

School Auction

There was plenty of unusual merchandise available last Thursday at an auction held by the Chelsea School District. Right, Jerry Helmer of Braun and Helmer Auctioneers accepts bids for several pallets full of rocks. Below, two old buses were taken quickly, while Katherine Drew watches the proceedings from one of the many old school chairs that was eventually sold. The district netted $13,158 from the sale.

Local PDR plans still uncertain after meetings

By Scott Bishop
Staff Writer

Government agencies Purchasing Development Rights (PDR) to preserve agricultural or open space land is a hot issue in Washtenaw County.

County commissioners are considering proposing a county-wide PDR program on the November general election ballot. Preservation Chelsea, a group dedicated to preserving the character of Chelsea and its surrounding area, is urging the Chelsea Village Council to support placing PDR on the ballot. Sylvan Township is one of two county townships openly interested in PDR.

Still, as yet there are no certain PDR plans affecting the Chelsea area.

PDR programs would require raising finances to purchase development rights, likely through increased taxes.

Candice Pappas represented Preservation Chelsea at the July 9 Chelsea Village Council meeting, urging the council to approve a resolution or statement in support of county officials placing a PDR plan on the November general election ballot.

"What we want is help getting it on the ballot. I think it would be helpful for the village of Chelsea to support the county putting it on the ballot," Pappas said.

She added that her organization would work actively for passage of a PDR program once it was fixed for the approval or rejection of county voters.

Village council members were cautious about endorsing PDR generally, noting potential complications.

Following the meeting, village manager Jack Myers advised that county voters should be better educated about PDR before it was given ballot status.

"I think there should be vast education of the people out there about PDR because if say Sylvan Township does go into it (and Washtenaw County does also), that does constitute, in my opinion, a double taxing on village residents," Myers said, adding that Chelsea village residents also located in Sylvan Township already pay one mill to the township yearly.

Washtenaw County Commissioner Joe Yekulis participated in a work session of the commissioners on July 11. At the meeting, county officials, Sylvan Township Planning Commission Chairman Bob Lange and Barry Lonik, coordinator of the Citizen's Task Force for Farmland and Open Space Preservation, presented analysis and opinions regarding PDR.

Lonik's group is pushing hard for the county commissioners to place a PDR proposal on the November ballot.

The commissioner's must decide by Aug. 7 if a PDR proposal is to be put before county voters in November.

Yekulis said some commissioners were concerned that putting PDR on the fall ballot would be pushing it too fast, limiting the time for needed study, a point apparently shared by county planners and attorneys.

"Basically what came out of it was there were more questions than answers regarding this PDR issue," Yekulis said.

The commissioner said county planners questioned prioritizing PDR among multiple planning tools available and advised that time was needed to form a comprehensive planning strategy using all the concepts available.

Yekulis seemed to concur with the planners' argument.

"We need time to research the (PDR) project. We need time to develop the administrative structure and costs to

Library to approach townships

Chelsea Library Board President Dan Kaminsky said that library representative will be approaching the township boards of Sylvan, Lima, Lyndon and Dexter Township soon to seek support for the revised District Library Agreement.

The Chelsea Village Council approved the revised agreement May 14, after rejecting an earlier draft.

Library representatives will address the township boards, presenting the revised agreement, answering questions and asking for support for the district library, Kaminsky said.

The library representatives will also suggest that the township boards invite library board attorney Cynthia Faulhaber to address question about the district library system and process.

Faulhaber answered questions before the Chelsea Village Council prior to the village signing on to the District Library Agreement.

Village narrowing choices for office site

Chelsea Village Council President Richard Steele indicated at the July 9 council meeting that the process of selecting a site for a new municipal building was narrowing, and he hoped that the issue could be resolved yet this year.

Steele said that village officials are planning to talk with owners of two potential sites, the old Chelsea Standard building and approximately six acres owned by Chelsea Community Hospital.

However, another site for consideration was proposed by trustee Joe Merkel, 2.45 acres of village-owned property on Sibley Road near Chelsea's industrial park.

BookCrafters, Inc., located in the industrial park, has expressed interest in buying the property.

Merkel proposed that the village should keep the property, make necessary modifications and build a complex on the site to centralize village offices and surfaces.

"I know BookCrafters wants that property on Sibley Road, but I think we need it for ourselves," Merkel said, observing that the site would provide village residents easy access to services.

Merkel went on to propose, in conjunction with other trustees, that BookCrafters be contacted if the village were interested in keeping the Sibley Road property.

The company should be told, Merkel said, that the village was not intending to rebuff BookCrafters' interest, but only study using the property for its own ends.

Village Manager Jack Myers confirmed that following the meeting he sent a letter to BookCrafters, informing the company that their interest in the Sibley Road property would be temporarily put on hold, because the village council wanted to study the parcel's potential as a municipal building or complex.

Steele announced that village public safety coordinator

Mike Foster will chair a yet unformed committee to study site alternatives and make a recommendation to the council.

Steele asked that, by the July 23 meeting, council trusttees supply written recommendations regarding what should comprise the committee membership, what type of site should be selected and what services the new building or complex should provide.

Special assessment ordinance revised for village protection

Chelsea Village Council revised its ordinance covering special assessments at the Tuesday, July 9 meeting.

Bond counsel Don Klem explained the change before the council approved it.

The revision was made to head off potential problems arising from a special assessee paying off debt to the village unexpectedly early, avoiding interest charges that the village, responsible for paying interest over a number of years, would be forced to pick up. A deficit or "shortfall" for the village would result.

A similar situation arose last year when the Chelsea School District paid off its share of a special assessment bond issue early, a move village officials said was unexpected and resulted in a village shortfall.

The new ordinance removes a provision that allowed special assessee a seven-month "lag time" from the inception of the payment period in which they were not charged interest.

Thus, Klem explained, if a special assessee later paid off unexpectedly, the village would have some funds available to invest early enough to counter a shortfall.

A special assessee still retains the option to pay out without any charge, Klem said, as long as it's done within 60 days from the beginning of the payment period.

Further, the revised ordinance allows a special assessee the option to pay out even after the 60-day period, with two contingencies, Klem explained.

"(The ordinance) in effect says if someone comes and knocks on the door and says, after the fact, 'I'd like to pay off our special assessment early; really early,' then they could do that, but only if two things happen.

"One is you crunch the numbers (at the special assessee's expense) and determine that it's not going to cost the village in terms of shortfall. And secondly, if there is a shortfall, they pay to cover it," Klem said.

Hatch Stamping cutting emissions

The recently released Toxic Release Inventory, compiled by the Environmental Protection Agency, indicated that Hatch Stamping in Chelsea released 38,339 pounds of trichloroethylene into the atmosphere in 1994.

Hatch Stamping holds a permit from the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality which allows it to legally release 13.8 tons of the potentially hazardous chemical yearly, equivalent to roughly 27,000 pounds.

Environmental Analyst Glen Erickson said that the MDEQ labels trichloroethylene a carcinogen, but does not consider it a health hazard at the volume Hatch Stamping is permitted.

Hatch Stamping Human Resources Manager Lauren Wilson conceded that the company did exceed its permit

Water, sewer billing to go monthly

Beginning with the bill they receive in August (billing for July services), Chelsea village residents will be billed monthly for water and sewer service.

In the past, residents have received quarterly bills for water and sewer. Chelsea Village Manager Jack Myers said the new system would improve both village and consumer cash flows.

Rather than needing to accumulate the money for large payments four times per year, residents will pay smaller monthly fees, as they currently pay monthly electric bills.

The monthly charge for electric, water and sewer services will appear as separate items on a single bill mailed to village residents.

Billing representative Mary Picklesimer said the village would monitor the "interim" system over time to assess its effectiveness as the village moves toward more automated billing services.

As in the past, some residents whose meters are inside and not accessible to village meter readers will be asked to read their own meters and return the information to the village offices, via a postage-paid form. Chelsea village will provide.

Though consumers will be billed monthly, village readers will assess the meters every two months.

For example, meters will be read toward the end of July. That consumption will be calculated into the July water, sewer and electric bills. Village residents will receive that bill early in August.

Then the bills sent out for August service will be estimates based on the previous bill. There will be no village

Opening Remarks

By Brian Hamilton

The other day I turned the corner at Wenley and Book Streets to park for the Chelsea School District's huge auction, which took place outside the old auto shop garages.

As I got out of the car, something didn't seem quite right, and it bugged me the entire time I was perusing the old computers, tools, buses, light tables and other stuff I couldn't identify. It wasn't until I went back to the car that I realized what the problem was. From my car's vantage point just north of the high school tennis courts I could see all the way to the bus garage.

Until a few weeks ago that was impossible because of the large stand of trees where varsity baseballs used to go to die. At closer look, the baseball team shed seemed awfully naked silhouetted against the sky rather than nestled in against the trees. Those trees were a casualty of the new school building project. Beyond the new clearing will be Pierce Lake Elementary School and the new ball fields. It's understandable why at least one of the residents on Book Street is so upset. It's sad when something so beautiful, something she thought would last forever, is taken away so quickly in the name of educational progress.

The auction would have been equally sad and nostalgic for many people who attended school here more than 10 or 15 years ago.

Equipment that figured so prominently in school activities for some people not that long ago was being retired for good, victim of a modernized curriculum.

There were all sorts of tools and devices from the old industrial arts and home economics courses. You could find everything from auto-mechanic tools (even a few oil filters) to an art waxer to an old photo enlarger to sewing machines to wood and metal lathes and drill presses to pieces of equipment with gauges I didn't recognize. A wood lathe, and the accompanying set of shaping tools, looked just like what I used in high school to make a lamp, which my mother still has.

I wondered how many kids took apart their first carburetors at Chelsea High and continue to fix their own cars to this day thanks to that experience. Someone who worked on an old Chrysler in 1970 probably would have thought you were crazy if you had told him that the auto shop garage would eventually become a storage building.

There were also a number of those old, bright blue IBM Selectric typewriters, which I'm sure many kids used to learn how to type. Nowadays, of course, we're much more high tech, or we're going to be. My eight-year-old son is teaching himself to type, or "keyboard," on computer using a Marjo program. It's sure a lot more fun than when I was in high school and used an old manual portable and the instructor called out letters, checking all the while to see whether we were looking at our fingers.

And who would have thought 25 years ago that an elementary-aged kid would ever need or want to learn to type?

Such is progress. Sometimes it's a jolt. And sometimes it just makes me feel mighty old.

I'm not sure I follow all of this new three-letter talk anymore.

When I first heard about PDR, I thought either it referred to some monthly mood swing that people go through, or it was the initials of Franklin Roosevelt's brother, Paul.

Well, I've seen a lot of capital letters come and go in my time, and more often than not, they're just fads. Like PJs and B&Bs, MTV, ATV, CBC, VCRs, and PCs. You can't tell which ones are good entertainment and which ones might make you disintegrate if you eat them.

But now I see from the paper that PDR means Purchasing Development-Rights and all of a sudden everybody seems to be talking about it.

This is a very confusing concept to me. It's where you purchase something that says the person whom you purchased it from won't do something that you don't want them to do. Like when I was a kid and Fatty Jonassen told me I had to give him my lunches or he'd beat me up.

Anyway, so now the county and Sylvan Township are both talking about PDR and the way it seems to work is that the government collects these taxes and puts them into a fund and when the fund gets big enough they pick out certain people who own land and pay them not to do something.

The only thing is, they would pay them not to do something they are already not doing because if they were already doing it, then it would be too late. So how do you know whether they ever would have done this thing, anyway?

I mean, if they were never going to do what the government is paying them not to do, then it would be pretty silly to waste all of that money, wouldn't it? But I'll tell you, if I knew that the government was going around paying people not to do something, then I would certainly claim that I was going to do it so they would pay me not to, probably even if I didn't need the money, which I do.

You see the problem, don't you? I mean, you can measure things if you pay for someone to do something or to stop doing something they already started doing, but this paying people not to do something they already aren't doing seems pretty tricky.

And what you're paying them not to do is development. What is development, anyway? When you are a farmer, you plow the land and plant seed and then see what develops, so that's out. If you want to do anything else, you have to develop plans, so I guess that leaves nothing.

I'll tell you, if I had to pay little Artie every time he did nothing, it would get pretty darned expensive. Although with Artemia just turning 13 and the way all of those teenage boys are starting to look at her, I think it might settle my nerves if I could pay her not to develop.

Anyway, seems to me that whether you call it PDR or PDQ or PTS, by the time we get done adding all of these taxes on top of everything else, we're gonna end up paying more than we did before Proposal A passed.

I don't know about you, but my money doesn't develop on trees.

Billing change meter reading in August.

September's bill will be based on another exact reading of the meters, and any surplus or deficit resulting from the estimated charges will be made up on that September bill.

Picklesimer estimated that the new system would require more worker hours initially, particularly for village employees responsible for reading the meters.

However, she expected that eventually the system would provide speedier, more accurate and more efficient service to village residents.

Don't blame our people

For the last several days I have been outraged at the behavior of Americans about the bombing in Saudi Arabia that cost the lives of seven military personnel.

My rage is caused by people, including the media, who think that placing the blame on President Clinton, Secretary of Defense Perry or other military leaders, will make the pain of losing these personnel go away. Respect their memory and don't place blame on our people but put it on those terrorists who committed these heinous crimes, hoping that they will be brought to justice soon.

These things are part of the way of life and terrorists will always target people who are viewed as "peacekeepers."

Finally, there are people who honor and respect our troops wherever they might be. I know I do.

run the program," Yekulis said.

Mike DuRussel, a county commissioner who farms agricultural property in Freedom and Sharon Townships, said the arguments of county attorneys were most damaging to hopes of putting PDR on the fast track for the November vote.

"I think (county-wide PDR) is dead on arrival," following the analysis of county legal counsel, DuRussel said.

Though as a farmer he is extremely concerned about preserving agricultural land and open space, the commissioner noted, there were too many questions and too little time before a decision had to be made.

"I wouldn't even want to bring it up for a vote," DuRussel added.

Yekulis outlined the county legal counsel's questions about county-wide PDR.

First, there was concern that the county does not have the legal authority to issue bonds that would cover the program's initial costs.

in 1994, but said that the excess trichloroethylene did not constitute a health hazard and that Hatch Stamping has, with the advice of the MDEQ, reduced chemical emissions into the air to well below permitted levels.

'Night Out' set July 27

The neighboring community of Dexter will host a kick-off party Saturday, July 27 for the 13th annual National Night Out, crime prevention awareness day, slated in August.

The Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department will sponsor the local party from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Mill Creek Middle School on Dexter-Ann Arbor Road. The event includes non-stop entertainment, refreshments and family fun. There will be informational exhibits from Crime Prevention, Drug Abuse Resistance Education, American Red Cross, SWAT Team, Traffic Unit, Water Safety and many more. Other scheduled features include Children ID Kits, "Heavy D the Clown," Vehicle Identification Etching, Smoke House, face painting and a magic show.

National Night Out is held annually in communities across the United States. In all, over 28 million people are expected to participate by turning on outside lights and meeting with police, neighbors and local crime prevention coordinators in an effort to raise crime and drug prevention awareness. The night is also organized to generate support for anti-crime programs, to strengthen neighborhood spirit, improve relations between the police department and community and deter crime.

For more information about the local kick-off event or National Night Out contact Sheriff's Deputy Lisa King at 994-8098.

"The county would not be able to generate future bond revenue based on the proposed millage to fund PDR," Yekulis said.

Second, county attorneys expect that businesses and the Home Owners Association would challenge PDR in court, necessitating expensive and time consuming legislation, according to Yekulis.

Third, with "enabling legislation" that would assist counties in pursuing PDR programs pending in the state legislature, the possibility of conflict is a potential problem.

"That's a major concern, that we're going to be in conflict with state law when the state passes their legislation," Yekulis said.

Finally, county attorneys forecast that the board of commissioners would need to administer any PDR program itself, rather than create an administrative agency for the task, until state legislation was passed that would allow the creation of such an agency.

Overall, Yekulis leaned toward caution in assessing county-wide PDR.

"There are a lot of legal plained, the company has added equipment to reduce air emissions.

The trichloroethylene is produced by a vapor degreaser used to clean metal parts.

In late 1995, an aqueous wash system was installed to cut down on use of the vapor degreaser.

As a result, Wilson observed, trichloroethylene emissions through the first five months of 1996 were nearly 25 percent below permitted levels.

The MDEQ permit would have allowed the release of 945 gallons of trichloroethylene, according to Wilson, while actual emissions totaled 711 gallons.

Further, Wilson said Hatch Stamping was considering buying a second aqueous washer system in anticipation of halting chemical releases.

"Our intentions are to completely eliminate the trichloroethylene," Wilson concluded.

questions that need to be answered before we can move forward with this issue.

"We need more time before we can responsibly bring this before the voters," Yekulis said.

The commissioner did say that, while he sensed the tone of the county commission leaning against placing a PDR proposal on the November ballot, an alternative might be a non-binding referendum that would survey voter opinion about PDR county-wide.

Additionally, Yekulis said, the county commissioners planned to study PDR programs in Superior and Sylvan Townships as pilots, if they are implemented.

It is expected that Superior Township will implement a PDR plan regardless of county action for or against county-wide PDR.

In Sylvan Township, the issue is more fluid. While there seems to be support for PDR among township officials, supervisor Jerry Dresselhouse indicated no final decision had been made.

"Our township has to make some decisions, both the planning commission and the township board. Until (the planning commission) takes official action on adopting a general development plan that would include PDR you really can't give any (certain) answers. It's something they've got to look at and decide," Dresselhouse said.

The Sylvan Township Planning Commission held a public hearing on its draft general development plan, which included PDR provisions, on July 8.

The planning commission next meets July 25. The township government must decide by late August whether or not a PDR millage proposal will be on the November ballot for Sylvan Township residents.

WARNING SIGNS OF GUM DISEASE

Periodontal (gum) disease is the most common cause of tooth loss in adults. Almost 90% of the adult population will have some form of gum disease at one time or another. It affects the soft tissues which hold the teeth in place, and the bone surrounding the teeth. If your answer is yes to any of the following symptoms, you may have gum disease.

1. Do your gums bleed when you brush your teeth?
2. Do you have bad breath?
3. Do you have soft, swollen or tender gums?
4. Does pus come from the gumline on pressing?
5. Can you move any of your teeth in a rocking motion?
6. Are your gums shrinking away from your teeth?
7. Is there any change in the way your teeth come together?

Daily brushing and flossing to remove plaque and regular visits to your dentist are the best measures for preventing this disease. It is preventable!

Seniors can delay paying property tax

Washtenaw County Senior Citizens can delay paying their summer and winter property taxes until 1997 by filing a deferment application with the treasurer of their city, village or township. In order to delay payment, seniors must be age 62 and over with a household income not exceeding $25,000.

"The deferment helps take some burden of paying high property taxes off of low-income seniors," said Michelle Dallos, property tax program coordinator of the Housing Bureau for Seniors. "It gives them time to budget and file for their Homestead Property Tax Credit Claim, which can be used to pay their 1996 property taxes."

The deferment application allows seniors to delay the due date of their summer and/or winter taxes until April 30, without penalty or interest.

The summer portion of the deferment application is due Sept. 15 or the due date of your summer taxes, whichever is later.

To receive free assistance in completing a deferment call Michelle Dallos at the Housing Bureau for Seniors at (313) 763-0970.

Friends of McKune hold annual book sale

Friends of the McKune Memorial Library of Chelsea will hold their annual "Really Big Used Book Sale" on Friday, Aug. 2 from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturday, Aug. 3, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. during Chelsea's Annual Sidewalk Sale and Craft Show.

Because Friends of McKune did not hold a spring sale, there are an unusually large number of used books available in many categories. A local radio station donated a selection of brand new books published in 1995 and 1996, which were sent to them by publishers seeking interviews for their clients. A large number of children's books were donated for the sale by the Chelsea Rotary Club.

Due to the large number of books on hand, the Friends of the Library will not be able to take additional donations of books until after Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 2.

In general, paperback books will be sold for 50 cents, and hardcovers will cost $1. New books and special books will be priced as marked. Children's books and large numbers of books in many categories will be sold for 10 and 25 cents. Proceeds from the sale are used by the Friends to purchase materials, equipment and programs not covered by the regular McKune budget.

After Labor Day, book donations may be left at the library.

The donor must check in with the librarian's at the desk to find out where the books are to be taken for storage. Materials that will not be accepted are National Geographic Magazines, text books of any kind and Reader's Digest Condensed Books. Damaged and mildewed books also are also unacceptable.

Anyone interested in volunteering to work at the sale should sign up at the library, or call the library at 475-8732.

CRUISING ON THE DANCE FLOOR

Looking for romance on the high seas? How about the chance to dance the night away, night after night after night? You can find either, both, and more on board the dance cruise of your dreams, thanks to the variety of cruise programs that are now geared toward specific types of music and dancing. For example, if you get a hoot out of country and western music, there are cruises that can teach you to line dance like a pro. If you've never quite left the '60s behind, you can sign up to rock around the clock for a week. Even if you look at dancing as a spectator sport, you can pick a cruise that is tailored to the music of your choice—from big band, to the twenties, to ballroom, to classical, to jazz—and just kick back and enjoy. One of the extras of a dance cruise is that when the music stops, you can often get to know the musicians and other performers off the floor.

What could be better than surrounding yourself with people who like to do the same things you do, on a beautiful cruise ship, experiencing fun, excitement, and relaxation all at the same time? There are many cruises today geared to a full range of special activities, hobbies, and interests. Let the travel professionals at UNIGLOBE CHELSEA TRAVEL, INC. help you find the one that will be your memory of a lifetime. Think of your travel needs, then think of us at 1070 South Main Street. Hours: Mon.-Fri. 8:30-5:00, other hours by appointment. Ph: 475-3110

PINKEYE

The term "pink eye" is frequently misunderstood, causing many people to fear it is a rampant, blinding eye infection. The medical term for this disease is "conjunctivitis." The conjunctiva is a thin, moist membrane that covers the white of the eye and the inner surface of the eyelids.

Conjunctivitis is usually a harmless, temporary viral infection, which can be thought of as having a "cold" in the eye. More serious forms of conjunctivitis are infection by bacteria, requiring antibiotics, or infection spreading to the cornea, the clear part of the eye covering the pupil. Conjunctivitis can also be noninfectious. Allergic persons can develop inflammation of the conjunctiva, and irritants such as chlorine in a swimming pool, chemicals or smoke can cause it.

The symptoms of conjunctivitis are redness of the eyes, mattering, and itching, "scratchiness" or burning of the eyes. Vision is normal or only mildly blurred. The victim frequently is also suffering from a cold or flu, children seem to be more susceptible.

Most of the time conjunctivitis lasts only a few days and requires no treatment other than cool compresses, rinsing the eyes with cool water or using a soothing non-prescription eye drop. If symptoms are persistent or severe, your doctor can prescribe medicated eyedrops.

Infectious pink eye is contagious. Patients must be sure to wash their hands after touching the eye area, stay out of swimming pools, and not share towels or washcloths. Children should probably stay home from school for a couple of days.

Local pastor visits China church

Pastor Mearl Bradley from the Chelsea Free Methodist Church returned home June 3 from a three-week mission trip. He was accompanied by his son, Pastor Jeff Bradley from the Three Oaks Free Methodist Church.

They began their trip in Taiwan where Pastor Mearl Bradley taught a class, through an interpreter, on "Church Planting." They continued their trip to the Philippines where Pastor Mearl Bradley and his son each taught a graduate course at the Light and Life Bible College. While staying in the Philippines, Pastor Mearl Bradley also participated in a "Walk for Jesus," baptized a baby, and attended a wedding.

After leaving the Philippines, they went on to Hong Kong, then on to become "Donkeys for Jesus," an expression describing Christians who carry bibles across into China from Hong Kong. While in China, they visited Pastor Lamb who runs a non-denominational house church, in Guangzhou, that is not registered with the government. In China, any church that is not with the government is considered illegal.

When previously questioned by the government as to why foreign visitors have joined their services, Pastor Lamb stated in his written testimony, "They heard that I preach the whole Bible freely. Through these services, they discovered that the only religious freedom that we have is in hiding (with-in house churches). They learned that those Christians who choose to worship outside of the 'Three Self Church' risk great persecution."

Pastor Lamb has spent 20-plus years in prison for sharing his faith, and has been subjected to numerous arrests and raids by the government. He has received a lot of western exposure for his work including a biography written by Ken Anderson, published by Zondervan.

In January 1986, a delegate from the White House presented Pastor Lamb with a pen from President Reagan. Forty Americans came to the special event to honor Pastor Lamb. In 1987, he also received a Bible from President Reagan. Billy Graham has also honored Pastor Lamb for his work and sent a Bible and pen. Since that time, both gifts have been confiscated by the government along with numerous other items.

This was Pastor Mearl

Pastor Mearl Bradley

Bradley's second trip to the Philippines. In 1988, he and his wife, Joyce, spent five months teaching undergraduate classes at the Light and Life Bible College.

—New Elementary in Progress—

Site work continues on a big scale for the new Pierce Lake Elementary School in Chelsea off Old US-12 and Freer Road. The site will also include new softball and baseball fields. The school is scheduled to be open by fall of 1997.

Intermediate school district gets going

At its July organizational meeting, the Washtenaw Intermediate School District Board of Education unanimously elected Mary Jane Tramontin as president and Mark VanBogelen as vice president for 1996-97. Tramontin, an Ann Arbor resident and former Ann Arbor Board of Education member, has been a WISD Board member since 1993. She owns a small business that provides monitoring services for the homebound and elderly.

VanBogelen, a Manchester resident and former Manchester Board of Education member, has served on the WISD Board since 1994. VanBogelen is an assistant vice president/retail sales manager for First of America

Bank-Michigan.

During the 1996-97 school year, the board will meet at 5:30 p.m. on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month. The meetings will be held in the Board Room at WISD's Teaching and Learning Center, unless otherwise specified.

The remaining Board Trustees are Warren D. McLean, Gregory S. Peoples, and Anne M. Comeau. McLean, an Ann Arbor resident, has served on the Board since 1989. He is the broker/owner of McLean and Associates. Peoples was elected to the board June, 1993. He also serves on the Lincoln Consolidated School District's Board of Education. Peoples is associate dean of students at Eastern Michigan University. Comeau is a Chelsea resident and former Chelsea Board of Education member. She has served on the WISD Board since 1987.

The intermediate school district is a regional education service agency that works with the school districts of Ann Arbor, Chelsea, Dexter, Lincoln, Manchester, Milan, Saline, Whitmore Lake, Willow Run, and Ypsilanti. Its goals are to help these schools deliver the best possible education for learners through leadership, cooperation, and quality educational programming.

Daycare providers must meet guidelines

In 1994 the American Red Cross hailed Governor Engler's signing of House Bill 4615 which requires First Aid and CPR certification for licensed Day Care Operators. The Red Cross has always encouraged parents to ask if their children's care givers are trained in CPR and First Aid. The new law, which took effect in December of 1995, has taken the Red Cross's concern to the next level.

Now identified as Public Act 349 of the Public Acts of 1994, the requirements for day care licensing include a provision which stipulates "A child caring institution, child care center, or group day care home shall have on duty at all times which the institution, center, or home is providing care to one or more children at least one person who has been certified in First Aid and age-appropriate Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation by the American Red Cross or a compatible organization or institution approved by the department."

As the law implies, the American Red Cross is the premier provider of CPR and First Aid certification. Their classes have evolved with superior quality through the decades that they've been offered. Also because of the decades of streamlining, the Red Cross has been able to offer their classes at the lowest rates possible.

sible. Here in Washtenaw County, the cost for the Community First Aid and Safety Course, which includes CPR training for adults, children and infants, is only $50.

For more information on how you can be First Aid and CPR certified, please contact the American Red Cross at (313) 971-5300.

Family Medicine

By John C. Wolf, D.O.
Associate Professor of Family
Medicine, Ohio University
College of Osteopathic Medicine

Question: I like to swim in the lake near my home, but my wife thinks that it is unsafe. She thinks it would be better to go to the city's pool. Is there really any greater risk in swimming in the lake?

Answer: Swimming is a mildly risky activity. To put it into perspective, however, dry land injuries — such as slipping and breaking a bone or being involved in an auto accident — are more common than water related injuries, including drowning. In general, then, the benefits of swimming, particularly in the hot summertime, greatly outweigh the risks.

We humans enjoy playing in water. It is cooling and refreshing on a hot summer day. Lakes, streams and swimming pools all provide this essential quality. Lakes and streams often have considerable variation in the temperature and depth from place to place. This can be one of the interesting differences in the experience of swimming in one of these places rather than a pool.

Obviously, it is possible to safely swim in lakes, streams and swimming pools. There are some differences between these, however. The major risks associated with swimming in the open, untreated water of lakes and streams can be thought of as a water quality issue. Besides the fish, turtles, leeches and other creatures that pose a small risk to human health, untreated water is home to many microscopic enemies of humankind.

The small amounts of water one unintentionally consumes while swimming may contain Vibrio cholerae, an undesirable bacteria responsible for causing the illness cholera.

Fortunately, contracting other illnesses from water is not so rare. E. coli, Cryptosporidium, Giardia and other "bugs" are frequently found in fresh water. These infections cause nausea, vomiting and diarrhea, and in extreme cases can be fatal.

Swimming pool water is treated to greatly diminish the risk of acquiring an infection from the water. So in this regard, a pool is better than swimming in the lake. Swimming pools also have lifeguards. I don't know if your lake does, but having a lifeguard on duty reduces the risk of drowning.

Swimming in lakes and streams can have additional potential risks — particularly if you engage in foolish behavior. Many swimmers have sustained head, neck and spinal cord injuries by diving into water of unknown depth. Of course, this can happen in a swimming pool, too, but it is more likely in an unsupervised swimming hole. It is also possible to be run over by a boat while in a lake or stream, or be pulled under by strong currents.

The risks of swimming can be greatly reduced by using good sense. Don't swim alone, and don't dive into unknown water. Be aware of the other creatures in the water with you — and humans are far-and-away the most dangerous. And try to avoid getting the water in your mouth. Have an enjoyable and safe time swimming whether you choose to go to the lake or to the swimming pool.

Local woman is contact for 'Adopt-a-Native Elder'

The Adopt-A-Native-Elder Program is a federally tax exempt, private, non-profit, charitable organization that exists to create a bridge of hope between the Native American and other cultures. It allows us to reach out to one another and to share our gifts.

The program helps those who live in remote parts of the Reservation in Arizona. Most of the leaders live in traditional hogans and some raise sheep as a means of maintaining themselves. The program provides food, simple medicines, clothing, fabric and yarns to help the Elders remain on their land in their traditional lifestyle.

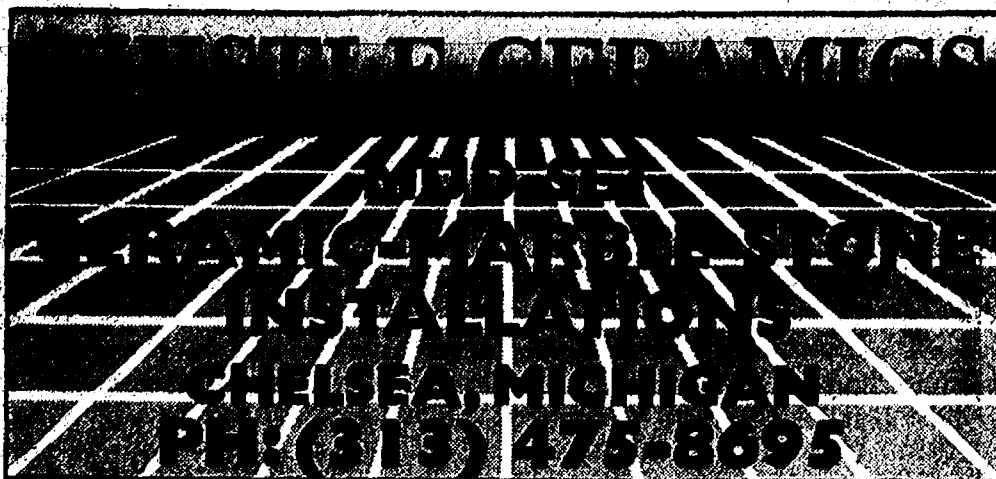

Ruth Benally, a recipient, when asked what the boxes of food and clothing meant to her explained that they were like "miracles from the sky". The miracle is the letters and gifts that arrive from people that they don't know and may never meet. These Elders often do not speak English, they often are caretakers for grandchildren, opportunities for them were compromised by the lack of materials and support for participation, but they remain a proud people who want to remain self-sufficient and the Adoption Program provides them with the extra boost necessary to help them through difficult circumstances.

There are two food support programs. Gift certificates for food and off-the-shelf medical products (only), and the Grocery Bag program where food is boxed and delivered during "food runs" (Twice each year, May and October; the program collects food, medicine, blankets and clothing for delivery directly to the reservation by A.A.N.E. volunteer personnel.)

There is also a Navaho Yarn Program. The primary focus of the program, however, is the Adoption Program wherein a person/family/organization receives a sheet giving the basic information about the elder and their specific food, clothing, household and basic medical needs and the elder's address. Adoption does not mean a lifetime commitment, although there are friendships that develop that last a lifetime.

If you are interested in the program, for further information, contact Sharon K. Donnelly at 475-0204 for a brochure or The Adopt-A-Native-Elder Program, 4746 Meadowview Road, Murray, Utah, 84107.

Purple Rose extends show

Due to popular demand for tickets, the Purple Rose Theatre Company will present twenty three additional performances of The Harmony Codes, a new comedy by Michael Grady.

The Harmony Codes, which began previews on June 8, was originally scheduled to close its eight-week engagement on Sunday, July 28, however the production will now continue through Sunday, Aug. 25. Performances for the extension in Chelsea will be Wednesdays through Saturdays at 8 p.m. with Sunday shows at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. All performances are at the Purple Rose Theatre Company's Garage Theatre, 137 Park St., Chelsea, Michigan.

The Harmony Codes follows the story of Margaret Lancaster, an Indiana housewife who is visited in her backyard by space aliens searching for "the codes of human existence." Margaret's family and friends doubt her story, however word quickly spreads and news of her encounter is announced over the local air waves. The ensuing spotlight of publicity quickly turns the Lancasters' lives upside down and threatens to ruin their happy home. Soon, the national media, the FBI and intergalactic space conspiracy fanatics are camped out on the Lancasters' doorstep. Meanwhile, the space aliens continue to visit Margaret on a regular basis while she frantically searches for an answer to their request.

The cast of The Harmony Codes features Sandra Birch as Margaret Lancaster, Jim Porterfield as her husband and Tricia Smith as their daughter. Wayne David Parker and Kate Peckham portray the space aliens. The remaining cast members of The Harmony Codes include Dan Brinkie, John Hawkinson and Jeffery Nash.

The blaze consumed all the trash and burned off the dumpster's brown paint.

Drunk Driving

The victim was dropping off mail when the boy ran toward him and threw two water balloons. Both balloons missed the man, but broke and sprinkled his mail with water. In a statement to police the suspect took no responsibility for the assault. "I feel that the charges brought against me are both silly and unimportant. dog in the 18800 block of Old US-12, July 1. The boy told police he tried to catch the dog by the leash when the dog attacked him. The boy suffered bites on his both hands and his calf. The dog was quarantined for 10 days until it was determined not to have rabies.

Hit and Run

A Chelsea man was cited as a hit and run driver, for having improper registration, no proof of insurance, not wearing a seatbelt and for being unable to stop at an assured distance after he plowed into another vehicle and fled the scene on Old US-12 near M-52. The man crashed into the rear of another vehicle while looking at a girl on the pay phone at Choker gas station. Police were able to locate him based on a description. A passenger in the suspect's truck told police what happened and confirmed neither were wearing seatbelts.

Runaway
A 42-year-old woman told a sheriff's deputy her 15-year-old daughter ran away from their home in the 10000 block of Stinchfield Woods Drive, July 8. Police noted this is the ninth time in two years the girl has run away. The girl's mother said she last saw her daughter at 5:45 p.m. July 7. The girl said she was going to visit a friend in Ann Arbor. She was told to be home at 11 p.m., but never returned.

Found Property

A large bag of what appeared to be marijuana was turned into the sheriff's department. A 52-year-old man said he found it along Fleming Road near Westwind Drive, July 8. A test, however, proved the leafy substance was not marijuana.

Breaking and Entering

Breaking and entering was reported in the 9500 block of Alice Hill Drive, July 8. An 18-year-old man told a sheriff's deputy someone broke into his home and stole $250 worth of old coins. Thieves gained entry by breaking a small window and entering through a laundry room. Damage is estimated at $300. The teen said he was watching the house while his parents were on vacation. Police suspect one of the family's neighbors.

Warrant Arrest

Douglas E. Ray, 30, of Jackson was arrested on a warrant, July 13. Ray was transferred into the custody of a Washtenaw County Sheriff's deputy after being arrested in Jackson. He was wanted on a warrant for failing to appear in court on charges of breaking and entering.

Webster Township

Found Property

The personal papers of a Whitmore Lake woman were found on Barker Road near Merrill Road, July 9. It was noted the items were in the woman's car, which was reported stolen earlier to Northfield Township Police.

Suspicious Incident

A suspicious incident was reported on Pellet Street near McClatchey Drive, July 6. A sheriff's deputy was initially dispatched to the site of a possible child-luring complaint. The deputy was told a boy was riding his bicycle when a man inside a vehicle motioned him to come over. The boy, however, fled the area and went home.

Scio Township

Warrant Arrests

Stanford A. Howard, 37, of Ypsilanti was arrested at Quiet Zone, 3880 Jackson Rd., July 9. A sheriff's deputy was investigating a complaint of larceny at the business when a warrant turned up for Howard's arrest. He was wanted for violating probation on convictions of larceny, driving without a license, leaving the scene of an accident and for driving a vehicle with an expired license plate.

Drunken Driving

A 17-year-old Chelsea boy was arrested for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor on Zeeb Road near Jackson Road, July 10. The boy was initially stopped by a sheriff's deputy for speeding 65 mph in a 25 mph zone. A deputy, however, noticed signs of intoxication in the boy, including blood shot and watery eyes. The boy's blood-alcohol level was tested at .10 percent, which is considered legally drunk. The suspect admitted to consuming alcohol in a parking lot in Ann Arbor prior to making his way home.

Assault and Battery

Assault and battery was reported at Scio Farms Estates, 6655 Jackson Rd., July 9. A 45-year-old Chelsea man told a sheriff's deputy he was playing cards when a 46-year-old male resident attacked him. The victim said the suspect struck him four to five times in the face. The man suffered a swollen eye and scratches on his forehead. The victim does not want the man prosecuted, however.

Farm Facts

Cool spring weather means the Michigan sweet cherry crop will be down about 20 percent from last year. Harvest will start about the end of this week. Michigan is the number four sweet cherry producer in the nation, behind California, Oregon and Washington state.

The soybean is one of the most versatile vegetables in the world, with soybean derivatives used in the manufacture of such diverse products as adhesives, cosmetics, paints, inks, plastics, soaps and drugs. It is also the only vegetable that contains all 12 amino acids that are essential to human health.

Sweet potatoes are one of the most vitamin-rich vegetables you can buy. A medium size sweet potato contains a whopping 520 percent of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance of vitamin A and 50 percent of the vitamin C. The sweet potato also gives you three grams of fiber — all this for only 140 calories.

DOGS AND DISC PROBLEMS

W.C. Lane, D.V.M.

J.F. Lane, D.V.M.

Given that dogs are our "best friends," it should come as no surprise that they can suffer from the same ailment that "dogs" the majority of us human beings: back pain. There are many possible causes, but one of the most common is a slipped or ruptured disc. (Discs are the cartilage pads located between each of the vertebrae in the spine.) As with people, disc problems can be both painful and debilitating, even crippling in some cases. Fortunately, there are a number of treatment options: if problems are mild, conservative measures such as weight loss and regular exercise may be sufficient. Certain medications may also help. For more severe problems, surgery may restore mobility and ease the pain.

We are known throughout the area for the personal care we give to all pets. For full service you can rely on us at ANIMAL HOSPITAL, 630 North Main Street. We provide everything from preventive care to intensive care. Services are available by appointment only. Call 475-8888.

HINT: Dogs with herniated intervertebral discs should generally not be bred, as the condition tends to be hereditary.

The Way It Was

The grandfather of Cavanaugh Lake homes

By Kathy Smith
Special Writer

The "grandfather" of all the large homes built at Cavanaugh Lake was built in about 1900 on the east side hill. Claire Allen was the architect.

Frank and Henrietta Glazier and their family of several children made the hill-top home their year-around home. They also owned a house in Chelsea on South Street. Some of the family are pictured on the porch in about 1910.

Frank Glazier owned many acres of property on the east side of Cavanaugh Lake up to the Riemenschneider farm (now Feller's) at the north end. For many years there were apple orchards, lotus gardens, vegetable gardens, fenced in deer, an icehouse and a barn.

Sided and roofed with cedar shakes, the large home on the hill had solid walnut recessed porches. There were at least 18 pillars wrapped around three sides. Allen's architectural drawings (available through the Chelsea Area Historical Society) show a closed-in porch facing Spring Lake and two mammoth fieldstone fireplaces at both ends of the home. Inside there were at least five fireplace openings. An open staircase, wainscoting, many nine-light windows with the top row beveled were other features. It must have been a very spacious and comfortable home.

Before 1900 a farm house and smaller cottages in the Glazier family were already located at the bottom of the hill along the shore. A small guest cottage with pillared porches, very similar in design to the one in the photograph, was at the southern point of the hill.

This "guest cottage" is said to be the oldest cottage on the lake. You cannot recognize it, as it is modernized with white aluminum siding, and all the porches are removed. However a large addition ends with a fieldstone fireplace exactly like the two which once stood on the hill.

Information handed down was that general store owners Ransom and Freddie Armstrong polished the walnut porches.

This stately home burned in 1915. Mr. Glazier then moved to the smaller cottage at the foot of the hill. All that was left of the hilltop home was the two fieldstone chimneys which lasted for many years (about 25).

After the fire there were still very few cottages on the east side. This mostly wooded hilltop setting was an interesting exploration site for passers-by. They could stand right inside the cavernous openings of the chimneys. I never got to do that, but I found an oil painting in our cottage tacked to a former porch wall. Just recently I figured out it was of the lone Glazier chimneys standing like sentinels over the lake.

A modern cottage was built on the foundation and used by the Harold Glazier family into the 1990s. Today construction continues close to this Glazier home. Excavators have found many of the toppled chimney stones, and rolled them down the hill to add to the stone dikes along the shoreline.

CAP offers creative outlet

By Scott Bishop
Staff Writer

The Chelsea Area Players, who will present "Carousel" on the stage at Chelsea High School July 25-27, have something for everyone who wants to participate, according to CAP president Mark Nelson.

"I think this is the best outlet for extra-curricular activities. It'll fit your abilities. If you're athletically inclined, if you're musically inclined, if you're building or artistically inclined, whatever it is that you are, there's something for you to do, and other like people that will be with you here in this organization. We're totally open, totally accepting of everybody," Nelson said.

CAP vice-president Shelley Beaver agreed enthusiastically.

"Obviously if you want to come in to perform, there's a place you can come in and get your audience giving you applause, the costumes, music, hoopla, get your charge from being on stage.

"Or you can come in and work on it and know 'I did that. I built that.' Or I organized that. Or I helped get those volunteers to come in. Or I did the costumes. There's so much space," Beaver said.

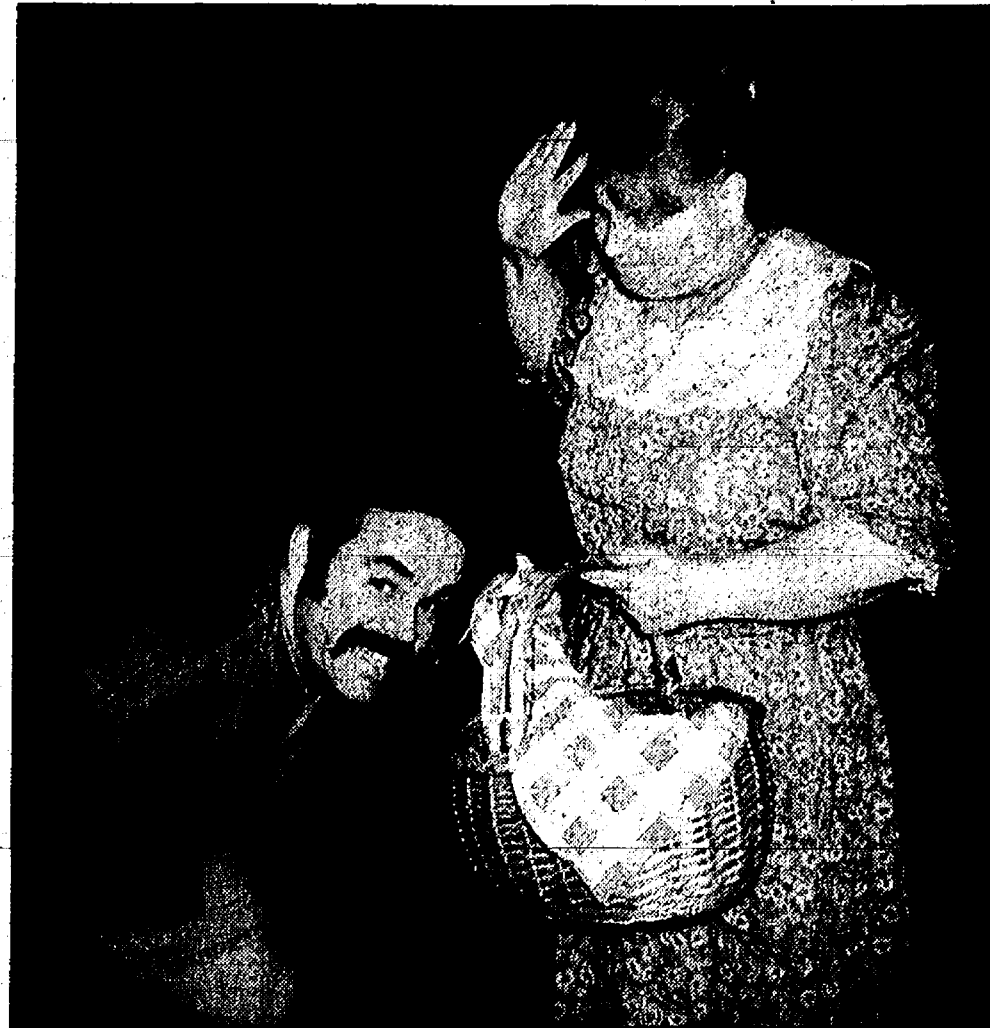

The non-profit CAP, established in 1972, has a 15-member board of directors and a fluctuating total membership corps of more than 100.

"Carousel" will be the next in long line of big musicals that CAP performs each summer. In the past they've put on "The Sound of Music," "Fiddler on the Roof," "Oklahoma," "South Pacific," "Hello Dolly," and many others.

The group also typically performs a smaller show during the winter months. Next winter, CAP will present "The Sound of Music" at the Chelsea Fairgrounds.

Further, CAP provides a summer theater workshop through Chelsea Community Education that served 92 aspiring actors and actresses this year.

According to Beaver and Nelson, the camaraderie that develops among CAP members is a major draw to join the group.

Chelsea residents Art Finger and Norma Graflund will play the roles of Jigger Craigin and Nettie Fowler, respectively, in the Chelsea Area Players July 25, 26 and 27 productions of "Carousel."

"It's a big huge bonding experience. It really is," Beaver said.

Nelson concurred, adding more detail.

"We strive to involve as many people as we can. There's a real sense of team and accomplishment. In two months (to produce a show), people will come together who've never met each other, and at the end of the two months, it's like having gone to school for four years with somebody.

"You're with them shoulder-to-shoulder, doing things. You're building, you're hammering nails, you're on ladders together, you're working as a team," Nelson said.

The two CAP members emphasized the satisfaction of completing a show, not just for the actors but everyone who has ownership in a production.

Nelson described the feeling he, Beaver and others will share when "Carousel" hits the stage next week.

"At the last minute it's just a frenzy. And then BAM, just out of the blue there's that show. People are applauding, everybody's giving you slaps on the back and high-fives, and even if you're not up on stage performing, you're a part of it.

"Even if you were just the guy who moved the curtain from here to there, you had a part in that show," Nelson said.

Beaver stressed the importance of CAP's good relationship with the Chelsea School District, which allows its facilities to house not just the summer shows themselves but rehearsals, staging and storage necessary for behind the scenes preparation.

In kind, CAP is a good tenant in the Chelsea High School auditorium. Recently the organization raised half of the $16,000 spent on new stage curtains and financed the repainting of the back wall behind the stage.

"Carousel" director Rebecca Groeb is expecting CAP to perform good shows next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

"I think it's a wonderfully energetic piece. There are some really delightful, kind of boisterous and energetic musical numbers. There's some very dramatic music. That's what's exciting about it to me," Groeb said.

Sunday concert in park scheduled

The Concert in the Park series continues Sunday at Pierce Park in Chelsea, featuring the music of Peter "Madcat" Ruth and Shari Kane.

Beginning at 4:30 p.m., food vendors will begin serving Cottage Inn pizza, Subway subs, corn dogs and barbecued chicken dinners with coleslaw, baked beans, fries and dinner rolls.

At 5:30, former Chelsea teacher and principal Bob Benedict will warm up the audience and involve the children with the art of playing the bones.

From 6 to 7:30 harmonica/blues artist Peter "Madcat" Ruth and guitarist Shari Kane will perform once again at the Chelsea park. The concert will be hosted by "Lite Rock 99" WFMK morning host Mark Bayshore.

Ruth is an acclaimed harmonica virtuoso, a bluesman at heart, who expands the boundaries of his music by blending folk, country rock and jazz into a style he calls "electric folk blues."

A performing and touring musician since the early 1970s, Ruth has played solo and with acclaimed artists like jazz pianist Dave Brubeck at concerts around the world.

Press clippings practically purr with approval for Ruth's music.

"...precise and inspired. 'Madcat' is the best of the best. Of that, there is no doubt," said the Ann Arbor News.

"Nothing short of fantastic," said the Denver Post.

The Christian Science Monitor described Ruth's performance as "Superb, tremendously innovative."

Performance magazine described Ruth as "A harmonica virtuoso rapidly approaching legend status for his style."

The Concert in the Park audience is encouraged bring lawn chairs and blankets for added comfort in viewing the concert.

An added bonus will be the presence of "Loopy" the clown, who will entertain children with face painting and balloon animals.

There will be plenty of room to park in the Chelsea Hospital lots, though parking along the hospital entrance is prohibited.

The concerts are being brought to the community by the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce, the Chelsea Recreation Council, Chelsea Community Hospital, the Ann Arbor News and The Chelsea Standard.

Peter "Madcat" Ruth and Shari Kane will play the Concert in the Park Sunday.

Busy week for Connie Mack team

Chelsea's Connie Mack Baseball Team won three of five games this past week. They lost a double-header to Milan 12-8 and 14-5. But then they bounced back and won three straight, beating Brighton 4-3, Saline 5-1, and Belleville 3-2.

The busy week of action began on Sunday, July 7 as Chelsea hosted Milan in a double header. The opener saw both teams go down in order in the first inning, but Milan batted around in the second and scored six times and added a lone run in the third to take a 7-0 lead.

Chelsea turned the trick in the third as they sent nine men to the plate, scoring four runs to get within 7-4. But Milan scored five in the fourth and Chelsea scored three, making it 12-7. Then the game settled down and saw the Bulldogs score once in the sixth, making the final 12-8. Ryan Hubbard pitched for Chelsea and was the victim of some shaky defense. He allowed 10 hits and walked only one. While he struck out two, anytime you give a team five or six outs an inning (errors) it will cost you.

Chelsea hit the ball well as they had 12 hits led by Don Reilly's three singles and double. Jason Sprawka had three singles, while an Ashley Coy double and singles by Casey Wescott, Tim Lawrence, Tom Holdsworth and Chris Herter rounded it out.

The nightcap of the twinbill saw Chelsea jump out to a 4-0 lead in the second highlighted by a two run triple by Nate Cooper. It stayed that way until the fifth inning when the roof caved in as Milan scored eight runs and added five in the sixth and one in the seventh, while Chelsea could just manage one more run in the sixth.

The final score was 14-5. Dusty White hurried for the Bulldogs and cruised through the first four innings as he retired all 12 hitters, striking out six. But the fifth saw some very bad defense from Chelsea and that was the game. Hubbard came on in relief in the sixth and finished up the contest.

Chelsea had seven hits with two singles by Holdsworth, a triple by Cooper, a double by Reilly and singles by Lawrence, Adam Shaper and Dusty White. Both contests saw some shaky defense that helped in the double loss to Milan.

The following night, Monday, July 8, Chelsea played

Brighton in a well-played, one-run game.

Brighton got on the board early as they scored one in the first. Chelsea tied it in their first as Coy singled, stole second, and scored on a two-out single by Wescott.

Brighton's three hits in the third enabled them to take a 3-1 lead after three innings. But Chelsea came back to take the lead in the fourth, 4-3.

White led off with a double and scored on a single by Herter. Jay Schick drove Herter home with a triple. Schick scored on a suicide squeeze by Sprawka, which was their third run of the inning and fourth of the game. That increased the score to 4-3 and ended the game.

Chelsea had six hits in the contest, including a triple by Schick, a double by White, and singles by Lawrence, Wescott, Herter, and Hubbard.

The first and fourth innings were the only ones that Chelsea sent more than four batters to the plate, and Chelsea collected four of their six hits in those innings.

Lawrence, Chelsea's regular catcher, pitched the complete-game victory. He allowed seven hits and walked three while striking out 10 Brighton hitters.

The last four innings he allowed just two base runners.

The following night, Chelsea played their fourth game in three days as they faced the Saline Hornets at Chelsea High.

Chelsea got Saline out in the first inning on three strikeouts, and then went to bat and scored two runs on a double and two singles to take a quick 2-0 lead. They scored two more in the second with a double, single, and walk. In the fourth, they scored their fifth and final run as Coy drove in Sprawka home with a one-out single.

It stayed 5-0 until the sixth when Saline scored their only run of the contest, making the final 5-1, Chelsea.

Herter led the seven-hit attack for Chelsea with a double and single. Wescott doubled and the other four hits were singles by White, Coy, Reilly, and Schick.

Wescott pitched a complete game for Chelsea. It was a solid performance as he allowed only three hits, all singles, and struck out nine Hornets batters. He walked three and hit one batter, but was in control the entire game.

On Thursday, July 11, the Bulldogs hosted Belleville, hoping to avenge a 7-3 loss earlier in the summer.

Both teams went out in order in the opening inning. The second saw Belleville have runners on first and third with no outs. Chelsea's defense tightened, and the Bulldogs got out of the inning holding Belleville scoreless.

The bottom of the second saw Chelsea score two runs without hitting a fair ball. After back-to-back walks to Reilly and Lawrence put two runners on base, a pass ball moved them up. A wild pitch scored Reilly from third and Lawrence came around third and never let up and beat the throw at home.

Belleville loaded the bases with no outs in the fifth and managed to tie the score with two runs before Chelsea got them out.

Their lead didn't last, however, as the Bulldogs scored a lone run in the fifth. Herter singled, moved to third on two wild pitches, and scored as Sprawka got a bunt single on a suicide squeeze.

That was all the scoring as Chelsea recorded a 3-2 victory.

Chelsea had five hits, including a double and single by Herter, two singles by Sprawka, and a single by Coy.

Hubbard started on the mound and pitched five innings. He tired in the fifth as Belleville rallied for the tying runs, but he managed to stop the rally. He allowed four hits, walked six, and struck out seven.

White came on in the sixth and retired six consecutive batters to record the save.

With three straight wins, Chelsea's record stands at 8-9 in league play and 10-11 overall with three games remaining.

About the Outdoors

by Jerry D. Posey

The pickup slows to a creep at the bottom of the hill. The driver, steering with one hand and scanning the corn stubblefield alongside the road with a powerful hand-held search light, hits the brakes. "There's one, near the woods," he whispers. The other man sitting in the passenger seat, levels the rifle out of the window. "Bang," one shot is fired. Both men jump from the truck, leaving the lights on and the engine running. They cross the small ditch and sprint the 40 yards to the spot where the big doe, hit solidly in the head, had dropped.

Each grabs a front leg and together they quickly pull the deer to the roadside, lift her into the back of the pickup, then climb back in the cab. Less than five minutes have passed since they first saw the deer standing there, blinded by and staring into, the bright light, and four minutes since the loud single explosion broke the silence of the dark night on that lonely gravel road.

The truck speeds away. The dead deer and both men will soon be back in town, in a garage belonging to one of the men, where they will waste no time skinning and removing only the rear quarters of the deer. The head, skin and front half of the deer will be taken, later that night, back along the same road, where it will be thrown in the ditch to rot and go to waste.

These men are typical of the deer poachers that work under the protection of the night darkness, and they have just stolen another deer from you and me. Just as they will again and again, when ever they get hungry for venison and find they have none in the freezer.

There are no records or accurate figures to testify to the number of illegal deer taken by this or similar methods, but most estimates by the DNR show the figures to be many more than the 300 to 500 each year that are found in the hands of poachers when they are caught. This is just the small percentage of poachers that are caught, many more commit this act many times and are not caught.

Conservation officers in Michigan have their hands full, their numbers are small and they can only cover small areas thoroughly each night and that leaves a lot of our back woods and unpopulated areas wide open to people like these.

The officers actually do catch some and deter many others just by being on the job and patrolling the areas that have been reported as having action of this kind taking place during the hours of darkness.

The penalties for poaching are quite severe if one is caught. Fines are from $200 to $1000 and a $1,000 restitution charge for each deer in possession, plus as much as 90 days in jail and suspension of all hunting privileges for three to five years.

A person found guilty of attempted poaching, but with no deer in possession, can receive fines of from $200 to $500, up to 90 days in jail, and suspension of all hunting privileges for one to two years.

Not all of these deer are killed for the meat, some of these guys are just out looking for a nice set of antlers to show off to the boys at the bar and the whole deer minus the head or just the antlers will be left lying right where it dropped.

Stealing deer from you and me is bad enough but the poacher does more than just that.

Non-hunters and animal lovers hear about and see the acts of these people and immediately think that all hunters act as these men do. These are not your average hunter. This type of person is usually one that does not spend the hours in the woods during the regular hunting season that a true hunter does, and if they do, they don't usually do so well when it comes to taking a deer legally. If they did, they would have venison in the freezer and would not have to patrol the back roads in June or July in search of food for the table.

The actions of these few often leave a bad taste in the mouths of people that are not hunters but really have nothing against hunting. It's the old case of feeling, "If some of the hunters act this way they probably all do," although you and I know this is not true.

When you talk to the occupants of the isolated farm houses on these lonely roads, they will often tell you that they sometimes hear rifle shots in the night several times a week, and this leads me to believe that all of the deer shot by these road-hunters are not killed on the spot, but that many are probably wounded and run off into the brush to suffer and die slowly a few days later, since these shooters do not have time to spend looking for a wounded deer.

After making the noisy shot they cannot stay in the area long, so they just move on to another lonely road and start shining again. Some probably wound two or three for each one they take home.

It is my feeling, the laws could be a lot stiffer for persons convicted of poaching and anyone caught more than once should lose their right to hunt or own firearms of any kind forever.

There is a special hot-line set up to be used only for reporting poaching or suspected poaching. It is handled by the DNR and is call free, so no charges will be passed on to persons calling in.

The call should be made as soon as you hear a shot in the night on a lonely road and cannot determine a reason for it. Any delay just gives the poacher more time to pick up the deer and get away before a conservation officer can check it out.

Also if you see suspicious signs such as a deer hanging in a neighbor's garage or barn and it is well out of hunting season, give the number a call, it doesn't hurt to have things like this checked out and it may alert the proper authorities to the fact that illegal activities are taking place in your area.

The number to call is, 1-800-292-7800 to report all poaching.

Softball, baseball players honored

Reaching the state semi-finals before bowing out of the playoff race will tend to earn your team some accolades, and that it did for the Chelsea softball team.

The Bulldogs dominated The Ann Arbor News' All-Area first team, placing three players on the squad, including the player of the year.

Lisa Beard achieved that mark by leading the Bulldogs in every offensive category, hitting .518 with 19 doubles, seven triples, two homers, and 52 RBI. Oh, by the way, she also finished the year 23-3 on the mound with a .59 ERA. Beard also earned first team All-State.

Also on the first team were Tina Richardson, Chelsea's lead-off hitter who finished with a .359 average, and Danielle Longe, a second baseman that hit .448. All three players graduated this summer.

Kasie Ruhlig was given honorable mention.

Not to be outdone, the baseball squad placed three members on the first team.

Scott Colvin was chosen to captain the squad. The departing senior catcher hit .436 with 5 dingers and 38 RBI.

Jason Sprawka, an incoming senior stole 14 bases and played third base, and Sam

Morseau, a pitcher who went 6-2 with a 1.50 ERA, were both first team members as well.

Don Reilly was named to the second team, and Ryan Hubbard earned honorable mention.

Heidi BeGole was the lone second team member for the soccer team, while Erin Baird, Carrie Buss, Melissa Carty, Beth Nimke, and Leslee Parker were all given honorable mention.

—Summer Soccer Shootout—

Chelsea Soccer Club members participated in the 3 V 3 Summer Soccer Shootout in Brighton on June 22. Participating in the U-16 event were Katie Dixon, Amy Sporer, Kate Huehl and Kansay Baurer under the team name 3KA.

Cast excited about King and I production

By Michelle Rogers
Associate Editor

Guided by the skill of an experienced leading actress, the enthusiasm of a novice leading man and host of other talent, Dexter Community Players will open Rodgers and Hammerstein's The King and I tonight at Copeland Auditorium.

Sharon Sussman plays Anna Leonowens and Sean D. Roisen portrays the King of Siam in this local production directed by artistic director B.J. Danner, musical director Judy Holzschuh, assistant director Tara Funke and produced by Bob Turck.

This will be Sussman's third show with Dexter Community Players, but is among a long list of productions she has starred in since her adolescent years.

"It just kind of naturally happened," Sussman says about acting.

A student of dance, singing and acting, Sussman has graduated from junior high school musicals to parts with the Ann Arbor Civic Theatre, Dearborn Players Guild, Greenfield Village Players and The Marquee Theatre. She also toured across the country presenting children's theatre.

"I am always keeping my eyes out for interesting shows," concedes Sussman, 37. "Ms. Anna is just a dream role, such beautiful songs to sing and she displays a wide range of emotion. It gives me an opportunity to do a wide range of things."

In contrast, this seasoned actress is accompanied on stage by newcomer Roisen, a 22-year-old Ann Arbor resident and aspiring filmmaker whose experience primarily comes from show choir.

"I am more of a choir person," Roisen admitted. "As far as acting, I never did any of that before."

It was his girlfriend, Dexter native Melissa Klave, portraying Tuptim in the production, who convinced him to try out for the leading role.

"I am king of a country and it's kind of neat," Roisen says now.

Roisen credits Sussman with helping him along in the role. "She is just incredible. She is really making me try and do a better job. I don't want to let anybody down," he said.

Sussman says she has seen the cast as a whole dramatically improve in the last week of rehearsals. "It has really come together and it's going to be a great show—something the whole community should come out and see," she said.

The play is based on a book entitled Anna and the King of Siam by Margaret Landon, a non-fictional novel which brings to life the events of two memoirs, The English Governess at the Siamese Court and The Romance of the Harem written by English school teacher Anna Leonowens, who lived and worked in the Siamese court teaching the royal children during the 1860s.

"I think it's an excellent representation," Sussman said about the local production. "It's a good example of what community theatre is all about, from the very young to the folks who have been around a long time. It's a very familiar show. It's a good chance to see what people working together can do. Really, community theatre is the best," Sussman asserted.

Among the highlights Sussman points to are the musical numbers Shall I Tell You What I Think of You, Shall We Dance and Hello Young Lovers. She called all three crowd-pleasers.

"We've got the best of two worlds because we're having a lot of fun, plus we're putting on an excellent production. And that's what it's all about," observed Sussman.

"We're definitely going to give people their money's worth," added Roisen.

The play runs tonight through Saturday beginning at 8 p.m. at Copeland, 7714 Dexter-Ann Arbor Rd. Tickets may be purchased through Dorothy Bates at Dexter Real Estate, 426-8387.

An Ordinance to Amend Ordinance No. 80 Entitled:

"An Ordinance relative to the determination by resolution of the village council that the whole or a part of the expense of local public improvement or repair shall be defrayed by special assessments upon the property specially benefited, the complete special assessment procedure to be used; including the time when special assessments may be levied, the kinds of local public improvements for which a hearing is required on the resolution levying the special assessments, the preparing of plans and specifications, estimated costs, the preparation, hearing and correction of the special assessment roll, the collection of special assessments, if prior assessments prove insufficient to pay for the improvements or is determined to be invalid, in whole or in part, the refund of excess assessments; the placement of excess assessments, the placement of excess less than 5% of total cost in the general fund of the village, and any other matters concerning the making of improvements by the special assessment method, pursuant to Public Act No. 4 of 1974."

To Provide for Commencement of Interest on Unpaid Assessments from the Date of confirmation; and to Provide for Limitations on Prepayment of Special Assessments.

The Village of Chelsea Ordinance:

Section 1. Definitions. All words and phrases defined in Ordinance No. 80, duly adopted by the Village Council of the Village of Chelsea (the "Village") on June 23, 1975, shall have the same meanings in this Ordinance (the "Amendment"), except as otherwise amended or defined in this amendment.

Section 2. Amendment of Section 15 of Ordinance No. 80. Section 15 of Ordinance No. 80 shall be amended to read as follows:

Partial Payments—When Due. The Council may provide for the payment of special assessments in annual installments. Such annual installments shall not exceed thirty (30) in number, the first installment being due upon confirmation of the roll or on such date as the Council may determine and deferred installments being due annually thereafter, or in the discretion of the Council, may be spread upon and made a part of each annual Village tax roll thereafter until all are paid. Interest shall be charged on all deferred installments at a rate not to exceed seven percent (7%) per annum, commencing on the first day of the first calendar month that is 30 or more calendar days after the date of confirmation and payable on the due date of each installment. In the event bonds are issued in anticipation of special assessments, then the Village may, in order to pay principal of and interest on such bonds, charge a rate of interest on the unpaid balance of the special assessments not in excess of a rate of more than one per cent (1%) above the average rate of interest borne by the bonds. The full amount of all or any deferred installments, with interest accrued thereon to the date of payment, may be paid in advance of the due dates thereof; provided however, that if the Village issues bonds in anticipation of the collection of payments of deferred installments, then such prepayment shall be permitted only upon the following conditions:

(A) The amount of all or any deferred installments, with interest accrued thereon to the date of payment, together with projected interest and investment income on such amount, if any, and interest, if any, as deposited or invested on the date of receipt of payment by the Village, or such later date as the Village shall determine, shall be sufficient in the opinion of a certified public accountant or firm of certified public accountants employed by the Village, to pay at maturity or prior redemption, if permitted, the proportion of the bonds issued in anticipation of the collection of deferred installments that the deferred installments bear at the time of payment to the total aggregate amount of deferred installments remaining unpaid at that time on the applicable special assessment roll, together with interest on the bonds until maturity or prior redemption, if permitted; and

(B) Payment of the deferred installment or installments is accompanied by an amount of money sufficient to satisfy the condition expressed in the preceding clause (A) and to pay the cost of employment of the certified public accountant(s); the reasonable fees and expenses of establishing and maintaining an escrow account for the prepaid deferred installments and the costs of investment of the prepaid deferred installments until used to pay principal of, redemption premium, if any, and interest on the bonds to maturity or earlier redemption. Each property owner shall have sixty (60) days from the date of confirmation to pay the full amount of said assessment, or the full amount of any installments thereof, without interest or penalty. If the full assessment or the first installment thereof shall be due upon confirmation, then following said sixty (60) days period, the assessment or first installment thereof shall, if unpaid, be considered as delinquent and the same penalties shall be collected on such unpaid assessments or first installments thereof as are provided by statute to be collected on delinquent general Village taxes. Deferred installments shall be collected without penalty until sixty (60) days after the due date thereof, after which time such installments shall be considered as delinquent and such penalties on said installments shall be collected as are provided by statute to be collected on delinquent general Village taxes. After the Council has confirmed the roll, the Treasurer shall notify by mail each property owner on said roll that said roll has been filed, stating the amount assessed and the terms of payment. Failure on the part of the Treasurer to give said notice or of such owner to receive said notice shall not invalidate any special assessment roll of the Village or any assessment thereon, nor excuse the payment of interest or penalties.

Section 3. Conflicting Ordinances. All ordinances and parts of ordinances in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Section 4. Headings. The headings or titles of the several sections shall be solely for convenience of reference and shall not affect the meaning, construction or effect of this Ordinance.

Section 5. Publication and Recording. This Ordinance shall be published in full in the Chelsea Standard, a newspaper of general circulation in the Village, qualified under State law to publish legal notices, promptly after its adoption, and the same shall be recorded in the Ordinance Book of the Village and such recording authenticated by the signatures of the President and Village Clerk.

Section 6. Effective Date. This Ordinance is hereby determined by the Village Council to be immediately necessary for the preservation of the peace, health and safety of the issuer and shall be in full force and effect from and after its passage and publication as required by law.

Passed and adopted by the Village of Chelsea, County of Washtenaw, State of Michigan on July 9, 1996 and approved July 9, 1996.

Matt, Mark, Steve and George Heydlauff credit a relaxed buying atmosphere and the reliable service they offer their customers for their continuing success.

Heydlauff's succeeds through service

By Scott Bishop
Staff Writer

While big discount appliance stores attract customers with prices that look lower on the surface, plenty of customers are digging deep enough to appreciate Heydlauff's Appliances' focus on service.

Owner George Heydlauff, who runs the Chelsea store with his three sons Mark, Matt and Steve, drew a clear distinction between his store and appliance monoliths like ABC Warehouse or Best Buy.

"We sell similar appliances, but we just go about it differently. People usually come in to us because they either like the environment that we're in or want the services that we have and can offer so much more," Heydlauff said.

The appliance merchant explained that Heydlauff's does much of its business with repeat customers, people recommended by previous customers, and others impressed by the store's legacy of solid service.

"You establish a reputation. Just like if you go out to eat and you go to a nice place, you go back there again."

"Very often people come to us because of what we've done for them in the past, and they want those services again," Heydlauff clarified.

The store features a relaxed buying atmosphere where people feel at ease shopping, Heydlauff said.

While big business competitors like deep-discounters Highland and Fretter have gone out of business, the Chelsea store actually takes advantage of its small and stable position.

He, his sons and their employees, Heydlauff observed, are better prepared than the chain stores to stay on top of a rapidly changing industry.

Unlike salespeople who might change yearly or even more often, Heydlauff's worker longevity helps them stay abreast of industry changes.

Similarly, Heydlauff's customers can work with a salesperson over the long term, and deal with that same employee when service questions arise.

At a chain store, Heydlauff indicated, a customer typically would need to deal with entirely new people and departments for service, calling on strangers rather than the familiar salesperson.

Finally, Heydlauff explained, the store's smaller size allowed it to control its own delivery and service, making it easier to answer customer needs promptly.

The Chelsea store's service-centered philosophy is helping it expand even into prime chain store territory like Ann Arbor, Heydlauff said.

Contrasting the ease of shopping at the Chelsea store with the emphasis on price and pressure at the big chains, Heydlauff outlined a customer service philosophy that's been successful since 1928.

"We would like to treat people the way we would like to be treated. And I have a lot of empathy for people who spend $5,000 on something and then it doesn't work right. So you just try to treat people right," Heydlauff concluded.

Everybody's Science

By Judy McBride

A nutrition researcher says it's a common perception that fatness tends to run in families. Now, a study of 42 families suggests the rationale for blaming body fat entirely on a person's genes is getting slimmer.

"We found only a weak correlation for body fat among family members," says Elizabeth Krall, study leader at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Human Nutrition Research Center on Aging at Tufts in Boston.

But, the study reported a "significant" correlation in lean tissue — the bulk of which is muscle — between mothers and daughters, between fathers and sons and between brothers and sisters. And that was after adjusting the statistical analysis for age, height, body fat, physical activity and number of pregnancies among the women to help even out comparisons, says Krall.

"The results suggest that there is an inheritance pattern for muscle and other lean tissue more so than for fat," says Krall. She notes that the subjects ranged from thin to significantly overweight, but none were grossly obese.

Krall and colleague Bess Dawson-Hughes recruited 42 families — mother, father, adult daughter and adult son — for the study at the Boston Center operated by USDA's Agricultural Research Service. A high-tech x-ray technique, known as DEXA, was used to "see" and calculate the amount of body fat and lean tissue, which includes muscle, connective tissue, organs and body water as well as bone.

Krall says this is one of a few studies to examine the heritability of lean tissue and the only one to focus on adult family members. Many studies have reported family similarities in fatness, Krall says, but most of these estimated body fat using the incorrect body mass index (BMI), instead of measuring fat. Because the index is based on a person's weight to height ratio, a muscle-bound athlete can have a BMI as high as someone who is quite obese.

For instance, the sons in the study averaged the same BMI as their mothers, she says, but their body fat level was about one-half as much. The DEXA, on the other hand, gives a much more accurate value for body fat as well as for lean tissue and bone density. (Agricultural Research Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture).

Students complete testing for nursing skills assistant

Six area students have successfully completed the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act nursing assistant clinical skills test.

Chelsea students Sarah Heller, Heather Dehn, Kewaree Best, Chrissy Vargo, Tim Wesner, and Dexter student Becky Marshall all took part in the testing after fulfilling their formal education requirement. Students received their education in the Health Occupations class at the South & West Washtenaw Consortium. After completing the class, students are eligible to have their name placed on the nurse aide registry in Lansing.

OBRA regulates that nursing assistants for long term care facilities must have a minimum level of training as recognized by the state, provided by a state-approved program. SWWC has been a licensed training site since the 1989-90 school year. Students then must complete both a clinical skills and a written skills test in order to receive a state registry document. Nursing aides must show completion of an approved program in order to be hired by a long term care facility. The registry document must be renewed every two years with a minimum work requirement of eight hours over a two-year period.

The clinical skills test is administered on-site by the SWWC instructor Arlene Sullivan, R.N. at the Pleasant Lake Career and Technical Center in Manchester. The written test is administered in Detroit for area students.

Sullivan has taught Health Occupations at SWWC for three years and she oversees the students' clinical training at Chelsea Retirement Community.

"Students see completing the program as a stepping stone to other health related careers and/or college," Sullivan says.

Tim Wesner plans to pursue a career as a physical therapist assistant and said successfully completing the program and both tests gave him the confidence that he can do well in whatever he chooses. Wesner is currently employed by CRC. Also employed as a certified nursing aide at CRC is Becky Marshall. Marshall plans to continue her education toward a R.N. degree and said thanks to completing the program and obtaining the registry document, she will have one less year of college, has a good job and is gaining valuable experience in her chosen field.

As these students indicated, obtaining a registry document provides a way to earn money as they continue their formal education. Sullivan added that the skills the students receive are portable, easily transferring to other states.

Dexter Township comes together

Portage Lake Yacht Club hosted a buffet Sunday, July 14 for Dexter Township supervisor candidate John Sdao.

The buffet brought together some of the townships' top minds as they discussed their views and shared their concerns with the Republican candidate.

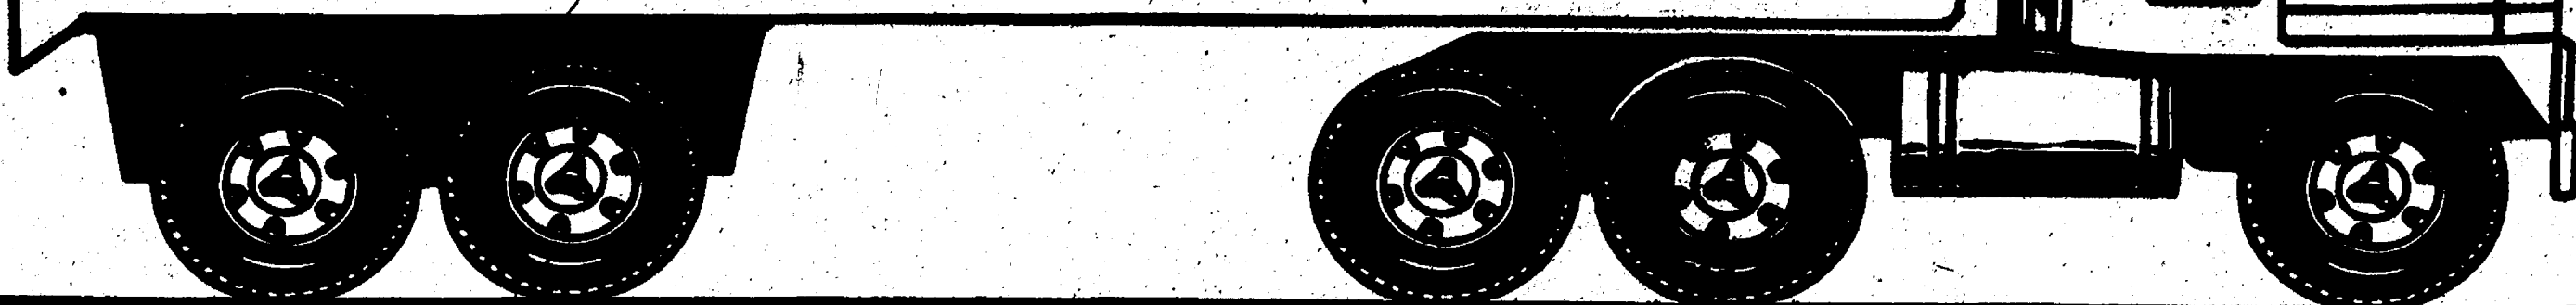

"It was really great to see so many people genuinely concerned with the issues affecting the township," said Sdao. "This demonstrated the need people in Dexter Township have to be heard."

Issues such as township legal fees, local sewer projects and the desire for active involvement between the board and township residents were discussed.
