CLEARING WORK has begun on the Quiet Creek Condominium project just north of Lanewood at the northern edge of the village. The project will have only about half as many units as Bridgetown Condominiums on the southern end of town but the units will be considerably more expensive. Chelsea Lumber Co. owner Bob Daniels is the developer of the project.

Village Votes To Bargain With DNR Concerning Landfill Water Clean-up

By Brian Hamilton

Chelsea Village Council voted unanimously last week to negotiate a consent agreement with the Department of Natural Resources concerning the landfill groundwater contamination problem.

In addition, council also voted unanimously to submit a copy of a report by the village's geological consulting engineering firm to the DNR.

Both votes were taken at a special council meeting Tuesday, March 8 that was primarily called to pass the village budget.

Council voted to negotiate the consent agreement after meeting in executive session with Matt Zimmerman, an attorney from the Grand Rapids law firm of Varnum, Riddering, Schmidt & Howlett.

In January DNR asked the village to sign a consent decree that would force the village to take sole responsibility for cleaning up any groundwater contamination. In return, the village would receive its new operating license to begin filling the new portion of the landfill.

The village refused to sign the original consent agreement and began consultations with the Grand Rapids law firm. Village officials and Zimmerman met with the DNR last week to discuss the consent agreement. Last Tuesday's action was the first taken since that meeting.

The geological report, by Solls and Materials Engineers, Inc. of Livonia, concluded that the source of any landfill groundwater contamination, "is most likely the unlined, old landfill" as opposed to the newer, PVC-lined portion.

The report indicated that the groundwater flows east and may be discharging into a wetland area.

The report also said that testing "data is erratic." It called for examination of several of the landfill monitoring wells because "absence of monitoring well construction information... makes the integrity of the wells suspect." The report also questioned the reliability of using gas chromatography as the only testing technique because "gas chromatography is considered unreliable in documenting groundwater contamination." It called for using mass spectrometry as well.

The Grand Rapids law firm also represented Reed City in a similar case involving a landfill. Zimmerman indicated that his firm has been successful in negotiating a consent agreement for Reed City. In addition he said the Chelsea landfill would probably require five years worth of testing on a quarterly basis so that the extent of the problem can be determined.

Zimmerman also said that engineering fees, not legal fees, are likely to be the most expensive part of dealing with the problem. He said that both well drilling and water testing are expensive, with some tests running as high as $2,000 each.

Residential Property Values Experience Dramatic Increase

Chelsea area residential property values rose dramatically during 1987, while values of other property rose only a little or even dropped in some cases.

According to Sylvan Township Supervisor Don Schoenberg, residential property values in his township had the biggest rise in the last eight years. They jumped from $47,581,100 in 1987 to $53,097,250 this year. He said about two-thirds of the increase can be attributed to appreciation.

Schoenberg said new assessment manuals are being used and current assessments more accurately reflect basic square footage cost, although they are probably still too low.

In Lyndon township, residential property values rose from $20,138,750 to $26,632,050, according to township supervisor John Francis. Again, most of the rise is due to appreciation, Francis said.

"We've had people come out and pay outrageous amounts of money for property," Francis said.

Valuations are based, in part, on what prices properties sell for. Schoenberg and Francis agreed that many sales are never reported.

On the other end of the property spectrum, agricultural property values fell slightly in Sylvan township and remained virtually the same in Lyndon, according to the supervisors. Although agricultural property appreciated slightly over-all, they said, some farmland became residential property as new homes were built.

Value of commercial property in Sylvan township rose nearly $1 million to $9,562,300, Schoenberg said. About $750,000 of the rise was in appreciation. He said the increase was "typical" for the township.

Francis said commercial values in Lyndon stayed the same at $72,500.

Industrial property values in Sylvan township rose just $210,275 to $18,442,650. Schoenberg said $140,000 of the rise was in new construction.

Satterthwaite Re-elected President, Trustees Also Get Nod from Voters

Jerry Satterthwaite was elected to a third consecutive term as village president as 421 village residents went to the polls Monday in cold and snowy weather.

Satterthwaite edged trustee Richard Steele 219-180. Eve Wheeler received seven write-in votes.

Steele will return to council to serve out the remaining year of his third term.

Council will have the same make-up for at least the next year as all incumbents were returned to office.

Joe Merkel, owner of Wolverine Food & Spirits, received the highest number of votes with 261 and was returned for his fifth consecutive two-year term. Close behind was Phil Boham, Chelsea Community Hospital's vice-president of human resources, with 251 votes. Gary Bentley, an employee of Chelsea Milling Co., came in third with 227 votes. Boham and Bentley will be serving their second consecutive terms.

Highest among the challengers was former village president Charles Ritter with 135 votes.

Harold Allen, a self-employed real estate investor, received 116 votes.

Richard Rigg, who works at Chrysler Proving Grounds, was sixth with 114 votes.

Katie Chapman, who ran unopposed for village treasurer, had 364 votes. She will serve her second consecutive term.

Vote totals were not immediately available for Anne Merkel and Dan Kaminsky, who ran unopposed for three-year terms on the McKune Memorial Library Board.

Finally, Zoning Inspector Rosemary Harok received one write-in vote for village assessor, which is enough to elect her. The position has been unfilled for several years.

"Obviously I'm glad that people supported me and I'm glad that they had faith in the present council," Satterthwaite said Tuesday morning.

"With the council intact, and now that everyone has at least a year under their belts, we should have a good year and get some things accomplished."

The 421 voters was the heaviest turnout since the 1986 elections when 668 voters went to the polls.

NORTH SCHOOL PRINCIPAL Bill Wescott proved to be a man of his word last Friday afternoon when he spent an hour "rocking and reading" on top of the school building as part of "March is Reading Month." Wescott promised that if 80 percent of the children turned off the television for two nights and read instead, and if they kept a rocking chair going continuously in the cafeteria during the week that he would take his turn reading and rocking as well. Fortunately for Wescott, he was blessed by one of the warmest days of the late winter, although a stiff breeze kept him chilled nonetheless. Wescott read out loud from the book "Where The Sidewalk Ends" by Shel Silverstein. And, of course, he was available for important telephone calls.

$1.3 Million Budget Approved By Council

Chelsea Village Council approved a $1,335,300 general fund budget for the 1988-89 fiscal year at a special meeting last Tuesday, March 8.

For the second year in a row, virtually no one attended the required public hearing and not one comment was made.

"I can remember when this room was packed and (the people) were angry," said Village President Jerry Satterthwaite before closing the public hearing.

Council approved the budget unanimously although trustees Gary Bentley and Phil Boham were not present.

"Once again I think Fritz (Weber, village manager) has done his usual good job with the budget," Satterthwaite said.

The budget is 21 percent higher ($230,000) than last year, with most of the rise coming in the "other activities" category. That category, which rose $165,400 (over amended budget figures for 1987-88), includes debt retirement for $880,000 in wastewater treatment plant bonds and contingency money for landfill expenses associated with solving the licensing and groundwater pollution problems.

The second greatest increase, $23,600, was in the public works budget of $252,500, the second largest planned expenditure.

Most of the remaining anticipated expenditures are approximately the same as in the 1987-88 budget.

Four Bicycles Stolen Within Two Days

Four 20-inch bicycles were stolen from village residents on Tuesday, March 8 and Wednesday, March 9.

The bicycles were all dirt-bike style bicycles, made for riding off-road.

On March 8 one bicycle was taken from Beach Middle school and another from a Sycamore St. residence. Police said the bicycle taken from the school was locked with a combination lock and chain. It was a black DT Dyno-Comp and was valued at $184.

The bike stolen from Sycamore St. was a silver-framed "Mongoose."

On March 9 bicycles were stolen from Washington St. and Flanders St. residences. A turquoise and white Raleigh brand was taken from the Washington St.-Madison St. area. Another white-framed Raleigh model was taken from the Flanders St. home.

GIRL SCOUT COOKIES arrived on the local scene last week to fill advance orders of 22,524 boxes. In addition, girls will be selling more cookies in other special sales. For most of Friday, Girls Scouts and their leaders from the 19 troops in the Chelsea cluster picked up the cookies. Most popular cookie was thin mints, followed by carmel delites, peanut butter patties, short bread, peanut butter sandwiches and lemon patties.

Senate Report Claims Michigan Economy in Decline

Michigan's four-year era of recovery and expansion is over and the state is now in a cycle of decline, a Senate Republican-sponsored study concludes.

The study, written by economist Gene W. Heck, reviewed job and income trends, diversification, state strategies and recommendations for improving economic development in Michigan.

Senate Majority Leader John Engler (R-Mt. Pleasant) said the report "will serve as an excellent resource in the Senate and a blueprint for future business-related legislation."

But Lou Glazer, deputy director for the Department of Commerce, disputed the predictions of a state in economic decline. "If you look at independent studies done since Governor Blanchard started, they all indicate we're one of the national leaders. Michigan's comeback was real from 1983 to 1987," he said.

Many of the recommendations reinforce Republican proposals regarding the state's business climate, including: eliminating abatements under the Plant Rehabilitation and Industrial Development District Act of 1974; repealing the personal property tax on business; removing worker's and unemployment compensation costs from the Single Business Tax base; upgrading the state's current federal research and development grantsmanship initiatives; re-analyzing the state's present package of costly preferential financial and tax incentives; and creating a legislative "Job Development Committee" to study and improve the state's current economic development strategies.

Heck said Michigan's development strategy falls short in three ways: it is too narrowly focused in its complex manufacturing goals; it neglects service sector development almost entirely; and it underestimates the impact of governmental policy costs as impediments to state economic expansion.

The report contends the Michigan's 1979-86 recovery was one of the weakest experienced by Michigan's economy in this century, and that by last October, the state's wage and salary work force had recovered to only 87.5 percent of its 1978 pre-recessionary level.

D.S.S., Courts to Automate Child Support Services
The Department of Social Services and the State Court Administrator's office announced the creation of a computerized child support enforcement system to facilitate support collections.

Social Services Director C. Patrick Babcock said the $22 million system, 90 percent supported with federal funds, will be installed over the next three years.

The primary goal of the system, he said, is to increase the collection of support payments made on behalf of both AFDC and non-AFDC families through the Friend of the Court.

Court Administrator Robert Payant said the automated system will reduce over-all administrative costs for Friend of the Court, prosecutors and DSS child support offices.

The system will keep records of court orders, generate billings, keep records of payments and automatically produce the legal documents required for the support enforcement process.

Solomon To Convene Group To Study Prison Needs

Management and Budget Director Shelby Solomon announced recently he is convening an interagency group to study short- and long-term prison needs in light of new Department of Corrections projections that at least four more prisons must be built in addition to those already approved.

Solomon said he is concerned about the budget implications of operating the system that for several years has been on a path of unabated growth.

"I don't think we can simply keep moving along putting more and more people in prison, requiring longer sentences and stiffer sentences without recognizing the budget implications. We need a coherent corrections policy and the bottom line still needs to be keeping dangerous people off the street," Solomon said.

Corrections Deputy Director William Kime said new projections show at least four more prisons with 2,200 beds must be built, at a projected cost of $180 million.

Current plans would expand the system's capacity to 25,239 by mid-1990, but projections indicate bed space will be needed for about 27,000.

Over 22,000 prisoners are now housed in various institutions, about 1,976 over capacity.

Solomon said he wants representatives of his department, the governor, corrections and other criminal justice agencies to study the situation. "We need to take a very hard look at where this is going," he said.

He said he not only wants accurate projections, but also wants to review possible alternatives to building new prisons. He said the study, which he hopes could be completed within 45 days, needs to look at immediate concerns and the ramifications of current policy.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I've seen some mountains, one sea and a few tall buildings, but I ain't never been anywhere to speak of. Even during my short state side Army hitch I didn't git off the post much, and being on a Army base is like staying at the Holiday Inn, onct you're inside you can be anywhere. I never got bit by the wandering bug, so I allus figured where I was was pritty much like everywhere else.

However, Zeke Grubb got my attention along with the rest of the fellers Saturday night at the country store with his report on South Pole tours. Zeke had saw where folks with more money than sense are bored with going over the North Pole in a warm airplane, now they're paying up to $35,000 a head to see the very bottom of the world from the ice up. Zeke said these trips must be worked up by the same outfit that recent was booking folks fer a cruise on the Persian Gulf. Zeke said he ain't lost a thing in the Gulf or at the Pole, and he ain't in a mood to go help anybody else look.

Practical speaking, declared Zeke, you got to ask why folks will pay good money to be scared stiff and froze stiff. It's been in all the papers, Zeke said, people are shooting people all over the Middle East, and they ain't particular about picking friends from foes. And if you know anything about the South Pole from up here, he went on, you know it's to cold fer anything else about it to make any difference.

The fellers were general agreed with Zeke, but Clem Webster said he could see where gitting there would be most of the fun, and boring people by telling em about it would be the rest. But people is what travel is about, meeting em and learning from em. Fer instant, Clem said, he has been reading about Australia's 200th birthday party, and he is full convinced those folks don't take themselves so serious they fergit how to be friends and have fun. Furthermore, Clem said, from what he can read they're living their own good lives without running to Washington to pick up the tab.

Clem's last word on that subject got a rise out of Bug Hookum. He said he has been trying to read behind most of the candidates out beating the bushes, and he's trying to find some common ground fer em to stand on. He said he can't build a platform for any party, but he's got a pritty solid plank fer all of em. That is, to git off the tired old horse about paying the bills fer the world while fighting the Federal deficit by cutting services back home. Just recent, Bug went on, ever Post Office in the country was ordered to cut back hours and services in order to reduce pay to postal workers. So far as he's heard, Bug said, there's been no talk of Graham, Rudman, Hollings or anybody else in Washington cutting back on anything we give to other countries. When we ain't fergiving Brazil billions in debts we're giving England, France the other well-off countries billions so they won't run up the kind of debt we got, was Bug's words.

As usual, Ed Doolittle said, Bug never learns anything because he understands everthing to quick. How are politicians in this country going to convince us they are trying to cut Federal spending unless they cut it where we'll notice? You shut down the post office one afternoon a week, and you let the interstate potholes grow into swimming holes and you show folks they got to pay the fiddler if they're going to dance, was Ed's words.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

QUOTES

DONALD A. COLE Director

"A Conservative is a man who will not look at the new moon, out of respect for that 'ancient institution,' the old one . . ."

—Jerrold

We have entered well into a world of unprecedented change, a shifting scene which is seeing many changes in thoughts and philosophies. New orders, new concepts and new values are rising to replace many old institutions, upon which many of us consider fondly as the foundation of our very lives.

Until the worth of the new orders in our society have proved or disproved their merits, the Conservative will maintain his trust and confidence in the old, proven concepts, and continue to look at the new with a measure of scepticism. The true Conservative "counts the cost of change," and the radicals might do well to do likewise.

Our sensitivity for the feelings of those we serve, acquired over years of experience, is our guide in helping those who come to us.

NORTH SCHOOL STUDENTS took part in "Reading and Rocking" as part of "March Is Reading Month." Children were asked to keep the rocking chair going for two lunch periods and, in return, their principal would spend an hour rocking on the roof of the school. From left are Heather Pratt, Kristi Lentz, Laura Castleberry, Andrea Gordenier and rocker Kelly McDonald.

'March Is Reading Month' Celebrated by Elementary Schools

North and South Elementary schools are celebrating "March is Reading Month" with various activities throughout the month.

The purpose of the activities is to encourage reading for pleasure and to help make children aware of the importance of reading.

Students at both schools have been decorating book markers which have been distributed at local businesses.

Some of the highlights at North school are "Rocking and Reading," "Read to My Principal Day" and making a giant bookworm by adding segments as children read a certain amount.

South school students are hanging up footprints as they complete a book. Reading contracts have been sent home, and students are trying to achieve a school goal of reading for 2,300 hours in March. Once the goal is reached, students will celebrate with a party.

Other activities at both schools include "Read a T-shirt Day," "Poster Day," "Read and Feed Day," and "Read a Button Day."

Many students at each school are also reading for the Multiple Sclerosis Read-a-Thon.

PTS Gives Money To Many Programs

PTS general membership decided last Monday, March 7 how to allocate $11,900 in funds generated by their fall fundraiser.

The group voted to spend $7,000 on equipment for the lower elementary playground and to upgrade equipment on both playgrounds. In addition, they will purchase balls and jump ropes for each classroom.

Each of 24 teachers will also be given $100 to provide children with rainy day activities, learning aids, stickers, markers, recorders and tapes.

The school will also get a new 25-inch laminator costing $1,000.

Also, $500 will go to the art program, with $250 to be used to purchase a drying rack.

The music program will receive $500 to purchase a compact disc player and discs.

The gym program will also be given $500 to replace mats and purchase new equipment.

Grass Lake Community Choir To Present Cantata

1988 marks the ninth year of the annual Grass Lake Community Cantata. The cantata, "Resurrection Celebration," will be presented Palm Sunday week-end.

The public's response to this musical inspiration necessitates two performances, which will be held at the Grass Lake United Methodist church, 449 E. Michigan Ave., in Grass Lake.

The first performance will be held Saturday, March 26, at 7 p.m. and the second will be on Sunday, March 27, at 3 p.m.

The community choir is comprised of members of Grass Lake area churches, members of the Grass Lake school's junior and senior high choirs, and area residents who love the opportunity to participate in a mass choir.

For the second year, the choir is benefitting from the teaching and directing skills of Joyce VonDielingen. She has a master's degree in music education and is the vocal music director for the Grass Lake school system. She is also remembered for her many performances in local musical productions and with the Clark Lake Players. She has brought to the chorus a rich and varied musical background.

The community cantata is sponsored by the Grass Lake Ministerial Association. A free-will offering will be taken during each performance and proceeds received above expenses will be donated to the Grass Lake school's music program.

Pit Bull Controversy May Impact Agriculture

Michigan livestock could be affected by the current pit bulldog controversy, according to Michigan Farm Bureau legislative counsel Ron Nelson. Legislation drafted to deal with the pit bull issue is so broad-based, Nelson said, that the owner of a dangerous animal, including livestock, could be held liable for injuries caused by the animal.

"Farm Bureau is working to exempt livestock from the dangerous animal category," he said. "We have offered several amendments that have been accepted and incorporated in one of the original bills dealing with the pit bull controversy."

Nelson said the exemption was warranted because there is no history of unprovoked attacks by livestock.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

In December, I considered writing a letter regarding the decision to cancel the Christmas dance at Chelsea High school and decided it was not worth the effort. I have obviously decided to change that opinion and also want to bring up another subject. My intention is not to imply the situations and decisions faced by the school administration are not serious and warrant action. In writing this letter, I realize the risk in being told I am uninformed or out of place. However, my real interest is seeing the students treated fairly.

After recently attending a basketball game, I had to notice the tremendous change in enthusiasm and spirit, along with attendance, that was so apparent several years ago among the students. It was disheartening to see the students in their "new section," and whatever restrictions imposed, almost passively watching the game. I can remember when the gym was packed with students and how much fun they had at the games regardless of the team's record. I am not condoning any actions that might cause injury to someone, but I hate to see the students treated as though they were in a reform school. Realizing it is too late for this season, maybe some thought can go into a plan for next year that can both satisfy the school's guidelines and the student's expression of spirit.

If drinking among the students was the real reason behind cancelling the Christmas dance and other dances, I propose this question. Has a football game (or any money maker) ever been cancelled for this same reason? Due to the revenue it would bring in, probably not. I am sure the drinking, rowdiness, and possible injury to someone, is evident there also and the consequences of a tragedy the same. Of course, cancelling any sporting event would be unfair to the athletes that participate (and the sports program needs the money). Please understand, I am not suggesting that should be the case or anything should be cancelled; I am just making a comparison that the circumstances are very similar. I just find it hard to accept the decision to punish the majority of the student body for the actions of a few. For some reason it doesn't seem logical that the decision makers really believe that cancelling a dance is going to reduce the drinking problem among the students.

The Christmas dance may not have meant that much to the students, and that's fine. But it might be interesting to get their response and feelings regarding these subjects.

Linda Roberts.

Anorectic, Bulimic Support Group To Start in Chelsea

Debbie Osborne of Chelsea is starting an eating disorders support group for anorexia (people suffering from anorexia nervosa), bulimics, and their families. The first meeting will be Monday, March 21 in the Chelsea High School library.

Anoretics eat too little, while bulimics gorge and then get rid of what they have eaten. Osborne explains, "Anorexia and bulimia are illnesses. They are nothing to be ashamed of, nothing to hide, and they can be helped."

Osborne, who has a degree in special education and is currently working on a masters in counseling, became interested in these eating disorders by watching someone she was closely involved with develop the problem. She said "I know the frustration of watching someone go through an eating disorder. Parents need support."

Osbourne discovered that while help is available locally for people who overeat, the nearest people with bulimic and anorectic concerns can find help is on the eastern side of Ann Arbor at the Human Growth Center on Hogback Rd.

Osborne has been working with the Human Growth Center for a little more than a year, learning all she could about anorexia and bulimia. She has learned that both conditions are symptoms of a deeper problem of low self-esteem. In both conditions, those afflicted find it easier to make food their problem than to deal with their real problems.

Both conditions can be life threatening. Anoretics can literally starve to death, while bulimics mess up their insides getting rid of the food by vomiting or using diuretics and laxatives.

The psychology of the two conditions are different. Anoretics aim for perfection, for an orderliness in life. According to Osborne, "They act 'on' life, not 'in' life." Anoretics will deny they are hungry although they are drastically undernourished and will feel superior to others because they have conquered their appetite.

Although anorectic people will deny they have a problem, they are easy to spot because of their skin and bones appearance. On the other hand, bulimics are more aware they have a problem, but they are harder to spot, since they do not always lose weight; in fact, some gain weight.

Some men are victims, but the majority are women, probably because of the prevailing notion that you can never be too slim.

Some anoretics switch to being bulimic or vice versa. Some are cured but then revert. But the condition can be cured and never recur. Bulimics and anoretics are not like alcoholics, who after drying out are still alcoholics.

Osborne says the hardest part of helping bulimics and anoretics is the helpless feeling of realizing the person really has to help themselves. "You see them do harm to themselves, yet you realize that there is not much you can do, it really has to come from the person."

Osborne has been working with kids and parents since she was 15 years old, when she was involved with a club for impaired children. Before starting her own family, she taught special education in Howell for six years.

Osborne, her husband Donald (a fireman with the Ann Arbor department), and two sons, ages seven and four, have lived in Chelsea for four years. Osborne decided to stay home while her children were little, but remained active by babysitting and also by tutoring at the learning center.

This year she has been substituting in the Chelsea schools. Now that her youngest is almost five, she is planning to return to work in the fall.

Osborne does not know how many will join her group. She has sent out notices via local newspapers and also through school nurses and counseling clinics to people in Dexter, Manchester, Stockbridge, and Grass Lake.

Osborne has set the group up as a non-profit organization. There will be no dues, just donations for materials. The group will be a support group, not a therapy group, but those already in therapy can use it as a supplement. It is open both to anoretics and bulimics and to their relatives or people concerned about them.

Osbourne envisions the group as flexible, going whatever direction the people involved wish. She has access to a lot of resource materials such as films, speakers, publications, and books.

Osborne intends that the group should continue meeting the third Monday of the month in the high school library through the end of the school year. After that they may switch, either to the hospital or to an outdoor location.

For anyone wanting to know more about these two conditions, Osborne recommends two books that are both available at the McKune Library, "The Golden Cage" by Hilde Broch and "The Best Little Girl in the World" by Steven Levenkron.

Anyone with questions about the group should call Osborne at 475-2130 after 3 p.m.

Belser Estates Gets Final Approval of Preliminary Plat

The preliminary plat of Belser Estates subdivision was given its final approval by Chelsea Village Council during a special meeting called last Tuesday, March 8.

Belser Estates is the 74-lot development planned for Freer Rd. opposite Mayer Dr. by local builder Charles Belser.

The approval was given with a host of contingencies, many of them considered minor in nature by the village administration.

However, several of the contingencies have to be met before any road construction can begin:

- A phasing plan that is acceptable to the village must be submitted;
- Belser must prove that the Department of Natural Resources has either given its approval of the project or has no jurisdiction;
- Legal documentation of off-site drainage easements must be provided.

A partner in the project, architect James Wong, said Friday that he is not certain how long it will take for the DNR to respond but he hopes that road construction can start in April.

Other contingencies include the following.

- Street names have to be acceptable to all approving agencies including the Chelsea fire and police departments, and the U.S. Post Office.
- The planting of street trees will have to meet the approval of the village engineer.
- The developer will have to petition Washtenaw county for the establishment of a drainage district for the maintenance of the project's detention pond and overflow into the Palmer-Baldwin drain.
- A development agreement will be created which will include provisions for completing all required improvements that haven't been finished by final plat approval.
- Road and curb construction must meet state standards.
- The developer will pay for the installation of the electrical utility system as well as street lighting.
- The developer will hire an electrical consultant to design an electrical system that is acceptable to the village.

Belser suggested that the village consider reworking its subdivision ordinance, saying "everything was so vague, so unclear that we did not have good direction about how to go."

"I'm the first (developer) but I won't be the last," he said. Village President Jerry Satterthwaite said, "I think a lot of zoning is that way."

Belser concluded the meeting by submitting a suggestion for an alternative curb for the subdivision that is closer in nature to the roll curb he had originally proposed but was vetoed by the council. The roll curb was rejected because road maintenance would be too costly in the long run.

Council took no action on the curb.

The 63 coal mining fatalities during 1987 represented a 28 percent decrease from the total of 88 coal mining deaths recorded in 1986. In addition, the rate of fatal injuries per 200,000 employee work-hours declined from .05 in 1986 to .04 in 1987, the U. S. Labor Department's Mine Safety and Health Administration reported.

STACY CARPENTER shows the evolution of a model race car. The cars begin as a piece of basswood with a simple drawing on it. The students, using basic tools and testing techniques, turn the wood into an aerodynamically sound vehicle capable of hurtling down a race track.

Technology Students Ready for Metric 500

Sixty students in the "Exploring Technology" class at Chelsea High school are learning about aerodynamics, automobile design and even the thrill of victory in a high tech version of the Cub Scouts Pinewood Derby.

Students in the classes are building small scale race cars for what is being called the "Metric 500."

Each student begins with a piece of lightweight basswood and essentially comes up with his or her own design. They use tools to create the shape they want and can test the aerodynamic efficiency using a small wind tunnel designed by the class.

They also learn the effects of weight, smoothness of paint finish, and even smoothness of tires on the speed of their vehicles.

The class will culminate in the Metric 500. Students will race each other and the top 16 students will face off in the finals this Friday in the high school gym over the lunch hour. The top five students in two grade categories will be eligible to participate in a state-wide event in Traverse City in May.

"We tried this on an experimental basis last semester," said teacher Jim Tallman.

Robins Reported Frolicking in Area

Two Chelsea bird watchers reported that two fat robins have been seen at their bird feeders over the last week and a half.

Howard Miller, 405 Wilkinson St., reported the first sighting last Tuesday morning, March 8. He sounded surprised and wondered if perhaps the sighting was a fluke or if robins were indeed preparing for an invasion.

However, last Thursday, March 10, Brenda O'Callaghan, 19431 Bush Rd., said she also saw a pair of fat robins. It could not be determined whether or not they were the same birds that appeared at Miller's feeder.

Both advised Chelsea-area residents to be on the look-out and maintain a vigilant watch.

Accidents in the nation's coal mines claimed 63 lives in 1987, the lowest total in more than 100 years, according to preliminary figures released by the U. S. Department of Labor's Mine Safety and Health Administration.

McKUNE MEMORIAL LIBRARY NEW BOOK LIST

The Book and the Brotherhood by Iris Murdoch. The novel begins at a midsummer ball at Oxford, where a group of men and women—friends since university days—have gathered. Years ago the friends bonded together to finance a political and philosophical book. From this meeting a crisis erupts and by the night's end the vindictive ghosts of the past have effectively invaded the present. As the book proceeds it is by turns reflective and violent: passion, hatred, a duel, murder, and a suicide pact disturb the old world of academic reflections.

Winter by Len Deighton. We follow Peter and Paul Winter, sons of a Berlin banker and his American wife, from their sheltered childhood through their bloody coming of age in the zeppelin raids and no-man's-land of the Great War. Watching the Winter brothers pursue their conflicting ideals and ambitions, watching their lives disrupted by political upheaval as Hitler's power becomes absolute and World War II looms and explodes, we penetrate the frightening depths of a Nazi-dominated society.

Deeds by Joseph Amiel. There was nothing in their lives—not love, compatibility, or the force of circumstance—that should have made them marry. Ralph Behr was a charismatic, extravagantly wealthy real estate developer at the center of New York society. Gail Benedict was a fiercely moral and independent-minded woman, a convict's daughter whose life had been a crusade against everything Ralph represented. His passions was to make money; hers to remake the world. Strangers and estranged, the first time they set eyes on each other since childhood is at the wedding neither wants—a wedding that will make her $100 million richer.

China Dawn by Robert L. Duncan. Shanghai of the 1930's, an open city where East and West explode together in a maelstrom of politics, predators, and profits. Into this caldron flees Yuki, a beautiful Japanese girl determined to forge her own life, free from the poverty and restrictions of her peasant family. In Shanghai Yuki meets the two men of her life: Sam Cummings, a young American diplomat searching for clues about his father's death in Shanghai and for solace from his arranged marriage; and Ito, a Japanese aristocrat fighting to reconcile his Western ideas with his family's expectations. These two men find their friendship threatened not only by impending war but by their love for this remarkable woman.

Seven Days to Petrograd by Tom Hyman. Lenin's "sealed train" passage to the Finland Station is well known in history. Harry Bauer, a disaffected American intelligence agent, is summoned from the loose ends of his own state of exile by Winston Churchill. Bauer's mission: to infiltrate the party of revolutionaries aboard the train and kill their leader. As Lenin speeds toward destiny, Bauer finds himself caught in an ever-tightening cinch of danger.

Someone apparently broke a window to gain access to a residence at 207 W. Middle St. but the residents reported that nothing was stolen, according to Chelsea police.

MACK AND JULIA MCCOY, both standing on the left, showed Starr Tiekling, secretary to the assistant warden, and Debbie Douglas, a supervisor at the Waterloo camps, an antique water heater which they brought back from Africa. Also shown in the picture are some of the musical instruments in the McCoy's collection. Mack McCoy is the assistant business manager at Waterloo Camps, while Julia McCoy is in the antique business. Last week the Mc-

Coys shared their collection with the residents at Lake Cassidy Technical School. According to Mack McCoy, the residents were very appreciative of the opportunity to view the artifacts and asked many questions. He said, "It broadened their preconceptions of the world and taught them about African traditions, culture, geography, and politics."

Civic Planning Studied By Organizations

At an early morning meeting in the Chelsea Community Hospital, representatives of leading local organizations convened to do some civic planning.

The meeting was called by the Civic Foundation of Chelsea with Ann Feeney, president, presiding, and there was no fixed agenda. One by one, each representative made a statement of the current goals of their organizations. Some went further to pinpoint viewpoints on unfulfilled needs of the community.

Among the topics presented for discussion was affordable housing for senior citizens, and an invitation to attorneys of the community to assist charitable donors in preparing wills. Also suggested was the launching of a directory of current civic, cultural and social organizations, and a master calendar of coming community events.

Those present felt that the roundtable meeting was constructive and worth repeating several times a year. They hoped that additional organizations will be represented at a second meeting scheduled for July.

The conferees were Mrs. Feeney; Gloria Mitchell, Chelsea Depot Association; Bill Nilan, Chelsea Chamber of Commerce; Cindy Bear, America Business Women's Association; Kathy Frisinger, Chelsea Child Study Club; Paul Frisinger, Downtown Development Association and Mark Stapish, Chelsea Community Fair Board. Other conferees were Jackie Rogers, Chelsea School District; Ruth Smith, Chelsea Senior Citizens; Russ Severn, Lions Club; Betty Severn, Lionesses; Warren Atkinson, Kiwanis Club; Bob Thornton, Rotary Club and Will Connelly, Chelsea Rod and Gun Club.

The number of miles Americans currently put on their cars has more than doubled since 1960 but car travel percentages are shrinking slightly. More than 80 percent of all travel in 1960 was by car while in 1983 that figure slipped to 74 percent. Total miles traveled, however, zoomed from 719 billion to over 1.7 trillion miles, according to the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association.

MACK MCCOY, assistant business manager at Waterloo camps, shows Debbie Douglas, a supervisor at the camps, how the kisti stone, a hard stone found in Kenya, is carved to make tableware. McCoy and his wife Julia spent five years in Africa in Lesotho, Zimbabwe, and Kenya. Mack McCoy worked as a health planner, while Julia McCoy worked for Save the Children. During their time in Africa, they gathered an extensive art collection of carvings, pottery, textiles, instruments, and antiques, a selection of which was on display last week at the Cassidy Lake Technical School. According to McCoy, African art is a new art form. He said, "The artists have no formal training. They are not influenced by western culture."

Dreadnaughts Drop Dogs In District Cage Tourney

Chelsea Bulldog varsity basketball team concluded its season last Thursday with a 62-48 loss to the Dexter Dreadnaughts in the district tournament at Brooklyn Columbia Central High School.

The Bulldogs, who drew a bye in the first rounds, played about as well as they have all season in the first half and led Dexter at half-time, 32-30. At one time they led by seven points.

But as has happened so many times during this season, the roof caved in during the third quarter. Chelsea was 1-14 from the floor for the period and Dexter carried a 46-34 lead into the fourth quarter.

"We played real well in the first half," said Chelsea coach Robin Raymond.

"We had good shot selection and the shots were going in. And I think our defense had Dexter a little frustrated. In the third quarter we did all the same things but the shots didn't go in. Dexter made a couple of quick baskets and got excited."

The major factors in the loss, other than the poor third quarter, were a huge rebounding advantage to the Dreadnaughts (41-26) and the play of junior forward David Schmidt. Schmidt scored 21 points and grabbed 16 rebounds in one of his best performances of the season.

Kevan Flanigan was the brightest spot for Chelsea as "he played without a doubt his best game of the year," Raymond said.

Flanigan scored 15 points on 7-9 shooting from the field and 1-1 shooting from the line. He had a team high nine rebounds and had three assists and three steals.

"When we needed a shot in the first half, Kevan made it," Raymond said.

"He hit three 15-footers and that is not his shot. He ended the season as one of the better players in the league."

No other Bulldog was in double figures although 10 other players scored, including Brian Burg and Kyle Plank, who were up from the junior varsity. Burg was tied for fourth in scoring honors with John Collins with four points. Burg also had six rebounds. Plank made two foul shots late in the game.

Rounding out the scoring were Larry Nix, seven points, Jeff Marshall, six, and Junior Morseau, Chad Starkey, Greg Boughton, Tim Anderson and Phil Thomson with two points each.

"All the kids worked hard," Raymond said.

"Considering how many games we lost, our attitude was absolutely as good as it could be and I couldn't ask for anything more. It was a fun season and I'm not ready for it to end."

Chelsea finished the year with a 3-18 record.

KYLE PLANK drives toward the basket during the closing minutes of Chelsea's district game against Dexter last Thursday. Plank, and his brother, Kerry (left in the background), made their first appearance in a varsity uniform. Kyle scored two points at the free throw line.

Aquatic Club Sponsoring Clinic On Swim Strokes

Chelsea Aquatic Club is sponsoring a swim stroke clinic from April 25 through May 25.

The idea is to help children improve their strokes for better performance.

The clinic will be held on Monday and Wednesday at the Cameron pool. Children 8-and-under will swim from 5-6 p.m. and children 9-and-over will swim from 6-7 p.m.

Cost of the clinic is $15 per child.

For more information contact the Community Education Office at 475-9830.

TYLER LEWIS, diver for the Chelsea Bulldogs, placed seventh at the state meet last week-end at Michigan State University.

Lewis Places 7th, Bulldogs Take 23rd at State Meet

Chelsea Bulldog swim team finished in a three-way tie for 23rd place in the state finals at Michigan State University last Saturday, March 12.

The meet drew 40 teams and Holland Christian took the championship.

Senior diver Tyler Lewis had the highest finish for the Bulldogs, taking seventh place.

"I was very happy for Tyler as that was his highest placing ever in the state meet," said Chelsea diving coach Maryellen Torres.

Top swimmers for Chelsea were the 200-yard medley relay team of Brett Paddock, Matt Doan, Kevin Brock and Von Acker, who finished 12th with a time of 1:45.

"For the amount of preparation we needed to do just to get to the meet, I was satisfied with our performance," said Chelsea coach Mike Keeler.

"The trick is to get to the meet without having to taper to make the qualifying times."

Other participants in the meet were Acker in the 50-yard freestyle, Paddock in the 100-yard backstroke, David Oesterle and Matt Doan in the 100-yard breaststroke, and Charlie Hosner, Wally Schmid, Acker and Doan in the 400-yard freestyle relay.

"With the swimmers we have returning next year and the experience they gained this year, we look like we could have a good season next year," Keeler said.

SPORTS NOTES

BY BRIAN HAMILTON

Basketball, at least Chelsea High school basketball, is over until next year. And none too soon for some.

Chelsea lost for the third time this season to the Dexter Dreadnaughts in the semi-finals of the district basketball tournament. I didn't see the game. And I understand not many Chelsea people other than parents and players did either.

Fan support for the Bulldog basketball team dwindled to almost nothing in the final games. The athletic administration even tried hiring Wayne Welton and Jim Ticknor to referee the final home game, perhaps believing more students would turn out to boo and hiss at their teachers.

That didn't work too well, either.

For the Chelsea student section the final games seemed more like a trip to the morgue to view the dead body.

"Yes officer, that's them. What happened?"

"Actually we're not sure. Some think it might have been a suicide. Others think it was murder. All we know for sure is it didn't take long, and there might have been a struggle involved. We're going to conduct an autopsy."

An autopsy would probably reveal that Chelsea would have been at least a .500 team if they could have played under rules allowing each team to throw out its worst quarter.

How many times were the Bulldogs outscored 15-2 or 20-4 over the course of one quarter? If I had to guess I'd say on average the third quarter was the worst, followed by the first. Also, I'd guess the Bulldogs played most of their good basketball in the fourth quarter, when many games were already well out of reach.

That, among other things, says the Dogs were willing to battle until the end. And that kind of work ethic could make a big difference next season, when the team will have more talent, more experience, and a year under coach Robin Raymond's system.

This is always my favorite time of the sports year. The NCAA basketball tournament is just a few days away and major league baseball is just a few weeks away.

I'm pulling for Temple or Arizona in the tournament, just for the sake of seeing someone different in the final four. The Big 10 teams can all take a walk after the first round as far as I'm concerned.

I'll always pull for the Tigers, but I'm afraid they have only a little better chance of winning the American League east than my Atlanta Braves have of winning the National League west.

Spring sports practices have started. Welton has his baseball team in the gym from 6 to 8 a.m. in their annual spring masochistic rites.

Everyone else seems to be carrying relatively normal hours.

Pat Clarke isn't the kind of guy to get overly excited about his teams. But the new head softball coach is just rarin' to get the season started.

His team has so much pitching and several of the girls appear to be considerably stronger than last year. And any team with Alisha Dorow on it is going to have at least a little fun.

Clarke does have one lament, though. Someone walked off with the team's Animal House cassette soundtrack, which was a staple of practices in years past. I'm sure he would appreciate the donation of another copy.

How good can the softball team be this year? The Bulldogs could have one of their best teams of the decade if they play to their potential and get the right breaks.

Other key questions of the spring sports season also come to mind.

Can Greg Boughton duplicate last year's pitching performance? Is Junior Morseau's leg injury going to hurt his performance behind the plate? Can Larry Nix swing the bat as well as he did last year?

How well will the girls golf team fare in their first season ever?

How many Bulldog distance runners will go to the state track meet? Kasey Anderson, Jennifer Rossi, John Cattell and Paul Hedding are all likely candidates. The spring sports season starts Saturday, April 9. Let's hope there's no snow.

Pledge for Fitness Slated This Saturday

The second annual Pledge for Fitness fundraising effort for Chelsea School District sports programs will take place this Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon at Beach Middle school and Chelsea High school.

District athletes will take part in swimming, biking or running events in an effort to break last year's mark of nearly $6,000.

Athletes will seek monetary pledges from friends, relatives and even total strangers for every lap they swim in the Cameron pool, every 100 yards they run on the high school track, or every lap they complete on a bicycle course.

The money will be divided among each athlete's sports. For example, a basketball and baseball player will have his money divided between those two sports.

Last year athletes raised $4,698.63 for high school sports and $1,280.20 for middle school sports. High school baseball players raised nearly three times as much money as any other sport.

"We seem to have even more enthusiasm this year," said Athletic Director Larry Reed.

Last year Pledge for Fitness replaced the annual candy sale as officials decided it was a better promotion for physical fitness.

Sam Eisenbeiser, Greg Denoyer Slated for Academic All-State Team

Sam Eisenbeiser of Chelsea and Greg Denoyer from Dexter High were selected for Academic All-State honorable mention by the Michigan High School Football Coaches Association (MHSFCA).

The two boys were among the select group of scholar athletes nominated for the outstanding recognition by their high school football coaches, Gene LaFave of Chelsea, and Rich Grannis, Dexter.

Both boys are members of the National Honor Society and four-year veterans on their respective football fields.

Sam Eisenbeiser

Sam's parents are the John Eisenbeisers of Werkner Rd.

During the football season, Sam filled the offensive center position for the Bulldog team, playing his fourth year.

He is actively involved in the forensics program at Chelsea High, and has written for "The Blueprint."

Sam also runs track during the spring and is vice-president of the Charles S. Cameron chapter of the National Honor Society.

He was tapped recently by the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) as one of its "Good Citizen" award recipients.

Named an alternate candidate to the United States Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn., he's still hoping for the opportunity, but will otherwise enroll at Michigan State University, East Lansing.

Greg Denoyer

Greg is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond D. Denoyer, 9734 North Territorial Rd.

The Dreadnaught quarterback, he also plays on the Dexter High baseball team during the spring.

For the past few weeks, Greg and other members of the DHS Drama Club have been busy preparing the musical, "Annie," which will be on the Copeland stage during the period, March 17-20.

Greg is a four-year member of the German Club at the high school, which will be busy hosting German student guests from across the sea during the next couple of weeks.

Greg and his parents made a recent trip to Michigan Technological University at Houghton, where he plans to pursue a chemical engineering curriculum in the fall.

Team Selection, MHSFCA

For the first time in its history, the MHSFCA, through its scholarship committee, chose an Academic All-State football team.

Chuck Agap, Academic All-State chairman, notified each of the boys, "It is my pleasure to inform you that you have been selected to the honorable mention Academic All-State Team for the Michigan High School Football Coaches Association for the 1987 season."

Commending them on their achievements, Agap added, "You have shown excellence in the classroom and on the playing field. You are an example for other football players to follow."

Plans for the team selection were formulated early in 1987, and called for the committee to chose 24 scholar athletes from nominations submitted by the players' high school coaches.

Coaches used the following criteria: 1) the nominating coach had to be a member of the MHSFCA; 2) the player was required to be a senior in the year he was nominated; 3) the player had to be a "starter" during his senior year; 4) the player must have earned a 3.5 over-all grade point average; 5) the player must have scored 22 or higher on the ACT or have attained an equivalent score on the SAT.

Each high school was eligible to nominate one player.

The large number of highly qualified nominations exceeded all expectations, the coaches' association advised.

As a result, the scholarship committee, with the support of the MHSFCA board of directors, said it was pleased to make an additional 24 honorable mention awards, once the first team had been selected.

Of the top 24 scholar-athlete nominations, 12 were ranked number one in their class, six were second, eight were third, and one was fourth.

Seven of the top 24 players had maintained 4.0 grade point averages, 13 had GPA's of 3.9-3.99, four carried GPA's of 3.8-3.89.

ACT scores were amazing. Three nominees scored 32 (99.2 percentile), five scored 31 ((99th percentile), six scored 30 (98th percentile), six scored 29 (97th percentile), and four scored 28 (95th percentile).

Rod & Gun Club Elects Directors

At its 52nd annual meeting, the Chelsea Rod and Gun Club held an election of its 1988 board of directors. Newly elected were Don Bell and Steve Kenewell. Re-elected were Tony Wisniewski and George Carter. Continuing in office were Charley Fredette, Dave Rank, Tom Smith and Al Bondie.

Rick Monier, president, congratulated the new members on their election and thanked old members for their service.

Chelsea Rod and Gun Club is one of the oldest conservation organizations in Michigan. It is housed in a brick clubhouse on Lingane Rd., overlooking the club's own forest of 30,000 trees. The organization is a member of the Michigan United Conservation Clubs and an affiliate of the National Wildlife Association.

SENIOR KELLY STUMP shows a little intensity in the batting cage as she and the Bulldogs prepare to defend their Southeastern Conference softball title this spring. Wet fields and cold weather have made outdoor practice a little difficult.

BRIAN BURG hauls down a rebound during district tournament action at Brooklyn Columbia Central against Dexter last Thursday. Dexter won the game, 62-48, but was later eliminated by Tecumseh. Also on the boards is senior Tim Anderson.

Pioneer Craft Fair Slated Saturday for 15th Year at DHS

Can you believe it! Saturday, March 19, the Dexter Historical Society will present the 15th Pioneer Craft Fair at Dexter High school. From a humble beginning of 26 craftspeople demonstrating their crafts, the fair has grown to more than 50 people participating each year. The fair has become such a high quality show that there are always many more applicants than there is room to accommodate.

Some of the participants of this year's show have been participants each year since its inception. Others have participated for at least 13 of the 15 years. Go down the list of persons involved in this year's show and you will find many who have returned year after year to share their enthusiasm and talents.

Each year the public is presented with new people and new crafts, as well as the eagerly awaited favorites from years past.

Appearing for the first time this year will be Pat Anderson of St. Clair Shores. Anderson will demonstrate the lovely art of Pysanky, which is the dying and designing of colored eggs. This is an ancient art that possibly started in Russia and spread throughout the Slavic countries. These eggs are traded at Easter time as a token of love and faith and are treasured for many years. If you believe this is easy to do, try it just once and you will appreciate the patience, as well as the artistic endeavor involved in finishing one of these lovely items.

Rose Kiley, also of St. Clair Shores will be appearing and will demonstrate the craft of making band boxes. She will demonstrate the cutting, trimming, bending and tacking of the sides of band boxes, an old craft perfected by the Shaker sect.

Craftspeople will be showing how to spin, weave, knit lace, make baskets, tat, hook rugs, as well as many more crafts.

Harriet Beach of Bellaire will again have a booth of pottery and plans a "hands-on" demonstration of pottery making for the children.

Ben Bower is also planning to have children participate in drawing.

As always there will be a bake table loaded with those tempting diet breakers. Be sure to stop and pick up some goodies to take home. Luncheon will again be provided by the Dexter Heritage Guild from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. The menu this year will include knockwurst and kraut on a roll, German potato salad, hot dogs, desserts, and drinks.

Donated for prizes this year will be a corn husk doll by Mary Rush; a wooden train set by the talented Iretons; and a teddy bear by Betty Zabinsky. Tickets will be available during the fair.

Admission will again be $1.50 for adults, 50¢ for grades 1-12. Hours will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Dexter High School on Baker Rd. All proceeds from the fair go toward the maintenance of the Dexter Area Museum.

Radio Club, UAW To Host Tornado Talk

March 20-26 is Tornado Safety Week.

Emergency sirens will be tested every month in Chelsea during tornado season.

In preparation for the season, Chelsea Amateur Radio Club is hosting its 10th Annual Sky Warning Weather Seminar on Tuesday, March 29 at UAW Local 1284 at 7 p.m.

Featured speakers will be Dan Harsh, director of emergency management of Washtenaw county, and Robert Snider, meteorologist for the National Weather Service.

Harsh and Snider will show a film and slides and discuss severe weather conditions, including tornados, and weather forecasting.

The seminar is free and open to the public.

CUB SCOUTS

DEN 10, PACK 455—

The boys in our den are Rodney Carter, Kyle Christensen, Ben Muha, Victor Pitts, and Justin Whitaker. They have been very busy these past few months.

In January they participated in the annual Pinewood Derby held at St. Louis school. All of the boys worked hard building their cars and had a lot of fun racing in the derby.

During February we held our Blue & Gold Banquet. Each den represented a different country. Our den represented Kenya, Africa, by making a poster and centerpiece.

This month the boys are studying "Life in the Future."

They are making papier mache astronaut helmets. We also joined other Wolf dens on a tour of the Michigan Space Center.

The boys are all working hard to earn their Wolf badges and arrow points, which they hope to receive this month.

Laura Christensen, den leader.

Moss related that the purpose of Crossfire is to provide young people with an opportunity to grow in Christ while sharing with others their own age. Moss said, "Whatever we can do to work with a young person to bring them closer to Christ will be done." Moss also related that "issues relevant to a young person today will be met head-on and discussed with Biblical alternatives." North Lake Church Sets Date for 112th Annual Egg Supper

North Lake United Methodist church will be holding its 112th annual Egg Supper on Friday, April 10, from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.

As the old North Lake church moves into its 152nd year, it continues a custom started in the early days and held each Easter season for the last 112 years. back in 1876 the first supper was held at a church member's house. It was held at various members' homes for many years after that. In recent years the event has been held at the church fellowship hall and the public has been invited.

The Chelsea area's oldest church was founded in 1836 by families in the North Lake area. Decedents of these early founding families are members of the church today.

The present church building was constructed in 1866, 10 years before the first Egg Supper.

The Rev. Sondra Willobee invites everyone to stop by for a delicious meal and a visit to the historic church.

Yarows Named Director Of Intensive Care Unit

Steven A. Yarows, M.D., a member of the Chelsea Community Hospital medical staff since 1981, has been appointed medical director of the Hospital's Intensive Care/Cardiac Care Unit.

Dr. Yarows emphasizes the importance of the Intensive Care/Cardiac Care Unit (IC/CCU) by providing expertise in the management of patients with critical care problems. "When medical emergencies develop, we respond and keep patients in a familiar environment, close to their physician and their families."

Dr. Yarows, who is certified by the American Board of Internal Medicine, works with the medical and nursing staff to maintain the highest clinical standards. All IC/CCU nurses are trained in Advanced Cardiac Life Support (ACLS), and two are certified in critical care nursing (CCRN). "We are also fortunate to have subspecialist physicians for consultation who are considered experts in their fields," he adds.

Dr. Yarows is also medical director of the Hospital's Hospice and Respite Programs. A hospice program provides supportive medical and nursing services, including pain management, to terminally ill patients who wish to stay at home. "Our service, offered in co-ordination with Hospice of Washtenaw County, provides temporary inpatient care for difficult pain control or when the family needs a break from care giving," he notes.

The Respite Program helps families who care for an elderly, disabled or chronically ill child or adult in their homes. At the hospital, the nursing staff provides care on a temporary basis to the respite patient to provide the break so often needed by the care giver.

"At times, caregivers need to be away for business or personal reasons, but they often experience a tremendous amount of guilt or concern when they leave a family member behind," he explains. "With the Respite Program, they can get needed time away with the confidence that their loved one will be well cared for."

"There is a very strong value placed on family support in this community," Dr. Yarows adds, "and this program provides a great back-up system to families."

In celebration, new attractions have been scheduled throughout the three-day Festival, requiring expansion to three locations: Southfield Civic Center, Southfield Hilton, and the Detroit Zoo. Shuttle service will be provided between Festival locations.

At the Southfield Civic Center, over 30,000 square feet will be devoted to 60 of the nation's foremost wildlife artists. Festival wildlife paintings, and limited edition prints, carvings, photography, sculptures, and other wildlife work.

While at the Civic Center, meet the 1988 Featured Artist, Bruce Miller of Mound, Minn. Other activities scheduled at the Civic Center include: the Silent Auction of Original Paintings, Decoy Painting contest, Remarque Contest/Silent Auction, People's Choice Award, and demonstrations by nationally acclaimed wildlife artists.

The Southfield Hilton is this year's site for the Michigan Trout and Duck Stamp Contests. Ninety to 150 participants are expected to enter this year's contests sponsored by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

Also featured at the Hilton will be the 1987 and 1988 Federal Duck Stamp Winners, Arthur Anderson and Dan Smith, respectively. A complete set of Federal Duck Stamp prints (from 1936 to 1988) will be displayed in Michigan for the first time, along with prints of the top ten 1988 Federal Duck Stamp entries. Other nationally renowned painters and carvers will be featured at the Hilton.

Making an uncommon winter visit to the Hilton Saturday, April 9, will be Bonzai, a snowy owl and Blackie, a rough-legged hawk. Bonzai and Blackie are both non-returnable birds of prey from the Michigan State University Wildlife Rehabilitation Center.

The dizzy approach to the Arlberg Tunnel is an impressive feat of engineering. Switzerland's northern Alps are resplendent with lakes and snowcapped mountains. All aboard for the journey of a lifetime.

Stan Paulauskas grew up in the Cleveland, O. area. His first love was baseball since his home was next door to the League Park and the "Cleveland Indians."

While traveling for a construction company in a supervisory capacity, Stan developed his love of photography. During this time he visited South America, Puerto Rico and every state of the Union. Gradually, travel and photography became his primary interest.

Stan is particularly motivated to know and understand different cultures in depth. When traveling and getting acquainted with a country, he tries to allow enough time for more than a cursory knowledge. While traveling in the USSR, Stan spent three months in Lithuania alone visiting relatives and absorbing the culture first hand.

Equipped with the desire to know, Stan also possesses the natural ability to communicate through film and narration the secrets he has uncovered. His films are lively, informative and pulse with the life of the people of different countries.

When not traveling, Stan makes his home in Indiantown, Fla.

This is the fifth presentation in this year's series of six Travel and Adventure Film Series.

Chamber of Commerce Optimistic About Chelsea Current Potential Growth

Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce, under the direction of chairman Daniel Murphy, is nearing the completion of its 1988 membership drive. As of Feb. 25 there are 101 businesses or individuals doing business in the Chelsea area, who have shown their support of the Chamber's efforts to maintain its viable economic climate for the benefit of the entire community. In addition, there are many who have pledged to join at the earliest possible time. Murphy's goal is to improve on 1987's 110 members by at least 20%.

The Chamber of Commerce uses the funds raised through memberships to support many activities. The Concerts in the Park series is sponsored by the Chamber with help from local supporters. These special evenings are designed to entertain the residents as well as to attract others to the area who may leave tourist dollars behind or see Chelsea is a good place to live and work.

There is a village map available through the Chamber which is currently being updated to include the three new developments. Through a joint effort with Eastern Michigan University three brochures which describe scenic walking and driving tours for residents and visitors, are free to interested parties and may be found on the counters of local businesses or by calling the Chamber office.

The Chamber office receives hundreds of calls from persons all over the country who wish to have information about moving families or businesses to the area. These people are put in touch with the appropriate people and sent all the requested information the director has available.

Through an arrangement with M-Care and McAuley health plans, members are eligible to join these plans. Chamber sponsored seminars are free to members and their employees. Quarterly "Business After Hours" social gathering held at the hospital, is open to members and guests and is a good place to meet other people doing business in the Chelsea area.

Chamber President William Nilan looks forward to another productive year. "With Chelsea on the verge of tremendous growth the Chamber is in a position to assist area businesses to meet the increasing needs of its present citizens and those who will locate here for business or personal reasons. Chelsea will participate soon in a business retention and expansion survey in conjunction with the Washtenaw Development Council, Eastern Michigan University, Michigan Bell and surrounding communities. The information extracted from this survey will pinpoint precisely where the business' needs are today."

Chelsea School District has appointed an ad hoc committee to examine the present facility use and to determine what the effect the new developments will have on the school district. There will be a representative from the Village Planning Commission in that 15-member group so that all affected will have input into long range plans.

To join the Chamber of Commerce or to contribute ideas the Chamber could follow up on, call the office at 475-1145.

Dohner, Buss Honored As Girl Scout Leaders of the Month By GS Council

Two Chelsea Girl Scout leaders, Jan Dohner and Kathy Buss, were honored as January's "Leaders of the Month," by the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council. Chelsea Troop Services Director Lee Tremper wrote the following article about them which appeared in "The View of the Valley," the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council's newsletter.

"Jan Dohner and Kathy Buss are a perfect working pair when it comes to Junior Girl Scout Troop 144 of Chelsea. The amount of planning time that Jan and Kathy put in is amazing," according to troop committee member Linda Dufels. That respect is what inspires the parents to give great support and to help without hesitation.

"Both Jan and Kathy have lots of Girl Scout experience, coming from homes where their mothers had been leaders. Jan was a girl member for 10 years while Kathy was in Girl Scouts for four years. They have shared the leadership of Troop 144 since 1984 when their daughters joined Girl Scouting in first grade.

"Family support is strong. Jan's husband John, daughter Jocelyn, and son Jeffrey are always eager to help. Jan, who has a master's degree in communication, has written a book on children and science fiction. Three excerpts from the book have been published and Jan continues to submit articles to leading children's magazines.

"Kathy, whose husband Glen and daughters Carrie and Jennifer are very supportive, is an active member of her church choir. Both Jan and Kathy are members of South Elementary School's PTO and participate in the classroom.

"The philosophy of Troop 144 is that the girls learn by doing. Service is also one of Jan and Kathy's priorities. The troop planted trees and tulip bulbs in the school yard, painted a hopscotch game on the playground, and decorated the school with posters and mobiles during Girl Scout Week.

"Earning badges as a troop has been an ideal opportunity for hands-on experiences. The Local Lore badge took the girls to the cemetery where they chose old family names from tombstones and researched the family's history, using records from the Chelsea Historical Society.

"The girls also took a tour of old homes in Chelsea and the leaders provided a camera so that each girl could take a picture of her favorite and then locate it on a map of Chelsea. It was very important to Jan and Kathy that the girls be aware of how Chelsea looked many years ago and they enjoyed the girls' amazement at how much their town has changed.

"Jan and Kathy take special care to encourage the girls in their troop to plan and make decisions, preparing them to accept and meet life's challenges."
