Fair Queen Program Has 14 Contestants Seeking 1995 Crown

Chelsea's 1995 Community Fair Queens Program is well underway with 14 local girls competing for the crown.

Contestants and their mothers recently gathered with the committee at the annual Fair Queen Garden Tea Party. In keeping with a 1950's theme, they enjoyed banana splits and Cokes while the committee discussed the upcoming activities.

This year's program promises to be another exciting one for everyone involved. A fourth runner-up position has been added for 1995. Queen Melody Smith is instituting a non-competitive Fair Princess Program for local girls, aged 5 to 10, who are interested in helping the contestants and riding in the parades.

The committee, in conjunction with the Fair Board, has announced that the supplemental scholarship will be divided as follows: $1,000 for the 1995 queen, $500 for the 1st runner-up, $400 for the 2nd runner-up, $350 for the 3rd runner-up and $250 for the 4th runner-up.

All scholarship monies will be awarded to the school of choice, at the completion of their senior year of high school. Publicity photos for all of the contestants and Queen Melody have been donated by local photographer Susan Carlson.

Talent Judging will take place Monday, Aug. 21, 7 p.m. at the Chelsea High School Auditorium and is free to the public. Emcee for Monday evening will be Katie Heil and Queen Melody Smith.

Crowning of the 1995 Chelsea Community Fair Queen will take place Friday, Aug. 25, 7 p.m. in the multi-purpose arena on the fairgrounds. Friday night emcees will be former fair queens, Laurie Gravelyn and Jane Shrosbree. Judges this year will be Skip Ungrodt, owner of Dayspring Gifts, Judy Mann of Manchester, and former fair queen Roxanne Shears Blaess of Saline.

The committee has planned an overnight retreat for the contestants, focusing on personal growth skills and fellowship at Clark Lake. The contestants will be involved in many activities during the week of the fair.

Chelsea Baton Corps, Jessie Graves, sponsored by Hatch Stamping,

Heather GreenLeaf, sponsored by Chelsea Lanes and Gina's Cafe, Jessica Timm, sponsored by Chelsea Pets and Plants, Danielle Longe, sponsored by the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce, Amy Oake, sponsored by the St. Mary's Church Youth Group, Tracy Dufek, sponsored by the CHS Tech Club, Carrie Pratt, sponsored by the Chelsea Community Hospital, Stephanie Lundquist, sponsored by Reddeman Farms, and Erinne Kellman, sponsored by the CHS senior class.

The committee is looking for convertibles from the 50's for the Kiddie Parade on Tuesday, Aug. 22. Anyone in the community who has a "vin-tage" vehicle and is willing to drive, please call Sally Heil at 475-3149. In keeping with the 1950's theme, any car clubs interested in having the contestants at their car shows should also call Heil, and plan to be in the main fair parade on Saturday, Aug. 26. The Fair Queen Committee this year consists of Diane Cunningham, Janice Heidtman, Janice Hatch, Edna Hatch, Laurie Gravelyn, Jane Shrosbree, Clara Smith and Superintendent Sally Heil.

Mills Returns Funds to Chelsea School District

■ Former assistant superintendent signs separation agreement and agrees to retire earlier than planned.

When Fred Mills stepped down as assistant superintendent of Chelsea Schools a year earlier than expected and chalked it up to the psychological repercussions he suffered from witnessing his boss being murdered, understandably no one in Chelsea questioned him.

Just three months later and in light of recent information released regarding his early retirement, however, many in the community are questioning Mills.

Late last year, Mills announced his retirement from the post two years in advance. A few months later, he said he would step down June 30 instead.

Mills began his career as an administrator at the young age of 25. He took on the responsibilities of assistant superintendent and business manager in the newly created post in 1966 under superintendent Charles S. Cameron. Prior to that, Mills worked as a math teacher in the district. A Stockbridge native, Mills was the local boy who made good. He became a mainstay as administrators, staff and students came and went and he remained, passing up opportunities to move up and out of the district.

But when rumors about his early retirement began circulating this past month and with the superintendent refusing to freely release information, Mills may have tarnished the very reputation he worked so hard to build as a loyal public servant and community leader, and the school board may have lost its credibility in the community.

Mills, 55, signed a separation agreement with the school district April 17 after it was discovered that he left his son on the payroll rather than file a workman's compensation claim for $7,501 and when it was learned he could not provide documentation for nearly $6,000 in expenses he was reimbursed for over the past six years. Mills says he kept his son, a part-time custodian, on the payroll for a leg injury sustained on the job rather than file a workman's compensation claim because it would prevent the district's insurance rates from increasing.

Under terms of the separation agreement, Mills agreed to pay back $13,145 to the district, and the board of education agreed not to file civil or criminal charges against him, provided misappropriations exceeding $5,000 above what was already paid are not discovered. The school board has until June 30, 1996 to pursue civil or criminal action above that amount.

According to school board president Jane Diesing, the district will undergo its annual audit in the next two to three weeks. "As far as I know, it will be a regular audit. I am not aware we'll be giving the auditors any special instructions, but I am sure they'll be aware of the issue we just dealt with," Diesing said Monday.

Diesing said she doesn't believe the school board participated in a cover-up. And if she had to do it over again, Diesing said she would recommend the board take the same action. "We took action in an open meeting. So, I really feel we did everything openly. We didn't try to hide it. I think by the public knowing about it says we didn't try to hide it."

The public didn't know all the facts, however. And when questioned, superintendent Edward Richardson declined to provide detailed information to the press, claiming it was a "personnel issue." The Ann Arbor News filed a Freedom of Information Act request and forced the district to hand over a copy of the separation agreement and the past five fiscal year audits.

Diesing said she doesn't feel Richardson acted inappropriately by initially withholding information and forcing The Ann Arbor News to file its request. "Mr. Richardson did not have to release the information without the Ann Arbor News going through the proper procedures."

"I think we need to be concerned about personnel issues now and in the future. We have obligations to employees and the community. We will continue to operate in a way to protect the rights of our employees," Diesing said.

Diesing, who grew up in Chelsea, has known Mills since she was a student. "I can tell you, Mr. Mills has had immense positive contributions to this district and community. I think the community owes him a lot," she said. "He has handled large sums of money for this district. His positive contributions should far outweigh the problem we had recently."

Diesing and other people in the community understand Mills was under a lot of stress and psychological turmoil after witnessing his colleague and friend, Joseph Piasecki, murdered by high school science teacher Stephen Leith. Leith has since been convicted and is serving a life sentence.

"We took action in an open meeting. So, I really feel we did everything openly. We didn't try to hide it."

—Jane Diesing, School Board President

Diesing says she is shocked to hear that people in town are questioning the board's motives in not making the information readily available. "If the community demands an explanation we will certainly give them one. We followed all the legal recommendations from our attorney on reporting this issue," she said. "Because it is a personnel issue, we didn't feel we had to go beyond what we did."

Diesing added that if the school board was trying to cover the issue up in light of the bond issue slated in June, it would have either not addressed the issue or requested a "gag order" to prevent the board and Mills from discussing the agreement. "We chose not to do any of that. We chose to deal with it when it occurred," she said.

As far as the district's credibility, Diesing said she doesn't think it has been compromised. "I think it only hurts the credibility if people don't want to hear the facts. I think if they listen to the explanation that has come out and analyze it, they will see this board did what was necessary and we did it in a way to protect the school district and the community."

"As far as the situation with Mr. Mills is concerned," Diesing said, "the money is back in the school district, and we feel we have an end to that."

Village Wide Garage Sales Encouraged

Organizers of Chelsea's Sidewalk Festival and Craft Fair are encouraging local families to have their garage sales on July 28 and 29 in conjunction with the festival.

This year there is not adequate preparation time to be able to produce a lot of advance publicity for these sales, but families who plan to hold a sale can contact the Chamber office and will be included in a listing available that week-end.

The best advance advertising is done through The Chelsea Standard, but to attract outsiders, those holding sales might consider using the newspapers in surrounding communities.

For additional information call the Chamber of Commerce office at 475-1145.

CHRISTINE ANNESE was hired to replace the retired Fred Mills as assistant superintendent of Chelsea Schools. She attended her first school board meeting Monday night after officially taking on the duties July 5.

Community Questions School Board's Action

News that Fred Mills, long-time assistant superintendent of Chelsea Schools, was involved in misappropriations of public funds and information regarding the incident was not freely divulged has many residents concerned.

"There are a lot of people who have concerns, and a lot of bad blood is going to be caused by this," Chelsea resident Rainey Bassemir told the board of education Monday night.

"When you don't hear about things until later, you do feel that mistrust," added Chelsea resident Doug Rodgers.

The two men addressed the school board during a segment of the meeting reserved for public comment. Both feel information just released about Mills' separation agreement and forced retirement should have been disclosed from the get-go. Instead, The Ann Arbor News was forced to file a Freedom of Information Act request to obtain a copy of the separation agreement and copies of the past five fiscal year audits. Edward Richardson, superintendent of Chelsea Schools, said he just asked the newspaper to follow proper procedures.

Mills and the board entered into the separation agreement in April after it was discovered Mills left his son, a part-time custodian, on the payroll rather than file a workman's compensation claim for $7,501 after he injured his leg. Mills claims he did it to save the district money by maintaining low insurance rates. It was also discovered that Mills submitted nearly $6,000 in reimbursable expenses without documentation over a six-year period. Through the separation agreement, Mills agreed to return $13,145 to the district and retire a year earlier than planned provided the school district doesn't file civil or criminal charges against him.

Rodgers told the board that many people in town wonder if a less prominent person was involved would that person be treated the same by the board. "Would they be dealt with the same way he was dealt with?" Rodgers asked. "Maybe we wouldn't have had this problem if you would have announced what happened... people wouldn't have this feeling of mistrust," he said.

Richardson addressed questions posed by Bassemir and Rodgers. "There was nothing intentionally left out or added... all information was taken in public. We think the more information that gets out the better," he said.

Richardson said many residents have called him to discuss how the situation was handled. "What is clear is that there was a problem, the school board took action and all the litigation that could have been taken saved the voters $50,000 to $100,000," he said.

Richardson assured people in the audience that there are new safeguards in place to protect the district. "This problem has been longer than one year, and we have set up procedures to protect us," he said.

Board of Education Fills Two Positions

■ Special education teacher-consultant and high school counselor posts filled.

Chelsea School District's Board of Education accepted the resignations of three district employees and hired two new ones Monday night.

The board accepted the resignations of Beach Middle School band director Amy Boerma, Chelsea High School math teacher Tamara O'Bryant and Beach Middle School special education aide Ann Goss. Hired were Mary Koert to work as a special education teacher-consultant and Sandra Turner to serve as high school counselor.

Koert, a Saline resident, was granted a two-year probationary contract. She is a graduate of Grand Valley State University, where she obtained a bachelor's degree in 1971. Five years later, Koert earned a master's degree from Western Michigan University. During her master's studies, Koert studied special education of the learning disabled. Since then, she has continued course work at the University of California at Irvine and California State University at Sacramento.

Koert has worked in the Michigan school districts of Centerville, Portage and Saline. Outside the state, Koert has worked at Madison Local Schools in Mansfield, O., Capistrano Unified School District in San Juan Capistrano, Calif., and Saddleback Valley Unified School District in Mission Viejo, Calif. Her most recent assignment was in Saline, where she has worked as a teacher consultant in a long-term substitute position since February at Pleasant Ridge Elementary school. Prior to that, Koert worked as a resource specialist for the past seven years at Saddleback Valley Unified School District.

Turner, a Chelsea resident, was granted a two-year probationary contract. She attended Western Michigan University and the University of Michigan, where she obtained a bachelor's degree in 1974. She studied at the University of Edinburgh in Scotland and the University of Sheffield in England as an exchange student from the U-M in 1973. Two years later, Turner earned a master's degree in guidance and counseling from U-M.

Chelsea Village Council delayed the appointment of a new village trustee until at least their next meeting June 25. The seat became available June 10 when trustee Jack Myers officially became the new village manager. Whomever is appointed would fill out the remaining nine months of Myers term. No reason was offered for the delay. The item was on the agenda.

Village manager Jack Myers hopes to meet with township supervisors within the next month to give them some preliminary cost estimates on the long-term clean-up of the village landfill. Engineering studies on the extent of soil and groundwater contamination at the site have been completed, along with a proposed clean-up plan. They are scheduled to be sent to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources this month for approval, according to Myers.

★ Lessons from the Mexico Financial Crisis

By James M. Sheehan

Each year, Michigan businesses sell approximately $6 billion in goods and services to Mexico—about 20 percent of Michigan's total export sales. Serious financial crises triggered by the collapse of the peso, however, have put those sales in jeopardy.

President Clinton responded to the crisis by arranging a $20 billion bailout for Mexico, paid for by American citizens. Though months have passed since it was announced, it has failed either to restore investor confidence or stabilize the Mexican economy. Skyrocketing interest rates in Mexico are preventing everyone, from large businesses to small credit cardholders, from making payments on their debts. As a result, Mexico's deteriorating banking system has become insolvent, prompting the government to rescue several banks. During the next year, Mexico's total debt of $160 billion could double in size, meaning that the U.S. package will not be enough.

The U.S. has tied its economy to Mexico through the North American Free Trade Agreement, and many Michigan jobs are linked to trade with our Southern neighbor. Unfortunately, there is little the U.S. can do to repair Mexico's broken economic system. For several years, Mexicans bought most of their American products with money borrowed from Americans. When these massive debts came due, Mexico found itself unable to repay them. Continuing to make bad loans in Mexico, this time from the U.S. Treasury, makes little economic sense.

If these new, very risky Mexican loans are not repaid, then essentially the money will have been given away, and the U.S. taxpayer will be left to pick up the tab. This has happened several times in the past, most notably in 1982. Mexico's failure to make payments on foreign loans that year prompted an international debt crisis. The bailout may just be sending good money after bad.

The Mexican government's harsh economic plan does little to resolve the country's massive debt problems. Instead it has produced a severe and prolonged recession by implementing wage and price controls, higher taxes on businesses and individuals, and burdensome measures to reduce the country's imports.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Ed Doolittle come to the country store Saturday night mad as a wet hen, waving a bright colored postcard and growling about how there ought to be a law. The fellows were concerned right off, because the strongest plank in Ed's platform is doing away with most laws that have piled up on our books. Actual, Ed has been known to say all the law we need is the Ten Commandments with some enforcement behind them.

What it was, Ed had got the card the middle of last week. It said he was a winner in "category one" of a contest he didn't know he was in. He tracked that down and found out his old lady signed both of them up when she went to the mall with a van load of church wimmen. An outfit that is developing resort property was part of a home decorating and improving show there. Ed looked up category one on the card and read where the company was giving away a car, 100 televisions and 1,000 other prizes. His category was sure of a prize and was in line for the car.

All he had to do, Ed said, was visit the place the promoters were opening up and pick up his gift. That got his interest until he ask his old lady what she thought of going. She said she got the same card Ed got, and so did all the wimmen in the church that signed up. Then Ed borrowed her sewing glasses and read tiny print on the back of the card where the promoters said they reserve the right to substitute prizes.

That's when Ed's blood pressure shot up. He said he could see them driving half the day to get a plastic Without U.S. financial assistance, the Mexican government would be forced to take a heavy dose of fiscal discipline and sell off numerous publicly owned assets. Full privatization of state-run monopolies in telecommunications, electric utilities, and oil production would be painful to the politicians accustomed to their privileges, but would alleviate the economy's structural weaknesses, revitalize the private sector and renew prospects for economic growth. These reforms would also enable the government to borrow short-term funds from private credit markets, rather than the American taxpayer. The bailout, by infusing Mexico's bankrupt government with new funds, has given Mexico an excuse once again to postpone its long awaited reform measures.

The situation in Mexico is having serious repercussions. Large loans and guarantees to Mexico from the U.S. Treasury have put stress on the U.S. dollar, which recently fell to all-time lows against major currencies. When Congress failed to ratify the balanced budget amendment, currency markets questioned how the spendthrift U.S. government could justify making such risky loans to Mexico. Too many off-budget accounting gimmicks like the letter opener substituted for the car he had won. Ed done some reading and learned consumer laws say a contest has to be real, not a come-on where everybody wins. But these same laws give promoters the right to give away a set of plastic pop bottle stoppers instead of a television, Ed went on.

General, Ed got no sympathy. Clem Webster told him flat out that he was old enough and ugly enough to know better. There's always a catch, Clem said, and the first rule is if it sounds too good to be true, it is. Rule No. 2 is to refer to Rule No. 1. In every case, he allowed, the fine printers stay one long jump ahead of the lawmakers, like cut rate life insurance where the low premiums start now but you can't collect the first two years, and never if the company can show you had a "pre-existing condition," which everybody does.

Furthermore, Zeke Grubb said, when the subject is politics Ed leads the pack howling about no free lunches, and here he is expecting one. Ed sees a boondoggle behind every bush, Zeke went on, and he can pick out the fatal flaws in any Federal assistance program at 50 paces. Ed's history is one of not only looking a gift horse in the mouth, but working it to a lather to make sure it ain't windbroke, was Zeke's words.

Actual, Bug Hookum noted, there never could be enough laws to keep folks from making fools of themselves. He noted where this fellow cityslicked some of the biggest trusts, charities and richest people in the country out of millions for New Era Foundation that was nothing but a plain old pyramid con. All they heard was the promise they could double their money in six months, because that's all they wanted to hear.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew

FAMILY ROOM

By KAREN MEIER

Tony, my oldest, graduated a month ago. From elementary school. A formal farewell for the fifth grade was arranged. There were balloons and speeches and food and awards. Flash bulbs popped. Video cameras whirled. Faces beamed.

As I watched the children that day I realized they'd learned well so many lessons. Small lessons and big ones. Tony had learned one of the bigger ones in fourth grade. Or, maybe I'd learned it. Anyway, for some reason, on graduation day, it all came back to me.

One winter morning Tony's teacher called me. We exchanged hellos and she said, "Tony rolled his eyes at me this morning."

"Rolled his eyes?"

"Yes. Rolled his eyes."

"At you?"

"Yes. At me."

She wanted to meet with me. That afternoon. My quiet, serious boy had turned into a Fourth Grade Eye Roller. What had I done to cause this? And certainly I had. Moms are forever causing good kids to go bad. It's a fact—I heard it on Oprah.

I tried to sort the whole mess out as I did my morning chores. How could this have happened? I'm a great Mom who provides the shelter in the storm, the parachute that always opens, the pot hole-free Road of Life. Yet, my child's teacher had called. Where'd calls like that reserved for parents who don't give two hoots? Or who don't spend any time with their children? As I tugged on sheets and fluffed pillows that morning, I thought of the TIME I'd spent with all my children, including Tony. I thought of the countless hours spent in Tony's classroom helping out, the many times I'd driven his group on field trips. The time it took to get Tony's baby brother ready for the daily journey to school where I parked, got out, in rain, shine, snow, hail, late pregnancy, post knee surgery, ultra bad hair days, and walked into school, down Tony's hallway, to his room, to pick him up after the school day was done.

And how about the after-I-do-dishes ritual of checking homework? I'd circled Tony's misspelled words, grammatical errors, sloppy erasures, and incorrect math problems. I'd mentioned the blobby glue on his diorama, the unfilled spaces in the collage, and the incorrect format of his haiku poems. I'd hovered over him to see the corrections made. His work went off to school in perfect order.

Every day I made his lunch to order, gathered his homework papers and books, put the right amount of money with the right permission slip in a well-marked envelope and stuffed everything into his backpack, along with his shoes. I'd neatly placed the backpack on the bench in the front hall by his gloves and hat and boots.

I'd sit for an hour a day at his side at the piano while he practiced. And the soccer, basketball, and baseball practices I'd sat through. And the hours spent helping him make a 28-minute video for a school project.

That's a lot of time, and a lot more than two hoots.

As time drew nearer to the meeting that afternoon, I became frantic. How was I to spend more time with Tony? And the new baby to arrive in another month—the time shortage would only worsen. The situation was desperate.

Tony's teacher sat me down that afternoon and opened my eyes to a few things.

She'd given the entire class an assignment, a difficult one, to be completed and turned in within the hour. All the students bent their heads over their papers right away. Not Tony. He looked directly at her and rolled his eyes. Rude, most people might think. Not Tony's teacher, she read something else into it. She explained.

Tony's a perfectionist. (I knew that.) He expects to be perfect on the first attempt. (I knew that, too.) If he's not perfect the first time out, then he becomes incredibly frustrated. (I knew that.) This has resulted in occasional book slamming and paper crumpling. (Plus, piano pounding, teeth grinding, and cheek puffing.) And now, eye rolling. (He was showing frustration.) In addition, Tony does not like to work at perfection. Indeed, he likes to be perfect. He fully expects to get perfect grades. But working at perfection seems somehow beneath him, not his job. (Hmmm.) It seems to be someone else's. (Hmmm.) He seems unfamiliar with the grind and the grit and the sweat and the struggle for perfection. (Oh, dear. The mistake circling, the hovering, the neatly placed gloves and hat, the blobby glue discussions, the agonizing piano practices, the Shelter in the Storm, the Parachute, the Road of Life free of pot holes.)

It suddenly occurred to me—I'd protected my son too much. I'd better back off. Tony needed to go it alone, stumble on occasion, fall a little bit, wear his boots all day. Work at perfection. On his own.

Well, he did. And that was plain to see on graduation day.

The lesson we learned: children never learn to stand on their own if you don't let them fall down on their own.

50th WEDDING ANNIVERSARY: Rose and Gerald Cook of Melbourne, Fla., formerly of Chelsea, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on Saturday, June 24, in Chelsea. A luncheon-reception immediately following was held in St. Mary's Parish Center and was hosted by the couple's seven children and their families: Gretchen and Ron Moffett of Swanton, O., Kit Richardson of Scottsdale, Ariz., Susan and Rick Hawkinson of West Bloomfield, Jill Leachman and Ted Gertson of Stevens Point, Wis., Mary and Bill Lunsford of Winterhaven, Fla., Connie and Joel Cook of Dexter, and Jackie and Jim Powers of Taylor. The couple has 13 grandchildren. Micki Hurst prepared the luncheon and Patti Feeney made the cake. Background music was provided by Dick Martell.

Pioneer Life Shown in Historic Park at Fair

What is the size of two football fields and counts an outhouse among its assets?

It's the Country Life Historic Park, a collaborative effort of 21 historic and agricultural organizations to give Michigan State Fair visitors a peek at yesteryear.

This marks the fourth year that the park, co-ordinated by the Michigan State University Museum, will be a component at the state fairgrounds in Detroit. Dates for this year's fair are Aug. 22 through Sept. 4.

"The Country Life Historic Park gives fair-goers a real glimpse of our agricultural roots and connects them with our lives today," says Julie Avery, MSU Museum specialist and park co-ordinator.

Today's predominately urban population, children in particular, need to understand about a past way of life in which there were no televisions, computers or shopping malls, she says. It was, as the park depicts, a time when life centered around the farm and home and when families and neighbors supported each other.

Visitors are invited to experience the Country Life Historic Park with their eyes, ears and hands. The 21 participating organizations offer a blend of museum exhibits, living history demonstrations and participatory activities.

In addition to Michigan's agricultural heritage, museum exhibits will focus on rural women of merit, transitions in farm mechanization and Native American gardening.

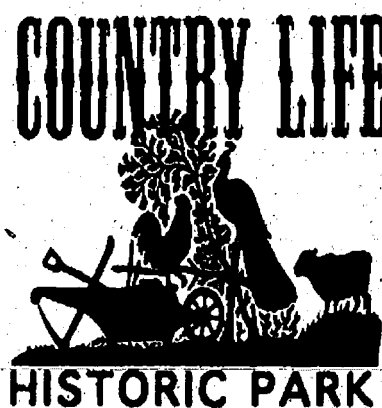

Presenters, many in period costumes, will demonstrate such 19th century farm essentials as blacksmithing, grist milling, grain threshing, draft animal training, wood working and food preparation without modern conveniences.

Visitors may also join in such activities as old-time games and puzzles and rope making. In addition, members of the Michigan Oral History Association will be on hand Aug. 26-28 and Sept. 2-4 to ask park visitors to share their own experiences and recollections regarding Michigan's agricultural past.

"Cross-generational sharing is really at the heart of the park," MSU's Avery says. "Parents and grandparents can provide many answers and share experiences not known about today."

"The adventure of their lives provides a real personal connection with our own heritage."

Ethnic Food Among Highlights at Festival

After months of planning, preparation and anticipation, organizers of St. Joseph Summer Fun Festival will see everything come together this week-end.

The annual festival is slated Saturday, July 15 beginning at noon, at the church grounds on the corner of Third and Dover streets in Dexter, and continues through Sunday, July 16.

With a variety of ethnic backgrounds, St. Joe's parishioners will be offering visitors to the festival a sample of foods from around the world. Fresh Polish sausage, sauerkraut, pierogies and stuffed cabbage will be available at the Taste of Poland booth. The Taste of Mexico booth will feature taco salads and nachos. Mostaccioli with cheese and fresh Italian sausage with peppers and onions will be cooked up for dining pleasure at the Italian booth. Traditional American food, such as hot dogs, sloppy Joes and pizza will also be available. The food booths are being co-ordinated by Kathy and Lee Hirth.

Sunday's culinary fare will include St. Joe's famous chicken dinner. Cooks will be serving up a half chicken, baked potato, cole slaw, roll and drink. Many people of the parish, under the leadership of chairpersons Ruth and Dale Schaedig, start setting up the big grill early in the morning. The delicious smell of barbecued chicken is expected to waft over the festival and entice festival-goers noon to 6 p.m.

Festival organizers say food will be available rain or shine because it will be set up underneath the big tents. Musical entertainment and children's activities will also be among the highlights.

Terrace Place Adds Talented Staff People

Terrace Place Restaurant on North Territorial Rd., Dexter, has recently hired two very qualified people to improve their menu and service. Chef William (Bill) Sleight had been with Chuck Muer's Uptown Charlies restaurant, for the last 11 years. His talents in preparation of foods is unlimited with a very strong background in seafood. Since his arrival, Chef Bill's experience has resulted in numerous comments from guests on how well the food presentation, flavor, and selection of foods coming from the kitchen has increased.

"When you come in to dine with us, I am sure you will meet Chef Bill, as he tours the tables during the evening," owner Joe Nellis said.

Secondly, Kim McCombs comes to the Terrace Place with an extremely strong background of 15 years in banquet and catering experience. She has been with such renowned places as The Clarion, Marriott Corp., and Holiday Crown Plaza, where she was the certified food service manager.

Nellis says "Our food service has increased greatly since her arrival, and she awaits you to offer her services for catering or banquets for on or off the premises."

"Both Chef Bill and Kim are looking forward to meeting you the next time you're in for dining," added Nellis. "If there is anything we can do to make your visit more pleasant, let us know."

Deadline Extended

To July 15 for
USDA Crop Reports

USDA-CFSA has announced the extension to file 1995 crop reports by July 15. The previous deadline was June 30.

By filing an accurate crop report producers can prevent the loss of all program benefits, reduction or loss of crop history and loss of price support benefits.

Filing crop reports is a contract requirement for the producers enrolled in the Conservation Reserve Program or Production Adjustment Program.

A crop report can be taken from a farm operator, owner, or any person who has an interest in the crop or crops grown. Reports can also be taken from an individual acting under a power of attorney.

Pinckney Area Man Completes Electronics Technician Course

Navy Seaman Klaus Gutknecht, a 1992 graduate of Pinckney High School recently graduated from the Electronic Warfare Technician Course.

During the course which is taught at the Naval Technical Training Center, Corry Station, Pensacola, Fla., students receive training in electrical safety procedures, and maintenance and installation of shipboard electronic warfare equipment.

He joined the Navy in January 1994.

Pinckney Man Aboard Frigate in Persian Gulf Area

Navy Ensign Scott A. Tait, a 1988 graduate of Pinckney High school, is halfway through a six-month overseas deployment to the Persian Gulf aboard the guided missile frigate USS McClusky.

Tait is one of 300 sailors aboard the ship who departed Yokosuka, Japan, in February for the six-month assignment with the Middle East Force. Tait has been operating in the Persian Gulf helping conduct maritime interceptions of merchant ships suspected of violating the international embargo against Iraq. Tait and fellow shipmates have been questioning and searching ships in international waters suspected of smuggling prohibited materials to and from Iraq in violation of the agreement.

Tait is also participating in several multinational exercises with forces from Great Britain, Kuwait and Thailand. In the Persian Gulf, Tait's ship trained firing its large and small caliber guns at targets and conducting choke point operations. In an area where more than half the world's oil is transported by Merchant ships through narrow choke points such as the Strait of Hormuz, ships like Tait's play an invaluable role in providing security and stability to the region.

While spending most of the deployment at sea, Tait has also visited Kuwait, Singapore, and Thailand.

He joined the Navy in October 1992. Tait is a graduate of the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, with a BS degree.

Michigan's state, county, and municipal roads total over 118,000 miles, one of the largest in the country. With no toll roads and only a few toll bridges (most at international crossings), Michigan's roads are ideal for shipping the materials and products of Michigan's industry and commerce.

Researchers at the Agriculture Department have developed a new safe way to remove some of the fat and cholesterol from hamburger meat. The only major drawback is that the fat-removal process is expensive, possibly limiting its commercial appeal. The procedure, called supercritical fluid extraction, uses carbon dioxide to dissolve the fat and cholesterol in the meat. The process works best using freeze-dried meat.

Any Village of Chelsea resident who is a registered voter is eligible to serve as a library trustee. Potential trustees must also have an interest in the services of a dynamic public library to serve our community.

Applicants are asked to submit a brief letter describing reasons why they would like to serve on the library board by July 31. Please include name, address and phone number on this letter and submit to Dan Kaminsky, president, board of directors, McKune Memorial Library, 221 S. Main St., Chelsea 48118. Interested residents are invited to call either Ann Holt, 475-8732, library director; or Dan Kaminsky, 475-3193, president of the board, to find out more about the responsibilities and rewards of serving the community in this role.

Summer Reading Program at Library Off to Great Start

Summer Reading is off to a great start with approximately 300 children participating! It is not too late to register and there is still space in the weekly story hours for pre-schoolers, 1st/2nd graders, and third/fourth graders. The movie nights for fifth and sixth graders are Thursday, July 13 and 20 at 6:30. Call the library or come in to register.

This summer the library also has something for teen-age patrons. Computer Pix is a database of 1,200 fiction titles compiled by youth services librarians in The Library Network. Come in to the library, fill out a reading interest form and receive a printout of 15 titles that match your reading tastes. Fill out as many forms as you like and if we don't have the titles, we can get them for you through interlibrary loan. The best part is that it's free. For more information, contact Josie Parker, Youth Services librarian at 475-8732.

Chelsea Aquatic Club Loses Close Meet to Racquet Club

Chelsea Aquatic Club lost a very close meet to Racquet Club on Friday, June 30, and Saturday, July 1. "It was fun to swim in the sunshine for a change and maybe that's a reason we swam so well," commented head coach John Crispin. "It was a very competitive meet and while we are disappointed that we came up a little short, the closeness of the final scores show that we belong in the 'A' division. I would like to make special mention of divers Caitlin Paul and Gabe McGuinness; and swimmers Cassie Vachon, Elisabeth Rohrkemper, Joel Wilke, Ray White, and Kenny White for their fine efforts."

Team Kalitta Ready for West Coast

If there is anyone who knows just how grueling it can be to successfully compete on the NHRA Winston Drag Racing Series circuit week after week after week it is defending Winston Top Fuel Champion Scott Kalitta.

The 17th annual Mopar Parts Mile-High Nationals, July 20-23, at Bandimere Speedway in Morrison, Colo., kicks off the annual West Coast tour of three consecutive racing week-ends. Followed by the Autolite Nationals in Sonoma, Calif., July 28-30, and the Northwest Nationals in Seattle, Wash., Aug. 4-6, it is a schedule that puts man and machine to the test. It is a test that Kalitta in his American International Airways entry passed with flying colors one year ago.

The 33-year-old Chelsea resident went into the 1994 Mile-High Nationals looking for, and finding, his third consecutive win of the season. By the time Kalitta went to the Autolite Nationals it was his nerves that were being tested. Could he become the first Top Fuel driver to ever win four consecutive events? The answer was a resounding yes as he defeated Kenny Bernstein in the final to earn his place in the record books. The question, then became could he win five-in-a-row at Seattle? The answer this time was almost. Kalitta extended his points lead, and got rid of a lot of pressure, when mechanical problems in the final earned Joe Amato the win.

So far this season the story is pretty much the same. Kalitta has put his Dick LaHaie-tuned American International Airways/Sequent Computers entry in the winner's circle of the last two events—the Oldsmobile Spring Nationals and Western Auto Nationals—and is currently second in the point standings, just three points behind leader Cory McClenathan. Kalitta also has runner-up finishes at the Chief Winter-nationals and Mopar Parts Nationals along with a win at the Winston Select Invitational bonus race to his credit.

Scott's father and teammate, Connie, will be looking for his first win of the season at the Mile-High Nationals. The 57-year-old Ypsilanti resident was the Mile-High champion in 1984 and 1985. At last year's event it was his son who ended his bid for a third title when Scott took the win in their second round match-up. It was the sixth of seven times the two have met in competition; Connie leads four to three.

The winner of three events last season and 10 over-all, this season has not been all that Kalitta had hoped for. The American International Airways owner has made three second-round appearances out of the 10 events completed and is currently ninth in the point standings. Things are expected to turn around though with the recent addition of six-time U.S. Nationals winner Ed McCulloch as Crew Chief for Connie. McCulloch will be working closely with LaHaie with the hopes of having at least a couple all-American International Airways final rounds before season's end.

With six final rounds on the mountain between them—Scott, one; Connie, two and McCulloch, three—the team may have a handle on the high-altitude factor.

Last year's Autolite Nationals was almost as exciting for Connie as it was for Scott. The excitement, though, was of a different variety. Enroute to defeating Stevie Foster in round one, the left rear tire on Kalitta's dragster blew out. While he kept the entry upright and took the win, the debris took out the rear wing and the frame suffered enough damage that he could not return for his second round match-up with Don Prudhomme. The Northwest Nationals found Kalitta falling to eventual event winner Amato in round two after qualifying number 11.

Qualifying for the Mile-High Nationals will begin on July 21 with sessions at 4 and 8 p.m. Qualifying ends with sessions at noon and 4 p.m. July 22. Final eliminations are scheduled for 11 a.m. July 23. Professional qualifying for the Autolite Nationals will begin Friday, July 28, with sessions at 2 and 7 p.m. Final qualifying will take place July 29, with sessions at noon and 4 p.m. Final eliminations will begin at 11 a.m., July 30. Northwest Nationals qualifying will begin Aug. 4 with sessions at 2 and 7 p.m. Final qualifying will be at noon and 4 p.m. on Aug. 5. Final eliminations for the Northwest Nationals will begin at 11 a.m. Aug. 6.

A one-hour highlights show from the Mopar Parts Mile-High Nationals will be televised on ESPN Monday, July 24 at 9 p.m. (EDT). A repeat show will air on July 26 at 3:30 a.m. The highlights from the Autolite Nationals will air on ESPN July 31 at 8 p.m., with a repeat airing Aug. 2 at 4:30 a.m. The Northwest Nationals may be seen on ESPN Monday, Aug. 7, at 9:30 p.m. and again on Thursday, Aug. 10, at 4:30 a.m.

Following the West Coast tour, the next event for the team will be the Champion Auto Stores Nationals at Brainerd-International Raceway in Brainerd, Minn., Aug. 17-20.

Aquatic Club Loses Close Meet To Georgetown Country Club

Chelsea Aquatic Club continues to work hard to try to hold their A division placement in the summer swim league. The outside meets have proven to be lots of fun but also lots of work as swimmers attempt to stay warm on these chilly Saturday mornings.

"The meet had many close and exciting races," said head coach, John Crispin following the Saturday morning swim meet with Georgetown Country Club.

CAC swam hard and well especially in the 8 & under and 9-10 age groups. We could use a few more swimmers to help fill up our line-ups and to be more competitive, but those who do swim and dive are doing well. I would like to make special mention of Kelly Butcher, Alexis Jolly, Ryan Kelley, Shevaun Wacker, Matt Laskowski, and Megan Torbet for their fine performances.

CAC's next meet is July 14 and 15 home. Following the meet the swimmers and divers along with their families will meet at the Hack family home for a picnic and summer games.

Evil in County Fairs

Ann Arbor—Covering everything from what the state should do for farmers to the cultivation of onions, artesian wells, milk sickness, maple sugar and how to make a husband happy, the Farmer's Companion and Horticultural Gazette of 1854, part of the University of Michigan Bentley Library's collection, also warned Michigan farmers of the evils of agricultural fairs.

"There can be no doubt that no Agricultural Fair passes over without some exhibitors of stock feeling dissatisfied, and thinking that they have not been fairly dealt with," the publication exhorts. "We are not in the habit, in the west, of concealing our opinions; we speak right out; and thence hard things are said, and hard feelings engendered. This is the only practical evil that we know connected with such exhibits, and it is very important that it should be stopped as soon as possible."

The Gazette doesn't suggest that those of the West stop speaking, but rather that the judging of such agricultural exhibits be regulated. Nor does it suggest that voicing opinions, speaking the truth, being honest and forthright be supplanted with hedging, withholding opinions, or lying. But it does suggest that guidelines be set for judges.

In 1854, livestock judges did so on "personal tastes." Admittedly some judges preferred full-blooded specimens and others "graded" stock depending on what they were most familiar with. And there were some farmers who really preferred a "coarse animal to the finest bred one," the Gazette said.

The crux of this whole "evil" business is that the publication wanted Michigan fairs judged as such fairs were judged in England, with rules on which the judgment is formed and points given for requirements. It promoted the need for models of "ideal or perfect" animal specimens, against which the entries in local fairs could be judged.

Eventually those models were established for livestock judging in Michigan, but those, too, have changed over the years.

"Hogs were judged 30 years ago on the amount of lard they could produce," says John Evert, the 4-H youth agent at Michigan State University's Washtenaw County Extension office. "Now the market wants hogs that are longer and leaner. The ideal animal has changed with changes in our dietary habits."

Judges at today's agricultural fairs do judge against a standard of perfection established for each breed, and there are opportunities for judges to receive additional training and education. But each judge is still different, Evert says, as are the standards of perfection. Standards have been established for the various breeds of animals as well as for a breeding class and market class for each animal, each class with its own set of guidelines towards perfection.

"Preventing hard feelings will not be the only benefit," the Gazette said of the changes it proposed. "More kindness and confidence will be felt; and above all it will be a decided advantage to us in teaching as what to purchase or how to breed; as well as in saving us from those who would palm inferior animals upon us as the best."

The Bentley Historical Library is open 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday-Friday.

BEHIND THE HEADLINES:

★ Rejoining UNESCO Makes No Sense

President Reagan pulled America out of UNESCO in 1984, complaining that this United Nations agency was highly politicized, poorly managed, and wasteful. Now President Clinton wants to rejoin UNESCO, even though there's been no improvement.

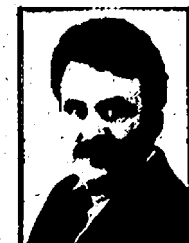

By F.R. Duplantier
The United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) was established in 1946, and promptly started to propagandize on behalf of "world citizenship." In an early series of pamphlets entitled Towards World Understanding, UNESCO denounced parents of all nationalities for instilling patriotism and love of country in their children. "As long as the child breathes the poisoned air of nationalism," the UNESCO pamphlets declared, "education in world-mindedness can produce only precarious results." That our current President wants to rejoin UNESCO in spite of its well-publicized defects boggles the mind.

But that's exactly what President Clinton wants to do. "After some minor—mostly window-dressing—reforms at UNESCO," the White House is considering rejoining the agency at an annual cost of $65 million," says Ed Feulner, president of the Heritage Foundation and a former member of our government's UNESCO Review Observation Panel.

Feulner isn't the only one flabbergasted by the Clinton administration's desire to renew membership in this unworthy group. A 1993 report by the General Accounting Office found little improvement in the way UNESCO operates. Feulner says the GAO reported "a planned 66 percent budget increase for 1994-95 in UNESCO's Participation Program," which insiders describe as a "slush fund" for the director general.

In 1990 the U.S. State Department noted that UNESCO's mission was so vaguely defined and its "resources spread so thinly that it has often been difficult to discern any measurable impact." Most of its activities are duplicated by other U.N. agencies. U.N. Secretary General Boutros Boutros-Ghali acknowledges that "duplication is widespread; co-ordination is often nominal; bureaucratic battles aimed at monopolizing a particular subject are rife; and organizational objectives are sometimes in conflict." President Clinton doesn't seem to be bothered by such waste and mismanagement. Nor does the

Your Money Matters

★ Keeping Costs Down on the Big Move

The average American will move 11 times in his or her life. When you moved the first time, you simply packed up the car, borrowed a friend's pick-up truck and you were off. But with each move the parade of vehicles became a little longer, until you finally rented a truck. Eventually, you decide you aren't going to carry the refrigerator down one more flight of stairs, so you hire someone else to do it. As our treasures and other "non-treasure" possessions accumulate, our moves become more complicated and more costly. With June through September being the time of year when 50 percent of all moves take place within Michigan, we thought it would be an ideal time to look at how to keep moving costs down.

First and always compare prices. It doesn't matter if you're going to rent a truck yourself or hire a moving company. Compare prices and what you're going to get for your money. Don't just get two prices, take the time to call four or more companies. Since the moving industry is regulated, every company will have the same price per pound/per mile; but every company can also offer discounts and those discounts will vary.

If you're using a moving company get their estimates in writing. Better still, get estimates that are guaranteed or are a binding price. That way they can't charge you more if the items weigh more than they estimated or the job takes longer. Be a negotiator with the price also. If they really want your business, they will be willing to negotiate.

Since most moves do happen in the summer, avoid these months if possible. If you can't avoid it realize that movers may charge a higher price in the summer, but this may be something you can negotiate down. Likewise, movers may charge more on the week-ends and at the end of the month, so try to schedule your move earlier in the month and on a week-day.

Take a good look at your belongings, donate items you no longer need or want to a charity and keep the receipt for a tax deduction. There's no need to pay to move something only to throw it out once you get to the new location. On long distance moves, the price you're charged is based on weight and distance. So you could be paying to move things you don't really want. Items such as the washer and dryer may require special handling so you'll be charged extra. Find out which items they'll charge more for and consider selling them and buying new ones when you arrive at your new home.

Pack many of your own belongings yourself. Clothes, toys, dishes, are easy items that you can put in boxes yourself. Also, consider doing all the unpacking yourself. Movers will unpack for you at an extra cost. Unpacking means taking everything out of a box and placing it on a flat surface, like the floor or bed. That may not be what you want or what helps you the best.

Finally, make sure you are there to meet the movers at the new location. If you're late, your belongings may be placed in storage and you'll have to pay the expense. When your belongings are unpacked, you should receive an inventory from the movers. Check off the items as they are unpacked and inspect them for any damage. Report any damage or missing items to the destination agent, not the driver.

Remember that if you move because of work and your new main office of work is at least 35 miles further from your former residence than your old office, some of your moving expenses may be tax-deductible. Keep good record of your expenses and call the IRS to get a copy of their publication "Moving Expenses" (No. 521).

The United Nations at 50 in San Francisco

By Alice Steinbach
 HVUNA President
 Exhilarating! Enlightening! Empowering! Entertaining! The United Nations 50th Anniversary Celebration in San Francisco can be described as all of these. I would like to share some peak moments with you which I experienced between June 18 and 29. Three days before the "We the People" conference commenced, I arrived in San Francisco. This allowed time to orient myself to the city. Armed with maps and guide books, I set out on BART, cable cars, city buses, ferry boats, and of course my own two feet. My first stop was the Civic Center area, where UN Plaza was undergoing major renovation. A new fountain was activated and some lovely statuary was being dedicated. Then on to the Herbst Theater, where in 1945 the UN Charter was signed. The "A Moment in History" exhibition in the War Memorial Veterans Building displayed fascinating memorabilia from 1945, including the original United Nations Charter. The 1995 Peace Bell, formed from melted weapons, in honor of UN50 was unveiled here.

The Ferry Building at the World Trade Center housed a poignant display of works of art by youth around the world. A new publication, A World in Our Hands, written, illustrated and edited by young people of the world was available, features these works, with an introduction by Boutros Ghali. Musical groups from 80 nations performed in streets and parks. A moving display of the "UN50 International AIDS Memorial Quilt" was found in the Esplanade Gardens of the Yerba Buena Center for the Arts. The San Francisco Stamp Show unveiled the UN 50th Anniversary commemorative stamp as well as the United Nations first day issue stamps. The San Francisco Opera House was the site of the UN 50th Anniversary Concert featuring Marilyn Horn, the San Francisco Opera Orchestra and Chorus. William Bolcom of Ann Arbor was commissioned by the UN50 Committee to compose a work which made its debut at this event.

The We the Peoples Conference, for citizens exploring non-governmental organizations and United Nations relations was attended by June Rusten and I as representatives of League of Women Voters and UNA. It consisted of panel discussions, workshops, plenary, and strategy sessions, with representatives from international organizations. Many participants present at the 1945 UN Charter signing, were honored at events throughout the conference. Minerva Bernardino, 88-year-old diplomat from the Dominican Republic, was the only UN Charter signer from the 50 countries represented in 1945 in attendance at the UN50 Anniversary Celebration. She is an outspoken advocate for women's rights. The closing address of this conference was given by the UN Secretary-General, Boutros Boutros Ghali. His address stressed the importance of non-governmental organizations as agencies of support and council for the United Nations.

The UNA-USA National Convention was attended by 12 delegates and observers from the Michigan Division. June Rusten and I were voting delegates from the HVUNA. During the opening plenary, June 25, we were greeted by the Hon. Frank Jordan, Mayor of San Francisco and Dianne Feinstein, U.S. Senator from California addressed the participants. Later that day there was a reception to honor UN Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali. His message was one of empowerment for the work of UNA and his warm personality and thought provoking skills were evident while answering questions from the audience.

Monday, June 26, was the day of the Charter Ceremony. Several Michigan delegates were fortunate to have tickets for the event. June and I, along with several hundred other conferees, had to content ourselves with watching it live on a movie screen. We were encouraged by President Clinton's support of the United Nations in his address and found the words of Maya Angelou in, "A Brave and Startling Truth," inspirational.

Tuesday morning the UNA-UAS Delegates focused on the 11 resolutions introduced by Divisions and Chapters throughout the United States. The Michigan Division introduced two, the first on the issue of Taiwan being readmitted to the U.N. and the second on discontinuing the embargo of Cuba. The Substantive Issues Committee recommended both be adopted. After lengthy debate and discussion, both were adopted along with five other resolutions. These resolutions will be submitted to the United Nations.

We attended a variety of plenary and skills sessions on peace, human rights, and many other issues. A time and place were set aside for Divisions and Chapters to share their UN50 projects and events. June and I set up a large display for the Michigan Division, including many items from HVUNA. The UN50 work of art, commissioned by the Huron Valley United Nations Association (HVUNA), by Janice Stevens Botsford of Chelsea received considerable attention. Two UN50 works of art and a quilt received special recognition. Awards were given to UN50 high school essay contest winners from the USA and Russia.

The HVUNA received an award for membership growth in the first 6 months of the UN 50th Anniversary year. I was honored to accept this award for the HVUNA Chapter.

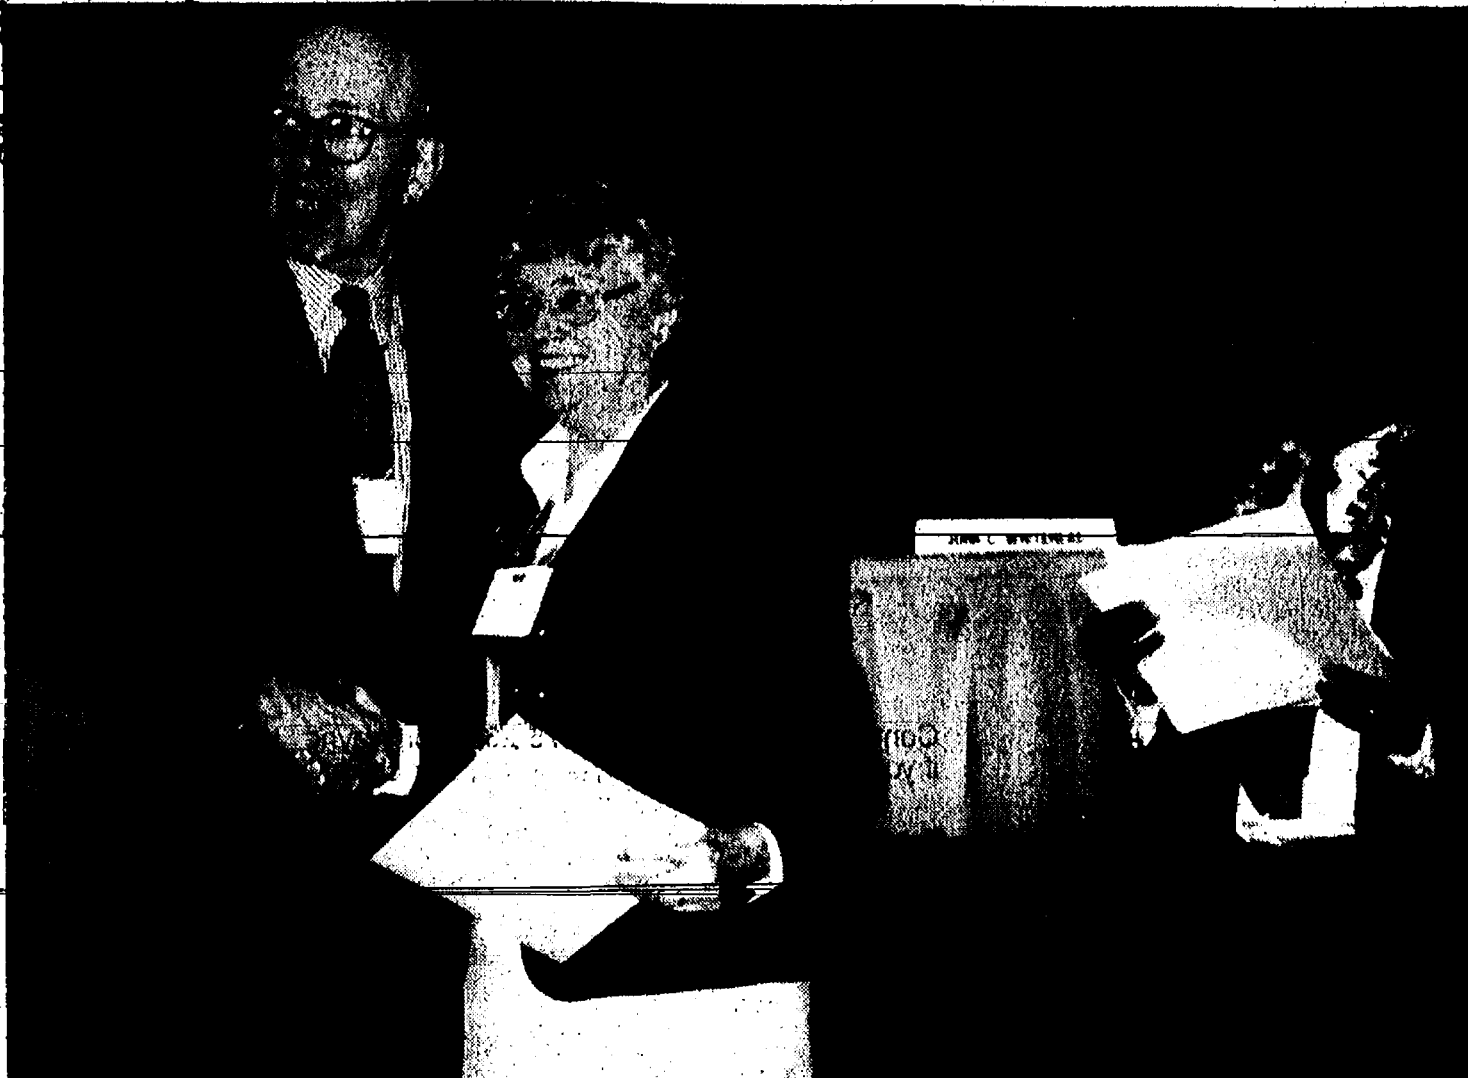

The World Federation of United Nations Associations Convention followed the UNA-USA National Convention. HVUNA vice-president Sue Chang arrived on June 28 to participate in this event.

We departed San Francisco with a sense of reaffirmation and dedication to support the United Nations. We must commit ourselves to work for needed changes, while at the same time supporting the United Nations through political action, education, and personal involvement. The United Nations, with its imperfections, is the best hope of the world.

THE VETERAN'S WAR Memorial Building in San Francisco, houses the Herbst Theatre where the United Nations Charter was signed in 1945. The charter was on display during the recent 50th anniversary of the signing.

ALICE STEINBACH, president of the Huron Valley United Nations Association (HVUNA) attended the recent 50th anniversary celebration of the signing of the United Nations Charter in San Francisco. While at the celebration she met Tom Morgan, UNA-USA president.

Car Abandoned At Palmer Motors

A Scio Farms Estates couple was warned July 10 to pick up their 1989 Ford Topaz abandoned at Palmer Ford or it would be sold at public auction.

The couple left their vehicle at Palmer Ford, 222 S. Main St., June 18 after being told it needed its engine replaced. Palmer Ford staff told police the couple asked if the car could be sold for $1,500.

Palmer Ford wants to collect towing and storage fees of $100. A letter has been sent to the couple advising them of the complaint.

Police Order Abandoned Vehicle Impounded

A vehicle abandoned in the municipal parking lot between Park and Middle streets was impounded after its owner failed to retrieve it.

Chelsea Police report the vehicle had been parked behind the police station since June 29. On July 7, after the registered owner was told the vehicle was parked in violation of a 24-hour parking ordinance, police had the vehicle impounded.

The family received friends on Friday from 2 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. at the Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home where the Rosary was held Friday at 8:30 p.m.

Following Mr. Augustine will be taken to the Stephens Funeral Home in Scottville, where visitation will be held Sunday from 6 to 9 p.m.

Graveside services will be held Monday at 10 a.m. at the Bachelor Cemetery, Fountain, which is located across from his cabin.

Expressions of sympathy may be made to St. Jude's Children's Hospital or Arbor Hospice.

Stockbridge Woman Opens Mill Pond Deli in Waterloo

■ Mitsy Allen opens deli and ice cream parlor on Clear Lake Rd.

With only one restaurant in the Waterloo area and no fast-food joints, Mitsy Allen believes her new business venture will answer the hungry howls from the bellies of area residents.

Allen, a 38-year-old Stockbridge resident and mother of two, opened the Mill Pond Deli, 8400 Clear Lake Rd. in Waterloo township June 22. Since that time, she says business has been booming.

A former manager of J.R. Speedway, a gas station and deli in Stockbridge, Allen has learned the ropes of the deli business over the past 15 years. She has worked as manager in charge of ordering and preparing submarine sandwiches. Now she is venturing out on her own and putting her skills to the test with a combination deli and ice cream parlor.

Allen purchased the empty lot, once occupied by a gasoline station before it burned down, in January. She had the 1,344-square-foot facility constructed during the winter and spring months. By summer, Allen said she had obtained health department approval and opened for business.

Allen prides herself on the home-made specials, variety of submarine sandwiches and pizzas available at the Mill Pond Deli. Prices for subs vary from $3.49 to $5.79 and pizzas run from $6 for a small to a one-topping 16-inch for $10.25. Daily specials vary from chili dogs and soups to chicken fajitas and scalloped potatoes. Allen says no corporate rules or recipes restrict creativity. "I just

"I've put a lot of work into this place. It feels good."

—Mitsy Allen,
Mill Pond Deli owner

make them up in my head and throw them together," she said.

The shop carries eight flavors of ice cream with sundaes, ice cream floats and banana splits available. There is seating for 15, and orders are placed at a counter. Allen says the majority of business comes via take-out orders from area residents, campers, truckers, DNR employees and correction officers from Cassidy Lake Boot Camp. A staff of six waits on the customers Sunday through Thursday, 10 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. and Friday and Saturday, 10:30 a.m. to 11 p.m. Specials are served after 4 p.m.

Allen admits it's been hard work getting this venture off the ground. She is a first-time business owner. "I've put a lot of work into this place. It feels good," she said.

Allen says she scoured auctions and garage sales in the area in search of tables, chairs, a pizza oven, deli case, refrigerator and other items for the place. From among all those hand-me-downs, what Allen has now is something she can call her own.

House Party '95 Slated Sept. 22

House Party '95 has been set for Sept. 22 at the Chelsea Fairgrounds.

An evening of dinner, dancing, cash bar, Monte Carlo, a $25,000 drawing and fun will again be sponsored by the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce. Last year more than 700 people attended this exciting event.

Music will be provided this year by Intrigue, a dance and show band. Dinner will be provided by the Chelsea Community Hospital, and Monte Carlo will be sponsored by the Knights of Columbus.

A grand prize drawing for $25,000 will be held at midnight. Other prizes include a large screen TV, VCR and cellular telephone. The number of tickets sold will be limited to 750. However, if less than 500 tickets are sold the drawing will revert to a 50-50 drawing with a minimum prize of $5,000. Last year the winner received $19,150.

Two early bird drawings will be held to encourage participants to purchase their tickets early. On Aug. 1 and Sept. 1 ticket holders will be entered in $250 shopping spree drawings. Winners may use this prize at any merchant in Chelsea.

Proceeds from last year's drawing went to provide decorations for Main St., the Timbertown project, outdoor basketball courts for kids, Chelsea Fairgrounds, and other community projects.

Each ticket purchased includes two admissions to the party. This admission allows a couple to have a fun evening of dinner, snacks, dancing and trying their luck at Monte Carlo. Participants must be 21 years of age to enter the party. In addition, tickets will provide one chance at the grand prize of $25,000, a large screen TV and other prizes.

Tickets are available at Chelsea Lumber, Wolverine Food and Spirits, Chelsea State Bank, Chelsea Pharmacy, Cleary's Pub, Chamber of Commerce office and the Community Education Office.

AMERICAN LEGION POST 31 repeated its annual 4th of July chicken barbecue at the Legion Home on Ridge Rd., at Cavanaugh Lake. This year the Sons of the American Legion (SAL) did the honors

Unlawful Entry, Assault Reported at Apartments

A Chelsea woman is accusing the manager of Wolverine School House Apartments of unlawful entry and assault on her toddler.

The dispute broke out at the building, located at 209 Park St., July 5. A woman told police the apartment manager pushed his way into her apartment, striking her son in the head with a door, after they argued over the main door being left open. The woman said the manager also knocked her telephone off the wall when she attempted to call for help. The suspect denies assaulting the woman.

Chelsea Police have referred the case to the prosecutor.
