THIS NEWLY REMODELED BUILDING, commonly known as the old F&M Restaurant, now holds three businesses on the ground floor and three one-bedroom apartments upstairs. Accent on Travel, The Country Rose, and System Directions occupy the downstairs. Sam and Joyce Johnson bought the building last year.

Johnsons Turn Beast Into Beauty of Building

One of the former biggest eyesores in downtown Chelsea has become one of the most attractive buildings thanks to the efforts of Sam and Joyce Johnson, owners of the Gambles store.

The site of the former F&M Restaurant, at the northeast corner of Middle and Main Sts., is fully occupied by three small businesses upstairs and three apartments downstairs.

The building sat vacant for nearly one year after the F&M went out of business. The Johnsons bought it last September. The roof probably wouldn't have lasted through the winter, so it was replaced immediately.

In addition, all the interior walls were moved, the staircase was relocated from Main St. to Middle St., the plaster was torn out, and all the plumbing and wiring were replaced.

They even had a few surprises. Beekeepers removed a hive of bees from the building next to the original stairwell. However, before the bees departed they left an 8' by 4' section of honeycomb.

However, the Johnsons, who hired all local contractors, worked to restore the original character of the building. They saved the woodwork upstairs and maintained the original brick exterior, even exposing the original columns, now painted red, on Main St. They've also retained the original 12' ceilings, although fire codes didn't make that real easy to do.

They've added an attractive oak trim to the front of the building, and have recently installed awnings on both sides of the building.

"We're real proud of the building," Sam said.

"We decided early that we wanted to do it right. We tried to take it back to about 1900."

The first business tenant was Accent on Travel, which moved from smaller quarters over the Secretary of State's office on Main St. The travel agency moved from one of the most obscure downtown locations to one of the choicest spots on the busiest intersection.

The other two businesses are new. Blake Thompson has opened a computer consulting firm called New System Directions. He has office space which opens on th E. Middle St.

The Country Rose, a store specializing in country gifts and bathroom accessories, is next to the travel agency on Main St. Its owners are sisters Mary Currie-Williams and Ann Currie. The store's grand opening was last week-end.

Upstairs are what might be called three luxury efficiency apartments, and they were all rented even before they were finished. Each apartment is carpeted, has all appliances, including a washer and dryer, as well as air conditioning. Sam stripped all the woodwork and refinished it, saving the original wainscoting. New windows were installed.

The upstairs was not turned into business space because it would have been too costly to make it accessible to the handicapped, Sam said.

After pouring thousands of dollars into the building, Sam and Joyce are crossing their fingers that it will be a profitable venture.

It certainly has been a welcome addition to the downtown.

Recycling, Composting Could Begin This Fall

Chelsea could begin a recycling and composting program as early as mid to late October funded by a state grant.

Jack Durbin, director of public works for Washtenaw county, confirmed that the county has received four separate grants totaling $322,000 from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources to begin the "satellite" programs in communities outside Ann Arbor. The money will come from funds allotted to the Clean Michigan Act.

Chelsea Village Council voted earlier this summer to participate in the program.

Durbin sought the grants partly because landfill space is dwindling rapidly around the county. Chelsea's landfill is projected to last another four or five years. By recycling and composting, anywhere from 30 to 50 percent of household garbage can be diverted from the landfill, Durbin said.

In addition, Durbin anticipates that the county will eventually turn to burning its garbage. Recycling will keep those burning costs down.

The grants will cover the cost of setting up outbuildings for the recycling materials, recycling bins, equipment time for turning the composted materials, and the pick-up of recycled materials for the first year.

Materials collected in the recycling program will be sold to Recycle Ann Arbor on what Durbin hopes will be a break-even basis.

Details of exactly how the program will work in Chelsea have yet to be decided. In the recycling program, village residents will sort their own glass, metal and paper and take them to the recycling station.

School Lunch Prices, Tax Levies Stay Same

Chelsea School Board, at the Monday, Aug. 17 meeting, approved three budget items with pleasure, since none entailed an increase in expenditure from last year.

The board approved school lunch prices to continue, as they have for the last two years, at $1.25 for students, $1.80 for adults, 20¢ for milk, and 40¢ for reduced-price meals.

Tax levies will also remain as they have for the last two years at 38.52 mills for operating with one of these mills designated for maintenance projects. 11.22 of the mills are allocated, while the other 27.30 mills are extra voted ones. Debt retirement will remain at 41.22 mills.

The board voted to continue the food service contract with Manchester Community schools for the 1987-88 school year. Since Manchester's school population is about half the size of Chelsea's, this means that the Chelsea kitchen prepares about a third more food. Every school day morning the Manchester schools call Chelsea with a food count. After the food is prepared, it is stored in a special truck for the Manchester people to pick up. This is the third year of this operation and, according to assistant

Village Population Might Grow 17 Percent

If all four residential building projects are completed as planned, the village's population could increase by 17 percent or more in the next four years.

According to figures compiled by Assistant Village Manager Lee Fahrner, the four projects, Bridgetown Condominiums, Chelsea Pines Condominiums, Quiet Creek Condominiums and Belser Estates, will add 274 homes to the village.

Using an average of 2.5 people per home, the village's population would rise by 685. The village's current population is about 3,900.

Each project would be built in more than one phase. Total first phase units would be 110, to be built over the next two years.

The village's major concern is that there is enough sewer capacity for the new units as they are built.

The new plan is scheduled to be completed in 15-18 months, with a total additional capacity of 600 units or 1,500 people.

"We believe plant operational characteristics should be determined prior to significant phase 2 construction on any of these projects which will provide the village with a basis for further review of future phases of each project," Fahrner said in his preliminary plat review of the Belser Estates project.

Two Proposed Malls Await County Solution To Drainage Problem

The two men who have been in a low-key battle for the last several months to build Chelsea's first shopping mall will likely end up getting their shovels in the ground about the same time due to a common problem that only the county can solve.

Rene Papo, a partner in Arcus Corp. of Ann Arbor, and Mike Kennedy, manager of Polly's Market, plan to build their malls virtually across M-52 from each other.

And, as it turns out, Papo's proposed 92,000-square-foot mall will probably share the same storm water run-off problems that have plagued Kennedy's mall since last spring.

Kennedy, who wants to build a smaller mall than Papo's next to Polly's Market, was told by the village last spring that his storm water run-off problems would have to be solved before he could build. A culvert under M-52, and drain, were plugged, apparently when Chelsea Lanes was built in the 1960s. That drain would have handled the run-off from a retention pond on land next to Polly's, land that Papo owns.

At that time, Papo, who had the first site for his mall rejected by the village council, made it clear he was not too eager to help Kennedy solve his problems.

Kennedy, and the Village of Chelsea, petitioned Washtenaw County Drain Commissioner Jim Murray to establish a drainage district and solve the problem. In essence, a drain would be built and landowners who would benefit by the drain would be assessed for its cost. The county would maintain it.

The village has asked that the drain run east into the lake a few hundred yards behind Polly's, partly so that drainage problems in Pierce Park can be alleviated. That drain would run across land that Papo owns.

Now that Papo has decided to build his mall on land between the fairgrounds and Chelsea State Bank on M-52, he's faced with drainage problems of his own. And the village wants the runoff from both projects to be treated by the same new drain.

According to Deputy Drain Commissioner Valerie Tucker, it will probably be almost two months before a public hearing is held on the drainage district, a legally mandated step.

"We sent a request to the engineers to supply us with information on the proposed boundaries of the drain," Tucker said.

"We can't do anything until we get that information. I hope to have it within a month or so."

Fahrner called the two-month time frame "disappointing." The delay could cause construction on both projects to begin next spring.

Once all the engineering information has been collected and a public hearing held, a Board of Determination, consisting of three disinterested people, will decide if a drain should be built.

In the meantime, Kennedy and Papo can submit their site plans to the village for preliminary approval, according to Assistant Village Manager Lee Fahrner.

Papo, who has submitted his preliminary site plans to the village, gave an informational talk to the planning commission last Tuesday, but no action was taken.

Kennedy planned to submit his initial site plans to the village last week. However, he was told by Fahrner that he may be able to go back to his original plans for a 65,000-square-foot (up from the currently-planned 42,000) mall depending on whether or not he needs a retention pond on the property. Consequently, Kennedy will have to wait a little longer.

Planning Commission Listens To Papo Plans, Approves Laundry Site

Ann Arbor developer Rene Papo presented initial drawings of his proposed shopping mall to the Chelsea Village Planning Commission at their regular meeting Tuesday, Aug. 11.

No action was taken on the development, tentatively called "Chelsea Shopping Center."

The plan showed a 56,140-square-foot Ames Department Store as the primary tenant. In addition, there would be other stores for hardware, clothing, shoes and drugs, as well as a restaurant. The mall would total 96,240 square feet, with 472 parking spaces, when Meabon's Appliance Center is included.

The mall would be built in an L shape, with Ames taking up one side.

The area now used primarily for fair parking on Old US-12 between the fairground and Chelsea State Bank would be paved over for mall parking.

The two buildings would be 15-25 feet high.

The back of the Ames store would run along Old Manchester Rd. The smaller stores would run approximately west to east, ending 20 feet behind Meabon's.

Papo's presentation was for information purposes only as his site plan did not reach the village offices in time to be considered.

Total acreage is 9.54. The architect is Donald E. Van Curler & Associates of Ann Arbor.

The planning commission also approved site plans for the industrial park's newest business, C & D Laundry Service.

The business, owned by Cedimir and Dobrika Janicevic of Chelsea, will be built on the vacant lot just north of Roberts Paint & Body Shop at the corner of Sibley Rd. and E. Industrial.

Plans show a 2,400-square-foot building with a four-car parking lot.

The business will be an industrial laundry service for uniforms and other business clothing.

Preliminary plat plans for Belser Estates, the 74-lot housing development for N. Freer Rd. adjacent to the railroad tracks, were reviewed by the planning commission.

No action was taken as the commission had a number of concerns about the project.

A major concern, one that has been a problem for developers of Quiet Creek Condominiums and Bridgetown Condominiums, was the lack of more than one entrance and exit to the development. The village contends that fire protection will be easier with more than one access.

In addition, there were concerns about water pressure in the area, and storm water run-off.

The plan shows a retention area at the southeast corner of the development. However, it was unknown what would happen to the water from there. The village plans to discuss the problem with the county drain commissioner.

The development would sit on 41 acres. It is being proposed by Charles Belser, son of planning commission chairman Frederick Belser.

An attempt by Chelsea attorney Peter Flintoff to have land on S. Main St. re-zoned to allow an office development was dealt a blow when one of the owners of the property objected to the idea.

Judy Schneider, whose husband, Carl, along with Flintoff and others, owns 1.58 acres opposite Pierce Park, said that her family had not been consulted about re-zoning the land from residential to a proposed Planned Office Development District. She said they opposed the idea.

Fahrner said Monday that the objection raised legal issues as to who

Group Offers Property Relief, Sales Tax Increase Plan

A plan providing $1.2 billion in property tax relief while raising the state sales tax has been approved by the Property Tax Subcommittee of the School Finance Committee.

The plan, which would also provide funds for improving quality of education and decrease inequities between school districts, will be presented to the full commission for its work session later this month, with final presentation to the Board of Education scheduled for early September.

Under the plan, which would require voter approval, the state sales and use tax would be increased from 4 cents to 6 cents on the dollar on all but residential utilities costs, resulting in about $1.38 billion in additional revenue to be earmarked for education.

To balance the increase in revenue, local school boards would be allowed to levy up to 18 mills on residential and agriculture property without voter approval, with voter approval allowing levies up to 38 mills, instead of the current cap of 50 mills.

Business and commercial property tax would also be addressed in the plan, with a state-levied, permanent rate of 23 mills.

The revenue from the 23 mills would be part of the state school aid fund.

Ed Farhat, chair of the subcommittee, and several members agreed that it will be a difficult job to convince voters of the merits of the package, which could appear on the 1988 ballot if the full committee and Board of Education give it their approval.

"The whole issue requires a sales job," Farhat said, adding however, that the sales tax proposal would be easier to sell than an income tax increase.

Sen. Dan DeGrow (R-Port Huron) said the question of funding inequities would be addressed with the plan because disparities between out of formula districts and those in formula would be reduced.

However, the subcommittee also approved statutory language requiring tax revenue generated by commercial, industrial and utility levies to be shared among districts and implemented over 10 years, if the sales tax-property tax reduction plan is defeated by voters.

Additionally, the plan calls for providing about $200 million annually for quality improvements in education.

For the first and second years, the money would be provided by recapturing social security and categorical funds ($80 million); using half of the anticipated federal windfall ($85 million), and the state pension fund or an additional cigarette tax ($44 million).

After the second year, the improvements would be funded by the revenue generated from the increased sales and use tax, which would be part of the education fund.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Ed Doolittle told the fellers at the country store Saturday night that the more statics and research pile up, the less trust he has come to put in em. Ed said it don't pay to take all the studies that come down the pike at face value.

For instaut, he said fer all the money and time this country is pouring into fighting drug abuse, and fer all the numbers about drug traffic, we need to reconize that legal pushers is a bigger part of the problem than anybody wants to know. Ed had saw a report by the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration that said 14 of the 20 most abused drugs in this country today are legal.

The DEA explained that ever community of any size has one or more designated dealers among its doctors. He's the one that gives all the fat wim-men their diet pills, and gives regular shots to folks that think they got pain doctors can't find or won't take time to look fer. This is the doctor that makes dealing in dope his specialty, and other doctors says in private that he is a help to them by handling traffic that otherwise would clog their offices and take up the time they need to treat the sick.

Fer sure, Ed went on, people will do anything they have to do to git what they want. That means they abuse doctors. They will git perscriptions fer drugs from three or four doctors, and each one don't know all the others are ordering refills. Ed said when the wife of Massachusetts Gov. Dukakis said recent that she was hooked on diet pills fer 26 years until she kicked the habit in 1982, the legal dope traffic is exactly what she was talking about.

Farthermore, Ed reported that the DEA found that 53 percent of all drug cases handled in emergency rooms in this country last year involved use of legal drugs. If that static doesn't include alcohol, Ed said, it makes no sense at all.

Practical speaking, Ed said, legal drugs that are sold and taxed don't brighten our drug traffic picture of boats and airplanes full of marywana and cocaine flowing into this country, but it darkens the hole picture of drug abuse and questions our resolve to do somepun about it. He had saw where a cigaret developed in England is being sold here. It is a plastic tube that has straight nicotine, but no tobacco. It gits the drug straight into the blood without the health and social risks of smoke, but it still is a way to maintain a legal drug market.

Final, Clem Webster broke in to say the good news is that some statics are dead wrong. Clem said he had been lamenting the sad state of matrimony after he saw months back that half the marriages in this country end in divorce. But polltaker Louis Harris come recent with encouraging word that the report was way off base. Instead of one in two, Harris said, the fail rate is one in eight. The resercher got his figger from 1.2 million divorces and 2.4 million weddings in a given year, Clem said, but he ferget to crank in 54 million other marriages that kept on keeping on.

Personal, Clem's item reminded me of the study that showed male dogs exposed to car fumes lose their interest in female dogs. One feller said that was a scientific fact because he hadn't had nothing to do with his old lady since the car muffler started leaking. Further study showed, however, that his old lady run over a fire hydrant and tore off the muffler the week before, and he was still putting about it.

Diet, Heart Disease Facts Offered By Extension Service

There are many confusing messages in the media about diet and heart disease; messages exhorting us to take Omega 3 oils, avoid red meat, give up eggs, use olive oil, etc. Learn the facts about diet and heart disease at a public program, "Take Heart in the Kitchen," presented by Marion Prince of Co-operative Extension Service. Ms. Prince is an extension home economist and registered dietitian.

Participants will learn about the role of dietary fat as a risk factor for heart disease and understand the difference between cholesterol and saturated fat, and how they contribute to serum cholesterol. They will see foods that have "hidden fat" and substitute foods that would constitute a more healthful diet. There will be light snacks served.

The program will be held Aug. 25, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Co-operative Extension Service Building at the County Service Center, 4133 Washtenaw. There is a $5 fee to cover cost of food; pre-registration required, call 971-0079.

Elizabeth Rose Brodie, daughter of Celine Brodie of Lupton and Robert Brodie of Lupton, married Michael Earl Gilligan, son of Charles A. and Erlene Gilligan of Chelsea, on July 25 at Our Savior Lutheran church. The Rev. Franklin Giebel officiated.

Honor attendants were Joan Brodie of Lupton and John Laraway of Chelsea.

Serving as bridesmaids were Shannon Laraway of Chelsea, Tish Miller of Lupton, Cathy Droop of Redford, and Terri Calhoun of Whitmore Lake.

The ushers were Tom Hill of Chelsea, Richard Cobb of Chelsea, Tim Brodie of Lupton, and Mike Hafner of Chelsea.

A reception was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Dexter. After a honeymoon in northern Michigan, the couple will reside in Ann Arbor.

New Teacher Hired By Co-op Preschool

North Lake Co-Op Preschool (located across from the Chelsea Fairgrounds), has announced the new teacher for the 1987-88 school year will be Jane A. Brooks.

Ms. Brooks is a graduate of Eastern Michigan University and a member of Kappa Delta Pi sorority. For nine years she was involved with the EMU Child Development Center, was a member of Fletcher Elementary school PTA for five years, was a founder and charter member of COPEP (Citizens Organized for Positive Education and Discipline), as well as other school and community activities. She and her family relocated to Chelsea in 1986. Her extensive creative and curriculum skills, along with a unique rapport with children, will make her a welcome addition to this parent co-operative preschool program.

Composting Program . . .

Any organic material, such as clippings, leaves, branches and items that go down the garbage disposal can be included in a composting program. Some of those materials, such as leaves and branches, will probably continue to be picked up by the village.

Durbin plans to meet with local officials in participating communities later this month. Assistant Village Manager Lee Fahrner is coordinating the program for Chelsea.

"We'd like to have the composting program in place in time for the fall (leaf) collections," Durbin said.

According to Durbin, many composting programs have failed because they weren't managed properly. Composting, in which naturally occurring bacteria break down organic matter into topsoil, requires a careful program of turning the material so that the process can occur efficiently and not let off a foul odor.

The village tentatively decided to set up a recycling/composting station at the industrial park on Sibley Rd.

Michigan Bell Plans Open House To Show Modernized Facility

Michigan Bell will open the doors of its $1.5 million call processing center on Tuesday, Aug. 25, so that Chelsea area residents may inspect the facility and a new state-of-the-art call processor it houses.

The center is located at 127 W. Middle in Chelsea. Open house hours are 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m.

"Our new processor was turned up July 25 and gave nearly 5,000 area customers in the 475 exchange the advanced calling features they'd been asking for," said Marcia Buhl, local corporate affairs manager for Michigan Bell.

"We hope the public will drop by to look over the latest generation of call-processing technology," added Buhl. "They'll have a chance to compare it with the call-processing equipment from the previous era and see how rapidly our industry has changed in a short time."

Buhl said Michigan Bell technical staff will be on hand to explain old and new technology.

Advanced calling features now available to customers in the 475 exchange include Touch Tone and these Custom Calling features:

—Call Forwarding, which automatically transfers an incoming call from one telephone to another;

—Call Waiting/Cancel Call Waiting, which alerts a customer using the phone to a second call waiting to be answered or cancels the Call Waiting tone on important calls;

—Speed Calling, which permits a customer to reach frequently called numbers by dialing special codes; and —Three-Way Calling, which enables a caller to add a third party to a conversation.

Buhl reminded customers ordering touch tone service that they will need a touch tone telephone and customers using answering machines should notify the Michigan Bell repair center 1-221-2121 for residence and 1-221-3131 for business so proper options may be programmed.

"The new processor also means business customers in the 475 exchange may order more consecutive lines," said Buhl.

Buhl said that September will bring the next step in the full implementation of the new processor.

"At that time, we'll offer customers in the 475 exchange 'Dial 1 Plus' long distance service. 'Dial 1 Plus' will let customers use any participating long distance company simply by dialing '1' plus the area code and the telephone number.

"In the past, placing a call through any long distance company other than AT&T meant dialing up to 22 digits."

Customer balloting to select a primary long distance company was completed last week. Customers who didn't select one of the available long distance firms will be randomly assigned one by Michigan Bell, acting under Federal Communications Commission rules. These customers have six months to select an alternative long distance company without paying a service charge.

A. A. PALMER SCHOLARSHIP for medicine was presented this year to Ted Merkel, son of Robert and Barbara Merkel, 124 W. Summit St. The money was presented by Alice Swainson of Manchester, on behalf of the Chelsea

Painters organization, annual sponsors of the scholarship. Merkel, a senior at the University of Notre Dame, plans to apply to medical school this fall. This is the 14th year of the scholarship, named for a former Chelsea physician.

Chelsea History Being Added To Local School Curriculum

One of the most complicated of the six curriculum changes going into effect this fall in the Chelsea schools will be the social studies one, because it affects every level, K-12. The curriculum committee approached this project by defining general goals and then having each grade level figure out the specific implementations.

Skills that students should learn during their tenure in the Chelsea schools, such as map reading, were decided on and then divided between the grades so that all would be covered, but without unnecessary duplication. With the subject matter, the biggest change was to enlarge the curriculum so that the whole world, not just western civilization, was covered.

At the elementary school level, the biggest change was in the third grade curriculum, which now focuses on Chelsea, present and past. Third grade teachers, Sally Peiter and Sharon Hodgson, with help from curriculum director Laurie Bissell, have spent the summer researching Chelsea history. Gathering information from the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce, the Chelsea Historical Society, and the Bentley Library in Ann Arbor, they have worked on writing a textbook and planning class projects such as field trips.

The Chelsea textbook is almost finished, but the three authors are still in need of some pictures. A contribution of Old Chelsea Village, the book of photographs published by Ann Arbor Federal Savings in 1972, would be most welcome. Several people have offered to let their books be photocopied, but the group really needs a book that they can cut up.

Class projects will include walking tours to historic buildings in Chelsea, a trip to the cemetery, inviting senior citizens who grew up in Chelsea to visit the classroom, and collecting information about Chelsea from the newspaper.

Peiter says the main emphasis in third grade social studies is for the students to learn to read for information, not just for enjoyment or for practice. She says the study of their own community should be good motivation for this.

Under the new curriculum, the study of Chelsea in the third grade should be a natural continuum from previous years. In kindergarten children will study themselves, in first grade they study the school and family, and in second grade, neighborhoods and communities. In fourth grade, they will go on to study Michigan and in fifth grade, the United States.

At the middle school level, the eighth grade will still study U.S. history, but the other two grades' curriculums have been entirely changed. The sixth graders will now study Latin America and Canada, while the seventh graders will study the eastern hemisphere, including the Middle East, China, Japan, Oceania, Australia, and the Philippines.

Seventh grade social studies teacher Barbara Brown explained that the curriculum will focus on the inter-relatedness of nations, "how we really live in a global community." She said, "similarities, not differences will be stressed."

Brown and the other seventh grade social studies teacher, Jim Hoeft, have been planning this change for the last three years. Last year they taught a unit on the Middle East and the year before, a unit on China, to help prepare for the change. This summer they have been planning the specifics, using a new textbook.

This spring, long after the Chelsea changes had been agreed on, the state board of education recommended that students study the eastern hemisphere and Latin America. This means that in yet another area, the Chelsea schools are in the forefront of educational innovation.

At the high school level, the effort was not to change, but to preserve as much of the program as possible in superintendent Fred Mills, "it works well."

The board approved a contract for Janet Stevens to teach fifth grade at South Elementary school, replacing Bob Bullock who is on a two-year leave to teach in Panama. Stevens has substituted in the Chelsea school system and has also worked as the receptionist and switchboard operator in the main office. She obtained her secondary certification at Ball State University and her elementary certification at Eastern Michigan University.

In the information portion of the meeting, superintendent Ray Van Meer reported that he had sent congratulatory letters to all the Chelsea school employees who met the standards of exemplary attendance.

Van Meer also reported that the cost for fencing at ball diamonds is $3.20 a running foot. Consideration is being given to fencing from home plate toward first and third bases at the Little League diamonds, so that foul balls will not harm spectators.

Mills reported that the school maintenance work being done this summer is progressing on schedule and should be completed by opening day, Aug. 31. This work includes re-roofing at the high school and at Beach, painting classrooms and bathrooms in all four buildings (this work is done on a seven-year schedule so that every room gets painted that often), re-paving Mayer Dr. and repairing the high school driveway, sealing the high school parking lot, replacing shades and insulation where necessary, re-finishing the gymnasium floor at South school, and replacing the physical education lockers at the high school, the stage curtains at Beach, and the doors on the high school.

Said Mills, who supervises all this work, "Summer is my busy time."

Hospital Auxiliary Presents Fall Fashion Show, Luncheon

Last Saturday afternoon, more than 150 women enjoyed "An Afternoon of Fall Fashion" which included a gourmet luncheon in the Chelsea Hospital dining room. Proceeds from this event, the Hospital Auxiliary's fifth afternoon of fall fashion, will purchase stained-glass windows for the new hospital chapel.

The leaded glass windows are being created by Artists Jim and Chris Mishler of Chesaning, the motif being trees beside rocks and streams.

The new chapel will be completed within the next few months.

An exciting and diversified fashion statement was made by three Ann Arbor stores. Fashions presented by Alvin's of Briarwood were modeled by Cindy Harrison, Andrea Tupper, Barbara Merkel, Judi Wahl and Sandy Zeeb.

Beth's Boutique at the corner of Main and Liberty, showed fashions worn by Julie Vorus, Barbara Bridges, Ann Feeney, Daphne Hodder and Anne Comeau.

Models Julie Say, Peg Hamilton, Mary Harris and Jerri Young wore the fashions of Talbot's on E. Washington.

Committee for this event was Shirley Schaible, chairman; Jean Mann, tickets; Marlene Rademacher, fashions; Pat Whitesall, luncheon; and June Wilson, decor.

QUOTES

DONALD COLE
Director

"The first and worst of all frauds is to deceive one's self . . . all sin is easy after that . . ."

—G. Bailey

There are those who are much too clever to be deceived by others but who ruin their own lives by refusing to face the facts. How often we hear someone excuse a dishonest act by saying "everyone else is doing the same thing." The dope addict will tell you that he isn't really "hooked," that he can "kick the habit" whenever he wishes.

Such people may fool themselves but they fool few others. Other deceptions and sins, progressively worse, inevitably follow when we start "kidding ourselves."

Most of the families who come to us are referred by others we have served. They appreciate the extra thoughtfulness that we provide.

Gregory Area Youth Returns from Service In Mediterranean Area

Marine Lance Cpl. Anthony W. Argenta, son of Joan K. Bunting of 19299 Williamsville Rd., Gregory, recently returned from a six-month Mediterranean deployment with 26th Marine Amphibious Unit, Camp Lejeune, N.C., as part of Landing Force Sixth Fleet 2-87.

During the deployment Argenta participated in five combined amphibious exercises and one unilateral joint amphibious exercise. And for the first time in 15 years, Marines conducted an exercise on the island of Corsica. This exercise allowed the LFBF to practice and refine the special operations techniques developed during their pre-deployment training period.

Cpl. Argenta joined the Marine Corps in April 1986.

Chelsea History Being Added To Curriculum

light of a predicted decline in enrollment in the next two years.

According to high school government teacher Jim Bechtelheimer, the high school social studies curriculum committee, realizing that in a few years the school population would not support all the elective classes at present offered, worked at figuring out ways to incorporate at least some of that knowledge into the non-elective courses.

For instance, units in both economics and current problems will be included in the U.S. government class. And some Michigan history will be incorporated into the U.S. history class. World history, geography, sociology, and psychology will remain the same.

The high school curriculum committee also selected new textbooks for four classes, U.S. history, economics, and the elective and non-elective government classes. According to Bechtelheimer, the non-elective government class text emphasizes the U. S. Constitution, which is good in this bi-centennial year. The textbook for the elective class has a more behavioral approach than legalistic, which Bechtelheimer says lends itself more to analysis.

All the electives are still offered this coming year since there has not yet been the predicted drop in enrollment. Bechtelheimer says that this year the enrollment is as expected, that "the response is good." However, when the day comes when there are not enough students to justify offering all the electives, the committee hopes that the course changes will allow high school students to have at least an acquaintance with the deleted subjects.

SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBERS are now required for any dependents who are more than five years old, thanks to the new tax laws. Officials estimate that there will be more than nine million new filers before the April 15 tax deadline. The Ann Arbor Social Security office is urging

Draft Horses Competing at Fair

The smell of fresh soil turning over in a furrow below you... the hum of a hayrake whirling over the hay or maybe you remember sleigh bells jungling their songs when the team walks rhythmically across the snow drifts. Remember these? The sights and sounds of yesteryear that you thought were gone for good.

The draft horses are on the move back from our past. With our state celebrating its 150th birthday, the Horse Department at the Chelsea Community Fair would like to invite everyone to come and see some of our heritage at work.

On Sept. 1 (Tuesday, opening day) at 9 a.m. draft horses from around the southern part of Michigan will be showing in halter classes in the Horse Arena. After halter classes, harnesses will come out of the trailers to be utilized in the working farm class.

You may be asking what is a working farm class—well this is where a team must show how well they are capable of using farm equipment such as maneuvering and how gracefully they move.

Bring your cameras and curiosity to the fair on Tuesday, Sept. 1 at 9 a.m. in the Horse Arena to see these beautiful, graceful animals at work.

BRINGING BACK MEMORIES OF THE PAST, draft horses from southern Michigan will be at the Chelsea Community Fair demonstrating how capable they are with farm equipment and how gracefully they move. The event will start the first day of the fair, Tuesday, Sept. 1, at 9 a.m. with a showing of the halter class, followed by a working farm class. Both events will take place in the Horse Arena.

Guides Available To National Parks

"The place where hell bubbled up"—Yellowstone, our first National Park—is a big tourist attraction. So are Gulf Islands National Seashore in Florida, and Theodore Roosevelt Birthplace National Historic Site in New York, and many other national parks, monuments, historic sites, memorials, wildlife refuges, and forests throughout the country. And if you are planning to visit a number of these places this summer—or one of them a number of times—you can save yourself some money on entrance fees and fees for other services within the parks.

Just send for a copy of the free National Park Service brochure The Federal Recreation Passport Program to learn how people under 62 can get a Golden Eagle Passport, how people over 62 can get a Golden Age Passport, and how people who are blind or disabled can get a Golden Access Passport. These passports cover the cost of entrance fees and they may help to cut the cost of some other fees as well. The brochure also tells about annual Park Passes and federal Duck Stamps for repeated entrance to specific parks or wildlife refuges. For your free copy of The Federal Recreation Passport Program, send your name and address to Dept. 572R, Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

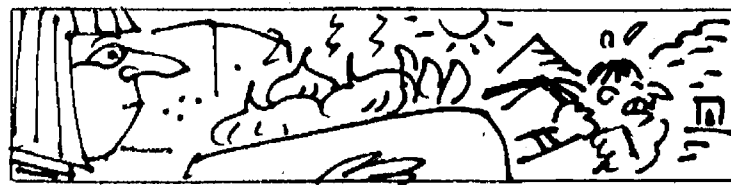

If you are under age 62, you can get a Golden Eagle Passport that covers you and any passengers in your private vehicle for entrance to parks that charge entrance fees. These fees can range from $1 to $2 a person to $3 to $7.50 a car load. The cost of the annual Golden Eagle Passport is $25, which could be recovered after visiting two or three parks. You can get one from National Park Service or National Forest Service headquarters in Washington, D.C., from one of their regional offices, or from any park or refuge that charges entrance fees.

Golden Age Passports are free, lifetime passes for anyone over the age of 62. Golden Access Passports are free to anyone who is medically determined to be blind or permanently disabled and who is eligible to receive federal benefits as a result. Both allow free entry for the permit holder and his passenger, and they also provide a 50 percent discount on federal user fees. Golden Age and Golden Access passports must be obtained in person at the same places as the Golden Eagle Passports or from Bureau of Land Management Offices, Tennessee Valley Authority recreation areas that charge fees, and at Hoover Dam.

Where are these parks and recreation areas? Four other publications will help you find them, including some parks that have relatively few visitors. The Guide and Map to the National Parks (Item 149R, $1.25) has a U.S. map that shows where the parks are and a chart that tells what services are available. National Wildlife Refuges (Item 188R, $1) is a similar map for nearly 300 wildlife refuges with a chart showing seasons for best viewing and what other facilities are available to visitors. Lesser Known Areas of the National Park System (Item 150R, $1.50) lists by state more than 170 national parks that are generally not crowded. The book tells why the sites are significant, how to reach them, and what accommodations are available. The 112-page National Parks Camping Guide, 1986-87 (Item 152R, $3.50) has detailed information about camping facilities at 103 parks nation-wide. It also describes the park, whether there are hookups for recreational vehicles, if they will take reservations, how long you can stay, seasons available, handicapped accessibility, and how to get to the parks.

You can get these booklets, and The Federal Recreation Passport Program (Item 572R, Free) by sending your name and address, the item numbers, and any payment to M. B. Woods, Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo. 81009. At the same time, you will also receive a free copy of the Consumer Information Catalog. Published quarterly by the U.S. General Services Administration, the Catalog lists more than 200 other free and low-cost federal booklets on a wide variety of subjects.

The first record of the use of spices dates from the age of the pyramids of Egypt—approximately 4,600 years ago—when onions and garlic were fed to 100,000 laborers.

Changes are being made in the way long distance users in your area place some operator-handled calls.

These changes affect Michigan Bell customers having phone numbers beginning with 475.

This is an informational message about your phone service from Marcia Buhl, your Michigan Bell Corporate Affairs Manager.

"These telephone service changes concern only operator-handled long distance calls outside your Michigan Bell long distance calling area. They apply to collect, credit card, person-to-person calls, calls billed to a third number, and requests for assistance. Some customers will need to contact their long distance companies for new instructions on how to place such calls. To find out if and how the service changes may affect your service, we ask you to read the following explanation."

An explanation of the changes in your operator-assistance service for calls outside your Michigan Bell long distance calling area (interLATA calls).

How operator-assisted calls were placed before. If you wanted operator assistance to place a long distance call, you dialed "0" or "0" plus the area code (if required), and the phone number you wanted and an operator put the call through for you.

How these calls are placed now. If the long distance service on the phone you are using is provided by a company that offers operator services and you want operator assistance to place a call, you dial "0" plus the area code (if required), and the phone number and an operator will assist you. To reach the long distance operator for additional assistance, you must dial "00" (Important: If you dial "0" without the phone number, you will get a Michigan Bell operator who can place calls within your Michigan Bell area only.)

If the long distance service on the phone you're using is provided by a long distance company that does not offer operator services, you must contact that long distance company to get instructions on how to place operator-assisted long distance calls.

Please note: If you dial "0" plus the area code, and the number, you may get a recording or no response. Further, if you dial "0" without the number, you will get a Michigan Bell operator who will refer you to your long distance company for further instructions.

If you are calling from a pay phone, continue to use the instructions posted on the phone.

Again, you should contact your long distance company for new instructions on how to place operator-handled long distance calls outside your Michigan Bell calling area. If you have any other questions about the changes, please call Michigan Bell's Let's Talk Center. The toll-free number is 1 800 555-5000.

Please watch your Michigan Bell bill inserts for further information.

TOM AND JANET TUTTLE are shown speaking with Greg Raye, and inquiring about his model, after he presented his Master of Architecture thesis, "A Revitalization Proposal for Chelsea." Greg completed this study this past April at the University of Michigan, School of Architecture. He is currently working with Quinn/Evans Architects in Ann Arbor. The presentation to members of the Chamber of Commerce, Downtown Development Association and Depot Association took place Wednesday, Aug. 12. In his hour-long presentation, Greg spoke first of opportunities to enhance and promote a more attractive image for Chelsea. In the second half of his presentation he explained his proposal for revitalizing the north end of downtown, including the buildings and grounds on either side of the railroad tracks. The main point of his proposal involved recognizing the inherent qualities found in Chelsea, promoting and enhancing these qualities to create a more coherent and positive image for Chelsea. One important quality to maintain and enhance was the quaint, historic small town image of Chelsea. "We need to promote a concentrated, cohesive and easily identifiable downtown," Greg suggested that retail expansion should occur in and adjacent to the current downtown business district. "By concentrating businesses downtown you encourage 'drop in' customers and magnify the efficiency of shopping downtown since a greater variety of shops would be within a short walk of each other." Greg strongly emphasized the opportunities that exist in Chelsea to use landscaping to "soften rough edges and to further beautify an already attractive village." He spoke of providing attractive entrances to Chelsea by landscaping major entrances to Chelsea such as the intersections of I-94 and M-32, Old US-12, Main St., Railroad and East St. The landscaping could then be extended down Main St. to draw people downtown. "A generous planting program could create a garden-like image for Chelsea at a relatively small cost," Greg said. Greg's proposal for the former Glazier Stove Works buildings, including the Clock Tower, was to create an arts and crafts community. "The complex of buildings could be unified through landscaped walkways and tied to the existing downtown by a continuous series of plantings." This theme was illustrated in a detailed model of the Glazier complex.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

Please put this in because my mom showed me an article in the Free Press about some kids who were playing with matches.

You should never play with matches because in one minute your house could be down in ashes. If you do make it out, your body would be all scarred. Some people would make fun of you. It would be terrible! Just one match can cost your life.

Your family is in horror because they do not know what is going to happen. Your friends may not like you any more, and all your toys will be burnt up.

This is a rhyme that I made up because children could remember: It is not cool to fool with matches. If you burn you will turn to ashes.

We're Coming to You... In Chelsea and Dexter

Did you know that you can pursue a college education right in your own backyard? And that you have a variety of courses to choose from in topics ranging from computers, business and economics to literature, Michigan history and photography? Washtenaw Community College offers this and more at the high schools in Chelsea and Dexter.

Education: A Community-Wide Priority

The WCC classes at both Chelsea and Dexter are a small part of extensive community education programs in both towns. These community programs, offered as part of each town's public school system, are truly comprehensive. They reach out to adult learners, senior citizens and young people through programs like adult basic and high school completion; parent and early childhood education; adult and youth enrichment; senior citizens care and recreation programs for both youth and adults.

WCC: A County-Wide Resource

WCC is proud to be affiliated with the community education programs found in Chelsea and Dexter. Bringing the college's services to people throughout the county is an important part of WCC's mission. But what does all this mean to you?

Registration:

The Door to Opportunity

It means you can gain valuable career skills and personal enrichment in your hometown — without giving up that daytime job or enduring a lengthy commute to class three times a week. It means you can get your foot in the door to a college education now — without changing your entire lifestyle. And it all starts with registration on Wednesday, August 26, 6-8 p.m. at both Chelsea and Dexter High Schools. See the "Extension Center Registration" box on this page for more information.

Barbara Bell: "... something special about each group of people."

Pride is Showing: Barbara Bell

A lot of people take pride in their work. Barbara Bell takes pride in people.

"I have a lot of admiration for the people who are involved in our programs," said Bell, who supervises Dexter's Community Education program. "It's a real commitment on their part, coming back to school after so many years."

In this case, Bell was referring to the many local residents who take advantage of courses offered by Washtenaw Community College at Dexter High School. These courses are offered in conjunction with Dexter's extensive community education program. They provide opportunity for some people who otherwise might not have time to attend college.

"I think it's important that they offer them in our community," Bell said. "People taking classes here work during the day. This gives them a chance to further their education locally and still continue to work."

Bell is enthusiastic when she talks about adult students who juggle jobs, books, classes and homelife — all at the same time. But it's hard to pin down her favorite aspect of working in community education.

"I love it all. I enjoy the little children in preschool, I enjoy the adult students and the senior citizens. There is something special about each group of people — it's fun to work with them."

Bell, a Dexter resident, has been with the community education program here for five years, taking over as supervisor last August. The program she overlooks is wide-ranging, with enrichment for both adults and young people, as well as recreation for youth and adults (see story on front page). But she knows there is always room for more.

Bell hopes that people will make the most of this program. And she is open to citizens' suggestions for further development. If Bell responds to their requests with the same kind of enthusiasm shown in her current work, Dexter residents have a lot to look forward to.

Jackie Rogers: "... we can respond to peoples' needs now."

Teamwork is Key: Jackie Rogers

Jackie Rogers is a team player.

She has found that being one comes naturally when you work for Chelsea Community Education.

"We work very closely with the local community," said Rogers, director of Community Education for Chelsea Schools. "Chelsea seems to be very self-supporting. There is a real commitment from local agencies and businesses. We can take care of our own, but we all have to work together to achieve that."

Rogers describes the senior citizens program at North Elementary as a "classic example" of this.

"The schools, Chelsea Community Hospital, Recreation Council and Kiwanis Club sat down together and communicated a genuine concern for senior citizens in Chelsea," Rogers said. "They knew individually they couldn't meet those needs. But they knew collectively they could make things happen."

The result: a full-time program that provides crucial services to senior citizens — some 1,400 seniors on the program's mailing list. A group of 120 seniors last year completed a trip to Hawaii planned by Rogers and her staff. Before that, a Thanksgiving dinner attracted 300 seniors.

The senior citizen example is only one of many that illustrate how teamwork has molded Chelsea's community education program into an extensive one that reaches to all parts of the community (see story on front page).

Although Rogers was instrumental in starting the program here nine years ago, she is quick to distribute the credit evenly — emphasizing how important teamwork has been in this program's development.

Ten years ago, with Superintendent Charlie Cameron ready to retire after 41 years of service, present superintendent Ray VanMeer and Rogers were hired into the school system. Cameron wished to get a community education program underway before departing; VanMeer and Cameron were charged to get the ball rolling. It's been one team victory after another ever since.

"Because of the school board and superintendent, and the cooperation of the administration, we were able to develop the dynamic program we have now," said Rogers. "I was in the right place at the right time. The people here are far-sighted enough to recognize that the role of the public schools is changing."

"Education is a part of the value system in Chelsea," Rogers added. "The people here really value enrichment, both academic and recreational. And that value system is reflected in the way we run our schools."

In addition, Rogers predicts that future team efforts between her staff and the one in neighboring Dexter could prove beneficial to residents in both towns.

"It is very exciting to work with Barbara Bell (Dexter's community education supervisor)," Rogers said. "We look forward to a future of working together."

WCC at a Glance

We Bring College Home

Washtenaw Community College offers education, enrichment and career advancement to nearly 9,000 students at its main campus in Ann Arbor. But that's just the beginning.

The College extends its services to many communities, including Chelsea, Dexter, Saline, Ypsilanti and Brighton.

College is Good for Business, Too

WCC brings workers to campus for specialized training and often provides the same service at the workplace. Training ranges from technical subjects like computers and electronics to business topics such as marketing and management. Anyone interested in this kind of employee training should call Continuing Education Services at (313) 973-3493 or Business and Industry Services at (313) 973-3533.

Support is Key at Washtenaw

Services like counseling, advising and career planning are vital, which is why WCC has offices for all three. But there is more.

Learning labs give students a place to complete homework and sharpen skills with up-to-date equipment. And there are offices where supportive people help smooth some of the rough edges that come with going to college.

Consider a Campus Visit

Students at the extension centers in Dexter and Chelsea can take advantage of these and other services at our main campus, which is nestled in a wooded area and former apple orchard about a mile east of the Geddes Road exit off U.S. 23. Contact the Office of Admissions, Washtenaw Community College, 4800 E. Huron River Drive, P.O. Box D-1, Ann Arbor, 48106. Phone (313) 973-3543.

Chelsea Fair Queen Candidates

Three of Seven Girls Who Seek The Title

LAURIE HONBAUM, 14, has the freshman class of Chelsea High school as her sponsor in this year's fair queen contest. Laurie has won numerous baton awards on the national, state, and local level. She placed third in the "America and Me" essay contest held this past year at Beach Middle school, received the Science Award, and placed in the top 10% of the eighth grade. She was chosen as an artist for the 1987 "Young Authors of Washtenaw County," received three presidential physical fitness awards, and has received awards for sewing in 4-H and placed in the top 10 modelers. She was on the seventh grade girls track team, plays oboe in the band, and is a member of the Chelsea Flag Corps. Laurie was involved in the Chelsea Sesquicentennial and is a member of the North Lake Methodist church youth group. She has exhibited art, flowers, rabbits, collections, and baked goods in past years at the fair and has been in the Chelsea fair parade for several years. Her hobbies consist of collecting unicorns, baking, drawing, twirling and teaching baton, waterskiing, and snowmobiling. Her court members will be Joanie Marsh and Kim Richards. Laurie is the daughter of Merritt and Arlene Honbaum of 9100 Stoffer Rd. She has two sisters, Kathy and Debbie.

Area Stable Will Host Final Summer Show

Michigan Hunter/Jumper Association will present its final summer C-circuit horse show at Stoney Ridge Farm, southeast of Chelsea, on Aug.

23. The following week, Aug. 28-30, Stoney Ridge Farm will host the Pony Circuit finals and medal ride-off, and the B-circuit show and medal ride-off.

During these shows, young riders as well as adults from across the state will be competing for final points to be applied to the Michigan Hunter/Jumper Association end-of-the-season awards.

A special highlight of both shows will be the medal ride-offs. Only riders who have qualified during the season by winning first and second places in qualifying classes will be eligible to compete in these events.

The riders are judged on their ability to control their mounts while jumping a course of obstacles. The top four riders will be called back to perform an additional test, determined by the judges. The winner will then be chosen from these four riders.

Spectator admission to the show grounds is free. On Aug. 23, the show will begin at 8:30 a.m. and on Aug. 28-30 it will begin at 8 a.m. Both will continue throughout the afternoon until approximately 6 p.m. Food and beverages will be available.

Stoney Ridge is located at 9970 W. Liberty Rd., near Chelsea. From Ann Arbor or Detroit, take I-94 west, past Ann Arbor to the Baker exit and turn left. At the light, turn right on Jackson Rd. Take the next left, which is Parker Rd. and follow it to Liberty (1 1/2 miles). Stoney Ridge is about 1 1/2 miles west of Parker on Liberty. For more information call (313) 663-3509.

THE SENIOR CLASS of Chelsea High school is sponsoring Minta van Reesema in this year's fair queen competition. Minta, 17, is a member of the National Honor Society and has been on the varsity tennis team for the last three years. Her hobbies are baton twirling (she has won numerous baton awards), piano, reading, tennis, traveling, skiing, and photography. She is also active in the youth group at St. Paul church. Minta plans to enter the baked goods, flowers, and photography contests at the fair. Kelly Stump and Arlene Tai will be members of her court. Minta is the daughter of Fred and Carole van Reesema of 14490 Old US-12. She has three brothers, Fred, Bryan, and Willem; and one sister, Martine.

AMY LYNN KOENGETER, 14, is being sponsored by Rogers Corners Herdsmen 4-H club in this year's fair queen contest. Amy received atop 10 student of the eighth grade award, played volleyball, the french horn in band, belonged to the Spanish club and was in speech and drama. She is involved in the youth group at Zion Lutheran church and belongs to two 4-H groups, Terrific Tailors and Rogers Corners. She is planning to take baked goods and sheep to the fair this year, as well as entering some photos and her bear collection. Her hobbies, besides collecting bears, include swimming, playing the piano, and shopping.

Bleaching: The Conservative Way to Lighten Tooth Shade

Q: Is bleaching teeth effective in removing all types of stain? My teeth have always been yellow and I wonder if they could be made whiter.

A: Bleaching is a method used by your dentist to lighten stained or discolored teeth. It is a safe, non-invasive procedure.

Bleaching is not done to remove surface staining caused by coffee or tea but rather for stains which are actually part of the tooth enamel. These types of stains may be caused from tetracycline medications taken while the teeth were forming, or after root canal therapy when the tooth may slightly discolor or darken.

The tooth (or teeth) to be bleached is first isolated from the rest of the mouth with a rubber dam. Then the tooth is cleaned and the enamel is slightly roughened using a mild acid. This allows the bleaching solution to better penetrate the hard enamel. A chemical oxidizing agent such as 35% hydrogen peroxide is applied to the tooth and then activated using heat and, sometimes, light.

No anesthetic is required but several treatments may be necessary to achieve the desired effect. Although bleaching will reduce staining it may be impossible to match the shade of the surrounding teeth exactly. Also, the dentist must be very careful not to use too much heat on vital (alive) teeth for fear of damaging the delicate nerve inside the tooth.

Bleaching is often the treatment of choice to try before more extensive restorations like bonding or porcelain veneers. Unfortunately, some teeth are very resistant to this type of therapy and will require more extensive work.

Chelsea Sisters To Play In National Tournament

It's the bottom of the seventh inning of the championship game in the national tournament for women's major fast pitch softball teams. Score's tied at two, three on, two out, with an All-American on the mound.

The opposing left fielder comes to the plate, with a chance to win the game. She's hit the ball hard a couple of times with nothing to show for it.

A loud gasp comes from the stands, and the crowd turns in unison, only to see a middle-aged couple with their hands over their eyes. They simply can't bear to watch.

Amy Poljan, the former Amy Unterbrink, runs the county to 3 and 2. She knows exactly what to throw next. She knows the batter's weakness.

Beth Unterbrink knows exactly what's coming. She's seen her sister pitch a 100 times. She hopes she can handle it.

And Ken and Ellie Unterbrink grit their teeth. They can't bear not to watch, even though they know they'll be both elated and disappointed on one pitch.

The scenario isn't all that far-fetched.

Beth and Amy are making a trip to the national tournament in Houston Aug. 21, and they're playing on different teams.

There's a chance they could play each other along the way, possibly in the championships.

Beth, a hard-hitting left fielder, is playing for the Stein & Goetz Pacers of Ann Arbor. The team qualified for the national tournament by winning the state tournament.

Amy is pitching for the Dean Burger Pontiac Royals out of Mt. Pleasant, even though she currently lives at Cavanaugh Lake. Her team finished third at the state tournament, which qualified them for the regional tournament. They went on to win the regionals, thereby qualifying for the national tournament.

The tall, blond sisters, two of the best who ever played for Chelsea High school, have faced each other half a dozen times or so this summer. Beth got a couple of hits, Amy earned her share of strikeouts.

"Beth is a competitor," Amy says, "And I know she's not going to let up on me. It's just fun competition between us. When I'm pitching, though, she's just another player."

"I try to act like she's any other pitcher," Beth says.

"But there's always that extra twinge, knowing she's my sister."

Beth says without hesitation that Amy, the former All-American at Indiana University, is the best pitcher she's ever faced, even though Amy may not be at the peak of her game as she was in her senior year of college.

"It makes me want to try all that much harder," Beth says.

Beth, who still plays for the University of New Mexico, is one of the youngsters on the Pacers. The team is composed mostly of college coaches, including, ironically, Amy's assistant coach at Indiana and a former Indiana teammate.

Beth has the reputation, at least to Amy, of being one of the Pacers' best hitters.

Amy's team is mostly former Central Michigan University players, several from the Ann Arbor area. She was an assistant coach there last year.

It's probably no coincidence that both teams are in the national tournament, which will feature the best players in the country.

Beth and Amy have always played with the best. Their Bulldog teams each won state championships.

SISTERS Amy Poljan, left, and Beth Unterbrink, are going to the women's major fastpitch national softball tournament in Houston this month as members of different teams. It's possible that Beth could find herself trying to hit Amy's fastball.

Delay Harvest of Corn for Silage

Farmers should wait two or three more weeks before green-chopping their drought stressed corn, according to Kevin Kirk, commodity specialist for Michigan Farm Bureau. He says that in several areas of the state corn stalks have shown high nitrate levels. "Farmers who go in and chop this corn for early silage could have a problem," he says. "Cattle eating this silage could take in too many nitrates, which possibly could cause the animal to go off feed or even die."

Kirk says corn should be well ripened and have a moisture content of 70 percent or less before it is harvested.

Fun Run Set For Sept. 5

Want a run that leads to something other than the finish line? Join us for the fourth annual "Fun Run to Meet You at the Fair," to be held Saturday, Sept. 5. Participants have a choice of a 1, 3, or 5-mile run and a 1-mile walk. They will be cheered across the finish line located at the Chelsea Fairgrounds.

We want to emphasize the FUN in "Fun Run" and this event promises to be a good time for the novice and accomplished walker and runner; young and old alike. All members of the family are encouraged to attend and once the post-race activity has finished everyone can go to the fair.

All participants will receive a ribbon, a set of reflective wrist bands and will also be eligible for other prizes.

The run is sponsored by the Chelsea Recreational Council and the University of Michigan Family Practice Center at Chelsea. For more information call (313) 763-7120.

SPORTS NOTES

BY BRIAN HAMILTON

I want to tax your intellect for a second by asking what might seem like a dumb question for a sports column.

Actually, after you read this column, you might think it was a dumb question for an entirely different set of reasons. But that's OK, I can take it.

So here's the question. What constitutes a sport to you, especially as it applies to junior high school and high school?

The normal thing here is for an intrepid journalist to say, "according to Webster's new Third World Dictionary, a sport is defined as..." but I'll let you look it up yourself if you want to. I don't particularly care what Webster says.

As I see it, a sport should have at least three qualities.

First, it should have an object, such as the object is to score points by advancing the ball (an pummeling your opponent in the process). Or the object is to keep your opponent from scoring any points (by really pummeling his backside into the ground).

Second, it should have rules. Such as, you can pummel your opponent all you want to as long as you don't use your teeth.

Third, it should be competitive. In other words, you are constantly trying to prove how great you or your team are by making sure your opponent gets pummelled more often and harder than you do.

The only reason I ever even thought to bring this all up was a report Athletic Director Larry Reed gave during the summer to the Board of Education. It broke down sports by gender and listed the numbers of participants.

At first glance, it looks as though the girls are treated fairly well, even better than the boys.

But it's all a disguise (although I have to admit, Reed made no attempt to hide anything).

A count of the sports listed show the girls have 23 sports in the junior high and high schools, and the boys have 19.

However, that includes seven teams of cheerleaders. If you subtract the cheerleaders, you get down to 16 sports for girls and 19 for boys. The boys do not participate in cheerleading.

What is the logic of counting cheerleading as a sport? There's nothing competitive about it. They certainly have a lot of rules about what they can do (no 20-girl pyramids, please), but those are created at the whim of whomever runs the school system. It does have a goal, to make the crowd scream, but it's nothing that can be measured objectively, like a 20-foot jump shot.

In short, cheerleading fails as a sport, although it's been regarded as one in Chelsea probably longer than I've been alive. Cheerleading is more like a club activity, with a lot of bounce and spirit.

Perhaps marching band and flag corp should also be considered sports.

Also, by counting cheerleading as a sport, it becomes less obvious that the over-all girls sports program is still not up to par with the boys sports program.

Boys are offered football, golf and wrestling (I am not saying girls should be offered football and wrestling) and girls aren't. Girls are offered volleyball (and cheerleading), and boys aren't.

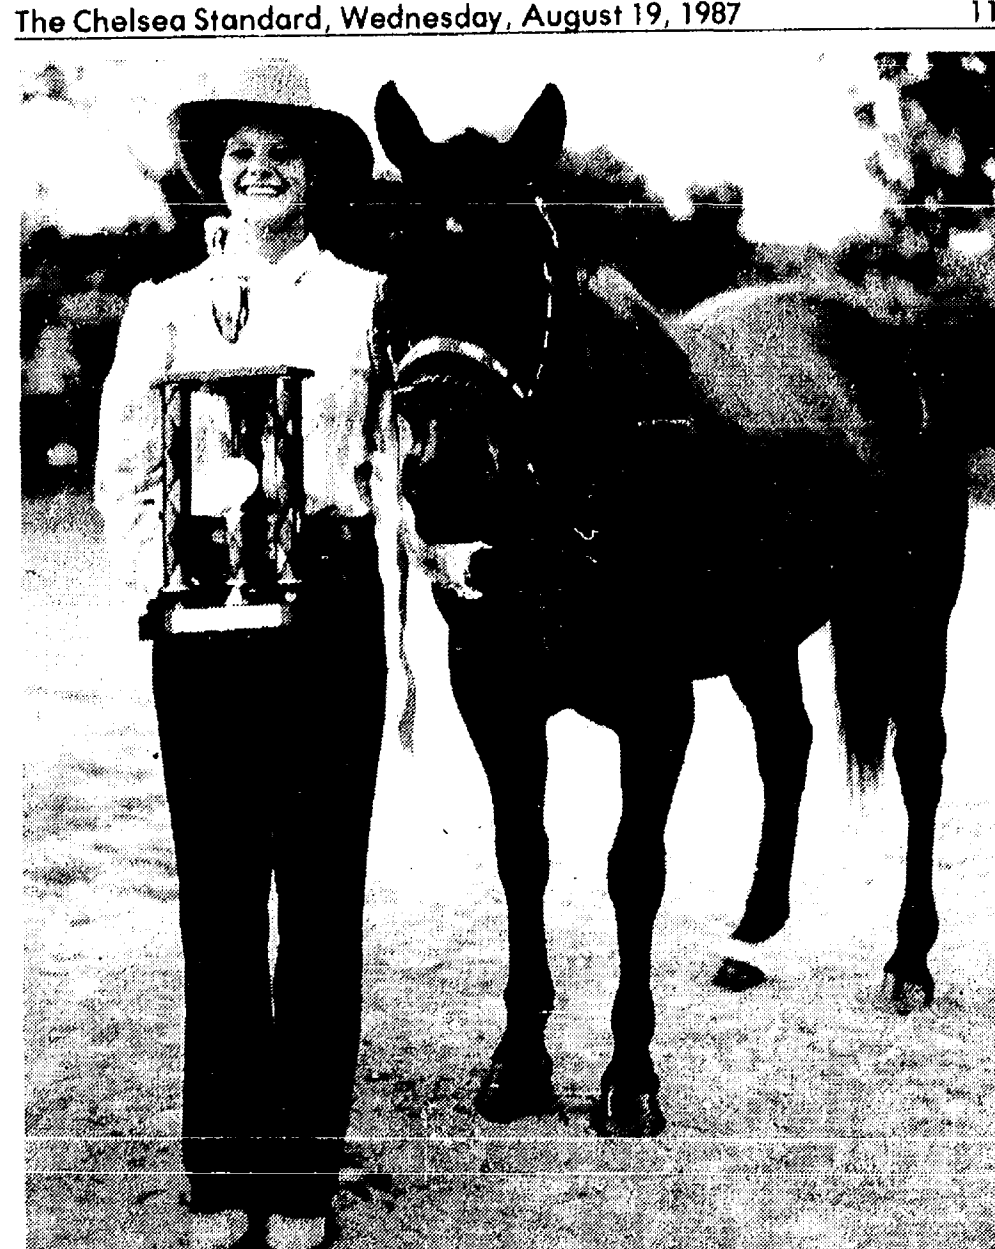

There are probably a lot of reasons for the discrepancy, however slight, in the numbers of sports offered boys and girls. It might be that fewer girls are willing to participate in sports in any given season, although I think that's drawing a conclusion without having any evidence. It might be that there are not many available opponents in a given sport.

However, I think it has more to do with the fact that girls sports have always been treated as second best, and they have a little catching up to do.

It doesn't help by calling cheerleading a sport and pretending everything is just fine.

CAL SUMMERS contributed to Belser Builders' win over Atkinson Chiropractic in the tournament finals with a home run of his own. The finals of the Chelsea men's slowpitch tournament were held last Saturday evening at Dana Park. Belser Builders hit home runs all day in defeating Jiffy Mix, 21-1, Cavanaugh Clams, 13-8, and Charamar Farms, 28-12 to reach the finals.

CHELSEA'S JILL NOWATZKE, 15, was named senior western fitting and showing champion, and fitting and showing grand champion during competition held in the ring, Tuesday, July 28, at the Farm Council Grounds, during the 1987 Washtenaw County 4-H Youth Show, Aug. 27-31.

Multi-Ethnic Festival Slated In Ann Arbor

The annual Multi-ethnic Main Street Ann Arbor Fair will be held on Friday, Sept. 4, and Saturday, Sept. 5, from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. each day. Enjoy the ethnic food, drink, exhibits, music and dancing of 11 local organizations: Arab, Italian, Polish, German, Scandinavian, Philippine, Hispanic, Chinese, Greek, Jewish, and Turkish. This year's theme is the Michigan Sesquicentennial and the ethnic groups will present some of their Michigan history at their tents.

Say YES! to the Ann Arbor Ethnic Festival by coming down to Main Street for lunch, dinner or snacks. In the German beer garden say "JA!" to a sausage dinner with sauerkraut and repeat the same word for YES in the Scandinavian booth when you are offered Swedish meatballs with lingonberries. Say "SI!" to some Italian lemon ice or Mexican Fajitas, a steak wrapped in a tortilla. Say "TAK!" to some Polish Kielbasa or Bigos and say "EVET!" to some Turkish Kofte.

The United States produces more oranges than any other country.

The application deadline for the 1987 fall wild turkey season is past. Deadline was Aug. 1, and the area is in the U.P. in Menominee and Dickinson counties. If numbered hunt quotas are not filled by the computer drawing, the remaining licenses will be issued on a first-come, first-served basis to unsuccessful applicants. Applicants may apply for these licenses on Sept. 28, at Crystal Falls District Office (Area M) or Stephenson Field Office (Area N) beginning at 9 a.m. local time and during the remaining work hours. Proper identification will be required. License fees will be collected when each license is issued.

Call the DNR hotline to get answers to your questions about Michigan application deadlines, license information, drawing information, and pre-season forecast information. The hotline number is: 517-373-WILD. This new line is available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week throughout the year.

Bear licenses, elk applications and hunters choice applications (deer) will be available at District Offices by mid-August. Bear licenses are $14.35. Seasons are: Zone 1: Sept. 10 through Oct. 31 and Nov. 15 through 30, bears may be hunted by residents with firearms or bow and arrow. Dogs may be used from Sept. 10 through Oct. 31. Dogs must be used only under a permit. No more than six dogs shall be run as a pack. Relaying of packs is prohibited. All dogs must be immunized and licensed and must have a license or other form of identification affixed to their collars. The permit must be in your possession while running dogs on bear. These permits are free and available at DNR district offices. It shall be illegal to use dogs to hunt bear in Zone 1 during the Nov. 15 through 30 archery season. Zone 2: Sept. 18-24, both residents and non-residents shall be allowed to hunt bear with dogs, gun or bow permitted. Permits are requested for dogs. (See above.) Oct. 2 through 8, bow and arrow only, no guns or dogs.

As of July 30, there were 375 non-resident bear licenses still available. This year's non-resident licenses left after Aug. 15 will be sold on a first-come, first-served basis. They may be ordered from (517) 373-1206 and charged on your Visa/Master Card.

Elk application deadline is Sept. 15. The hunt takes place Dec. 8-13. It will cover a 686-square-mile area where the elk herd is causing the most agricultural and forest damage. The area, takes in the southeast portion of Forest, parts of Atlanta State Forest and adjacent private land, all lying within Montmorency, Otsego, Cheboygan and Presque Isle counties.

Only Michigan residents, who will be 14 years of age or before Dec. 8, 1987, may apply for an elk license. Successful applicants from 1986 are not eligible for elk licenses in 1987. Application is made on the ($4 fee) application form. There will be 87 successful applicants this year, and all applicants this year will have their names kept on file as a pool of potential hunters, to be drawn on should the need arise for a special late summer/early fall crop damage elk hunt in 1988.

Applicants this year have a choice to be considered for a bull only opportunity if they so choose. You must indicate whether you are willing to harvest any elk or only a bull.

Fisheries . . .

Division personnel from Jackson and Plainwell completed a fisheries survey on the St. Joseph River. This survey was conducted using rotenone which is a South American root extract that kills fish. Nine stations were treated on the St. Joseph River beginning upstream from Jonesville and finishing upstream from Mendon. Also, two stations were treated on the Nottawa River near Athens. These stations varied in stream length from 400 to 800 feet. The rotenone is sprayed into the river at the upstream end of the station. Two nets are stretched across the river to collect the dead fish. Potassium permanganate is sprayed into the stream at the downstream end of the station to neutralize the rotenone and prevent fish kills below the selection station. In larger streams such as the St. Joseph River, rotenone methods are much more efficient than conventional methods such as electrofishing or netting.

The dominant fish taken in the survey at most stations were redbreasted suckers, hog suckers, and carp. Gamefish taken were smallmouth bass, largemouth bass, northern pike and panfish. Gamefish populations improved downstream from Union City. Some very nice channel catfish and a few walleye were taken. Pike were not abundant below Union City, although a few were taken at each station. Redbreasted suckers far outnumbered the carp downstream from Union City which indicates that water quality is not very bad. Forage fish were abundant throughout the river and we had many species of minnows present. At one station we found 38 different species of fish.

Right, Larry Kranick gives a check to Fr. Germano Pegoraro of St. Louis School. The K. of C. also gave money to the Area 8 Special Olympics program, which takes place in Stockbridge. This year the Local K. of C. set a record of $4,200 in collections.

Today's Investor

By Thomas E. O'Hara
Chairman, Board of Trustees
National Assoc. of Investors Corp.
& Editor, Better Investing Magazine

Q. I was looking at a company that was featured in Better Investing, Essex Chemical and as I started to get into it I noticed that its record in the past really didn't look that good. Then when I compared it to what was being estimated for the future, there was a big difference especially on how sales and earnings were projected to grow. And the article really didn't talk about that difference. As an investor, shouldn't I be concerned about that? I thought the past was an important thing to consider when you're estimating the future.

A. It is. What a company has done in the past certainly is no guarantee of how it will perform in the future, but it is an important consideration because it shows what management was able to do. In this case the problem is not in your reasoning, rather that the article simply didn't address the very important point you raised.

Actually, over the past few years the company has been strengthening its products and its production efficiency, changing to a product mix with higher margins and much greater growth potential. It seems to be in a position where, over the next few years, its competitive position could enable Essex to increase sales income at a more rapid rate. This means its future growth could be substantially higher than its past record, based on the work the company has already done to be in the position to achieve it. Sometimes by noting fundamental changes like this, investors can really latch on to excellent investment opportunities over the long term. But investor's should also realize, as you have, that there is the added risk that management may not be able to achieve or maintain these higher growth rates. Only the future will tell for sure, but in this case I could see reason to think the company will do it.

Mr. O'Hara welcomes your questions and comments, but will answer them only through this column. Readers who send in questions on a general investment subject or on a corporation with broad investor interest and whose questions are used, will receive a complimentary one-year's subscription to the investment magazine, Better Investing.

Out Placement Services Given to 100 Displaced Double A Employees

During June and July close to 100 employees of Manchester's Double A Valve & Pump Plant received assistance in "out-placement."

Four hours of seminars were held with several groups of hourly and salaried employees, covering the subject of job seeking skills, applications, letters, resumes, job search strategies and job interviews.

Upon completion of the seminar, each employee had the experience of a personal structured job interview and evaluation.

The South & West Washtenaw Consortium prepared and conducted the seminars which were led by the Consortium Job Placement co-ordinator, Bob Miller. Consortium assistant superintendent, Dave Mieras with special needs co-ordinator Diane Skinner, arranged and conducted the job interviews with several volunteers from the community, including Manchester schools superintendent, Ron Niedzwiecki.

The Consortium's role was consistent with its primary task of providing quality vocational-technical education programs for the school districts of Manchester, Milan, Chelsea, Dexter and Saline.

Key on-the-scene people who contributed to the success of the initial program were: Fred Pettit, distributed products manager, Double A; Ken Moull, Local 2190 president; and Diana Parr, human resources office, Double A.

Several other people and organizations are involved in the planning for continuing services to the former employees of Double A. This Double A Task Force includes: Kay Ford, executive director of the Private Industry Council; Bill Johnson, Double A operations manager; Ronald Niedzwiecki, superintendent of Manchester schools; Dave Mieras, South & West Washtenaw Consortium; Dan Naimowicz, Manchester village; Double A Products and Local 2190 representatives; Washtenaw Community College; MESCC; Governor's Office for Job Training and the Washtenaw Development Council.

TRANSPORTATION IN MICHIGAN HISTORY:

Old Chicago Rd. Is Still Michigan Main Street

Interstate 94, carrying traffic between Port Huron, Detroit and Chicago, is Michigan's first, busiest, and, by any measure, most famous freeway.

It runs through the highway corridor that helped develop Michigan territory into a state in 1837, played a national role in developing the American Midwest and took on an international role in World War II.

The final link of I-94 was opened Nov. 29, 1971, in a snowstorm at the state line near New Buffalo. It provided a "free way"—free from crossroads, traffic lights, mud, swamps, fallen trees and swarms of mosquitoes—between Port Huron and Detroit, Chicago and points west to the I-94 terminus in Billings, Mont.

The opening, in a sense, brought to a conclusion a project begun by the U.S. Congress in 1824 with appropriation of $3,000 for surveying a military wagon road between Detroit and Chicago.

Prior to 1824, Indians and early settlers followed either the Great Sauk Indian Trail along present US-12 through the southern tier of Michigan counties or the St. Joseph Trail through the second tier, now the route of I-94.

Michigan's Detroit-Chicago route, together with Lake Erie, Lake Ontario, the St. Lawrence River and, later, the Erie Canal between Albany and Buffalo, formed a route followed by settlers from the east coast to territories of the new American nation.

Prompting the American Congress to improve the route were fresh memories of the War of 1812 when the British made quick and frequent raids into both states and territories, which were difficult to defend because of poor roads.

By 1830, two stage coaches a week carried passengers, mail and goods between Detroit and Chicago. Many famous taverns, including the Walker Tavern at Cambridge Junction, now operated as a state museum, helped ease the rigors of early travel across southern Michigan.

The Chicago Road, also called the Chicago Turnpike, and still later, the Old Chicago Road, left Detroit on Michigan Ave, now US-12. It passed through Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor, Chelsea, Grass Lake, Jackson, Parma, Albion, Marshall, Battle Creek, Kalamazoo, Paw Paw, Coloma, Stevensville, Bridgman, Benton Harbor, St. Joseph and New Buffalo. During the 1920s, that part of the route along Lake Michigan was known as the West Michigan Pike. The entire route also was known as the Michigan-Detroit-Chicago, or MDC, on many early road maps.

The southern route, known as the Chicago Trail, parted company with the Chicago Road at Ypsilanti and followed what is now US-12 across the southern tier of counties, through Saline, Jonesville, Coldwater, Quincy, Bronson, White Pigeon, Niles, Three Oaks and New Buffalo.

Since 1824, the actual roads, trails and paths followed by Detroit-Chicago traffic have changed constantly. When official and systematic numbering of the state highways and routes began in 1926, names of cross-state highways became less important and many have been forgotten. However, many local remnants and pieces of the Chicago Road and the trail still bear the names "Chicago" and "Detroit," attesting to their past service to traffic between the two cities.

World War II wrote another chapter in the history of the Detroit-Chicago route. The war caught America unprepared, with the Allied cause suffering many early and serious setbacks.

To reverse the tide, the war had to be carried to the Axis powers, and that meant bombers—by the thousands.

Safe from enemy attack and near the skilled Detroit labor pool, the flatlands near Ypsilanti were chosen for construction of the largest bomber factory on the North American continent. There the Ford Motor Co. began turning out the famed B-24 Liberator bomber.

To assure a flow of 42,000 workers in and out of the factory every 24 hours, the Willow Run Expressway, Michigan's first full freeway, was constructed in a crash program on the same war priorities as the factory itself.

Underscoring its importance, President Franklin D. Roosevelt himself inspected the freeway while it was under construction.

It opened to traffic in the fall of 1942, a bare 11 months after work began.

When Congress funded the nation's interstate highway program in 1956, and construction of Interstate 94 began, the original pavement of the Willow Run Expressway was incorporated into the freeway.

Operation H.E.M.P. Taking Its Toll on Marijuana Crop

According to recent State Police reports, Operation H.E.M.P. is starting to take its toll on marijuana growing in Michigan.

Operation H.E.M.P. (Help Eliminate Marijuana Planting) officers have seized nearly 15,000 cultivated marijuana plants so far this year as a result of 166 tips from citizens. Additionally, some 19 arrests of marijuana growers have been reported.

H.E.M.P. is a federally funded program first initiated in Michigan in the summer of 1984 and administered by the State Police. Department director, Col. Rich Davis, is quick to point out, however, that it is not solely a State Police program. "While we coordinate H.E.M.P., we have the cooperation and participation of all law enforcement agencies in the state," Davis said. "In addition to the police involvement, the program depends heavily upon citizen participation in providing tips and information relating to these illegal crops."

Similar programs are employed in all 48 contiguous states as well as Alaska and Hawaii. Michigan traditionally ranks in the upper third of states leading the eradication effort. The largest seizure reported so far this year occurred in late June when the State Police Hastings team uprooted more than 2,100 plants in a Barry county field. In early July, Barry county Sheriff's Department officers, assisted by Battle Creek Police seized more than 1,800 plants along highway M-66 in Johnston township. Other units reporting increased activity this year are teams from the Branch and Cass county Sheriff's Departments and the State Police Post in Ionia.

H.E.M.P. officers advise citizens, however, to simply provide a tip or information to the police and let them do the investigating. Some marijuana growers may use guard dogs, camouflage and booby traps to protect their illegal crop.

Citizens with information should call or contact their nearest State Police Post or call the toll-free hotline. That number is, 1-800-235-HEMP.

The first state legislation prohibiting discrimination in employment on the basis of race, creed or color was the Ives-Quinn Act in New York in 1945, according to "Labor Firsts in America," a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

CRIS ZERKEL, 1987 Chelsea High school graduate, poses by one of the signs she lettered and painted for Spaulding for Children during the clean-up, fix-up, paint-up project at the farmhouse.

Spaulding Farmhouse Gets Summer Facelift

The summer weather offered a perfect opportunity to do a little "spring cleaning" and fixing up.

With recommendations from the board, a local electrician, George Cantrell, and carpenter, Mike Spears, were hired to complete the media center, install shelving and make other necessary repairs.

Subsequently, two college students, Scott Larson and Craig Lindberg, with their own summer business, were contracted to do a major painting project at the Chelsea farmhouse. They began on the second floor, worked their way downstairs and finished outside by re-hanging freshly painted shutters.

Meanwhile, several Chelsea High school students added their touches and talents. Mark Chasteen, Jim Alford, Robyn Krichbaum and Martina Grenier cleaned and organized the basement, painted some of the outbuildings and cleaned and spruced up the grounds.

A recent Chelsea graduate, Cris Zerkel, offered her artistic abilities by lettering new Spaulding signs to match the agency logo.

Special thanks to board member, Bob Daniels of Chelsea Lumber, who donated the paint for the entire project. We're very proud of our new, fresh look and invite everyone to come and see for themselves.

Rural Roads, Bridges Are in Bad Condition

A survey conducted recently by the U.S. Department of Agriculture indicates that the rural roads and bridges serving America's farm areas are in bad shape and need costly repair.

According to Robert E. Smith, Senior legislative counsel for the Michigan Farm Bureau, there are 2,500 rural bridges in Michigan which are in poor condition, and the only way to get them fixed is to generate more revenue.

"Delegates at our Michigan Farm Bureau annual meeting last December said that if we need more revenue, it should be user revenue," Smith said. "User revenue would include gas tax as well as registration fees, for example."

Smith said with user revenue, the heavy tourist traffic that Michigan gets in rural areas would help fund road and bridge repairs. Michigan will need an extra $17 billion over the next 10 years to bring rural roads and bridges up to par, he said.

Waterloo Farm Museum Slates Quilt Show Aug. 23

Agnes Dikeman, Waterloo Historical Society board of directors member, has co-ordinated an exhibition of antique and recent quilts, to be held at Waterloo Area Farm Museum on Sunday, Aug. 23, 1 to 4 p.m.

Throughout the exhibition, women will be on hand to talk about their own work or that of their grandmothers and great-grandmothers.

For those who have always been fascinated by quilts, but never tried their hand at quilting, it will be an opportunity to learn what it means "to piece," or "to applique."

Dikeman, who teaches in the Grass Lake school system, reports that, "Historically, quilting was practiced out of necessity and it has been done for thousands of years. Soldiers of the Middle Ages wore padded and quilted coats and hoods under their armor. Dutch and English colonists brought quilting to America to protect themselves from the severe cold of the winters."

"Quilting was a favorite art-form in American colonial and frontier homes and, contrary to modern practices, quilt patterns were fashioned from cast-off clothing. Some quilt patterns portrayed historic events; others had sentimental significance. 'Relaxing after supper' in the 1800's often meant piecing quilt blocks and 'spending a quiet afternoon' meant the neighbor ladies worked together at quilting bee. The results of those busy times are heirlooms now; patterns such as the log cabin, lone star, flower garden, prairie tulip, postage stamp, and crazy quilt are some of the interesting and beautiful quilt designs that were developed and passed on from generation to generation," she concludes.

Dikeman, in her capacity as Gift Shop manager at Waterloo Farm Museum, advises that in addition to viewing numerous quilts, visitors may browse through the Museum Gift Shop which features items made in Michigan. Gifts for children and adults include hand-carved toys, woodburnings, hooked rugs, crocheted hot pads, quilted tea cozies, as well as books, assorted notecards, postal cards, and much more. Raffle tickets will be available for Waterloo Farm Museum's Sesquicentennial Quilt, created by loving hands in striking red and white.

Guided tours of the 10-room Victorian farmhouse and out-buildings are also conducted daily except Mondays, from 1 to 4 p.m. The museum is located within the Waterloo Recreation Area at 9998 Waterloo-Munith Rd. Adult admission, $2; children (5-11), 50¢; children (under 5), free; senior citizens (62), $1.50.

Michigan Turkeys Lack Adaptability

The Michigan Wildlife Habitat Foundation and the National Wild Turkey Federation have released a detailed report on Michigan turkeys which concludes there are genetic-related problems with most of the state's birds.

"Implications of Continued Transplanting of Turkeys of Game Farm Origin: The Michigan Case" analyzes the use of game farm birds and their descendants to re-establish turkeys in our state. Turkeys in northern Michigan are descendants of game farm birds. The study says that because of their ancestry, those turkeys lack sufficient inherited wildness to thrive, except where fed and well protected. And they can't naturally expand their ranges.

The report was prepared in the fall of 1986 by Dr. Patrick J. Ruz, a wildlife management consultant from St. Charles. It has since been reviewed by leading wild turkey experts from around the country. The study was funded by MWHF and published jointly with the Research and Management Division of the National Wild Turkey Federation.

Much of the report deals with the documented differences between wild strain turkeys and birds of game farm origin. Citing a wide variety of field and laboratory comparisons in other states, the study suggests that game farm turkeys and their descendants:

—Tend to be less co-ordinated and alert than wild strain birds.

—May have less resistance to adverse environmental conditions and forced fasting.

—Have smaller brains, adrenal glands, and pituitary glands.

—Are less wary when stalked by predators, and are more susceptible as poults to predation.

—Tend to breed and nest earlier.

—Sometimes nest in open areas, whereas wild strain hens always nest in concealing ground cover.

—Have less genetic variability.

Because of these characteristics, the game farm bird descendants tend to exist in lower population densities than wild strain birds, and can't expand their ranges away from areas where they are fed and/or well protected. Assists from humans, the report explains, are necessary to offset poor survival of poults.

The turkeys presently found in northern Michigan are widely believed to be descendants from state plantings of 7-8 wild birds in the 1950s and 1960s. But the report indicates that this is not true. Most of the northern Michigan turkeys are the result of private releases of game farm birds of questionable genetic background.

Some biologists have suggested that the northern Michigan birds have become "essentially wild" in the 30 years since the original stocking, but the study strongly indicates that evolution does not work that quickly or fortuitously. The author states, "Within 100 or so years, it is doubtful that any significant improvement in the adaptability of game farm turkeys can be made without backcrossing with wild birds."

As Dr. James Earl Kenamer, director of research for NWTF, recently noted, "The pros and cons of using game farm turkeys, or their descendants, to restore turkey populations should be a dead issue. We knew way back in the 1950s that it was essential to use wild strain birds. But some game managers have not gotten the message, or refuse to accept it, and release of game farm turkeys by private individuals is still a problem throughout the country."

"This study pulls together all of the available information. It is by far the most comprehensive treatment of the subject, and should help hasten the day when the use of game farm turkeys stops completely," added Kenamer.

In addition to summarizing studies which have compared wild strain turkeys with game farm birds, the report traces the origin and looks at the characteristics of existing flocks in Allegan and northern Michigan. Michigan is the only state with a turkey population consisting mostly of game farm bird descendants. In the last four years, however, state wildlife managers have released wild strain birds trapped in other states at 16 southern Michigan locations. MWHF and other organizations have helped secure birds and fund the program. "Wild strain turkeys in southern Michigan are doing extremely well and are rapidly expanding their ranges," says Ed Tucker, DNR Region III (Southern Michigan) wildlife biologist.

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources has a policy to not release wild strain birds where game farm turkeys are found because of fears that mixing the two strains might reduce the viability of the resultant stock.

As the southern Michigan turkeys spread into the Allegan area and into northern Michigan, the MDNR will have to decide whether to eliminate existing flocks of game farm origin to prevent interbreeding.

The new study strongly recommends that this be done by repeated fall hunting a few years prior to any planned stocking or natural advance of wild strain birds into areas with turkeys of game farm origin.

It also calls for stronger laws to prevent private releases of game farm turkeys, suggesting that breeders be allowed to sell only turkeys which are pinnioned so as to prevent flight and long term survival in the wild.

"The Foundation generally does not fund this kind of study," said MWHF president Dave Smethurst, of Gaylord. "But we are committed to helping restore wild turkey populations in Michigan, and continued controversy about stock quality could hamper our effort. We saw the study as a chance to 'get all the facts out on the table.'"

★ Autism . . .

Autism is a severely incapacitating, life-long, developmental disability occurring in about five of every 10,000 births and is four times more common in boys than girls. No known factors in a child's psychological environment have been shown to cause autism and it has been found throughout the world regardless of racial, ethnic and social backgrounds.

Autism's symptoms are caused by physical disorders in the brain. Symptoms include:

—Disturbances in physical, social and language skills.

—Abnormal responses to sensations. There can be effects to sight, hearing, touch, pain, balance, smell, taste and the way these children hold their bodies.

—Specific thinking capabilities may be present although speech and language may be delayed or absent. There may be limited understanding and use of words without their usual meaning, as well as, immature rhythms of speech.

—Autistic children typically do not respond appropriately to adults or other children. Objects and toys may not be used as normally intended.

Autism may occur by itself or in association with other brain function disorders, such as viral infections, metabolic disturbances and epilepsy. Those with autism live a normal life span, but periodic evaluations are necessary because symptoms change and some may disappear with age.

In severe forms of autism, there may be repetitive, highly unusual, aggressive and self-injurious behaviors. These behaviors may be persistent and resistant to change, therefore, autism requires specialized management, treatment and teaching strategies. Most beneficial are special educational programs that use behavioral methods specifically and individually designed.

Families with autistic members may find supportive counseling helpful. If you have a need for more information, contact the Michigan Society for Autistic Citizens, 300 N. Washington Square, Suite 205, Lansing 48933, telephone (517) 487-9260.

★ The Age of Plastics . . .

The 20th century might well be called the Age of Plastics. Certainly these materials have worked their way into every nook and cranny of modern life. They are found in the home as kitchenware, toys, telephones, pipes, flooring, siding, electrical insulation, and appliance housings to name a few. More than 100 pounds of plastics can be found in the typical automobile. Half of the products we buy, it seems, come wrapped in plastic film.

It is no surprise that plastics are so common. After all they can be formed into almost any shape; they are very light in weight; they are resistant to environmental wear and tear; and because such a variety of plastics exist, they can be found with a wide range of physical properties.

It all began in 1868 when a $10,000 prize was offered for the development of a material that could substitute for ivory in billiard balls. A young man by the name of John Wesley Hyatt reacted nitric acid with cotton fiber and produced the plastic material celluloid. Even before World War II Bakelite, polyvinyl chloride, acrylic, polystyrene and nylon had been developed. Polyethylene soon followed.

What exactly are plastics? Plastics are synthetic (man-made) materials capable of being soft and moldable at some time during their manufacture. They are long chains of molecules (polymers) that are made by chemically linking numerous smaller molecules (monomers). For example, hundreds of ethylene molecules may be linked together to make polyethylene. Many other ingredients are also added. Often the plastic polymer is too brittle or hard. Smaller molecules called plasticizers may be added as softeners. Pigments and dyes can add color. Stabilizers are added to improve resistance to heat, light, weather or aging. Fillers are used to give flame resistance, to improve electrical properties or simply to reduce costs.

There are two general types of plastics—thermosetting and thermoplastic. The thermoplastic ones can be formed into the desired shapes under heat and pressure and become solid as they cool. They can be reheated and reshaped again and again. Acrylics, nylons, polyethylenes, polystyrenes and vinyls are all examples of thermoplastic plastics. Thermosetting plastics become solids under heat and pressure.

Plastics are initially made into pellets, powders, film, sheets, fibers or liquids. These in turn can be

More than 35 billion pounds of plastics are produced each year in the United States alone. Since plastics are durable and resist breaking down under natural conditions, they do represent an increasing waste disposal problem. The thermoplastics could be recycled. At the present, however, there is little economic incentive to do so.

PUBLIC ANNOUNCEMENT CHELSEA SCHOOL DISTRICT

Superintendent Raymond E. Van Meer today announced its policy for free and reduced-price meals or free milk for children unable to pay the full price of meals or milk served under the National School Lunch, School Breakfast or Commodity School Programs. The following household size and income criteria will be used for determining eligibility.

TOTAL FAMILY SIZE	A. SCALE FOR FREE MEALS OR FREE MILK			B. SCALE FOR REDUCED PRICED MEALS
	YEAR	MONTH		YEAR	MONTH
		MONTH	WEEK		MONTH	WEEK
1	7,150	596	138	10,175	848	196

Each additional family member	+2,470	+206	+48	+3,515	+293	+68

Children from households whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free and reduced-price meals or free milk.

Application forms are being sent to all homes with a letter to parents or guardians. To apply for free or reduced-priced meals, households should fill out the form and return it to the school. Additional copies of the application form are available at the principal's office in each school. Households should answer all questions on the form. An application which does not contain all of the following information cannot be processed by the school: (1) the total household income AND the amount and source of income received by each household member (such as wages, child support, etc.) OR the household's food stamp case or AFDC number if the household is on food stamps or receives AFDC; (2) names of all household members; (3) social security numbers of all household members 21 years of age or older, or the word "none" for any adult household member who does not have a social security number; and (4) the signature of an adult household member.

FOOD STAMPS/AFDC HOUSEHOLDS: If you currently receive Food Stamps or "Aid to Families with Dependent Children" (AFDC) for your child, you only have to list your child's name and Food Stamp or AFDC case number, print your name and sign the application.

The information provided by the household is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility and verifying data. Application may be verified by the school or other officials at any time during the school year.

If children are approved for free or reduced-price meal or free milk benefits, the household must report to the school increases in household income over $50 per month ($600 per year) and decreases in household size.

Households may apply for benefits at any time during the school year. If a household is not currently eligible but has a decrease in household income, an increase in household size or if a household member becomes unemployed, the household should fill out an application at that time.

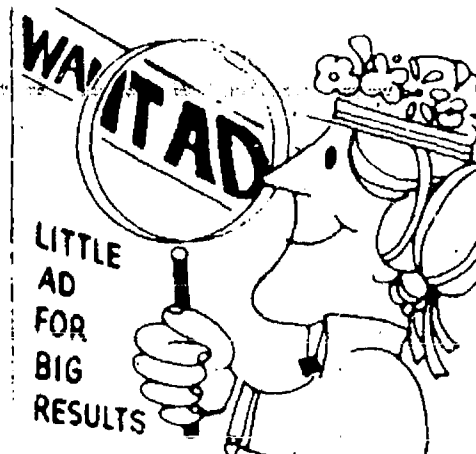

In most cases foster children are eligible for these benefits regardless of the household's income. If a household has foster children living with them and they wish to apply for free or reduced-price meals or milk for them, the household should contact the school for more information.

Under the provisions of the policy the building principal will review applications and determine eligibility.

Parents or guardians dissatisfied with the ruling of the official may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informational basis. The household also has the right to a fair hearing. This can be done by calling or writing the following official: Fred A. Mills, Assistant Superintendent, Chelsea School District, E. Washington St., Chelsea, Michigan 48118, Ph. (313) 475-9131. Each school and the Central Office have a copy of the complete policy, which may be reviewed by any interested party.

In the operation of the child feeding programs no child will be discriminated against on the basis of race, color, national origin, age, sex, or handicap. If any member of a household believes they have been discriminated against, they should write immediately to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

ENGINEER DON DREW oils locomotive of Lake Shore & Lyndon Central Railroad before a recent excursion trip for members of the Chelsea Area Historical Society.

OCCUPYING CAR "NANCY-ELAINE" of the Lake Shore & Lyndon Central Railroad are, front row, Angie and Tom Smith; second row, Mrs. Don Drew and Katie Chapman; third row, Kathy Clark and, last two rows, Marge and Max Hepburn.

Historical Society Members Enjoy Miniature Train Ride

Members of the Chelsea Area Historical Society started out to have a picnic but finally got taken for a ride.

This year the annual August picnic was held in Lyndon Park on a lovely summer evening. The cavalcade of picnickers then headed east a short distance on North Territorial Rd. to the station of the Lake Shore & Lyndon Central Railroad. There they were taken for an excursion ride.

The miniature railroad is the only one of its kind in Washtenaw county, winding three-quarters of a mile through forested hills along the shores of a lake. The society members were treated to a first ride, and then a second, by Don Drew who is the owner-operator of the railroad. He established it as a hobby in 1966.

Back in 1928 he was an aspiring young fireman on the Michigan Central Railroad. He was preparing to take his exam as an engineer when he was laid off. He sought and obtained appropriate employment at the Ypsilanti State Hospital as a boiler operator. After a long career he retired as plant manager of the state hospital. Today Don is the engineer of the Lake Shore and Lyndon Central.

Five cars of his train are named after his granddaughters.

It was a fun-filled excursion for the historical society members, including member Don Drew, who has done so much towards the salvation of the Chelsea Railroad Depot.

Majority Rule Concept Upheld By Court

The U.S. Supreme Court has refused to hear an appeal of a ruling that upholds the constitutionality of the mandatory assessment provisions of Michigan's Commodity Promotion law, Public Act 232.

According to Bob Craig, manager of commodity activities and research for Michigan Farm Bureau, the Supreme Court action basically upholds the concept of majority rule.

"This action affirms the constitutionality of the majority rule and mandatory assessment provisions of the Michigan law," he says. "All growers must abide by the law and pay the commodity promotion assessments that were initiated by a majority of the growers."

The U.S. Supreme Court's refusal to review the case follows identical action last year by the Michigan Supreme Court.

Nancy Margolis Named To WCC Board Vacancy

Nancy N. Margolis has been selected to fill a vacancy on the governing board of Washtenaw Community College.

Margolis is deputy of the Washtenaw County Community Services Agency. She will replace Dr. Susan M. Madley, who resigned her position on WCC's Board of Trustees in June. Madley, the former principal at Garbriel Richard High school, resigned her post to accept the principal's job at Gilmour Academy, a private Catholic high school near Cleveland, O.

Margolis will complete the rest of Madley's term, which expires Dec. 31, 1988. Margolis is scheduled to be officially sworn in at the September Board meeting.

As the agency's deputy director, Margolis supervises the Washtenaw County Head Start, Foster Grandparents, Senior Nutrition, Home Weatherization and Energy Assistance programs. She also creates public information and community education materials to build support for the agency's self-development and anti-poverty programs, in addition to directing new program development and managing several grant funds.

Margolis also holds an unpaid position as president of CSA Enterprises, Inc., a private non-profit corporation that develops new business to provide jobs for unemployed people.

Other community involvement by Margolis within the past five years includes working with Children Are People, Inc., a chemical abuse prevention program for school-age children; The Corner Health Center; and The Golden Age Showcase, an arts and craft co-operative for senior citizens.

Margolis was one of several local citizens honored last month during WCC's annual Community Recognition dinner. She is an Ann Arbor resident who holds a bachelor of science degree from the Medill School of Journalism at Northwestern University and a masters of social work degree from the University of Michigan.

On Aug. 30, 1905, the legendary Ty Cobb played his first game for the Detroit Tigers. Cobb, then 18, helped Detroit win pennants in 1907, 1908, and 1909. He was the first player inducted in baseball's Hall of Fame, and set more than 25 major league records during his career.
