FRIENDS Mary Kate Setta, right, and Kara Kimmen enjoyed last Thursday's summer-like weather on the playground at North school. Mary Kate was practicing writing her name while Kara offered encouragement. Both girls are first graders.

TEMPERATURES DROPPED about 40 degrees overnight and put a big chill on Saturday's "Bounty for the County" in the west municipal parking lot. The event featured foods prepared by more than a dozen of the county's top restaurants and was held to raise money for culinary scholarships. Although the event was held in temperatures that began in the mid 30s, a steady stream of people attended.

ANTIQUE CORN PLANTERS belonging to Ralph C. Myer were on display Sunday at the Waterloo Farm Museum's annual Pioneer Days. Myer has 83 corn planters dating back about 100 years. They operate kind of like an injection system for corn seeds.

HAND-CRANKED cider press was used by David Brown last Sunday to make cider for the many visitors to the Waterloo Farm Museum's annual Pioneer Days. The day is designed to show how pioneers lived their daily lives in the area, as well as raise money for the museum, just outside the Village of Waterloo.

School Finance Proposal Leaves Many Questions For Chelsea District

If Gov. John Engler's proposal for school financing reform passes intact, it could be bad news for the Chelsea School District and other information districts.

Engler outlined his plan in a speech last Tuesday.

Under the plan, every student in every district is guaranteed a base grant of $4,500. The grant will follow students to whatever school district they attend. That will prove to be a big boost for districts that spend less than $4,500 per student but do nothing for districts like Chelsea, which spends $5,787 per student, according to the governor's office.

Chelsea would receive $5,787 per student, plus one percent, or a total of about $5,825 per student.

"In terms of dollars, it's about as good as we could hope for," said assistant superintendent Fred Mills.

Mills said it's the other parts of the proposal that spell trouble.

First, there is no mention of what would happen after next year in terms of money for the district. Would there be at least a cost of living increase or would districts be forced to tighten their belts?

Second, there is no provision for Chelsea voters to levy any "enrichment" millage if they want to preserve or add a program, although Engler has made that proposal for the richest 35 districts in the state. Mills said he believes that portion of the Engler proposal would not survive a court challenge.

All money would come through the state. That would take the district out of the millage business, at least as far as operations are concerned, but would force it to live within a state-imposed budget, however reasonable or unreasonable. How it would affect bargaining with the Chelsea Education Association, the teachers' union, is not known. The current CEA contract expires this year and negotiations usually begin by mid-March.

Mills said he has not taken the time to try to plug in all the numbers to see the precise effect of Engler's proposal.

"The numbers will keep changing," he said.

"I could do a different set of calculations every day."

Under Engler's plan, schools would be funded through the combination of a two-cent hike in the sales tax; a four-percent tax on home sales; a 18-mill property tax on commercial, industrial, and vacation property; a 50-cent tax per pack of cigarettes; a half-percentage-point increase in the Single Business Tax; and a tax on public employees' pensions. New taxes would total $4.27 billion.

The plan also promises to put a sizeable dent in the village's budget. The plan calls for the elimination of state revenue sharing. This year the village will receive about $300,000 in such funds, its second largest source of revenue for a $1.89 million budget. The loss would be offset by the imposition of property taxes now earmarked for education.

For many Chelsea residents, the plan would amount to a tax decrease due to the high valuation of homes in the area. However, anyone who sells a house soon could lose out due to the four-percent home sales tax.

A starter home in the Chelsea area costs about $100,000.

Engler's proposal also calls for school choice, but districts could refuse to accept outside students. Report cards would be issued on each district, to allow parents to make comparisons of test scores and graduation rates. Schools could receive extra money if they show academic improvement, or lose money if they don't. School councils, composed of teachers and parents, would be created to make administrative decisions over schools. And, teachers wouldn't have to join unions.

Engler's plan was, predictably, attacked by many people. Many conservatives want the local option for the 35 districts (many of them in politically conservative Oakland county) to be extended to all districts. Liberals still see too much inequity in how much money schools will receive.

The legislature has a self-imposed deadline of Dec. 31 to reach a final plan. After that date, any funding plan would have to be approved by a two-thirds majority in each house, rather than a simple majority.

Considering the volatile nature and importance of the issue, it's not likely that two-thirds of legislators will agree to any plan if one can't be devised beforehand that will only have to appeal to 51 percent. And that could put school funding next year in a state of chaos, or could force the legislature to re-instate the property tax, at least temporarily.

Engler wants to put the question of a sales tax increase on the ballot in February.

Halloween Party Set Saturday, Oct. 30

The annual Chelsea Halloween celebration will be held this year on Saturday, Oct. 30.

The community Trick or Treat will run from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Kiwanis Club of Chelsea will hold its annual party beginning at 6 p.m. in the Municipal Parking Lot. Costume judging will begin promptly at 8.

After the judging, Jim Gaken and his antique fire truck, along with the Beach Middle School Marching Band, will lead the children in a parade around the block and back to the lot.

Once back at the lot, contest winners will be announced by emcee Bill Rademacher, and photos will be taken for The Standard.

As always, the club will serve cider and donuts.

Retirement Community Honored by Accreditation

Chelsea Retirement Community has become the first retirement community of its kind in the country to receive the highest award granted by the Continuing Care Accreditation Commission.

The accreditation program was started eight years ago and was initially presented only to "entry-fee" facilities, those communities that charge large up front payments.

In 1992, the program was extended to "rental-fee" communities, those that charge simple rent for their services. Chelsea was one of the first four entry-fee communities to apply for and the first to receive accreditation.

According to Seneca Foote, president of the United Methodist Retirement Communities, of the 1,400 retirement communities in the country, approximately 140 are accredited, and only two others in Michigan are accredited.

The accreditation process studies every aspect of the community, from the care patients receive to the institution's financial health. Included is a self-study.

The accreditation was marked at a ceremony last Monday, Oct. 4 at the community. On hand was state Sen. Lana Pollack, whose mother is moving to the community. She presented a legislative tribute to the community for its award. David Douma, from the Michigan Non-Profit Homes Association spoke about the health care industry for the elderly and the quality of care in the Chelsea community.

Greg Hughes, administrator of the Chelsea Retirement Community, accepted the certificate of accreditation from Brian Carnaghi, a member of the financial advisory committee of the Continuing Care Accreditation Commission.

More than 100 staff, residents, and community members attended the program.

Chelsea Retirement Community offers independent living apartments, a semi-independent residence, a special care unit for residents with memory loss, and a nursing care unit. As of last week, the only two open rooms were in the semi-independent area, and there was a nine-month wait for a unit in independent living.

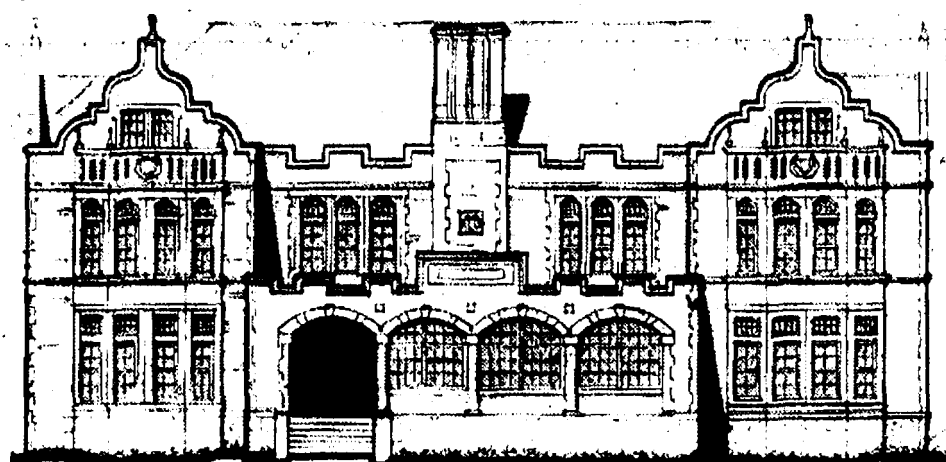

CERTIFICATE OF ACCREDITATION was accepted by Greg Hughes, right, administrator of the Chelsea Retirement Community, from Brian Carnaghi of the Continuing Care Accreditation Committee, sponsored by the American Association of Homes for the Aging.

STATE SEN. LANA POLLACK presented a special legislative tribute from the state to the Chelsea Retirement Community. Accepting the award is Harold Mellin, chairman of the board of the United Methodist Retirement Communities.

The village doubled its home garbage collection fees and raised most of its landfill fees by about 20 percent to try to offset a projected shortfall of about $365,000 in the landfill fund this fiscal year. Last Tuesday, Oct. 17, village council raised home collection rates from $6 to $12 per month per household, effective Nov. 1. The new rate still leaves village residents in a better position for the most part than their neighbors in the townships, who pay at least $59 per quarter.

Village of Chelsea may have to borrow more than $700,000 from its electric fund this year to pay for a variety of expected and unanticipated expenses. According to rough estimates prepared by village manager Robert Stalker, the landfill fund will incur a deficit of about $365,000 for a variety of reasons.

Rotary Club president Frederick van Reesema is heading the committee to plan, construct and finance a permanent structure in Pierce Park which will be used as a pavilion where summer concerts will be staged. The site is expected to be in the southeast section, but the exact spot has not been chosen.

Chelsea School District hopes to have an assistant high school principal on the job before Christmas break. The job has been posted internally and there reportedly is at least one candidate who is now a teacher. However, notices have been also posted at area universities that have education programs.

BEHIND THE HEADLINES:

Doubts Growing Over Canal Turnover

With the time approaching for total turnover of the Panama Canal from the United States to Panama, serious doubts about the impending transfer are rising in both countries. And with good reason.

By Philip C. Clarke

A few years ago, when dictator Manuel Noriega was riding high, graffiti in Panama said "Yanqui Go Home!" Now, more and more worried Panamanians want Americans to stay on to run the Canal. And to keep pouring those Yankee dollars into the hard-up local economy.

Nationalist fever was running high when President Carter and Omar Torrijos, Panama's strongman, signed the two Canal treaties in 1977, delivering the vital, U.S.-built waterway to Panama by century's end. But since U.S. forces invaded Panama in 1990, arresting Noriega on drug charges and replacing his military dictatorship with a democracy, most of Panama's 2.4 million people have had sober second thoughts. The staged withdrawal of the U.S. Southern Command's 10,000 troops and their 20,000 dependents already is hitting the Panamanian economy hard. By 1995, half of all Americans will be gone. And when the last Americans leave on Dec. 31, 1999, Panama will face the loss of an estimated $500 million dollars a year—about one-tenth of the country's entire gross national product.

A public opinion poll this May by La Prensa, Panama's leading newspaper, reflected the growing anxiety. Nearly 71% of the respondents agreed that it would be better for U.S. bases to remain after the year 2000. Only 18% disagreed. Nonetheless, under the terms of the Canal treaties, the first two of the 10 U.S. bases in Panama will be disbanded next year. And though Panamanian officials have discussed converting many of the U.S.-built facilities into modern containerized residential communities, luxury resorts and even regional universities, it's all still talk. According to Ray Bishop, secretary general of the 6,000-member union of Employees of U.S. Armed Forces, "The problem is that the Panamanian Government is not ready for this kind of responsibility. This is going to be the mess of the century."

Closing the U.S. bases will, in fact, cost at least 12,000 Panamanian jobs, with ripple effects throughout the country's $3.9 billion economy. This could mean real trouble for the government of President Guillermo Endara, which already has endured several attempted coups. As one observer has noted, "Endara would not last 10 minutes without the U.S. military to back him up."

Last June, a number of Panamanian labor unions warned that they might adopt a "violent" stand unless the Endara government agrees to renegotiate the Canal treaties to allow continued U.S. presence in the country. And on July 5, La Prensa reported the uncovering of a guerrilla plot against the government allegedly led by former Torrijos supporters with assistance from Tomas Borge, one-time member of Nicaragua's revolutionary Sandinista junta.

Retired U.S. Coast Guard Captain G. Russell Evans, author of The Panama Canal Treaties Swindle: Consent to Disaster (Signal Books), and a recognized authority on the subject, says Endara assured him that he emphatically favors a continued U.S. presence after 1999, but prefers that any such action be initiated after next year's scheduled elections. And a report in Panama City's El Siglo in July, said Washington already has proposed retaining four of the U.S. military bases on a permanent basis.

There's ample cause for U.S. concern over the future of the Canal, characterized by retired Admiral Thomas Moorer, former Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, as "the most vital maritime gateway in the world." According to a recent summary in U.S. News & World Report, Panama remains highly volatile, politically and economically, with a weak presidency, paralyzed judiciary, rampant corruption and an estimated 40% of the population in poverty. Meanwhile, many of the Canal's facilities appear to be deteriorating or in disrepair. "As the full story becomes known," says Capt. Evans, "a groundswell of opinion is developing in favor of renegotiating the flawed—and Constitutionally illegal—treaties of 1977."

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Bug Hookum opened the session at the county store Saturday night with a clip from California that he offered as more evidence that truth is stranger than fiction. It told where a woman tried to sue the state because she went in a male toilet in a park by mistake. She said she was confused by the sign on the door of a figure wearing pants like the jeans she had on. She said she suffered terrible when a man inside told her to go around the corner to a door showing a figure wearing a skirt.

Until he read that, Bug said, he had stopped being amazed at what comes out of California, and had started worrying how soon it would spread all over the country. What is strange about this, Bug told the fellows, is that even the low court in California refused to hear the case. This is a corner turned in the direction of common sense, but the publicity is bound to bring a test case from a Scotsman that swore he took the skirt for a kilt. If the lawyers have their way, and they all do, Bug went on, it will grow to a Federal case involving every toilet in the country open to the public.

How long, Bug ask, before we draw battle lines between camps wanting toilets without regard for sex and the rest, and them calling for what the doll makers call anatomical correct pictures of real men and wimmen on the doors, plus "male" and "female" in 20 written languages and brail. For sure, all God's children got to go without regard to reading or seeing, was Bug's words.

The fellows were full agreed that we ain't heard the last of the California case. Zeke Grubb said Texas is bound to check in soon. He recalled some confusion he had there. "Bulls" and "Cows" on toilet doors in steak houses he could handle, Zeke said, but he had to give "Boys" and "Gulls" some thought at the seafood place before he figured out which he is. The good news, Zeke allowed, is that Federal sign standards will have to wait till Congress settles the elevator question.

Zeke saw where a Congressman reported an elevator operator in the House office building was setting down reading a paper on duty, when rules state clear they must stand and they can't read in order to "maintain the dignity of the Congress." Another Congressman came to the operator's rescue, saying he ought to be allowed to read, since he waited a average of 20 minutes between trips and, besides, the elevators are automatic and he didn't need both hands to push a button. At last report, Zeke said, the issue had been sent to a subcommittee where the chair said the first order of business is to agree on what is beneath the dignity of Congress.

Not much, according to Ed Doolittle. He had a clip where Congress has instructed the State Department to get its new friends in the Middle East to convince the Afghan rebels to sell us the Stinger missiles we gave them to fight the Russians. The rebels shoot at everything that flies over them, Ed said, so we need to put the weapons in a safe place. Ed noted that is the same Congress that said when the Chinese test nuclear weapons we will, in order to keep the power balance in the interest of world peace.

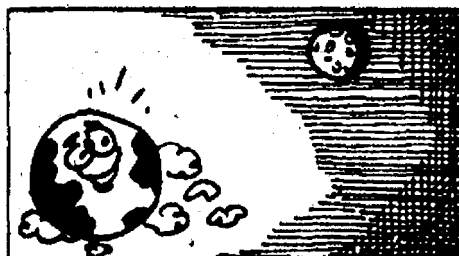

All of which reminds us the job of the Federal Government is to dig holes to fill holes, and stay one hole ahead, was Ed's words.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

"Our greatest glory is not in never falling, but in rising every time we fall."

—Confucius

Even the most capable among us must expect to experience failure. The degree of failure may vary but everyone makes mistakes in judgement or a wrong decision at a crucial time and undergoes a reversal of some kind.

To fall is an unpleasant, humiliating experience. We may wish to give up and try no more, lest we suffer the same humiliation again. There is more glory in continued attempts, in spite of repeated failures, than in never failing at all.

Many considerate people arrange for all aspects of their own funeral services, including costs, well in advance of need. We are available to advise you regarding the possible benefits.

SPIRIT OF REHAB AWARD at the Chelsea Retirement Community was presented to nurse Kaye Ridenour, second from left, at a ceremony on Sept. 16. The award is given in the memory of Ann Maly, a former rehabilitation worker at the community, "who kept the spirit of life and independence alive in the hearts of the residents," while in a personal battle with cancer. The award was created in 1990 and employees are nominated by fellow employees, families, and residents. The rehabilitation department offers physical therapy, occupational therapy, and speech and language pathology services to all residents in the community as well as to those 55 and older in the surrounding community. From left are Bonnie Halst (1992 recipient), Ridenour, Scott Maly (Ann's son), and Dr. Patricia Dukes, rehabilitation department director.

Farm Bureau Seeks Assurance on USDA Reorganization Plan

Farm Bureau is not opposed to the proposed reorganization of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, but farmers want to be reassured that the users of USDA programs will continue to have access to service.

"Farmers are justifiably concerned that they could end up with a lower quality of service, greater inconvenience and less responsiveness from agencies that provide valuable programs and regulate farming practices," said Al-Almy, director of public affairs for Michigan Farm Bureau. "There is concern that, in spite of the stated lofty objectives of increased efficiency, financial savings and improved service, the ultimate impact could be unfavorable for farmers who participate in USDA programs."

The state's largest farm organization believes there are some opportunities for greater efficiency in USDA. "However, we think any changes must be flexible enough to fit local and regional conditions," Almy said. "We also feel that any restructuring not eliminate local involvement through constituent committees."

Food Writer Kicks Off McKune Library Series

Catherine S. Arcure, food editor of the Ann Arbor News and director of development for the University Musical Society, will kick-off the 1993/94 season of McKune Memorial Library's Grapevine, on Tuesday, Oct. 26, at 7:30 p.m. in the Depot meeting room. This year marks Arcure's 25th Anniversary as editor of the popular Wednesday food section of the News.

This presentation marks the beginning of the second season for McKune Memorial Library's Grapevine, a series of presentation-discussion programs featuring local literary stars and experts. In addition to sharing information, the presentors suggest library resources that provide the audience with an opportunity to find and use additional information about their topics.

Arcure's presentation titled, "Looking Both Ways," will focus on tales of her 25 years of experience as a food writer. She will discuss where we've been and where we seem to be headed in food and nutrition into the 1990's and beyond.

From Raspberry mousse cheese-cake and apple puffed pancakes to Moroccan lamb with curried carrot spinach salad, Arcure's Ann Arbor News Food Section has a reputation for elegance and style. In addition, features such as "Kitchen Mailbox," "Quick Fix" and "Health Watch" are popular with her audience.

Arcure's many fans who find themselves expecting important guests find answers to entire menus in her popular "From Soups to Nuts" section, where she presents entire menu suggestions for that very important dinner—from shopping for seasonal bargains, to elegant introductions, through the growing trend of a "speed - scratch" main course, to a festive finale dessert.

"Writing about food is not without its interesting experiences," says Arcure. Looking back over the last quarter-of-a-century I've had a few unusual things happen. It is always fun to reflect on the interesting people I've met. I enjoy telling stories about the experiences I've had writing about food."

Arcure also will share a new cookbook being published by the Ann Arbor News, in celebration of her 25th year with the paper.

On Wednesday, Feb. 2, 1994 at 7 p.m. the Grapevine series will continue with a second presentation about estate planning by Todd Jones, vice-president and senior trust officer, Society Bank, titled, "Nothing Is Certain But . . ." Jones' presentation about estate planning will include topics such as: how to determine your assets, heirs and joint ownership, the

LAURIE HONBAUM of Chelsea has won the right to compete for the title of Miss Michigan as she was crowned Miss Redford 1994 at Redford Thurston High school on Sept. 23. The Miss Michigan pageant will be held June 16-18 in Muskegon. Competition will consist of talent (in Laurie's case, baton), and swimsuit and evening gown modeling. Each contestant must also submit an essay and talk on an issue of importance to her. Miss Michigan will go on to compete for the title of Miss America in Atlantic City. Honbaum, a 1991 Chelsea High school graduate, was sponsored by Hatch Stamping Co. of Chelsea. She is pursuing a degree in telecommunications and film at Eastern Michigan University. She is also a product specialist for Acura and travels the national auto circuit throughout the country.

Loss of Pesticide Availability Means Higher Retail Prices

A 50 percent reduction in pesticide availability for so-called "minor crops" would mean higher costs and significantly smaller consumer supplies of many fruits and vegetables grown in the United States, according to a study released by the American Farm Bureau Research Foundation. Michigan farmers produce significant amounts of fruits and vegetables.

The study titled, "Economic Impacts of Reduced Pesticide Use on Fruits and Vegetables," quantified the supply, availability and cost consequences of reduced pesticide use on U.S. fruit and vegetable crops. The research was prompted by increasing producer concerns over the loss of key chemicals because of the high cost of developing supporting health and safety data for governmental approval.

The nine crops analyzed include potatoes, oranges, tomatoes, grapes, apples, lettuce, onions, sweet corn and peaches. The study focused on states, including Michigan, that account for almost 50 percent of total U.S. production of those crops.

The study was co-ordinated by the research firm Knutson & Associates in co-operation with leading university horticultural scientists in each of the analyzed crops' major production areas.

Reductions in pesticide use inevitably would lead to higher production costs, lower marketable yields and, over time, higher consumer prices, according to the research firm.

School Finance Plan Draws Attention of Farm Organization

The state's largest farm organization complimented Gov. Engler for submitting a comprehensive school finance proposal.

"Gov. Engler's efforts are a good starting point for the debate over the future of school finance in our state," said Ron Nelson, legislative counsel for Michigan Farm Bureau. "The financial elements of this plan are so complex that we'll need to do some further analysis to determine the precise impact on Michigan farmers. But in our initial review, it appears that we'd have some questions about exactly which real estate transactions would fall under the proposed four percent transfer tax. In addition, we'd like some further definition as to which businesses and properties would be subject to the 16 mill property tax. We'd like to know where agricultural property would fit under this plan," he said.

Nelson said he expects Farm Bureau will have a more definitive review of Gov. Engler's plan prior to legislative hearings next week.

Dogs Whallop Dexter For Sixth Straight Win, Take on Indians Friday

An opportunistic Chelsea Bulldogs football team handed the Dexter Dreadnaughts their worst loss in recent memory last Friday night at Niehaus Field, 48-0.

Chelsea dominated every aspect of the game and made the Dreadnaughts pay for every mistake as both Dexter turnovers led to Chelsea touchdowns.

Quarterback Pat Steele ran for Chelsea's third touchdown two plays after the Dreadnaughts fumbled at the Chelsea 16. Colby Skelton ran the second-half kick-off back 90 yards for the Bulldogs' fourth touchdown. And defensive back Steve Straub picked off a pass and returned it 52 yards for Chelsea's sixth touchdown.

"We were very good defensively, and offensively we were very efficient," said Chelsea coach Gene LaFave.

"We were able to dominate the game. Dexter came out excited and played hard and it looked like it might be a close game."

Dexter held the Bulldogs to one touchdown, Gabe Bernhard's five-yard scamper, until late in the second quarter. The Bulldogs squandered two scoring opportunities. One ended in a missed field goal and the other in a fumble at the Dexter 12.

However, with 1:03 left in the half, Bernhard capped a 60-yard-Chelsea drive with a two-yard touchdown run, his second six-pointer of the night.

On the first play after the kick-off, the Dreadnaughts fumbled at their 16. Steele passed to Skelton at the one, then scored on a keeper on the next play. What could have been a 7-0 game at half-time turned into a 21-0 Chelsea advantage with :23 left in the half.

Chelsea continued to pour it on in the second half as Steele caught the kick-off and handed off to Skelton, who dodged two tacklers and out-ran the Dreadnaughts up the right sideline for the touchdown. Within a space of less than a minute and a half, the Bulldogs had scored three touchdowns and blown the game open.

The next Dexter drive was stopped on downs at the Chelsea 48. A five-yard penalty pushed the ball to the Dexter 47. Then Steele found Skelton with a mid-range pass, and Skelton again raced by the Dexter secondary for the touchdown. With 6:25 left in the third quarter, Chelsea held a 35-0 lead.

And that's when a 35-point rule, new this year, went into effect. Dexter coach Rich Grannis before the game elected to have the clock run if his team fell behind by 35 points. From the 35-point mark, the clock could only be stopped by timeouts or the quarter break.

Although the clock was running, the Dreadnaughts continued to try to score. But their next drive ended with Straub's interception return.

Chelsea's final points came in the fourth quarter on Jay Westcott's one-yard run.

Chelsea gained 318 yards—140 on the ground and 178 in the air. Bernhard gained 44 yards on seven carries. Steele picked up 38 yards in four carries, and Westcott had his season-high 58 yards on 10 carries.

Steele had one of his most efficient passing nights of the season as he completed 10-15. Skelton caught seven passes for 148 yards, and split end Poppenger, Westcott, and tight end Matt Seitz each caught one pass for 12, 10, and eight yards, respectively.

"We're back to our versatile self on offense," LaFave said, after having Westcott make his first appearance since the first game of the season.

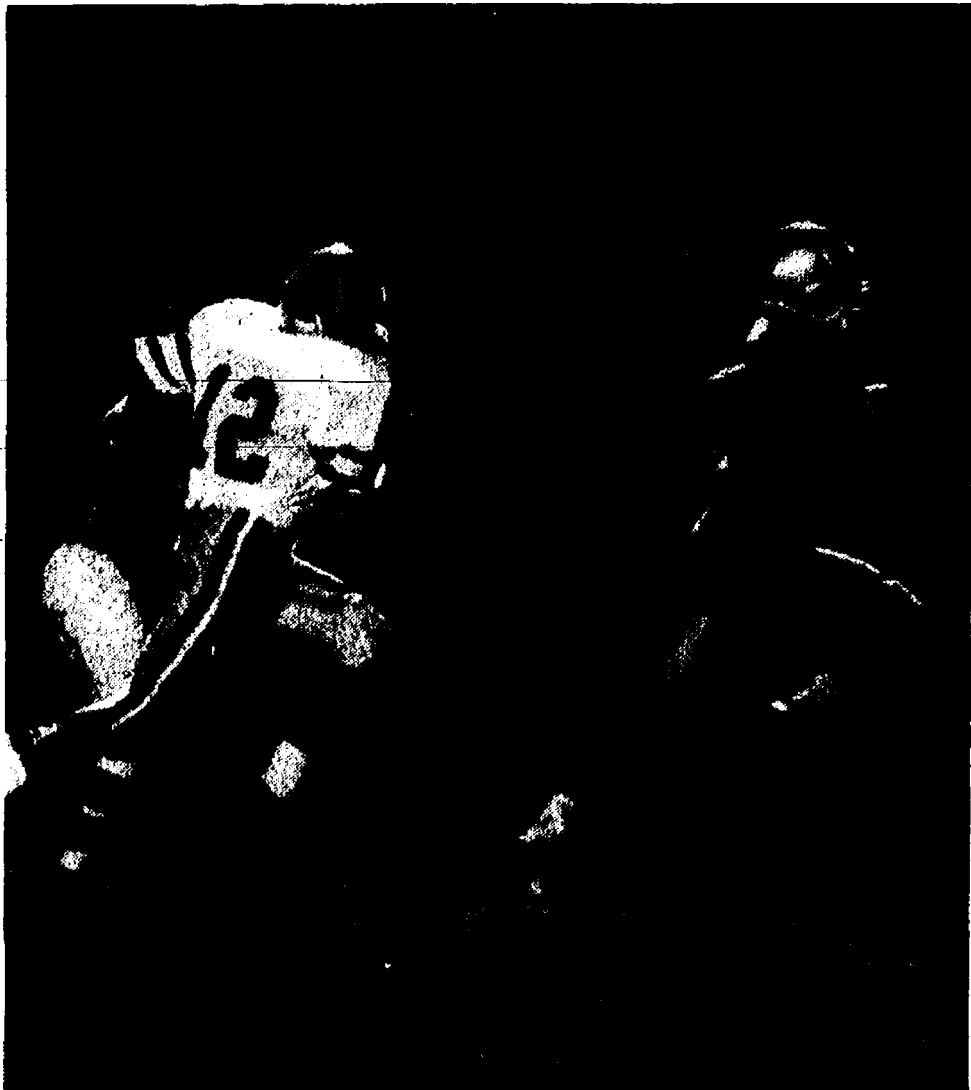

"We're very capable of running the ball."

Lineman David Brock and back Poppenger were Chelsea's defensive players of the week. Lineman Randy Hurst was cited for his play on offense.

The Bulldogs look for their seventh straight victory this week at Tecumseh. The Indians have lost five games in a row and are in last place in the Southeastern Conference.

A victory Friday would give the Bulldogs, the defending SEC champions, at least a share of the SEC title. Second-place Pinckney, with one loss, plays the Lincoln Railsplitters. The Bulldogs and Pirates wrap up the league season next week in Chelsea in what could be a re-match of last year's championship game.

The Bulldogs are as healthy as they have been since the first game of the season. Noseguard Ed Greenleaf is still out and is not expected back until at least the play-offs.

COLBY SKELTON races toward the goal line after taking a Pat Steele pass last Friday. Skelton scored two touchdowns and generally made the Dexter Dreadnaughts miserable all night.

Chelsea Tennis Team Has Tough Matches

In doubles, Haas and Flintoff won 7-6, 7-6, with two 7-4 tiebreakers; Sara Smith and McLaughlin lost 4-6, 2-6; and White and Frederick won 6-0, 6-4.

In the Ypsilanti match, Holdsworth lost 0-6, 1-6 to Maggie Persu; Allen lost 1-6, 1-6 to Courtney Guy; Hurst lost 3-6, 3-6; and Daigle lost 2-6, 5-7.

In doubles, Haas and Flintoff won 6-1, 6-0; Smith and McLaughlin won 4-6, 6-3, 7-6; and White and Jessica Knight lost 5-7, 6-0, 4-6.

STEVE STRAUB returned this interception 52 yards Dreadnaughts last Friday. The Bulldogs look to continue for a touchdown during Chelsea's 48-0 rout of the Dexter their winning streak this Friday in Tecumseh.

SPORTS NOTES

BY BRIAN HAMILTON

Six in a row, three to go.

If the Chelsea Bulldogs win their last three regular-season football games, they are virtually assured of finishing as the top team in their region. They would host the first two rounds of the Class BB play-offs, assuming they win the first game. Game three switches to a neutral site. Game four is at the Silverdome two days after Thanksgiving. I'm not so sure that the home field would be that much of an advantage for the Bulldogs simply because they have such a big road following. The advantage, if there is one, is the players wouldn't have to get on a bus.

More immediately, this week the Bulldogs have to go to Tecumseh, never an easy place to play. It's not all that easy to cover a game there, either. Two years ago, a couple of kids lobbed walnuts at me from the top of the hill at one end zone and put a pretty good dent in a lens casing.

The Indians should be victim seven. If they aren't, they will have pulled the all-time upset in SEC history. They have lost five games in a row and are firmly at the bottom of the league. With a victory, Chelsea gets at least a piece of the SEC title, and maybe more depending on what happens to Pinckney in their game with Lincoln.

This year's Bulldogs are probably better over-all than the Tecumseh team that went deep in the play-offs two years ago behind linebacker Heather Fowler and receiver Brian Burns. That year the Indians were a big and physical team that just pushed their opponents out of the way and allowed very few points. Chelsea played them tough and led 3-0 at half-time but got thoroughly steam-rolled in the second half.

Burns was good, but he's no Calby Skelton. Skelton has caught 45 passes and is leading the entire state—all schools from AA on down—in that category, as well as touchdowns (10) and total yardage. Where there's a top-rated receiver, there's an outstanding quarterback. Pat Steele is third in the state in passes completed (74) and is right up there in terms of yardage and completion percentage. If the Indians can stop them, they will be the first to do it all season. They should pray for snow and 20 degrees.

I feel a little sorry for the Indians because Chelsea is coming to town in their best shape physically since the opening snap of the season. Running back Jay Westcott returned from injury last week and gained 55 yards to lead the team. He and running mate Gabe Bernhard could have a big game if coach Gene LaFave decides on a more balanced attack. They are both quick and elusive and are capable of 100-yard games if they can get enough carries. But why mess around with the running game when you can just about get 10 yards or more on any given play with an all-state passing combination?

Defensively, the Bulldogs are coming off their third shutout of the season as they clobbered Dexter last week, 48-0. They've allowed just 25 points all year, and at least one of the four touchdowns was a fluke. Lineman David Brock is healthy again. If noseguard Ed Greenleaf were back, Chelsea might not allow another touchdown all season.

LaFave will probably remind the Bulldogs just how close they came to losing to Tecumseh last season. The Indians proved to be their own worst enemy as they committed drive-stopping personal fouls twice (one for swearing) when they were inside the Chelsea 10. Those penalties very likely made the difference, even though Chelsea won 28-12 on a late surge.

Tecumseh could play their best game of the year, but Chelsea would still have to self-destruct to lose it. Chelsea 49, Tecumseh 6.

This is also likely to be Chelsea's last relatively easy game. Pinckney Pirates, a team that has improved all season, comes to town next week, anxious for an upset. They may also be playing for a piece of the league title and would like nothing better than to get revenge for last year's heartbreaking over-time loss. The following week, the Bulldogs take on Class AA Garden City, a team with a winning record against some quality opponents.

Friday's Dexter game gave us the debut of the 35-point rule. Before the game, either coach can elect to have the clock run if his team falls behind by 35 points or more in the second half. Dexter coach Rich Grannis took it and most of the second half flew by.

There's also another mercy-rule option. A coach can decide, again before the game, to have the game stopped if his team trails by 45 points or more. It's hard to imagine a coach with any pride—and football coaches have plenty of pride—taking that option unless he feared his team may not physically survive.

After Friday's game, some people were a little concerned that Chelsea continued to throw the ball late in the fourth quarter, with a 41-point lead and a running clock. It looked as though the Bulldogs were rubbing it in, and someone mentioned the JV's 49-point loss the night before.

LaFave said he had no intention of embarrassing Dexter players, fans, or coaches. If he had wanted to run the score up, he said, he could have called timeouts, used trick plays, or some other questionable strategy. Instead, his team just continued to play its game, which is dominated by passing. Chelsea began its last drive with about 11 minutes left and it ended with about six minutes left. The drive would have taken about half as long with a normal clock. Second-string quarterback Pat Lynch would have guided the next drive if time hadn't expired, LaFave said. With the two-plateau system, he said, virtually every kid gets a fair amount of playing time so it's not as though he had a whole benchful of boys who didn't play.

LaFave also said that he didn't want to alter his team's normal game so much that someone could get injured.

I think Chelsea could have run the ball every play that last drive and it wouldn't have mattered. Dexter appeared to be completely demoralized. How would you feel if your coaches, in effect, said let's get this game over with as quickly as possible and go home? Dexter kids could have left the field with a little more pride if they had a chance to score.

I understand LaFave's explanation. But I also understand how it looked to at least some average Chelsea football fans who felt bad for the Dexter players.

7th Grade Gridders Defeat Saline

Beach Middle school seventh grade football team defeated Saline, 14-12, on Tuesday, Oct. 5.

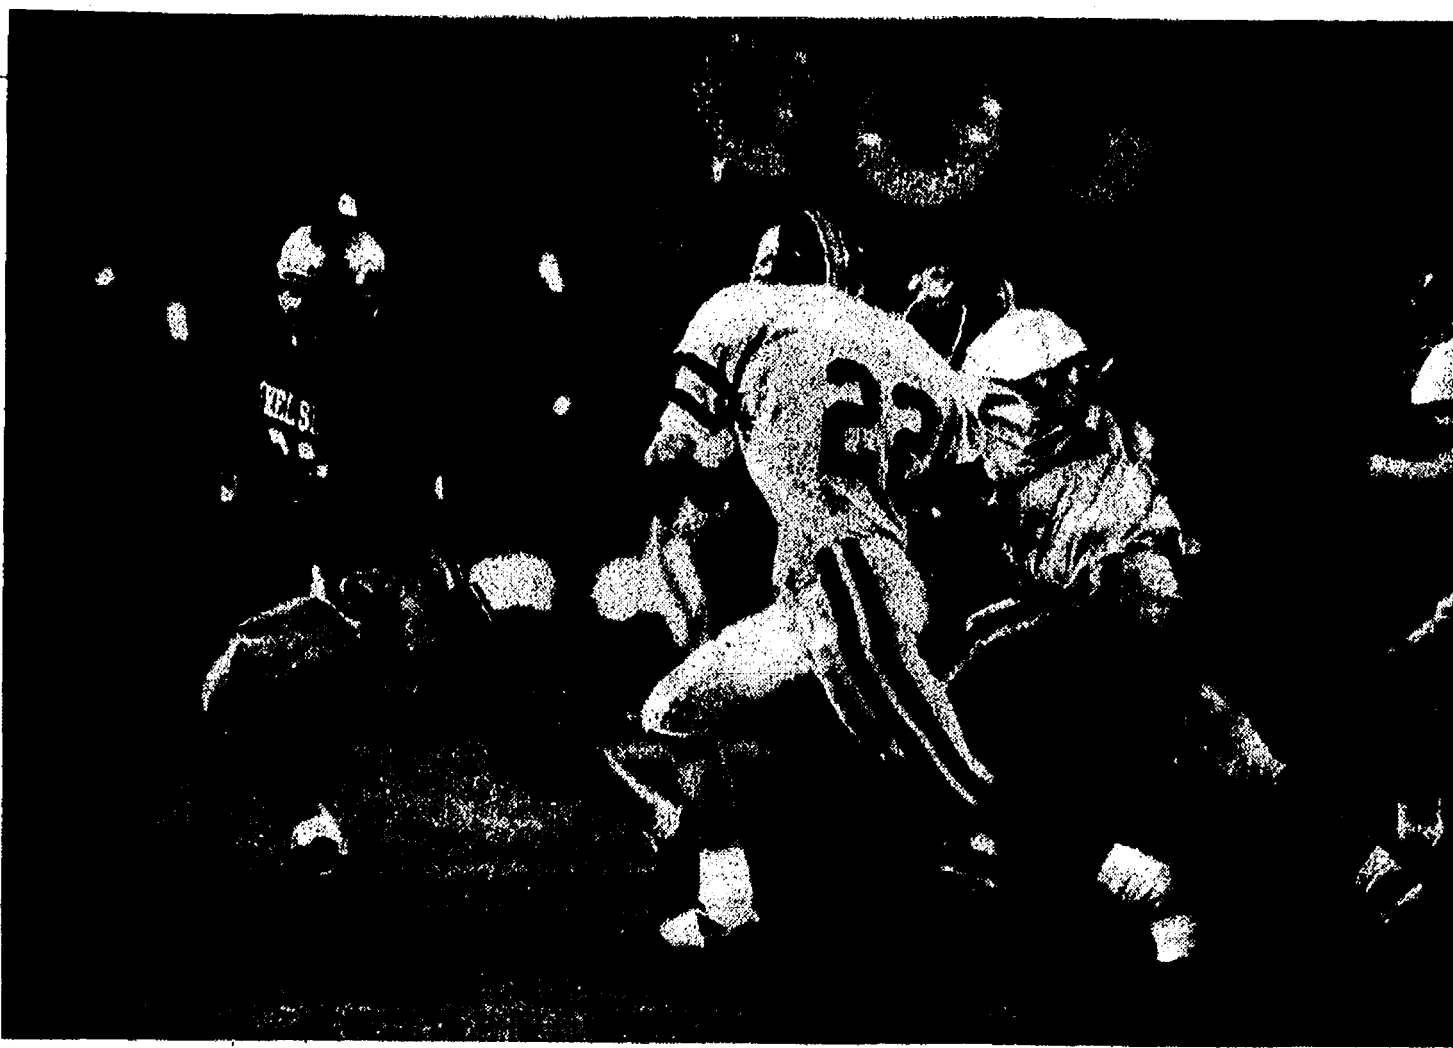

Chelsea scored twice in the first half then held off Saline's passing game in the second half.

Chelsea dominated line play in the first half. Mark Helms drove two yards for a touchdown on a quarter-back sneak, and Drew Henson ran for the extra points. Late in the second quarter, Helms passed five yards to Mike Holloway for the second touchdown. Helms, Matt Knight, Henson, and Nathan O'Connor led the drive.

Saline scored on two pass plays in the second half. Saline was driving for a potential third score when Scott Policht hit the Saline quarterback as he was passing and Tony Spencer made the interception.

Adam Knott, Jim York, Mike Lindner, Dan Koosterman, and Jason Williams controlled the offensive and defensive lines. Policht played well at defensive end, said coach Richard Bareis.

Aaron Ruhlig stepped in at quarterback after Helms was injured and showed he could guide the offense, Helms said.

JAY WESTCOTT of Chelsea is chased by a trio of Dexter Dreadnaughts during last Friday night's game in Chelsea. It was Westcott's first action since the first game of the season and he gained 55 yards on 10 carries in the 48-0 Chelsea victory.

Chelsea JV Football Team Takes One on The Chin

Chelsea Bulldogs junior varsity football team lost to the undefeated Dexter Dreadnaughts last Thursday in Dexter, 49-0.

The Dreadnaughts scored on their first three possessions, including twice after Chelsea turnovers, to take a 20-0 lead at half-time.

The Bulldogs' only threat came after a fumble recovery at the Dexter 30. Chelsea drove to the six but turned the ball over on downs.

"Dexter is quick on defense and execute well on offense," said Chelsea coach Bill Bainton.

"Dexter came off the ball much quicker on both sides than we did. We played poorly and when you do that against a team as good as Dexter, you can get blown out, and we did."

Bainton said his team had good defensive play from end David Paton, and safety Jason Phelps, and linemen Pete Straub and Scott Stewart. Paton and Damon McLaughlin were Chelsea's leading tacklers with eight.

The Bulldogs were held to less than 100 yards on offense as they lost three fumbles and two interceptions, and gained only four first downs.

CHELSEA GIRLS TRACK COACH Bill Bainton was recently named Region Coach of the Year for the 1993 season by the Michigan Interscholastic Track Coaches Association. Bainton's team completed their third consecutive undefeated season, won four major invitationals, were conference and region champions, and finished sixth in the state. Four team members earned all-state honors. It is the second year in a row Bainton has won the award. "This award speaks highly of our program," Bainton said. "We have quality girls who respond well to coaching from assistant coach Bert Kruse and me. This represents a lot of hard work and dedication. I am very pleased to have received it again."

"SCARS THAT HEAL" shares the true story of Dove Roeveer, a young soldier in Vietnam who was burned over 40 percent of his skin when a grenade exploded in his hand. Roeveer's amazing testimony about not only his physical recovery but his emotional and spiritual healing is one of the most dramatic you may ever see or hear.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,
We are parents of a freshman football player, who will no longer support our freshman football team.

Apparently the coach is so narrow minded about winning the games that he can't remember there are a lot of players standing on the sideline in full gear, and all the way through the game all they did was cheer. He never allowed them to play.

In all of the home games the most our son played was "2" plays.

We made sure he made all of his practices, and had all of the extras that are necessary to play the game. We paid full admission to watch our son play football, even went to an away game to cheer for the team. But we have only seen our son make "2" plays. At least he made the 2 plays. I don't believe some of the players even played at all.

We would see the other teams rotating all of their players during the games. And NOT just the last few seconds either. They would actually start rotating in the first quarter. Our coach seems to only recognize 4 or 5 players out of the 17, or so, on the sideline.

Thanks coach, you may have ruined one or more of your players' dreams of ever getting to make the big play. I know how hard it must be for these kids to be enthused about football anymore. They don't even know what it's like to be on the field during a real game in front of their parents.

Thanks again coach, there are no more home games. How many of us parents do you think will want to travel out of town to watch their football player son stand on the sideline and cheer for his team, for the whole game.

I'm sure there are some parents who must really think a lot of the coach, because they got to watch their son play for the whole game, and all of the games. But I'm also sure that we aren't the only parents who feel the way that we do.

Hopefully, next year, if my son even wants to play football, there will be a coach with more sportsmanship who will let all of his players play.

To save any further embarrassment to my son, please withhold my name.

THE AMERICAN DREAM?
Many transactions have failed for less than 4 percent! ★ Choosing a Tax Preparer

Don't wait until April 15 to find out that you need professional help to complete your tax return. The Michigan Association of CPAs recommends that you review your tax forms now and decide whether or not you can complete them on your own. If you decide that you need professional help, you'll have time to locate a qualified tax preparer who can best meet your needs.

Who needs a tax preparer?

The complexity of your return generally determines your need for a tax preparer. If you have experienced a major lifestyle change, such as a divorce or a drastic change in your financial situation, you may want to hire a tax preparer. Other factors that may trigger the need for professional help include owning a home-based business, claiming substantial itemized deductions or owning rental property.

Similarly, you should probably seek assistance from a CPA or tax attorney if you need to claim a major casualty loss, account for a change in child custody or deduct investment-related expenses.

Shop around

To find a qualified tax preparer, ask for references from family, friends and business associates, especially individuals who work in your field. Be sure these people have actually used the preparer. Ask them about the quality of the preparer's work, responsiveness to questions and ability to complete the return in a timely manner. Then contact several preparers by phone and ask them to discuss their qualifications.

Ask about fee structures

When interviewing a prospective tax preparer, be sure to ask about the fee structure. Some will charge on an hourly basis, others on the number of forms to be completed and still others will give you a fixed price. Prices may range from a few hundred dollars to a few thousand depending on the nature of your return. You may also want to ask the preparer if he or she will reimburse you for mistakes that result in penalties or interest charges.

Generally, beware of tax preparers who base their fees on a percentage of your tax refund. You should also stay away from preparers who guarantee you a refund or are unwilling to sign your return.

Don't let the fee structure alone affect your selection of a tax preparer. An individual who charges more, but has a reputation for quality work, may help you to avoid costly mistakes and save you more money in the long run.

Evaluate their standards and experience

Enrolled agents, tax attorneys and CPAs prepare tax returns. So do numerous individuals who hold themselves out as tax preparers. However, neither the IRS nor other government organizations have licensing requirements for such tax preparers. What's more, not all tax preparers are permitted to present your case to the IRS in the event that your tax return is audited. Generally, only CPAs, tax attorneys and enrolled agents are permitted to represent clients before the IRS.

In evaluating tax preparers, consider how long they have been in business and whether they work full-time or part-time. Ask about their involvement in professional associations and in continuing professional education.

Hire for the long haul

If you think you'll be using a tax preparer in future years, be sure the individual you retain to do your return can meet your needs today as well as in the future. For example, if you anticipate a big change in your finances over the next year, it may be wise to retain a tax professional who can help you to devise an effective tax-planning strategy long before your tax return is due.

Finally, CPAs caution you that even if your tax preparer makes an error and underestimates your taxes, the IRS could still hit you with penalties and interest charges—and it would be your responsibility to pay these costs.

Attention Lyndon Township Residents

The Lyndon Township October Board meeting has been changed to Tuesday, October 19, 1993, at 7:00 p.m. at the Lyndon Township Hall.

Linda L. Wade, Clerk

W.A. THOMAS CO. of Chelsea was a recipient of a "Building Washtenaw County's Future Award" at the Washtenaw Development Council's Open House and Showcase last week. The company participated in a joint project with Washtenaw Community College to provide additional training for employees and training for potential employees. The company has recently also secured two additional manufacturing facilities to meet customer demand for their precision turned metal products. On hand for the presentation were, from left, village president Richard Steele, Laura Gerhardt of Washtenaw Community College (training co-ordinator), plant operations manager Brent Thompson, and director of manufacturing John Knight.

Prestolite Moving to Ann Arbor

Washtenaw Development Council (WDC) has announced that Prestolite Electric, Inc., is moving its corporate headquarters from Toledo, O. to the Plymouth/Green office park in Ann Arbor.

In addition to the strategic management and support functions, the corporate offices will include a new central R&D function which will work on long-range technological issues in core product areas.

Prestolite is also relocating its original equipment and defense sales office, previously in Farmington Hills, to the same Ann Arbor site. Approximately 40 people will work at the new headquarters.

Kim Packard, company president, explained that Prestolite chose the new site for a number of reasons. The double relocation combines the corporate headquarters with the sales offices in close proximity to the key customers located in the Detroit area. The Ann Arbor location offers the opportunity to develop close ties with the University of Michigan in engineering, marketing, and strategic business planning. Another consideration which weighed heavily in the decision for relocating to Washtenaw county is the excellent quality of life that the county offers its residents.

Prestolite manufactures electrical equipment, including alternators, generators, motors, solenoids, switches and contactors. It has facilities in New York, Ohio, Alabama, Kentucky and the United Kingdom. Prestolite Electric, founded in 1911 as the Electric Autolite Co., is a wholly owned subsidiary of the Genstar Capital Corp., a Toronto based investment fund.

Washtenaw Development Council provided company officials with a guided tour of the county and introductions to business leaders and community officials. WDC staff also provided Prestolite with comprehensive information on the county, completed a computerized site search for locations that matched the company's specifications, conducted tours of locations selected by the company and supplied Prestolite representatives with referrals to local business service providers.

Sheriff's Dept. Investigates Incidents Here

Washtenaw County Sheriff's deputies investigated incidents in the Chelsea area Sept. 24-Oct. 6.

A suspicious incident was reported on Lingane Rd. near Waterloo Rd., Sylvan township. A Chelsea youth told police that a suspicious vehicle followed him and a friend, passed them in their vehicle, stopped and forced them to stop. He asked the youths if they had any guns. They told the man, about 40, no. He asked to search their vehicle and they allowed him to. Afterward, he told them to go home.

Assault and battery was reported in the 19000 block of Ivey Rd., Chelsea. The girlfriend of a 37-year-old Chelsea man was physically assaulted at her home after being verbally abused at his parent's home on Ivey Rd. She told sheriff's deputies that she left their home and he followed her. She said as she was getting out of her van, the man slammed the door on her foot. A verbal argument ensued and the man left, later returning with a cut on his head. He said he rolled his truck. She tried to care for his wounds when he became combative. She told police he hit her in the mouth, hit her son in the nose and beat the boy with a baseball bat. He told deputies she hit him with the bat. He was taken to the hospital for injuries sustained in the traffic accident. Deputies noted both seemed intoxicated.

Court Refuses To Hear Assistant Pastor's Appeal

A North Sharon Baptist church assistant pastor has lost his attempt to appeal a circuit court ruling that could pave the way for him to stand trial on sex abuse charges.

Michigan Court of Appeals refused to hear an appeal from Timothy L. Leonard, 33, who is accused of sodomizing a nine-year-old girl who attended Sunday school at the church.

Consequently, a second preliminary examination on the charge will be set next Monday, Oct. 18 at a court hearing.

On Monday, Oct. 4, the court of appeals refused to hear the appeal, filed by attorney Michael Stillwagon on behalf of Leonard, on grounds that Stillwagon failed to demonstrate a need for an immediate hearing on the appeal. The court's ruling upheld a decision in May by Washtenaw County Circuit Judge Patrick Conlin.

The case against Leonard had been dismissed in January by 14th District Judge Thomas Shea. He said that the alleged victim could not tell precisely enough when the alleged assault occurred.

However, Conlin overruled the decision, saying time was not a primary concern in a criminal sexual conduct case and that the matter should be settled in a circuit court trial, not in a district court preliminary examination.

A preliminary examination requires only that a crime was committed and that it is likely (probable cause) that the accused committed it.

After the ruling, Leonard was re-arrested and released on $10,000 bond. The case will go before Shea again.

Eleven other criminal sexual conduct charges against him have been dropped. Judges ruled that witnesses against Leonard were too young to testify.

Leonard, and deacon Mark Foeller, who ran the church's Sunday school bus ministry, were the subjects of an investigation by Michigan State Police last year. Authorities believe Leonard and Foeller lured low-income children onto the church's bus with candy and toys. They believe some children were raped and fondled on the bus, while others were assaulted at the Sunday school.

Foeller faces trial Nov. 8 in Jackson county on 12 criminal sexual conduct charges, including five from Washtenaw county and seven from Jackson county.

★ Frost-Free Date Critical In Choosing Varieties

East Lansing—The average date of the last local frost is a critical bit of information when you're choosing what to plant and when to plant it outdoors.

No one can predict that date exactly, but analyzing years of weather information has yielded average dates of the last spring frost and the first fall freeze to guide planning and planting.

The days between these dates are the local growing season—the number of frost-free days you can expect in your area.

It's important to know this when you're choosing varieties, says Mary McLellan, Master Gardener coordinator at Michigan State University.

"If you know your local growing season averages around 120 days, you know you have a good chance of getting a crop from a winter squash that takes 105 days from seed to harvest," she explains. "If your growing season averages 95 days, you'd be wise to choose another variety because it will take an unusually early spring, a late fall or a combination of the two to get a crop from that squash."

Growing seasons in Michigan vary from 60 to 170 days. The longer your local growing season, the more options you have in crops and varieties.

Once you've chosen your varieties, the average date of the last spring frost becomes important in choosing planting dates.

Warm-weather crops such as snap beans and squash from seed and tomatoes, eggplant and peppers from transplants will not tolerate even a hint of frost, McLellan points out. They must either be planted after the danger of frost is past or protected if temperatures drop. The seed-grown crops will not germinate in cold soil, so if you want to seed them early, you'll also need to use a black plastic mulch to warm the soil. In cold soil, they not only won't germinate but may rot.

Cool-weather crops, on the other hand—such as peas, lettuce, radishes and spinach from seed, onions from seeds or sets, and the cole family of crops (broccoli, cabbage, brussels sprouts, etc.) from transplants—will grow in cool soil and tolerate some frost.

"These crops not only survive early planting—they thrive on it," McLellan says. "They tend to be much higher in quality when grown in cool weather."

The usual recommendation for these cool-weather crops is to plant them in the spring for an early summer harvest and again in midsummer for a fall crop. The warm soil and air temperatures of summer get seedlings off to a quick start, but the weather is cooling when the plants come into production.

More information on the local growing season, vegetable variety selection, and garden planning and planting is available from your county Cooperative Extension Service office.
