DOWNTOWN CHELSEA will soon have two major vacancies when Vogel's and Foster's and Harper Shoe Co. close their doors later this month. Many downtown business owners believe it won't be too difficult to attract new businesses to take the space.

Sylvan Board Opposes Golf Course Project

Sylvan Township Board passed a resolution Nov. 2 against the construction of a county golf course/winter park east of M-52 along I-94. The project has had widespread support in the area by the village, Chelsea Chamber of Commerce, and Chelsea Recreation Council. Lima township supervisor Bill Van Riper has also expressed support.

The resolution came as a complete surprise to Washtenaw County Parks and Recreation Director Fred Barkley, who has spearheaded the project for nearly a year.

"I'm just flabbergasted," he said. "It kind of catches me flat-footed. We have received no notification of it."

The township board, according to supervisor Gerald Dresselhouse, opposes the project for several reasons. He said trustees have received complaints that the land will be taken off the tax rolls. The township already has a sizeable chunk of land included in the tax-exempt Waterloo Recreation area.

Dresselhouse said some believe a golf course should be a private enterprise. In addition, others questioned the need for another golf course. And there was at least one concern about the safety of ice on Pierce Lake because the lake is spring fed and typically has weak spots.

The resolution won't make any difference in the project, Barkley said. The county is exempt from the township's zoning regulations and the township couldn't stop the project by denying a special use permit even if it wanted to. Approximately two-thirds of the project would be in Sylvan township, and the rest in Lima.

Barkley is scheduled to make a presentation to the Sylvan planning commission next month. He spoke Monday night to a combined meeting of the Lima township board and planning commission.

The county plans to sell bonds for the project in December. Also next month the county should get final word on a state grant to finance the purchase of the 200 acres from Arcus Corp. Even if the grant is denied, the county has the option to lease the land and the project will continue.

Construction is scheduled to start next spring.

Convertible Top Vandalized in Lot

A Dexter resident told Chelsea police that her car's convertible top was vandalized while it was parked in the Tower Mart parking lot last Tuesday, Nov. 2.

The car, a 1990 Chrysler, was in the lot between 6:30 p.m. and 10:30 p.m.

Two Stores in Prime Locations Closing in Downtown Next Month

After several years of nearly full occupancy, downtown Chelsea is suddenly finding itself with the prospect of two major vacancies before the end of the year.

Jack and Freidelle Winans of Vogel's and Foster's clothing store at 42 S. Main St. have decided to retire. And Daleen Harper, owner of Harper Shoes at 23 N. Main St., has decided she can't make enough money in the shoe business.

Vogel's and Foster's is planning to wrap up business by Dec. 15. Harper only says "sometime in December" will be her last day, depending on how quickly her inventory moves.

The last time downtown Chelsea had so much space available was several years ago when Dancer's department store went out of business, the Secretary of State decided to move out, and Chelsea Pharmacy closed its downtown store, all at approximately the same time. Dancer's was replaced by The Common Grill, Chelsea Print & Graphics took over the secretary of state space, and Harper Shoe Co. leased the old pharmacy space.

While downtown business owners don't seem to be in a panic over the situation, the closings are the topic of conversation.

Sam Johnson of Johnson's How-To Store, figures "it's just another cycle" and that there seems to be plenty of on-going interest in Main St. storefronts.

"The important thing is that we keep a good retail mix," he says.

With the passing of Vogel's and Foster's and Harper Shoe Co., virtually no clothes, with the exception of motorcycle or exercise apparel, will be available for sale downtown unless someone begins a similar business. When the pharmacy, and later D & C Store left, the sundries business went with them. Downtown has more restaurants/bars (5) than any other kind of business.

Jack Winans said he is "absolutely committed" to having a retail business in his 5,280 square-foot building, one of the largest downtown spaces. He has not decided whether to sell the building or lease it. It can be easily divided into two spaces as each side of the store has its own mechanical systems.

Winans said he had originally planned to retire next year but decided a Christmas sale would be a good end, since most retailers have their sales after the holidays.

"We are sorry to leave the business, but the time has come," Winans said.

The Winanses bought the Vogel's side of the business from Helen Vogel 20 years ago, and the Foster's side from Bob Foster afterward.

The store has about a dozen employees.

Harper Shoe Co. started almost four years ago in Village Plaza.

"If I could make a paycheck, I'd stay in business," Harper said.

"The traffic and the volume are not there."

She said a large percentage of the shoe business is in athletic shoes and her major competitors can buy in much larger quantities at larger discounts.

"It's a very competitive business," she said.

Chelsea's Downtown Development Authority has not met since the announcements were made. President Frank Renton said he doesn't know whether DDA will become actively involved in helping seek new tenants.

"It would be nice to keep a broad mix of shops," Renton said.

"It's going to be interesting to see what the progression of businesses is."

Trial of Church Deacon Begins in Jackson County

The long-anticipated trial of Mark R. Foeller, the former North Sharon Baptist church deacon charged with 12 counts of criminal sexual conduct, began Monday in Jackson County Circuit Court.

One of the alleged victims, a 10-year-old boy, testified for more than four hours and described in graphic language how he was allegedly sodomized by Foeller in the bathroom of the church and later that summer at a Jackson county campground while they were swimming. The child was among many who attended the church's large Sunday school.

The trial is expected to take nearly two months. Foeller's attorney, Brian Thiede, a former prosecuting attorney, has argued that Foeller, 37, of Grass Lake township, has become the victim of an overzealous police investigation in which children have come forward with doubtful allegations. He said the case went out of control last November after children heard news stories of the alleged abuse, parents became hysterical, and investigators became too anxious to build a case.

Thiede has painted Foeller as a devoted husband and father of three who devoted hours to the church, which was the center of the family's life. He is an engineer for the Chrysler Corporation.

However, third-year Washtenaw county assistant prosecutor Julia Owdziel, who has a background in molestation cases through her work with the Department of Social Services, told the jury that the children hesitated to talk about the abuse because Foeller threatened to harm them and their families if they told. Experts on child sexual abuse say that is a common tactic by abusers.

Village Continues Talks on Gene Dr. Area Improvements

Village officials met again recently with residents of Gene Dr. in an effort to resolve a dispute about how to upgrade the area with water and sewer service.

Gene Dr., on the western edge of the village, is considered by the village to be a private road that has never been accepted by the village and has never been constructed to village standards.

Gene Dr. is considered to be unique among roads in the village. It is a dirt road and is not plowed in the winter. It has no water and sewer service yet residents pay all village taxes.

However, there are other roads that have elements of the Gene Dr. problem and are treated differently.

Taylor Ln., which runs off Dexter-Chelsea Rd., has apparently never been formally accepted by the village. It is also not built according to village road standards. For example, it does not have curb and gutter. Yet it has water and sewer service and is plowed regularly, and apparently has been since it was built.

A portion of Meadow Ln., which runs off Wilkinson St., has also not been accepted. Some of it is not plowed.

Monroe St., a small dirt road that runs parallel to the railroad tracks, receives regular snow plowing—although there is only one house on the road—and occasional small applications of gravel. Department of Public Works Superintendent Dave Bulson said Monroe St. has received that treatment "ever since I've been here."

Whether Monroe St., Taylor Ln. or any other street makes a difference in how the village views Gene Dr. remains to be seen. The village has agreed to have assistant manager Bruce Pindia come up with a more accurate drawing of the area so more precise construction estimates can be generated.

A NEW AMERICAN FLAG was installed on the flag pole at the Chelsea Depot last week. The old flag had been literally torn to shreds by high winds over the years.

VISITORS from Shimizu, Japan arrived in Chelsea last week as part of an effort to set up an exchange program with Chelsea. Chelsea High school graduate (1986) Brian Oakley, center, majored in Asian studies at the University of Vermont then spent two years teaching English in Shimizu. He and Hiroaki Hosono, administrator in the board of education, came up with the idea of beginning the exchange. The town, in the mountains in central Hokkaido, would like to send several junior high school students here next summer. The visitors met with various village representatives for lunch last Wednesday. From left are Ann Feeney of the Chamber of Commerce, Dave Prohaska of Chelsea Print & Graphics, Mr. Hosono, Standard publisher Helen May Leonard, Chelsea school superintendent Joe Plasecki, Oakley, Ann Lee of Accent on Travel, village president Richard Steele, assistant superintendent Fred Mills (partially hidden) Mr. Hasegawa, vice-principal of the Shimizu Junior High school, and village administrative assistant Barb Fredette.

BookCrafters, Inc. has signed a consent agreement that details how the company will remove excess silver from its wastewater by the end of March. Silver is a by-product of the photographic process used to manufacture books. The village forced BookCrafters to sign the agreement after the village technicians determined the company's wastewater exceeded the village's standard for silver discharge, sometimes by more than 200 times. The danger, according to the village, is that too much silver will jeopardize the village's sludge program.

Daniels plans to manage the theater with Newell Kring, who has directed plays for Chelsea Area Players, and long-time friend Doug Beaumont. Daniels said he envisions a theater of about 100 seats that would be used by Chelsea Area Players and many other groups that might want to perform, such as ensemble comedy acts and "one-acts." The idea is to develop talent in the area, Daniels said.

Economy Takes Hit from Gas Tax

In case you hadn't noticed, the federal tax on gasoline went up again on Oct. 1 by 4.3 cents a gallon. This raises Uncle Sam's total take to 18.4 cents a gallon, plus a nation-wide average of 20 cents a gallon in state and local taxes. But Administration claims to the contrary, the added revenue won't do much to reduce the budget deficit, help the economy, or improve the environment.

By Philip C. Clarke

The latest gasoline tax hike, part of President Clinton's economic plan that barely squeaked through Congress this summer, probably won't make motorists too mad. With drivers averaging about 13,000 miles a year at 20 miles per gallon, the additional cost at the pump comes to some $28 a year. Per household, annually, it will cost an extra $50 or so.

Before the latest tax increase, retail prices at the pump averaged only about $1.11 a gallon for lead-free regular, so few consumers have been complaining. In fact, environmentalists contend that U.S. fuel prices are too low, especially when compared with such countries as Britain where "petrol" costs the equivalent of $2.68 a gallon and Japan where motorists shell out a whopping $4.25 a gallon. The environmentalists argue that our "cheap" gasoline only encourages wasteful consumption and worsens pollution problems. They also applauded the higher federal tax as helping to conserve energy, reduce our 50% dependence on foreign oil and encourage the use of fuel "alternatives."

As for reducing our federal deficit, Administration officials claim that each penny a gallon increase in the gas tax produces $1 billion in additional revenues, meaning that the new 4.3 cent a gallon boost should net the Treasury some $4.3 billion a year. However, private economists and industry sources take a dimmer view. The respected economics consulting firm of DRI-McGraw Hill, for example, says that higher gasoline taxes tend to slow down the economy and boost inflation, thus sharply reducing any real increase in federal revenues. Even Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen has expressed serious doubts.

Last June, he told the Dallas Morning News: "There is no regional balance in the gas tax. In some parts of the country, it becomes quite punitive. That's particularly true of those states that have substantial rural areas or don't have extensive mass transit."

The argument that U.S. gasoline taxes are too low in comparison to other industrialized countries fails to take into account the relative size of the countries. Since the U.S. is larger, Americans must drive longer distances.

For example, the U.S. has 13 times more highway than Japan and the average distance traveled by shippers here is nearly twice that of their Japanese counterparts. As a result, the U.S. per capita consumes 10 times more fuel than Japan.

Raising gas taxes also does little to reduce U.S. reliance on foreign oil. Imports currently account for just under 50% of our daily consumption of petroleum. But much of this is due to cheaper production costs overseas and strict environmental limitations on the development of domestic deposits. The off-limits Arctic National Wildlife Reserve in Alaska, for example, is believed to contain some of the world's largest oil and gas reserves. In the lower 48 states, other federal lands, as well as the offshore continental shelf, also are largely banned to exploration and drilling.

Of imminent concern to the struggling domestic oil industry is a pending array of still more federal environmental regulations that, in the words of the American Petroleum Institute (API), pose a "staggering financial challenge." According to a study by the National Petroleum Council, as a consequence of the forthcoming federal rules and restrictions the cost of producing cleaner fuels alone could boost prices by as much as 27 cents per gallon by the year 2010—six times more than this year's 4.3 cents-per-gallon tax increase. And this does not include other planned environmental health and safety costs.

According to API President Charles DiBona, "this challenge comes at a critical point for the nation's petroleum refining industry which is vital to the nation's economic health... Policies that unnecessarily reduce demand for petroleum products also result in lost jobs and, over the long term, refining expenditures will be reflected in the marketplace." Meaning ever higher costs at the pump, hurting millions of consumers and businesses who rely on oil.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The fellows that set around the stove at the country store never let ignorance stand in the way of opinion, so they didn't Saturday night when Josh Clodfelter brought up an item from the sports page that spilled over from the education section.

This was unusual because Josh does a heap more listening than talking, and because sports leads the list of news he's got no interest in. He had a clip where a basketball player for a big college said his scoring was off from last year because he had been spending way too much time with school. It wasn't what the boy said that scared him, Josh told the fellows, it was that the reporters took it to be a perfect good reason.

To his mind, went on Josh, the item was more proof that national ranked college teams in major sports have ever bit as much to do with their schools as Ford and Chevy do with stock cars that have their names on em. Players and coaches go to the highest bidder, Josh allowed, from the cars they drive, the shoes they wear, the TV network that shows the games as well as the school name on the jersey. He had saw where N.C. State University recent hired a praise agent to do nothing but change the school image to a place where you actual can get an education.

General, the fellows agreed with Josh that the big schools field the best teams they can buy. But Ed Doolittle said the wonder is the schools even bother to pretend their sports ain't big business. Ed took note of the money them cities spent fighting for the new pro football teams, and the celebrating the winners did over the money they're going to make. When you got folks that'll borrow $6,000 to buy the right to buy $1,500 worth of season tickets to a team they won't see play for two years, Ed said, you got college alumni that won't settle for second best. And we come full circle when we got banks taking the season seats as full backing for the loans, was Ed's words.

If sports imitate life, Clem Webster ask, what are we to make of art. Clem saw where a woman paid $100,000 for a framed piece of blank canvas because it was a perfect match for her wall. She said, the artist "took the minimalist style to the highest level," and Clem said he took that style to be making the least possible out of nothing. In another case of the education value of the National Endowment for the Arts, Clem said, it granted $5,000 to a potter that said he would put $100 bills to jugs and give em to 50 illegal immigrants to show how "physical space reacts with civic space."

If the artist kept a few bills for his trouble, Zeke Grubb noted, who's to argue. Zeke had a clip where the U.S. Education Department recent found it has give 4,000 college students grants of $2,000 a year for 11 years or more, some as long as 19 years. This come out in an outside audit of loans to 3.8 million students. The department said that it would tighten up its records but, overall, it was proud of how the program matches need with money.

General, Zeke declared, Government's record of putting the salve on the sore can't stand much inspection. For instant, you know Congress will wind up spending that $11 billion for that big atom smasher in Texas, not for science but for Texas Congressmen.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

Lima Extension Planned Landscape Improvements Lesson

Pruning shears, a pruning saw, a branch, a mum plant in bloom; these were some of the interesting props 12 members of Lima Extension were attracted to as they were greeted by Donna Bradbury at her home Wednesday, Oct. 20.

The lesson on a "Planned Approach to Landscape Improvements" was taken at the Extension office March 18 by Alice Gardner and Janet McCalla. Some pruning tips were added from a lesson they each had attended the previous year. Many helpful tips were added to the lesson from the members present.

After a pot-luck buffet was enjoyed with coffee, tea and hot cider provided by our hostess, Barb Wing called the November meeting to order. After the general business members were reminded to remember long-time member Meryl Coy on her 90th birthday, Nov. 19. Also Trudy Estes has been severely injured in a fall and could be remembered at Glacier Hills!

For many years, people didn't realize how dangerous smoking was to their health. These days, the American public is learning more about the real threat of smoking and paying less attention to the tobacco industry's advertising false images and propaganda. By 1990, more than 44 million Americans had quit smoking. Not only are people quitting, but they are forcing political changes concerning smoking issues. Nationally, Surgeon General health warnings are required on all cigarette packages, and advertisement of cigarettes has been banned on television and radio. Smoking is banned on domestic airline flights of six or fewer hours. In Michigan, state-owned public buildings and public school buildings are now smoke-free. County and local governments are instituting their own ordinances against smoking, sales and promotion of tobacco products.

Of all preventable disease, smoking-related illness and death uses the largest percentage of health care services. A new national health care reform proposal seeks a 75-cent tax increase on a pack of cigarettes, but that is hardly enough to compensate the expenses assessed to smoking. In 1985, a Congress Office of Technology assessment reports that the costs of treating smoking-related diseases and lost productivity equals $2.17 for each pack of cigarettes sold. A study conducted in 1991 on the economic impact of smoking in the workplace by Marion Merrel Dow, Inc. (Dow Pharmaceutical) shows that employers lost up to $5,620 per year for each worker who smokes. These unreimbursed costs of smoking deduct from our productive economy and inflate health care costs for everyone.

Polls show that nearly 80% of Americans are in favor of a large cigarette tax for health care reform and support their legislators on this "populart" tax. A hefty tax on cigarettes would encourage more smokers to quit and would deter young people from smoking, because cigarettes would become cost prohibitive. In Canada, where cigarettes are $4 to $7 a pack, youth smoking has dropped by 80%.

The Department of Public Health reports Michigan has the second highest percentage of smokers in the nation. It's never too late to quit smoking. The sooner smokers quit, the more they reduce their chances of getting cancer and other diseases.

Nov. 18, 1993, is the American Cancer Society's 17th annual "Great American Smokeout," when smokers are encouraged to quit smoking for one day and hopefully for good.

AFTER A LONG NEGOTIATION PROCESS soil contamination on property owned by Chelsea Milling Co. on North St. is being cleaned up in preparation for the construction of a large warehouse. The clean-up is being paid for by AMOCO Oil Co., the previous owner. Old oil storage tanks apparently leaked and caused a large area of contamination. The soil is being excavated and heated to approximately 1,300 degrees in order to vaporize the contamination. The vapors are also collected in the process.

So the jury will be asked to decide whether Foeller is a pedophile who took advantage of his authority in the church or a man who has been wrongly accused in an air of hysteria.

The trial is expected to include the testimony of two nine-year-old boys who have also said they were abused by Foeller. The defense is expected to call dozens of church members to the stand.

Seven charges of first-degree criminal sexual conduct and five charges of second-degree criminal sexual conduct against Foeller from both Washtenaw and Jackson counties have been consolidated into one trial before Jackson County Circuit Court Judge Chad Schmucker.

The charges against Foeller were disclosed nearly a year ago in a press conference at the Chelsea Depot. Also implicated was assistant pastor Timothy Leonard, who has had almost all charges against him dropped.

Foeller remained in jail for nearly a year while all sorts of legal maneuvers took place. Thiede attempted to have Owdziej removed from the case, which would have delayed the trial even further, but Schmucker ruled in Owdziej's favor. In addition, there was some doubt Jackson County Prosecutor Dennis Hurst would allow her to prosecute the case after the charges were consolidated by Washtenaw County Circuit Court Judge Melinda Morris in September. Owdziej, like Thiede, has worked on the trial almost daily for months. It is considered one of the biggest cases in the careers of both attorneys.

The church recently raised enough money to get Foeller out on bond.

Farm Bureau Feels Encouraged By Mexico's Decision

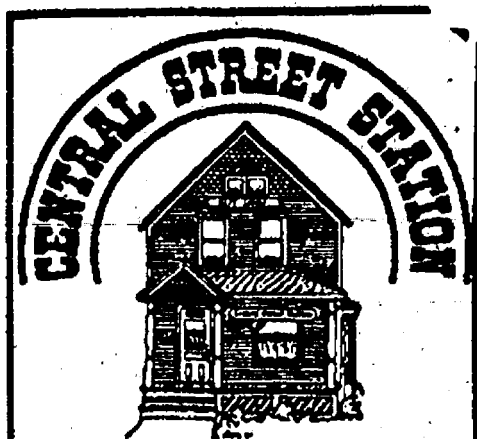

Today's announcement that Mexico has agreed to include corn-based sweeteners when determining whether Mexico is a net surplus producer of sugar has left Michigan Farm Bureau "cautiously optimistic" that the Michigan sugar industry will no longer be opposed to the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA).

"This change, which has been sought by the sugar industry, appears to address the concerns of sugar producers," said Bob Boehm, commodity specialist for Michigan Farm Bureau. He said the industry was worried that if Mexico were allowed under NAFTA to substitute corn sweeteners for crystalline sugar in its food and soft drink industries, Mexico would have a surplus that could be shipped into this country, thereby negatively impacting U.S. producers.

"Sugar producers were concerned that Mexico could displace a significant amount of Mexico's domestic sugar consumption by converting its currently sugar-sweetened beverage industry to High Fructose Corn Sweetener (HFCS)," said Boehm. "The original terms of the NAFTA sugar provisions could have allowed Mexico to export all of its excess production to the U.S. market after year seven of the NAFTA. But with this change, Mexican sugar exports will be capped at 250,000 metric tons after the sixth year of the agreement. In addition, the change now requires that HFCS must be included when determining Mexico's net surplus producer status. Farm Bureau hopes this will remove the focal point of the sugar industry's opposition to NAFTA," said Boehm.

School Board Notes

Present at a regular meeting of the Chelsea Board of Education Monday, Nov. 1, were Diesing, Knutsen, McCalla, Roberts, Redding, Eisenbeler, Merkel, superintendent Piasecki, assistant superintendent Mills, principals Mead, Stielstra, Wescott, Stieber, assistant high school principal Helms, community education director Rohrer, special education director DeYoung, athletic director Welton, curriculum director Bissell, guests.

Several Boy Scouts from North School Troop 435 led everyone in the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag and remained for a major part of the Board meeting. This activity served to meet one of the requirements for the "Citizen Activity Pin" award. Scout leaders Mr. and Mrs. Sayers and Mr. Gerstenlauer expressed appreciation to the board and administration for this opportunity for participation.

Meeting called to order at 7:30 p.m. by President Diesing.

The board approved the minutes of the Oct. 18 meeting.

Superintendent Piasecki introduced Brian Oakley, a 1986 CHS graduate who has taught English in Japan for the past two years. Brian accompanied two Japanese visitors, a central office administrator and a middle school vice-principal, to the Board meeting. While in Chelsea these gentlemen have visited the Chelsea schools and Chelsea businesses; they hope to develop a student exchange program in the near future.

Official communications and items of information were (1) information regarding the Nov. 3 MASA/MASB/PTA Lobby Day in Lansing, (2) Chelsea Community Hospital's third-quarter report on the utilization of the CARE program, (3) the October State Aid update report.

Following lengthy discussion of the Technology Committee's recent report and subsequent recommendation, the board accepted the committee's report as a framework for planning for the Chelsea School District's technology plan. Following further discussion, the board adopted the committee's recommendation that "proposals would be evaluated by the committee," a "final" recommendation would then be submitted to the board through the administration.

The board discussed the idea of establishing an athletic task force to examine areas of the athletic program such as facilities, funding, addition/deletion of teams/programs, and potentially make recommendations to the administration for presentation to the board.

Assistant Superintendent Mills reported that approximately $65,000 in interest charges could be saved by refunding the 1974 Bond Issue, final payment of which is due May 2003. The board approved a resolution which would explore, through the seeking of financial market opinion, the possibility of such refunding.

Curriculum director Laurie Bissell updated the board on the 1993-94 curriculum goals, and superintendent Piasecki presented an update on those goals dealing with facility/technology needs, communications, school improvement, and the compilation of a data base for evaluation of school programs.

The board convened in executive session at 10:05 p.m. to discuss student discipline, reconvened in public session at 11:03 p.m., and subsequently adjourned at 11:04 p.m.

Twenty-five of the large colored bulbs used in the outdoor lighting display at the J.V. Burg home on Wilkinson St., were stolen Tuesday night.

Large crowds of children were on hand Saturday morning to greet Santa Claus on his first pre-Christmas visit to Chelsea. Adding to the gala occasion was the music of the Brothers of the Brush(less) Band. Santa is to be here again this week, Saturday at 10:30 a.m.

MILLIE TOWNSEND, center, her daughter Lynn Raglin, and grand-daughter looked ready for a night on the town last Saturday as they modeled for "An Afternoon of Holiday Fashion" at Chelsea Community Hospital. The fundraiser was held to benefit the hospital auxiliary, which will use the money for a children's summer speech program.

Seven New Residents Join U-M Family Practice Center, Chelsea

Every summer the University of Michigan Family Practice Residency Program bids farewell to a group of graduating residents at the same time that a new group of residents is welcomed to the program. The program is three years in length, qualifying these doctors to take the specialty examination in Family Practice.

In June, 1993, five residents completed their training and headed off for various parts of the country to start new medical practices. Paul Curtin, M.D., has taken a position with the West Side Medical Clinic in Eugene, Ore. Terri Maszatics, M.D., is working in Fenton, at a clinic that is affiliated with McLaren Hospital in Flint. Joyce Koram, M.D., has joined the Oakwood Metro Health Center in Romulus. Sami Rifat, M.D., has moved on to Columbus, O., and has started a one-year sports medicine fellowship at Ohio State University. Karen Fonde, M.D., has stayed in the department as a Clinical Instructor and is working at the recently opened Ypsilanti Family Practice Center.

Mohamad A. Sidani, M.D., completed his two-year geriatric fellowship in June and is now working in a National Health Service Corps site in Spencer, W. Va. Arlene Seid, M.D., successfully completed her internship earlier this year and decided to take some time off from medicine and move closer to her parents' home in California. Her current plans are to resume her residency training in family practice next year.

In July, seven new residents joined the University of Michigan Family Practice Residency Program. The backgrounds and interests of these residents are as varied as those of the recent graduates.

Mark R. Brumm, M.D., received his bachelor of science degree in zoology from the University of Wisconsin in 1989. He remained in Madison for medical school and graduated from the University of Wisconsin School of Medicine in 1993. Mark wants to eventually practice in the Midwest in a small to medium-size city. He is considering an academic career as one of his options. Mark is a native of Wisconsin and enjoys camping, biking and running.

Lisa Hoekstra, M.D., received her bachelor of science degree in biology and chemistry from Calvin College in 1987. She attended medical school and public health school at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill and received a master of arts degree in maternal and child health in 1992 and her medical degree in 1993. After residency she plans to work with indigent populations, either in urban areas of U.S. cities or abroad. She wants to focus on women's and children's health and is interested in research on interventions to improve pregnancy and parenting outcomes. Lisa might also explore the possibility of completing a fellowship in obstetrics following her family practice residency. Her interests outside medicine are in drawing, painting, ceramics, cooking, reading, hiking, camping, skiing, aerobics, and travel.

Hector J. Llenderroz, M.D., has received his prior training in Chicago. He received a bachelor of arts degree in biology from University of Chicago in 1986, an MPH in Health Resources Management and Environment and Occupational Health from the University of Illinois-Chicago School of Public Health in 1988, and his M.D. from the University of Illinois-Chicago in 1993. He was raised in Havana, Madrid, New York, and Miami. Hector enjoys reading, traveling, ultimate frisbee, ballroom dancing, hiking, graphic arts and singing.

Patricia (Trish) M. Smith, M.D., graduated cum laude from the University of Maryland with a bachelor of science degree in nutrition research in 1986. She received her M.D. from George Washington University in 1993. Before she went to medical school she worked as research assistant at the USDA's Human Nutrition Research Center. She hopes to provide care to an underserved population after residency and to also remain involved in teaching students and residents.

Trish's interests include hiking, cooking, playing the piano, reading, nature, and wildlife appreciation and conservation and enjoying the outdoors. Her brother, Jim Marsh, is one of our second-year residents.

Thomas W. Wang, M.D., received his bachelor of science degree in biology from the University of Michigan in 1989. Tom went to medical school in Toledo and received his M.D. from the Medical College of Ohio in 1993. He plans to practice in a university setting and pursue research interests and teaching. He is also interested in overseas work based on his experience as a participant in a Medical Relief Mission to the Dominican Republic as a medical student. He enjoys running, martial arts, tennis, reading, and tactical games such as chess, go, and Chinese chess.

Sarah L. Warber, M.D., received a bachelor of fine arts degree in drama from Illinois Wesleyan University in 1973 and her M.D. from the Michigan State University College of Human Medicine in 1993. She worked for several years as a nuclear medicine technologist, including three years conducting nuclear medicine research in the Nuclear Medicine Division of the University of Michigan Medical School. She would like to practice in an academic setting in the Midwest where her responsibilities would include a balance of patient care, research, and teaching. Sara's hobbies include spending time with her son, walks in the woods, bike riding, cross country skiing, camping, reading, listening to music, and gardening.

In addition to the six new first-year residents, a new second-year resident entered the program in July 1993.

David J. Alvarez, D.O., finished his three-year stint in the U.S. Navy, most recently as a flight surgeon for the Naval Air Station at Norfolk, Va. He received a bachelor of science degree in pharmacy from Butler University in 1982 and then worked for three years as a hospital pharmacist. He then entered the Michigan State University College of Human Medicine. He graduated with his D.O. in 1989 and then completed a transitional internship at the Naval Hospital in San Diego in 1990. He relaxes by spending time with his wife (also a family physician) and son, likes all outdoor sports, snow and water skiing, cycling, and attending festivals and symphonies. He is considering completing a sports medicine fellowship following completion of his residency.

A new geriatric fellow also joined the department in July 1993. Lourdes Velez, M.D., is on leave from her position as an assistant clinical professor at Wayne State University Department of Family Medicine. Lourdes received her M.D. from the San Juan Bautista School of Medicine in 1983. After an internship at Fajardo Regional Hospital in Fajardo, Puerto Rico, she completed her residency in family practice at Pontiac General Hospital in 1987. She has served as faculty in family practice residency programs at the San Pablo Hospital in Bayamon, Puerto Rico and at Pontiac General Hospital before joining the faculty at Wayne State in 1990. She completed the Michigan State University Primary Care Faculty Development Fellowship in 1990.

More Names Added to Memory Tree Lights List

The list of names of former downtown business persons has grown in the past week. "The phones are ringing and the callers are curious as to the criterion, accepting of it and excited about the project," according to Donna Palmer, chairperson of the fund-raising drive.

"The criterion is that the person must have been a former business person in the downtown business area."

The honorees are long-time downtown merchants who rode it out through good and bad times—convinced of the merits of downtown Chelsea—then retired."

One caller called to Palmer's attention that a certain wife had worked just as long and hard as her husband—and was due the recognition. The caller also happened to be a merchant spouse. Both names—plus several other "business wives" names have been added to the list. "She was right—there were some wives who worked side-by-side 40-plus hours every week and they deserve to be recognized."

The list of contributors will be published in the Dec. 1 edition of The Chelsea Standard and the lights will be turned on for the Festival of Lights on Friday, Dec. 3.

Bulldogs Suffer Loss To Marshall Redskins In Football Play-offs

Chelsea's Gene LaFave called it "one of the most difficult defeats" he's endured as a head football coach. "The kids were devastated," LaFave said of the Bulldogs' 21-16 loss to the Marshall Redskins in the first round of the class BB play-offs last Saturday in Chelsea.

"They came ready to play, they prepared hard and played hard and when it doesn't work out, it's difficult to accept."

The Bulldogs couldn't keep Marshall out of the end zone in the first half when they allowed all three touchdowns, and couldn't make enough big offensive plays in the second half. Three times they were inside the Marshall 30 in the second half and came away pointless.

The usually-reliable defense had its worst outing of the year as it gave up 293 yards, including 219 on the ground, 139 by tailback Chad Wheeler. The 21 points were also the most surrendered and nearly half of the total during the regular season.

And the big-play offense, in particular wide receiver Colby Skelton, was stifled virtually the entire game. Marshall kept Skelton from getting down the sidelines and quarterback Pat Steele could find him inside for only three short passes totaling 27 yards. Running back Jay Westcott, who got his first extended playing time all season, gave the biggest boost to the offense. His 28-yard reception early in the second half set up Chelsea's only offensive touchdown. He caught three passes for 66 yards to lead the team. Steele was 11-31 for 165 yards.

But what may have been the Bulldogs' undoing was their inability to run. They rushed for just 34 yards, the biggest chunk, 19 yards, by Steele.

"It's hard to win when you only have 34 yards rushing," LaFave said.

"They defended us well. They have great players up front and were able to control us."

LaFave said he and his staff counted at least five major Chelsea breakdowns, and 10 significant ones, on both offense and defense. That made the game tougher to swallow because the Bulldogs have executed almost flawlessly all year on both sides of the ball.

"Marshall was a very good team, but we certainly had the opportunities to win," LaFave said.

"We had so many chances it was unbelievable. But Marshall was able to make the plays in a tremendous number of crucial situations and we didn't."

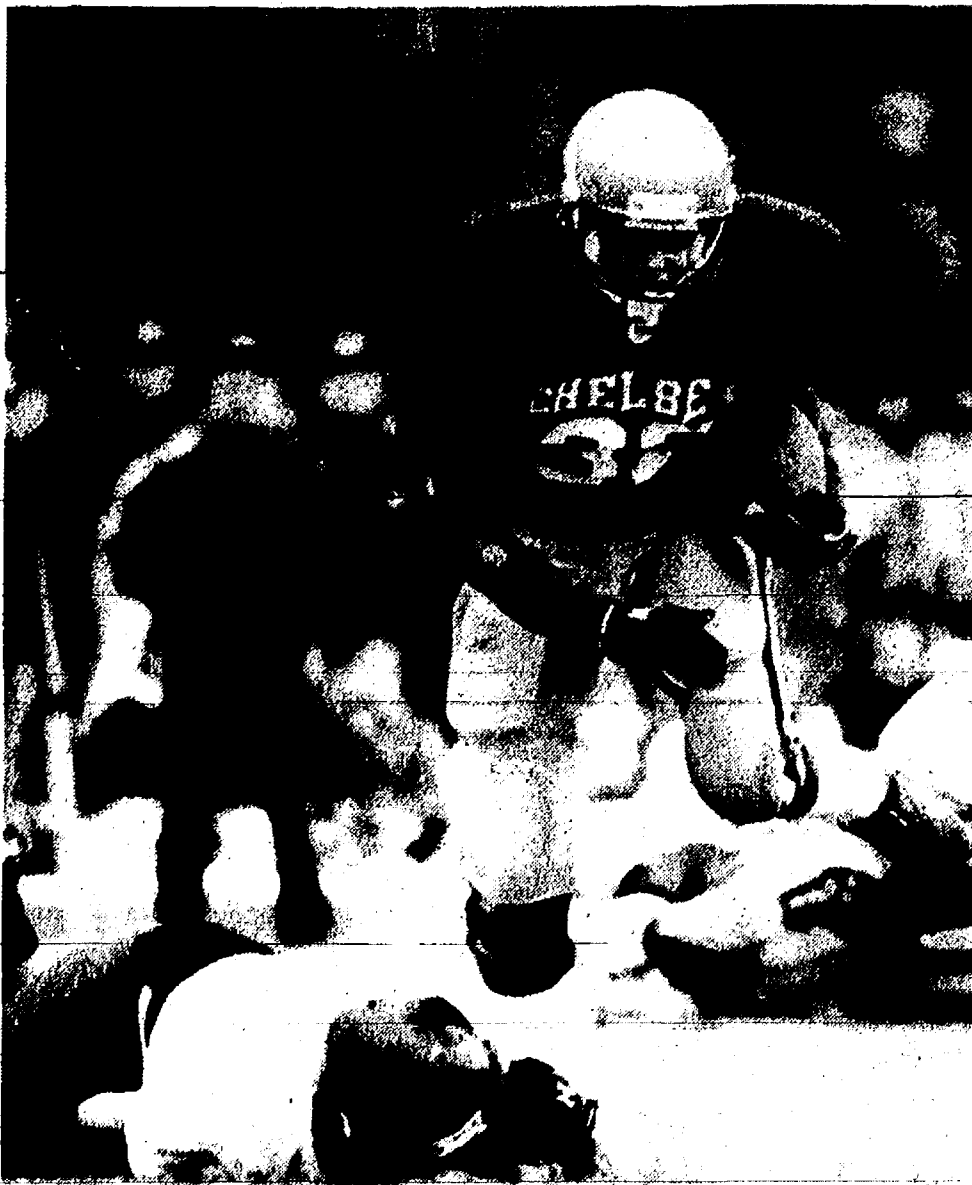

Chelsea had the early momentum as Marshall fumbled a punt reception after Chelsea's opening series to give the Bulldogs the ball at the 16. The drive went five yards in three plays before Tim Westcott drilled a 28-yard field goal.

Marshall came back in nine plays to complete a 69-yard drive with a 26-yard halfback pass for a touchdown on a fourth-down-and-eight situation. With 3:29 in the quarter, Marshall led 7-3.

On their next series the Bulldogs drove from their 38 to the Marshall 39 before a pass on fourth down and 15 was incomplete.

The Redskins responded with another touchdown drive. They converted two key fourth down situations, one with three yards to go and the other with five. Wheeler also ran 14 yards on third and nine to keep the drive alive at the Chelsea 25. From there, Marshall ran six straight times, capped by quarterback Jack Ross's one-yard keeper. With 5:21 in the half, Chelsea trailed 14-3.

Skelton took the kick-off, avoided two tacklers near the Chelsea 15, raced up the sidelines, dodged or leapt over three tacklers, cut back up the middle of the field and out-sprinted

JAY WESTCOTT takes off for a good gainer against the Marshall Redskins during last Saturday's play-off game. The senior was Chelsea's leading receiver for the game.

Marshall to the end zone. A two-point conversion pass was blocked but the Marshall lead was cut to 14-9 with 5:01 left.

However, the Redskins used most of the clock on their final scoring drive, which began at midfield after a long kick-off return. Again, Marshall managed several clutch plays, including a first down on second-and-15 on a run by Wheeler, and another on third and eight with a pass to Mike Bocanegra. The Bulldogs also helped out by committing a facemask penalty on second and 18 at their own 39. On third and goal from less than a yard, Ross reached the ball over the goal line. Chelsea was down 21-9 at half-time, although Steele hit end Don Pop-penger at the Marshall 30 in the closing seconds.

Marshall was stopped at the Chelsea 46 on its first possession of the second half. A mishandling of the punt snap gave the Bulldogs the ball at the Marshall 30.

On the first play, Steele hit Westcott over the middle 28 yards to the Marshall two. Steele ran the ball in on the next play. Westcott's kick put Chelsea within a touchdown at 21-16.

Neither team could get much going for the rest of the third quarter. Chelsea had two crucial penalties on Marshall punts that let the Redskins continue drives.

In the fourth quarter, a Chelsea drive was stopped on downs at the Marshall 23 after Steele again found Westcott with a 24-yard pass. A second drive ended with a punt from the Chelsea 42.

On their final drive, the Bulldogs still looked like they might pull the game out. Steele hit Skelton for 11 yards to midfield, then connected with Westcott and Skelton to the Marshall

Harriers Sixth in State

Chelsea Bulldogs girls cross country team took sixth place out of 30 teams at the state meet last Saturday in Grand Rapids.

"This was a fine showing for the girls who have overcome many adversities such as sickness and injuries in their quest for success this season," said Chelsea coach Pat Clarke.

Sophomore Melissa Hand led Chelsea with a 12th-place finish in 20:04 to make all-state.

Junior Molly Griebel, battling a sinus infection, placed 22nd in 20:25, which Clarke called a strong race.

Junior Erika Leiter placed 77th in 21:25 despite recovering from the flu.

Senior Beth Bell finished her career with an 83rd place in 21:31 after returning from illness.

Senior Sarah Henry rounded out the Chelsea placers in 139th at 23:21.

Caledonia won the meet handily with 58 points. Gaylor was second with 122, Saline third with 195, Fremont fourth with 206, and Chelsea fifth with 258.

Chelsea Plays Columbia Central To Open District

Chelsea Bulldogs will open district basketball play next Monday against Brooklyn Columbia Central at 7 p.m. in the Chelsea gym.

On Wednesday, the Saline Hornets will face the Dexter Dreadnoughts at 5:30 p.m., followed by the winner of Monday's game against the Tecumseh Indians at 7:30.

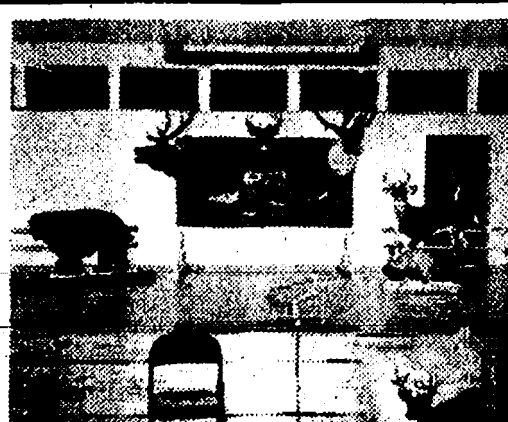

The championship game will be held Friday at 7 p.m. All games are in Chelsea. Tickets are $3.

Chelsea fans should also note that the final regular-season game will be held Friday at Saline Middle school rather than Saline High school. JV game starts at 5:30 with the varsity game immediately afterward.

BETH BELL, front, ran her final cross country race as a Chelsea Bulldog last Saturday at the state B meet. Behind her is Molly Griebel, who should be an instrumental part of next year's team.

Our shooting percentage wasn't bad and we didn't have a lot of turn-overs. We just constantly sent Tecumseh to the foul line. We had the shots that could have won the game."

Tecumseh out-scored Chelsea in every quarter but not by more than two points.

Thompson led Chelsea with 15 points and 14 rebounds while Annie Terpstra scored 13 and grabbed 11 rebounds. Other scorers were Laura Carty 5, Jessica Flintoft 5, Erin Schiller 5, and Kate Steele 2.

Last Tuesday at Dexter the Bulldogs were the beneficiaries of free throws as they used nine to pull away in the fourth quarter and secure a 40-33 victory.

"We got every break in the book, foul-wise," Waller said.

Neither team could pull away early. Chelsea was down 11-6 at the end of the first quarter but led at half-time, 15-13. However, by the end of the third quarter, Dexter had the lead, 25-21.

MELISSA HAND earned all-state honors for Chelsea at the state B cross country meet last Saturday in Grand Rapids.

SPORTS NOTES

BY BRIAN HAMILTON

I thought it was interesting that cross country coach Pat Clarke and football coach Gene LaFave said essentially the same thing about his team's performance in the post-season.

The boys cross country team, ranked among the top five for much of the season—and rightfully so—was eliminated from contention for a state title when it placed fourth at the region meet by a mere two points. The football team, also ranked among the top five for most of the season—and just as rightfully—was knocked out of the post-season last Saturday by Marshall by just five points, 21-16.

All Chelsea needed was one of five runners to finish three places higher (actually two places because the Bulldogs would have won the tiebreaker) and they would have been in last Saturday's state meet as one of the top teams. All Chelsea needed was one more trip across the goal line and hundreds of us would be on our way to Monroe this week-end.

Both Clarke and LaFave were still depressed two days after his team's competition—somehow these things are harder for the adults to swallow because they want so badly for the kids to succeed. And both said "just about everything that could go wrong, did."

Severe cramps and the flu struck two members of the cross country team, which was plenty to do the damage. A couple of kids had off days to add to the troubles.

There are so many more things that can go wrong during the course of a football game. And I think we witnessed just about all of them Saturday. LaFave said he could count about half a dozen major breakdowns, and just as many others that had an impact on the game.

Chelsea didn't have any turnovers until the final 20 seconds, which is probably the most positive statistic of the game.

Penalties, and the lack of them, hurt. The Bulldogs didn't have many, but when they did they were critical. Chelsea kept Marshall drives alive with unusual penalties in punting situations, and one big facemask infraction after a Redskins holding penalty that could have pinned them down. They were called for an illegal receiver downfield, which is the first time I can remember any Chelsea team being flagged for that particular violation. Just before half-time, receiver Don Poppen was crunched while a pass was in the air, but there was no call. The refs said he couldn't catch it, but the problem is that interpretation applies in the NFL, not high school ball.

The Chelsea defense played an outstanding second half, but the damage done in the first half was enough. Throughout the first half, Chelsea yielded only a couple of yards on first down but couldn't stop third-and-long or even fourth-and-long situations. We were so accustomed to seeing the defense close the deal this season that this problem was particularly frustrating to watch.

The offense also had its problems. No one could run the ball effectively. Marshall designed its defense to take receiver Colby Skelton out of the game, and it worked. He had a season-low three catches for less than 30 yards. Passes were batted down—how often has that happened this season? Passes were dropped, and some just missed the mark.

As a fan, I even questioned one play call. The Bulldogs passed on fourth and 15 from the Marshall 40, rather than punt and try to pin the Redskins deep. Marshall went on for a touchdown, but the way things were going, they might have scored no matter what.

One of the biggest problems of the game had to do with personnel swaps. LaFave had to put quarterback Pat Steele in on defense—exactly what he wanted to avoid with this year's two-platoon system. The decision helped Chelsea shut down Marshall in the second half. But it took a big toll on the offense.

"Instead of being able to come out, listen to me, and let it all sink in, Pat had to become more of a technician than a field general," LaFave said.

Despite all the problems, the Bulldogs were still in good position to win the game in the closing minutes. And I'm sure everyone on the Chelsea side of the field believed Steele and Skelton would deliver one more heroic effort. Steele completed three straight passes and ran for a first down on fourth and three. But the drive stalled on fourth down at the Marshall 23 when a screen pass was dropped. Although that play stands out, it doesn't have any more to do with the loss than 20 other plays.

Although "everything that could go wrong, did" in the final game, and the result is still painful for some, it should in no way diminish what the team accomplished. A second consecutive undefeated regular season, a second consecutive SEC title, a second consecutive appearance in the play-offs, and—speaking for the fans—more thrills than anyone could have hoped for.

This year's team is certainly one of the best in Chelsea history. Steele-to-Skelton lit up the field here brighter than any combination before them. Skelton—the one-man highlight film—and his teammates made an indelible mark with their skill, speed, attitude, and team play. When a season ends so abruptly for a group like this, it feels like your best friend just picked up and moved. The thrill and fun and emotion are gone for good.

But the memories will go on forever. Thanks for a great 10 weeks.

Chelsea Swimmers Take Third in Conference Meet

Chelsea Bulldogs girls swimming team completed their regular season last Friday and Saturday by maintaining their third-place standing in the Southeastern Conference championships held at Chelsea's Cameron Pool.

Milan and Dexter battled for the top spot but the Big Reds prevailed with 333 points to Dexter's 328. Chelsea, with 208 points, edged Pinckney, with 200, to take third. Lincoln was fifth with 111 points and Tecumseh sixth with 83 points.

"This was the most exciting conference meet we've had," said Chelsea coach Dave Brinklow.

"The Dexter girls swam out of their heads on Saturday in the finals to catch Milan and we had some great performances to stay ahead of Pinckney. We also had some fantastic time drops Friday night that didn't make the finals."

The 200 medley relay team of Christie Lonskey, Nona Giebel, Angie Wilson, and Michelle Dymond had a season best time of 2:11.44 in the finals to place fifth. In the preliminaries, the team of Erin Armstrong, Beth Vogel, Stephanie Wesolowski, and Carrie Smith had a season-best time of 2:21.87.

Erin Hack placed fourth in the 50 freestyle with a time of :27.20. Angie Wilson had a personal-best of :29.25 in the preliminaries and placed 11th in the finals. Heather Pratt also had a personal-best of :39.03.

In diving, Christie Lonskey led Chelsea with 344.35 points to take third place. Jennifer Schulz placed 11th with 228.10 points. Alicia Vogel was 14th and Jill Holloway 19th.

Bowers was fourth in the 100 butterfly in 1:07.75. Stephanie Wesolowski had a personal best in the preliminaries of 1:14.33 and finished ninth in the finals. Wilson was 10th at 1:17.03. Giebel placed 14th in 1:24.76.

Hack placed sixth in the 100 freestyle in 1:00.45. Armstrong was 12th with a personal-best time of 1:05.98.

The 500 freestyle was a big event for the Bulldogs as four girls placed in the top 12. Schmunk was second in 5:40.53 and Baird was seventh with a personal best of 5:47.96. Wesolowski had a personal-best of 6:04.32 in the preliminaries and placed eighth in the finals. Dymond's personal-best of 6:12.11 placed ninth. Smith dropped 15 seconds in the preliminaries to record the 14th fastest time of 6:36.37. Hinshaw also had a personal best of 6:47.89.

NONA GIEBEL took 14th place in the 100 butterfly and 12th place in the 100 breaststroke at the Southeastern Conference meet last Friday and Saturday at Cameron Pool. Chelsea placed third as a team.

The 200 freestyle relay team of Hack, Bowers, Baird, and Schmunk placed second in 1:48.31. Giebel, Hillary Smith, Hinshaw, and Pratt also combined for a season-best in the preliminaries of 2:16.62.

Four members of the Chelsea team will compete at the state meet Nov. 19-20 at Michigan State University. Schmunk will swim the 200 and 500 freestyle. Hack will swim in the 100 freestyle. Schmunk and Hack will team with Bowers and Baird to compete in the 200 and 400 freestyle relays.

43. On fourth and three, Steele ran yards to the left to the Marshall 34. After an incompletion, Gabe Be hard caught a pass to the 26. Steele ran on third down to the 23. On fourth down, a screen pass was dropped which turned the ball over with 11 left.

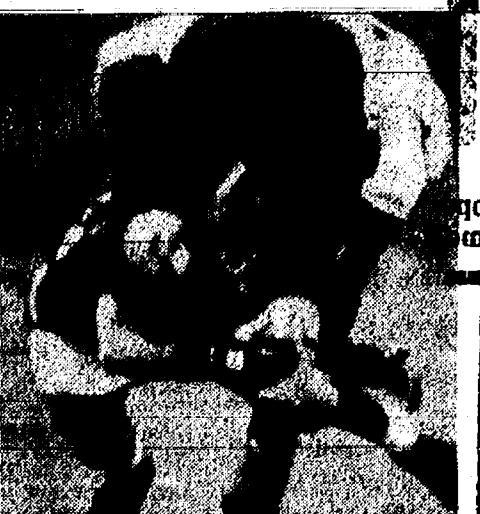

That still wasn't the end, however. Chelsea had no timeouts, yet Marshall quickly fumbled the ball on a play to the outside. Skelton picked the ball up and one tackler kept him from breaking a game-winning return.

The game ended with an interception, Chelsea's only turnover all afternoon.

"It's not so much that we played poorly," LaFave said.

"We didn't have a lot of turnover or penalties. But just about everything that could go wrong, did."

Chelsea finished the season with 9-1 record, their second consecutive Southeastern Conference championship and their second consecutive play-off appearance.

WORKING FOR AMERICA.

A pilot with the skill to land a jet on a rolling deck. A computer specialist who can fix a complex navigational system while hundreds of miles at sea. A cook who can prepare a delicious meal for 500 hungry sailors. These people aren't just good, they're the best. And it means more to them because they're doing it for their country. They're Navy people, working hard for America. And that makes us proud.

Geriatric Assessment Team Serves Hospital, Retirement Community

The University of Michigan Family Practice Center at Chelsea has recently welcomed Emily Meuleman, a geriatric nurse practitioner, to its staff.

Ms. Meuleman has over 15 years of nursing experience, with specialty training in the care of older adults. She received a Master's degree from the University of Michigan in community health nursing after graduating from Nazareth College School of Nursing. She then trained further in gerontological nursing which qualifies her to provide advanced clinical nursing care to older adults and their families. She has had experience in inpatient, ambulatory, and home care settings at both the University of Michigan Medical Center and the Catherine McAuley Health System. She worked as a nursing supervisor at Glacier Hills Nursing Center in Ann Arbor, and served as director of Health Care Services for the Hemophilia Foundation of Michigan. She is particularly interested in patient care co-ordination in both outpatient and long term care facilities, serving as an advocate for the patient. She also can teach lifestyle adaptation to chronic conditions benefiting both the patient and the family.

As a nurse practitioner she will work closely with Dr. James Peggs and Dr. John Severin at the Chelsea Retirement Community to enhance the quality and continuity of care, seeing residents there several times per week. Dr. Peggs and Dr. Severin, both of whom completed a visiting fellowship in Geriatric Medicine at East Carolina University, have received the Certificate of Added Qualifications in Geriatric Medicine from the American Board of Family Practice after successfully completing the requirements of the American Board of Family Practice and the American Board of Internal Medicine. Dr. Peggs also serves as the medical director of the Chelsea Retirement Community.

Ms. Meuleman will join the Geriatric Assessment Unit (GAU) at the Family Practice Center. The Geriatric Assessment Unit is a team of health care providers which includes a physician, social worker, pharmacist, nutritionist, and nurse practitioner who work to assess the health status of elderly patients and to help treat current and prevent future problems. Any elderly patient who has three or more chronic diseases, is on multiple medications, has a history of falls, has difficulties with self-care, has declining mental function, has evidence of inadequate nutrition, or has suspected neglect or abuse could benefit from this comprehensive team approach. Appointments may be arranged by calling Diane at 475-1321.

Ms. Meuleman will also have appointments at the Family Practice Center every day of the week. She is available to provide acute and preventive health care, physicals, and chronic disease management for adult patients. Call the University of Michigan Family Practice Center at 475-1321 for appointments.

Michigan Business Leaders Lobby for NAFTA Approval

The president of the state's largest farm organization led a delegation of Michigan business groups to the nation's capitol Nov. 3 to urge Michigan congressmen to vote in favor of the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA).

Jack Laurie, president of the Michigan Farm Bureau, was accompanied by Jim Barrett, president of the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce; John Thodis, president of the Michigan Manufacturers Association; Larry Meyer, vice-president of the Michigan Retailers Association; and Al Almy, director of public affairs for Michigan Farm Bureau.

Laurie downplayed U.S. fears of losing jobs to "cheap" Mexican labor. "Wages may be low in Mexico, but so is productivity," he said. "By and large, American workers are more productive and more valuable to an employer. In addition, Mexico does not enjoy the natural resources that give us competitive advantages in many industries. U.S. business also has a big edge in transportation and technology."

He said NAFTA opponents ignore the risks of failing to approve the agreement. "Rejecting NAFTA will create enormous problems for our nation and for Mexico—as well as for U.S. farmers. If we turn our backs on NAFTA, we could lose billions in additional farm exports. If that happens, it won't be long before Michigan farmers will be disgustedly asking why such a large market was sacrificed to European or South American farmers," said Laurie.

Beach, High School Bands Perform Annual Fall Concert in CHS Gym

Beach Middle school and high school bands presented their fall concert on Monday, Nov. 1.

The fall concert is traditionally a highlight of the concert season.

The middle school band opened the program with a spirited rendition of Chesapeake March, directed by Warren Mayer. A festive selection, "Tamborine Mountain Overture" came to life under assistant director Amy Boerma.

The eighth grade band followed, playing the music of Von Suppe's Poet and Peasant Overture. Mayer closed the middle school portion with "Dixieland Spectacular" featuring soloists Nathan Cooper on trumpet; Matt Kennedy on clarinet; Corinna Nilson on tenor saxophone; Corinna Nilson on trombone; and Mike McPike on tuba.

Then came the thrilling moment everyone waits for. Justin Huschke, the Bulldog Marching Band Drum Major, and assistant Sarah Schick, entered the gym with the percussion section.

A crisp "band attention" was called off and the band came marching into the gym and began a recap of the best of this year's half-time programs. Music from Disney included "Friend Like Me," "Under The Sea," and "Beauty and The Beast" were performed for the standing-room-only crowd. "Birdland," featuring trumpet soloist Mark Carlson, was a favorite all year, just as it was at the concert. Twirlers Kori White and Amie Hatch again showed their prowess with the batons. The award-winning Chelsea Color Guard also performed their complex routines as captains Sarah Norton and Michelle Mast had the guard in top form.

The concert also included a Nathan Gillikin's vocal solo on "I Could Have Danced All Night."

The concert concluded with the combined high school and middle school bands, 360-plus members performing the music from their half-time show.

The appreciative crowd gave a standing ovation to the bands as they marched out of the gym.

Chelsea Hospital Salutes Operating Room Nurses Staff

Nov. 14 through Nov. 20 is Operating Room Nurses Week!

Operating Room Nursing is a unique specialty that requires extensive education beyond what is taught in Nursing School. O.R. nurses are constantly faced with new challenges and responsibilities as technology and health care change rapidly. They must be knowledgeable in operating technical equipment as well as caring for patients.

Chelsea Community Hospital's O.R. nurses are very unique in that they care for patients in all areas of the Surgery Department. They admit the patient before surgery, complete a preoperative assessment, provide information to the patient, give emotional support, and complete tasks necessary for safe and efficient transfer to the operating room.

These same nurses may care for the patient in the operating room, utilizing a wide range of knowledge and skills based on individual patient needs and the type of surgery being performed.

In the operating room the nurses assist the surgeon and anesthesiologist and perform direct patient care. They are responsible for all equipment and instrumentation that will be used during surgery. These nurses take care of patients after surgery as well, in the Post Anesthesia Care Unit.

To function in this area, they must possess keen assessment skills. They are also responsible for providing discharge teaching to patients.

Very few hospitals have nurses who function so effectively in such a wide range of roles.

A catered luncheon will be held in their honor on Thursday, Nov. 18.

EDUCATION RESEARCH

Prepared by the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP), Reston, Va.

★ Computers Are Crucial To Classrooms . . .

No need to "download" this information: computers are in every sector of the community, business, and government. Hands-on computer experience is essential to providing our youth with world-class skills and preparing them for the future. In addition, many educators agree computers are important to the learning process because they enhance the way students think and learn, and the way teachers teach.

"Computers increase student and teacher motivation while providing extensive opportunities for peer instruction," believes Dr. John A. Lamm, director of high school services, National Association of Secondary School Principals. "As their skills develop, both students and teachers become more productive and more resourceful."

Apple Computer's Education Policy Representative Jackie Robinson concurred.

"Computers change the way students work in schools, the way students learn and the way teachers teach," he said. "We're no longer in the age where a blackboard and chalk will serve the needs of today's students."

One of the major roadblocks in having quality computer instruction in schools is a lack of adequate staff training.

"Educators must consider staff development needs in order to ensure that students have the most effective instruction and exposure," Lamm advised. "If staff are adequately trained, they become productive and work to enhance and upgrade their skills."

"Competent and confident teachers provide more effective instruction and more support to students."

With proper instruction, some students have been able to utilize computers very effectively. Robinson cited that the National Weather Service had to change its forecast when Harlem, N.Y. students more accurately predicted, through the use of computers, when and where Hurricane Hugo would strike.

To make sure the next generation has ample opportunities for computer exposure, here are low-cost considerations for educators, parents, students, and communities:

- Access or support the hiring of a "traveling computer teacher" in your schools.

- Be sure computers are easily accessible to students, i.e. they are not only located in the school office or audiovisual room to be checked out by teachers.

- Be sure all kids, not only "smart" labeled kids, have access.

- Make the computer an integral part of the classroom rather than only for special occasions. Scripts, poems, and reports can be written using word processors. The school newspaper can be desk-top published.

- Have schools, businesses, community centers, and parents display student computer projects.

- If your school does not have enough computers to accommodate all students, ask parents, businesses, community members, and libraries if they can help provide access to computers and instruction.

The Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) requires employers to pay at least one and one-half times regular rates of pay to all covered and non-exempt employees for all hours worked in excess of 40 in the workweek. The FLSA is enforced by the U.S. Department of Labor.

United Way Nears Goal of $104,275

Chelsea United Way Campaign has reached 70 percent of its goal, according to campaign chair John Rutherford.

Rutherford said the final push to reach the goal of $104,275 will be made over the next two weeks.

"We're right where we should be but we still need many individuals and businesses to step forward with their gifts," Rutherford said.

The all-volunteer board, including Rutherford and president Joe Piasecki, are actively soliciting contributions that will be distributed in the Chelsea area.

"The agencies we support really need our financial support," Piasecki said.

"We hope many more people will find a way to give generously."

Letters to the Editor

Veteran's Day, 1993

On this Veteran's Day let us honor the U.S. peacekeeping troops who have an impossible job—a mission with no clear way to win and numerous ways to lose.

Peacekeeping is a misleading word. Trying to keep the peace between two parties that would rather fight is as dangerous as combat. I think we underestimate the danger involved.

We should honor these troops as we do those in combat. We honor all veterans today for their service to our nation and pay special tribute to them by remembering to remember.

We must remember so the world will not forget.

To The Editor,

I feel compelled to answer Dave J. Hammel's letter. Whether we choose to go to church Saturday evening or Sunday morning is our God given right. If we choose to stay home is our business also.

Sunday is a family day for everyone. It is the only time many get to sit down as a family for breakfast or dinner.

Our children are so involved in sports, band or working part-time, meals are a disaster. Mom and Dad both work in many families. Sunday is their day. We don't need to be answering door bells for Halloween.

Saturday was a nasty night, but parents went with their children "trick or treating." Don't take that away from them. I had approximately 300 "trick or treaters" and loved everyone of them, big or small—St. Louis boys and lots of Dexter and Grass Lake children, all I asked was a "thank you" for their treat.

I am a senior citizen with four children, 12 grandchildren and one precious great-granddaughter. I have been a widow for 25 years. I love everyone's children and enjoy seeing them in costumes. I took lots of pictures and gave away lots of candy. I enjoyed everyone of them.

Thank you to our fine policemen for taking care of our precious children. Our firemen also, and the Kiwanis club, especially Dianna Walsh and Bill Rademacher. It was a cold, snowy night even though they were there. God bless all of them.

Our children are our most precious possessions, treat them with tender loving care. In my mind Chelsea has no bad children—a few bad parents.

A big thank you to our school teachers for taking care of them. I pay my taxes with gratitude because I have grandchildren in our fine schools, and their tender care. I also live on Social Security. To each and everyone of you a big "thank you" for a job well done.

Sorensen subdivision resident.

To The Editor,

In regards to your article on the Chelsea Industries workers struggle to be recognized by the company, I feel that this issue is extremely important to the community of Chelsea. In a time when fairness and justice is, and should be, a way of life. We seem to still have a 40's mentality at some of these area companies. I know from my personal experiences in dealing with businesses in this area, that this is not the majority opinion among the business people of our community. I have been doing business in this area for over 20 years and know this to be true.

With this being a personal opinion of just what I have read about the issues facing CII and its employees, perhaps I can offer a better understanding of what the National Labor Relations Board is about. The NLRB was established to help resolve and speed up the process of labor and management disputes to avoid lengthy and expensive court litigations. This board consists of neutral parties who are experts in labor law and understand that both sides of the story need to be studied and heard before and NLRB ruling is handed down. Both sides present their arguments of how in this case the election was held, how the people who requested a vote conducted themselves, and, above, all, how no evidence of coercion had occurred. It's the law.

I feel that this community owes it to itself to insure that the laws of the land are respected and the management from CII treat its people with respect. In closing, I feel that Chelsea Industries should deal with its workers in good faith, since they seem to be the only ones not abiding by the law.

Respectfully,
Stephen D. Barker

To The Editor,

There is a problem in town. A problem that has been growing for three years now. Chelsea Industries employees have been struggling to gain a fair working agreement; every day. We have been struggling with a problem of power, a problem of greed. The company has hired the finest union-busting attorney money can buy. They have also recently placed a hand-chosen president at the wheel of our ship.

The employees want and deserve a fair working agreement. It is not much to ask in return for the many years of hard work and effort put forth to build CII into an industry leader in formed wire products. This town doesn't need these kinds of problems.

Contact the following people and let them know how you feel—Jim "Doc" Botsford, Jack Dunn, Dal Dunbar, John Mayne.

Gelman Sciences

Recycling Idea

Is for the Birds!

Gelman Sciences has found an innovative, new way to recycle their product packaging. One of the company's largest selling products, Acrodisc syringe filters, used in laboratory research and medical healthcare applications, is packaged in plastic cylinders.

To help to recycle these plastic containers, Gelman Sciences now offers their customers a free bird feeder conversion kit, made entirely from recycled materials. The kit includes easy-to-follow instructions printed on recycled paper, discarded wooden dowels for use as perches, and recycled wire coat hangers, collected door-to-door, and reshaped for use as feeder hangers.

The idea for this project came from Corporate Communications vice-president, Bob Buker, who explains, "Our company has been active in recycling for a number of years. We've had a waste paper recycling program since 1987. The bird feeder project is just an extension of our ongoing conservancy program." Gelman Sciences sells literally tens of thousands of the product containers to customers around the world each year.

The bird feeder conversion kits were prepared by young people as a summer project. Gelman Sciences customers can write, or call the company toll-free, to request a bird feeder conversion kit. Assembling the feeder takes only a few minutes and requires only a hand drill or razor knife to cut the holes.

History Magazine Features Story on Michigan Railroads

Some of the state's leading railroad historians have joined Secretary of State Richard A. Austin to release a publication that examines the past and present of Michigan railroading.

Unveiled at the historic Durand Union Station in Durand, "Steel, Steam & Smoke: Michigan's Railroad Heritage" is a special 72-page issue of Michigan History Magazine, the popular bimonthly published by the Michigan Department of State's Bureau of Michigan History.

Together with bureau director Sandra Clark and Durand Union Station, Inc. project director Robert Lowney, Secretary Austin praised "Steel, Steam & Smoke" for its depth in exploring the state's railroad heritage.

"In this issue we see the influence and legacy of more than 150 years of tracks and trains in Michigan," said Secretary Austin, Michigan's official historian. "Every page hums with the excitement and energy long associated with the railroad."

"Steel, Steam & Smoke" spotlights logging railroads, great train wrecks, the now-defunct interurban electric rail system, Lake Michigan railcar ferries, depot architecture, modern railroad recreation opportunities, and the St. Clair and Detroit river railroad tunnels.

Also featured are more than 100 historic and contemporary photographs and interviews with Richard Kughn, president of Lionel Trains, Inc., and circus historian Tom Parkinson.

Michigan History Magazine editor Dr. Roger Rosentreter did not believe the magazine could top its 1992 special maritime issue.

"In nearly 80 years of publication, this is one of the most colorful, exciting issues produced by Michigan History Magazine," said Rosentreter. "The articles are as far-reaching as the building of the Michigan Central Railroad and as personal as the nam-

Recycling Authority Plans New Building

Western Washtenaw Recycling Authority is working on plans to expand its building at the Chelsea Solid Waste Facility.

The authority is also planning to purchase stronger glass bins.

According to WWRRA vice-chair Frank Hammer, the authority is collecting more materials that it projected. In addition, the authority wants to expand its collections to include magazines, office paper, and number one plastics. Storage space is the primary problem.

The addition would be attached to the current building.

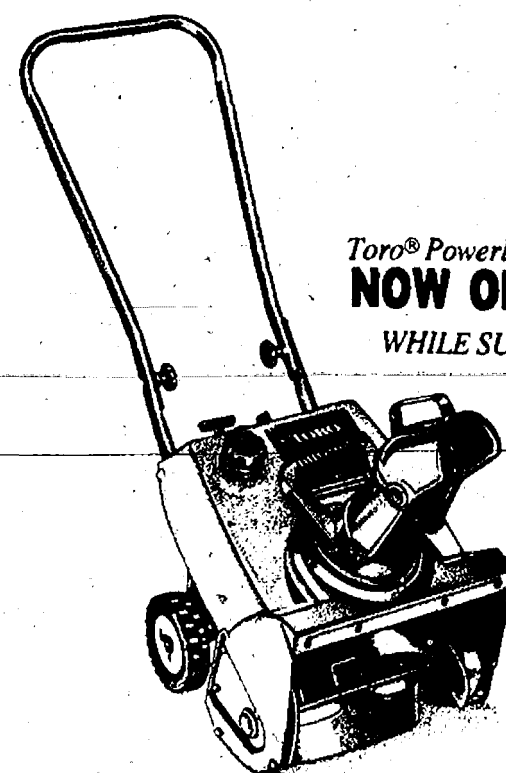

"Everyone's in agreement that we've got to do this," Hammer said.

Price estimates for the building have not been determined, nor has the method of paying for it. One financial source is the tipping fees the member villages and townships receive from Browning-Ferris Industries for trash the company accepts from outside Washtenaw county. That money is supposed to be used for recycling projects.

Construction would probably start in the spring.
