Chelsea Residents Urged To Display Luminaries

Chelsea's Holiday Festival of Lights will be a huge success if the community joins in and displays luminaries like those lining Main St. on Friday evening, Dec. 9. The Chamber of Commerce will make available to anyone who requests them, large, yellow plastic containers that are perfect for this use.

Chelsea Industries, Inc., has been storing these containers for a couple of years and are hoping to vacate that space. The generous offer of 4,000 of these bottles, free to the Festival of Lights Committee was quickly accepted.

The containers were cut open to allow for insertion of a candle and sand in which to secure it.

The photo is of the driveway at the home of a Village resident who has set them out to demonstrate how pretty they look.

The Festival of Lights will need about 1,500 containers to line Main St. and the commercial sections of Park St. and Middle St. The remaining containers will be given to all requesters until the supply is gone.

To put in your request, call the Chamber office and leave a message on the machine with your name, address, phone, and the number you think you could use. (Set them about 10 feet apart.) Orders will be accepted in the strict order of receipt.

Village Council Votes To File Appeal Over Landfill License Denial

By Brian Hamilton

Village of Chelsea apparently believes it will not have a new landfill operating permit by the time a 60-day administrative appeal period ends Dec. 6.

As a result, after executive session last Tuesday, Nov. 15 village council voted to file an administrative appeal. That, according to village president Jerry Satterthwaite, will allow the landfill to stay open until the appeal is heard, which could be more than a year from now.

However, it will not allow the village to begin filling its new lined cell. Consequently, the landfill can only stay open until it's filled to capacity or the village and Department of Natural Resources iron out their differences.

Although Satterthwaite would not give specific information, he said the village needs "clarification" on a couple of issues, which was the reason for filing the appeal.

Lonnie Lee, district supervisor of the DNR Waste Management Division, said Friday that it is likely to be "sometime after" the Thanksgiving holiday before the village's proposal for a landfill tracing system can be completely reviewed and acted upon.

DNR won't issue a new license until the village comes up with a way to monitor the new landfill cell for any leaking that might occur.

Lee said the village has proposed to use bromides as the tracer chemicals. However, he said test wells show bromides already in the groundwater near the new cell, which may cause DNR to reject the village's monitoring plan.

In addition, he said, the village could be required to post a bond for $700,000, or $20,000 per acre of the site that is not considered a "certified closed landfill" by the DNR. None of the landfill is considered certified closed. However, by the end of May the village is supposed to have the old landfill capped to DNR specifications, which would then qualify it to be certified closed.

Another alternative, he said, is to post a $20,000 cash bond, then every six months post an unspecified amount of money until the remaining $680,000 is made up.

Lee said the purpose of the bonding is to provide money to close the landfill if the village fails to close the site properly, monitor it properly, or abandons the site altogether.

Lee said that one of the reasons the village's license application was denied was "inadequate bonding."

Satterthwaite said he does not expect a lengthy delay in the licensing process and hinted the appeal is a way for the village to protect its interests.

In other landfill news, Satterthwaite said the village will hold a meeting for township officials sometime after the first of the year. Purpose of the meeting will be to discuss alternatives for financing the landfill studies, which are projected to cost more than $100,000.

Council Grants Variance To Three Businesses for Occasional Retail Sales

After a well-attended public hearing in which nearby residents expressed their frustrations of living near the Chelsea Industries complex, village council voted 5-1 to grant a temporary variance to allow three businesses in the complex to hold sales in their premises.

The Chelsea Industries complex, which includes the clock tower building and Chelsea Industries annex, formerly called the Rockwell building, is zoned for industrial use only. However, some areas of the clock tower and Rockwell building have been designated for office use as well. None of the area is designated for retail use. In fact, zoning inspector Rosemary Harook stopped at least one sale during the summer.

Owners Jack and Nancy Dunn asked for the variance to allow three tenants—Children's Art, Merkel's Home Furnishings warehouse, and House of Sofas warehouse—to have occasional sales, calling the businesses "very disgruntled renters." When the dust settled, council authorized Children's Art to have two sales over the next six months, and Merkel's and House of Sofas to have one sale each during that time. The sales must be conducted during normal business hours, Monday through Saturday.

The variance did not cover Washtenaw Carpet, a tenant in the clock tower building. A distinction was made between a sales office, such as the carpet business, where no merchandise is actually carried out of the building, and a retail establishment, where customers can take merchandise with them.

Residents of E. North St. were opposed to any kind of retail sales in the former Rockwell parking lot.

"The last time they had sales in the summer time, talk about the place looking like a used car lot," said one man.

"They strung banners across the parking lot. The House of Sofas people sat there with their truck radios blaring."

The temporary variance was seen by village president Jerry Satterthwaite to be a stop-gap measure. Planning consultant Carl Schmitt, Jr. is working on a zoning amendment to change the zoning of the area. His initial proposal, which should be ready for the first council meeting in December, is likely to recommend a mix of zoning areas in the complex, "intended for older buildings that have become functionally obsolete," according to a Schmitt memorandum.

Satterthwaite voted for the temporary variance, although he was one of 49 residents to sign a petition that said, "We, the undersigned, favor retaining Chelsea Industries, Inc. Annex . . . in its industrial and commercial office use classification."

Satterthwaite said he opposes changing the area to a general retail area and signed the petition on that basis.

However, he complimented the Duns on their work on the complex.

"We had a building that was falling down, total disarray, windows broken, grass was growing up, it was a horrendous site," Satterthwaite said.

"Credit the Duns, they did take it over, they are using their own money. (Continued on page six)

United Way Exceeds $77,000 Campaign Goal

Chelsea United Way has exceeded its 1988-89 campaign goal of $77,000. Area residents, schools, businesses and industries have once again joined together in a tremendous show of support for the community.

Among the outstanding accomplishments of the campaign were two organizations, Chelsea Industries and Chelsea Community Hospital.

Chelsea Industries had pledged a five percent increase over their 1987-88 contribution and felt confident they could achieve this goal. Under the leadership of Ron Krane, manager of human resources and purchasing, Chelsea Industries campaign took off, raising a total of $2,500; a 227% increase over last year's contribution. Chelsea Industries has 162 employees.

Chelsea Community Hospital's goal for 1988-89 was $7,000 for its more than 650 employees. As of Nov. 17, the hospital had a total of $11,523 in donations and pledges; an excess of 65% over the goal, and a 45% increase over last year's contribution. Chelsea Community Hospital has continued to grow in numbers and support for the Chelsea United Way campaign. This contribution makes up approximately 15% of the total Chelsea United Way campaign goal.

Donations and pledges continue to be received and the opportunity to contribute is still available.

Chelsea United Way provides funding to 37 member agencies. Through their efforts the quality of life continues to improve for many Chelsea area residents.

WILLARD JOHNSON, president of Chelsea Community Hospital, presents a check to Barbara Rose, president of Chelsea United Way Campaign, for $7,000 on behalf of the hospital's 650 employees.

Ethan Rendell, 3, of E. Summit St. received a mobile cart built for him by Ed Hurst of Grass Lake. Ethan fell and broke his leg last month and may have to spend three months in a body cast. A neighbor, Judy Irwin, told Hurst about the child's plight. Hurst had a work shop with tools and suggested to Judy, "Maybe I could make something that would allow Ethan to lie on his tummy and use his arms to move around." He got in touch with the Rendells, went to their home, measured him, and went to work with his idea.

Texas Recommended
For Supercollider

Michigan apparently lost its bid for the $6 billion federal Superconducting Super Collider project as Texas was named by the U. S. Department of Energy as the recommended site. Officials in September had asserted the two states were the top finalists among seven states still under consideration for the project.

A final environmental impact statement is now to be prepared for the Texas site and President Reagan is to make the final decision to locate the 53-mile-circumference facility before he leaves office in January.

Energy Secretary John Herrington said the Texas site was superior to others, based on geology, regional resources and environmental criteria.

He said the farmland area south of Dallas "clearly" received the highest over-all technical evaluation ratings and exhibited no significant over-all weaknesses.

Governor James J. Blanchard said he was surprised by the announcement, coming within 48 hours of the election, adding he would look to the state's "powerful Congressional delegation" to pursue its meaning and timing.

The governor also asked the DOE to provide a full explanation of its decision to Michigan officials.

Aides said they did not know if Michigan has any options left to consider in trying to win the pure research facility.

Press secretary Tom Scott said the governor wants to make sure the project is managed in the best interests of the country and that the decision was made on the basis of merit, not politics.

He said if a strong perception grows that politics led the decision, Congress will not fund the project.

U. S. Senator Don Riegle said the decision "has a strong smell of White House politics. We and the other five finalist states got a raw deal."

Texas is the voting home of President-elect George Bush and is the home of U. S. Senator Lloyd Bentsen, who was the Democratic vice-presidential candidate, and who said he would do everything he could as Finance Chair to push the project along.

Sen. Vern Ehlers (R-Grand Rapids) said he was puzzled why Texas was selected after scientists had earlier recommended Michigan as the site. "I hope there is no political aspect to it and the secretary only did it to ingratiate himself to George Bush," he said. "I'm sure as can be that George Bush told him not to put it in Texas."

The DOE recommendation means the dismantling of the state Superconducting Super Collider Commission, ending an intensive two-year effort to win the project and the 11,000 construction jobs and 6,300 high-technology permanent jobs it is expected to generate.

Other states which had been under consideration were Arizona, Colorado, Illinois, North Carolina and Tennessee.

Settlement Announced in Drought
Insurance Case

Gov. James Blanchard and Attorney General Frank Kelley recently announced a settlement agreement, subject to approval by the United States District Court for the Southern District of Ohio, among the parties in Chubb Insurance Group drought case.

Under the settlement, 1,100 Michigan farmers will be able to share in over $500 million in benefits under their drought insurance policies purchased from Chubb.

In the proposed settlement, Chubb has agreed to establish a fund of $48.3 million to pay claims of farmers in 10 states who did not receive sufficient rainfall this past summer.

The company will treat all policies as if they were fully in effect and will pay full claims, deducting previously refunded premiums.

During the past year, farmers had taken out drought insurance policies, however, Chubb had never completely processed the policies. The company claimed, therefore, they were not liable for benefit payments.

Chubb claimed their general agent, Good Weather International, had acted without authority when it issued the policies. Chubb returned the premiums to the farmers in an attempt to void the policies.

The settlement provides that Good Weather will contribute $5 million to the fund which will be used to pay farmers who couldn't collect under their policies because they received the required rainfall, but, nevertheless, lost their crops.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

A unanimous reserution come out of the session at the country store Saturday night. The fellers were full agreed that when you put your mind to it you don't have to think far to be thankful in this country, unless you're a turkey. Bug Hookum started on Julius Tomin and the agender moved quick to cover the Thanksgiving waterfront.

Bug said he had saw by the papers recent that Tomin had been out of work eight years until he signed on as philosopher in residence at a bar in England. He talks about all the great Greek thinkers half the time and takes questions from the customers the other half. The first night 700 people thirsty for knowledge showed up and most had to listen outside. Bug said, so what we got here is the British adding a bit of class where it is needed, and Mr. Tomin gitting steady work in the bargin.

Josh Clodfelter kept tradition alive by giving his annual report on the Tower of Pisa. He said we could relax another year because the tower shifted less this year than usual, only 28 thousands of an inch, so we can be thankful it's good for at least another 100 year. While he was bringing good news that touches the lives of ever American, Josh reported a toll-free number, 1-800-937-2000, has been set up to tell folks how much their Social Security benefits will be. With 130 million working and 250,000 calls coming in on the line ever day, Josh said, you ought to be thankful if you're young enough to git through before you retire.

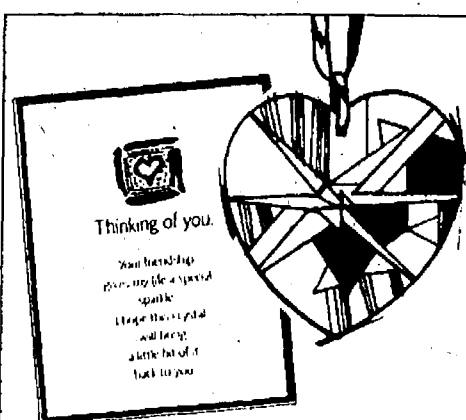

Fer his thanks list, Zeke Grubb led with his 1989 copy of The Old Farmer's Almanac. He said he ain't been gitting this little book all of its 197 years, but nearly, and he allus finds good reading. The new one, fer instans, has a piece on how to make $100,000 legal on a 25 acre farm. The feller that wrote the "10 Commandments" to success said what it takes most is common sense. What common sense tells him about the almanac, Zeke declared, is that it's going in fer more fiction than usual.

Now that the Russians are drinking Pepsi, eating Big Macs, beating us in basketball and coming on strong in baseball, Zeke went on, we ought to be thankful we still can say Thanksgiving is truly American. It's a time when we can think back to the start of the country based on freedom and personal choice, Zeke said, and we can come right up to where we have just gone through another exercise of picking our Government leaders from the courthouse to the White House. This is a time to look fer the silver linings, and we can start by reminding Wendy Jo Westphal of Chelsea and Allen Carl Cole, also of Chelsea, were married before 200 guests Saturday, Aug. 27 at Our Savior Lutheran church, Chelsea. The Rev. Franklin Giebel of Our Savior Lutheran church officiated, with assistance from the Rev. Dr. Gerald Parker of the United Methodist church. Mrs. Donna Gaunt was the organist. Mrs. Linda Cole, mother of the bridegroom, sang "Because" and "The Wedding Prayer." Dale Cole, brother of the bridegroom, sang "My Treasure."

The bride is a graduate of Chelsea High school. She is attending Michigan State University as a horticulture major and is graduating this spring. The bridegroom graduated from Chelsea High school and is also attending MSU as a secondary math education major. He is also graduating this spring.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Willis Westphal of Chelsea. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Cole, also of Chelsea.

The bride wore a long, white taffeta dress with a full train featuring lace ruffles at the hem. The bodice had an illusion sweetheart neckline decorated with schiffli embroidery and full puffed sleeves. She carried a bouquet of peach roses and white carnations.

The maid of honor was Diane Foster of Garden City, friend of the bride. The bridesmaids included Cathy Videto of Jackson, friend of the bride, and Beth Strader of Chelsea, sister of the bridegroom. The junior bridesmaid was Amy Cole of Chelsea, cousin of the bridegroom. They wore peach lace, tea-length dresses featuring long sleeves, dropped waistlines, and full skirts with handkerchief hems.

Best man was Dale Cole of Chelsea, brother of the bridegroom. Groomsmen were Scott Westphal, brother of the bride, and Jim Strader, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, both of Chelsea. They wore grey tuxedos with peach bow ties and cummerbunds.

A buffet-style dinner reception was held at Weber's Inn, Ann Arbor, following the ceremony.

Mrs. Audrey Stolar, aunt of the bridegroom, made and cut the wedding cake which was decorated with a garland of fresh flowers.

The couple took a two-week honeymoon vacation in northern Michigan before returning to their East Lansing home.

CUB SCOUTS

Den 4, Pack 455—
The seven Cub Scouts in Den 4 have been busy working toward their Bobcat and Wolf badges.

Cubs Grant Bollinger, Steve Foster, Joshua Hack, Matt Hand, Dan Kloosterman, Derek Olberg and Danny Schmitt have completed the requirements for their Bobcat badges. They became Bobcats at the November pack meeting.

As a part of the October scouting theme of Citizenship, we made election signs, encouraging voters to vote for the candidates of their choice.

We each brought a parent to our Nov. 3 den meeting to help us build a bluebird house. This project fills a requirement for our Wolf badges.

Otto Convicted of Keeping 'Inoperative' Cars in Back Yard

Wilkinson St. resident Vern Otto has been convicted of keeping his back yard in a big mess.

The case of the Village of Chelsea vs. Vern Otto was heard in Chelsea 14th District Court on Nov. 10. Jurors and Judge Karl Fink made a site inspection before the trial.

Village Zoning Inspector Rosemary Harook was responsible for bringing the case to trial as she responded to complaints from Otto's neighbors, some of whom testified for the village.

Otto acted as his own attorney. According to Harook, Otto had "inoperative cars" and other assorted items stored on the back of his property. The eyesore wasn't so apparent from Wilkinson St. as it was from his neighbors' yards.

Village ordinance requires the materials to be in an enclosed area. Otto is scheduled to be sentenced on Dec. 15.

Social Service Seeks Families Who Need Help

Chelsea Social Service staff and volunteers are preparing for the annual holiday gift giving to the needy.

Perhaps there are families or friends that readers are aware of who will need help. If anyone knows of a family or individual that should be remembered please call Jackie at 475-1925, or on Thursdays at 475-1581.

In 1987 there were 24 families in the Chelsea School District that received holiday help. It is the Agency's goal to again aid every family in the Chelsea School District that is in need.

Five More Prisoners Leave Cassidy Lake

Five more prisoners at Cassidy Lake Technical School walked away from the minimum security prison last week, and three of them said fear of fellow prisoners was the major motivating factor.

Three white men, who were picked up by Chelsea police at a telephone booth near Tower Mart on Main St., said they had been harassed by black inmates and feared for their safety. One man told police he had left a note in his locker explaining why he left.

A Chelsea resident saw the trio and reported them to Chelsea police at 8:20 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 17. Although one man tried to run, all three were captured without a struggle, police reports said.

The captured prisoners included Kurt Patrick Gardner, 18, of Pontiac, who was serving time for passing bad checks; Robert Wade Wilson, 22, of Goodrich, who was serving time for breaking and entering; and Robert Wayne Hader, 22, of Mt. Clemens, who was serving time for conspiracy to commit unarmed robbery.

In another incident on Tuesday, Nov. 15 according to Chelsea police reports, Alan Collier, 20, and Anthony M. Welch, 20, both from Detroit, were reported missing at 10:36 p.m.

Collier, serving 2-15 years for carrying a concealed weapon and a drug violation, is described as black, 6'1", 156 pounds, with black hair and brown eyes. Welch, serving time for car theft, malicious destruction of property, and receiving stolen property, is described as black, 5' 11", with black hair and brown eyes.

Boy Steals Money from Employer

A 16-year-old Manchester boy may face larceny charges after an incident at the Chelsea Big Boy on Tuesday, Nov. 8.

According to Chelsea police, the boy, a restaurant employee, discovered an open safe in the restaurant and took $680 in bills.

The restaurant manager discovered the money was missing and reported it to police.

Circumstances led the manager to suspect the employee. The manager later found the money under the boy's car on top of the muffler in the parking lot.

The boy later admitted to taking the money, police said.

Council Grants Temporary Variance

It's a problem we didn't really have to deal with. I think they are due some relief from some of the stuff they are doing with those two old buildings to try to make a profitable venture."

The only business person to voice an objection was Helen K. Leonard, general manager of The Standard. She detailed parking problems Standard customers and employees encounter in the shared parking lot between the clock tower and the Standard offices.

"We oppose the re-zoning without the parking issue being resolved," she said, "as retail zoning would certainly increase traffic and parking needs."

Satterthwaite said the parking problem is something that would have to be worked out privately between the two businesses.

"I don't think what we're going to do here tonight is going to create any more problems with parking," Satterthwaite said.

"Those are all problems that we get into with re-zoning. Hopefully our consultant will answer those questions."

Jack Dunn told council, "Let us assure you that we are not looking for retail outlets for the clock tower building. There's just no way we're going to put any pure retail outlet in that building."

Trustee Richard Steele cast the only dissenting vote, saying he prefers to consider Schmult's recommendations first. "Voting for the variance were Phil Boham, Gary Bentley, Dennis Hall, Stephanie Kanten, and Satterthwaite. Joe Merkel was not present."

Many area residents used the forum to voice numerous complaints about activities at the annex building, mostly dealing with truck traffic during early morning hours and the way trucks park in the area while waiting to unload. Some complained that trucks ran over their curbs and tore up sod.

Although many of the comments from residents were not pertinent to the subject of granting a temporary variance, they did provide a glimpse of the kind of debate that is likely to occur when any re-zoning of the area is considered.

Harook, a North St. resident, and one of the most vocal critics of allowing warehouse sales in the annex building, said that even if each warehouse tenant were allowed only two sales per year, that could add up to 14 or more during the year. She also said the Duns could decide to sell the complex and "the zoning goes with the building."

She also said a clearer distinction has to be made in the zoning ordinance between a sales office and a retail store.

Satterthwaite said after the meeting that the re-zoning question could take a while to resolve.

"We could come up with a plan that makes the Duns happy but the neighbors object to. We don't know what's going to happen."

In his memo, Schmult indicated the new re-zoning district "will be intended for the central area of the village. The district will involve special approvals, so that the village council will have control over the types of uses that will be permitted in a building and the various parts of a building in which certain uses will be permitted... it will not be designed specifically for the Chelsea Industries site."

"An important element in the review process will be ensuring that neighboring properties, especially residences, as in the Chelsea Industries case, will be adequately protected from external effects of various uses."

SOUTH SCHOOL kindergarteners and third graders got together to create some Thanksgiving art work last week. In addition, the kindergarteners were studying the letter "P", which made paper turkeys that much more fun. Above are Teya Schoening, center, and Meghann Ziegler.

Audition Set for 'Dial M for Murder'

By Russ Ogden
Free Lance Drama Critic
and EMU Professor
'Dial M for Murder' arrived on Broadway the same year as William Inge's 'Picnic' and lost to the Pulitzer winning play in 1953.

However, John Williams as the Detective in 'Dial M for Murder' did win the Broadway Tony award for best supporting actor.

Dexter Community Players took another step toward the finalization of this proposed February offering this week by engaging Leon Agan, Jr., to direct this unusual murder mystery at the Wylie Middle school in Dexter.

According to the newly appointed director Agan, 'The players are thinking of offering their dramatic mystery two successive week-ends rather than a "one week-end only" show.'

Director Agan immediately announced, upon his appointment, auditions for 'Dial M for Murder' at the Wylie Middle school at 2 p.m., Sunday, Dec. 4 and on Monday, 7:30 p.m., Dec. 5.

The basic plot structure requires four men and one woman for the intricate and unusual sequence of events to the final telephone call of this thriller. 'Dial M for Murder' in 1953 was somewhat unusual because the audience knew from the beginning who was to be murdered and who was to do it! The solution therefore was not who committed the act, but when would the parties involved be aware of the act that was sure to follow.

Anyone interested in these demanding roles should come to the auditions immediately following the Thanksgiving holiday. Rehearsals of the selected cast begin the week of auditions.

Leon Agan, Jr., became interested in acting and all of its related skills by making his own 8 millimeter movie of 'Starwars' while in Dexter High school. His interest became so intense, that following his 1980 high school graduation, he went to Eastern Michigan University where he majored in Telecommunications and Film.

His first direct participation in a drama was with 'The Hound of the Baskervilles' in a 1984 production at Dexter High school.

In a telephone conversation Monday evening, Agan stated that they are considering the possibility of having a dessert theatre with formal attire for the opening night. 'But it is just a thought at this point,' Leon added.

To outdo a terrific success with the musical 'South Pacific' last spring, Dexter and surrounding area enthusiasts are invited to audition at Dexter's Wylie Middle school, 2 p.m.,
Sunday, Dec. 4; 7:30 p.m., Monday,
Dec. 5. Rehearsals start on Jan. 8. According to Agan, 'technical staff are desperately needed to work with technical Director Michael Price.

Interested individuals should also attend the open auditions.

Today's Investor

By Thomas E. O'Hara
Chairman, Board of Trustees
National Assoc. of Investors Corp.
& Editor, Better Investing Magazine

Q. I read recently that there are more than 600 companies listed on the New York and American Stock Exchanges offering dividend reinvestment plans. Can you give me a brief explanation of how they work?

A. Many corporations permit share-owners the option of not receiving cash dividends but having those dividends purchase more shares. The plan is usually administered by a bank, brokerage firm or the company itself.

The first step is to buy some shares and have them registered in your name. As a shareowner, you will receive a plan folder and a form which you must sign to authorize the reinvestment of dividends. After you have returned the form, you can sit back and wait until the dividend is paid. Shortly after that time you will receive a statement showing the number of shares purchased for you.
That is repeated every quarter or whenever the dividend is paid.

Most plans also allow additional cash investments, either monthly or quarterly. You can write a check for whatever amount you wish to invest and that will be added to the dividend to purchase more shares. The amounts you can invest varies, but typically the minimum is $25 and the maximum is $1,000 monthly. Of course, you don't have to invest every month although sticking to a plan of regular investing usually brings the best results.

The certificate for the shares is not sent to you until you request it, so the bookkeeping is kept to a minimum. In most of the plans, there are no broker's commissions or administrative charges. The company pays them for you. Even when there is a commission, it is usually quite small.

The dividend reinvestment plans have really been excellent programs for investors who wish to build portfolios over a period of years. It costs little to get started and the compounding effect of reinvesting the dividends helps build values quickly.

Several booklets are available listing companies offering such plans and the information may also be found in the dividend section of the Standard & Poor's reports.

Mr. O'Hara welcomes your questions and comments, but will answer them only through this column.
Readers who send in questions on a general investment subject or on a corporation with broad investor interest and whose questions are used, year's subscription to the investment

Committee To Study WISD Facility Needs

The Washtenaw Intermediate School District (WISD) Board of Education has appointed a citizens committee to help it determine necessary building improvements and the best way to fund them.

During the next three months, the 18-member committee will consider several areas for improvement including the High Point Center (which serves more than 300 medically fragile, handicapped students from around the county) and the Ianni Educational Services building.

'The students at High Point Center today are very different from the students High Point was built to serve,' according to Dick Maxey, director of High Point.

Those students for whom High Point was originally built—trainable mentally impaired students—are now being educated in the local schools. And the students now attending High Point Center are more medically fragile with greater need for temperature control, more access for wheelchairs and gurneys and additional plumbing to meet increased hygiene requirements, according to Maxey.

The committee will also review the space needs at the Ianni Educational Services building which contains a media center, film library, work areas and training rooms for the county's 2,819 teachers and 1,671 support staff.

'The number of teachers and support staff has nearly doubled since this intermediate school district was created 25 years ago. As a result, we don't have adequate work areas to meet their needs,' noted WISD Superintendent Dr. Michael Emlaw.

Committee members are: Dr.
Harry Howard, president, Cleary College; Dr. Gunder Myran, president, Washtenaw Community College; C.
Phillip Kearney, associate dean, School of Education, University of Michigan; Ms. Rosemary Quigley, teacher, Bates Elementary, Dexter schools; Ms. Mary Alice Treadway, teacher, Lincoln Middle Elementary, Lincoln schools; Joseph Piasecki, superintendent, Chelsea schools; Ms.
Sandy Klein, representative, WISD Parent Advisory Committee; Robert Oliver, Media Center director, Ypsilanti schools; Ms. Irene Dernberger, librarian, Houghton Elementary, Saline schools; Linda Deveraux,
president, Parent Staff Organization,
High Point Center; Ms. Barbara Berry, teacher, Ypsilanti High school; Ms. Iona Shea, special education director, Ypsilanti schools; John Williams, teacher, High Point Center;
Jerry Henry, principal, Jensen Elementary, Saline schools; David McDowell, headmaster, Greenhills member, WISD and Chelsea schools; and Clifford Smith, board member,

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

Maybe some of your readers can help me understand the motivation behind the actions of our Chelsea Zoning Board of Appeals. At the meeting of Nov. 15, I believe they were completely inconsistent.

One request was from a couple who wished to erect a white picket fence along a portion of their lot line. The fence would have been in keeping with the character of their house and property. They had approval from the neighbors. The request was denied because "The code is very clear on this issue."

Another request from a couple was for a variance to allow a change in use of an old factory building near many residences. A petition with 49 signatures indicated disapproval by the neighbors. The code is also very clear on this issue, but the variance was approved.

Maybe their goal is to be consistently inconsistent. Is there any other explanation?

Jim Hoffmeyer.

Area Residents Admitted to EMU Honors Program

The following area residents were recently admitted to the Honors Program at Eastern Michigan University:

Lisa McGraw, daughter of Robert and Mary McGraw of Dexter; Amy Fielder, daughter of Robert and Susan Fielder of Manchester; and Kristen Curtis, daughter of Robert and Cynthia Curtis of Whitmore Lake.

The residents are three of the 121 students recently admitted to the Honors Program which currently has more than 780 members. The program provides a challenging alternative curriculum for students with superior academic abilities, according to Eastern Michigan University's news service.

To qualify for admittance to the program, each student is evaluated on his or her grade point average, standardized test scores, personal essays and letters of recommendation from teachers and counselors.

In addition to offering students an alternative program of study, the Honors Program provides smaller classes, early registration, special library privileges, maximum computing access and special social and cultural activities for its members.

Julie Vorus Livens Up 'Bull in a China Shop'

By Russ Ogden
Free Lance Drama Critic
& EMU Professor

How enjoyable life is when community theatre not only presents a comedy, drama, or musical, but happiness is supreme when it turns out to be truly enjoyable as "Bull in a China Shop" did this past week at the Saline High School Auditorium.

Seven ladies, all over 70 years of age or thereabouts, live in the same house. Their entertainment is looking through their binoculars at a healthy 40-year-old homicide detective who lives within their block. In order to get to see him closer, they plan a macabre humorous plot to kill one of their own kind so that he will visit and investigate the murder. They, in fact, do kill one of their own.

But the sergeant visits them only for a short time and tends to ignore them. Thinking they could arouse more interest, they call the local newspaper expecting a newsman to sympathize with their situation, but instead a petite, attractive woman reporter shows up. She is an immediate threat to them!

Julie Vorus, who gave a virtuoso performance in "The Fifth of July" for Ann Arbor Civic, plays the villain, Jane Rogers, and her preview performance on Tuesday evening predicted an outstanding performance on opening night, Friday.

Well, Vorus did come through with surprising comedic talents in this "booby house of ancient women." However, in the final scene she does meet her match with candy infected with arsenic.

The success of Saline Player's "Bull in a China Shop" was indeed enhanced by an outstanding performance of Julie Vorus of Chelsea in an important role in this comedic chuckling venue.

The position of women in higher education has changed strikingly since 1970-71, when men earned three bachelor's degrees for every two earned by women, according to the U. S. Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics. Women earned more bachelor's degrees than men did in 1981-82 and every year thereafter.

PARENT PUBLISHERS for the Write On! program at South and North Elementary schools are pictured above. The parents use a computer to "publish" students' writings each month. Up to four writings from each class are brought to the Enrichment Triad Room each month. The parents type and make copies of the writings, which are then displayed in the school and bound in a notebook. The notebook may be checked out of the library. One writing from each class is later chosen for publication in

The Standard. At the end of the year the writings will be permanently bound. Chelsea civic organizations have contributed $1,120 to fund the program this year. Students Reflect Conservative Mood In Mock Elections

Chelsea High school students overwhelmingly voted for President-Elect George Bush in a mock election held at the high school Monday, Nov. 7.

The mock election, held after several days of informative speeches on the candidates, was designed to imitate real election proceedings as possible, right down to the long lines at the polls. Voting machines were borrowed from Sylvan township.

In the end, the vote of juniors and seniors accurately predicted the trend for the general election—conservative.

According to social studies teacher Jim Bechtelheimer, the conservative trend in CHS mock elections is unprecedented as CHS students in general have always been more liberal than the general electorate.

"This swing of ideals may herald a change of thinking in the upcoming youth," Bechtelheimer said.

"Then again, it may not. Only the next mock election can tell us for sure."

Student vote for president was 64.5 percent for Bush and 32.1 percent for Michael Dukakis.

Republicans carried every position except for U.S. Senate, where incumbent Don Riegle won 47-43 percent over Jim Dunn; county drain commissioner, where Janis Bobrin won; and University of Michigan Regent, where Nellie Varner won.

Chelsea students approved all statewide proposals, including the ban on state-funded abortions, victim's bill of rights, and two bonding issues.

On county proposals, however, students disagreed with the electorate. They voted "yes" on the tax for the courts and "no" on the tax for the parks, just the opposite of the electorate. However, they did approve the Washtenaw Community College millage.

Women earn most of the bachelor's and first professional degrees in home economics, library and archival sciences, education and foreign languages, according to the U.S. Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics. These are fields that women have traditionally dominated.

Bulldogs!

Dogs Advance to Finals Of District Cage Tourney With Win Over Dexter

Chelsea Bulldogs reached the finals of the district basketball tournament by nipping the Dexter Dreadnaughts in Onsted Saturday night, 35-33.

Chelsea was scheduled to play Southeastern Conference rival Tecumseh in the finals last night.

The Bulldogs had to hold back a determined Dexter team, who fell behind by eight points but staged a late comeback with accurate perimeter shooting. The Dreadnaughts were 3-3 from three-point range in the second half.

However, what sealed the game for the Bulldogs was their performance at the foul line. Senior forward Jenni Smith and senior guard Kelley Scott each made a pair of clutch free throws in one-and-one situations going down the stretch. For the night, Chelsea was 11-14 from the line.

Dexter was down by four points with 19 seconds remaining and closed the gap to two points a little too late as Amy Hill scored with two seconds left.

"One of the key things was we changed defenses at the end which seemed to confuse them," said Chelsea coach Rahn Rosentreter.

"We went to a man-to-man. The girls knew they could play a man-to-man without fouling."

Chelsea stayed in a zone defense most of the night and effectively denied Hill, the high-scoring Dexter forward, the ball inside. When she did get in the middle, Smith, Allison Brown or Heather Neibauer were right on top of her.

With an ineffective inside game, Dexter began bombing from the outside and hit a high percentage of their shots.

"Over-all, I didn't think we played as well as we were capable of playing," Rosentreter said.

Brown led the Bulldogs with 11 points, and Neibauer and Smith each scored 10. Kelley Scott and Carrie Flintoft each had two points.

Chelsea was 12-37 from the floor. They had a 19-16 rebound advantage as Brown and Smith each grabbed six.

Rosentreter predicted the keys to last night's game would be the play of Scott and Flintoft at guard, the point production of Neibauer, and how closely the game is called by the officials.

"We can't give them a lot of shots and expect to win the game," Rosentreter said.

Last night's game was the third meeting of the year for the two teams. The Indians were the only team in the league to beat Chelsea this year as they each took a game.

In other action last week, Chelsea won their opening round game against the Saline Hornets on Thursday, 56-24.

After a slow start, Chelsea took command in the second quarter and held a 19-8 lead at half-time.

"We missed a number of easy shots early and they scored off the press," Rosentreter said.

Brown scored six of her 10 points in the first half and "was keeping us in the game," Rosentreter said.

Foul trouble in the second half forced several girls to play out of position. "We were real fortunate to play a weak team in the opening round," Rosentreter said.

Neibauer led the team with 15 points. Brown and Flintoft each scored 10, Smith had seven, Shannon Losey scored six, Scott had four points, and Laura Unterbrink and Mercedes Hammer each scored two points.

Chelsea out-rebounded the Hornets 52-33.

In the final game of the regular season on Tuesday, Chelsea knocked off Manchester, 60-35.

Chelsea had the lead throughout and was never seriously threatened.

"Everyone expected us to win the game," Rosentreter said.

"We were definitely taller and more skilled."

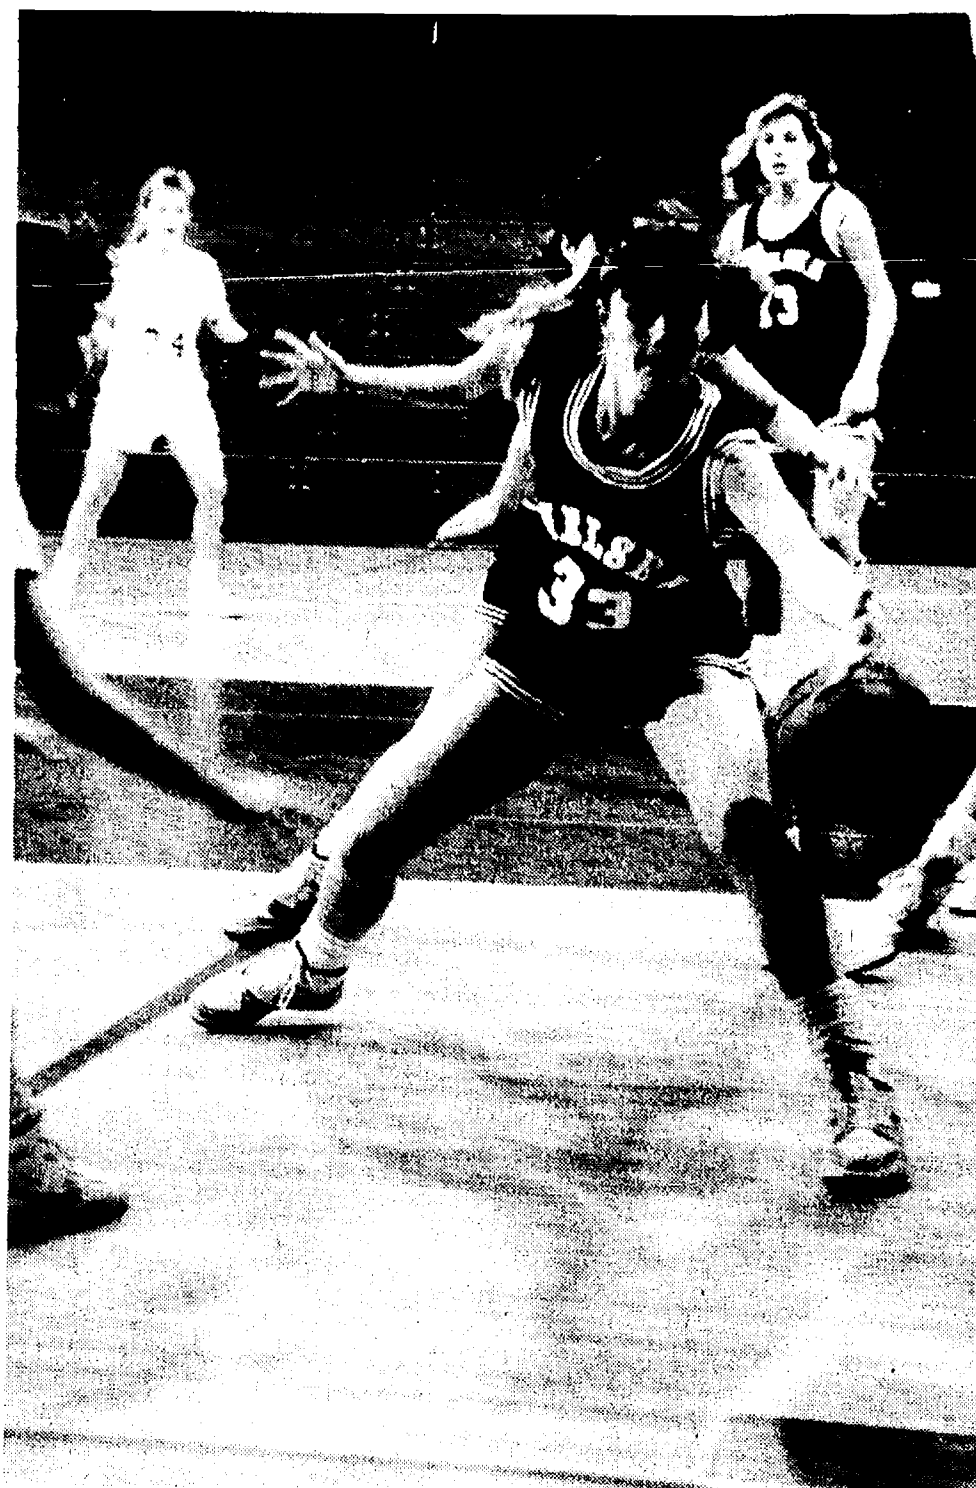

All the Bulldogs had played by the end of the first half.

Brown led the team with 20 points and 11 rebounds. Neibauer scored 14, Smith had 10, Laura Unterbrink scored six in what Rosentreter said was one of her best games, Flintoft, Scharme Petty and Losey each scored two, and Tiffany Moore had one point.

Going into last night's game, Chelsea was 19-2 on the season.

JENNI SMITH gets good position on Dexter's Amy Hill and scores two points for Chelsea. Chelsea won the game, 35-33, to advance to the district finals.

QUICK HANDS enabled Chelsea's Heather Neibauer to swipe a pass from Dexter during second half action at Onsted last Saturday. Chelsea won the game, 35-33, as a Dexter rally fell short in the closing minutes.

JV Cagers End Season By Stomping Dutch

Chelsea junior varsity basketball team finished their season in typical form last Friday against Manchester with another blowout, 75-20.

The Bulldogs finished the year at 18-1, the best record ever for coach Paul Terpstra.

As has been the case so often this season, aggressive defense made the difference.

"Many times in a situation like this, the kids just want to get the season over with," Terpstra said.

"But the kids played hard with a lot of intensity and enthusiasm. They wanted to go out as winners."

Manchester was never really in the game. Chelsea held an 18-4 lead after the first quarter, and a 38-12 lead at half-time.

SPORTS NOTES

BY BRIAN HAMILTON

From a fan's standpoint, Saturday couldn't have been a much better sports day.

Boy, I thought my Buckeyes had the football game with Michigan wrapped up. They should have won. Michigan was lucky to escape with the 34-31 win. John Kolesar is a pretty good player but he isn't quite the superman everyone is making him out to be. He just got lucky.

I can't recall Michigan ever giving up 31 points in a single half, let alone the second half when they are usually dominant.

I wish I had bet against the point spread. I could probably have made enough money to pay off our mortgage.

Here's a tip for those of you, like me, who love to see Michigan lose, or at least love to make a little extra root beer money betting with a rabid Michigan fan. Although I didn't make any bets this year, my system has worked about 95 percent of the time over the last 10 years.

This tip applies only to the big games—OSU, bowl games, stuff like that.

A few days before the big game, take a poll of your die-hard Michigan friends. The surer they are that Michigan is going to win, and win big, the closer the game will be. I don't know exactly why that is, any more than a dowser know why he finds water. But it works. Honest.

And the surer they get, the easier it is to secure excellent odds. That's when they're likely to give you 10 or 12 points, and say things like, "Tony Bales is going to show you what a great running back is."

If you are convinced that there is no doubt in their minds that Michigan will win, they're planning "victory" parties rather than "post-game" parties, that's almost a sure sign the Wolverines will lose. That's the best time to bet because you can win a few bucks, rub it in, and scarf nachos all at the same time.

Yes, Saturday was great. Michigan pulled ahead 20-0 and, right from my own living room I could hear all those Michigan fans thinking 40-0 for a final score.

Then it all started to unravel and I could feel the collective cringing of Southeastern Michigan. I thought I heard handgun shots down the street, but it was just some lost hunter in the Nature Center around the block.

Of course, the joke this year is on us Buckeye fans. Michigan won the Big 10 and is going to the Rose Bowl—usually the granddaddy of the snoozers, not to mention a game they have problems winning. Now that I think about it, maybe the joke is on the Wolverines after all.

The best part about Saturday, though, was watching the Chelsea girls beat Dexter to go to the finals of the district basketball tournament.

It wasn't what you'd call an action-packed game in the tradition of, say, a Rambo movie. It was more like a psychological thriller in the tradition of Hitchcock. There were strange calls by the refs, plays that didn't seem to make sense, occasional violence on the baseline, and always that feeling that something horrible was about to happen. It was all set in a dark, stormy, foggy Onsted, way out in the middle of Irish Hills. There weren't many people in the stands, the gym was dark and small, and they didn't sell bubble gum at the refreshment counter.

The Bulldogs overcame all of that to win their 11th straight game, thanks in big part to the clutch performances of Kelley Scott and Jenni Smith at the foul line late in the fourth quarter. Each girl was in a one-and-one situation and made both her shots.

Chelsea and Tecumseh, the district's two best teams, were in last night's final game. It was the rubber game of the year as well as each team won its home game during the regular season.

As coach Rahn Rosentreter pointed out, the route to the finals was a little different for the Bulldogs. They had to play Saline and Dexter, teams they have beaten twice this season. Tecumseh had to play Onsted and Brooklyn Columbia Central, two teams they hadn't played all year.

If the Bulldogs lost last night, chances are it was due to the over-all team quickness and outside shooting of the Indians. I'm sure Allison Brown, Smith, and Heather Neibauer made it tough to score inside.

Win or lose, I hope Rosentreter doesn't hang it up after this season.

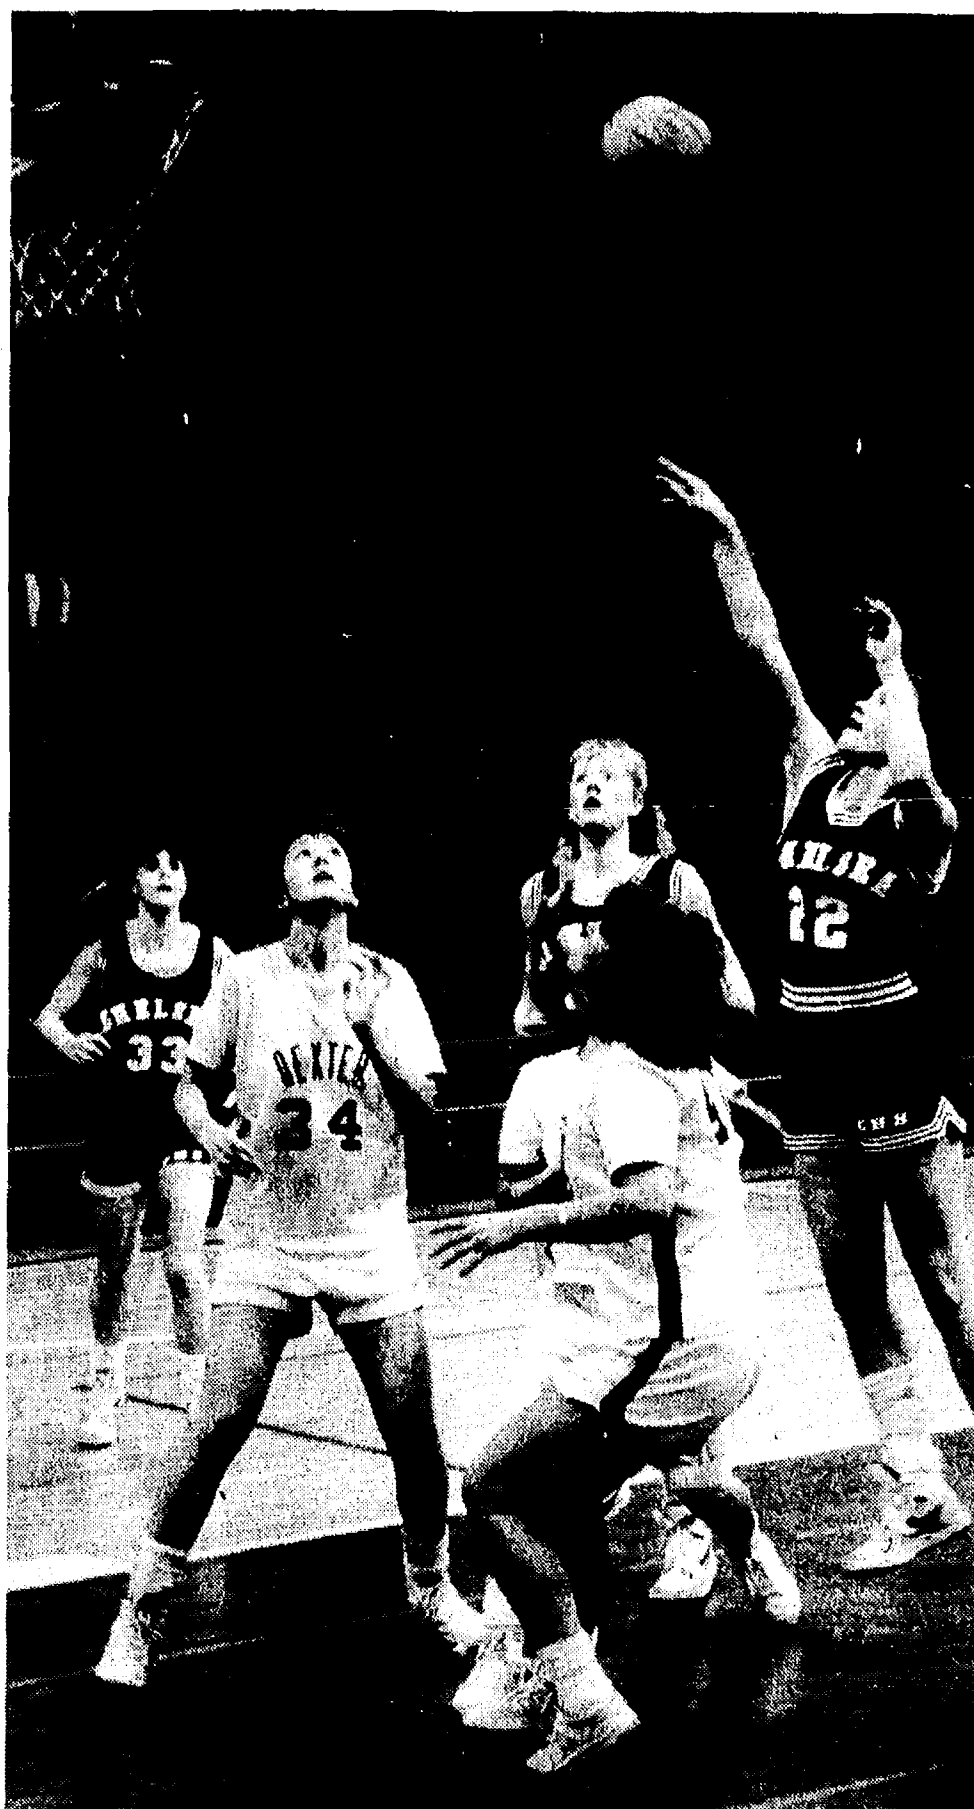

Rockin' Robin Raymond's boys basketball team will give its first official show for the public next Tuesday, Nov. 29 at 7:30 p.m. The occasion is the Blue-Gold game.

Raymond says his team has about 11 guards and two forwards this year, which is probably pretty close to the truth. That means the Dogs are going to have to get by on quickness, especially on defense, and jump shooting. Brian Burg will get his share inside, but probably the hard way.

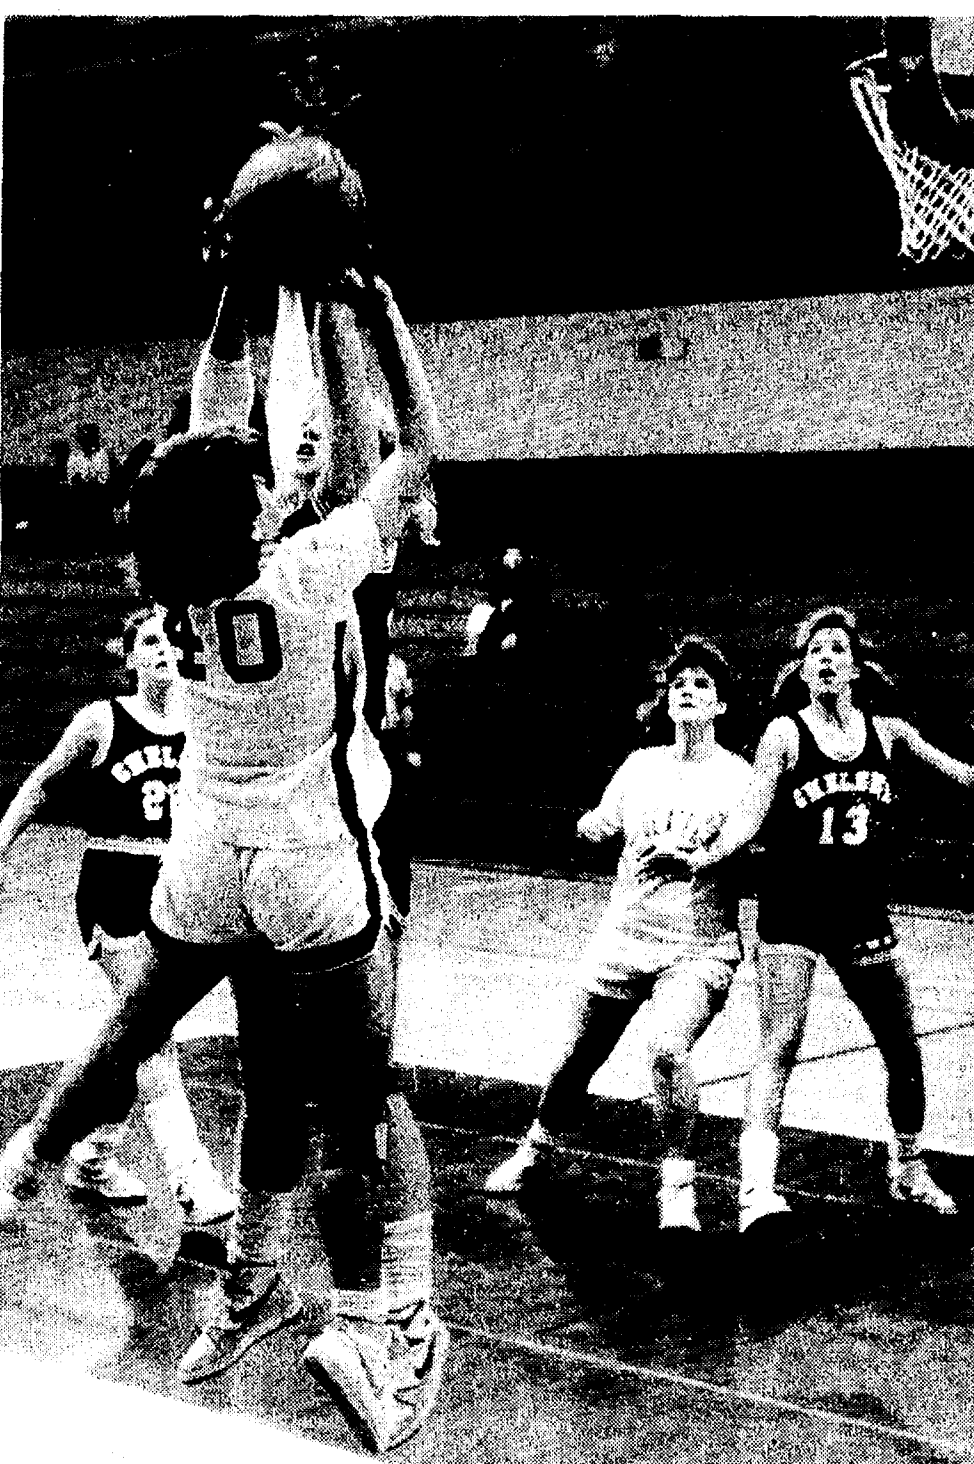

This is the first time in four seasons I've gotten an anonymous letter from a "concerned parent" of a senior before the first game has even been played. Judging by the handwriting, it came from a woman. I have a feeling this mother isn't going to have much hair left by February.

Her basic message, I think, is that the seniors, who've worked hard all summer, should get lots of encouragement (presumably from me), the implication being that they're really going to need it.

How's this for starters—keep working hard, listen to your coach, and don't shoot unless you can make it.

CHELSEA GUARD Carrie Flintoft goes up for her only two points of the night, which helped stall a Dexter rally a little longer. Chelsea won the district semi-final game at Onsted and made an appearance in the finals last night.

ALLISON BROWN plays perfect defense as she goes straight up to block a shot by Dexter's Suzie Kelsey in the second half of last Saturday's district semi-final game at Onsted. Chelsea squeaked by with a two-point win.

Two Area Residents Receive Scholarship

Two area residents were recently awarded scholarships to the Gerald R. Ford Institute for Public Service at Albion College.

Awardees are Kristina D. Steffenson, daughter of Drs. Dan and Carol Steffenson of Dexter, and Julie L. Dukes, daughter of Dr. Patricia J. Dukes of Chelsea. Steffenson and Dukes are both freshmen at Albion college and 1988 graduates of Chelsea High School.

As part of the scholarship program, the students will participate in on-the-job internships at the institute. They will also fill leadership roles in a simulation of city government and take special course work in political science, history and ethics.

Ford Institute will give exceptional students a chance to broaden their education through concentrated study in areas of government and public service, regardless of their major.

So A Chiropractor Is Really A Family Doctor?

Yes.

HERE'S WHY...

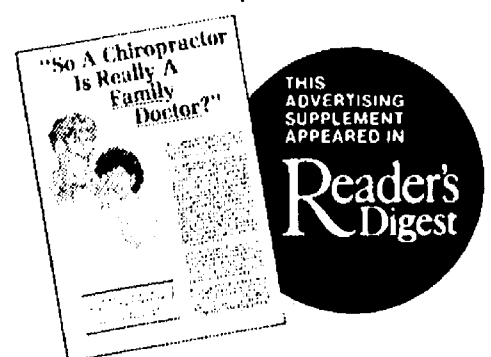

Most people think of doctors of chiropractic as specialists in treating health problems of the back and spine. And they are, for chiropractors have been extremely effective in relieving pain and getting people back on their feet without drugs or surgery.

But doctors of chiropractic do more. They diagnose to determine whether other illnesses may be related to structural problems, which often is the case.

Chiropractors take an interest in your total health and well-being. And if a problem is indicated which requires specialized treatment, the doctor of chiropractic will refer you to the appropriate health specialist.

MATCHING BUCKENDS? Charley Ewers, left, and David Trinkle each shot eight-point bucks from the same blind north of the village last week. Ewers, a Sibley Rd. resident, shot his on opening day, Tuesday, Nov. 15 late in the afternoon. He shot the 180-pound buck from 50 yards. Trinkle shot his buck from 30 yards last Wednesday morning. Both men reported seeing a lot of does before their bucks arrived in the area.

Nature from Your Backdoor

By Glenn R. Dudderar

When most of us think of backyard wildlife, we tend to think of small animals such as squirrels, rabbits, robins and cardinals. If we live near water, we might add ducks and geese to the list. But most of us—in southern lower Michigan, at least—wouldn't ordinarily think of large animals in the backyard, such as bears, bobcats or deer.

But for suburban and rural residents in southern Michigan, having deer in the backyard is becoming as commonplace as it is for residents of northern lower Michigan and the U. P.

Deer frequent these yards because of the food they can find there and, during the firearm season, for sanctuary from hunters.

Backyards offer fallen apples and pears, crabapples, vegetable garden leftovers, seed in bird feeders, and tender twigs of ornamental trees and shrubs. Deer seem to be especially fond of arborvitae and members of the apple family and other fruit trees. In my backyard, the earth under the apple trees toward the back of the yard is criss-crossed with the tracks of deer that have come into the yard to clean up fallen fruits.

During hunting season, deer may use rural and suburban yards as a refuge from hunters. When disturbed and driven out of their usual haunts, deer will move into other areas where they are less likely to be disturbed. They may not stay long in a suburban backyard—maybe just for that part of the day when hunters are most active—or they may bed down there and stay until disturbed by dogs or playing children. A yard with a thick stand of shrubs or a brush-lined creek running through the back of it may provide both food and shelter.

The deer that benefit from this survival strategy are those that have learned to tolerate being around human habitations without panic. When hunting pressure gets heavy, they will move quietly into a backyard thicket, a small wetland between two lawns or an overgrown drainage ditch because they have learned that they won't be disturbed there.

Most hunters who have hunted woodland or cropland on the suburban fringe will have stories to tell of seeing deer jump out of backyards when they are returning from the hunt or hearing stay-at-home spouses or neighbors tell of the big buck that strolled through the yard just after they left.

Sometimes deer seeking refuge in residential areas can't handle being so close to humans and they panic. Spooked this way and then that, they end up running through plate glass windows or out in front of cars in busy downtown areas. The only deer I have ever hit with my car came out of a backyard on the edge of Grand Ledge, after I had stopped watching for deer because we were practically in town.

Deer in the yard are becoming more common, particularly in suburban counties where a lot of former agricultural land is sitting idle between rural subdivisions or where undeveloped flood plains of rivers provide travel lanes from one undeveloped tract to another. Some cities where this occurs include Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo, Midland, and Sterling Heights, Farmington Hills, Bloomfield Hills and other cities in the Detroit metropolitan area.

Some rural and suburban residents set out to attract deer into their yards regularly by feeding them. Others are less than happy to see deer or deer tracks in their yards because of the damage deer can do to landscape ornaments and gardens.

Committee To Study WISD Facility Needs

The Washtenaw Intermediate School District (WISD) Board of Education has appointed a citizens committee to help it determine necessary building improvements and the best way to fund them.

During the next three months, the 18-member committee will consider several areas for improvement including the High Point Center (which serves more than 300 medically fragile, handicapped students from around the county) and the Ianni Educational Services building.

"The students at High Point Center today are very different from the students High Point was built to serve," according to Dick Maxey, director of High Point.

Those students for whom High Point was originally built—trainable mentally impaired students—are now being educated in the local schools. And the students now attending High Point Center are more medically fragile with greater need for temperature control, more access for wheelchairs and gurneys and additional plumbing to meet increased hygiene requirements, according to Maxey.

The committee will also review the space needs at the Ianni Educational Services building which contains a media center, film library, work areas and training rooms for the county's 2,819 teachers and 1,671 support staff.

"The number of teachers and support staff has nearly doubled since this intermediate school district was created 25 years ago. As a result, we don't have adequate work areas to meet their needs," noted WISD Superintendent Dr. Michael Emlaw.

The committee is scheduled to meet several times between now and February to develop its recommendations for the WISD Board.

Committee members are: Dr. Harry Howard, president, Cleary College; Dr. Gunder Myran, president, Washtenaw Community College; C. Philip Kearney, associate dean, School of Education, University of Michigan; Ms. Rosemary Quigley, teacher, Bates Elementary, Dexter schools; Ms. Mary Alice Treadway, teacher, Lincoln Middle Elementary, Lincoln schools; Joseph Piasecki, superintendent, Chelsea schools; Ms. Sandy Klein, representative, WISD Parent Advisory Committee; Robert Oliver, Media Center director, Ypsilanti schools; Ms. Irene Dernerberger, librarian, Houghton Elementary, Saline schools; Linda Deveraux, president, Parent Staff Organization, High Point Center; Ms. Barbara Berry, teacher, Ypsilanti High school; Ms. Iona Shea, special education director, Ypsilanti schools; John Williams, teacher, High Point Center; Jerry Henry, principal, Jensen Elementary, Saline schools; David McDowell, headmaster, Greenhills school; Ms. Anne Comeau, board member, WISD and Chelsea schools; and Clifford Smith, board member, Willow Run schools.

Hospital Names Employees of Year

Chelsea Community Hospital has selected two employees to be honored in its third year of recognizing Employee of the Year. Karen J. Barbour and Bud A. Waters were presented their awards on Friday, Nov. 11 at the annual Employee Awards Banquet.

The award is presented each year to an outstanding employee, nominated by his or her peers, then selected by a committee representing each area of the hospital. The candidates are evaluated on their performance, guest relations and positive contribution to the hospital and community.

Ms. Barbour is an LPN in the Rehabilitation Unit. She has assisted on almost every nursing unit of the hospital. She is currently pursuing her Associates Degree in Nursing at Lansing Community College.

Waters is a member of the Housekeeping Department and has worked throughout the facility in that capacity. Both of these individuals possess a special sense of caring and concern for the work and their fellow employee. This has earned each special recognition.

Spray Painters Hit High School

Vandals using spray paint wrote obscenities and drew pictures of genitals on several buildings at Chelsea High school early last Thursday morning.

The science building, locker building, home economics building, and auditorium building were all painted.

According to assistant superintendent Fred Mills, the damage was discovered before the paint had a chance to dry and was removed relatively easily.

School officials are investigating the incident.

Waterloo Farm Museum Hosts Victorian Christmas Open House

As a good will gesture to show thanks to the public who supports them all year long, the Waterloo Farm Museum will be holding a free Christmas Open House, Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 3-4.

Chairperson Pat Russell is expecting the ninth annual event to attract people who enjoy a flashback to an 1880's Christmas.

The museum will be decorated with Victorian Christmas items dating from 1900 or before. One of the items will be an antique feather tree, which was imported to this country from Germany around the turn of the century.

The four-foot-high tree, made of turkey or goose feathers, is used to decorate the "putz," or fenced-in yard where the holy family resides. Pat Russell explained that the tree was designed to resemble the one that the German Prince, Albert, had in England after marrying a member of the British royalty. Russell said that her children refer to the tree as the "Charley Brown tree" because it has so few branches.

Cider and cookies will be served to the public. Other tempting goodies available will include traditional German Christmas puddings, picture cookies and Lebkuchen, or fruit cookies.

Writes a member of the Waterloo Farm Museum Christmas Committee: "While listening to the lilting tones of the melodians, young and old will bask in the heady aromas coming from the country kitchen wood stove and the tempting goodies on the dining room table. It will truly be a journey into yesteryear, devoid of modern hustle and bustle. Garlands will drape the windows and cored-apple holders will set on the window sills. A live tree will be decked with original ornaments donated to the museum by the great-granddaughter of the farm's original owner, Jacob Reilley. Children's wide eyes will take in the Snow King sled, the red wagon and the china doll under the parlour tree. Visiting with friends and neighbors in the 10-room farmhouse is a relaxing time, just as our forefathers did in years gone by."

On Saturday, Victorian music will be provided by concert harpist Vienna Bordeaux of Jackson. On Sunday, the farm's antique melodians, which is an instrument like a piano, will be played.

The museum gift shop, featuring made-in-Michigan gifts, will be open. Most of the gifts are small and inexpensive items such as hand-carved wood, baskets filled with fragrant pot-pourris, and Christmas decorations. Three lovely prizes will be raffled away at the close of the festivities.

Members of the Christmas Committee include Sue Panoff, Betty Turner, Nancy Kauffman, Shirley Lamkin and Agnes Dikeman.

Under the direction of the Waterloo Historical Society, the farm museum is located three miles northwest of the Village of Waterloo, in the heart of the Waterloo Recreation Area. It may be reached from Jackson or Ann Arbor by exiting I-94 at Clear Lake Rd. (Exit 153) and driving north to the village, where a sign will direct the discerning driver. Free parking is available. There is no admission, but an offering

DNR Is Playing Games, Say Gelman Officials

"The only environment the DNR is interested in is the political environment," Jon Ehrmann of Dexter, chief financial officer for Gelman Sciences, told The Chelsea Standard and Dexter Leader in commenting on the Michigan Department of Natural Resources' announcement of a public hearing on the disputed ruling that ranked Gelman as the second worst polluter in the state. The hearing is set for Nov. 30 at 7 p.m. at Seio Township Hall.

The hearing was directed by Washtenaw Circuit Judge Patrick Conlin after Gelman Sciences complained the DNR had ranked the company as the Number 2 polluter instead of Number 350 which independent engineers claim is the fair rating.

"Though the DNR mailed the hearing notice No. 18, Gelman Sciences did not receive a copy, though all others affected received their notices. This is typical of the DNR," stated William Emhiser, president of Gelman and a 10-year Chelsea resident. "The last person they tell is the person most concerned."

Emhiser declared that Gelman Sciences has long been interested in the environment. According to Emhiser, in early February Gelman Sciences asked the DNR to issue permits so that the company could begin to clean up the wetlands that are part of Gelman's property on Wagner Rd., just west of Ann Arbor. The DNR's response, said Emhiser, "was to have the Attorney General sue us while DNR refused to issue the permits."

"The company has spent millions in investigating the contamination problem and trying to work with the DNR," said finance officer Ehrmann. "Among other things, we submitted several clean-up plans. The DNR's sole involvement in the clean-up attempts has been to nit-pick. Many companies and communities seem to have encountered the same DNR tactic."

Q. I would like to know why you never recommend my company that I have worked for for 26 years. That being AT&T. In 1979, I joined its stock savings plan and have been in it ever since. I was going to use this for my retirement. I could have chosen Guaranteed International Account, but I picked AT&T stock instead.

Was 100% of AT&T stock a bad move or should I have gone 50/50 in 1979? Should I keep my AT&T shares now or change my account over in the Guaranteed International Account? I'm getting concerned because I want to retire in four years, if possible.

A. As you would know, AT&T in effect became a new company in 1984 when the Federal Government forced it to get rid of the regional phone companies. The new AT&T consists of long distance communications systems and the manufacture, sales and service of computer and telecommunications equipment.

There is a general belief among security analysts that AT&T will develop into a very profitable growth company. But it is still too early to tell if that is certain to happen. The company really was a new business with new management on Jan. 1, 1984. Since then the company has been trying to get in a position to begin to produce the growth its proponents believe is there.

Earnings have begun to increase in the last two years and revenues have moved up. Management has said its intention is to increase earnings per share at the rate of 15% a year. It did that in the first quarter of 1988. So far the company has not been able to grow its computer business as it had hoped to do.

Just because I believe diversification is a good idea I would be inclined to divide my retirement about 50/50 between AT&T stock and the Guaranteed International Account. That is a more conservative approach than you have used.

If I were an optimist about the company's future, and particularly if I accepted the fact that management would attain its goal of increasing earnings 15% for each of the next few years, I would take a chance and stay 100% in AT&T stock. By the time you retire, if management attained that goal, earnings would have almost doubled and, if we were having a good stock market, the price of the stock would have done the same, or possibly better.

"BUB", center, a being from another planet, learns a lesson about the sense of touch during the play "Bubylonian Encounter," last Friday at North school. The play, written for children, is about the nature of sexual abuse and how to report it. It is being sponsored at both North and South Elementary school by the Washtenaw Area Council for Children and Beyer Memorial Hospital. Archie, played by John Cox, and Betty, played by Julie Vorus, teach Bub, played by Judith Pebbles, along with volunteers from the student audience, about good touch and bad touch. Bub comes to Earth with no sense of touch at all. Through the play, children learn how to protect their bodies from sexual abuse and learn the three steps of preventing harm to their bodies. The play was performed by members of the Ann Arbor Civic Theater.

NORTH SCHOOL STUDENTS, along with Betty and John, attempt to break alien "Bub" out of her protective shell so she can experience the sense of touch. It was all part of a play about the nature of sexual abuse called "Bubylonian Encounter," performed by members of the Ann Arbor Civic Theater at North school last week. Students at both North and South schools have had a chance to see the play, and a performance was even staged for parents. Through the play, children learn about bad touch and good touch.

Man, 20, Faces Charges Of Assaulting Policeman

Charges are being sought against a 20-year-old Chelsea man for assaulting a police officer in connection with an incident on W. Middle St. last Wednesday, Nov. 16.
 According to Chelsea police, the incident began on Monroe St. where the man got into an argument with a woman and her mother and drove away in the woman's car shortly after 9 p.m.
 Chelsea police accompanied the woman to the man's residence on W. Middle St. where the vehicle was parked. The man came out of his residence with a wrench in his hand and said he was going to take parts off the car that belonged to him.
 When the officer said "no," the man told the officer, "I said a year ago that I was going to kick your ... and I'm going to do it."
 The man's brother held him back, but the attacker escaped and went after the officer. Then the man's brother threw him to the ground and another officer was able to handcuff him.

 After the man was placed in the patrol car, he began kicking the back of the seats.

'Scouting for Food' Project Successful in Chelsea Area

Scouts from Cub Scout Pack 455, Boy Scout Troops 425 and 476 and the Chelsea Fire Dept. Explorers Post have spent the last two week-ends taking part in a nation-wide food drive "Scouting for Food." Along with the assistance of their parents and adult leaders, these Scouts went to more than 1,000 homes in the area to collect food items for those in need.

The Kimballs, who have been particularly active in the Girl Scout program, made available the facilities at Chelsea Glass for the Scouts to use as a base station where route assignments were handed out and food was checked in, sorted, and packaged.

When the final tally was in the Scouts had collected 2,670 food items which were taken to Faith in Action and Chelsea Social Services for local distribution.

"Approximately one out of every three homes that we went to had a bag of food to donate," reported Jack Long.

"We are already working on next year's Scouting for Food effort and hope, with additional publicity and local awareness, to be able to collect foods from at least half of the homes.

"It is obvious that many people went out and shopped for items for this food drive. These were not items that people opened their cupboards and didn't want, but rather, items where they opened their hearts to face people's needs," Long added.

Scouts from Troop 454 also held a food drive, collecting items from members of the Church of Latter Day Saints to add to the total. Collection boxes placed at Schneider's and Kusterer's also filled up quite well.

If you wanted to contribute to Scouting for Food and were not home when the Scouts came by, you may still drop off your foods at the Big Boy Restaurant as part of "Operation Can Do" or at Polly's Market.

Main Street Lighted For Holiday Festival

Luminaries (lighted candles in an opaque container) will light up Main St. from Old US-12 to Dewey St. on Dec. 9 from 6 to 10 p.m.

The Chelsea Holiday Festival of Lights will celebrate the official opening of the holidays, the lighting of the Rotary Club Christmas tree and Chelsea's community spirit.

Everyone is invited to come "up-town" to join in the caroling, stop at the stores to browse and have refreshments and see the Depot's displays. John and Gloria Mitchell have donated the refreshments to be served at the Depot. Laurie Gravelyn, owner of Dayspring Gifts, is arranging for entertainment and Carolyn Chase and the Lioness Club will award ribbons to the homes and stores which are most beautifully decorated.

Mark Cwiek of the Chelsea Rotary Club is in charge of fund-raising in connection with the "Tree of Lights" which will officially kick off the evening at 6 p.m. on the grounds of the Chelsea State Bank branch.

Residents and visitors are encouraged to come and join in the caroling, partake of free refreshments, meet their friends and enjoy the beauty of Main St. aglow with candlelight.
