Becky Dehring Crowned 1991 Chelsea Fair Queen

Rebecca Dehring, whose favorite fair activities included "the demolition derby and, definitely, the concession stands," was crowned the 1991 Chelsea Community Fair Queen during last Friday night's program at the fairgrounds.

Dehring, the 17-year-old daughter of Greg and Judy Dehring, was sponsored by the St. Mary's Youth Group. Dehring, who also won the Talent Award for her humorous performance of a conversation between a dog and a cat, called "More Alex and the Cat" by Helen Griffith, beat out seven other contestants to win a $500 scholarship provided by the fair board, as well as $300 in prizes and merchandise.

As she repeatedly replaced the tiara which kept sliding off her head after the crowning by 1990 queen Chris Dunlap, Dehring thanked numerous people, primarily her mother, for putting up with her all week, as well as program organizer Sally Hill.

First runner-up was Michelle Smith, age 16, sponsored by Chelsea Community Hospital, and second runner-up was Tara Roehm, age 16, sponsored by the Chelsea High School Senior Class. Tina Blackford, age 15, sponsored by Safe Rides, won Miss Congeniality.

Smith performed "Minuet" by Georges Bizet on flute and Roehm sang "The Rose."

Other talent performances included Wendy Bell's vocal presentation of "Candle on the Water" from "Pete's Dragon"; Blackford's pantomime to the song "Chapel of Love," complete with a male mannequin; Theresa Royce's untitled original oratory; and Elizabeth Williams' song and dance to "Magic To Do" from the musical "Pippin."

Dunlap sang "A Part of That World," from the movie "Little Mermaid."

gram with a dance routine to "Yankee Doodle Dandy," sung by James Cagney.

The girls were judged in four categories: a personal interview with the judges; talent; poise; and community activities.

Dehring is a member of the Chelsea varsity tennis team, performs with the Chelsea Wind Ensemble and the Flag Corps, is a special education program assistant at St. Mary's Catholic church, and is a founding member of the youth group.

A change in this year's program is each girl answered the same question on stage, while the others were sequestered in the "sound-proof motorhome," as Dunlap put it. This year's query was "What does being an American mean to you?" in keeping with the program's theme of "Salute to Patriotism."

Dehring answered "It means being 100 percent behind our troops and our president, and believing in the American way."

Roxanne (Shears) Blaess of Saline, the 1986 Chelsea Community Fair queen, gave an update on her family, as well as some memories of time as a contestant. She told the girls "it takes a lot of courage and determination to compete" in public. She also warned this year's winner that "you'll be taking my spot here in the year 2016 and that's kind of scary." It's a tradition for the queen from 25 years ago to return.

Bell, age 17, was sponsored by the Chelsea Key Club; Lonskey, age 14, was sponsored by the Chelsea High School Freshman Class; Royce, age 15, was sponsored by the Chelsea High School Sophomore Class; and Williams, age 15, was sponsored by the Chelsea High School Junior Class. Ideal Weather Helps Chelsea Community Fair Set Attendance Record

Officials are confident the 1991 Chelsea Community Fair set an attendance record of more than 35,000, eclipsing the old record of 33,000.

The fair enjoyed nearly perfect weather for the first time in several years, which no doubt made a big difference, said fair board secretary Maryann Guenther. Rainy weather ended shortly before the Children's Parade began on Tuesday, and with the exception of a short, but strong, thunderstorm Thursday afternoon, warm temperatures and sunny skies prevailed.

"It was about the most perfect weather we could have had," Guenther said.

Cavalcade of Thrills Demolition Derby drew standing-room-only crowds on both Tuesday and Wednesday nights. And the new motocross on Thursday night, which replaced the mud bog, drew better than anticipated and will likely return next year, Guenther said.

Livestock auction on Thursday night also set several records. Total sales reached $87,952.40, a new high. Record prices were paid for the grand champion lamb ($15.50 per pound), and the grand champion and reserve champion steers ($3.25 and $3.50 per pound, respectively). Although there were fewer buyers, many of them, such as Chelsea Big Boy and Lane Animal Hospital, purchased several animals.

Chelsea Fair Parade was also larger than ever, lasting nearly an hour. Last year's parade was 45 minutes long.

Chelsea Kiwanis Club's Kiwanis Kitchen, parked next to the main arena, did a record business each night. It is their major fund-raiser of the year and all of the money is used for community organizations and projects.

Fair dining room did a brisk business under new manager Ginny Wheaton. Whether the service made any money won't be known until all the bills are paid. However, Guenther said "It was well-accepted and the comments were all positive."

Wednesday's small livestock auction may have been one of the few disappointing events. Only a couple of buyers turned out, but Guenther is confident the auction will eventually be successful as word of it spreads. It was the first year the event was held.

Saturday's Talent Discovery Festival also had a few problems as one of the featured bands apparently broke up on Friday, leaving a gap in the schedule. The festival, originally scheduled to start at 2 p.m. finally got underway close to 5 p.m. Guenther said attendance was high once the music began.

The traditional events were well attended. Stands were packed Friday morning for Ladies Day, as well as Friday evening for the Chelsea Fair Queen Program.

Ladies Day featured "Puttin' on The Ritz," complete with a fashion show by former Chelsea resident Larry Hafner, ballroom dancing by Arthur Murray Dance Studio, tips in elegant entertaining by Paul Cousins of Cousins Heritage Inn, and nearly 200 door prizes. Erna Schultz was named Senior Homemaker of the Year while Bridget Reinhardt was named Junior Homemaker of the Year. They earned the highest number of points for entries in the home economics department. Cindy Bear was senior runner-up, and runners-up in the junior division were Michelle Smith and Melissa Stapish.

Chelsea High school senior Rebecca Dehring was selected the 1991 Chelsea Fair Queen, beating out seven other contestants. Preliminary judging was held on Monday, but Friday's crowd witnessed talent performances, short interviews with the candidates, a vocal performance by 1990 queen Chris Dunlap, and a group dance routine to "Yankee Doodle Dandy" sung by James Cagney. Theme for the evening was "Salute to Patriotism."

Chelsea police reported no major incidents during the week. Several teens were charged with illegal possession of alcohol stemming from drinking incidents in the fairgrounds parking lot. Most of those teens came from outside the Chelsea area.

Guenther said the new policy for removal of fair displays worked far better than expected. Under the new policy, displays cannot be removed until 9 a.m. on Sunday.

"We anticipated some negative response, but it went very well," Guenther said.

"The change was made for safety reasons. Before people were trying to remove displays on Saturday while people were still on the midway. This way, people could get in and out quickly."

Townships Want To Meet With Village About Dump

Township supervisors have proposed a face-to-face meeting with village officials to work out a final landfill cost-sharing agreement.

Sylvan, Lyndon, Lima, and Dexter townships and the village have been negotiating through their attorneys for more than a year. At stake is how the governments will split about $600,000 in expenses associated with the closing of the old landfill cell and continued monitoring for soil and groundwater contamination.

"If we keep going like we're going, it could take years before we reach an agreement," said Sylvan supervisor Don Schoenberg.

Schoenberg said township supervisors would negotiate directly with village officials. Their attorneys would be present to answer questions but would not be part of the negotiations.

Village manager Jack Myers said he welcomed the proposal and indicated the village "would be amenable to the idea."

Fire Hits Astro Cap

Dexter and Chelsea firefighters were called to a fire at Astro Cap on Dexter-Chelsea Rd. Monday evening. Further details were not available as of press time.

have not been made public, Schoenberg said the sides are "still a few dollars apart." Under the original proposal by the village, the townships would divide 60 percent of the expenses and the village would pay 40 percent.

"Perhaps we can sit down and hash this whole thing out," said Myers, who has been pushing to get the issue resolved, partly because of the enormous costs the village has absorbed to date.

Bob Bullock Named New Principal of Grass Lake Elementary

Long-time South Elementary school fifth grade teacher Bob Bullock has been named principal at George Long Elementary school in Grass Lake.

Bullock, who has taught in Chelsea since 1972, was selected for the job about three weeks ago. His resignation was accepted by the Chelsea Board of Education on Monday.

Bullock was a finalist here last spring for the principal job at South school, which was offered to and accepted by Lucy Stieber of Stockbridge.

"I felt I needed the change and the challenge," Bullock said.

"I'll also be able to work with the kids a lot."

The position was created, ironically, when the previous principal decided to go back to the classroom and become a fifth grade teacher.

George Long school is the only elementary school in Grass Lake. It has about 485 students.

Tracy Cattell-Heydlauff, a student teacher in the Chelsea district last year, was hired as Bullock's replacement.

Washtenaw County Board of Commissioners officially asked the state to take "appropriate action" in regards to closing Cassidy Lake Technical School and returning the land to recreational use.

Michigan Bell replaced equipment originally installed in 1943 with new digital equipment that company officials say gives Chelsea state-of-the-art telephone switching service. The new equipment, which has the capacity to handle more than twice as many lines as already exist in the 475 exchange, takes up less than 10 percent as much space and requires about 75 percent less maintenance, according to company officials.

Charges were pending against a 40-year-old Detroit man who tried to fill a false prescription for a controlled substance at Chelsea Pharmacy. The man was caught after a store pharmacist called police and informed them the store had previously filled the prescription twice.

Retiring from Federal Sewer Works after 22 years was Ott Riser. Employees had a party for Ott and Albert Wisecup who was also retiring after nearly 37 years. They were each given a watch and commemorative plaque.

All previous records were shattered Wednesday, Aug. 24, in the sale of livestock at the 1977 Chelsea Community Fair. As bids for the 1977 Grand Champion Lamb climbed to a market high of $4.40 per pound, the long standing record of $4 per pound, the price paid for the 1974 Grand Champion Lamb, was finally buried. Diane Bareils was the owner of the Grand Champion Lamb. Other champion livestock and their owners were as follows: Grand Champion Hog, Debbie Harrison; Grand Champion Steer, Diane Heydlauff.

Dave Conklin, Chelsea's only entry in the Michigan Open Golf Tournament, was eliminated in the second day of the tournament when he fell only three strokes behind the 153-stroke cutoff. "One or two holes just got away from me," Conklin said.

"There were really a lot involved, and they sure did a job percentage-wise, pulling the weights," a Fair Board member commented following the annual Antique Tractor Pull at the Chelsea fairgrounds. Competitors were spread across three divisions, with a total of 52 tractors entered in the event, an increase of 10 over last year's participation rate.

A crowd of thousands gathered at the fairgrounds arena to witness the 4-Wheel Drive Speed Pull competition during the final night of the 1977 Chelsea Community Fair. A total of 83 vehicles were entered in this year's event, thrilling spectators with their performances until well past midnight.

Thursday, Aug. 31, 1967—

Voters in the Chelsea School District gave a resounding vote approval to a 6.75 millage increase. The vote in favor of the 1.9 millage increase was 899-877.

Three bands and 11 floats highlighted the annual street parade on the last day of the Chelsea Community Fair. In addition to bands and floats the parade included 17 antique automobiles, farm machinery, the French Dukes drill team, the Sheriff's Posse on horseback, and the nationally famous "Cherokee Riders," a Pinkney group of 4-H members made up in Indian costume and war paint.

Paul S. Closson was appointed assistant administrator of the Chelsea Methodist home. Formerly the assistant executive director of the Presbyterian Village of Detroit, he assumed duties Sept. 1. John M. Fall, administrator of the Home, said, "The Home is fortunate to have a man as experienced and talented as Paul Closson guiding its operation."

Interest Groups Back Concept Of DNR "Mini-Commissions"
Environmental and business interests are supporting the concept of "mini-commissions" which would enable a more thorough study and understanding of issues by the Department of Natural Resources and its governing commission.

However, some said they are reserving comment on any specific proposal to reorganize the DNR, preferring to give three recently-appointed members of the Natural Resources Commission and an as yet unnamed director of the department a chance to advance plans of their own.

The revised commission proposal, offered by House Conservation, Recreation and Environment Committee Chair Thomas Alley (D-West Branch), would include commissions on land and water management; waste management; forestry and resource management; hunting, fishing and game laws, and waterways, parks and recreation.

The five would join with the already existing Water Resources and Air Pollution Control Commissions.

The smaller commissions would each include one member of the full NRC as well as four other citizens who have expressed an interest or expertise in a particular area.

Early outlines call for each to have permit granting authority for most projects; however, those requiring more than one permit and larger projects would need approval from the NRC.

"We strongly support the concept of citizen membership on environmental protection and natural resources boards and commissions and believe Rep. Alley's reform proposals as presently constituted would strengthen that system," said Kathy Atero, director of Clean Water Action, at a recent DNR reorganization subcommittee meeting.

And the idea of developers needing only the approval of a mini-commission in order to receive a permit in that commission's area is "very positive" to his members, said Steve Arwood of the National Federation of Independent Businesses.

But while backing the idea of expanded public input and participation, Allison Horton of the Sierra Club expressed concerns that seven autonomous commissions could hamper the goal of achieving an integrated ecosystem. "Our concern is that putting a more autonomous agency in place cannot help but reduce the integration," she said, adding integration is "a crucial approach to the management of natural resources in the state."

Echoing comments previously made on the reorganization issue, Michigan United Conservation Club President Thomas Washington suggested the proposal is premature and new participants in the department's administration should have an opportunity before more changes are made. "Perhaps a short hiatus is called for here," Washington said. "A big shakeup is already in progress."

Washington, citing the passage of polluters pay and off road vehicle legislation both with the assistance of Alley's committee, said it appears the NRC is looking ahead and taking some reorganization steps on its own.

Among those he noted was a proposal for a review panel to consider permit applications. "They certainly know that some things are going to happen if you want them to," Washington said. "I think you have prodded them into taking some initiatives themselves."

But Alley disputed the validity of the NRC's initial characterization of his proposal that it would diffuse the accountability of the process by dividing it between too many players. "If there's not action on this stuff there won't be a lot of action on a lot of other things," Alley said. "We are not giving up on this issue."

DNR Committee To Look

At Ways To Speed Permits

The state's permitting process for projects which affect the environment, which has for years been under attack by both industry and environmental groups, will be reviewed by a new Department of Natural Resources committee that includes members from both areas of interest.

Acting Natural Resources Director Del Rector said the "steering committee" should look at issues such as replacing permits with broad enforceable standards. "There has been a great deal of frustration," he said.

"We are trying to take a look at everything. Are there other ways to protect the environment other than permits?"

Rector said a possible option to be reviewed is whether the state could establish standards for broad types of projects affecting land, water or air, and back it up with "certainty of enforcement. That would reduce the paperwork on the front end."

Members of the Permit Review Steering Committee will be Chamber of Commerce president James Barrett, Michigan Manufacturers president John Thodis, Michigan United Conservation Clubs director, Tom Washington, and Elizabeth Harris of the East Michigan Environmental Action Council.

"This is a refreshing approach the DNR is taking, to have people look at it," Thodis said. "One of the biggest problems Michigan industries have found is that the permitting process is most burdensome and time-consuming."

Thodis said the group will work on recommendations to make the permit process less onerous and more effective for the regulated industries as well as any other viable improvements.

But while saying additional money is a partial answer, particularly in the critical Land and Water Division which handles 6,500-7,000 permit applications annually, Rector said the review process "is not a backdoor approach for a fee increase."

He said the committee will be asked to look at all options, including whether additional funds are needed and from what possible sources it could be raised.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Zeke Grubb's preacher set in on the session at the country store for a few minutes Saturday night. While everybody was waiting for Ed Doolittle to organize his clippings, the preacher showed a paper he said one of the oldest members of his flock had brought to him. It was a letter from someone called the Federal Information Service and it looked for the world like official Government business. A tiny line under the letterhead said it is a "non-government agency."

The letter told the fellow somebody with his last name died and left money nobody has claimed. If he would send $15 to cover "processing costs" the outfit would send all the information he needs to get the money. You got to know, the preacher said, that letter went to ever Jones, Smith and Johnson over 70 year old that the outfit could buy computer mailing lists of. Farthermore, he said, you know the information they would get would be a computer print of all the dead Joneses, Smiths and Johnsons the outfit needs to prove it performed a service.

It's a crying shame, the preacher said, the way old folks are took advantage of. He wondered how many that got that letter took it to be official business and that they had to do what it said. He was of a mind that the Government ought to keep old folks from being victims of these ripoff artists in Government clothes.

Usual, the fellers wait til the preacher leaves before they tear down what he builds. But Bug Hookum told him to his face that he was way off base with his gripe. The fine print is part of the game, Bug said, because old eyes ain't as sharp as young ones, but greed is no respecter of age. The only reason anybody would send the outfit $15 is in hope of getting a big return on the money. Bug allowed, and the pitch is the same as insurance companies that want all ages to think they're hooked up with the Government when they offer deals only veterans can get without medical exams and low rates guaranteed for life.

Farthermore, Bug went on, the game is the same in all them "extra income" classifieds in all the papers.

You send money to a outfit that says you can pick up big money addressing envelopes, and you get a computer list of all the big companies that do a lot of mailing. There allus is a outside chance, Bug said, one of em might need some help licking stamps.

Contrary, Clem Webster said old folks need all the help they can get, and he stood foursquare for deals they can get. Life shows how unfair it can be the older you get, Clem said, so when a feller's income is least is when he needs the highest priced medical attention. Fer instant, he read recent about a drug that shows promise of helping victims of Alzheimers Disease. The catch is, it might dissolve the liver, and if the Government makes the company do two more year of reserch on side effects the cost of the drug will put it out of reach of ordinary folks. It's another old folks tradeoff, Clem said, do they give up their liver to save their brain, or vice versa.

Ed never got to his clippings. It took the rest of the session to agree that if folks want to make a hobby of being old, what's the harm.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

School Board Sets Millage, Narrows List of Construction Firms

Chelsea Board of Education approved a total levy of 37.5785 mills for the 1991-92 school year at their regular meeting Monday night.

The millage represents 35.7785 mills in operating millage and 1.8 mills in debt retirement. Total voted millage is 40.62 mills, but the reduction represents the effect of the Headlee Amendment.

Total millage for this year is a decrease of .3792 mills from 1990. The budget for 1991-92 is $12,386,156, an increase of 4.56 percent over last year's budget of $11,855,722.

In other board business Monday, O'Neal Construction of Ann Arbor and Granger Construction of Lansing were selected as finalists for construction manager for the district's proposed $23.75 million renovation and construction project. One of them will be hired if voters approve the bond issue Sept. 23. Assistant superintendent Fred Mills plans to have a final recommendation for the board's Sept. 9 meeting.

The board authorized an increase to $3 for adult tickets to varsity athletic contests. The increase puts Chelsea on par with other districts in the Southeastern Conference. All other ticket prices remain the same.

Lunch prices were not raised this year. Prices remain at $1.50 for students, $2.25 for adults, 25 cents for milk, and 40 cents for reduced-price meals.

Tracy Cattell-Heydlauff was hired as a fifth grade teacher to take the place of Bob Bullock, who resigned to become a principal in Grass Lake. She was Bullock's student teacher last year. Her starting salary is $28,708.

Sex Education Committee reported that it is still meeting to make changes to the district's sex education curriculum. The 13-member committee is still reviewing available videotapes on the subject.

The board accepted the resignation of Beach Middle school special education teacher Patricia Dowker, who took another teaching job. The position has been posted.

A new agreement to provide lunches to the Manchester Community Schools was approved. The district charges $1.30 per lunch but does not provide serving staff or milk. Mills said the program is a "slight money-maker" for the district.

ZOZOBRA GALLERY has opened downtown under the guidance of Chris Roberts-Antieau of Ann Arbor. She's been a professional artist for eight years and has a studio over the Woodshed Eatery. Her works are sold in galleries nation-wide.

Zozobra Art Gallery Opens Featuring American Primitive Art

Chelsea's first art gallery, called Zozobra Gallery, has opened next to Murph's Barber Shop on S. Main St.

Ann Arbor resident Chris Roberts-Antieau is the artist in residence. She specializes in what she calls "primitive art" in her own color pencil drawings and two-dimensional fiber pieces. The gallery is also selling works by other established artists whose work runs in the same vein. She describes the gallery as having American craft and folk art. The description may be a little misleading to area residents who associate those words with crafts shows that feature quilts, carved decoys, and other items. Work in the Zozobra Gallery, beginning with the commissioned front door, probably looks like nothing most people here have ever seen. It looks vaguely southwestern (a description Roberts-Antieau dislikes), vaguely Mexican, and vaguely American Indian, and may, at least in spirit, be a second-cousin to items up the street in Maya Place.

The word, Zozobra, Roberts-Antieau says, originated in Santa Fe, N.M. There, local artisans build an enormous creature out of papier mache, chicken wire and paint. At sunset, whoever has a problem or concern writes it down and puts it under the creature. After dark, the creature is set afire, symbolically taking all the written fears with it.

Roberts-Antieau, who admits she is primarily self-taught, sold her first work about eight years ago.

"I probably spent 22 hours on it and got $45 for it," she recalls.

Most recently she has worked out of her studio over the Woodshed Eatery just a couple of doors down. She says she sells her work to galleries in major cities all over the country with help from the American Craft Council. Her work is also sold in Japan. Many of the artists she has recruited to sell their art in her gallery are friends "who do work I absolutely love," and work in primitive art. Some of the artists include Graceann Warn of Ann Arbor, Judith O'Connor of Wyoming, and Daniel Hale. Items for sale include drawings, pottery, and small wood carvings, and many can be purchased as investments, Roberts-Antieau says. She says more than a dozen artists have agreed to keep supplying the gallery.

Roberts-Antieau hopes the gallery makes money, but she'll rely more on the nation-wide sale of her own art.

"It's important to me," she says of her reason for opening the gallery.

"I believe in it. I want to bring as much joy, thought, and humor into the world as I can. Everything here has a strong spirit and is very accessible. I like art to be understood, related to, and used."

Ann Watkins will manage the gallery while Roberts-Antieau spends time in her studio. Julia Glich and Cynthia Royal of Ann Arbor will also work in the gallery. Hours are 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., Tuesday through Thursday, and 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday. She plans to stay open to 11 p.m. every Friday there is a performance at the Garage Theatre.

Roberts-Antieau and her husband Darryl Antieau, who works at the General Motors Willow Run plant, are planning to build a house on Sylvan Rd. Their son, Noah, will be a junior at Chelsea High school this fall.

BEHIND THE HEADLINES:

Let's Make English Our Official Language

Diversity has always been the hallmark of American society. For example, the U.S. is now home to more than 148 different language groups. However, while English is most commonly used, it's still not our official language.

By Philip C. Clarke
According to U.S. English, a non-partisan, non-profit, public interest organization committed to making English this country's official language, "many of our leaders have followed a well-intentioned but short-sighted policy of accommodating non-English-speaking immigrants in their native languages—rather than helping them to learn English."
"Pursuing this misguided policy," it said, "has created a terrible tragedy. Growing numbers of Americans, especially recent immigrants, don't know English and have been led to believe it isn't necessary. Non-English speaking children in our schools are taught in their native languages while English instruction is neglected. And poor-paying jobs, discrimination and segregation await those who cannot speak English."

U.S. English, which claims a membership of more than 400,000, was founded eight years ago by former U.S. Senator and professor,

S.I. Hayakawa. Of Japanese ancestry, Hayakawa emigrated from Canada to California where he taught at Berkeley, urging greater emphasis on English as the "social glue" binding Americans together. Citing his own example, he said: "Learning English opens the golden door to opportunity."

As junior Senator from California from 1978 to 1982, Hayakawa introduced an amendment to make English "the official language of the United States." It failed to win the necessary Congressional support, but recently was revived in both the Senate and the House. As introduced by Senator Richard Shelby, the Alabama Democrat, and Rep. William Emerson, Republican of Missouri, the identical bills declare that federal government has "an affirmative obligation to protect, preserve and enhance the role of English as the official language of the U.S."

Supporters concede they face an uphill fight against special interest groups such as the influential National Education Association. U.S. English charges that the NEA has "a vested interest in continuing unproven bilingual teaching programs," adding that it "lobbied hard to keep Sen. Hayakawa's Amendment bottled up in Congress." Also opposed to making English our official language are growing numbers of so-called "multiculturalists" who have succeeded in downgrading Western culture in favor of ethnic and minority studies at many of our leading colleges and universities.

In a recent report, U.S. English cited examples of how our common language has been diluted in importance. In California alone, it said, public schools now provide instruction in at least 42 different languages. And some 30 states give drivers' license exams in languages other than English. On the political front, a total of 375 U.S. voting districts are required to provide ballots and other election material in foreign languages, even though people can take translators into the booth or vote by absentee ballot.

"The question remains," said U.S. English, "does this encourage true participatory democracy by an informed electorate?" The "real victims," it added, "are our non-English-speaking immigrants and their children. Isolated from the rest of the nation, they are doomed to illiteracy and poverty. Worse, they are easy prey for economic and political exploitation."

Nonetheless, U.S. English reports some progress toward reform. Before 1983 (when the organization was founded), "only four states had made English their official language. Today, the number is 18. And since 1983, Congress has adopted proposals to limit bilingual education to no more than three years for any child, and has increased funds for innovative programs to teach English to immigrant children. As for public opinion, in January, 1991 Gallup/U.S. English survey showed that 78 percent of Americans favor English as our official language.

YOU & YOUR PET

★ Worms and Your Pet

Intestinal parasites of any type in pets are serious problems. They may cause chronic debilitation of dogs and cats, and can be fatal. Since some of the parasites that affect pets can also be passed to humans, it is important to diagnose and treat them right away. Routine use of "once a month" wormers from the supermarket is not generally recommended. First, all wormers are low-grade poisons and should only be given if necessary. Second, these commercial wormers may not affect the specific parasite infesting your pet.

Animals with worms may pass them in the stool, have diarrhea or blood in the stool, or lose weight. It is important to take a stool sample to your veterinarian for microscopic examination when you first bring your new pet home. Worm eggs will show up in the stool, even when the worms themselves aren't being passed. Stool samples should then be checked annually and whenever you suspect a problem. The following intestinal parasites are common to pets in this area.

Roundworms...

Many puppies and kittens are born with roundworms, also called ascarids. Roundworms are white and three to four inches long. They are usually transmitted to the baby animals by the mother before birth. Puppies and kittens with roundworms may exhibit the characteristic "pot belly," and may pass the worms in either stool or vomit. Adult animals may acquire roundworms by eating contaminated soil, grass, or other items. If you see roundworms from your pet, your veterinarian can prescribe medication that will rid the animal of the worms in just two or three doses.

Hookworms...

Hookworms are very serious parasites. They are common killers of puppies and kittens. It is rare to actually see a hookworm in your pet's stool, as the worm is nearly as thin as a strand of hair, white, and only half an inch long. Baby animals can be born with hookworms, and adults can acquire them by stepping on eggs or ingesting larvae. Hookworms attach themselves to the intestines of the animal and absorb blood. When they move, they leave behind intestinal sores that cause serious blood loss. Again, a veterinarian can prescribe medication that will kill the hookworms over a period of several weeks. Sanitizing the areas that the pet has contaminated is very important to prevent reinfection. Currently, some types of heartworm preventive medication will also prevent hookworms in dogs.

Tapeworms, whipworms, coccidia, and heartworms are other common internal parasites of pets that will be discussed in an upcoming column.

Fairgoers Can Mix Farming With Fun

County fairgoers can grab a corn dog, check out prize-winning livestock and crops, take in the midway and cap off the evening with a dose of demolition derby, wrestling or music.

That's a typical agenda for many of the 90 county fairs scattered throughout the state, according to AAA Michigan.

When the last fair ends Sept. 28, more than 5 million visitors will have viewed exhibits, purchased hand-crafted items and consumed cotton candy.

The county fair tradition in Michigan dates back to the mid-1800s. The first fairs provided a market place for farm products by bringing producers and buyers together.

Through the years, the fair has become more of a celebration and social occasion for a community. But agriculture remains an integral part of the event with fair organizers placing increased emphasis on 4-H exhibits and livestock and crop judging.

Fair attendance varies from a couple thousand to a half-million visitors, while activities range from well-known entertainers to water balloon tosses. About 40 of the fairs offer harness racing.

Here's a sampling of big, medium and small fairs state-wide:

Ionia Free Fair—This fair draws upward of 500,000 people by combining big-name entertainment, free admission and the traditional agricultural displays and contests. Musical groups Alabama and REO Speedwagon performed during the July 26-Aug. 4 fair.

Saginaw Fair—Another well-attended event, this fair features the Simpsons, championship demolition derby, a musical comedy with "animaltronic" characters and a 1940-era steam-powered Ferris wheel. The Sept. 7-14 fair also includes an agricultural awareness display spotlighting the sugar-beet.

Genesee County Fair—Two rodeo shows, tractor pull, demolition derby and Larry Gatlin and the Gatlin Brothers highlight this Aug. 12-18 fair. A petting zoo, dog show and pig races round out the agenda.

Chippewa County Fair—A large 4-H exhibit area along with tractor pulls and mud runs draw crowds. About 60 antique exhibitors will display their wares during the Aug. 27-Sept. 2 fair in Kinross.

Wayne County Fair—The Contours performing music from the movie "Dirty Dancing," racing pigs, a monster truck show and cutest baby contest were among activities during the Aug. 6-10 fair in Belleville.

Chelsea Community Fair—Termed the biggest community fair in Michigan, the 54th annual event is still oriented toward agriculture with a generous share of entertainment included. The Aug. 20-25 fair features two evenings of demolition derby, MRA motocross, tractor pulls, ladies day program, a giant fair parade, along with the livestock exhibits and auctions.

Allegan County Fair—A rock 'n roll drive-in, Johnny Cash and Garth Brooks are part of the entertainment package at the 139th version of this fair. A fair parade also highlights the Sept. 6-14 event.

Lenawee County Fair—Willie Nelson, George Jones and the Jones Boys and the Oak Ridge Boys take to the stage at the Aug. 11-17 fair in Adrian.

Presque Isle County Fair—A representative said this "little tiny fair" plans to add a few large animals and a horse pull to this year's agenda Sept. 5-8. The fair runs in conjunction with the Posen Potato Festival.

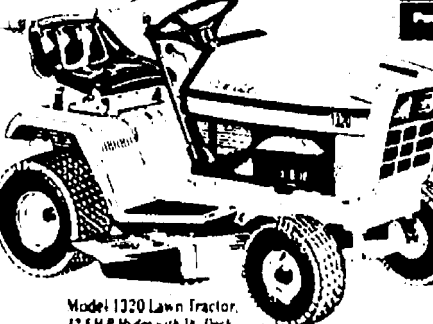

Northwestern Michigan Fair—This

Highest Call

HIGHEST CALL, a musical outreach of Elim Fellowship, will share in a mini concert in each of the morning worship services, 8:30 and 11:00 a.m. on Sunday, September 1, at the Chelsea Free Methodist Church. Elim Fellowship is located on the campus of Elim Bible Institute in the western New York State town of Lima.

The primary purpose of their music is to lift up the name of Jesus and to minister to the Lord. Their praise songs encompass a wide variety of musical styles from traditional hymns to the more contemporary praise choruses, reflecting the rich heritage of sacred music available to believers today.

HIGHEST CALL has ministered overseas in England and Scotland as well as in Spain, having learned all of their songs in Spanish. They also minister on college campuses and local churches, approximately 200 churches each year. Each member of HIGHEST CALL has had previous ministry experience and has a strong desire to share the love and grace of our Lord Jesus Christ to a needy world.

The Chelsea Free Methodist Church is located at 7665 Werkner Rd., Chelsea. Everyone is welcome. For further information, please call (313) 475-1391.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

Having read about the proposals for additional tax monies to finance a host of expansion and repair projects, we remain skeptical. Until it can be shown that:

1. the need for capital expansion is absolutely clear; and
2. that all reasonable alternatives have been thoroughly investigated and rejected; and

3. that the proposed programs will directly improve the ACADEMIC education of Chelsea students:

we are persuaded to "just say 'No'" on Sept. 23.

Only a few short years ago, Chelsea had surplus class space. What if current elementary enrollment (reportedly on the rise) is merely a temporary increase?

Constantly, we read of school districts which must close elementary schools and consolidate to save costs. If expansion is required, why even consider an entirely new site if expansion of either North or South school is possible? Shouldn't the long term direction be to consolidate, so that large facilities could handle "spikes" in classes?

Many school districts are trying innovative ways to use their facilities for all 12 months of the year. As close as Plymouth, parents and teachers alike found they could accommodate 25% more students and get better results with a full year schedule. Has our school board considered expanding the schedule instead of our tax bills?

We are interested in quality education. Yet we see a high school unlike any other we know of, in that our students regularly brave the elements between classes, with highly controlled access to their lockers. Yet the superintendent and school board apparently have not found some money within $23 million to fix an incredible architectural blunder of the past.

In our judgment, having sent six children to elementary, middle and high school in the Chelsea system, we found the education to be as good as the teachers. Most of the time that turned out to be very good. If we believed that additional tax money was going to make education (not sports) even better, we would vote "Yes."

The proposed bond issue is an all-or-nothing affair which lumps improved computer education facilities with building a new gymnasium. If it is defeated by the voters, a reduced proposal will be coupled with the "Eliminate Sports" threat. This will mobilize a dedicated band of frantic students and parents to get out the maximum number of "Yes" votes.

Instead, why not take the effort to put in writing, in The Standard, a detailed explanation of each sub-proposal, including the cost, alternatives considered and expected educational benefits? Include a proposal to finish the high school by enclosing the walkways. Consider expanding the schedule rather than adding new buildings. Take a survey of which proposals the voters favor. Make a real effort to determine how voters feel about each of the proposals. Try democracy—it's catching on!

We are fed up with taxes. We have seen yearly property tax increases of more than 10%/year when inflation has been 4 to 6%. Officials act as if the Headlee Amendment (supposed to limit property taxes to the rate of inflation) were nothing more than an obstacle to work around. Also, two new malls recently were constructed, and no explanation has been offered to show us how the resultant additional tax revenues have been spent. Before we vote to increase taxes, please tell us: how large are recent tax revenue increases and how have they been spent?

Perhaps our school board is a little out of date. The eighties were the decade where we borrowed and spent, spent, spent. Now is the time to live within our means, and develop realistic, affordable and innovative solutions to our problems.

To the Editor,

With the school election coming up, I have a few questions, and being kind of dumb, I don't have the answers. Perhaps someone will quit playing loose with the truth, and give some straight answers.

Supposing, God forbid, all of it passes, do we have to have another vote for desks, etc., oh! I suppose there will be teachers, probably have to hire some; gee, there is the cost of lights and heat, telephones. I guess it will need someone to clean all these new buildings, or do we just let it pile up. Golly, it will probably take an administrator, and some assistants, secretary or two. Who is going to pay for all of this? Won't it cost quite a lot? Will there have to be a new election? Won't the operating costs be more than the bonds to build the schools?

How about those of us just getting by on retirement? Where will we go to get more money to pay new taxes? What we have is all we will ever have, and while I can't take it with me, I sure don't want to lose what I've worked all these years to get, before I'm ready to go.

I keep hearing, oh it's only a few cents a day; well, a few cents when you don't have them are the same as dollars.

Lay it all out on the table, what is the true cost, and aren't you trying to beat the time when you have to go to the state for money instead of a bunch of local yokels?

Roland J. Helm.

To the Editor:

Before the end of the summer, I would like to congratulate the Chelsea Education Foundation on the superb job they did in organizing WRAP (Waterloo Recreation Area Program) in late July.

The program, open to children in grades K through 12, lasted for one week (unfortunately, I wish it had gone on all summer!)

My son, who is six years old, got eagerly on the bus the first day and looked forward to going every morning of that week. He was full of information about all he had learned every night, and when asked "What did you do today," never responded with the classic "nothing."

I think a big thank you is deserved to the Foundation itself for initiating the program, and a huge vote of appreciation to all of the volunteers who gave freely of their time and energy to teach these kids all about the environment and the world we live in. I hope that we will be able to participate next year.

Q. I have been intrigued by the idea of owning municipal bonds. The idea of tax-free income and the possibility of also enjoying a capital gain appeals to me. What are your thoughts on municipal bonds as investments?

A. Municipal bonds are fixed income debt securities issued by states, cities and other municipalities. The interest from municipal bonds is usually free of federal income tax and state and local income taxes in the state in which they are issued.

There is an excellent article, "Everything You Wanted to Know About Municipal Bonds . . . But Were Afraid to Ask" by William Sullivan of Money Sense published in June 1991 issue of Better Investing magazine.

In investing "there is no such thing as a free lunch." The yield on most municipal bonds is not competitive with after-tax yields on corporate bonds of similar maturity.

To determine if the after-tax yield is attractive, look at your average tax rate. The federal tax rate for married individuals is 15% up to $32,450 and 28% from $32,450 to $78,400. A married person with a taxable income (after deductions) of $50,000 pays a 19.6% federal tax rate. Thus 80.4% (100-19.6%) of taxable interest is retained. Therefore, for a tax-free investment to yield more after taxes, the municipal bond has to have a taxable equivalent yield higher than a taxable yield.

Typically a tax-exempt bond maturing in 1/1/2015 yields 7.07%. That's equivalent to 7.07% divided by (1-.196) or 8.8%, taxable equivalent yield. A U.S. Treasury bond of similar maturity yields 8.75%.

U.S. Treasury bonds are of superior quality and have better marketability. Each individual issue has to be evaluated on the basis of the investor's tax rate, the taxable equivalent yield, the quality of the municipal bond, call provisions and marketability.

The real "fly in the ointment" is that fixed income securities offer no protection against inflation.

Capital gains potential for bonds is dependent on the changes in interest rates, a very difficult factor to predict. Bond prices decline as interest rates rise, and rise as interest rates decline. The odds of accurately predicting interest rates are very slim.

Livestock Auction Sets Several Sales Records

If prices paid at the annual Chelsea Community Fair Livestock Auction are any indication of economic conditions in general, the Chelsea area seems to be in pretty good shape.

Although there were fewer buyers in the audience, both individual and total prices paid for animals set all-time records last Thursday.

Total sale was $87,982.30, a record. The total was up from last year's $73,826.10, even though at 140 animals there were 10 fewer than last year.

This year, 38 steers, 68 lambs, and 34 hogs were sold.

Jason Bradbury's grand champion lamb commanded a record price of $15.50 per pound, easily eclipsing the 1989 mark of $12.25. Lane Animal Hospital outbid Gina's Cafe in one of the most spirited bidding wars in recent memory. Lane hospital helped set the previous record.

The champion lamb was donated back to the Chelsea Community Fair in memory of Charles Trinkle, who died earlier this year. It was resold to Chelsea Industries for $11 per pound. In fact, two other animals were donated in memory of Trinkle over the course of the auction.

Lane Animal Hospital also purchased Amy McCalla's grand champion hog for $4 per pound, although it fell short of the $6 paid in 1983 for Kevin Heller's hog.

The grand champion and reserve champion steers also brought record prices.

Chelsea Big Boy purchased Sarah Edman's 1,205-pound grand champion for $3.25 per pound. Then, in an unusual set of circumstances, The Common Grill purchased Jon Herrst's 1,175-pound reserve champion for $3.50 per pound. The previous high for the champion was $3 per pound paid by Chelsea McDonald's for Matt Grau's steer in 1983. The previous high for the reserve champion was $1.90 paid by Polly's Market for Steve Grau's animal in 1982.

Other animal owners, weights, prices, and buyers follow.

JASON BRADBURY'S grand champion lamb fetched a record price of $15.50 per pound during last Thursday's annual livestock auction at the fair. Lane Animal Hospital purchased the animal, breaking a price of $12.25 it helped

CRAIG COMMON, owner of the Common Grill, had his first experience with the Chelsea fair livestock auction this year, but he got involved in a big way. Common paid a record price of $3.50 per pound for the reserve champion, owned by Jon Herrst, right. Center is fair queen candidate Tara Roehm.

THANK YOU

The Chelsea Community Fair was a great success this year. We extend our appreciation to the Board of Directors, Superintendents and their assistants, and all volunteers who provided help and support during the week-long event. The Chelsea Fire Department and the Chelsea Police Department also offered invaluable assistance. We send our thanks to the members of our local communities for their attendance and support. We appreciate the efforts of everyone involved, and look forward to continued success in 1992.

Sincerely, CHELSEA COMMUNITY FAIR

Chelsea Boy Runners Should Improve Greatly During Season

Chelsea Bulldogs cross country coach Pat Clarke starts his 21st season with five letter-winners and a lot of inexperience.

"We'll be very young and inexperienced, but we do have some talent and we will improve dramatically as the season progresses," Clarke said.

Senior co-captains Rob Jaques and Mike Reese lead the group of letter-winners. Jaques was injured most of last season but has looked fine so far this year, Clarke said. He said Reese is a talented runner who could help tremendously as the season progresses.

Top returning runner is junior Dan Zatkovich. He was the team's number three runner last season but looks much stronger this season, Clarke said.

The two other experienced runners include Tobin Strong and David Sayer.

Juniors J.J. Hanke and Mike Kennedy, and sophomore Dan Alber are some of last season's junior varsity runners who "have made great progress in the off-season," Clarke said. Newcomers who could help are sophomores Chris Leatham and Jim Bennett.

Twelve freshmen are also on the team, and Clarke calls it one of the deepest and most talented classes he has ever had. The freshmen include Brian Atlee, Jim Bergman, Chad Brown, Ryan Dunlap, Eric LeFurge, Scott Hawley, Kevin Kolodica, Nick Kramer, Josh Metzler, Mike Peterson, Ryan Schultz, and Gabe White.

Clarke says four teams have a shot at the Southeastern Conference Title—Tecumseh Indians, Dexter Dreadnaughts, Lincoln Railsplitters, and Saline Hornets.

Defending co-champion Tecumseh returns almost its entire team. Regional runner-up Saline returns almost everyone, and Dexter has two state qualifiers. Lincoln had a young team last year and could contend.

Defending co-champion Pinckney is rebuilding, as is Milan, although the Big Reds have two top runners.

Clarke predicted an up and down season for the young Bulldogs, but said they could be very competitive by the end of the season.

Bulldogs Girl Runners Could Be Best Ever Here

Last year the question was, can the Bulldog girls repeat as state cross country champions.

The championship didn't materialize, but this year Bulldog followers are wondering, just how good can the girls be this year?

Coach Pat Clarke had potentially the best team he's ever had here.

"We have almost everybody back from a team that was ranked number one last year," said Clarke said.

"What else can I say?"

As an example, junior Val Bullock, an all-stater last season who is running faster now than she did at this time last year, is the team's sixth runner. It's possible Clarke could have a handful of all-staters.

Leading the group of veterans are tri-captains Charity Allen, Carmen Smith, both seniors, and junior Lisa Monti.

Allen was all-Southeastern Conference and all-region last year and has put in a good effort during the off-season, Clarke said.

Smith is a four-year veteran who should provide great leadership, Clarke said.

Monti is one of the top distance runners in the state. She was league and region champion last year and was an all-stater for the second time.

Other veterans Clarke is counting on include Bullock, junior all-SEC runner Beth Williams, juniors Jessica Holton, Tracey Wales, Sarah Brosnan, and Marie Kramer, and sophomores Beth Bell, Emily Anderson, and Sarah Henry.

Virtually any of the sophomore or junior runners could wind up on the varsity during the season.

Newcomers who could help are senior Lauren Sparaco and juniors Laura Paton and Linda Schaeffer.

The freshman class is also strong,

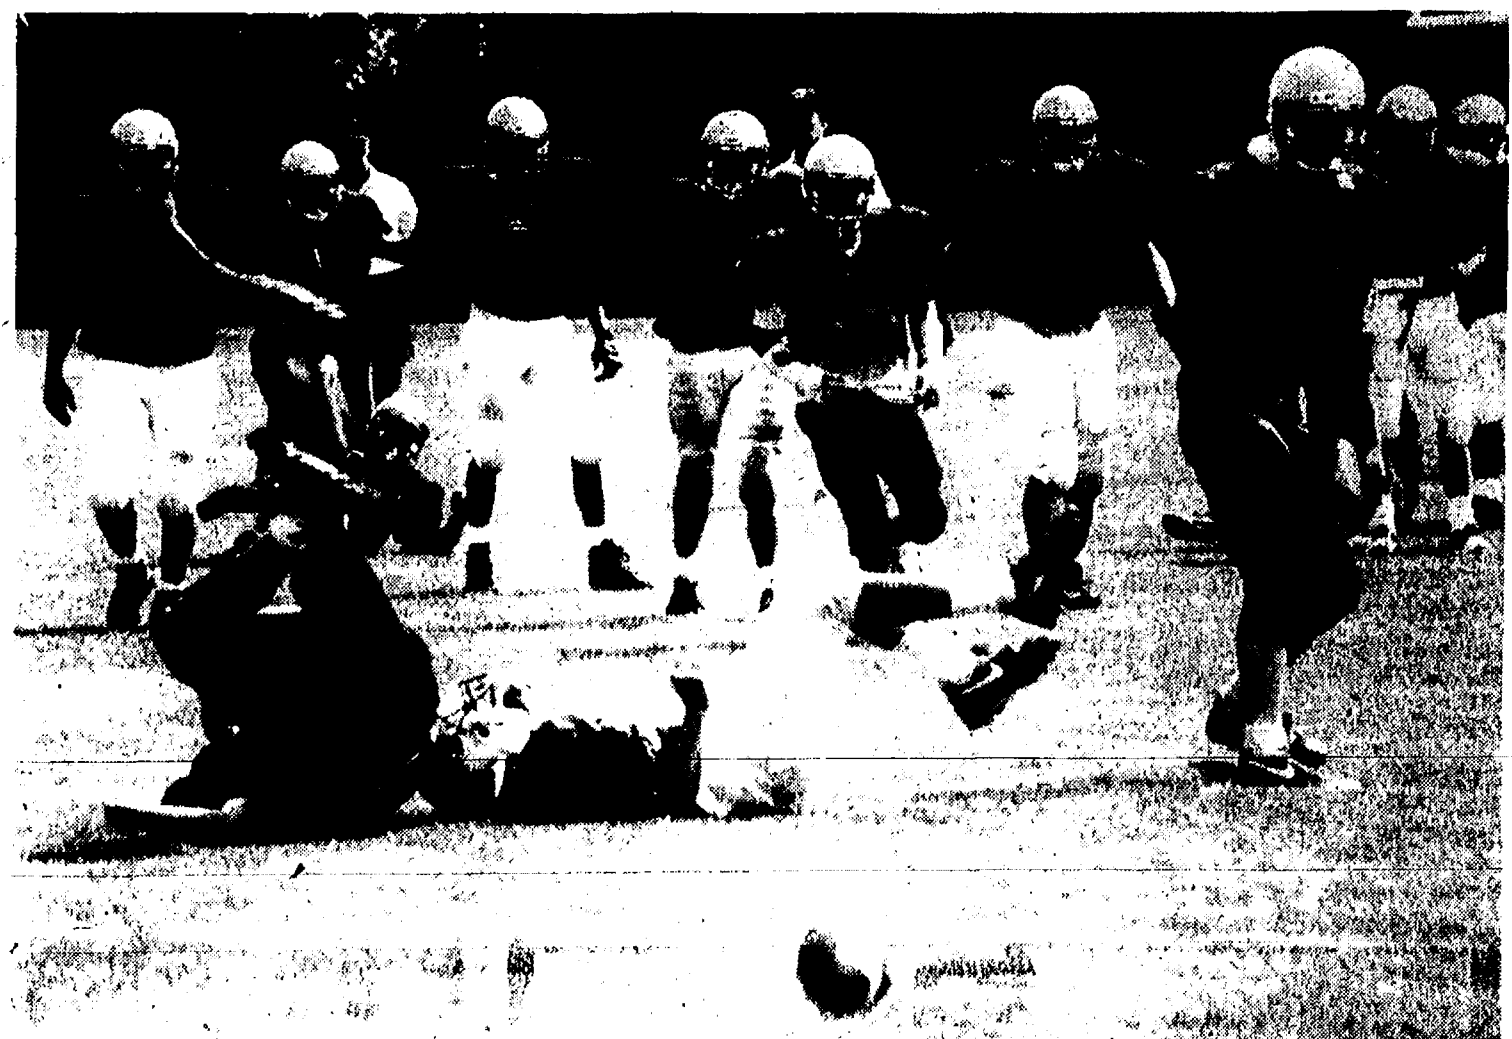

Clarke said, and will eventually produce some fine varsity runners. They include Aimee Ellison, Rosanna Gray-Lion, Molly Griebel, Erica Leiter, Robin Phelps, and Sarah Schick.

Clarke said the Southeastern Conference again looks like a strong conference. Last year four teams were ranked in the top 20 and he said this year looks similar.

Saline returns almost everyone from a state-ranked team. Tecumseh also returns almost everyone from a fourth place regional team. Milan also has many veterans from a team that placed 17th in the state. Dexter could also be strong, but Pinckney and Lincoln are rebuilding, Clarke said.

"It looks as though our girls are focused and ready to start the season in good shape," Clarke said.

Chelsea opens at the Bath Invitational next Saturday.

CHELSEA BULLDOGS FOOTBALL TEAM scrimmaged Manchester last Friday at home in its first action. Here, a pass for receiver Colby Skelton is batted away.

MOUTHGUARDS: NOT JUST FOR FOOTBALL!

Protective mouthguards, usually associated with football and other contact sports, can prevent injuries in a wide variety of other activities as well according to the American Dental Association. Almost any vigorous sport can cause injuries to your teeth, lips, cheeks, and tongue. Hazardous falls, jaw clenching, or flying pieces of equipment can all lead to injuries that could be easily prevented with a mouth guard. The ADA lists the following sports as those where mouth protection is beneficial:

Basketball	Field Hockey	Ice Hockey	Rugby	Skydiving	Volleyball
Bicycling	Football	Lacrosse	Shotputting	Soccer	Water Polo
Boxing	Gymnastics	Marital Arts	Skateboarding	Squash	Weightlifting
Discus Throwing	Handball	Racquetball	Skiing	Surfing	Wrestling

A single, well-constructed mouth protector can be used with any of these sports and they are relatively inexpensive. Mouth protectors may be either ready made (stock), mouth formed, or custom made. A custom made protector, one which is made by your dentist from a model of your mouth, is the most satisfactory of the three types. It provides exceptionally good fit, comfort, and quality, and does not interfere with breathing.

And mouth protectors aren't just for boys either. Studies show that females are susceptible to injuries like those that male athletes receive in similar sports. These injuries can lead to permanent tooth loss and even facial disfigurement—so why risk it?

1991 FAIR QUEEN Rebecca Dehring had a little trouble keeping her tiara from sliding off her head after she was crowned last Friday night at the fair. Dehring beat out seven other candidates for the title.

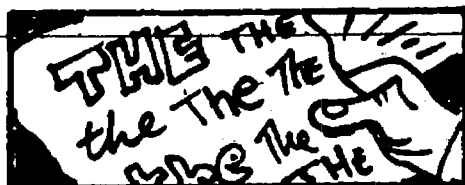

1990 FAIR QUEEN Roxanne (Shears) Blaess spoke to the crowd at the fair queen program last Friday. She won the title as a freshman. She now lives in Saline.

The first American student to work his way through college was Zechariah Bridgen, 14, who graduated from Harvard in 1657. He earned money by "ringing the bell and waytinge."

The U.S. Department of Agriculture says that about three-fourths of the nation's farm operators had off-farm income in 1988, the latest reporting year. Jobs accounted for 65 percent of the off-farm income and the remainder came from investments, Social Security payments and other sources.

"The" is the most commonly used word in written English.

TARA ROEHM sang "The Rose" for the fair queen competition. Roehm, sponsored by the Chelsea High school senior class, finished second runner-up.

Questions are often asked by residents about the Chelsea schools that deserve a wide circulation. The Chelsea Standard has agreed to publish this column several times during the year to provide information to the residents of the Chelsea School District.

Q. WHERE AND WHEN CAN I GET ANSWERS TO MY QUESTIONS ON THE BOND ISSUE?

The following meetings have been scheduled at each building to discuss the upcoming bond issue:

Tuesday, Sept. 3—High School Parent Meeting, Media Center, 7:30 p.m.

Thursday, Sept. 12—North School PTN Meeting, Media Center, 7:30 p.m.

Monday, Sept. 16—South School PTS Meeting, Media Center, 7:30 p.m.

Thursday, Sept. 19—Beach Middle School Parent Meeting, Conference Room, 9:30 a.m.

Any citizen who would like to walk through the existing facilities to review what will be done at each building can do so on the following dates and times:

Thursday, Sept. 5—6:00-7:30 p.m., meeting in Board Room, Administration Building, High School.

Wednesday, Sept. 11—9:30-11:00 a.m., Dialogue Meeting, Meet at High School, Board Room, Administration Building.

Q. IS THERE A DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A BOND ISSUE ELECTION AND A MILLAGE ELECTION?

Yes! The funds generated through a bond issue can be used only for the specific building projects outlined on the ballot. Bond funds can't be used for the daily operation of the school district and its programs.

Secondly, a bond issue is for a specific amount that will be paid back over a specific number of years. Our bond issue is for $23,750,000, and only that amount of money can be spent for all of the projects outlined in the ballot proposal. Although we are not allowed to state on the ballot the number of mills needed to generate the $23,750,000 and to retire bonds, we estimate it will take 2.35 mills.

BONDING PROPOSITION

Shall Chelsea School District, Washtenaw and Jackson Counties, Michigan, borrow the sum of not to exceed Twenty-Three Million Seven Hundred Fifty Thousand Dollar ($23,750,000) and issue its general obligation unlimited tax bonds therefor, for the purpose of:

- erecting, furnishing and equipping a new elementary school and acquiring a site therefor;
- partially remodeling and partially re-equipping the North Elementary School, South Elementary School and Beach Middle School;
- erecting, furnishing and equipping additions to and partially remodeling and partially re-equipping the high school facility; and
- constructing, equipping and improving playgrounds, outdoor physical education and athletic facilities, and developing and improving sites?

Fair Parade Brings Out the Crowds

CHELSEA COMMUNITY FAIR BOARD took a short, but much-deserved break as they rode in the Chelsea Fair Parade last Saturday afternoon. The annual fair probably set an attendance record.

FARMERS SUPPLY had the winning float in the adult division of the Chelsea Fair Parade. The company also had the first-place booth in the merchants barn. From left are Eldean Feldkamp, H.K. Leonard, Jake (the dog), Keith Bradbury, George Pickell and Greg Raye. Not pictured, but on the float, are former owners Anton and Dorothy Nielsen.

STATE CHAMPION Chelsea Bulldogs baseball team rode the fourth-place winning float in last Saturday's Chelsea Fair Parade. The team won the class B state title in June for the first time in school history.

SAFE RIDES float placed third in the youth division of the Chelsea fair parade last Saturday. The organization provides confidential rides home for teens who have been drinking. Tina Blackford was the organization's candidate for fair queen.

CHELSEA SHOPPING CENTER float placed third in the adult division of the Chelsea fair parade last Saturday. The float featured props from the various businesses in the mall.

FEW ATTRACTIONS in Saturday's fair parade drew Round Farm in Gregory. Kids all along the route wanted as much attention as "Clyde" the camel from Merry-Go-to touch the animal, and Clyde was happy to oblige.

CHELSEA HIGH SCHOOL SOPHOMORE CLASS float featured a hot air balloon to signify the ascendancy of the class. Fair queen candidate Theresa Royce was the center of attention.

TOP PRIZE in the youth float division of the Chelsea fair parade went to the Chelsea High School Junior Class. The float featured an eagle with moving eyes and wings. In the center is fair queen candidate Beth Williams.

LLOYD GRAU, long-time Chelsea Fair Board member, school board member, and area farmer, was the Chelsea Fair Parade Marshal last Saturday. With him is his wife, Arlene.

Thefts Reported in Western Washtenaw

A total of $15,900 in items were reported stolen, and $1,700 damage done, at Independent Heat Treat on Dexter-Chelsea Rd., according to a report filed by deputy M. Randolph of the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department.

The incident was reported at 11:39 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 20.

Among the missing items were an estimated $7,500 worth of scrap metal (10,000 pounds), a Toshiba copier valued at $2,200, an electric typewriter with estimated value of $700, a Panasonic printer, computer and screen valued at $4,200, a $2,500 facsimile machine and $800 worth of telephones, in addition to six diamond-tip drill bits.

A computer heating monitor with estimated $1,500 value was destroyed, and a $200 window pane, during the break-in.

Deputy Ron Blackwell investigated a break-in reported during the past few days at a home on Roe Rd. in Lyndon township.

The intruder(s) apparently entered the home after prying a kitchen window.

An older model red panel van pulling a trailer was observed in the area prior to the discovery of the breaking and entering.

Occupants were reportedly looking for old car batteries.

In addition to a long list of other items, a yellow tool-box containing an assortment of tools, and a Kirby vacuum cleaner were taken from the home, as well as three television sets.

Anyone who may also have observed the red panel van with the trailer, and who might have any information which might help solve the break-in is asked to contact Cpl. Dave Miley, newly designated co-ordinator for the crime prevention unit, or any of the other officers at the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department.
