

County Home Ready

The Washtenaw County Community Mental Health department will run a home for the developmentally disabled at 509 Maywood St. in Chelsea. Preparations are complete and it will house five or six residents within 30 days.

Donna Sabourin, WCCMH program administrator for Community Living Resources, said her organization would contract with Spectrum Resource Services to supply 24-hour in-house staffing, while WCCMH would provide further services such as physical therapy, etc.

Sabourin indicated that the home could provide for up to six developmentally disabled residents age 18 or above.

The Maywood Street site will be the 10th facility for Alternative Intermediate Services directed by WCCMH among its 35 community living homes. The first was established 13 years ago.

The projects are funded through Medicaid money, 56.84 percent federal funds and the remainder from state coffers.

While some Chelsea residents have questioned placing the home on Maywood Street next to South Elementary School without community input, Sabourin explained, federal law prevented WCCMH from divulging information.

The organization is prohibited from early notification because doing so would violate the Civil Rights of residents.

School District Hires Carr As Interim CHS Principal

By Scott Bishop
Staff Writer

At Monday night's Chelsea School Board meeting, the board approved the hiring of experienced administrator Bob Carr of Ann Arbor as interim high school principal, beginning on the first day of the new semester Jan. 22, and finishing a few days after the school year ends in June. The move will allow current principal Ron Mead to devote increased time to leading planning and organizational efforts for new school construction.

Carr has begun working at the high school in preparation to assume the position of principal Jan. 22.

Monday afternoon before the board meeting, Superintendent Ed Richardson explained how the idea came about.

"Over the last month and a half we've seen mounting responsibilities for all of our administrative team. Therefore I proposed to the board that one of the ways to handle the mounting responsibilities is to give someone assigned responsibilities, and we felt like Ron Mead would be the best person for that," Richardson said.

That high school construction made up roughly 60 percent of the total construction budget was another reason it made sense for Mead as high school principal to head up planning and preparation efforts, Richardson continued.

Mead will not focus solely on construction plans. He will continue to be responsible for staffing, scheduling and budgeting for the 1996-97 school year.

Richardson proposed hiring Carr to the school board and explained the purpose of his recommendation.

"The assignment for the interim principal will be to handle the day-to-day operations in the principal's office. Therefore, Mr. Mead can give a significant amount of his attention to the kinds of construction responsibilities that are before us," Richardson said.

Richardson listed staffing three elementary schools, synthesizing utility services to the new schools, working with municipalities to approve site plans, assessing traffic flow, attendance and school starting time questions and organizing the process for planned renovations of existing schools as just some of the activities Mead will coordinate.

Schools Seek PR Help

The Chelsea School District is looking to hire an "information specialist" on a contract basis for both internal and public relations purposes.

An ad in the Nov. 28 edition of The Chelsea Standard indicated the district wants a part-time writer to produce press releases, brochures, staff newsletters and other district publications in 10-20 hours per week.

Superintendent Ed Richardson explained the district's goal in hiring. "The purpose is to streamline the information and communication within the school district and to provide information to the public," he said.

Richardson listed creating informative brochures — for example introducing residents to the procedures and purposes of a school board meeting — realigning the format of annual reports, and advising the district in how best to access the media as potential tasks for the contracted writer. The district plans to pay roughly $10 per hour for the work.

"I just want to make clear that it's not a new position (within the school administration), it's a contract service," Richardson concluded.

Growth Issues Key For Village In New Year

By Scott Bishop
Staff Writer

Controlling the growth of Chelsea's population, traffic and development is key among issues the village will face in the next year, according to Village Manager Jack Myers.

"All we can do is control it. We can't stop it, but we can kind of control it as to how it's developed," Myers said.

A study by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments forecasts population growth in Chelsea through at least the year 2010. Significantly, the surrounding townships are predicted to grow at an even faster pace.

That growth in the surrounding areas could contribute to traffic congestion along M-52 in Chelsea.

A study of traffic problems headed by the Urban Area Transportation Study and supplemented by state, county and village funds is scheduled to diagnose the traffic problems and offer alternative solutions by late spring or early summer.

Myers expressed hope that the study could supply direction to efforts to ease congestion, but was wary of potential funding problems.

Limited state funds could derail any M-52 improvements or eliminate preferred but more expensive alternatives like a by-pass around Chelsea.

Closer to home, Myers said that development within the village needs to be monitored closely, not only because of traffic concerns but to avoid overloading the utility system.

"We have to be very much aware that if too much development occurs, we're already getting limited at the wastewater treatment plant, so if development continues on a rate that it is now, there comes a time when those clarifiers (which collect solid waste at the water treatment plant) are going to have to be changed around so they can expand the plant," Myers observed.

Other issues Chelsea will face soon include clarifying relations between the village and surrounding townships, moving forward with plans for a new municipal building, and continuing study the possibility of becoming a city.

Issues such as an area-wide fire department will need to be negotiated between the village and townships. Myers indicated that while an area-wide fire department was not in current village plans, it remained a future possibility.

"The village will seek cooperation within the current situation, (village controlled), and have meeting with the township representatives to discuss maybe their needs on a joint basis rather than to set up an area-wide fire department. To the best of my knowledge the area-wide is not a totally dead issue. I think (the village council) wants to wait for a year or so to see if (area-wide control), would be a better plan for all interested parties," Myers said.

The village council is still considering four or five potential sites for a new municipal building. Moving the village offices from their Middle Street location near downtown may be a necessary if not universally popular step, Myers said.

"That is a concern for some of the residents who do not want it to move out of downtown. I think the DDA probably doesn't want it to move out of the downtown. But if there's no place else to put it, and we desperately need a facility, I think that has to be weighed out," Myers explained.

A committee of residents will continue to examine the possibility of Chelsea Village becoming the City of Chelsea.

"The biggest advantage in becoming a city is you have more internal control. Right now we're a general law village, and a general law village is controlled by the state. Whereas a city has its own control," Myers said. An example, he said, was the traffic signal on M-52 near the hospital that state authorities put in without contacting the village. If Chelsea were a city, the state would have to seek approval of local officials.

More tangible plans for the near future include revitalizing E. Summit Street and Sibley Road, Myers noted.

E. Summit Street will be overhauled, with curbs and gutters added, water lines serviced and sidewalks made handicap accessible.

The village will use a $541,000 grant to add a turning lane to Sibley Road, build curbs and gutters down to Werkner Road, resurface the road up to the village limits and expand water and sanitary sewer service to the immediate area.

Todd Kuhl Makes Bowling History

Todd Kuhl made Chelsea history last week when he bowled the first-ever 300 game at Chelsea Lanes.

Kuhl, a 194-average bowler in the Thursday night Junior House League, finished with a 691 series.

"I'm not the only one here capable of bowling a 300, but I'm the first one to get all the breaks," Kuhl said.

Kuhl, on the Cleary's Pub team, rolled the 12 consecutive strikes in his third game. For that night he had changed from a resin ball to a urethane ball.

"I wanted to get back to basics," Kuhl said.

As word spread that Kuhl had a shot at a perfect game, a crowd began to form and cheer each shot. Teams on the adjoining lanes quit bowling temporarily so there would be no distractions.

"I missed my mark about three boards to the left," Kuhl said about the final strike.

"But I was so nervous that I threw it about twice as hard as normal. It hit right square in the pocket." When the final shot carried, he simply raised his hands over his head. There were plenty of congratulations.

Kuhl said he didn't have a single Brooklyn hit the entire game.

Kuhl's previous best was 267 with seven strikes in a row.

He started bowling about 24 years ago at age 5 when his dad, Robert, took him to Chelsea Lanes. He joined his first league during his sophomore year in high school.

Chelsea Lanes owner Ed Greenleaf noted that there have been more high scores than normal this year. He also said that he missed all the excitement because the flu bug had forced him to go lay down in his office, where he heard all the cheering.

Kuhl's teammates include Charlie Koenig, Matt Murphy, Ron Zatorski, Otis Richardson, and occasionally Ken Unterbrink.

Letters to the Editor

Slap on the Wrist

I am writing regarding the small article in the January 4, 1996 paper titled "LOCAL MAN PAYS FINE." The fines seem to be a small slap on the wrist for a big crime.

First, he was ticketed on Dec. 1, one day after shotgun season closed. That would seem to be breaking the law, but was not included in his fine. Second, $95 seems to be a small fee to pay for killing a big-game animal. The meat alone is worth twice that amount, and the person who shot the deer has robbed from all of us. This deer could have been taken legally by a hunter, or observed in its natural habitat by any number of people, but that was taken away by this poacher.

Third, the other fines seem awfully small when you think about how dangerous it is to shoot a high powered rifle in a populated area. Also, carrying a rifle uncased in a vehicle seems equally as dangerous, not only to ordinary citizens but to police, if they were to stop the person for a routine traffic violation or something similar.

My point is, poaching is a crime that affects each of us. It is my opinion that at least as many deer are taken illegally as are taken legally. For some, it is a big business; for others, an obsession with killing deer. Until we make other fines for poaching more severe, it will continue to occur, almost without risk of being caught, and if caught, receive a small slap on the wrists and let go to continue poaching.

Al Reich

Broader Implications

I was shocked and dismayed to read last week that a neighbor of ours, Martin Merkel, was arrested and later paid fines on misdemeanor charges of deer poaching with a high powered rifle close by the village limits. This news is especially troubling in light of the incident in early December when a rifle slug penetrated the bedroom wall of another neighbor, the Brink family, on Dexter-Chelsea Rd. The arrest was made less than a quarter of a mile from my home and even closer to homes in Belser Estates. Apparently a dead deer, that had been recently shot by him with his 30.06 caliber rifle, was found in the back of Merkel's truck.

Reckless behavior of this sort is of real concern to me and my family. A rifle bullet of the caliber Merkel used could easily travel the distance from his property to any number of homes to the west of him with sufficient velocity to kill. What is especially troubling about this incident, however, is the wanton disregard of the safety of those who live nearby by a man who does know better. Martin Merkel is not an impetuous juvenile ignorant of the law and unable to appreciate its importance for protecting public safety. He is a mature individual who deliberately flouted the rules apparently believing that he was above them.

Merkel's disdain for the rule of law and lack of integrity has broader implications for the Village of Chelsea as a whole. This is the same individual who has petitioned the Village and Township for trailer park zoning on a 150-acre site he owns on the northeast side of town, and well within range of his rifle I might add. His Ann Arbor spokesmen, Tracy and Jenkins, have repeatedly proclaimed at public hearings their plan to build only the "best" kind of trailer park and work with the community to limit its size. Given Merkel's most recent misdemeanor record, these claims of sincere regard for the good of the community are just so much hot air. By his own deeds Martin Merkel has shown us his willingness to trample on the law, and even jeopardize public safety, if it serves his own interest.

Need An Improved Library

As strong supporters of the establishment of a district library in Chelsea, we would like to encourage all the citizens who also support the development of this vital resource in our community to let your township officials hear from you soon.

Chelsea is clearly a fast-growing, changing, exciting community which needs and deserves improved public library resources. It is very important that voters understand that the present funding base is inadequate, inconsistent and unbalanced among the townships represented in Chelsea.

Our family enjoys great benefit and value from our friendly library, and we wish to participate in its future success. While we educate ourselves about the short-term and long-term demands upon the library, our friends and neighbors must take action now and voice their opinions publicly.

Carr Hired as Interim Principal

Mead before then to acquaint himself with his duties. Carr is hired for up to 100 days, to be paid $255 for each day of work. Mead will continue to be paid his contracted salary.

Richardson emphasized to the board Carr's long experience in education as well as extensive experience in the Chelsea community.

Carr began his career in the Ann Arbor and Dearborn public schools in 1957, and over the next 34 years held positions as teacher, class advisor, and educational consultant, in addition to 22 years of experience as principal in elementary and secondary schools.

Since 1990, Carr has been involved in Chelsea, working with Chelsea Community Hospital. This past year he served as Executive Director of the Chelsea Foundation and Director of Development for CCH.

Richardson said both he and Mead informally interviewed Carr and another candidate, and enthusiastically recommended Carr.

Group Home

Sabourin said that community apprehensions were commonplace, but that the worries are typically short-lived.

"Usually people are real concerned at first and then they find (the home) is not disruptive. We try to be good neighbors. I think overall people find their fears really haven't been realized," Sabourin explained.

Opening Remarks

By Brian Hamilton

From the deep freeze.

It seems like just about the coldest week of every year is the week prior to the first Chelsea-Tecumseh basketball game, which, of course, is at CHS tomorrow. Maybe it just seems that way because I have so many fond memories of freezing while walking from my car to the Tecumseh gym. Back in the days when the teams were two of the best in the area — in the days when Beach teacher and coach Kyle Plank was in uniform — it could be a mighty long walk, too.

Last Sunday I had another chance to pick up a little frostbite out at Cavanaugh Lake. Chelsea Fire Department hosted a training session for area emergency workers in how to rescue someone who has fallen through the ice.

This is the epitome of thankless work. You can probably count on one hand the number of times someone has broken through the ice in this area in the last few years. Nevertheless, these guys were training as though it would happen tomorrow.

These kinds of rescues are surprising complex. They require the use of half-inch thick rubber suits that make even the slimmest guy look like a round, red walrus. While Scott Sumner of the Chelsea Police Department was playing the part of victim, floating around in a hole in the ice, he said he was warmer than I was, which was probably true considering the high wind on the lake.

The workers were taught everything from how to pack a rope in a throw bag so it will come out easily (and what do if it doesn't), to what to do when a victim tries to crawl on a rescuer's back (splash water in his face). Instructor Bob Lechanski of Ann Arbor emphasized that rescuers had to have more than a couple of plans because inevitably a third or fourth one would be required, citing a case last year when a truck enroute was involved in a crash. It was clear that while these guys were learning rescue techniques and strategies, every situation they encounter will be different and will require creative thinking and decision-making.

There was also plenty of common sense dispensed. For example, Lechanski said departments should seriously consider handling animal rescue calls because if they don't "a human will be going out after that dog and then you'll be out there anyway."

When you see how dedicated these guys are to their mission, it becomes apparent that the decision whether to become an area-wide fire department is really all about bookkeeping. Whatever happens, we taxpayers will still be in pretty good shape. We won't be left out in the cold in emergency situations.

Uncle Apollo

Dear Readers:

I'm glad to see that the crummy state of the village office building has finally hit the news. Although I've known about it for a long time (of course), Auntie didn't want me to rock the boat for fear we'd get kicked out of the place. I mean, the price is right, and it's convenient to the downtown area, even though the Boy Scouts get a little ram-bunctious now and then. It's hard to cook out, since the police smoke alarm keeps going off. And the blown circuits, old carpet, leaky roof, and plumbing, and the falling ceiling can be a little irritating at times, but the honey is good when it drips down from the attic, and the police response time is fantastic.

One thing I'm having trouble explaining to little Ary, though, is how we can afford $45 million for a new school system but can't build new village offices. Frankly, I was having a hard time figuring it out for myself.

That's when I began to realize the conspiracy that's unfolding. First that Home Alone kid, then Timber Town and the New Schools, then the Holy Cows. Kids are beginning to take over! They're getting all the money and all the cool stuff. There weren't any computers when I was a kid but they all have them now. Think about it. CDs, 500-channel televisions, the Internet, wooden cows, noise rings, and fat-free hot dogs. All of this stuff is for kids, and everyone else is being left out. Seems to me that everything is changing just to cater to all these kids. Here it is, 1996 already and things have changed overnight. It's not the world it was last year. Or maybe I'm just getting old.

Rutz Spends 7 months Paddling Great Lakes

After graduating from Dexter High School in 1988, entering the Navy, and earning his bachelor's degree while in a college seminary in 1994, what could come next for Michael Rutz? The answer is spending seven months paddling around the Great Lakes.

Rutz switched from whitewater kayaking to sea kayaking in 1991 while at the University of Saint Thomas in St. Paul, Minn. Many trips to Lake Superior, while a novice paddler, quickly created the dream of paddling around the large lake. The dream would persist while he taught sea kayaking at Canoe Sport in Ann Arbor last summer. As the dream is lived out, Rutz believes that he will be the first person to attempt to circumnavigate each of the Great Lakes by paddle, all in one long trip.

The manager of Canoe Sport, George Laetz, has been a great help to Michael with the planning of the trip. Laetz has made arrangements with Dagger Canoe and Kayak to provide the Apostle Kayak which Rutz will be paddling. Discussions with many other companies have given Laetz hope that Canoe Sport will be able to provide most of the necessary gear for the expedition. Without this great effort the trip would remain only a dream.

On Saturday, March 9, with a sleek and light-weight Werner paddle in hand, Rutz will be escorted from Lighthouse Park in Port Huron by Laetz, and Michael's brother, Daniel (DHS class of 1995). From there Rutz will head up the Michigan coast to the Straits of Mackinac. He will continue by circling Lake Michigan and then Lake Superior prior to kayaking the eastern shore of Lake Huron. The Saint Clair River, Lake Saint Clair and the Detroit River will lead Rutz to Lake Erie. After kayaking the southern shore of Lake Erie he will circumnavigate Lake Ontario and return to the north shore of Lake Erie. The adventure will end at Lake Erie Metropark, at the mouth of the Detroit River. The expedition will cover 10,040 miles of shoreline while paddling approximately 5,000 miles.

Although Rutz will be the only one to paddle the entire expedition, he will be joined by others for many segments of the trip. Laetz will be joining Rutz often, and bringing the food and gear replenishments throughout the trip. Laetz will also be coordinating the gear drops which others will be doing (25 replenishments will be needed during the trip). On Lake Superior, Rutz will be joined by a friend from Minnesota, and his brother who will also be joining Rutz for all of Lake Ontario.

Canoe Sport (996-1391) will be arranging for paddlers to join for segments, and paddlers from many paddling clubs within the region will be accompanying Rutz during many sections of the journey.

"I hope that through the media, and by having paddlers joining me, we can spread a great enthusiasm for the Great Lakes," Rutz said.

"For me, there's a huge connection between seeing nature as grand as Lake Superior and realizing that God created it," Rutz said. "And it is minuscule when compared to some of His other creations. This will be a great spiritual journey. As I pass familiar and new scenes I will constantly be in awe."

Kidney Foundation Needs Volunteers

The National Kidney Foundation of Michigan is looking for interested persons to volunteer as Community Representatives.

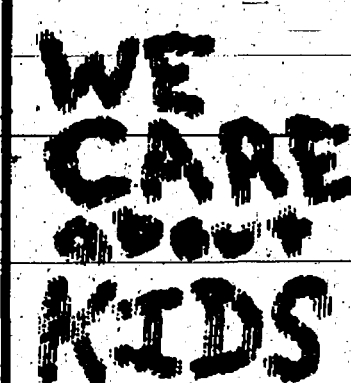

Community Representatives are local volunteers who represent the Foundation in their own county. These volunteers act as liaisons between the Foundation and the community, providing much needed information about kidney disease. Volunteers present educational campaigns, attend area health fairs, conduct speaking engagements and coordinate fund raising events.

If you are interested in becoming a Community Representative in your area, please contact the National Kidney Foundation of Michigan at 1-800-482-1455.

In Michigan alone, more than 6,500 residents are on dialysis and 1,300 patients are waiting for a life-saving kidney transplant.

VIEWS ON DENTAL HEALTH

GARY GOCHANOUR, D.D.S.

WHY REMOVE IMPACTED TEETH?

An impacted tooth is one that has not erupted through the gum (or only partly through the gum). More often than not, the honors go to "wisdom teeth." These third molars generally erupt during the teen years. They often grow forward and push against the adjacent molars causing pain and tissue discomfort.

Aside from possibly damaging other teeth, impacted third molars can cause other problems. A cyst can grow, possibly unnoticed, and damage adjacent teeth, the jaw bone and nerves.

Your dentist can study x-rays of the teeth and jaws, and can frequently tell by the teen years if the wisdom teeth are going to be impacted. At this stage, the wisdom teeth are less complicated to remove and healing is generally faster.

Unfortunately, impacted teeth can be "dormant" for years, but then cause trouble and pain at an unexpected or inconvenient time. That's why most dentists recommend x-ray and evaluation of potential problems. Removal of impacted teeth to prevent future problems can be considered preventive dentistry.

PeopleCare Helps Needy

Urban and Therese Fisher are supporters of The Salvation Army. Each January, the couple makes a donation to PeopleCare through a check-off on their utility bill.

"The Salvation Army has always answered the call of those in need," said Mrs. Fisher of the couple's support. "We know that when we give to the Salvation Army, our contribution will be put to good use. PeopleCare helps make it easy to contribute regularly by reminding us each year that the Salvation Army continues to need our help."

A program operated jointly by Consumers Power Company and The Salvation Army, PeopleCare dollars provide shelter, clothing, food or other emergency help, including energy bill assistance. The Fishers are among thousands of Consumers Power customers who support PeopleCare.

Beginning this month, Consumers Power customers and employees will be asked to check a box pledging a $5 donation to be added to their February bill. Last year's PeopleCare effort raised $444,974, assisting more than 6,000 Michigan families. Since 1983, PeopleCare has raised more than $4.5 million in direct contributions and provided an additional $6.3 million in energy bill credits.

This year Consumers Power is providing $1.5 million in bill credits for low income customers who need help paying for their electric or natural gas service. Bill credits became available on December 1, 1995 through The Salvation Army.

"There is a tremendous need in our communities for resources to help people with the most basic of living expenses," said Michael G. Morris, president and chief executive officer for Consumers Power. "Over the years, PeopleCare has helped thousands of families get through tough times. I commend our customers and employees for helping to make PeopleCare a success and encourage their continued generosity."

Last year, PeopleCare was honored with the prestigious William Booth Award, the highest award given by The Salvation Army to individuals or corporations.

The Salvation Army is one of the oldest non-profit organizations providing social service assistance in the United States. The organization was selected by Consumers Power to distribute funds raised by the PeopleCare campaign because of its experience in screening applicants and processing aid.

State University, Fraser graduated from optometry school at Indiana University in 1982. After practicing in Evansville, Ind., she and her husband, Mike Foley, moved to Chelsea five years ago. Their daughter, Anna Foley, is a kindergarten at North Elementary School.

Fraser has worked with Chelsea optometrists Dr. Anthony Sensoli and Dr. William Hawks, as well as in Jackson, for the past three years. She explained what her office would provide. "I'll offer full-scale optometry, from complete eye exams to eyeglasses to contact lenses. Some of the minor pink-eyes, things like that, I'll be able to take care of without referring," Fraser said.

Blame It On La Nina And The Jet Stream

Old Man Winter's bad attitude toward Michigan can be attributed to an unusual configuration in the jet stream that possibly has been influenced by La Nina, a cooling effect in the Pacific.

Jeff Andresen, Michigan State University agricultural meteorologist, says that November in Michigan was one of the meanest in this century, suggesting that winter won't get much worse and may lighten up a bit.

"In many places in Michigan, November was one of the coldest on record, if not the coldest, and in some cases it was one of the wettest on record as well," Andresen says.

He explains that the jet stream pattern led to a storm track that roared along just south of Michigan and funneled several "impulses" of moisture out of the Gulf of Mexico into the state. In some northern Michigan cities — such as Gaylord, Muskegon, Houghton Lake and Sault Ste. Marie — that meant record-breaking snowfall in November.

"The other key to this is a fairly significant northwesterly component to the jet stream that allowed for several incursions of cold Arctic air into the Midwest, and that led to our below-normal temperatures that have persisted for so long," Andresen says.

The worst may be over, he suggests.

"Statistically and climatologically, we rarely see jet stream configurations and patterns associated with them persist more than six or seven weeks," Andresen says. "They can persist longer than that but it is very rare, and I think we will see some change that will lead to a more moderate pattern, at least in temperatures, over the Great Lakes region by the end of the year."

A cause and effect relationship between the jet stream pattern, Michigan's recent weather and La Nina can be inferred, but our weather cannot be entirely attributed to La Nina, Andresen says.

"It is difficult to say that the type of weather we have observed here the past several weeks would be consistent with the occurrence of La Nina in the equatorial Pacific," Andresen says. "It is not clear if they (La Nina and Michigan's storms) are related but statistically we know that when La Nina forms, we tend to see colder than normal temperatures, especially in the middle of the continent — the northern Great Plains — and the area affected reaches eastward into Wisconsin and the Upper Peninsula and lower Michigan under some circumstances."

Andresen says La Nina should be short-lived compared with the three-yearlong El Nino, the warming effect that recently ended.

"This is a mild La Nina and it probably will continue through the winter into next spring, but because it is a mild event, it is difficult to say with much confidence that the weather anomalies — colder and drier — generally associated with it will persist as we go through the rest of the winter," Andresen says.

Nonetheless, odds are that Michigan will experience occasional temperature plunges.

"There is a great deal of cold air available at the high latitudes in northern parts of Canada, and frequently when meteorologists and climatologists see this much cold air, we realize it is only a matter of time before some of it makes its way southward into the 'United States,'" Andresen says.

"Where the cold air goes depends on the configuration of the jet stream. Right now, we are in a pattern that would favor colder than normal conditions continuing and, probably somewhat drier than normal weather except in the lee of the Great Lakes," he says.

Child Proofing Home Essential

Every year, nearly three million children are injured in the home, according to the National Safe Kids Campaign. Many of these unintentional injuries can be prevented with simple and inexpensive measures. Like many parents, Gov. John and Michelle Engler considered this as their triplet daughters became more mobile — and started going in three different directions.

After a thorough survey and walk through the entire home, Lowe's Home Safety Council advised the governor and his wife on how to child-proof their residence. Gov. Engler noted, "My daughters are at the age where their 30 curious fingers are getting into everything!" The consultation produced a list of more than 150 potential hazards which needed quick attention.

"It is critical that parents take a close look at their homes well before children start getting around on their own," said Mary Ellen Fise, product safety director for the Consumer Federation of America and a director of the Lowe's Home Safety Council. "The best way to maximize child safety in the home is for parents to get down on their hands and knees, the level at which a child will eventually crawl and walk, and go throughout the house in this manner. Look for electrical outlets without plugs, cords that can pull lamps down on them, cabinets without locks, anything that might possibly be hazardous."

A team of volunteers from the Lowe's Home Safety Council performed the Engler's home safety make-over. One especially challenging aspect of the job was maintaining the aesthetic beauty of the custom cabinets and woodwork. To ensure that safety enhancements met the high standards fostered by the overseers of the residence, several potential hazards will be handled by the Michigan Department of Management and Budget.

"Throughout the year, we are urging parents and grandparents to give their families the gift of safety. Parental supervision of children is still paramount, but taking the time of child-proof your home, whether you have one child or ten in the family, is just as important as regular doctor visits," said Mrs. Engler. "We're glad to know Margaret, Hannah and Madeleine are now safer at home."

Throughout the Engler residence, electrical outlets were covered, cord shorteners were attached, latches were added to all drawers and cabinets containing anything harmful to children, and locks were attached to VCRs in order to avoid possible electrocution. In addition, the team relocated potentially dangerous household products to be out of a climbing child's reach.

"Because we want everyone to understand the importance of home safety, particularly where children are involved, the Lowe's Home Safety Council has child-proofed other high profile family homes," explained David Oliver, manager of community relations for Lowe's. "In addition to Governor and Mrs. Engler, we advised Keith and Becki Dille, the nationally known parents of sextuplets, on how to child-proof their home on the children's first birthday and again when they turned two. We use these examples to help parents prevent injuries and to create in them a greater peace of mind."

Consumers can receive more information about child safety and other home safety topics by calling 1-800-SAFE HOME, the Lowe's Home Safety Council's toll-free, 24-hour information line. Free home safety packets can also be obtained by calling this number.

The Lowe's Home Safety Council is a nonprofit organization founded by Lowe's Companies, Inc., one of America's largest home center retailers with more than 365 stores in 22 states. Charter members of the Council include Dr. Louis Sullivan, former U.S. Secretary of Health and Human Services, Lamar Alexander, former U.S. Secretary of Education,

† Spiritual Viewpoint

By Pastor Mearl Bradley
Chelsea Free Methodist Church

Happy New Year! This is the hope of every one of us as we begin the new year of 1996. Several years ago the Chelsea Free Methodist Church, which I pastor, "computerized" the church office. I am not an expert on the subject, but I do have several computer programs that assist me in sermon preparation. One is called "Word Search". You can enter any word into the computer and request a search of the Bible, beginning with the first book, Genesis, and ending with the last book, Revelation. In a few seconds on the monitor in front of you appears every chapter and verse in the Bible where that word is used.

One day I entered the word problem into the computer and had it search the entire Bible from Genesis to Revelation for every reference to the word. In a matter of seconds, this phrase appeared on the monitor: "Problem-cannot find." I was surprised! I re-entered the word problem and checked several different translations of the Bible. Each time the screen read: "problem-cannot find." According to the computer, the word problem is not in the Bible. The word problem is not in God's vocabulary!

I realize there are some examples of "problems" in the Bible and that there are synonyms for the word problem, but the word itself is not in God's vocabulary. As I begin a new year, that assures me that no matter what I might face in the new year of 1996, I can trust in God, who is in control of all things. But more than that, the message of Christmas is "Immanuel", which is interpreted, "God With Us." Happy New Year! The word problem is not in God's vocabulary! He is with you through his beloved Son, the Lord Jesus Christ!

ENGAGED: Jennifer Lynne Broughton and David Pariah, both of Kingwood, Texas, are engaged and planning a June 1996 wedding. Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. James Broughton of Gregory. The future bride is a graduate of Chelsea High School and Michigan State University. She is a second grade teacher in Humble, Texas. The future bridegroom, formerly of Concord, Calif., is an accountant for NGC in Houston.

'Escanaba in da Moonlight' Sets Ticket Sales Record

Jeff Daniels' Escanaba in da Moonlight established a new Purple Rose Theatre Company box office record for ticket revenue during its 13-week engagement from Sept. 28 through Dec. 23. The comedy about a deer hunting camp in the Upper Peninsula brought in $140,010 during the course of the 78 performances held in the Garage Theatre in downtown Chelsea. The earlier record was held by another Daniels' comedy, The Vast Difference, which brought in $133,658 over 78 performances in 1993.

Written by PRTC Executive Director Jeff Daniels and directed by PRTC Artistic Director Guy Sanville, Escanaba in da Moonlight centered on the hunting escapades of the legendary Soady family in their deer hunting cabin north of Escanaba. Originally scheduled for an eight-week engagement through Nov. 19, most performances were sold out before the Official Opening Night on Oct. 6. Thirty additional performances were added for a five-week extension and most of those extra performances sold out within a 24-hour period of tickets being placed on sale. Extra performances were held on Monday evenings and Wednesday afternoons to help satisfy the demand for tickets. The show will be transferred to the BoarsHead Theater in Lansing for a four-week engagement from Jan. 11 through Feb. 3.

The Escanaba in da Moonlight cast featured Joseph Albright, Randall Godwin, Jennifer Hunter, Wayne David Parker, Dai Parker-Owilliam and John Selbert. All six performers will continue with the show during the Lansing engagement. The original set design by Daniel C. Walker, costume design by Edith Leavis Bookstein and sound design by Joe Jenkins will also remain for the BoarsHead Theater engagement. For more information about the additional Lansing performances at the BoarsHead Theater, please call (517) 484-7805.

The success and extension of Escanaba in da Moonlight will not affect the remainder of the PRTC 1995-96 season of productions.

Tickets are now on sale for Richard Kalinoski's Beast on the Moon, which begins previews on Jan. 18, in Chelsea. For information about Beast on the Moon, please contact the PRTC at (313) 475-7902.

Tech. Unlimited Program To Showcase Local Talent

Tech. Unlimited has completely transformed the Chelsea High School Auditorium into what you might think was a professional sound stage, complete with the latest in lights, sound and special effects technology. The club, under the technical wizardry of Brian Myers, is ready for their Saturday, Jan. 13, variety show entitled "SpecTECHular'96". Lights are aimed and gelled, fog and smoke machines warmed up, flashpots loaded, microphones and speakers are in place and the set has its final coat of paint. Signs, flags, and silhouettes have been rigged to their pulleys, cables and tracks. Fountains, fireworks, fog and pyrotechnics have been installed under the stage floor, and cylinders filled with carbon dioxide are ready to fire smoke out of the ceiling.

Performers have been in rehearsal this past week, coordinating the technical effects with the song, dance and music. Opening the performance will be a slide show featuring the club's members, hard at work doing all the things that it actually took to produce such a show.

The newly formed Tech. Unlimited Color Guard will perform a spectacular fluorescent tube and flag routine, under black lights, to the theme from The Addams-Family television show.

Chelsea Area Players are contributing a trio, performing "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy," which is one of the many familiar tunes in their upcoming February show, "1940's Radio Hour." "Java Jive," and "After Beeps" will be sung by The Choral Connection of Ann Arbor. There are many recognizable (Chelsea) faces in this 20-member mixed ensemble choir.

Tech. Unlimited takes the stage, with display of pyrotechnics and lighting effects, all choreographed to the music of Star Wars.

Heather GreenLeaf closes act one with the familiar tune, "Let It Snow." Her costume consists of a very warm coat, due to the snow that Tech. Unlimited has appropriately rigged to fall on the stage.

Act two opens with a dance routine by The Dance Arts Academy. It includes ballet, jazz and tap, complete with a "kick line" rocket number floating on a cloud of fog and around a dancing water fountain.

A quartet made up of Dan Black, Ryan Gueather, Gary Klink and Ray Weiner are set on a street corner looking for a job, hence singing their rendition of "Get a Job."

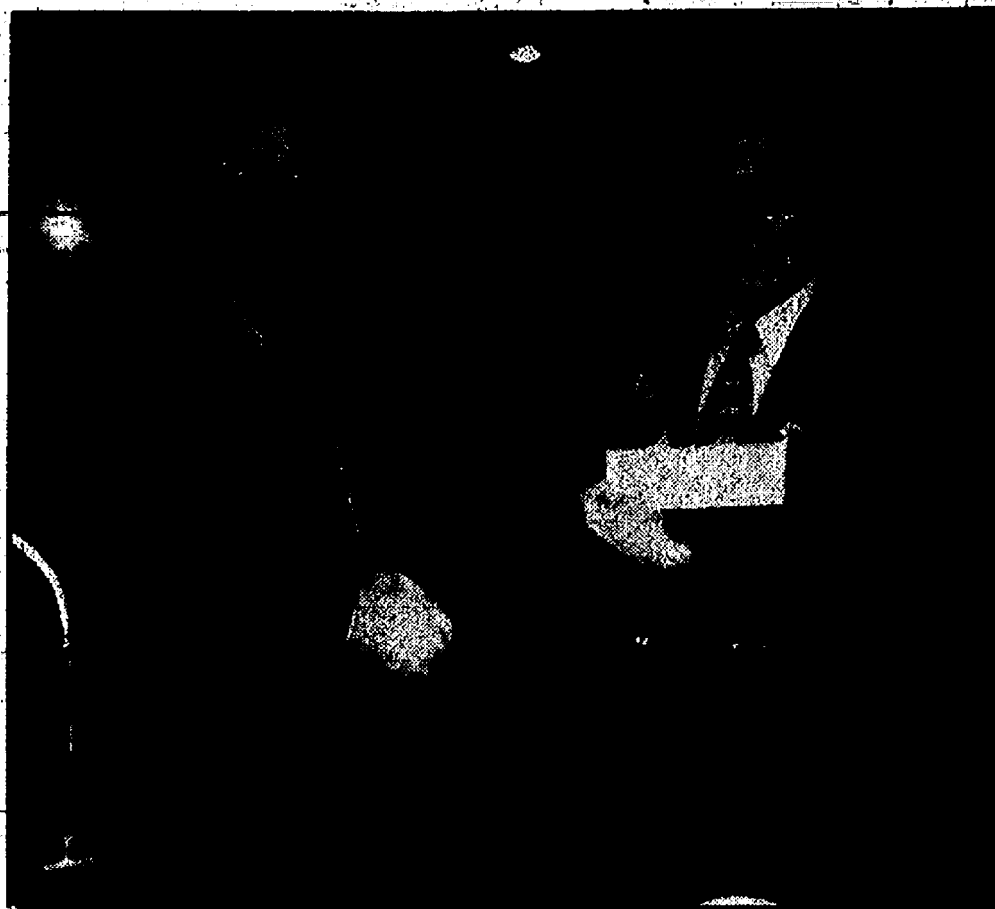

Under the direction of Pat Padilla, The Chelsea Jazz Ensemble will treat the audience to music, while Tech. Unlimited enhances them with lights, sound and special effects.

The 1995 Chelsea Community Fair Queen, Tracey Dufek (who, coincidentally, was sponsored by Tech. Unlimited last August) will also sing.

As a grand finale, Tech. Unlimited has put together a patriotic medley of many familiar tunes. Uncle Sam, flags and even the famous statue Iwo Jima appears on stage. Dan Black and Cara Heitman do a strobe-light dance to "Yankee Doodle," while the color guard appears again performing a flag routine to "It's A Grand Old Flag." The medley continues with Laura Roskowski's baton interpretation of "The Stars and Stripes Forever." Tech. Unlimited adds the appropriate mood with fireworks, sound effects and exploding cannons.

Art Finger will serve as Master of Ceremonies for this spectacular variety show. Refreshments, souvenirs and raffle tickets will all be available for purchase during intermission. A free reception, after the show, in the cafeteria will be hosted by Tech. Unlimited where the audience may meet the club's members and the performers of the show.

The single performance will start at 8 p.m. in the George Prinzing Auditorium in Chelsea High School. Tickets are $5 and are on sale at the Chelsea Pharmacy. Any tickets not sold beforehand will be available at the door.

Riemco Has Booming Business

By Alice Tippery
Saline Reporter

Business is booming for Riemco Development Inc., and Bob Riemenschneider, whose roots run deep in Chelsea's fertile soil.

No stranger to the real estate business, Riemenschneider has been involved in land development and brokerage since the 70s, and did merger and acquisition work for privately owned companies in the late 80s, which led him into modular home construction in 1990.

After taking the time to investigate the building business, he found the "more defined system of modular construction" appealing.

Located in Chelsea and serving greater Washtenaw County, Riemco Development, Inc., grounded in customer satisfaction from the initial planning to the completed product, specializes in new home construction.

Whether modular, panelized, custom-built or a combination of the three, Riemenschneider's concern is that his client's individual needs and desires match their particular cost and time allowances.

Riemenschneider explains, "One of the advantages of going modular is speed, but you lose that time advantage when changes are made because plan approval for modular building is done at the state level."

He says certain approvals for change can slow construction for 12-20 weeks.

But when modular building meets the expectations of the customer, it is an affordable way to build as well as a time-efficient choice.

Since modular building has its flexibility limits, panelized construction is an attractive option when the expectations of the prospective buyer require some customization.

Riemenschneider explains that speed and quality are gained in the factory where modular and panelized components are built indoors.

Surprisingly, he says the quality of material used is typically better than for stick building. Riemenschneider asserts high quality goods result not only from "discounts for buying bulk," but also because the components are built in jigs (or frames) guaranteeing truly square walls.

With equipment and methods that allow for altering, Riemenschneider explains that computer capability keeps his business on the leading edge, and helps him provide needed counseling for clients as well.

"They can get through our 2,000-3,000 plans on CD ROM in a surprisingly short time," says Riemenschneider, adding, "It can save weeks and months of investigating home plan books and sorting through (manually) what they like."

In addition to alterations made with the help of computer-aided design (CAD), Riemenschneider offers a 3D "walk-through" as well.

Unseen by the client, but equally important, according to Riemenschneider is "critical path scheduling" which provides maintenance of "a very tight time line, and identifying when completion can be expected." Sub-contractors benefit as well, since work stages in the entire building process are identified in writing, allowing them to schedule and plan labor.

With 20 new homes constructed last year and four currently in progress, and wife Jeanene, son Rob, and Brad Barr, warranty manager, along with Riemenschneider, are optimistic about the future.

Everybody's Science

By Sean Adams

Two years ago, the Charleston Hot cayenne pepper was released to the public. Today, it's arrived at the dinner table.

This sizzling move from laboratory to retail sale is a record for the U.S. Vegetable Laboratory in Charleston, S.C. This U.S. Department of Agriculture facility, world-famous for its melons, peppers, beans and other varieties, never expected Charleston Hot to be as big a seller as it turned out to be.

"Charleston Hot was a surprise record breaker from the beginning," says Philip Dukes, a retired plant pathologist at the Charleston lab, part of USDA's Agricultural Research Service. "Interest in Charleston Hot seemed to explode almost overnight."

The pepper, which generated more than 28,000 requests for seed, is now being sold in at least eight seed catalogues and is the main ingredient in two hot sauces.

Charleston Hot peppers are the main ingredient in Holy City Heat, a sauce made by Atlantis Coastal Foods, based in Charleston. Holy City Heat also is being marketed for retail sale through the Mo-Hotta-Mo-Betta catalogue, which says of the sauce, "Beautifully packaged in an old-fashioned elixir bottle, it's sure to be the cure for what ails you!"

Dukes and geneticist Richard L. Fery at the Charleston lab bred the Charleston Hot. Fery noted that Charleston Hot and its sister pepper, Carolina Cayenne, have become a hit in more ways than one. He said breeders worldwide are also using the peppers as sources of resistance against root knot nematodes.

Dukes and Fery attributed the pepper's popularity to its spicy taste, high yields, resistance to southern root knot nematodes, and compact plant size for home gardens. Seeds are available from at least eight outlets. They are: DeGiorgi Seed Co., Omaha, Neb.; Jones Deade, Charleston; Pepper Joe's, Inc., Norristown, Pa.; Pepper Gal, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.; R.H. Shumways, Graniteville, S.C.; R.H. Shumways' Totally Tomatoes, Augusta, Ga.; Rupp Seeds, Wauseon, Ohio; South Carolina Foundation Seed Association, Clemson, S.C.; and Nanjemoy Flower and Herb Farm in Nanjemoy, Md.

U-M Researchers Leading National Cancer Study

Approximately 200,000 American women are diagnosed with breast cancer each year; most will need surgery to determine whether the cancer has spread to the lymph nodes under the arm.

However, doctors at the University of Michigan Medical Center are leading a national study to determine whether positron emission tomography, or PET scanning, will supplement or replace lymph node dissection as a diagnostic tool.

Richard L. Wahl, M.D., professor of internal medicine and of radiology and director of the General Nuclear Imaging Program at the U-M Medical Center, is the principal investigator of a $4.3 million grant recently awarded by the National Cancer Institute to study the accuracy of PET scanning.

The five-year study will be conducted at three sites, including the U-M Medical Center. More than 400 newly diagnosed breast cancer patients will be enrolled in the trial and receive a PET scan to determine whether the primary breast cancer tumor cells have spread to the adjacent lymph nodes. Patients also will undergo standard axillary lymph node dissection to confirm the results obtained from the PET scan.

PET scanning is a newer imaging method that uses a trace amount of radioactivity to look at tumor metabolism.

Money Management

Prepared by the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants

If you wouldn't feel confident about lending money to someone, don't lend your name by co-signing their loan. When you co-sign a loan for a friend or family member, you're not only lending your name and good credit history, you are also accepting responsibility for the debt.

Financial institutions are reluctant to make loans to borrowers who don't have a credit history, are poor repayment risks, have no significant employment record, or have nothing to offer to secure the loan. If a financial institution turns down an applicant's request for a loan, why would anyone co-sign that loan?

As with all rules, there are exceptions. Co-signing for children or family can be a different situation. Many parents co-sign loans for their children, who are just beginning to establish credit. If you are interested in seeing the borrower get credit and are willing to take a risk, consider co-signing the loan.

Make sure that you are well-informed about the purpose of the loan, the type of loan, the terms, and why the person needs a co-signer before you lend your name, however. It's important that you understand your legal and financial obligations as a co-signer.

Federal law requires financial institutions to give a written disclosure notice to co-signers that states in plain language that you are responsible for paying the debt if the borrower can't or won't make the loan payments. In addition, you may also have to pay late fees or collection costs, so when in doubt — don't sign.

The bottom line on co-signing is the same as the bottom line on the loan application — the place where you sign your name and take responsibility. Don't sign unless you're willing to take the risk that you might end up paying back the loan.

Girl Scout Cookie Sale Continues Through Month

When you help yourself to Girl Scout Cookies, you're helping Girl Scouts. That is the message Girl Scouts from Huron Valley Girl Scout Council want to get across during the 1996 Girl Scout Cookie Sale. Order taking begins Jan. 5 and continues through Jan. 26. Girl Scouts will deliver cookies beginning Feb. 19.

Girl Scouts in Huron Valley Girl Scout Council will sell eight varieties of the popular treats: Thin Mints, Peanut Butter Patties, Lemon Pastry Creams, Peanut Butter Sandwiches, Shortbread, Caramel DeLites, low-fat Strawberries N' Creme and no-fat Cinnamon Oatmeal Raisin Bars.

The cost of a box of cookies is broken down as follows: 42 cents (or 14 percent) to the troop; $1.50 (or 50 percent) to the cookie company for cookies, incentives, promotional materials and delivery; 96 cents (or 32 percent) to Huron Valley Girl Scout Council for camps, services to low-income girls, volunteer training, scholarships, camperships and staff support; 5 cents (or 2 percent) extra troop profit; and 5 cents (or 2 percent) for Cadette and Senior bonuses.

Last year, nearly 14,000 Huron Valley Girl Scouts sold 977,976 boxes of cookies at $2.50 per box. The price increase to $3 per box is the first increase in five years, and reflects the increased cost of cookies from the bakery and the increased cost of providing Girl Scout programming to the girls. Money from the Cookie Sale, for example, will help maintain the new swimming pool at Camp Linden, the Council's resident camp. Before the pool was built in 1995, campers swam in Lake Louis, which became too polluted to use.

THE REV. DR. JERROLD BEAUMONT of Faith In Action stands amid a pile of donated food, much of it by area children.

FIA Holiday Dinner Serves 80 People

Faith In Action served 80 people at its annual Christmas holiday dinner and distributed baskets of food to 90 area families totaling approximately 250 adults and children.

Fifteen volunteers served Christmas Dinner at St. Mary's parish. FIA President Rev. Jerrold Beaumont said the annual event focuses on welcoming everyone into the Christmas celebration.

"The Christmas dinner is not one for necessarily somebody who is going to go without dinner, we're aiming more at someone who may be home alone. That's what we're trying to do is get the person out of the house, get them into a sort of family environment as much as we can," Beaumont said.

FIA also supplied baskets filled with food for up to a week for families and individuals who the organization contacted through their own service records from the previous year.

FIA, which runs a similar program at Thanksgiving each year, has been serving local residents in need since 1980.

Beaumont said the total number of people served was similar to last year, with numbers down slightly at the Christmas dinner while FIA distributed a few more baskets.

"What we hope results from those two or three particular programs is that no family is going to go without their needs. We're especially interested in older people and children. We want to make sure that if we have some kids in the area that need a Christmas, they get one," Beaumont explained, noting that the Christmas events were only a part of the variety of programs offered by FIA.

Library Has Program on Old Homes Tonight

Chelsea residents Jackie and John Frank and historical preservationist Lloyd Baldwin, will kick-off McKune Memorial Library's 1996 Grapevine, a series of presentation/discussion programs featuring local experts, on Thursday, Jan. 11 at 7 p.m. upstairs at the Library. The title of their presentation is "Researching Your Period Home."

John and Jackie Frank have purchased and are restoring a brick Queen Anne style home at 138 E. Middle St., which was built for Dr. George Palmer and his wife in 1813.

Jackie and John Frank will make a short presentation on the strategies they used to find information about their period home, and how they are using the information in the restoration process. They will show a video of the home which was made from 16 mm movies taken at a McKaren family wedding on East Middle in 1929. The video provides a panoramic sweep of the Palmer home and other homes on East Middle Street.

Baldwin will present information about a variety of methods that can be used to obtain information about the period homes and the families that lived in them, which is the first step in the restoration process. He has slides he will use to augment his presentation.

In addition, they will discuss how a strong library can assist historical preservationists in the research process.

The series, which is co-sponsored by Friends of McKune Memorial Library and Serendipity Paperback Book Exchange, is free and open to the public.

For further information call the library at 475-8732.

1995 The Chelsea-Area Year in Review

September...

20-The site where a Chelsea businessman is accused of dumping hazardous gasoline waste has been cleaned up, but a probe continues. Jack Davidson, owner of Davidson Sales and Maintenance, is being held responsible for an expensive clean-up that concluded Sunday.

20-ACT five-year score reports for Chelsea schools are rated to be well above state and national averages.

20-The home of John and Jacquelyn Frank, 138 E. Middle St., Chelsea, has been undergoing a historic restoration since 1991. To celebrate the house's unique history, the Franks have decided to nominate the house for inclusion on the National Register of Historic Places.

22-More than 410 area residents and even another developer have decided they do not want a mobile home park in western Washtenaw county, as voiced at the Lima Township Planning Commission. On Tuesday, Sept. 19 at the Lima Township Hall on Jackson Rd. Concerns against a park were crime, property values, traffic, access, population density and safety.

27-"House Party" at the Fairgrounds Friday night may have been close to a financial disaster for the sponsoring Chamber of Commerce, but it was a bonanza for raffle winners David and Rosy Lawrence.

27-Chelsea Education Foundation is soliciting applications from eligible individuals and organizations to support educational programs and events. Continuation of mini-grant program confirms the Foundation's commitment to support educational programs and activities in the Chelsea area. Many of these programs cannot be funded through normal budget allocations available to the applicants.

27-Miraculously coming up to the finish line under budget, the Chelsea Solid Waste Transfer station ribbon-cutting took place Saturday after an 18-month effort by village administrators.

27-North Sharon Baptist Church has announced the arrival of its new pastor, Bob Toler.

October...

4-Tuesday, Sept. 26 Village Council meeting brought heated discussion on a proposed adult foster care home, water sample testing, water lines and the tower, village revenue and annexations.

4-Using materials purchased with a mini-grant from the Chelsea Education Foundation, art teachers Janet Alford of North Elementary School and Paul Rogers of South Elementary school have begun collaborating on a program to familiarize Chelsea elementary students with some of the world's art masterpieces and with artists and history.

4-Jim Stewart, whose other career is as a machine repairman, works out of the basement of his cobblestone and log house on Musbach Road. Here, he keeps a large collection of wooden canes, Santa Clauses, totem poles, old men, and frontiersmen; as well as wildlife sketches, another craft he makes and sells. Stewart's wood-carvings are made all the more amazing because he creates them using no plans and because he learned how to do it largely by himself.

4-Charles Egri, 86, moved to the Village in August, leaving behind the big city, but bringing with him art that has spanned city skylines and natural beauty of more than 50 years.

4-Each year Faith In Action (FIA) awards one or two persons from Chelsea who have made outstanding contributions to the agency, to their neighbors and to the community at large. Recipients of the Faith In Action Humanitarian of the Year Award are Gina Pantley, owner of Gina's Cafe, and Dr. Costas Kleantous of the Chelsea Community Hospital.

11-For the first time in the history of the Michigan Lottery, a Chelsea resident has matched all six numbers and won the massive jackpot of $9.8 million.

11-Autumn Jubilee is the next event planned for the Chelsea Center for the Development of the Arts, with a dinner planned for 7 p.m. Friday, Oct. 27 in the Main Dining Room of the Chelsea Community Hospital. The event is to start with a welcome gathering, complete with spiced cider and the harp music of Rochelle Martinez Moulliseaux. Lisa Hinz-Johnson's CCDA Voice Studio students are giving a concert as a center fundraiser at 8 p.m. Following, at 9 p.m., Ron Yonkoski will serve hors d'oeuvres, desserts and wine.

11-The halls of Chelsea High school were transformed Sunday. Corridors became greenhouses, corners turned into candy shops, the gymnasium became a temporary craft factory. With all halls combined, the school became a jubilant marketplace. # Matthaei Botanical Gardens Offer Close Look At Plants

The U-M Matthaei Botanical Gardens Conservatory offers visitors a sensory experience, particularly on a wintry day. The many exotic plants, bright flowers, the warmth and the fragrance, make it especially inviting. Visitors may explore the Conservatory and the outdoor trails with a Docent guide each Sunday during the month of January.

Docent-led Conservatory tours in January will take place Sundays at 2 p.m. January 14, 21 and 28. "Medicinal Plants" will be this month's topic and will highlight the role they play today. Despite the emphasis on synthetic drugs, pharmacists are still very dependent on plants and plant sources in developing useful medications. This tour will provide a chance to see various plants that play or have played a role in medicine. Participants should sign-in at the front lobby reception desk prior to the tour. Conservatory admission is $2 for adults.

Outdoor trail tours will take place Sundays at 2 p.m. January 14, and 21 and 28. "Winter's Wildflowers" will be the topic and will explore the remains of summer blooms — the seedpods and other promises of life, many of which are as intricately beautiful as flowers. Participants should meet docent guides on the front steps on the Matthaei Botanical Gardens. Admission is free for outdoor trail walks.

The Matthaei Botanical Gardens is located at 1800 North Dixboro Road, Ann Arbor, 2 1/2 miles north of the Geddes Road intersection.

Lets Go Bulldogs!

Bulldogs Tough To Begin, Fall Apart In Second Half

As their shooting touch deserted them in the second half last Friday, Jan. 5, the Chelsea varsity basketball team watched Brooklyn Columbia Central slip away from a close game to win 65-47.

After a tight first half that ended deadlocked at 34-34, Columbia Central tightened the defensive screws and pulled away. They shifted into a four-man zone and assigned one player to shadow Bulldog guard Nick Brink, who scored 14 first-half points.

"Essentially, we didn't adjust very well to their gimmick defense. It left some other people open and we didn't shoot the ball very well in the second half as a team," explained Chelsea Coach Robin Raymond. The Bulldogs shot 36 percent for the game, while their opponents shot 53 percent.

Not playing over Christmas break, according to Raymond, was a disadvantage against Columbia Central, who played three times over that same period.

"I think the lay-off did hurt us. They looked pretty sharp, and we didn't look very sharp. The improvements we made in games four and five, we didn't see in game six. We looked rusty, especially defensively," Raymond said.

Brink finished with 18 points after the big first half. Scott Colvin added 11 and Paul Bragalone and Kevin Cross netted six apiece. Cross led the rebounding with nine, while Brink and Colvin combined for 11 more. Kevin Holmes and Sam Morseau dealt out five assists each.

With a record of 2-4 overall and 1-2 in the SEC, the Bulldogs are still in position to contend for the league title. Every team in the balanced SEC has one or two losses except Lincoln, which has four. To contend, Raymond said, Chelsea needs to clamp down on opposing offenses.

"The key to our team is intensity on defense. We need to control the game defensively," he explained.

The Bulldogs were scheduled to play the Dexter Dreadnaughts Tuesday in the first "Friendship Game." The Bulldogs host Tecumseh this Friday.

KEVIN BOLLINGER of Chelsea, top, works on his opponent during last Saturday's Jackson County Western Invitational. He placed sixth in his weight class.

Dog Wrestlers 5th At Tourney, Beat Milan Handily In SEC

Chelsea senior Jordan Dyer remained unbeaten at 189 pounds last week as the Bulldogs wrestling team took fifth place at the 16-team Jackson County Invitational last Saturday and won their first South-eastern Conference meet last Thursday over Milan, 51-25.

Hudson won the invitational with 179 points, while SEC rival Saline was second with 173. Marshall (146), Mason (141) and Chelsea (122) rounded out the top five.

Dyer, the top seed, recorded pins over Mike Paul of Jackson Lumen Christi (2:18), Ray Tile of Fowlerville (5:19), Brett Griffin of Saline (4:25), before winning the finals, 9-1, over Chris Hug of Marshall.

Other Chelsea placers included Ray Hatch, second at 125 pounds, Koby Foytik, third at 130 pounds, Brent Young, Mike Alber and Mike Thayer, fourth at 140, 160, and 171 pounds, respectively, and Kevin Bollinger, sixth at 112 pounds.

Hatch lost in the finals, 4-3, to state-ranked John Yoder of Hudson. To reach the finals, Hatch won three matches by pins over Roy Davis of Mason (3:34), Chad Dack of Jackson Northwest (5:17), and Bob Hoffnagel of Saline (2:45).

Foytik won his consolation finals match with a pin of Joe Blouin of Bronson in 3:59.

Young suffered a 5-2 loss in the consolation finals to Ben Gose of Marshall. Alber was defeated by Ryan Showerman of Fowlerville, 4-2, and Thayer dropped a 4-3 decision to Tom Helfrich of Jackson Northwest. Young and Thayer each finished 2-2 on the day, while Alber was 3-2.

Bollinger had a 3-2 record.

Other Chelsea wrestlers included Todd Pearsall at 103 pounds (0-2), Grant Bollinger at 119 pounds, (1-2), Kevin Bloomsaat at 145 pounds (0-2), Jamie Bauer at 152 pounds (0-2), Andy Kargel at 215 pounds (1-2), and Matt Kalmbach at heavyweight (0-2).

"Overall it was tough competition and a good challenge for our kids who want to be challenged," said Chelsea coach Kerry Kargel.

"We made some improvement. Brent Young lost to a state-placer in the last second. When he can stay in a tough bout like that, it will be kind of a stepping stone for him. Mike Thayer beat a kid from Columbia Central that he had lost to earlier in the year."

Kargel used something of a makeshift line-up against Milan as some kids were on vacation and some were out of shape.

The results are as follows.

103: Todd Pearsall (C) pinned Ben Zutowski, 5:1.

112: Dan Blough (C) was pinned by Ben Boyce, 5:54.

119: Kevin Bollinger (C) lost to John Bacon, 8-7.

125: Grant Bollinger (C) was pinned by Jeff Straub, 5:55.

130: Matt Tuttle (C) defeated Joe Hochgreve, 7-6.

135: Koby Foytik (C) pinned Chris White, 2:2.

140: Brent Young (C) pinned John Bingblow, 2:1.

145: Jamie Holzhausen (C) lost to Sean Birchmeier, 10-3.

152: Kevin Bloomsaat (C) was pinned by Shawn Beaton, 2:52.

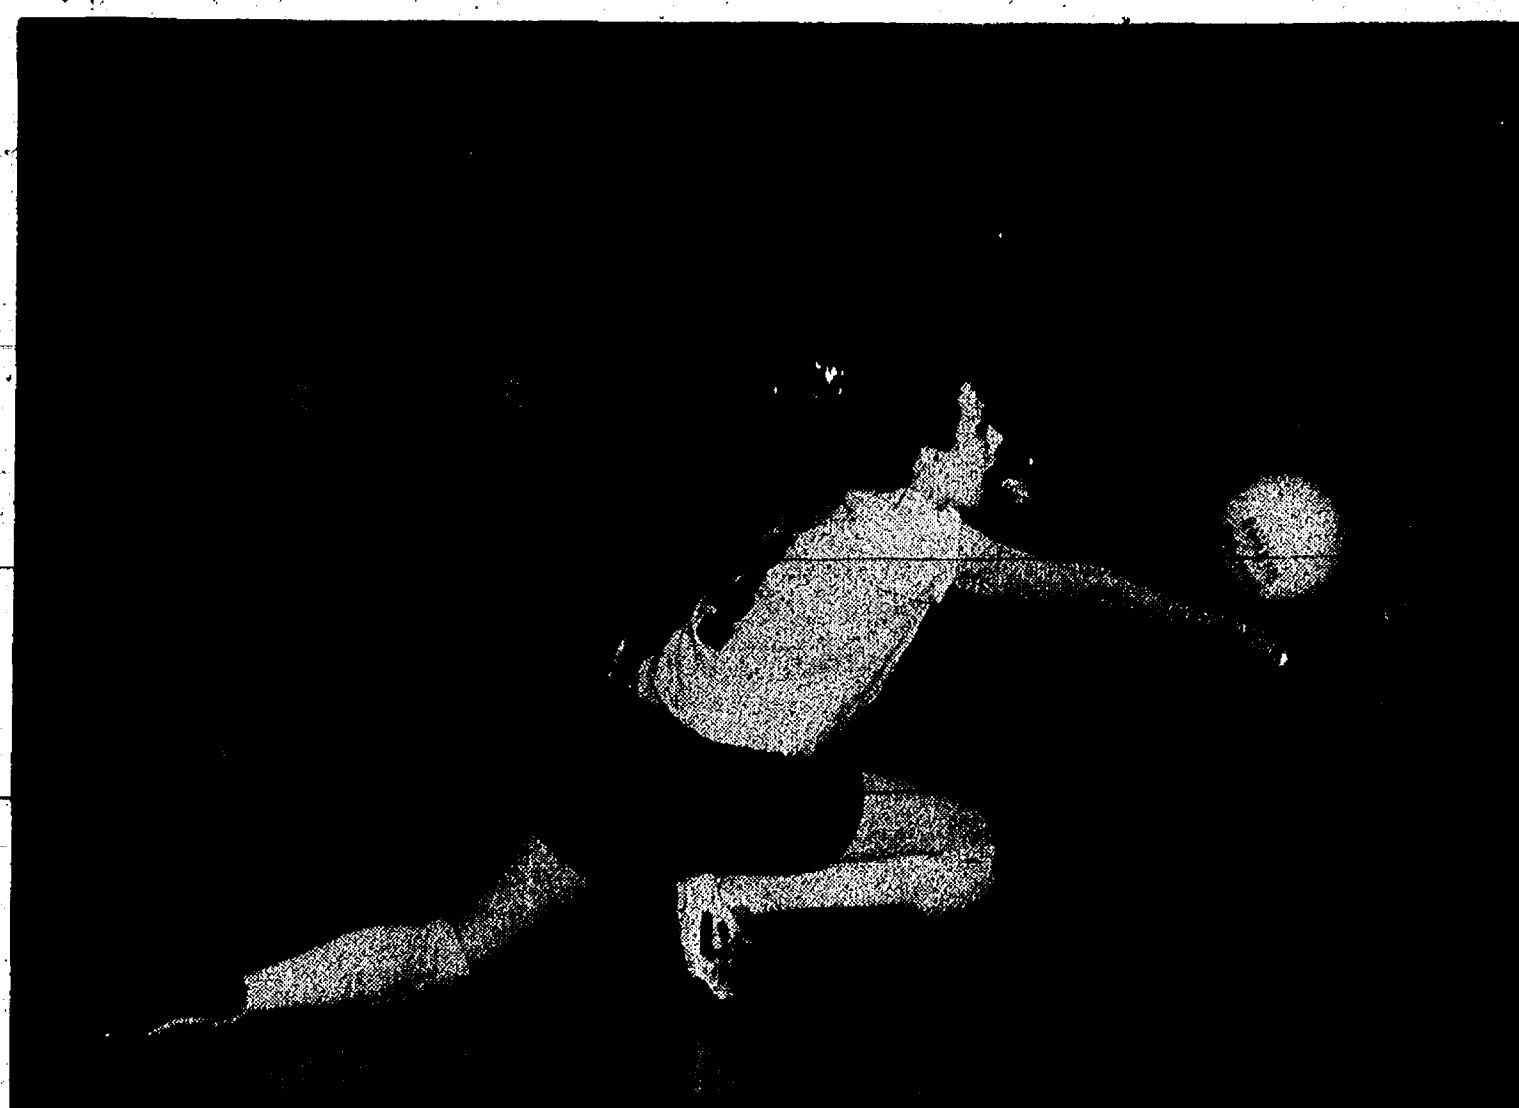

160: Mike Alber (C) pinned Jason Moore, 1:48.

171: Mike Thayer (C) pinned Jeremy Bell, 1:40.

189: Jordan Dyer (C) pinned Bobby Blaine, 1:33.

Chelsea won the final two matches by forfeit.

The Bulldogs are 5-2 on the season.

Chelsea Girls Second In CHS Invitational

By Donna Gundie-Krieg

Chelsea varsity women's volleyball team is off to a great start as they finished a strong second to Ann Arbor Pioneer in the Chelsea Invitational Tournament on Saturday.

"I am very pleased with the outcome, especially considering this was our first competition of the year," said coach Dan Montgomery. "We'll only get better. Our team held up very well during over 11 hours of play, and it was a very close finish."

Montgomery also noted that the other teams in the tournament had previous tournament play this season, and Chelsea and Milan were the only Class B teams competing. The six remaining teams were Class A.

Chelsea started out in pool play by playing two games each against Ann Arbor Huron, South Lyon and Pinckney. They defeated both Huron and Pinckney twice, but lost both games to South Lyon.

Proceeding to the quarterfinals, Chelsea won the best two out of three games against Milan, then advanced to the semi-finals to play Milford Lakeland.

"The match against Milford Lakeland was very tough," said Montgomery.

"All of the games were close, and we edged them out 16-14 in the third game." He noted that Lakeland, coached by his brother, lost to Chelsea last year in the finals.

In this year's finals, Chelsea lost to Pioneer 5-15 in the first game, won the second game 15-5, and lost the heartbreaking deciding game, 13-15.

"All of our players did very well," said Montgomery. He noted that junior Melissa Carty had 21 kills, 15 aces and 37 digs; junior Erin Montgomery had 40 kills, nine digs and nine solo stuff blocks; senior Sara Petty had seven kills, 14 aces, 28 digs and nine assists; senior Heidi Kemnitz had 15 kills and 20 digs; senior Heidi Wehrwein had seven kills and four solo stuff blocks; senior Carrie Buss had 18 digs and 46 assists and Liz Holdsworth had 12 digs.

JV Bulldogs Lose Wild Game To BCC

Last Friday, Dec. 5, Brooklyn Columbia Central came out of the blocks fast, built a 20-8 first quarter lead against the Bulldogs, and held on through a wild finish for a 61-58 victory.

"We came out kind of slow. They were a little sharper to start the game," said Chelsea Coach Mark Scheese.

The Bulldogs rallied within three points by halftime, and tied the score late in the second half, but couldn't make enough big plays to overcome the early deficit. Trailing by one in the final moments, two Bulldog freethrow attempts went awry, then down by three with seconds to go, a three-pointer missed its mark.

Brian Groesser led the offense with 13 points and four assists. Matt Adams scored 10, pulled in 10 rebounds and added four blocked shots. Sam Compton and Scott Basar combined for 19 points.

Chelsea's record fell to 2-4. They played Tuesday at Dexter and host Tecumseh tomorrow night.

Not Necessarily The Sports News

By Scott Bishop

1996 is here, and we in The Chelsea Standard sports department haven't even had time to figure out how many of our New Year's resolutions we've already broken.

We resolved not to trash Regis Philbin anymore, but then we saw the title of his auto-biography, I'm Only One Man (we are not making this up), in the bookstore and knew we'd made a mistake. Why set unrealistic goals? We fear that many of our resolutions have already gone down the drain in just 11 days.

While our verve and dedication are perhaps questionable, the Chelsea swimming, wrestling, volleyball and basketball teams are doggedly focused on challenging for their respective SEC crowns.

So the question is, how could the new year affect the Bulldogs? The new frontier could be unsettling.

In the past, Congress deregulated the airlines, the phone service and the savings and loan industry. That all worked out so well they're supposedly thinking about deregulating the rules of sports.

Clearly this would be more efficient. For instance, instead of needing to pay two officials for a basketball game, schools could forego hiring referees altogether and just have the athletic director call the game from the stands.

And some congressmen want to get rid of those nasty, over-strict environment regulations. If they're successful, money could be saved because swimming pools wouldn't need to be cleaned.

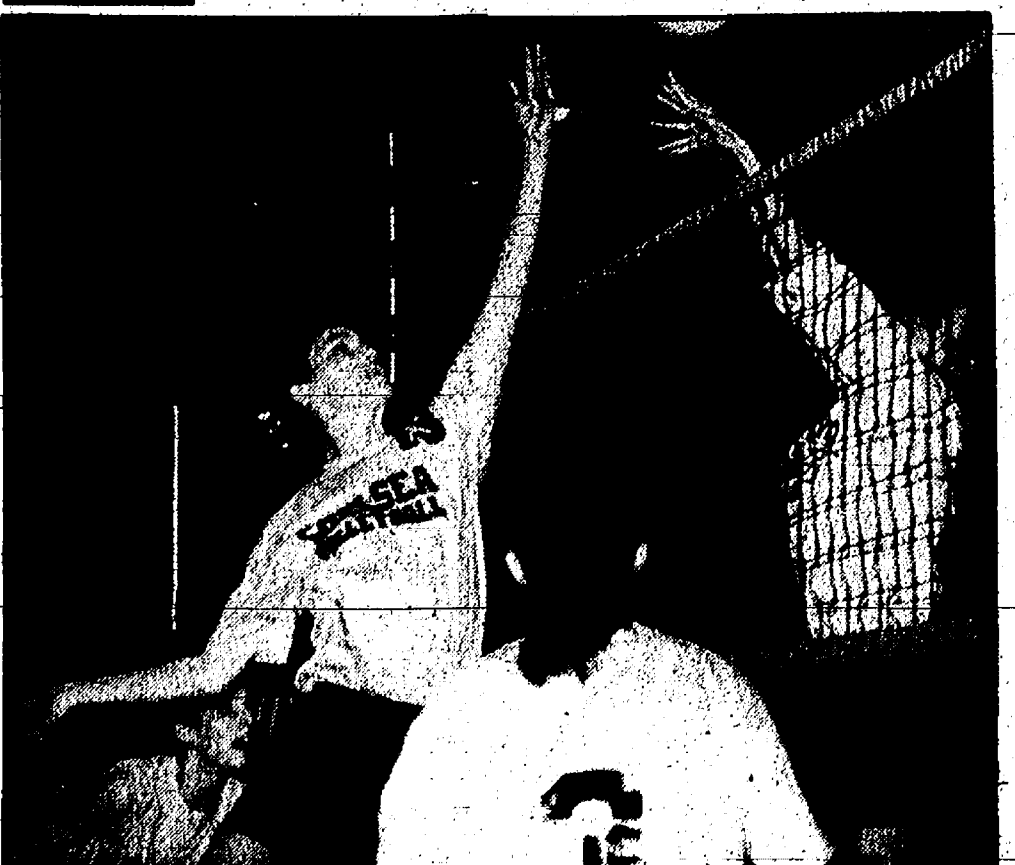

And it's not just politics that could alter the winter sports season. John Travolta has gotten so hip recently that, not only do people not giggle at him for starring in "Saturday Night Fever," there's been talk of white jump suits becoming required apparel for all wrestling teams.

And don't think that volleyball is guaranteed to escape the uncertain future ahead.

It seems some radical elements in the farmland conservation movement object to all that talk about digging and spiking and want to eradicate the sport entirely.

Following sports in the year ahead may require persistence, courage and strong leadership. There might be only one man to turn to. Anyone seen Regis lately?

1995 — Year in Review

money is used to implement technology.

December...

7-Should the Chelsea Fire department go area-wide? That's a burning question that the village and surrounding townships want to answer very soon. On Monday, Dec. 11 the Chelsea Village Council will meet with local township supervisors to discuss the issue, and the following night the council will address the area-wide issue at its regular meeting.

7-At the Monday, Dec. 4 Chelsea School Board meeting, Superintendent Ed Richardson announced plans to propose a voluntary program of all-day kindergarten that would be available to some students in the fall of 1996.

7-Highway speed limits may be accelerating very soon, but the Chelsea Village Council is proceeding with caution as it considers annexing 24.7 acres slated for a potential manufactured home project. At its Nov. 28 meeting the council resolved to develop a petition requesting annexation from the county. A final vote on whether or not to pursue annexation was delayed until Dec. 12 or possibly Dec. 26.

7-Village of Chelsea trustees learned from their financial advisers last week that they could expect approximately $12,000 in added expense in paying off a 1994 bond issue debt. But by Monday it appeared the deficit might be covered by the Chelsea School District and the village spared an extra financial burden.

7-For the first time in Dexter Community Schools' 14-year history of providing adult high school completion courses, the district has decided to close its doors. Residents seeking general education or high school diplomas are being referred to the Chelsea School District.

14-Council trustees expressed reservations about committing to an area-wide fire department advocated by the townships. And Tuesday night council voted 6-0 to continue sole ownership and control.

14-At the Monday, Dec. 4 Chelsea School Board meeting, concerns about technological equity and the district's philosophy of technology education were voiced during discussion of the schematic design of the new elementary school. The new school is scheduled for completion by the fall of 1997.

14-The Pepsi Challenge might be old news, but the staff of the Chelsea High School Bleu Print is taking on the challenge of reopining in the 1990's from a teen-age perspective.

14-Their self-introduction says that C.A.R.T. is not "a small vehicle moved by hand." But the non-profit organization Chelsea Area Responding to Teens is extending a hand to aid local teenagers in becoming involved in their community, fostering development of positive values and skills, and finding safe and substance-free social alternatives.

21-At the Monday, Dec. 18 meeting of the Chelsea School Board, the board heard plans for both the use of property around the new elementary school and for the general design of the school itself, and approved going ahead to the next stage of development.

21-Chelsea schools will eventually be wired for 21st century technology if a proposed contract is signed this week by Childs Consulting Associates (CCA) from Southfield.

21-Chelsea Village Council's decision to drop discussions about an area-wide fire department was unpopular with local township supervisors.

21-Chelsea School Board leaders stressed their desire to cooperate with Chelsea village, and at the Dec. 12 Chelsea Village Council meeting offered to pay a major portion of anticipated village debt. Village leaders, while relieved by the financial assistance, were not entirely satisfied with the district's actions.

21-Supporters of a district-wide library held a Leader's Tour last week to provide more information to village and township officials about the proposed move.

28-At the Dec. 12 Chelsea Village Council meeting, members of the District Library Planning Committee presented a draft of the agreement the council, and one or more surrounding townships, will need to accept and sign to legitimize moving toward a district library. Council trustees made it clear that the document needed work before they would approve it.

28-Work on the Pierce Lake Condominium project, being developed by Rene Papo and Arcus Corporation, was shut down for five days after Chelsea Village officials discovered the development had violated the village Industrial Pre-treatment Ordinance. Work has resumed, contingent on the future payment of citation penalties and concurrence with village directives.

28-Upkeep of the Chelsea Municipal Building is getting expensive for the village. In the last two months alone, the aging building has required $10,000 in repair expenses. "We have to keep it workable, because we are here and there's not a new one someplace off in the clouds," said Village Manager Jack Myers.

28-Cows are holy in India, and here in the United States the Chelsea-born band the Holy Cows is developing a faithful following.

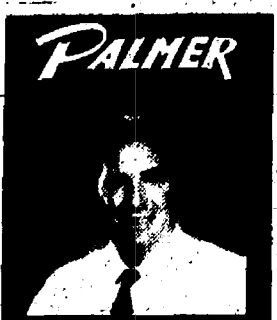

28-At the Tuesday, Dec. 19 Chelsea Planning Commission meeting, commissioners expressed concern about traffic congestion on M-52 south of the village, and urged Palmer Ford to lend them some assistance as the car dealership refurbished its used car lot. Palmer Ford representatives, however, said the commission's zeal was misdirected and that the proposed remedy would require needless cost and effort. 28-Consumers, for the most part, appeared to treat local shop owners well this holiday season. The majority surveyed by this newspaper three days before Christmas reported increased sales.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT—Holy Spirit, you who made me see everything and showed me the way to reach my ideal. You who gave me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me, and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in the short dialogue, want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in perpetual glory. Amen. Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. You must pray this prayer 3 consecutive days without asking your wish. After the third day, your wish will be granted no matter how difficult it may be. Promise to publish this dialogue as soon as your favor has been granted. M.O.

FIRE DEPARTMENT RESCUE TEAMS from area departments gathered at Cavanaugh Lake in Chelsea last Sunday for a training session in how to rescue someone who has fallen through the ice. It wouldn't have been so tricky Sunday since the ice was so thick and it was easy walking, but rescuers also have to deal with thin ice and less than ideal conditions. Here, a trainee closes in on a "victim," both of whom were extremely warm in their thick rubber suits.

License Plate Honoring Auto Industry Centennial On Sale January 2

Secretary of State's office is offering motorists the option of purchasing a new commemorative license plate honoring the 100th anniversary of the automobile industry.

The license plate, which is to be displayed on the back of vehicles, goes on sale Jan. 2 at Secretary of State branch offices around the state. The license plate can be purchased for a one time fee of $5.

"1996 marks the 100th anniversary of the automobile industry, which has had a greater impact on Michigan during the 20th century, than any other single industry," Secretary Miller said. "All of us have experienced the benefits of the auto industry and this is the time for us to show our appreciation by displaying the commemorative license plate with pride."

For the first time in Michigan history, the license plate features a graphic design rather than the standard two color issue. The license plate features a white background with the red and blue emblem of the American Automobile Centennial Commission, a gold silhouette of an antique automobile outlined in red, and three letters and two numbers stamped in blue.

The license plate bears the legend "World's Motor Capital" in red and a distinctive blue banner across the top bearing the word "Michigan."

Manufactured at the Adrian Temporary Correctional Facility, the license plate features 72 square inches of fully-reflectORIZED surface with a plastic resin that protects against imbedded dirt and retains optimum visibility in rain. The license plate is visible from 1,500 feet on a dark night and can be read from 90 feet away.

Among the vehicles eligible to display the auto centennial license plate are passenger vehicles, vans, pickups and motor homes.

Motorists who wish to replace their current license plate with the auto centennial license plate can purchase it at any Secretary of State branch office. Motorists are encouraged to have their current vehicle registration ready to show staff to facilitate the transaction.

The auto centennial license plate can also be purchased when renewing a vehicle registration. Orders are being accepted by fax or mail when purchasing at the time of renewal.

It will also be sold at the North American International Auto Show in Detroit Jan. 6 through 15.
