

—Madcat, Shari, and Bob—

Chelsea's second Concert in the Park last Sunday evening featured the blues harmonica and guitar of Peter "Madcat" Ruth and Shari Kane. Former South School Principal Bob Benedict, right, warmed the crowd up with a demonstration of the "bones," which became especially interesting and lively when the William Tell Overture played in the background. Despite a constant but light rain, a good number of people turned out to watch the show. The next concert is Sunday, Aug. 4 in Pierce Park.

Community institution lost with death of Dr. W.C Lane

The death of life-long Chelsea resident Dr. Wilfred Lane, D.V.M., last Friday saddened many in the community who have appreciated his kindness, loyalty, dedication and patriotism.

Lane, a 1938 Chelsea High School graduate, served 39 months in Europe during World War II as a member of the Army's 124th Signal Radio Intelligence Company. He was awarded three campaign stars for his tour of duty, which took him from Normandy to Germany.

Following the war, Lane earned his D.V.M. degree from Michigan State University's College of Veterinary Medicine in 1952.

He took care of the Chelsea area's pets and livestock for 44 years, founding Lane Animal Hospital in the process.

Dr. A.W. Tremper, who worked with Lane for over 28 years, will remember Dr. Lane's tremendous dedication to both his profession and family. He explained that Lane was like a father to him as well.

"I think I learned a heck of a lot from the man, probably as much as what I learned in school. Certainly I learned how to apply it. The philosophy of practice that you're always available to your clients and their animals," Tremper said.

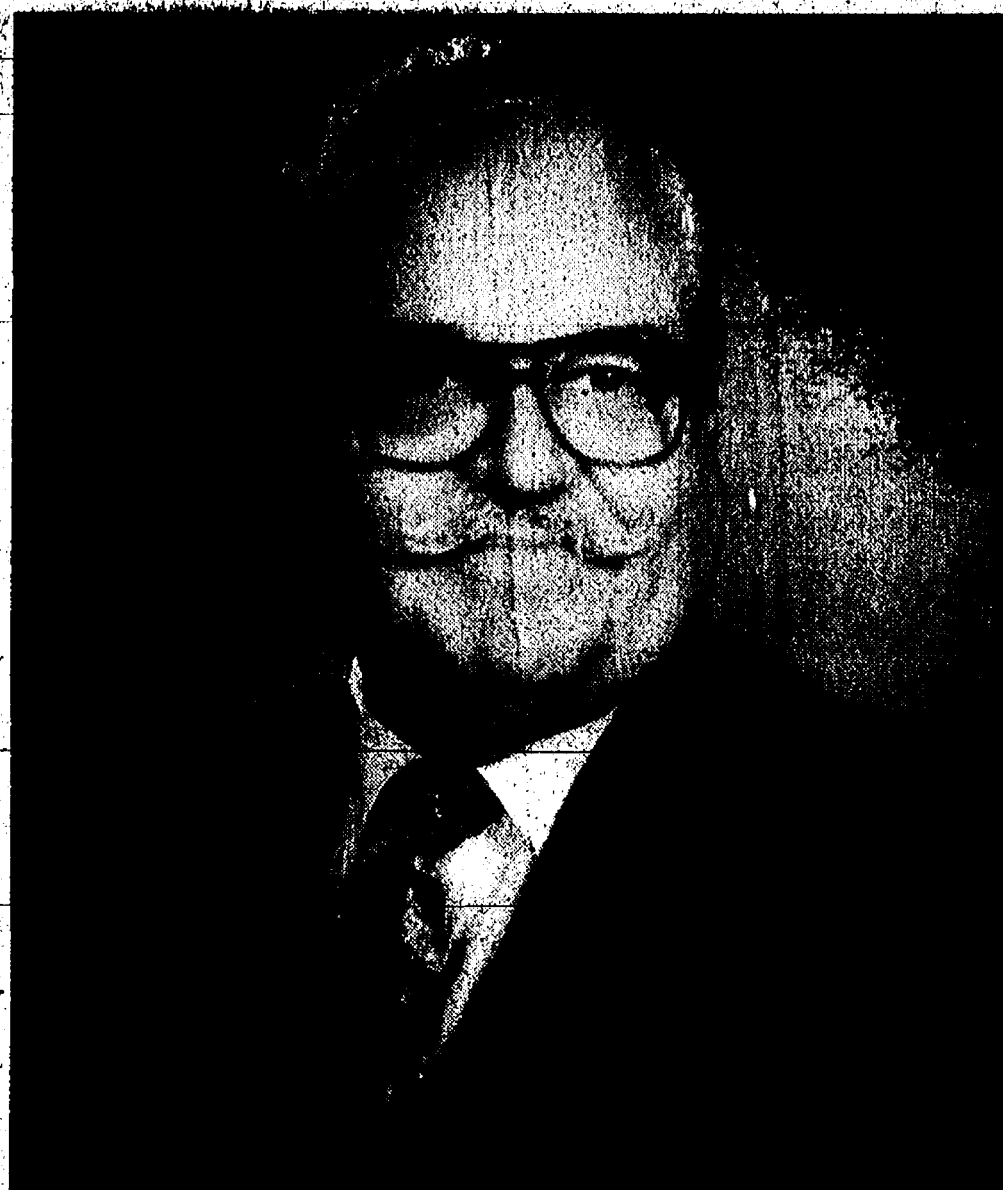

He observed that Tuesday, July 23, the day of Dr. Lane's funeral, would be the first day he could remember in nearly 30 years at Lane Animal Hospital that the office would be closed.

Tremper noted the wide visibility and popularity Lane built up during his many years in Chelsea.

"He knew everybody and always had a friendly word for everybody in town. Virtually everybody in town knew him," Tremper said.

Anne Feeney, executive director of the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce, said she also appreciated Lane's dedication, recalling his willingness to see her family's pets during "off" hours and weekends.

Feeney, a member of the committee that selected Lane to be the featured speaker at Chelsea's Memorial Day Parade in 1994, praised his clear and demonstrable patriotism. Further, Feeney will remember the pride Lane took in his community.

Dr. Wilfred Chandler Lane

"He was always so positive about Chelsea. He just loved it here, and he wanted it to stay nice," Feeney said.

Dr. R.C. Bowers, who worked with Lane for 25 years, illustrated how Lane was special to both he and Dr. Tremper.

"He was like a father to me. He was strict when he had to be. He treated us sort of like his kids. He yelled at us when we needed it and he was very generous with us when we did good things.

"As far as the community goes, we lost a pillar of the community. He's been around for a long time. His father was here, he's sort of an institution in the town. So I'll miss him a lot," Bowers said.

Lane is survived by his wife, Donna, and his children Dr. Jon Lane, Caroline Saunders, and Wilfred and David Lane.

CAP open Carousel, carnival tonight

Final preparations have been made on the set of the Chelsea Area Players production of Carousel. The cast, orchestra, production staff, Tech Unlimited and a host of volunteers have worked extremely hard on making this an enjoyable performance for the community.

Tonight's performance, in keeping with the carnival theme of Carousel, will feature a small-scale carnival in the cafeteria of Chelsea High School. Fun, games and prizes will be available to all ticket holders of tonight's performance only Carousel runs through Saturday, July 27.

Also, CAP will hold its annual meeting/picnic on Sunday, Sept. 15 at 2051 Jerusalem Rd. The meeting will begin at 3 p.m. and will be open to all members and anyone interested in joining CAP. Board members will be nominated and voted on by the general membership. A picnic following the meeting is set for 4 p.m. Hot dogs will be provided. Attendees are asked to bring their own beverages. Alcohol is prohibited.

Planning Commission recommends denial of mobile home rezoning

By Scott Bishop
Staff Writer

Last week, with a court reporter recording the discussion, developer Phil Jenkins and attorney Ann Marie Ronchetto sat silent as the Chelsea Planning Commission moved to recommend that the village council deny a request to rezone 117 acres within the village to allow for a manufactured home development.

If the Chelsea Village Council denies the rezoning request on Tuesday, July 23, as appears probable, the decision will likely be challenged in court.

At the July 16 planning commission meeting, commissioners and village planning consultant Karl Schmult emphasized that the rezoning request did not fit with the commission's long-range plan, which calls for lower-density residential housing in the 117-acre area.

Schmult said that 22 acres of muck soil on the parcel left 95 developable acres. The standards of the requested mobile home zoning, he said, would allow 552 units on that 95 acres.

Commissioner Tim Eder questioned how such a development would strain village water and sewer capacity, particularly in light of several new developments approved in recent months.

Commissioner Mark Wesley stressed the importance of following the long-range plan.

"I would certainly not be able to support any motion that would be contrary to the general development plan for that area," Wesley said. He then made a motion to recommend denying the rezoning request.

Commissioner Tim Eder proposed an amendment to the motion, adding to it language to explain that granting the request would set a dangerous precedent of the planning commission contradicting its own long range plan.

Ultimately both the amendment and motion carried unanimously. Chelsea Village Council was scheduled to reject or approve the rezoning request at its July 23 meeting.

According to village manager Jack Myers, the council generally follows the recommendations of the planning commission on rezoning requests. "I can't remember when they haven't," he said.

Earlier, Steve Tracy, a developer along with Jenkins and Martin Merkel, indicated that, were the village to deny the rezoning petition, the developers would probably file suit.

Last Thursday, two days after the planning commission meeting, Jenkins reaffirmed that if denied the developers would take Chelsea to court.

Jenkins said that the developers' legal costs would result in higher rent for manufactured-home-park residents, if the suit were successful.

He wasn't surprised that court action was likely necessary, pointing out that the developers needed a court decree to develop a phase of Scio Farms, a Scio Township manufactured home park.

Jenkins seemed resigned to the opposition of local residents and municipalities against manufactured homes.

"People are just bound and determined to tell you what you can do with your land," Jenkins said.

He argued that the nature of the disputed property, near a cemetery and wastewater treatment plant, was more suitable for a manufactured home development than for more expensive residential developments.

Lima rezoning conflict brewing

A group of Lima Township residents are exploring methods to oppose the rezoning of 157 agricultural acres to allow for residential use.

The Lima Township Planning Commission recently recommended rezoning of the 157 acres zoned for agriculture to allow for rural-residential development, which would be limited to one unit per three acres.

Rural-residential zoning for the 157 acres, fronting on McKinley Road in the northwest region of the township, would be consistent with the planning commission's long-range plan.

However, the Lima Township Board has tabled the rezoning issue until confusion over that long-range plan can be cleared up.

A number of area residents have protested the rezoning because of questions regarding road safety, impact on the township tax base, destroying the rural nature of the neighborhood and other concerns.

Because of confusion over the long-range plan the planning commission based its recommendation on, the township board delayed action temporarily.

A public hearing on the Lima long-range plan was held in early 1995. Subsequently, changes were made to the plan but no further hearings were held. Law requires that townships hold one public hearing on rezoning requests.

Because of the time lapse and questions about whether and when notification of changes in the long-range plan were published, the Lima Township Board tabled the issue until another hearing on the plan was held.

Planning commission co-chair Greg McKenzie indicated that public he-would be scheduled for Aug. 27.

According to Bob Harshberger, a McKinley Road homeowner, a corps group of area residents protesting the rezoning would meet with an attorney today, July 25, to discuss opposing the rezoning and formalizing the group's title and purpose.

Rick Poljan, owner of the property in question, said that not only the township but the county planning commission and other government officials were supportive of the rezoning.

Students excel on AP tests

Seventy-two Chelsea High School students took Advanced Placement Tests this spring.

AP tests allow students high school students to test out of some college requirements when they begin school as freshmen. AP tests were given in the subjects of Calculus, Physics, English and Spanish.

The 72 tests taken were the most in the past five years, exceeding the 64 administered in 1994.

The tests are scored on a scale of one to five. Twenty-eight students scored fives, nearly triple the previous high of 10 students scoring fives in 1992 and 1994.

Eighty-four percent of Chelsea students taking the AP tests scored three or better, matching the percentage from 1994 as the best in the past five years.

"I was certainly pleased to see the (high) AP scores," said Chelsea School Board President Jane Diesing. "I think it's a strong sign for our school district."

—SADD Sacks Trash—

Cristi Miller, Kate Fahrner, Amy Hetenden and Brooke Stalaski of Chelsea High School's Students Against Drunk Driving chapter cleared debris along M-52 Sunday, July 21. SADD has adopted a stretch of the highway south of Scio Church Road, agreeing to clean it three times per year.

Opening Remarks

By Brian Hamilton

It won't be quite the same without Dr. Wilfred Lane around town.

Dr. W.C. Lane, 76, the elder statesman of Chelsea veterinarians, died last Friday.

We began taking our two dogs and three cats to Lane Animal Hospital just a few years ago. More often than not, Dr. Art Tremper or Dr. R.C. Bowers, or more recently Dr. Jon Lane, his son, attended to our friends.

Every so often, though, Dr. Lane got the call. He was a big man with a gray, handlebar mustache, and a strong, confident, gruff voice. He had kind of an old-style way to him that could sometimes seem out of place in our increasingly politically-correct world.

He spoke his mind directly and to the point, which sometimes took me by surprise, but underneath it all he was a real softy and a gentleman, one of the truly fine people I have known here. (I remember chuckling when he asked my wife if she was "man enough" to take blood on a regular basis from one of our dogs.) If you met 20 people during the day, Dr. Lane would be the one you wouldn't forget.

After all his years of taking care of every kind of veterinary problem imaginable, Dr. Lane still had that quality that separates the good vets from all the rest — the ability to make us feel each of our animals is special and not just another fur-bearer on four legs. Many, many of his patients' owners would testify to that.

Dr. Lane also probably knew better than anyone else just how the Chelsea community has changed. When his practice started, he served more farmers and country people than cats-and-dogs people like me. He had seen that situation reverse itself over the last couple of decades, signaling a big shift in our demographics and economy, which he pointed out to me more than once. His work with farmers had a major impact on the local farm economy, and that may be one of his most enduring contributions.

A couple of years ago I worked on a story about his son Jon finishing vet school and returning to the family business. Dr. Lane talked about the beginnings and the evolution of the practice.

But more than anything else, I remember how lavish he was in his praise of everyone but himself. He treated himself as almost a bit player in one of the most successful, and indispensable, businesses in town.

He talked about how unusual it was to have two quality vets like Tremper and Bowers stay around for more than 20 years and how critical their contributions have been.

He said, unequivocally, the most important person in the practice was his wife, Donna, the business manager. She made it all work, made everything run smoothly.

And while he didn't say it in so many words, it was clear he was so proud to have Jon back home. He wanted to watch his son learn and be-

Uncle Apollo

I see in the paper where the village is looking at sites for their new offices again.

This kind of reminds me of college, where all you do is study all the time and it never seems to end. I remember almost ending up in the emergency ward from carry-out pizza and warm Coke after one particular three-night study binge before finals.

The problem is, the village doesn't seem to be thinking very creatively. I mean, I remember last year when this guy decided he wanted to televise the meetings and the president didn't want to because he wanted a lot more people to actually show up in person so they could learn about village business.

Well, now it's on television and personally, I'd rather watch reruns of "Father Knows Best". Anyway, if they end up picking a site like at the industrial park or the hospital, I don't see how that's going to draw a lot more people to the meetings.

Maybe if they fixed up the old Chelsea Standard building people would go there for awhile just to see what it's like, but it probably wouldn't hold their attention for any length of time.

What they need is to find a place that would make it interesting to go to the village meetings.

You might be surprised to know that I've been thinking about this quite a bit, and I believe I have the solution. Just the other day, I was driving past the Concert in the Park and there were about a billion people sitting out there in the rain with umbrellas listening to the concert, and it was during the intermission. Now that's dedication! If people are willing to get wet just to go to these things, it seems to me that this could be a logical solution to the village's problem.

We could move the village offices to the pavilion and have the meetings there. They could schedule these concerts during the intermission. It could even be like the Ann Arbor Art Fairs. Just imagine it. Here we are at the park, enjoying the cool breezes and the rustling of leaves, with the gentle sounds of the Holy Cows wafting out from the pavilion. The scent of Deep Woods Off hangs in the air.

Occasionally, a guy in a great big trench coat comes up, whips it open to reveal 47 hidden pockets, and he whispers, "Hey, buddy, wanna buy a piece of pizza?"

Then the music stops and the lead singer announces, "We're going to take a break for a little while. Here to entertain you for the intermission is the Chelsea Seven." Then they bring out this huge long desk and seven comfy chairs and these guys sit down and start talking. They say something about the agenda and one of the guys says he wants to talk about whether Holy Cows are legal in the village since wooden ones aren't.

Then they ask for public participation and some teenager with a four-foot-high mohawk asks if they know any heavy metal. It goes on like this for awhile with them talking about stuff and every once in awhile, one of them gets up and juggles or strings a rope between the poles on the pavilion and walks along it while they're talking, maybe even pretending that he's going to fall into the president's lap.

Stuff like that could really keep people's attention. After the meeting was over, the

Letters to the Editor

Dr. Lane gave his heart to us

Those of us in Chelsea who knew Wilfred Lane were privileged to touch hands with a man who gave a great deal of himself to his community, and the people who came to his animal hospital.

Through the years he served us, to the best of his ability. He shared in our joy at having a new baby animal to love and nurture. He taught us how to care for that animal.

Years later in our sorrow when we lost our precious animal friend, he was there to share our grief with us. Today, we share his family's grief with them.

He supported the young people at the Chelsea Fair by purchasing many of the prize animals that they had raised. Remember seeing all of those prize winning ribbons and newspaper pictures hanging on the walls of the hospital each August?

Wilfred knew that young people have to begin somewhere. He employed many of these young people, giving them their first work experience and paycheck.

Wilfred Lane set a shining example for his family and his coworkers. He knew what loyalty, integrity, honesty and hard work meant.

Wilfred walked that extra mile in life. He has given his family a legacy of love.

Dr. Lane is missed. But, Chelsea was blessed because he lived here and gave his heart to us.

Wilfred Lane left his "paw prints" on our hearts.

Irresponsible pet owners endanger pets, people

To Chelsea Pet Owners, I am writing to remind all of you of the leash law. That means your dog or cat is not supposed to be off a leash when outside.

Do you really think your pet knows better than to cross the road by itself?

I know my dog doesn't have this capability. I have recently had many encounters with unleashed dogs in Chelsea village.

An angry, unleashed Shar-pei charged out of a backyard to begin attacking my dog on Main Street. That dog put itself and my dog in danger of being hit by a passing car. Luckily a police officer stopped to help control the situation.

There are many streets I know to avoid when walking my dog for fear that a certain dog will come after us. At least I am an adult, and can usually handle myself and my dog in these confrontations. A child might not be so lucky!

Another dog sauntered across Grant Street just to say hello to my dog. What if a car had hit that nice little dog?

What really bothered me is that the owners were outside and watched the dog leave their yard and cross the street. I had to yell at them to come get their dog to quit following me.

A beautiful golden lab ran out in front of my car on Bush Road, and I thank God I was able to avoid hitting the dog. Again, the owner was outside and watched their dog run across the road.

On the afternoon of July 9, I found a lost dog wandering in the middle of South Main Street. The dog was friendly and approachable, not always the case, so I was able to put it on a leash and take it to the police station in hopes that the owner would look for the poor dog. I was pleased to learn it was picked up by its owner, and hope that they have learned a lesson which might not have had such a happy ending.

I absolutely love animals, and it breaks my heart to see them wandering around and in danger of being hit, or even worse to actually see an animal that has been injured or killed by a car. I know there is not much we can do for wild animals, but we can prevent our dear pets from such dangers.

I thank all of those who observe the leash law, and truly care enough about their loyal pets to protect them. I hope that when anyone sees a lost animal that, if possible, they try to capture it and find the owner. I'm sure everyone, including myself, would hope a kind soul would help their pet find its way home if it was found wandering in a place it obviously didn't belong.

Mobil home rezoning denied

It would not be the first time Tracy, Jenkins and Merkel have challenged Chelsea Village in court.

Earlier this year Chelsea was granted summary disposition and dismissed from a suit alleging the village conspired with Lima Township to obstruct rezoning for manufactured homes. Charges still stand against the township.

The firm of O'Connor, DeGrazia & Tamm represented Chelsea in that suit, and might again if necessary.

Myers explained, however, that the village did not pick its attorneys in such situations.

Rather the village would pay its $1,000 deductible to Meadowbrook Insurance, who would then select the legal counsel and cover the remainder of the legal expenses.

Art competition slated

To highlight its 50 years of serving families affected by multiple sclerosis (MS) the National Multiple Sclerosis Society and its Michigan chapter will hold a nationwide children's art competition to recognize youngsters who live with the daily, unpredictable, devastating effects of a parent or loved one's MS.

Says Elana Noble, public relations manager for the MS Society's Michigan Chapter, "Every day for nearly half a century, the National MS Society has helped millions of people who don't have MS directly, but who stand and wait, care and watch, help and encourage. As well as helping people with MS, we help families."

Each piece of art should be between 8 1/2 x 11" and 24" x 34" and address the theme of MS and Family Life. The entries can be in any medium — paint, crayon, pencil, ink or a photo montage, as long as they can be easily transported. Finalists will be chosen locally, and the top artist will receive a $100 savings bond and have his or her work entered in the Society's national contest.

To be eligible for prizes and the opportunity to have their artwork displayed locally and nationally, children between the ages of five and 15, their teachers or family members should contact the chapter at 1-800-247-7382, ext. 203, for a free entry form. Entries are due by Aug. 15.

According to Noble, "Because MS is not a fatal disease and because it generally strikes young adults, children as young as five or six may assume some form of caregiver role. And, they may still be a caregiver when they're 50 or 60. It's important for people to understand the special dynamics that develop in a family touched by any chronic illness or disability, and the role that the National MS Society plays in easing the challenges faced by families."

The society will display the winning national entries at its joint International Volunteer and Staff Conference in Atlanta this November, along with art from the 34 member groups of the International Federation of MS Societies.

Farm Bureau Facts

Here's some reassuring news about the safety of eating charcoal grilled food. Although the National Cancer Institute found that there is some risk, that risk is pretty minor compared to smoking, for instance. Looking at the big picture, you'll cut your chances of getting cancer a lot more by not smoking, avoiding exposure to the sun and eating five servings of fruits and vegetable each day.

When transporting food to a picnic site, keep it cold to minimize the growth of bacteria. Pack meat and other perishables in coolers containing ice or cold packs. Keep the cooler in the shade and avoid opening the lid too often. If you are bringing along a lot of beverages, use a separate cooler for the bottles or cans.

HUBBUB AT LONDON'S PUBS

Ah, the London public house, home to warm beer, quaintly dingy decor, and most-ly bad food! Pubs have been such a famed part of English Culture that special tours have even been devoted to them. However, while the tours of today and tomorrow may still stop at pubs, the reasons for stopping seem to be changing. In many of the old haunts, the food has improved so much that the cuisine alone is worth the visit. Menus are offering sophisticated fare, but still at humble prices—as a new generation of entrepreneurs practices a lighter, brighter brand of food and atmosphere. In place of greasy fried foods like fish and chips, menus are likely to feature lightly grilled fish or poultry served with fresh vegetables.

Whether you're cruising the pubs of London or the seven seas, we've got lots of good ideas to make travel fun for the entire family. Our expert service and innovative ideas have won the loyalty of travelers throughout the area. Are you vacation-bound this year? See us first at UNIGLOBE CHELSEA TRAVEL, INC., 1070 South Main Street, for complete travel planning. We can help by telling you about places we've visited, discussing details of your chosen destination, and booking airline, cruise, train or bus reservations, accommodations, and car rentals. Hours: Mon.-Fri. 8:30-5:00, other hours by appointment. Ph: 475-3110.

Hint: London now has three restaurants that rate three stars in the authoritative Michelin guide, just two fewer than Paris.

WCA announces mini-grant deadline

The Washtenaw Council for the Arts (WCA), represented by the Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs, has announced the first cycle of mini-grant programs in the fiscal year 1997.

The deadline for applications is Oct. 11, for projects taking place between Feb. 1 and May 31.

Council policy requires that applications must be postmarked by the U.S. Post Office for hand delivery to the council offices by deadline dates to receive funding consideration. The Mini-Grant program offers matching grants to organizations in Livingston, Monroe and Washtenaw counties, presenting arts projects responding to local needs. The maximum amount an organization may receive is $2,000.

Any Michigan non-profit organization, institution, school, associations, or local government agencies may apply. Grants are not awarded to individuals. Application packets are available upon request. Included in the packet are an application form, instructions and program guidelines.

A mini-grants workshop will be held on Saturday, Aug. 31 from 10 a.m. to noon. Interested individuals wanting a packet, more information or to make reservations for the workshop should contact the Washtenaw Council for the Arts by calling 313-484-4882.

The council is located at 78 N. Huron St., Ypsilanti. Summer office hours are Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to noon.

Top sewage plants named

U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Region 5 has named the region's best-operated municipal wastewater treatment plants for 1996.

The Chelsea plants will receive an EPA Operation and Maintenance award for being best in the small secondary treatment category.

Wastewater treatment plants protect public health and the environment by treating sewage to reduce the amount of pollutants that are discharged into lakes, rivers, and streams.

CCDA promoting arts for Chelsea

A local group founded by a Chelsea schools' music teacher and his musically talented wife is promoting the development of the arts in the Chelsea area, offering opportunities for learning, performing and creating, not only in musical but artistic genres.

The Chelsea Center for the Development of the Arts began 18 months ago as an idea to organize a Chelsea Children's Chorus and encourage music education, said founder Steve Hinz, a music teacher in the Chelsea School system.

Hinz directed a 45-member children's chorus this year and many students took voice lessons from his wife Lisa Hinz-Johnson through the Center, while the program expanded into other arts as well.

CCDA member Mary Grace said a series of classes were offered this summer in the South School cafeteria, including calligraphy, basketry, mono-prints, origami, pen and ink art, a children's creative writing class and a fiction workshop for adults, in addition to watercolor and collage classes and the music programs.

While the Center offers programs for all ages, Grace explained that helping young musicians and artists is a priority.

"We really want to focus on showing the children what the arts are all about," Grace said.

CCDA president Susan Carlson said community response to the program had been very positive and credited the quality teaching of Hinz, Hinz-Johnson and others like respected local artist Madeleine Vallier, who taught watercolors and helped seek out other teachers as well.

She said the CCDA's whole approach was driven by the positive nature of Hinz and Hinz-Johnson.

"We want to give Chelsea broader experience in the arts. We especially want to make sure our students have a good feeling about their talents, that as they're working they feel positive."

"I have first-hand experience with Lisa because I took vocal lessons from her. I watched her students go from being very, very shy, very frightened of performing, very little confidence, to just being able to get up on stage like they enjoyed it, like they're having a good time," Carlson said.

The non-profit CCDA raises necessary funds through nominal participation fees and fund-raisers, which often feature musical performances and have been well attended, Carlson said.

Both Hinz and Carlson stressed the CCDA's desire to serve the community as it broadens the range of its offerings in the future.

"We really want to find out what the people in the community want. We just want to continue this, get it more established in terms of (citizens) knowing when the fund-raisers or performances are. Just continue to meet the needs, in terms of arts and music, of our community," Carlson said.

One new project the CCDA is pursuing is commissioning a mural on the wall next to the old Chelsea Standard building. Carlson said the CCDA is soliciting proposals from artists, hopes to choose one by next spring and have the mural completed by late-summer or fall next year.

Hoax reaches businesses

Recently several local agencies and businesses, including Chelsea Village, McKune Memorial Library, Chelsea Milling, Chelsea Motorcycle Supply and others have received a chain letter, supposedly initiated by the Make-A-Wish Foundation, that turns out to be nothing more than a hoax.

The letter solicits business cards from the agencies and businesses, requesting they be sent to an Atlanta address.

The cards are supposedly for a boy suffering from terminal cancer, whose wish is to make the Guinness Book of World Records for receiving the greatest number of business cards.

Chain letter recipients are asked to mail in a business card and pass the request on to 10 business associates.

However, calls to the Make-A-Wish Foundation reveal that the whole chain letter is a hoax that the Make-A-Wish Foundation is not and never was involved in.

The foundation has set up a special hot-line to handle a voluminous number of calls about the deceiving chain letter, and reportedly thousands of business cards from throughout the country are pouring into the Atlanta address.

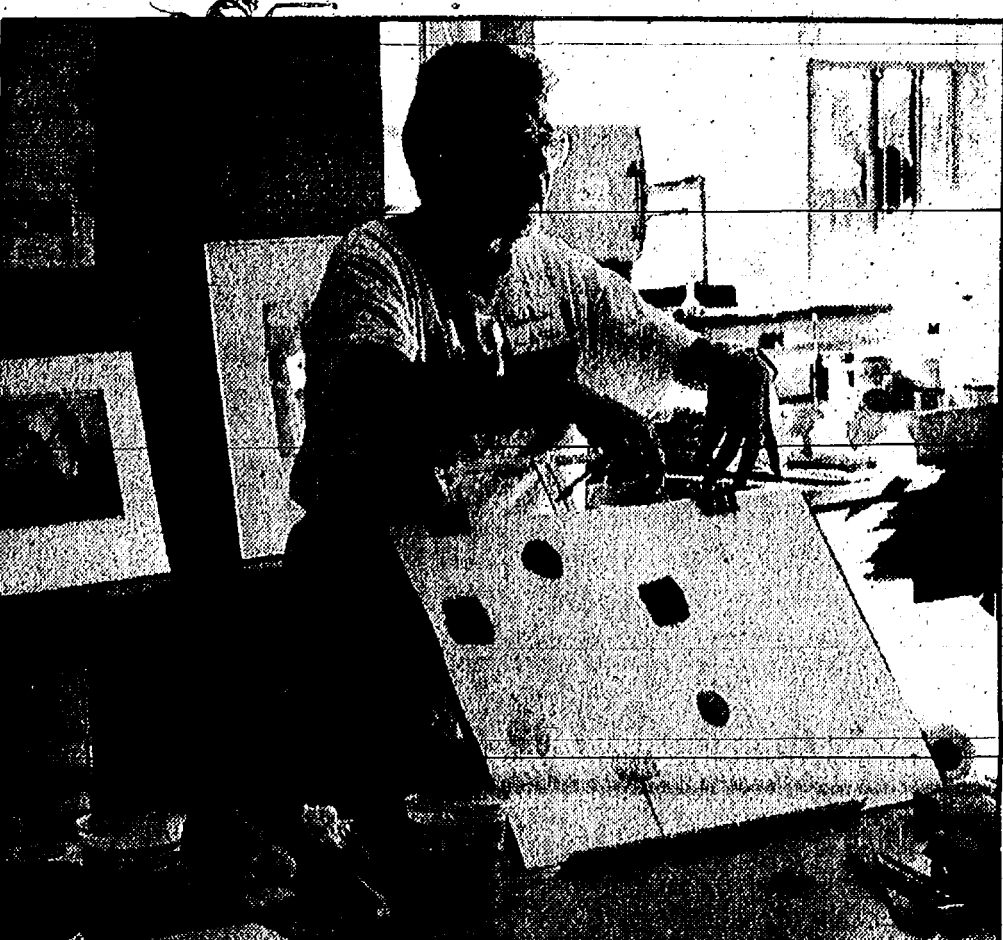

According to the hot-line, an English boy named Craig Shergold was stricken by cancer in 1989 and was entered into the "Guinness Book of World Records" in 1990 for receiving more than 15 million greeting cards.

A tumor was removed in 1991 and the boy is expected to lead a full and healthy life.

However, the chain letter has circulated throughout the country soliciting business cards for a Craig Sherwood, Craig Shergold, Greg Sherfold or other similar sounding name.

As part of a summer program by Chelsea Center for the Development of the Arts, Terry Pirrong and seven-year-old Renee Pirrong made baskets under the guidance of Chelsea artist Kris Alder. Classes on origami and pen and ink drawings will be held at South School July 31 and Aug. 7, respectively. For more information call 475-0437.

Local painter Madeleine Vallier instructs an all-ages watercolor painting class sponsored by the Chelsea Center for the Development of the Arts.

DENTAL INSURANCE DOLLAR COVERAGE
 As a rule, dental insurance plans do not pay for the full cost of dental care. They are designed to reduce the cost of care, not to eliminate it entirely. This enables them to offer a broader dental plan at economic rates. Some of the most common methods of payment limitation are:
 1. Deductible. Like your auto insurance, this method requires that you pay a specified dollar amount toward your bill before insurance coverage begins.
 2. Co-Payment. With this method, the insurance company assumes responsibility for a specified percentage of the bill for covered dental services, leaving the remainder to be paid by you.
 3. Dollar Limit. This system requires that you pay the difference between the company's limit for a service and your dentist's fee.
 Some programs use "pre-determination." If this is a part of your program, your dentist will submit your treatment plan and the fees to the insurance company for review.

Fungus kills gypsy moth population

Many Michigan residents have had distasteful experiences with the gypsy moth. Their first encounter with this defoliator of Michigan hardwoods usually causes them to run to the garden center to purchase whatever pesticide is available to combat this unwelcome guest.

Unfortunately, this activity is often futile. New research is indicating that the fungus Entomophaga maimaiga may prove to be the most significant natural control of the gypsy moth to date.

The fungus was first discovered in this country in the late 1980s after entomologists noticed massive die-offs of gypsy moths throughout southern New England, New York and Pennsylvania. Soil containing the Entomophaga maimaiga fungus was brought into Michigan in 1991 by entomologists at Michigan State University, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and the U.S. Forest Service.

The project was conducted by Dr. David Smitely, MSU scientist; Frank Sapio, DNR Forest Health specialist and Dr. Leah Bauer, U.S.D.A. Forest Service Research insect pathologist. Twenty-two sites in northern and central lower Michigan were "seeded" with this soil by DNR personnel as well as three research sites that were inoculated by MSU researchers. Research grants by the DNR and the U.S. Forest Service have supported MSU's study of this organism and its progress since 1991. Results were initially encouraging, but effectiveness was limited to areas near release sites as the fungus population began to spread.

This year, reports of massive die-offs of gypsy moth caterpillars are being reported throughout southern Michigan. Defoliation surveys conducted by the DNR are turning up very little gypsy moth defoliation damage. Spring and summer rains occurred at optimal times for fungal development, which allowed the fungus to grow and kill many gypsy moth caterpillars.

The fungus is now believed to be widely established across Michigan's Lower Peninsula. Cold winter temperatures in northern Michigan are also thought to contribute to this year's decline of gypsy moths.

"We are encouraged by these results, and research is continuing on the effectiveness of this new biological control for gypsy moths," Gerald Theide, Chief, DNR Forest Management Division said. "If results stay positive, Michigan's gypsy moth problems will be significantly reduced."

Gypsy moth caterpillars that come in contact with spores of Entomophaga maimaiga are infected and killed by the fungus before they reach the moth state. The fungus spreads by itself, is self-sustaining, and has very little effect on other organisms. Communities are expected to see relief from this pest as the spores multiply and spread naturally each year.

—Dexter Daze T-Shirt Winner—

A sign that Dexter Daze will be here soon is the traditional T-shirt that promotes the event, slated this year Aug. 9-10. Dexter High School junior Dave Howison designed this year's winning T-shirt logo. Howison's design incorporates the community's newest feature, a historic-looking clock. Each year, the Dexter Daze Committee asks high school art students to submit entries for the contest. Howison's work was chosen and graduating senior Nick Stoddard placed second. Howison received a cash prize for his contribution. His logo will also appear on all advertising promotions for the festival. Dexter Daze shirts are on sale at many stores downtown.

Dexter Village Possession of Marijuana

Two Chelsea women were arrested for possession of marijuana July 16 after a Washtenaw County Sheriff's deputy stopped them on Main Street near Central Street. The deputy initially pulled the women over for driving a 1993 Ford Probe with defective equipment. The officer smelled marijuana in the vehicle and asked for permission to search the car. Two marijuana cigarettes and suspected marijuana were found in a plastic film canister. The women told police they were smoking the drug at a concert.

Drunken Driving

A 37-year-old Scio Township man was arrested for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor on Main Street near Broad Street July 18. The suspect was stopped by a sheriff's deputy for driving erratically. The deputy noticed a strong odor of intoxicants and asked the man to submit to a test. The suspect's blood-alcohol level was tested at .17 percent, which is more than the legal limit. The driver admitted to drinking beer at Dexter Bowling Alley prior to driving.

A 38-year-old Jackson woman was arrested for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor on Main Street near Broad Street July 19. A sheriff's deputy stopped the woman at 1:30 a.m. because the rate of speed she was traveling in her 1992 Mustang fluctuated rapidly. The deputy noted the woman smelled of intoxicants and displayed mood swings. Her blood-alcohol level was tested at .086 percent, which is considered impaired. The woman admitted to drinking alcohol at Stiver's Bar prior to driving.

Chelsea Village Liquor Violation

Chelsea Police cited an employee of Tower Mart and a 20-year-old Ann Arbor man for liquor violations. Officer Norm Paton observed two sets of men walk into Tower Mart and purchase alcohol. He noted in his report that they looked to be under age 21. Paton called another officer to follow one man while he followed the other. Paton stopped the 20-year-old Ann Arbor man and his four passengers, all under 21, on Main Street. He was given permission to search the vehicle, where he discovered a case of beer and 12-pack in the trunk.

The 19-year-old clerk who sold the man the beer was issued a citation, as was the suspect. The clerk told police she had attended Chelsea High with the suspect and believed he was 21 years old. She asked for identification but the suspect said he didn't have it with him. A report of the incident has been sent to the Michigan Liquor Control Commission.

Probation Violation

Chelsea Police caught a 17-year-old Chelsea boy violating probation, July 15. The vehicle the teen was a passenger in was stopped because of a cracked windshield. The officer recalled the boy was not allowed in the village per court order. The suspect told the officer he was just passing through. But upon further investigation, it was discovered he was at a home on Orchard Street. The information was turned over to the suspect's probation officer.

Stolen Vehicle

A 1995 Jeep Grand Cherokee Laredo was reported stolen July 18 from the parking lot at Chelsea Milling, 207 North St. A 37-year-old Stockbridge woman told Chelsea Police the vehicle was locked and no one from her family borrowed it. Police ruled out repossession because the vehicle is paid off. There was no evidence at the scene indicating a break-in.

Stolen Registration Plates

A Chelsea couple received a parking violation notice from Detroit Traffic Court based on a license plate they asked Naylor Motor Sales to destroy after they purchased a new vehicle. The couple bought their new vehicle in February. The violation in Detroit occurred April 25. The salesman at Naylor said he threw the license plate in the trash.

Indecent Exposure

A 25-year-old Stockbridge man was interviewed by Chelsea Police after he exposed himself in the parking lot at Pamida Discount Store, July 11. A Chelsea woman called police and reported the man was running around naked. An officer interviewed the man and he claimed to have just changed from his shorts into swimming trunks. Police will not pursue the case because none of the witnesses wanted to sign a complaint.

Alcohol-related Crash

A 17-year-old Chelsea boy crashed his 1988 Ford Thunderbird into a utility pole on Washington Street and fled the scene, July 20. A resident called Chelsea Police. The boy's vehicle was left behind. Police found a cooler full of beer and several empty bottles in the car. The vehicle was traced to the teen, who was cited for leaving the scene of a crash, possession of alcohol and careless driving. The suspect suffered a minor head injury in the collision and admitted to drinking alcohol and driving.

Dexter Township Assault

A 45-year-old township woman called the sheriff's department after she heard about an assault between a group of children and a 10-year-old boy. The incident occurred in the 8500 block of Portage Lake Boulevard, July 12. Two 11-year-old boys and a young girl chased the boy to his home after a verbal argument escalated. When the boy arrived home he retrieved a steak knife and ordered the other children out of his yard. When the youngsters began laughing at the boy, it was reported the child retrieved his father's gun from a broom closet and began making threats. An older child confiscated the weapon and broke up the dispute.

Property Damage

Malicious destruction of property was reported in the 8000 block of Dexter-Pinckney Rd., July 12. A 59-year-old

POLICE BLOTTER

Arson

Arson is being investigated in the 400 block of Little Lake Road, July 19. A 37-year-old Milford man, a general contractor, told police someone ignited a fire in the basement of a building under construction. The fire occurred between 4:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. July 17. Scio Township Fire Department was called to the scene. A pile of trash was set ablaze, but a dirt floor prevented a lot of damage.

Stolen Vehicle

A 1993 GMC Jimmy was reported stolen from QED, 6095 Jackson Rd., July 15. A 35-year-old Ypsilanti man told police the vehicle, valued at $25,000, was stolen between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. July 15. A co-worker told the victim he saw someone leave in the vehicle at a high rate of speed but assumed it was him. Also in the vehicle were cassette tapes, a men's wallet, baby seat and plant fencing. The victim told police the key was in the vehicle's ignition but the door was locked.

Breaking and Entering

Breaking and entering was reported at Unique Hair Studios, 3905 Jackson Rd., July 15. A 32-year-old Pinckney woman told police someone broke into the salon between 4:30 p.m. July 14 and 9 a.m. July 15. The receptionist area and several stations were ransacked. Items stolen included $200 cash, hair clippers, neck hair trimmers and gold-plated scissors. Muddy footprints were discovered leading from the back door to the front of the salon.

The Way It Was

Airplane lands on Merkel farm

By Kathy Clark
Special Writer

"First Airplane Landing in Chelsea" in 1918-19 was captured on film by Allyn Kaercher. "Earl Schantz came to get me. I was mowing the lawn and heard the airplane." They ran from Washington Street to Freer Road to see it. Kaercher, who was still in high school, took the pictures, one with Earl and John Hemp standing next to the wing.

The plane had made an emergency field landing on part of Merkel's farm (now the East Oak Grove Cemetery on Freer Road). Kaercher recalled that the pilot had problems or ran out of gas. "A truck towed it away."

The plane was a biplane (two wings), and was likely a Curtiss Jenny, one of the most popular war-surplus biplanes used in the private sector after WWI, according to Barbara Sutton a volunteer at the Willow Run Airport, Yankee Air Force Museum in Ypsilanti.

Airplane progress was steady after WWI. The various governments disposed of their surplus war planes at very low prices. Many former war pilots bought these planes and used them for exhibition purposes and also to take passengers for short flights. Sutton said this was called Barnstorming.

"Pilots would fly into a farmer's field and pick up passengers for a few bucks. Everyone was fascinated with airplanes after WWI." She said southern Michigan was a forerunner in airplane manufacturing. There was a large company in Wayne and many small airports were already established by 1918.

Sutton said that biplanes had real good float power. They could glide and settle nicely in a mowed field. "Once in a while they would hit a rut and tip over."

In Michigan and elsewhere in the country the following aviation records help place this Chelsea event in time:

—1918 the first regular air-mail service in the US was launched, with army pilots carrying mail between

Washington and New York.

—1919 Captain John Alcock and Lieutenant Arthur Brown made the first non-stop flight across the Atlantic.

—1927 Charles Lindbergh of Michigan flew non-stop across the ocean.

—1928 Amelia Earhart of Kansas became the first woman to fly across the Atlantic.

—1938 Howard Hughes of Texas flew around the world in 91 hours.

Dexter Township considers needs

By Michelle Rogers
Associate Editor

Dexter Township is considering the adoption of an ordinance that attempts to recover costs of fire and emergency medical runs made within the township's boundaries.

During a meeting of the Dexter Township Board of Trustees July 16, the board perused a similar ordinance adopted in Sylvan Township. Further consideration was tabled, however, until additional information can be obtained.

The purpose of the ordinance is to seek financial reimbursement from people who directly benefit from fire protection and emergency medical services. Exceptions stated in Sylvan's three-year-old ordinance include false alarms, fire protection for township-owned buildings, grounds and properties and fire protection or emergency medical services in or at any residential structure.

In most instances, insurance companies end up paying the bill.

"Generally, the homeowners' policy will cover house fires and HMOs and health insurance plans cover medicals, so most of the time the bill is passed on by the residents," explained Dexter Township Supervisor James Drolett.

For hardship cases or extenuating circumstances, there is an appeals process in which the township board has the ultimate say.

Lima, Scio and Waterloo Townships have similar ordinances on the books.

"Everybody is having the same problem with their fire budgets getting higher and higher," Drolett said. "This is just an avenue we are exploring."

Drolett said Dexter township budgets $90,000 every year for fire protection from Dexter, Chelsea and Putnam Fire Departments. Sylvan is paying similar costs, which have tripled in the past decade, according to supervisor Gerald Dresselhouse.

"We had a decision to make—to have a millage or go to a user-pay system," Dresselhouse said. "I think each township has to look at its budget and services and decide what it should do."

Dresselhouse says Sylvan Township has had some success in collecting for fire and emergency runs. But he also concedes the township has had to take a few insurance companies to court to collect.

"We're meeting considerable resistance in some areas with certain insurance companies," Dresselhouse said.

But Bob Kibble of All State Insurance in Dexter and Ned

Palmer, owner of Palmer Insurance Agency, say they cover such expenses.

According to Palmer, all the companies his agency represents, including two major automobile insurance companies, pay for emergency medical services. "All my companies will pay what they have to pay. We want to make sure you're taken care of," he said.

Palmer does not like the idea of townships billing for fire department runs, however. He called it an added tax on top of what residents already pay for township services. In the long run, he said, it means higher insurance premiums.

Lima Township Supervisor Bill VanRiper suggested local townships need to adopt identical billing practices in order to be successful at collecting from insurance companies. A standard fee per run must be established when it comes to personal injury accidents, brush fires and medical emergencies, he said.

According to Drolett, Huron Valley Ambulance has offered to send out bills for area townships seeking reimbursement for medical and fire runs. For a $15 fee per bill, HVA will send out two statements. It's the township's responsibility, however, to initiate further action if the bills go unpaid.

Schools to seek solution to Trinkle Rd.

Some local government officials have questioned school plans to place a driveway into the new high school from Trinkle Road.

The unimproved dirt road, they charge, will need to be rebuilt because of heavy use and how improvements will be paid for and who will pay for them is uncertain.

Chelsea Superintendent Ed Richardson has previously said he would contact county road and drain commissioners to begin exploring ways to address the problem.

On Monday, July 22 Richardson said he hoped to contact the county officials before the end of the week.

Also, Richardson explained that he and Chelsea School Board President Jane Diesing would meet soon with Chelsea Village President Richard Steele and possibly Chelsea Village Manager Jack Myers to discuss construction issues, and he expected that Trinkle Road would be discussed.

Race for township supervisor post heats up in Dexter, Lyndon, Webster

By Michelle Rogers
and Scott Bishop
Staff Writers

The Aug. 6 primary promises to be an interesting bout as two long-time supervisors fight for their jobs, two political newcomers who've never held elected office face off, and contested races heat up in Webster, Sylvan, Lima, Lyndon and Dexter Townships.

In many local townships, voters have a choice between maintaining the status quo or electing change when the polls open at 8 a.m. Scio Township is the exception as an uncontested slate of Republicans runs for re-election on the November ballot.

Candidates vying to be on the November ticket include a host of Republicans. Only one Democrat faces opposition in the primary. Dexter Township Clerk Bill Eisenbeiser will face Mark Wojno for the Democratic bid. Other Democrats assured a spot on the November ballot are Burton Hoey, who will vie for the supervisor's post in Dexter Township; and Lanny Dunigan, who will battle for a seat on the Webster Township Board. No other Democratic opponents face them in the primary.

Contests in Scio, Lima and Sylvan Townships for the supervisor's post are uncontested as Scio Supervisor Robert Tickle, Lima Supervisor Bill VanRiper and Sylvan Supervisor Gerald Dresselhouse face no opposition.

Two power struggles have ensued in Webster and Dexter Townships as long-time supervisors Don Zeeb and James Drolett fight to maintain position against two opponents.

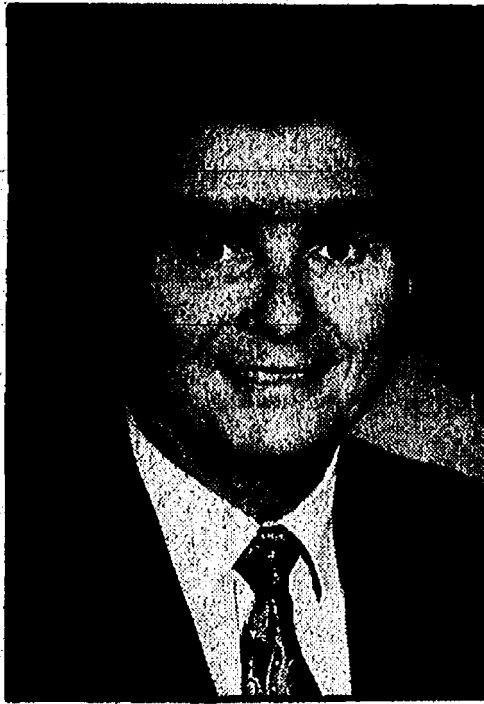

In contrast, Lyndon Township will elect its first new supervisor since 1986, as current supervisor John Francis seeks a position as trustee. One Lyndon supervisor candidate, Maryann Noah, has served as chair of the Multi-Lake Water and Sewer Authority, an appointed post. The second candidate, Norm Bauer, has not held any appointed or elected leadership position.

This story focuses on contested elections for supervisor.

Dexter Twp. Supervisor

Drolett faces Republican challenger John Sdao for the top spot in Dexter Township.

Drolett has served as township supervisor since 1984. He also held the position of township trustee from 1982-84. Drolett serves on the Board of Directors rectors for the Michigan Township Association and is director of District 18, which serves Washtenaw, Livingston, Monroe and Wayne Counties. Through that position, he also serves on a committee that reviews pending legislation in Lansing that affects township residents and government.

Drolett, 54, is a retired probation officer for Washtenaw County. He has lived in the township for the past 19 years. Besides his duties as supervisor, Drolett serves as the zoning administrator for Chelsea Village.

Drolett has weathered a number of storms, including an unsuccessful recall campaign. He says he is seeking re-election because he is concerned about the township's future.

"I am concerned about Dexter Township, its future growth, the welfare of its citizens, and the township's role in helping it grow in an orderly and attractive fashion," Drolett said.

Drolett has guided the township through many projects and has helped to ensure better fire and police protection. The township now contracts with three, rather than two, fire departments, as well as the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department to ensure prompt response time. In the past, police coverage was strictly on-call.

"We didn't have, in my opinion, adequate police protection. We now contract with the sheriff's department, and that has worked out real well."

Safety on Portage Lake is also a past concern now addressed with the sheriff's department marine patrol division keeping an eye out for intoxicated motorists on the lake.

Drolett has also seen the township establish a planning commission within the past decade. The commission has since revamped the township's General Development Plan and is now in the process of rewriting the zoning ordinance. Drolett says the new ordinance will recognize smaller lot sizes and address the impact of growth through planned unit development provisions and open space requirements.

"My view is 25 or 50 years from now, western Washtenaw County is going to have a lot of growth. The question is what can we do now to have it coming off as an asset rather than a detriment to the county," he said.

Drolett recognized there has been a switch to cottages becoming year-round residences, which in turn has taxed the infrastructure. "When subdivisions were platted in the 1920s, they didn't envision year-round residences, and the health code has since changed," he said. Through his post, Drolett said he has helped improve the quality of life for residents on the lake by establishing sewer service.

Drolett says one of his professional strong points is his willingness to address the concerns of residents. "I've always tried to respond to the needs of the people. In 1986-

Lets Go Bulldogs!

Connie Mack team ends season on six-game winning streak

Chelsea's Connie Mack Baseball Team concluded their summer season this past week on a very positive note as they won three games, beating Lincoln 18-2 and 6-5 in a double-header and the Ann Arbor White Sox 11-8, finishing up the season with a six-game winning streak.

On Saturday, July 13, the Bulldogs traveled to Lincoln High School and played a double header against the Railspitters.

The opening game was a five-inning mercy contest.

The first inning of the opener saw Chelsea send 11 men to the plate and score six runs on only two hits (a single and double). Lincoln helped out with five walks and a couple of errors.

They increased their lead to 8-0 in the second as Casey Wescott and Ryan Hubbard both crossed the plate on a two-out triple by Drew Henson.

Lincoln collected four straight hits in their second and scored twice, making it 8-2 after two innings.

The Bulldogs scored a lone run in the third and sent 13 hitters to the plate in the fourth resulting in nine runs.

Neither team scored in the fifth and the game ended 18-2. Chelsea had 10 hits in the contest, led by Henson with three (triple and two singles), Ryan Slane (double and single) and Ashley Coy (two singles).

A double by Jason Sprawka and singles by Wescott and Hubbard rounded out the hitting attacks.

They were helped out with six walks and three hit batsmen.

Wescott had mound duties for Chelsea. He went the distance, allowing five hits and striking out six. His control was on as he walked nobody. After allowing four hits and two runs in the second, he allowed only one baserunner the last three innings. He pitched a good game.

The second game of the twin bill was a different story.

Sprawka walked to open the game and scored on a single by Lance Ching. Ching was driven home by a double by Tim Lawrence. Lawrence scored as Don Reilly hit a 360-foot homer to left center. That uprising gave Chelsea an early 4-0 lead.

But Lincoln answered that with a three-run rally of their own and after the first it was 4-3 Chelsea.

With one out in the second, Sprawka hit a line shot over the center fielder's head and with his speed he had an inside-the-park homer, making it 5-3.

It stayed that way until the fourth when Lincoln scored another run to get within one 5-4.

Chelsea got that run back in the sixth as Sprawka scored on a sacrifice fly off the bat of Lawrence.

The Bulldogs went into the bottom of the seventh 6-4. Lincoln loaded the bases with singles and nobody out. A pop-up to third was out number one. An infield single left the bases loaded and made the score 6-5. Two strikeouts ended the inning and gave Chelsea the 6-5 win.

Chelsea had 11 hits, led by three singles by Ching, homer and single by Sprawka, double and single by Lawrence, a homer by Reilly and singles by Henson, Wescott and Gary Osterander.

Lincoln actually out-hit the Bulldogs with 13 hits.

Reilly hurled the first five innings and Wescott pitched the sixth and seventh in relief. He recorded the save as Reilly got the victory.

They both did a good job as they were tough with men on base, said coach Akel Marshall.

The double win was Chelsea's fifth in a row and put them over 500 at 12-11 overall with one game left.

And that game was played on Monday, July 15 against the Ann Arbor White Sox at Chelsea High School. Chelsea kept the winning streak going at six.

Once again they jumped out to a quick lead as they scored twice in the first. But Ann Arbor scored three of their own to lead 3-2 after one. But the Bulldogs wasted no time to get the lead back as the second inning saw them score three as they hit two triples, a double and single to get the job done.

The White Sox were able to get a lone run in the second and after two it was the Bulldogs leading 5-4.

Chelsea continued their scoring ways in the third as once again they continued to hit the extra-base hit with two doubles. When the inning was over Chelsea had scored four after holding the White Sox scoreless they held a 9-4 lead.

After scoring one in the fifth the score was 10-4. Ann Arbor got closer as their third baseman hit a three-run homer making it 10-7. Both teams scored once in the seventh.

Sprawka led the 10-hit attack for Chelsea with three—a triple, double and single. Ching had a double and single and Coy had two singles. Rounding out the hits were Wescott, Reilly and Dusty White with a double each.

Chelsea banged out six extra-base hits in the contest.

Dusty White pitched the first five innings for Chelsea and Hubbard came on in the sixth and finished up. They allowed a combined seven hits while striking out 11, and seven walks.

With the victory Chelsea ended the season on a six-game winning streak and an 11-9 league record and 13-11 overall record.

"The summer was fun. We got some valuable experience this summer and it will help us out next spring," Marshall said.

"It's time to take a rest for everyone and enjoy the rest of the summer."

Art fair features welded items

Art isn't always created on the lofty canvas of an acrylic painter or on the clay filled wheel of a master potter. It can be shaped with an acrid flame as hot as a blast furnace and as bright as the sun.

For five years now, Washtenaw Community College welding students have burned the midnight oil to get ready for the 400,000-plus art enthusiasts who patronize the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair. Once again, they've prepared an exhibit of hand-crafted items in an effort to raise money for student scholarships.

The idea for the project came from welding student Larry Wolcott, a retired middle school science teacher from Wayne/Westland Community Schools, who enjoys working with his hands. Wolcott is again working on the effort.

Many of last year's popular garden/flower pot decorations will return. They are taking the form of crickets, grasshoppers, whales and pigs. Returning also is the popular Dancing Cat. Necklaces, rings and candle stands also will be available for sale. The items, which are designed and created by welding students and their instructors, have been in such demand that each year they sell out of items. Last year, roughly $1,000 was raised for student welding scholarships.

About the Outdoors

by Jerry D. Posey

Several years ago I had the opportunity to observe wildlife up close. Well, semi-wildlife anyhow.

It started when my teenage daughter brought home a baby raccoon she had been given by a friend, who had found it and two litter mates wandering around in the middle of the road near the body of their dead mother.

As near as we could tell, the animal was about six or eight weeks old, since it had not yet been weaned and that is the about age the mother will wean her young and start taking them on short road trips in search of solid food.

I knew at the time that it was not really legal to keep a wild animal as a pet without getting a permit from the DNR, but I kept telling myself that this was strictly a temporary situation and that the animal would be returned to the wild as soon as it was capable of taking care of itself.

That didn't really make it any more legal but I convinced myself that it wasn't really a prison-threatening crime.

My daughter named the little fellow Ajax after the foaming cleanser. She felt he was a very clean creature because as he grew he exhibited the common raccoon habit of washing every piece of food given to him before putting it in his mouth. Actually he was not really washing the food, he was simply wetting it before eating it to make it easier to swallow, since the raccoon has very underactive salivary glands that do not produce enough saliva to blend with the food as it is being chewed, like humans and most other animals do.

Raccoons are very inquisitive animals and they seem to be playing with their food as they pick it up in their almost human like paws and turn it over and over, checking it out before putting it in their mouth.

Ajax was a lovable pet, and during the year he picked him I learned a lot about animals, especially raccoons. I had him a couple of books at the local library to get the answers to some of the many questions that came up.

We started by feeding the little fellow every two hours with a doll bottle that my daughter found in our toy box. The imitation milk we gave him was made from a diluted baby formula that was suggested by a local veterinarian.

We only had to perform this time-consuming chore for about a week before he found out by accident that he loved canned, fish-flavored, cat food.

Ajax made friends with our mild-mannered Doberman, but could never buddy up with our big male tomcat. Whenever the friendly little raccoon got within a foot of the cat, he would get a severe thumping with the big cat's clawed front paws and he quickly learned to stay away from the cat's food dish if the cat was anywhere in sight, but he managed to keep the cat's dish empty after cleaning up all the food offered in his own.

As he got older he found that there was a world outside of our large screened-in back porch, and for a while he was content wandering around our yard but staying close to his nest box on the porch.

I installed for him his own private door so he could come and go when he felt like it. It was private because the Doberman was too large to get through the cut-out and the cat never learned to operate the swinging door, a feature that took Ajax about 10 seconds to master.

Ajax attracted a lot of attention in the neighborhood when my daughter would put his red collar and leash on him and walk him up and down the sidewalk in front of our house.

Being the friendly type, Ajax did not exhibit the fear of dogs usually shown by a wild animal, and would often get himself into trouble by walking right up to a strange dog and trying to make friends, but when snapped at he would just back up a step and put on his best vicious wild-animal impersonation, and that would be the end of the confrontation. Most city dogs are not used to being challenged by such a small ball of fur with such a dangerous-looking smile.

He didn't stay small long. He had food in front of him most of the time and between his own dish and the cat's, he got all he wanted to eat, so he probably grew at a rate faster than most raccoons in the wild that have to hunt and search for every bite they get to eat.

I said he stayed in our yard when he was younger, that was probably because he felt safe there, but that didn't last long. As he matured, he got the urge to roam the neighborhood, usually at night, since he spent a big part of his day curled up like a big fuzzy ball in his nest box.

Raccoons are naturally a nocturnal animal and they like to do most of their searching for food at night while spending their days sleeping in their tree dens, sometimes stretching out on a limb near the den to soak up a little sunshine when the weather is nice.

Most people have the idea that raccoons hibernate during the winter months, but this is not so. Raccoons like bears and ground hogs are true hibernators that go into a long sleep period in the winter, but raccoons do not.

During the year that Ajax blessed us with his furry presence he never missed an evening feeding. He would sometimes come out of his nest box on a cold winter day, only long enough to eat and dispose of his body wastes in his kitty litter pan, then crawl back in for another four- or five-hour nap.

Speaking of his kitty litter pan, either he did not try very hard to hit it, or else his aim wasn't very good, but at least he got it on the papers in his favorite corner where it was easy for us to clean up.

We never knew where Ajax went when he left the porch at night, or what he was doing while he was gone, but every once in awhile a neighbor would complain that something had been knocked over her birdbath during the night, or someone would ask if our garbage can had been scattered all over the back yard like their's had, and we sometimes had a hard time keeping a straight face while answering that, no, ours with its locking cover had not been bothered.

When spring finally came, Ajax, being a healthy young male, got the wanderlust and his overnight journeys became two or three days at a time. Then finally he just never came back at all.

Like a lot of modern teenagers, the boy just didn't appreciate the good home we gave him and he probably gave it all up for the love of a sweet young thing with cute little rings around her tail.

MSU offers tips for healthy trees

Healthy trees add beauty and value to your home. To keep them healthy, follow these tips from Michigan State University landscape horticulturists:

- Select hardy plants that will do well in the sort of growing conditions your planting site provides. A common plant in a well-chosen site is likely to do better than an exotic plant that's struggling to survive because growing conditions are wrong for it.

- Plant your tree in a location that gives it plenty of room to reach its mature size without crowding other trees or structures or getting involved with utility wires, sewer pipes or septic systems.
- Use proper planting techniques.

- Plant at the proper depth and make sure all wires, plastic ropes and other non-biodegradable materials are removed from the trunk and rootball — they would girdle and kill the tree as it grows. Make sure, too, that any encircling roots are removed so they don't girdle the tree later.

- Water and fertilize properly. Newly planted trees usually need more frequent watering than established trees.

- Protect trees against construction damage, grade changes and mechanical damage from lawnmowers and other yard equipment.

- Choose and use lawn and garden chemicals with care and keep delving salt away from landscape plants.

—Chelsea Fair Queen Tea—

Chelsea Community Hospital hosted the Chelsea Fair Queen Tea recently, a luncheon for all the candidates and their mothers. Tracy Dufek—the 1995 queen—and her mother, Linda, were honored. Superintendent Michelle Smith discussed the upcoming program, which includes the talent judging on Aug. 19 and the formal program on Aug. 23. From left are the candidates and their mothers (sponsors in parentheses), Rene Warren, Amanda Warren (Tech Unlimited), Becky Menge, Elizabeth Menge (CHS freshman class), Aubri Sheremet (CHS senior class), Sandy Sheremet, Andrea Laszyc (CHS junior class), Betty Laszyc, Tracy and Linda Dufek, Shannon Longe (Republic Bank), Sherri Jones, Rianne Jones (Key Club), Colleen Walters, Sally Walters (CHS sophomore class), Michelle Smith, and Michelle Elred (Frank Grob's of Dexter).

Road Commission to begin overlay program

The Washtenaw County Road Commission has recently begun its 1996 asphalt overlay program.

This year the road commission will overlay approximately 11 miles of county roads, including a short stretch in Chelsea. These roads include Whittaker (Textile to Bemis), Stony Creek (Willis to Carpenter), Platt (Stony Creek to Willow), Willow (Carpenter to US-23), Saline-Ann Arbor (US-23 to the City of Saline), State (US-12 to Old State), Huron River Drive (Mast to Pineview), North Territorial (M-52 to Embury and Earhart to Dixboro), Freer (Trinkle to Washington), Clinton (Austin to Wallace), and portions of Austin Road east of Manchester.

In addition, Salem Township is funding the overlay of Seven Mile Road from Dixboro to Pontiac Trail. Several bridge decks and intersections are also being overlaid this summer. The total cost of this work is $675,000 and the paving will be performed by Barrett Paving Materials.

According to road commission chair Fred Veigel, "The overlay program will meet some of our most critical road resurfacing needs. However, it falls far short of our overall needs. Hopefully, the governor and legislature will approve an increase in the state gas tax this fall so we can continue to address the problems we are experiencing."

This year, road commission revenues from state gas and weight taxes have decreased almost three percent compared to 1995. Michigan's gas tax has not changed since 1984 and remains one of the lowest in the country.

Candidates for township supervisor to battle in August Primary

87, people came to us and wanted a sewer for Portage Lake, and we did it for them. In 1993, they came from North, Silver, Half Moon and Blind Lakes and asked for a sewer, and we are doing it for them. If you're not going to do what the majority of citizens want, you shouldn't be in this job. And believe me, it's not easy doing public improvement projects," he said.

Drolet has three goals for the next four years if he is re-elected. He has set his eye on completing the new zoning ordinance, getting North Territorial Road re-paved and to reduce emergency response time even more.

"I think the government that has the most impact on the people is local government. We're the most accessible and provide the greatest amount of service to people. I think it's important to have people in that position who are knowledgeable, who know the players and can get things done so we don't have to reinvent the wheel," he concluded.

Sdao, 30, is a political newcomer. He works as a computer systems consultant for the University of Michigan Medical Center and has lived in the township two years.

Among other things, Sdao says he is looking to strengthen communication between the public and government. "I most certainly can't run a government by myself. I need input from the people."

"We need a township being manned by the people of Dexter, not controlled," Sdao said. "I think that is the biggest reason why I am running. I think the township needs fair and honest management."

Sdao has proposed publishing quarterly a township information flyer and setting up a Web site to keep residents informed about township issues. He has also promised to publish meeting agendas and minutes in a timely fashion.

The main issues Sdao sees Dexter Township facing revolve around the North Lake sewer project and the township zoning ordinance.

"I think the North Lake project is a good idea to have, but I think the way they delivered the project was done poorly," Sdao said.

"We need a government less intrusive," he added. "If someone buys property and lives within certain guidelines, that person should be able to do what they want. It's the American Dream."

Sdao says if elected he would like to "tighten the ropes on development." Sdao stands behind the township's agricultural heritage and would like to retain its rural atmosphere by strengthening the township zoning ordinance.

In addition, Sdao says he would like to see an eight-year term limit for the supervisor's post. "Having term limits invokes competition in elections and stops corruption," he asserted. "Everybody goes into office with the idea of doing good for the people who put them there. I think over time corruption is developed, and I think term limits would stop that."

Sdao would also like to investigate the possibility of hiring a township manager and eliminate the positions of blight and zoning inspectors. He has proposed the manager take on those responsibilities in an effort to be more cost effective.

Sdao maintains his honesty, integrity, loyalty, civic-mindedness and charity will make him a successful township servant. He says he thinks it's important to keep people informed; to do what you promise; be loyal; respect others; listen to all points of view; and be committed.

Whoever wins the primary will go on to battle Democratic contender Burton Hoey for the supervisor's seat in November.

Webster Twp. Supervisor

Don Zeeb and Hugh Mosher are going head-to-head in the contest for Webster Township supervisor. The winner will ultimately be named supervisor, barring a successful write-in campaign.

Zeeb, 71, has held the post since 1974. A long-time resident and farmer, Zeeb has also served as chairman of the Ann Arbor Township Planning Commission, Loch Alpine Sanitary Authority and member of Dexter Area-Wide Fire Board.

Zeeb says he is running for re-election because he knows how to get the job done. "I've been supervisor for quite a while, and I think I can do justice to the township by staying on some more. I think I can help manage the township," he said.

Future development of the township is something Zeeb sees as a main issue. "We're getting a lot of development," he acknowledged. "I'd like to see how (purchase of development rights) works and where the money goes before we go for it. I want to see how it will benefit the township and if it will be applied locally."

Another issue Zeeb thinks needs to be addressed is police protection. He would like to see better coverage in Webster Township, and has proposed looking into paying for coverage by dipping into township coffers or investigating grant options.

"I am concerned about the residents' about their well-being and safety," he said. "I'd like to give them service when they have a problem."

Zeeb says his experience and contacts in government will help him serve residents for the next four years. "I have experience, and if I don't have the answers I know where to turn. I know the township real well," he said.

Projects accomplished during his tenure include the building of a township hall, a new water tower in Loch Alpine and improvements made to many township roads.

Mosher, who has served on the board as a trustee the past 12 years, says he is running for the supervisor's post because he feels he is best suited to lead the township. "I am interested in the community and what is going on in the township. I feel I am the best suited person to continue the leadership of the township," Mosher said.

A life-long resident and retired Michigan State Police officer, Mosher, 54, operates a tree farm in Webster Township. Besides his work on the board, he also serves as planning chairman, is a member of the Zoning Board of Appeals, chairman of Dexter Area-Wide Fire Department and has served on the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department Community Relations Board.

Main issues affecting the township as Mosher sees it are growth, land preservation, infrastructure and organization of the township office.

If the township continues to grow, Mosher said, the board will have to investigate the need for providing services. He would also like to work more closely with the Washtenaw County Road Commission to address road maintenance and other infrastructure improvements. Land preservation measures, he says, are a way of slowing growth. As for the township offices, Mosher thinks job descriptions will help in a smooth transition after elections.

Goals Mosher has set for his tenure include asking residents if they would support a township millage for land preservation; providing job descriptions and training for incoming public servants; and moving forward with a new township zoning ordinance.

"The planning commission has one of the biggest weights on them in writing the township zoning ordinance," he observed.

Mosher maintains his leadership abilities; knowledge of state and local government; past experience with the Michigan Department of Environmental Equality; understanding of the zoning laws; and strong communication skills will make him a successful servant for the township.

Lyndon Twp. Supervisor

After the November general election, Lyndon Township residents will have a new township supervisor for the first time in 10 years. John Francis has been supervisor since 1986, but this year has chosen instead to run for election as a township trustee.

And with no Democratic candidate yet announced, the Lyndon Township Supervisor might well be decided by the Republican primary election Tuesday, Aug. 6.

Maryann Noah and Norman Bauer are the Republican candidates facing off in the primary.

Noah, retired owner of Centerline Printing Co., said she became interested in running for township leadership over the past two years.

During that time, she has represented Lyndon Township by chairing the Multi-Lake Sewer and Water Authority.

Noah said she'd attended nearly all the township board meetings in her time as chairwoman, and become very interested in issues that affect the township like PDR, possible area-wide fire service and a possible district library, and land-use priorities in compiling the township master plan.

She considers all the issues mentioned above as important to Lyndon Township's future, particularly land-use decisions in the face of growth pressures.

Noah hopes to make township government both congruent and accessible.

"I would like to coordinate the various commissions and board so that they're all going in the same direction," Noah said.

Specifically, she would pay attention to taxpayers and seek to increase public input, while applying a "business strategy" to make township government efficient.

Noah listed as attributes that would make her a good supervisor: ability to develop good rapport with others; business experience and familiarity with managing large budgets; good communication skills; management skills to direct efficient operations; and her experience working with employees and customers over the 22 years she owned her business.

"I feel that I have a lot to offer management-wise," Noah said.

Political newcomer Bauer is a retired auto body repairman who operated a business in the township for 25 years.

A life-long township resident, he said he hopes to use the time gained from his retirement to follow his father's 20-year legacy of service to the township government.

Bauer said he was satisfied with the township's current state and puts a premium on maintaining it.

"I really don't see any major issues facing the township. I think everything is pretty much on line and I want to maintain that," Bauer said.

He particularly wants to keep taxes and spending under control.

As far as strategy for pursuing his goals, Bauer said there is business to take care of first.

"I haven't even thought about that yet. I've got to get through the primary first. (The job is) just going to take a lot of work," Bauer said.

Attributes that would make him a good supervisor, he said, are: that he was born and raised in Lyndon Township; he'd been a businessman all his life; he'd been active in serving the township through his business; and he was a U.S. Air Force veteran who served during the Korean War.

Overall, "I'm just a community-oriented person," Bauer said.

Silver Maples will be the second development devoted to senior citizens, the other being the Chelsea Retirement Community. It will be located on the grounds of Chelsea Community Hospital. It's a joint project of the hospital and the retirement community. Below is a model of the project, which is set to be completed by next August. ## Faith In Action serves area migrant workers

Since 1984 Faith In Action has been assisting families who come to this area to do seasonal planting and harvesting work in southwestern Washtenaw County. Approximately 50 families come from Rio Grand Valley, Texas and are employed by the DuRussel Potato Farms in Manchester from May 15 to Oct. 15.

At the beginning of the season, FIA helps the newly-arrived families obtain clothes, blankets, towels, pots and pans, cribs and other household necessities to help them set up for the summer.

The FIA clothing room is open for the migrant workers each Monday and Friday from 12:30 to 4 p.m. during May-October to assist families with clothing needs. Each family is allowed two bags of clothing twice a month. By the beginning of June, FIA had provided assistance to 22 families, a total 90 individuals.

Nadine Shaneyfelt and the FIA volunteers, with the help of a Spanish speaking student work with the families during the Monday and Friday open hours. More volunteer assistance is needed during the Monday and Friday open hours. Individuals with some Spanish-Speaking ability would be of great assistance.

FIA works closely with Joanne Fredal, president of Manchester Family Services in providing for the needs of the migrant workers.

According to Fredal, many of the 50 families and their children have been coming to this area for about 20 years, attracted by the six-month employment opportunity offered by the DuRussel Farms. Most of the workers according to Fredal, speak some English. Grandparents often accompany the families and provide child care during work hours.

Because Michigan is their home for six months of the year, many support services in addition to the clothing and equipment offered by FIA are available to the workers. These services are funded by the Summer Migrant Program through the Catholic Diocese of Lansing.

A health-care clinic located in a trailer on the farm is open one evening a week and provides both nursing and medical care through Health Delivery Incorporated of Saginaw. Physicians from Chelsea Family Practice also participate in the clinic.

Prenatal, delivery, and post-natal care are provided through the University of Michigan Hospitals and are funded by MichCare.

Eye and dental care is also available through physicians. Cindy Carnavale, a public health nurse makes calls at the farm each Tuesday.

Emergency care is provided by Chelsea Hospital.

Special events are scheduled for the workers throughout the summer. A Health Fair was held June 23 at the Freedom Township Hall. Several fiestas are planned during the season in conjunction with Spanish-language masses at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Manchester. Campfire boys and girls conduct a program with the children, ages six to ten on a weekly basis.

Time remains to reserve booth for Chelsea Sidewalk Festival

There is still time for crafters and flea marketers to reserve a space for the Chelsea Sidewalk Festival Aug. 2-3.

The Chelsea Merchants Association is asking antique and flea marketers who are interested in participating in the Flea Market to reserve space and prepay before July 31.

Cost for a booth is $10 per day or $15 for two days. Spaces will be available in Meabon's parking lot in the Chelsea Shopping Center.

Flea marketers will be responsible for their own set-up and clean-up. They should plan on bringing their own tables and covers if needed.

Booths will be assigned on a first-come, first-served basis. Anyone who wants to obtain a booth should contact Teresa Benedict at (313) 428-8173 or send payment to the Chelsea Merchants Association, PO Box 335, Manchester, 48158 before July 31.

The crafters will be located downtown as they have in past years.

"So far this year we are very satisfied with the number of new crafters scheduled," said Michael Jackson, president of the Chelsea Merchants Association.

"We have nearly doubled the number of crafters from last year, but we still have a few spots to fill."

Cost for a craft booth is $60. Crafters interested in participating in the festival should contact Benedict at the number above or Jackson at 475-1606.

Local preschoolers help with area food drive

The Seminary Food Bank of Concordia Theological Seminary of Fort Wayne Indiana received a donation of $6.25 from the students of Chelsea's Lambs of Our Savior Christian Preschool.

The children saved their pennies through April and May as one of their "helping projects" for the year. This gift will be used toward the purchase of food and paper products.

The 10th Annual Food Drive assists the Concordia Seminary Food Bank, which is one of the things that helps the seminarians and their families face the high expenses connected with their three years of training.

The preschool will hold an Open House for the public on July 25, from 10-11 a.m. and 6:30-8:30 p.m. Staff will be available to answer questions.

Dexter Township Planning Commission officially thanked long-time chairman Gerald Straub for his years of service when members presented Straub with a plaque July 16. Straub has retired from the board and is planning to move up north. Pictured are Robert Tetens, Bill Milam, Sheridan Springer, Gerald Straub, Ralph Rumsey and Harley Rider.

Straub retires from Dexter Twp. commission

By Michelle Rogers
Associate Editor

Dexter Township said goodbye to a dedicated public servant last week when planning commission chairman Gerald Straub officially announced his retirement from the board.

Representatives from the planning commission and township board each presented Straub with a plaque July 16 in recognition of his long-time service.

Straub is known for his tireless work in the Republican party and dedication to Dexter Township. He has served as chairman of the planning commission for more than a decade.

"I think he is tremendously interested in the issues; has a real depth of history and knowledge; and likes to get in from all concerned," is how planning commissioner Ralph Rumsey describes his colleague.

"I'll miss his involvement, leadership and insight," Rumsey said.

John Tandy, Sr., who served as supervisor of Dexter Township from 1970 to 1980, describes Straub as a devoted citizen and active Republican.

"He is one of those guys who believes in something and devotes his time, money and effort to correct a problem. He would say 'what can we do about this situation to make it better,'" Tandy said.

"He will be missed because he did devote his time and effort. It's always difficult to find a replacement for that type of individual," Tandy observed.

Marty Straub, a former Dexter Township trustee and county commissioner, describes his father as "tenacious" and a "hard worker." He also says his father served as a role model and inspired his eventual political career.

"I kind of grew up around (politics). I suppose in some respects he inspired me to get involved in the party," he said.

Many positive changes were made in Dexter Township under the leadership of Gerald Straub. The township zoning board was retired and a planning commission was established in its place. According to Rumsey, the drive to convert the zoning board was necessary so the township could take a more proactive approach to planning and zoning.

Tandy calls the creation of a site plan review committee a remarkable accomplishment during Straub's reign. "They had no definite guidelines or established procedures. That is really quite an accomplishment," he said.

Also under Straub's leadership a General Development Plan was created and adopted and the process of creating a comprehensive new zoning ordinance was initiated.

"The ordinance is well underway, and he was a driving factor in that," Tandy observed. "The zoning ordinance is going to attempt to have the township remain a pleasant place to live. It will make it easier for residents to enjoy the township's amenities without being overrun by large-scale developments."

Besides Straub's role as planning commission chairman, he also served on the Chelsea School Board. He raised three children in the township, farmed as a hobby and piloted planes.

Planning commissioner Robert Tetens has been named Straub's successor.

Schools consider altering driver education policy

By Scott Bishop
Staff Writer

The Chelsea School Board discussed changes to driver's education law and programs at its Monday, July 22 meeting.

The board attached minimum academic thresholds to driver's education eligibility standards four years ago. But since new state legislation might now undermine that system, the board is considering dropping the academic requirement.

Superintendent Ed Richardson explained that for the past four years, according to state law, students needed the permission of the school to acquire driver's education certification through a private program outside the school system.

Thus, it was possible for Chelsea to enforce the same minimum academic standards for driver's education as are applied to athletes and extra-curricular activities, since students not meeting academic requirements were denied permission to take driver's education elsewhere.

However, recently passed state legislation eliminates the provision requiring school permission to take driver's education through a private program.

While Richardson raised the possibility that the board, because of its legal status, might still be able to enforce academic standards, he observed that the question would be truly resolved through litigation. He was apprehensive about testing the school's legal authority.

"I don't want to be the test case," Richardson said prior to the meeting.

So the superintendent proposed to the board that it study eliminating the driver's education academic standards, since the issue now might become one of equity.

Since students could freely go outside the school district for driver's education, some students might be unable to pay the cost of private programs while could afford them.

Board member Sandra

Merkel supported maintaining academic standards for driver's education students, keeping those standards equivalent to standards for eligibility for extra-curricular programs.

Richardson said that mandating academic requirements might be in conflict with the new law.

Board president Jane Dising explained that the academic standards for driver's education were adopted as an incentive for students to pursue good grades, but with that incentive "watered down" by state legislation imposing academic standards might penalize student's unable to pay for outside programs.

A Chelsea parent whose child fell below the current academic standards for driver's education argued that the school rule violated his daughter's rights.

"The driver's licensee is a state right. And state rights cannot be violated according to Article 14, Section 1 of the U.S. Constitution, the Bill of Rights."

"I feel that the school policy on driver's education is a direct violation of Article 14, Section 1. Her rights, state rights, taxpayer rights, are being denied. She has just as much right to travel as anyone else. It's not the place of the school board to accept or deny someone (for driver's education) solely by their grades," he said.

The school board will consider the issue and decide whether or not academic standards for driver's education will be included in the revised student handbook at its Aug. 5 meeting.

Superintendent's Corner

By Edward Richardson
Chelsea School Superintendent

The issues surrounding school choice are multiple. The Chelsea Board of Education recently "opted out" of what was called Section 105 of H.B. 851, which is now P.A. 300 of 1996. This bill allowed local schools to accept non-resident students between school districts of an intermediate school district (ISD) without requiring students to obtain a release from their school district of residence.

In order to understand why a district would opt "in" or "out" of choice legislation, much needs to be understood about the impact of any choice options. Therefore, this column may need a Part II.

First, one needs to know that the schools are funded by various sources, with the majority of the funds coming from the State of Michigan in the form of a per-pupil "foundation grant." The Chelsea foundation grant was approximately $5,725 in the 1995-96 school year. This grant, along with some federal aid, is the fund from which the school pays its operating costs.

In addition to the operational costs, the Chelsea School District property owners are paying seven mills ($7 per $1,000 of the State Equalized Value of your home), and one mill ($1 per $1,000 SEV) for maintenance. Our maintenance mill is eliminated after this 1996 tax year.

The bond/construction millage (seven mills) and the maintenance mill (one mill) is paid only by school district residents. Therefore, the Chelsea Board of Education has determined that the residents of the school district should receive the "benefit" of its educational resources before non-residents. Non-residents should be considered only if it is in the best interest of the resident taxpayers of the school district.

Besides, adopting the philosophy of "those who pay the bills should receive the benefit," accepting non-resident students would create difficulty when a district is running out of classroom space. Whom would you deny education space? ... a student who recently moved in as a resident, or a non-resident who has been attending for five years?

The Legislature has a responsibility to balance its checkbook, as do local schools. In an attempt to allow some choice (within the ISD), and not create an additional financial burden for state coffers, the state will only pay the foundation grant "based on the lesser of the foundation allowances of the resident and educating districts."

In other words, the state can't lose. If the student of a $5,500 foundation district moves to a school of a $7,500 foundation district, the state pays only $5,500. Similarly, if the student moves from a $7,500 district to a $5,500 district, the state keeps the $2,000 and pays $5,500.

There is much more to the issue of choice and what it is or isn't. Statistics of other states with choice indicate that fewer than two percent of all students could or would take advantage of attending another school district if they had the choice.

So, you see, choice really isn't a choice for most students. Perhaps there could be more choice if the state financial system supported it. Oh, by the way, I worry about schools who may recruit skilled athletic and academic students, and point out the advantages of another school district to any resident student with disabilities costing $30,000 a year to provide an educational program.

What do you think?

Eastern equine testing in Michigan

This summer, the Michigan Department of Agriculture (MDA), the Michigan Department of Community Health (MDCH), local health departments, and Michigan State University (MSU) will be continuing their efforts to detect Eastern Equine Encephalomyelitis (EEE).

EEE, commonly known as sleeping sickness, has been known to occur in southern lower Michigan counties. This cooperative surveillance program includes participation by local veterinarians to identify and confirm suspected cases of EEE in horses, trapping of mosquitoes by local health departments, and testing these mosquitoes for the virus that causes EEE by Michigan State University. The goal of this program is to pinpoint areas in Michigan where the risk of becoming infected with EEE is the highest in an effort to protect the health of Michigan's equine population and prevent human exposure.

EEE is caused by a virus that is transmittable, by mosquito, to people, horses, birds, and various other mammals. Southwest Michigan suffered the loss of 20 horses to this disease in 1995. Although human infection with the virus is rare, five Michigan residents and a small child from Indiana who spent a lot of time in southern Michigan have contracted EEE since 1980. One of these cases occurred as recently as 1995.

Detecting an outbreak of EEE is critical because the disease is fatal in 90-95 percent of horses and 60 percent of humans that become infected. Birds recover quickly from the disease and serve as a reservoir for the virus. Horses and humans are unable to contract the disease from each other, and only become infected after being bitten by mosquitoes that feed on infected birds. Horses that develop symptoms of EEE are the best indicators that the virus is within a particular area.

In horses, symptoms of the disease include fever, progressive muscle incoordination and paralysis. Human symptoms include a high fever progressing rapidly to coma. The Michigan Department of Community Health urges Michigan residents to avoid contact with mosquitoes. Reasonable precautions include: avoiding areas where mosquitoes are prevalent, particularly during evening hours when they are most active; using insect repellent when it is necessary to be out-of-doors; and repairing defective window and door screening to keep mosquitos out.

Family teamwork building urged

Building family teamwork can be a lot easier if you know how to go about it. One way might be to speak to your child often about the privileges and responsibility in the family and increase your child's privileges based upon his or her acceptance of that responsibility.

Here are seven tips from Robert and Dorothy DeBolt, parenting consultants to the IOF Foresters, that will help you build better teamwork in your family.

1. Hold regular family meetings to discuss teamwork.
2. Stress that life is better when you work as a team.
3. Write down your children's privileges (what they get, such as room and board).
4. Write down your children's responsibilities (what you expect in the way of chores, etc.).

5. When possible, have your children pick which chores they "get" to do.

6. Offer ways your children can earn money through extra work.

7. As coach, be ready to praise your child for his/her participation.

A not-for-profit fraternal benefit organization which has more than one million members, the IOF Foresters (<http://www.iof.org>) is dedicated to helping families through such programs as free fingerprinting for children, care for needy hospitalized kids through the Children's Miracle Network, and child abuse prevention programs. For more better parenting tips call 1-800-922-4-IOF.

Peach production plummets

The 1996 Michigan peach crop forecast as of July 1 was 40 million pounds, according to the Michigan Agricultural Statistics Service. That is down 33 percent from the 1995 crop.

The frigid winters of 1994 and 1995 have caused the death or poor performance of many trees. Buds were killed this February in many sites that are not close to Lake Michigan.

Frost damage varied slight to severe.

Many peach blocks close to the lake, however, have very good yield potential despite a fairly heavy June drop. Pit hardening was complete.

U-M launches Internet project

The University of Michigan Comprehensive Cancer Center will create a statewide network of interactive computer kiosks to link residents with up-to-date health information on the Internet. The $1 million project, approved by Gov. John Engler as part of the state's Community Health budget, is the first of its kind in the nation.

The Michigan Interactive Health Kiosk Project calls for between 50 and 100 computers — housed in kiosks similar to those used for automated bank-teller machines — to be deployed in Michigan communities early next year. Complete with touch-activated screens, printers and custom software, the computer kiosks will provide limited access to the World-wide Web and will display a highly interactive home page developed and updated by experts at the U-M.

"Our goal is to reach people in a way they can relate to and enjoy, so the kiosks will look more like interactive TVs than computers," says project leader Victor J. Strecher, Ph.D., M.P.H., professor of public health and director of the Cancer Center's Prevention and Control Program.

"The kiosks will help bridge the information gap between the 300,000 Michigan residents currently using the World-wide Web and the millions who might not have convenient access to this technology yet," Strecher says.

Kiosks will be set up in libraries, work sites, health clinics, shopping malls and other public areas, with a particular emphasis on reaching medically underserved individuals.

"I feel that it's critically important, at a time when diagnostic procedures and treatment regimens for cancer and other diseases are changing so rapidly, that the public is as well informed as possible as to what their health options are," said Sen. John J.H. Schwarz, M.D., who sponsored the Michigan Interactive Health Kiosk legislation.

In addition to providing information about local, regional and statewide screening and prevention resources, the kiosk software will create personalized self-help guides for those interested in changing a particular health behavior.

Strecher gives the example of a 60-year-old woman who expresses interest in getting a mammogram but is concerned about radiation and is worried about finding cancer. The program will address her concerns by reviewing and printing specific information about the low level of radiation used in mammograms and the benefits of early detection. A list of local providers offering mammography services will also be printed.

"Studies have shown that, compared to standard mass-produced materials such as pamphlets and booklets, health messages tailored to an individual's needs and interests are much more likely to result in a positive health behavior change," says Strecher, who also directs the U-M Health Media Research Laboratory, a program of the U-M Cancer Center and School of Public Health.

Public health and medical specialists, computer programmers, graphic artists and Hollywood Screen Writers Guild writers will join forces on this project to develop interactive content on a broad range of health topics — everything from getting screened for cancer and having your children immunized to quitting smoking and changing your diet.

"We are excited to offer this unique resource to the state of Michigan and expect that the kiosk project will serve as the model for others around the country who are interested in delivering public health information in a more entertaining and effective way," says Cancer Center director Max S. Wicha, M.D.

For more information about the Michigan Interactive Health Kiosk program, consumers should call the U-M Health System at (800) 742-2300, ext. 7855.

Skye Malette of Dollar Bay, Erin Cole of Chelsea, and Katie Horosko of Concord extract calcium carbonate precipitate during a continuous filtration experiment in Michigan Technological University's engineering units operation laboratory. The experiment was part of the week-long Women in Engineering Program held a MTU for senior high school students.

AAU Volleyball

Scott Kalitta to log 10,000 miles in races

The most grueling part of the National Hot Rod Association season tour is now upon drag racers. Knowing this is a crucial point in the chase for the Winston Championship, drivers, crews and cars are pushed to the limit. However, when you're the two-time defending Winston Top Fuel Champion, you know no limits.

Such is the case for Scott Kalitta of Chelsea, who along with his father and teammate, Connie, will be fielding American International Airways/Sequent Computers Top Fuel dragsters in the western races-in-three-weeks swing. To do so, the quickest-and-fastest-father-and-son team in motorsports will log over 10,000 miles to cover what they hope will be six miles of race track, a quarter-mile at a time, in under two minutes time total.

Both will return home between events to tend to business at their Ypsilanti-based air cargo companies. Connie is the owner of American International Airways, while Scott owns Trans Continental Airlines.

After two runner-up finishes this season, Scott scored his first win in the recently completed Western Auto Nationals in Topeka, Kan. He also recaptured his speed record by running the fastest speed ever - 315.67 mph. That win puts him just 17 points behind Winston points leader Blaine Johnson.

Connie posted his career-best numbers at Topeka when he ran 4.701 at 309.59 mph. His efforts to record his first win at Heartland Park were dashed when Scott defeated him in the semifinals. Connie remains in the seventh position in the Winston points chase.

The first event in the western swing will be the Mopar Parts Mile-High Nationals, July 19-21, at Bandimere Speedway in Morrison, Colo. Not only is Scott the defending series champion, he is also two-time defending champion of this event. In the final round of last year's event, the 34-year-old Chelsea resident set the track record for elapsed time at 4.813 seconds. Connie's chance of winning his third event here were thwarted in round one last year by Eddie Hill. Connie's previous Mile-High wins came in 1984 and 1985.

The next stop will be the wine country of Northern California for the ninth annual Autolite Nationals, July 28-29, at Sears Point Raceway in Sonoma, Calif. While in Denver you must figure the altitude into your tune-up. In Sonoma, heat is the factor. Last year's temperatures approached 105 degrees.

The heat, however, couldn't stop Scott from setting low elapsed time of the event at 4.842 seconds in round one. Eventual winner Mike Dunn, though, did stop the defending champion in the semifinals. When Scott won this event in 1994 he became the only Top Fuel driver to ever win four consecutive events.

The final stop on the swing will be the ninth annual Northwest Nationals, Aug. 2-4, at Seattle International Raceway in Kent, Wash. Scott's runner-up finish at this event in 1994 ended his win streak at four but tied him for the record of five consecutive finishes. (At the next event, the Champion Auto Stores Nationals, Scott set the record with six consecutive final round appearances.) At last year's event Scott defeated Connie in round one before falling to Cory McClenahan in the semifinals. Last year was only Connie's third appearance at this event.

Qualifying for the 18th annual Mopar parts Mile-High Nationals will begin with two sessions on Friday, July 19 at 4 and 8 p.m. Qualifying concludes with two sessions on Saturday at noon and 4 p.m. Final eliminations will begin at 11 a.m. Sunday, July 21. ESPN will air a one-hour highlights show from the event at 9:30 p.m. (EDT) on Monday, July 22.

Professional drivers will have their first attempts at qualifying for the Autolite Nationals at 2 and 7 p.m. on Friday, July 26. Qualifying concludes with sessions on Saturday at noon and 4 p.m. Final eliminations are slated for 11 a.m. Sunday, July 28. ESPN will air a one-hour highlights show from Sonoma at 8:30 p.m. (EDT) on Saturday, Aug. 3.

The Northwest Nationals will kick-off qualifying on Friday, Aug. 2 at 2 and 7 p.m.; Qualifying will conclude Saturday with sessions at noon and 4 p.m. Final eliminations will begin at 11 a.m. Sunday, Aug. 4. ESPN will air coverage from Seattle at 9:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 5.

School board amends athletes' conduct code

Chelsea High School's athletic code of conduct for the 1996-97 school year features two prominent changes.

First, the updated document defines and extends the time period it applies to Chelsea athletes.

"Student athletes will be governed by the Athletic Code of Conduct from their first day of involvement in interscholastic athletics through graduation from high school. It is important to emphasize that all athletes are covered by the 'Code' the entire 'calendar year,' the updated document states.

Previously, the athletic code of conduct only governed students during the academic year.

Second, the length of penalties for violating the drug, alcohol and tobacco provisions of the code will be measured in days rather than percentages of a season.

For example, a first violation of the policy would result in a 30-school-day suspension from participating in athletic contests. An athlete would still be required to practice and attend games, in street clothes, with the team.

Previously, a first offense would have resulted in a similar suspension for 50 percent of the team's season.

A second offense will now result in a 60 school day suspension from athletic events, with the same conditions attached as with a first offense.

A third violation will result in the student losing eligibility for participation in athletic activities for the remainder of his or her high school years.

Students will be responsible for the new athletic code of conduct from the first day of the 1996-97 school year.

1996 warblers census second highest count since 1951

According to the Department of Natural Resources, Michigan's 1996 population census of the endangered Kirtland's warbler is the second-highest count since the census began in 1951. During the official 1996 survey in June, researchers, biologists and volunteers counted 692 singing males. A record high of 765 singing males was established in 1995, compared to the record low count of 167 in 1987.

This year, 85 percent of the warblers were located in Oscoda, Ogemaw, and Crawford counties. The number of singing males found in nine northern Lower Peninsula counties were as follows: Alcona, 48; Crawford, 75; Iosco, 10; Kalkaska, six; Montmorency, one; Ogemaw, 191; Oscoda, 324; Otsego, 19; and Roscommon, four. A record 14 singing males were found in four Upper Peninsula counties: Baraga, one; Delta, two; Marquette, five; and Schoolcraft, six. This year's Upper Peninsula count is the highest since the first bird was found there in 1981. At least six females were observed with the males, indicating nesting activity in the Upper Peninsula.

"This is only the second year that mated pairs have been found outside of the traditional nesting areas in the northern Lower Peninsula," said Thomas Weise, DNR endangered species coordinator. "Especially encouraging are the increased numbers of birds in outlying areas of Otsego and Alcona counties and in the Upper Peninsula."

The Kirtland's warbler numbers are directly related to the amount of available nesting habitat. The nests of the sparrow-size, blue-gray and yellow bird have been found only in jack pine stands located in northern Michigan. A ground nest, it nests only in stands of trees between five and 16 feet high with live branches that extend to the ground. Historically, these stands of young jack pine were maintained by naturally-occurring wildfires that frequently swept through northern Michigan. Fire suppression programs altered this natural process, reducing Kirtland's warbler habitat. Today, wildlife biologists and foresters from state and federal agencies conduct a combination of clearcutting, burning, seeding, and replanting to mimic the effects of wildfire. Over 2,500 acres of jack pine trees were planted on state and federal lands in the spring of 1996, and an additional 1,800 acres will be planted in the fall. These plantations will provide habitat for warblers in six to 10 years. Meanwhile, census numbers are expected to remain near current levels for a few years until larger areas of new habitat are available.

"The number of Kirtland's warblers counted in plantations specifically planted for warbler nesting habitat increased from 57 percent last year to 63 percent this year," Weinrich said. "One 1,600-acre plantation in Ogemaw County had 100 singing males. This shows that our management direction toward larger plantations is appropriate."

"The reduction in this year's total count from last year is due to the decline in the suitability of larger areas of aging jack pine habitat, combined with a slower-than-hoped-for increase in the occupancy of younger habitat areas," said Jerry Weinrich, DNR wildlife biologist, Houghton Lake Wildlife Research Station. "Some 2,000 acres of new habitat were used for the first time this year. Even though a similar amount of new habitat will become available each year for the next several years, it will not immediately make up the difference in the loss of large habitat areas that are becoming too old for use by Kirtland's warblers."

"The success of the Kirtland's warbler management program shows that the Endangered Species Act works," said Gary Boushelle, field operations supervisor, DNR Wildlife Division. "This success in restoration of the warblers' nesting habitat is a tribute to scientific wildlife management and the cooperation among DNR biologists and foresters, the USDA Forest Service, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Department of Military Affairs."

The Kirtland's warbler survey is conducted over a 10-day period each year during the first two weeks of June. The 1996 survey was a joint effort of state and federal land management agencies, the Michigan Department of Military Affairs, the forest products industry, local government and the general public. The Kirtland's warbler census and habitat restoration program is one of the many programs supported by the Nongame Wildlife Fund, which receives donations made on Michigan state income tax forms. For more information on the Kirtland's warbler, contact the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, Wildlife Division, Natural Heritage Program, P.O. Box 30180, Lansing, Mich. 48909-7680.

Family Medicine

By John C. Wolf, D.O.
Associate Professor of Family Medicine, Ohio University College of Osteopathic Medicine

Question: I'm an insulin-dependent diabetic. My doctor recently started me on a new medicine called Precose. It has reduced the amount of insulin I need, but I'm concerned about it causing low blood sugar. Is Precose a safe medicine?

Answer: Precose is the brand name of a new drug with the generic name acarbose. It helps a diabetic individual control blood sugar by delaying the absorption of sugar from the digestive tract. But before I say more about it, I want to review some background information on diabetes for you and my other readers.

Diabetes is a complicated illness that affects every part of the body. The easiest change for doctors to measure is the increase in blood sugar that is the single most characteristic feature of this disease. Despite this overabundance blood sugar — or "glucose" in doctor jargon — the body's cells have difficulty using it to fuel their metabolic activities.

Those with high blood sugar levels are labeled with the diagnosis "diabetes," but this condition can come about from two very different causes. Some individuals have inadequate levels of insulin, the hormone necessary for cells to use this glucose effectively, because the insulin producing cells of the pancreas become damaged. These individuals require insulin shots to replace the insulin their bodies can't make. The term you used in your letter, insulin-dependent, describes you and individuals in this situation.

The individuals with the most common form of diabetes make sufficient amount of insulin, but their body's cells can't use it properly. The body responds by raising the glucose level in the blood to try and make it more available to the cells, and this causes the high sugar that establishes the diagnosis of diabetes. This prevalent form of diabetes is most common later in life, and a diet high in sweets and/or obesity can contribute to it.

Regardless of the cause, treatment for diabetes involves eating a diet that is very low in sugar. Individuals with the second form of diabetes — often referred to as "adult onset," "type II," or non-insulin-dependent diabetes" — may achieve adequate control of their disease by diet alone. However, medication to help the cells use the naturally produced insulin more efficiently or to increase the level of insulin produced by the pancreas are often prescribed.

The medicine, Precose, delays the absorption of sugar from the digestive tract. This minimizes the amount of sugar that is available from the food you eat and can be helpful for individuals with either type of diabetes. It won't cause low blood sugar as medicines that increase the production of insulin can. The greatest problem with this new drug is the stomach upset and gas that are common side effects. A few people find them sufficiently severe that they stop taking the medicine. Since you haven't complained of stomach upset, I'd suggest that you continue with Precose, just as your doctor prescribed. It won't cause your blood sugar to drop too low, it just helps it stay in the normal range.
