Aleksander Selmanovic, Ed Waller, Erik Brown, Pat Steele, Colby Skelton, Cory Brown, Matt Seitz, David Stimpson, and Case McCalla, Dan Wehrwein, and Chad Brown, who were called up from the junior varsity for the post-season.

Village Goes To Work On Interim Trash Plan

Village of Chelsea hopes to have its interim trash disposal system in place by the end of the month.

However, if the system isn't in operation, the landfill may have to close temporarily.

Council approved a bid of $26,081 from Adams Poured Walls to provide a concrete wall and pads for temporary roll-off bins. The bins will eventually be the repositories for trash once the landfill is filled, probably sometime this month.

The wall will be added onto a similar wall already constructed by Adams for the Western Washtenaw Recycling Authority's materials recovery facility. The new wall would eventually become part of a new waste transfer station to be built at the landfill later this year.

The new 110-foot wall with pads would hold roll-off bins supplied by Browning-Ferris Industries and Liberty Environmental for regular trash and demolition. Landfill customers would back up to the wall and dump their trash into the containers, just as they now dump their trash into the landfill.

The cost to build the new wall was an unanticipated expense, said village manager Jack Myers. It's likely tipping fees will be raised to recover the cost. Demolition fees could be raised from $18 to $20 per yard, which Myers estimated could make up the expense within a year.

In addition, it now looks as though the village will build and operate the new trash transfer station. At a recent meeting of the village's Solid Waste Committee, which included representatives from area townships, no specific alternatives were offered. There had been plenty of speculation that a plan might be proposed to have a trash hauler build and operate a facility, perhaps somewhere south of the landfill, or that the village and townships might form an authority and build the facility together.

The village would like to have a transfer station in place when its one-year contracts with the waste haulers for the roll-off bins expire.

Whatever happens with the interim plan or the transfer station, village curbside trash service will not be interrupted.

Council Supports Bi-Partisan Plan for Property Tax Reform

Chelsea Village Council passed a resolution in support of the state bipartisan plan for property tax reduction and school financing at their meeting last Tuesday, March 9.

Joe Piasecki, superintendent of Chelsea schools, explained to council the differences among four different property tax reform proposals circulating in Lansing. He concluded that the bipartisan "Team 14" plan is the best for Chelsea schools because it details a specific mechanism for providing school funds after property tax millage rates are rolled back. In addition, he said, the relief does not depend on a referendum.

The resolution passed 5-1, with new trustee Richard Rigg voting no.

The bi-partisan plan calls for residential and agricultural property millage rates for school operation to be rolled back to 17 mills for two years, then 18 mills. Business property millages would not be rolled back.

To make up the difference, the state income tax would rise from 4.6 to 6 percent, although the personal exemption would also increase from $2,100 to $3,000. At the next election, voters would have a chance to eliminate the income tax increase by increasing the sales tax from 4 to 6 percent.

Residential and agricultural property taxes would be collected and administered by an education finance authority. School districts would get a basic grant from the authority of $4,850 per student, and the grant would change annually with changes

Defeat of WISD Millage Means Chelsea Looks at Higher Budget for '93

County voters overwhelming defeated a five-year, 1.45 mill proposal for special education from the Washtenaw Intermediate School District in a special election last Tuesday.

The proposal did not pass in any school district and was defeated overall, 8,988 to 5,707. Chelsea voters gave the widest vote of disapproval in the county, 735-176, perhaps reflecting the fact that the Chelsea Board of Education voted 5-2 not to support it. In addition, the vote came just as many taxpayers received their new property assessments. Increases in western Washtenaw are some of the highest in the state. Chelsea has 258 students in special education programs.

Defeat of the proposal means the district won't get an additional $315,465 from WISD next year for special education programs. The money to fund those state-mandated programs will have to come from the general operating budget.

The defeat, however, provides one more piece of next year's school funding puzzle for Chelsea School District administrators. There will be a millage issue on the ballot this June since Chelsea voters approved a one-year, 1.95 mill increase last year.

"We'd like to be able to hold the line, or maybe even roll back the millage, but at this point I don't know if that will be possible," said superintendent Joe Piasecki.

"Obviously we will have to spend more money here to fund special education. We will still get a portion of our money from WISD but that will diminish as costs continue to go up. We lost a potential $2.5 million over five years, which is a meaningful loss of revenue."

Piasecki said he was surprised not only that the vote was so lopsided, but that the proposal lost in all 10 districts.

"You can't get more consensus than that," Piasecki said.

"Obviously, property taxes are a big part of the issue. As long as school funding is tied to property taxes, people are going to question whether the schools should have the money."

Chelsea school board will probably make some decision about a millage proposal by their next meeting in April. If history is any guide, the board will also eventually approve a list of cuts to be implemented in case voters reject a millage. Last year that list included $634,000 in cuts, with several staff lay-offs.

The budget process for next year will take a lot of educated guesswork, Piasecki said. There are so many school finance and property tax reform proposals floating around Lansing, and it's hard to predict which, if any, will ultimately be approved. The one virtual certainty is that any change will be made after the budget process is completed.

The most recent proposal from Gov. John Engler, who has vowed to veto any income tax hike in exchange for property tax relief, is to phase out the state's social security payments for

County Prosecutor Wants To Delay Trial of Deacon

Washtenaw County Prosecutor's Office is waiting for a ruling on a motion to delay a trial of North Sharon Baptist church deacon Mark Foeller for at least a month. The trial was originally set for March 22.

Foeller faces several first- and second-degree criminal sexual conduct charges for crimes allegedly committed in both Jackson and Washtenaw counties. The alleged victims were children in the church's Sunday school bus ministry.

A motion to delay the trial stems from a recent ruling that consolidated all charges against Foeller in both Jackson and Washtenaw counties in Washtenaw County Circuit Court. The county prosecutor's office said it does not have time enough to prepare for a trial on the Jackson county charges.

The consolidation was made despite the objections of the Washtenaw County Prosecutor Brian Mackie.

No further charges have been filed (Continued on page five)

High School Teachers To Study Major Changes In Teaching Philosophy

Chelsea High school teachers are interested in implementing several basic changes next year in the way they teach.

And with that in mind, Chelsea Board of Education approved a proposal Monday night from the high school's School Improvement Team for the Faculty that would give teachers enough time to plan for the changes.

For seven consecutive Mondays after the spring break, students will be excused from school until 9:20 a.m., when second hour normally begins. Classes will be rotated so that no class is missed more than one or two times. Students who arrive earlier than 9:20 will have supervision in the gym, cafeteria, and media center.

That will give teachers nearly two hours, from 7:35 a.m. to discuss as a group several areas of proposed changes, which teachers say could be implemented for next year, with board approval.

One area involves use of the "J" curve, in which all students would be required to perform at least C-grade work in all courses or they would receive an "incomplete" mark. For example, a student would be required to continue to study certain material until he or she is capable of scoring at least a C on a particular test.

Another change would focus on the way students are taught. There would be far fewer lectures, memorization, and other traditional teaching tools, and more emphasis on "active" learning, in which students work together. For example, in history they might talk more about trends and social factors and how they contributed to events rather than studying specific dates and places.

Other areas the teachers want to study include establishing "high student expectations" that are important and appropriate academically and behaviorally, and how to "get students to use their minds well," through changes in curriculum and instruction.

The proposal was supported by all but five faculty members.

"When we get done, we might not look all that much different, at least for now," said superintendent Joe Piasecki.

"But at least we're talking about change. And it's significant that the proposal came from the staff and had a solid majority behind it. And the board has provided a way to get each and every teacher involved in the process."

In other business Monday night, the board approved changes to the standardized testing schedule.

Virtually all tests will be given in the fall, including the Michigan Educational Assessment Program tests and the California Achievement Tests. The American College Test and (Continued on page five)

Lyndon township's new zoning ordinance got mixed reactions at the March 19 planning commission meeting. Although several public hearings were held before the ordinance was passed, it still took several persons by surprise. A petition was presented at the meeting to put the ordinance up for township referendum. One man at the meeting said, "We haven't had zoning here for five years, and it's still beautiful." Others complained about the red tape an ordinance would require, especially the limitations on livestock and possible 4-H projects. "By the time you've finished appealing and having public hearings, the pony would be 20 years old," one person complained. The ordinance was revitalized after five years without one following reports Detroit wanted to buy a dump site in the township.

★ Time To Strengthen the Headlee Amendment

By Patrick L. Anderson

In 1978, Michigan voters approved an amendment to the state's Constitution that restricts state and local government spending and taxation, and provides important protections to taxpayers and local governments.

Known as the "Headlee Amendment" after its architect Richard Headlee, it has never been regarded as Lansing's best friend. In fact, successive legislatures and two governors treated it as, in the words of The Detroit News, "the orphan of the state Constitution." In some cases, Headlee provisions have been implemented poorly or even ignored—but that may change now because of recent action by Governor John Engler.

Last month, the Governor issued an executive order creating a 12-member Headlee Amendment Blue Ribbon Commission. The commission will evaluate the compliance of state and local governments, identify where and how the amendment is being undermined, and make recommendations for doing something about it.

This is good news for Michigan citizens, because the Headlee Amendment is a powerful tool for getting runaway government under control and making it responsible for its actions. It stipulates the following:

- It limits all state taxes and revenues, except for federal aid, to the proportion of total personal income taken in taxes by the state in fiscal year 1979 (9.49 percent).
- It prohibits local governments from adding new or increasing existing taxes without voter approval.
- It prevents the state from requiring new or expanding existing local programs without fully funding them.
- It prohibits the state from reducing the portion of its total budget allocated to local governments as a group.
- It requires voter approval of bonds that must be repaid by taxpayers.
- It limits the allowable annual increase in property taxes to the inflation rate plus new construction, and requires a vote of the people for any increase beyond that.

Problems have arisen since 1978 that point out a growing need to strengthen the amendment and put an end to both official hostility and neglect.

For example, the legislature created the Local Government Claims Review Board in 1979 to review and settle Headlee Amendment disputes with local governments. That Board has still not met. Meanwhile, hundreds of disputed claims by local governments across Michigan sit without resolution, and dozens are added to the list every year.

This inaction has produced ruinously expensive lawsuits. One such case concerns funding for state-mandated school programs and has been in the courts for over 10 years. Another one ended up with the state being forced to reclassify more than $400 million in state spending from "local" to "state."

Due to the way the legislature interpreted "Headlee," some jurisdictions have actually raised millage rates without voter approval after higher-than-inflation assessment hikes have rolled them back. These so-called "Headlee roll-ups" break the spirit, if not the letter, of the amendment.

Other abuses by state officials since 1978 include exceeding the state revenue limit in 1985, subsequent to the 38 percent hike in the income tax rate under Governor Blanchard.

Controversies have erupted over occasional local government decisions to sell non-voted bonds. When the Troy School Board tried that route to get around "Headlee" in 1989, voters had no recourse but to recall almost the entire board. Elsewhere, local governments have attempted to disguise new or higher taxes as mandatory "user fees" for such things as recycling, to avoid the constitutional voter approval requirement.

Another abuse occurs when local officials place a property tax millage question on the ballot that would increase the authorized millage, but label it as a millage "renewal." That has become a common practice around the state.

Compliance with any constitutional provision is more than a symbolic act. The Constitution is our highest law, and non-compliance without penalty or redress contributes to a breakdown of constitutional democracy in general. It shouldn't matter that some state and local government officials find it difficult or inconvenient to abide by what they've sworn to uphold.

If the work of the Governor's new commission helps to strengthen the Headlee Amendment, it will do service to the rule of law as well as to the citizens of Michigan.

Young Farmers Say They Look Forward To Future in Farming

Young farmers and ranchers are more optimistic about farming, and are better off financially than they were five years ago, but concerns about profitability, regulations, taxes and the availability of financing weigh heavily on their minds today, according to a survey conducted by the American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF).

The survey of 226 young farm and ranch leaders from 35 states was conducted Feb. 13, during AFBF's 1993 Young Farmers and Ranchers Leadership Conference in Dearborn.

When asked about their present attitude toward the future of farming, 67 percent said they were more optimistic, while 33 percent said they were less optimistic than they were five years ago. A total of 77 percent said they are financially better off than they were in 1988. When asked about their three greatest concerns, the young farmers and ranchers said overall profitability was the top concern.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The fellows at the country store Saturday night were general agreed that one of the new puzzlements in American life is telephone fortune telling. Zeke Grubb opened the session by wondering if market experts still go by the rule of creating demand for a product and then creating the product. In the case of these $4 a minute psychic lines pushed on television, Zeke said, the first step is to convince folks their lives are so lost they got to grab at any straw.

Television networks paid college students to protest the Vietnam War in time for the evening news, Zeke noted, and recent a network blew up a pickup so viewers could see that the gas tank was dangerous. Television will do anything to help folks understand anything is serious enough to be on television, like mixing movies with real events. Zeke asked could these psychic lines be set up by some mental health foundation that wants to find and help people that bet their future on vibrations felt over a phone line by somebody on the other side of the country.

Zeke said he used to wonder who stopped at Mother Marie's tent at the county fair so she could read his future from the lines in his palm or the bumps on his head, but at least she and her customer were at the same place, and she charged a flat fee. The idea behind the psychic line is to rent the line and keep the caller talking to make sure there's plenty of profit in the psychic's future.

Practical speaking, Bug Hookum said, the profit motive is a heap more likely than mental health, and there's allus pigeons to be plucked. Bug had saw where a outfit that sells programs on cable TV run a ad that could be seen only by folks that use decoding devices to get the program without paying for it. All that called about the ad was told they could pay for the service or get sued for stealing it, and most paid.

Clem Webster was full agreed that seeing on TV ain't believing, but he allowed that no farmer or rancher in this country ever called a psychic line. Even if he thinks his future could be told, he don't want to know. He sees signs of spring and his hope springs eternal, Clem said, so he finds ways to look on the bright side and keeps on pumping himself up for another run.

For sure, farmers and ranchers are reading news and ads about the market for colored cotton that don't need dye, new grain varieties, deals on equipment and, most of all, lending rates. He's worry about weather, water, prices and the rest down the road, was Clem's words.

Clem said he thought of the farming cycle recent when he read about the crop failure in the Biosphere in Arizona. Back in September 1991, four men and four women were sealed in a bubble for two years to create what was called a self-sustaining ecosystem. They were to raise their food, recycle air, water and waste. First they were caught sneaking in pizza, then they had to let in some fresh air. Now they've got to have food from outside because too many cloudy days have set their garden back two months.

However this Biosphere experiment works out, Clem said, it runs the risks of real farming. If USDA, FmHA and ACS experts are called in, we may see the bubble sold at public auction.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

Bridge Marathon Play Continues at Chelsea Hospital

The March meeting of the couples (Pairs) Bridge Marathon for the benefit of the Chelsea Community Hospital was held in the Woodlands Room of the Hospital on Sunday evening, March 7 at 8 p.m.

Prizes were awarded to individuals rather than pairs this month, with each person playing four hands with one player, and then changing to a different player for the next four hands. Coming in first was June Wilson of Chelsea, with a total of 4,970 for the 20 hands played; Bill Lurkins, also of Chelsea, was second with a score of 4,360; and in third place was Roberta Barstow of Dexter, with a score of 4,170.

The five tables for the evening also had participants from Ann Arbor and Grass Lake. Refreshments were brought by Pat and Mark Becker and Fran and Jim Lorenz. The hospital donates the coffee and tea.

Approximately the same format is being followed as in the past except that this year it will take four, rather than five, times to qualify for year-end prizes in this marathon event. The contribution to the hospital each time is $2.75. A quarter is also added to be used for prizes for the night's play. Mixed pairs may play, so think about a partner for the first Sunday evening of each or any month from now through May. Of course, the amount given to the hospital is tax deductible.

The next meeting will be Sunday evening, April 4 at 8 p.m. in the Woodlands Room of the Chelsea Community Hospital.

If anyone is interested in being on the calling list for play, please contact either Marlene Rademacher, 475-5020, or Roberta Barstow, 426-3887.

CHELSEA DEPOT

In the 1830s the Congdon brothers, Elisha and James, settled the land where Chelsea is located. In 1848 they offered the Michigan Central Railroad a free site on which to build a station. The first and succeeding structures were freight stations. The first shipment sent on May 2, 1850, was a barrel of eggs weighing 130 pounds. For a time more wool was shipped from Chelsea than from any other place in the state. Grain, apple, stock and meat shipments were also large. In 1880 the Michigan Central established Chelsea as a passenger service point. The depot was built with two waiting rooms—the east for women and children, the west for men. In 1880, Chelsea was chosen by the Michigan Central Railroad for an experiment in upgrading the appearance of rural stations. Mason and Rice of Detroit were commissioned as the new station's architects. Their design was Victorian, characterized by numerous gables and gingerbread embellishments. This depot served patrons of the Michigan Central until 1975 when the company was taken over by Amtrak. In 1981, Amtrak discontinued service to Chelsea and closed the station. Fearing damage from prolonged neglect in 1985, area citizens formed the Chelsea Depot Association to restore the building. The group purchased the depot that year, and restoration began in 1986.

Information from Judy Miller, Michigan Business Ombudsman

You may have heard about the exceptional database developed by the office of the Michigan Business Ombudsman. We affectionately call it NEWBIZ as it provides information about the necessary licenses and regulations for close to 500 different types of businesses, as well as general information on how to begin and operate a business in Michigan.

While NEWBIZ was originally designed to help Michigan's business start-ups, it has proven to be equally valuable for our on-going businesses and those looking toward expansion.

For many years our office provided this type of information through our well-staffed Business Hotline. However, two years ago our staff was dramatically reduced due to severe state budget cuts. Since the calls requesting information on how to begin new businesses continued as fast as ever, we made the strategic decision to computerize the information. We have made it available in local communities at chambers of commerce, community colleges, libraries and small business development centers. Today—in our second year of NEWBIZ operation—over 80 NEWBIZ local resource centers are located in 42 different counties. No matter where you are located in the state of Michigan, NEWBIZ information is just a phone call away!

NEWBIZ contains most everything you need to know about beginning a business in Michigan. It contains a checklist for starting a business and information for employers on how to begin a profit or not-for-profit business or organization; what licenses and registrations are required for a particular type of business; where to register for state and federal taxes, unemployment insurance, and workers' compensation. It lists what employers must do to comply with certain health and safety standards under federal and state laws and, information on how to obtain material and posters on health and safety standards that must be displayed in a place of business. Perhaps the best part of NEWBIZ is that it gives the addresses and phone numbers for all the government agencies a business must deal with while gathering this most important information.

In addition, NEWBIZ contains other valuable information. Commerce department programs are listed that could be helpful in the formation of a start-up or expansion of a business. The network of small business development centers are listed that can provide personalized services, such as the development of a business plan, or suggestions on how to take advantage of other private and public sector programs that may be helpful.

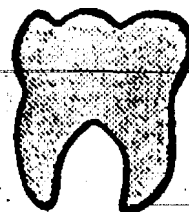

Remember, this information is not exclusive to new businesses. Rather, it is the core of information needed for any business operating in Michigan. It is just as important for the 10-year-old business to be current on state requirements as it is for the new business getting started. Call 475-1371 for referral to the NEWBIZ resource center nearest to you. We would like to add your name to our list of satisfied NEWBIZ customers.

And don't forget—if your business is experiencing other problems with state government agencies give us a call at (517) 373-6241. We'll be happy to help you!

Free Wildlife Poster Tells Story of State Rivers

"Michigan Rivers—A Heritage Worth Exploring," is the theme of this year's wildlife poster now available from the Department of Natural Resources and produced as part of the Natural Heritage Program.

The poster, which portrays a river ecosystem both above and below water level, was painted by Gijbert van Frankenhuyzen, nationally known wildlife artist and Art Director of the Michigan Natural Resources magazine. The painting and descriptive narrative on the back of the poster emphasize the dynamics of Michigan river systems, and a "Visitor's Guide to Michigan's Rivers" is included. The 1993 poster is the fourth in a series produced by the DNR Natural Heritage Program, using the Nongame Wildlife Fund, derived from volunteer donations.

"The production of these beautiful posters has been made possible by citizen contributions to the Nongame Wildlife Fund through a checkoff next to the loon symbol on the Michigan income tax form," DNR Director Roland Harmes said.

"Chelsea is my hospital."

"I got acquainted with Chelsea during my residency at the U-M Family Practice Center on the hospital campus. Ten years of private practice later, I still appreciate the same things about the hospital I did then—an emphasis on primary care, consultation with well-respected specialists, and a caring philosophy that's in tune with mine. It's important that the hospital works well with me and treats my patients well. Chelsea Community Hospital gets high marks on both counts."

School Board

the Iowa Algebra Aptitude Test will be given in the spring, along with the new high school proficiency test beginning in 1995.

Tests for second graders will be eliminated because it is believed those children should be assessed informally.

Testing for third, sixth, and ninth graders is more appropriate in the fall because their teachers can receive the scores and make better use of them, according to the report submitted to the board by curriculum director Laurie Bissell.

The only testing proposal not approved by the board was the elimination of the California Achievement Test for 11th graders.

The board also used an executive session to evaluate superintendent Joe Piasecki. Release of the evaluation, as well as a recommendation about any contract extension, is scheduled to be made at the board's next meeting April 19.

The board also approved a caving trip for May.

Before the regular meeting, board members discussed the possible configuration for a new elementary school, with the focus on a school for fourth and fifth graders.

Piasecki said last year's survey of voters seemed to indicate district residents are not ready to support the concept of an early education building, in which space would be provided for pre-school, an optional program. That has taken current discussion toward a school for older elementary students.

districts and use that money to make per-student funding more equitable state-wide. The state has traditionally made social security and retirement payments for school employees. In Chelsea, that amounts to about $1.2 million per year that the district would be forced to make up.

The proposal is viewed by some as another version of the heavily challenged Robin Hood law, which would have required wealthier districts such as Chelsea to share part of their tax base with poorer districts.

Gov. Engler has also proposed a straight property tax cut, with no provision for lost revenue to local districts. However, he has lately softened his stance on an increase in the sales tax to fund schools, but that would require a vote, which Piasecki believes would be doomed to defeat.

"We've got a lot of work to do between now and April," Piasecki said. "We'll just have to do the best we can and consider the reality of what may happen. We try to do things in a conservative way."

"To devote a portion of one's leisure to doing something for someone else is one of the highest forms of recreation."

—Gerald B. Fitzgerald

No one's life is totally free from disappointment and sadness. We can spend our free time feeling sorry for ourselves or we can achieve "the highest form of recreation" by doing things for others.

It is so easy to find others who are less fortunate than we. A little effort devoted to easing another's burden can be of great benefit to that person, and it can also enrich our lives and put our own misfortunes into better perspective.

We are fully qualified to advise you regarding possible benefits available from insurance, Veteran's and Social Security. Our assistance does not obligate you in any way.

Proposed Energy Tax Will Hurt Farm Economy

President Clinton's proposed energy tax will hit farmers especially hard because it will raise production costs, cut farm prices and make U.S. farmers less competitive in world markets, the American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF) told the president last week.

In a letter to Clinton, AFBF said the proposed tax will cost farmers an estimated $1 billion per year, about 2 percent of U.S. net farm income. Half the $1 billion hit would come from direct fuel costs; the other half would come from indirect costs resulting from price hikes for inputs like fertilizer and pesticides, according to Jack Laurie, president of the Michigan Farm Bureau and a member of the AFBF Board of Directors.

The increased expenses will cause lower prices, Laurie said, because farm prices "generally are established in markets that reflect national and international demand." Farm prices, he explained, reflect international prices minus the transportation and handling costs of moving farm goods to centralized markets. With increased marketing and transportation costs, he said, farm prices will "tend to decline to offset these margins."

Laurie stressed that all rural residents, not just farmers, will be hurt by the energy tax. "The tax will disproportionately increase the cost of living for 65 million rural people" in the U.S.

DRUG ABUSE RESISTANCE EDUCATION (DARE) recently held its graduation at North and South schools. DARE is a program included in the fifth grade health curriculum designed to teach children how to avoid drugs, alcohol, and cigarettes. Chelsea police officers come to each fifth grade class for a 45-minute lesson for 18 weeks. Officers Norm Paton and Matt Phillips present the lessons and interact informally with the students at lunch and recess. At the end of the program, each student writes an essay on how to stay drug-free. DARE teaches children how to resist peer pressure and gives them the opportunity to interact with police officers in a supportive manner. Above, from left, are DARE graduates Rebecca Metzler, Mike Milliken, Jill Drexler, and Matt Hicks, with officer Phillips.

QING HUA HOT SPRINGS in Xian, China was a favorite vacation spot for emperors and their courts. They traveled many miles to bathe in the comfort of the hot springs, even in the coldest weather. It is now a favorite tourist spot also.

Teacher Mary Ellen Mynning Visits Chinese Culture Center

By Mary Ellen Mynning
1 March, 1993

Dear Friends,

During spring break this year I spent nine days in Xian and three weeks in Beijing, just relaxing, seeing the sights, visiting, and being frustrated. Why frustrated? Glad you asked!

Xian is a former ancient capital of China... it is here that people travel from all over the world to see the hundreds of famous stone soldiers found in an emperor's tomb to guard him in the afterlife. It is here that people flock to see the Qing Hua Hot Springs where emperors and their courts would travel to bathe in comfort during even the coldest of winters. And yet Xian has a dark side too. Xian is known throughout China as a haven for pickpockets, con men, and a few truly nasty people.

I arrived in Xian after a grueling 17-hour trip and it was after dark. On the advice of some friendly fellow passengers on the train, I went to a hotel I was told was cheap, only 35 yuan (Chinese dollars) a night. WELL, when they caught sight of my foreign face the price shot up to 95 for a night. But I was tired, it was late, and hotels were closing up. No 24-hour jobbies over here!

I had traveled with my former student and best friend May, who served as my interpreter, since my Chinese still stinks. Anyway, when we walked into the room it was like walking into a sauna. A steam pipe was broken and so the room was warm and very, very moist. But to tell the truth it is so dry in northern China that it actually felt good so I said, "No problem." And the staff left. Quickly.

I should have realized something was up right then, but I always was a "little" dense.

Next, May found out the phone didn't work, but I didn't want to call anybody.

The TV didn't work either, but hey, I can't understand it anyway so, "No problem!"

I was heading for that nice soft bed. Put first to use the bathroom. This is where I made a critical mistake. I flushed the toilet. Water shot out in a huge rush all over the floor soaking my adorable Panda slippers and sweat socks, and to make matters worse it was also shooting out at waist level right onto the toilet paper holder, a totally wet mess. Now May and I had no more paper. So there we were, delicately trying to peel off wet paper from the roll and spread it out to dry over the dressers, chairs, and radiator. Why go to all this trouble?

Because all the maids and personnel had either been killed, kidnapped, or had the good sense to run off.

But hey, I am a good sport, well actually I was dead beat after that train trip, anyway I was really pooped. The beds were clean and no bugs, so I crashed. Just as I was drifting off to sleep in a world where I was happily spending the million dollar lottery I had just won, I heard a scratching outside my window. Repeated scratching. Sounded like someone was trying to undo the thingamabob around my window in order to remove it and sneak in and steal my stuff. I whispered for May. She had already heard it. She crept out looking for help. Fat chance there. Those people were still sensible enough to stay hidden. Finally May stood by the light switch. I by the drapes. On the count of 3 I would yank open the drapes as she flashed on the light and we both prayed the creep would run off in fear. Softly I whispered 1, 2, 3. Yank. And there facing me in surprise and shock was one really huge, well-fed rat. He looked startled for a moment, then shrugged, and went back to digging at my window sill. I HAD HAD ENOUGH!! We packed. I stormed to the front desk. I yelled. I banged. I pounded on the window. Eventually a sleepy head appeared. Apologies. A new room given. It was now 1:30 a.m.

There are no late night check ins at motels or hotels in small cities like Xian. It was either stay, or sleep on the street.

Thus, even though the new room still had a shooting water toilet, and lots of steamy air, I kept quiet, but what about that window! Yanking open the curtain I found myself looking down onto a sleeping worker in his room. I could make out his furniture. Tasteful. Strange view, but hey, better than a rat. So I went to bed.

Next day we took a taxi into town. The fare came to 16 yuan. I gave the guy a 20. He drove off. No change. My mouth hanging open. Happened twice before I wised up and refused to budge until I got my money back. As for restaurants, they insisted on giving me an English menu with inflated prices until May wised up, told me to shut up and started telling everybody I was a Russian. I mumbled "da" and "nyet" a lot and tried to look passive as all get out. Worked!

Now it had snowed there for 5 days straight. I had come from dry old Tianjin so all I had were loafers. So I needed boots. Now my HUGE foreign feet (size 9 1/2) were impossible to fit in the ladies department. May was horrified when I, with a determined air, headed for the men's side. She was aghast at the size of my feet (size 42 in Chinese). She was embarrassed that I was going to be seen trying on a man's boot. Sure, they were warm, water-proof, and comfy... but they were a guy's! I thought I looked stylish, they were black and looked just like a hiking boot from the States. As I stomped out of the store (I say stomped, because each foot weighed 5 lbs.), May tried to walk 10 feet behind me and pretend she didn't know me. But hey, I was happy.

We passed tons of people building snowmen, making Buddhas, dragons, and one clever person had made one of a foreigner complete with very large nose and carrying a camera on his big belly. May struggled to tug me away before I snapped its photo (but I got it anyway).

You can clearly see I was a trial to the poor little thing. Plus her idea of a nifty vacation was to go to every department store and compare stuff with Beijing stuff. But I wanted to see nifty stuff like the tomb of the 17-year-old princess who had been killed because she had blabbed about all Empress Wu's young lovers (Wu was her grandma). AND stuff like BUD-DHA'S LITTLE FINGER! That is what I call culture! Anyway, May sighed a lot, trudged along after me, and tried to keep me from eating at the food stalls along the street where they were selling yummy egg rolls, mutton kabobs, and sugar roasted bananas. "Don't eat that stuff, it is dirt everywhere!" She yelled. I ate. Got sick. She smiled.

Well, enough about Xian. As you can see it was interesting, expensive, but not a trip I care to repeat.

Diabetes Alert Day is March 23. Do you know whether you have diabetes? Symptoms are: blurred vision, fatigue, slow healing cuts, frequent infections, increased thirst, frequent urination, hunger and weight loss.

Adults usually have the first symptoms mentioned and children usually have many of them. If you have any of these symptoms, see your physician now. If you have diabetes, are you doing all that you can to keep your blood sugar in control to delay the long-term complications?

Learn more about how to care for yourself and your diabetes. Openings are still available in the class series, Life with Diabetes, beginning in April, May and June. Classes are designed to teach persons with diabetes and their families about diabetes, how to control blood sugar, what to do on sick days, how to prevent and treat low blood sugar, the effect of foods on blood sugar, personal care to delay complications and much more.

Classes are offered at a variety of times, days or evenings. There is a fee for the classes and persons must be registered to attend. A spouse/friend of the participant can attend at no charge.

'Odyssey of the Mind' Team

Four teams from Beach Middle school participated in "Odyssey of the Mind" regional contest on Saturday, March 6 at Jackson Northwest High school.

"Odyssey" is a program that stimulates kids to solve problems and think creatively.

This year there were five primary problems available and each team tackled one. Two Beach teams entered "Pit Stop," which required each team to build a vehicle powered by a mechanical jack. Each entry was required to go around a track, among other criteria.

Another team entered "Folk Tales," in which the problem was to create and present a team-originated folk tale.

And yet another team entered "Structure," in which the problem was to design and build a balsa wood structure to balance and support as much weight as possible.

Groups are coached by parents, but parents are now allowed to help the students solve the problems.

Libraries Have IRS Tax Form Videos

So you think the lines at your local tax return preparer are just too long and you don't have time to wait? You say you want to get your tax return done RIGHT NOW so you can get that refund you need?

Well, according to the IRS, with the help of your local library, you should be able to do just that.

"First of all, the good news is that the tax forms and tax laws have not changed from last year," said IRS district director John Hummel. "And most local libraries provide video and audio tapes to take you step-by-step, and line-by-line, through the completion of your federal tax return," he said.

"Just visit your library and check out one of our step-by-step videos. Then, using last year's return as a sample, you should be able to do your federal income tax return yourself," Hummel said.

Hummel also said that libraries have a reference set of IRS reproducible tax forms that may be photocopied in case you find yourself missing a form you need to prepare your return.

"Don't wait—file now," Hummel said. "With the help of the line-by-line instruction videos at the library, filling out your return this year should be easier than ever!"

Bulldogs!

Bulldogs Edge Saline For District Crown, Play Flyers Tonight

For the first time in more than 30 years, the Chelsea Bulldogs can call themselves basketball district champions.

Although there are apparently no written records, the memories of long-time local basketball fans have placed the last Chelsea district title in 1961.

The Bulldogs (18-5) take on the Willow Run Flyers (13-10) in the first round of the region tournament at Carleton Airport High school today (Wednesday) at 7 p.m.

The Flyers got off to a slow start this season under new head coach Matt Seidl, who coached at Pinckney last year. However, according to Chelsea coach Robin Raymond, the Flyers are a well-coached and disciplined team. Much like the Bulldogs, they lack stars but play solid team ball. They are 9-2 over the last part of the season.

"We can play with them," said Chelsea coach Robin Raymond.

"And we have as good a chance as anyone to win the region."

The other bracket features Trenton (10-13) against Carleton Airport (16-7), who were scheduled to play last night. Winners of the two games meet Friday at 7 p.m.

The Flyers, Raymond said, will probably play a man-to-man defense. He expects them to run on offense. The teams match up reasonably well, although the Flyers over-all may be quicker but less physical.

To reach the regional, host Chelsea had to hold off upset bids by the Dexter Dreadnaughts last Wednesday in the semi-finals and by the Saline Hornets in last Friday's finals. Neither the Dreadnaughts, who lost 62-60, or the Hornets, who lost 60-55, had close to a .500 record for the season. Yet they gave the Bulldogs two of their closest and most exciting games of the year.

In the finals, Nick McCalla's three-point shot from the right wing put Chelsea ahead 57-49 with 1:31 to play, and it appeared the Bulldogs had a comfortable lead.

However, Saline's Jeff Kind hit a three-pointer from the wing and Jay Haselschwerdt nailed another from the corner to pull the Hornets within 57-55 with :46 left.

McCalla made one of two free throws to put Chelsea up 58-55 with :30.4 left. Chelsea's Tom Poulter rebounded the miss, which set up another one-and-one attempt by the Bulldogs.

A Chelsea miss on the first shot gave Saline another crack at a three-pointer, but a shot from the wing bounced wide and out of bounds and Chelsea had the ball with :08.2 left.

Chris Dunham was fouled after the in-bounds pass. He put the game away with two free throws.

The contest was close most of the way. Chelsea's largest lead was 19-10.

However, the Hornets pulled ahead 34-32 on Haselschwerdt's three-pointer. The game was tied at 41 at the end of the third quarter.

With 3:50 left, Poulter rebounded a teammate's missed free throw and was fouled on the put-back try. He made the second shot, which gave Chelsea the lead for good at 48-47.

"Saline played better than I expected," Raymond said.

"They made some big-time plays. But it's hard to win those games from the outside."

Most of Saline's offense came from the perimeter. Guard Jay Haselschwerdt scored 22 and his brother, Lee, had 11 points. Meanwhile, Chelsea's Pat Steele held Saline center Bill Gladhill to two points. Gladhill's 19 points on Wednesday played a key role in the Hornets' upset of the Tecumseh Indians in the semi-finals.

NICK MCCALLA (32), one of the heroes of last Friday night's district final, gives a lift to two of his teammates, Tom Poulter (50) and Aleksander Selmanovic, at the conclusion of Chelsea's dramatic 60-55 win over the Saline Hornets.

On the other hand, Chelsea had only five scorers, but four were in double figures. Poulter led the offense with 18 points and 15 rebounds, including 11 offensive rebounds, many of which resulted in field goals or free throws.

McCalla was next with 15 points, on 6-8 shooting from the floor. He made three field goals and a free throw in the fourth quarter. Steele scored 13, Dunham 10, and Colby Skelton four. Dunham made a field goal and was 4-4 from the line in the fourth quarter.

Cory Brown had three steals and Dana Schmunk added five rebounds and three assists.

The Bulldogs were 19-57 from the field and 20-27 from the line. Saline was 22-55 from the field but just 6-8 from the line. Chelsea held a 44-30 rebound advantage.

In the semi-finals against Dexter, Dunham hit a jumper from the baseline with :07.9 left to give the Bulldogs a 62-60 lead, then stole a pass at half-court and called timeout with :03.4. Following a Chelsea miss at the line, Skelton knocked away a pass to half-court.

"We do a lot of those situations in practice and Chris worked it to perfection," Raymond said.

Before Dunham's dramatic shot, Steele tried to call timeout, but Dunham either didn't see him or thought his shot was too good to pass up.

"In those situations, I'd rather have the kids take the shot if they have it," Raymond said.

McCalla Competes at State

Chelsea's Kevin McCalla competed at the state class B wrestling championships at 152 pounds last Friday.

The senior captain lost his first two matches, which knocked him out of the tournament.

"Kevin wrestled two good matches," said Chelsea coach Kerry Kargel.

"In the end, he was one of the 16 top wrestlers in the state."

McCalla lost his first match to Darrell Slaughter of Hastings (35-6), 5-4. In the second match he was beaten by Jeremy Russell of Marysville (34-4), 9-7.

"In the second match we wanted Kevin to open it up and try to take Russell down, but he ran out of time," Kargel said.

The state champ at 152, Jeremy Cook of Mason, lost to McCalla earlier in the season, 9-7, at the Jackson County Western Invitational.

McCalla finished with a 33-8 season record and a 108-39 career mark.

CHELSEA SENIOR Kevin McCalla competed at the state wrestling meet last Thursday. He lost two close matches.

Tickets on Sale For Tonight's Region Contest

Tickets for tonight's basketball game between the Chelsea Bulldogs and Willow Run Flyers at Carleton Airport High school will be sold today until 3 p.m. at the Chelsea High athletic office.

Game time is 7 p.m. A caravan of Chelsea supporters will leave from the high school parking lot at 5:30 p.m.

Directions to Carleton Airport High school are as follows. Drive I-94 east to I-275 and exit south. Get off I-275 at exit five (Carleton Rockwood Rd.) and turn right. Drive to the end of Carleton Rockwood and turn left on Grafton Rd. Drive four more miles past the junior high school on the left. The high school is behind the junior high.

Unlike the Saline game, Chelsea fell behind early, 16-6, but out-scored the Dreadnaughts 17-5 in the second quarter to take a 31-26 lead at half-time.

"We played pretty well the last two minutes, but other than that it was even at best," Raymond said. In fact, the Dreadnaughts out-scored Chelsea in three quarters.

"We have to give Dexter a lot of credit. They played very well."

Dexter had fine games from seniors Ryan Hill and Andy O'Haver with 23 and 20 points, respectively. The Dreadnaughts hit five three pointers.

However, the Bulldogs had a more balanced attack, led by co-captains Dunham and Poulter. Dunham scored 18 points to go with six assists and four steals. Poulter had 14 points and eight rebounds.

Poulter Selected to All-League Squad

Chelsea Bulldogs' senior captain Tom Poulter was one of three unanimous selections to the Southeastern Conference All-League Basketball First Team. Poulter, a 6' 3" center, has been instrumental in the Bulldogs' drive to the region tournament this season. Other unanimous first-team selections were the high scoring Milan tandem of E.J. Bates and Marjorie Eaddy. Rounding out the squad were Dexter's Ryan Hill and Pinckney's Christian Pleuss. Chelsea's Colby Skelton was named to the second team, while teammates Pat Steele, Chris Dunham, and Dana Schmunk were all honorable mention selections. Other members of the second team included Lincoln's Scott Chatfield, Tecumseh's Brian Puffer, Pinckney's Dennis Douglas, and Saline's Jay Haselschwerdt. The next boosters meeting will take place April 21.

SPORTS NOTES

BY BRIAN HAMILTON

"Chelsea started the season by overpowering Roosevelt 65-46 and Stockbridge 65-40, but at Dexter the Bulldogs couldn't find the range and consequently lost 49-58." So begins the entry under the team picture of the 1961 Chelsea Bulldogs basketball team, purported to be the last Chelsea team to win a district title. (If anyone has different information, please call.)

The long-paragraph describing the season ends like this:

"Chelsea lost a rough and tumble game to Manchester 43-45, but a week later accomplished the upset of the season when they knocked off the Washtenaw Conference Champions, Saline, 58-56. The momentum from this victory carried over into the District Tournament. The Bulldogs won the tournament by defeating Manchester 57-48, Pinckney 63-42, and Dexter 63-48. In the first game of the regionals, Wyandotte St. Patrick edged the Bulldogs 52-53. This loss left Chelsea with a 16-5 record—their winningest season in 10 years."

Thirty-two years later, not much has changed, including the hairstyles. The players, which included local attorney Dave McLaughlin and dairy farmer Charles Koenn, all had extremely short hair. The one big difference is no one had a guinea pig sitting on top of his head, the way one popular style looks.

It was also of interest that Chelsea is essentially playing all the same teams they were three decades ago; Dexter, Stockbridge, Manchester, Brooklyn, Saline, and Pinckney.

Other members of that team included Don Sexton, Jim Maynard, Alton and Homer Nixon, Mike Marsh, Daryl Keezer, Don Blalock, Ed Louhon, Larry Cartell, and Dan Moyer.

One story about the team involves the Nixon boys, who were, and I presume still are, identical twins. In one game against Pinckney, the Chelsea coach tried to gain a strategic advantage by having the Nixons swap jerseys at half-time. The Pirates apparently fell for the ruse for some time. (How do you suppose the referees sorted that one out?)

I don't know how many of those former Chelsea players are still living in the area. But if they are following this year's history-making team in the play-offs, I hope it brings back some pleasant memories.

So, the Bulldogs won three straight district tournament games last week to advance to today's regional semi-final against the Willow Run Flyers. And that answered my one big question about this team. They can play several big games in a row without suffering a letdown.

The Bulldogs edged Pinckney in an extremely emotional contest to end the regular season, then pounded Central, before edging Dexter by two and Saline by five. Any Chelsea letdown last Wednesday, and the district finals would have included two sub-.500 teams. Any letdown on Friday and I would be writing about how wonderful the season WAS.

Today, thanks greatly to the efforts of seniors Tom Poulter, Chris Dunham, and Nick McCalla, the season continues.

Where would the Bulldogs be without Poulter? He played two strong, consistent games against Dexter and Saline, averaging 16 points and 11 rebounds. His work on the offensive boards against Saline was one of the deciding factors.

McCalla came through off the bench Friday to score eight points in the fourth quarter, including a three-pointer late in the game that brought Chelsea fans to their feet for the rest of the night. He swished two crucial jumpers in the lane down the stretch.

And Dunham, what a performance last Wednesday against the Dreadnaughts. He buried a jumper from the right baseline to put the Bulldogs up by two, then stole the ball at half-court and had the presence of mind to call time out, all in the last 10 seconds.

Despite all of that, and despite all the success, I still have the nagging feeling that the Bulldogs have not played as well as they are capable of playing, at least on offense. Poulter has had the most consistent season of anyone, but everyone else has been up and down. Fortunately, there's enough talent that the Bulldogs don't have to rely on the same two or three guys every night. If all the Bulldogs catch fire beginning tonight, Chelsea fans could be looking at a trip to the state tournament.

And wouldn't that be one for the history books.

I will always remember last year's district finals against the Tecumseh Indians in Brooklyn, but not for the play on the court.

Immediately after the game, as usual, the awards presentations were made. Chelsea players, many of them in tears, stayed and applauded as each Tecumseh player was introduced and received his medal.

I'm sorry the Saline Hornets didn't have as much grace in loss last Friday. Immediately after the required handshakes, they disappeared into their locker area.

Maybe I'm naive, but I'd like to think Chelsea players' actions last year were not unusual. Then again, maybe it's just one more area in which Chelsea sports programs distinguish themselves. Coach Robin Raymond, as well as many other Chelsea coaches, know where some of the great lessons of high school sports lie.

Village To Install Automatic Front Door

Many elderly village residents have had problems getting in the front door of the village office complex because the door requires a good pull even by a person with average strength and mobility.

That will soon change, however. Village council authorized the purchase of an automatic front door for $1,500 from Stanley Magic-Door, Inc. of Birmingham.

In a memo to village council, Barbara Fredette, the village's Americans With Disabilities Act coordinator, wrote, "I have assisted many elderly individuals in entering and exiting this building as they simply do not have the strength to operate the front door. If a disabled individual in a wheelchair needed to access the building, it would be nearly impossible."

The company was recommended to the village by Chelsea Community Hospital.

New Books at

McKune Library

Stories about public trials and private conflicts are among the additions to the fiction collection at McKune.

"Degree of Guilt" by Richard North Patterson. Christopher Paget, a trial lawyer with a famous past, defends a former companion against a murder charge, in spite of a secret in her past that provides her with a powerful motive for murder.

"Mitigating Circumstances" by Nancy Taylor Rosenberg. Set in the crowded courts, high-speed thoroughways, and glamorous Southern California suburbs, this thriller tells the story of an attorney's terrible ethical dilemma. Because the author is a former police investigator, her story offers intimate knowledge of how crime and punishment really work—on both sides of the law.

"State v. Justice" by Gallatin Warfield. With all the riveting suspense of Reasonable Doubt and Presumed Innocent, this book tells the story of two opposing, hardened lawyers who use a controversial murder trial to exact revenge on each other.

"Wilkes On Trial" by Charles M. Sevilla. In this story the unsinkable attorney fights for his life amid a bevy of prosecutors, cops, court clerks and judges who would just as soon see him hanging by his neck in the halls of justice.

NATIONAL REFERENDUM - GOVERNMENT REFORM

(Please darken box completely)

- Do you believe that for every dollar of tax increase there should be $2.00 in spending cuts with the savings earmarked for deficit and debt reduction? YES NO
- Should the President present an overall plan including spending cuts, spending increases, and tax increases and present the net result of the overall plan, so that the people can know the net result before paying more taxes? YES NO
- Should the President issue a quarterly, audited financial report to the people so we can know whether or not the results of the debt reduction plan are being achieved as scheduled? YES NO
- Do you want a Constitutional Balanced Budget Amendment, with emergency funding limited exclusively to National Defense? YES NO
- Should the President have the Line Item Veto to eliminate waste? YES NO
- If our government wants the American people to pay more taxes, should it provide leadership by example - all sacrifice begins at the top - by cutting Congress' and the President's salaries by ten percent and reducing their retirement plans to bring them in line with those of the American people? YES NO
- Should Congress agree to term limits that would automatically take effect if the specific debt reduction time table is not achieved? YES NO
- Should Congress and officials in the White House set the example for sacrifice by eliminating all perks and special privileges currently paid by taxpayers? YES NO
- Do you feel past international trade agreements have caused loss of jobs in this country? YES NO
- Should we eliminate foreign lobbyists completely - no loopholes - and make it a criminal offense? YES NO
- Should we dramatically reduce the role of domestic lobbyists to provide only information - not money directly or indirectly? YES NO
- Should we eliminate political action committees and soft money contributions to campaigns? YES NO
- Should laws be passed to eliminate all possibilities of special interests giving huge sums of money to candidates? YES NO
- Do you believe that Congress should not exclude itself from legislation it passes for us, and should correct this discrepancy immediately? YES NO
- Should major new programs such as health care reform be first presented to the American people in detail, and then tested in pilot programs to prove their cost effectiveness before they are implemented nationwide? YES NO
- Should the electoral college be replaced with a popular vote for the Presidential election? YES NO
- Was this TV forum worthwhile? Do you wish to continue participating as a voting member of United We Stand America? YES NO

RECAP, 1993

Although the Chelsea Area Players got off to a weak start with their opening number, "Try To Remember," it was soon apparent that they had planned an extra special celebration show, on March 13, in the form of "RECAP," in honor of the troupe's 20th anniversary.

You needn't have been familiar with every CAP show to have enjoyed this event which highlighted songs from their musicals and featured area talent, many of whom had returned to reprise original roles from the group's past productions.

Every actor and actress has reason to be proud of their performance, yet the most energy came in ensemble pieces such as "Oklahoma!," "Mame" and "Hello Dolly," which offered a surprise guest, DiAnn L'Roy, who founded the Chelsea Area Players in 1972.

Obvious crowd pleasing performances included: Mark Nelson and Kathleen Treado-Daniels (who performed "You're the Top" from "Anything Goes"), Ric Foytik and Meg Dewall ("Just You Wait" from "My Fair Lady"), Alan Day ("If I Were A Rich Man" from "Fiddler on the Roof"), Chris Alber-Abrams and Ben Williams ("Soon It's Gonna Rain" from "The Fantasticks") and Joe Diederich with Ruth Kenny and Sue Williams ("Easy Street" from "Annie"), with Roxy Kring and ensemble ("Singing in the Rain" from "Singing in the Rain") and with Susan Filipiak and ensemble, who also showcased some wonderful tap dancing ("42nd Street" from "42nd Street").

Comic relief was provided by Sue Williams, which is impossible to describe, other than to say that her disheveled appearance added to eccentrically funny dancing during "Easy Street" and the exhibition of a Betty Boop tattoo on the belly of Art Finger during the men's, "Nothing Like A Dame" from "South Pacific." Many performers shun working with kids and animals, but RECAP offered both. The appearance of Nimue, the dog, during the introduction of an Annie segment and the songs by CAP's youngest members were a delightful addition.

The children's "Whistle A Happy Tune," with Chris Alber-Abrams, CAPtured the audience's heart and by the expressions on their small faces, one could tell that at least half had already been bitten by the acting bug.

THESPIAN TOM MULL OF CHELSEA recently played the role of KGB agent Molokov in a rock musical, "Chess," at Northern Michigan University. The musical portrayed two longtime rivals in a battle for the World Championship of the International Chess Foundation. The scenes shifted from Italy to Bangkok for one of the most exciting and timely musicals in recent history. The musical was directed by Dr. James Panowski, director of theatre at NMU, and was produced, choreographed and staged by NMU students. Mull, a senior majoring in theatre, is the son of Betty Mull of Chelsea and Dennis Mull of Ypsilanti.

It will be interesting to see these future Thespians gain theatrical experience while growing up under the CAP spotlight.

Virtually unnoticed, area celebrity, Jeff Daniels and his children, watched this Saturday night performance from the last row of the auditorium.

I had heard that Daniels was in New York rehearsing a show which opens on Broadway in a few weeks and felt that might have explained his absence on the CAP stage. Daniels was a very visible actor with the Chelsea Area Players during the 70s.

At the end of "What I Did for Love," RECAP's last number which included the entire cast, and just as I was thinking it was a shame he couldn't have been a part of this anniversary production, a long-haired, bearded Daniels stepped from stage left.

"In case you don't know me, or don't recognize me," he said, "I'm Jeff Daniels."

After the applause had died down, Daniels presented a bouquet of roses to DiAnn L'Roy, who had flown from Texas to be a part of CAP's three-night commemoration.

In honor and with affection, Daniels publicly thanked Ms. L'Roy, "... for not only what she did for me, but for many other people."

It was a touching sentiment with which the audience showed their appreciation by a second standing ovation in tribute to CAP's founding member.

RECAP, which sported a cast of 80, with 21 members re-creating roles and reuniting after many had moved out of the area, was an enormous undertaking. I'm not sure the average theater-goer is aware of the time, emotional and physical energy, co-operation and commitment needed to pull off a successful show of this calibre. Credit is not only due the director, Jan Koenigter, vocal and musical directors, Dill-Murrell and Rich Alder and co-producers, Shelley Wheaton and Cynthia Gaken, but to the entire production crew, whose reward is knowing that they helped present a truly entertaining presentation. All involved were recognized during the standing ovation at the end of the show.

Happy Anniversary, Chelsea Area Players! May you have many, many more break-a-leg productions in the years to come. I'll see you at "Gypsy," which is scheduled for this summer.
