Postmaster Larry Williams Retires After 21 Years in Chelsea Office

Larry Williams spent his last day on the job as Chelsea postmaster last Friday.

The Munith resident became postmaster in 1983, replacing Dick Schales. He spent 21 years in Chelsea, the first 12 years as assistant to the postmaster. He began his postal service career 32 years ago in Wayne as a city carrier, then clerk.

Williams, 51, took a voluntary retirement offer, part of the postal service's effort to eliminate 30,000 management jobs. There are about 700,000 postal employees nationwide.

"I guess I'd like to do a little handyman type of work," Williams said of his retirement from governmental work. His wife, Patricia, works at Mill Pond Bakery and she will continue there.

"Someone has to bring home the dough," she jokes.

When Williams began here, there were three village routes and three rural routes. Now there are four in the village and five outside and he says the rural area "continues to boom."

But the major change since he started, he said, has been the increase in automation. It will keep the local post office from adding more routes, and it should also allow the service to stay in its current building at the corner of Main and South Sts. for many years.

"Fifty percent of the mail comes in directly to the carrier and bypasses the clerk," Williams says.

"By 1995, it will come directly sorted to each customer. The post office will have better service with fewer employees."

Another change is the vast increase in bulk or "junk" mail, which he said now constitutes about 40 percent of the post office's work.

"Bulk mail pays its own way," Williams says.

"It's still a good way to get to the customer."

Assistant postmaster Bill Brenner will take over for Williams until the postal service goes through its hiring process.

School Bond Issue Not Likely Until Late 1993

Chelsea School District voters probably won't see another facilities proposal on the ballot until at least next fall.

The Chelsea Board of Education held a special meeting Saturday to discuss how to proceed with facilities planning.

Last year voters overwhelmingly rejected a $23.5 million plan for extensive renovations and a new early education building.

The next proposal will almost certainly contain plans for renovating North and South Elementary schools and a new elementary school.

However, there is no consensus on how the schools would be configured.

Superintendent Joe Piasecki said the "least likely scenario" would be the construction of another K-5 building, for a number of reasons, including how school boundaries would be set.

However, the new building may not be for early education as was proposed last fall. It could possibly house fourth and fifth grade students instead. Or it could be a K-2 school. A big issue is where to put the pre-school program, which essentially operates on a break-even basis through tuition paid to the Community Education Department.

It's also likely the proposal will include some plans for renovations at Chelsea High school. The industrial arts building needs to be remodeled, science facilities need to be upgraded, and the current locker building will soon be unoccupied, Piasecki said. New lockers have been installed in the high school using part of the dedicated maintenance millage.

Whether a proposal will contain any money for athletic facilities, such as expanded football bleachers or new baseball, softball, and soccer fields, is not known. It does not look like a new gym will be included.

There is some discussion that the Chelsea Athletic Boosters may undertake a major campaign to build a new press box, bathrooms, and concession stands at the football complex. A proposed press box became one of the rallying points against the bond issue last fall.

"I would say the earliest an election will be held is next fall, and even that may be ambitious," Piasecki said.

"We want to have hearings and look at the alternatives. I would not be surprised to see the election sometime after the fall."

Man Stopped Carrying Assault Rifle in Car

Chelsea police stopped a 23-year-old Ann Arbor man on I-94 near Fletcher Rd. who was carrying an AK-47 assault rifle in the back seat of his car.

Police were alerted to the man by a DNR conservation officer. The man was suspected in a littering incident at the Sharon Hollow Shooting Range.

Police said the gun is being tested to see whether it can be made fully automatic, which would make it illegal.

Also in the man's car was a gym bag with two loaded ammunition magazines and one unloaded magazine.

The gun was unloaded.

School Board Considers Purchase of Bus Software, Accepts Two Music Gifts

Chelsea School District is considering the purchase of a computer software system to help with school bus scheduling, route planning, and other matters related to the bus system. Basic bus routes were devised many years ago, and minor changes have been made from year to year to accommodate circumstances.

A suggestion from the administration to hire Edulog Education Logistics, Inc. was tabled Monday night by the Chelsea Board of Education until a few questions are answered.

The company would sell the software for $25,000, plus an annual $2,500 fee for updates. In addition, the board is considering whether to use the company to enter the huge amount of data needed to make the program run. That would cost another $10,000.

The company was recommended after a study by the Washtenaw Intermediate School District, as well as some checking locally. The company serves a number of school districts, both large and small, in Michigan. It is one of about five companies nationwide that offer the service.

In addition to helping the bus system operate more efficiently, the administration believes the software can help the district determine whether changing from a one-tier to a two-tier bus system would make sense. A two-tier system has gotten support lately because it may help the district save money, it would allow the school day to begin and end earlier for high school students, and younger students would not have to ride with older students.

"If the two-tier system is not practical, the system could give suggestions and ideas about making our current system more efficient," said superintendent Joe Piasecki.

"It's my feeling the software would pay for itself in the first year." He said he believes it's inevitable the district will need some kind of outside help.

Piasecki said the board probably needs to make a final decision about the company by next month. The company has said it can generate the necessary reports in about three months. Piasecki said he believes the decision to change to a two-tier system would have to be made by February in order to get it implemented in time for the 1993-94 school year.

"A two-tier system would bring some pretty significant changes and families would need time to plan for the changes," Piasecki said.

Some of the questions to be answered are whether a similar program can be written locally for less money, whether someone would have to be hired to set up and operate the system, and how does the software fit into the master plan for technology of the district.

In other board news from Monday's meeting, a bid of $20,650 was accepted from A.F. Smith & Sons of Ypsilanti to replace lights at the Cameron Pool. Humid conditions there are causing rust problems.

The board accepted two gifts from the Chelsea Music Boosters, a recording system for the high school valued at $2,000 and a tape and disc system for the middle school valued at $1,100.

The board met in executive session for about 20 minutes for "some sensitive discussions with our attorney" as they relate to facilities planning, Piasecki said. He said the reasons for the closed session would likely become public knowledge in about a month.

Union Gets Boost After NLRB Hearing on Chelsea Industries Vote

Chelsea Industries, Inc. has lost the latest round in its effort to keep employees from unionizing.

After a hearing last winter before the National Labor Relations Board, hearing officer Patricia Zane recommended Sept. 30 that all objections filed by the company over last October's union vote be "overruled in their entirety," and that the 75-34 vote in favor of joining the United Auto Workers be allowed to stand.

The maker of auto seat frames and auto trim wire narrowly averted unionization in 1990 by a few votes. The results were contested and a new election was ordered, which was held last year.

The company made five basic charges in its objections. The union intimidated, coerced, and restrained employees in the exercise of their free choice;

The union granted waivers of initiation fees if employees would join the union prior to the election;

The union made substantial and unrealistic promises to the employees if they would join the union;

The union, "through benefits and entertainment," including the purchase of alcohol for employees at union-sponsored events, illegally influenced the vote;

The union engaged in active campaigning at and near the polling area prior to and during the election.

Two employees, Jeff Rudd and Candace Prater, testified on behalf of the union, a number of employees testified on behalf of the company.

"While I do not believe that any of the witnesses took the stand with the intent to deceive, I also conclude that the [company's] witnesses for the most part conveyed, through their testimony and over-all demeanor, their dismay with the election results," Zane wrote.

"This tended to 'shade' their testimony, resulting in generalizations and exaggerations."

Zane also wrote that she found both Rudd and Prater to be credible witnesses.

The report lists a number of infirmities. (Continued on page six)

Candidate Researcher Calls State's Response to Survey a "Failure"
 Michigan Citizens should be outraged at their congressional candidates' failure to articulate their positions on issues which they will face over the next few years if elected, a candidate researcher said last week. Of the 36 Congressional candidates who he said were asked to complete a political awareness test, only 17 met last week's deadline, and of that number, only one incumbent, Rep. Paul Henry of Grand Rapids, responded.

Any responses received by Oct. 23 can still be entered into the data base, but Richard Kimball, president of the board of the Center for National Independence in Politics, said Michigan lagged far behind in its 46 percent response rate, when nationally the average is about 80 percent. The deadline given to Michigan candidates for the return of their information was Sept. 18.

Through the center's Project Vote Smart, some 1,000 federal candidates have been contacted in order to develop a data base through which voters can obtain a wide array of information about persons running for office. But Michigan voters will have a more difficult time, he said, because its candidates' responses have been "outrageous."

"This is a very unusual state," Kimball said. "It's an outrageous turn of events of people... who feel above this. People should be offended by it. They should be insulted by it."

The center and Project Vote Smart are the result, Kimball said, of efforts to provide voters with accurate information. "What it is enables people to do is defend themselves from all this crap. These people... are nothing more than the hired help," he said of candidates. "If you want to vote intelligently today you have to quit your job and go back and study full time."

Kimball said that while participation among candidates across the country is usually around 80 percent, he considers anything below that amount a failure. According to the project's information, only 46 percent of Michigan's candidates responded.

Kimball said the information collected through the project includes biographies, voting records for incumbents, campaign finances and performance evaluations on specific issues. All that information can be collected without the candidate's participation, but the final piece, the political awareness test, must be completed individually. He referred to the test's contents as "what they are being hired to deal with."

The details of the test are derived from several sources, including the State of the Union address, Congressional agendas and public opinion polls in conjunction with two political scientists.

Kimball said while the service assists voters in making choices between candidates, it is also available continuously so people can obtain updates throughout an elected official's term. Having the information available at all times should mean something to the candidates, he said.

"I assume it will come to them as a surprise that this is not a system that goes down on election day," he said.

Kimball said candidates are not only given the test itself, but are also personally contacted several times and asked to complete it. The center has information supporting the contacts, he said, so if a candidate says he or she has never heard of the organization, "that just simply will not be true."

He added that some candidates object to responding because they are asked 12 multiple choice questions and only one open-ended question. Issues covered include taxes, the national debt, trade, program spending, unemployment, defense, health care, education, drugs, environment, abortion and anti-crime/gun control.

"It is not our job to do their campaigns for them," he said. "This is the fairest exam that could possibly have been done."

Those interested in obtaining information from Project Vote Smart can call a toll-free number to speak directly with someone who will respond to their questions. Persons wishing to speak with an operator and obtain information can call 1-800-786-6885.

Candidates meeting the Sept. 18 deadline included the following:

• 1st District: Democrat Bart Stupak, Republican Philip Ruppe; 2nd District: Republican Peter Hoekstra; 3rd District: Democrat Carol Koolstra and Paul Henry, a Republican.

• 5th District: Republican Keith Muzlow; 6th District: Democrat Andy Davis; 7th District: Libertarian Ken Proctor; 8th District: Republican Dick Chrysler; 10th District: Republican Douglas Carl; 11th District: Democrat Walter Briggs and Republican Joseph Knollenberg.

• 12th District: Republican John Pappageorge; 14th District: Republican John Gordon; 15th District: Republican Charles Vincent; 16th District: Republican Frank Beaumont and Tisch Max Siegel.

Not responding were the following:

• 2nd District: Democrat John

Miltner; 4th District: Democrat Lisa Donaldson, Republican David Camp and Tisch Joan Dennison; 5th District: Democrat James Barcia;

6th District: Republican Fred Upton; 7th District: Republican Nick Smith.

Chamber Offers Luminaries for Annual Festival of Lights

Chelsea Holiday Festival of Lights Committee has been meeting regularly to plan the fifth annual festival slated for Dec. 4. It will follow the same pattern as in the past, originating at Pierce Park with the tree lighting and moving to downtown.

In past years luminaries have been placed on Main St. and lighted at dark. The containers have been stored by the Chamber of Commerce, retrieved and stored again. For the 1992 festival, the committee is making the containers available to anyone who would like to have them for use at their homes.

It is hoped that homeowners on Main St. will want some of them, or make some of their own to be placed along the sidewalks during that evening and then again on Christmas Eve. It was decided that the money being spent to store the boxes of containers might be better spent elsewhere. Also, the diffused light is more effective in a less well lighted and traveled area, farther from the street and the glare of headlights and streetlights.

As most residents will recall, the luminaries are yellow, plastic, gallon size bottles with the tops removed. Votive type candles are set in sand and lighted for a lovely golden effect. They come in the boxes used to store them.

Anyone wishing to have these containers may call the chamber office at 475-1145. Arrangements can be made to pick up or have them delivered. The answering machine is always on for messages.

Village of Chelsea and Art and Ruth Dils will apparently slug it out in court over the value of an easement for a sanitary sewer line the village wants to construct. On Tuesday, Oct. 4 village council voted unanimously, with the exception of two abstentions, to condemn the Dils' land for the purpose of taking a 30' easement for the sewer. The land is just south of the Dils' N. Main St. home. The suit will be filed in circuit court.

Resolutions to establish and pay for a new parking plan in Chelsea were passed by Chelsea Village Council on Tuesday, Oct. 4. Five years of personal endeavors, as well as village, county and state efforts to have safety devices installed at the Freer Rd. crossing in Chelsea have come to an end, it seems. Con-Rail, along with the units of government above, have signed an agree-

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The fellows come down hard on public education, or want of it, Saturday night at the country store. It was Bug Hookum that started the session by saying we have ruined a second generation of children by showing them they undergo education, not undertake it. The way we're set up, Bug said, students get the idea they don't do education, education is done to them.

Bug said he got to mulling over the state-of-education when the latest round of Scholastic Aptitude Test scores come out right ahead of all the promotion in the papers of September as Literacy Month. You would think, declared Bug, that folks would see one has to do with the other. You don't have to read to watch the videos that pass for classwork these days, Bug allowed, and if you can't read you ain't likely to knock the top out of the scale in writing and math skills.

Kids are made to think that getting educated is like getting slim and quitting smoking, Bug said. The ads say all you got to do is take the pill and wear the patch. They don't mention the hard part about pushing away from the table and not lighting up.

Bug said the saddest life he hears is not "what might of been," it's "I saw it on the news." There's no way folks can understand what's going on in their town, their state, their country or their world without reading about it, was Bug's words. By the nature of the TV beast, he said, everything called news on the screen is equal important, otherwise the station wouldn't give up that much commercial time to show it.

For instant, Bug went on, all the country saw on TV after the hurricane hit the southern tip of Florida was tore up mobile homes and people setting on top of the rubble waiting for somebody to get them out of their fix. Folks that look but don't read had no way of knowing that out of camera range people in Florida and Louisiana were picking up, putting back and getting on with their lives. The blind people that got different impressions of the elephant by feeling different parts of it don't have a thing on folks that think all they got to do to learn is look at television, was Bug's words.

Bug's drama played to mixed reviews, as the papers say. Zeke Grubb was full agreed that everybody talks about education, but nobody does anything about it. From what he reads, Zeke said, ever school district in ever state found a way to show improvement in the last SAT. All said they need to improve, but their scores show clear that all their high paid administrations are needed and have been doing a top notch job.

Practical speaking, Zeke said, public education is like the army in that the whole point is to cover one another's tail so nobody's tail gets shot off. Say an administrator is not happy filling out contest forms for school awards, and wants to go back to teaching. He wrecks the system. The awards make the superintendent look good and put him a leg up for a bigger system. If he can't find a way to keep the contest forms job he might have to send money back to the state. The next year his system would get less money from the state and all education services will suffer.

Nobody understands this as clear as politicians. They know the drill. They agree with education administrators, promise them everthing and get along fine with them as long as they don't actual change anything.

Yours truly,
 Uncle Lew.

E.J. Hohnke sang "Ave Maria," "Panis Angelicus," and "On Eagle's Wings."

The bride wore a white satin strapless gown beaded with seed pearl and sequins. The gown featured a fitted bodice and skirt, beaded pebbles with beaded appliques, hem, and train. Her short jacket was beaded, as was her headpiece with elbow-length illusion veil. She carried white cascading roses, freesia, and ferns.

Maid of honor was Katrina Heaton of Chelsea, friend of the bride. Bridesmaids were Amy Oxner of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., friend of the bride, and Joy Eveslage of Westchester, Ill., sister of the bridegroom.

Flowergirl was Laura White of Okemos, cousin of the bride.

Maid of honor, bridesmaids, and flowergirl wore matching black and white cotton "peonies print" off-the-shoulder, tea-length dresses. Each carried a spray of white lilies accented with baby's breath, ferns, and ribbons.

The bride's mother wore a black sheath dress with white lace bodice.

The bridegroom's mother wore a one-piece black-and-silver divided skirt-suit with a jacket.

Ringbearer was David Eveslage of Westchester, Ill., nephew of the bridegroom.

'Healing Shame' Topic of Workshop By Interfaith Counseling

"Healing Our Shame: Filling the Hole in the Middle" is a day-long workshop to be conducted Oct. 17 by Dr. David King, an Ann Arbor psychologist and graduate of U. of M.

Sponsored by Interfaith Counseling Service, the workshop aims to define shame and describe the role it plays in the development of poor self-esteem, addictions, compulsions, depression, perfectionism, rage, and sexual difficulties. Opportunities to explore techniques to heal the effects of shame from the past and to develop strategies for dealing with present sources of shame will be provided.

Interfaith Counseling Service is a non-profit agency of licensed professional counselors sponsored by Washtenaw county churches to provide individual, couple, family, and group therapy. Each year, ICS sponsors several workshops on topics that integrate psychology and theology.

King's workshop will be held at Westminster Presbyterian church from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Deadline is Oct. 14.

For more information call Interfaith Counseling Service at 663-6671.

The National Cattlemen's Association says that each American will eat nearly 64 pounds of beef in 1992. That's far ahead of second-place pork, at only 51 pounds a person. Total red meat and poultry consumption is expected to reach almost 180 pounds a person this year, a record high!

EUREKA Performance You Expect

Chelsea Color Guard Wins EMU Band Day Competition Once Again

Chelsea Color Guard won the Eastern Michigan University Band Day Color Guard competition last Saturday, Oct. 3.

Twenty-eight bands participated in the band day festivities, culminating in a massed band performance at the EMU-Miami of Ohio half-time.

Color guards from the various bands competed in the afternoon for the honor of being featured during the half-time as the bands played "Dance to the Music."

It was the sixth time the Chelsea

Color Guard has placed first in the competition in the 10 years of the event. It has placed second the other four times.

This year's first place was especially rewarding to co-captains Richelle Jones and Gretchen Knutsen, who led the guard last year when they won the 1991 competition.

Jones and Knutsen choreograph and teach the routines. They felt the pressure to repeat their first-place performance of last year. The guard incorporates difficult flag tosses unique to Chelsea and no other guard uses spinning tubes as Chelsea does, which requires advanced skills compared to even university color guards. The guard also uses many modern dance steps.

The award-winning routines will be performed at Chelsea's two remaining home football games.

QUOTES & NOTES

DONALD A. COLE, Doctor

"The greatest remedy for anger is delay . . ."

—Seneca.

It isn't often that actions inspired by anger will prove to be the wisest move that could have been made. When angered, if we take time to sit back and look carefully at the problem, it will usually appear much less critical than first believed. This is what is behind the old admonition to "count to ten."

There will, of course, be some instances when allowing our anger to subside fails to make matters less irritating, but at least we won't have made matters worse through too-hasty action.

Your first call, in the event of a tragedy, should be to us. We can take over and relieve you of responsibility for many painful duties. Even if a death occurs at a distant place, we can handle every detail and give you local responsibility.

Union Claims Another Victory

cidents, including numerous conversations, rallies, a pro-union message written on the inside of an employee refrigerator, and even a bomb threat that the company believes had an effect on the union vote. The company claimed that several employees worked for the union and were "agents" of it.

Zane, in her opinion, found nothing to substantiate any of the company's claims.

Employee concerns about safety, benefits, grievance procedures, favoritism, and other issues prompted the union vote.

"We're not trying to become the Kings of Chelsea," Rudd said.

"We just want to look after our families and the only way we'll be able to negotiate is with the help of the union. Management doesn't want any system of checks and balances. We hope Jack [Dunn, company owner] will come to his senses."

As of press time, the company had not indicated what it plans to do. Dunn did not return calls from The Standard.

Rudd said Chelsea Industries workers plan to "form a coalition" with workers at Federal Screw Works, Dana Corporation, and Chrysler Proving grounds, "to let the community know what's going on at Chelsea Industries."

Chelsea's Rebekah Lodge No. 130 celebrated its 50th anniversary last week with a program similar to the one for its silver anniversary. The group met in rooms above several stores and in the Municipal Building before moving in 1950 into its building on M-52.

McLaughlin Oil Co., which has outlets in Chelsea and Dexter sold its marketing properties in Washtenaw, Livingston, Oakland and Ingham counties to the Gulf Oil Corp. Oct. 15. The company, founded in 1935, also sold its trucks, inventories and equipment. McLaughlin employees will be absorbed by Gulf.

For the first time in eight years Dexter township incumbents will be challenged at the Nov. 3 general election.

Incumbent republican supervisor, Jim Drollet will be opposed by independent, Barry Marshall; incumbent republican treasurer, Julie Knight will be opposed by independent, Anne Bonine; incumbent democrat clerk, Bill Eisenbeiser will be opposed by independent, Mark Wojno; and incumbent trustee Earl Doletzky and trustee candidate Harley Rider, who beat incumbent Doug Smith in the Aug. 4 primary election, will be opposed by independent Carol Kempf.

Unlike democrats and republicans, independents do not compete in a primary election to be placed on the Nov. 3 general election ballot. Instead, independent (no party affiliation) candidates must collect at least 29 signatures from registered voters on a petition to qualify.

The Dexter township independents call themselves "Citizens for Constructive Change." Marshall, running for supervisor, is a 14-year Dexter township resident with family ties to the area dating to the early 1800's. He served in the U.S. Navy and is a disabled American veteran. He works as a technical representative and co-ordinator for Firestone Building Products. He thinks his experience in construction law, public relations and business problem-solving will help to qualify him for the supervisor position.

Bonine, running for treasurer, is a 12-year Dexter township resident. She holds both an undergraduate degree in math and science education from Michigan State University, and a master's degree in biology and geology from Eastern Michigan University. She taught science and elementary school in Pinckney schools for nine years and is currently a substitute teacher in Dexter.

Wojno, running for clerk, is a certified public accountant. He holds a bachelor's degree in business administration from Eastern Michigan University. He has also been a business owner for eight years.

Kempf, running for trustee, has lived in Dexter township for 20 years. She has years of business experience in the health care and public utility fields. Now retired, she is active in church and community affairs.

The group of independents formed through a process of networking in Dexter township. People in the area had already formed Citizens for Constructive Change in order to campaign for some candidates who would oppose the current officials and bring quality of life issues to the forefront. Marshall and Wojno were already members of the group and Bonine and Kempf were suggested as possible candidates, later joining the group. Together the Dexter township team of independents are focusing on issues of spending containment and taxation, ethics, community growth and planning, and protection for township lakes and other natural areas. If elected, they insist Dexter township tax assessments will be at their lowest amounts allowable by law and they will work diligently to spend less, regulate less and tax less. They cite a fact found in the January issue of "Money Magazine" as one of their instigators to change tax assessments. The magazine ranks Washtenaw county 12th in the nation, among 300 localities for the highest property taxes.

The team of independent candidates is also concerned about Dexter township's growth and the resulting environmental pressures. They say they are committed to "environmentally responsible growth that insures good property values and protects our lakes and other natural areas." Candidate for supervisor, Marshall said, "The next few years will be a critical period for Dexter township. We must carefully plan for the future with vision and leadership to maintain a stable community and to preserve the quality of life that we now enjoy."

Township residents get a chance to meet the independent candidates as they trek around the area door-to-door campaigning.

LISA GRAY is the co-owner/manager of the Ironwood full-service restaurant than a drinking establishment as it Tavern at Inverness Golf Course. The Tavern is more a serves breakfast, lunch, and dinner.

Ironwood Tavern Far More Than Place To Relax After 18 Holes

Ironwood Tavern, the clubhouse at Reddeman Farms Golf Course in Lima township, opened in July.

To call it a tavern, however, is misleading. It is an exquisitely decorated, full-service restaurant that serves breakfast, lunch, and dinner seven days a week. Beer and wine, but no hard alcohol, are available. Its one concession to the tavern scene is cable sports television is shown in the dining area.

The dining room, which can seat about 180 people, contains solid mahogany furniture, plush carpeting, cranberry colored walls, a huge fireplace, and an entire wall of windows overlooking the golf course.

Lisa Gray is manager and co-owner with her father, Howard Smith. Smith is one of the three major investors in the golf course, along with Bob Luhhouse and Don Spear. Gray and Smith lease the space from the golf course owners.

Breakfast menu includes several omelettes, huckleberry pancakes, french toast, eggs, and other typical breakfast fare.

The lunch menu includes ample sandwiches, ranging from clubs to burgers, for about $5, soup, and salads.

The most expensive dinner-entree $13.95 for a filet mignon. Other selections include New Zealand whitefish, veal, chicken, steak, and pasta. Fresh sourdough bread is baked on the premises.

"News of the restaurant has spread, mostly by word of mouth," Gray said.

"We're doing a very good dinner business. We try to appeal to both golfers and the general public. We get a very good mix of people and it's basically a casual atmosphere."

Gray said children are welcome, and many go outside to play on the deck while their parents eat.

Head cook is Chef Larry, who was previously associated with the Lions Den restaurants in the Southfield-down river area.

Unless Lima township amends its special use permit for the restaurant, the business will have to close down during the winter, beginning Dec. 21, and re-open in March. However, township supervisor Bill Van Riper has said he favors allowing it to become a year-around business that can also serve hard alcohol.

"We're very pleased he has taken that attitude," Gray said.

"I think they were worried we might operate some kind of dive or be a get-drunk spot. Now that they can see the kind of operation we are, they know that's not the case."

In order for the change to take place, the restaurant will have to initiate the process with the township planning commission.

The restaurant is open from 8:30 a.m. to 10 p.m., Monday through Friday, 7:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Saturday, and 7:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Sunday.

Village, School District Have Financial Stakes in Broke Fund

Both the Village of Chelsea and the Chelsea School District could wind up spending a lot more money than they had anticipated for the removal of leaky underground gasoline storage tanks.

According to a report in The Detroit News on Sunday, the state's MUSTFA fund, a program set up for cleaning up sites contaminated by underground fuel tanks, is not only broke but is nearly $164 million in the hole.

The program, set up in 1989, is funded by $55 million a year in Michigan gasoline taxes, or 7/8 cents per gallon. According to the report, the fund had been billed $312 million as of June 30, but had collected only $158 million. Administrative costs have swelled the deficit another $10.8 million.

There are also charges of fraud by the more than 300 state-approved contractors.

The program is set to expire in 1995. The report indicated that even if there were no new claims from now until 1995, the fund would still end up $28 million in the red even after collecting the $55 million per year until 1995.

The Village of Chelsea was hoping the fund would help pay for an estimated clean-up bill of about $300,000 at the former electric and water building on North St. The village had planned to appeal to the MUSTFA board this month. However, as of Monday, village manager Jack Myers did not know how the plans may be affected by the revelation.

The village is looking at a bill of nearly $150,000 just to haul away contaminated soil. There's also the pumping of groundwater and demolition of part of the building.

The village has already constructed a new electric and water building in the industrial park, which does not qualify for re-imbursment.

The school district removed leaky underground storage tanks at its bus garage nearly two years ago. It has planned to install a $30,000 vapor extraction system to take care of the remaining contamination, and apply for MUSTFA re-imbursment.

It is not likely that either the village or the school district will be let off the hook since the clean-up is required by the Environmental Protection Agency and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

The state Senate and House have each passed bills to extend the program until 2003. But they still have differences, which won't be settled until after the election.

It is not clear how new claims will be treated. However, many independent gas station operators across the state face bankruptcy without the fund. And the village and school district could have to divert tax money they'd rather use for other purposes.

Dogs Thrash Western Face Dexter Friday As League Race Heats Up

This week it was a blowout from start to finish. The Bulldogs didn't waste any time.

Chelsea used a formidable passing game, a solid option offense, and an effective defense to throttle Jackson County Western at home last Friday, 45-0. Western got inside the Bulldogs' 20-yard line one time.

Meanwhile, the Bulldogs amassed 502 yards in total offense, 244 on the ground and 258 in the air.

"We optioned the ball, we threw the ball, and we powered the football," said Chelsea coach Gene LaFave.

"We did all of them Friday. On defense the kids played well up front and we were able to stop them."

It took Chelsea less than two minutes to score their first touchdown on a five-play drive, capped by Tom Poulter's one-yard run. By the end of the first quarter, the Bulldogs had a 21-0 lead. Quarterback Pat Steele took the ball on an option for a 10-yard touchdown at the 8:17 mark, and four minutes later Steele connected with tight end Gary White over the middle for a 25-yard score.

The Bulldogs scored one more time before the half as Matt Montange ran nine yards up the middle for a score.

Western took the second-half kickoff but seven plays into the drive, Steele picked off a pass at the Chelsea 35. After six plays, however, the drive stalled at the Western 17, where Tim Westcott kicked a 34-yard field goal.

Western again managed to get into Chelsea territory on their next drive before Colby Skelton intercepted a pass at the Chelsea 35. On the next play, Steele passed to his favorite target to the left side and Skelton outran the coverage for the score.

It didn't take long for Skelton to provide more fireworks. On the next Western possession he picked off a pass at the Chelsea 45, ran to the right side, eluded a couple of tacklers, raced back across the field and in for the touchdown.

Chelsea's second team offense finished out the game.

Steele was 8-11 in the air as Skelton caught four passes for 126 yards and Poulter caught one for 24 yards, Don Poppenger caught one for 48 yards, White caught one for 25 yards, and Ken Slane caught one for 35 yards.

The rushing game was also spread out. Montange carried 11 times for 78 yards, Poulter had eight rushes for 60 yards, Steele had three carries for 40 yards, Gabe Bernhard had 10 carries for 36 yards, Jay Westcott ran five times for 23 yards, and Dan Wehrwein gained seven yards on two carries.

Western had five turnovers on the night, including four interceptions. However, they still managed to gain 173 yards rushing and 55 yards passing.

With the thrashing of Western, the relatively easy part of the schedule comes to a close. The Bulldogs have three Southeastern Conference games remaining, and all three are capable of handing Chelsea a loss.

The Bulldogs play at Dexter Friday

MATT MONTANGE breaks through the Western defensive line for a touchdown for Chelsea last Friday night in the Bulldogs' 45-0 romp.

for the Dreadnaughts' homecoming. The Dreadnaughts feature two speedy tailbacks and a capable quarterback, among other weapons.

"Dexter will be a tough game for us," LaFave said.

"They're 3-2 and I'm sure they just did what they had to to beat Lincoln last week. They weren't going to show our scouts very much."

From Dexter the schedule gets even tougher. Tecumseh comes to town for Chelsea's homecoming the following week. Tecumseh suffered its first SEC loss last week, 13-9, to the Pinckney Pirates, Chelsea's opponent in three weeks. The Pirates also have one league loss.

"They look like two good teams," LaFave said of Tecumseh and Pinckney.

"But we can't worry about them now. We have to stay focused on where we are in the schedule."

Chelsea is 5-0 over-all and 3-0 in the Southeastern Conference.

There were 10 lead changes. Neither team punted and each team fumbled once. The rest of the drives were touchdowns.

Chelsea's Jorge Rosario scored five touchdowns, Jim Irwin had one six- pointer in the second quarter, and Sam Morseau added a two-point conversion.

With three minutes left, Chelsea scored the winning touchdown on a QUARTERBACK PAT STEELE scored Chelsea's second of six touchdowns on the night last Friday on an option around the left side. Steele had one of his best nights of the season as he was 9-11 for 258 yards.

MARA SMITH takes the ball inside for the Bulldogs during Chelsea's victory over the Lincoln Railsplitters last Tuesday at home. The victory gave the Bulldogs a temporary lead in the Southeastern Conference.

Varsity Cagers Top Lincoln Railsplitters

Chelsea Bulldogs varsity basketball team moved to 2-0 in the Southeastern Conference last week with a 44-23 victory over the Lincoln Railsplitters on Tuesday at home. Chelsea used a 19-point second quarter to turn an 11-8 lead into a 30-15 half-time lead. The game was even the rest of the way. "Lincoln is even younger and more inexperienced than we are," said Chelsea coach Charlie Waller. "They couldn't get much offense going when we packed in the zone defense." Most of Chelsea's second-half points came on free throws. Sophomore Martha Merkel led Chelsea with 13 points, all in the first half. Other scorers were Erin Schiller 10, Nicki Piasecki 9, Ginny Flannery 6, Jessica Flintoft 3, Kate Steele 2, and Courtney Thompson 1. Merkel also had a team-high eight rebounds, while Flintoft and Flannery had six each. The Bulldogs shot 22 percent from the field and had 23 turnovers.

8th Grade Cagers Lose Two Games

Rebound leaders were Chrissy Hodgson 8, Ashendel 7, Lucas 6, Carty 5, and Ruhlig 5. Leading in steals were Carty 6, Ruhlig 5, Lucas 5, Ashendel 3, Carrie Williams 2, Beth Vogel 2, Hilary Szczyglie 2. Hodgson had six blocked shots. Chelsea scorers in the Tecumseh game were Hodgson 12, Ruhlig 6, Carty 5, Lucas 3, Ashendel 2. SPORTS NOTES

BY BRIAN HAMILTON

Now the fun begins.

The Chelsea Bulldogs varsity football team, which has looked invincible the last two weeks against two pretty bad teams, gets its toughest opponent since Milan this Friday at Dexter.

Over the last few years the Dreadnaughts have not been much cause for great concern. Chelsea wins the game more often than not, but that isn't the main reason. Usually by this point in the season the Bulldogs (as well as the Dreadnaughts) have lost a couple of league games and are for all intents and purposes out of the Southeastern Conference title picture. "If Tecumseh and the Pinckney can just roll over and play dead the rest of the way, we're good as gold," is usually the mumble this time of year.

This year is, of course, quite different. Dexter is probably better than usual and still not completely out of the championship picture, but Chelsea is having the best season it could hope for. Chelsea has out-scored the opposition 91-6 over the last two weeks and is solidly in line for a play-off berth. They have victories over arch-rival Saline and state-ranked Milan, and an undefeated record. As far as the league goes, the Bulldogs don't have to follow other games to see where they stand.

If that isn't enough to motivate coach Rich Grannis' Dreadnaughts, I don't know what is. Dexter has always considered this game a big deal even when nothing more than cross-township pride was on the line.

This year Dexter has a chance to turn the SEC title chase into a wild three-team race. If Tecumseh wins (Pinckney plays a non-league game) this week, and Chelsea loses, there's a three-way tie at the top as all three teams would have one league loss. And then the Bulldogs have to play Tecumseh and Pinckney back-to-back.

Judging from the preliminary scouting reports I've heard, both Tecumseh and Pinckney are likely to give the Bulldogs all they can handle.

So, there are plenty of reasons, including homecoming, for the Dreadnaughts to be a highly motivated bunch this Friday.

Chelsea, too, shouldn't have any problems getting fired up considering what is at stake. They need every advantage they can get going into those last two league games.

My guess is the Bulldogs will win this Friday if they can play with the same emotion and intensity they have all season and they can force the Dreadnaughts to make mistakes on offense. Chelsea has gotten at least four turnovers in every game this season while averaging about one fumble or interception themselves. If Dexter can hold onto the ball, drive a few yards at a time, and keep Pat Steele, Colby Skelton, Tom Poulter and the rest of the offense off the field, they'll cause a lot of problems.

Last Friday it was standing-room-only, even on the hills, at the Chelsea home football game. The Beach Middle school band performed, along with about 60 tiny cheerleaders, in addition to the Friday night regulars.

Next week's crowd could be just as big-but for quite a different reason. Tecumseh is right in the SEC championship picture and they usually have the biggest road following in the league. It's also homecoming in Chelsea.

It's almost getting to the point that Chelsea should consider a reserved-seating arrangement, at least for the home fans, for next year. People guaranteed a seat would pay full price, maybe even a little more, and everybody else who's forced to stand or sit on the grass would pay less. Yes, it would be a headache for athletic director Wayne Welton, but the situation is getting ridiculous and is extremely unfair for people who arrive after 7 p.m.

I don't blame anyone for this problem, except perhaps coach Gene LaFave for making his team too good. It's just an unfortunate situation that will take a lot of money to solve adequately, money that is not available.

Boy Runners Continue Their Climb to The Top

Chelsea Bulldogs boys cross country team, ranked third in the state in class B, knocked off the eighth-ranked Lincoln Railsplitters last week, 25-32.

The victory gave Chelsea a 4-0 record in the Southeastern Conference.

"It was just a very good team effort all the way around," said Chelsea coach Pat Clarke.

"Scott Hawley, Dan Zatkovich, and Chris Leatham all had personal best times."

Chelsea sophomore Ryan Schultz placed first for Chelsea and second over-all at 18:35, just three seconds off the lead.

Other Chelsea places and times were: 4. Cory Brown, 16:54; 5. Chad Brown, 17:04; 6. Zatkovich, 17:09; 8. Hawley, 17:24; 10. Strong, 18:03; 11. Leatham, 18:09; 16. Nick Kramer, 18:48; 17. Jim Bergman, 18:54; 18. Gabe White, 19:07; 19. J.J. Hanke, 19:09; 21. Kevin Kolodica, 19:37; 22. Kevin Coy, 19:46; 24. Brian Atlee, 19:54; 25. Jason Valchine, 19:58; 28. Eric LeFurge, 20:04; 28. Josh Metzler, 20:18; 31. Zac Eresten, 21:02; 32. Chris Schiller, 21:36; 33. Scott Wingle, 22:43; 34. Steve Gaunt, 23:08.

At the Chelsea Invitational last Saturday at Hudson Mills Metropark, Schultz set a sophomore record for the third time this season with a first-place time of 18:21.

The invitational is run by classes so that freshmen compete against freshmen, sophomores against sophomores, and so on.

Chelsea won the sophomore race with nine points.

CHAD BROWN placed third for Chelsea in the sophomore race at the Chelsea Invitational last Saturday at Hudson Mills Metropark.

The rest of Chelsea's places and times in the sophomore race were: 3. Chad Brown, 17:20; 5. Hawley, 17:51; 7. Atlee, 18:25; 10. Kolodica, 18:46; 12. Kramer, 18:48. Other runners included White, 19:08; Josh Metzler, 19:17; Bergman, 19:29; Valchine, 19:38; LeFurge, 22:02; and Mike Peterson, 24:11.

In the freshman race, Eresten was 15th in 20:12 and Peter Straub was 16th in 20:13.

Chelsea times and places in the junior race were 1. Cory Brown, 18:47; 18. Leatham, 18:20; 49. Wingle, 22:24; 54. Gaunt, 23:27.

Chelsea took fourth in the senior race with 38 points. Places and times included 7. Zatkovich, 17:27; 11. Strong, 17:48; 18. Hanke, 18:42.

Beach B Team Beats Lincoln

Beach Middle school B football team defeated Lincoln last week, 18-0, at Lincoln.

Quarterback Mark Valchine scored one touchdown on a sneak and running back Don Reilly scored the other on a short run.

Reilly ran for two points after the first touchdown and Valchine passed to Robert Ellis for the second two-pointer.

The Chelsea coaching staff said their defensive linemen Jason Shurmur, Brent Young, Bob Kranick, Chene Freeman, Nathan Smith, Chris Frayer, Brandon Renton, Joshua Powers, Steve McDonald, and Bob Armstrong continue to play well. They also said offensive linemen Pat Flynn, Waldo Steinaway, Nick Harms, Adam Schaper, and Chris Carnes showed improvement. The B team record is 1-0-1.

JV Gridders Lose To County Western

Chelsea Bulldogs junior varsity football team lost to Jackson County Western last Thursday, 44-30.

Western scored two touchdowns in the last 49 seconds to take the victory.

A missed conversion earlier in the game would have given Chelsea a 32-31 lead, and "we could have sat on the ball," said coach Bill Bainton.

Chelsea had more than 400 yards in total offense, including 140 by Jeremy Ziegler, 100 by Jordan Dyer, and 81 by Jeremy Bradbury.

Bainton praised the line play of Adam Skyles and Dan McGuire.

Chelsea took the early lead, 8-0, but an injury to a Western player delayed the game for nearly 15 minutes.

"We were flat when we came back," Bainton said.

Chelsea is 1-4 on the season.

THREE 1991 CHELSEA FOOTBALL PLAYERS were inducted into the Chelsea Football Hall of Fame last Friday at half-time of the home football game. From left, Paul Terpstra accepted the honor on behalf of his son, Mike, who's off at Harvard University. Mike was an all-state lineman, playing offense and defense. In center is Adam Taylor, who played a little of everything during his career, but was most noted for his aggressive play at defensive back and linebacker. Right is Ben Hurst, a running back/defensive back. Taylor and Hurst are both attending Ferris State University and plan to play baseball.

BLACKSMITHING as it was done on anvil and forge in pioneer days will be demonstrated during Pioneer Day, Sunday, Oct. 11, at Waterloo Farm Museum. Admission to the grounds is free.

Pioneer Day Set Sunday At Waterloo Farm Museum

The sky begins to show signs of preoccupation in the fall of the year. It is as though it, too, is looking ahead to the cold months when people and animals seek shelter and wait.

Autumn is also a time of celebration of the harvest. The air becomes crisp and leaves shower the earth with color.

Waterloo Area Historical Society invites you to savor this bittersweet time of year at the annual Pioneer Day on Sunday, Oct. 11 from noon to 5 p.m. at the Waterloo Farm Museum.

An assembly of talented demonstrators will display 19th century crafts. Wool dyeing, candle dipping, blacksmithing, spinning, storytelling, weaving, sheep shearing, apple pressing and basketmaking are just a few of the activities that will be underway during the afternoon.

Artisans will be selling dried flowers, herbs, wood carvings, drawings, stained glass, tinware, pottery, and wheatweaving. Carl Hakes, dulcimer; Bob Benedict, "bones"; and the Rose City Harmonica Club will provide musical entertainment.

Among the new participants this year is Sandy Chieffi from Grass Lake. Mrs. Chieffi owns six miniature horses averaging 34" high. She heard that this small breed was used in the coal mines of South America. The horses are curious, friendly, and easy to train. Adept at pulling, they can pull up to 10 times their weight. Although Mrs. Chieffi does show her miniature horses, her chief source of enjoyment is the daily contact and companionship of her animals. The whole family will enjoy meeting her miniature horses, donkeys, goats and lamb.

William Casello, "Old Bill," has been a teller of tales for 30 years. He recalled that in 1966 he was driving home from California with his children, who were 4 and 2 at the time, when he started making up stories to entertain them. "It was then I discovered the style that I still use. I put them in the story and that idea never fails to hold their attention."

One story that he tells concerns the history of a large Chelsea farm settled by the Mulhouser brothers who immigrated from Germany and purchased the farm under the Homestead Act of 1870. A second story tells the tale of Johnny Applesseed's brother, Peter Peach Pit. Set in the 19th century, it recounts Peter's struggle with his brother's fame and the Peachpit Hawk. Old Bill will spin his tales at 1, 2, and 3 p.m. on the front lawn of the farmhouse in half-hour sessions.

Dian Hoskins, an award-winning student of Indian lore and crafts, is another new demonstrator this year on Pioneer Day. Mrs. Hoskins will demonstrate quill work. A very time-consuming art form, quill embroidery is one of the highest levels of craftsmanship for Indian women. The

Keep an Environmental Leader in the Office of County Drain Commissioner
RE-ELECT JANIS BOBRIN

Washtenaw County residents have a right to a healthy environment in which to live and raise their families. They should know that their water resources are protected.

Responsibility for water quality protection cannot be left to state or federal governments. That's why I am aggressively working at the County level to protect our water resources through stronger local standards and tougher enforcement of existing laws. And why I will continue to be a leader in the County's fight to stop construction of a proposed hazardous waste disposal complex in southeast Washtenaw County.

My qualifications include a master's degree in urban planning, and 17 years' experience as a professional environmental planner. I'm a member and newly elected Chair of southeast Michigan's Area-wide Water Quality Board, and board member and past President of the East Michigan Environmental Action Council.

I'm proud of my accomplishments as Drain Commissioner. I ask for your support on November 3.

Janis Bobrin

Red Cross Serves Area in Many Ways

The word "par" is derived from the Latin word for "an equal."

Editor's Note: As a continuation of the series on Chelsea United Way member agencies, the Washtenaw County Chapter of the American Red Cross and its impact on the Chelsea community is featured.

Washtenaw County Chapter of the American Red Cross recently issued a report of its services and activities in the Chelsea community during the 1991-92 fiscal year. The report was submitted to the Chelsea United Way in preparation for the upcoming campaign.

According to the report, services provided by the Red Cross to the residents of Chelsea included disaster preparedness, assistance to military families, blood services (collection and distribution), utility assistance through the Heat Bank program and health and safety education. In addition, the report contained goals and objectives for the coming year.

Charles Moertel, executive director of the Washtenaw County Chapter of the American Red Cross, said, "Although many of the Red Cross' programs and services are mandated by our Congressional charter, the Red Cross receives no government funding. Our programs would not be possible without the support of the Chelsea United Way."

A total of 304 units of blood were collected at the four community blood drives that were co-ordinated by more than 55 area volunteers led by Marion Kerns. An additional 494 units were collected at bloodmobiles sponsored by Chelsea High School, Chelsea Community Hospital, Chrysler Proving Grounds, BookCrafters, Inc., and other Chelsea businesses.

The Community and Emergency Services (CES) department of the Washtenaw County Chapter provides assistance to families through social services, disaster relief and service to military families and veterans. CES workers assisted five families in communicating with members in the military service at domestic and overseas locations.

Health and safety courses offered by the Red Cross in Chelsea consisted primarily of cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), first aid and water safety. A total of 14 courses were held during the year.

The American Red Cross is celebrating 75 years of service to the residents of Washtenaw county including Chelsea.

For more information on programs and services or volunteer opportunities, please call the Red Cross office at (313)971-5300.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor,
Where are the mall flags?
I think it is a disgrace to see a flag rag hanging on the flag pole at the Chelsea Shopping Center mall.
Who is responsible for getting flags and hanging them on these nice flag poles like it was the mall was new?
Isn't the mall proud to be in America?
An American Citizen.

Card of Thanks 19

THANK YOU

I would like to express my sincere gratitude to my relatives, friends and neighbors for their many acts of kindness shown to us during Waldo's illness and death, and during my surgery and recovery. A very special thanks to my sister and brother-in-law, Irene and Henry Buss, my nieces Sharon, Phyllis, Janet, Barbara, Patricia, Kay, Silas, and the volunteers who so kindly gave of their time. Thanks to Dr. Swan and staff for their visits and loving care. Also, many thanks to the staff from Individualized Home Nursing Care; Kay, Cathy, Carol, Ruth, Joann and Sister Helen. Thank you to Pastor Mark for his visits and comforting prayers. Thank you to the pall-bearers. Without all of you we couldn't have made it through those difficult times. Thanks to John and Gloria Mitchell and John, Jr., for your thoughtfulness and to the American Legion for providing a memorable ceremony. God bless all of you. Helen Horning.

Card of Thanks 19

THANK YOU

I would like to thank everyone for all their prayers and cards that I received while I was in Chelsea Hospital. A special thank-you to the Rev. Leland Penzien, his support meant so much to all of us. Also a special thank-you to the staff of Chelsea Hospital, especially to the nurses in ICU and on the East Nursing Wing, and all the doctors, without whose wonderful care I would not have been able to go home so soon. And a big thank-you to Dr. Marcus, without him I would not be here at all to thank anyone. Milan Frank.

THE GARDEN CORNER

Fall Provides Free Food For Winter Wildlife Feeding

If you'd like to feed birds and other wildlife that live in or visit your backyard, fall is a good time to stock up on free food. Glenn Dudderar, Extension fisheries and wildlife specialist at Michigan State University, suggests raking up and storing fallen apples, crabapples and nuts.

"Fallen apples and nuts in the lawn have to be raked up and disposed of anyway," he points out, "so you might as well save the best of them to feed to wildlife this winter."

Don't try to store fruits that are already showing signs of rot, he advises—one rotten one will indeed hasten the spoilage of all the rest. Store fruits in baskets or wooden crates rather than bags. They'll quickly rot in plastic bags. And paper bags have a tendency to get soggy on the bottom, so that the bottoms drop out when you try to move them.

To feed apples and crabapples, simply pile a few on the ground in a spot some distance from the house that you can observe from a window. In suburban fringe and rural areas, deer and rabbits will come into yards to feed on apples. Tree squirrels, chipmunks, raccoons, opossums and skunks will also nibble on apples.

Another way to feed an apple is to drive a big nail through a board, stick half an apple on the nail with the cut side out, and place the board where the animals you want to feed can reach it.

"Most birds that come to a winter bird feeder will peck at an apple, for the moisture it contains if not for the food," Dudderar observes. "Chickadees, goldfinches, starlings, nuthatches and woodpeckers—especially if the apple happens to be wormy—as well as the fruit-eating birds, such as robins, cedar waxwings, bluebirds and thrashers, will be interested in an apple."

Unless you know you'll be feeding deer, don't go overboard in saving windfalls—one apple a day from around Nov. 1 through March or early April is the most you'd need for birds, Dudderar says.

If squirrels in the bird feeder have been a problem, try collecting nuts or gleaming ear corn from a farmer's field (with permission, of course) and setting up a separate squirrel feeder. Hickory nuts and black walnuts are special squirrel favorites. Ear corn can be spiked, like the apple above, to keep it on the feeder where you can enjoy the antics of the visiting squirrels.

"Though you can, with a certain amount of patience and persistence, accustom squirrels and chipmunks to taking food from your hand, this is generally not a good idea," Dudderar says. "If these animals overcome their natural fear of humans to that extent, they may approach people who misinterpret their approach for an attack, with unfortunate consequences for the squirrel. It's better to feed and enjoy them from a distance."

Mystery Writer Next In Library Series

Mark Brown, a mystery writer who uses the Hawaiian Islands as the setting for his Ben McMillan detective series, will speak at McKune Memorial Library on Thursday, Oct. 15, at 7 p.m. Brown's presentation is the second event in Grapevine, a new library series being co-sponsored by Friends of McKune Memorial Library, and Serendipity-Paperback-Book-Exchange.

An Ann Arbor resident and businessman, Brown weaves his fascination with the unique and exotic setting of the Islands and the customs, folklore and mythology of the Hawaiian people into his books. A good storyteller, his novels are compared to Tony Hillerman's treatment of Navajo beliefs and traditions in the Chee and Leaphorn mysteries.

"Accuracy is essential to my approach to writing," says Brown. "I've made 16 trips to Hawaii since 1982 to research my books."

Game Face and Yellowfin, Brown's first two mystery novels, are published by Ox Box Press in Woodbridge, Conn. His detective, Ben McMillan, is a retired police detective, triathlete, and surf-shop owner. In Game Face, McMillan returns to his old occupation to help his best friend and former partner discover who murdered his wife. In Yellowfin, Tobl Otake, the newly appointed captain of the Kona Police, lures Ben back to his old job to find the killer of a WW II Japanese spy whose body has been washed up on the beach at Kealahakua Bay.

Brown, who began his writing career at age 40, is the owner and president of Classic Technologies, an Ann Arbor firm that develops, implements, and supports telecommunications and data base software. In addition, he is a committed family man, avid golfer and former University of Michigan M-Club president. Writing during the pre-dawn hours of Saturday and Sunday for the past five years, Brown has completed three more novels, including The Puna Kahuna, a mystery that mixes murder and an environmental message. He is working on a sixth novel.

Brown's presentation is free and open to the public. For further information call 475-8732.
