AUTOMATED DURABILITY ROAD at Chrysler Proving Grounds will have a cobblestone surface similar to the one above. Prototype vehicles will be driven about 2,000 miles on the track, which should simulate approximately 100,000 miles of authentic driving in terms of wear to the body and chassis.

CHRYSLER PROVING GROUNDS director Susan Cischke and automated durability road project director Rick LaLone stand on a portion of the track still in the beginning phases of construction. The 1.3 mile road will be the first test track of its kind in the country.

Proving Grounds Begins Construction of New Automated Test Track

Chelsea's Chrysler Proving Grounds has begun construction of a $9 million automated test track that will be the first of its kind in the country.

The track, which the company calls an "automated durability road" (ADR), is designed to cut nearly five weeks off the time it takes to test the durability of a prototype vehicle's body and chassis as the company works toward its goal of a two-year, design-to-market time for a new vehicle.

"It's an outrageously exciting project," said project manager Rick LaLone.

"Everyone connected to it is excited. We've been working on this as a team for four years."

The track will resemble other test tracks in that it will be oval in shape and 1.3 miles. But that's where the similarities end.

The track will be constructed of granite blocks, called Belgian blocks (which resemble large, brick-shaped cobblestones), imbedded in concrete. The blocks will vary in height, designed to create particular kinds of vibrations and movements in the test vehicles driven at about 25 miles per hour.

Driven, however, is not the right word in the usual sense because the vehicles will be driverless.

At the heart of the test track will be a coaxial cable imbedded in a strip of concrete between the two rows of Belgian blocks, which will allow an on-board computer to communicate with a main computer about the varying conditions of the vehicle. Each vehicle will have antennas that will keep it on course and a radar system that will keep the car from, for example, plowing into a deer on the track. A drop-in robotics unit, which will attach to the seat railings once the seats are removed, will perform the shifting, braking, accelerating, and steering.

And the track will have a fiber optics communications network that will provide a wealth of information.

With the system, the track operator will be able to follow the precise positions of up to 20 vehicles, and control any of them using a joystick. If one vehicle breaks down, the other vehicles will be able to "sense" it and stop or take some other evasive action.

The system is being built, from scratch, borrowing from many different technological areas, such as air traffic controlling. Nozzles on hoses to cool a vehicle's shock absorber system will be the same as those on hoses used to wash off the bottoms of trucks at toxic waste disposal sites. The track, itself, will account for about a third of the cost, with the rest going to the technology, said proving grounds director Susan Cischke.

"We feel like we're in Star Wars," Cischke said.

"It's one of the most exciting things we've ever worked on, from a technical standpoint."

Proving grounds has teamed up with a small, Manchester, N.H. software company, Cyplex, to create the system. The company, Cischke said, has responded to every challenge.

"I'm really impressed by them," Cischke said.

"They have had to learn a lot about vehicle dynamics. Plus, we've put a lot of requirements on the system."

One of those requirements is that the guidance system be installed in each vehicle within four hours. Mitsubishi, one of the few companies that has automated testing (although not on the scale proposed here, and not in this country) has a system that takes 40 hours to install.

"We don't want to have something that will take two weeks to install the instrumentation when the tests only take eight days," Cischke said.

The idea is to cut the testing period from six weeks to eight days, simulate 100,000 miles of driving by running each car about 2,000 miles, provide a more real-conditions test, and save some money. Much of this kind of testing is done with road simulators, which are platforms that shake the vehicles using simulated road conditions.

Each road simulator costs about $4,000,000 and can only test one car at a time, Cischke said. The proving grounds system will be able to test up to 20 at a time, but generally won't test more than five or six at once.

The company, which numerous test tracks and roads on its 3,800 acres, now uses a track called an accelerated durability road. Cischke said there was talk of building the new track at their proving grounds in Arizona. However, since the technology is so new, the decision was made to stay closer to its engineering center.

Automation of the track accomplishes a couple of goals. First, it makes the tests repeatable by being able to control the speed and precise location of each vehicle. A human driver would be much more likely to vary speeds and position of the vehicle. Cischke said engineers should get more reliable information, which is useful in computer simulations.

"It takes out the subjective part," Cischke said.

In addition, test drivers won't get so beaten up. The course will be rough. The track is scheduled to be in full operation by the summer of 1995.

School District Faces Larger Budget Deficit Than Expected Earlier

Chelsea School District is likely to face a budget deficit of about $250,000 after the first of the year, assistant superintendent Fred Mills told the board of education Monday night.

The district just received a copy of the recently passed school aid bill because it wasn't available earlier.

Mills said the district was either "misled or we misunderstood" about the provisions of the bill through conversations with the department of education and others who were following the legislation. The district already cut $420,000 from the budget this fall, but apparently it won't be enough.

The discrepancy lies in how much the state is requiring districts to pay in social security costs. Mills said the upshot is the state can't recapture enough in categorical state aid for out-of-school districts, so it is making up the difference in social security.

"The $250,000 looks pretty solid, unless they change their interpretation," Mills said.

"Even if we're right, it's not likely to change because we're in the minority of districts in the state," he said, referring to out-of-formula districts.

Superintendent Joe Piasecki said recently that the district has few alternatives for dealing with further deficits. Lay-offs or program cuts are likely, especially this late in the school year.

"We're having an administrative meeting today and we'll start talking about it," Mills said Tuesday.

"It'll be a new challenge for the new year."

In other business Monday, the board approved recommendations from the Technology in Planning Committee about how to spend this year's $75,000 allotted for technology improvements. The committee received 14 proposals from teachers.

Chelsea High school will get an additional computer lab, using $30,000 in matching funds from Adult Education. The current lab would be used by other non-computer classes such as business, English, science, and math.

At Beach Middle school, several computers and CD-ROMs will be placed in the media center as a network. They will be used for desktop publishing and access to periodical sources.

North school will get five computers, one for each grade 1-5, and one computer with a CD-ROM in the media center.

South school will get several networked computers with CD-ROMs for the media center, as well as one computer with a large monitor that can be moved throughout the school.

Specifications for the equipment will be finalized in January.

The committee decided that new technology should be in each building, the technology should make an impact in the community, and the technology should address the needs expressed in the proposals.

The board also approved formation of an Athletic Task Force.

The committee will include members of the community, the athletic director, recreation director, a business person, and two students, among others. It will study funding, facilities, and the over-all program. It has not set a deadline for creating a final report.

It's likely there will be the opportunity for community comments in a public forum.

In other business, a one-year leave of absence was approved for math teacher Vince Brumfiel for 1994-95. A trip to Chicago for music students April 6-9 was also approved.

Jury Finds Mark Foeller Not Guilty on Charges Of Sexual Molestation

After a month-long trial and three days of jury deliberations, plus nearly a year of incarceration for the defendant, North Sharon Baptist church deacon Mark Foeller was found not guilty last Friday in Jackson county circuit court on 11 counts of child sexual abuse.

Foeller, 37, of Grass Lake township, had been charged with molesting three boys at the church and at a Jackson county campground. All three boys attended the church's Sunday school.

Parents and relatives of the alleged victims reacted with outrage, saying the verdict will take a big toll on the kids, while Foeller, and his wife, Shelley, as well as numerous church members, expressed their relief that the more than year-long ordeal might finally be over.

The intense trial, which contained numerous twists and turns, began Nov. 8, a year after the charges were announced in a press conference at the Chelsea Depot. At that time, investigators painted a grisly picture, hinting of co-ordinated actions by Foeller and assistant pastor Timothy Leonard on church buses. They said a third suspect would probably be charged, but he or she never was. Foeller was jailed without bond for much of that time.

On Thursday, jurors visited both the church and the campgrounds at Wolf Lake to see first-hand how the descriptions of the scenes of the alleged crimes matched the actual sites. Some jurors admitted that the visits made the difference. One said the bathroom at the church, where at least one of the rapes allegedly occurred, was too small for what allegedly transpired. Jurors also saw the relationship of the Sunday school to the bathroom.

Church Pastor William Winger also said he was happy with the verdict. He had testified that an investigator had ignored evidence.

Investigators produced little physical evidence during the trial. Testimony of the children was the central portion of the prosecution's case.

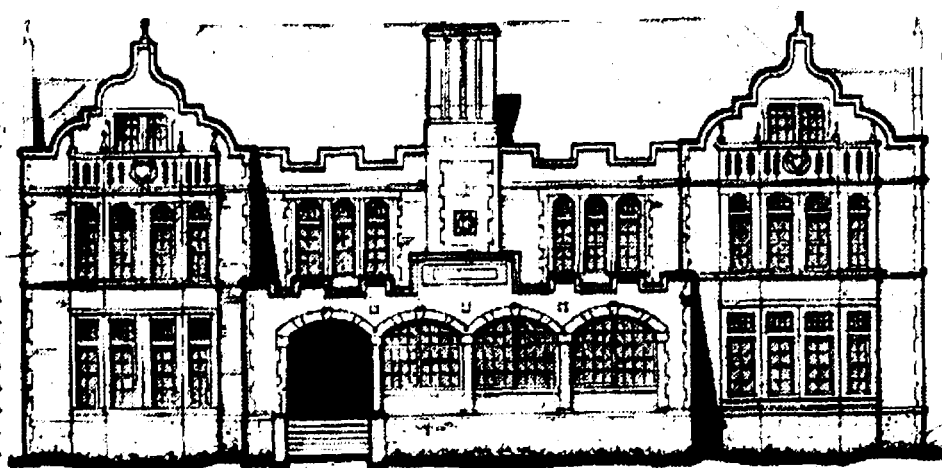

Washtenaw County Prosecutor Brian Mackie said that adults don't want to believe children who say they've been abused. He said he was extremely disappointed by the outcome.

Defense attorney Brian Thiede's case included trying to discredit the Village president Jerry Satterthwaite was accused publicly last week of acting improperly in his capacity as chairman of the Zoning Board of Appeals in a vote of the board in July of 1985. The accusation, made during the Tuesday, Dec. 5 village council meeting by W. Middle St. resident Lola Campbell, and supported by her sister-in-law, Betty Navin, concerned a variance that was granted that allowed the construction of an eight-unit apartment complex at 682 W. Middle St. Campbell accused Satterthwaite, who at the time denied having any financial interest in the property, of supporting the voting for the variance even though he owned the property in question.

Village of Chelsea has decided to contest the bonding stipulation attached to the new landfill operating license by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. Last Tuesday, Dec. 5 village council voted to authorize attorneys to file for an administrative hearing on the matter. Council also voted not to begin filling the new cell until the last hearing is held. According to village manager Robert Stalker, a hearing could be held within six weeks or so.

Test scores of Chelsea High school juniors on this year's California Achievement Test were virtually unchanged from last year's scores. Scores indicate Chelsea's 136 students as a group are achieving at levels higher than their grade level in every subject tested, including reading,

★ The Hazards of Cigarette Taxes Recognized

By Lawrence W. Reed

Whenever government seeks new revenues, so-called "sin taxes" are among the first proposals to be floated. The reason is simple: these taxes are really about getting the most feathers for the least squawk.

The people who are to be taxed are easy targets. They engage in activities which are deemed immoral or unhealthy. They usually are less well-organized than those who might benefit from the spending fueled by the new taxes. They are often outnumbered by the people who do not engage in the same activities and, hence, will not be directly harmed by the taxes.

Let's take cigarette smoking as an example. It's an especially timely one because higher taxes on cigarettes are favored by the Clinton administration. Here in Michigan, Governor Engler proposes to raise the 25-cent per pack state tax to 75-cents as part of his education finance package unveiled last month.

A tax on cigarettes is clearly a case where the majority can tax an identifiable minority, since at least two-thirds of Americans do not smoke. Non-smokers know that they'll pay more if either the income or sales tax goes up, but that they'll pay exactly nothing if the cigarette tax is doubled or tripled. The massive campaign against cigarette smoking—a good deal of it government-funded—has left millions of Americans with the feeling that such behavior ought to be punished. Even some smokers themselves might favor higher cigarette taxes if they think they need government's help to kick the habit.

So what possible arguments could anyone advance against higher taxes on something that so many people find objectionable? Here are several to consider:

• Cigarette taxes are regressive. Families in the bottom 20 percent of income earners spend 4 percent of their after-tax income on tobacco, compared to 1/2 of 1 percent by families in the top 20 percent bracket. The late Professor Harvey Brazier of the University of Michigan put it this way: "From the standpoint of equity, few existing taxes can be held to be more reprehensible than the cigarette tax . . . Tax-bearing cigarette smokers typically do not smoke less when rates go up; they and their families consume less of other things."

• As a group, smokers pay the full costs of their habit. Researchers reported in the March 1989 Journal of the American Medical Association that the costs smokers "impose" on society (from higher insurance and other health-related expenses to covered sick leave for workdays lost by smokers to property lost from fires associated with smoking) are "considerably lower than the average combined federal and state tax" on cigarettes. The Congressional Budget Office concluded in June 1990 that "the external costs of smoking are already covered by existing taxes."

• Vices are not crimes. Government exists to protect each individual's life, liberty and property from attack by other individuals. It does not exist to protect each person from himself. Once a majority is conceded the right to impose its way of life upon a minority—no matter how "good" the intentions—there is no logical argument to prevent the majority from regulating and restricting down to the smallest detail. Perhaps that's a principle Henry David Thoreau had in mind when he wrote, "If I knew for certain that a man was coming to my house to do me good, I would run for my life."

To those who believe that state government already taxes and spends too much, raising the cigarette tax on top of existing taxes would be especially unpalatable. Because the proposed tripling of Michigan's cigarette tax is meant to partially offset the recent huge property tax cut, it might be easier to swallow but the above concerns are just as valid.

In any event, sin taxes are not a good substitute for education and persuasion. You don't make a person "religious" by forcing him to church at gunpoint. Talk him into going voluntarily, however, and you may have a convert for life.

Higher cigarette taxes, in terms of both our liberties and our pocketbooks, may be hazardous to our health. Whatever the outcome of the Governor's cigarette tax proposal, legislators ought to consider that there are, indeed, two sides to the issue.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The fellows done some homework after last week's discussion of news technology and how to many regular folks are being priced out of the market. They still had the communication revolution on their minds at the country store Saturday night.

Basic, Clem Webster said, after thinking the situation up one side and down the other he sees clear that balance is the nature of services in this country. The only choice supply has got when it gets ahead of demand is to slow down for demand to catch up, and that holds for news as much as milk because both have short shelf lives. Furthermore, Clem went on, so many death notices have been wrote about the printed word there's no call to be alarmed over another one. For every new wrinkle in computer hardware and software there's got to be print ads to sell it and books on how to run it, was Clem's words: No matter how far we go down this road there'll allus be a way to put the feed where the hole herd can get to it.

Right now, the cost of readers getting in their two cents worth is still a bargain at 29 cent, Clem said, and they can save the stamp by going to the paper, looking the editor square in the eye and handing it to him. Few ever will be able to make their case with 30 minute infomercials, Clem said, and not all ever will fax their opinions over the computer internet, but rest assured all will find a way to be heard.

For onct, the fellows were full agreed. Besides, Zeke Grubb said, his concern allus has been more of being understood than of being heard. For instant, he went to town for supper with the deacons of a church that has just been started, and he stopped at a service station to ask the way. A nice dressed woman was pumping gas, and Zeke ask her if she lived there. She acted insulted and said "certainly not." Zeke told her he didn't mean no harm, he just needed directions to the Covenant Church. "Oh," the woman said, "I live near the church, I thought you ask if I live in the service station."

For being understood, Bug Hookum allowed, you'd be hard pressed to top the woman in Florida that wanted to watch the TV news. Bug read where she switched from the football game to the news when her husband went to the bathroom. When he came back he turned back to the game, and she shot him twice. She told police she was sick of all the violence in football.

Practical speaking, Bug went on, there's a place for every taste, and not everybody cottons to computers. Bug saw where a couple met, courted and got married on their computer network, and their wedding guests were linked up on their modems all over the country. Contrary, he went on, the Postal Service learned quick that the time is not yet for computer Postal Buddies. It had plans for 10,000 automatic clerks, but after trying out 200 in two cities they give up.

As for taste, Bug had clips where Disney is planning a Civil War theme park and Germany is setting up one built around life with the Berlin Wall. The way these make believe places go, Bug said, you got to wonder what folks will pay to see and do. Disney says the park next to a battlefield in Virginia will show America at that time and place, which ain't a happy thought.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

Lima Extension Members View Christmas Items

The old expression, "From Soup to Nuts," most appropriately covers the great variety of products presented to Lima Extension members Nov. 18 by Dayspring Gifts owners Laurie Gravelyn. With great enthusiasm and excitement, she presented jewelry, games, toys, Santas of varied prices, scrapbooks, pens, gifts for Christmas and many other occasions. As a treat, candy was passed to sample as the ladies oohed and aahed over the variety of items and prices. Four members who had just returned from an Extension convention in Frankenmuth felt like they were back in Zender's Gift Shop. It was a treat to have Dayspring brought to us at Lima Town Hall.

A varied buffet luncheon was enjoyed by members and three guests on festive November decorated tables. Hosts this day were Barb Edict and Adaline Stone.

President Barb Wing called the November business meeting to order and asked for a brief moment of silence and prayer for the loss of our somewhat new but very special member, Trudi Estes. After the general business the four members who had represented our county at the state convention in Frankenmuth talked of the tours, talks, and fun classes they attended. Janet McCalla was especially inspired by Mr. Bronner and how his advice so well applies to Extension today. One quote from him was that we have two ends to do with—head or seat! Heads you win; tails you lose! He also spoke of the 5 F's to work with—Invites, Inform, Impressions, Impels, and Inspires.

The hike in yearly dues was discussed in length. We also have a good, young, county home ec. agent trying to give us a good program plus work out the dues problem. Some members feel that we pay the dues and follow Mr. Bronner's parting words—Go, Teach, Love, Share!

Christmas Luncheon is Dec. 15 at Janet McCalla's, 11:30 a.m. Just bring a $3 to $4 gift for exchange and canned goods for the Battered Womens Home in Ann Arbor, soups, stew, spaghetti, macaroni and cheese, Spam, etc.

The future bridegroom graduated from Whitmore Lake High school. He is currently attending Washtenaw Community College and pursuing a degree in culinary arts. A July wedding is planned.

Choral Groups Plan Madrigal Dinner As Fund-Raiser

Amid the cries "Wassail, Wassail," the public is invited to celebrate the season again this year by attending the second annual Chelsea High School Madrigal Dinner. The date for the festivities is Thursday, Dec. 16 at 7 p.m. at the Beach Middle School Cafeteria.

Plans are in full swing to recreate all the pomp and charm of Renaissance England. The Concert Choir and Mixed Chorus are putting the final touches on the music and script after the three months of preparations, according to vocal music director, Steven P. Hinz. Beggars, the court jester and servants, and roving performers will traditionally mingle with the guests offering their Yuletide greeting in word and song.

The menu will include vegetables and dip, Wassail, beef Bouillion Brunoise, orange-glazed Cornish hen, Parisienne potatoes, baby carrots, and dessert selections.

The event is designed as a fund-raiser and a portion of the ticket price will go towards the purchase of new Concert Robes for the Choirs.

"A CHRISTMAS CAROL," Charles Dickens' classic tale, will be performed Dec. 16-18 at the Michigan Theatre in Ann Arbor. It will be the first joint effort of the Michigan Theatre Foundation and the Purple Rose Theatre Co. of Chelsea. Shaking hands are Russell B. Collins, left, executive director of the Michigan Theatre, and T. Newell Kring, director of "A Christmas Carol."

Live Production of 'A Christmas Carol' Slated at Michigan Theatre

A live production of Charles Dickens' immortal classic, A Christmas Carol, opens Thursday, Dec. 16 and runs through Saturday, Dec. 18, at the Michigan Theatre in Ann Arbor. Show times are 8 p.m. on Thursday, Dec. 16, Friday, Dec. 17, and Saturday, Dec. 18. There is also a special matinee at 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 18. This production of A Christmas Carol marks the 150th anniversary of the Dickens tale.

The production is the first ever collaboration between the Michigan Theatre Foundation and the Purple Rose Theatre Company in Chelsea, both prominent arts organizations in southeastern Michigan.

The Purple Rose Theatre Company, who's executive director and founder is actor Jeff Daniels, is responsible for casting, directing and production, while the Michigan Theatre will cover publicity, ticket sales, finances, and host the show in its beautifully restored theater downtown Ann Arbor. Both theaters are non-profit organizations.

In addition to forging a professional relationship between the two theater organizations, this production is intended to create a new family theater tradition, much like performances of the Nutcracker and The Messiah have become for dance and music audiences in the area.

The Mission of the Purple Rose Theatre Company is to provide this region with its own resident professional theater and to seek out and encourage those plays and playwrights which speak to the distinct sensibilities of Mid-American audiences. It hosts live shows 42 weeks out of the year. Since it opened in 1991, more than 50,000 people have attended shows at the Purple Rose Theatre in Chelsea.

The Mission of the Michigan Theatre Foundation is to operate, maintain, and restore the historic Michigan Theatre for the Benefit of the Community and the arts. The Michigan Theatre presents three series of live events, and a repertory film program. It is also available for rental by community arts groups, social service organizations, and corporations. More than 180,000 people attend Michigan Theatre events each year.

T. Newell Kring, artistic director of the Purple Rose Theatre Company, is directing A Christmas Carol. Local Theater celebrities starring in the production include: Philip Kerr as Scrooge, Erik Fredricksen as Marley's ghost, Bev Pooley as the narrator, Leon Flagg as Fred, Scrooge's nephew, and Geoffrey Beauchamp as Bob Cratchit. The show will also feature Judy Dow Alexander, Jamie Dawson, Joe Diederich, Erin Dilly, Amy Frank, Martha Magee, Charles Tillinghast, Jeffrey Weiner and a chorus of enthusiastic children from the local area.

The event is sponsored by the Ann Arbor Area Community Foundation, Great Lakes Bancorp, Parke-Davis Pharmaceutical Research Division and The Pistons-Palace Foundation. Tickets are available by calling the Michigan Theatre ticket office at (313) 688-8397. Box Office hours are Monday through Friday 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturdays noon to 4 p.m.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

For nearly 14 years I served on the Board of the Chelsea Community Hospital. This was in the formative years, almost from its conception as a community hospital. Members of the Board gave unlimited hours toward the maintaining of a hospital to serve the community. As the chairman of the administrative inquiry committee, I recommended to the committee and to the Board that we should employ our own full-time Medical Director of Clinical Affairs and a Hospital Director. We had struggled for nearly four years with part-time contract services.

Our search found Will Johnson, from Albany, N.Y. One of his credentials was "aggressive creativity." Dr. van Reesema, a practicing physician, applied for the position of Director of Clinical Affairs. The Board supported, guided and (once in a while curtailed) the creative growth of the services provided.

The University of Michigan Family Practice program was recruited to provide additional primary care to that of the local practicing physicians. Dr. Peggs has been the director since that time. In addition to the primary care physicians, specialists have been recruited to provide services in Chelsea.

I have now had a personal reason to use these services. I have been a patient of Dr. Peggs for many years.

I have had several examinations and two major surgeries this past few months. I have been able to see my doctors in Chelsea, having only to go to U. of M. Hospitals and St. Joseph Mercy for one major surgery and consultation.

I am very grateful (and proud) that residents of the service area of the Chelsea Community Hospital have such ready and convenient access to the best medical and health care services in the country.

Arlene B. Howe.

"The gift without the giver is bare"

—James Russell Lowell.

At this time of the year we are all very conscious of gifts. It started with the gifts of the wise men to the Holy Child in the manger. Our gifts today are given in commemoration of that first Christmas.

It is sometimes said that some gifts are given reluctantly or even resentfully because a gift is expected, or in hope of currying favor with someone for whom no honest affection is felt. We prefer to believe that the true spirit of Christmas... It is more blessed to give than to receive... inspires all Christmas gifts!

Foeller Acquitted

tactics of Michigan State Police Det. Norman Maxwell. He said children were led into making false accusations against Foeller because of the heavy publicity surrounding the case. Initial charges against Foeller were all dropped. The charges on which Foeller was acquitted came after the initial flurry of media attention.

Thiede also called the original investigator, Jackson County Sheriff's Department Dep. Robert Fitzpatrick, to the stand to testify against Maxwell's tactics. Fitzpatrick, the primary investigator for the first three months, was later jailed for embezzling money from the Jackson County Deputies Association.

And Thiede called about 50 witnesses to the stand to testify how hard it would have been for Foeller to have committed the crimes.

Jurors claimed conflicts of information played a major part in the outcome. Some believed investigators and the prosecution blew the case.

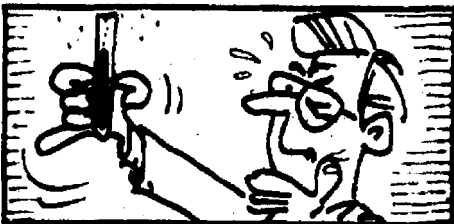

The church will continue to be in the spotlight. Leonard is scheduled to be tried early next year on one count of first-degree criminal sexual conduct for allegedly raping a nine-year-old girl. In addition, at least one parent of an alleged victim hinted that Foeller may be pursued in a civil lawsuit.

$ Money Management $

Prepared by the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants
★ Tax Benefits of Charitable Contributions

It's not too late to make a contribution to your favorite charity and qualify for a tax deduction on your 1993 tax return, points out the Michigan Association of CPAs. The amount and nature of your gift, as well as your income level and amount of itemized deductions determines the tax benefit of your generosity.

Qualified Organizations
Before making any charitable contributions, be sure the recipient meets IRS standards. Generally, organizations operated solely for charitable, religious, educational, literary or scientific purposes—such as non-profit hospitals, churches, synagogues and non-profit medical research organizations—fit the bill. Contributions made directly for the benefit of a particular individual are not deductible.

Gifts of Cash
You should be able to substantiate gifts of cash with receipts and canceled checks. In most cases, you can deduct the full amount of your cash contributions. However, contributions of cash and property (excluding appreciated property) to charitable organizations may not exceed 50 percent of your adjusted gross income (AGI). For certain types of charities, such as private non-operating foundations and fraternal organizations, the limit is 30 percent of AGI.

Your Deduction for a Gift of Property
Your deduction for a gift of property, such as used clothing and furniture, is limited to the fair market value of the property at the time of your contribution. This amount is generally far less than what you originally paid for the item.

When the value of the property you donate totals more than $500, you must file Form 8283, Non-cash Charitable Contributions. On this form you indicate what and when you contributed, to whom you contributed, and how you acquired the property. Your cost or adjusted basis and the method used to value property.

If you are donating a single item or group of items valued over $500 ($10,000 for non-publicly traded property), you must have an appraisal performed to determine the value of the property.

Gifts of appreciated property are generally limited to 30 percent of your AGI. However, if the gift would result in a long-term capital gain had it been sold, and the gift is to a private non-operating foundation or fraternal organization, the limit is 20 percent of AGI.

When you donate appreciated property, such as stocks and bonds, you can take a tax deduction for the full market value of the property at the time of the gift, provided you have held onto the property for more than one year. What's more, you needn't pay tax on the gain that has built up since you bought the securities.

For stock or other capital assets that you have held for less than a year, your deduction is limited to your cost.

Overall Limitation on Charitable Gifts
Charitable contributions are considered itemized deductions, which are subject to certain phase-out rules. For 1993, itemized deductions must be reduced by 1 percent of the amount by which your AGI exceeds $108,500 ($54,250 for married individuals filing separately). In no event, however, can your itemized deductions, excluding medical expenses, investment interest expenses, casualty and theft deductions, and gambling losses, be reduced by more than 80 percent.

Post-1993 Contributions
Be aware that the new tax law left most of the rules affecting charitable contributions intact, so you will not face greater limitations on tax-deductible contributions. However, the Michigan Association of CPAs points out that the new law has more stringent requirements for substantiating donations. For example, beginning next year, taxpayers may not rely solely on a canceled check to substantiate charitable donations of $250 or more. Instead, you will need a receipt or other written substantiation from the respective charity each time you make a contribution of this amount or more. Keep this in mind when planning your charitable contributions.

CIVIL WAR RE-CREATOR Dennis Petesch of Chelsea played the part of a Civil War soldier returning home for the holidays during the opening of Friday's Festival of Lights at Pierce Park.

DR. C. C. LANE 1880 - 1943

The Festival of Lights "Memory Trees" which the village is using to honor business people and industrialists of Chelsea has set up a "Memory Tree" for Dr. C. C. Lane.

The 1993 calendar is an exact duplicate of the calendar of 1943, fifty years ago. It was on that snowy Sunday, December 12, 1943 that our father, Dr. Chandler C. Lane, Chelsea's only veterinarian, while returning from a farm call, was killed in an automobile accident near where I-94 and M-52 presently intersect.

Therefore, we would in this way, like to memorialize our father who tirelessly served the community of Chelsea as a veterinarian for over thirty years!

BEHIND THE HEADLINES:

Health Reforms Threaten Privacy Rights

President Clinton's health care reform proposal is raising eyebrows among privacy rights advocates. They say that provisions in his plan could seriously harm the right of Americans to keep sensitive medical information private.

By Philip C. Clarke
A booklet distributed by the Administration to promote the health reform plan boasts: "Every American citizen and legal resident will receive a Health Security card. Once you get your card, you will never lose your health coverage—no matter what." What Administration officials don't tell you is that the card also will entitle Uncle Sam to collect vast amounts of extremely sensitive information on everyone's medical status.

According to the Clinton plan, each time you visit the doctor, you must present your Health Security card. The information from the visit, along with the treatment given by the doctor, all are recorded in a federally-run electronic database. This feature alone has caused concern among a growing number of citizens who seek to protect the privacy rights of Americans from the prying eyes of big government. They note that the electronic database likely will leak. That is, many of the records stored there will be relatively easy to "access" by people who want to use sensitive information for their own purposes.

Some of this already goes on. One example, ironically, involved a Republican named Tommy Robinson who sought to run for governor of Arkansas against Bill Clinton. According to insiders, Robinson's medical records—which showed, incorrectly, a "diagnosis" of "alcohol" problems—were leaked by an insider to Robinson's opponents. Privacy experts fear that the Clinton plan will make matters far worse. Some warn that by centralizing a huge amount of sensitive medical information on every American in a national database, the chances for fraud and abuse will soar.

According to the Clinton plan, several federal agencies, along with officials at state and local governments, will have access to patients' medical records. This information, according to the bill, will be used to determine compliance with the law, to study health care outcomes and to look at health care usage patterns. But allowing thousands of faceless bureaucrats to have access to private medical records is not likely something most Americans would favor. In fact, polling data show that Americans overwhelmingly believe that putting medical records in an electronic database will allow for unauthorized access to that information.

Worse yet, privacy experts point out that Clinton is considering the use of the Social Security number as the one to be encoded on the Health Security card. This presents some special privacy concerns. Social Security numbers already are used by nearly every public and private agency for identification purposes—even though Congress explicitly stated at the start of the program back in the 1930s that this would never be the case. They even printed right on the Social Security cards the command that the number was "Not for Identification."

Recently, a report from the congressional Office of Technology Assessment, or OTA, found that given the widespread use of the Social Security number, adding health care information would pose serious privacy rights concerns. But even if the Clinton plan issues everyone a totally new number for the health card, can we trust the federal government to protect the information it will be collecting on us? If history is any guide, the answer is "No." Not long ago, the Social Security Administration itself uncovered a network of so-called information brokers who contracted with Social Security employees to buy information on individuals on a regular basis!

Clinton claims that his bill contains tough privacy rights provisions. However, the bill gives the proposed National Health Board some three years to come up with legislation that would enforce privacy rights. And as Robert Ellis Smith, publisher of the Providence, R.I.-based Privacy Journal, says, "such protections should come before the program is in place."

S.E. Michigan Adds New Area Code

For the first time since 1947 Southeastern Michigan has a new area code: 810.

Beginning Dec. 1, telephones in Oakland, Macomb, Genesee, Lapeer, St. Clair and Sanilac counties can be dialed using the new 810 area code. Small sections of Saginaw, Shiawassee and Livingston counties also are part of the 810 area.

The reconfigured 313 area code now includes Wayne, Washtenaw and Monroe counties, as well as small sections of Jackson and Lenawee counties.

Telephone rates will not be affected by the change, said Dean Hovey, area code manager for Ameritech-Michigan. "What was a local call yesterday is still a local call today," he said.

The new area code was needed because Southeastern Michigan was running out of telephone numbers, Hovey said.

"Designers of the original area code plan back in the 1940's could not have anticipated just how quickly available numbers would be used up by the skyrocketing popularity of personal pagers, cellular mobile telephones, computer modems and fax machines," he said.

More than 3 million new telephone numbers have been created by the new area code for Southeastern Michigan. The new supply of numbers is expected to meet the area's growth needs for about the next 20 years.

Nation-wide, some 25 other metropolitan regions—including New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco—have added area codes in recent years.

Ameritech is planning a massive radio, television, newspaper and outdoor advertising campaign to build even greater public awareness in 1994 prior to Aug. 10 when the new area code must be dialed. Up until then, calls to the new area will go through even if callers dial the old area code.

Customers with questions about the new area code may call toll-free 1 (800) 831-8889.

Let's Go
Bulldogs!

'Big Five' Key to Chelsea Wrestling In New Season

Chelsea Bulldogs wrestling team could challenge for the Southeastern Conference championship with perennial powers Dexter and Saline.

"Dexter didn't lose anybody, so they should be the favorites," says Chelsea coach Kerry Kargel.

"Saline only lost one or two. But I would never count us out because we do have some talent."

Last year the Bulldogs tied with the Dexter Dreadnaughts for the title. They won the SEC tournament, but lost the head-to-head match-up with the Dreadnaughts.

Kargel's team is dominated by freshmen and sophomores, but most of his best wrestlers are juniors and seniors with plenty of experience.

Kargel calls seniors Tim Wescott (captain, 125 pounds), John Bobo (152), Chris Kargel (189), Dan Alber (119) and Paul Taylor (180) his "big five." Kargel is counting on them to be his most consistent performers.

"We can't afford to have any of the big five out for long," Kargel says.

"We have a lot of young kids and a lot of good athletes, but they lack experience."

Wescott, who was plagued by injuries at inopportune times last season should be the team's top wrestler. The other seniors are all poised for good seasons as well.

Key juniors include Ryan Ludwig (135), Matt DeLong (130), Mike Bainton (160), Ben O'Connor (140) and Dan Watson (heavyweight).

Top sophomores include Ray Hatch (112), Zac Eresten (103), Jordan Dyer (189), Mike Thayer (152) and Tom Barkman (heavyweight).

The coach's second son, Andy, a freshman, is a likely starter at 145.

"I think you're going to hear a lot from Ryan Ludwig and Ray Hatch as the season goes on," Kargel says.

"With those two, we have six or seven guys who can give anyone a run."

Kargel also says he may have as many as three freshman starters. However, he'll be selective about who gets the call.

"I don't want to send someone out there who gets beat up every week," Kargel says.

"It doesn't help their confidence," Kargel prefers to have his freshmen compete at the lower weights, where they are more likely to wrestle other freshmen.

Manager is Kyle McCalla and assistant coach is Mike Young.

Terpstra, Thompson Named Hoop MVPs

Sophomore Annie Terpstra and junior Courtney Thompson were named Most Valuable Players for the Chelsea Bulldogs girls basketball team.

Junior Kate Steele was named Most Improved.

Terpstra was the team's leading scorer with a 13.1 point average. She also averaged 8.5 rebounds, shot 86 percent from the free throw line and 57 percent from the floor.

"Annie was the guts and glue of our offense," said coach Charlie Waller. "Her consistency was remarkable all year long. She was also a lot of our defense."

Thompson set a team career record in blocked shots in just her first varsity season with 148 blocks. She was the team's second leading scorer with a 12.1 average.

"Defensively, Courtney was outstanding with her blocks and rebounding," Waller said.

"She was the other half of our inside game."

Steele led the Bulldogs with 43 assists.

"Kate did a good job of going from being an off guard to being the one guard," Waller said.

"Her improvement in running the offense was remarkable."

Waller said he is optimistic about his team's chances next year.

"If everyone comes back, we'll be real strong," he said.

"We should be able to fill our gaps real well."

The Bulldogs finished second in the Southeastern Conference, one game behind the Pinckney Pirates.

Eighth Grade Bullpups Drop Close Contest

Beach Middle school eighth grade basketball team lost at home to Lincoln last Monday, 43-40.

"Despite the loss, it was one of our best efforts of the season," said Chelsea coach Jim Tallman.

Both teams started out slow and after the first quarter Chelsea led 5-3. In the second quarter, Lincoln took a commanding lead, out-scoring the Pups 11-2.

"In other games this season, that would have sealed our doom," Tallman said.

"But this night we put on a tremendous rush during the third quarter and overcame a seven point deficit to take the lead, 26-20."

The fourth quarter continued to be close but Lincoln sank two free throws with one second left.

Chelsea scorers included Justin Kivi 19, Rob Ellis 5, Matt Adams 5, Scott Basar 4, Don Reilly 3, Chris Herter 2, Nate Cooper 1, Chris Hatch 1.

Chelsea was 1-5 on the season after last week.

Just like the authentic soda fountain egg creams served in New York City at the turn of the century, the bottled Jeff's Amazing New York Egg Cream is made with real whole milk and real cream, but no eggs. Traditional egg creams are made from milk and syrup and are mixed with seltzer to produce a frothy head resembling beaten egg whites, hence the name.

Area Students Named To Who's Who List

A number of students from the Dexter, Chelsea, Gregory, Grass Lake and Pinckney areas have been included in the 27th Annual Edition of Who's Who Among American High School Students, 1992-93.

Who's Who, published by Educational Communications, Inc., Lake Forest, Ill., is the largest high school recognition publication in the country. Students are nominated by high school principals and guidance counselors, national youth groups, churches or by the publishing company based upon students' performance in scholarship award contests or extracurricular activities.

Final selection is determined on the basis of criteria which include high achievement in academics and leadership in school activities, athletics or community service. Traditionally, 99 percent of Who's Who students have a grade point average of 'B' or better and 97 percent are college bound.

The 27th edition of Who's Who, published in 16 regional volumes, features nearly 725,000 students or just over five percent of the nation's 12,000,000 high school students. They represent approximately 15,000 of the 22,000 public, private and parochial high schools in the country.

Who's Who students also compete for $125,000 in scholarship awards and participate in the publication's annual opinion poll of teen attitudes. The book is distributed to up to 15,000 high schools, colleges, universities and public libraries throughout the country.

Home Health Care: The People's Choice

There is no place like home, especially if you or your loved one is sick, has special health care needs, or is terminally ill. Home care is often the preferred solution since the latest in sophisticated, high quality health services can be provided in the comfort and security of home. The Huron Valley Visiting Nurses organization, along with other home care agencies nation-wide, joins Congress and President Bill Clinton in celebrating National Home Care Week, Nov. 28-Dec. 4.

This year's theme, "Home Care: The People's Choice," reflects the increasing number of Americans choosing home care as the solution to a growing number of specialized or long-term care problems. Millions of Americans, from new-borns to the elderly, need personalized and often highly technical health services, either because of a chronic illness or a permanent disability. It is estimated that between 9 and 11 million Americans of all ages now require long-term care. The need is growing and this number could double by the year 2030 or even earlier. As a result of the National Health Care reform proposal soon to be considered by Congress, it is believed that patients will be released from hospitals sooner and sicker than ever before in our history.

"Home care is an excellent and cost-effective alternative to institutional care, providing patients a way to recover in a familiar environment surrounded by their loved ones," said executive director Judith A. Wood, Ph.D. "Modern technology has developed to the point where virtually anything that is available in a hospital can be provided at home. Considering the spiraling costs of institutional care and the growing number of Americans in need of health services, home care is clearly an idea whose time has come. National Home Care Week provides an opportunity for our community to pay tribute to the committed nurses, therapists, social workers and volunteers who are dedicated to providing the highest quality care at home."

The Huron Valley Visiting Nurses organization, which consists of two subsidiary agencies, the Visiting Nurse Association of Huron Valley and Visiting Care, is a private, not-for-profit organization. The Visiting Nurse Association was founded in 1909 and has been providing compassionate home health care to residents of Washtenaw and surrounding counties for over 80 years.

Employing 200 nurses, social workers, home health aides, physical, occupation and speech therapists as well as a cadre of committed Hospice care volunteers, the two agencies provide home care from the most basic assistance to sophisticated, high-tech medical treatment. As well, the organization has designated a Fund to assist those in the community who do not have insurance or the ability to pay for private care.

FACTS & FIGURES

(NAPS)—No one should have to walk alone. For more than 71 years the 19 Shriners orthopaedic hospitals and three internationally-renowned Shriners Burns Institutes—in the U.S., Canada and Mexico—have provided expert care to nearly 470,000 children, totally free of charge.

Since the first Shriners Hospital opened in 1922, the following statistics have been compiled: over 5,638,200 X-rays taken; 4,146,500 outpatient and outreach clinic visits; 485,100 operations performed; 595,500 braces and prostheses applied; 9,324,400 physical therapy treatments given.

During 1992, Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children approved 27,477 new applications. Entering 1993, the hospitals had a total of 143,211 active patients at its 22 units. Their annual budget totals $336 million.

Letter Writing...

"I'm Going To Sit Right Down, And Write Myself A Letter."

Winnifred and I were talking about the old days. She had that morning thrown away a letter, among other souvenirs, and it had been picked up with the trash several hours ago. As she told me about it, I asked her to reconstruct it for me, so I could share it with Standard readers. Here it is, about 78 years old, nearly word for word.

To the President of the Northwest Stockbridge M.E. Church, Young Peoples' Class.

Last week when you held your social in the hall, it was reported to some of the parents that you danced. The hall is the property of the church and built by the Ladies Aid Society. It was discussed by the members of the Ladies Aid Society and they decided that the secretary write a letter to you. You can no longer use the hall for your socials, since the Society does not approve of dancing.

Winnifred McMichael, Sec.

Editor's Note: you see, Winnifred was president of the Young People's Class, and also secretary of the Ladies Aid Society. At 20 years of age she was caught behind the 8 ball. See what you get for keeping old letters. A simple hand holding game of singing and running around in a circle to the tune of a harmonica, the ladies called a dance.

M.C. Martin.

Painting Class...

Lynn Walker, instructor of our painting class on Friday mornings, knows how to keep us interested. When we started, some months ago, we could paint anything that we liked, landscapes, old barns, birds or anything with lots of color. When we got some of our own supplies, such as water colors, brushes, pencils, etc., which she got at a good discount for us, she suggested projects that she thought we would like.

We found out that all good painters are able to sketch free hand lightly with pencil, before painting. We had not expected this, but took to it like a duck to water. She took time to show us how to draw and paint, eyes, noses, lips, ears. We really learned.

Then Lynn had us back on to painting buildings or landscapes or whatever each person chose to paint. We have come a long way in fundamentals, and ready to get down to the nitty gritty. Everybody is learning. Thank you, Lynn Walker.

M.C. Martin.

Christmas Greetings...

To all our readers, we wish you a very MERRY CHRISTMAS. We do not know all of you, but this would be impossible. A few from time have had some kind words concerning our news stories, and for this we thank you. I know a few more people in Chelsea because of our words on paper. Keep reading, and when we meet say "Hi," it makes our day. Some of the best people in Michigan live in Chelsea.

M.C. Martin.

Missionaries...

Ronald A. Brunger gave us a very interesting talk in the Town Hall, Nov. 17 about early missionaries in Michigan. Men like J.P. Merchant, John Clark, John Sunday, Daniel Chandler and John Pitzel were some of those who braved long hikes, some on foot, some with snowshoes, and some with canoes on rivers and lakes to bring the word of God to people in the wilderness. He had done a great deal of research in bringing us the stories of hardy men who gave their lives to converting both Indians and white folks. His time bracket covered most of the first half of the 1800's.

Canoes were about the only mode of transportation in those days for a preacher to visit people sometimes 75 miles away. All men who were assigned to a circuit in the north country had to do lots of hiking, sometimes with snowshoes. Hay or grain for horses were usually hard to find because farming as we know it did not exist. Canoes were made from bark, or logs were dug out and used. Most had to be light in weight to allow for a portage in a river, maybe several in one trip.

Mr. Brunger told us of many quick storms that came up and the men had to sleep out in the forest, a day or two. Or if they were going by canoe they had to find a friendly cove to pull into to get out of the terrible storms on Lake Michigan or Lake Superior.

Frost bitten fingers or toes were common in snow storms. One minister's feet were badly frozen in one trip when the bottom of his moccasins were worn out. And after some trips, there would be only a half dozen folks to listen to him preach.

John Clark went to Kewaweenaw in 1834. He baptized 15 and administered the sacrament to 40. He helped erect a log mission house and school house, and many cabins.

and also to a couple places on the Canadian side. He either walked, used boat or canoe, in good weather. Ronald deserves a big thank you from all of us for the fine program. Give the full content would require at least 12 more pages the length of the item. Again, thanks.

SPEED MONITOR was set up last Thursday and Friday on M-52 on the northern end of the village by the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department. The unit, a self-contained radar detector and camera, displays each passing vehicle's speed to give drivers an idea of how fast they are traveling. While used primarily to educate drivers, it is also occasionally used to catch speeders. Chelsea Police Chief Lenard McDougall asked that the unit be placed where it was because it is an easy place for drivers to lose track of the speed limit because it changes fairly quickly. The unit is scheduled to be back in Chelsea this Thursday and Friday. WCSD moves it to various trouble spots in the county.

EDUCATION RESEARCH

Prepared by the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASPP), Reston, Va.

★ Technology Education For Middle Level Students

Remember when the "age of technology" sounded like a futuristic term? Today, because dramatic advancements in technology routinely influence nearly every aspect of our lives, technology education is more important than ever. Middle level students, those in grades five through eight, are at a prime age for hands-on experience.

"Many educators find it's easier to teach middle-level students because they are not 'set in their ways' and it's not difficult to get them to try new experiences," explained Laurel Kanthak, director of middle level services, National Association of Secondary School Principals. "Technology education should be offered at the middle level to provide an early foundation of knowledge and adequately prepare students for the 21st century."

Some middle level schools are replacing industrial arts classes with comprehensive technology labs that allow hands-on and "minds-on" experience with word processors, computers, and computer assisted design courses. Most programs provide opportunities to integrate other subjects in the student's course of studies, including history, literature, mathematics, science, geography, and communications.

Another bonus is that education technology enhances students' research capabilities. For example, some middle level libraries install videodisk information centers instead of card catalog files and shelves of resource books. Information is more easily and inexpensively updated, and locating a resource is often less time-consuming for students and staff.

Unfortunately, not all middle level schools are able to offer adequate technology education.

"It's ironic that some students have more technology available at home than at school," Kanthak said. "But funding limitations, curriculum changes, and staff training concerns can present roadblocks."

"To help in this movement, schools and community leaders must work together to establish or enhance technology education programs at local middle level schools."

Kanthak suggested that parents, business, and community leaders cooperate with educators to design plans for schools and school districts. Proposals should include curriculum reform, a call for volunteer teaching, professional development for teachers, and funding sources.

Some schools cut costs by asking businesses to contribute equipment they no longer use.

"Technology is changing so rapidly that some businesses replace their equipment every few years and sell or give away their former systems," Kanthak observed.

For additional help in planning, schools might also look to technology-based organizations such as the Society of Automotive Engineers, International (SAE). SAE believes technology education at the middle level is essential if we are to remain internationally competitive. For a free copy of the SAE "World in Motion" technology education plan, aimed at early adolescents, contact John Boynton, SAE, 400 Commonwealth Dr., Warrendale, Pa. 15096-0001, (412) 776-4841.

"With some planning, innovation, and collaboration, the TV generation can teach technology to the Nintendo generation," Kanthak concluded. "It all begins at the middle level."

Everybody's Science

★ No-Decay Sweetener May Come from Corn

By Ben Hardin

U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists are working to change the fiber in corn into a specialty sweetener that's now imported.

Xylitol—a sweetener that does not cause tooth decay—is now made primarily in Finland from acid-treated fibers of birch wood. Similar to table sugar in sweetness and calorie content, xylitol adds a cool mint-like sensation in chewing gums.

If the cost of converting corn fiber to xylitol can be reduced, the sweetener could find new market niches, says Timothy D. Leathers, a plant geneticist for USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

For example, it might be used in foods for diabetics who must be wary of sugars that cause rapid rises in blood glucose levels.

Leathers and colleagues have been studying production of xylitol from corn fiber at ARS's National Center for Agricultural Utilization Research in Peoria, Ill. One source of the fiber is from companies that use corn to make ethanol fuel.

Corn fiber is left over in the process. Leathers says a lower cost for converting these fibers to xylitol may depend on refining techniques using enzymes. What the enzymes do is extract xylose from corn fiber so it can be fermented to make xylitol.

In tests at the Peoria lab, enzymes from a yeast strain released up to 20 percent of the xylose in corn fiber by breaking down a natural corn fiber polymer composed of xylose. Further studies are underway to increase the percentage of xylose.

Although enzymes may be expensive, industry routinely recycles them to achieve savings, Leathers says. And advances in biotechnology may lead to processes that would require less energy than chemical processing to produce xylitol, helping lower costs.

CAP To Hold Auditions for 'Godspell'

Chelsea Area Players will begin auditions for the musical "Godspell" on Monday, Dec. 13, and Tuesday, Dec. 14 at 7 p.m. at St. Mary's School on Congdon St.

The show is being co-produced by Shelly Wheaton and Cindy Gillespie and will be under the direction of Guy Sanville with Susan Filiplak as choreographer. Neither Sanville or Filiplak are strangers to the Chelsea theater scene. Sanville brings a host of experience to CAP with most recent accomplishments including the direction of the Purple Rose's "Nooner" by Kim Carney, and as Earl Noonan in "The Vast Difference." Filiplak has done several shows with CAP including: "42nd Street," "Singing in the Rain," and "Recap."

The musical "Godspell" has been received by audiences big and small since its debut on Broadway in 1971. Its creator, Michael Tebelak saw "Godspell" as a jubilant celebration of the Gospel according to St. Matthew.

The play depicts the life, ministry, death, and resurrection of Jesus, using 20th century characters. A wide variety of song and dance ranging from folk, pop, rock, to country and ballad will be featured to make the story and characters come alive.

Those interested in auditioning are to have a brief comic monologue prepared for delivery and be ready to dance and sing. The show will be mostly ensemble and require cast members to be on stage for most of the show. Show dates are Feb. 9, 10, 11, 12. Rehearsals will begin Jan. 3.

For more audition information or if you are interested in helping out in any way, contact: Shelly Wheaton, 475-9767, or Cindy Gillespie, 475-1793.
