reports, three men and a woman, who had apparently been drinking, and three policemen were involved in the incident in the parking lot of Chelsea Lanes shortly after midnight on Friday, Nov. 21.

According to police, the incident began when officer Detling saw two men apparently urinate in a truck owned by Broderick Shell station. Shortly afterward, another 20-year-old man got out of the driver's side of another car, ran around to the passenger side, grabbed a woman companion, slammed her to the ground and began to strike her and yell profanities.

At that point, officer Detling approached the struggling couple and they both stood up. The man said the two were just playing around.

Shortly thereafter, one of the men who had apparently urinated in the truck approached Detling and began swearing at him after Detling had asked for the first man's driver's license, police said. The second man was warned to stand back, but he grabbed Detling.

Detling then placed the second man under arrest and attempted to handcuff him but the other two men tried to pull Detling away. Chuck Broderick Sr., of Chelsea, who witnessed the incident, tried to push the two men away from Detling, but he slipped. (Continued on page two)

Free Parking For Shoppers Dec. 15-24

Chelsea Village Council voted to allow downtown merchants to bag parking meters in front of their stores Dec. 15-24 for free Christmas shopper parking.

Downtown Merchants Association had requested that merchants be allowed to put bags over parking meters Dec. 8-26.

However, at the council's last meeting Nov. 18, Luther Kusterer, owner of Kusterer's Market, complained that many downtown workers would simply use the spaces as convenient spots for day-long parking, thereby defeating the purpose of free parking for shoppers.

School Board Vetoes Teacher Standards

In an effort to turn down the heat between the Chelsea School board and the teachers' union, the board narrowly rejected 24 proposed teaching standards at their regular meeting Monday, Nov. 17.

The standards were essentially the 24 criteria listed on the proposed teaching evaluation form, which the Chelsea Education Association voted against adopting in October. They address teaching techniques, classroom management, interpersonal relations and professional responsibilities. According to Superintendent Ray Van Meer, they were an attempt by the board and administration to say, "this is what we think teaching is all about."

Chelsea school administration recommended the adoption of the standards. They were voted down, 3-2.

"I knew there was some feeling against (adopting it)," said Van Meer.

"There is no dissent on the standards themselves. It was simply an issue of timing. The board didn't want it to appear that they were returning an arrow for an arrow. But I wish they had tabled the issue instead."

Van Meer was referring to the fact that the CEA, the teachers' union, turned down the proposed teacher evaluation instrument by a 2 to 1 margin. The school board claimed they had a letter of understanding with the teachers at last spring's contract settlement indicating the teachers were committed to the board's proposal for evaluating teacher performance.

The board has claimed the action taken by the teachers has jeopardized the good faith of their contract agreement.

According to CEA President Bob Bullock, the major reason the evaluation proposal was rejected was the teachers felt they weren't adequately represented on the committee that devised the evaluation tool.

The CEA has since begun forming a Professional Excellence Committee to address the question of how teachers should be evaluated.

The committee, Bullock said earlier, would seek representation from both the school board and the administration.

Van Meer said the issue of teaching standards would probably be re-evaluated later in the school year.

CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS for the downtown Chelsea area were put in place by village workers Monday morning using a lift truck. Most downtown merchants plan to have special Christmas season shopping hours, and parking meters will be bagged from Dec. 15 through Christmas eve.

Thursday, Nov. 23, 1982—Gary Richardson of Chelsea is $65,000 richer following the Detroit "Super Play" drawing in the Michigan State Lottery. Richardson missed the big prize of half a million dollars. He put the $65,000 into his credit union and will use it to help finance college educations of his two children, Kevin and Mary Ann.

An out-of-court settlement has been reached in the two-year-old chemical contamination case involving Rick's Market on M-52 at Werkner Rd. north of Chelsea, attorney Daniel F. Giardina of Dexter has confirmed. A condition of the settlement was that its terms be kept secret. Giardina did say that Orken, a nation-wide firm which specializes in fumigating work, agreed to pay store owner Terry Rickerman "hundreds of thousands of dollars."

Matt Hintzen noticed that his middle-aged customers did most of the buying at the Inverness Inn, as they did at Thompson's Pizza. Federal Aid Needed in Effort To Keep Great Lakes Clean
The federal government is needed to help in the effort to clean the Great Lakes.

While Michigan state and local governments are meeting most of its goals towards protecting and improving the Great Lakes, help from the federal government is needed to assure that all plans to maintain the quality of the lakes is met, Thomas Martin, director of the state's office of the Great Lakes said.

President Reagan's recent decision to veto the 1986 clean water act will hurt the Great Lakes because it contained $50 million for future funding of water quality control and research projects, he said.

"Frankly, one of our frustrations is, while the states are making increased financial and policy commitments, you see the federal government pulling back," he said.

The programs planned for the Great Lakes clean up and management cannot be implemented by the states and local communities alone. They will require help from the federal government, Martin added.

The $50 million contained in the federal clean water act was money the state was counting on for its Great Lakes programs over the next five years.

"The state has spent more money on the Great Lakes, the record is there to be seen, but we can't do it alone," Martin said.

In releasing the 1986 "State of the Great Lakes" report, Martin said the state had accomplished 90 percent of its Great Lakes goal in 1985.

Those goals included expanded fish monitoring for contaminants and pollutants, a toxic substance control agreement signed by all the Great Lakes governors, implementation of a flood and erosion control protection for homeowners along the lakes shores, and a statement of principle against oil drilling signed by all the governors and the premier of Ontario.

1985 goals which were not accomplished included increasing the importance of economic development considerations in developing marinas and other recreational areas, and completion of plans for a port development system.

For the remainder of 1986, goals include forming a Great Lakes Congress to give citizens the opportunities to shape policy and clean-up efforts; clean-up incentive grants for local communities to deal with local pollution problems; continued efforts to encourage people to move their houses out of erosion and flood areas; negotiation with Ontario for a mutual port development agreement, and improved lake levels management.

Governor Seeks Waiver of Penalty on Jobless Debt

For the second straight year, Governor James Blanchard is seeking a waiver of the federal penalty tax on a debt business incurred during the 1980's recession.

If granted under provisions permitting a waiver due to a strengthened unemployment trust fund, employers would not have to directly pay $166 million in penalties in January.

The governor has authorized the $166 million payment to the federal account from the $932 million cash reserve built up in the state trust fund.

Employers currently owe the federal government about $1.2 billion. Since it carries no interest, state officials are investing the cash reserve and spreading out the repayments of the federal debt by paying the annual penalty which is assessed until the debt is repaid.

Employers borrowed a total of $2.6 billion in the recession, when massive unemployment claims depleted reserves and outstripped the revenue produced by employer taxes.

Last year, the first time the state qualified for a waiver, employers saved $152 million. The tax was paid in 1982, 1983, and 1984.

ped in the snowy parking lot. According to police, the men then began beating on Broderick, and the woman kicked him.

Officers Kris Kruger and Frank Kornel arrived on the scene and pulled the men off Broderick. Dettling secured the other man against the trunk of the car.

Police said there was a half-open bottle of beer in the car the group was traveling in. Police are seeking possible charges of assault, obstructing an officer and disorderly conduct.

The woman later came to the police station to file an assault complaint against Broderick.

Fire Destroys Cottage On Crooked Lk. Nov. 15

A cottage on Crooked Lake was gutted by fire shortly before midnight on Saturday, Nov. 15, and firemen say they don't know what caused the blaze.

The home, at 240 Shore View Dr., and its contents were almost completely destroyed by the fire that apparently started on the front porch some time before 10:56 p.m., according to the Chelsea Fire Chief Bud Harker.

No one was home at the time the blaze was reported by Pat Steward.

Harker said the cottage was being rented by Janet Marlow. The owners are Bob and Julie Stanley, of Taylor.

Harker said 20 Chelsea firemen were on the scene within 11 minutes of the call and had the fire contained before midnight.

"It was pretty well gutted but the walls were still standing," Harker said.

Harker estimated the damage to the wood frame home and its contents was approximately $55,000.

Construction Accident Puts Chelsea Man in U. Hospital

A Chelsea man nearly had his legs severed in a construction accident at Lane Animal Hospital Monday morning.

According to Chelsea police, a 6' by 5' slab of concrete pinned the lower legs and feet of Leon Koch, 14288 Old US-12, against a new footing and cement wall at 8:23 a.m. Monday. The slab, apparently a piece of an old porch, trapped him in a standing position. Police said Koch apparently slipped into a newly excavated area and the slab fell in on him.

Police called for help from Bollinger Sanitation and the company sent over a backhoe. The 1,000-pound slab was lifted vertically using the backhoe and cable.

Police said approximately an hour elapsed before the slab was removed.

Koch, an owner of Associated Builders of Chelsea, was taken to University of Michigan Hospital where he was in good condition Monday afternoon.

CHS Represented at SADD Conferences

Chelsea High members of SADD (Students Against Driving Drunk) have recently participated in two conferences; a "Standing for Something" conference held at Boyne Mountain Lodge on Oct. 30, 31, and Nov. 1; and a kick-off conference held at Domino's Farms on Nov. 8.

300 high school students representing 55 Michigan schools attended the Boyne Mountain conference. Chelsea students participating included Lori Jedele, Samantha Hilligoss, Tammy Browning, Jamie Hoffman, and Debbi Urbanek, along with Bud Janich who served as their escort and advisor.

20 workshops on subjects such as Peer Resistance Skills and Leadership Abilities were offered at the conference. Many SADD Chapters exhibited information on successful projects and fund raisers.

The conference ended with a moment of silence for the people who have lost their lives to drinking and driving. 1,000 balloons with the conference theme on them were sent up and an airplane flew over the conference with the message "SADD-MICHIGAN STAND FOR SOMETHING!"

The next week-end five Chelsea students attended the Domino's Farms conference, including Tammy Browning who had been at the one the week before, and Regina Bills, Jennifer Boyer, Amy Carpenter, and Carol Dawson. 22 other area schools were also represented.

Lisl Brunvand welcomed the students to Domino's Farms. Washtenaw County Sheriff Ron Schebil described the county's drunk driving prevention program as one of the few in America that employs a full-time deputy as program co-ordinator. The students then discussed strategy issues such as SADD chapter success factors, goal setting, and SADD promotions both within the school and within the community.

Keynote speaker was Steve Frazer, Olympic Gold Medal winner who was the first American to win an Olympic medal in Greco-Roman wrestling. Steve assured the students that they could achieve any goal which they could envision and encouraged them to work toward both SADD and personal goals every day, starting now.

The power of goal setting groups such as SADD was stressed by Larry Rotta, Michigan SADD chairman, when he noted that alcohol related deaths among 15- to 19-year-olds had dropped 38 percent since 1981, the time about which SADD was founded. Larry also addressed a separate session of SADD advisors which included Roderick Janich of Chelsea High.

The conference ended with a stirring session in which the students and advisors formed concentric circles and met students while "We Are the World" played in the background. Suddenly an om-pa-pa resounded, the conference room doors burst open, and a 10-piece band, provided by Robert Albritton and Ann Arbor Pioneer High, marched into the room and led the students to a pizza party sponsored by Domino's.

The SADD conference was sponsored by S.M.A.R.T., the SADD Mentors and Resource Team. S.M.A.R.T. is composed of community agencies that support SADD as a way of saving lives.

For more information, contact Peggy Campbell, U. of M. M-Care Health Center public relations director, at 763-7003 or Deputy John Hittler, Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department, at 971-8400, ext. 580.

A VIEW from the CLOCK TOWER

By Will Connelly

Nowadays, the working parents of latch-key kids have special problems that didn't exist years ago when Mom was home all day. When the empty house is entered after school can the youngsters be depended on not to bring a member of the opposite sex for company? Will the family liquor cabinet remain untouched? Is marijuana or worse likely to be part of the mid-afternoon scene?

There can be no guarantees, but working parents of active Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts would seem to have the least reason to worry about deviant behavior in their children. This appears to be true because of the deep commitments made by the kids themselves.

Upon joining, a Boy Scout makes this oath or promise:

On my honor I will do my best

To do my duty to God and my country and to obey the Scout Law;

To help other people at all times;

To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight.

In repeating the Scout Law, boys and men promise to be: Trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent.

The Girl Scout vows:

On my honor I will try:

To serve God and my country;

To help people at all times, and to live by the Scout Law.

The Girl Scout Law carries these promises:

I will do my best:

to be honest

to be fair

to help where I am needed to be cheerful

to be friendly and considerate to be a sister to every Girl Scout to respect authority to use resources wisely

to protect and improve the world around me to show respect for myself and others through my words and actions.

Most of these scouting tenets are encountered at home, in school and other wholesome relationships, but the repetitions, the interpretations, and comparisons evoked in scouting build sinews of character. A force is present that says no to the first cigarette, the first morbid experiment in trying a narcotic or the rogue impulse to burn rubber through a stop sign.

Scouting replaces idleness with something to do. From the first day in scouting, youngsters are challenged with constructive experiences.

This do-something principle is so influential in the growth of children that Girl Scouting begins its outreach in kindergarten where five-year-olds are enrolled as Daisies. There are then four additional age levels: The Brownies 6-8, Juniors 8-11, Cadettes 11-14 and Seniors 14-17. Through all five of these levels the girls acquire personal values by earning promotions which are proclaimed with patches and badges on their uniforms.

Boy Scouting begins at 8 in the Cub Scouts. The leadership of this program is shared by women and men as Cubs advance to the top rank of Webelos. After completing the fifth grade in school the Cub goes into scouting as a Tenderfoot, followed by the Second Class and First Class ranks. For all promotions there must be a steady history of scout activity and scout spirit plus the earning of skills awards in citizenship, hiking, first aid, camping, cooking and four optional skills. The merit badge for first aid is also required of every First Class Scout. Advancement continues, optionally, through the Star Scout and Life Scout ranks to the exalted rank of Eagle Scout.

There are six requirements for Eagle, one of which is the earning of 21 merit badges including 11 that are mandatory. The learning effort embraces entrance skills in arts, sciences, trades, crafts and sports.

If you were a boy, would you find interest in any of the vocational subjects which follow? If you are a parent, could you help as an advisor in any of these merit badge programs?

Scouting is also famous for getting kids outdoors with nature—hiking, backpacking, camping, fire building, fishing, canoeing, stalking, swimming, skiing, and the lore of trees.

In its 62-year history, Chelsea Scout Troop 425 has produced 16 Eagle Scouts beginning with Donald Adams in 1930. The most recent Eagle is Dale Cole whose brother Alan made the Eagle rank in 1980. Another set of Chelsea brothers, Don Oesterle and then Jon, attained Eagle as members of Troop 476 during the 1970's.

Explorer Scouting is an activity for boys who have completed eighth grade. The goal is career exploration. One Explorer Post is centered in the Chelsea Fire Department and another in the Police Department.

The advancement of the Girl Scouts is similar to the boys in principle but is organized for a different range of age levels.

Girl Scouting was started in Chelsea in 1932 as an activity of the Chelsea Child Study Club which later became the Chelsea Woman's Club. At present time there are 15 Girl Scout troops in Chelsea with a total membership of 263. Included is chartered Troop 777 consisting of 15 senior citizens who reside in the Methodist Retirement Home.

With three Scout Troops, two Cub Scout Packs and two Explorer Posts, scouting in Chelsea had a total membership of 348 boys and adult leaders.

The Chelsea Boy Scout movement was established in December 1924 with Chelsea Troop One as a Kiwanis project. Later this group was nationally chartered as Troop 425. One of the original sponsors of this troop was Howard S. Holmes, founder of the Chelsea Milling Co. His twin sons, Howard and Dudley, having reached age 12, joined in 1925. In talking last week with Howard, I learned that he had worked hard as a boy and advanced to the rank of Star Scout. It was impossible to resist asking if he had managed to qualify for the cooking merit badge.

"Yes," he replied. "I did, and I remember the occasion well. I had just finished my cooking when the examiner came up to my fire. I asked him if he would like to taste a sample of my cooking. He took a careful look at the food and replied that he was only required to inspect it."

Governor's Farm Loan Program OK'd By Legislature

The Michigan Legislature has passed Gov. Blanchard's $200 million interest-free loan program for farmers who suffered major losses in 1986 weather disasters.

On Nov. 20, the House passed the Senate-approved loan bill by a 73 to 15 margin.

Ron Nelson, legislative counsel for the Michigan Farm Bureau, which strongly supported the measure, said the bill contains several important provisions for the state's agricultural industry.

"It will allow up to $200 million in no interest, deferred repayment loans to farmers to the Michigan's flood-stricken farmers," Nelson said. "This will provide those farmers with the time and money they need to get back on their feet."

The bill also provides assistance to farmers through additional funding to Michigan State University.

"MSU will use the funding to expand its successful Extension Management Assistance Teams program, and also to test grain for its nutritional value and for possible toxins and diseases," Nelson said.

During the deployment the Cape Cod spent four months in Yokosuka, Japan tending the 7th Fleet and sailed over 15,000 miles. Port visits were made in Japan, Korea, Hong Kong, the Republic of the Philippines and Pearl Harbor.

TEXTBOOKS FOR PHILIPPINES: Steve Gaunt, 5th grade student at North Elementary school, affixes a certificate to a used textbook for which he has donated 50 cents postage to send it to a school in the Philippines. Watching are, from left to right, Berta Stein, third grade teacher at North school who conceived the idea of sending the textbooks to the Philippines, and Barbara Locks, media specialist at North school who has been supervising the project. The PTN has offered to pay any excess postage, even though it may come to more than $100. So far North school students have brought in enough money to send 163 books. Several classes have written letters to their counterparts in the Philippines and all the classes from the first to the fifth have seen slides of that country.

North School Students Donating Old Used Textbooks to Philippines

North school is donating old, used textbooks to be sent to the Philippines. Students are invited to help to pay the postage.

Students may "purchase" certificates with the North school address printed on them. They may write their name on the certificate, and paste it in the textbook of their choice. Each certificate will cost 50 cents. Students may purchase as many as they wish. The money will help to defray the transportation costs.

Students did this during Children's Book Week and American Education Week, Nov. 17-21. North School Night of Knights was Nov. 20, and a booth was set up for this project.

These books are being sent to the Philippines because Mrs. Stein, a third grade teacher, visited a school there while attending the wedding of her son, Paul. She was impressed by the dedication of the teachers, who lacked teaching materials, especially books, and knows that any we can send to them will be greatly appreciated. English is their primary language in school.

If you have any questions, feel free to contact North school media specialist, Mrs. Locks. This is an entirely voluntary project; each student will receive a bookmark, regardless, and several will be making books to take home.

1986 Crop Estimates

The corn crop estimate, released by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, shows that despite widespread weather problems, the predicted 8.22 billion bushel harvest is unchanged from the previous forecast and 7% less than last year's record. The soybean crop was placed at 2.07 billion bushels and sugar beets at 24.8 million tons.

School Board Notes

Present at a regular meeting of the Chelsea Board of Education Wednesday, Nov. 17 were Dils, Hedding, Comeau, Satterthwaite, Cherem, Wales, superintendent Van Meer, assistant superintendent Mills, principals Williams, Stielstra, Benedict, Westcott, assistant principal Larson, community education director Rogers, athletic director Reed, curriculum director Bissell, guests.

Meeting called to order at 8 p.m. by president Dils. Board approved the minutes of the Nov. 3 meeting.

Entered as official communications were: 1) letter from high school teachers objecting to being released from classes on Nov. 24-25 in two-hour time blocks to discuss implementation of study skills program. Curriculum director Bissell indicated that the administration has reviewed the communication and has gone to an alternative plan, whereby she will work with department chairpersons in establishing guidelines and will then block out two zero-periods for staff discussions on study skill practices. 2) letter from the president of Hanover-Horton Academic Boosters, thanking curriculum director Bissell for sharing the study skills information; 3) program information for the DAHLEM Environmental Education Center at Jackson Community College.

The board presented a Certificate of Appreciation to Cindy Colvin, special education secretary, for her work in supporting the Athletic Department when meets or events are conducted. Cindy specifically took charge of all the entries for the recent cross-country meet.

Dave Mieras, assistant superintendent of the vocational consortium, and Bob Miller, job placement co-ordinator for the consortium, discussed the 1985 follow-up survey. Mieras presented a video production about the types of programs sponsored by the consortium, and discussed enrollment, equipment, and activities.

The board was updated on the activities of the Applied Technology Committee by high school teachers Bruce Boughner and Jim Tallman. The committee is working through the SDSI (Staff Development Through School Improvement) with a grant from Eastern Michigan University. Technological education objectives will complement other department program offerings in the Chelsea schools. Some examples of these common goals would be the development of positive attitudes, respect for others, and the development of basic academic skills.

Phil Jones, CEA grievance chairman, and Walt Benton, MEA un-serve director, were present to present grievance HS-1-86-87 to the Board of Education. The Association commended the board for providing services for drug abuse and expressed their support of that concept; however, the grievance indicated that the position was never posted and could have been filled by a teacher in the system. The board indicated this is a contracted service, the drug abuse counselor is an employee of the Chelsea Community Hospital, the counselor is not a certified teacher and therefore does not come under the constraints of the negotiated agreement. The board subsequently denied the grievance.

The board authorized the extension of the land contract for Ronald J. Bacon to Jan. 7, 1988. This is a land contract put in place with the sale of the last building and trades house. The contract yields 11% interest.

The board decided to have only one meeting in December and January, those dates being Dec. 1 and Jan. 19.

The board failed to approve the adoption of standards of criteria for teaching. Much discussion preceded the vote. The board basically favors the 24 standards; however, the discussion centered around the timing of the approval of the item inasmuch as the newly formed CEA committee will look at standards of teaching in the evaluation instrument.

Principals and directors presented updates of recent and upcoming events in their schools/departments.

TRYING HIS HAND WITH THE MARACAS is fourth grader Jesse Petty, one of the many children who attended the Night of Knights at North Elementary school last Thursday. Students from the University of Michigan led the children, who played a variety of simple instruments. Despite the snow, the event was well-attended.

Travelers 'Thankful' For Reduced Airfares, Lower Gasoline Prices

Reduced airfares and gasoline prices as much as 40 cents a gallon below last year should spur heavy travel between the Thanksgiving and Easter holidays, reports AAA Michigan.

"While most Michiganders will visit nearby family and friends this Thanksgiving, some travelers will take advantage of airfares as much as 75 percent below regular prices to head to a number of sun spots, such as Florida or Hawaii," stated AAA Michigan Travel Agency Director Diane Willard. "Advance airline ticket sales to those two destinations and New York and Dallas have been brisk for the Thanksgiving period."

Through October, airline tickets issued by the AAA Michigan Travel Agency are up more than 19 percent from 1985 and requests by motorists for travel routings are up nearly 4 percent from last year.

The 102-hour Thanksgiving holiday, which officially runs from 6 p.m. Nov. 26 to midnight Nov. 30, traditionally is the start of the cold weather travel season that peaks at Christmas-New Year's and ends at Easter (April 19).

The busiest travel days for airline passengers will be Nov. 26 and Nov. 30. Most airlines are booked heavily, but some carriers have added flights. Persons with flexible travel schedules can still find seats, especially during less popular times, such as Nov. 25 or Nov. 27 (Thanksgiving Day), or upgrade to first class.

"Passengers should expect some delays and plan to arrive at the airport a minimum one hour before departure," Willard said. "Up to one-hour delays should be expected upon returning and baggage should be marked clearly for easy identification."

Willard noted that travelers should be aware of the recent relocation of United Airlines to the L. C. Smith (South Terminal) and Northwest Airlines to the J. M. Davey (North) Terminal.

To avoid parking problems, travelers should have someone drive them to and from the airport. Parking also is available in the many nearby park-and-ride lots that offer shuttle service to the terminals.

The biggest event in Michigan is Detroit's 60th Thanksgiving Day Parade (Nov. 27), which should draw more than 600,000 persons along the three-mile parade route on Woodward Avenue from I-94 to Grand Circus Park.

The parade begins at 9:30 a.m. with grand marshals Bugs Bunny and Daffy Duck and Sylvester the Cat from Six Flags Great America theme park. Twelve new floats will be added to the 17 giant balloon characters, 12 marching bands and Santa Claus.

The Detroit Lions Thanksgiving Day game against the Green Bay Packers may draw up to 80,000 fans to the Pontiac Silverdome. Kick-off is at 12:30 p.m.

To avoid delays on I-75 near M-39 in Pontiac, motorists can park for $3 in the Phoenix Center garage on Wide Track Drive in Pontiac and take the free shuttle to the Silverdome.

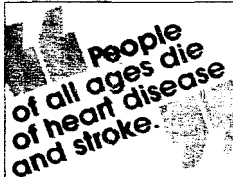

Motorists can expect to pay about 40 cents per gallon less than the average $1.24 price for self-service no-lead along major state roads in November 1985.

AAA Michigan's "fuel gauge" survey shows 33 percent of stations along major state travel routes will be open during daylight hours Thanksgiving Day.

from left, are Casey Wescott, Patrick Austin, Kasie Ruhlig, Henry Heim, Charlene Tassinari and Kim Niehaus. Other events of the week included a read-aloud day where older students were paired with younger students on Monday; a Drop Everything and Read day on Wednesday; a rocking and reading day in the Media Center on Thursday; and a Hat Day on Friday where children wore a hat from their favorite stories.

With your help, we're out to change that.

Travelers 'Thankful' For Reduced Airfares, Lower Gasoline Prices

Reduced airfares and gasoline prices as much as 40 cents a gallon below last year should spur heavy travel between the Thanksgiving and Easter holidays, reports AAA Michigan.

"While most Michiganders will visit nearby family and friends this Thanksgiving, some travelers will take advantage of airfares as much as 75 percent below regular prices to head to a number of sun spots, such as Florida or Hawaii," stated AAA Michigan Travel Agency Director Diane Willard. "Advance airline ticket sales to those two destinations and New York and Dallas have been brisk for the Thanksgiving period."

Through October, airline tickets issued by the AAA Michigan Travel Agency are up more than 19 percent from 1985 and requests by motorists for travel routings are up nearly 4 percent from last year.

The 102-hour Thanksgiving holiday, which officially runs from 6 p.m. Nov. 26 to midnight Nov. 30, traditionally is the start of the cold weather travel season that peaks at Christmas-New Year's and ends at Easter (April 19).

The busiest travel days for airline passengers will be Nov. 26 and Nov. 30. Most airlines are booked heavily, but some carriers have added flights. Persons with flexible travel schedules can still find seats, especially during less popular times.

Day), or upgrade to first class.

"Passengers should expect some delays and plan to arrive at the airport a minimum one hour before departure," Willard said. "Up to one-hour delays should be expected upon returning and baggage should be marked clearly for easy identification."

Willard noted that travelers should be aware of the recent relocation of United Airlines to the L. C. Smith (South Terminal and Northwest Airlines to the J. M. Davey (North) Terminal.

To avoid parking problems, travelers should have someone drive them to and from the airport. Parking also is available in the many nearby park-and-ride lots that offer shuttle service to the terminals.

The biggest event in Michigan is Detroit's 60th Thanksgiving Day Parade (Nov. 27), which should draw more than 600,000 persons along the three-mile parade route on Woodward Avenue from I-94 to Grand Circus Park.

The parade begins at 9:30 a.m. with grand marshals Bugs Bunny and Daffy Duck and Sylvester the Cat from Six Flags Great America theme park. Twelve new floats will be added to the 12 giant balloon characters, 17 marching bands and Santa Claus.

The Detroit Lions Thanksgiving Day game against the Green Bay Packers may draw up to 80,000 fans to the Pontiac Silverdome.

from left, are Casey Wescott, Patrick Austin, Kasie Ruhlig, Henry Heim, Charlene Tassinari and Kim Niehaus. Other events of the week included a read-aloud day where older students were paired with younger students on Monday; a Drop Everything and Read day on Wednesday; a rocking and reading day in the Media Center on Thursday; and a Hat Day on Friday where children wore a hat from their favorite stories.

Travelers 'Thankful' For Reduced Airfares, Lower Gasoline Prices

Reduced airfares and gasoline prices as much as 40 cents a gallon below last year should spur heavy travel between the Thanksgiving and Easter holidays, reports AAA Michigan.

"While most Michiganians will visit nearby family and friends this Thanksgiving, some travelers will take advantage of airfares as much as 75 percent below regular prices to head to a number of sun spots, such as Florida or Hawaii," stated AAA Michigan Travel Agency Director Diane Willard. "Advance airline ticket sales to those two destinations and New York and Dallas have been brisk for the Thanksgiving period."

Through October, airline tickets issued by the AAA Michigan Travel Agency are up more than 19 percent from 1985 and requests by motorists for travel routings are up nearly 4 percent from last year.

The 102-hour Thanksgiving holiday, which officially runs from 6 p.m. Nov. 26 to midnight Nov. 30, traditionally is the start of the cold weather travel season that peaks at Christmas-New Year's and ends at Easter (April 19).

The busiest travel days for airline passengers will be Nov. 26 and Nov. 30. Most airlines are booked heavily, but some carriers have added flights. Persons with flexible travel schedules can still find less:

Day), or upgrade to first class.

"Passengers should expect some delays and plan to arrive at the airport a minimum one hour before departure," Willard said.

"Up to one-hour delays should be expected upon returning and baggage should be marked clearly for easy identification."

Willard noted that travelers should be aware of the recent relocation of United Airlines to the L. C. Smith (South Terminal and Northwest Airlines to the J. M. Davey (North) Terminal.

To avoid parking problems, travelers should have someone drive them to and from the airport. Parking also is available in the many nearby park-and-ride lots that offer shuttle service to the terminals.

The biggest event in Michigan is Detroit's 60th Thanksgiving Day Parade (Nov. 27), which should draw more than 600,000 persons along the three-mile parade route on Woodward Avenue from I-94 to Grand Circus Park.

The parade begins at 9:30 a.m. with grand marshals Bugs Bunny and Daffy Duck and Sylvester the Cat from Six Flags Great America theme park. Twelve new floats will be added to the 12 giant balloon characters, 17 marching bands and Santa Claus.

Travelers 'Thankful' For Reduced Airfares, Lower Gasoline Prices

Reduced airfares and gasoline prices as much as 40 cents a gallon below last year should spur heavy travel between the Thanksgiving and Easter holidays, reports AAA Michigan.

"While most Michiganders will visit nearby family and friends this Thanksgiving, some travelers will take advantage of airfares as much as 75 percent below regular prices to head to a number of sun spots, such as Florida or Hawaii," stated AAA Michigan Travel Agency Director Diane Willard. "Advance airline ticket sales to those two destinations and New York and Dallas have been brisk for the Thanksgiving period."

Through October, airline tickets issued by the AAA Michigan Travel Agency are up more than 19 percent from 1985 and requests by motorists for travel routings are up nearly 4 percent from last year.

The 102-hour Thanksgiving holiday, which officially runs from 6 p.m. Nov. 26 to midnight Nov. 30, traditionally is the start of the cold weather travel season that peaks at Christmas-New Year's and ends at Easter (April 19).

The busiest travel days for airline passengers will be Nov. 26 and Nov. 30. Most airlines are booked heavily, but some carriers have added flights. Persons with flexible travel schedules can still

Willard noted that travelers should be aware of the recent relocation of United Airlines to the L. C. Smith (South Terminal) and Northwest Airlines to the J. M. Davey (North) Terminal.

To avoid parking problems, travelers should have someone drive them to and from the airport. Parking also is available in the many nearby park-and-ride lots that offer shuttle service to the terminals.

The biggest event in Michigan is Detroit's 60th Thanksgiving Day Parade (Nov. 27), which should draw more than 600,000 persons along the three-mile parade route on Woodward Avenue from I-94 to Grand Circus Park.

The parade begins at 9:30 a.m. with grand marshals Bugs Bunny and Daffy Duck and Sylvester the Cat from Six Flags Great America theme park. Twelve new floats will be added to the 12 giant balloon characters, 17 marching bands and Santa Claus.

Travelers 'Thankful' For Reduced Airfares, Lower Gasoline Prices

Reduced airfares and gasoline prices as much as 40 cents a gallon below last year should spur heavy travel between the Thanksgiving and Easter holidays, reports AAA Michigan.

"While most Michiganians will visit nearby family and friends this Thanksgiving, some travelers will take advantage of airfares as much as 75 percent below regular prices to head to a number of sun spots, such as Florida or Hawaii," stated AAA Michigan Travel Agency Director Diane Willard. "Advance airline ticket sales to those two destinations and New York and Dallas have been brisk for the Thanksgiving period."

Through October, airline tickets issued by the AAA Michigan Travel Agency are up more than 19 percent from 1985 and requests by motorists for travel routings are up nearly 4 percent from last year.

The 102-hour Thanksgiving holiday, which officially runs from 6 p.m. Nov. 26 to midnight Nov. 30, traditionally is the start of the cold weather travel season that peaks at Christmas-New Year's and ends at Easter (April 19).

The busiest travel days for airline passengers will be Nov. 26 and Nov. 30. Most airlines are booked heavily, but some carriers have added flights. Persons with flexible travel schedules can

Day), or upgrade to first class. "Passengers should expect some delays and plan to arrive at the airport a minimum one hour before departure," Willard said. "Up to one-hour delays should be expected upon returning and baggage should be marked clearly for easy identification."

Willard noted that travelers should be aware of the recent relocation of United Airlines to the L. C. Smith (South Terminal and Northwest Airlines to the J. M. Davey (North) Terminal.

To avoid parking problems, travelers should have someone drive them to and from the airport. Parking also is available in the many nearby park-and-ride lots that offer shuttle service to the terminals.

The biggest event in Michigan is Detroit's 60th Thanksgiving Day Parade (Nov. 27), which should draw more than 600,000 persons along the three-mile parade route on Woodward Avenue from I-94 to Grand Circus Park.

The parade begins at 9:30 a.m. with grand marshals Bugs Bunny and Daffy Duck and Sylvester the Cat from Six Flags Great America theme park. Twelve new floats will be added to the 12 giant balloon characters, 17 marching bands and Santa Claus.

Travelers 'Thankful' For Reduced Airfares, Lower Gasoline Prices

Reduced airfares and gasoline prices as much as 40 cents a gallon below last year should spur heavy travel between the Thanksgiving and Easter holidays, reports AAA Michigan.

"While most Michiganders will visit nearby family and friends this Thanksgiving, some travelers will take advantage of airfares as much as 75 percent below regular prices to head to a number of sun spots, such as Florida or Hawaii," stated AAA Michigan Travel Agency Director Diane Willard. "Advance airline ticket sales to those two destinations and New York and Dallas have been brisk for the Thanksgiving period."

Through October, airline tickets issued by the AAA Michigan Travel Agency are up more than 19 percent from 1985 and requests by motorists for travel routings are up nearly 4 percent from last year.

The 102-hour Thanksgiving holiday, which officially runs from 6 p.m. Nov. 26 to midnight Nov. 30, traditionally is the start of the cold weather travel season that peaks at Christmas-New Year's and ends at Easter (April 19).

The busiest travel days for airline passengers will be Nov. 26 and Nov. 30. Most airlines are booked heavily, but some carriers have added flights. Persons with flexible travel schedules can

Day), or upgrade to first class.

"Passengers should expect some delays and plan to arrive at the airport a minimum one hour before departure," Willard said. "Up to one-hour delays should be expected upon returning and baggage should be marked clearly for easy identification."

Willard noted that travelers should be aware of the recent relocation of United Airlines to the L. C. Smith (South Terminal and Northwest Airlines to the J. M. Davey (North) Terminal.

To avoid parking problems, travelers should have someone drive them to and from the airport. Parking also is available in the many nearby park-and-ride lots that offer shuttle service to the terminals.

The biggest event in Michigan is Detroit's 60th Thanksgiving Day Parade (Nov. 27), which should draw more than 600,000 persons along the three-mile parade route on Woodward Avenue from I-94 to Grand Circus Park.

The parade begins at 9:30 a.m. with grand marshals Bugs Bunny and Daffy Duck and Sylvester the Cat from Six Flags Great America theme park. Twelve new floats will be added to the 12 giant balloon characters, 17 marching bands and Santa Claus.

Travelers 'Thankful' For Reduced Airfares, Lower Gasoline Prices

Reduced airfares and gasoline prices as much as 40 cents a gallon below last year should spur heavy travel between the Thanksgiving and Easter holidays, reports AAA Michigan.

"While most Michiganders will visit nearby family and friends this Thanksgiving, some travelers will take advantage of airfares as much as 75 percent below regular prices to head to a number of sun spots, such as Florida or Hawaii," stated AAA Michigan Travel Agency Director Diane Willard. "Advance airline ticket sales to those two destinations and New York and Dallas have been brisk for the Thanksgiving period."

Through October, airline tickets issued by the AAA Michigan Travel Agency are up more than 19 percent from 1985 and requests by motorists for travel routings are up nearly 4 percent from last year.

The 102-hour Thanksgiving holiday, which officially runs from 6 p.m. Nov. 26 to midnight Nov. 30, traditionally is the start of the cold weather travel season that peaks at Christmas-New Year's and ends at Easter (April 19).

The busiest travel days for airline passengers will be Nov. 26 and Nov. 30. Most airlines are booked heavily, but some carriers have added flights. Persons with flexible travel schedules can

Day), or upgrade to first class.

"Passengers should expect some delays and plan to arrive at the airport a minimum one hour before departure," Willard said. "Up to one-hour delays should be expected upon returning and baggage should be marked clearly for easy identification."

Willard noted that travelers should be aware of the recent relocation of United Airlines to the L. C. Smith (South Terminal and Northwest Airlines to the J. M. Davey (North Terminal).

To avoid parking problems, travelers should have someone drive them to and from the airport. Parking also is available in the many nearby park-and-ride lots that offer shuttle service to the terminals.

The biggest event in Michigan is Detroit's 60th Thanksgiving Day Parade (Nov. 27), which should draw more than 600,000 persons along the three-mile parade route on Woodward Avenue from I-94 to Grand Circus Park.

The parade begins at 9:30 a.m. with grand marshals Bugs Bunny and Daffy Duck and Sylvester the Cat from Six Flags Great America theme park. Twelve new floats will be added to the 12 giant balloon characters, 17 marching bands and Santa Claus.

The Detroit Lions Thanksgiving Day game against the Green Bay Packers may draw up to SNOW blanketed the Chelsea area last Thursday, Oct. 20, as more than three inches accumulated during the day-long storm. This is how it looked from near the top of the clock tower in the middle of the morning.

IT'S BEGINNING TO LOOK A LOT LIKE Christmas, or at least it did in Chelsea last Thursday as about three inches of snow covered the area. It made for some unpleasant driving conditions as numerous bumper accidents were reported in the area.

Senior Bulldog Cagers Hold Key to Success For 1986-87 Season

Eight returning seniors and four juniors in from the junior varsity will be counted on to lead the Chelsea varsity Bulldog basketball team as the season opens next week.

The Bulldogs are coming off a successful 1985-86 season in which they lost their last six games and eight of their last nine, including all their games with the Dexter Dreadnoughts.

Coach Matt Rosentreter admits that he doesn't know quite what to expect this year. He said over-all talent in the Southeastern Conference is probably up as nearly every school except Chelsea will be helped by a transfer student.

He also believes the Bulldogs were better than their record suggested.

"We have a good group of athletes, which is proved by what the football team did this year," Rosentreter said. Four of his top seniors were key players on Chelsea's conference championship football team.

"And I think we have a mature group of seniors. But we'll have to execute every night and help each other out to be successful. We have to be playing together every night. The seniors have to come forward and show their abilities. Otherwise, we might be in for a long season."

If Rosentreter has one wish it would probably be that his team shoot better than 40 percent from the field this season. Last year the team hit 36 percent of its shots and lost five games by three points or less.

They also weren't all that spectacular from the free throw line.

"We missed an awful lot of shots from close in, shots inside the lane," Rosentreter said.

Chelsea averaged just 50 points per game. Unfortunately, their opponents averaged 52. The good side to that number, however, is that the Bulldogs were capable of playing pretty good defense.

Although Rosentreter will be leading his tallest team ever, it's still likely to be short by league standards. The Bulldogs are not the kind of team to muscle opponents out of the way.

On the other hand, Chelsea has several good, quick guards and Rosentreter says he wants to take advantage of their abilities by speeding up the tempo of his offense and "seeing what they can create."

Defensively, Rosentreter said he wants to mix it up a little bit and "take advantage of the situation."

"I don't want to say we'll be a zone team, but we will play a lot of zone defense. But for the last two weeks we've played nothing but man-to-man. You've got to know that well before working on the zone."

Senior Mark Bareis, an all-league forward last season, will probably be Chelsea's best offensive weapon.

"As long as Mark's confidence is going, he is one of the best in the league," Rosentreter said.

"Our offense is centered around him, but everyone on the team would agree that if Mark has the open shot, he has to take it. Last year he shot 50 percent but maybe took only 10 shots a game. We have to increase his number of shots."

Bareis, a natural forward, may be forced to play center because he is the tallest Bulldog at 6'4". That's not necessarily an easy transition to make.

As of last week, Bareis was the only player Rosentreter said was sure to be a starter.

Senior Todd Starkey, last year's starting point guard, is being challenged by senior Jon Lane, who Rosentreter said is probably the most improved player on the team.

"Jon has a much better jump shot than he did last year and he drives very well," Rosentreter said.

"Todd is valuable because he is very quick and he has team leadership qualities."

Seniors Greg Haust and Matt Bohlender also add depth to the guard corps, as well as junior John Cattell.

Juniors Matt Monroe and Kevin Flanagan will be the Bulldogs' backup point guard. Senior Marty Poljan, at 6'3", is one of the likely starting forwards along with 6'1" senior Jeff Harvey. Senior Matt Steinmaier, who played about half of last season on the varsity, will also provide some bulk up front.

Greg Broughton, a 6'1" junior, will also see some time on the baseline.

Waiting in the wings are juniors Tim Anderson and Phil Thompson, who will start the season on the junior varsity but could be promoted at a moment's notice.

Rosentreter said the Saline Hornets, Milan Big Reds and Lincoln Spartans probably have the best shots at the SEC title and he thinks the Tecumseh Indians could be a shoo-in.

Tankers 3rd in Chelsea Invitational

Thursday, Nov. 20, the varsity swim team finished up their regular season with a third place finish in the Chelsea Invitational. In first place was state-ranked Milan with 342 points, in second was class A Novi with 300 points, third was Chelsea with 228 points, Lincoln was fourth with 114 points and Dexter was fifth with 108 points.

"I was very proud of the way our girls performed with almost every girl swimming to a lifetime best," said coach Mike Keeler.

"The highlight of the meet was the state-qualifying time posted by the medley relay as that group of young ladies swam extremely well. I was especially pleased with the anchor leg by Heidi Cooper as she swam a lifetime best by almost a second to bring the relay home in second place."

In other events junior Sharon Colombo bettered her school record in the 100-yard backstroke with a time of 1:06.04 in a close race with Novi's Beck Sarowied. Hey . . .
BILL WESCOTT
Michigan went south until they smelled it . . .
And east until they stepped in it!

1160 S. Main St., Chelsea Ph. 8141

IT WAS AN UNUSUALLY LARGE eight-point buck that Ed Blissick, 10 Cavanaugh Lake Rd., took last Thursday morning at 8:15 on private land three miles west of Chelsea. Blissick spotted the buck coming out of a cornfield and shot the deer from 60 yards with a 12-gauge shotgun, finishing the job with a 44-magnum handgun. It was the largest deer Ed has ever shot and he plans to save the rack.

Junior Bass Anglers Offers Hands-On Experience

Junior Bass Anglers, a group formed by the Avid Bass Anglers of Michigan to teach youngsters about fishing, meets the third Friday of the month at 7:30 p.m. at Forsythe Junior High school in Ann Arbor. Members learn about fishing through watching films, practicing at the Forsythe Junior High pool, and fishing in local lakes.

The group was formed when the president of Avid Bass Anglers, Marvin Stucki, and vice-president, Dennis Andrew, realized that "the future of bass fishing not only depended on us but also on the youth in our community. We decided that it was our responsibility to work with kids who are in their formative years and grasp the opportunity to guide them on how to fish by hands-on experience."

The Avid Bass Anglers are a group of fishermen who are dedicated to that sport. The members feel it is important to promote and encourage youth fishing. According to Andrew, "It is important for us to instill in our children the strong desire to protect and enhance our environment and fisheries resources. This is an opportunity to build character and strengthen moral values by instructing them in good conduct and sportsmanship. Let's get the children hooked on fishing, not drugs."

The only requirement for membership in the Junior Avid Bass Angler is that the applicant be 15 years old or younger and be accompanied by an adult at all functions. There is a minimal yearly membership fee.

Chelsea Handicapped Students Bowl in Annual Tournament

Nearly 200 students from schools in Washtenaw county packed Belmark Lanes in Ann Arbor for the 10th annual Bowling Tournament for the Handicapped on Friday morning.

Chelsea students 17 years and under from Beach Middle school, Chelsea High school, St. Louis school, High Point and Dicken school were among those competing in this exciting event.

The bowling alley rang with cheers as each contestant knocked down the pins. Many of the young bowlers could manage the ball unassisted while those who couldn't got a helping hand from one of the many volunteers. In this tournament, everyone came away with a hard-earned trophy or a ribbon and it was almost as thrilling to watch these young people showing off their prizes as it was to watch them bowl.

Nancy Cooper, teacher at Chelsea High school, organized the tournament which is sponsored each year by the Ann Arbor Civitan Club. The Civitan Club also sponsors roller skating, and many other activities for the handicapped young people and adults in this area. Kate Leach, member of the club, said that servicing the handicapped is the primary purpose of the club.

Volunteers from Chelsea High school, Tiffany and Tammy Browning, Stacy Murphy, Angie Welch, Sarah Bently, Cindy Stirling, Debbie Trinkle, Renee Heger, Bill Huetteman, Todd Thurkow, Mike Ellenwood, Jeremy Petty, and Cliff Blackford assisted by keeping score and assisting and supervising the bowlers. Joining them were 24 volunteers from Boysville in Whitmore Lake, five volunteers from Whitmore Lake school, and two volunteers from Hydra-Matic. It was an exciting and satisfying event for all who participated.

However, a Manchester press in the fourth quarter caused problems for the Dogs.

Jeannie Heim led the Chelsea attack with 15 points and 10 rebounds. Jennifer Smith had eight points and nine rebounds. Kelly

Scott had six points and five steals.

The Bulldogs finished with a 15-4 record, including a second-place finish in the Southeastern Conference with .0-2 mark, one game behind the Pinckney Pirates.

Less than five percent of daily smoking high school seniors think they "definitely" will be smoking five years in the future. However, follow-up studies have shown that of the daily smokers in high school, 73 percent are still daily smokers an average of eight years later.

Card of Thanks
I would like to express my heartfelt appreciation to the community of Crooked Lake. My home was completely destroyed by fire last week-end, leaving me with literally nothing.
More words are helpless to express my gratitude towards the immediate and generous response of my neighbors who came forward with gifts of clothes, blankets and money. I would like to acknowledge Bob & Jack for their valiant efforts to extinguish the blaze. My thanks also to Doreen Betty and Julie for their help and comfort. And a special thank you to Pat and Jim Stewart, Sandy and Pat Merkle, the Michenfelders, the Pillsburys and all my other wonderful neighbors whose help was so gratefully received. Thank you too, Al and Evelyn and Linda and Mr. Metty of Ann Arbor Realty.
To William and Hazel Dittmar also, please accept my thanks for your efforts, and friendship. To Kate Thompson of Faith in Action and to the Community of Chelsea, thank you everyone. I always knew that Chelsea is the best place ever to live, and I'm glad it's home to me.
My thanks and appreciation also to the men of the Chelsea Fire Dept. who fought the blaze, extinguishing it and then stayed to make sure it was out. Did someone say that America has no more heroes for its youngsters? I say to that someone, America's heroes are not on TV. America's heroes are in our police and fire departments, and in our own neighborhoods. Gratefully,
Jan Newcome Morrow and Children.

More words are helpless to express my gratitude towards the immediate and generous response of my neighbors who came forward with gifts of clothes, blankets and money. I would like to acknowledge Bob & Jack for their valiant efforts to extinguish the blaze. My thanks also to Doreen Betty and Julie for their help and comfort. And a special thank you to Pat and Jim Stewart, Sandy and Pat Merkle, the Michenfelders, the Pillsburys and all my other wonderful neighbors whose help was so gratefully received. Thank you too, Al and Evelyn and Linda and Mr. Metty of Ann Arbor Realty.
To William and Hazel Dittmar also, please accept my thanks for your efforts, and friendship. To Kate Thompson of Faith in Action and to the Community of Chelsea, thank you everyone. I always knew that Chelsea is the best place ever to live, and I'm glad it's home to me.
My thanks and appreciation also to the men of the Chelsea Fire Dept. who fought the blaze, extinguishing it and then stayed to make sure it was out. Did someone say that America has no more heroes for its youngsters? I say to that someone, America's heroes are not on TV. America's heroes are in our police and fire departments, and in our own neighborhoods. Gratefully,
Jan Newcome Morrow and Children.

Thanksgiving Meal Offered at Hospital

Chelsea Community Hospital will be serving a traditional Thanksgiving menu on Thursday, Nov. 27. Roast turkey with stuffing, cranberry sauce and pumpkin pie will be included in the delicious menu planned for the day. While no one enjoys the thought of being in the hospital on Thanksgiving, patients may be cheered by the hospital's invitation to have them invite a guest for the noon meal, free of charge.

The noon meal is served between 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Staff, as well, will be invited to enjoy a meal free of charge if working that day.

Education Programs To Be Aired Nov. 24-28

Programs on Education are being aired on PBS station WKAR, Lansing Channel 23. The following programs may be seen at 10:30 a.m. daily the week of Nov. 24-28:

"Public Education and the Handicapped"—This program looks at how public schools and teachers are contributing to this commitment—making quality education available for all children, even those with the severest handicaps.

"Early Childhood Education"—It may sound silly to hold back Kindergartners until they can demonstrate adequate skill development to handle first grade. But such a policy has been successful in raising achievement levels in the Minneapolis public schools and other systems throughout the country are taking a serious look at the idea.

A report on this controversial approach to early childhood is featured. The report focuses on the role of the formative years—preschool to first grade—in contributing to an individual's future success or failure and the importance to society of investing in these early years.

"Education and the Environment"—With increasing national concern for the future of our environment, some public schools are developing activities to help younger generations understand, respect and preserve our living planet. This program takes a look at the status of environmental education in this country and reports on some outstanding programs available to teachers.

"Getting into College"—Going on to college has become very much a part of the American dream. Finding the "right" institution, filling out forms, taking tests, getting accepted and qualifying for financial aid are major preoccupations for at least 50% of today's high school students. For many of them these factors are also a source of overwhelming anxiety, spanning several years of their academic careers. "Getting into College" offers valuable information to families of college-bound youngsters.

"Growing Up Lost: Coping with Adolescence..." This program takes you to several U.S. cities to see what public schools are doing to deal with alcoholism, drugs and teen pregnancy; how schools can help teenagers cope with the typical problems of adolescence—before they erupt into something more serious and how schools can reach out to the deeply rooted troubled, to detect potential suicides and make sure they do not become statistics.

High school media specialist Sherrill Pryor will be taping these programs for the high school staff. For parents, viewing these programs is an opportunity to learn more about what's happening in education today.

Funeral Pre-Need Legislation Passes

On Nov. 19 the Michigan Senate passed H.B. 4587 and 4588 by a vote of 22 to 7.

Donald Cole of Cole-Burghardt Funeral Chapel here in Chelsea is pleased over the passage, stating that "Michigan funeral directors have had to trust 100% in the past and now others selling pre-need merchandise such as cemeteries, will now have to also trust 100% of the funds paid to them." He said "This is good for the consumer in Michigan." Cole states that "in the future the consumer will see many people trying to sell them prepaid funeral plans and he suggests they do not purchase anything without talking to their funeral director first. This also applies to those going out of the state of Michigan since many states do not have this 100% protection for their consumers."

First of America Is Financial Advisor For Sewage Plant

First of America Bank of Ann Arbor has been chosen as the financial advisor for Chelsea's $2.9 million wastewater treatment plant project.

Village council voted to accept First of America's bid of $10,750 for the project at their regular meeting last Tuesday, Nov. 18.

First of America's job will be to handle the sale of bonds for the project, according to Assistant Village Manager Lee Fahrner, which is scheduled to take place early next year.

That will involve putting together an official statement for bond buyers containing socio-economic information about the village, as well as the village's over-all financial condition. Books with that information will be distributed to approximately 900 bond buyers, Fahrner told the council.

"Their bid was actually quite a bit lower than I expected," Fahrner said.

"We figured that all they would have to do is save us one-tenth of a percentage point in interest and it would more than pay their fees."

First of America is familiar with Chelsea, having worked on the Michigan Public Power Association's Belle River project, which provides electricity to Chelsea.

Fahrner guessed that the bank's work would take a month to six weeks to complete.

U.S. Environmental Protection Agency will pick up 55 percent of the cost of the plant under terms of a grant the village secured earlier this year. That leaves the village's share at approximately $1.2 million.

SIXTH GRADER AMY ARMSTRONG has a friend paint a clown face on her as one of the many activities at the Night of Knights at North Elementary school last Thursday. Children and parents had a wide choice of activities at the annual event.

Inside Story of America's Cup Pursuit Revealed By Dexterite Tom Ehman, Jr.

The 1987 America's Cup Match is scheduled to begin Friday, Jan. 31, in the waters off Perth, Australia, with a single challenger from the group of 24 boats entered from nine countries by the official deadline in April, 1984, whose sponsors and crews have worked tirelessly for many months to become the challenger to represent the remainder of the world's sailing expertise against one Australian defender chosen to represent the country which won the 'Cup' and took the silver winner's cup home after the 1983 race.

Ties to the famed America's Cup Match are much closer to home in 1987 than many citizens residing in the Dexter community might realize.

Thomas F. Ehman, Jr., known as "Tom" in Dexter sailing and social circles, is executive director of the America II Challenge, the syndicate which sponsors America II, one of the 24 boats whose sponsors and crews are hoping to unseat Australian sailors in the 'Cup,' scheduled to start on Jan. 31 in Australian waters.

Tom and his wife Leslie Wilson Ehman were both graduated from Dexter High School and grew up in Dexter township.

He is a past commodore of the Huron-Portage Yacht Club and spent his boyhood days racing small craft at first, then later larger sailing craft, and has been racing competitively since that time.

Now, this reporter knows his early racing successes and can vouch for them personally since Tom's father, the senior Tom Ehman, often brought hand-written copy of racing results from the Huron-Portage Yacht Club during those days to The Dexter Leader office, located during that period at 8071 Main St.

Not only did the senior Ehman bring stories of the sailing successes of his son, but also the sailing triumphs of dozens of other Dexter area boys and girls.

Ehman is a certified judge of both the United States Yacht Racing Union and the International Yacht Racing Union (IYRU) and a U.S. delegate to the IYRU.

He was executive director of the U.S. Yacht Racing Union from 1979 until 1984 and served as racing rules consultant for both U.S. America's Cup syndicates in 1983.

During the 1984 United States Olympics and the 1983 America's Cup, he was jury secretary.

Currently, he is the Narragansett Bay, R. I., J-24 champion.

At 32, he is the youngest international yacht racing judge in the world.

Ehman has won four North American championships, in addition to the United States Yacht Racing Union Championship of Champions.

During his student days at the University of Michigan, Tom Ehman was a member of the U-M's national championship sailing team.

He serves now as trustee and member of the Ida Lewis Yacht Club in Newport, R. I., as well as being a member of the New York Yacht Club and the Fort Worth Boat Club.

The Dexter Leader begins this week a three-part guide to put the 132-year-old America's Cup in perspective (isolating critical areas in the Cup), for newcomers and veteran sailors alike.

When you switch on your nightly newscast and watch two sailboats plunging through the waters of the Indian Ocean, will you wonder what you're really seeing?

Is this a battle of charismatic skippers, of well-drilled crews, or of super-secret boats?

To better appreciate, and more fully enjoy, what will undoubtedly be the most significant yachting event of the century, a veritable invasion of a remote southwest Australian city, it helps to understand why 17 separate syndicates from seven countries have engaged in non-stop training for three years and spent an estimated $125-million dollars to win temporary possession of a silver victor's cup.

In the first of three parts, Tom Ehman, who grew up right here in the Dexter area and stopped for a visit last Friday, Nov. 20, used his words to explain modern 12-meter racing, an evolving sport that requires the use of several disciplines, boat design, teamwork and tactics, and a sport which has earned a special place in the world for its illustrious history and all-star cast of characters.

Tom tells his many friends living in the Dexter area, "Success in the America's Cup comes from the classic sports elements of teamwork and tactics, but there's more to yacht racing than meets the eye.

"There's a behind-the-scenes race between design teams to create breakthrough boats within a tightly delineated formula.

"There is a human interest drama without parallel in the sporting world, with a colorful history and a dynamic present.

"At the most basic level, 12-meter racing resembles Formula One automobile racing.

"However, the America's Cup is a team sport with finalists going head-to-head after a long, arduous work-up—just like the Super Bowl or World Series.

"Football fans should have no trouble with the notion of the 12-meter's 11-man crew, but they may be amazed at how the crew trains three years for its chance at glory.

"A business man, on the other hand, may be drawn to the technology angle—the idea of such respected institutions as NASA, MIT and McDonnell Douglas, in addition to Cadillac, Arway and Newsweek, going all out to regain the 'Cup' for America II, pitting their computers and engineering departments against competitors from Australia, England, New Zealand, France and Italy, and several worthy U.S. opponents as well.

"Though in 1851, America's Cup was originally a contest between British lords and American financiers, the syndicates today may be led by a wealthy self-made man, a band of poor but patriotic sailors, a Moslem prince expatriated to Italy, an aggressive new company with a name to make for itself, or a broad-based organization, such as America II, which represents 34 yacht clubs.

"Royalty still gets involved! Diana, Princess of Wales, christened the English boat, but the spirit of Australia's ebullient 'Boys from Down Under' is far closer to the mood today."

Test of Teamwork
Ehman continues his discourse, identifying one of five ways to watch America's Cup:

"Eleven men working at jobs requiring strength, intelligence, quick reactions and grace under pressure—that's 12-meter racing.

"When 24.3-mile races are won by 41 seconds, as in the final race of the 1983 America's Cup, there is no time for speeches.

"The crew is drilled until every move is second nature, and synchronized timing is ingrained, all to ensure boat speed is gained, not lost.

"This training of a 12-meter crew takes at least a full year, and in the case of America II, the crew has been working together for more than two years.

"Part of the crew's responsibility is to supply the skipper of the boat with data. While some of the information on wind speed, boat speed and stress on the rigging comes from the various instruments, much is based on outdoor skills, such as reading the strength and direction of a puff of wind on the water a half mile before it hits.

"A 12-meter draws its power from sails sewn for specific situations. These are raised, adjusted and replaced by the crew, frequently under punishing wind and wave conditions.

"During sail changes, the danger of fouling lines or snarling the expensive sails is high.

"A spinnaker of exotic plastic, such as Kevlar or Mylar, costs $25,000. Tearing one is at least the equivalent of blowing a head gasket on a racing car.

"Shifts of direction, called tacks or jibes, occupy the crew even more than sail changes.

"While on some of the legs of the race course, an all-out spring is the best strategy, in most cases the boats are dueling for a position of advantage called 'covering' on an opponent.

"The leading boat can deny the other undisturbed wind and a clean angle of attack, but this means staying on top of every move he makes—which can lead to a gut-wrenching duel as the two boats reverse direction, or tack, one trying to escape, the other trying to cover.

"During a tack, the boat's sails must be switched to the opposite side as quickly as possible.

"This is the moment the crew has been training for: hands blur, lines buzz out from blocks, sails flap.

"Speed painfully built by fractions of knots must not be lost through slow or botched sail-handling.

"The moment the maneuver is complete, an aggressive skipper may call for a new tack in order to shed the other's defense.

"An example of this was witnessed during the final leg of the last 'Cup' when the two boats matched each other, tack for tack, 46 times in a distance which measured a little more than three miles.

Test of Technology
"A 12-meter is a development class, which means innovation and ingenuity are encouraged and rewarded by the rules.

"The boat must be faster in sum than the estimated 20 other 12-meters being developed for the 1987 'Cup'.

"For America II, the world's best yacht design team, Sparkman and Stephens, is working with data collected, evaluated and computer-tested with the help of high-tech wizards from NASA, MIT, McDonnell Douglas, Atlantic Applied Research Corp. and the Naval Ship Research and Development Center.

"It's a space race no one wants to lose. When Australian designer Ben Lexcen's famous winged keel turned the 12-meter world upside down in 1983, the greatest shock waves may have been felt in the technological strongholds of the United States.

"Our superiority had gone unchallenged for so long that the reaction was an astonishing outpouring of support for the new 'Cup' effort in Perth.

"Space shuttle designers, submarine experts, aircraft and car engineers all wanted to contribute.

"They found the 'Basic 12' to be a regular Pandora's box of design complications. A 12-meter must fit a formula, based on waterline length, sail area, underwater shape and over-all weight—that has virtually infinite possibilities.

AMERICA II CHALLENGER, one of three boats constructed to sail in the 1987 America's Cup race off the waters of Perth, Australia, by the America II syndicate, for which Dexterite Tom Ehman is executive director. Several boats from nine different countries throughout the world are vying for the chance to be the one challenging vessel to sail against a single defender to survive as Australia's entry in the race. Ehman has provided information for a three-part series to be presented in The Dexter Leader, by way of informing the folks in his hometown about the race, the crafts participating and background facts. The first part is printed in today's issue. After a 132-year stay in the United States, an Australian crew won the America's Cup event in 1983 and took the silver Victorian winner's cup home to Australia. American sailors are intent on returning the 'Cup' to this country.

"With time short and boats relatively expensive ($375,000 for a basic, no-frills 12), extensive testing must be done.

"Designers draw lines, computers model shapes, scaled-down 12's run tank tests, and full-scale 12's do actual trial races.

"The amount of man-hours and expense is considerable, which is why the help of research institutions is invaluable, drawing on the same laboratories that test and produce highly-sophisticated designs for cars and aircraft.

"The boats designed for Perth's 25-knot winds and choppy seas differ greatly from those appropriate for Newport's lighter, more variable conditions.

"A 12 is always going to be a heavy, low-slung boat, usually 60-70 feet over-all.

"Since the beginning of the modern era of America's Cup racing in 1958, most of the boats have been extremely competitive with each other.

"When a breakthrough occurs, such as 'Intrepid' in 1967, 'Courageous' in 1974 or 'Australia II' in 1983, the entire design world watches carefully.

"New ideas flow with breathtaking speed.

"Every syndicate claims to have a boat which will dominate the waters off Perth.

"The question is, which conditions will the boats face? In October, the winds were moderate; during December, the winds are fierce and the seas rough; by Jan. 31, the start of the match, days of relative calm alternate with roaring blasts.

"A boat built only to win during December, hasn't a chance come February, month of the big race, so most syndicates have been experimenting with boats that can be modified subtly.

"America II's US-42 went so far as to come with snap-on sections, prompting its 'Lego' nickname.

"The other aspect of technology concerns the rigging and sails, both underrated by casual viewers in their importance.

"High-tech plastics, such as Kevlar (identifiable by its dark yellow-brown color) have been perfected as a light, incredibly strong but expensive material for sails.

"To save weight, some syndicates actually have replaced the traditional stainless steel rigging with it.

"Since sails provide the sole method of propulsion for the boats, sailmakers are crucial.

"Most sailmakers work with computers to model stresses and shapes, then test the actual sail under live conditions.

"It is not unusual for sailmakers to spend the entire night following a 'Cup' race re-sewing and shaping sails to correct a weakness or take advantage of a new idea.

"The mast, a most important part of the sailing boat, is the structure which supports the sails. Since breakage in Perth's heavy air is a constant danger, the typical extruded aluminum mast costs more than $100,000 and cannot be found in stock at a hardware store.

relation to the next mark, or turning buoy, and keeps the helmsman informed of how far to go.

"The afterguard's first challenge is, to win the start, maneuvering behind the starting line as the 15-minute preliminary period winds down.

"This is where the helmsman is frequently at his most brilliant, driving the 30-ton boat in tight circles, trying to trap his opponent on the less favored side in terms of wind direction.

"Over the course of the race, the afterguards on both boats are working furiously.

"Their goals are to find a better wind, even if only a short-lived gust, to coax a little more speed out of the boat with a change of sails, to sail a knife-edge course to the next mark, and to dominate the other boat by out-thinking and out-maneuvering the competing crew.

Test of National Pride
Tom Ehman reminds the spectators from his hometown the 'Cup' is the pinnacle of yacht racing achievement.

He explains, "The original 'America' won against the British in 1851, despite great odds, at a time when American clipper ships were the fastest in the world, when our Navy had fought famously in the Revolution and the War of 1812.

"When America crossed the finish line, Queen Victoria demanded to know which of the dozen yachts was second in the race, and she was told, 'Your Majesty, there is no second!'

"Today, foreign sailors esteem the 'Cup' as highly as during the reign of Queen Victoria.

"To win the 'Cup,' as Australia did in 1983, as America did in 1851, guarantees a kind of coming-of-age in the world.

"Sir Thomas Lipton, gallantly unsuccessful five times at the turn of the last century, epitomized this attitude.

"He was cheered on by many Americans, who warmed to his sportsmanship (and incidentally, bought his tea).

"Given the sentiments, it is not surprising that countries offer their 'Cup' syndicates aid and assistance wherever possible (basically for room and board).

"In America, some crew members take leaves from various service academies, including the owner of America II boats, the United States Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N. Y.

"The crew members give up two to three years of their lives for the honor of pursuing the prestigious 'Cup,' a prized possession (however temporary) for their country.

"Engineers and scientists for various defense contractors volunteer their spare time, and access to massive mainframe computers, to do their bit for the 'Auld Mug,' as the 'Cup' is known.

"Designers and their friends from the high-tech centers want to restore to the United States both the 'Cup' and the reputation for being the best in the world of yacht design."

Once I found a caterpillar and I taught it to stay in the yard. When I was outside I heard noises. I think the caterpillar got in its garden. "Here, I'll give you some grass to eat." My caterpillar nibbled away on the grass. A few days later, the caterpillar had some babies. I kept them and I put them in a jar in the basement. Each day I would give them a few leaves. A few days after, the big caterpillar spun a cocoon. A few weeks later I heard crackling noises. I ran downstairs and a butterfly was in the jar! I told my parents and I kept it until its wings were dry. My friends were always busy looking at the butterfly. My parents smiled and left. I told my friends to go home. I asked if I could have some food. "Yes," my parents said. After that I had a stomach ache. That food was tasty. At night time I brushed my teeth and my dog licked me. I sure was sleepy.

THE BLOODY HAMMER

By: Gerry Mummeny, Third Grade

When my dad was in high school, you could go any place you wanted at any time you wanted, except to this one tower. It was built in the school yard. The principal was so concerned about it, he wouldn't let any kid in school go in it!

Well anyway, there was a big club, and of course my dad was in it. Well this club always did things they weren't supposed to. One day they didn't have anything to do, so they did something they had never done before. They were going to go in the tower!

Then my dad spoke up. "Are you sure we should do this?" "Of course!" said one of his friends. "We do things like this all the time!"

My dad didn't have any more to say, so they moved on.

When they got to the tower, they opened the door and went up the stairway. They found a place where you could see the stars. Everybody decided they were going to stay up there fifteen minutes and come back. After fifteen minutes everyone came back except the youngest. They waited half an hour, an hour, still nothing! Then they decided to check on him.

They opened the door and went up the stairs. They saw him! He had white hair and a bloody hammer in his hand. He laughed. "Ha ha, hehehe!" Then he jumped over the edge!

All the boys ran down the tower stairs to the bottom. His body wasn't there!

The principal crashed the tower brick by brick. It was condemned and nobody went to the school again.

THE ROCK MINE

The next day I went to Fred's house. We are good friends now! Now he is teaching me how to mine race. I am learning a lot about mine racing. I will be the second best mine racer.

MY DOG

One day a dog named Ian lived with me. He was three years old that day. It was his birthday and then it was nine o'clock at night and it was winter outside. My dog ran away to the road called Pingry. The road was very icy that cold night. He got killed that very cold winter night.

It was his birthday the next day. He would have been four years old. The next day he got buried and went to dog heaven in the very big sky with the very big clouds. He was looking down at me that night. I had a very good dream about him. At seven o'clock I got up for school and he had a new dog just like him and guess what? I named him Ian too! The next day we had soccer.

HIGH - LOW

Birds are low. Clouds are high. They both go flying in the sky. Trees are low. Grass is low. The woods are where I like to go.

MY ROOM

By: Karl White, Fourth Grade

My room has a closet that doesn't have a door. When you walk into my room you can see my closet. When we first moved into my house there was a lot of junk in my room. We cleaned it all out and my mom and I helped wall paper it. That was hard. My dresser is too small. I need a bigger one. I have a big mirror. I have a lot of medals in it. The medals are for baton. My bed is big.

I AM

By: Nicky Kramer, Fourth Grade

I am a lazy boy that likes to sleep.
I wonder what a heated waterbed feels like.
I hear the water under my back.
I see the cat ripping the waterbed.
I want a water bed today.
I am a lazy boy that likes to sleep.

I pretend to not hear my mom calling me to wake up.
I feel the water under my bed.
I touch the button and it gets hot.
I worry why my mom won't let me have a waterbed.
I cry when it burns my back.
I am a lazy boy that likes to sleep.

I understand why I can't have a waterbed.
I say that it isn't expensive.
I dream that I had a waterbed.
I try to save my money but it doesn't work.
I hope I get a waterbed.
I am a lazy boy that likes to sleep.

THE MAN IN THE BOWL OF CORN FLAKES

By: Kate Steele, Fourth Grade

One day when I got up from bed I was starving for a bowl of corn flakes so I went into the kitchen and got some. While I was pouring the corn flakes I thought I saw something shaped like a man. I did not think there was a man in my cereal so I poured the milk but right before I was going to take a bite I heard someone say "Help I'm drowning." Then I thought about the man that I thought came out of the cereal box. When I looked down at my cereal I could not believe my eyes. There was a man in my cereal! He was drowning in my milk. I picked the guy out of my cereal and I decided to name him Fred. I kept him in my closet and took good care of him.

SARAH

By: Sarah McAllister, Fourth Grade

Hi! I'm the famous Inspector Sarah and I just got a call from Mr. Bill Wescott. He says that he has a little problem. Right, I think to myself. Usually when I get a call from him, it's a big problem. Like once there was an octopus pushing 8 kids at once on the swings.

So I tell him I'll be right over, and I jump in my car and I'm there. Next thing I know, I am standing in front of his desk, in his private office. "Hi," I say. "Hello inspector." He looks like he is sick or something. His face is white and his nose is constantly changing colors like this. Purple, green, purple, green. He led me out of his office onto the playground.

There was a strange spaceship sitting on top of the slide. It is no bigger than my pencil, but it was bright green, and I could see it very clearly. "Wow! I think. That's really cool!"

"Where did it come from?" asked Mr. Wescott. "I will try to find out," I said. I finally (after looking for hours) figured out that it came from a green star. I decide to let it stay where it is and to let it leave when it wants to. It is still a mystery about why it landed there, and who was in it.

THE HUNT

By: David Seaman, Fifth Grade

It was hunting season. The trees were turning colors. It was the first day of bow season and my tree fort was built. It was perfect for deer hunting. I had 20 arrows. I had five different bows, a roof and carpeting. It was camouflaged with the leaves. I was in the fort when I saw this huge buck. The buck had 40 points. I pulled out my strongest bow. It was a triple compound bow. I pulled out my iron arrow. It was the sharpest thing I owned. I pulled the arrow back and fired. It was a direct hit right in the heart. The deer dropped. I climbed down the tree and tried to pull it back to the house but I couldn't. I ran up to the house to get slides to pull it. I finally got up there and gutted it. It was only my 4th one. The rest of my deer were 24 points, 35 points, and 37 points. This is the biggest deer I have seen.

WHAT IS A FRIEND?

By: Barry Antilla, Fifth Grade

A friend is somebody to care about, talk to and play with. A friend is somebody who likes you just as much as you like them. A friend is someone who doesn't care what you look like or where you come from. Also, a friend is somebody you can trust. If you told someone a secret, they wouldn't spread it all over. My friends are Nathan, Will, Dale, Tim, and Howie. We all like each other. We don't always fight or tease each other. We all are friends.

THE HORROR STORY

By: Rebecca Hubert, Fifth Grade

It was night and I was in bed reading a ghost story. I looked outside. It was thundering and lightning. I closed my window and started reading again.

"It was a very dark night, and Julie was in the forest alone, when she heard a rustling behind her."

"AAARGH!!!"

I jumped out of bed, ran downstairs, and cuddled up with my dog and cats. My mom came out of her room.

"What's the matter?" she asked.

"Oh, nothing, Mom," I said as I got up, kissed her, and went to bed.

SHRINKING EXPERIENCE

By: Chris Gibson, Fifth Grade

One day my buddy and I were going to a toy store to look at some G.I. Joe stuff. When we walked in, we started shrinking. We were as small as G.I. Joe. The G.I. Joe were alive, they started shooting at us. So I found a key. I saw a whole lot of cars. I ran to one. The key didn't fit so I went to one more car. It was the wrong one, so I went to the last car and it fit! So we drove off.

There was a doll of King Kong. It was moving. I picked up the car we were in and threw it across the toy store. Luckily we landed on the race track. It was called Race Track 500. It was a good race because I got first place in it. So we got off the race track. The car ran out of gas. So we got out and started running. I discovered that I lost my key. I left it in the car. So I went back to the car and got the key.

It fit in another car. It was a sports car. This was not a normal car. The car could fly. So I took off down the hall. I pushed the button that said fly, so the wings came out then the next thing I knew we were flying. But I forgot that it didn't have a lot of gas. I got some gas and flew home.

There's one thing, I never grew back to my normal size. My car got me where I needed to go. I met the G.I. Joe. When they found out that I was an American, they took me on a tour.

BE A LEAF

By: Elizabeth Wright, Fifth Grade

I'm a leaf. When it's fall I fall off the tree. And when it snows I get covered all up. And everyone walks all over me, but it doesn't hurt. After the snow goes away I'm on the ground. Sometimes people pick me up. And when it's fall I turn colors. That is neat that my family can turn colors like me. I like it in the summer because the sun is so pretty and nice. Sometimes it rains and I get cold. I like being a leaf because I turn different colors. It's fun when I have a lot of nice friends. I like it a lot.

HOT PAWS

By: Maya Ponte, Fifth Grade

Spot, Kelly, Whiskers, Midnight and Puff were all cats. They were also all members of a special gang called "Hot Paws." In the middle of the night "Hot Paws" would go to the abandoned drug store and dance. They were a couple of miles from town so they could turn the radio up as loud as they wanted.

It just so happened "Hot Paws" was in competition with two other dancing cat groups. They were called "Wild Cats" and "Tigers." The "Wild Cats" were about the meanest cats you could think of. They were also very good dancers. The "Wild Cats" didn't like "Hot Paws."

Puff was the youngest. Kelly sent Puff to ask the "Wild Cats" if they would like to go to a dancing contest with "Hot Paws."

In the "Wild Cats" gang there were 4 cats. Mac, Stripe, Jonnette and Pirate. Pirate had a black circle with a connecting stripe on one eye. It looked like an eye patch.

On the night of the contest millions of cats showed up. It was a long contest but finally "Hot Paws" won! They received a good medal with a silver cat on it.

Charges Sought Against Man For Buying Beer for Minors

A check by police of a loud automobile exhaust pipe resulted in a police complaint against a 21-year-old Chelsea man for furnishing alcohol to a minor on Friday, Nov. 14.

Chelsea police signaled a southbound automobile to stop after they heard an unusually loud exhaust at 8:29 p.m. The car pulled into the Chelsea Lanes parking lot.

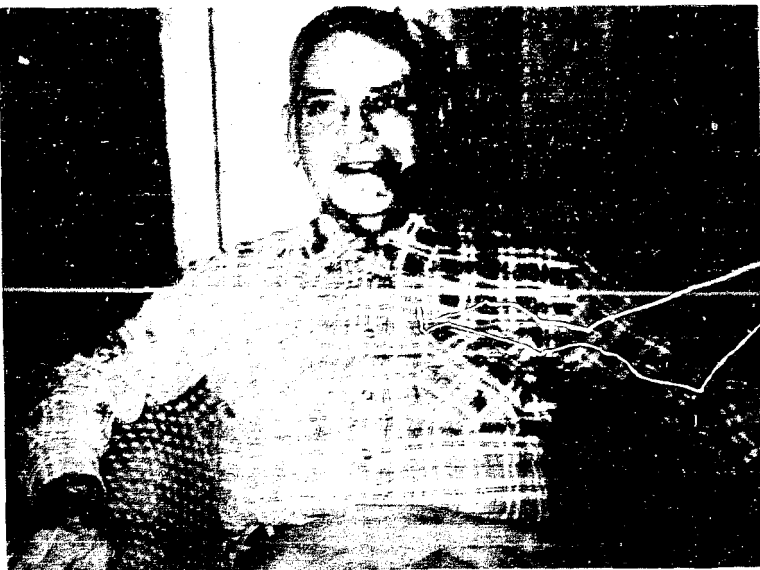

After police requested a driver's license, they noticed an obscured lump in the back seat of the car, which turned out to be a tapped quarter keg of beer sitting in a tub of ice.

When police asked where they obtained the beer, the boys, one 19 and the other 16-years-old, said a black man, about 35-years-old, who they did not know, bought it for them.

After checking with Tower Mart employees, police determined the Chelsea man had bought the beer for the youths.

Charges against the Chelsea man are pending.

CHARLES CAMERON sits in his big easy chair enjoying one of his several pipes. He has been smoking pipes for the past 28 years and will probably continue. His wife Ruth says she finds pipe smoking less annoying than cigarette smoking.

Some Smokers Quit While Others Keep Puffing Away

The 10th annual Great American Smoke-out, held Nov. 22 and aimed at getting smokers to stop for at least one day, inspired some Chelsea pipe smokers either to stop or to refuse to stop.

A survey taken by The Chelsea Standard revealed that at least two area pipe smokers, Fred Mills and Willis Porter, were following the American Cancer Society's advice. Mills, business manager for the Chelsea schools, said, "I've taken the day off, not from work, but from smoking." He said he decided to quit for the day at the urging of his wife and sons. Fred, who has been smoking a pipe for 25 years, ever since college, uses a cherry blend tobacco. Asked whether he would quit for good, he replied, "I'm not sure." As of 2 p.m. he was just hoping he would make it through the day.

Willis Porter, of Porter's TV Service, was having an easier time quitting because he does not smoke a lot anyway. He explained, "I can leave a pipe and go for a week." But he did specifically quit for the smoke-out and said he would have to see if he quit altogether. In any event, he predicted he would smoke less in the future.

Ed Lewis, of Lewis Publishing, Inc., refused to admit that the Great American Smoke-out had anything to do with pipe smokers. He claimed, "I smoke less than I did six months ago. I feel better and am able to do more—because I don't spend so much time filling and emptying a pipe. But the special no smoking day is not a factor in the change."

Retired superintendent of schools, Charlie Cameron, also ignored the American Cancer Society's advice. He said, "It's just a habit and I just continue it." He admitted that he smokes a pipe off and on all day and has done so for the last 28 years. Before that he smoked cigarettes. Charlie smokes a special mixture of tobacco called "1928" which he buys in Petoskey. In the summer he buys a three- or four-month supply and then sends for it the rest of the year.

Robert "Skip" Schlup, co-partner of Chelsea Telecommunications, is another who did not quit smoking his pipe. He said in defense, "Of course I just chew on it half the time." Instead of a Great American Smoke-out, Skip would like to see a Great American Drink-out. While smoking only hurts the smoker, drinking can affect innocent people."

Paul Seitz, a pipe smoker who farms on Fletcher Rd., was unavailable for comment because he was up north deer hunting. However, his wife said, "I imagine that pipe is going."

Three of Chelsea's well-known pipe smokers quit prior to the smoke-out: Bob Foster, Charlie Staphis, and Anton Nielsen. Bob Foster, retired owner of Foster's Men's Wear, was often seen looking out of his store window watching the world go by with a pipe in his mouth. But he quit smoking his pipe in 1980 on his doctor's advice, after smoking a pipe for 20 years, and cigarettes before that.

Health reasons also prompted Anton Nielsen, owner of Farmer's Supply, to stop smoking, since he quit for good after being in the hospital a few years ago. However, he said he had been cutting down before that and had almost quit before entering the hospital.

Charles Staphis, Skip's partner in Chelsea Telecommunications, quit smoking a few months ago because he felt he was smoking too much. "It was in my mouth from the time I got up until I went to bed. It was getting to be too much of a must thing." His original reason for smoking a pipe was to smoke less, because he had been too heavy a cigarette smoker. Now Charles smokes an occasional cigar, but not often enough to call it a habit, and also chews gum, sugarless when possible.

Chelsea cigarette smokers are even more steadfast than the pipe smokers. The Chelsea Standard was unable to find any cigarette smokers who observed the Great American Smoke-out on Nov. 20, not even among the village leaders. Council person, Sis Kanten said, "I should and I know better. Unfortunately, I didn't at this time." Zoning inspector Rosemary Harok said, "No, I did not. I'm sorry to disappoint you and many others."

Nor did any of the smokers give concrete reasons for not quitting. Said Sam Johnson of Gambles, "I did not quit smoking. I just didn't." Sam admits to smoking 30 to 40 cigarettes a day.

Sandy Loy of the Village Bakery acted surprised when asked if she had stopped. Not only did she smoke her accustomed number for the day, but she said all the other employees at the bakery, Roger, Kathy, and Sylvia, also did. Moreover, all her customers that regularly smoke, did so on the Smoke-out day with their usual frequency.

A truck from the Huron Harvest Food Bank picked up the food, and as a United Way agency, the Food Bank will be distributing the food to needy families in Washtenaw county for Thanksgiving.

Kiwanians explained, "One of the purposes in being Kiwanis members is to serve the communities in which we live. This project is done in the spirit of Kiwanis and in the spirit of Thanksgiving."

President Ronald Reagan mentioned the co-operative nature of "Operation Care and Share" in the announcement of White House participation when he explained, "You can care and share by helping your own community food program."

If Measles Strike Here Unimmunized Children Cannot Attend School

Children who have not been immunized against measles will be required to stay home from school if even a single case of measles turns up at that child's school.

That warning was issued late last week to all Washtenaw county school superintendents and principals by John B. Atwater, director of the Washtenaw County Health Department.

Atwater said state law provides for the exclusion of children from school who have not been immunized. They can be readmitted after they are immunized or two weeks after the onset of the last known case of measles.

Atwater issued the warning because several communities in western Wayne county, including those adjacent to Washtenaw county, have recently reported a number of cases of measles.

"It is likely that rash illness, including measles, will be developing in Washtenaw county," Atwater said.

"We all need to be alert to new cases as they occur so that we can eliminate unnecessary spread of the disease."

"In the case that a case of measles is identified in a school student, we will enforce the law."

A child must have been immunized on or after his first birthday, and the school must have documentation of the immunization.

According to Chelsea High school principal John Williams, officials are primarily concerned about children in the 6th to 8th grades who were vaccinated using a dead virus, which has proved not to be as effective as other means.

Williams said that in some cases an unimmunized child could be forced to miss several weeks of school, which could be very difficult to make up.

The health department is planning an Immunization Clinic today (Wednesday) from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. at the County Service Center off Hogback Rd. in Ann Arbor.

For more information call 973-1460.

Chills, chest colds, flu, alcohol intoxication, or use of narcotics may predispose healthy people to pneumococcal pneumonia. The flu and pneumonia vaccines may be given at the same time. Unlike influenza vaccine, however, the pneumococcal pneumonia vaccine affords long-term immunity and need not be administered yearly.

4 Re-Named To EDC

Four members of the Chelsea Economic Development Council have been re-appointed to six-year terms by the village council. Dan Murphy, Dale Schumann, Paul Schaible and Jack Merkel were all recommended for appointment by Village President Jerry Satterthwaite.

Council approved the slate at their regular meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 18.

Other members of the EDC include Fritz Belser, Fred Mills, Helen Lancaster, Bob Riemenschneider and Herman Radloff.

Medicare will reimburse the elderly for the cost and administration of pneumonia vaccine. This program will substantially reduce the $63,000,000 paid by Medicare to treat pneumococcal pneumonia in the elderly. It is, therefore, cost-effective and will result in a net savings to the treasury of close to $12 million by 1986.

Woman Robbed at Gunpoint In Driveway

A 23-year-old Chelsea-area woman was robbed at gunpoint in the driveway of her home after she was followed from I-94 early Sunday morning.

According to Sgt. William McFarlane of the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department, the woman noticed a car following her from the Fletcher Rd. exit of I-94 at 3 a.m. It followed her all the way to Werkner Rd., where she lost sight of the vehicle.

As the woman was exiting her car in her driveway, a teen-aged black man approached her on foot, pointed a gun at her, and asked her for her cash and jewelry, McFarlane said.

The man took a watch and ring valued at approximately $375, McFarlane said. The woman did not lose any cash.

McFarlane said the man walked toward an awaiting vehicle, but returned and took the woman's keys before leaving in the car, which was driven by an accomplice.

"This is an extremely unusual kind of crime, especially for that area," McFarlane said.

McFarlane said it was possible the men had followed her all the way from Ann Arbor.
