Municipal Office Building Proposed for Park St. Site

Chelsea Village Council and Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce jointly sponsored a public gathering Monday evening at the Depot to discuss preliminary plans for a solution to their space needs for municipal offices.

North School Family Math Night Slated Thursday

North Elementary school has been bustling with activity lately in preparation for its annual Family Math Night, happening tomorrow, Thursday, Jan. 26, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Two of North's Student Council representatives, Megan Schlenker and Sarah Castleberry, have been especially busy creating flyers and helping to co-ordinate the food provision. The entire Student Council has been active with poster preparation and classroom activities.

The community is invited to the Family Math Night, where there will be fun math related activities for all age groups.

result of an extensive study they have made of the village needs.

Jacobs presented plans for a proposed municipal office complex to be built on Park St., between Springer Agency and the Purple Rose Theatre.

"We looked to meet the long term and the short term needs," said Jacobs. "We looked at the site as an opportunity to strengthen the business community."

Jacobs said the current plan entails building the new municipal offices next to, and a 130-space parking deck behind the Purple Rose Theatre. The building design and parking deck would, according to Jacobs, "Create uniform parking."

An alternative plan eyes additional parking further down Park St.

Although it has not been officially ruled out, the expansion of the current Municipal Building offices is not feasible because of the difference in floor height in the adjoining buildings could vary as much as 18 inches from the front of the store to the back. The renovation cost would be prohibitive Jacobs said. "It would be cost effective to build a new building that would look like municipal offices and open the current office space up to the private sector," noting that the village had no vacant storefronts.

Parking logistics and the cost of the project were the two issues residents voiced the most concern over. Many residents as well as business owners alluded to the increased traffic on Park St., as well as the parking problems that may develop in front of the offices.

"I think the village would be making a mistake just considering this site," said Chelsea resident Jim Machnik. "There are sites on M-52 that in the future would be expandable."

Cost of the project was another sticking point with Machnik. The plan has an estimated cost of $1 million for the building itself and Jacobs estimated the 130 spots on the parking deck at between $10,000-$12,000 each. "I believe his numbers are very conservative," Machnik added.

The full plan will be delivered to the Village Council at a later date.

Residents Support Commission's Advice

Chelsea Village Planning Commission recommendation would prevent a manufactured home park.

A public discussion concerning a 7-month long study authored by Chelsea Village Planning Commission on what to do about an annexation request by Martin Merkel proved village residents are supportive of the planning commission's recommendation to annex the land and zone it low-density residential.

The recommendation, if accepted by council, will prevent the proposed construction of a manufactured home park on 89 acres of a 159-acre parcel northeast of town in Lima township.

Roughly 50 people attended the planning commission's public hearing held last Tuesday. The hearing was organized to gather community input on a draft report and recommendation that the planning commission will forward to Chelsea Village Council in the coming months. Some changes to the report are expected before the planning commission gives its seal of approval in February.

"If it's zoned low-density residential, then that's how it will be developed," planning commission chairman Tim Eder assured the audience. "We're not advocates that it be a manufactured home park."

Eder said the zoning designation will only allow 2.5 units per acre. Manufactured home parks, which require medium-density residential zoning, demand 5 to 6 units per acre.

Of the estimated crowd of 50, 20 people addressed the planning commission. All were in support of the report and its recommendation. Some residents, however, asked that a section of the report, referring to Dr. Kate Warner's perspective on the impact of mobile home parks on school districts, be eliminated. Warner says, among other things, that mobile home developments produce a relatively low number of school-age children. She states that less than one in four households in a mobile home park are likely to contain a school-age child.

Area residents accused Warner of being a paid advocate for the Manufactured/Mobile Home industry.

Pierce Road resident Judy Gallagher said Chelsea attracts families with school-age children because of the school district's excellent reputation. "Chelsea attracts new residents because of our schools, so we might attract a different mix within the (manufactured home park)," she said. "Even though we live outside the village, I feel we will be gravely impacted by this. All I am aware of is the disadvantages to us."

School board president Jane Dising, also present at the meeting, noted a change in the figures submitted for the report. Enrollment at South Elementary school has swelled from 611 to 671, North's has increased from 586 to 620 and in the next five years the high school's population is expected to hit 1,000, Dising said. The district is presently considering a bond issue in June to construct a new high school and third elementary school.

The planning commission's report, dubbed "The Merkel Report," addresses the impact a manufactured home park could have on the public schools, village police and fire services, and village-supplied utilities.

Landowner Merkel and fellow developer Steve Tracy have publicly proposed an 89-acre manufactured home park with 400 units, but have not submitted a site plan. The number of proposed housing units would increase the number of village homes by 28 percent. That figure could rise to a 54 percent increase if the entire 157 acres are developed, which is highly suspected by area residents.

"Realistically, we have to expect anyone with property is going to want to maximize their return," said resident Frank Butcher.

Resident Gary Adams said developer Tracy has stated the remaining 68 acres could be developed as single family residential or "best use," which Adams fears means more manufactured housing.

"It's pretty clear, for one thing, that the owner of the property intends to develop it," agreed Eder. "If it's not in the village, then our ability to control or manage it is very limited."

Eder said the planning commission prefers a planned unit development designation over the site. "It enables us to limit and control how the property is to be developed," he explained.

The planning commission's draft report recommends that the council vote to annex the land only after the 1976 General Development Plan for the north area of the village is updated, a traffic study is completed and the village's water supply is expanded, among other things. It also calls for the inclusion of a community park within the proposed development.

Chelsea Area Players Rehearsing for Comedy

Chelsea Area Players are well into production of their winter play, "Lend Me A Tenor," a comedy written by Ken Ludwig. The cast is comprised of talented actors from this area, who have entertained Chelsea audiences many times, including Matt DeLong, Mark Nelson, Phoebe Strong, Jerri Cole, Christine Purchis, Lisa Neda, Frank Dillon and Dan Brinkle.

Friday and Saturday performances of this production will begin with a wonderful Italian meal beginning at 6:30 p.m., with the performance starting at 8 p.m. Tickets for this production, scheduled Feb. 10, 11, 16, 17 and 18, at the Chelsea Fairgrounds, are on sale now at the Chelsea Pharmacy. The Thursday, Feb. 16 performance will not include dinner, a dessert will be available for an additional charge.

Questions regarding tickets or volunteer opportunities may be directed to co-producer Clara Smith at 475-8713 or 475-9800.

Washington Street Show Choir Preparing for Feb. 4 Showcase

Chelsea's own Washington Street Show Choir is presenting its fourth annual Showcase of Show Choirs on Saturday, Feb. 4 at 7 p.m. in the George Prinzing Auditorium. Joining them this year on stage will be guest choirs from Battle Creek, Livonia, Greenville and Ann Arbor.

It promises to be an entertaining evening filled with high-energy song and dance.

Washington Street Show Choir is an extra-curricular program at Chelsea High school that provides training for improving skills in music, singing, dancing, staging and all technical aspects of theater. Director and founder, Steven P. Hinz, is especially pleased with the efforts put forth by this year's group. "Out of a total of 38 singers and dancers, 20 are first-year members, new to the intense vocal and choreography demands of this group. I am impressed with the caliber of their performance and I feel certain that audiences will be, too." The group's three-member back-up band, led by

Lisa Hinz-Johnson, provides wonderful accompaniment and its seven-member technical crew insures quality sound and lighting along with the demanding task of managing the stage traffic.

All of the students have been working hard to prepare for this concert that has, traditionally, been performed to "standing room only" crowds. It is a very popular show as you get to see and hear the "home town" choir as well as those from other areas around the state. There are still a limited number of tickets available for this show available at Chelsea Pharmacy. But if you're too late to get tickets for this one, you could always travel down to DeKalb, Ind., with them the following week-end. The entire group will be attending and performing in a show choir competition that involves over 30 show choirs from Michigan, Ohio and Indiana on Feb. 11. You can also look for them at their final concert of the year back here in Chelsea on May 12 and 13.

Chelsea Village Council voted to remove all downtown parking meters once the Downtown Development Authority beautification project begins this spring. And effective immediately, those with businesses downtown can quit feeding the meters on the side streets. A public hearing was held last Tuesday on DDA's request to have the meters removed. DDA believes free parking is more agreeable to shoppers. Most spaces closest to the downtown business district are now designated for two-hour parking.

Chelsea Village Council handed restaurateur Craig Common a slight setback last week when it decided not to vote on a proposal to allow Common to transfer a liquor license to the village. Common wants to open a restaurant called The Common Grill in the vacant Dancer's building downtown. Common plans to specialize in seafoods, grilled meats and pastas with dinners running from about $6.50 to $13.

South Elementary school principal Bob Benedict, a teacher and principal in the Chelsea School District for 28 years, announced his retirement at the end of the school year during Monday night's Board of Education meeting. Benedict, South school principal for the last seven years, and principal at North school for 17 years before that, simply said "the time is right for me."

The formation of a Solid Waste Management Authority involving up to 10 area governmental units was proposed at last Tuesday's village council meeting. Council took no action on the idea, as part of village manager Robert Stalker's regular report.

14 Years Ago. . .

Thursday, Feb. 3, 1981—

A number of meetings had been held regarding the development of the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce. In response to avid interest, the Steering Committee was able to locate 32 Chelsea businesses to initially pledge their support to such an organization.

It was reported that horses worth an excess of $10,000 had been stolen in Washtenaw county and throughout southern Michigan and had been sold for meat and pet food for as little as $500. One man was in police custody at that time.

New legislation increased the cost of a certified copy of birth, death and marriage records to $10 for the first copy and $3 for each additional copy ordered at the same time.

The Waterloo Natural History Association held its first Board of Directors meeting. The group was formed for the purpose of providing educational and interpretive programs at the Waterloo Nature Center.

24 Years Ago. . .

Thursday, Feb. 4, 1971—

A walk-out occurred Tuesday, Feb. 2 at the Chrysler Proving Grounds in Chelsea as part of a national contract settlement tie up, officials claimed.

Patrolmen Louis Schneider and Robert Browning were cited at the meeting of the Village Council for commendable performance of police duty last month when they apprehended a thief following a break-in at Winans Jewelry store.

Due to economy measures to aid new U.S. Postal Service to operate on a more efficient and self-supporting basis, the Chelsea Post Office had been authorized along with other post offices to discontinue with window transactions on Saturdays.

Heydlauff's opened a new store following the August fire which gutted the former building. The Buick-Olds showroom, part of a building owned by Marion Longworth, of Longworth Planting Co., had been the temporary market place for "Frigid Products" while their new store was being completed.

★ Alice in Modern Education Mandate Land

By Thomas F. Bertonneau

In Lewis Carroll's Through the Looking Glass, the intellectually astute Alice meets the verbally evasive Red Knight, who proposes to sing Alice a song. The name of the song, says the Knight, is called "Haddock's Eyes."

"That would be the name of the song, then," Alice remarks. "No," says the Knight, "that's merely what the name of the song is called. Its actual name is 'The Aged Aged Man.' But that's only the song's name. The song itself is called 'Ways and Means.'" And so on, until it turns out that the song really is "A-Sitting on a Gate."

Carroll's conundrum about the name of the Red Knight's song illustrates the basic objection to the Michigan State Board of Education's Proposal for a Required Core Academic Curriculum for K-12, issued a few weeks ago in draft form.

The Proposal describes itself as a "list of student outcome expectations." If the Proposal were the Red Knight and Alice asked it what students would learn if it were enacted, the Knight would reply dodgily, "This is what they are expected to learn." Parents, and concerned citizens ought to reply, "Yes, but what will they learn?" The Proposal is as cagey as the Red Knight about that basic question.

This is less true in its curricular recommendations for science and civics than it is, say, in its curricular recommendations for English Language Arts. It's much harder to be vague in science than in other areas, and in civics there are certain documents, like the Bill of Rights, whose specificity is unavoidable. A chain, however, is only as strong as its weakest link. Given the vagueness in the fundamental areas of language and literacy, essential to all rigorous thinking, it's hard to see how the ambitious and often specific goals set in other areas would be met. Perhaps the science and civics curricula should have been models for the English Language Arts curriculum.

In the introductory section entitled "Learning as Understanding," the Proposal's authors make the dubious claim that an obsolete approach to learning stressed "the dissection of learning into discrete facts and skills, which were often transmitted to the learner through lecture and recitation." The Proposal implies that this was erroneous and ineffective.

Instead of memorizing the rules of grammar or learning new words, students, the Proposal urges, should be creatively reasoning about them. The Proposal's authors insist that "it is no longer sufficient to simply 'know' mathematical facts; learners must be able to 'understand' the concepts behind them." Like the Red Knight, the Proposal retreats from things (from facts) to the names of things and finally to what the names of things are called. The Proposal does not give us learning; it gives us "expectations" about learning. It does not intend to inform students about facts; it intends to inform them about the "concepts" alleged to lurk in some manner "behind the facts."

"The nature of knowledge has changed," the Proposal assures us, and "the nature of learning is viewed differently now." Maybe so. But the Pythagorean Theorem is the same and as true today as when Pythagoras developed it, five centuries before Christ. As the Greek thinker Heraclitus concluded more than 25 centuries ago, an understanding of the world can begin nowhere else but in facts about the world. Regarding English Language Arts, the Proposal stipulates, for example, that "the goal should not be that students are able to list the events in a story, but that they develop understanding for why the author told the story." In common sense terms, however, story is identical with events in a story; the events are the story.

What would happen if this shoddy reasoning were transferred to the section on biology? Would it make sense to say that students have no need to be able to list the facts that led Darwin to formulate the theory of evolution as long as they develop understanding for why he formulated it? That would be an absurd offense against what science is. But students who think that an author's motive for writing a story can be divined without a knowledge of his story will be sorely unprepared to grasp the link between Darwin's facts and Darwin's theory.

The State Board of Education's Proposal is more of the same fuzzy thinking that has produced declining achievement scores and increasing functional illiteracy in the schools. It substitutes a promise of goods for the goods themselves. For the moment, the Board has missed an opportunity to offer a concrete, commonsensical framework for what students will actually learn in Michigan public schools.

Manchester Girl's Vehicle Impounded

A 17-year-old Manchester girl was cited for three violations against the Motor Vehicle Code, Jan. 16.

The girl was traveling south on Main St. south of Old Manchester Rd. in a 1993 Ford Ranger pick-up truck when police stopped her for driving without headlights on. It was later learned that the girl never acquired a driver's license. She was cited for both violations and for not wearing a seat belt. Her vehicle was impounded.

Chelsea Teens Arrested

Two local teens were arrested by Chelsea Police Jan. 14 for littering and possession of tobacco.

An officer was dispatched to Main St. near Pierce St. by an off-duty police officer who witnessed one teen throw a candy wrapper on the ground. When the investigating officer arrived he witnessed the teen drop another wrapper. When the 15-year-old Chelsea boy became belligerent, the officer searched him and found a pack of cigarettes in his pocket.

The suspect's friend, a 16-year-old Chelsea boy, was also searched. Police found a knife and pack of cigarettes on the other youth. Both were arrested and later turned over to their parents.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Ed Doolittle told the fellows at the country store Saturday night that he has been on the mental telephone trying to reach Socks, the First Cat. He hasn't made contact, but he said Socks is his best chance of finding out what Bill Clinton is thinking. For sure, Ed allowed, you can't tell from what the President is doing.

Ed read recent where a woman in Los Angeles says she not only can read animals' minds, she can form mental pictures with animals thousands of miles away. The most interesting thing the animals tell her, Ed said, is that they can tell what people are thinking. Maybe Socks knows what has escaped everybody else in the country since the election, when Clinton started trying to turn himself into whatever he thinks the voters think he ought to be. If Socks has the President's ear, Ed said, she ought to tell him to find a policy and stick with it, or he will spread himself so thin nobody can find him.

This lady in California says she can communicate with all animals, and she has found cats are best at figuring out what people are up to. She says when your cat lays under the coffee table and stares at you when company comes it is trying as hard to know what you're thinking as it is to tell you to get rid of these strangers. She said she talked to a lobster that knew he was going to get dropped live in boiling water and he let her know he was upset about it. A wild horse told her he couldn't understand how other horses were willing to do what people told them.

The fellows didn't take Ed serious for a minute, but Democrat Clem Webster didn't pass up the chance to say it was too bad Ed hadn't read former First Dog Millie's book that explains she learned to read her President's lips, but after that she never give much weight to what she picked up from his mind. As a matter of fact, Clem went on, the last White House animal known to communicate with a President was Fala. This is a matter of public record because Roosevelt told the whole country that Fala told him she didn't want war either.

All of which proves, declared Bug Hookum, that Ed and Clem ought to be more careful what they read. Bug said he's putting his trust in GRAS. Just when he was convinced that the Government wants to put a "Life is hazardous to your health" label on newborns, here comes Generally Regarded as Safe, a pamphlet to be put out by the Food and Drug Administration. In it, the FDA and the Coalition of Social Sciences work together to list what to eat, drink and do that won't hurt you, and might be downright good for you.

Bug said the piece he read says the FDA comes right out and says everything does not cause cancer or heart trouble, and there actual are more things that don't than do. For instant, we can keep eating citric acid and drinking coffee, and the monosodium glutamate that is in everything that comes in a can or jar is a "neutral substance." The pamphlet goes on to deny that a digital watch is harmful, in spite of a claim by a scientist at Loyola University who says people feel isolated by numbers, but the "cycle of a clock face gives us a sense of continuity."

I figure if a flashing number makes you lonesome you had problems before you bought the watch. Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

Area Residents Named to MSU Dean's List

Several area residents were among students named to the dean's list at Michigan State University.

To earn the recognition, students must have a grade point average of 3.5 or better for the fall semester 1994. A total of 4,550 MSU students met the requirement.

Residents named to the list are Jeremy Guenther, Elizabeth McLaughlin, Gary Sacharski, Leisa Schiller, Philip Steele and Kelly Totten of Chelsea; Chris Henderson and Kelly Jackson of Dexter; Heather Havens of Gregory; Timothy Burkhardt, Bridget Deschaine and Robert Spork of Manchester; and Jay Boger, Jessica Corcoran, Kevin Dittmer, Eric Kaiser, Jeannette Kiernan, Michael Lyons, Jason Maas, Laurie Maciag, Jeff Malay, Autumn Munn, Jessica Nester, Jill Yek and Nanbey Yoder of Pinckney.

Private Tapes Stolen

Chelsea Police were dispatched to a larceny/suspicious situation in the 200 block of Buchanan St., Jan. 22.

A 39-year-old Chelsea woman told police she suspects a male friend of stealing at least three taped conversations between herself and an ex-boyfriend. The woman told police she left the suspect alone in her home on Jan. 15 and noticed the tapes missing a short time later. The suspect denies stealing the tapes and claims the woman is harassing him.

Eye Care

Cheryl Huey, M.D.

Ophthalmologist, Eye Physician and Surgeon

"LAZY" EYE

We have all heard the term "lazy eye," but many people don't know what it means. You may have heard it used to describe an eye that crosses in, or wanders out.

Some people who need a strong correction in their glasses will describe their eye as "lazy." This statement is inaccurate.

The proper medical term for lazy eye is "amblyopia." Amblyopia is poor vision due to failure of sight development in childhood, usually affecting only one eye. The most critical time for visual development is the first few months of life, but the visual system is still changeable up to about nine years of age.

Any condition which deprives the young eye of a clear visual image can arrest the development of vision and result in amblyopia. The most common conditions associated with amblyopia are crossed eyes, and an imbalance of nearsightedness or farsightedness between the two eyes. Other misalignments or eye diseases may also interrupt vision and cause amblyopia. The eye that is crossed in or out of focus, is simply "ignored" by the immature visual system, and will not develop vision unless treated properly.

Many times an amblyopic child cannot be recognized easily—the eyes may look straight and normal. For this reason all children should have their vision checked by age three years. It is also important to realize that treating the underlying condition causing the amblyopia may not cure the amblyopia. If crossed eyes are straightened with surgery, or if proper glasses are fit, an amblyopic eye may remain blurred, or "lazy," unless patching of the opposite eye is done to force the amblyopic eye to be used.

Sponsors Sought for Food Service Program

"School's out for the summer" doesn't have to mean the end of nutritious meals for Michigan's low-income children. Last summer over 43,000 children at Michigan schools, public housing centers, playgrounds, camps, parks and churches ate healthy meals and snacks provided daily by agencies that sponsored the United States Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Summer Food Service Program.

The USDA is searching for qualified agencies to sponsor the Summer Food Service Program in Michigan for this coming summer. Qualified sponsors receive federal payments for both the meals served to children and the administrative costs incurred in serving the meals. New sponsors also receive program training and technical assistance from the USDA.

A sponsoring organization must be a public or non-profit private school food authority; a public or non-profit private residential summer camp; a unit of local, municipal, county or State government; a public or private non-profit college or university currently participating in the National Youth Sports Program; or a qualified private non-profit organization.

To participate in the program for this coming summer, organizations need to contact USDA by March 1. Applications and information for sponsors may be obtained from the USDA, Food and Consumer Service, Summer Program Unit, 77 W. Jackson Blvd., 20th Floor, Chicago, Ill. 60604-3507 or by calling (312) 353-6657.

REMINISCING

34 Years Ago . . .

Thursday, Feb. 2, 1961—
The Chelsea Co-operative Nursery named a recipient of a tuition gift given by the Chelsea Child Study Club. The gift was given to provide the tuition for one school year for one child between three and four years old.

At the 93rd annual Michigan Press Association meeting in East Lansing, The Dexter Leader was given a first place award of excellence in Class A, which is for weekly newspapers with circulation up to 1,275 and The Chelsea Standard was given a third place award of excellence for weeklies in Class C, which includes a circulation of 2,000 to 4,000.

The Michigan seed law required that growers who advertised seed of their own production for sale without first having a purity and germination of 60 percent or higher and free of noxious weeds are in violation of the state law.

Residents Support Recommendation

Eder encouraged residents to submit their comments about the report and the commission's recommendation in writing for the record. A sophomore student at Chelsea High school submitted an essay on how fellow students feel about the proposed development and how they have been impacted by overcrowding in the schools already. Residents who did not attend the public hearing are asked to submit their comments to the village office by Jan. 31.

If the village council follows the planning commission's recommendation, the annexation request must go to the county for final approval.

"My idea of an agreeable person is a person who agrees with me . . ."

—Benjamin Disraeli.

Disraeli's opinions on what is agreeable should carry considerable weight. As Prime Minister during Queen Victoria's reign, he was known as a most capable diplomat, promoting the best interests of Her Majesty's Empire by his power of persuasion.

Everybody likes people who agree with them. We are more likely to concede favors to such agreeable individuals. If you would influence others, agree with them whenever possible and keep the disagreeable differences to an absolute minimum.

Your funeral director should be selected in advance of need, when emotional stress and grief are not factors. We suggest that you stop in for a "get-acquainted" visit.

Tribute To A Legend

■ Jacob Grant, founder of Farmer Grant's Market, was a legend within the community.

Jacob Grant was a lot of things to many people.

To the community, Jacob Grant is best remembered as "Farmer Grant." To oldtimers and farmers, he is remembered as the father of minimum tillage and pick-your-own strawberries. Jacob Grant was also the founding president of the Jackson Road Business Association.

The Scio township businessman who owned Farmer Grant's Market and Greenhouse, Inc., a Jackson Road landmark, died Saturday, Jan. 7 at the University of Michigan Hospital. He lived to be 81 years old.

"One of the best things he liked to do in life was get on the tractor and plow," remembers Grant's son, Larry. "And the only thing he liked better was people."

Larry Grant recently recounted his father's life and accomplishments.

Born in a log cabin on the shores of Lake Leelanau, a Northwestern Michigan town, Jacob Grant dropped out of school in the ninth grade to help his father farm their land. During his younger years, Jacob Grant learned the tradition of landowning and farming. His father, Frank, nicknamed "Strawberry Grant" because he was one of the first in the area to commercially grow strawberries, was a big influence.

Jacob Grant married Olivia Morio during the Great Depression and the couple moved to Ann Arbor. Olivia Grant found work in a restaurant owned by her aunt, while Jacob Grant was told there were no jobs here. He soon proved the cynics wrong by taking on odd jobs, from pumping gasoline to painting and decorating.

The painting profession paid off for Jacob Grant. He worked in the trade for 14 years, saving enough money to purchase his own 10-acre farm on State Street. It was on that small farm where it is believed Grant established the first U-pick strawberry patch in Michigan. "They called dad 'the father of pick your own.' The reason being, there wasn't enough help to get all the berries picked," Larry Grant said. It was during World War II.

By 1947, Jacob Grant and his wife had saved enough money to purchase 131 acres on Jackson Road, where they founded Farmer Grant's, Inc. He used the name "Farmer Grant's" because he became known throughout the area as the "painter-farmer."

The couple began selling fruit grown on the land from a porcelain-topped table in front of their Jackson Road farm. A packing table used for strawberries was converted and placed in the center of a small sales area during the second year. After three years the business branched out and a market was built.

"We were the best place around to find the freshest produce," Larry Grant said, noting the family grew fruits and vegetables that far surpassed competing supermarket quality.

But it was potato farming that brought Jacob Grant great recognition within the world of agriculture. An experimental plot of potatoes on the Jacob Grant farm was raised through a method he called "plow and plant," which later became known as minimum tillage.

While growing up, Jacob Grant noticed that newly planted fruit trees and other crops on cleared land showed their best vigor the first year of growth. He surmised the root structures left in the ground from clearing provided enough nutrients to stimulate their intense growth. He also discovered that the remaining organic material also maximized the porous character of the soil to enable oxygen and water to reach the new plantings. Grant concluded that compaction of the soil, especially from heavy equipment moving over it, destroyed the growth. So, to maximize quality and yield he did not return with equipment after plowing and planting in the furrows.

Jacob Grant's efforts were shared with the rest of the farming community when Michigan State University Co-operative Extension Service printed the method in its bulletin explaining how to grow potatoes.

Grant experimented in pesticides and developed an organic pesticide that kills mealy bugs, scale and aphids. He was also recognized throughout the state for his use of black plastic mulch in planting to keep down weeds, warm the soil and plant earlier in the spring.

Jacob Grant's innovative ideas and experiments also paid off in the greenhouse. The Grant greenhouse is reportedly the first in the United States to install underground heating, which has since become common practice. Larry Grant says the farm now boasts two miles of greenhouses with 13.5 miles of copper pipes heating the facilities.

When I-94 was constructed and replaced US-12 as the main route between Chicago and Detroit decades ago, Farmer Grant's Market faced some hard times. Jacob Grant reported losing 25 percent of his business. But since then, and through his work with the Jackson Road Business Association, Farmer

JACOB "FARMER GRANT"

Grant's Market has seen an increase in business. Located between two freeway exits, and with the help of a few directional signs implemented by the JRBA, the market seems to be doing just fine.

Jacob Grant was honored in December 1991 by the JRBA for his role in starting the association in 1961, for being instrumental in getting gas lines extended out Jackson Road and for his success as a local businessman.

Jacob Grant has also held distinction within the community, serving on the Scio Township Board of Trustees, the Association of Food Dealers, and the commission at Washtenaw Community College. He was a member of St. Joseph Catholic church, a charter member of Painters & Decorating, Painters of America and was a life member of Knights of Columbus #589.

"He was the type of person that always strived to be the best at what he did," Larry Grant said.

Over the years, the Grants, including Jacob Grant's sons Larry, Ed and Tom, have expanded their market. In 1974, the family incorporated as Farmer Grant's Market and Greenhouse, Inc.—"A Friendly Family Enterprise with Quality Merchandise." They have since opened a deli, bakery and floral shop in their 9,000-square-foot market.

When Jacob Grant retired in 1981, the market's operations were turned over to his sons and four grandchildren. Son Larry, 55, is in charge of marketing and sales and his wife, Peggy, helps in the market and does the books. Sons Ed, 48, and Tom, 51, are in charge of growing the vegetables and operating the greenhouse. Tom's wife, Linda, helps with the books and works in the flower shop with Olivia Grant. The family employs about 20 full and part-time employees that peak to about 100 during strawberry season.

Jacob Grant can rest peacefully knowing his family is continuing his work on the farm and in the business. "Once you get dirt under your fingernails, you never get it out," the late Jacob Grant once said. And his family can attest to it.

Ann Arbor Civic Theatre Presenting 'Extremities'

William Mastrosimone's white-knuckle psychological thriller, Extremities will be presented as an Ann Arbor Civic Theatre Second Stage production Jan. 26-Feb. 11, at the Ann Arbor Civic Theatre. Show times are Thursdays through Saturdays at 8 p.m. The Ann Arbor Civic Theatre is located at 2275 Platt Rd., just south of Washtenaw Ave. For tickets and information, call (313) 971-AACT (2228).

This searing play focuses on the issue of rape and the breaking point we all have in ourselves beyond which we tumble into violence. An ill-shaven, unkempt but smiling stranger named Raul (Scott Grant) shows up at the unlocked screen door of a shabby farmhouse on a Jersey highway. Ostensibly looking for someone named Joe, Raul quickly lets himself into the house where Marjorie (Leigh-Ann Danner) is alone. He quickly wrestles her to the floor and prepares to rape her while insisting upon her full co-operation. Rapidly, the tables are turned as Marjorie blinds the intruder with bug spray, binds him, blindfolds him, and imprisons him in the fireplace with a padlocked fire screen. She then proceeds to take the law into her own hands and exact her revenge. When Marjorie's roommates Terry (Adrianna Buonarrotti) and Patricia (Zehra Berkman) return home to this bizarre scene they wonder who to believe—their wild-eyed roommate or the guy in their fireplace who claims he was attacked when he stopped by to use the telephone.

"When it was first decided that Extremities would be slated for this Second Stage season, I didn't realize how topical this play would prove to be. I was certainly aware that there was a man loose in our community who is responsible for several brutal attacks," said director Jimmy Dee Arnold. "It is my hope as the director that Extremities will serve as a catalyst to activism—to help stop rapists from committing more crimes."

while. A few years ago, the church rented their facilities to a day care center. Many expressed their desire then to have their own early childhood center.

Earlier last spring, a few members started a committee to research the possibility. The enthusiastic committee worked and prayed very hard to find out exactly what was needed. They are convinced now that it is exactly what should happen because everything is falling into place so well.

A lot of help came from Lutheran churches in Ann Arbor that have some kind of early childhood center. Our Savior is part of the Lutheran Church Missouri Synod and help was obtained from them also. In October the congregation of Our Savior voted to give the go ahead and the committee has been working furiously since then. One enthusiastic member offered to be fund-raising chair and since October many people have donated equipment and dollars and the center is well on its way. Another committee member said the enthusiasm of the church members is great; the congregation is so excited about their new endeavors.

The first year plan is to open a preschool for 4-year-old children, 2 days a week for 2 1/2 hours. Enrollment will be limited to 15 children per class. Curriculum will consist of Bible stories and lessons, large and small muscle activities, art projects, cooking projects, stories, games, creative movement and outdoor play—all in a Christian atmosphere with loving Christian caregivers.

Lots of work still needs to be done, but members are convinced that God's help will continue to be there, and in September Lambs of Our Savior Christian Preschool will open its doors.

If anyone would like more information, they may call 475-1404, 475-3512 or 475-3356.

Views On Dental Health

GARY GOCHANOUR, D.D.S.

EARLY TOOTH OVERCROWDING

When should crooked teeth be straightened? As soon as they're detected! The old adage about an ounce of protection is especially true in orthodontics, where crooked teeth can be prevented by early treatment.

Diagnosed at a sufficiently early age, an unusual trend can often be stopped in its tracks—and its effects completely erased. To ensure early detection, a child should have a checkup by the family dentist at intervals of about six months, beginning at 2 1/2 to 3 years of age. Overcrowded and crooked teeth are most likely to make their entrance with the arrival of the four permanent incisors and the four permanent molars at around age six.

Prompt treatment is recommended when teeth are overcrowded. Some baby teeth may be removed ahead of their normal shedding time to allow nature to do a certain amount of tooth straightening. Known as interceptive orthodontics, it involves a one-by-one extraction in a well-planned sequence to make room for a better bite.

Prepared as a public service to promote better dental health. From the office of: GARY GOCHANOUR, D.D.S., 3108 Baker, Rd., Dexter. Phone 426-8336.

EMU Criminologist Sees Possible Hung Jury in O.J. Simpson Trial

The O.J. Simpson trial, while the subject of much cocktail chatter and tabloid sensationalism, also may make some new law, according to Gregg Barak, professor at Eastern Michigan University, and a criminologist and media expert.

"Especially in domestic violence cases, defense attorneys representing battered women who have killed their abusers have wanted to get the history of abuse on the court record," said Barak, who is head of EMU's department of sociology, anthropology and criminology. "Now, we have the O.J. double murder case and the opportunity for prosecutors to demonstrate the importance of keeping the history of domestic violence part of the record."

"I believe in the future, there will be some differentiation, different procedures for different offenses depending upon when histories are important and when they are not, and this case will contribute to that. In other words, there might be a different criminal procedure for different crimes, such as one for murder, one for rape and one for kidnapping."

Barak speculated that because Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Lance Ito doesn't want to have his rulings appealed, he is likely to take a middle-ground position on Simpson's history of domestic abuse against his ex-wife. Barak said Ito will allow testimony on some of the more recent incidences, including the victim's call to a domestic abuse shelter five days before she was murdered and a 911 telephone call made when the victim reported she was being threatened by Simpson.

"I don't think Ito will be overturned," said Barak. "His responses have been pretty balanced."

Barak believes both public opinion and that of the judge is beginning to turn against the former football and media star. "Ito, like most of the world now, is being influenced by the prosecution presenting detailed information on the domestic violence issue. Judge Ito is a human being, as objective as he can be, but people are starting to dislike Mr. Simpson, and I think the judge is of that opinion."

The defense, said Barak, will present two or three scenarios showing Nicole Simpson in a negative way, such as being involved in a drug deal gone awry. "Her character will be thoroughly assassinated," says Barak. "It's incumbent upon them to create reasonable doubt by presenting a situation that is as believable as the evidence against O.J."

Barak thinks the media will not have a direct influence on the trial's outcome, but that the jurors will be fair and reach their own conclusions. "I'm betting on a hung jury," he said.

Congregational Church Celebrating 100th Anniversary of Present Building

Members of the First Congregational Church of Chelsea are this week celebrating the 100th anniversary of their church building which was dedicated Jan. 31, 1895.

On Feb. 18, 1894 the first church which was built in 1852 along with the parsonage built in 1889, were destroyed by fire. This article is about the construction of the present church.

Of interest, also, is the history of the earlier meeting places from which this present Congregational Church evolved.

At a meeting held Feb. 21, 1849 at the Sylvan Center Schoolhouse, the First Congregational Church of Sylvan was founded. For two years services were held at various schoolhouses in the area.

In 1851 a regular meeting place was acquired in the Pierceville School. Pierceville was a thriving settlement in existence 19 years before Chelsea was platted. It was located at the intersection of Territorial Rd. (Old US-12) and Main St. (M-52). When Pierceville was abandoned at the advent of Chelsea, the schoolhouse was bought by Horace Smith, a teacher who had taught there. He moved it to 402 W. Middle St., and made it into a residence. Additions have changed it some, but one can still see the little schoolhouse.

A part of the Congregational Church of Chelsea's pioneer heritage is on the same street, and it is in very good condition.

In 1850 Chelsea was platted by Elisha and James Congdon. Elisha's land was east of Main St. and James' was west.

One particular significance of this site is that an active church still occupies the lots deeded, provisionally, in 1851 to the First Congregational Society by Elisha Congdon. The provision was that if the First Congregational Society failed to build a church or should ever fail to rebuild within one year, the property would revert to Elisha Congdon's estate. This provision was nullified at his death by the executor of his will and his widow who made arrangements for a quick claim deed without consideration, for a sum of $10. This was paid by the church. Mr. Congdon had intended this action during his lifetime but he neglected to do so. Still, his original wishes have been honored. After the first church burned on Feb. 18, 1894, the present church was built and dedicated, debt free, on Jan. 31, 1895—143 years later a Congregational church still occupies the land. Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Congdon were members of this congregation.

In legal papers and correspondence the organization was referred to as the First Congregational Society of Chelsea, at least until after 1895.

This pioneer church was built two years after the first building (a store) was built in Chelsea and was the only church for eight years. There were 54 members when it was dedicated in 1852. Quite a congregation when the population of Chelsea was under 600. The farm families were a large portion of the membership. It was a meeting place for the town, and became more popular after remodeling in 1871 with the addition of a heated basement. It was the second building in town to have a furnace. This heated basement was in great demand by the townspeople for a meeting place. Home talent plays, lectures by University of Michigan professors, bell-ringers and magicians all entertained in it. Because of its constant use the village council erected the first lamp which was placed outside of the business district in front of the church.

The remodeled and enlarged church served the members until about 1893-94 when the decision to enlarge or build a new church became paramount. The question was settled by the fire. The most valuable item saved was the Estey reed organ. It was used later in the new church until 1907. It is on display in the fellowship room. Loss on the church and parsonage was placed at $7,000. It was insured for $5,200.

Immediately a committee was formed to procure an architect to prepare plans and specifications for a church building to cost not less than $6,000. Sidney Osgood of Grand Rapids was hired. In June 1894 John P. Foster, a local builder was hired.

The architect, Sidney J. Osgood, was nationally known for his church designs. By 1890 he had designed 64 nation-wide. His designs were visually impressive and affordable. Osgood's designs could be realized for about $7,000 to $12,000—the land included. Chelsea's church cost between $7,500 and $7,700 including the furnishings, the stone walks and approaches.

The First Congregational Church of Chelsea is of the Queen Anne style in which Osgood excelled. It resembles the 'Wealthy St. Baptist Church in Grand Rapids pictured in the Grand River Valley Review, which was his first such design, completed in 1886. The style features gabled roofs decked with ornate trim and a commanding corner tower with a steeply pitched roof, arches and finely detailed moldings. Most of his Queen Anne churches were designed of wood or brick veneers, but Chelsea's church was designed entirely of brick masonry, one of the few Osgood designed that way. The Chelsea church has some of the late Victorian design elements as intersecting gables trimmed with ornamental woodwork, carved wood detailing around arched windows, and a variety of exterior patterns done with bricks.

There is a touch of Osgood's Romanesque flavor in the brick and sandstone buttresses at the base of the tower and on the higher east wall of the church. Providing strength, they add beauty.

A rosette window in the sanctuary also on the east, is commonly associated with Romanesque architecture.

Many of his church designs featured semi-circular rows of seating, a popular feature of Protestant church design in the 19th-century. It was meant to bring the congregation closer to the pulpit. Each of the buildings centered around a larger main sanctuary adjoined by a smaller auditorium, with movable partitions in between that allowed for increased seating capacity if needed. The Chelsea church is of this design. The movable partition was two large doors which were raised into a wall. One door has been replaced with a permanent wall. The architecture blends well with both the residential and business areas of the village.

Sidney Osgood was born March 26, 1845 in Ellsworth on the Maine Coast. He attended the local primary schools and worked with his father Joseph, a builder who specialized in building churches throughout New England. But Sidney was attracted to the sea and at the age of 15, signed aboard a windjammer commanded by his uncle. He sailed the oceans for four years and twice rounded Cape Horn.

At 19 he returned to apprentice as a builder with his father, and to study architecture in Boston. Records do not indicate how formal the studies were, but at that time in the United States the carpenters and builders served as their own architects. One of his first commissions was the design of a colonial frame church in Pawtucket, R.I., built by his father.

In 1876, he came to Grand Rapids attracted by the opportunities that existed for a promising young architect in West Michigan's lumbering and furniture industries. There he became a locally and nationally well known architect. Mr. Osgood was a life-long member of Park Congregational church in Grand Rapids. He died in 1935 at the age of 90.

The builder, John Foster, was born in Sylvan township in 1850. From Old Houses of Chelsea-Book 2 by Paul Hoffman, "Mr. Foster became a respected builder and is well remembered by some for the fine structures he built in Chelsea. To name a few, the Kempf Bank building, Congregational church, St. Mary's Rectory, and the H.S. Holmes dwelling on E. Middle St." They are all in excellent condition at this time.

A conversation on Aug. 21, 1994 with a grandson, Edward Biessel of Chelsea, gave insight into the possible sources of some of the materials used in the construction of the Congregational church.

He had a barn in back of his home on S. Main St. in which he had a shop. Rough hewn lumber, probably from saw mills in Chelsea, was brought there and his employees would plane it to his needs and specifications.

The Sauer brothers in Ann Arbor, were finishing carpenters he contracted for many of his buildings. No doubt they did the beautiful woodwork in the church.

Foster sold International Harvester farm implements during the winter and built in the summer.

Varsity Cagers in 3-Way Tie for SEC Leadership

By Ben O'Connor

It has been a rough and tumble chain of events in this, the first round of SEC basketball competition, which ends with a three-way tie for first among Chelsea, Tecumseh and Dexter, and a promise of exciting games to come.

Friday's game at Chelsea vs. Pinckney started off slowly, with neither team putting a single shot through the hoop until halfway into the first quarter. From then on out, it was a tight game, both teams were driving down the court and playing tough defense. Final score was Chelsea, 50, Pinckney, 44.

Before getting to the Bulldogs, something must be said about Pinckney's Dave Mortenson, who played almost the entire game and was effective in holding Chelsea's leading scorer, Nick Brink, to only seven points in the second half. Brink accumulated 21 points Friday, including three 3-pointers and six rebounds.

The win Friday was needed for Chelsea's confidence, which was strained the week before by two losses to Dexter and Tecumseh. The Dawgs needed this boost to prepare them for the second leg of conference play. Friday's game was won with rebounds as much as it was with points. Chelsea out-rebounded Pinckney 48-44, including a season high of 23 offensive rebounds.

"Fifteen offensive rebounds is good," remarked coach Robin Raymond, "but 23 is incredible. We probably played our best defensive game of the season."

Chelsea shot 31 percent, hitting only 22 of 71, while Pinckney nearly mirrored the effort by shooting 32 percent and sinking 17 of 53. Raymond was pleased with the team's performance, though, as 21 of 24 shots were from the inside.

"We're getting the shots we want, and even if they aren't all falling, from a coaching perspective that's a positive aspect," said Raymond. "For that reason, the low shooting percentages don't bother me."

It was a difficult game for Brink, who had to battle Mortenson at every turn and was doing so from the unfamiliar position of point guard. Senior captain Chad Brown got into some early foul trouble and Brink picked up the slack when Brown was pulled for getting his third foul with six minutes remaining in the second quarter. His first two came in the first quarter.

"Moving Brink out of the off-guard position and sitting Chad really threw off our offensive strategy," Raymond said. "Chad's basically like our quarterback on the court."

When the starting lineup was sitting, the second string was strong. Juniors Damon McLaughlin and Kevin Cross had a couple of nice defensive plays, and Cross' tip-in turned 3-point play put the Bulldogs up 49-44 late in the game and clinched the win.

With the return of Scott Colvin and Kevin Coy, the Bulldogs were at full force to take on Pinckney, whose leading scorer, Adam Greenman, had to sit out due to a hand injury.

When Chelsea and Pinckney meet again, it will most likely be a determining game for the SEC title.

Other Chelsea scorers in the game were: Bryndon Skelton with eight points, Case McCalla with six points and 12 rebounds, Scott Colvin with five points and seven rebounds, Kevin Cross with four points and seven rebounds, Chad Brown with four points, and Damon McLaughlin with two points.

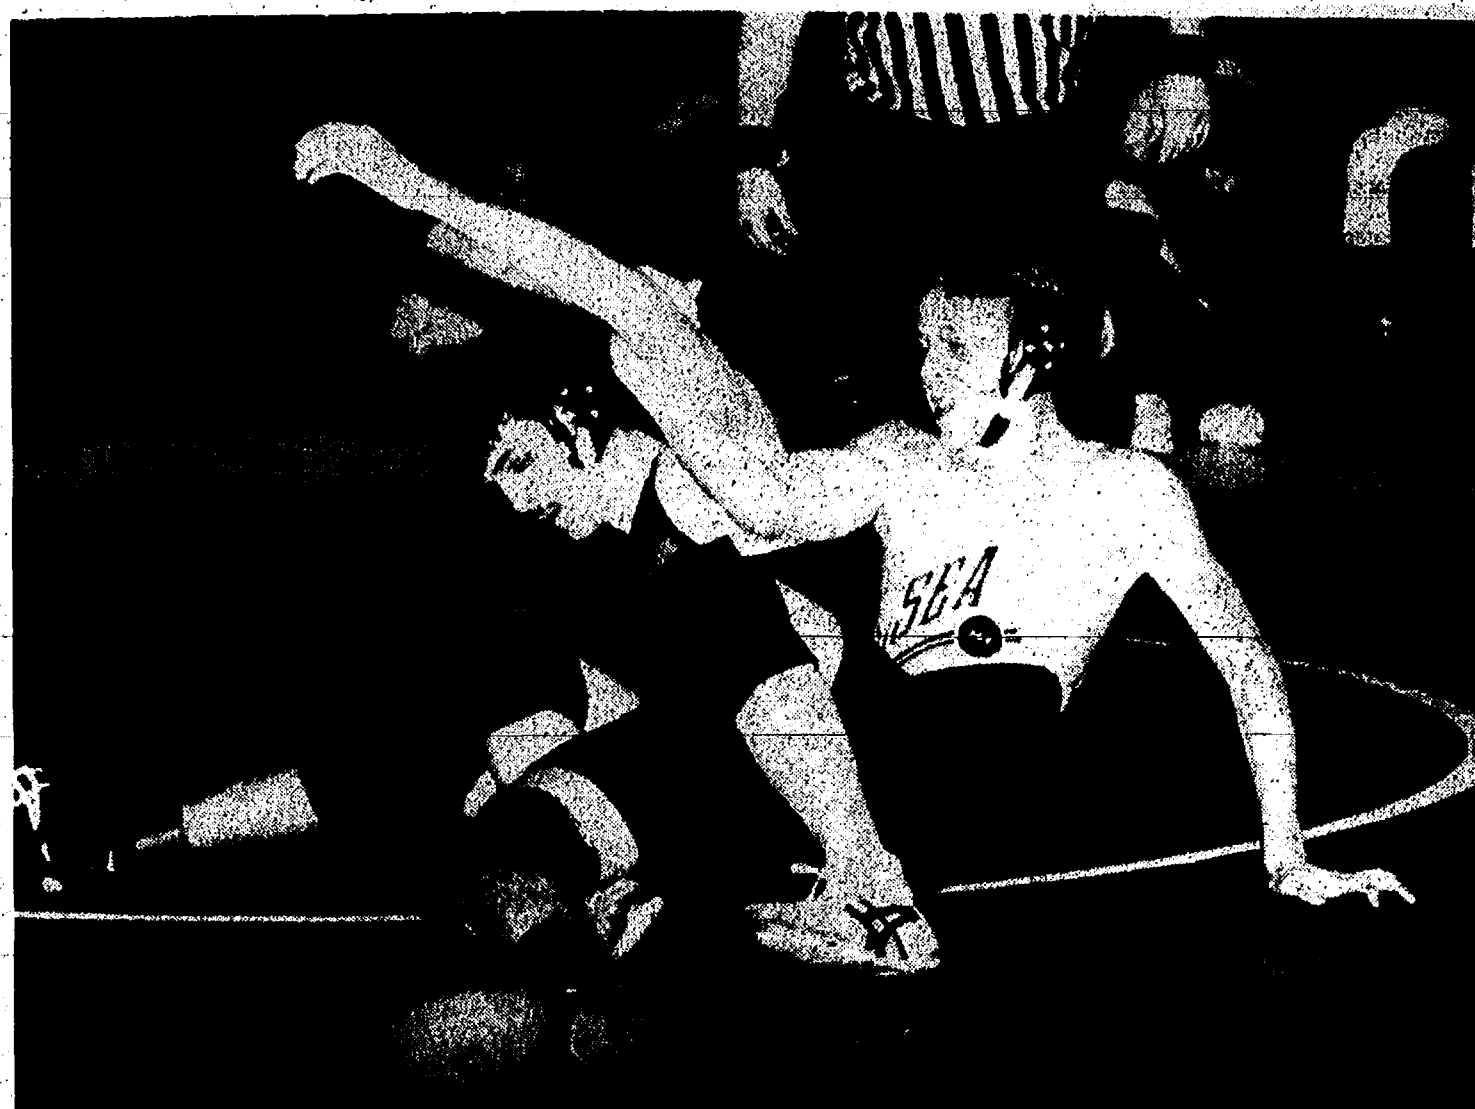

The Bulldogs also ventured to Fowlerville (9-3) Saturday but lost in overtime, 79-74. Raymond was pleased with the team's performance on Chelsea's only Saturday game.

"I thought we'd be tired, but we weren't," said Raymond. "Everyone played, and the story was just the opposite of Friday's game: We played great offense and average defense."

Double digit scorers Saturday were: Nick Brink with 24 points, Case McCalla with 14 points, Scott Colvin with 12 points, and Chad Brown with 12 points.

Chelsea now stands at 8-3 (4-2 in the SEC) after the first round. Along with the three teams tied for first are Pinckney and Saline with 3-3 records, making them only one game away from a possible five-way tie.

Chelsea next plays at home against Saline this Friday.

ZAC ERESTEN, wrestling at 106 lbs., defeated four competitors on his way to a championship last Saturday at the Williamston Wrestling Tournament. A total of 24 strong teams competed in what Coach Kerry Kargel called a Mini-State Meet.

Varsity Matmen Place 9th In Williamston Tourney

Chelsea varsity wrestlers participated in the prestigious 24-team Williamston Wrestling Tournament Saturday, Jan. 21.

In a meet that had several defending state champions, 43 state qualifiers and 40 regional qualifiers participating, Chelsea wrestlers placed 9th over-all.

Coach Kerry Kargel says this is a "Mini-State Meet." Chances are good that if you place in this tournament, you will probably qualify for State finals.

Chelsea's only champion was Zac Eresten at 106 lbs. Zac pinned Mick Walsh from Big Rapids in 3:08, then defeated Tory Birchmaier of New Lothrop 4-0; then wrestled Eric Bramos of Mason, who placed at the State meet last year and beat him 7-6. In the championship finals, Zac wrestled Keith Shoemaker of Leslie, who he had lost to last week, and won 10-3 to take first place.

At 126 lbs., Ray Hatch placed 2nd. Ray defeated Brett Faustman from Montague 1:52; then defeated Norm Morse from Montrose 9-5; then defeated Scott Wood of DeWitt 7-5. In the finals, Ray wrestled Nick Bowers of Durand and lost 5-3 in sudden death overtime. Ray was seeded 7th in his weight class; the first six seeds were all former state qualifiers.

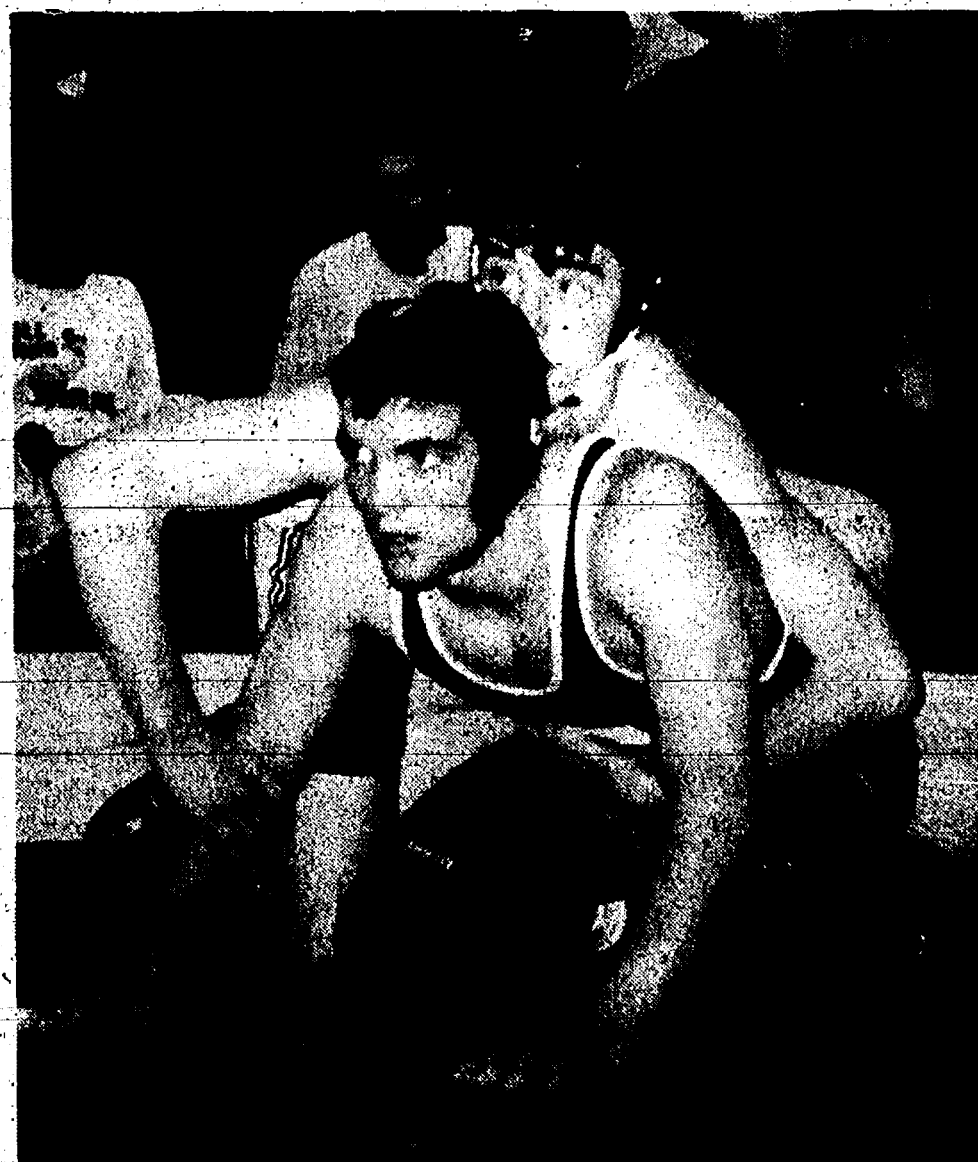

At 185 lbs., Jordan Dyer placed 3rd. Jordan pinned Josh Coulter from Montague in 1:52; then wrestled Roger Thorn from Eaton Rapids, who is the No. 1 ranked wrestler at 185 lbs. in the State of Michigan and lost 9-2. In the consolation finals, Jordan wrestled Josh Clymer from Durand and won, 4-2, in overtime to place third.

Ryan Ludwig placed fifth at 142 lbs. Ryan defeated Scott Zack of Montague 10-2; then wrestled Joe Marsh from Eaton Rapids, who placed third in State last year, and lost by a close score of 6-5; then defeated R. J. Lewis of Big Rapids 4-2; defeated Don Bartel of Monroe Jefferson 10-1; and finally defeated Jim Woodward of Montrose 12-2 to place fifth.

Also participating were Todd Pearsall at 100 lbs., went 0-2; Bob Bullock at 112, 0-2; Chris Hatch at 119 lbs., 0-2; Koby Foytik at 134 lbs., 1-2; Mike Alber at 151 lbs., 2-2; Brian Hall at 160 lbs., 2-2; Mike Thayer at 172 lbs., 2-3; Joe Barkman at 215 lbs., 0-2.

JORDAN DYER placed third in the tough 24-team Williamston tournament Saturday, Jan. 21. His only loss for the day was to the number 1 ranked wrestler in the state at 185 lbs.

BRIAN HALL wrestling at 160 lbs., won two and lost two matches at the Williamston Wrestling Tournament Saturday, Jan. 21. Chelsea went through the tough competition to place 9th in the tournament.

A study by Ohio State University shows that farmers and their non-farm neighbors get along surprisingly well despite the potential for conflicts in rural living. The study found that non-farmers enjoy being around many aspects of farming, especially watching farmers work outdoors with living things. However, the research also found that 85 percent of non-farmers did not want to live

SHERIFF'S REPORT

Sylvan Township

Stolen Vehicle

A 1991 Chevy Camaro was reported stolen in the 1800 block of Pierce Rd., Jan. 11. A 41-year-old township woman told police the vehicle, valued at $7,000, was stolen between 11:30 p.m. Jan. 10 and 6:30 a.m. Jan. 11. The vehicle was parked in front of the woman's home.

Runaway

A 15-year-old township girl was reported as a runaway from her home in the 1900 block of Pierce Rd., Jan. 14. It was reported that one of the girl's friend spent the night. When someone checked on the girls during the night, it was discovered both were gone. Both returned to the home at 6 a.m.

Taken Without Permission

A 1992 Ford Aerostar was taken without permission from the 800 block of Lowery Rd., Jan. 14. A 45-year-old Ypsilanti man said he thinks a female acquaintance took the car, valued at $6,000, but he's not sure of her last name. He last saw the vehicle in December.

Lima Township

Domestic Assault and Battery

Domestic assault and battery was reported in the 2800 block of Lima Center Rd., Jan. 14. A 37-year-old township woman told police her former boyfriend attacked her Jan. 13. She said they recently broke up and he attacked her by throwing her around the bedroom. When she called for help, she said he took the telephone from her. The woman apparently tried to fight back, and when she struck him he became enraged, punching her twice in the head. The woman's 14-year-old son witnessed the assault. The man admitted to police he hit his former girlfriend.

Accidental Property Damage

Accidental property damage was reported in the 10800 block of Sutton Place, Jan. 15. A 48-year-old township man told police pellets fired by goose hunters damaged four of his vehicles and his home. His neighbor apparently rents the location to goose hunters during hunting season.

Dexter Township

Drunken Driving

A 36-year-old Dexter man was arrested for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor on Island Lake Rd. near Wylie Rd., Jan. 13. Police were initially dispatched to a car that skidded off the roadway into a ditch. They arrived to find the driver asleep behind the wheel of his vehicle. When he woke up, deputies noted smelling an odor of intoxicants on the driver's breath. A breathalyzer test revealed the man's blood/alcohol level to be .23 percent, which is more than twice the legal limit.

Breaking and Entering

Breaking and entering was reported in the 9700 block of Willis Rd., Jan. 13. A 43-year-old township woman told police someone climbed through her son's bedroom window and left through a back door to the residence. The incident happened Jan. 12. The only item missing from the home was a window screen valued at $10. Police have no suspects.

JV Cagers Lose to Pinckney, Fowlerville

Junior Varsity basketball players from Chelsea High school lost both games they played last week.

Pinckney came visiting to Chelsea on Friday evening and left town with a 61-54 victory in their possession.

A fourth quarter spurt by Pinckney offset one of the better efforts by the young Bulldogs this season. Ashley Coy, Nathan Butler and Tim Lawrence played strong offensive games for the JVs. Coy scored 18 with 4 rebounds. Lawrence totaled 13 points. Butler scored 11 and had 8 rebounds.

Others scoring were Brian Bloomensaat 2, Paul Bragalone 2 and 6 rebounds; Jason Sprawka 2; Casey Wescott 2, Jason Lantis 4.

Chelsea had a total of 27 rebounds to 29 for Pinckney. Turnovers were 20 for Chelsea and 23 for Pinckney.

Scoring from the field Chelsea had 25 of 59 for a 42% mark.

Pinckney had 24 of 57 for 42%.

In free throw shooting Chelsea scored on 4 of 14 for a poor 29%, while Pinckney made 9 of 11 for an 82% mark.

Coach Dave Quilter said "We ran the plays well tonight and got lots of good shots. In the fourth quarter we got decent shots but didn't hit them. In the second quarter we lost our lead with poor shot selection."

Coach Quilter added "The third quarter, which had really hurt us this year, was our best of the season as we out-scored Pinckney 20-16. We beat their press and scored some easy baskets. The fourth quarter we still worked hard but the shots didn't go in."

After putting together a good, though losing effort Friday against Pinckney, the young Bulldogs went to Fowlerville Saturday and lost a poorly played game, 56 to 30.

Saturday proved to be the worst shooting night of the year from the field as the team hit only 7 of 45 for 16%.

Fowlerville out-rebounded the Bulldogs 41 to 29.

In free throw shooting Chelsea made 14 of 25 for 56% while Fowlerville made 4 of 16 for 25%. Lance Ching had a strong night off the bench to lead scorers with 11. Others scoring were Coy 7, Bloomensaat 3, Lantis 2, Wescott 2, Bragalone 2, Butler 2, and Lawrence 1.

Fowlerville played a strong aggressive defensive game which seemed to bother Chelsea.

Coach Quilter said "We went from one of our best efforts of the year to one of the worst. As a team we reacted poorly too. Fowlerville's pressure and didn't execute our offense all night. As a team we're continuing to take poor shots instead of working for the good ones like we did Friday night."

The team is now 1-10 for the season.

$ Money Management $

Prepared by the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants

* Miscellaneous Expenses May Add Up to a Tax Deduction

Expenses associated with job hunting, attending certain educational programs, and preparing your tax return have one thing in common: In the eyes of the IRS, they fall under the category of miscellaneous expenses, which means that they have the potential to offer you a tax deduction.

The Michigan Association of CPAs (MACPA) explains that when you itemize deductions on your tax return, these miscellaneous expenses generally are deductible to the extent that they exceed 2 percent of your adjusted gross income (AGI). The only way to know if you qualify for the deduction is to tally your expenses for the year. It's wise to do that now. That way, if you're close to the threshold, you can pay some upcoming miscellaneous expenses before year-end and qualify for help from Uncle Sam.

Various expenses fall into the "miscellaneous expense" category. Here's a look at a few of them.

Job-Hunting Expenses
 Job-hunting expenses are considered deductible as long as you confine your search to finding a job in the same line of work. Qualified expenses include the cost of job counseling, resume preparation and 50 percent of business meals. In some instances, travel and lodging costs may also be deducted.

Job-hunting expenses are deductible regardless of whether you actually land a job. However, deductions are not allowed for expenses associated with finding your first job or with re-entering the work force after a lengthy absence.

Education Expenses
 Similar rules apply to education expenses. You may not deduct the cost of education that prepares you for your first job or for a position in a different business or profession. To qualify for education expense deductions, you must be employed and the training must either be required by your employer for you to retain your current position, or maintain or improve the skills needed for your present job. Education expenses are not deductible if the courses you take prepare you for a new trade or profession.

Business Expenses
 Reimbursed business expenses that, along with other eligible miscellaneous expenses, exceed the 2 percent threshold. Qualified employee business expenses include: business travel and transportation; 50 percent of business meals and entertainment; automobile expenses (actual costs or 29 cents per mile); and business gifts (subject to a limit of $25 per recipient per year).

Investment-Producing Expenses
 Investment management fees and other investment-related expenses are also deductible, subject to the 2 percent floor. Allowable deductions include custodial fees for your individual retirement account, the rental expense of a safe deposit box used to hold securities and even the cost of computer software or on-line services to track your investment.

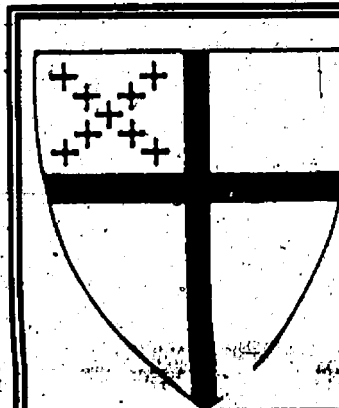

As you add up your miscellaneous expenses, be sure you have appropriate documentation.

THERE'S A NEW TROOP IN TOWN! Daisy Girl Scout Troop #58 held their first meeting on Jan. 12. The girls learned the story of Juliette "Daisy" Low, the founder of the Girl Scout movement in the United States. Each girl created a plaque with the words of the Girl Scout Promise written on it. They practiced reciting the Promise and making the Girl Scout Sign. Pictured above, left to right, are front row, Alice Butcher, Kara Panfil, Kelly Toon, and Chelsea Raupp; middle row, Kyle Goedert, Ayla Detroyer, Bridget Lynn, Casey Sullens, Katie Lynn, and Renee Powell; back, leaders, Meleah Raupp and Cathy Toon. Not pictured Adrienne Wheaton.

ON MY HONOR, I WILL TRY: Daisy Girl Scout Troop #58 had a great time learning about the Girl Scout Promise while making a craft with the Promise printed on it. Pictured, left to right, are Alice Butcher, Meleah Raupp, Katie Lynn, Casey Sullens, Julie Sullens and Cathy Toon.

Has the gospel cast its spell on you?
 Do you want to take on the world?
 Do you need a solid place to stand?

Coming In Concert LARRY DAMERON

Larry is a singer-songwriter who has been called into a unique full time music ministry sharing God's word in song. His music is encouraging and challenging, with prayerful melodies as well as toe-tapping tunes. The songs come from Larry's heart expressing where he has been, and is heading in his walk with the Lord. As the result of a work related injury in 1989, which prevented Larry from returning to work, he didn't question God as to why but rather what the Lord wanted him to see through this.

Larry has since recorded and released two albums ONE STEP CLOSER and MAKING IT SIMPLE. He has been traveling throughout the midwest sharing the Gospel as the Lord opens the doors and leads. Many songs from these two projects have aired on national Christian radio stations, and Larry has appeared on Christian television as well. For a time of sharing and worship plan to attend.

A TRUCK CRASH around 5 a.m. Wednesday closed the eastbound lanes of I-94 for about 15 hours before the mess could be cleaned up. A steel hauler was having trouble with his truck but hadn't yet pulled off the highway and crawled along slowly. Along comes the second truck driven by Jesus Gonzales, Jr., of Chicago. He attempted to serve into the left lane to pass the disabled unit but the cab of his truck caught the rear of the steel hauler, demolishing the cab. A passenger in the cab, also from Chicago, was thrown from the cab and a foot was amputated. All three were taken to University of Michigan Hospitals in Ann Arbor. The passenger suffering the foot amputation was the only serious injury. As traffic slowed for the accident another car crashed into the rear of a third truck. No injuries were reported. The truck shown above was carrying a load of sodium gluconate, a sugar-salt compound used in food processing, which spilled out on the highway in the accident. The Washtenaw county Emergency Management team was called in to handle the spill. A private company from Romulus was called in to clean up the mess of diesel fuel spilled with the food compound.

Michigan's Farmland Hard Hit By Urban Growth, Development

A study released today by the Michigan Society of Planning Officials reveals that from 1982 to 1992, the state lost 854,000 acres of farmland (133 square miles per year), an area the size of Rhode Island, principally due to urban growth pressures.

The report said most of the loss—about 10 acres of farmland converted every single hour of every single day—occurred on the state's most productive agricultural soils, in southern Michigan counties and represents an annual loss of $60 million to $120 million in local farm revenue. Counties in southeast Michigan, Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo and Traverse City areas experienced the greatest farmland loss, with many losing 15 to 20 percent of their farmland in less than a decade. Michigan's farmland loss in the last 40 years has been greater and more rapid than any other state in the Great Lakes region.

If current land-use trends continue, the report projects a loss of an additional 1.8 million acres by 2012, while many areas could experience a 35 percent or greater future reduction in farmland. For example, agriculture in Ottawa county, near Grand Rapids, whose $233 million in annual gross farm sales is the highest of any county in Michigan, will be greatly impacted by an increase of 100,000 new residents by 2015—a 54 percent increase in population.

The Agricultural Trends Working Paper was prepared by the Planning & Zoning Center, Inc. of Lansing for the Michigan Society of Planning Officials (MSPO) in co-operation with the American Farmland Trust. This study is one of 12 reports to be completed as part of the MSPO Trend Future Project, funded by the Charles Stewart Mott Foundation and the Frey Foundation, that focus on land use changes in Michigan and the implications if those changes continue.

Gordon Guyer, director of the Michigan Department of Agriculture, says the study is a wake-up call. "Agriculture is the second largest industry in the state, contributing $37 billion to our economy and employing one of every eight people," Guyer noted. "This report clearly shows we can no longer take agriculture and farmland for granted. Something must be done, and done soon, to reverse the trends we are experiencing."

Over-all the report notes, urban areas in Michigan have seen a 1 percent population increase in the last 20 years compared to a 20 percent rise in suburbia. With the movement into rural areas has come a dramatic expansion in housing, lot sizes and the resultant loss of even more rural land. Rural land fragmentation is occurring at an accelerated pace with a dramatic increase in the number of 10-acre or larger building sites, partly the result of the Subdivision Control Act.

The impact of increasing residential development in rural areas goes beyond the loss of productive agricultural soils, emphasizes the report. The remaining farmers find it difficult to operate with competing land uses as land values soar, traffic increases, the number of farm supplier and processors decrease. In addition, more non-farm rural residents complain about noise, dust or odors associated with modern day farming practices.

The report says economic pressures also are making it difficult for many farmers to stay in agriculture, especially when offered an opportunity to cash out at prices inflated by encroaching development. In 1992, 57 percent of Michigan's 46,500 farms reported a net loss. Only 21 percent had net incomes above $10,000 and about 60 percent relied on off-farm employment to supplement their income. Even after the passage of Proposal A, Michigan's farm property tax rate is still the nation's fourth highest, two-to-three times greater than other major agricultural states, while residential property tax rates are near the national average.

The farming population is aging, with the average age of farmers reaching an all-time high. From 1982 to 1992, the number of farmers over 65 increased 7 percent while the number of farmers under 34 decreased 55 percent. The trend is most evident in areas experiencing increased development pressure and rapid farmland loss.

"Forty-four percent of Michigan's agricultural land is owned by farmers 55 years of age or older," observed David Skjaerlund, co-author of the report and co-ordinator of the Governor's Task Force on Farmland and Agriculture Development. "Those 4.5 million acres could change hands in the next 10 to 20 years and we must identify ways to make it just as profitable to continue farming the land as to develop it."

Michigan's escalating loss of farmland parallels a national trend, according to Dennis Bidwell, director of land protection for American Farmland Trust in Washington and supervisor of AFT's efforts in Michigan. "Nation-wide, we are losing our best farmland at a rate of about 1.5 million acres every year. And it's not just the food-producing aspects of the land we are losing—it's also our wildlife habitat, the open space on which our tourism and recreation industries depend, and watersheds for our cities."

The Agriculture Trends report also serves as the background study for the Governor's Farmland and Agriculture Development Task Force which is examining new policy initiatives to protect farmland and enhance the vitality of Michigan agriculture.

The Michigan Society of Planning Officials is a nonprofit educational organization founded in 1945 to provide information, education and training to local planning officials and Michigan's citizens on a broad range of subjects. MSPO's office is at 414 Main St., Suite 211, Rochester, Mich. 48307; 810/651-3339.

American Farmland Trust is a national, non-profit membership organization working to stop the loss of productive farmland and promote farming practices that lead to a healthy environment. AFT's National Office is at 1920 N Street, N.W., Suite 400, Washington, D.C. 20036; 202/659-5170.

Appointed by Governor John Engler last February, the Michigan Farmland and Agriculture Development Task Force will present recommendations to the governor for strengthening the state's agricultural industry and maintaining land in agricultural production at a press conference on Wednesday, Dec. 14. For more information contact David Skjaerlund, Task Force Co-ordinator; 517/484-4954.

Eat A Variety of Foods To Avoid Boredom With Diet

By Debbie Barrow, Washtenaw Extension Home Economist
By now you have probably heard that eating a variety of food is one of the basics of a healthful diet. Eating a variety of foods helps ensure that we get a wide range of vitamins, minerals and other nutrients essential for a well balanced diet.

This sounds simple to do, but is it? It should be. We live in a world of super supermarkets. Nearly 40 new food products are introduced into distribution each day. Scores of fast food restaurants offer hundreds of items, and grocery shelves are stocked with thousands of foods. It's hard to imagine not getting enough variety.

The Food Guide Pyramid provides a guideline for eating different foods from each of the suggested five food groups. We need to eat a certain number of servings from each food group and we're encouraged to eat different foods within each food group.

Yet, the average American eats with very little variety. We often prepare the same recipes, order the same fast food meal, consume the same types of bread and cereal, and drink the same kind of juice day after day.

If you see yourself in this picture, you may want to try your own survey. Think about what you have eaten the past three days. Write everything down by food group. Start with grain foods, such as bread, cereal or pasta. Then do the same for each of the other food groups—vegetables, fruits, dairy or calcium foods, and meats or protein foods. How many foods reappear on the list?

If you do one thing each week, you'll be adding to your food variety and you'll be chasing away the hum-drum food blues.

Players Will Present 'Shock of Recognition'

Dexter Community Players will be presenting a dessert theater production of the Shock of Recognition by Christopher Durang. The one-act comedy, set in the 1960's, centers around the mature theme of whether one scene of a play should remain as written or be modified to established norms.

Playwright Jack Barnstable would like to break new ground in the theater by having his new play open with a husband coming out of the bathroom in the buff. His goal is to provide the "shock of recognition" on the part of the audience. The producer, Herb Miller isn't ready to believe that the American Theater is ready for such a sight. Miller sets out to prove his point by questioning his young secretary on her reaction to the possible staging. When her response isn't conclusive, Richard Pawling, an over eager actor is brought into the office to "read" for the part. Pawling quickly gets caught up in the character as he tries everything to get selected for the part.

Veteran actor, Jerry Klein portrays Herb Miller, the reluctant producer. Jerry has been involved in many plays in the Dexter area, including the recent DCP productions of Little Mary Sunshine, and Dial "M" for Murder. Jerry has appeared in the television shows Gunslinger and Have Gun Will Travel, as well as national commercials.

Walter F. Burge, a newcomer to the Dexter Community Players, plays the part of the trend setting playwright. Walter, an Ann Arbor native, has worked with several theater groups including the Ann Arbor Civic Theater, the Gaelic Theater Company, and the Flaming Gorilla Theater Company. He has participated in graduates student's film projects at the University of Michigan.

The part of the secretary is played by Tara Funke of Whitmore Lake. Tara's stage career began with the high school productions of Little Shop of Horrors, Calamity Jane and Grease. She has been involved with the DCP since 1992 debuting in Anything Goes. Tara was part of the fantastic DCP 1993 summer production of Jesus Christ Superstar.

Bill Kotowski plays the part of the exuberant would be actor Richard Pawling. Bill has been involved with numerous productions of the Dexter Community Players including The Odd Couple, Dial "M" for Murder, and Oklahoma. Bill has also been involved behind the scenes with other DCP productions and is currently serving on the DCP board as treasurer.
