ONE HUNDRED-EIGHTEENTH YEAR—No. 30

CHELSEA, MICHIGAN, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1988

34 Pages This Week

NO ONE WAS KILLED in two separate accidents just west of Freer Rd. on I-94 last Thursday afternoon when a brief, but heavy snow squall hit the area, made roads treacherous, and blinded motorists. Pictured above are two separate accidents involving five large trucks. The accidents happened within a couple hundred yards of each other. On westbound I-94 (top of photo) a car hauler carrying 10 new Grand Prix automobiles lost control and slid sideways, blocking both lanes of traffic. The driver, Samuel Wright of Missouri was not injured but was issued a speeding citation. A total of 16 cars ended up in the mess and traffic was re-routed back across the median to the Chelsea exit. The westbound pile-up (foreground) involved three semi trucks and several vehicles.

Chelsea Social Services Is Santa to Needy Families

Twenty-three area families will have a little brighter Christmas thanks to the efforts of Chelsea Social Services.

Each year since 1956 the organization has put together boxes of toys, clothing, paper items, fruit and candy for families with children age 13 and under. The packages were distributed last Friday at Sylvan Town Hall.

The organization, however, couldn't survive without the donations by area residents, businesses and churches.

This year candy was donated by the First Congregational church; paper products, such as toilet paper, were given by the Covenant church; the U.S. Marines, Atkinson Chiropractic, and individuals donated toys; and members of St. Mary's Catholic church and St. Paul United Church of Christ once again adopted family members to provide clothes and gifts especially for them. Chelsea Milling Co. donated the boxes and plenty of Jiffy Mix products. Donations of money let Chelsea Social Services purchase fruit through the Kiwanis Club of Chelsea.

Some individuals donated as well. One grandmother, who had purchased an expensive toy "Legions of Power" for her grandson decided to donate the gift rather than take it back when she discovered her grandson already had the toy.

For the fourth consecutive year the number of families in need has dropped. Last year the number was 25, two years ago it was 31, and three years ago it was 38. Some years the number has been as high as 60.

Even with just 23 families, it's not an easy job to put together the custom packages. Clothes and toys have to be sorted and gift-wrapped and marked by code numbers.

Families in need are interviewed by CSS staff, and packages are customized to their wants and needs. Some families are located by referrals of friends or neighbors. Often, though, parents who want a decent Christmas

Village Planning Commission Has Extensive December Agenda

Chelsea Village Planning Commission has an extensive agenda for its regular meeting Tuesday, Dec. 27.

Several site plans are up for approval. Among them are plans for a 5,250-square-foot addition to the Church of the Latter Day Saints on Freer Rd.; a 2,000-square-foot addition to a storage building at Chelsea Community Hospital; the 70-space lot for long-term parking behind the village fire hall proposed by the Downtown Development Authority; a 2,368-square-foot addition to the Tower Mart building on N. Main St.; and a parking lot at Faist-Morrow Buick-Olds-Chevrolet on M-52.

Residents have sent letters of disapproval involving the DDA parking lot and the Tower Mart project.

JACKIE RIETHMILLER, director of Chelsea Social Services, displays one of the many packages the group put together for area needy families this holiday season. New clothes and toys, as well as candy and paper products, were donated by various groups and individuals for 23 area families. The family boxes were distributed last Thursday afternoon at Sylvan Town Hall.

Villages Refuse To Pay Inspection Fees in Right-To-Know Program

Villages of Chelsea and Dexter have joined a long list of Washtenaw county municipalities, public bodies, and governmental units who are refusing to pay inspection fees in the county's year old Right-To-Know program.

In addition, many of those bodies are refusing to allow inspections to take place.

The program, established April 1, 1987, is designed to locate and identify all toxic substances in the county. It is supposed to be completely self-funded by the inspection fees. Reports have indicated the program has a $40,000 deficit due to the non-payment of fees.

However, governmental officials and others are complaining that the program is simply a duplication of state and federal programs and that the county is not living up to all the provisions of the act. In addition, they say the inspection fees are exorbitant.

Chelsea and Dexter, among others, are refusing to pay the fees for a variety of reasons. The county wants $1,600 from the Village of Chelsea and $600 from the Village of Dexter.

At their Dec. 6 meeting, Chelsea Village Council voted not to pay the fee on a motion by trustee Phil Boham. Boham, who is involved in a similar situation at Chelsea Community Hospital, said the hospital has also refused to pay its fee until certain information is provided by the county.

Chelsea School District and Dexter Community Schools have paid their fees of $1,400 and $1,200, respectively.

Chelsea Village President Jerry Satterthwaite and Dexter Village Manager Jim Palenick were among representatives from various organizations who expressed their concerns about the program to the Washtenaw County Board of Commissioners last Thursday afternoon.

The result of the meeting, Satterthwaite said, is the county has decided to postpone any legal action against Chelsea, Dexter and others until after the first of the year as it wants to consult its attorneys.

Chelsea and Dexter are among others who have been threatened with legal action.

One of the bones of contention for both the Village of Chelsea and Chelsea Community Hospital is Article I of the act which says, "substances contained in foods, drugs, cosmetics, tobacco products, and consumer products held for retail sale to the public are exempted from the provisions of this regulation."

However, the county, for example, has asked the village to report its motor oil, and the hospital to report its isopropyl alcohol, both of which can be purchased over the counter.

In addition, the county has not put together its list of toxic substances, as required by the program, Boham said.

"(The hospital) is by no means refusing the county inspection," Boham said.

"But without a list from the county, I can't update what we have," Satterthwaite said his objections to the program go beyond the requirements of the law.

"To me, it's not a right-to-know law, it's an environmental law," Satterthwaite said.

"They're coming in and telling us what we have to do with floor drains and other things. If we comply with what the county wants, is the Department of Natural Resources going to come here and tell us we're not in compliance with their laws?"

"There are a lot of things that have to be worked out. But what really irks me is that, as tight as funds are, they're fooling around with this when it's already being taken care of by the state fire marshal and others. And they're sitting on their hands on the whole solid waste issue, which is a much bigger problem."

Satterthwaite called the program a "boondoggle," which will be "very hard to run."

Village Begins Interviews For New Administrator

Village of Chelsea was scheduled to begin interviewing candidates for the position of village manager/assistant village manager today, according to village president Jerry Satterthwaite.

A committee consisting of Satterthwaite, council members Phil Boham, Richard Steele, and Stephanie Kanten, Chelsea schools assistant superintendent Fred Mills, and Bill Nuffer, president of Book-Crafters, Inc. was set up to handle the interviews.

Boham, who has been pushing to get the hiring process in motion, said Mills and Nuffer had been asked to contribute both their professional expertise and represent the school and business communities.

"Both men have been active in the community and are respected as two solid professionals in their field," Boham said last week.

"Both the schools and businesses work real close with the village and we felt it would be good to get the perspective of the school and business communities."

"And from my standpoint, it's equally important for the candidate to have good people skills. We felt it would be good to get somebody who deals with a lot of people to be on the interviewing committee."

As of Friday, committee members had resumes of three candidates who were scheduled to be interviewed today. One of those candidates is apparently a Chelsea resident. Other candidates will be interviewed as well, Boham said.

The village has started to receive resumes from candidates responding to an advertisement in the Michigan Municipal League publication.

"We've gotten quite a few pretty good candidates," Satterthwaite said. "I imagine it's probably going to take a couple of months to hire someone."

The village is essentially interviewing for the village manager's job, although Fritz Weber still holds that title. However, there has been speculation that Weber, for health reasons, may retire soon. The new person would presumably step into the position.

The job was advertised as an assistant's position. In addition, the village missed the advertising deadline for the October issue of the MML publication and was forced to wait for the joint November-December issue. That has helped to slow the process down.

Due to the open meeting law, final interviews will have to be held in a public forum.

Chelsea Area Churches Celebrate Holiday Season

Chelsea area churches are celebrating Christmas, each in their own ways.

First United Methodist church will have a Christmas Eve service at 7 p.m. Saturday. During family worship the Sunday school children will build a creche with figurines. As the choir sings, and an angel or Mary and Joseph are mentioned, a child will approach the altar with the appropriate figure. In addition, the Chancel Bell Choir and the Tintinnabulators will perform. Christmas Day worship will be at 9:30 a.m.

St. Paul United Church of Christ will have a Christmas Eve Family Candlelight Service at 7:30 p.m. The Midnight Candlelight Service will begin at 11 p.m. The sermon is entitled, "What Would This World Be Like Without Christmas?" A Christmas day family worship begins at 10:30 a.m.

St. Barnabas Episcopal church will have a Christmas Eve Carol Service beginning at 10 p.m., followed by a Christmas Eve Mass. Afterward is the annual Christmas family gathering with food and fellowship.

Chelsea Free Methodist church will hold a Christmas Eve Candlelight Service beginning at 6 p.m. There will be special Christmas music and the message of Christmas, followed by the lighting of candles by everyone

MICHIGAN MIRROR

By Warren M. Hoyt, Secretary, Michigan Press Association

M.E.T. Enrollment Tops 40,000
Gov. James J. Blanchard has announced that 40,344 children have been enrolled in the Michigan Education Trust (MET) program to guarantee future tuition payments at the state's four-year colleges and universities or two-year junior and community colleges.

A total of $265.1 million has been received and deposited in the fund for investment to pay tuitions for the enrollees.

Blanchard, in announcing the final participants during a Detroit press conference, said the initial enrollment period is a "great start" for MET and a "great future" for the children.

"This investment of $265 million marks the establishment of one of the largest education finance programs in the nation. It also represents, we believe, the largest new savings vehicle ever introduced in Michigan," he said.

The 40,344 participants met the Nov. 30 deadline for funding of prepaid tuition plans for children who guaranteed themselves a slot in the program through a week-long application process in August.

A total of 82,495 applications—accompanied by a $25 non-refundable fee—were received during the enrollment week.

Bob Kolt, spokesperson for the Department of Treasury, said an analysis of the contracts has not been completed as all contracts are not physically in-house. He said the savings and loan institutions, which served as processing and collection centers for the contracts, wired late enrollees and funds to accommodate the last-minute rush of contracts.

He said a "very unscientific survey" of one day's contract receipts showed about 70 percent of the purchasers were parents with the other 30 percent grandparents. The age groups were split across the board and most people, in the 90 percent range—were purchasing four-year contracts.

Funding ranged from $1,104 for a newborn to age one for a single year in the community college program to $9,152 for four years at a four-year institution for a person entering his or her sophomore year in high school.

Participants could opt for full or limited benefits under the program. Full benefits will provide the number of credit hours at a public educational institution at the rates established for in-state and in-district tuition for the number of academic years purchased.

Limited benefits provide a number of options, including providing credit hours for the number of academic years purchased at the tuition rates established for in-state or in-district students whose rate does not exceed 105 percent of the "weighted average tuition cost" in the academic year in which the beneficiary enrolls at the college or university.

The weighted average places greater emphasis on the tuitions of the largest universities—University of Michigan, Michigan State and Wayne State universities which have the highest tuitions.

Beneficiaries of the program who opt to attend one of the state's 45 independent, non-profit, degree-granting colleges or universities will receive full economic benefits under the program. Although falling under the refund section within the MET contract, the beneficiary may order the refund transferred to a private institution in the state.

Civil Rights Complaints Produce
Awards of $4.7 Million

Persons complaining of civil rights violations won $4.7 million in awards under cases resolved during 1987-88 by the Department of Civil Rights, the agency's annual report showed.

The department filed 27 charges of unlawful discrimination in other cases where conciliation efforts were unsuccessful.

The awards won by individuals involved 1,730 claimants, or 31 percent of the 5,561 cases closed during the fiscal year.

The department received 6,390 new complaints, down 46 from 1986-87, and the great bulk of those involved employment discrimination, 5,721. Another 224 complaints alleged discrimination in housing, 197 in public accommodation, 106 in law enforcement, 83 in education, and 59 in public service.

Blacks filed the most complaints, 3,556 or 61.9 percent of the total, although race was cited as a factor in just 2,406 cases. Over half were filed by women of all races, with sexual discrimination alleged in 10.8 percent of the cases. Whites filed 31.3 percent of the complaints, and Hispanics 237.

Age discrimination was cited in 485 cases and physical handicap in 409 instances.

Drought Has Slight Impact on Food Prices

This past summer's drought has resulted in slightly higher food prices, according to Michigan Farm Bureau's agricultural economist Robert Craig. Although the production of some grain crops dropped by as much as one-third, Craig said that food prices remained relatively stable.

"The change in food prices for the first six months of 1988, before the drought, ranged from 2.8% to 3.4% over the same period in 1987. During the third quarter, food prices increased from 4.5% to 5.3% over the previous year's prices," he said.

"The bulk of the food price hike came in two categories. Fruit and vegetable prices were 13.5% above year-earlier levels. Cereals and bakery products increased 8.1% above 1987 levels. Some fresh and processed fruits and vegetables were also affected.

"Many analysts expected meat prices to lower dramatically as farmers, faced with higher feed costs and lack of water, hurried livestock to market. This did not happen to any large degree. However, anticipated livestock price gains will be much smaller than the increase in crop prices. Meat accounts for about one-third of a consumer's food purchases so limited meat price hikes will moderate the over-all food price hike for 1988," he said.

Over-all, Craig expects 1988 food prices to be about 4% higher than year earlier levels. He predicts next year's food costs will be 4% to 6% higher than this year's, with about two points of that gain caused by the drought. He expects meat prices to increase in 1989 due to fewer cattle going to market and only modest growth in hog and poultry numbers.

To help track food price movement, more than 80 Farm Bureau leaders in 26 states, including Michigan, are visiting their local food stores monthly to determine the cost of various products. The farmers are monitoring the prices of ground chuck, sirloin tip roast, pork chops, bacon, whole fryers, eggs, whole milk and cheddar cheese. They are also tracking prices of red delicious apples, russet potatoes, cereals, flour, white bread, corn oil, soybean oil and mayonnaise.

Christmas and the Christ Child

In our Christmas celebrations
Of merriment and mirth
Let's not forget the Miracle
Of the
Holy Christ Child's Birth—
For in our gay festivities
It is easy to lose sight
Of the
Baby in the Manger
And that Holy Silent Night . . .

And we miss the mighty meaning
And we lose the greater glory
Of the
Holy Little Christ Child
And the blessed Christmas Story
If we don't
Keep Christ in Christmas
And make His Love a part
Of all the joy and happiness
That fill our home and heart.

Jesus Christ the same yesterday,
and to day, and for ever.

Chelsea Area Players Needs Actors, Workers For Winter Play

Chelsea Area Players plans to start production of "Deadwood Dick or The Game of Gold" in January.

Anyone interested in participating in the winter play, which will be performed Feb. 17-18, should show up at Beach Middle school cafeteria on Sunday, Jan. 8 at 3 p.m. or Monday, Jan. 9 at 7:30 p.m.

Callbacks will meet on Tuesday, Jan. 10 at 7:30 p.m.

The cast includes speaking roles for seven men and seven women plus various non-speaking roles.

In addition, anyone interested in helping with the set, ticket selling, prop gathering or any other function of theater should show up as well.

According to organizers, the play is an excellent opportunity for those who are interested in performing in community theater but who can't commit themselves to numerous rehearsals. The play is an old fashioned melodrama. Between acts there will be song and dance numbers as well as other entertainment. Organizers are looking for stand-up comics, singers, dancers, jugglers, magicians, and musicians to perform.

Scripts can be obtained by calling Sue Williams at 475-1684. There will be a $5 refundable deposit for checking one out.

For further information contact Jan Baltzell at 475-2577 or Mary Ann Stevenson at 426-4749.

LLAMA FARM owners Bill and Sue Griffin of Hashley Rd., Manchester, now have a total of 15 animals. They hope to eventually have 35 llamas on the farm and produce up to 20 young llamas a year. They frequently take the animals to shows, parades and schools.

Llama Farms Become Popular in Michigan

Raising llamas is no nickle and dime business. Although the average price for a male is $5-10,000, grand champs can bring as much as $130,000, as one did this summer, said Manchester llama raiser Bill Griffin. The lowest going price for a female llama is around $12,000.

At these prices, the 15 llamas at the Griffins' represent a pretty hefty investment. Females, because of their ability to bear other llamas, usually can be sold for higher prices. Two llamas were born on Bill and Sue Griffin's farm this fall. Griffin hopes to get $20,000 for the female, Autumn Mist, and $5-10,000 for the male, Nacho Supreme. A total of three llamas have been born on the Griffins' farm.

With the popularity of llamas growing in the state, the Griffins may be on the leading edge of one of the hottest new businesses. There are 90 llama farms in Michigan today, in contrast to only 14 three years ago.

Griffin hopes to have 35 llamas on the farm eventually and produce up to 20 llamas per year.

Cost of raising the woolly creatures is one-half to one-third that of horses. Llamas eat one pound of grain per day and one bale of hay per week, which figures out to about $300 per year for each animal.

In other ways, too, llamas are easy to raise. Fairly acquiescent creatures, they can travel in almost any vehicle. Griffins' llamas get around in their 23-foot mobile home, but Griffin has seen small llamas transported lying down in station wagons.

Due to a strong herd instinct, llamas aren't likely to wander too far from the pen if given the chance. Occasionally through the sliding glass door of their a-frame cottage, the Griffins will see one of their llamas poking around in the woods, who has apparently strayed from the pen which is 45-feet south of the house.

They are also more fussy than horses in their "toilet habits." Llamas designate one area of the pen as a community toilet. The instinct to go where others have gone before is deeply engrained, the Griffins found out, when they first took three of their llamas, Daisie, Honeymoon and Royal, on a road trip. The Griffins now carry some llama pellets with them on long trips to seed the area and ensure the llamas will be able to "use the toilet" in strange terrain.

It turns out that Michigan is a good place for raising llamas. Wintry weather doesn't affect the animals' health since they're used to the chilly conditions of the Andes Mountains in their native Peru. In fact, unlike horses, llamas rarely seek shelter during inclement weather, preferring to be in the open. The Griffins hastened to complete four-sided shacks without doors for their ungilded males this fall, only to find that the llamas sleep lying down on the ground outside.

But there is one thing lacking in the state as far as its camel-like immigrants are concerned. Michigan soil is low in two key ingredients, selenium and vitamin E, which llamas require in order to produce live, healthy little llamas. Llamas, it would seem, need higher quantities of the element than do cattle or sheep. This summer at the International Llama Convention in Shanty Creek, $63,000 was raised for MSU scientists to do research on selenium. The experiments consist of testing llama blood for quantities of selenium after being fed grain spiked with the element. Other research needs to be done on birthing problems, parasites, and the stress factors of climate and wool length on llamas.

Because llamas are valuable animals, are the Griffins worried about possible llama thieves. "No," said Griffin. "Everyone knows them. It would be hard to hide them." The llamas that the Griffins take out frequently to shows, parades or schools are all marked with identifying tattoos inside their ears, provided by their local veterinarian. And they've registered each of their animals with the International Llama Registration in Palo Alto, Calif., by providing full length photos of the llamas from four sides, and information such as the llamas' names, coloring, characteristics and identifying marks.

Park Pavilion Rentals Taken for Next Summer

As of Jan. 1, 1989 Rolling Hills County Park and Independence Lake County Park will be accepting applications for park pavilion rentals for 1989.

There are five shelters from which to choose: one at Rolling Hills County Park and four at Independence Lake County Park.

Large groups and businesses will want to take special note of the newest pavilion, located at Independence Lake, which accommodates 480 adults. Booking is expected to be heavy for this facility due to its accommodating size. There is ample parking with this pavilion, as well as adjacent children's play areas, beach and restrooms.

There are also smaller pavilions seating 90 or 120 adults located at both parks. These shelters also have similar amenities associated with each.

For information and/or an application regarding pavilion rentals, please call the Parks office at 971-6337 during normal business hours.

Today's Investor

By Thomas E. O'Hara
Chairman, Board of Trustees
National Assoc. of Investors Corp.
& Consulting Editor, Better Investing Magazine

Q. I sat in on a conversation with a number of friends who were praising the value of zero-coupon bonds. I have a problem trying to figure out why anyone would want a zero-coupon bond. I buy bonds for interest income that I can spend every three months. The idea of having to wait five, ten, or more years for a zero-coupon bond to mature, without getting paid any of the interest on the money until the very end, doesn't make sense to me. Can you explain how can they be used to an advantage?

A. Zero-coupon bonds, as you say, are not for the person who is looking for regular interest to live on. But they do have their purposes. The most frequent use by individuals of zero-coupon bonds that I hear are where parents or grandparents buy them to provide mature future funds for the education of children or grandchildren. For instance, a $2,000 payment now will purchase a zero-coupon bond that will provide $10,000 in 18 years. A $200 payment would provide $1,000. Such a payment can be tremendously helpful in meeting the bills of a college student.

As you have pointed out, interest on these bonds accrues every year and is taxable income. If the bonds are given to a child, the interest is the child's rate which normally is lower. The income from zero-coupon bonds accrues faster in the later years since the accumulated interest provides a bigger capital base for the calculation of interest.

There are a variety of zero-coupon bonds that may be purchased if safety is a concern. There are TIGR's (Treasury Investment Growth Receipts) which are backed by U.S. Treasury bonds on STRIP's (Separate Trading of Registered Interest and Principal of Securities), which are direct obligations of the U.S. Government. There are also federally insured zero-coupon bonds issued by banks and savings and loan associations.

Higher interest can be secured from zero-coupon bonds issued by corporations. Municipal zeros are exempt from federal taxes and in some cases state and local taxes.

Individuals who have a need to meet a future obligation with a fixed sum of money may find zero-coupon bonds are the answer. You don't mention any need you may have, so I have no suggestion for your account.

Mr. O'Hara welcomes your questions and comments, but will answer them only through this column. Readers who send in questions on a general investment subject or on a corporation with broad investor interest and whose questions are used, will receive a complimentary one-year's subscription to the investment magazine Better Investing. Life Insurance Still Rated As Good Tax Shelter

Life insurance products were one of the few tax shelters to survive the Tax Reform Act of 1986, says Ellen Palmer, executive director of the Michigan Tax Information Council. A special tax treatment granted to life insurance policyholders when federal income tax laws were introduced in 1913 remains unaltered today.

The interest on the investment or savings (often referred to as "cash value") portion of a policy accumulates tax-free and the policyholder may borrow both interest and principal tax-free at any time.

This may be a better alternative to a non-deductible individual retirement account because the money is available without penalty. IRA holders must pay a 10 percent penalty on any money withdrawn before they reach age 59½.

The terms of the loan are also advantageous. The policyholder can usually borrow interest at no net cost; or a net cost of 1 or 2% may be incurred to borrow principal. Your policy could be an inexpensive source of cash for such financial goals as a down payment on a house, a vacation or educational expenses.

Many of the new investment-type policies may be sold only by someone who is both a registered securities representative and a licensed insurance agent, says Palmer, so they are sold by stockbrokers and financial planners as well as insurance agents.

Palmer suggests that potential insurance policy investors get recommendations from satisfied clients when you choose a financial planning professional.

New Year Wishes

During 1989, may you have:
Enough happiness to keep you sweet.
Enough trials to keep you strong.
Enough sorrow to keep you human.
Enough hope to keep you happy.
Enough failure to keep you humble.
Enough success to keep you eager.
Enough friends to give you comfort.
Enough wealth to meet your needs.
Enough enthusiasm to make you look forward to tomorrow.
Enough determination to make each day better than the day before.

With the above wishes for the coming year, I will close. May the good Lord bless you and keep you in his care and may you have a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Spending Christmas in A Foreign Country

By Russ Ogden
Free Lance Drama Critic
and EMU Professor

Cypriot Pavlos Lyssiotis: Christmas 1988 on foreign shores! Nineteen years old, separated from his family on Cyprus, an island 50 miles wide, 100 in length: half of which is commandeered by Turkish soldiers/citizens with a battle line drawn through the center of the island.

Pavlos Lyssiotis, scarred by a rifle shot which grazed his knee; mentally scarred by the death of his Greek (Cypriot) friend, downed by a single rifle shot from a Turkish youth less than four city blocks away.

Required military service in your country's army upon graduation from high school (six years elementary, six years secondary).

Pavlos... a freshman at Eastern Michigan University at Christmas time. A warm, trusting handsome youth with a winning smile, surrounded by English speaking, native students in a momentarily friendless society.

Comprehending perhaps 10 percent of the instructor's words; studying diligently from a textbook for a cultural base, a logic to the words of wisdom spoken in class.

Semester ends: Christmas time. Strong Greek Orthodox religion totally invades his being as thoughts of his family in Nicosia, the capital of Cyprus, dominate his rare free time. Home where families will gather for the annual Holy Celebration, a time of togetherness, of wishful well being.

"Kala Christougena," in a mild climate, Pavlos' mother and father host a traditionally mid-afternoon Christmas Eve dinner. Male guests and children gather around a rather long table while the women serve honored guests. Although women are welcome to join the feast table, most of them busily serve the warm food during the dining festivities.

A Christmas tree whose branches have been adorned with baubles and shiny colorful trinkets visually spells the season. Beautifully costumed women dolls and their male counterpart in formal or military attire hang sporadically around the evergreen tree.

Pavlos would expect his uncles, aunts, and relatives to bring presents on Christmas Eve. Dressed somewhat in similar attire as our Santa Claus, St. Nicholas is a symbol of seasonal goodness! If Santa presents a gift, the gift would be labeled by the giver, certainly not from Santa.

Following the removal of dinner objects from the elongated table, freshly lighted tree candles extend their warmth and brightness into the room. Children are invited to retrieve waiting presents beneath the tree.

Women retire to the living room; children play with their new presents in a family room; and the barren table serves as a gambling arena for dinner guests and other community passersby. The game is a version of poker and the gambling may continue long into the evening.

Christmas day is a religious atonement day as is the next seven days that follow. Church services start in late afternoon and extend through evening. Priestly sermons expect every member of the family to attend church. And they do!

And, so to you, Pavlos...
"SCHEENORHAVOR DZENOUNT," "FROECHLICHE WEINACHTEN,"
"KUNG HO HSIN HAI," "SRETAN BOZIC," "VESELE VANOCE," "ID MILAD SAID," "HAUSKA JOULUA," "JOYEUX NOEL," "MELE KALIKIMAKA," "ZALIG KERSTEFEST," "BOIDOG KARACSONY," "GLEDIGE JOL," "NODLAIG NAIT CUGAT," "BUON NATALE," "SHINNEN OMEDETO," "KWANZA," "LINKSMU KALEDU," "FELIZ NAVIDAD," "MALIGAYANG PASKO," "WESOLYCH SWIAT," "SARBATORI FERICITE," AND "VESELYKH SVYAT!"

From all nationalities of the world who have at one time been lonely foreigners, America with great joy says, "MERRY CHRISTMAS!"

It's a matter of life and breath:

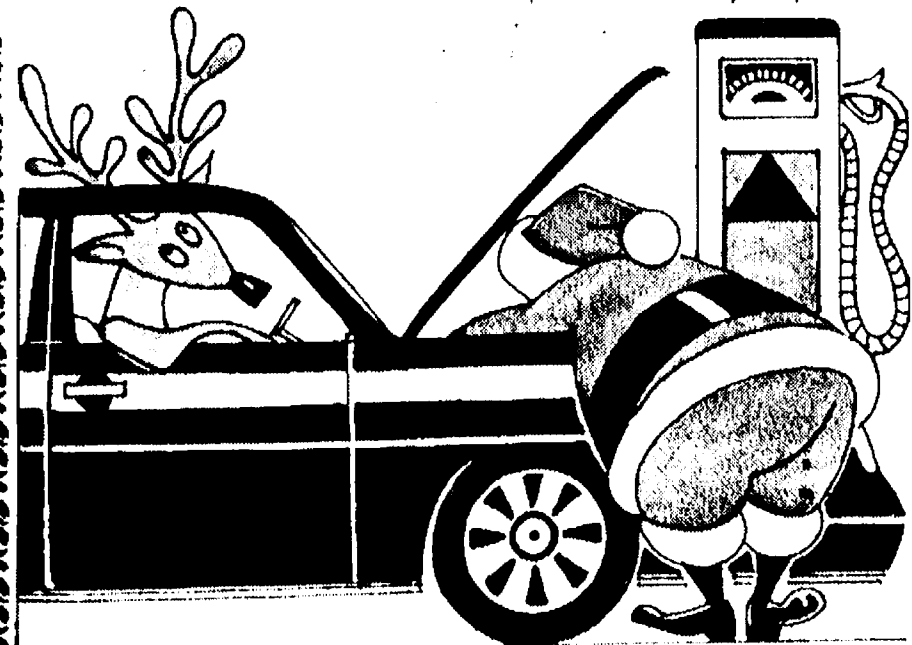

Christmas is here
filled with love and good cheer!
May your holiday bustle with joyous surprise!

Card of Thanks 19

CARD OF THANKS

Words cannot express the thanks we have in our hearts for all of the kind words and deeds we have received from friends since Dick's death. Special thanks go to Jack Harnish, to our church families—both Dexter and North Lake—and to the Dexter Fire Dept. Dexter is filled with very special people.
Pauline Austin and family—Dave and Jan Knisely, Kurt and Jason, Jim and Laura Austin, Pat and Liana.

THANK YOU

I want to thank all my relatives and friends for the cards, flowers and visits during my stay in the hospital. Special thanks to Pastor Koch for all of his visits.
Veryl Hayley.

We don't care if you paint your hair blue, rip the sleeves off your shirt or pierce your ear.

But don't smoke just to be like your friends. Or to be different from your friends. Or to be anything at all. Because with everything we know about cigarettes today, there's only one thing you'll be if you start smoking now. And that's sorry. Sorry you can't get up in the morning without coughing your lungs out. Sorry you can't climb a single flight of stairs without getting winded. Sorry that every time you light one up, your risk of heart disease goes up. If you're already a smoker, take some time to stop and think it all the way through. Right now, it's your decision. In the long run, it's your life.

So A Chiropractor Is Really A Family Doctor?

Yes.

HERE'S WHY...

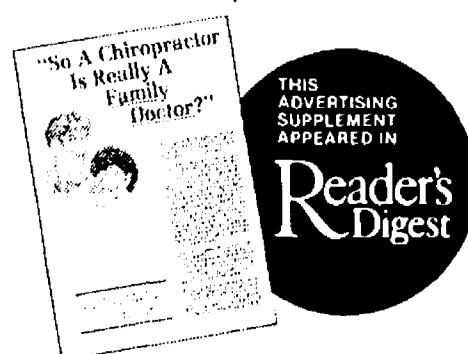

Most people think of doctors of chiropractic as specialists in treating health problems of the back and spine. And they are, for chiropractors have been extremely effective in relieving pain and getting people back on their feet without drugs or surgery.

But doctors of chiropractic do more. They diagnose to determine whether other illnesses may be related to structural problems, which often is the case.

Chiropractors take an interest in your total health and well-being. And if a problem is indicated which requires specialized treatment, the doctor of chiropractic will refer you to the appropriate health specialist.

Economist Says Better Days Ahead for Farmers

The decade ahead may be a little brighter for most sectors of agriculture, but its economics will not achieve the robust levels of the 1970s. That's what John Ferris believes after using AGMOD to examine the commodity data dating to the beginning of the 1960s.

Ferris is a Co-operative Extension Service agricultural economist at Michigan State University. AGMOD is an econometric model of U. S. and World agriculture designed to focus on the most salient variables for major crops and livestock.

In developing the forecast, Ferris used the computer model to examine commodity data on cattle, hogs, broilers, turkeys, eggs, milk, corn, other feed grains, wheat, soybeans, soybean meal and soybean oil.

Among the resulting expectations is that coarse grain consumption outside of the United States will increase by a third between now and the year 2000.

"Though that may seem substantial, per capita consumption will probably not rise much above the peaks reached during the 1970s," Ferris says.

He believes that overseas wheat consumption will increase steadily, reaching about 650 million metric tons by 2000. Consumption outside the United States is currently about 500 million metric tons.

Part of the reason for the increase is the expectation that population outside the United States will increase by 23 percent (from 4.8 billion to 5.9 billion) by 2000. During the same time, the population growth rate in the United States will be 12 to 13 percent (from 241 million to 272 million).

Acres planted to grains is expected to increase around the world in response to expanding demand. In the United States, acres of corn, wheat and soybeans will increase enough to put some pressure on land enrolled in the Conservation Reserve, which may have replaced the set-aside program by 2000.

U. S. grain stocks are expected to remain below levels of the past decade and probably near those seen during the middle 1970s—around 10 to 30 percent of use.

Ferris says that increased returns from marketings will more than offset the expected decline in government payments. By the last half of the 1990s, nominal prices for corn should fluctuate around $3, wheat around $3 to $4, and soybeans around $10. Gross margins over variable costs on a real basis (adjusted for inflation) for these crops will likely fluctuate around historical levels.

Per capita consumption of beef and pork is expected to decline, with the decline slowing somewhat during the 1990s. Poultry consumption will probably exceed beef consumption by the end of the next decade. By the year 2000, beef consumption per capita is projected to be at about 60 pounds per person, pork at about 40 pounds, poultry more than 70 pounds per person, and fish about 20 pounds per person on an edible weight basis.

Milk and egg production per capita are expected to decline during the next decade. By the year 2000, milk production per capita will have dropped to about 550 pounds per capita and eggs to about 22 dozen per capita. Total milk production, however, is expected to exceed 145 billion pounds, and egg production will exceed 5.8 billion dozen by the turn of the century.

By 2000, nominal prices to farmers are expected to reach about $1.25 per pound for steers, about 75 cents for hogs, about 60 cents for broilers, about $1 per dozen for eggs and about $19 per hundredweight for milk.

Ferris cautions, however, that these prices need to be evaluated in terms of production costs. Returns over feed costs on a real basis (adjusted for inflation) are projected to fluctuate around past levels for cattle and hogs and average below past levels for dairy and poultry. The decline in milk production will be due to lower real support prices for milk, rising feed prices and lags in adjustment to lower returns.

Ferris relied on a variety of assumptions while using AGMOD to develop the forecast. Among them are the following:

—Real consumer income per capita will increase by one percent per year in the United States and abroad.

—Inflation will result in an average increase in the Consumer Price Index of 3 to 4 percent per year.

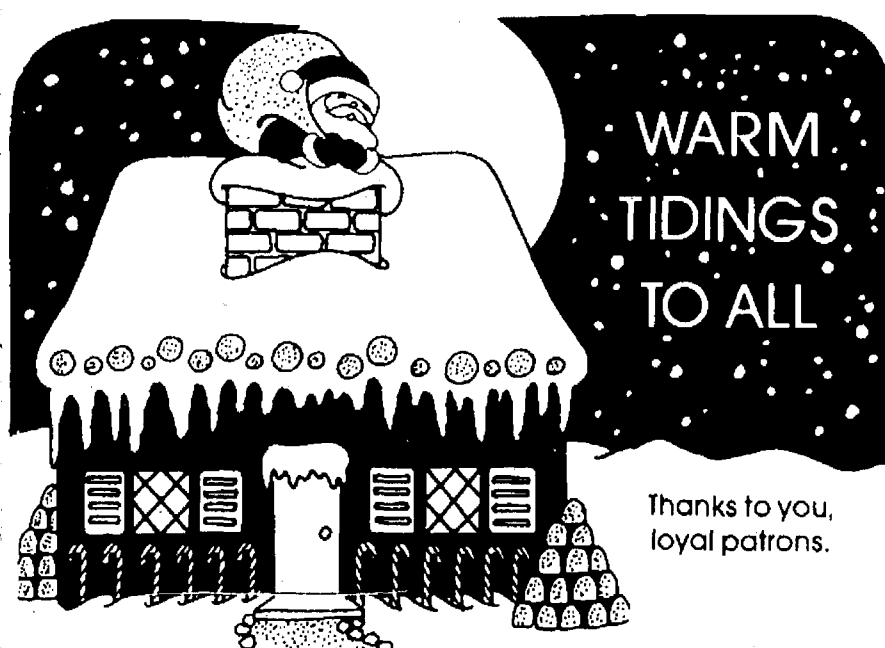

—Real interest rates—as represented by farm mortgages with Farm Credit Services—will average about six percent.

—Crop yields will increase in line with past trends.

—Biotechnology will not noticeably enhance trends.

—The Conservation Reserve will reach 45 million acres by the early 1990s but not expand to 65 million acres.

—The Food Security Act of 1985 will be continued into the 1990s. Loan rates and target prices will increase by two percent per year after 1990.

Fish Consumption Advisory Released

The Michigan Department of Public Health (MDPH) has released the 1989 fish consumption advisory update for Michigan anglers. The advisory is issued annually to help people who eat sport-caught fish reduce their exposure to potentially toxic chemicals.

The most notable change from the 1988 advisory is a recommendation that consumption of certain fish from inland lakes state-wide be restricted because of mercury found in fish from Upper and Lower Peninsula lakes. This advice is based on tests of approximately 60 of Michigan's inland lakes since 1983 which show that about three out of four lakes tested have at least some fish with mercury exceeding the MDPH level of public health concern for Michigan citizens.

Pregnant women, nursing mothers, women who intend to have children and children age 15 and under are advised to eat no more than one meal per month of rock bass, crappie and yellow perch over 9" in length or any largemouth bass, smallmouth bass, walleye, northern pike or muskie from Michigan's inland lakes. Others should eat no more than one meal a week of these fish.

Persons, such as vacationers, who only eat fish one or two weeks during the year, can safely eat several fish meals during that time period. Mercury is eliminated from the body relatively rapidly and does not build up to a toxic level in the short time period.

The state health department has identified a few lakes and a river system where some fish should not be eaten because of mercury levels. These include perch over 10", walleye over 23" and northern pike over 23" from West Branch Lakes (SE and SW, Alger county) and Unnamed Lake (T49N, R31W, S34 Baraga county). Also in this category are northern pike over 23" from Round Lake (Marquette county), yellow perch over 10" and northern pike over 23" from Chaney Lake (Gogebic county), and walleye over 18" and northern pike over 23" from Lake Michigan and other waters of the Michigan River system to its confluence with the Menominee River.

The discovery in recent years of mercury in fish from inland lakes is not limited to Michigan. Wisconsin, Minnesota and Ontario all have experienced similar findings.

"The widespread occurrence of mercury throughout this region suggests that naturally occurring mercury (i.e. from rocks and soils) and atmospheric deposition are likely the primary sources," said John Hesse of the Department's Center for Environmental Health Sciences. Most of these lakes are in remote areas and do not receive waste water discharges. The U. S. Environmental Protection Agency and the upper Midwest states are currently evaluating whether factors such as acid rain may be contributing to the problem.

Although the elevated mercury levels in Michigan inland lakes were earlier believed to occur primarily in the U.P. due to higher natural levels in surface soils, limited testing of some Lower Peninsula lakes shows similar patterns. Testing for mercury will be intensified in the coming years to better define the extent of the problem, according to state officials.

Anglers should keep in mind that smaller, younger fish will generally have the lowest levels and will be the safest to eat, Hesse said. Unlike organic contaminants (like PCB's, DDT, Chlordane and Dieldrin) which can be reduced by skinning the fish and trimming fatty deposits before cooking, mercury is found in the fish muscle and cannot be significantly reduced by these methods, he added.

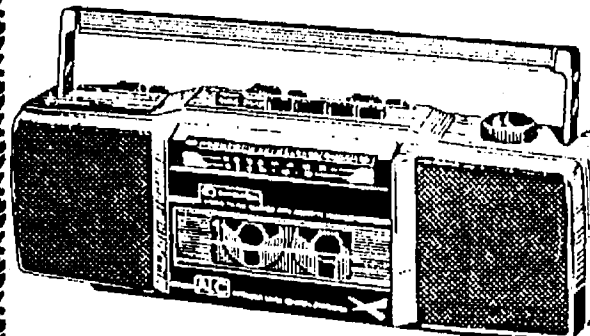

The 1989 Fish Consumption Advisory will be printed in the Department of Natural Resources' Michigan Fishing Guide which all anglers receive when they buy their fishing licenses. Copies of the advisory and the most up-to-date information are also available from the Michigan Department of Public Health's Center for Environmental Health Sciences. Call toll free 1-800-648-6942 or John Hesse at (517) 335-8350.

Special thanks goes to the following for their outstanding assistance in this worthy project: Chelsea Rod & Gun Club, Chelsea State Bank, Chelsea Chamber of Commerce, Village of Chelsea, Chelsea Community Hospital, Ames Corporation, Chelsea Merchants Association, Heller Electric, McCalla Feeds, Baseline Construction, McKernan Realty, and Faith in Action.

DR. STEVEN YAROWS, right, purchased a Chelsea Depot brick for each of his 12 employees recently. Above, he presents the $600 check to Dudley Holmes, Jr. of the Chelsea Area Historical Society. Each brick will be engraved with the name of an employee and eventually be place in a sidewalk at the depot.

Letters to the Editor

To the Good People of Dexter and Chelsea:

Edward Parker, Sr., age 39, died suddenly of a heart attack on Nov. 28. He was working on a truck outside when death came so unexpectedly. Working on a truck he desperately needed the following day, because, Ed had finally gotten a job in Ann Arbor.

Inside his rented house on Liberty Rd. were his wife and their six children, ages 5-14. His house was heated with a space heater. His house did not have a working refrigerator, or stove; most of the plumbing would not drain, and everyone slept on mattresses on the floor, some using coats for blankets. The cupboards were sparse.

Yes, this is true. The situation "DID" exist in Scio township, Washtenaw county.

But thanks to Faith in Action, Scio township Fire Dept., Dexter and Chelsea public schools, Chelsea Hospital, Dexter Lions Club, Chelsea Lions Club, Clinton Rotary Club, Ann Arbor and Chelsea Kiwanis Clubs, local Chelsea business people and the kind and generous people of our two villages, the Parker family has a new start. They are safe and warm in a home of their own in Chelsea. They have beds and sleeping bags, table and chairs, and a couch and chair. A beautiful Christmas tree came and was decorated. The cupboards are full and everyone is properly clothed. I am told Santa has checked his list twice, and will be there for sure! There are other families in similar situations in our community, I am told.

I am taking this public opportunity to thank everyone who helped the Parkers.

You have given generously. But also you need to know that Carolyn Parker and her family have given to you; yes in their forlorn and grief-stricken situation Carolyn granted permission for organ and tissue transplants.

On this Christmas Day let us remember the Parkers and others who are unknown to us. Pray for them, and pray for ourselves that we keep Christmas in our hearts all year long, "for it is in giving that we receive."

Thank you, and Merry Christmas to you all.

John W. Mitchell.

P.S.—Information and offers of assistance may be telephoned to Mrs. Marge Arnet at 426-3350. Marge is assisting her husband Larry Arnet, president of Dexter Lions Club. The information that can help those in need will be directed to those who can take action.

Main St. Banners Banned by Council

Village council has put a ban on banners across Main St., effective March 1. The banners have been strung for years from a rope between buildings about mid-block between Middle St. and Park St.

Organizations such as Chelsea United Way and Chelsea Community Fair, who have used a cross-the-street banner for publicity, will be encouraged to create smaller banners that would be hung from brackets on light poles along Main St. Organizers of last summer's Concert in the Park series had the brackets installed and used them for banners promoting the series.

Council cited a number of reasons for eliminating the banner. It was being hung from private property and the property owners weren't crazy about the idea; the village spent too much time putting them up and taking them down; some council members felt it was ineffective and the banners for the concert series were better-looking; the village was legally required to advertise the request for a banner and hold a public hearing; and in at least one instance the banner broke and became a hazard for pedestrians.

Everybody's Science

★ Slurping It Up . . .

By Sean Adams

Superslurper. Sounds like a name for one of Cookie Monster's buddies on Sesame Street.

Like Cookie Monster, superslurper is a voracious eater. But superslurper eats moisture, not cookies. And because it can absorb 1,400 times its weight in moisture—a consumption rate Cookie Monster can only envy—it has a variety of commercial and industrial uses. This derivative of corn starch is now used in all kinds of products—body powder, sanitary napkins, baby diapers, electrical conductors in batteries and absorbents in fuel filters, to name a few.

Scientists with USDA's Agricultural Research Service in Peoria, Ill., developed superslurper 13 years ago because they wanted to find new uses for corn starch. There's a large corn surplus, and new products that use corn starch help create a demand for corn. That helps farmers and the companies that produce the products.

Two companies that superslurper has helped are in small towns in rural America, places where farming is a big part of the local economy.

One is the Central Illinois Manufacturing Co., in Bement, Ill. Several years ago, the company began making industrial fuel filters with a superslurper material it calls hydrosorb. As fuel passes through the filter, the material removes any water that may be mixed with it.

The company now makes about 26,000 filters a month, and in four years its workforce has quadrupled from 25 to 100—largely because of the popularity of the filters.

The other company is Polysorb, Inc., of Smelterville, Ida. About 18 months ago, a family there started a business making a line of superslurper-based products, such as medical and recreation cold packs, fuel filters and bulk absorbents for agricultural uses.

For its factory, Polysorb converted a closed-down bowling alley and recreational facility that had gone out of business when a big mining and smelting company left town in 1981.

A thriving company with 50 employees, Polysorb ended its first year in the black with about $3 million in revenue.

Superslurper is a big reason for the success of both these companies. It's a good example of how scientific research can have a helpful impact by creating jobs, new products for consumers and a market for farmers' crops. (Agricultural Research Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture)

FOOD FOR A NEEDY FAMILY, to be distributed by Faith in Action, was collected by fifth graders in Mrs. Crouch's class at North school. The children adopted the family and provided a variety of good food, plenty for a decent Christmas meal and more. Students in the class are Erin Armstrong, Andy Bennett, Steff Broughton, Anna Daigle, Patrick Damm, Jordan Dyer, Jeremy

Faith in Action Offers Annual Christmas Dinner

Each Christmas Day there are many who face the prospect of being alone and lonely. Sometimes this is the result of being far away from family and friends while at others, it results from no longer having a family.

Whatever the cause may be, the feelings remain the same; a sense of isolation from the rest of the community at a time when there is much merriment and hustle and laughter. Someone once remarked that there is a great feeling of being alone in a crowd. It is, in some ways, a feeling of being "different" and ignored as others go rushing past.

While Faith in Action has called this a Christmas Dinner, it could also be called a Family Dinner open to all who would like to join in a "family" time of dining and fellowship.

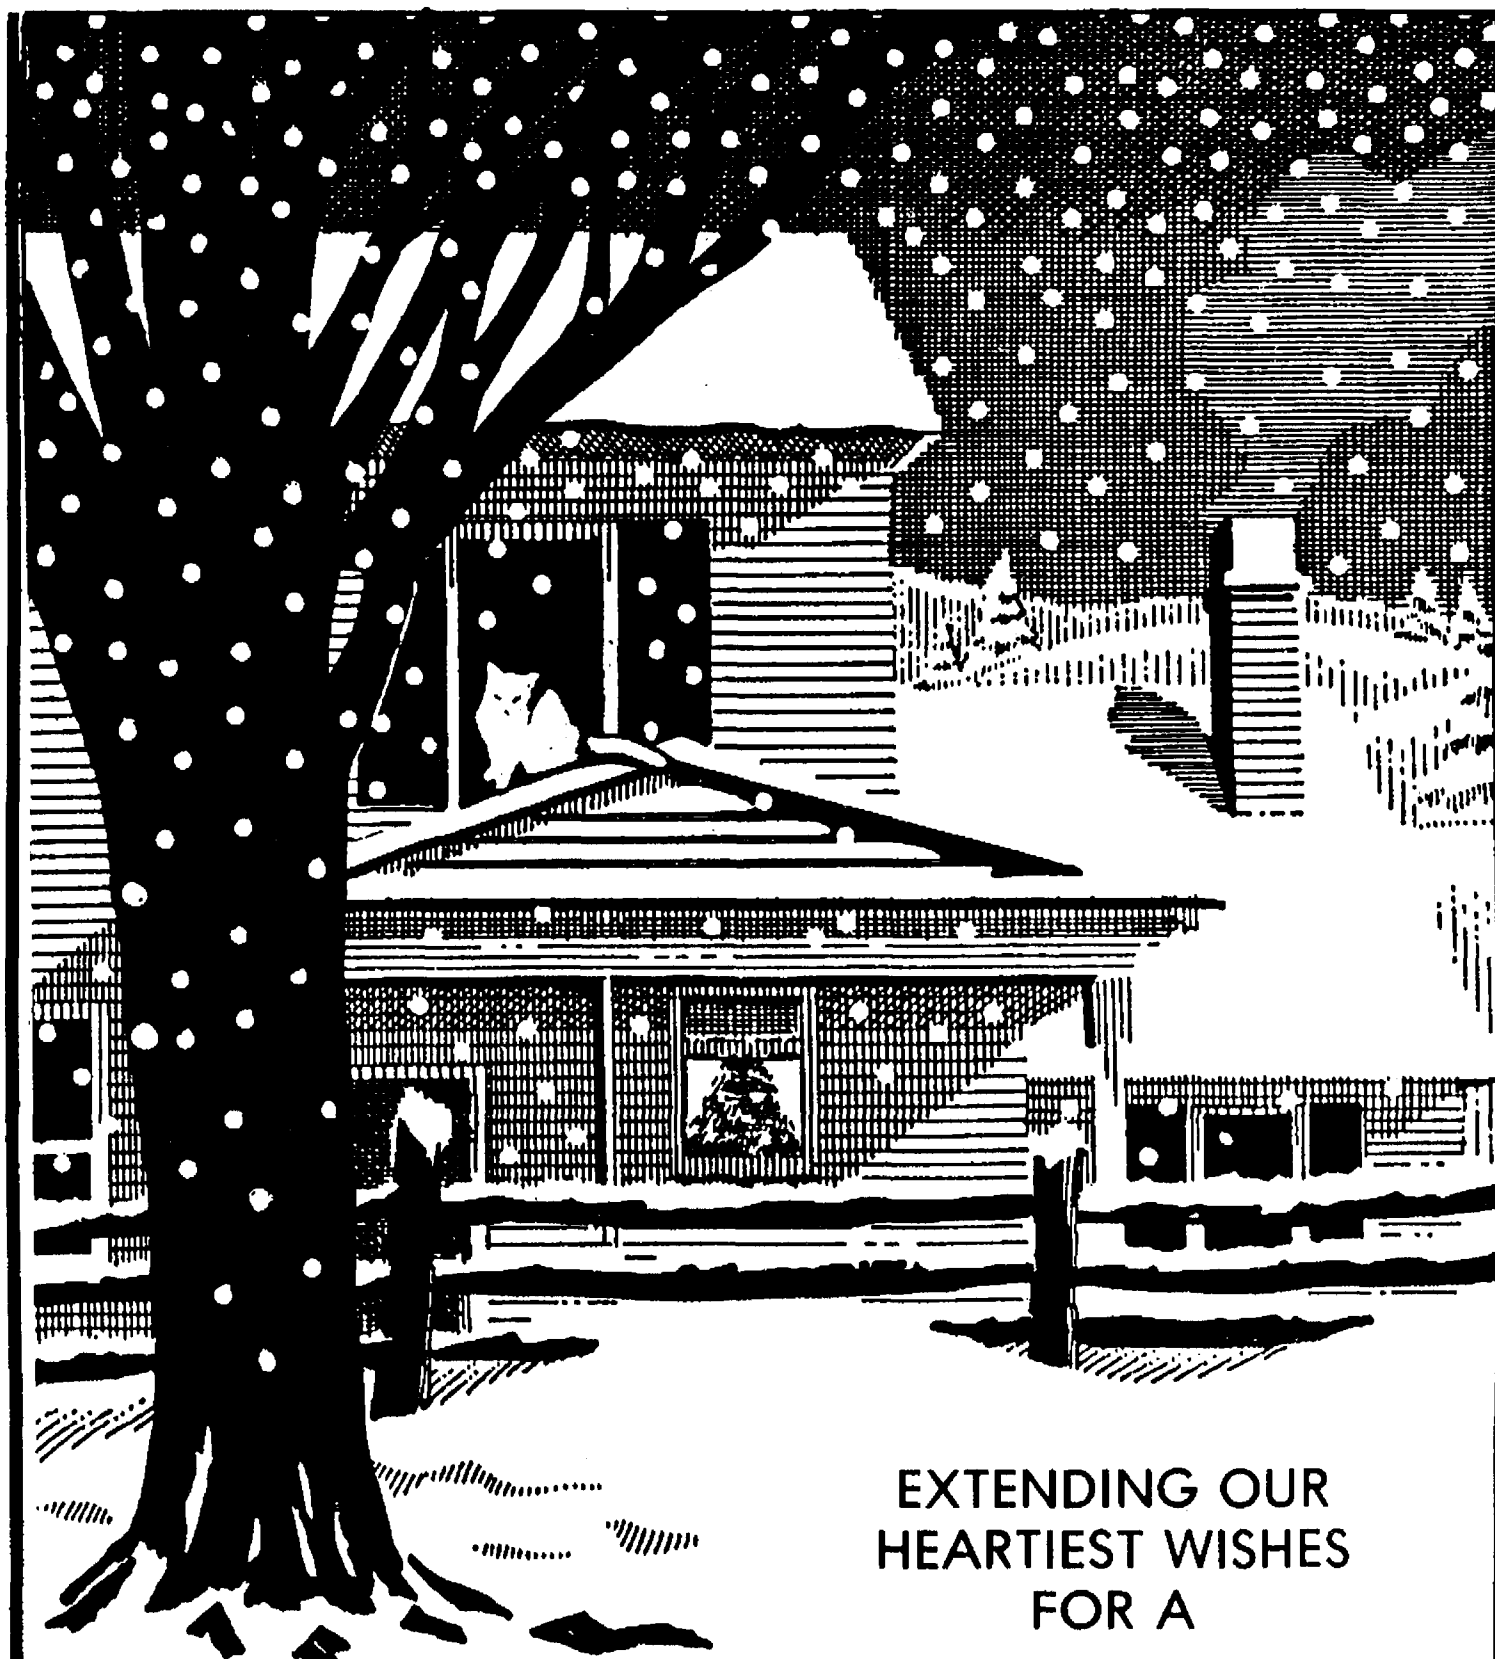

The dinner has always been intended from its beginnings three years ago to be a time and a place of sharing. Sharing of food, yes, but also a sharing of family love at the Holiday Season.

It is made possible each year by the devotion of many people, but two, of the many, should be recognized as the primary organizers. Dick and Nadine Shaneyfelt give much of themselves in a number of areas throughout the year; however, without them to plan, recruit and generally oversee this particular community effort its contribution to the enjoyment of many would not take place.

We, at Faith in Action, invite you to join them and many of your community family on Christmas Day at St. Mary's school on Congdon St., beginning at 1 p.m. If you can, please call us (475-3305) so we will have some idea of the number attending. Invite a friend or neighbor. If you need a ride or if you would like to have a dinner brought to you because you can't leave your home, let us know.

We would like to see this become an ongoing part of the Chelsea Holidays throughout the years.

Let's Go

Bulldogs!

Bulldogs Bite Lincoln For First Cage Victory

Chelsea Bulldogs overcame an early 11-6 Lincoln lead and cruised to their first victory of the year, 80-61 at home last Friday night.

In other action last week, the Bulldogs fell way behind early and lost on Tuesday at Milan, 51-44.

In the Lincoln game, Chelsea had two 12-point runs in the first half to overcome the Railsplitters lead and take a 34-21 half-time lead.

Junior Morseau caught fire in the third quarter when he scored 15 of his team-high 23 points, as he canned three, three-point field goals and was 4-4 from the line. At the end of the third the Bulldog had extended their lead by one point, to 53-39.

Chelsea out-scored Lincoln 27-22 in the final period for their highest point total of the season.

"We played a consistent game for four quarters, which we haven't done all year," said Chelsea coach Robin Raymond.

"Lincoln had a couple of runs, but we put the clamps on them and scored four or five points back. In other games we haven't been able to stem the tide. This time we did."

Chelsea hit 56 percent from the field (29-52) for their best percentage of the year. The Bulldogs had many easy shots as they took advantage of 26 Lincoln turnovers. For the night, Brian Burg was 7-10 from the field, Chad Starkey was 6-9, and Kyle Plank was 6-10.

The Chelsea defense caused problems for the Railsplitters all night long. Raymond abandoned his usual full-court, man-to-man press and used a full-court trapping zone instead.

"We double-teamed the ball all over the court, and that forces the quick pass," Raymond said.

"At times Lincoln played well against it but over-all I think it caught them unprepared. We gave up some lay-ups, but they had a lot of turnovers. Our defense really dictated the tempo of the game."

Lincoln had 17 turnovers in the first half.

The Bulldogs also finished with 26 turnovers, a number Raymond said was too high for his team as the Bulldogs had seven unforced errors.

Another key element of the game was each team's performance at the free throw line. Chelsea was 18-27 for 67 percent while Lincoln was 8-24 for 33 percent.

Burg had 18 points and 12 rebounds, and Starkey and Kyle Plank each had 14 points. Starkey came off the bench in the first half to spark the Dogs with two key baskets.

Kerry Plank, with his arm in a cast, scored five points. John Collins, in his first extended playing time of the season, had four points, and Chris Wilson had two.

On Tuesday, Milan jumped out to a 19-6 lead and the Bulldogs were forced to play catch-up all night.

When they finally caught Milan at 40, two turnovers gave Milan a 44-40 lead with less than three minutes to go.

"Early we just couldn't get into the game offensively," Raymond said.

"We worked so hard to get back in the game and then they scored two quick baskets. When that happened you could just about see the game was over."

In Chelsea's first 13 possessions of the game they came away with two baskets and had four turnovers.

"They were elementary turnovers," Raymond said.

"They weren't pressing us."

The game was close statistically. Each team had 22 turnovers. Chelsea was 20-54 from the field and Milan was 19-51. The Big Reds held a 40-38 rebound edge.

DRIVING FOR TWO POINTS is junior point guard Chad Starkey. Starkey should be operating at full strength by January when the season resumes. He's recovering from a sprained ankle. The Bulldogs beat the Railsplitters for their first win of the season.

"We're at least as good a team as Milan," Raymond said.

Milan's 6-3 forward, one of the top players in the league, led all scorers with 18 points.

For Chelsea, Burg and Kyle Plank each scored 10, Kerry Plank and Collins each scored eight, Morseau had six points, and Phil Eassa scored two.

Point guard Chad Starkey saw limited playing time as he was bothered by his injured ankle.

Chelsea is 1-5 going into the holiday break. They return in January with a game against Onsted before meeting Southeastern Conference rival Dexter at home.

Wrestlers Look Tough as Champs of Chelsea Meet

Chelsea Bulldogs beat 16 teams as they won their own invitational wrestling meet last Saturday.

Chelsea scored 190 points to whip second place Addison by 21 points. Addison was second in the state in class C last year.

"It's been a long, long time since Chelsea has won the meet," said Chelsea coach Kerry Kargel.

"We've finished second a few times."

Chelsea had five wrestlers reach the finals and three champions.

Eric Hanna beat Brian McClain of Bath in the finals, 4-3, to win at 103.

Pat Taylor pinned Andre Langston of Albion in 1:23 for the championship at 119 pounds.

And Doug Wingrove, at 145 pounds, won a 10-0 decision over Lake Fenton's Chris Lauer.

Second places went to Tim VanSchoick at 189 pounds and heavyweight Mike Taylor.

VanSchoick was pinned in :50 by Jason Lakides of Albion, the national freestyle champion.

Taylor lost a 9-1 decision to Jason Dolliver of Lake Fenton.

All five Chelsea boys who reached the finals finished where they were seeded.

Alan Hanna placed third at 112 pounds as he beat Peter Sowers of

7th Grade Cagers

Remain Unbeaten

Beach Middle school seventh grade Bulldogs cagers continued their hot streak last week as they ran their record to 6-0 with victories over Tecumseh and Saline.

The Pups whipped Tecumseh 41-23 on Tuesday, Dec. 13, and Saline 33-20 on Dec. 15.

At Tecumseh, the Pups grabbed the early lead and were never seriously threatened.

"I'm starting to see a strong performance from several players coming off the bench," said Pup coach Jim Tallman.

"Players such as Nate Mackinder, Paul Taylor, Dave Brock, David Beeman, and David Seitz are coming into games and contributing with excellent defense and valuable rebounding."

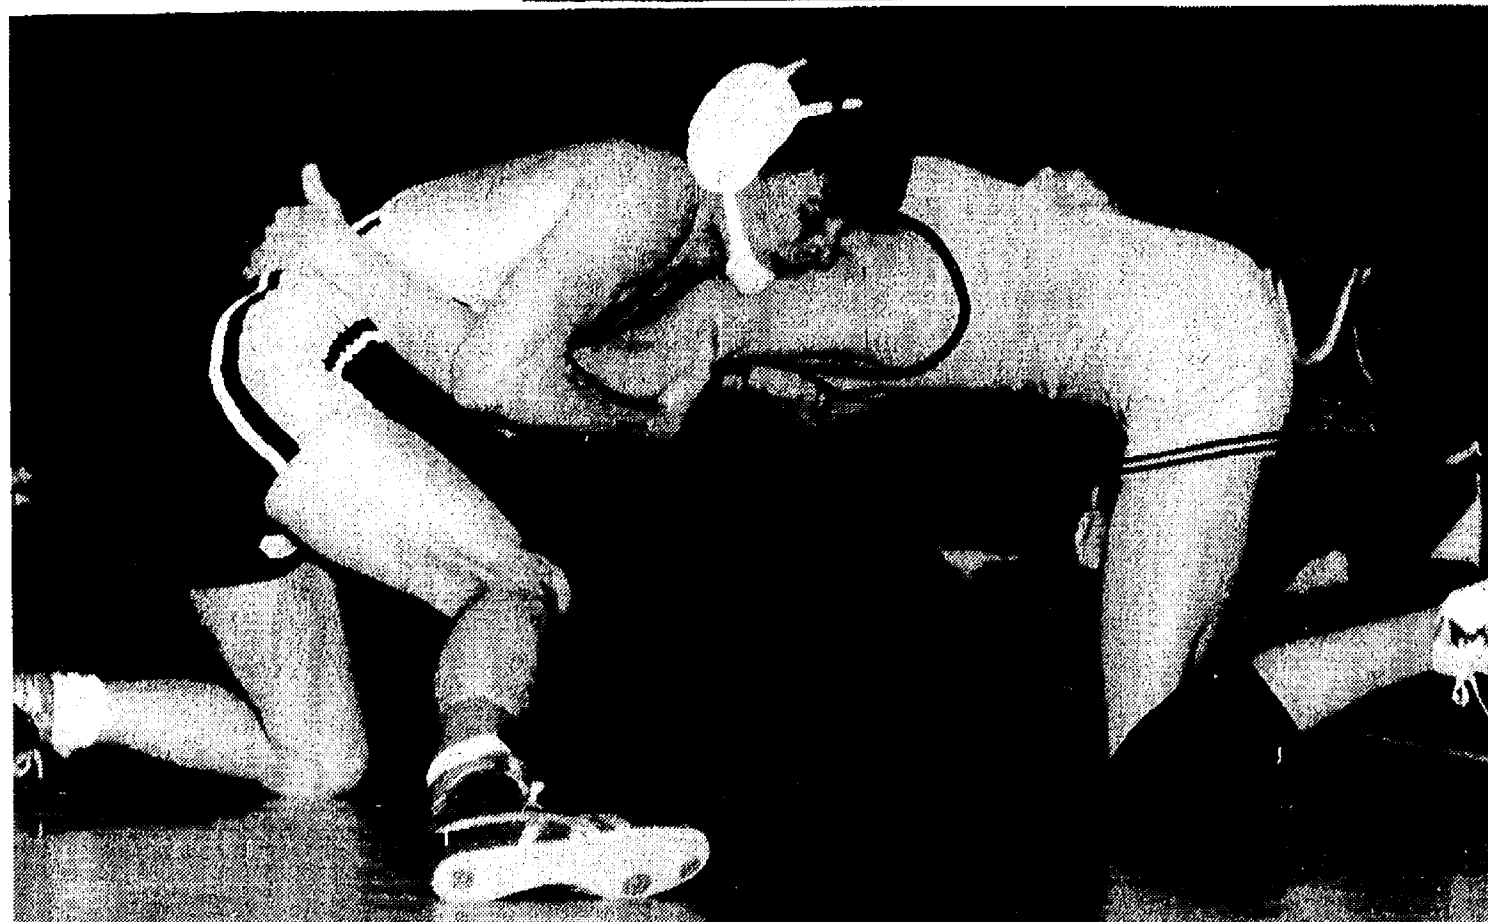

Colby Skelton led the Pups with 14 points, Pat Steele scored 11, Gabe Bernhard had four points, Mackinder had three points, and Cory Brown, Taylor, and Chris Gibson each scored two points.

Saline found themselves down 19-2 at half-time as Chelsea's pressure defense forced numerous turnovers which were converted into easy baskets.

"Everyone was able to get into the game and contribute," Tallman said. Tallman praised the Chelsea guard corps of Skelton, Brown, Seitz, Matt Powell, Steve Harness, Cory Weid, and Scott Peterson for their tenacious defense.

Skelton again led the team with 12 points and Steele scored 11. Brock had three points, and Seitz, Gibson, and Beeman each scored two.

Freshman Bench Helps Cagers To Victory

Clutch free throw shooting, balanced scoring, and staying calm against Saline's full-court press gave the Chelsea Bulldog freshman cagers a 60-50 win over the Hornets last Monday, Dec. 12 in Saline.

In addition, coach Dave Quilter got exceptional play from his second stringers as three starters got into foul trouble in the first quarter.

"We could not have won this game without the contribution of the bench," said assistant coach Dave Scriven.

"This is the deepest bench we've had."

Jason Allen, Robert Coelius, Chris Wright, and Chris White helped extend a one-point lead to a 27-22 lead by half-time.

Chelsea was outscored by two points in the third quarter, but came back in the fourth to out-point the Hornets 18-11.

Jake Rindle, playing the low post, led Chelsea with 15 points and nine rebounds. Point guard Adam Tillman and wing Dan Stahl each scored 12.

Rounding out the scoring were Ben Hurst with eight, Coelius with five, Allen with four, and Mike Wolpoff and Wright with two points each.

Chelsea had a 2-1 record after last week's play.

SPORTS NOTES

BY BRIAN HAMILTON

Christmas is the time of year when sports columnists all over the country do things like write clever paraphrases of "The Night Before Christmas," or offer a list of Christmas presents they'd like to see for local sports fans. It might go something like this:

"Twas the Night Before Dexter
And All Through the Gym
Not a Creature was Stirring
Not Even Ro-bin."

I spent about two minutes coming up with that verse, and I'm sure it looks like it. But I'm not sure I could do any better in an hour or so, so I'm not going to try.

I tried the Christmas gifts column a couple of years ago, and from what I could tell, none of the gifts were delivered. I remember asking for curveballs, championships, and so on for various people, and I think maybe the curveball was the only one that showed up.

I also asked for parents to let coaches (and I should have mentioned sportswriters) do their jobs.

"DO YOU PLAN ON GOING TO ANY WRESTLING MEETS THIS YEAR?!!!" someone asked me on the phone the other day, in a slight tone of panic.

"DO YOU KNOW THERE ARE ONLY TWO MORE HOME MEETS?!!!"

No Happy Holidays. No Merry Christmas.

"Only if I can get all my Christmas shopping done," I said.

"And by the way, if you see coach Kerry Kargel please tell him I need those earrings before Christmas!!!"

(Sorry, honey, if I ruined your surprise.)

That brings up another point. What do you think about all those jerky women in the commercial who are getting their husbands, boyfriends, and brothers "The Best of Football Follies," videotape for Christmas, free with their order of America's leading swim suit magazine.

"He can watch that stuff over and over," one woman says. That guy must be wonderful company during those cold, winter nights.

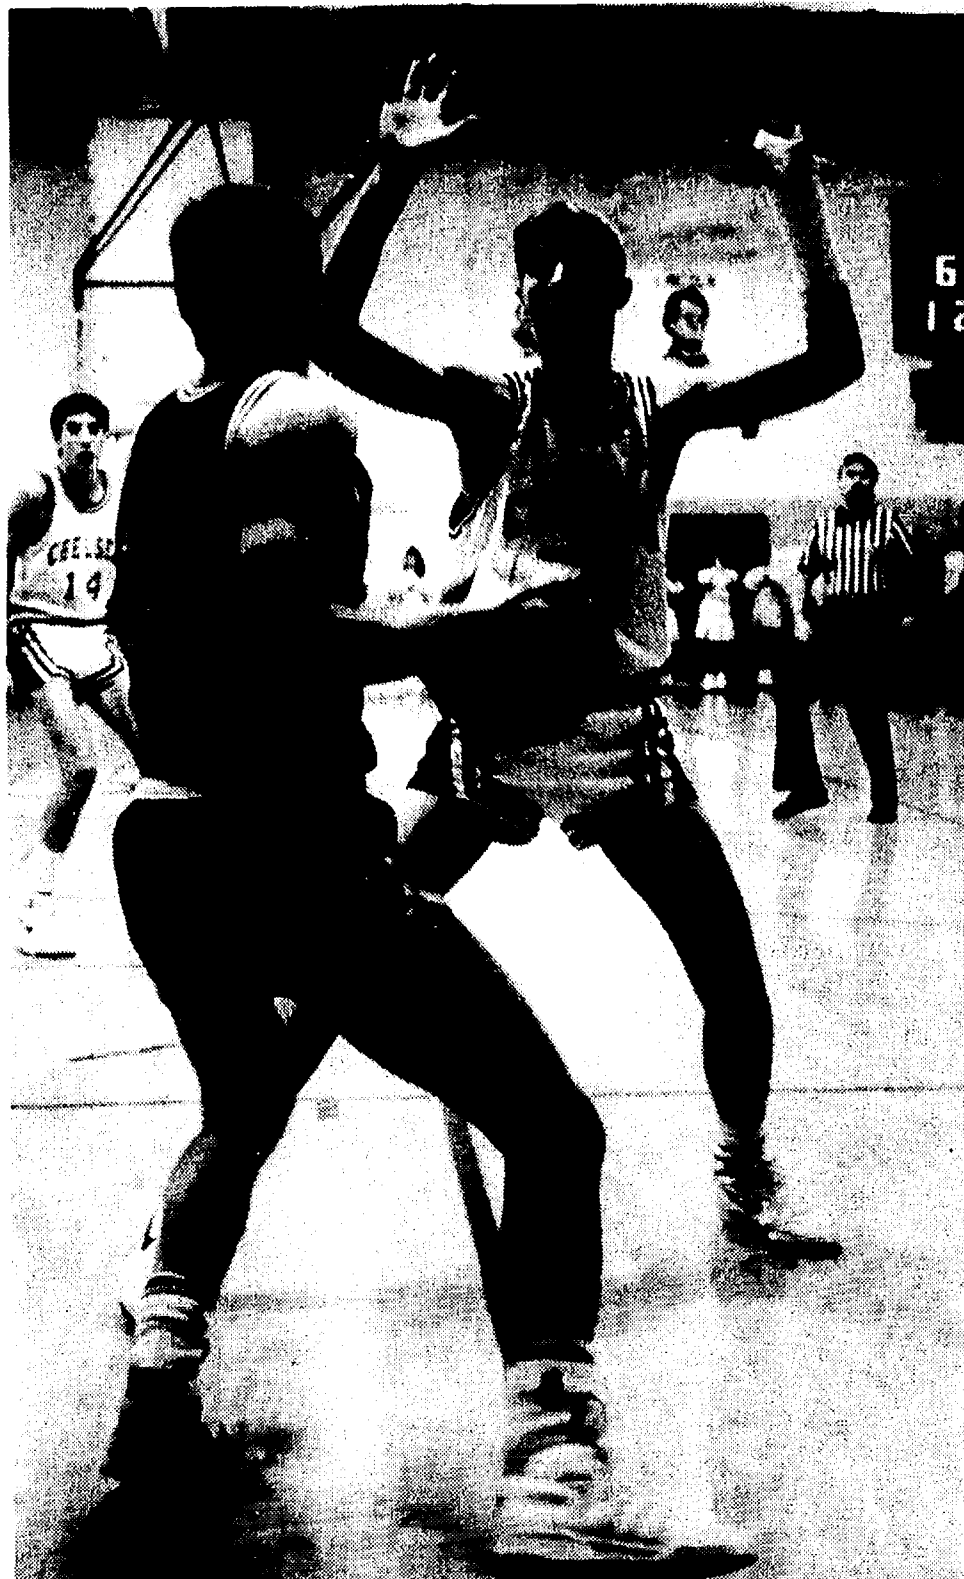

"Hey honey," he says. "The kids are asleep, let's build a fire, break out a bottle of champagne, and watch football follies."

I only brought all that up because I reminded myself of one of those jerky women who giggles and asks, "Will he see this? Well Merry Christmas, honey."

I thought about getting my 14-month-old son the famous football follies, but I'm sure he'd still prefer watching Vanna and the spinning wheel. Sports do not hold any fascination for him yet, although he occasionally likes to stuff his nerf ball through his two-foot high goal and give his famous "touchdown" sign with arms extended overhead. At games he's more interested in screaming fans than any action on the court or field.

This being the big Standard Christmas issue, I've got to cut this one short. There was a point to be made, but I don't have enough space.

Merry Christmas, Chelsea.

Lake Fenton in the consolation finals, 11-1.

Rex Nye, wrestling at 119 pounds for the Chelsea B squad, placed fourth as he lost to Scott Gibbs of Addison in the consolation finals, 10-1.

"Pat Taylor said Rex was the toughest match he had all day," Kargel said.

At 150 pounds, Matt Herter defeated Andy Dehring of the B squad in the consolation finals, 12-2, giving Herter a third place finish and Dehring a fourth. To finish third, Herter had to beat the top seed.

And Mike Terpstra, the B team heavyweight, took fourth place.

"Doug Wingrove had an outstanding day," Kargel said.

"We had a lot of good performances. Matt Herter beat the top seed in his class, Mike Terpstra was undefeated but placed. Alan Hanna ran into some real buzz saws. One thing that helped us a lot is that all the boys were still in after their second matches, which meant they were scoring points for us. We held together as a team.

"Jim Hassett almost made the consolation, Pat Hassett lost a tough match, and Adam Taylor looked good at 140 pounds."

In one of the most unusual losses of the tournament, Chelsea's Dean Sutherland looked at the scoreboard late in one of his matches and thought he was ahead by a point. However, the score was wrong.

"He probably would have placed third or fourth," Kargel said.

Finishing after Addison were Lake Fenton (116), New Boston Huron (112.5), Albion (87.5), Durand (83.5), Dundee (76), Napoleon (64), Bath (56), Chelsea B (45), Brookline Columbia Central (44.5), Fowlerville (43), Holt (24.5), Byron (12), Milan (12), Gabriel Richard (10), and Lyndon (8).

In other action last Thursday, Chelsea whipped Grass Lake, 47-17.

"Carl Wickman got us started at 103 pounds and it just seemed to go from there," Kargel said.

Wickman won an 11-2 decision over Tom Murphy.

Alan Hanna, at 112 pounds, pinned Chris Bursell in 3:18.

At 119 pounds Pat Taylor pinned Wendell Jacobs in 3:19.

Grass Lake's Darin Southworth took a 10-1 decision over Rex Nye.

Matt Clark, Grass Lake's two-time state champ at 130 pounds, beat Craig McCalla 11-1.

At 130 pounds, Reno Nye won a 16-2 technical fall over Dave Holcomb.

Jim Hassett pinned Milae Toth in 1:44 at 140 pounds.

Wingrove pinned Jerry Hayball in :29 at 145 pounds.

Sutherland took an 11-4 decision over Mike Holcomb at 152 pounds.

Grass Lake's Jake Robards shut out Matt Herter at 160 pounds, 6-0.

Skip Hinkle of Grass Lake, a runner-up in the state last year, pinned Pat Hassett at 171 pounds in :39.

Van Schoick won by forfeit at 189 pounds.

And Mike Taylor pinned Rich Mayes in 1:11.

In a quad meet on Tuesday, Dec. 13, the Bulldogs beat Charlotte, 54-9, Leslie, 56-17, and Jackson County Western, 54-13.

Wickman, Alan Hanna, Pat Taylor, McCalla, Reno Nye, Doug Wingrove, and Dean Sutherland were all undefeated for the day.

"Wickman is turning out to be an excellent back-up at 103 pounds," Kargel said.

"He has been a real surprise."

Chelsea was also undefeated at 140 pounds, where Adam Taylor was 1-0 and Jim Hassett was 2-0.

VanSchoick lost a match by default as he was called for a slam. That kept him from a perfect day.

Mike Taylor also went 2-1 on the day.

MATT HERTER had one of the surprise performances for the day at the Chelsea Invitational as he knocked off the number one seed and eventually finished third at 150 pounds. The Bulldogs went on to win the tournament in what looks to be a promising season.

Colleen Scharphorn Named Most Valuable JV Cager

Colleen Scharphorn was chosen the Most Valuable Player on the Chelsea Bulldog junior varsity basketball team.

Scharphorn led the Dogs in points (345), rebounds (150), most points in a game (31), and free throw percentage (63). She was second in field goal percentage (42) and rebounds in a game (15). She was third in steals (74).

Kristin Bohlender won the Team Spirit Award.

The Bulldogs were 11-1 in the Southeastern Conference and 18-1 over-all.

They set several JV records including most wins (18), best winning percentage (.947), most points (1,137), fewest points allowed (494), fewest errors (363), most steals (393), field goal percentage (37), free throw percentage (48), most points in a game (83), fewest points allowed in a game (13), and most league wins (11).

Bareis Leads Adrian To Win

Former Chelsea Bulldog forward Mark Bareis came off the bench to score 20 points and lead Adrian College to a 75-70 win over Monmouth College in the finals of the Si-Scot Classic Dec. 10.

Adrian has won each of its first seven games this season.

"Our depth has been the key to our early success," said Adrian coach Buck Riley.

Through seven games Bareis is averaging 6.9 points. He's shooting 60 percent from the free throw line and 50 percent from the field.

Chelsea Tankers Get Victory Over Novi

Chelsea Bulldog swimmers got their first win Tuesday night in Holt by a margin of 96-69. The win brings the Bulldogs' record to 1-1-1.

Chelsea started off the meet with a first and third in the medley relay.

"The relays both swam strong although no season best times were slated," said coach Dave Jolly.

The 200-yard freestyle was the next event that brought a win for Chelsea. Garth Girard continued to improve his time, posting a 1:56.20. Joe Huetteman's 2:02.21 received a fourth place and Greg Garen's 2:08.58 took fifth.

In the 200 individual medley, Brett Paddock, David Oesterle and Scott Marsh finished second through fourth, respectively, which gave Chelsea a 26-20 lead going into the 50-yard freestyle. There, Wally Schmid received the first of his two first places.

"Wally's time was not that impressive but it was good enough to win," Jolly said.

"His 100-yard freestyle winning time of :53.41 was more in line with his abilities."

Mark Luick, Chelsea's only diver for a meet, won the event over the efforts of four Holt divers.

Girard finished out the individual wins for Chelsea with a season-best time in the 500-yard freestyle.

"His 5:15.61 was right in line with a possible state qualification time before the end of January," Jolly said.

"We accomplished not getting any last-place finishes, which was a team goal for the meet. With the team's new understanding of what is expected of them we are definitely headed in the right direction."

David Zerkel Selected for WPZA Teams

Chelsea High school senior David Zerkel was named to two post-season football teams chosen by Domino's Pizza and WPZA radio.

Zerkel was named to the first team defense for his work as a defensive end.

He was also named to the second offensive team as a tight end.

The players were selected from among the 17 teams in WPZA's area of coverage. The station has a coaches interview program on Saturday mornings.

SENIOR CO-CAPTAIN JOHN COLLINS seemed to be running at full bore last Friday after battling back from sickness. Collins scored four points and helped the team play a tough, trapping, full-court zone defense, which enabled the Dogs to take an 80-61 win.

JV Bulldogs Beat Lincoln in Overtime

Jude Quilter made two free throws to tie the game and the Bulldogs went on to out-score the Lincoln Railsplitters in overtime, 10-2, to take a 77-69 victory at home last Friday.

Quilter made both ends of a one-and-one with 20 seconds remaining, and a Lincoln jumper missed at the buzzer.

In over-time, Tucker Steele nailed a quick jumper from the corner, Jeremy Stephens put back an offensive rebound, and Quilter hit two more foul shots to seal the win.

"It was a real good game for us," said Chelsea coach Jeff Dils.

"We were down by 12 points in the third quarter but we narrowed it to four points by the end of the quarter. We stuck with our press and eventually is caused some turnovers. I was pleased with the effort. I thought Lincoln had a pretty good JV team."

Free throw shooting gave the Dogs a big boost as they hit 23 of 30 shots.

Jon Royce and Steele each scored 20 for Chelsea. Quilter had 16 and Stephens had 14.

"We were only 11 of 25 at the line, which just killed us."

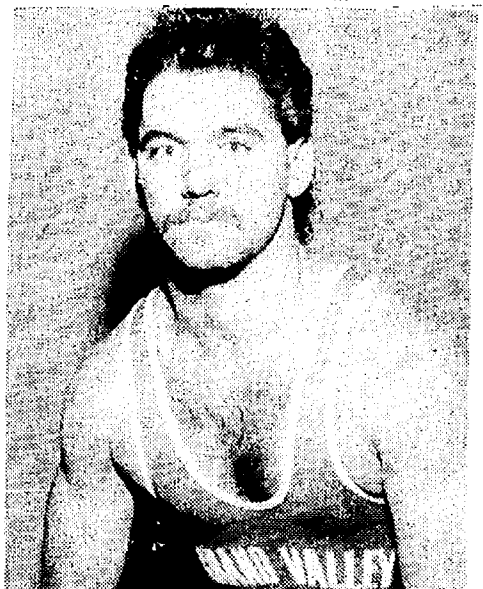

The Bulldogs also had 27 turnovers.

"We just didn't play with any intensity," Dils said.

"It was not a good effort and it was a sloppy game by both teams."

Royce, Stephens, and Steele each had eight points for the Dogs.

Chelsea is 2-5 over-all.

STEVE WINGROVE, former wrestling standout at Chelsea High school, is wrestling for Grand Valley State University. Wingrove, who wrestles at 167 pounds, is 0-2 on the season. He is a sophomore.

In action on Tuesday night in Milan, the Bulldogs lost 51-49 in a game they had every chance to win.

Milan hit a 15-foot jumper at the buzzer for the victory.

"We didn't shoot well at all," Dils said.

8th Grade Cagers Top Indians, Saline

Beach Middle school eighth grade basketball team ran their record to 5-1 last week with victories over Tecumseh and Saline.

In a Tuesday, Dec. 13 game at Tecumseh, the Bulldogs broke a tie game open in the third quarter and went on to a 46-35 win.

Chris Dunham stole the ball three times in a row at the end of the third period and converted all three thefts into baskets, which proved to be the turning point of the game. He finished with a team-high 13 points as he was also 5-6 from the free throw line.

Chelsea coach Charlie Waller said the play of Jeremy Beauchamp at center, where he scored seven points and grabbed seven rebounds, was also a key. It was the first time he had played the pivot.

Other scorers included Ed Waller and Colten White with six points each, Nick McCalla and J.D. Alford with four points each, Erik Brown with three points, Mark Eder with two points, and Tom Poulter with one point.

On Thursday, Dec. 15 at home against Saline, the Pups won a defensive game, 21-12.

Chelsea took an 8-3 lead at half-time, maintained a five-point lead through three quarters, and out-scored the Hornets 9-5 in the final period.

Dunham's seven points led the team.

Chelsea was 13-20 from the foul line as Dunham was 5-5 and Alford was 4-4.

Ed Waller had seven rebounds to lead Chelsea, and Poulter had six.

"Alford, Brown, and Dunham all handled the ball well as Saline pressed the whole game," Waller said.

Alford had four points, Waller had three, Beauchamp, Brown, and McCalla had two each, and Poulter scored one.

More than 70 million decks of cards are sold each year in the U.S.

JUNIOR MORSEAU led the Bulldogs in scoring with 23 points last Friday as Chelsea won their first game of the season. Morseau hit 4-5 attempts from three point range as well and scored 15 of his points in the third quarter.

Diabetes Risk Factors Can Be Controlled

Diabetes Mellitus is a chronic, incurable disease that is a lifetime condition. Its severity may vary depending on how well the individuals take care of themselves. Health professionals can assist in managing the disease but the main responsibility of care lies with the individual with diabetes.

The chance of complications, including blindness, stroke, heart attack or amputation are possible but not inevitable. The critical question to ask is, "What can be done to reduce the risk of these debilitating complications?" Research shows that some risk factors can be reduced.

Risk factors are those conditions which increase the chance of health problems, either acute (short term) or chronic (long term). These could include obesity, smoking, stress, use of alcohol or drugs, or lack of exercise.

Overeating and lack of exercise play a dominant role in the onset of obesity. As weight increases, the body becomes resistant to insulin and blood sugars rise. With above normal blood sugars the body does not utilize food properly for energy. Obesity also places an additional burden on the heart and lungs.

Tobacco use or smoking is a peripheral vasoconstrictor making the blood vessels smaller in the legs and arms. Blood vessels already damaged with high cholesterol or atherosclerosis may be further damaged with smoking. This decreases their ability to bring adequate oxygen and nutrition to cells throughout the body.

Stress is a part of everyone's life. It is part of adventure, excitement, achievement as well as frustrations, confrontations and physical trauma. Stress elevates the blood sugars due to the body's physiologic response. High blood sugars increase the risk of complications.

The use of alcohol and non-prescription drugs interfere with taking care of personal needs, hygiene and making appropriate choices. For the diabetic, there is no room for making the wrong choice. The diabetic also does not need the additional expense of this habit added on to the already existing financial burdens of diabetes care.

There are many risk factors which can increase the chances of complications in diabetes. The challenge to cut down or eliminate these risk factors is left to each individual.

To receive support with the ongoing management of your diabetes, help is available. The Diabetes Sharing Group meets the second Wednesday of each month (except December) from 3:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. at Chelsea Community Hospital.

Severe Shortage of Blood Exists During Holiday Season

This holiday season, the American Red Cross is asking southeastern Michigan residents to give a gift that's good for life... blood.

Traditionally, blood donations decline during the holidays, resulting in blood shortages at area hospitals. These medical facilities use more than 1,000 pints of blood every day to fill patient needs. When there is a shortage of blood, elective surgeries may have to be postponed; and if there is a severe shortage, the Red Cross must obtain blood from other areas for emergency use.

In an effort to prevent a shortage, several media groups, businesses and community groups will sponsor blood drives this month. Check your newspapers, radio and TV for a blood drive near you; or call the American Red Cross at 494-2800.

This holiday season, give a gift that's good for life. Make an appointment to give blood today.

Drought Has Slight Impact on Food Prices

This past summer's drought has resulted in slightly higher food prices, according to Michigan Farm Bureau's agricultural economist Robert Craig. Although the production of some grain crops dropped by as much as one-third, Craig said that food prices remained relatively stable.

"The change in food prices for the first six months of 1988, before the drought, ranged from 2.8% to 3.4% over the same period in 1987. During the third quarter, food prices increased from 4.5% to 5.3% over the previous year's prices," he said.

"The bulk of the food price hike came in two categories. Fruit and vegetable prices were 13.5% above year-earlier levels. Cereals and bakery products increased 8.1% above 1987 levels. Some fresh and processed fruits and vegetables were also affected.

"Many analysts expected meat prices to lower dramatically as farmers, faced with higher feed costs and lack of water, hurried livestock to market. This did not happen to any large degree. However, anticipated livestock price gains will be much smaller than the increase in crop prices. Meat accounts for about one-third of a consumer's food purchases so limited meat price hikes will moderate the over-all food price hike for 1988," he said.

Over-all, Craig expects 1988 food prices to be about 4% higher than year earlier levels. He predicts next year's food costs will be 4% to 6% higher than this year's, with about two points of that gain caused by the drought. He expects meat prices to increase in 1989 due to fewer cattle going to market and only modest growth in hog and poultry numbers.

To help track food price movement, more than 80 Farm Bureau leaders in 26 states, including Michigan, are visiting their local food stores monthly to determine the cost of various products. The farmers are monitoring the prices of ground chuck, sirloin tip roast, pork chops, bacon, whole fryers, eggs, whole milk and cheddar cheese. They are also tracking prices of red delicious apples, russet potatoes, cereals, flour, white bread, corn oil, soybean oil and mayonnaise.

Council on Alcoholism Offers Safe Holiday Tips

The Washtenaw Council on Alcoholism (WCA) wants the coming holidays and the winter entertaining season to be a time of joy, well-being and safety for everyone. The council offers several suggestions for reducing the risk of alcohol-related tragedies:

• Parties and social gatherings shouldn't be held just to drink alcohol. Remember, alcohol isn't necessary to have a good time. Food or snacks should be offered whenever alcoholic beverages are served.

• An attractive selection of non-alcoholic beverages should be available for those who choose not to drink alcohol. Guests shouldn't have to ask for these or be made self-conscious about their choice.

• Don't overserve. Pace drinks, push snacks and serve meals promptly. It's estimated that an average drinker finishes a drink in about 15 to 20 minutes, so limit cocktail time to 30 minutes, especially if wine is served with the meal.

• Instruct your bartenders to make measured, standard drinks, not doubles or "holiday specials." Serving more alcohol than people plan to drink is dangerous, not generous.

• Avoid drinking on an empty stomach. Unless you know food will be served at a party, eat before going. Find out when dinner will be served and arrive fashionably late for cocktails. On arrival, begin with water or a non-alcoholic beverage before consuming alcohol, then be sure to nurse, not gulp, your drink.

• Decide beforehand who will drive. If you drive, don't drink; if you drink, don't drive. There's no safe level of alcohol for drivers and everyone reacts differently to alcohol on different occasions.

• Don't push drinks or refill nearly-empty glasses.

• Don't give more alcohol to someone who's intoxicated; offer a non-alcoholic alternative. Coffee won't sober anyone up and caffeine can create a wide-awake drunk instead of a sleeping one.

• Stop serving alcohol at least an hour before guests are expected to leave.

• If a driver has been drinking, offer to drive them home, arrange for someone else to do so, or invite them to sleep in your home. Embarrassment you may feel can't compare with your anguish if a drinking guest or companion has an accident on their way home.

• Adolescents and children probably see more drinking and intoxication during holidays than at any other time. It's important for adults to include non-alcoholic beverages in their celebrations to demonstrate that grown-ups can and do enjoy themselves whether alcohol is consumed or not.

• All use of alcohol by those under 21 is illegal and is high-risk drinking. For them, alcohol is as much an illicit drug as cocaine and heroin and may be far more dangerous. Their internal organs tolerate alcohol less successfully than adult bodies and studies of young people find them generally drinking in very high-risk patterns and in combination with other high-risk activities. Alcohol-related highway accidents remain the number one killer of Americans 15 to 24 years of age.

During 1987 more than 46,000 American lives were lost in highway accidents, 51% of them alcohol-related. But on the first day of the year, alcohol-related crashes accounted for 72% of highway deaths and this percentage climbed to 78% on New Year's Eve.

About one-third of adults in the U.S. do not drink alcohol for a variety of reasons. Their decision should be respected and supported by family, friends, and hosts. Of those who do drink, about 23 million have reported problems as a result: 10.6 million, 18 and over, are identified as alcoholics, with a physical addiction to the drug; 7.3 million 18 and over are referred to by the federal government as "alcohol abusers," signifying that these drinkers have reported at least one negative consequence of their drinking during the past year but are not yet physically addicted to alcohol. Among adolescents 14 to 17 years of age, an estimated 4.6 million are having trouble because of their drinking. These young people and adult "alcohol abusers" are all at high-risk for further alcohol-related problems, including development of the disease of alcoholism.

The WCA is encouraging hosts to offer appealing non-alcoholic drinks to their families, friends, and guests. A brochure of non-alcoholic drink recipes is available from the Washtenaw Council on Alcoholism, 2301 Platt Rd., Ann Arbor.

VILLAGE OF CHELSEA has been working on the demolition of their second Park St. home. Eventually, this lot, and the adjoining one, will become the site of a new village office complex. More immediately, however, the lots will be used for additional downtown parking. The house became vacant Dec. 1 as the village evicted its tenants this fall.

Area Man Arrested In Bombing Attempt

A Chelsea-area man has been arrested in connection with bombing attempt on a neighbor's home Aug. 5.

According to Michigan State Police Det. Sgt. Jerry Boyer, Charles E. Peters, 28, a Sylvan Rd. resident, was arrested after a two-month investigation into the incident which could have killed 52-year-old Charles Fletcher.

Peters, a building mechanic at the University of Michigan who moved into the area two years ago, has been charged with "placing an injurious substance with intent to injure," Boyer said.

The incident occurred at a hunting shack that was being rented by Fletcher, which is on property adjacent to Peters' home. Fletcher returned home in the evening and discovered the house had been essentially booby-trapped.

"The fact that the bomb didn't go off was a stroke of luck," Boyer said. "I believe he wouldn't be here today if it had gone off."

Boyer described the bomb as "very sophisticated," and that the person who set it would need to be skilled in the use of explosives or have access to specialized information.

The case against Peters, Boyer said, is based on circumstantial evidence, such as fingerprints. He said a "high traffic volume" at Fletcher's home had apparently convinced Peters that Fletcher was involved in drug trafficking. In fact, Boyer said, Peters may have even complained to authorities about his suspicions. He said there's evidence other neighbors wanted Fletcher, who is disabled, to leave the area.

"We think Peters tried to take the law into his own hands," Boyer said.

According to Boyer, Peters denies he set the bomb and Fletcher denies any involvement in drugs. Fletcher claims he had several friends come to visit and even had a couple of parties, Boyer said.

Boyer said Peters claims to be a licensed gun dealer.

However, Boyer also said that the case is unusual in that Peters appears to be an "upstanding person." He has never been in trouble, is married with two small children, and is a reliable employee at his job.

About one in four persons with disabilities in the working age population—or approximately 3.015 million—have become disabled through military service, according to "Opportunity 2000," a new publication from the U. S. Labor Department. Of the 2.2 million disabled veterans in the United States, more than 30 percent are veterans of the Vietnam War.

Many economically disadvantaged persons are isolated from job opportunities, according to "Opportunity 2000," a new publication by the U. S. Labor Department. They are physically isolated as low-skill jobs move away from the central cities in which many unskilled workers are concentrated. Many are isolated by language barriers, and increasingly, many are isolated from the work culture, seldom interacting on a sustained basis with people who are employed, according to the publication.

DOUG DENNISON helps his daughter, Brittany, 2½, meet Santa Claus as the youngster was more than a little reluctant to trust such a strange-looking old man. In fact, her main wish was just to get away. It was part of the Kiwanis Club of Chelsea's annual Christmas party Monday night at North school.

ALISON MANN, 3½, waited patiently for her turn to meet Santa Claus Monday night at the Kiwanis Club of Chelsea's annual Christmas Party. The old man's knee was just the right size for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Mann of Chelsea.

BIFF WEBER'S SONS, Matt, 1, and John, 3, seem a little bored with this whole Santa Claus deal at Monday night's Christmas party for relatives of members of the Kiwanis Club of Chelsea. The party was held at North Elementary school.

Village Replacing Water Meters

As many as 80 of the village's 1,300 water meters were not working this fall as the Electric, Light and Water Department did not have enough time to replace them.

According to utilities superintendent Bud Hafner, the summer was an extremely busy time for the department and his workers could not keep up with the 18-20 meters that usually break each quarter. That and other problems caused the department to be about nine months behind schedule.

Village president Jerry Satterthwaite admitted the water department is "short-handed."

Hafner said most of the meters have been replaced. He said those that remain are hard to get to because residents at those homes are usually not home during the day.

"We're leaving cards on their doors," Hafner said.

How much, if anything, the village lost in water and sewer plant revenue is not known (sewage bills are based on water use). However, Hafner said the village probably didn't lose much, if anything, because when a meter breaks, an estimated reading is used for the billing. Every residence, no matter how much water it uses, is billed for the minimum of 8,000 gallons.

"Nobody's been getting a freebie," Hafner said.

Hafner said the average meter lasts about eight years and it usually isn't worth the effort to fix it because the mineral content of the village's water causes numerous problems.

WORKING ON CHRISTMAS BOXES for Chelsea area needy families, an annual project of Chelsea Social Services, are Linda Ormsby and Carl Carpenter. The boxes contained new toys, clothes, candy, paper items, and some food products. They were distributed to 23 families last Friday at Sylvan Town Hall.

ANNA MARIE COOPER and her bear Snuggles had a lot to tell Santa Claus last Saturday afternoon. Chelsea Merchants Association sponsored the second visit to the area by the old man. Young Anna Marie, 3, is the daughter of David and Nanette Cooper of Chelsea. She's a regular at the Chelsea Co-op Nursery.

THE BARNER FAMILY children dropped in to give Santa Claus a few hints last Saturday at the Chelsea VFW Hall. Santa said he'd have no problems keeping their wishes straight. From left are Kristie, 6½, Robbie, 4, and Bethany, 10½. Bethany and Kristie attend South school and Robbie goes to the Co-op Nursery. Their parents are Ken and Louise Barner.

'Dial M for Murder' Rehearsals Underway

By Russ Ogden
Free Lance Drama Critic
and EMU Professor

Murder is on the mind of Leon Agan. Only Christmas and New Year's Day interfere with Director Agan's rehearsals for his cast, selected from auditions last week for the February production of "Dial M for Murder."

Agan and producers Vicki Fox, Tony Fecker, and Robert Turck have decided to have a dessert theatre with "Dial M for Murder" previewing with evening performances on Feb. 10, 11, 8 p.m., and a matinee at 2 on Feb. 12. Performances have also been scheduled for the evenings of Feb. 17, 18, 8 p.m.

Admission including dessert is $10 for evening performances and a non-dessert matinee, $7.

Rehearsals began, according to Agan, Dec. 12 at the Wylie Middle school where the performances of this apprehensive who-done-it "Dial M for Murder" unfolds.

Agan's pleasure was evident as he talked about his cast selections.

"Dial M for Murder" is unique because WE know the villains from the very beginning but the people on stage do not. As the husband, Tony Wende, Jerry Klein has been cast. Klein's previous experience includes television credits but apparently has never appeared in previous Dexter productions.

As the only female in the cast, Julie Vorus assumes the role of the unsuspecting wife, Margo. Vorus' performance in a "Bull in a China Shop" with the Saline Players was terrific, but her greatest performance to date (in my eyes) was in Ann Arbor Civic's "The Fifth of July."

Bill Kotowski, appearing recently as Felix in "The Odd Couple," enacts the role of Margo's friend in "Dial M for Murder."

Perhaps the most challenging role is that of the Inspector as Michael Price steps away from the technical and directing aspects of a production and appears "stage front." Arriving from England, Price became the vice-president of the Great Lakes Bank.

The inspector's role is tantamount for this production as the activities pulsate with a climbing tenseness toward an anticipated ominous happening.

As a superb Luther Billis last spring in "South Pacific," Jim Reithmiller tackles the role of Captain Wescote. Reithmiller received excellent reviews for his characterization of Elwood P. Dowd in the classic "Harvey." His other impressionable musical foray was the pessimistic doubting buddy, Jeff Douglas, in "Brigadoon."

New Year's Resolution: See the promised riveting two-act thriller "Dial M for Murder" offered by the Dexter players in their first dessert theatre on Feb. 10, 11, 12, 17, and 18, Wylie Middle school in Dexter.

PBS To Air Tax Tips on Channel 23

Eighteen specially produced taxpayer information programs to help taxpayers "get ready" for the upcoming tax season will be broadcast on Public Broadcasting Station WKAR, Channel 23. Two segments will air at 10:30 a.m. and two at 1:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 26 through Thursday, Dec. 29. The final segments will be shown Friday, Dec. 30 at 10:30 a.m.

The series includes individual segments targeting the special interests of farmers, fishermen, overseas taxpayers, exempt organizations, people who move, military personnel, educators, municipal and civil servants, clergymen, tip income recipients, people with second jobs, older Americans, medical personnel, day care providers, and children with income.

The programs are closed captioned for the hearing impaired. They follow a question and answer format, featuring an on-air host and an IRS expert.

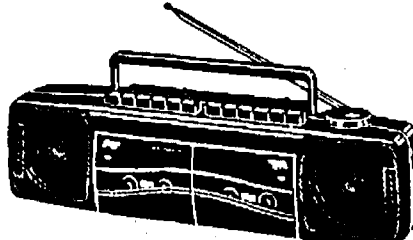

NORTH SCHOOL FIRST GRADERS collected socks, mittens, hats, and books for the needy in Washtenaw county. Instead of a gift exchange, the 100 youngsters spent their money on those items, which will be distributed by Washtenaw County Social Services. A representative picked up the donations Monday afternoon.

The flag of Denmark is the oldest unchanged national flag in existence, dating back to the 13th century.
