A MUNITH MAN escaped serious injury last Friday, Nov. 27 when he lost control of his truck on a curve on Waterloo Rd., hit two vehicles in the opposite lane and rolled over in a ditch. According to the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department, Robert Earl Harris, 29, had been drinking before the accident occurred. The accident occurred about 5:45 p.m. and the road surface was wet.

KENT LONGWORTH, 1560 Sugar Loaf Lake, was involved in a three-vehicle accident last Friday, Nov. 27 at about 5:45 p.m. He and his passengers were not injured. His truck, and a van driven by Patricia Shoemaker, 160 Shoreview Dr. were struck by a pick-up truck driven by a Munith man, Robert Earl Harris, after it crossed the centerline of Waterloo Rd. at a curve near Guinan Rd. Shoemaker, and her passengers, were treated and released at Chelsea Community Hospital. Police said Harris had been drinking before the accident but would not say whether he had been charged with drunk driving.

Three-Vehicle Crash Leaves Five With Minor Injuries

A three-car crash along dark and rainy Waterloo Rd., just one-half mile west of the Bush Rd. intersection, Friday, Nov. 27, sent occupants of two of the vehicles involved to the hospital, where they were subsequently released, according to a report filed by Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department deputies J. J. Marshall and L. Pickett, who investigated the accident scene.

The WCSO patrol car was approximately 60 seconds from the accident scene at the time of the crash, hunting an escapee, Marshall explained.

A pick-up driven by Kent Edwin Longworth and a van operated by Patricia Lou Shoemaker, both of Chelsea, were both travelling east-bound on Waterloo Rd. when a west-bound truck driven by Robert Earl Harris, 29, of Munith, travelling at a high rate of speed, crossed the roadway's center lane into the eastbound lane.

Harris' truck struck the Shoemaker vehicle along its entire length on the driver's side, then spun off and struck Longworth, after he (Longworth) tried unsuccessfully to take evasive action to avoid a collision.

The Harris truck continued west-bound travelling approximately 150 feet sideways before it rolled over and struck a dirt bank, pinning the driver inside the vehicle.

Deputy Marshall was able to free Harris from the pin-in, and he was transported to Chelsea Community Hospital by Huron Valley Ambulance.

Mrs. Shoemaker and three youngsters riding with her were all injured in the crash and were transported to the hospital by HVA, but later released.

The passengers included David Klink and Derek Klink of Grass Lake, ages six and four, respectively, and 11-year-old Jeff Shoemaker of Chelsea.

Longworth was also injured in the accident, but repeatedly refused treatment at the scene, the report indicated.

Additionally, the accident report noted the driver of the truck which collided with the two other vehicles had been drinking prior to the crash.

All three vehicles were removed to Smith's Service, and a shotgun which the accident report explained belonged to Harris was logged into the WCSO property room for safe keeping.

The 11th annual Festival of Lessons and Carols will be held Sunday, Dec. 6, from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. at St. Mary's Catholic church, 14200 Old US-12. Sponsored by the Chelsea Ministerial Fellowship, the program will feature 13 members of the clergy and a number of area choirs.

The first Festival of Lessons and Carols was held more than 50 years ago at Kings College Chapel in England. Ever since, communities have found it an excellent medium to express the birthday of Jesus Christ.

The opening and closing prayers will be given by the Fr. Philip Dupuis, host of the program. Ministers reading the lessons and providing other parts of the service include the Revs. John Gibbon, First Congregational church; Kathy Batell, hospital chaplain; Ed Lang, First Assembly of God; Thode Thodeson, Chelsea Christian Fellowship; Mark Weintrauch, Zion Lutheran church (making his community deputy); Erwin Koch, St. Paul United Church of Christ; Mearl Bradley, Chelsea Free Methodist church; Dr. Jerry Parker, First United Methodist church; Chuck Clemons, Chelsea Full Gospel church; Fr. Jerry Beaumont, St. Barnabas Episcopal church; Sondra Willobee, North Lake United Methodist church; and Ronald Smeenge, Covenant Community church.

The ministers will use the Bible translation used by their church to read the lesson assigned to them. Selections will be from Genesis, Isaiah, Luke, Matthew, John, and Psalms.

Music will be provided by a cross-section of church choirs, plus the Chelsea High school choir, the Contemporaries, under the direction of June Warren; the Chelsea Community Choir under the direction of Jack Bidle; and the Chelsea Chamber Orchestra under the direction of Ann Lee. The service will end with all participating choirs joining together to sing Handel's Hallelujah Chorus.

The offering will be divided between Faith-in-Action and the Church World Service to be used for aid to Mozambique.

Ushers for the service will be provided by the Chelsea Kiwanis Club. After the service, everyone will be invited to the basement of the rectory for refreshments of cookies and doughnuts.

The Rev. Dr. Jerry Parker estimates that about 400 will attend, which he points out is 10 percent of Chelsea's population.

DDA Approves New Plan For Financing Projects, Hearing Slated Dec. 15

By Brian Hamilton

A revised financial plan for downtown beautification projects was approved by Chelsea's Downtown Development Authority at a meeting last Tuesday morning, Nov. 24 in the village offices.

The plan will be the subject of a public hearing on Tuesday, Dec. 15 during the regular meeting of the village council.

The new plan was necessary because the village's bond counsel, Miller, Canfield, Paddock & Stone found legal and financial flaws with the initial version devised by Franz Mogdis of Ann Arbor.

The new plan calls for projects totaling $680,000 to be completed in three phases ending in 1993. However, marketing and administrative costs bring the total to $800,000. New village offices are not included. Previous versions of the plan called for expenditures of $685,000 and $1,115,000.

Phase I, to be completed in 1989, includes improvements to the Main St./Middle St. intersection, parking lot improvements, alley improvements to the east side of Main St., signs, and entryway improvements. Total estimated cost is $235,000.

Phase II, to be completed in 1991, includes improvements to the Main St./South St. intersection, parking lot improvements, alley improvements to the west side of Main St., and entryway improvements on the north and south of the business district. Total cost is $285,000.

Phase III includes a new parking lot for $150,000 and other improvements for $10,000, for a total of $160,000.

According to the new plan, the value of property within the downtown district has declined from $4,594,100 in 1981 to $4,281,175 this year. The first plan did not mention this decline.

The new plan is less specific than the initial plan about the amounts of money that can be generated by various financing schemes and how they would be used. It primarily serves to identify the various alternatives available to the DDA.

Again, tax increment financing is listed as a major fund-raising vehicle.

The plan projects revenues of $10,080 in 1988, increasing to $414,000 in 2012. Unlike the first plan, personal property (equipment, for example) was not included in the increment financing plan because its value is far more likely to decline than real property (buildings, for example).

The plan estimates that proceeds from the recent two mill assessment to downtown property will be $11,736 in 1988, rising to $25,394 in 2012.

Tax increment financing would allow the DDA to collect the increase in taxes that comes when property downtown rises in value. All other taxing authorities, such as the school district, would lose money.

"It is anticipated that the costs of development for all phases of the Development Plan will be financed with the proceeds of general obligation/tax increment bonds and the special millage that may be levied in the Downtown District," according to the Summary of Financing Methods in the plan.

The plan says that 80 percent of the tax increment income in any year may be used for bond debt retirement. It concludes that Chelsea may sell bonds totaling $275,000 in 1988 that would mature in 1998. It does not mention more than one bond issue that would be funded by increment financing. However, assistant village manager Lee Fahrner said there would likely be another, larger bond issue several years after the initial one to fund phases II and III.

According to the plan, if increment revenues are not enough for the bond debt retirement, the village is obligated to pay them off with money from its general fund.

Another funding alternative, according to the plan, is a special assessment against downtown property that would be used to retire general obligation bonds. The special assessment could only be levied against the land "specially benefited by the project."

Another option would use the village's annual Michigan Transportation Fund proceeds to fund a bond issue. However, that approach would take some of the money that is available for village road work and Fahrner said he does not favor that idea.

The plan does not mention the "revolving fund" that was included in the initial plan. That fund was a pool of money made available by area financial institutions. The plan also does not specifically mention using the village's major and minor street repairs funds, and general fund, as sources of revenue. However, it does say the DDA may use funds "obtained from other sources approved by the governing body" meaning the village council.

Concerns of the Chelsea School District have not been addressed by the plan. The district has indicated that it wants a cap on the amount of money it could lose every year due to the increment financing plan. At the most recent DDA public hearing, the DDA indicated it would be agreeable to a contract with the district.

The district is currently "in-formula" which means that whenever property tax money fails to reach a certain amount of money per student, the state will make up the difference.

However, as recently as two years ago the district was out-of-formula. Should the district return to out-of-formula status, the state would not make up the money lost to increment financing. Although the value of property in the downtown district makes up about two percent of the value of all the property in the school district, the money lost to increment financing could be substantial over the years.

When the previous plan was proposed, the district supported a $685,000

Traffic Study Required Before Planners Review Shopping Mall Plans

Before site plans for Rene Papo's shopping mall will be considered by the village planning commission, a traffic impact study will have to be reviewed by the village.

At their regular meeting Tuesday, Nov. 24, the village planning commission decided they wanted to see how traffic will be affected by the project on Old US-12 between Chelsea State Bank and the community fairgrounds.

According to village planning consultant Carl Schmult, the results of the study might affect the layout of the mall. In addition, Papo wants to have three driveways onto M-52, but his plan has to be approved by the Michigan Department of Transportation because M-52 is a state highway. Schmult said that decision could also affect the layout.

The study will take into account traffic patterns on M-52, Old US-12 and Old Manchester Rd.

"The administration still has concerns regarding the ability of Old Manchester Rd. and Old US-12 to handle the additional traffic volumes generated by this project," assistant village manager Lee Fahrner told the commission in his review.

The administration is largely concerned about traffic jams on Old US-12 and M-52 as mall customers attempt to enter and exit the development. They say the combination of people trying to enter the mall and businesses on the opposite side of Old US-12 could cause major problems.

Fahrner told the village council on Tuesday, Nov. 17 that the state is planning some sort of project for M-52 between I-94 and Old US-12. He said it may include expanding the road to five lanes.

Papo has decided to solve the mall's stormwater drainage problems by constructing a detention basin on property he recently purchased just south of the mall site on Old Manchester Rd.

The village has been waiting for a solution to the problem from Washtenaw county. However, both the county drain commissioner and his assistant recently resigned and the village doubts a timely solution will be forthcoming from the county.

Fahrner also indicated in his report that the village has applied for a Michigan Small Communities Grant to help fund water and sewer improvements in the area. The village wants to extend a 12-inch main down Old Manchester Rd. to M-52 to increase supply and pressure in the southern end of town. Fahrner said sewer service could be provided temporarily by connecting into the pump station on M-52. However, the permanent solution will be to build a 10-inch line on the south side of the development.

Fahrner said electrical service to the site is feasible.

IT WAS A BEAUTIFUL MORNING for a walk Tuesday on this path near Chelsea Community Hospital. A light snowfall overnight gave the village its first look of winter and the holiday season. Snow continued until well into the afternoon.

Word flashing over the radio and television at 1:30 p.m. last Friday that President John F. Kennedy had been felled by an assassin's bullets as he rode through the streets of Dallas, Tex., was a shock the like of which has not been experienced by the United States for many years. This report was followed a half hour later with the shattering statement that the President had died. Lee Harvey Oswald has been linked with the murder as police uncovered evidence against him.

A Chelsea man, Byron Pearson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Pearson, was recognized by friends and relatives here in television views of the U. S. Marine Band marching in the cortege Monday for the funeral of President John F. Kennedy. Pearson, who plays the trumpet, was in the front row.

Palmer Flag Stolen Again

The large American flag at the Palmer Ford-Mercury used car lot on M-52 was stolen for the second time in a month last Friday, Nov. 27.

The theft was witnessed by two Grass Lake women at 9 p.m.

The women told Chelsea police they saw a white man standing on the bed of a pick-up truck pulling down the flag.

The women tentatively identified the man as an 18-year-old Chelsea resident, who was later interviewed by police. According to Chief Lenard McDougall, the incident is still being investigated.

The flag has a value of $800.

Committee Approves School Finance Reform Plan

The bulk of a legislative package shifting nearly all school financing from local property taxes to a combination of state property tax and closing various "loopholes" was approved by the Senate Finance Committee recently.

Other bills setting new quality and curriculum requirements are scheduled for later action in the Senate Education and Mental Health Committee.

Also yet to be considered is a proposed constitutional amendment that would replace this tax package with an increase in the sales tax to 6 percent, from 4 percent, and set a 16 mill property tax limit (8 each by the state and local districts).

The plan approved by the committee would go into effect unless voters approved the sales tax increase at the 1988 election.

The package approved by the committee, with only Sen. Christopher Dingell (D-Trenton) opposing the tax measures, would raise $4,957 million from state sources for school operations.

Also approved was SJR K which would establish state property tax provisions and guarantee a $3,000 per pupil minimum for school operations, as well as deal with a constitutional requirement on the proportion of state spending that must go to local units.

The package sets a 20-mill state property tax, with local districts able to vote an extra 4 mills.

Furthermore, those districts which already spend more than $3,000 per pupil could vote to increase millage even more to maintain that level. The state average rate for operating purposes is 32 mills, and the new 20-mill rate would mean a tax cut in half the districts.

The $3,000 guarantee, compared to a current range of $1,785 to $5,915 per pupil, would help even out the difference between poorer school districts in the state and those with more money, committee chair Sen. Norman Shinkle (R-Lambertville) said.

"It brings the poor districts up and at the same time it lowers property taxes 10-12 mills," Shinkle said. "It's significant what we did."

Schools would also get additional state money for categorical programs, such as special and vocational education.

Among the major sources of new state revenue is $352 million by lowered homesteaded property tax credits, due to lower initial taxes and changes in the credit law under HB 4613.

Physicist Suggests Michigan Should Store Wastes at Reactor Sites

A nuclear physicist addressing the House Conservation and Environment Committee said nuclear wastes which the state is producing should be stored at dump sites already in existence.

Marvin Resnikoff, research director of the Radioactive Waste Campaign in New York City, said the state should cease its search for new dump sites and waste generated by power plants, which accounts for 98 percent of all nuclear waste in the state, and store it at reactors at the plants.

"We've recommended that this waste temporarily remain at the reactor site. If utility wastes were taken out of the picture today, we wouldn't even be discussing this issue," Resnikoff said.

Storage at the reactors, he added, could be temporary for 40 or 50 years, until technology results in more efficient and safe ways to dispose of waste.

And regarding Michigan's role in a low-level nuclear waste compact, Resnikoff suggested the state might remain part of the compact, but it and the other six member states (Missouri, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Ohio, Indiana and Iowa) should store their waste within their own states.

The advantage to remaining in the compact, he said, is that they would be protected from a legal clause which indicates states not in a compact must accept wastes from other states.

David Hales, commissioner of the Office of Radioactive Waste Management, said he opposed using current sites because of additional safety problems, and said Michigan should remain in the compact.

He said he expects changes in the compact to address state concerns on stable geographic formations and dry areas for the waste.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

You got to call the fellers seasoned political observers. All of em are well seasoned, and they have been observing since Hector was a pup. Truth be told, they have done a heap more observing than doing, because doing is more apt to break a sweat, which none of em have in the past 30 year.

So when politics come up on the agender Saturday night at the country store, it has handled by what the column writers blame on authoritative sources. After studying the Presidential candidates up one side and down the other, most of the fellers agreed Harold Stassen's time has come at last. Like Bug Hookum said, Stassen is lookin better all the time. He is 80 year old. He is an experienced campaigner if there ever was one, and his private and public life is an open book. He ain't likely to git in trouble with wimmen, wedding dates or college credits, Bug said, and any mischief he ever got in has been ferget.

Furthermore, Democrat Clem Webster said, Humble Harold was a long-time winner long before he come known as the all-time loser. He's been a President and a Governor, of the University of Pennsylvania and Minnesota, Clem went on. He's got on-the-job experience, which is a heap more than jackleg preachers that have never held elected office can say.

Actual, Clem said, the Republicans ought to give Harold another look before they git to far along. There is no record of Stassen ever claiming he changed the course of a hurricane. He never has announced himself in charge after a President was shot. And when you look at what happened to party nominees that beat him you got to think the wrong person got picked.

Who's to say, Clem ask, that Stassen wouldn't of made a better showing than Thomas Dewey did in 1948, and anybody's family mule would of got more votes than Barry Goldwater in 1964. Even when Stassen got beat by a winner, Clem noted, you got to wonder if history will deal kind with giving Richard Nixon free run of the White House.

What humor the fellers saw in Clem's endorsing speech escaped Republican Ed Doolittle that got the floor to declare Clem ought to work on the log in his party's eye before he started picking out the splinter in the other's. If Clem was so hot fer

Stassen, Ed said, it's got to be he's saying his Democrat field ain't got a prayer agin the GOP's real candidates. It was just last week, Ed recalled, that Clem was lamenting all the candidates casualties and was wondering out loud what Bill Bradley is saving himself fer.

It was Zeke Grubb that got the discussion moving. He said the going of the boll weevil can mean more to this country than the coming of a political candidate. Zeke had saw where North Carolina has been declared free of the weevil that come up from Mexico 100 year ago looking fer a home, found it and eventual dethroned king cotton. This year, North Carolina's cotton crop more than doubled to 100,000 acres. As more cotton is growed, Zeke said, North Carolina farmers will depend less on tobacco, and if the boll weevil can be beat back all the way across Texas cotton can agin change the complexion of agriculture.

Unfortunately, the next sound we hear will be screams that we're fighting the weevil with chemicals deadly to the human food chain. Like in politics, it's hard to win fer losing.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

Ordinance Proposed For Bed and Breakfast Businesses in Village

An ordinance governing "bed and breakfast" enterprises was reviewed by the Chelsea Village Planning Commission on Tuesday, Nov. 24.

Louise Graves of Chelsea proposed to establish the first such business in her home on Wilkinson St. However, the village has been studying the question for several months.

Should the ordinance be adopted by the village, bed and breakfast operations will have the following features.

- They'll be permitted only in a single family home that is the principal dwelling unit on the property and is the principal home of the operator.

- An owner will have to provide written evidence that a home meets fire safety regulations.

- Minimum floor area of a home is 1,600 square feet, not counting a basement or garage. Each guest bedroom will be a minimum of 150 square feet and have no more than two occupants. Each home will have no more than four guest rooms.

- A full bathroom will be provided for every two guest rooms.

- A bed and breakfast cannot be created by adding on to a house.

- Only one person outside the resident family may be employed by the business.

- No kitchen will be available to the guest rooms.

- Only continental breakfasts, consisting of coffee, tea, juice and milk, and commercially prepared rolls can be served.

- Service of alcoholic beverages will be prohibited.

- Only one sign, no more than three square feet mounted to the side of the home will be allowed.

- Bed and breakfast facilities cannot be used for receptions, weddings or other parties.

- Guests may stay no more than 14 days in any 90-day period.

- Each guest room will have its own off-street parking space.

- A site plan has to be reviewed and approved.

A VIEW from the CLOCK TOWER

By Will Connelly

PROTECTING YOUR CHARITY DOLLARS FROM SCOUNDRELS AND WASTRELS

If there's anything that produces a feeling of shamed frustration it's the discovery that $9.30 out of the $10 you gave to Children's Charity went to the promoters and 70 cents went to the needy children. You felt kind of guilty giving only $10 as it was. Now you wonder how many other checks you have written for charities are being mingled with funds for bar bills, private golf courses and first class air tickets to the Caribbean.

The purpose of today's Clock Tower is to describe some of the things you can do to keep your charity money away from swindlers and grossly inept managers. It is also intended to give you reason to feel glad you gave to Chelsea's United Way.

There are 135,000 American charities engaged in mail and telephone solicitations. They have a combined income of $87 billion a year and the challenge to all of us is to distinguish the good charities from the bad. Ross Perot, who is in the process of giving away his fortune of $2.5 billion "for the best and highest use" is finding it tough sledding. To handle the job he has a foundation of his own, run by his sister, Bette, to analyze the worth of the appeals—a resource not available to the average giver.

In Chelsea we are able to sort out our local charities because we know their leaders and the workers—including the lass with Girl Scout cookies—by their first names. But outside of Chelsea, even in the county, it's sometimes a problem to tell the good guys from the bunglers and the swindlers.

An organization in Texas, known as the Rainbow Foundation, promised on behalf of the terminally ill children to fulfill their last wish if it was humanly possible to do. It looked like a fraud and Texas state investigators found that it was. The records were in a mess but they did reveal that the charity paid for trips to Switzerland and the Cayman Islands where the administrator presumably squirreled away huge amounts of rainbow for himself.

A promoter of a charity for needy families in Chicago sold phonograph records as a sports souvenir. The record was labelled "Chicago Bears Super-bowl Shuffle." The Bears believed the shuffle and bought records for themselves. Not one penny of the $365,000 in profits ever reached the needy poor of Chicago or anywhere else.

Sometimes a charity can be too successful. For years the Shriners had staged circuses in various communities across the country for the benefit of crippled and burned children. As time went on the circuses thrived and the Shriners built a coast-to-coast chain of 20 children's hospitals. The Shrine endowment to support these hospitals now amounts to more than $2 billion. In 1985 the income from this fund—$230 million—was enough to pay the cost of maintaining all 20 of the hospitals two times over.

A team of reporters with the Orlando Sentinel, John Wark and Gary Marx, discovered the Orlando Shriners had staged the most successful circus in their history. They had earned a profit of $81,000, relying heavily on their theme of help for crippled and burned children. Help for the crippled and burned children from each year's proceeds was formerly true, but no longer. The Orlando circus kept every penny of the $81,000 to operate their own bar and restaurant, maintain their golf course, pay utility bills and travel expenses not related to child health care.

The Sentinel reporters found at the time of their investigation that of 175 Shrine circuses fewer than 10 donated their profits to the hospitals. The management of this huge and wonderful charity simply outgrew the men who created it. The Shrine board of directors has recently adopted a number of the needed reforms. Journalists Wark and Marx have won a prestigious Associated Press award for their investigative reporting.

It is historically true that just as much money intended for charitable purposes is squandered through mismanagement as is spirited away by charlatans. There are definite precautions you can take to protect yourself from both wastrels and scoundrels.

The first thing you want to know about a charity is this: Are they fulfilling the cause to which their charity is committed? Are they actually feeding the hungry? Are they really trying to heal the sick?

To find out, ask for an annual report or up-to-date financial statement. Do not settle for promotional literature filled with emotional appeals and heart-rending photos. Get the facts. Any reputable charity will have this information and gladly supply it. If they are appealing to you through the mail, use their reply envelope and tuck in a note with your request . . . instead of a check. If they don't answer, or if they duck the issue with a syrupy appeal, forget 'em.

When a charity does respond with an annual report or financial information, look first for two figures. How much total income did they receive that year? How much was spent on "program" for the fulfillment of their avowed purpose? The third figure you want is how much did they spend for fund-raising and administration?

Fortune magazine gathered such information on the 1986 operations of America's 15 largest charities. Here is what they reported:

$ Amounts in Millions

CHARITY	REVENUES	PROGRAM	EXPENSE
American Red Cross	$973	82%	18%
Salvation Army	$865	86%	14%
UNICEF	$463	85%	15%
Goodwill Industries	$447	77%	23%
CARE	$397	95%	5%
American Cancer Society	$308	67%	33%
Planned Parenthood Federation	$274	83%	17%
United Cerebral Palsy	$233	83%	17%
National Easter Seal Society	$212	76%	24%
Boys Clubs of America	$187	79%	21%
American Heart Association	$179	72%	28%
Volunteers of America	$166	91%	9%
Retarded Citizens U.S.	$140	75%	25%
March of Dimes	$112	73%	27%
American Lung Association	$ 92	67%	33%

The Chelsea United Way board is intimately acquainted with its local agencies. The allocation committee holds formal hearings to decide on current requests from its county agencies. As for donating a share of Chelsea's income to state organizations or Michigan affiliates of national agencies, we rely on the good judgment of Washtenaw United Way.

Chelsea's goal for 1987 was $73,000 and was handsomely over the top by Thanksgiving.

Chelsea United Way could stand up under financial scrutiny by an electron microscope. It is a volunteer effort and 92 cents out of every dollar goes for programs of 37 charitable agencies as follows:

Changes Have Occurred In Latest Diabetic Diets

In 1986, new guidelines for diabetes care were provided to health care professionals, diabetics, and the public by the American Diabetes Association. The three nutritional goals of diabetes management are:

- to have appropriate blood-glucose and blood-fat levels.
- maintain or achieve a reasonable weight
- follow good nutrition principles such as eat less fat, eat more carbohydrates (starches and breads) especially those high in fiber, eat less sugar, use less salt, and use alcohol in moderation if at all.

What Is A Diabetic Diet?

Using the guidelines outlined above, a diabetic meal plan can be determined by the registered dietitian that will match the calories, carbohydrate, protein, and fat eaten by a person with their activity and insulin levels. Carbohydrate is a major source of energy. Protein builds muscle and tissue and provides some energy. Fat provides energy as well.

The meal plan is a guide which shows the number of food choices (exchanges) that may be eaten at each meal and snack. The meal plan is designed so that half or more of the total daily calories are in the form of carbohydrate, approximately 20% of the calories are from protein and the rest are from fat, preferably polyunsaturated fat, such as safflower, sunflower, corn and soybean oils, margarines made from these liquid oils, mayonnaise and nuts such as pecans, almonds, and walnuts.

What Are Exchange Lists?

The six exchange lists help to make the meal plan work. Foods are grouped together on a list because they are alike. Every food on a list has about the same amount of carbohydrate, protein, fat, and calories. In the amounts given, all the choices on each list are equal. Any food on a list may be exchanged or traded for any other food on the same list.

The six lists are: starch/bread, meat and substitutes, vegetables, fruit, milk, and fat.

Using the exchange lists and following the meal plan will provide a great variety of food choices, and will control the distribution of calories, carbohydrate, protein, and fat throughout the day, so that the food and the insulin will be balanced. This balance is what gives good blood-glucose control.

Is the Meal Plan Different for Different Types of Diabetes?

Yes, it is. The goals of treatment are somewhat different for the two types of diabetes.

Insulin-Dependent Diabetes. The most important nutrition principle for people with insulin-dependent diabetes is consistency. Meals should be eaten at about the same time each day. The amounts and types of food eaten at each meal should be about the same from day to day. This is important because the food eaten is planned to balance the insulin injections and activity level of that particular person. The meal plan and the exchange lists can help the diabetic to be consistent, so that food and insulin work together to regulate blood glucose levels. If the meal plan and insulin are out of balance, wide swings in blood glucose can occur. The diabetic may suffer from insulin reactions or from the symptoms of high blood glucose.

Non-Insulin-Dependent Diabetes. Most people with non-insulin-dependent diabetes are overweight. Thus, the most important nutrition principle for people with this type of diabetes is weight control. Losing weight by eating less food and increasing exercise is very important. Eating a balanced diet, even while losing weight is essential. The dietitian will help determine the number of calories a person needs, assist in setting weight goals and provide tips to help reach those goals.

What can be done to help the diabetic through the holidays?

A special Holiday Cooking Class for Diabetics session is being held on Monday, Dec. 7 at 7:30 p.m. at Chelsea Community Hospital. Food will be available for taste testing. A dietitian and diabetic educator will be available to answer questions. To register for the session, phone Chelsea Community Hospital Education Department at (313) 475-1311, Ext. 3935.

"There are no hopeless situations; there are only men who have grown hopeless about them . . ."

There comes a time in everyone's life when one must face situations which seem hopeless. However, we must remember that all problems have solutions as long as we can muster the necessary strength and objectiveness to face them.

It is at times when people fail to call on these qualities that situations seemingly become hopeless. At such times, we would do well to honestly ask ourselves if the situation is in truth hopeless, or, if it is ourselves who are without hope.

Be sure your wishes will be followed by making pre-need arrangements now. All details will be handled exactly as you specify.

DDA Financing

plan in which no more than $79,200 in tax increment funds would be used for bond debt retirement. The district also supported a 15-year plan. The new plan runs for 25 years.

DDA is anxious to have the plan approved by the village council in the 1987 calendar year so that it can take advantage of increment financing in 1988 when the new assessments come out.

However, assistant school superintendent Fred Mills doubted that the school board could approve a contract with the DDA in December.

Q. I have been enjoying the rising stock market and have no complaint at all. Practically all of my stocks have at least doubled and some are even up four or five times. I know stocks also come down and I wonder if you could give me some guidelines as to what I might expect in a bad time in the market?

A. There are really two kinds of severe drops that take place in the stock market. There are big corrections that take place in a market that is generally in a long-term upward movement, and there are the really severe market corrections that will occur once in a lifetime—or twice if you are long-lived and fall into the cycle. But it's important to keep in mind that in either type of market it still tends to keep moving up. As successive highs are higher, successive lows tend to be higher than previous lows of a similar nature. Let's look at what happens in the kind of market we are now in.

In a severe correction in a generally upward moving market as we seem to now have, you could have a loss of 20-25% on the averages. Individual stocks would react differently.

In our investment club work we tend to divide stocks into three classes to judge their possible low. One class would be companies that have a record of increasing sales and earnings per share for some period of time at a compounded rate of 10% a year or more. The growth in sales and earnings of such a company tends to continually raise both the high price and the low price of which such a stock will sell. For such a stock we tend to accept the low at which it has sold in the past year as representative of its likely low over the coming five years.

We also look at a price 25% below its recent high and judge how reasonable that seems as a potential low price.

If a company is in cyclical business and is pretty much up and down with the business cycle, we look at two prices, the average low at which it has sold over the last five years and the lowest price at which it has sold over the same time period. If the company has shown practically no growth in that period, we tend to use the lowest price it has sold at over the last five years. If it has shown a modest rate of growth, say 5-6% we tend to use the average low price.

A third category we use to judge the potential low of stocks is for income stocks. These are stocks which have good reliable dividend and appeal to a substantial number of investors whose major interest is the dividend income they expect to receive. For this class of stock we look back five years to see how low the stock sold. We divide the dividend paid at that time by the low price and that gives us the percent earned on an investment made in the company at that time. Dividing the current dividend by that percentage gives us the price the stock would sell at currently to provide as good a return at it has in the past five years. Often that is a good indicator of the possible future low of such a stock.

None of these procedures give you a guarantee, but they will get you in the ballpark.

Nature from Your Backdoor

By Glenn R. Dudderar

If there's ever a contest for most misunderstood type of wildlife, owls will surely be in the running. The scientific information we have isn't nearly as abundant as the misinformation and superstitions about them.

One common misconception is that owls, particularly the great horned owl, are endangered, threatened or rare.

In Michigan, the barn owl has practically disappeared, but there's nothing rare about the great horned owl. It is common in rural areas and occasionally found in suburban and urban areas. It is abundant enough to be a nuisance, as anyone who has ever tried to raise ducks or chickens in the backyard in a pen without a cover on it can attest. One of the problems that biologists have had to consider in beginning to restore endangered peregrine falcons to certain areas of the state is predation by great horned owls.

Great horned owls and their smaller cousins the screech owls often frequent high school and college campuses. The combination of trees, shrubs and open, grassy areas that usually surround institutions like these are ideal habitat for the small mammals that owls prey on, and the owls take advantage of that food source. Several pairs of these "campus owls" reside on the MSU campus, and most of the local high schools have at least a pair apiece. The owls are obviously not as common as starlings, but they are definitely not scarce.

One clue to how common they are is the frequency with which homeowners in rural and suburban areas get a whiff of skunk in their yards in the evening. The scent doesn't linger into the next day, however, as it would if the skunk had sprayed there, because the object of the skunk's attention had flown away. Great horned owls are one of the few predators that routinely dine on skunk. Because they have a poorly developed sense of smell, they don't let the skunk's potent defensive tactics deter them. They do often emerge smelling rather pungent, however, and they carry that scent around with them until it wears off.

Lots of people confuse the cooing of the mourning dove with the hooting of the great horned owl. True, they contain the same "oo" sound, but the dove's call is a soft, low, melodious but mournful sound, while the owl's is a series of hoots that starts and ends hard.

The great horned owl and its hooting are often connected with Halloween. But as a symbol of night and darkness, loneliness and spookiness, the great horned owl can't hold a candle to the barred owl. This owl of the swamps of northern Michigan is much better equipped to send chills down the spines of its audience.

Unlike the great horned owl, which has the tufts of feathers on its head that suggest ears and bright yellow eyes, the barred owl has no ear tufts and has dark eyes that look like black holes from a distance. Like the eyes of a shark, they look cold and dead. Combined with the flat, dark face, the eyes give the barred owl a very baleful expression.

What really raises the hair on the back of your neck is to hear the barred owl's call at night.

The basic call is a series of eight hoots, higher pitched than those of the great horned owl, that supposedly sound like, "I'll cook for you, I'll cook for you, awww." It's a raucous, staccato call that falls and dies at the end. The owls can vary it tremendously by incorporating rising and falling notes that make it sound maniacal in the way of a loon's call or a hyena's laugh.

Imagine a harvest moon rising over a northern Michigan swamp with the mist beginning to collect and three or four of these owls getting into a hooting contest. It could be pretty spooky, even if you knew it was only owls.

Illegal Entry Gained to Office At Chelsea High

Someone burned a three-inch hole in a Plexiglass window to gain entry to the Community Education Office at Chelsea High school over the Thanksgiving week-end.

According to police, an object like a coat hanger was inserted through the hole to lift the window.

Police discovered footprints throughout the office, left apparently by an athletic shoe. There was no indication that anything was stolen.

Judge Kirkendall Seeks Flags

Probate Judge John N. Kirkendall is looking for an American flag and a Michigan flag on standards to place in the new courtroom at Mercywood Neuropsychiatric Hospital.

The Washtenaw County Probate Court inaugurated the court at Mercywood to deal with commitment procedures for individuals who do not know that they need treatment. When Judge Kirkendall and his staff began work there, they were surprised to learn that the state did not provide flags. Efforts to obtain them from groups such as the Veterans Administration have to date been unsuccessful.

If anyone has flags to donate or knows where they may be obtained, please call Judge Kirkendall's office at 994-2470.

Feelin' blue? Well if you're a satin bowerbird, that means you're feeling great. Ranger Rick magazine reports that the dove-size Australian bird's favorite color is blue. Male bowerbirds decorate their nests with blue objects to impress female bowerbirds. This means gathering blue flowers, feathers, plastic toys, pens, toothbrushes, and any other blue object that the bowerbird finds attractive.

I'd like to thank the Chelsea Standard for the first-rate coverage of the student services now being offered at Chelsea High school.
Unfortunately, in the most recent article about the program, I neglected to mention the role of the counseling department in helping to make these groups successful. Sue Carter and Gene LaFave each facilitate a group with me. Chris Dimanin co-facilitated a group last year. Their contributions have been invaluable and deserve acknowledgment.

Funeral Chapel Will Expand Parking Lot to East St.

Cole-Burghardt Funeral Chapel on E. Middle St. plans to expand its parking lot to East St.

Don Cole has purchased the house at 103 East St. (corner of East and E. Middle Sts.) and plans to move it to land between the railroad tracks and a modular home owned by his daughter on Madison St.

Chelsea Village Planning Commission recommended approval of the project at their regular meeting Tuesday, Nov. 24, although Jim Knott and Harriet Hamilton dissented. The parcel has to be re-zoned from residential to office use. The decision will ultimately be made by the village council.

Village administration recommended approval of the re-zoning request. It noted that the General Development Plan calls for the eventual extension of the business district to East St. and that an area zoned for office use is a "reasonable buffer" between a commercial area and residential area.

Cole said he has been planning to buy the house for about 11 years. He has previously bought and sold two houses next to his business and had them moved to Madison St. near Oak Grove Cemetery.

"We don't have a serious parking problem," Cole said.

"We just want to do better for people."

Cole said his last parking lot cost $250 after he moved and sold a home next to the funeral chapel.

Nine Chelsea High Students Make Math Competition Finals

Nine Chelsea High School students are among 902 students state-wide who have qualified for the finals in the 31st annual Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition. "Over 22,000 students competed in the exam and we are very proud that about one percent of this year's finalists are from Chelsea High school," said Vincent Brumfield, math chairperson at CHS.

Chelsea's finalists include seniors Sharon Colombo, Jordan Gray, Patrick Gustine, Charles Hosner, Stephen Radant, Kristina Steffenson, James Taylor, Jeff Waldyke, and sophomore Charity Strong.

There are two parts to the competition. Part one was a multiple choice test given on Oct. 7. Part two will be a written exam on Wednesday, Dec. 9. The parts will be combined in a 40-60 proportion and the top 100 students in the state will be honored at a banquet at Michigan State University on March 5.

The exam is sponsored by the Michigan section of the Mathematical Association of America, Michigan colleges and universities, foundations, industries, and the Michigan Council of Teachers of Mathematics. More than $20,000 in prizes and scholarships will be awarded to the top 50 students in the state.

Genealogical Council Will Honor Area Residents

Nine Washtenaw county residents will be honored by the Michigan Genealogical Council with Sesquicentennial Certificates of Appreciation, when the Genealogical Society of Washtenaw county meets at 1:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 6. The meeting will be held in the Sunshine Room of Glacier Hills Nursing Center, 1200 Earhart Rd., Ann Arbor.

The certificates are an expression of appreciation for outstanding service provided by persons in libraries, court houses, genealogical and historical societies in assisting individuals to research their family histories, according to Dr. Bruce K. Nelson, president of the Washtenaw County Society. "Our recipients," he said, "have contributed in a variety of ways—several as professional librarians or historians, others who have completed significant genealogical projects, and still others with valuable donations of information and materials to local archives and libraries."

Certificate recipients are: Carl and Lillian Brown of Milan; Donald Callard, Marguerite Lambert, Ralph and Lydia Muncy, and Robert H. Schapler of Ann Arbor; and Thelma Larson and Doris Millman of Ypsilanti.

"Family Traditions" will be the theme of the meeting during which members will relate how holiday customs have been handed down over several generations.

The meeting is open to all interested persons.

Let's Go

Bulldogs!

Bulldog Rally Falls Short, Dexter Wins Cage Title

Dexter Dreadnaughts withstood a fourth-quarter Chelsea rally to defeat the Bulldogs, 42-35, in the finals of the district basketball tournament at Tecumseh on Thanksgiving-eve.

Dexter advances to the regional tournament this week, playing New Boston in the opening round. Chelsea finished the season with a 13-10 record.

After falling behind by as many as 10 points, Chelsea narrowed the gap to 36-33 by the middle of the fourth quarter as Leah Enderle hit two quick jumpers. However, the Bulldogs missed some key one-and-one free throw opportunities and a couple of easy lay-ups down the stretch.

Dexter's Lisa McGraw, who finished with 22 points, made a key three-point play in the closing seconds.

Chelsea roared out to a 6-0 lead as Heather Neibauer nailed a pair of jump shots. However, Dexter remained calm, ran their offense, and had the score tied at 10 by the end of the first quarter.

"One thing we discussed before the game is that we didn't want to be too emotionally high at the beginning," said Chelsea coach Rahn Rosentreter.

"Because we knew if they started to play up to their potential and came back to take the lead, we could have a hard time. I think that's essentially what happened. The second quarter was just a disaster for us."

The Bulldogs were outscored 13-6 in the second period as the Dreadnaughts went to a man-to-man defense, which Rosentreter said he did not expect. Chelsea was down 23-16 at half-time.

"We told the girls that Dexter is the type of team that will let you back in a game and you have to realize when that opportunity has come," Rosentreter said.

"They gave us the opportunity in the fourth quarter and we had a chance to win the game, but we didn't take advantage of it. If I had to do it all over again, I would have put Leah at point guard a little earlier, maybe at the beginning of the fourth quarter."

Chelsea was down by 10 points at the end of the third quarter, 33-23, before staging their frantic rally.

Neibauer led the Bulldogs with 13 points and was the only Bulldog in double figures. Allison Brown and Peggy Hammerschmidt each scored six points, Enderle and Kelley Scott had four each and Jenni Smith scored two.

JENNI SMITH works hard for a rebound during district tournament action last Wednesday against Dexter. Chelsea jumped out to a quick lead but couldn't sustain it and the Dreadnaughts went on to win the tournament.

Chelsea shot 33 percent from the field (14-42) and 68 percent (7-12) from the free throw line. The Bulldogs also held a 21-15 rebound edge and had 12 more steals than Dexter, 14-2.

"At the beginning of the season, my goal was to win 12 games," Rosentreter said.

trater said.

"The girls had a goal of winning 15 games and I think we could have reached that goal had we been more consistent. But we had a pretty good season. I'm not sure if any Chelsea team has ever reached the district finals."

Varsity Cagers Open Season Friday at Columbia Central

Chelsea Bulldog varsity basketball team tuned up for their season opener this Friday at Brooklyn Columbia Central with scrimmages against South Lyon and Walled Lake Western last week-end.

"I was real pleased with the team's play," said Chelsea coach Robin Raymond.

"We held our own against two bigger teams and were very competitive."

Raymond said the Dogs were very aggressive on defense and held their own on the backboards while shooting 44 percent from the field.

In addition, Chelsea ran their offensive patterns well and six boys shot better than 50 percent from the field.

"Our 15-foot perimeter shooting looked real good," Raymond said.

"Our goal is to shoot 50 percent. If we can shoot that high, we'll be in every game."

The Bulldogs were also scheduled to hold a blue/gold game last night, pitting the seniors against the underclassmen.

As of Monday, Raymond still didn't know who would be in the starting line-up Friday night, with the probable exception of captain John Catell.

"We still don't know who will play where and how much," Raymond said.

"What happens this week in the blue/gold game and in practice will be important."

Brooklyn Columbia Central will feature probably the tallest team Chelsea will see all year. The Golden Eagles have a 6'7" center and two 6'5" forwards. Two of the three played varsity ball last year.

"We certainly can't play half-court basketball with them," Raymond said.

"I just hope they're slow."

Chelsea plays Haslett on the road next Tuesday, before returning for their first home game against the Saline Hornets on Friday.

"Brooklyn Columbia Central and Haslett could be our toughest non-conference games of the season," Raymond said.

Young Runners Qualify for National Meet

Michael was 11th in 11:51, Kramer, 25th in 12:37 and Tuttle, 35th, in 13:39. Melissa was 13th for the girls in 12:58. The course was 3,000 meters.

Other young athletes who ran in the regional meet were Dan Johnson, Evan Knott, Zac Erresten, Ryan Guenther, and Mark Hand.

Chelsea wrestling coach Kerry Kargel has only three seniors on his varsity team but the Bulldogs figure to be one of the strongest teams in the Southeastern Conference this season.

Although underclassmen dominate, the Bulldogs will not be lacking in experience. Chelsea should be tough in the lower and upper weights, where they lacked experience last season. If they can pick up a few wins in the middle weights, the Bulldogs could very well have an excellent season.

Wrestle-offs will be even more important this year than normal because the team has depth in many of the weight classes and many of the kids will be pushed just to make the varsity team. In addition, the make-up of the middle part of the line-up is likely to be different from week to week because their aren't many dominant wrestlers.

"Some of the kids are saying 'wait until next year,' but I'm saying let's make it this year because you never know what might happen," Kargel said.

"An athlete might get injured or transfer schools. If we work hard we can have a very good team."

The Bulldogs open their season this week, featuring the 12-team Chelsea Invitational Tournament on Saturday.

"I'm hoping to find out what kind of a tournament team we have at our invitational," Kargel said.

"You can have seven or eight outstanding athletes and lose a lot of dual meets but go to a tournament and place second or third."

Robert Kornel, at 132 pounds (and maybe 126), and Gary Dosey, at 155 pounds, are this year's captains and two of the three seniors. The only other senior, Todd Thurkow, will check in at 198.

"If Robert goes to 126 pounds, he has a very good chance to qualify for state, but at 132 pounds it's kind of iffy," Kargel said.

"I think he can handle 132, but he might get beat more often. However, he's a very slim kid and I don't know if he can make 126 pounds."

Of Dosey, Kargel said, "everything he gets, he earns."

"I wish all the kids were like Gary because he works hard and is dedicated to the sport. He looks a lot stronger than last year and I'd like to see him place high in the league. His season could be even better than that."

The junior wrestlers are Mike Taylor (heavyweight), Bill Dixon (167), Craig McCalla (119), Dean Sutherland (145), Reno Nye (119),

Learn-to-Ski Day Slated In January

Ski facilities across Michigan have agreed to offer free beginner ski lessons and free beginner-area lift tickets on Jan. 8, to those who have pre-registered.

Called "Let's Go Skiing, Michigan," the program is designed to encourage those who have never skied, or those who have tried it only a handful of times, to come out and learn the proper skills needed to enjoy the sport. Free beginner skiing and lessons will be offered on Friday, Jan. 8, at ski areas throughout the state. Many ski facilities will go a step further and provide free use of rental equipment for those without skis of their own.

John Savich, director of the Michigan Travel Bureau, said he expects most of Michigan's 50 downhill ski areas, as well as most cross-country facilities which employ instructors, to participate.

"Michigan has so many high-quality ski slopes and cross-country trails, that an introductory program like this is sure to create many new enthusiasts for this sport," he said.

In conjunction with the National Ski Areas Association "Let's Go Skiing, America" program, the Michigan Travel Bureau campaign will highlight Michigan downhill and cross-country facilities. To support the program, the state has committed a sizable advertising budget and an aggressive publicity campaign.

Paul Boyers (138) and Andy Sanders, a transfer student of whom Kargel said, "I don't know much about him yet."

Chelsea Wrestlers Young But Talented

The freshmen are Jim Hassett (138), Carl Wickman, Bryce Hansen, Pat Pinson and Kelly Beard (all 98), Brett Salamin (119), Steve Tourg and Joe Wolf (112), and Dan Bowling (132).

Pat Taylor had a tremendous season as a freshman last year when he was Chelsea's lone qualifier for the state tournament.

"He has the capability to be a state qualifier but he has moved up a weight class and it's going to be a little tougher this year," Kargel said.

Another of Kargel's fine sophomore wrestlers, Wingrove, has also grown, but not just a little.

"He's had a growing spurt since last season and he's moving from 119 to 145," Kargel said.

"I'm counting on him and I'm sure he'll be doing fine by mid-season. However, when you grow so fast you lose your co-ordination and your timing gets messed up. It'll be tough for him to adjust, but he's a good wrestler."

Eric Hanna and Rex Nye figure to be involved in a lot of wrestle-offs this season. One will wrestle 98 and the other 105.

"Whoever wrestles 98 could place in the state but he'll have to work for it," Kargel said.

"They are two good competitors." Kargel is also high on the ability of VanSchoick.

"He has an outstanding chance to place in the state," Kargel said.

"He's a big guy and very strong and generally a good athlete. Last year at a tournament he pinned the guy who placed second in the state in his weight class. That was impressive."

Heavyweight wrestler Mike Taylor, "is really looking good in practice," according to Kargel. "He's quick for a heavyweight, but he does not have the height some of the heavyweight wrestlers do. He's going to be very tough for anyone to beat."

If Kargel had to decide today, Mc-

Calla (119) would probably be the team's most improved wrestler.

"Craig is really dedicated to the sport. Boy what a team we'd have if all my wrestlers had attitudes like Craig."

Reno Nye is another boy who has been impressive in practice.

"He's quick, strong and very intelligent."

Dexter, as usual, is the team to beat in the league, although Kargel thinks the Dreadnaughts probably won't be as dominant as they have been recently.

"Our conference is one of the strongest in the state," Kargel said.

"I don't think anyone in our conference will go undefeated in the league."

Lincoln and Saline figure to be strong, but Kargel believes Chelsea could challenge for second place, and possibly first place.

Apple Recipes Popular

The fact that western Washtenaw county is a prime apple producing region is evident from the two cookbooks available at The Chelsea Standard offices, "Then and Now," produced by the Chelsea Area Historical Society, and "Country Living Cookbook," produced by the Waterloo Area Historical Society.

Both books are a compilation of the members' favorite recipes and are probably a good indication of area eating habits. Together the two books have 22 apple recipes ranging from cakes, cookies, pies, salads, breads, crumb bars, fried apples, and cider.

The German heritage of the area is represented with two recipes for German Apple Cake, but a recipe for Swedish apple cake also appears. Other apple cakes include apple upside down cake, applesauce cake, applesauce loaf cake, and fresh apple cake.

Apple pie recipes include Swedish apple pie, Mom's Swedish apple pie, grated apple pie, crumbly apple pie, and candy apple pie.

Cookie recipes include applesauce cookies and apple crumb bars. Bread is represented with a recipe for raw apple bread.

Three interesting salads appear: carrot-celery-apple salad, tasty tuna-apple salad, and Joe's mom's apple salad.

For people wanting to jazz up already delicious apple cider there are recipes for hot spiced cider and for mulled cider.

Another locally produced book, "Historical Events of My Mennonite Grandparents" by Dorothy Jean Bixel Aschenbrenner, includes a chapter on making apple butter in the old days. Aschenbrenner describes how it was a community event with women gathered to peel barrels of apples and then to take turns stirring the mixture of apple pieces, cider, and sugar, in a 40-gallon copper kettle. Aschenbrenner includes, in the back of the book, a recipe for producing a smaller amount of apple butter.

When apple season is over, cooks may console themselves with the two recipes for mock apple pie which appear in the Chelsea Historical Society cookbook.

Ann Arbor Civitan Sponsors '11th Bowling Tournament', NHS Volunteers Also Help

This is the 11th year Ann Arbor Civitan has sponsored a special bowling tournament for handicapped children and adults in Washtenaw county.

A total of 350 handicapped athletes took part in this year's tournament, headquartered at Bel-Mark Lanes, 3530 Jackson Rd.

The group included students from 10 school districts within the county, in addition to youngsters from St. Louis School and High Point Center.

Adults bowled on Monday, Nov. 23. Ages of the Wednesday bowlers varied from four years through high school.

More than 75 volunteers arrived at Bel-Mark Lanes to help keep score and provide other assistance to wheelchair athletes.

Volunteers were from the National Honor Society chapters at Chelsea and Dexter High schools, and from Chelsea's Key Club, a youth division of Chelsea Kiwanis.

Chelsea's Nancy Cooper, 1987 tournament organizer, commended the 75 volunteers from Chelsea and Dexter who kept score and offered both vocal and physical assistance to athletes on the bowling lanes.

"The volunteers were the best I've ever had—accurate, helpful, and great with the athletes," Ms. Cooper explained.

Chelsea volunteers included Kelly Stump, Marcie Kyte, John Cattell, Kevan Flanagan, Chris Acree, Nancy Nye, Mindy Ryan, Sam Eisenbeiser, Jennie Smith, Anna Flintoft, Matt Forner and Sheila Tillman.

Additional volunteers from Chelsea were Katie Giebel, Marty Heller, Sara Teare, Jason Overdorf, Eric Frisinger, Julian Mason, Danielle DeLong, Ann Weiner, Tammy Browning, Tiffany Browning, Dave Zerkel, Bob Pratt, Beth Kimball, Carol Hanke, Robert Kornexel, Anna Muncer, David Kvarnberg, Heidi Boyer, Gloria Gallas and Kellie Kantan.

The volunteer group from Dexter included Jenni Gilbert and Travis Gilbert, who worked helping Chelsea athletes, and Dan O'Haver, an extra volunteer.

In addition to the three listed, Dexter volunteers also included Marty Calhoun, Greg Denoyer, Kristin Gibb, Karen Knapp, Amy Miller, Michelle Miller, Lisa Moore, Jeff Sendra, Hugh Smeltkop, Katrina Murrel, Jenny Smith, Nikki Stamm, Molly Stephenson, Robin Strong, Robin Swisher, Jennie Teichow, Stephanie Townsend, Mark Turner and Jenny Virgne.

Advisors Paul Terpstra and Barb Preuss from Chelsea, and Cheryl Wells from Dexter High were also singled out for special recognition by Ms. Cooper, for all the help they gave to make the tournament a success.

Some Cautions Noted About Enrolling in P.A. 116

A number of persons with lands presently enrolled under P.A. 116, the Farmland and Open Space Preservation Act, are learning the hard way that there are some deterrents or cautions to recognize before signing a contract with the State of Michigan. Making changes in a contract, once it has been executed, is not easy.

Some of the adversities of a P.A. 116 contract which could impact on landowner decisions regarding use of property enrolled are listed below.

1. A P.A. 116 contract does not reduce property taxes. Taxes must be kept currently paid. The contract does provide for an income tax credit of the amount by which property taxes exceed 7% of household income. This credit is claimed when the Michigan State income tax forms are filed. If the credit is larger than tax owed, the excess is returned to the landowner as a cash payment.

The application for credit must be accompanied by a copy of the tax bill(s) marked paid.

2. An enrolled landowner must be certain that enrolled lands have separate tax statements and that credits are figured only on the basis of enrolled lands and not lands that were not enrolled or which have been excluded. As an example, for a landowner who enrolled just 60 of an 80-acre parcel, only the property taxes on the 60 acres may be used in figuring the income tax credit. The tax bills (assessments) are the responsibility of the County Equalization Department and the local township assessor, but a landowner needs to be sure this separation has taken place before claiming any credit on income tax.

3. A landowner may sell land under agreement but the agreement remains with the land and must appear in the deed or conveyance. The purchaser must agree to carry out the balance of the agreement and in all cases the state must be notified.

4. Land covered by a P.A. 116 agreement (contract) cannot be divided into smaller parcels and sold to new landowners. Acreage covered by agreement must be sold intact.

5. Homes or land for homes to be conveyed to children or relatives in the future must be excluded from the original application.

6. Early withdrawal from the program requires that an individual file an application with the local governing body stating reasons and needs for withdrawal. The local governing body must approve or reject the application. It is then forwarded to the state for approval or rejection. The landowner must have a specific reason for withdrawal. If a landowner is granted early termination, he must repay the total amount of all tax benefits with interest at 6% per annum compounded.

7. For contracts running full period, the landowner is required to pay back the last seven years of benefits without interest. There presently is no deadline for repayment, but the amount due is assessed in the form of a lien against the property payable at the time the land or any portion of it is sold or the use of the land is changed. A clear title cannot be obtained until the benefits are repaid and the lien is removed.

8. Lands in adjoining townships under a single ownership may not be enrolled under the same agreement. Separate agreement for each township will be required.

In summary, it is sufficient to say that you should be certain of your land use requirements for at least 10 years ahead before enrolling, be aware that withdrawal is extremely difficult, that manipulation of enrolled land is possible only in selected cases and that receiving any benefits results in a lien against the land until mandatory portions are repaid.

A NEW MEMBER of the Kiwanis Club of Chelsea was inducted at the club's regular meeting Monday night. Al Sheffield, second from left, an administrator in the Romulus School District and a North Lake resident, was

Dexter Township Approves Plat, Changes Street Name

At their meeting, Tuesday, Nov. 24, Dexter township trustees approved a preliminary plat, changed a street name, appointed a Zoning Board of Appeals member, and approved the first payment of their contribution to the Chelsea courthouse restoration.

The final approval of the preliminary plat was for North Lake Downs Phase I, a subdivision on the old Eisenbeiser farm, between Riker and Stoffer Rds. The board agreed to the plat for 19 lots contingent on written approval by the health department, who, at the time of the meeting, had only given verbal approval.

Webb's Lane Drive was changed to Webb's Landing at the request of residents of that street who petitioned the board for the renaming. They said their street was known by a variety of names and hoped by this change to clear up the matter.

Stephen Rudner was named to the Zoning Board of Appeals, replacing Walter Bone. According to trustee Doug Smith, Bone resigned because he was away from his Portage Lake home more than he was there, since he winters in Florida. Rudner, also from Portage Lake, and like Bone, an engineer, was felt to be a good replacement, having the same skills and also representing the same geographic area.

Rudner will finish Bone's term, serving until Oct. 20, 1989. He will join Don Hackney, Billie Robertson, Jim Drolett, and Ed Bouillon, who are already on the ZBA.

The board approved giving $3,000 to the Chelsea Courthouse restoration project. They plan to give $9,000 altogether over a three-year period. The reason for this donation, according to trustee Earl Doletsky who made the motion to donate the money, was that the township receives revenues from the courthouse such as fines.

The next board meeting will be Dec. 15. The board usually meets twice a month, but due to the holidays they will limit their December meetings to one. At least one meeting a month is necessary in order to pay the bills.

History Magazine Features Story on Michigan Quilts

The latest issue of Michigan History is now on sale and its readers will be particularly interested in an article about Michigan's original land grant university: The University of Michigan!

"Contrary to popular opinion, it was the University of Michigan and not

Farm Employers Concerned About Occupation Bill

The U.S. Senate has given high priority to a House-passed bill that would allow current and former employees exposed to certain chemicals to file a claim against their employer.

According to Al Almy, director of public affairs for the Michigan Farm Bureau, passage of S. 79, the High Risk Occupation Disease Notification Bill, would be detrimental to agriculture.

"Enactment of this proposal would undoubtedly result in many liability lawsuits against farmers," Almy said. "It would also require farmers to grant current employees a leave of absence, if requested, and help them find another job with at least equal pay. It would also allow employees to file a claim against their former employers for jobs they held as long as 30 years ago."

Michigan State University that received the first federal land grants in the state," said Sandra Clark, editor of Michigan History magazine. "Author Leroy Barnett, reference archivist for the State Archives, examines the land grant which led to the establishment of the Catholic Potawatomi or University of Michigan in 1804 and ultimately the University of Michigan in 1821.

"Barnett's article details how land grants were ultimately sold to finance the University of Michigan," Clark added.

The cover story of the September/October issue features a new exhibit entitled, "Michigan Quilts: 150 years of a textile tradition," now on display in the Lansing area.

Also featured is the "Artists in Michigan from the 19th Century" exhibit organized by the Muskegon Museum of Art. Included in the exhibit and the magazine is George Catlin's "LaSalle Crossing Lake Michigan on the Ice," on loan from the National Gallery of Art.

Following its exhibit in Muskegon, which concludes Nov. 1, the show will travel to Detroit, Saginaw, Jackson, Alpena, Escanaba, and Marquette.

Readers of Michigan History will be amused by James A. Clifton's article entitled, "Simon Pokagon's Sandbar," which recounts the exploits of the self-appointed "Chief" of the Catholic Potawatomi from Michigan's St. Joseph River Valley who laid claim to Chicago's famed lakeshore.

Other articles feature the restoration of the Capitol Building in Lansing and the history of Ford's Factory at Cherry Hill.

Michigan History is published six times a year by the Michigan Department of State and sold for $2 per issue, or $9.95 for a one-year subscription.

Orders, along with a check or money order made payable to the State of Michigan, may be sent to the Michigan Department of State, Bureau of History, Lansing 48918.

Festival of Lessons, Carols Slated at St. Andrew's Dec. 13

The traditional Festival of Lessons & Carols, now in its 28th year at St. Andrew's Episcopal church in Ann Arbor, will be presented by the church's Adult and Junior Choirs on Sunday, Dec. 13, at 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Thomas Strode, director of music at St. Andrew's, will conduct and accompany the choir.

The service will include the traditional nine lessons from scripture, telling the story of Man's fall and the redemptive acts of God culminating in His gift of His only Son to us. Each lesson is followed by an appropriate carol or hymn; some sung by the choir, some sung by the congregation.

Music will include settings of traditional carols by Peter Warlock, Robert Powell, John Joubert, John Gardner, John Rutter and Pearsall; "What Sweeter Music" by Richard Rodney Bennett; the Michigan premiere of a new work, "The Salutation Carol" by Terence Bailey; and the traditional carol "The Seven Joys of Mary."

Congregational carols will include "Once in Royal David's City," "Lo, Now A Rose E'er Blooming," "Of the Father's Love Begotten," and "O Little Town of Bethlehem."

It's all in your head...

Sound familiar?

It's the easy answer, but it doesn't solve the problem while you're still feeling pain or discomfort. Whether you think it's "all in your head" or a physician comes to that "conclusion", that's not the answer you have to settle for. Why not seek a second opinion from a doctor who specializes in determining the causes of health problems? The chiropractic approach differs because we seek to remove the cause of your health problem rather than cover-up the symptoms. Why be sick when you can be well?

Waterloo Farm Museum Will Host Their Annual Christmas Open House

Waterloo Historical Society's Christmas Open House, held annually at the Farm Museum, will welcome visitors Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 5-6, from 1 to 5 p.m.

Theme for the event centers around Christmas in Victorian times, as celebrated by Michigan pioneer farmers. "When the harvest was a memory and spring-planting was months away; when the sun deferred to the dark and snow and there was little cause for cheer... then came the very best reason... for the Christmas season," asserts Pat Russell, Chelsea, historian and chairperson for the Open House.

Museum visitors who feel the past grows farther away with each passing year, will be among those who especially value a glimpse of "Christmas past," as presented by members of the historical society. Others will enjoy the Open House as a tranquil, meaningful way to launch their 1987 Christmas season.

The 10-room Victorian farmhouse has been lavishly decorated with holly, ivy, pine boughs, and red velvet ribbon. An old fashioned candle bedecked Christmas tree in the parlor will sparkle with the addition of antique Christmas ornaments. Other attractions include a showing of antique dolls and toys, displayed by Charlotte Campbell of Unadilla.

Elaine Bush, Gregory, will exhibit antique Christmas post cards dating from the 1880's.

Traditional yuletide music will be performed on several types of German recorders by Pat Aeschelman, Gregory, Carl Hawkes, Hanover, and Patti Pelton, Grass Lake, dulcimer minstrels, will also perform.

The tantalizing aroma of cookies baking in the farm kitchen will mingle with the enticing smell of Christmas bread, cakes, and plum pudding from the dining room. Descriptions of these Old World confections will be given by Helen Hannewald and Susan Panoff, both of Stockbridge.

The farmhouse shed, converted into a Holiday Gift Shop by Agnes Dikeman, Ann Arbor, will feature distinctive Christmas cards and stationery created by Cathy Muha, Chelsea. Herman Hoffman, Michigan Center, has also crafted a fine selection of wooden toys. Additionally, an abundance of locally crafted items for Christmas-giving, to include stuffed animals, dolls, wreaths, and tree ornaments will be available.

Christmas will also be celebrated in the Society's 1800's log house, in the manner of by-gone days. WAHS president Vivian May, Gregory, and program chairperson Betty Turner, Stockbridge, will invite visitors to hot mulled cider and Christmas cookies, while enjoying warmth from a yule log burning in a 19th century fireplace.

There is no charge for admittance or refreshments for the holiday event.

New Speed Limit Law Took Effect Sunday

Michigan's new 65 mile-per-hour speed limit went into effect Sunday on rural interstate highways, including I-94 west from Chelsea and east to Ann Arbor.

The law affects about 720 miles of interstate highway. It does not apply to non-interstate highways and US highways, such as US-23.

Fines and points have been increased for violations, according to the Department of State Police.

"Our advice is simple," said Karen R. Tarrant, executive director of the department.

"Watch the speed and watch the speed limit signs. Drivers can expect strict enforcement of all speed limits."

Not all vehicles will be able to drive 65, however. Truck speed limit will remain at 55 and the school bus limit will stay at 50.

Radar detectors are not prohibited by the new law.

"REDUCED SPEED AHEAD" signs will be posted to alert drivers when the 65 mph zone is nearing its end.

The law requires a $5 assessment for all moving violations. That money, according to the department, will be used to hire an additional 120 Michigan State Police troopers for enforcement of traffic laws.

Tax on Michigan Insurance Firms Opposed

House Democrats Thursday approved a 2 percent premium tax on all Michigan insurance companies, according to an area lawmaker who said the move could mean an $80 million tax hike.

State Representative Margaret O'Connor (R-Ann Arbor) voted against the legislation.

"If enacted into law, this bill could result in higher costs for customers of life, auto and homeowner's insurance," O'Connor said. "It also puts a tremendous burden on Michigan-based companies which provide jobs, services and investment dollars in our state."

The action was prompted by a state Court of Appeals ruling earlier this summer which struck down Michigan's system of taxing out-of-state insurance companies. The court found that the state must treat out-of-state and in-state insurers equally instead of discrimination against out-of-state firms.

"The Senate will oppose this plan. Disagreements between the two versions will send the issue to a conference committee where a quick resolution is unlikely."

The new premium tax, first proposed by the Governor, would add $80 million, all from domestic companies, to state revenues in addition to the $170 million that had been raised from foreign firms.

"It's bad public policy to take a court decision and use it as an excuse to impose an additional $80 million in taxes," O'Connor said. "This money will be used to increase over-all state spending."

Hannewald Well Qualified As Director of Dewey School

HELEN HANNEWALD, director of the Dewey school, poses holding a scrapbook depicting the history of the school and its restoration as a one-room school house typical of the late 1800's or early 1900's.

When members of the Waterloo Farm Association heard about the Paula Blanchard Sesquicentennial award for women active in their communities, they could think of no better nominee than Helen Hannewald, the director of Dewey school. Hannewald has been volunteering at the school for almost 20 years, during which time the place has grown to become a significant community resource.

The Dewey School, located south of Stockbridge at Mayer and Territorial, is a former one-room school now owned by the Waterloo Historical Society. Every year in May and October, area school children come to the school for a day to experience what school was like in their grandparents' day.

Volunteer teachers, often Hannewald herself, lead the class through a typical school day of the early 1900's. The children sit at the old desks, do sums on their slates, read from McGuffey's reader, use a horn book, do tongue limbering exercises, sing old-time songs, and hold a spelling bee. During recess they play old-time games and with old-time toys such as corn husk dolls, home-made clay marbles, and whippie diddle.

Hannewald is perfect for the job of director, being herself a retired school teacher with one-room school teaching experience. To add further credentials, she is also a descendant of the Realy family that lived at the Waterloo Farm. Hannewald's great-aunt Katie Archenbronn married Jacob Realy, the first occupant of the Waterloo Farm house, now the Waterloo Area Farm Museum.

Hannewald grew up in the Stockbridge area and attended Michigan State Normal College, earning a two-year certificate. She taught for two years at Moss school, a one-room school which stood, before being torn down, on Huttenlocher Rd., south of Munith. She married Martin Hannewald in 1938, moving to a farm on Hannewald Rd., next to her in-laws.

After her marriage, Hannewald took a 17-year break from teaching to raise her five children, three boys and two girls.

When she returned to teaching, it was again at a one-room school, McKenzie, north of Stockbridge on Brogan Rd., also torn down. Hannewald taught there two years, from 1958-60, and then moved to the Eldon Katz school in Stockbridge, where she taught fifth and sixth grade. During these years, she also worked on finishing her bachelor's and master's by taking summer courses and extension courses.

Hannewald was asked to volunteer at the Dewey school in 1968, while she was still actively teaching. She modestly says her real active involvement did not begin until she retired in 1977 although she is listed as chair of the school committee as early as 1969.

Hannewald's initial volunteer work included digging up information about Dewey school and serving as a guide at the school when it was open Sunday afternoons.

Hannewald is now in charge of the school, making sure she or another volunteer are available for teaching when the school children visit. She is also continuing the on-going research, since many who attended the school still live in the area.

The Dewey school ceased regular operation in 1956, when it was consolidated into the Stockbridge Community schools. For a while it was used to store extra desks and other school items.

In 1958 a small group of former pupils and their friends met on the steps of Dewey with the intention of preserving it as a museum. In 1962, the school, two outhouses, and the woodshed, were sold to this group for a token one dollar.

After purchasing the school, the group began the task of furnishing it with authentic items. They rounded up, mainly from donations, teacher and student desks, a pendulum clock, kerosene lamps, pictures of Lincoln and Washington, an American flag, books, slates, old lunch pails, old outer garments, and a pot-bellied stove.

At the same time they began researching the school which had begun operation in 1844. Alumni from the school began reading about the effort in the paper and came forward with pictures and reminiscences. The Stockbridge school system found some records in their attic.

In 1966, the Dewey school became part of the Waterloo Historical Society and now operates under the same board of directors.

As the school was restored, it was enjoyed by tourists and by visiting classrooms, including college level classes. During the Waterloo Fall Festivals, it was always a big draw.

A real step forward in the use of the school was made when Stockbridge Community schools received a $3,499 grant from the Michigan Council for the Humanities to improve their teaching of local history. As a result of this grant, a visit to Dewey school is now part of the second grade curriculum. Revenue from the grant financed purchases such as reproductions of McGuffey's Readers, facsimile Horn books, and, to take home as a souvenir of the day, reproductions of old copybooks.

Students from other area schools such as Chelsea, Dexter, Grass

Lake, Webberville, and Dansville, as well as some from further afield, also visit Dewey school.

Hannewald's pleasure in working with the school children is clear in conversation. She says she "loves to see their eyes, listen to their questions, share their enthusiasm." She relates how well-behaved the children are when they visit the school, how they often bring their parents back on week-ends, how they often exclaim, "I saw that on 'Little House on the Prairie'" or "My grandmother has one like that." She tells of one student who said he was glad he flunked second grade because he got another chance to visit the school.

Hannewald was not, in the end, selected for a Paula Blanchard award, but the Waterloo Farm Association presented her with their own award to show their appreciation.

Jackson Symphony Plans Ballet

Seats go on sale Dec. 2 for the Jackson Symphony Orchestra's special 1987 holiday presentation of Tchaikovsky's "Sleeping Beauty." Two performances with the Indianapolis Ballet Theatre will be fully staged and costumed, with the complete Jackson Symphony in the pit.

The performances are slated for 8 p.m., on Saturday, Dec. 12, and 3 p.m., Sunday, Dec. 13, in the Music Hall of the Potter Center, Jackson Community College. Seats may be ordered by mail or telephone from the Potter Center box office, (517) 789-1600.

Tchaikovsky's most famous ballet, and the classical ballet "against which all other dance forms and traditions are measured and compared," was first included in its repertoire by the Indianapolis Ballet company three years ago, and has toured in several states, with more than 10,000 persons witnessing performances during its New York State tour in the autumn of 1986 alone.

Heralded as "the ballet for all ages, 8 to 80," the classical fairy tale is presented in four acts, a prologue followed by three dance-filled, scenic chapters, all of which involve the entire company of some 30 professional dancers.

Jackson Symphony board chairman, Ty Cross, said the Jackson appearance follows the sell-out performance of the same company with the symphony two years ago in December of 1985, when IBT's equally famous production of the "Nutcracker" appeared. He urged early reservations in view of IBT's sell-out record.

The clown went up and said, "Can I have my funniness back?" and he said, "All right."

ADVENTURE IN THE WOODS

By: Esther Cosarz, Third Grade

One day I was walking in the woods and I saw a beautiful house. I wondered what was in the house, so I peeked in the window. Guess what I saw? A witch! I almost screamed. She was making a brew--a magic brew and all of a sudden a frog jumped out and saw me peeking the window. It happened over to the window. The witch ran after it and saw me too. She ran out the door chasing me and shouting, "Trader, trader!" All of a sudden she caught me. I was terrified. She put me in the dungeon and gave me frog guts for dinner, lunch and breakfast. I'll tell you, they were not very good. But, one day I got out. She left the door unlocked. I came home eventually. My parents were worried stiff. I told them of my adventure. They thought I was lying, but I wasn't.

I LOVE FALL

By: Michelle Dymond, Fourth Grade

Fall is so pretty. It is colorful and bright outside. If it could stay fall I would love it! I would carve pumpkins every Halloween! I would rake leaves often, because I have lots of trees at my home. I would rake up leaves and get a friend and jump in them! In fall it is nice to take a long drive out in the country. It's so pretty and fun, and it sure is interesting.

IT'S NEAT TO BE A COLOMBIAN GIRL

By: Laura Hodgson, Fifth Grade

When I was very little I lived in a foreign country. The country was called Colombia and the city was called Bogota. The continent was South America. I still dream of the time I came into the world. Sometimes when it's quiet, I hear Spanish people talking. I remember that it was very dark and very hot! My birthdate was July 1, 1977. I went straight to foster parents. Their names were Nick and Helen. They lived in Bogota, too. They were very nice people. On October 1, 1977, there was a phone call for Qalrid Aroska--That was me! I had just been adopted by Thomas and Sharon Hodgson. On October 17, 1977, I came to America. Now I am in the fifth grade. My teacher's name is Mrs. Stevens. I have many friends. I have an older brother named Mike who is sixteen, and a nine year old sister, Christine. We have a dog named Snowblaze, a parakeet named Cutey, and I have my own parakeet named Twetty Piggy Daddy-Dumpling. Pretty-Bird Hodgson.

When I was in fourth grade, I got my American citizenship. IT'S FUN TO BE AN AMERICAN!

THE FLOOD

By: Jesse Hammett, Fifth Grade

It was so hot that day in Chelsea that you could fry an egg on the sidewalk and the birds could beary fly. People were all mad at each other and the lakes had more people in them than there are grains on the beach. Then all of a sudden the sun started to go behind the clouds and the sky started to darken. Then it started pouring cats and dogs the drops were as big as basketball and the thunder was so loud it knocked over the Chelsea tower and made cracks in the street and cars fell in and lightning was like an army. It zapped everything. The water was a foot high! Now it's two feet high! The next minute it was five feet high after an hour it was fifteen feet and rising. People were on rafts and on top of their houses and swimming and lakes and rivers over flowing. It started going to other states after a week it got to Florida and even China. They started making a giant raft. It was neat. It had bathrooms. It had heating and plumbing. It had a TV. It had a computer and it had a stove. Then one day I decided to get some suba gear and dive down and see what it was like down there and how deep it was. So I got on underwater flashlight and watch and left. It was like an underwater city and it was about 500 feet deep. I drilled a hole and very slowly it drained. The rain stopped and after a while it drained.

Patients Sought For High Blood Pressure Research

John Scheerer, M.D., a new family practitioner with the Territorial Family Medical Center, Dexter, recently received a grant from the McNeil Foundation of the American Academy of Family Practitioners to evaluate the effectiveness of biofeedback aided relaxation as a means of reducing high blood pressure without drug treatment. Dr. Scheerer is seeking patients with high blood pressure for inclusion in the research study.

Biofeedback means the measuring and amplification of any body function, in this case, muscular tension, so that the patient is aware of the function. In several sessions, the patient is taught muscular relaxation with biofeedback and their blood pressure is monitored.

Dr. Scheerer completed his Family Practice Residency in Wilmington, Del. He received his medical degree from the University of Michigan in 1984.

If you, or someone you know, is interested please call (313) 426-3973 for details.

The rate of fatal injuries in metal and nonmetal (noncoal) mining in the first quarter of 1987 was .05 per 200,000 employee hours worked, compared to .04 for the first three months last year and to the record low rate of .03 for all of 1986, the U.S. Department of Labor's Mine Safety and Health Administration reported.

Grief Seminar Offered in Saline

A non-profit group called "New Beginnings" is offering a series starting in January that will give understanding, information, guidance and support for those who are grieving. Anyone who has lost a loved one is invited to participate in the New Beginnings seminar which will meet once a week for six weeks, with an ongoing support group, thereafter.

The organizers explain that one of the most difficult experiences in life is to have lost a loved one by death, divorce, or estrangement. Those who grieve over these losses have strong feelings, such as sadness, anger, guilt, emptiness, hopelessness, and loneliness. While their emotions are on a roller-coaster, they feel ignored and misunderstood at the very time they need understanding.

The seminar will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. Robert Weikert, the founder of New Beginnings. It will focus on the following topics: steps of grief, how grief affects the body, memories, values, how grief affects the total person, and new beginnings.

Larry and Mary Dunham will coordinate the program which will begin Jan. 11 and continue every Monday night from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. at Saline Community Hospital's new Wellness Center.

For more information call the Dunhams at 429-4954 or Joanne at 429-1509.

Diabetes: Blood Glucose Monitoring

By Kathleen Ryburz, RPh, Pharm D
Pharmacy Department
Chelsea Community Hospital

Insulin is a hormone that your body produces to get your energy supply, sugar, inside the cells of your body. People who lose the ability to produce insulin or those who don't make quite enough to supply their needs are classified as diabetic.

When you don't have enough insulin, the concentration of sugar in your blood rises. In a person who does not have diabetes, their body produces enough insulin to maintain their blood sugar concentrations between 70 and 140 mg/dl. Diabetics can use blood glucose monitoring as an aid to achieve and maintain normal blood glucose levels. There are three ways to measure this blood-sugar level. This article will discuss the various methods and their associated costs and benefits.

A physician may draw a sample of blood in his or her office and send this sample to a laboratory. The lab then sends back the concentration of glucose measured. This way of measuring is the most exact. It requires a visit to your physician, takes time to process and is relatively expensive ($6 per test). This is often the way that your doctor uses to determine that you do indeed have diabetes. It is also used to confirm results from the two other ways to measure your blood glucose levels.

Measurements of glucose concentrations in urine or blood are the two methods that diabetics can use to monitor their own blood-sugar levels. Your body eliminates extra sugar into your urine when your blood concentrations of sugar rise above an acceptable level. So by looking for sugar "spilled" into the urine, you can tell if your blood sugar is over an acceptable level. For patients who do not use insulin or those well controlled, the urine test method provides a convenient, inexpensive ($0.07 per test) and painless means to monitor diabetic control.

Home blood-glucose monitoring using reagent strips is the most exact method of self-monitoring. There are two types of strips for visual reading. In the first type, you place a drop of blood on the reagent strip and wait a minute before wiping off the blood. Then after waiting an additional period of time, usually a minute, you compare the color on the strip to the color chart on the side of the bottle containing the strips. With accurate home-blood glucose monitoring, a diabetic is able to directly assess the effects of drug doses, dietary patterns, exercise and illness on their blood glucose concentrations. It is especially useful in unstable patients, in pregnancy, in those patients who have difficulty recognizing low blood sugar symptoms and those with kidney disease. The reagent strips and assorted equipment necessary to complete the test runs about $70 per test.

A second method of blood glucose self-monitoring involves the use of blood reagent strips that can be placed into a meter with a resulting visual (or audio) readout of the blood glucose. The meters currently run $180-$250 each in addition to the $.70 cost per blood test. Purchase of the meters is usually covered by most medical insurance plans. The meters are especially useful if the patient has visual problems or is color blind.

The frequency of blood-glucose testing is determined by the degree of diabetic control. It will range from three times weekly up to four times a day. Keeping good records can provide valuable information for both the patient and his or her physician. Knowing how your blood-glucose levels are affected by everyday activities can really motivate you to maintain good health.
