Jared Klumpp Attends Boys State

■ Chelsea teen sponsored by Dexter American Legion.

Chelsea High school senior Jared Klumpp attended Boys State June 18-24 at Michigan State University to study American government and participate in mock political campaigns. A former Dexter resident, Jared requested sponsorship through the Dexter American Legion Post 557, where he currently serves as the Jr. Vice-Commander of the Sons of the American Legion squadron.

Boys State revolves around the governments of the cities and counties that make up a fictitious 51st state. This year the state was divided into eight separate counties, with two cities in each county. Jared was elected to the City Council of "Tyler City", a town of 25,000 residents. At the first meeting, the Council members were presented with a list of problems to address and chose to work on making the best use of an abundance of water in the area while trying to solve the city's high rate of unemployment.

The region desperately needed a hospital, so the Tyler City Council voted to build a new one to help create jobs. Also, because the city was located along a large river, the Council voted to build a water-themed amusement park and commissioned a riverboat to be built and then run by city employees.

Polk City, a small neighboring agricultural community, had inadequate water sources, so Tyler City agreed to share the cost of a new water pipeline. In exchange, for excess food produced on area farms, Polk City received fresh water pumped from Tyler City's water purification facility. In keeping with this year's Boys State theme of "Volunteerism", the Tyler City Council then set up a food stamp program administered by volunteers to distribute the excess food provided by Polk City.

Since co-operation was expected between all the government bodies, the Tyler City Council also worked out an agreement with Blair County to provide funds toward the expansion of a county park to include a new marina and boardwalk. In exchange, Tyler City received a tract of land for a new golf course. It was also the responsibility of the City Council to appoint three citizens to serve on the County Board of Commissioners, a City Attorney, a Chief of Police, a Fire Chief, a City Engineer, a City Assessor, a City Health Officer, a Street Commissioner, a City Recreation Board and three citizens to serve on the county school board.

A member of the Federalist party, Jared especially enjoyed the gubernatorial campaign because a resident of his city was eventually elected governor. All the Tyler City residents pitched in, making banners, etc. to get their man elected.

"Our candidate blew away the competition at the convention because he was an excellent speaker and he concentrated on the difficult issues like welfare and health care, while his opponents basically tried to get by on personality alone," Klumpp said.

The 700 Boys State delegates filled four dormitories on the MSU campus, so it provided a great opportunity to make new friends from around the state. Jared's roommate was from the uppermost tip of the Keweenaw Peninsula in the Upper Peninsula and it took an 11-hour bus ride to deliver him to Boys State. The delegates enjoyed plenty of recreational activities during the week, such as softball and volleyball tournaments, swimming, pizza parties during the Red Wings playoffs, playing in the band or joining the newspaper staff. Delegates attended a mock trial and a highlight of the week was a visit to the state Capitol building, a 4-mile walk away.

"Boys State was such a great experience. My dad was a delegate 30 years ago and I've been looking forward to going for years. I highly recommend it," Klumpp said.

CHELSEA, VFW POST 4076 and Auxiliary members gathered Saturday evening to mark the 50th Anniversary of their founding. Charles Ritter, center, one of four surviving charter members and the post's first commander served as master of ceremonies. William Rademacher, Chelsea attorney and a World War II veteran, was principal guest speaker.

Gayle Scott, Department of Michigan FVW Auxiliary president also brought congratulations from the state level. Approximately 140 guests were present for the affair held at UAW Local 1284 Hall. Many of those present were cited for long service to the organization. Pictures of these persons will be published next week.

Chelsea School Board Narrows Search for Architect from 3 to 2

■ TMP/GHB knocked out of the running to provide design services.

Chelsea School District's Board of Education narrowed down their search for an architect to design two new schools and renovate the existing buildings Wednesday, June 28.

Kingscott & Associates and Fanning/Howey Associates are now in the running for the estimated $2 million contract. Both proposed similar bids for the design of a new elementary and high school, as well as renovations to the existing schools. Edward Richardson, superintendent of Chelsea Schools, said the third firm, TMP/GHB Associates, presented a bid slightly higher than the other two.

The Kalamazoo-based firm of Kingscott designed Dexter Community Schools, new elementary and middle schools. The firm has a repertoire of school projects that includes elementary schools in Grand Ledge, Holt, Fowlerville, Sturgis and Kentwood school districts; and high schools in Grand Ledge, Holt, Lincoln Consolidated, Holland, Kentwood and Carson City-Crystal. The firm boasts a work load comprised of 90 percent school design with a staff of 42, including architects, engineers, educational planners and interior designers.

Kingscott has proposed to divide its firm into two teams for the $45 million Chelsea Schools project. Each would present plans to the board before construction gets underway. Susan Einspahr, a partner at Kingscott with 18 years project management, programming and design experience with the firm, would serve as project leader for the first team. Fellow partner Earl Frazier, chief executive officer at Kingscott, would serve as the project leader for the second team. His responsibilities would include design of the new high school, renovations to Beach Middle school and reconstruction of the high school into a community complex and central administration building. Architect Sara Haselschwardt, a Chelsea High graduate and associate in the firm, would be the main designer for the new elementary school and renovation project set for North and South Elementary schools. She is a senior design architect responsible for programming, schematics, design and design development.

The Williamston-based firm of Fanning/Howey claims to be the national leader in educational facilities with 96 percent of its projects school design. The firm's resume includes the design of high schools in Williamston, Imlay, Gaylord, Macomb and Leslie; and elementary schools outside the state in Indiana, Ohio and Florida.

Fanning/Howey offices are located in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and Florida, but guarantees personal service. Ron Fanning, president and chief executive officer, would oversee the project. Michael Hall would be principal and project manager for Chelsea. Randy Sprunger, principal and project designer, would oversee the design elements in each project.

Chelsea Students To Take Further Responsibility For Health Practices

Students in the Chelsea School District will gradually learn to take responsibility for their health practices as each grade level introduces in knowledge and understanding displayed in the health curriculum for the 1995-96 school year.

The decision-making model has been changed this year to evolve into a sharper program for students and teachers alike.

"Human sexuality will be combined with health education," said curriculum director Laurie Bissell. "It will be taught by health teachers, instead of science teachers as it was in the past."

The health curriculum for grades kindergarten through eighth grades uses parts of the revised Michigan Model for Comprehensive School Health Education lessons and curriculum materials as its major resource.

The curriculum in ninth grade uses parts of the Teenage Health Teaching Modules as its prime resource. The human sexuality units in each grade, five through nine, were developed by a sub-committee of the Sex Education Advisory Committee in 1991 and have been subsequently updated.

Chelsea High school teacher Jim Tallman said he has been teaching the curriculum for a few years and welcomes any changes.

"I'm looking forward to it," he said. "I'm excited about it."

The revised Michigan Model curriculum has been developed through the co-ordinated efforts of the following State of Michigan Departments and offices: education, public health, mental health, social services, highway safety, health and medical affairs and substance abuse. It was reviewed by a state-wide committee composed of many state organizations, parents and teachers.

The curriculum develops a scope and sequence of objectives for the following traditional health topics: safety, nutrition, family health, consumer health, community health, growth and development, substance use and abuse, personal health practices, emotional and mental health, disease prevention and control. Aspects of these topics are taught at each grade level.

The revised Michigan Model and Teenage Health curricula have been modified to fit the needs of our students by curriculum committees of teachers and the curriculum director with feedback from the staff and parents.

Students' outcomes were determined on the basis of a co-ordinated curriculum through the grades and the needs of our children for a balanced curriculum. Instructional materials to accompany these outcomes were carefully selected to teach to the outcomes sought.

The human sexuality units are based on an agreed upon philosophy statement, goals, and student learning outcomes for each grade. Many sources were used to help the committee determine the goals and outcomes, but they were based, ultimately, on what the committee believes reflects the views of the Chelsea community as a whole.

"These outcomes also reflect many compromises and committee decisions," Bissell said.

The course of study is within the guidelines established by Public Act 226, which is part of the school code for the State of Michigan. The instructional materials were chosen which best fit the outcomes and which also fit the time constraints for the curriculum.

In fifth grade, the sexuality education unit is taught by qualified medical resource persons rather than the classroom teachers. One and one-half hour sessions are held in the fall and spring of the year. Boys and girls are taught separately but are given the same information.

In sixth, seventh, and eighth grades, the sexuality education unit is taught in six to eight days and is part of the health class which is in turn part of the science class. The unit is taught by classroom teachers who have been certified to teach sex education.

In high school, the sexuality education unit is taught in the health unit, usually taken by students in the ninth grade. It is taught by the health teachers who have been certified to teach sex education.

Sandra Merkel, school board secretary, said she feels that health education stops at ninth grade. She would like it to continue to the 10th through 12th grade levels as well.

The health curriculum for grades kindergarten through ninth grade is intended to promote healthy lifestyle behaviors and attitudes. It attempts to provide a comprehensive program in the areas of physical and emotional health and safety.

Students are led to begin to take responsibility for their personal health practices as they learn to see connections among how their bodies function, their needs, and the consequences of their behaviors. They are made aware that a healthy lifestyle involves choices and decision-making as well as knowledge and information about appropriate health practices.

These choices and decisions require solving problems and will depend, of course, upon each student's family values, Bissell said. The emphasis is on preventing health problems through understanding and rational decision-making, she said.

Laura Atkinson, a first-year high school teacher, said the health curriculum will feature a wellness emphasis. Families' values, as well as improved levels of nutrition counseling, are to be instituted. The Chelsea School District acknowledges the family as the primary influence on children's values, attitudes, and behaviors. Thus the human sexuality curriculum is intended to complement parental and religious teachings as it promotes health and responsibility. Abstinence before marriage is the fundamental guiding principle of this portion of the curriculum.

Each student's goal for human sexuality education is to: understand the human reproductive system; understand the broad physiological, psychological, and emotional changes that occur during the course of human development; understand that responsible sexual behavior before marriage is abstinence; learn skills for building healthy relationships based on mutual respect and self-discipline; learn skills for healthy living; recognize the media as a powerful social influence and learn skills to combat its negative impact; understand that the family is the primary influence on values, attitudes and behaviors; understand the meaning of human sexuality; learn skills for refusal techniques for different situations; and learn consequences of sexual activity, including health risks such as sexually-transmitted diseases (STDs) and teen pregnancy.

In addition, the following goals are part of the health curriculum: value and know how to maintain sound personal health and wellness; respect laws and rules prohibiting drugs and develop resistance to influences which encourage substance abuse; develop understanding of the functions of the human body systems and how they relate to disease prevention, nutrition, exercise and drugs; learn about injury prevention and safe practices and first aid; learn problem solving skills and being responsible for own health whenever possible; and learning about community health resources.

The program's goal is to involve parents in communication with their children about the human sexuality and the health program.

The health courses outlined in the course of study are required of all students in kindergarten through grade nine. However, by law (P.A. 226 of 1977), parents must be notified when the lessons on human sexuality education, aids education and sexual abuse education are to be given, and must be provided with the opportunity to preview the materials.

In Chelsea, parents are informed by mail about when specific topics will be taught and are invited to an evening meeting to view the instructional materials.

By law, parents have the right to request that their child be excused.

School Board To Hire New Staff

Chelsea School District's Board of Education will fill staff posts at the July 10 board meeting.

Superintendent of schools Edward Richardson said the board will be prepared to hire a high school counselor, high school social studies teacher and special education teacher based on staff recommendations at the next board meeting.

4 Years Ago...

Wednesday, July 3, 1991—

If you're planning to drive into the village to watch the July 4 fireworks display tomorrow night at the Chelsea Community Fairgrounds, best advice is to arrive early. A larger-than-usual crowd is anticipated for the 10 p.m. show due to fireworks blackouts in Ann Arbor and Whitmore Lake this year.

The Chelsea-Ann Arbor bus route is here to stay for at least a few more months. Last Tuesday, village council approved a subsidy of $1,000 to continue the Ann Arbor Transportation Authority route through September. Whether the route will continue after September, however, depends on several factors. On Monday, the fare was increased from $1 to $1.75 each way. In addition, council approved the elimination of Saturday service. The combination means the village was able to knock almost $6,000 off its requested subsidy.

Bill Schuette, director of the Michigan Department of Agriculture, met Washtenaw county area farmers and business owners face to face at an open meeting at the Freedom Township Hall last Friday morning. The main issue of concern was the Washtenaw County Health Department Community Right To Know Regulation of 1986, an ordinance administered by Director of Emergency Management Daniel Harsh, and overseen by the Washtenaw County Board of Commissioners.

Chelsea police have shifted gears and are now patrolling village streets during the daytime on bicycles when the weather permits. The department has always had a bicycle patrol, but it has been used mostly at night and was voluntary during the daytime. About a month ago the bicycle patrol became mandatory under rules instituted by chief Lenard McDougall.

BEHIND THE HEADLINES:

★ General Graham Says SDI Needed Now

A space-borne missile defense system would be far more effective, and less costly, than land-based systems currently under consideration. So, why aren't we building one?

LI. General Daniel Graham has spent the last 15 years telling everyone who would listen that it's "foolhardy" to spend billions on defense against ground, naval, and air attack, while ignoring the threat of ballistic missiles. "So long as the United States and its allies remain totally vulnerable to attack or blackmail with missiles," Graham warns, "there will be an irresistible urge on the part of ambitious regimes to acquire them." Graham adds that U.S. satellites and other "space-borne assets," which in recent years have proven to be "the key to success in all types of military operations," are also vulnerable to missile attack.

In Congress, says Graham, the main objection to Ronald Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative (known as SDI) has been the "unspecified high costs of space systems." The systems that General Graham has in mind, however, would require only "modest increases in expenditures" and might ultimately pay for themselves by serving as a catalyst for commercial space activities. "This synergism between space-born military developments and the general health of the high-tech sector of the U.S. economy should be seriously considered when we choose among missile defense options," contends Graham.

Despite popular belief to the contrary, space-born missile defenses do not cost more than ground-based systems. According to Graham, "a space-borne system—always in position to defend any spot on the planet—costs about one-fourth (as much as) a ground-based system, which must be deployed at high cost to defend two localized areas."

General Graham believes that the already well-developed space-borne Brilliant Eyes and Brilliant Pebbles systems can provide "effective missile defense of all 50 states, our allies, and our troops overseas at far less cost than we are now apparently prepared to pay for a limited defense of designated areas overseas—(which) will not provide protection for the United States." Theater missile defenses can also be provided, Graham adds, at "considerably less cost than current programs entail."

General Graham laments the fact that current defensive systems are limited to theater use. "National missile defense (has been) funded as research-only," he says, "and space-borne defenses are (kept) 'off the table.' The result is high costs for a system of (only) modest capability."

So, what's standing in the way of a space-based missile defense system? Politics, of course. A slavish devotion to the obsolete ABM Treaty and an ideological aversion to "Star Wars" are two persistent political prejudices that must be overcome. Summing up the sad state of affairs, Graham argues that "we are now pursuing for political reasons missile defenses which are costly, and relatively inefficient. We have the option to pursue far better, far cheaper solutions, while maximizing beneficial economic impacts."

Let's quit playing politics and do what we need to do to defend ourselves, before it's too late. A space-based missile defense system is clearly the way to go. Let's take the initiative—the Strategic Defense Initiative!

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

All the regulars at the country store are well past what is general thought of as working years, but old age just give them an excuse to keep on loafing. They say they're retired, and they keep a straight face as long as they're not pushed on what they retired from.

The holiday part of the Fourth of July doesn't get them worked up, but they're big on Independence Day as a time for Americans to rejoice over their freedoms and remind themselves of their responsibilities. The first item on the agenda Saturday night was the Fourth, what it was, and is, and how the country has changed along with it.

General speaking, they were agreed with Bug Hookum, who said what use to be an observance of our liberty and a time to take stock of values has turned into a stock car race from sea to shining sea. Instead of parades, barbecues and speeches where they can rest and recreate, Bug said, folks want to get on the road and wear themselves to a frazzle going as hard as they can, as long as they can. This ain't lost on the oil companies when you note how gas prices shot up in the past month, was Bug's words.

Zeke Grubb picked up the traffic ball and run with it. He said he has noticed in recent years that folks don't talk about New York cab drivers because that's how everybody drives. The more cars on the road the closer everybody cuts it and the more chances they take. Zeke said it looks to him like all the defensive drivers now are playing offense. They switch lanes on the interstate for no reason but to fill the space between you and the car in front, he said, and if you drive no more than 10 miles over the limit on two lane roads they line up behind you and blink their lights to tell you to get out of the way.

It's certainly true, Clem Webster allowed, that the closer we live the meaner we get, and that includes living on the road. But just like the cab driver in New York, we've got to learn the rules as they change or we get run over. Nowadays if we don't take chances we never get anywhere. Besides, Clem said, he recent saw a birthday card in the drugstore that brought Zeke to mind. It said "Welcome to 65, the make a slow left turn and leave on your turn signals for the next five miles stage of your life."

As for the Fourth and a time to think about the blessings of freedom, Clem said Haiti comes to mind. What happened there recent was called elections, but what it was was mass confusion. The good news, according to the papers, was that we paid only $12 million to help with the voting, and fewer people were killed than during that poor country's last two tries at some pun akin to democracy. The burnt child fears the fire, Clem said, and democracy has a hard time taking root where Government has been the enemy of the people.

Even Ed Doolittle sided with Clem. Ed said we can talk about our $5 trillion debt and squabble among ourselves, but the plain fact remains that this country is seen as a beacon of hope for people all over the world. Clem added that grownups need to remember how big our parents looked to us when we were little. That's how America looks to people trying to stand up and walk free.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew

EMU Students Attend Business Convention

Kristina L. Farrar of Pinckney and Gerard M. Brown of Newburgh, Ind., students at Eastern Michigan University, will represent EMU at the national convention of Alpha Kappa Psi in Washington, D.C., this August.

Dr. Stewart Tubbs, dean of EMU's College of Business, said Farrar and Brown will receive a stipend for the trip from the College of Business Development Fund, the fraternity's local Zeta Kappa chapter and EMU's Student Government Association.

The Zeta Kappa chapter at EMU was established in 1964 and has inducted more than 2,000 members, including students, alumni, faculty and administrators. Under faculty adviser Dr. John L. Waltman, it is actively involved in service activities both for the College of Business and the wider University community.

Alpha Kappa Psi is a professional coed fraternity focused on encouraging scientific research in business topics while furthering the welfare of individual members.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

There is a bill now before the U.S. Congress whose purpose is to close a loophole (IRS code #809) which allows the large insurance companies to avoid taxes. This is bill HR1497, drafted by Sen. Filner and Sen. Chenoweth, called the "Insurance Tax Fairness and Small Insurance Company Economic Growth Act of 1995."

The purpose of the 1986 code was to assist small insurance companies, but the large companies found ways to use it. This bill stipulates amounts of dividends that can be claimed, putting limits on the large companies. The large insurance companies have powerful lobbies in congress, and have helped to convince the committee reviewing this bill to keep its meetings closed to the public, hoping the ordinary citizens won't pay any attention. But, since this bill could save us $2 billion per year, I think we ought to pay attention.

Two representatives from Michigan are on this committee: Sen. Sander Levin and Rep. Dave Camp. We need to write to our representatives and let them know that we are aware of this bill and that we want it to be 1) open to the public and 2) passed.

It would be irresponsible not to pass this bill disallowing tax reductions for large, wealthy insurance companies at a time when middle and lower income citizens are facing drastic cuts.

The addresses are:

Sander Levin, U.S. Senator
2230 Rayburn House Office Bldg.
Washington, DC 20515-2212
Dave Camp, U.S. Representative

Dear Chelsea Friends,

I just finished reading the letter to the editor from my good friends, Blake and Jeannie Thomson. It impressed me with their sincerity and appreciation of their stay in the Chelsea area over the last 18 years.

June and I have been in Chelsea for 40 years, twice the amount of the Thomsons. We want Chelsea to know that we have TWICE as much to be thankful for. June taught school here in Chelsea for eight years while I finished dental school at the University of Michigan. We have raised four great kids, Mark, Shelley, Marcia, and Carol over these 40 years. They now lead lives of their own after reaping the benefits of living in this fairly small community and being graduated from this school system.

June has now retired from teaching music in the Chelsea schools with total time in service of 14 years. I have enjoyed the benefits of a smaller town atmosphere while practicing dentistry for 33 years. We have been a part of the schools, church and service clubs over the years as well as our professional associations. We can't say enough for the feeling of belonging that one has in this community if they are willing to show a willingness to be an active part of it.

Our four children have moved many miles from Chelsea, so we have made the decision to move closer to the three girls and our four grandsons in Rochester, Minn. It is a very nice city of 70-100,000 with the feeling of Ann Arbor about 30-40 years ago. We are looking forward to the new life, but will never forget our many friends and acquaintances in Chelsea. It is and always will be Home to us! We will be back frequently. Thanks, Chelsea.

Clare and June Warren

FAMILY ROOM

By KAREN MEIER

Welcome to the "Family Room!" Come in! Sit down!

My name is Karen Meier and I live on a tree-shaded street in a white house not very far from here with my husband of nearly 14 years and our four children. Our oldest is 11 and our youngest is one year.

The town I live in is small and the town I grew up in also was small. And it seems that in a town that's small, family is a good thing. It's something honored and celebrated. And that's the way it should be. And that small town notion that family is good is reflected here. In the "Family Room," I celebrate family.

You'll find in the "Family Room" just what you'd expect to find in that room in the house where the family gathers. Comfortable things, pleasant things, and if not all together pleasant, at least kind of funny. There'll be no harsh stuff, no really sad stuff here, that has to stay out. I said so.

Now since my own family room has been the inspiration for this column, I'll let you take a look around at the real thing.

First there's the family room couch. My children use it in a definitely-against-Dad's-rules game called "Jump Stand." It involves stacking cushions, climbing, leaping, shrieking. It's terrible. My mother calls it, "Shenanigans."

Oh, and this over here, this is the most comfortable chair in the room. It's not much to look at. It's getting a bit threadbare after 14 years and that gold color is rather funky, but I won't get rid of it, even though my husband thinks we probably should. Look at the seat on it—it's huge. All four children AND I can sit on that old relic and still have room left over for the cat. On second thought, maybe not, the cat's rather fat. Anyway, it's a great chair.

Now from here you can see right through to the front door. And now that the warm weather's here the front door stands open from early in the morning to late in the evening. So what happens out there, on the porch, or the front yard, or the sidewalk, can be seen, or at least heard, from in here. And that includes bits of conversation spoken by neighbors as they make their way to the little store up the street. And the sound of the mailbox clunking shut every afternoon after the mail lady stuffs it full of mostly junk.

Oh, and right here behind you is the sliding door to the backyard. Look down there, that's the creek. It's right there behind those huge trees, the forest, I call it. It's hard to see the creek from here today, but a few weeks back when we had all that rain, that tame little stream turned into a raging river. And believe it or not, I've seen that creek overflow its muddy banks and swirl about on the forest floor back there during some mighty storms. That causes a good deal of excitement around here. I've seen folks, grown ones, dressed in their pajamas and boots and rain hats go out during an early morning downpour to see and point and exclaim. All on account of that little creek. That little creek. You know what? I bet its waters wind up in big, important rivers and busy, noisy ports somewhere far, far away. Maybe that water finds its way to the ocean, somehow. Probably not, but it's neat to think about.

Oh, and here's the telephone. I love that long cord on it. I can unjam a toy from the crammed up toy box way over there by the couch or finish putting the dishes away in the kitchen over here all without ever having to interrupt a phone conversation. What a great thing!

And, finally, the television is over there. We watch only the regular channels. We don't have cable. Cable TV. What a thing. I just can't imagine paying to watch TV. It just seems weird. Kind of like paying for air. Anyway, that's it. A glimpse into my family room.

So go ahead and watch this spot from now on. You'll see it's the place for shenanigans, toy boxes, threadbare chairs, phone calls, creeks, junk mail, pajamas in rain storms, and most of all, family. It is, after all, the "Family Room."

Chelsea Community Education Presents Computer Workshops for Businesses

A variety of topics have been selected to provide the business community with practical half day workshops. The hands-on workshops are designed to cover specific subjects that will enhance your computer skills and productivity. Each class includes a project saved on a disk that you can take with you. Come join us and get more out of your computer!

Introduction to Windows
Tuesday, July 18
8:30-12:00

Introduces the basics of Windows including how to open, size, move, arrange and close windows. Learn how to create group, program and document icons and customize your Windows system.

Working with Tables in WordPerfect 6.0
Wednesday, July 19
8:30-12:00

Learn how to create and modify a table, enter text into tables, change the table structure and format table text. Changing table lines, borders, fills and adding graphics will also be covered. Participants will create an invoice form using table commands and use math features to calculate table entries. A basic knowledge of WordPerfect will be helpful to get the most from this workshop.

Charting in Lotus 1-2-3 for Windows
Thursday, July 20
8:30-12:00

Learn to create a variety of charts from supplied numeric data. You'll add titles, legends, labels, and combine data and graphics into a final printed document. 123's powerful collection of graphics tools will be used to add text and objects to charts making them clear and attractive. Participants will get the most from this workshop by having a basic knowledge of Lotus 1-2-3.

Graphics in WordPerfect 6.0
Tuesday, July 25
8:30-12:00

Create graphics lines, borders, boxes and watermarks. Retrieve and edit graphic images. Format and edit graphics including captions, positioning and text flow. Participants will create a graphics project that will include editing using WP Draw. A basic knowledge of WordPerfect will be helpful.

Using Write as Your Word Processor
Wednesday, July 26
8:30-12:00

Write is an easy to use word processor that comes with your Windows software. Use it to prepare letters, reports and proposals. Learn how to create, edit, save and print a document. Change margins, tabs, alignment and insert objects. Participants will complete a project to create their own letterhead.

Mail Merges with WordPerfect 6.0
Thursday, July 27
8:30-12:00

Use the merge process to create customized form letters together with envelopes or labels. Learn how to select specific records from your data files and how to use some of the more advanced merge codes. Projects include creating files for a mass mail merge and designing a form using merge codes. Participants should have a basic knowledge of WordPerfect for this workshop.

If classes are filled, a second date may be offered. If there is a class you would like to see offered, please call us!

Adams, Shoemaker Marry at St. Paul Church in Chelsea

Kristina L. Adams of Grass Lake and Michael T. Shoemaker of Chelsea were married April 29 at St. Paul United Church of Christ.

The Rev. Lynn Spitz-Nagel presided over the ceremony uniting the daughter of Susan and Robert Adams of Grass Lake with the son of Patricia and Gene Shoemaker of Chelsea.

Jennifer Wymer of Jackson served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids included Kristy Karchefsky of Grass Lake, Renee LaBuhn of the Upper Peninsula, Shelly Vecellio of Grass Lake, Chrissy Whitaker of Waterloo and Shantelle Strahan, the bride's cousin from Grass Lake.

Todd Whitaker of Waterloo served as best man. Ushers were Bobby Mock of Grass Lake and Bruce Pratt of Clinton. Ryan Klink of Waterloo was ringbearer and Grass Lake residents Kelsey and Lauren Adams served as flower girls.

The couple held their reception at the Grass Lake Lions Club.

Nutrition Facts To Help Your Health

By Debbie Barrow
Extension Home Economist

• Salsa vs. ketchup. You may have read reports that sales of salsa have finally surpassed ketchup sales. That statistic was based on retail dollar sales, and salsa costs more than ketchup. Ounce for ounce, Americans still consume about three times as much ketchup as salsa.

• A flat stomach may be an impossible goal for many people. Even if you're very thin, your internal organs may cause a slight roundness. Basically, the flatness of your abdomen depends in large part on genetics—that is, whether your body tends to store fat around your midsection or elsewhere.

• Does gargling with salt water help a sore throat? It seems to, despite the fact that there's no scientific evidence it helps. Why does it help? It may be the act of gargling itself, even with warm water, which can relieve dryness. The salt may also help keep the throat moist. Some doctors recommend warm water and corn syrup gargles. There's no evidence that a gargle can prevent a cold or sore throat, but it may offer some temporary relief. Use 1/4 teaspoon salt (or 1 to 2 teaspoons corn syrup) in 8 ounces of warm water. The best way to keep mucous membranes moist when you have a cold is to drink more fluids.

• Can eating the whole apple—seeds and core included—be dangerous? There's no harm in eating an apple core. It actually will provide extra fiber. Many seeds are both edible and nutritious. Like nuts, seeds have a relatively high fat content. Dried or roasted pumpkin, squash and sunflower seeds are popular and available commercially.

Some seeds or pits—specifically apple, apricot, pear, plum and bitter almond contain a minute quantity of a substance called amygdalin, which releases cyanide. This is not usually a health hazard. Small children have died from eating many apricot pits, but an adult would have to eat 50 to 70 apricot pits to get a lethal dose of cyanide. A few apple or pear seeds or a plum pit won't hurt you.

• Feta cheese is somewhat lower in saturated fat than other cheeses. Feta, a Greek cheese, is traditionally made from sheep's milk and, like any whole-milk cheese, has a lot of saturated fat. One ounce has 6 grams of fat (4 of them saturated), meaning that 72 percent of its 75 calories come from fat. Cream cheese is higher in total and saturated fat than feta. One plus for feta is that it's usually used in small amounts—crumbled up in a salad, for example. Because it's soaked in brine, feta is high in sodium—315 milligrams in just 1 ounce. You can reduce the sodium by rinsing the cheese in water.

• To get the most from your vitamin C pills, divide your dose in half and take twice a day. The body eliminates vitamin C in about 12 hours, so this will keep blood levels high throughout the day.

• When reading menus, watch out for these terms, which are giveaways to fatty foods: creamed, crispy, breaded, a la king, croquette, carbonara, parmigiana, meuniere, tempura, fritters, fritto, au gratin, batter-dipped, bearnaise, hollandaise, au beurre, Newburg and Alfredo.

• Subliminal sleep tapes consistently fail to produce their claimed effects. Nevertheless, one survey shows that 60 percent of the public believes in their usefulness. According to researchers, double-blind tests have shown that you can't learn while you sleep. Even if some degree of sleep learning were possible, it would probably be spotty and anything you learned would probably be inaccessible during waking hours. In addition, instead of making you smarter, nocturnal learning may make you less smart by interfering with the deepest, most restorative stages of sleep and thus impairing your mental performance the next day.

"Those who love deeply never grow old. They may die of old age but they die young..."

—Arthur W. Pinero

We've always heard that love makes the world go 'round. Now we discover that love is also the fountain of youth. Deep love for another promotes a perpetually youthful attitude.

Just as a deep-rooted hatred or a life governed by hate can warp and shrivel a personality, so can a deep, pure and unselfish love inspire serenity and the confidence in the future that is characteristic of the young. All the world loves a lover, whatever the age.

Thoughtful people often pre-plan their own funeral services, including financial aspects, to ensure that their wishes will be carried out. We will be pleased to assist you, if you are interested.

THE REV. JOHN KAYSER

New Pastor Joins St. Thomas Lutheran

The Rev. John Kayser will be installed as pastor of St. Thomas Evangelical Lutheran church on Ellsworth Rd. The special installing service is set for Sunday, July 9 at 3 p.m., at the church.

John Kayser graduated from Concordia Lutheran Seminary at St.

Louis, Mo., to begin a second career as a pastor in the Missouri Synod Lutheran Church.

Over the last 20 years he has been in constant service to Lutheran churches in central Indiana and in the Chicago area as an elder, evangelist, youth worker, small group leader, and Sunday school teacher for both children and adults.

During this time his vocation was in areas of manufacturing which used computers. He has worked as a manufacturing engineer and computer programmer for Dana Corp. and as a technical representative for computer networking companies.

He is 54 years old and has been married for 33 years to his wife, Kaaren. Since all their three children are grown and have become independent, John and Kaaren are now free to change careers so that John is able to heed the call to serve as a pastor in the Lutheran Church.

John feels that a congregation should reach out to its neighborhood, inviting the unchurched to hear the Gospel of Jesus, and should be a haven for people who are hurting. His earnest desire is to model the words of Jesus "By this all men will know that you are my disciples, if you love one another."

Contemplating Life

By Allen W. Smith

"If you can't say something good about a person, don't say anything at all." —Ronald Wiley

How many of us live by the above words? How many of us are able to resist the strong temptation to say negative things about other people? Probably none of us. We are all human, and we too often are guilty of saying unfavorable things about other people—especially people we dislike.

Some of us seem to think that gossiping is a harmless way to vent our anger toward others. We may even see gossip as a sort of sport or form of entertainment. In the words of Ogden Nash, "Another good thing about gossip is that it is within everybody's reach. And it is much more interesting than any other form of speech."

But is gossip really harmless? Can't gossip result in substantial injury to others? It is all a matter of degree. A little gossip now and then may not be all that harmful. But where do we draw the line between harmless gossip and more serious accusations which can really hurt others? If enough people say the same thing about a person enough times, it soon becomes true in the minds of the public whether there is actually any truth to it or not. According to Edgar Watson Howe, "What people say behind your back is your standing in the community."

John Hay wrote, "The best-loved man or maid in the town would perish with anguish could they hear all that their friends say in the course of a day." Whether or not we are guilty of gossip, we can be almost sure that we are all victims of gossip.

Most of us are very lucky if we have never been hurt by accidentally overhearing someone speaking ill of us to other people. For those of us who have never heard anyone talking behind our back, it is not because it has not happened.

While many of us may enjoy participating in gossip about other people, almost none of us are pleased by the prospect that we are being talked about. And we can be almost certain that people who are talking about us when we are not present are not expounding our virtues.

When we help to spread ugly gossip, how do we feel about ourselves? Does it make us feel good to say bad things about other people? If it does, perhaps that says something about us. Why should we get pleasure from denouncing someone else? Are we desperately trying to build ourselves up by tearing others down? Is that really the way we want to go about building ourselves up? Suppose we tried resisting the temptation to gossip, and succeeded? Might not that make us feel even better about ourselves?

What would happen if, even for one day, everybody lived by the words, "If you can't say something good about someone, don't say anything at all?" Think about it.

ANN ARBOR

HARD WORK AND DETERMINATION paid off for Jay and Betty Hopkins of Chelsea, when they earned an all-expense paid week-end trip to Chicago recently for helping the Washtenaw County Farm Bureau conduct a successful membership recruitment campaign. Their efforts have helped the Michigan Farm Bureau achieve a state-wide membership of 131,600 members, an all-time high for the state's largest farm organization. Michigan Farm Bureau Director of Field Operations John Vander Molen, left, congratulates Betty and Jay Hopkins, who earned an all-expense paid week-end getaway to Chicago for their efforts in conducting the local Farm Bureau's membership campaign.

MICHIGAN HISTORY SERIES:

A Traveler's View of Michigan in '41 Tour

ANN ARBOR—No AAA Trip-ticks. No HoJo's lodging or 1-94 freeways. But just the same, visitors toured Michigan during the 1800s. Lansing B. Swan kept a journal of his June 1841 venture into the Lower Peninsula. That log is just one of the holdings in the Special Collections at the University of Michigan Library.

By coach and steamship, Swan traveled from Rochester, N.Y., to Detroit where he called on local druggists to talk about "the dignified subject of soda water [and] the great advantages of Swan's Atmospheric Fountain."

More than a business trip, Swan extended his stay and travels through Michigan to visit friends. Taking a train to Ann Arbor, Swan looked forward to spending "the Sabbath at Ypsilanti where it is said they have a fine band which plays every evening at sunset for the benefit of citizens and strangers, the bull frogs supplying the bass and the small ones the tenor and soprano."

Impressed with the likes of Ann Arbor and its nearly 3,000 inhabitants, Swan noted that it "is a much neater and more thriving place than any of its size in our own state. There are five churches and a state university now building on a scale of magnificence far beyond Union College at Schenectady."

After arriving in Jackson in time for tea, Swan continued his travels by coach. After breakfasting at the proposed state capitol, he proceeded to Kalamazoo; traveling through a section of country he termed "beautiful prairies." Visiting with a friend in Genesee Prairie, about five miles outside Kalamazoo, Swan settled in for a couple of days. "This village pleases me much," he wrote. "In fact I like its location and general appearance better than any I have before seen."

Genesee Prairie included about 800 acres then, and was, Swan wrote, "as level as a floor." He was impressed with the richness of the land and of the inhabitants whose red cheeks merited mention in his diary.

Moving on to Niles, Swan caught only two pickerel on a fishing outing, while others in his party picked "about a half bushel of the largest strawberries I have ever seen. I would hardly be believed if I should give the size and quantities of these berries . . . which grow here of monstrous size."

After breakfasting on the berries and attending church, Swan and friends returned in time for "another strawberry repast . . . We had a new dish, 'Strawberry Short Cake,' very fine indeed."

Along that route he had "a miserable breakfast, got up by good-looking, but outrageously dirty women, who, I should think, were Hoosiers."

Anticipating better fare at the Sturgis Prairie Hotel, Swan was encouraged by the cleanliness of the house. "These dirty meals and dirty women," he wrote, "are not quite the thing. I thank heaven I am not tied up to one of this character . . . But for ugly looking women, Michigan assuredly excels, as well as in dirty taverns and good looking 'school marm's."

Not at all impressed with Coldwater, nor its bar room or hotel or tea, Swan pushed on by coach, finally arriving at Clinton. "The roads as we passed along were carpeted with lilies and roses," he wrote of the trip between Clinton and Saline. His trek through Michigan ended where he began—Detroit—where he boarded a vessel for the trip home.

Local Students Awarded Music Scholarships

Music scholarships were awarded to four students from Dexter Community Schools and two students from Chelsea School District so they can attend the Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp this summer.

Dexter residents Aaron King, son of Monica and Don King; Adam Howard, son of Linda Howard; Elizabeth Howison, daughter of Margo Howison; and Phillip Prentice, son of Linda Prentice joined Chelsea residents Sooner Brooks-Heath, son of Jeff and Lynn Dills; and Matthew Kennedy, son of Debora and Thomas Kennedy as recipients of scholarships awarded by Marshall Music Company of Lansing. They were deemed most worthy of scholarships, valued at $275, based on musicianship, citizenship and musical achievement, as determined by the school music staff and school administration.

Washtenaw 100 Club Awards Scholarships To Six Area Youths

The Washtenaw One Hundred Club has awarded six $1,000 college scholarships to area youths. The Club is an organization of Washtenaw county business people who support the families of the men and women of law enforcement and fire fighting personnel.

These awards go to dependents of police and fire personnel. Recipients of the Washtenaw One Hundred awards are selected for demonstrated leadership, community involvement, and the applicant's clarity of future personal goals.

Recipients of this year's scholarships are Greg DeGrand of Saline, father is a Detective Captain with the Ann Arbor Police; Daniel DesRosiers of Ypsilanti, father is Fire Chief of Ypsilanti; Rebecca Raus of Pinckney, mother is a Firefighter for the City of Ann Arbor; Nicole Rider of Dexter, father is a Police Officer for Hudson Mills Metropark; Anthony Wallace of Pinckney, father is a Firefighter in Ann Arbor; and Heather Willard of Ann Arbor, father is an Ann Arbor Police Officer.

SHERIFF'S REPORT

Lyndon Township

Breaking and Entering

Breaking and entering was reported in the 9700 block of Joslin Lake Rd., June 27. A 49-year-old township man told police a $100 cordless telephone, an answering machine, liquor, a watch and $200 cash was stolen from his residence between 7 a.m. and 8:30 p.m. Someone pried open a rear sliding glass door to gain entry. The stolen items were apparently placed in a pillowcase and removed from the home after two bedrooms were ransacked.

Larceny

Larceny was reported in the 100 block of Island Lake Rd., June 21. A 45-year-old township man told police someone broke in during the night and stole money from his wife's purse. A total of $400 cash and a car key was stolen.

Lima Township

Malicious Destruction of Property

Malicious destruction of property was reported in the 8500 block of Jackson Ave., June 25. A 24-year-old township woman said someone wrote a message on her property with a black marker. She suspects her father, a homeless prison parolee diagnosed with schizophrenia. She will seek a restraining order against him. The incident happened June 24 around 9 p.m.

Sylvan Township

Recovered Stolen Vehicle

A stolen 1991 Ford Escort was recovered from Klinger Rd. near Scio Church Rd., June 26. Police found the vehicle with the driver's side window smashed out. It is believed whoever stole it used a key because the ignition was not damaged. The vehicle was reported stolen out of Palmer Motor Sales in Chelsea that day.

Assault and Battery

Assault and battery was reported on Werkner Rd. near M-52, June 23. A 17-year-old Chelsea boy told police he was attacked by a 46-year-old Chelsea man. The boy sustained an injury to his left ear after the suspect yanked open his door and struck him with a closed fist about 5 p.m. that day. The assault took place after the boy said he tried to pass the man's wife on Werkner Rd. The man, who was following his wife in another vehicle, pulled out and wouldn't let the teen pass. The boy said he was almost run off the road. A Chelsea family following behind in another car witnessed the reckless driving and subsequent assault. The boy said the attack occurred when all three cars stopped at the M-52 intersection. The suspect reportedly ran up to the victim's car, jerked open the door and began yelling at him. After the man reportedly struck the teen, he fled northbound on M-52. A witness followed the suspect and obtained his license plate number and street address. Police say the suspect has refused to talk until he seeks advice from an attorney.

Attempted Suicide

Attempted suicide was reported in the 800 block of Lowrey Rd., June 23. A 43-year-old township man told police his 32-year-old wife tried to hang herself. He said she was depressed and they were having marital difficulties. He heard a loud thump in the basement and raced downstairs to find his wife hanging from a dog leash. The man cut his wife down and drove her to Chelsea Community Hospital. The incident occurred after midnight. Police report there were no indications of foul play. The woman was admitted to the hospital's psychiatric unit.

Breaking and Entering

Breaking and entering was reported in the 18500 block of Bush Rd., June 21. A 48-year-old township man told police $790 worth of property was stolen between 9 p.m. June 20 and 6:30 p.m. June 21. The victim was out of town and a neighbor was supposed to keep an eye on the residence. Stolen were a cellular telephone, compact disc player and discs. Thieves gained entry to the home by breaking a bedroom window and using a ladder. Damage is estimated at $25.

Dexter Township

Larceny

Larceny was reported at Klave's Marina, 8789 McGregor Rd., June 20. A 43-year-old Pinckney woman told police an electric start outboard boat motor valued at $2,479 was discovered missing during an inventory check. There is no record that it was sold, and the last time it was seen was upon delivery April 4.

Stolen Vehicle

A 1975 Ford F-350 tow truck was reported stolen from General Towing, 14050 North Territorial Rd., June 24. A 22-year-old Gregory man told police the vehicle was stolen between 1:30 a.m. and 4:30 a.m. Ingham County Sheriff's Department recovered it and notified General Towing. It is believed an employee may have left keys to the vehicle in the truck's ash tray.

Breaking and Entering

Breaking and entering was reported in the 13000 block of Edgewater Dr., June 24. A 60-year-old woman told police lamps valued at $250 and a $50 painting were stolen between June 10 and June 18. The woman's husband found the garage door open. The thieves are suspected of entering the home through an unlocked door through the garage. (Continued on page 13)

U-14 Soccer Team Wins Tourney

The Chelsea U-14 soccer team wrapped up another successful season with a win at the recent Rose City Tournament in Jackson. This was the first time a Chelsea team has participated in this tournament and they were pleased to bring home first place trophies.

This group continues to gain a reputation as a fast, skills oriented team. Many of the team members have been playing together for six years. Soccer is now a year round sport with fall and spring outdoor seasons, a winter indoor season, and three-on-three soccer tournaments in the summer.

Last week at Brighton, the team of Ryan Braidwood, Matt Hicks, Ryan Cook, and Kyle Griffith also took first place in a three-on-three contest.

Many of the team members will be attending other tournaments this summer, as well as soccer camps.

This team will continue together next year minus the three 8th graders who will be moving up to high school soccer—Jason AtLee, Kyle Griffith, and Ryan Cook. Ryan was one of the original members of this team and has been a key contributor through many seasons. This U-14 team was one of the original teams from Chelsea to join the SEMSA league three years ago. The Chelsea Soccer Club will have a total of 11 teams participating in the coming fall season.

The team has been gratified by the growing acceptance and community support of soccer in Chelsea. They are looking forward to participating in high school soccer program in the coming years.

Outdoor Sporting Notes

By John M. Robertson
Chief, Fisheries Division, DNR

★ Orconectes Rusticus - Rusty Crayfish

Known in scientific circles as Orconectes rusticus, the rusty crayfish (named for the "rusty" reddish spots on its hard-shelled body) is one of the larger crayfish found in Michigan waters. An adult rusty may reach a robust three-to-four inches long when fully grown. The majority of our state's native crayfish are quite a bit smaller—two inches long or so, tops.

The rusty crayfish, as is the case with its larger look-alike sea-dwelling lobster cousin, is a member of the widespread crustacean clan. Along with an external skeleton or "crust"—whence comes its family name—and jointed appendages as well as twin antennae, the rusty crayfish sports two menacing-looking pincers which can inflict a healthy pinch on occasion. True omnivores that they are, rusty crayfish dine on almost anything they can lay their pincers on—fish eggs, carrion, insect larvae, small fish and, especially, aquatic vegetation.

A resident of inland lakes as well as fast- and slow-moving streams, the rusty crayfish's native range covers portions of the Midwest—including the extreme southwest part of lower Michigan—and extends well into the nation's southland. The rusty has also been introduced, primarily through bait-bucket "escape," into many areas well outside its native range. Thanks to its highly aggressive nature and revved-up fecundity—and herein lies the rub—the rusty crayfish has the less-than-desirable ability, when introduced into non-native waters, to crowd out the less aggressive native crayfish species.

Bluntly put, it outcompetes the other crayfish by taking over their habitat and eating their food. The real problem for fisheries managers comes when the exploding rusty crayfish population devours the plant life upon which sportfish species depend for habitat. Studies have shown that numbers of favored sportfishes drop off dramatically when rusty crayfish take over from "pushed-out" native crayfish species.

Rusty crayfish, as do other crayfish, regularly "shed" their skin—in reality, a hardened exoskeleton akin to a knight's armor. It's not uncommon for a fast-growing rusty to shed its skin twice during the course of a summer. Growing more rapidly than do native species gives the rusty crayfish a decided advantage over those other crayfish by helping it to outcompete them. We've already mentioned the rusty's prolific nature—female rustys lay as many as 260 eggs each hard on the heels of the spring breeding season! Once hatched, it takes only a short time for the young rusty crayfish to fully develop and become independent of its parent.

Crayfish normally excavate small cave-like homes in shallow waters which they then inhabit and defend against all comers. These homes not only provide shelter for the crayfish occupant, but help that crayfish to escape predators as well. The bullying rusty crayfish has been known to actively pull other crayfish from their shelters and then appropriate those homes for itself. This rude action exposes the evicted homeowner to danger from predatory fish—most notably bass—swimming overhead, further boosting the nemesis rusty crayfish's built-in advantage.

The rusty's presence is currently viewed as largely a non-threat in southern Michigan where there's an abundance of aquatic vegetation in most areas. However, true concern centers on the state's Upper Peninsula—an area not previously home to the rusty crayfish where important aquatic plants are at somewhat of a premium and could be threatened by an invasion of the unwelcome visitor. Responding to that concern, the Michigan DNR has made it illegal state-wide for anyone to sell rusty crayfish as bait. Simply put, this action means that it's against the law for a Michigan bait shop to traffic in rustys.

In addition, present Michigan-Wisconsin boundary-waters regulations make it illegal to fish with, or possess, any crayfish, whatsoever—rusty or not—the idea being the prevention of accidental crayfish introductions through hook escape or the dumping of a crayfish-filled bait-bucket at day's end into non-native waters by unknowing anglers.

If allowed to spread throughout the Upper Peninsula, it's feared that rusty crayfish will eliminate both the aquatic vegetation which sportfish need and the native crayfish species of that region. The thinking is that, eventually, the number of fish available to sport anglers would be lowered—perhaps drastically so.

★ Fish Ills

"Just what IS wrong with this fish anyway?"

That's one of the most commonly asked questions posed by Michigan anglers concerning the fish they catch. Whether it's a walleye with warty-looking lumps or a rock bass with black spots or any of a number of other sport fish species with what appears to be some dread disease, state fisheries biologists hear such query often from anglers.

But, as they say, chill out. In fact, almost all such fish ailments CAN NOT be transmitted to humans. It's comforting to know as well that ALL such "bugs" are effectively destroyed by cooking, smoking or pickling preparatory to eating.

Whether they're the result of various viruses, bacteria, worms of one sort or another, tumors, grubs or what-have-you, the visible fish ills most anglers are likely to encounter may LOOK gruesome but actually are quite harmless. Besides not being of harm to humans, the majority of such ailments rarely prove lethal to their fish hosts.

All fish are vulnerable to invasion by parasites, viruses and bacteria depending on the fish in question, its habits and preferred habitats. Many of the parasites that attack fish must live part of their lives in another animal host such as a variety of snails. Fish which live in shallow lakes with lots of vegetation may be heavily infested with one type of parasite or another while fish living in deep lakes with few plants may be disease-free or infested by yet another parasite. Much the same holds true regarding streams: rapid-running cold streams with few plants harbor few parasites unlike those sluggish warm streams which tend to support lots of weed growth.

Among the more commonly observed fish ills familiar to state anglers is black spot—an aptly named parasite which can "invade" rock bass, various sunfishes, perch, pike and many other species. Black spot shows up in a fish as darkly pigmented pinhead-sized spots raised slightly from the skin, fins or sometimes, in the mouth or flesh.

Black spot actually is a larval trematode which matures in still another host—a fish-eating bird. Though quite harmless to humans, and although definitely unappealing in appearance, black spot itself can, in fact, be safely eaten. In any case, cooking kills the parasite, but should the spots be a worry, skinning of your catch removes most of them.

Another commonly observed abnormality is lymphocystis. Especially common among walleye and other popular sportfish (at least 65 species of fresh-and-saltwater fish are known to contract lymphocystis), the disease is actually caused by a virus which causes the growth of unappealing "bumps" on the fish's body. Definitely an aesthetic turn-off, this disease too can't be transmitted to humans. While there's no known cure for fish so affected, the disease (sometimes coming and going seemingly at random) is, again, rarely lethal to the fish.

Observed among virtually all species of fish is a pest commonly known as yellow grub. Like the black spot previously mentioned, this is the larval stage of a tiny nematode complete with a fish-eating bird serving as co-host. Yellow grub actually burrows into the fish's flesh and may be found throughout the fish's body. In most instances, fish may live thusly for several years with little effect though the disease can, in some instances, prove fatal to its host. Again though, these "grubs" cannot harm humans and, when properly cooked, have no impact on either taste or nutritional value.

Far from being an all-inclusive list, these are just a few of the more commonly observed of fish illnesses which list, when expanded, can also include such nastily graphic disorders as Fin and Tail Rot, Ich, Fungus and Furunculosis. It's hoped this brief piece will help allay certain of angler concerns, but, as always, if you have a question about the fish you catch, feel free to contact your local DNR fisheries biologist.

Mountain Bike Ride To Follow Glacier Paths

Join Gerald E. Eddy park interpreters Chris Wood and Julie Mayers at 11 a.m. on July 9 on an eight-mile (round trip) mountain bike ride on the park's back roads.

Bike riders can follow the path of glaciers and discover the resulting lands and water formations. Bring a lunch. Helmets are required in order to participate in this activity.

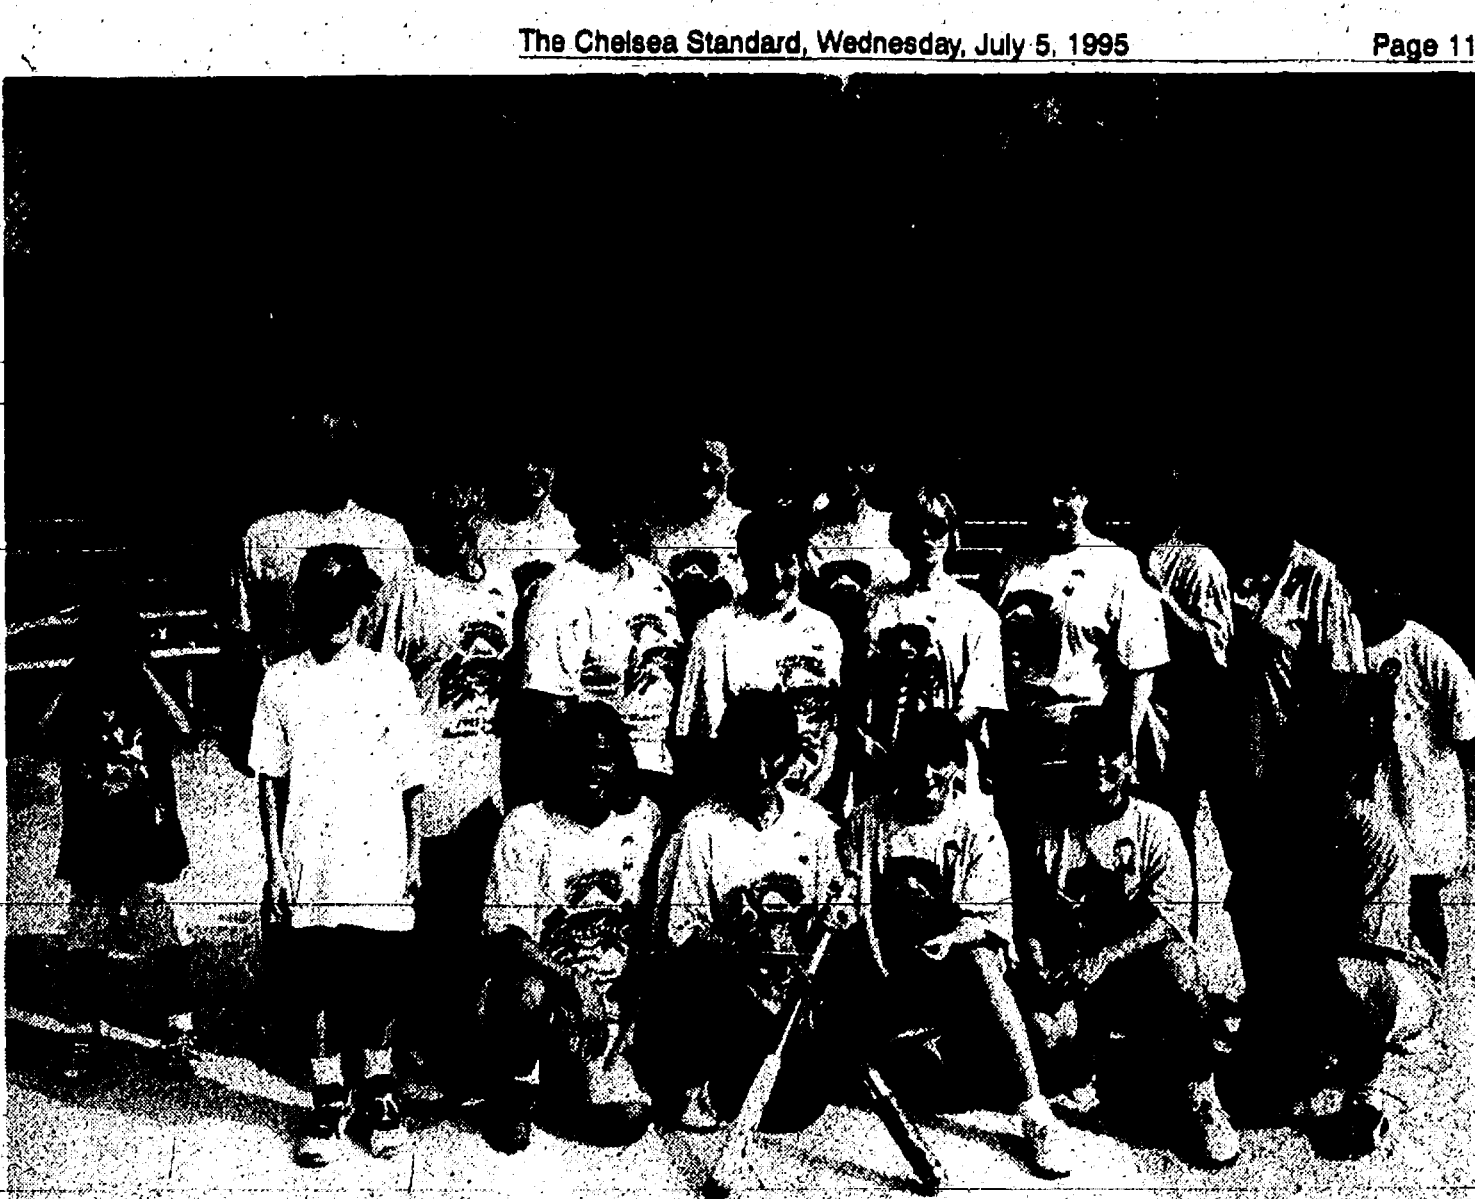

The staff of the Geology Center and the Waterloo Natural history Association invite the public to participate in their free programs. All programs begin at the Center, 16345 McClure Rd., unless indicated otherwise.

A Michigan State Park Motor Vehicle Permit is required for entry into any public program. A daily permit is $4 or an annual permit is $20. Senior citizen annual permits are $5. Permits may be purchased at the Recreation Area Headquarters or at the Geology Center.

For more information, call the Geology Center at 475-3170, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Tuesday through Sunday.

A COOL DIP in the Charles S. Cameron Pool in Chelsea appears to be the popular thing to do this summer. The school district sees approximately 100 kids every day at the pool. Summer hours for the open recreational swim are Monday-Friday, 2 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. and Saturday noon to 1:30 p.m. An adult swim for seniors 50 years and older is held Monday-Friday, 3:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Adult lap swim is 8:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

The primary mode of commuting in Michigan is private vehicle. The 9,620 miles of state highways carry a substantial share of that traffic. From 1983 to 1993, travel on Michigan roads increased by about 35 percent. This increase in travel is attributed to longer distances traveled to work, in addition to increased tourism and recreation.

AN ORGANIC HERB FARM located in Webster township is a source of revenue and pride for a local family. Peter and Kris Stark have operated Renaissance Acres, located off Jennings Rd. on Valentine Rd. for the past 15 years.

Webster Township Family Operates Organic Herb Farm

■ Stark family opens organic herb farm to public during summer.

Peter Stark says he grew up with a small garden and a few fruit trees, but feels that is not what steered him toward organic herb farming.

"We really believe in doing something good for the planet," Stark says is the reason he and his wife, Kris, have operated Renaissance Acres organic herb farm for the past 15 years.

The purchase of a 100-year-old farm house and land in Webster township by Peter Stark in 1979 was the beginning of Renaissance Acres. Up until then, Stark had organically grown produce on the side, while professionally playing blues and jazz and working as a carpenter. He rehabilitated the historic farm house and began to slowly build up his business, adding to his organic produce, herbs and plants. Kris, a Detroit native, joined him in 1980. They married in 1984 and later had a son, Ben.

In the beginning, Kris Stark financially supported the venture while working as a licensed, hair-dresser and barber. "She gardened before and really enjoyed it, but she never really had done it," Peter Stark said about his wife's introduction to organic herb farming. Now the couple runs a self-sustaining business from their home. They employ six part-time workers and join them in transplanting, harvesting, mulching and fertilizing.

"The reason I wanted to get into organic farming is because I am really in to the environment. I didn't want to use commercial fertilizer or chemicals," Peter Stark said.

"I wanted to start my own business. But we wanted to do it on a grass roots basis, rather than get a bank loan and put up 40 greenhouses."

In 1988, Stark built his first greenhouse. He obtained a nursery license from the state and has been gradually building up his herb business ever since. "From there, we started wholesaling and retailing," he said. The couple estimates 20 percent of their business comes from mail-order and the remainder from sales to restaurants, stores and at the Ann Arbor Farmer's Market.

For the first time, the Starks will open up their herb farm this year to the public. In the past, visits were arranged by appointment only. From May to August, the couple will open their nursery Thursday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Visitors will be able to see Renaissance Acres' wide selection of herb plants, culinary and medicinal herbs, dye plants, ceremonial herbs and scented geraniums. Plans also call for organized tours and lectures.

A native of Saginaw, Peter Stark came to Ann Arbor to attend the University of Michigan. He studied biology for two years before leaving the college to pursue his musical career. He produced an album titled "Mushroom Country," then decided to change gears again and explore organic farming.

He sold his organic produce in the Ann Arbor area, but found there wasn't as much of a market for it as there was for organic herbs. Restaurant chefs in the suburbs of Detroit and in the Ann Arbor area who were buying shallots and garlic from him began requesting herbs.

The Starks have participated in flower and garden shows in Ann Arbor, Pontiac, Detroit and Toledo, O.

Renaissance Acres herb farm is known for its wide selection of herbs and unusual plants. The farm includes two greenhouses with 3,200 square feet of growing space. The Starks carry 400 varieties of potted plants and 135 herb seeds and say they add 30 to 40 new varieties every year. During the first year, they take the time to research the new ones and study their growth. Peter Stark says they have never discontinued the sale of one type of herb or plant. "We just keep expanding our line," he said.

"The reason I wanted to get into organic farming is because I am really in to the environment. I didn't want to use commercial fertilizer or chemicals."

—Peter Stark, Renaissance Acres

"We improve the soil by adding large amounts of organic material. As a result of using cow manure, straw, hay and wood chips as fertilizer, Stark says their organic soil base is better than others. "We try to emulate what happens naturally in the woods. We're trying to maintain the natural cycle, before man got on the planet," he said.

Peter Stark says it is quality and method of growing that contributes to their growing business. "No one really has the variety we do. We are really trying to be a specialist."

The couple works hard every day. "There has been days we've worked 20 hours a day," Peter Stark admits. "But the rewards are nice. I get to be close to my family. I think that is important."

Success of American Agriculture Needs Adequate Research

In an age of global market development and agricultural trade, research should be a priority in the upcoming farm bill, according to the president of the state's largest farm organization.

"If we as producers are to realize increased income from domestic and global markets, production agriculture must be responsive to changing market needs and continue to improve production efficiency in order to meet competition from other producers," said Jack Laurie, president of the Michigan Farm Bureau. "Research is a key component of that effort. Production and marketing research should be a high priority for federal funding."

Laurie said agricultural research, combined with the information delivery system of the Extension Service and land-grant universities like Michigan State University, are key to the continued success of American production agriculture. He said the loss of this research infrastructure would be detrimental to American farmers and ranchers.

To maximize the dollars spent on research each year, Laurie said, financial and human resources must be prioritized. "While the current public research structure has served us well in the past, it is certainly appropriate to consider changes that could improve the operation and efficiency of the system," he said.

Food Prices Would Jump Substantially If Pesticides Eliminated

A drastic reduction or elimination of pesticides would bring substantially higher fruit and vegetable prices without significantly increasing America's already high level of food safety, according to a study which was supported in-part by a grant from the American Farm Bureau Research Foundation. The study was conducted by Auburn University.

"From a food safety standpoint, we believe this study shows that severely restricting pesticide use on fruit and vegetables is not socially desirable," said Ken Nye, director of Commodity Activities and Research for Michigan Farm Bureau. "The negatives of such a move in regard to adverse economic and health effects on consumers grossly overshadow the small reduction in pesticide residues."

According to the study, the complete elimination of pesticides used in fruit and vegetable production would increase retail fruit and vegetable prices 27 percent, lower domestic consumption of fruits and vegetables in the United States 11 percent and increase the amount of land required for fruit and vegetable production about 44 percent.

Johnson Controls Opens New Research Center

Governor John Engler helped celebrate the official opening of a new $5 million research and development center for the Johnson Controls, Inc., Plastics Technology Group in Manchester on June 28, noting the 30 to 40 jobs the facility created will help Michigan's economy remain strong.

"Our economy is on a hot streak and we want it to continue," Engler said. "I believe it will continue, thanks to companies like Johnson Controls that see the opportunity Michigan offers and choose to invest in our state's future."

Engler toured the 80,000-square-foot center, which includes research laboratories, offices and a training center, and houses approximately 90 employees. The state-of-the-art facility enables Johnson Controls to expand its development of new packaging design technologies and additional applications for plastic containers.

Johnson Controls, Inc., Plastics Technology Group (PTG), headquartered in Manchester, is the world's largest supplier of polyethylene terephthalate plastic containers for soft drinks and other beverages, food and personal care products. PTG now has three sites in Manchester, including administrative offices and a manufacturing office building.

The research center is the second major high-technology facility opened by PTG in the state in the last five years. The company opened a $4 million plastics recycling facility in Novi in 1990. A Fortune 100 company, PTG has more than 3,000 employees at 37 locations in North America and Europe, and is a subsidiary of Johnson Controls, Inc., of Milwaukee, Wis.

Engler thanked the company for its "loyalty and dedication" to Michigan.

"Johnson Controls is a global leader in the plastics industry and an ideal example of the business excellence that exists in our state," the Governor said. "We in Michigan are fortunate to have this world-class company as a corporate resident."

President Ford and the Helsinki Accord: A Success Story

The Chelsea Standard, Wednesday, July 5, 1995

By Stanley P. Wronski
Prof. Emeritus at MSU

"Jerry—Don't Go" was the advice of a Wall Street Journal editor. It appeared on July 23, 1975, on the eve of the scheduled departure of President Gerald Ford for Helsinki, Finland.

But Mr. Ford did go, and he thereby set in motion a chain of events that "helped change history," as one historian put it. In signing the Final Act of the Helsinki Accord, the president essentially did two things: he ratified the existing territorial boundaries of countries in Eastern Europe (while still not recognizing the Soviet Union's incorporation of the Baltic states), and he extracted from the 35 signers of the Accord—including the Soviet Union—a commitment in principle to recognize the existence of certain basic human rights to which all individuals are entitled.

For the first part of the Helsinki Accord, the solidification of existing boundaries, President Ford at the time was criticized by persons reflecting various hues of the political spectrum. It must be recalled that this was during the height of the Cold War. The Accord was viewed by critics as a sellout to the Soviet Union.

The second part, which was then and subsequently tagged with the very undiplomatic term, Basket III, was either ignored by most of the media or referred to disparagingly as nice rhetoric but little substance. The Soviet Union agreed to it mainly as a concession to western nations for what it considered the far more valuable coup of a unified and indissoluble bloc.

What the Soviet Union did not realize at the time was that, in endorsing the human rights basket of the Helsinki Accord, they were planting on their soil and the soil of their eastern bloc nations the seeds of their own dissolution. So-called Helsinki Watch Groups sprung up throughout Europe. They monitored with embarrassing persistence, and frequently at grim cost, the extent to which the signatory nations were adhering or not adhering to such basic human rights as freedom of speech, freedom of movement within or beyond their borders, and freedom of religion.

In agreeing to the human rights provision of the Helsinki Accord, it was as if the eastern bloc had unwittingly dragged a Trojan horse behind the iron curtain. Over a period of 15 years, there emerged from the bowels of this horse a continuous and unstoppable cadre of dissenters, pamphleteers, playwrights, and political reconstructionists. Vaclav Havel was one who combined parts of all these elements. It is not an exaggeration to say that the rationale for the upheavals in Europe in 1989-90 had as a major foundation the human rights provisions of the Helsinki Accord.

PRESIDENT GERALD FORD was in Grand Rapids on June 6 to receive the Arthur H. Vanderberg award presented as part of the United Nations 50th anniversary celebration. Retired MSU professor Stanley Wronski, as chair of the UN at Fifty Planning Committee of Michigan, gave the following remarks in praising Ford's part in the success of the Helsinki Accord. Present at the celebration were Alice Steinbach of Chelsea and her daughter and granddaughter, Shari and Amy Steinbach shown here with President Ford.

The rallying cries of the Helsinki Watch Groups dovetailed later with the glasnost of Gorbachev in the Soviet Union, the Solidarity movement in Poland, the mass exodus of East Germans, and the subsequent fall of the Berlin Wall. In rapid succession came the overthrow of Soviet affiliated regimes in Czechoslovakia, Hungary, and Rumania.

Some have tended to minimize President Ford's role and the impact of the Helsinki Accord on subsequent political upheavals in Eastern Europe during 1989-90. These events, so the argument goes, took place about 14 years after the Final Act in Helsinki in 1975, and Ford had no hand in them. It should be recalled, however, that 13 years after our own Declaration of Independence was proclaimed, a new nation emerged—and Thomas Jefferson had no direct hand in writing its constitution.

It would be folly, of course, to attribute all of the cataclysmic events of 1989-90 to the Helsinki Accord alone. Economic considerations, religious convictions, and long-suppressed nationalist sentiments played their roles. But the Helsinki Accord was a powerful proclamation, contained seminal ideas, and was issued at the opportune time. "What is this nonsense about human rights?" was essentially the initial reaction to the Basket III provisions of the Accord by authoritarian regimes. This sentiment had its counterpart earlier in our history among Tories in colonial times who either ridiculed or dismissed as utopian the idea that "all men . . . are endowed with certain unalienable rights."

President Ford's successor in office, Jimmy Carter, reaffirmed the American policy of ascribing to human rights a pivotal niche in our foreign policy. As with all such lofty goals, they are not always attained in the realpolitik of global affairs. But their endorsement in principle and their increasing role in political practice attest to the importance and wisdom of President Ford's initial effort at Helsinki in 1975.

"History will judge this Conference (on Security and Cooperation in Europe)," said Mr. Ford at Helsinki, "not by the promises we make, but by the promises we keep." In 1994 the distinguished historian, William Korey, paid tribute to these words of Ford by entitling his definitive work on the Helsinki Accord, The Promises We Keep.

In showing such foresight, Mr. Ford also exemplified the spirit of internationalism of another illustrious native of Grand Rapids—Senator Arthur Vandenberg, who entered World War II as an isolationist but emerged as an internationalist. As a tribute to both, the Michigan United Nations Association will present the inaugural Arthur H. Vandenberg Award to President Ford on June 6, 1995 at the Gerald R. Ford Museum.

SHERIFF'S REPORT

Attempted Suicide

Attempted suicide was reported in the 12800 block of McKinley Heights, June 25. A 20-year-old township girl took a can of gasoline, poured it on the ground where she was sitting and lit it on fire with a lighter in an attempt at suicide. The girl's mother told police she had a fight with her boyfriend and was distraught. The victim's boyfriend reportedly pulled her out of the flames. The woman was burned on 15 percent of her body. She was taken to Chelsea Community Hospital for immediate treatment. Further treatment and evaluation was performed at the University of Michigan Hospital.

Medical Assist

Deputies were dispatched to Dexter-Pinckney Rd. near Horseshoe Bend, June 20, to assist a person in the roadway. A 21-year-old township man was in the middle of the road when a deputy arrived. The man has a history of mental illness and was transported to the University of Michigan's psychiatric unit.

'New Kids on the Rock' Are Coming to Chelsea

New Kids on the Rock, a group of christian young people from all over the state of Michigan, will be celebrating in music and dance at Our Savior Lutheran church and The Chelsea Retirement Community on Monday, July 10.

These young people sing and choreograph christian music under the direction of Rod Scofield. It is a high energy, uplifting celebration and is open to everyone in the community.

Frank Giebel, pastor at Our Savior decided last summer to invite

New Kids to come to Chelsea, when he went with some of the church youth group to see New Kids. One of their church members was on tour with them last year. Everyone enjoyed their celebration and wanted to bring them to Chelsea.

This is a wonderful opportunity for all to share their enthusiasm for God's love through music. They come from all around Michigan, even as far as Marquette, to share their message. It's a great outing for all, especially youth groups and families as well as any others who want to have a good time. Admission is free, only a free will offering will be taken.

They will travel all over the state to Utica, Jackson, Tawas, West Branch and Gaylord, all in cars and vans supplied by their leaders and chaperones. After the evening concert (an afternoon concert will be given to the residents of the Chelsea Retirement Community), they will sleep in Our Savior's fellowship hall and head out the next morning for the Detroit area and the eastern shore. In the past they have worked in an innercity mission with children and this year plan to go to The Methodist Children's Society in Redford.

Plan to join these young people at Our Savior (next to McDonald's) on Monday, July 10, at 7:30 p.m.

Farmers Worried About Attacks on Sugar Program

As Congress begins work on the 1995 farm bill, the sugar program is once again the subject of intense debate. It is most severely attacked of all the commodity programs and viewed by many as probably the top candidate for elimination. Certainly, it will bear significant scrutiny as candy and beverage manufacturers have allied with environmental groups, consumer groups and others who want to eliminate the program. Bills have been introduced in both the House and Senate to do just that—with the House bill carrying more than 80 co-sponsors.

Opponents of the sugar policy claim that it forces consumers to pay $1.4 billion more each year for sugar. This conclusion is based on the premise that sugar policy import quotas restrict access to cheap world sugar. On the other hand, a reliable supply of foreign sugar is not available to meet all of the needs of U.S. consumers at a lower price. We use about 9 million tons of sugar each year, which is equal to more than a third of the total sugar traded on the world market.

The world sugar market has a history of being among the most volatile of the commodity markets. That is primarily because sugar is essentially a necessity rather than a luxury good. Over recent years, the so-called world price has ranged from more than 70 cents per pound in 1974 and more than 40 cents a pound in 1980—periods when there was no sugar program—to less than 3 cents a pound five years later, which is far below production costs. In addition, those who project $1.4 billion in savings presume that the savings from cheaper sugar would be passed on to the consumer. About 60 percent of all U.S. sugar purchases are made by food manufacturers. Analysts confirm that little, if any, savings in sugar prices are passed on to consumers.

Farm Bureau has long supported "getting the government out of agriculture" and our farmers continue to say they are ready and willing to compete with farmers anywhere in the world on a level playing field—but that playing field is no more level for the sugar industry than it is for the major program crops. According to the Agriculture Department, the governments of all 110 foreign sugar-growing countries subsidize their sugar production, consumption and/or trade in some way—such as dumping sugar on the market at well below production costs—that make a U.S. policy necessary.

Michigan sugarbeet farmers (who produced 3.18 million tons of sugarbeets in 1993) are willing to compete with their foreign counterparts, but they cannot easily compete against the treasuries of foreign governments. Without the sugar program as a part of U.S. farm policy, they would lose out to less efficient, but heavily subsidized, producers around the world.

Our Savior Pastor Leaving Chelsea For Chicago Church

On Sunday, June 25 after the worship service, Our Savior Lutheran church bid farewell to the Rev. Frank Giebel with a luncheon. The Rev. Giebel has served as pastor of Our Savior Lutheran church for the past 16 years. He is leaving to serve the Gloria Dei congregation in Chicago.

Beginning July 16 the Rev. Ronald Zehnder will begin serving Our Savior Lutheran Church as the interim pastor. Pastor Zehnder has recently retired as pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran church in Ann Arbor. He will lead the worship service at 9 a.m. on that date. There will be a luncheon and fellowship hour following the service. All are welcome to attend the service and greet Pastor Zehnder.

Sylvan Township Board Proceedings

Regular Meeting

June 6, 1995

The regular meeting of the Sylvan Township Board was held on June 6, 1995 at 7 p.m. in the Sylvan Township Hall, 112 W. Middle Street, Chelsea, MI 48118.

The following board members were present: Supervisor Dresselhouse, Clerk Koch, Treasurer Pearsall, Trustee Heller and Trustee Lesser.

Also present was Charles Burgess. Minutes were approved as presented.

Motion by Lesser, supported by Pearsall, to pay bills as presented. Carried.

Zoning Inspector Burgess reported 11 permits, 2 waivers and 5 blight violations issued in May.

Supervisor Dresselhouse reported on a meeting with Village officials and Carl Schmult regarding boundaries.

Clerk Koch reported on the District Library status. A draft of the District Library Agreement was presented to the Board with an opportunity to make any changes or revisions. Also a survey was presented for approval to circulate to the residents of Sylvan Township. This survey is asking if the residents of Sylvan Township would like to be a part of the District Library and if they are willing to pay 2 mills to support it. The surveys will be placed at the Library, in local businesses and at the Sylvan Township Hall. Motion by Lesser, supported by Pearsall, to approve the survey. Carried. The Board suggested putting a booth at the Chelsea Community Fair for exposure to the residents. Feedback from the residents is necessary and would be appreciated. The Board will not make a decision to join in the District Library until feedback is received from the residents.

Motion by Heller, supported by Koch, to adopt a new fee schedule effective June 6, 1995. Carried.

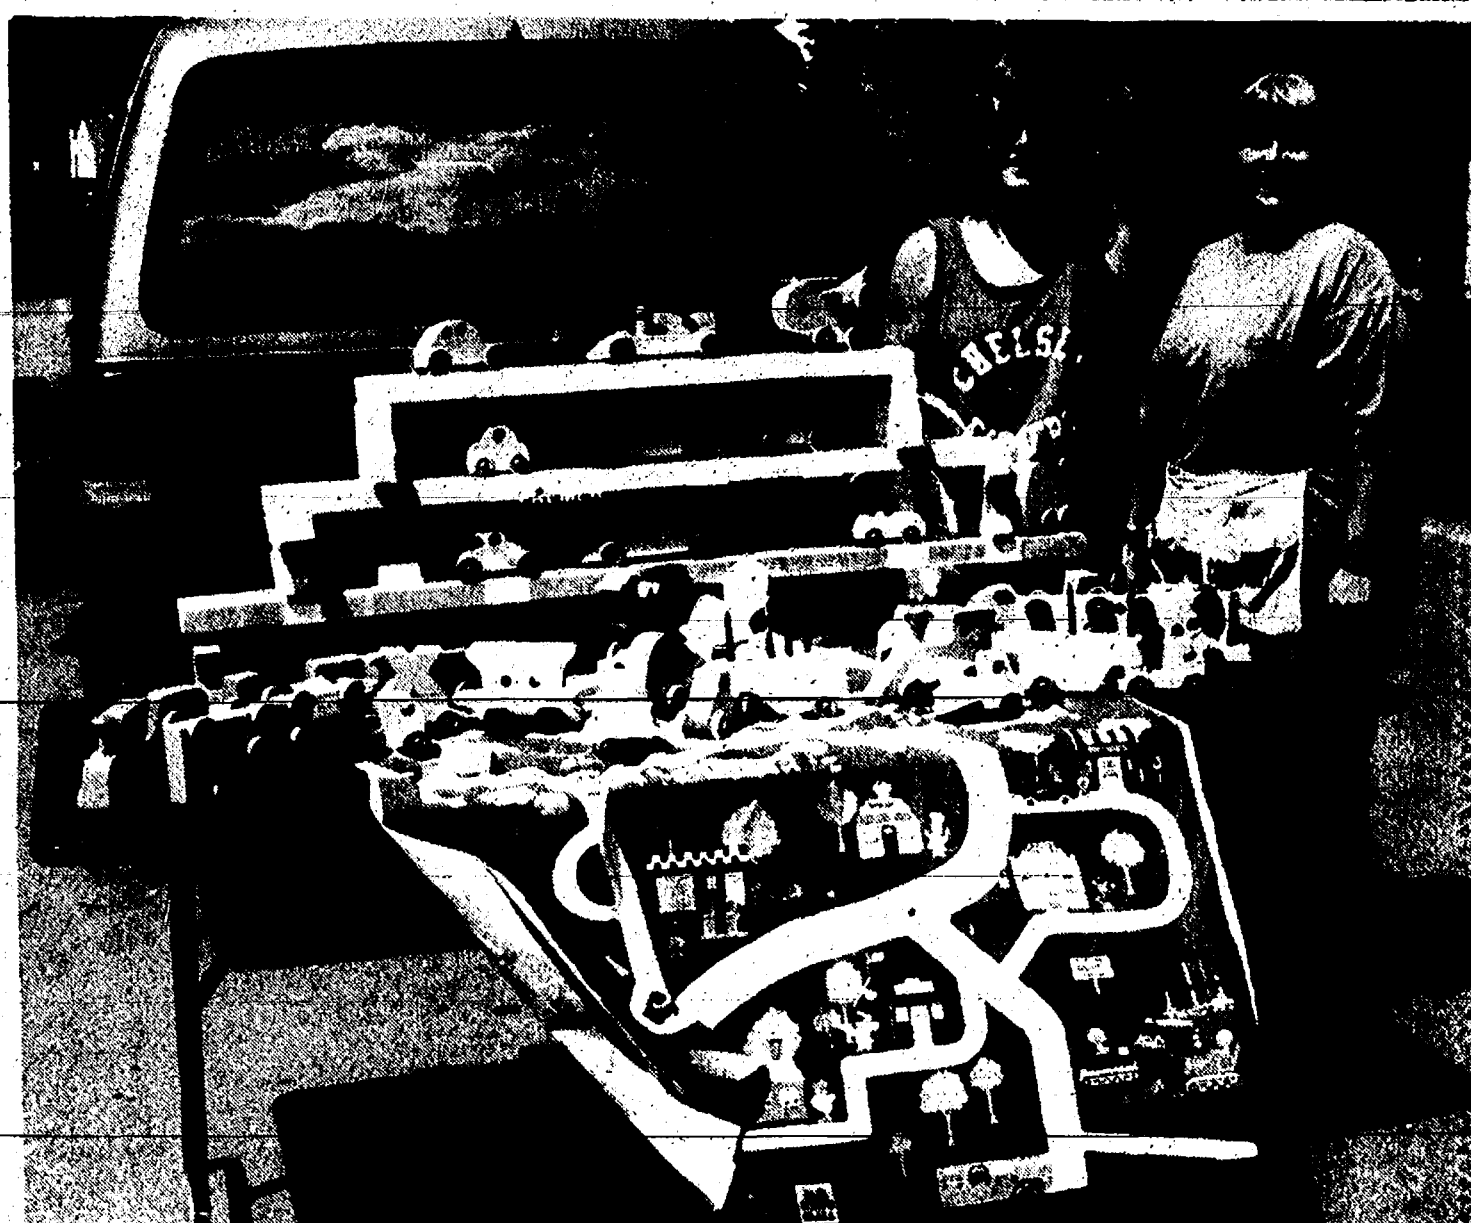

Motion by Pearsall, supported by Koch to have Walter Hahn take minutes at the ZBA hearings. Carried.

Motion by Heller, supported by Heller, to adopt a Resolution opposing the Mandatory Regional Approach for Solid Waste Management Planning. Roll call vote: all ayes. Carried.

Motion by Heller, supported by Pearsall, to adopt a Resolution to toll the 30-day requirement to gather more accurate information regarding Clear Cablevision. Roll call vote: all ayes. Carried.

Motion by Heller, supported by Lesser, to deny request for Special Olympic donation. LuAnn S. Koch, Clerk.

There are 19 airports in Michigan with scheduled air service for 22 airlines serving nearly 30 million incoming and outgoing passengers each year.

CHELSEA FARMER'S MARKET welcomed a new vendor last Saturday in the form of Sandra Sayer, right above, greeted by veteran Sue Rodgers. Sayer makes and sells wooden toys under the name of Sallie's Toy Box. Included among her specialties is the famous name train, which originated years ago with Bill Coelius.

Farmers Call for Limits to Ag Program Reductions

Farm Bureau recently offered its recommendations on the commodity titles of the 1995 farm bill to members of the U.S. Senate Agriculture Committee.

"Budget cuts applied to mandatory agriculture programs should not exceed more than 20 percent of the total reductions," according to Al Almy, director of public affairs for Michigan Farm Bureau. "Excessive acceleration of the decline in government support for agriculture would not allow sufficient time for the market opportunities opened up by the GATT and NAFTA trade agreements and the benefits of tax policy changes and regulatory reform to fully offset the withdrawal of government supports."

Farm Bureau's commodity-related proposals include increasing planting flexibility to allow greater producer access to expanding global markets, discontinuing modifications in the income support program, discontinuing any means testing, targeting of benefits or lowering of payment limitations; continuing the crop insurance program which eliminated crop-specific disaster programs in favor of acutely sound crop insurance and continuing the conservation reserve program and annual set-asides, which should be implemented when carryover stocks exceed workable levels.

MOTHER'S PRAYER

As I sit down today, and meditate in prayer, I think of all my dear ones, and I know Lord you care.

You care when they have sorrow, or when they are in pain. They have no thought for tomorrow or what they really could gain.

By accepting the Lord in their life, and by being made anew, I know and hope that someday this prayer of mine comes true.

MORTGAGE SALE—Default having been made in the terms and conditions of a certain mortgage made by RUSSELL A. MORRELL, in the presence of NORAH P. MORRELL, his wife, Mortgagor, to STANDARD FEDERAL BANK, a federal savings bank of Troy, Oakland County, Michigan, Mortgagee, dated December 28, 1990, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Washtenaw and State of Michigan, on January 3, 1991, in Liber 2464, on Page 143, of Washtenaw County Records, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, for principal and interest, the sum of Twenty-Five Thousand Seven Hundred Eighty-Eight and 54/100 Dollars ($25,788.54);

And no suit or proceedings at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. Now, Therefore, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute of the State of Michigan in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that on Thursday, July 20, 1995, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, local time, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale at public auction to the highest bidder, in the main lobby of the Washtenaw County Courthouse, Huron Street entrance, in the City of Ann Arbor, Washtenaw County, Michigan, of the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount due, as aforesaid, on said mortgage, with the interest thereon at Eleven percent (11.000%) per annum, which interest rate may be adjusted on July 21, 1995, as provided in the Equity Line Agreement and Disclosure Statement, unless the Mortgage has been foreclosed at a Sheriff's Sale prior thereto, and all legal costs, charges and expenses, including the attorney fees allowed by law, and also any sum or sums which may be paid by the undersigned, necessary to protect its interest in the premises, which said premises are described as follows:

All that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the Township of Salem, in the County of Washtenaw, and State of Michigan, and described as follows:

Commencing at the Northwest corner of Section 27, Township 1 South, Range 7 East, Salem Township, Washtenaw County, Michigan; thence North 89 degrees 40 minutes 20 seconds East 876.80 feet along the North line of said section and the centerline of Brookville Road to the point of beginning; thence continuing North 89 degrees 40 minutes 20 seconds East 137.90 feet along said North line and said centerline; thence South 10 degrees 19 minutes 40 seconds East 796.53 feet; thence South 89 degrees 40 minutes 20 seconds West 157.90 feet; thence North 00 degrees 19 minutes 42 seconds West 796.53 feet to the point of beginning; said parcel being part of the North 25 acres of the Washtenaw County Courthouse, Huron Street entrance, in the City of Ann Arbor, Washtenaw County, Michigan.

During the six months immediately following the sale, the property may be redeemed, except that in the event that the property is determined to be abandoned pursuant to MCLA 600.324(1), the property may be redeemed during the 30 days immediately following the sale.

Dated at Troy, Michigan, May 31, 1995.

COMPLAINT AND DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL

NOW COMES the Plaintiff, Julie Rose, by and through her attorneys, Bredell and Bredell, and for her Complaint, states:

1. Plaintiff Julie Rose is an individual residing in the County of Washtenaw, State of Michigan.

2. Defendant Steve Kime is an individual residing in Chelsea, County of Washtenaw, State of Michigan, and is the owner of a residential rental property located at 95 Oakwood, Ypsilanti.

3. At all times relevant, Plaintiff Julie Rose was an invitee of Defendant Kime and a tenant at his 95 Oakwood, Ypsilanti, property.

4. On October 23, 1994, Plaintiff Julie Rose exited her apartment and stepped onto the exterior steps of her apartment and lost her footing and fell.

5. Defendant Steve Kime had a duty to maintain the premises located at 95 Oakwood, including safely maintaining the steps leading out of Plaintiff's dwelling.

6. Defendant Steve Kime was negligent in the maintenance of 95 Oakwood, specifically the exterior staircase, in the following ways:

a) The exterior wood steps accessing Plaintiff's apartment were not protected with any kind of anti-slip treatment;

b) The nose of the steps had no anti-slip edging;

c) The wrought iron hand railing is defective because the measured height was only 39 inches from the treads;

d) The Defendant failed to provide a hand rail on both sides of the steps;

e) There were no gutters or other structures to prevent water from falling upon the stairs;

f) Exterior lighting was inadequate on the day in question and was, in fact, burned out.

7. Each of the above, defects were negligent and were the proximate cause of Plaintiff falling when attempting to exit said steps that were covered with water, slick and poorly illuminated.

8. As a proximate result of Defendant's negligence, Plaintiff suffered a severe fracture of her ankle.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff seeks a judgment against the Defendant, in an amount in excess of $10,000.00, together with cost, interest and attorney fees.

DEATHS

Lynn E. Amerman

Chelsea

Lynn Elaine Amerman of Chelsea, age 37, died Thursday, June 29, 1995 as a result of an automobile accident. She was born Oct. 15, 1957 in Ann Arbor. Lynn graduated from Whitmore Lake High School in 1975 and had been employed by Colorbok of Dexter since 1992.

She was preceded in death by her mother, Patricia R. Amerman in 1993 and her dear friend, Tom Devine, Jr., in 1995.

Surviving are her father, James L. Amerman of Whitmore Lake; her sisters, Jackie Amerman of Mt. Pleasant, Mrs. Mark (Joanne) Hubinger of Saginaw, and Mrs. Gary (Leslie) Haller of Whitmore Lake; her nieces, Susan and Jennifer Hubinger and Lindsey Haller; and nephews, Mark Hubinger, Jr. and Ryan Haller. She also leaves behind several aunts, uncles, cousins, many friends and co-workers.

The family received friends at the Muehlig Chapel on Saturday and Sunday from 3 to 5 and 7 to 9 p.m. Funeral services were held at 10 a.m. Monday, July 3, at the Muehlig Chapel with the Rev. Fr. William Ashbaugh officiating. Burial followed at Washtenaw Memorial Park.

Memorial tributes may be made to a charity of one's choice.

A FATAL CRASH on Jerusalem Rd. between Guenther and Lima Center roads claimed the life of Lynn E. Amerman, 37 of Chelsea shortly before 7 a.m. Thursday, June 29. Amerman's vehicle was eastbound when it slammed into a large tree. She was pronounced dead at the scene. There were no passengers. Funeral services were held Monday, July 3 at Muehlig Funeral Chapel.

Marie M. A. Willey

Lapeer

Marie Martha Amelia Willey, 94, of Lapeer died Friday, June 30, 1995 at Lapeer County Medical Care Facility.

Mrs. Willey was born April 29, 1901 in North Branch. She lived there all her life. She married John Willey Oct. 2, 1949 in Oxford. He preceded her in death May 7, 1979.

Mrs. Willey was a homemaker and aide at Lapeer Home. She also did decorating and was a member of Christ Evangelical Lutheran church.

Surviving are Mrs. Willey's daughters, Rita (William) Makedonsky of Imlay City and Cheryl (Donald) Schoenberg of Chelsea; sister, Gertrude Monson of Lake City; and grandchildren, Douglas and Dale Schoenberg, Mark and Gary Makedonsky, Lori Norris, Wendy Barrett and Monica Anklam. Grandson, Dean Schoenberg and four brothers preceded Willey in death.

Funeral services were held Monday, July 3 at Christ Evangelical Lutheran church in Imlay City. Pastor Dennis Smith officiated. Burial followed at Goodland Township Cemetery in Imlay City. Funeral arrangements were made by Muir Brothers Funeral Home in Imlay City.

North Central Soybean Research Plot Planted

By Ned Birkey, Agriculture and Natural Resources Agent

A 1995 Soybean Planting-Rate Research Plot has been planted in Monroe county as part of the North Central Soybean No-Till Program. This year's plot is located on the Herb Smith farm and is located on Stein (Todd) Rd., just west of Strasburg Rd., southeast of Ida.

This on-farm demonstration compares four planting rates of soybeans which were drilled, no-till into cornstalks on Thursday, May 18, 1995. The four rates were: 105,450 seeds per acre, or 37 pounds of seed; 139,650 seeds or 49 pounds; 173,850 seeds or 61 pounds; and 210,900 seeds or 74 pounds. Pioneer 9252 soybean variety was donated by Jerry Heck of Monroe for use in this plot and it has 2,850 seeds per pound. The four planting rates were replicated four times in a random manner.

Interested farmers are welcome and invited to observe this plot all summer and attend a field day on Tuesday, Sept. 5, with speakers and a meal provided free of charge. Anyone interested in a copy of the 1994 planting rate plot results, can obtain one, free of charge, by contacting the Monroe County-MSU Extension office at 313-243-7113.

★ New Grapevine Yields
Sweet, Plump Raisins
By Marcia Wood

Tomorrow's raisins may be sweeter and plumper than ever, thanks to a new raisin grape that dries on the vine.

"When you cut its canes—that is, the part of the vine that bears the grape clusters—the new grape will dry its fruit naturally on the trellis or vine," says U.S. Department of Agriculture research horticulturist David W. Ramming.

"Raisins that dry on the vine," he says, "typically are sweeter and plumper than those dried on trays on the vineyard floor." Tray-drying, however, remains the process most widely used in raisin making, says Ramming. He's based at the Agricultural Research Service's Horticultural Crops Research Laboratory, Fresno, Calif.

DOVine, the new raisin grape, gets its name from the initials for dry-on-the-vine. This spring, Ramming offered cuttings to commercial nurseries and other grape breeders to try out for themselves. If their tests prove successful, DOVine raisins might be on the market in about five to seven years, he estimates.

For the past five years, Ramming has scrutinized experimental vines of the raisin grape, planted in selected vineyards in California. That state produces nearly all of the nation's raisins, which are harvested in the fall.

Dry-on-the-vine raisins, says Ramming, can be harvested with a mechanical shaker. That saves hand labor—one reason why some American grapegrowers have been experimenting with dry-on-the-vine techniques for more than a decade.

Also, DOVine is ready to harvest at least a week sooner than some other types of seedless raisin grapes—Thompson Seedless and Fiesta, for example—that can also be dried-on-the-vine. That means DOVine has a better chance of missing unseasonably early rains that can damage the crop.

DOVine is the first raisin grape produced from a sophisticated laboratory technique known as embryo rescue. "DOVine's parents," explains Ramming, "are seedless grapes from ARS. Normally, their offspring would have a seed wisp or embryo that's too small to survive. We rescued that embryo by cutting it out from inside the grape, then nurturing it in a petri dish on a special, gel-like mix of nutrients. The embryo formed the tiny seedling that later became our first DOVine grapevine."

TRY OUR NEW POLYNESIAN

Now Cottage Inn Lite Pizza comes in a tangy new Spicy Polynesian recipe. Covered with pineapple, green pepper, onion, crushed red pepper and a flavorful barbeque sauce — all on our special hearth baked crust...
It's a taste delight!
