Committee Recommends Village Change to City, Final Report Due Soon

The committee studying whether the Village of Chelsea should become a city voted unanimously last week to recommend city status in its final report to the village council.

The nine-member committee was formed last summer and asked to produce a report and recommendation by the end of the year. The report, which will be written by committee member and attorney Stanley Burke, will be reviewed by the committee at its next meeting on Dec. 16.

Village President Richard Steele said he would not comment on the recommendation until he sees the committee's full report. In any event, he said he would ask council at the Dec. 22 meeting to study the report then pass a resolution either accepting or rejecting the committee's conclusion at the first meeting in

"I am really pleased with the work the committee has done," Steele said.
"They've done a lot of homework and have dissected the issue from every angle. I'm proud of what they've done. It's an extremely emotional issue."

Council can either support the recommendation or reject it. Whatever decision it makes, however, does not necessarily determine what will happen because council approval is not required for the process to continue. The next step will be for a petition signed by five percent of the village's registered voters to be submitted to the state boundary commission. That would be followed by two public hearings, one to determine the validity of the petition and another to get public comments. The boundary commission makes the final decision as to whether city status is placed on the ballot.

Then the final decision is up to the

"We felt the village would have a better chance of preserving its village values if it becomes a city because we would have so much more control," said committee member Ann Feeney of the Chamber of Commerce.

The issue of local control is also what made the difference to Burke.

"Saline City Manager David White gave us a presentation and described all the day-to-day practical implications of becoming a city," Burke said.

"They have extensive dealings with the Michigan Department of Transportation because US-12 runs through the city. They've felt that because they are a city they've had more input and impact on various projects. He also discussed attempts by the state to mandate increases in pensions for municipal employees that were prevented from transpiring because Saline is a city.

"The instance of the traffic light at [Chelsea Community Hospital] came up. The state did not even consult with the village before that light was put up because it was on M-52. That couldn't happen if we were a city. Cityhood is really a tool to give Chelsea the capacity to defend its traditions."

The final report will discuss number of ramifications of becoming a city including: basic structure of home rule cities, including what can be included in the charter; population requirements and proposed city boundaries; tax ramifications; elections; and continued relationships with the affected townships, primarily Sylvan and Lima townships.

A preliminary outline of the report indicates that a City of Chelsea would have to hire an assessor, collect school and other taxes, conduct county, state and national elections, maintain voter registration lists, and provide voting facilities and equipment, all of which would be new functions.

One of the biggest impacts of city status would be on Sylvan and Lima townships' budgets. Sylvan township SEV would drop from $163,115,700 to $83,616,200, which means the township would lose $79,500. Lima township SEV would drop from $63,730,900 to $54,626,400, or $9,389 in revenues. City residents would no longer pay township taxes, which amount to 1 mill in Sylvan township and 1.03 mills in Lima township.

Village residents have essentially been double-taxed for some services, such as fire protection. In addition, township governments have generally not contributed to road projects in the village, even though those projects lie within the townships. Village residents will even be footing more than their share of expenses associated with the landfill agreement recently hammered out between the village and townships.

The city charter, which would be devised by elected charter commissioners, would decide the form of government and how the city operates, and set maximum millage rates, among many other items. It would ultimately have to be approved in a

made unsuccessful bids for Congress this year told members of the State Officers Compensation Commission-which is charged with determining salary and benefit levels for the governor, lieutenant governor, Supreme Court justices and legislators—that a raise is not justified, particularly after comparing public and private sector salaries.

Rep. Margaret O'Connor (R-Ann Arbor), in arguing against a pay raise, has cited Michigan Employment Security Commission numbers that show private sector wages dropping almost 10 percent below the inflation rate since 1980, while public sector pay rose almost 45 percent above

O'Connor objected to the commission's choice of a five-year comparison between salaries and changes in the consumer price index, which indicates a reduction in purchasing power has occurred, particularly during the 1990-92 freeze. And when asked whether her views were representative of those of her colleagues, O'Connor defended her position.

"Everybody wants a raise," O'Connor said. "Even Jackie Kennedy doesn't think she has enough money."

Commission Chair Marvin Daitch presented Detroit CPI figures Thursday that indicate the public officials affected by the salary freeze have since 1989 essentially experienced a 10.21 percent drop in real salary.

According to statistics presented by Rep. Stephen Dresch (R-Hancock), Michigan's state employees received a 76.9 percent increase in compensation from 1980 to 1990, while the national average increase was 79.5 percent. Among domestic industries, the national service sector's increase was the only one to surpass government salary and benefit levels.

In 1991, the total compensation in the private industry nation-wide on average was $27,467, while Michigan state employees earned an average of $45,984. Of those amounts, $7,616 went for benefits for workers in the private sector and $17,823 funded paid leave, insurance, pensions and other benefits for state employees.

Noting the hurried attern establish residency in their new districts when several legislators were written out by redistricting, Dresch said he does not feel legislators are overburdened by out-of-pocket expenses or that salary levels signficantly affect their decision to run for office.

Rep. Frank Fitzgerald (R-Grand Ledge), on the other hand, said that given the fixed terms approved by voters Nov. 3, economic considerations may become a more important factor. Legislators may run for higher office once they reach their limit in one office, such as seeking a Senate seat after serving six years in the House.

In addition to salaries, the governor, lieutenant governor and legislators get expense allowances. The governor, lieutenant governor and justices have state cars. Legislators are reimbursed for one round trip per week between their district homes and Lansing.

Even though Dresch drives farther than most of his colleagues-more than 500 miles one way-he said the amount representatives currently receive for expenses is adequate. He did argue that reimbursement for airfare from the northern part of the state should be considered because of the time it takes to drive, particularly in bad weather.

Several commissioners also expressed concern about the fairness of the current system because of different distance demands. Commissioner Henry Fuhs suggested looking into regional travel expense amounts in relation to Lansing.

Fitzgerald, rather than commenting on salary levels, argued for reimbursement of legitimate legislative travel expenses other than trips to Lansing. He also urged switching to a voucher system, with legislators turning in their expenses for individual reimbursement instead of receiving a lump sum, to account for the difference in distances legislators must travel to Lansing.

Under Fitzgerald's recommendation, expenses related to travel to political party functions would not be considered reimbursable. Fuhs said he would consider persons who attend local party events to be constituents and therefore he would consider such trips part of legislative business and reimbursable.

Chief Supreme Court Justice Michael Cavanagh argued for a the increasing caseload on all court levels, extended hours justices spend at night and on week-ends planning for each week's deliberations, and the need for qualified candidates to serve.

House Clerk David Evans, in written testimony regarding the workload of representatives, noted that 87 working committees were formed, consisting of up to 24 members, which held 1,127 meetings during the 1991-92 legislative term. Each meeting lasted about one and a half hours.

Of the 109 representatives currently in the House, 31 have specialized or post-secondary training without college degrees. Sixty-nine have at least a bachelor's degree; 24 have a master's degree; 17 have law degrees, and two have doctoral degrees.

In vocational terms, 15 have worked in educational positions, two are bankers, four are accountants, and five run small businesses. Other professions represented include journalism, business, farming, law enforcement, social work and cosmetology.

The House met in session 121 days during 1991 and 86 days as of Nov. 1 in 1992. During this term, 2,198 bills have been introduced, with 588 of them passing the House and 257 of those enrolled. The House passed 223 Senate

While legislators have increased the number of bills being introduced and requested for introduction, the number of bills that become enrolled remains considerably lower, Dresch

Dresch and O'Connor also argued that serving in the Legislature should be a part-time job (instead of fuiltime) in order to attract a broader cross section of representatives and reduce the unnecessary expenses created by calling the Legislature full-time when it only meets three or four days a week for part of the year.

They said legislators often continue working at night or on week-ends at their private sector career. Fitzgerald said he considers his job in the Legislature full-time and uses the time outside of session to keep in touch with his constituents by holding office hours or visiting groups and businesses.

Fuhs said the commission needs to consider whether those who leave the private sector for a couple of terms in office have re-entry rights and how benefit levels should compensate if they do not tend to maintain their salary and status levels upon return to their career.

The commission's determinations must be filed by Dec. 31 and will be effective for 1993 and 1994 unless rejected by two-thirds vote of the House and Senate before Feb. 1. The commission, which did not attract more than 20 people to Thursday's meeting, has received 70 letters and more than 30 telephone calls in gathering public Salaries have been frozen at the 1990 rates because the Legislature rejected the commission's increase of 3° percent for governor, 1 percent for lieutenant governor, 3 percent for justices and 4 percent for legislators in 1991 to be followed by 1992 hikes of 9.4 percent, 2.6 percent, 9.1 percent and 11.6 percent, respectively.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Clem Webster noted during the session at the country store Saturday night how the Democrats kept telling us during the recent campaign that "patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel," and that Bush and his people wrapped themselves in the flag like drowning men grabbing life jackets. Clem told the fellows he looked up that quote, and found that when Englishman Ben Johnson said it he didn't know the first thing about Democracy, especial as it is practiced in this country where the people have a bigger hand in Guvernment than them in any other society in the world at any time.

Still, Clem said, we're lucky elections are held before Thanksgiving, or we'd never hear the end of politiciansof all stripes bragging about how much they love their country. The truth is, Independence Day and Thanksgiving are pure American in origin and practice, Clem said, and we forgive one another when we get a little carried about accenting the positive and cutting back on the negative at these times. Air conditioning and television done away with Fourth of July orating at outdoor barbecues, Clem said, so we're left with Thanksgiving to toot our horns

Clem got Thanksgiving on the agender, and the fellows kept extending remarks until the fellow that runs the store invited us to give thanks out by the gas pumps so he could go home and get some sleep. He said he was especial thankful a week has just one Saturday when all the codgers around fall on him like a plague of locust.

Even Ed Doolittle, that locks horns with Clem on every political matter, agreed that when you look at the mixture of people and problems we got, we don't do half bad. Right now, Ed said, thousands are starving in Somolia for no better reason than their Guvernment won't let em have food the world gives em. In what use to be the Soviet Union people that had to get along under Communism now are free to do their best to wipe one another off the face of the earth because of the different ways they talk, look and worship.

Regular, Ed allowed, we read where dictators and whole Guvernments say they got to suspend civil rights temporary because their people have showed they can't handle the idee of living peaceful together. Always, temporary martial law in other countries is like temporary taxes in this country, was Ed's words.

Farthermore, Zeke Grubb said, he never ceases to be amazed at how the American free enterprise is able to bend without breaking and find ways to keep getting stronger. For instant, just when every man, woman and child in this country has got blue jeans, the jeans makers come up with a reason for most of us to buy more. Zeke had saw where ads now are pushing jeans that fit loose as the latest fashion.

You know, Zeke went on, that market research has told them the market is there. So they're depending on the tried and proved idee that you create the product and then you create the demand for the product. Baggy britches is bound to come as a relief for men and wimmen that can't take a deep breath in jeans they look like they were melted and poured into. Now that these fashion conscious baby boomers are putting on years and pounds they're looking for ways to look as good as they can with what they got, and to hide what they got to much of.

Yours truly, Uncle Lew.

High School Vocal Groups Planning Madrigal Dinner

Chèlsea High School Concert Choir and Mixed Chorus are busy preparing for their fist annual Madrigal Dinner. This yuletide celebration is planned for Dec. 17 at 7 p.m. The setting for the evening is to be a Medieval English Castle which, needless to say, has been quite difficult to locate in the village of Chelsea. Through magical transformation, however, the Beach Middle School Cafeteria will make a wonderful location for the event.

Framework for the evening will follow the structure of a formal dinner. After each guest has arrived and is announced by the town crier, they will be served in the style of the period. Each course will be surrounded by much pomp and celebration with music and entertainment provided by lords, ladies, beggars, servants, and the jester of the court. This combination of music of the time period in England and a menu featuring Cornish game hen, wassail, Parisienne potatoes, chicken bouillon, vegetables, and dessert truly promises to create a unique aesthetic exerience for the audience and formers alike.

"Chelsea is my hospital."

"When I went into the hospital on short notice for surgery, I thought it would mean missing my daughter's wedding ... and she was ready to postpone it. But the staff at Chelsea Community Hospital had a better idea. I couldn't go to the wedding, so they brought the wedding to me, right in the hospital chapel. I'll never forget the extra effort ... and the care was excellent. If I ever need to go to the hospital again, my hospital will be Chelsea."

Hospice of Washtenaw History Goals Reviewed

dreds of years ago, are a response to current social needs. In the Middle Ages, they were places of welcome for the poor, sick, and traveling strangers. Hospices emerged through a belief that life is sacred. The typical medieval hospice was a combination guest house and infirmary where all comers were given food, shelter, and care until they either died, or set out again on their journey, refreshed and renewed.

This hospice concept of treating the whole person-body, mind, and spirt-continued and was kept alive by European "hospice" guest houses, which evolved into today's hospitals.

In Great Britain, hospice reemerged with vigor, largely through the efforts of one person, Cecily Saunders. First trained as a nurse. her interest in terminally ill patients led her to become a social worker, and later, a physician. In 1968, after several years of planning, Dr. Saunders opened St. Christopher's Hospice in London, which has become a model for modern hospice care. As a result of grass-roots activists who for the terminally ill, the hospice con-cept and philosophy breed and in migrated to the United States in the early 1970s.

Hospice of Washtenaw was also founded by grass-roots activism, based on community need. Supported by many selfless volunteer hours, dedication, and financial contributions, our community hospice programs grew. Established in 1978, Hospice of Washtenaw has developed and grown into a licensed Medicare. Medicaid, Blue Cross/Blue Shield certified health care organization whose decide to change care settings.

Hospices of today, like those hun-services provide care in Washtenaw, Livingston and Western Wayne counties.

The mission of Hospice of Washtenaw is to provide comfort, support and compassionate care to terminally ill people and their families that respects the dignity of each individual, and to foster community acceptance that dying is an integral part of living.

Hospice is a community of individuals who care just by their very nature and their very essence. Hospice cares for people, both adults and children, who have a life threatening illness. The Hospice community supports the patient and their family, as well as their close friends, clergy and neighbors who provide assistance.

Hospice is not a place, but a setting where the terminally ill person is most comfortable, where assurance, dignity, compassionate care, and medical attention are given, and where trust and respect are the mainstay of the relationships.

Hospice permits the patient to stay supported the concept of home care at home continuing to be a member of the family surrounded by that which is familiar and predicted whether that we be a spouse, a child, a dog or a rose

> Hospice care is not about shortening or lengthening life, nor curing or aggressively treating the disease. Hospice care is about enhancing quality of life, however the individual defines that quality. The team of Hospice caregivers remains the same during the duration of the services. This team also gives care when and if the patient should

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor.

I wish to commend the four trustees on the Village Council who voted to defeat a motion to have a five acre parcel on S. Main St. appraised. I suggest the three affirmative votes do their homework and read again page 4 of architect Lincoln Poley's Preliminary Building Analysis of the present village office. Item 1, under space planning analysis says "A program must be developed which accurately depicts village needs related to space usage," in other words a space needs study. This seems an obvious first step.

A question does arise at this stage. If this Park St. site mentioned in the article is not big enough for a new village office building as trustee Merkel claims, why were the two lots purchased? Merkel's statement concerning expansion of the police department that "takes in a township or two" is certainly news to a lot of village residents and raises the question of the feasibility of a joint fire and police safety building. I would suggest the Village Council immediately commission a study of the space requirements of the village. government.

William J. Bott.

Dexter Man Returns From Cruise Aboard Aircraft Carrier

Navy Airman Apprentice Jeffery E. Mercer, son of Vickle L. Cooley of 7964 Grand, Dexter, recently returned the aircraft carrier USS aboard George Washington, homeported in Norfolk, Va., from a seven-week shake-down cruise in the Caribbean and Western Atlantic.

During the deployment, USS George Washington, and its embarked air wing, Carrier Air Wing Seven, continuously trained on operating the ship and aircraft as a team, conducting damage control and battle station drills, and other exercises to reinforce the air wing's and the crew's ability to safely operate the ship.

While deployed, Carrier Air Wing Seven conducted more than 4,070 hours of accident-free flight operations, which included 3,834 take-offs and landings during 2,093 flying mis-

The ship also performed several successful close-in weapons systems exercises and sea sparrow launches, during which the systems tracked and shot down drone targets.

The 1989 graduate of Dexter High school joined the Navy in March 1991.

Seaman Ronald Mason Of Pinckney Returns From Western Pacific

Navy Seaman Ronald R. Mason. son of Ronald R. Mason of Pinckney, recently returned aboard the amphibious assault ship USS Tarawa, homeported in San Diego, Calif., from a six-month deployment to the Western Pacific, Persian Gulf and Indian Ocean. USS Tarawa participated in several exercises including Eager Mace, and a joint exercise with Kuwaiti armed forces. The ship also was dispatched to Somalia in support of the United Nations Pakistani troop transport.

After safely delivering the Pakistani forces, the ship headed to Australia for Exercise Valiant Usher, a combined U.S.-Australian maritime exercise with units of the Royal Australian Navy and Army.

The exercise was followed by a week-long visit to Fremantle, Australia, where crew members raised $15,000 in charity donations to help send a young American girl living in Australia to New York for vitally needed medical treatment.

Mason also visited Okinawa. Singapore, Hong Kong, Bahrain, Kuwait City, and Dubai, United Arab

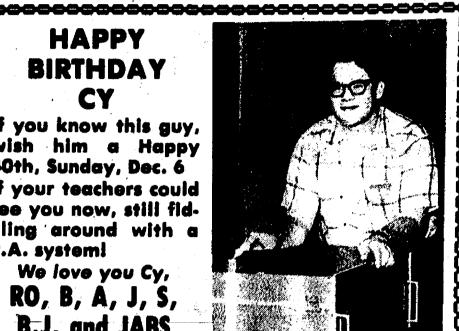

The ship's mission is to embark, deploy and land elements of a Marine landing force by helicopter assault, landing craft, and amphibious vehicles. The Navy and Marine Corps "sea-air-land" team is capable of a full range of action—from port visits and humanitarian relief to major offensive operations.

He joined the Navy in April 1990.

How Animals Spend Winter Is Subject of Program

"Where Is Everyone?" is the subject of a program at the Eddy Geology Center this Sunday, Dec. 6 at 2 p.m. Naturalist Helena Robinovitz will discuss how many local animals spend the winter months in the Waterloo Recreation Area. Participants will be able to inspect some stuffed specimens as well as take a hike to meet some of the animals who are out and about. The program, sponsored by the Naterico Natural History Association, is free and open to the public. However, a state motor vehicle permit is required to enter the park. For more information call 475-3170.

Ag researchers are using leftovers from the cottage cheese making process to help cut soil erosion. The cottage cheese leftovers are called wney, as in "curds and whey" from the Little Miss Muffet nursery rhyme. The whey is pumped onto sloped fields and the sticky substance helps keep soil on the ground.

DAN BALDUS of Webster township, Dexter, downed this 14-point buck near his home at 10:30 a.m. on opening day of the deer firearm season. The buck weighed 223 lbs. Dan made the kill with a 12 ga. slug at 40 yards.

NATHAN SMITH, 12-year-old son of Tom and Angle Smith of Chelsea and a Beach school 7th grader, shot his first deer, a six-point buck, about 5 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 14 the last day of the 1992 bow season. This was his first year of hunting after completing the Hunter Safety Course through the Chelsea Rod & Gun Club. Nathan's father was in northern Michigan preparing for the gun season. Nathan was hunting by himself with a bow and arrow near Sylvan Center and called on a family friend to help him track the deer.

Network Set Up To Help Use High Moisture Corn

Growers who have corn that cannot Bureau's "Michigan Farm News" be profitably dried for the grain market might be able to sell part of the crop to livestock producers.

The purpose of the Michigan Corn Information Exchange (MCIE), begun this week, is to put livestock producers who need corn in touch with crowners who could sell the croise of growers who could sell the grain as high moisture corn (HMC). The acceptable range for HMC is roughly 25 to 32 percent kernel moisture.

The project was instituted because of the unusual growing year being ex-perienced by livestock and cash grain producers. It is envisioned that the project will run a few months and will be a one-time event.

The MCIE is being co-ordinated by the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service, Michigan Farm Bureau and Michigan Farm Radio Network.

The MCIE is a free listing of growers who have corn that can be sold as HMC. The MCIE will also list, free of charge, grain haulers who would like to deliver corn between farms. The listing will be available to anyone who needs to buy corn.

To obtain a free copy of the list or to be placed on or deleted from the list of corn sellers, call 517-336-1555 at MSU and ask for the corn list person, or call 1-800-968-3129 at Michigan Farm

Free copies of the list will be available through all MSU county Extension offices and through MSU Outreach Communications, c/o Michigan Corn Information Exchange, 312 Agriculture Hall, MSU, East Lansing 48824-1039.

The list will also be printed in Farm and will be available at county Farm Bureau offices.

"There are a lot of farmers in northern Michigan who do not have enough corn to feed livestock through the winter," says Gerald Lindquist, MSU Extension director for Osceola county. "The MCIE can help growers move some of their corn into a market instead of paying drying expenses and put livestock producers in touch with sources for HMC."

The project will only list people who may wish to sell and haul corn. The list will not carry prices for corn or trucking. No guarantee as to the quality of the corn will be made by either MSU Extension, Michigan Farm Bureau or Michigan Farm Radio Network.

Master Gardeners To Be Recognized

Master Gardeners of Washtenaw county will be honored at a recognition banquet on Monday, Dec. 7. The banquet, co-sponsored by the Washtenaw County Co-operative Extension Service and the Master Gardener Alumni Association, will recognize the volunteer efforts of 32 area gardeners. A combined 4,110 hours were volunteered in areas as diverse as diverse as the Ann Arbor Flower Show, Frank's Nursery's "Let's Go Gardening" program, the Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti Farmers' Markets, children's programs at the Ann Arbor Hands-On Museum, garden development at Hidden Lake Gardens and with community groups representative of all ages.

-Special awards will be given to Dorothea Coleman, who has volunteered for over 500 hours and Harold Peplau, who has served more than 1,400 volunteer hours. Also being honored are three Master Gardeners receiving their Advanced Master Gardener Certification; Lucian Chaney, Keith Edwards, and Laurie Eberts-Carson.

Master Gardeners are trained and certified through the Michigan State University Co-operative Extension Service. Their mission is to educate the public and encourage sound horticultural practices.

The first legislation dealing with child labor was a 1640 Massachusetts Bay court order calling for town magistrates to investigate the possibility of "teaching the boys and girls in all towns the spinning of the yarn," according to the Department of Labor's "Labor Firsts in America.'

IRS Announces New Office Hours for Tax Assistance

"Beginning Monday, Nov. 30, our Ann Arbor office will be open Monday-Thursday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. to provide complete, quality taxpayer services," said IRS district director's representative Ken Weiland. "These hours will continue indefinitely, in-cluding the tax filing season begin-ning Jan. 1, 1992. We will not be able to assist walk-in taxpayers on Friday.

"The good news is that there are few changes in the tax laws this year," Weiland added. "If taxpayers use last year's return as a guide, they should be able to complete their own

"Taxpayers can call our toll-free number, 1-800-829-3676, and have tax forms instructions and information publications delivered right to their homes. In addition, we expect to have Volunteer Income Tax Assistance sites located in community centers, libraries, churches and other convenient locations throughout the Ann Arbor area during the tax filing

Varsity Cagers Ready To Seek Conference Title

may be treated to one of the most entertaining varsity seasons in years. One big clue: coach Robin Raymond has installed a three-point offense for the first time ever. The Bulldogs have four or five boys who are legitimate outside threats, including juniors Cory Brown and Pat Steele and seniors Nick McCalla, Erik Brown, and newcomer Aleksander Selmanovic.

"Our shooting has been very good," Raymond said.

"So far, our three-point offense has been our best weapon. In the past but we've never had great three-point shooters."

Partly because of the outside threat, Raymond wants a disciplined half-court offense. During some preseason drills he has required his team to make at least four passes before shooting the ball, no matter how open the players think they are.

'Shot selection will be the key for us," Raymond said.

The Bulldogs also have the potential for a strong transition game, one of the keys to all of Raymond's teams. There is plenty of quickness to force the turnovers on defense and there are several capable ball handlers in junior Colby Skelton, Cory Brown, senior Chris Dunham, and Selmanovic. Dunham, Selmanovic, athletic ability," Raymond said. and Steele, in particular, are outstanding passers. Raymond said.

Inside, the Buildogs should also be strong with seniors Dana Schmunk and Tom Poulter, and again, Selmanovic. Schmunk and Selmanovic are 6-4, and Poulter's pushing 6-3, although his strength is his biggest asset. Erik Brown and Mc-Calla, each 6-2, should also be able to handle themselves inside, along with senior Ed Waller, and Skelton and Steele, who are each about 6-0. Inch for inch, Skelton may be the best imper on the team. "We have shooters, passers, and genetrators but the one thing we don't lave yet is a go-to guy," Raymond

"I can see two or three guys in that cole, but I hope someone will step for-

This year's Bulldogs may be Raymond's deepest team ever. Ten of the varsity players should get a lot of glaying time. In fact, his team is so deep that as of last week he was only sure of three of his starters—Dunham, Skelton, and Steele. Selmanovic will not be eligible until the second half of the season.

"This year we'll probably change our starting line-up more than we ever have," Raymond said.

"It depends on who's playing well and what kind of team we want on the court. We could go with five guards and be in pretty good shape.'

Raymond said his full court defense

Chelsea High school basketball fans should be the strength of his team. The question marks are how well his team can rebound and play inside defense. He doesn't have anyone he would classify as a legitimate center who can dominate the middle. He does, however, have plenty of quickness as well as several kids who can jump. The team is also working hard on blocking out.

"At this point we are just average rebounders, but the kids know what needs to be done," Raymond said.

In some respects, there may be two different seasons for the Bulldogs. Pre-Selmanovic and Withwe've had some good outside shooters Selmanovic. When the exchange student from Croatia hits the courts during the second half of the season, the Bulldogs will have a 6-4 point guard who can shoot, pass, slam dunk, and run the fast break as well as anyone. He will be a welcome addition to a team that may well have the ability to win the Southeastern Conference without him. The post-season could be quite a story.

> Raymond also likes the intangibles on this year's team. Five boys, Skelton, Steele, Poulter, Matt Seitz, and David Stimpson played on the championship, football team. Cory Brown was an all-state cross country

DEDICATED COACHES and other volunteers worked over the Thanksgiving break on the new softball dugouts at Chelsea High school. They can't really be classified as dugouts since nothing has been "dug out." Nevertheless, the structures will be able to keep players and equipment dry next spring. And if next spring is anything like the last one, teams will spend a lot of time inside. Here, Bill Beard, who assists his brother, Joe, with the softball coaching duties, drives a nail into the siding. The dugouts have been donated to the school by the Chelsea Women's Fastpitch Softball Club.

THE GARDEN CORNER

★ Backyard Wildlife

Gets Ready for Winter

Take a few minutes out of your home winterizing chores, and you may observe that the wildlife that visit your backyard are getting ready for winter, too.

Glenn Dudderar, Extension Wildlife specialist at Michigan State University, says seasonal changes are occurring in animals' fur (pelage), birds' plumage and behavior.

The familiar red squirrel, for example, loses the black stripe on its side while its over-all color turns from a reddish brown to a bright rusty-red. It also develops obvious tufts of hair on its ears.

The gray squirrel changes from gray-brown to gray-white and also develops ear tufts. The fox squirrel, on the other hand, goes through no noticeable color change. Nor does the cottontail rabbit. The snowshoe hare, however, changes from brown to white. So does the short-tailed weasel, known as the ermine when it's in its winter white stage.

As cold weather approaches, animals' coats thicken. Some, such as deer, develop hollow hairs that help insulate them against the cold. This hollow hair also happens to be brown, a different color from the solid rustyred hairs of summer.

Several bird species that commonly visit backyard bird feeders undergo color changes. The brilliant yellow goldfinch turns a greenish gray, and the starling trades its iridescent black for a brownish black spotted with white. (The starling got its name for its winter coloration, which was thought to resemble a starry sky.)

Birds that spent the spring and early summer driving other birds of their species out of their breeding ter-ritories are, if not forming large flocks, at least more tolerant of other birds nearby. Goldfinches, for instance, may be present by the dozen at the feeder in the fall and winter. In midsummer, two or three pairs with territories that overlapped at the feeder might spend as much time trying to chase one another away from the feeder as feeding from it.

Bird migrations are a seasonal behavior that it's hard to miss if you live in Michigan, Dudderar points out. Some birds that people think of as migratory, such as robins, may disappear from backyards but go no farther than the nearest woodlot, where winter foods are available.

Few mammals truly hibernate-woodchucks, ground squirrels, jumping mice and bats are Michigan's only mammalian hibernators, Dudderar says. Although bears will sleep from November through April, they don't truly hibernate, he adds. During their long sleep, their body temperature and heart and respiratory rates remain near normal, and they often awaken during winter and move about, and even change dens.

Many animals become less active in the winter, however, Chipmunks,

SPECIAL DISCOUNTS FOR SENIORS - TEACHERS - NON-SMOKERS

Don't miss a perfect opportunity to remember the homeless animals of Washtenaw county this holiday season! Participate in the 15th annual Holiday Pet Food Round-Up sponsored by the Humane Society of Huron Valley. All donations of pet food and supplies will help care for the thousands of animals received at the shelter each year-approximately Look for donation bins at the front of participating grocery and pet stores throughout Washtenaw county until Jan. 4. During this time, shoppers are encouraged to purchase extra pet food and supplies and deposit them in the collection bins or bring donations directly to the animal shelter at 3100 Cherry Hill Rd., Ann Arbor.

The shelter has a tendency to run short of certain items. Currently the society is in urgent need of puppy and kitten food, canned pet food, kitty litter, and pet toys (no rawhide chews. please).

The following businesses have agreed to provide donation bins for area shoppers:

Chelsea-Polly's market. Dexter-Dexter WALCO.

Ann Arbor-Huron Feed and Pet Supply, Pet Supplies Plus, Scamp Pets and Supplies, and all Kroger and Busch's Valu Land stores.

Milan-Milan Foodtown. Saline-Busch's Valu Land.

Cleary College is hosting free information sessions on the accelerated degree program in business management. Information sessions will be held at Chelsea High School Media Center on Wednesday, Dec. 9, 7 p.m., and Wednesday, Dec. 16, 6:30 p.m.

Information Nights

Cleary's accelerated degree program is designed specifically for the busy working person. It offers students the opportunity to attend class one night per week, plus one Saturday each month, completing a bachelor's degree in business administration in one year. An alterhative schedule allows students to atitend class on alternating week-ends. Program length is still one year.

An associate degree (or equivalent ege credit) from an accredited institution and at least three years of related work experience qualify students to apply for this opportunity.

The program has run with overwhelming success at Cleary's Washtenaw and Livingston county campuses since September 1990, as well as Henry Ford Community colege's Dearborn Heights Extension nd Washtenaw Community College's western Regional Center in Cheisea.

Classes begin in January but space is limited. Persons wishing to attend one of the free information sessions or who would like more information about the program should call Cleary College's Special Academic Programs Office at 1-800-686-1883.

Bishop To Preach At Zion Lutheran Sunday Service

Zion Evangelical Lutheran church, 3050 S. Fletcher Rd., will complete its year of celebrating its 125th Anniversary with a Festival Worship Service at 10:15 a.m. on Sunday, Dec. 6.

Bishop Philip J. Wahl, of the Southeast Michigan Synod will preach on the theme "We Remember Our Past To Give Vision for the Future." The public is invited to attend.

In 1869 the Noble Order of the Knights of Labor was organized in Philadelphia. It maintained extreme secrecy until 1878, then began organizing skilled and unskilled workers openly. By winning railroad strikes against the Gould Lines and advancing the program for the 8-hour day, the Knights of Labor gained many followers, claiming over 700,000 members in 1886. It declined rapidly thereafter with the emergence of the American Federation of Laor, according to the U.S. Department of Labor's "Important Events in American Labor History."

${m Addresses}$ Needed for Tax Refund Checks

The Internal Revenue Service is trying to locate Michigan taxpayers who are still due tax refunds from their 1991 federal income tax returns. John Hummel, IRS district director for Michigan, said 1,237 refund checks worth $657,066.50 were returned by the Postal Service as undeliverable. The refund checks range in amounts from $1 to $7,359, and average $531, Hummel said.

Internal Revenue Service believes most of these taxpayers moved or changed their last names during the year, and failed to notify the Postal Service or the IRS.

When a refund is returned by the Postal Service, the IRS attempts to locate the taxpayer by follow-up mail: "but there are always some who cannot be found," Hummel said. Nevertheless, most taxpayers, about 3.5 million in Michigan, have received their refunds, he said.

If you are due a refund from your 1991 federal tax return and have not yet received it, contact the IRS at 1-800-829-1040.

★ Orange Color Potatoes Could Make Novel Chips

By Julie Corliss Today's barbecue-flavored potato chips look orange. That color may be the real thing in future chips made from orange potatoes.

Charles R. Brown, a U.S. Department of Agriculture plant geneticist, uncovered the orange spuds. They turned up in a plot of experimental crosses he made of potatoes originally collected in the Andes.

These egg-size tubers have flesh that's "about the color of a cantaloupe" and creamy white or red skin, said Brown of USDA's Agricultural Research Service. He is based at an ARS crops research laboratory in Prosser, Wash.

Potato breeders from several snack food companies have requested samples of the orange spuds from because their novelty might boost consume appeal," said Bob Hoopes, a breeder geneticist in Rhinelander.

As for the orange potato's flavor, its aftertaste is a bit like a sweet potato, but without the sweetness. Brown said. "Personally, I like them, but I must admit I look for the novel when it comes to potato flavor.'

Apart from the taste, the orange potatoes should not be confused with sweet potatoes, according to the scientist. Sweet potatoes are in a botanical family that differs from regular potatoes—including the newly discoverd ones colored orange.

Program Offered on Migraine Headaches

Headache sufferers and their families can learn about recent advances in headache research and treatment on Dec. 9 at a special program entitled "Migraine and Other Headaches."

Presented as a public service by Chelsea Community Hospital as part of its annual headache update series, the free program will be held at the Novi Hilton (I-275 at 8 Mile Rd.) from 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Leading the event will be author, educator, and nationally recognized head pain expert Joel R. Saper, MD, FACP. Dr. Saper is chairman of the American Council for Headache Education and director of the Michigan Head Pain and Neurological Institute in Ann Arbor.

Now in its third year, this highly informative program attracts thousands of individuals annually whose lives are disrupted by frequent, debilitating headache pain. "Where headache sufferers once were as likely as not to suffer their pain in silence, now record numbers are seeking information and care," says Dr. Saper.
"The heightened demand for information on headache is attributable in part to the fact that the prevalence of severe headache is on the rise in this country. But even more significantly, sufferers are coming forward because headache is being recognized as a bona fide medical condition and major public health problem—one for which treatment is not only appropriate, but often necessary," he says.

The Michigan Head Pain & Neurolical Institute, the first comprehensive head pain treatment center in the world, was founded in 1978 by Dr. Saper, who continues to serve as its director. In 1979, the Institute and Chelsea Community Hospital developed the first in-patient headache treatment unit to serve patients with severe and intractable headache pain. The Institute and inpatient unit recently became the first, and currently only, comprehensive, primary head pain treatment program in the U.S. to earn national accreditation. Awarded by the Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities, accreditation acknowledges the presence of standards of excellence for treating head

Joel R. Saper, MD, FACP, is chairman of the American Council for Headache Education, and immediate past president of the American Association for the Study of Headache, the nation's professional Headache, the nation's professional society of headache experts. He is also the director of the Michigan Head Pain & Neurological Institute in Ann Arbor. A board-certified neurologist, he was formerly assistant professor of neurology at the University of Michigan and is currently clinical professor of medicine (neurology) at Michigan State University.

Dr. Saper lectures extensively throughout the country to univerthroughout the country to universities, medical societies, business groups, physicians and other health care professionals, as well as the care professionals, as well as the public. He is the author of six books which, together with his published research and teaching, have gained Dr. Saper international recognition as an authority on headache and related disorders. Dr. Saper received his medical degree from the University of Illinois College of Medicine and his postgraduate neurological training at postgraduate neurological training at the University of Michigan.

According to Dr. Saper, public education has played an important role in encouraging headache suf-ferers to seek proper care—as has widespread attention to today's increasingly sophisticated scientific understanding of how and why this debilitating condition occurs. This year's update will explore a range of issues of importance to those afflicted by recurring head pain. Topics will in-

Over-the-Counter Medications

According to Dr. Saper, over-thecounter medications can play a role in headache relief, but proper use of them is key. Overuse or misuse of even simple analgesics can result in tolerance to the medication, leading to increased drug consumption by the patient to the point where headache. becomes a daily problem. As part of the program, Dr. Saper will discuss when and how to use over-the-counter medications-and when to avoid

New Treatments

Today's understanding of migraine provides new insight into headache therapies and how they work. Researchers are focusing on two drugs that appear to regulate the release of the brain chemical serotonin and thereby attack migraine at its source, instead of merely masking the pain. Ironically, one of these drugs is a 50-year-old therapy, called DHE (dihydroergotamine), which is undergoing a major rediscovery by headache specialists. The other is an emerging new drug, called sumatriptan, which is not yet available in the U.S. Dr. Saper will discuss these therapies, as well as the range of other treatments that are available today to help sufferers better manage their headaches.

Children and Headaches Headache can be a serious problem for children. In fact, three to four percent of the nation's children suffer from migraines. Children lose 1.3 million days of school each year due to headache pain. The onset of migraine in children has been reported as early as 12 to 18 months of age; however, six years may be an average age of onset. Though childhood migraine is similar to adult migraine in many respects, special diagnosis and treatment considerations apply. Dr. Saper will outline what parents should watch for when children complain of headaches and factors to keep in mind when seeking Hormones and Headaches Women comprise the largest population of migraine sufferers. An estimated 16 million women suffer from this disabling condition, which in addition to throbbing, relentless headaches, can be accompanied by visual disturbances, nausea, and vomiting. For about 60 percent of women sufferers, attacks occur with the menstrual cycle-triggered by a drop in estrogen, which in turn affects levels of serotonin, the brain chemical

* The Second Pet When selecting a second pet, take into account the age, sex, and personality of your other net at home. a young kitten or puppy may not be the best choice. Although some older pets take to little rambunctious kittens and puppies right away, many playful "attacks" and activity of a youngster. Another placed adult animal who is already used to other pets is probably a better choice. If you do choose a kitten or puppy, try to choose a relatively calm one. You and/or active cuts or dogs are best matched with playful youngsters or active adults. Declawed cuts get along perfectly well with nondeclawed ones.

Adult pets of the same sex, especially unneutered ones, will occasionally develop behavior problems (such as loss of litterbox training or housetraining) when introduced into the same household. Adopting adult pets of the opposite sex helps avoid this situation. Kittens or pupples of the same sex and approximate age can usually be successfully introduced. If they are littermates, it is even easier. If your current pet is extremely timid, has lived as a single pet for many years, or is very elderly, adopting any new animal may be so stressful as to be inadvisable. HSHV publishes a free brochure on selecting and introducing a second pet. ★ Chicken's Future Image: Even Leaner Meat By Vince Mazzola

A diagnostic instrument for doctors is giving animal researchers an actual picture of the lean meat in chickens. Chicken meat is relatively lean.

Yet, U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists believe it can be made

One way is to breed broiler chickens that have more white breast meat and less tissue and abdominal fat, says animal scientist Alva D. Mitchell of USDA's Agricultural Research Ser-

That's where the diagnostic technique called magnetic resonance imaging, or MRI, is coming into play. Mitchell says poultry researchers can use MRI much the same way doctors do to get images of, for exmaple, a patient's internal organs for a

What poultry researchers want to see are how much meat and fat are in a newly-bred chicken. They start by anesthetizing the bird to keep it motionless in the MRI chamber.

An image is displayed on a computer screen and printed on x-ray film. On the screen, the image can be moved around for an examination from all angles. And, a series of images can be translated into threedimensional form on a color monitor.

"In poultry, the muscle and fat development can be followed from hatching until it reaches market weight," Mitchell says. At the end of the test, the bird will be unharmed and ready for breeding.

"Such images of a live chicken give researchers an instantaneous report on whether a new breed of bird will have leaner meat," he says. That's in contrast to the time spent now in breeding a chicken and then waiting while it grows.

"We made three-dimensional, cross-sectional images of chicken's breasts right as they developed," Mitchell says of studies he did at an MRI lab operated by Howard University in Washington, D.C. Mitchell feels that this imaging system could also be used by the swine industry to breed leaner pigs.

JOE PIASECKI, left, superintendent of Chelsea schools, received a check from the Kiwanis Club of Chelsea Monday evening to help fund a trip to Washington, D.C. for a group of students who will attend the presidential inauguration. Club member Dennis Bauer made the presentation.

Students Make Plans To See Inauguration

Twelve Chelsea High school seniors have been selected to go to Washington, D.C. next month to attend activities surrounding the inauguration of president-elect Bill Clinton.

School superintendent Joe Piasecki and counselor Sue Carter will be the chaperones for John Alford, Erik Brown, Julia Gray-Lion, John Heller, Christine McLaughlin, Doug Steele, Megan Stielstra, Melissa Thiel, Sara Tracy, Sarah Velarde, Tracey Wales, and Beth Williams. As of Monday, Piasecki was still trying to find out from sources in Washington just what inaugural activities the group would be able to attend.

Meetings and photo sessions have been arranged with U.S. Congressman Bob Carr and Sen. Carl Levin. Piasecki hopes to schedule a tour of the Russian Embassy and meet with Igor Goloubovsky, second secretary, who recently spoke to Beach Middle school students.

The group will also do some general sightseeing in the Washington area, with visits to the Capitol, Federal Bureau of Investigation, Smithsonian Museums, various monuments including the Vietnam Memorial, Arlington National Cemetery, and Ford Theatre. They also may attend a play at the Kennedy Center.

They'll stay in Alexandria and ride the subway into the city.

Students were chosen based on their grade point average, interest and performance in social studies classes, and citizenship.
