Board won't allow charter students in sports

By Angela Trotter
Special Writer

In a decision that garnered a great deal of emotion, the Chelsea School Board decided unanimously to implement a policy not to allow charter school students to participate on Chelsea High School athletic teams.

"This wasn't an easy decision and it wasn't done lightly and it wasn't done simply," said board member Jill Taylor.

The decision stems from a request by Alison Paul, a Chelsea resident who attends daVinci charter school in Jackson, to play on the Chelsea High women's soccer team. Alison has played with the team for many years, with her father, Jim Paul, as the coach.

"I choose to go to a charter school because it meets my educational needs," Alison Paul said. "I love to play soccer, and I'd really enjoy to keep playing with my team."

However, the Paul family and the school board members had different perceptions on the ramifications of forming this cooperative.

"We propose that this agreement be limited to daVinci students who reside in the Chelsea School District, that it be limited to the spring 1997 season and that it be limited only to women's soccer," said Jim Paul in a letter to the board.

The school board did not see this as a single, one-time request.

"We don't have the luxury to look at one single student or one single school or one single sport," said board member Conrad Knutsen. "We must look at the larger policy issue."

The school board's policy committee presented a list of six reasons why such cooperatives would be unfavorable. These reasons did not sit well with the Paul family

"When the notes from this meeting were made available to us yesterday, it became apparent that these "broader policy issues" are not really issues at all, but are rationalizations meant to allow Chelsea Public Schools to continue to discriminate against charter school students," Jim Paul said.

One reason the school board found this agreement unfavorable is because "cooperatives" are usually formed for the purpose of mutual benefit, and in this association the benefits were not perceived as mutual.

The Pauls, however, listed what they found to be a number of benefits for the Chelsea School District.

"Benefits to the Chelsea Public Schools would include improved continuity in the Chelsea women's soccer program, the support of members of the Chelsea Soccer Club,

Dody Wyman of the Sylvan Bird Rescue shows students from South Elementary School a Great Horned Owl at the Washtenaw County Environmental Fair. Also, youngsters gather around a van powered by natural gas

Young students enjoy environmental fair

More than 800 fourth and fifth grade students from Manchester, Dexter and Chelsea school districts learned about our environment last Wednesday as part of the Washtenaw County Environmental Fair.

The fair contained interactive programs, including a natural gas car, endangered birds and a presentation on how worms help turn garbage into soil.

"As human beings, we need to breathe, drink water and eat. Animals need to do this too," said Hope Hart, an event organizer. "If our water is polluted, we can't drink it. If our air is not clean we can't breathe well. Mother Earth is the only space ship we have, and we need to protect it."

Dody Wyman, who works at the Sylvan Bird Rescue, showed the students a Great Horned Owl and a Screech Owl as part of her presentation. Both birds were not able to live on their own in the wilderness, so they are now being cared for.

Wyman gave a presentation on how birds hunt, find shelter and survive.

"She sits in the tree at night where her prey doesn't see her, flies down quietly and grabs the prey with her talons," Wyman said. "The prey dies almost instantly."

Matt Heumann of Washtenaw County Parks gave a presentation on the flood plain and how its ecosystem is completely integrated.

He talked about Flemming Creek, which is spring-fed, as one of the cleanest bodies of water in the area.

"In cold water, like that from a spring, there is a lot of oxygen. Pollutants don't dissolve very easily, so its an ideal place for animals to live," Heumann said. He stressed that the soil, animals, plants and streams all affect each other.

Rebecca Kanner and Sarah Archer explained to the students the processes and merits of composting.

"We're putting things that grow, or used to grow, together with some other ingredients, and it turns into soil," Kanner said. She explained that worms, fungi and microbes all contribute to the process of making new soil.

The students also got to see an automobile powered by natural gas, learn about alternatives to hazardous wastes and the hazards caused by destruction of Earth's ozone layer.

Each student who attended the Environmental Fair received a free T-shirt with a design by Jay Roberts, a South Elementary School student.

State adult education cuts force cutbacks

Shifting around of the state's education budget has forced cuts in Chelsea's adult education program, severely limiting educational opportunities for individuals who want to earn general education diplomas or brush up on needed skills.

According to Jeff Rohrer, Chelsea's Community Education director, the state legislature cut adult education funding by two-thirds last year.

A "Kids Count in Michigan" study from the 1991-92 school year through the 1993-94 year, shows that 73,522 students dropped out of high school in Michigan.

Chelsea's adult education program, like many around the state, allows these students who haven't finished high school to earn a GED, the equivalent of a high school diploma

The state's funding cuts have resulted in limiting the number of people who can enroll in adult education classes, as well as increasing class sizes for those who are enrolled, Rohrer said.

"The governor had a study done, which has been refuted by several other researchers, that indicated Michigan is spending more money for adult education programs than other states," Rohrer said. "He felt that people who mess up when they're 16 or 17 shouldn't be entitled to a second chance."

Rohrer said Gov. John Engler revised his budget to eliminate funding for adult education altogether, however the final state budget did allot some funds for this purpose.

Rohrer said cuts in state funding for adult education will be detrimental to both the individuals and the community.

"As the economy and employers require more technical training for employees, the employees will need a good basic education," Rohrer said. "If they haven't completed high school, they will probably not have the background needed to complete technical training."

Rohrer said this will force individuals to remain in low-wage, low-skill jobs.

"As the years go by, those who made a mistake can't go back and receive that education," he said.

In addition, money allotted to help inmates in Michigan's correctional facilities earn high school diplomas has also been slashed dramatically.

"People on parole and probation are finding programs aren't available to them," Rohrer said.

He said he has seen a lot of support from both communities and individuals who are attempting to save adult education programs. Every year, however, programs are cut and are less able to accommodate those in need.

"I think across the state, especially in smaller districts, we're going to see less and less opportunities for people to go back and get the education they need to succeed in life," Rohrer said. "That's going to be a long-term problem."

Domino's store closed but may re-open

Local pizza connoisseurs may have been disappointed to find that one of the area's pizzerias, Dominos Pizza on Main Street, has been shut down.

Officials at Dominos have said they don't know yet whether the restaurant will re-open. The franchisee has left the company, according to officials, and the corporation is in the process of deciding whether to re-open the pizzeria under corporate management.

Supervisor candidate is convicted felon

By Michelle Rogers
Associate Editor

A man with a criminal record is among the choices for Dexter Township Supervisor in the November general election.

Burton Hoey, running as a Democrat against Republican challenger John Sdao, is a convicted felon, admitted batterer and drunk driver, among other things.

Hoey, 49, is wrapping up two years of probation for a felony conviction on utilities fraud, to which he pled guilty in 1992. He is also serving nine months probation for domestic violence, which he pled no contest to May 6 and was sentenced June 13. A plea of no contest is taken as a plea of guilty but can not be used as admission of guilt in a civil case.

In 1985 Hoey pled guilty to drunken driving, a year later he pled no contest to receiving and concealing stolen property and in 1987, 1991 and 1994 he pled guilty to driving a vehicle with a suspended driver's license. His record for traffic infractions is also immense.

In a recent interview with Hoey, he stated one of the reasons he is running for office is because he thinks the township is involved in too many frivolous lawsuits. "That's where I really see they waste money, with the legal fees," he said.

"I think the township spends too much on foolishness as far as attorneys suing township residents where they could probably work it out without a lawsuit," Hoey asserted.

But according to court records, Hoey is no stranger to initiating lawsuits. He is listed as the plaintiff in seven civil lawsuits, the majority of which were over landlord-tenant disputes, in District Court. He has also been involved in 10 lawsuits in Circuit Court between 1984 and 1995.

Hoey has no prior political service. He is a 1965 Dexter High School graduate who served six years in the Army and briefly attended Washtenaw Community College.

Hoey is self-employed as a contractor, manages Jenny's Farm Market on the corner of Dexter-Pinckney and Island Lake Roads for his daughter and he owns several rental properties in the Dexter area.

Opening Remarks

By Brian Hamilton

It seems almost certain that Chelsea is going to end up with a mobile home park somewhere. The only question is where.

Developers Phil Jenkins, Steve Tracy and Martin Merkel are forcing the village to make some extremely difficult decisions that will have a major and long-lasting impact on the entire area. They still like the idea of building on the eastern edge of the village on land owned by Merkel near the wastewater plant. However, now they may have a choice if they can hook up successfully with Chelsea land speculator Harold Allen.

Allen appears to have won, at least temporarily, the rights to a large parcel of farmland adjacent to the only area in the village zoned for mobile homes. He says he wants to develop all the acreage into a mobile home park surrounded by a nature/recreation park. He would move the area for mobile homes further north off Cavanaugh Lake Road. The biggest chunk of land would have to be annexed so the mobile homes could be served by village utilities.

Like the proposed venture in Lima Township, the size and scope of this mobile home project is undefined. As of this writing, no plans have been filed with the village.

This all has the potential for the village to jump from one snakepit to another.

What is particularly troubling about Allen's proposal is his refusal to consider developing all the land under a Planned Unit Development. A PUD would be a good way to let the village know he is serious about limiting the scope of the mobile home project and actually developing the nature park. It would also quiet many skeptics who say this project will never happen.

Without a PUD or some other guarantee, there are simply too many variables. Once these mobile home developments gain a foothold, they can spread quickly. If developers get hold of all the property Allen may eventually control, the Jenkins/Tracy proposal for Lima Township may seem tiny by comparison.

Six hundred or more mobile homes is simply too many for this village, no matter where they're located.

If Tracy and Jenkins are talking with Allen, and millions of dollars are at stake, it makes you wonder what's really being said and planned.

If Allen follows through with exactly what he told us he wants to do, I'm all for it. But I'll believe it when I see it.

A snide comment in this column a couple of weeks ago about village council being overpaid brought a friendly challenge by one of the members.

As it turns out, their pay, with the exception perhaps of the village president, is right in line with other similar municipalities. Here, trustees make $50 per meeting and the president $200.

In Dexter, trustees make $40 per regular meeting and the president makes $200; in Milan, a city, the pay is $50 and $100, respectively, for council members and the mayor; in Saline, another city, the pay is $1,300 and $2,600, annually; in Stockbridge the pay is $40 and $85; and in Manchester the pay is $50 and $185.

Uncle Apollo

Dear Uncle Apollo,

Ever since those NASA people found life on Mars, I've been noticing a lot of strange people around Chelsea. It that just a hoax by NASA people to keep their program going or is this real? And is there any relationship to the strange people I've been seeing around Chelsea? Please don't tell me I'm crazy, I can't afford a psychiatrist.

-Worried

Dear Worried,

You came to the right place. Put your mind at ease. This life that NASA found was only microscopic organisms. The kind of things like bacteria and viruses and pollen that can get inside of you and do terrible things, that surround and suffocate you although you will never be able to see them even as they are causing you a horrible death. These may very well be surrounding us right now, ready to take over, but you'll never have to worry about seeing them, so you can relax on that count.

As far as all of the strange people you have been seeing, you don't have to be concerned about them being from Mars. Some of them are from Oakland Hills and Grosse Pointe and New York City, coming in to see the new play at the Purple Rose. Ever since "Dumb and Dumber," the place has become big box office. I realize that some of them look like aliens, but you can rest assured that they are harmless.

Other people are from places like Ann Arbor and Taylor and Livonia, who are moving in in droves because they like the small town atmosphere that Chelsea has to offer and are willing to pay for it as long as they can shut the door behind them and make sure that no one else is able to move in after them.

Another group of strangers around here are roving bands of developers, looking for trees to cut down and places to jam huge amounts of new people into so that the place will become a big city that eventually everyone will want to move away from because it will be full of traffic congestion and weird people and crime and smog and cow gangs.

Can you imagine it? These mean spirited four-footed gangs running around mooing when we are trying to sleep and making little sticky white puddles of milk all over the place. And we'll never get any rest, and we'll all be miserable and will end up hating each other and wishing we were any place but here. But none of these people are from Mars, so you can rest easy about that part.

I hope you feel better now. Any time you need some more free psychiatric counseling, feel free to write.

Board should do what's best for Dexter Twp.

Thanks to your article, on Jim Drolett, Joe Boltach and I decided to communicate our long standing desire to end all of the unnecessary litigation directly to the township board. As your later article points out, everybody except Jim Drolett was willing to talk.

Joe Boltach and I agree that far too much citizen money has been spent on the seven-and-a-half year old lawsuit. Of course, that is not news. Our attorney offered to settle the lawsuit on behalf of nearly the entire Portage Heights Subdivision and Joe Boltach even before it was filed and again only a few days after it was filed. He offered several more times after that. Each time, Dexter Township said no.

Because there was never anything in the township meeting minutes about our settlement offers, and far other reasons, our lawyers made two assumptions to guide their litigation strategy. First, that Drolett made the township's litigation decisions without township board participation. Second, Drolett's goal was to show us who was boss. Because of that approach, we were not surprised that he would complain about litigation costs one week and then refuse three weeks later to even talk about how to stop them. After all, he has not finished showing us who is boss.

All of that is history. Drolett nearly is. The majority of the township has made it clear that it is time to end this wasted litigation. The only question left is "how".

The sewer case suit was filed in May, 1989, when the Dexter Township Board refused to change its decision about including the subdivision and Joe Boltach's property. Because the board would not state a reason for that decision, we were under the impression that we were included only to help pay for the system. That is why we went to the lawyers.

Eventually, the Michigan Tax Tribunal held a hearing. We called all five township board members, we called the builders who built all but two houses in the area, we called the only two Health Department officials who testified in the case, we called the person hired by Dexter Township who performed an "expert appraisal" of value, and we called a few of the property owners. We submitted around 30 exhibits, mostly public records obtained under the Freedom of Information Act. Dexter Township called the sewer salesman, Ray Smit, and the appraiser. Dexter Township submitted a dozen or so documents.

After trial, we asked the Michigan Tax Tribunal to compare what the Dexter Township Board did with what the law required them to do. Dexter Township asked the Michigan Tax Tribunal to assume that everything was done properly. The tribunal decided that it was not allowed to decide whether the board did or did not obey the law.

We asked the Michigan Court of Appeals either to decide the questions or to tell the tax tribunal to do its job. Dexter Township asked the Michigan Court of Appeals to assume that the Michigan Tax Tribunal did the right thing.

The Michigan Court of Appeals surprised everybody by deciding one thing you all know is false. The Michigan Court of Appeals decided that we gave up before we started introducing evidence in the Michigan Tax Tribunal. Naturally, we asked the Michigan Supreme Court to tell the Michigan Court of Appeals to do its job, but the Supreme Court would not take the case. That was not surprising since they take very few cases.

The United States Supreme Court has said we have done everything we need to do to get their attention. Dexter Township now has a few weeks to tell the United States Supreme Court why it should not take the case.

As your article pointed out, none of the Dexter Township Board members wanted to be asked to respond at the Oct. 15 meeting without having a chance to do research. Therefore, I gave Dexter Township's attorney, your newspaper and each member of the township board two documents. In one, (6 pages), we asked the Dexter Township Board to:

1) Put an end to Jim Drolett's illegal plan to litigate us into debt with user fee lawsuits that he knows he can't win.
2) Decide once and for all whether Boltach may or may not sell his two vacant lots and to act consistently with that decision.
3) Review the specific reasons why we believe the assessment is illegal and to decide for itself whether we are right. We also asked the board to take appropriate follow-up action.

The second document is a five-page explanation of our legal opinion. Your readers may obtain copies from Joe Boltach at (313) 8713-6929.

Boltach and I have particular problems that need to be addressed, but they do not need to be resolved in a way that is harmful for the township. Neither we nor the township will benefit from several more years like the past. We hope and expect that the Dexter Township Board will do what they believe to be in the best interest of the entire township.

With the combined creativity of the board members, Peter Flintoft, Jon Luker and the members of the public who attend the Oct. 15 meeting, we are extremely confident that a way can be found to end our suffering without causing our neighbors to suffer nearly as much as they have in the past. Just having this discussion will cut down on the costs we all can expect in the future.

It will be very interesting to see whether or not Jim Drolett lends his energy and ideas to the process of making this litigation go away.

Abe Williams

Can we afford a supervisor like Sdao?

Mr. Sdao is attempting to take the moral high ground. He has expressed alarm over the "mud slinging" which he has been observing. He wants a clean and honest campaign. What a wonderful idea. Spread lies, rumors and allegations to smear your opponent in the primary. Then when the chickens come home to roost, beat your breast and give an anguished cry against responses which point out the falsehoods and misleading information. Say it's all just mud slinging and dirty politics. Say it isn't so, John!

Unfortunately for candidate Sdao, saying it does not make it so. Mr. Sdao wants to 'return' fiscal responsibility. If it needs to be returned, where did it go? Dexter Township finished the 1995 fiscal year with a $28,723 surplus! In his primary campaign ad Mr. Sdao compared 1983 and 1995 finance data in order to give the impression that the township's fiscal house was out of order. In 1983 the township had a shortfall of $12,567. Maybe the good old days weren't so good after all.

Mr. Sdao also wants to "return" integrity to the township government. Again the question is who is missing this integrity? Mr. Sdao's landlord and campaign treasurer is directly responsible for a series of lawsuits against the township. Mr. Sdao's supporter has lost his suit at every level, even the Michigan Supreme court! Yet each time the township is obligated to defend itself against these suits. These suits are costing the taxpayers money. How much of the 467.3 percent increase in legal expenses that Mr. Sdao mentions in his primary campaign ads is a direct result of this suit?

When people violate the laws of the township, do you want the township to stand behind those laws and see them enforced? When people sue the township to stay out of special assessment districts, do you want the township to defend its decision? After all, when people sue the township government, or violate its ordinances, they are thumbing their noses at us, the citizens of Dexter Township. They are saying that they should be able to do whatever they want. The rest of us may abide by the rules and regulations, but they are 'special'.

Do you want a supervisor who is backed by the "special" people, or a supervisor who stands for up for what is right and fair for all the citizens of Dexter Township?

In the Sdao campaign ad the question posed was: 'Can we afford four more years of Jim Drolett?' I would ask, "Can we afford a supervisor like Sdao for any period of time?" He has already said that he would hire a full-time manager. Why? Won't Mr. Sdao be able to keep office hours? Is the intent to replace the zoning officer, the blight officer, and four clerical jobs with one manager? Is this manager going to be Superman? I doubt it.

The citizens of Dexter Township have a supervisor who does do the right and fair thing for all the citizens of the township. The citizens have zoning and blight officers who enforce the ordinances of Dexter Township vigorously and fairly. The citizens of Dexter Township have clerical help who often go out of their way to be helpful and of service to all they come in contact with. I think the citizens are pretty darn lucky with things just as they are now!

A Letter to the Community

Of Concern To Women

Breast cancer is the most common malignancy diagnosed in women and it is second only to lung cancer in causing cancer deaths in women. It is estimated that in 1996 alone 184,300 new cases of breast cancer will be diagnosed and 44,300 women will die from this disease. Although there are certain factors which increase a woman's chance of developing breast cancer, most breast cancers occur in women with no family history or other identifiable risk factors. Breast cancer is something all women should be concerned about.

Currently, breast cancer cannot be prevented, but there are steps a women can take to decrease her risk of dying from this disease.

Discovering cancer when it is still at an early stage is the best way to improve the chances that it can be cured. Unfortunately, at the present time, almost half of breast cancers are not diagnosed at a localized stage. We can do better than this!

Regular mammography, combined with clinical breast examination, is a woman's best defense against breast cancer. Mammography is the single most effective method of screening, since it can detect cancer at its earliest stages, several years before a lump will be felt by a woman or her doctor. Presently, however, only 30% of women age 50 and older reported having a mammogram within the past year (which is the recommended screening interval) and only 68% of all women age 40 and older reported ever having had a mammogram.

The American Cancer Society recommends:

Age 20 - 39: Monthly breast self-exam and, clinical breast exam every three years.

Age 40 - 49: Monthly breast self-exam, annual clinical breast exam, and mammography every 1-2 years. (baseline by age 40).

Age 50 +: Monthly breast self-exam, annual clinical breast exam, and annual mammography.

At Chelsea Community Hospital, a trained, caring technologist who is registered in mammography, will perform your exam on equipment that is accredited by the American College of Radiology and Michigan Department of Public Health. Your mammogram will be interpreted by a Radiologist with extensive experience in breast imaging. Screening routine mammography for women without symptoms is available. In addition, complete diagnostic mammography and breast ultrasound for women with a palpable lump or other breast symptom(s) are also available.

If you are over 40 and have never had a mammogram, or if you are over 50 and have not had a mammogram in the past year, discuss these recommendations with your doctor. Give yourself the best odds against cancer; get a mammogram!

Sincerely,
Deborah Jeffries, MD

—Crop Walk a Success—

Sunday's Chelsea Crop Walk to fight hunger had a large and enthusiastic turnout. Nearly perfect weather greeted the 200 or more walkers who started out from St. Paul United Church of Christ and walked the 10 kilometer course. Walkers solicited pledges in order to raise money. A portion of the proceeds is used locally.

No athletes from charter schools forming a positive alliance with a charter school and the perception on the part of the community that the board was doing the right thing," Jim Paul said.

Board member Janet Roberts said traditionally, cooperatives are formed by the Michigan High School Athletic Association for schools that could not have otherwise supported specific athletic programs. In this case, she said, Chelsea can clearly have a women's soccer program without this cooperative.

"We do have the obligation to protect the students attending this school district," said School Board President Jane Diesing.

Jim Paul said the school could protect its students in determining the specifics of the agreement.

"The board can and should stipulate that at least 90 percent of the women's soccer team be comprised of students who attend Chelsea High School and could also stipulate that the remainder should reside in the Chelsea School District," Jim Paul said.

Chelsea Superintendent Ed Richardson disagreed.

"Our philosophy in our decision is that the percentage should be 100," Richardson said.

Jim Paul said he does not understand why, as a taxpayer, his daughter should be discriminated against because she chooses to attend a charter school.

"The board can do what it wants, and if it just plain doesn't want to help out in this area, then they need to be honest about their prejudices," Jim Paul said.

Richardson said the reasoning behind this policy comes from a sincere desire for the district's policy to match its mission statement.

"Students who are taxpayers and attend school here should receive the first benefit," Richardson said.

Board member Scott Broshar agreed.

"We have to answer a question of what we want as a district," Broshar said. "As a board we want to be as broad-based as possible. That's what we want to offer to students who go to Chelsea schools."

Alison's mother, Nancy Paul, expressed dismay that the school board only takes responsibility for the students in Chelsea Public Schools.

"They don't care about my daughter as a member of the community," Nancy Paul said.

She said her daughter will explore other options to continue playing soccer. She was, nonetheless, very disappointed in the board's decision.

"I really believe this community is more open-minded than this," Nancy Paul said. "So many people were so supportive of Alison playing."

When it came down to the final decision, the board members emphasized that this ruling would be setting a policy for the future, rather than just addressing this single instance.

Township candidate has criminal record

Because he is self-employed, Hoey believes he can be more accessible for township residents and provide better service as a result. "I am available seven days a week where a lot of people like this fellow who is running against me holds a full-time job," he said.

Hoey claims to be the best candidate because of his life-long residency and personal connections. "I have a lot of wisdom as far as life goes, and I associate with people who give me good counseling," he said, citing his 93-year-old mother, Frances Hoey, and long-time friend, Carl Lesser, as confidants.

"I think they would counsel me to the point where I couldn't make any mistakes," he said.

As far as issues affecting the township, Hoey says the Multi-Lake Sewer project and proposed Dexter Village bypass are both concerns. Hoey called the sewer project "somebody's mistake" and predicted assessments will not cover the total cost. He also supports a bypass around Dexter Village rather than construction of a new tunnel to relieve traffic congestion.

According to Washtenaw County's Election Division, a candidate with a criminal record can seek local office. Hoey's most recent convictions, utilities fraud and domestic violence, have cost him over $2,000 and probation but no prison term.

The domestic violence conviction carried $300 in fines and costs. Hoey had to reimburse his victim's attorney fees and was forced to participate in a domestic violence program on the weekends. Once he complied with those orders, a 90-day jail sentence was suspended and he was placed on nine months probation.

The felony conviction for public utilities fraud landed Hoey 24 months probation from Oct. 25, 1994 through Nov. 19 of this year. He was also ordered to pay Michigan Consolidated Gas Company $1,924.58 for natural gas he was convicted of stealing by extending a pipe from 8010 Forest Street to his rental complex at 8008 Forest Street in Dexter.

Court records show gas was shut off at his rental property Sept. 19, 1991 for non-payment of a bill. MichCon was told in January 1992 that the building was being heated by an electric baseboard. But upon further investigation, MichCon workers found a gas line had been illegally run underground, connecting a converted garage at 8010 Forest Street with Hoey's neighboring apartment building. The siphoned natural gas was supplying fuel to a gas boiler and gas hot water heater in the complex.

Burton Hoey

As for the fraud conviction, Hoey blames a tenant for the crime and says he was held responsible because he was the landlord. "I had no choice but to plead no contest," Hoey said recently. "I didn't do it." But court records show as the former account holder, he was the only one to gain.

Group still studying city status for Chelsea

By Angela Trotter
Special Writer

In a novel titled Nausea, philosopher Jean-Paul Sartre explores the notion that words can never truly represent the people, concepts and objects that inspired them; therefore, one's choice of words is insignificant.

Yet in the reality of our world, the choice of one word over another can be a crucial one. Such is the case with the distinction of the municipality of Chelsea as a "village" rather than a "city."

According to Ann Feeney, the executive director of the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce, this distinction is an important one.

That is why a group of local citizens has been working for several years to try to change Chelsea's status from a village to a city.

"It's a very long process," Feeney said. "We had do a lot of work to define things such as where the new boundaries would be."

Changing the village's status to "city" would provide Chelsea with more autonomy in making its decisions, according to Feeney.

"Right now the village is in two different townships, and is mostly governed by the townships. They do all the assessing on properties," Feeney said.

She said that under the status of a village, proposals to build a four-lane state highway through the town could go through without any input from the village. As a city, however, local government would be taken more seriously.

Feeney said she has not encountered many people who have been opposed to these plans.

"Most of it was for nostalgic reasons," Feeney said.

She said as part of this proposal, the city would keep the name "Village of Chelsea" for historic purposes.

Before this change can be implemented, the proposal must go through many stages of state government approval and be put before Chelsea's citizens for a vote.

Township need to be saved from? To paraphrase candidate Sdao's ad, if the citizens of Dexter Township do not make their voices heard in November, we may indeed wind up paying the consquences!

Committee should be formed to study development

Though I appreciate being quoted in your recent article (10/3) on the proposed subsidized senior citizen housing project next to South Meadows Elementary School, I feel the point I was trying to make to the Chelsea Village Council was missed.

The proposed 80-unit project is still in it's "concept" phase. If the council grants a property tax break to the project, or if the Village Planning Commission rezones a portion of the parcel of land to allow the high-density project at this early phase, the community loses its legal right to have input as the "concept" evolves into something more real.

The council voted on a written proposal that had not been seen by any neighboring residents. I'm surprised that any council members voted in favor of this at such an early stage.

If this project comes before council again, I hope that at a minimum, a committee representing council, the planning commission and affected area residents be created to work with the developers to ensure that the development takes place with the best interests of the area property owners, the school district and the tax payers as a whole in mind. Anything short of that and the residents of Chelsea may lose our ability to keep the development accountable to the community.

The developer is asking Chelsea to become a "partner" in this project. This means more than giving a tax break and letting them do what they want. Residents of the area have a right to participate in on-going discussions about this process. We expect council and the planning commission to keep us informed if there are further proposals of this nature.

PRO-PROTEIN DIET FOR DOGS

J.F. Lane, D.V.M. M.C. Lane, D.V.M.

Veggies and whole grains may be all the rage in human diets, but for dogs, protein still rules. Protein is not the only nutrient dogs require, but it is probably the single most important one, necessary for growth and fighting off disease. Protein is especially important for puppies, pregnant or lactating dogs, and dogs recovering from illness. Not all protein in dog foods is created equal, however. For example, the protein from horse meat is not as effective nutritionally as the protein from beef or fish, and can even cause digestive distress among some dogs. Vegetable proteins also tend to render poorer duality nutrition. Canned non-whole-meat dog foods often contain so much moisture that many cans are needed to supply adequate protein. In addition, the heat used to process some commercial products may lower the protein and vitamin content of the food.

If you are concerned about your pet's nutritional needs talk to us at LANE ANIMAL HOSPITAL, 636 North Main Street (475-8696). One of our many services is nutritional counseling. We treat our clients and "patients" as we would like to be treated. Services are provided by appointment only and are available.

HINT: Raw starchy foods like potatoes can cause diarrhea in dogs. If you want to offer a few bites, make sure it is cooked.

HOW TO REDUCE SWELLING

There are two kinds of swelling associated with dental problems (trauma and infection) and they are treated in different ways. So, first you should determine the cause.

Usually you'll know if it is the result of a trauma, such as a baseball bat to the jaw or a dental procedure like a tooth extraction. Swelling from an infection is usually preceded by pain and may cause an overall sick feeling, with fever and perspiration. In either case, you should see the dentist as soon as possible. Alleviating the swelling doesn't cure the cause.

For swelling caused by injury or dental procedure, the treatment is ice. An ice pack should be applied for a minimum of half-hour on and half hour off.

For swelling caused by an infection, heat is applied. A heating pad, hot water bottle or hot towel applied to the face will dilate (enlarge) the blood vessels and enable more of the infection-fighting elements of the blood (or antibiotics, if they have been prescribed) to come to the infected area.

Brown Bag Book Club to hear pair of reviews

McKune Memorial Library's Brown Bag Book Club will meet on Monday, Oct. 14, from 11:45 a.m. to 1 p.m., upstairs at the library.

Marie McHenry will review "Archyology: The Long Lost Tales of Archy and Mehitabel" by Don Marquis, and "A Valley in Italy" by Lisa St. Aubin De Teran.

According to McHenry, "Archyology is just a little book, of lost Archy and Mehitabel tales literally rescued from oblivion by Jeff Adams when he found them among some papers stored in a steamer trunk since Marquis' death in 1937."

"A Valley in Italy, also a little book, is a wonderful tale of how the author fell in love with an Italian palace and began to restore it." said McHenry.

The book reviews will begin promptly at noon and end no later than 12:30 p.m. A discussion period begins after the review for those who have sufficient lunch hour time to stay and participate.

Anyone interested in joining the group should attend the meeting, or call the library for further information (475-8732).

The County Perspective

By Joseph Yekulis, County Commissioner

Now that there's a chill in the air and fall is finally upon us, much of our attention is turning toward the upcoming General Election on Tuesday, Nov. 5. With that in mind, I thought it would be interesting to discuss the "Electoral Process," and the vital role that Washtenaw County Government plays in ensuring that every vote is tallied in our national, state, county, and local elections.

The Electoral Process in Washtenaw County is administered by our colorful Clerk/Register of Deeds, Peggy Haines. Peggy has been a county employee now for 36 years. She served as the chief deputy in the Register of Deeds Office for 24 years before becoming our clerk/register in 1990, and is well known for her patriotic red, white, and blue clothing ensembles.

Peggy supervises a staff of 44 employees at the County Building in downtown Ann Arbor, and besides elections, her other duties include managing court services, vital records, register of deeds, and retirement.

The Election Division is staffed with two full time employees, Sandra Isaacson and Rosemary Elfring, who have both been in the office since 1989. The total budget for the Clerk/Register's Office is $2,600,000.

In preparation for an election, the first step in the process is to organize the ballots for printing after candidates file for election during the month of May. Ballots must be prepared for both the primary and the general elections, and this process takes a great deal of time and effort.

Once the ballot language is approved for each municipality, there are four types of ballots printed for use throughout the county. Traditional voting machine ballots, punch card ballots, absentee ballots, and the new optical scan ballots. According to Haines, optical scan is the wave of the future, and her goal is to see it being used on a countywide basis eventually. It involves using a pencil to draw a line or circle on the ballot to indicate your choice of candidates, then it's fed into a machine that tallies the vote immediately. The advantages are that it rejects spoiled ballots, allowing a voter to re-vote immediately, and it provides us with up to the minute vote totals as election night moves on.

This new system is now being used throughout the City of Ann Arbor, and allows Ann Arbor to be the first reporting municipality after the polls close.

Election Day is a long and exciting day for the clerk's office. Voting begins countywide at 7 a.m., the polls close at 8:00 p.m., and the night ends at around 1 a.m. Election staff works from 7 p.m.-1 a.m., and paid volunteers are brought in to handle the additional workload.

Each city village, and township clerk's office has their own staff of volunteers to assist in the electoral process. So when you add it all up, there are probably well over 100 people handling Election Day responsibilities countywide to ensure that we all have the ability to exercise our constitutional right to vote as a free people.

Even the Sheriff's Department gets into the act, as deputies assist in transporting sealed ballots from the outlying areas into downtown Ann Arbor for their final tally.

Once the election is complete, the last part of the process is the certification of the results by the Board of Canvassers. The Board of Canvassers is made up of two appointees and two assistants from each major party appointed by the Board of Commissioners, and has 14 days to certify the election under state law.

According to Haines, the job is usually finished within one week, and then the results are sent on to the State Elections Division.

The act of voting is a birthright granted to all Americans aged 18 and older and is not something that should be taken for granted. Haines provided me with some interesting statistics concerning our elections in Washtenaw County during the past four years. Out of approximately 200,000 voters, we had a turn out of 67.29 percent during the Presidential Election of 1992. The Congressional elections in 1994 brought out 48.85 percent, and the Primary Election of this year brought out only 14.61 percent of Washtenaw County voters.

I know that very few people take the time to vote in primary elections, but we've got to do something to stop this downward trend. You need to look no further than the fact that five incumbent supervisors were ousted in Washtenaw County during this year's primary elections to see the impact that not voting has on our local units of government.

Although some of you feel that it's great to purge the system of incumbents every now and then, those of you who didn't care enough to vote in August don't have much to complain about when you bemoan the perceived lack of qualified candidates on the November ballot.

Many of our family members and friends have died in service to their country to protect the many freedoms that we take for granted in the United States. Voting is something that we cannot take for granted, and I would urge all of you to take the time to vote on Tuesday, Nov. 5. You can make a difference! Absentee ballots are still available from your local village or township clerks and can be mailed directly to your homes if you can't get out or plan on being out of town.

Finally, Haines can use additional help in the clerk's office on election night, and is willing to pay anyone who would like to assist her that night. Her office can be reached at 994-2503.

Pierce Lake course has good first year

With its rolling hills, beautiful scenery and challenging holes, the Pierce Lake Golf Course in Chelsea has scored a hole-in-one with area golfers in its first year of operations.

The Washtenaw County-owned course has facilitated more than 26,000 rounds of golf so far this year, according to Fred Barkley of the County's Parks and Recreation Department. He expects an additional 4,000 rounds by the end of October, when the course is scheduled to close.

"We've done very well," Barkley said. "We've exceeded our projections and we're pretty excited about that." He added that public feedback about the course has all been very positive.

"One of the unique things about this golf course is that it has very large greens, with four tees per hole," Barkley said. "That's not something you find on most public golf courses."

Robert and Mark Musolf, a father and son golfing duo, said Pierce Lake is their favorite place to golf.

"It's the nicest public course around here," Mark said. "It brings a lot of people into town too, so I guess its good for our economy."

Robert said a public golf course of this calibur is unusual in a town such as Chelsea.

"We've seen many cases in the clubhouse where people along the expressway have seen the course from the road and have stopped for a round," Robert said. "They're usually still raving when they walk out the door."

Barkley said if the snow conditions are conducive this winter, the area will also be opened up for cross-country skiing.

Plans are in the works to construct two permanent rest rooms and rain shelter facilities before next year, according to Barkley.

"That will be a nice improvement," he said.

In addition, construction of a boardwalk around the lake will begin this winter, but the project is not expected to be completed by next summer.

"There is some beautiful nature and wetlands back there that we want to make available to the public," Barkley said.

He said the county as a whole is very pleased with the success Pierce Lake Golf Course has seen in its first summer.

"We can see from public response that this is something that was really needed here," he said.

Mark and Robert Musolf take off for a round of golf at Pierce Lake Golf Course. The course has facilitated more than 26,000 rounds of golf in its first year of operations.

Joseph Albright and Suzi Regan appear in Jeff Daniels' new play "Apartment 3A" now playing at the Purple Rose in Chelsea.

Daniels less apparent in new 'Apartment 3A'

By Steven W. Daut
Special Writer

Apartment 3A, the new play by Jeff Daniels, is a snapshot glimpse of Annie Wilson's struggles as she rents a new apartment and tries to sort out her life after breaking up with her boyfriend.

Annie is the director of marketing for Public Broadcasting Channel 68, which is in a funding crisis that leaves everyone concerned about their jobs. To make things even worse, Annie keeps falling in love with men who treat her badly, and she generally cares too much in a world that doesn't give a darn.

And now in her new apartment, before she even has a chance to get a good cry going, some guy named Donald shows up, claiming to love his wife but acting suspiciously like he's trying to put the make on Annie.

All of this leaves Annie a bit out of sorts, and she reacts by letting her next plea for public funding get slightly out of hand. Then, a seemingly innocent lunch date with coworker Elliot makes things even more complicated for her. Eventually, she must struggle with her feelings about love and relationships and religion and multiple orgasms and the death of Big Bird. By the closing scene, she has, at least, found the hope to begin that struggle.

Suzie Regan is absolutely convincing as the intense, neurotic Annie. Randall Godwin maintains a perfectly-poised position on the edge of too-good-to-be-true, remaining aloof but caring in an odd sort of way. As it turns out, this is appropriate for the character. Joseph Albright plays Annie's coworker Elliot, and Leo McNamara plays the landlord, Mr. Dalrymple.

Technically, the set is simple, but the transitions are difficult. There is a lot of scene shifting and inter-fingering of scenes, which is done with subtle changes in lighting and mood, and after the first couple of switches, this device is handled very well by the actors and technical designers, Dan Walker and Dana White. Director Guy Sanville is to be congratulated for pulling together all of the elements necessary to keep the audience with him through the rapid-fire shifts in time and place.

This play is billed as a comedy, but there is equal measure of sadness, philosophy, and struggle for meaning in life. It seems to me that there is a fair amount of religious imagery, with trinities both holy and unholy (the apartment number itself suggests this imagery), a Holy Ghost, and even a crucifix pose by Annie. This is mixed in with some frank religious discussion and a sex scene as graphic as they get at the Purple Rose.

There is the beginning of a theme around miracles and the beginnings of belief, but it doesn't quite fall together, and remains a bit obscure at the end of the play. It seems to be about faith, about belief and hope, be it faith in a religion, or simply belief that it is possible for each of us to waltz with the one we love. I believe this one represents a very personal statement by playwright Jeff Daniels, which makes it even more interesting because the playwright is more invisible here that in any of his previous plays.

It is, rather, the story that dominates through a combination of solid scripting, direction, and acting. This is a good play to see if you want some fun, some thoughtfulness, and aren't offended by fondling and grunting (or growling).

Performances are scheduled through Nov. 17. Call the box office at (313) 475-7902.

WCC enrollment continues to rise

Enrollment is on the rise at Washtenaw Community College this fall. Preliminary figures show that 10,265 students enrolled in credit classes this fall, an increase of 4.3 percent (424 students) over last year's headcount for the eighth day of class. According to the Michigan Department of Education, this gain is the highest enrollment increase recorded by a community college in Michigan this fall.

Enrollment statistics as of Sept. 12 showed that schools such as Lansing (-1.2 percent), Oakland (-4.0 percent), Monroe (-2.0 percent), Kalamazoo (-4.5 percent), Grand Rapids (-4.4 percent), Delta (-3.9 percent) and Macomb Community College (-1.6 percent) were all posting enrollment decreases. At Schoolcraft Community College enrollments were staying even and increases were recorded for Henry Ford (1.9 percent) and Kellogg Community College (3.0 percent).

While enrollment gains at WCC were found across the board in all academic areas, the Business Division realized the largest enrollment increase, especially in computer classes. Almost every available computer section filled to capacity this fall which put a strain on the number of workstations the college has available to students. The interest in computer courses underscores the college's need to expand and upgrade its facilities in an effort to keep up with the growing demand.

At WCC this fall there were more first-time students than last year; however, enrollment for returning and readmitting students is expected to increase when the second seven-and-a-half-week courses begin later in the semester. There also were increased enrollments from younger students this fall, lowering the average age for new students to 25. The current average age of WCC students is 30.

This increase is due, in part, to an increase in high school students participating in the state-wide dual enrollment program. This program allows high school juniors and seniors the opportunity to register in WCC courses if for financial reasons their school cannot offer a program or course. With dual enrollment, they can receive both high school and college credit, important savings for the K-12 systems as well as families. This year, 201 high school students enrolled in WCC classes, an increase of 65 percent over last year's count of 122.

Credit hours generated by the increased enrollments also rose over last year's figures by 3.72 percent, from 69,375 to 71,954, an increase of 2,579 credit hours.

Practical keys to weight loss

By Greg Landry, M.S.
Exercise Physiologist

Busy schedules tend to mean more high fat foods and less exercise. For most people, this can be a very difficult time to lose (or even maintain) weight. But, according to exercise physiologist and author, Greg Landry, there are 11 keys to losing weight on a busy schedule.

1. Eat earlier in the day - Food eaten earlier in the day tends not to be stored as body fat. Your evening meal should be your smallest meal, with a snack such as fruit a couple of hours later. Busy people tend to eat very little all day and then a huge evening meal...the worst possible scenario!

2. Always eat breakfast - When you skip breakfast, your body goes 16 to 20 hours without food! It thinks you're "starving" and kicks-in its protective mechanisms...your metabolism slows down and it begins to "burn" your muscle as fuel!

3. Plan your meals - If you don't plan ahead, you will usually end up eating whatever's available and quick...typically high fat/high calorie foods. Shop for groceries based on the meals you've planned for the week.

4. Each weekend, prepare your food for the following week - If your schedule is busy, chances are you won't take time on weekdays to prepare meals. Most people resort to "fast food" that is typically high in fat/calories. Cook a couple of low fat dishes in quantity on the weekend to use as lunch and dinner meals that week.

5. Take your lunch to work - You'll be assured that you're getting a low fat meal and you won't have to spend your lunch hour fighting traffic. Eat outside or somewhere quiet. Relax!

6. Always have snacks on hand - Never go more than three hours without eating something. The hungrier your are, the less control you have over what, and how much you eat.

7. Eat less fat - Simply put, eating fat makes you fat! Be aware of fat in your food and eat less of it.

8. Drink plenty of water - Take a big bottle of it (60+ ounces) with you every day.

9. Go to sleep earlier and rise earlier - The later you stay up at night the more you tend to eat at night...a difficult time to resist "junk snacking"! Rise early and exercise first thing in the morning before the business of the day crowds it out of your schedule.

10. Make exercise a part of your daily schedule - Be consistent in scheduling some form of activity on a daily basis! This will help you physically and mentally.

11. Avoid the 3 P's... weight loss "Pills", "Powders", and "potions".

'Shaken Baby Syndrome' shouldn't be taken lightly

Shaking a baby, even one time, can delay normal development, result in brain damage, spinal injury, retardation, or even death. Shaken Baby Syndrome is a medical term used to describe the shaking and resultant injuries sustained when infants are violently shaken.

Every year thousands of babies are injured and some die from being shaken as part of a pattern of abuse or simply because an adult has momentarily succumbed to the frustration of responding to a crying baby.

The IOF Foresters, a fraternal benefit society that offers family benefits and supports child abuse prevention and better parenting causes, suggest the following tips if your baby cries a lot:

- Feed the baby slowly; burp the baby often.
- Offer the baby a pacifier.
- Hold the baby against your chest and walk or rock him/her.
- Take the baby for a ride in a stroller or car or put him/her in a baby swing.
- Take a break. Have someone else take care of the baby for a while if possible.
- Never Shake Your Baby!

Child abuse is the number one killer of children under the age of four in America, with estimates of 2,000 to 5,000 deaths per year and more than 140,000 serious injuries. Head trauma, including suspected Shaken Baby Syndrome, is the leading cause.

A fraternal benefit society with more than one million members, the IOF Foresters is dedicated to helping families though such programs as free fingerprinting for children, car for needy hospitalized kids through the Children's Miracle Network, and child abuse prevention programs.

Should women consider hormone therapy?

By Debbie Barrow, Extension Home Economist, Washtenaw County

HRT - Hormone Replacement Therapy is rapidly becoming a buzzword as the boomers head toward menopause.

Menopause is the stage in a woman's life when menstruation stops and she can no longer bear children. During menopause, women produce less of the female hormones estrogen and progesterone. The loss of estrogen may cause troublesome symptoms, including hot flashes and sleep disturbances.

With the loss of estrogen, some serious health risks increase. These include heart disease and stroke, the leading cause of death for women over the age of 50. Estrogen loss may also lead to bone loss and osteoporosis - a condition of accelerated bone loss 0 affects 24 million people in this country.

Hormone Replacement Therapy (HRT) can ease symptoms of menopause and protect against risks of heart disease and osteoporosis. Though millions of women take HRT, it may not be the right choice for everyone.

Many experts believe the benefits of HRT are greater than the risks. They recommend HRT for women who have had hysterectomies involving removal of the ovaries, women who are at high risk for heart disease and osteoporosis and women whose symptoms of menopause are severe enough to interfere with their enjoyment of life.

Why not use HRT? All drugs have side effects and everyone reacts to drugs differently. Some women cannot tolerate the side effects associated with HRT, which can include headaches, vaginal bleeding, fluid retention, swollen breasts and weight gain. Side effects may be minimized by adjusting the dose or form of therapy.

Other considerations include studies that show increased risk of various cancers, including uterine and breast cancer, with use of HRT.

Do you need HRT? The answer to this question should involve from discussions between you and your health care provider. You can get more information by contacting the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) Women's Initiative at 1-800-424-3410 for a fact sheet; and the National Institute on Aging, 1-800-222-2225, for more information on menopause and other topics related to health and aging.

This is Mental Health Week

Good preventive health care includes paying attention to the emotional and psychological well-being of every member in your family. You may have questions about your children's temper tantrums, sibling rivalry, moodiness and crying, fighting with peers or difficulties in school.

Families today face many stresses including birth of a child, death of a relative or friend, marriage, remarriage, divorce, significant job or career changes and moving.

Coping effectively with these changes and problems can mean the difference between becoming seriously ill or staying emotionally and physically healthy.

Mental Health\Awareness Week is Oct. 6-12. A good mental health consultation can address all of these concerns. A consultation with a therapist or psychiatrist can help you identify your difficulties, more fully understand the nature of your problem(s), and begin to help you manage them. Sometimes the problems can be resolved in just a few sessions.

Mental Health Consultations and Services are available for you through Chelsea Community Hospital Behavioral Health Services Programs. They can be accessed by calling Assessment Services at 800-328-2616 or 313-475-6051. Many insurances are accepted.

Your Money Matters

by Michael Kelly

Wouldn't it be wonderful if you could lessen your monthly mortgage payment by $50 or $100? If you are like millions of other Americans who put down less than 20 percent when you purchased you home you just might be able to.

These days coming up with a large down payment is difficult for most home buyers. In response, the real estate marketplace has created mortgage programs which require as little as 3 percent down to qualify. However, in order to provide the millions of perspective home buyers with this opportunity, lenders must take steps to protect themselves from bad loans. Statistics show that low down-payment loans are more likely to go into default than loans where the borrowers have more of their own money at stake. Mortgage insurance is the answer. Without mortgage insurance you and millions of other homeowners would probably have been denied for your loans.

Anyone who buys a home with less than 20 percent down is generally required to carry mortgage insurance. As invaluable as it is, mortgage insurance has its drawbacks. It cost you money. For example, if you have a $120,000 30-year loan for your home and you put 5 percent down, your insurance premium would be about $78 monthly. That's on top of your house payment.

Thankfully, you needn't carry mortgage insurance forever. When the difference between what you own and what your home would sell for on the market (equity) reaches 20 percent you may no longer need to carry mortgage insurance. Equity is gained in three ways: by completing major renovations or improvements which significantly increase the value of your home; by paying toward the principal on your loan, and through an increase in your home's value.

If you think that you have reached the 20 percent equity level and you're still paying mortgage insurance you should contact your lender and request to have the insurance policy canceled. You may be required to have your home reappraised to confirm its current value; generally you will have to pay for this service. If you must, ask your lender for a list of approved appraisers to there won't be any questions later.

If you find that you have not reached a level where your lender can remove this insurance, take steps to get there quicker. If you pay even a little bit more toward your mortgage each month, you apply that extra amount toward your principal which will more reduce your total loan balance faster. In fact, on a 30-year mortgage, if you make one extra payment each year, you will pay your loan off in only 22 years. Translated into dollars, a $100,000 30-year mortgage at 8.5 percent financing would cost a total of $176,814 at the end of 30 years; the same mortgage paid off in 22 years would cost $121,337. By making one extra payment each year you could save yourself $55,476 in interest.

If you do qualify to have the coverage removed, keep paying the amount you were before. That extra money can now be applied to your principal, increasing your equity each month. The more equity the better!

Send your financial questions to "Your Money Matters" C/O the Michigan Credit Union League, P.O. Box 5040, Southfield, Mich. 48086-5040.

Third annual Apple Daze slated this Saturday

Dexter Area Chamber of Commerce will host its third annual Apple Daze festival Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Monument Park.

The event has been organized this year by the Dexter Merchants Association, a division of the chamber, and Parents for Safety. It's the brain child of the association and among four seasonal festivals the group organizes with the chamber. Other events include Holly Daze this winter, an Ice Cream Social in the spring and Dexter Daze in the summer.

"It's done as an effort to provide the community with an opportunity to do something in town," explained Carol Model, a member of the Merchants Association and Dexter Area Chamber of Commerce.

"The merchants originally got it started as a way to promote shopping in Dexter, but it has become more of a fund-raiser this year to help build sidewalks in Dexter," she said.

Parents for Safety has worked closely with the Merchants Association on this year's event. The group has offered ideas for more children's games and will provide more volunteers to man the festival. A portion of the proceeds will go toward the committee's sidewalk fund.

Apple Daze will feature about a dozen craft booths, tractor rides, an apple pie eating contest, children's carnival, a few amusement rides and a clogging demonstration by the Redcedar River Cloggers, comprised of area residents.

Other highlights include a composting demonstration, children's fingerprinting and a senior citizen bake sale.

Last year's event was on a chilly and misty day, Model says, but several hundred still came. "We're hoping it's a little nicer day," she said about Saturday. Several tents will be set up in the park in case of rain.

An apple-pie-baking contest will net three winners. The event is sponsored by Dexter's Pub and includes Pub gift certificates for prizes.

The apple-pie-eating contest is sponsored by Dexter Lions Club. "It's always a big success," Model said. "They set up tables. It's quite a sight to see."

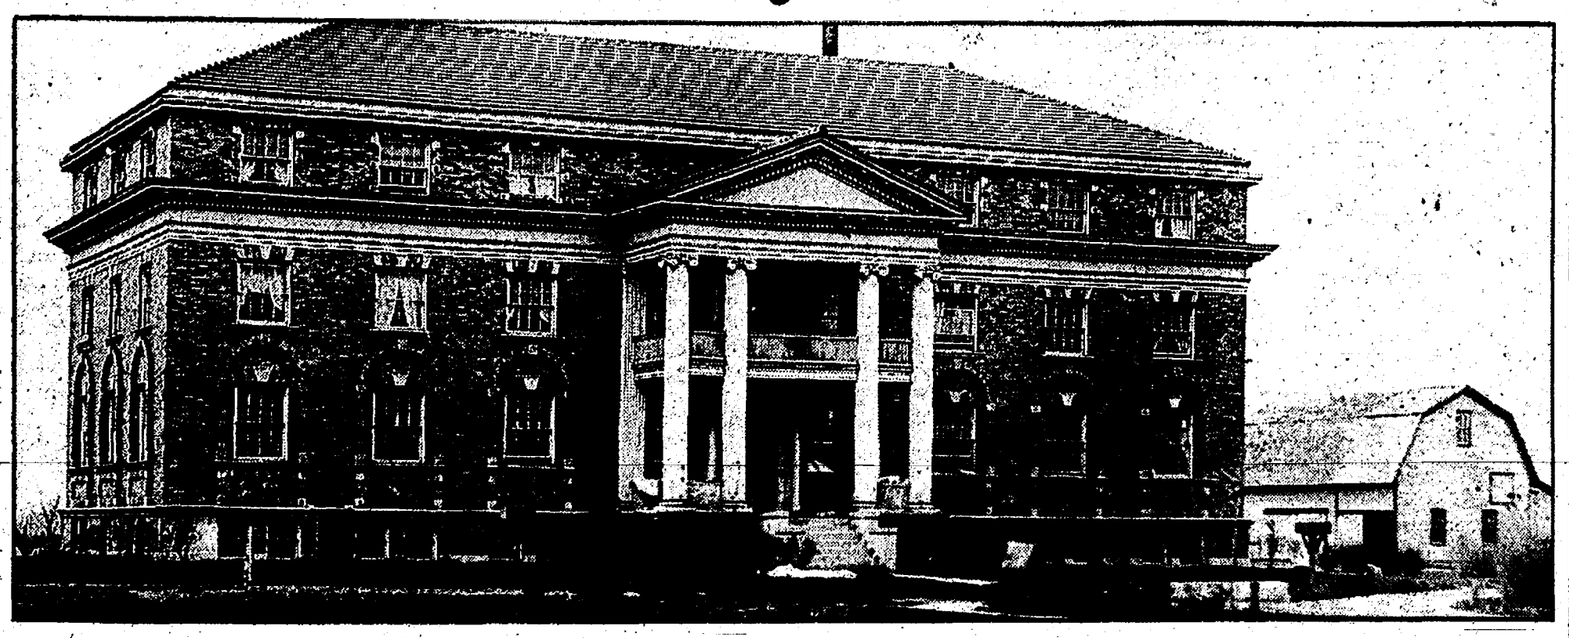
—The Way It Was—



Retirement home built

By Kathy Clark
Special Writer

The Chelsea Retirement Community is celebrating its 90th anniversary. It was incorporated in 1905 and, at that time, was known as the Chelsea United Methodist Home. The home received its first residents for life care on Dec. 1, 1906. Eleven residents moved into their temporary home, a three-story house at the corner of South and Garfield Streets owned by Harold Glazier.

The first building was occupied and dedicated Oct. 30, 1907. It was built on land donated by Frank P. Glazier a member of the Methodist/Episcopal Church in Chelsea. It was named "The Old People's Home." Since 1906, approximately 2,500 residents have called the retirement community their home.

The Rev. Seth Reed (1823-1924), a Methodist minister who rode the Michigan circuit on horseback, and the Rev. James Jacklin wrote the articles of incorporation. The Rev. Reed was the first superintendent of the Chelsea United Methodist Home.

In the spring of 1997 a bona fide museum located below the Chapel will tell the retirement community's history and stories of its residents.

The photograph of the original building and barn was taken in 1907. The home was mostly self-sufficient, farming with horses, keeping its own cows and gardens Surplus food was received from local farmers. The Methodist churches of the Detroit Conference gave further support.

The photograph of the farm wagon was taken in the 1920s and shows employees, left to right, Herbert Hepburn, Mr. Ward, Mr. Brasius and Lelah (Bain) Knickerbocker. Lelah remembers using it for chores and riding it into town on shopping trips.

Lelah began working for the home in 1923. Her employment covers a total of about 40 years off and on during the last 73 years. The following are her memories of early life at the home.

LIVE IN HELP

"I came to work for the Methodist Home in 1923. When I started they just had the main building and the south wing (built in 1915). I was working in 1926 when the 28-room north wing was built.

"All the help had to 'live in' and work for their room and board. Our wage was $40 a month—a good wage in those days. Each girl had a floor to live on and take care of. We kept the rooms and halls clean. In those days we had open stairways and they were all carved and beautiful. We kept the stairways polished and clean.

"Only the matron and maintenance man had cars. The rest of the help walked. However, there was a taxi cab we could take for a quarter to go any place in town or out to visit friends or family. Chelsea had a theater (Princess). A bunch of us girls would all get together and go to a movie after work.

"In the 1920s they wouldn't hire anyone who smoked, and if they found out they were smoking they got fired!

"The home had one floating nurse who also lived in. When someone got sick they stayed right in their own room. We did not have a separate nursing facility. Sometimes when the nurse got awful tired and needed rest, she'd call on me to sit up at night with the patients."

MEALS

"They raised their own garden vegetables. They kept cows in the barn. I had to strain the milk into crocks and skim the cream off in the morning for coffee. I put milk in pitchers for their cereal. The gardeners would bring in the garden produce and everybody would help wash, peel and prepare the vegetables for the meals. We didn't do much preserving, except for pickles and things like that.

"Cooking was done on big gas ranges. Our bread was home-baked and we sliced it to make toast in big ovens. We all ate our meals on four long tables. Meals were served family style. The dining room was in the basement. Big serving dishes of food were passed around.

"To get the food trays up to the sick people we had a "dumb waiter" that we pulled by a rope.

"We didn't serve supper on Sunday evening. Each member took a lunch home with them so the employees could have Sunday afternoon off. Sunday evenings employees took turns staying in to take hot pots of tea to each room. The tea had to be carried up the stairs."

BATHING

"Each hall bathroom had an open-flame gas stove for every-body to use. I don't ever remember having a fire drill.

"An open cistern was out in back covered over with just a board. Anybody could go out there to draw up buckets of water by rope. They'd take water to the bathroom, heat it on the gas plate, then wash their hair or whatever they wanted to do with it. We had one lady who would take her little bath tub to get hot water. Then she'd drag it back to her room with a rope."

WASH DAY

"A big laundry room was located in the basement. We did not have a modern way of doing laundry. Two people did the washing and all employees had to help hang everything on outside lines. In the winter washing was hung in the basement. Linen table clothes and linen napkins were washed and hung. On the next day we'd put all the flat work through the "mangles" (ironing machines)."

CHURCH

"The home had a large parlor in the main building where they held church services on Sunday. I think we had a minister who lived in what they called a tenant house or minister's cottage." (In 1952 a Colonial style chapel was built).

* * * *

Lelah, better known as Knicky, has seen many changes in the last 73 years at the Chelsea Retirement Community. Today the retirement community has 350 residents and 240 employees.

The original buildings she first worked in were taken down in 1990 and replaced with the modern Dancey House Apartments.

Recently, Knicky was pleased to find the original farm wagon preserved in the museum. Next spring Knicky is looking forward to revisiting the history of the home she lived a large part of.

Report issued on technology for schools

In an effort to better prepare its students for the challenges of the 21st century, the Chelsea school district is looking to improve the technological equipment available to its students.

The school board heard a recommendation by Jeff Wale of Childs Consulting Associates, Inc. on how to best spend $3.5 million in bond money to improve the school's technological systems.

All three elementary schools and Beach Middle School will be connected to one another and the high school by fiber optic cables. This will allow for easier, more convenient communication among the schools. For example, students at Beach Middle School could access the high school's card catalog to see whether the library had a certain book.

The plan includes putting three computers in every classroom of the district's schools, in addition to new computer laboratories in each school building.

The plan also calls for televisions in all classrooms and video cassette recorders in all of the elementary school classrooms and selected middle and high school classrooms.

Wale recommended Chelsea High School be equipped with a satellite dish and television studio that would allow the school to broadcast live school events throughout the facility, as well as receive satellite programs and a posted electronic bulletin board.

The school's food service will also be automated, with a debit-card system. Parents can put money into accounts for their children and get printouts of what exactly was purchased with the account money.

Wale said the school's administration can become more efficient by using computers to automate class scheduling, progress reports and student attendance. Things such as accounting, general ledger, payroll and student services can also be automated.

The district plans to hire a technology coordinator and two assistants to train staff, maintain new systems and be available for consultations.

Annual Pioneer Day Sunday at museum

Step back to harvest time, 1880 or thereabouts, Sunday, Oct. 13 from noon to 5 p.m. at Waterloo Farm Museum as the Waterloo Area Historical Society presents its annual Pioneer Day.

Smell the wood smoke, watch the blacksmith and tinsmith at work, check out the weavers and spinners getting ready for the winter clothing preparation. Taste molasses cookies warm from the bake house, then check out what's for dinner, cooking on the log cabin hearth and watch the good, rich milk turn to butter in the churn.

Whether you're old enough to remember tales your folks told, or young enough to revel in the "Little House" books by Laura Ingalls Wilder, Pioneer Day at the Waterloo Farm Museum is the place to be to celebrate fall.

During the afternoon, visitors can watch the preparation of meals and the making of the essentials of life on the 19th century farm. Good things to eat are for sale and the gift shop is stocked with items reminiscent of by-gone days, along with books to refresh memories of that time and souvenirs of the farm.

Chairman Andrew Nadolny has gathered together musicians playing harmonicas and others playing dulcimers to underscore the 1800's setting. There will be hayrides in the big wagon behind huge draft horses and a visit by Abraham Lincoln (who is campaigning this time of year and is really Bill Ames from Manchester) and a frontiersman (Bill Casello from Ann Arbor) to tell stories of exciting adventures in the wilderness.

Members of the Civil War reenactment groups representing the 24th Michigan Volunteer Company and the 5th Kentucky Company C will be on hand. A cannon will sound over the Portage marsh as the 5th Battery Light Artillery fires a few rounds during the day to keep everyone alert.

Whether your taste runs to primitive folk art, stained glass, woven goods or handmade brooms, you'll find demonstrators willing to part with their wares for a price. If you get hungry, try a taste of the famous Waterloo Bean Soup, and pick up a jar and the secret recipe to try at home. Taste freshly made cider and baked goods packaged for nibbling on the grounds or taking home. Load up with home-made preserves and jellies and vegetables from the stands.

In the house—there is a charge for the tour featuring docents in every room—you will be able to watch a plasterer at work, using the time-honored skills of the trade. Since the farmhouse was built in 1855, it does need some repair from time to time.

In the big barn, visitors will find a wonderful selection of dried flower arrangements to choose from, grown, picked and fashioned by farm volunteers.

Just up the road, you can visit two other important institutions of 19th Century life—the Dewey Schoolhouse and the First Methodist Church of Waterloo at Territorial and Parks Roads. Dewey school is a one-room school where children in grades one through six studied together. Retired teacher Helen Hannewald and her volunteers will tell more about that experience.

Individuals and families can refresh their pioneer spirit by heading out to the Waterloo Farm Museum. It can be reached from I-94 by heading north on Clear Lake to Waterloo Village then three miles north on the Waterloo-Munith Road. From I-96, take the M-52 exit to Territorial Road (west) and from there to Parker to Waterloo-Munith (south). It can also be reached by taking M-52 north from I-94 to Waterloo Road and following that to the farm.

There is no charge for admission to the grounds.

Chelsea Kiwanis officers installed Sept. 23 for 1996-97 year

The Kiwanis Club of Chelsea is looking forward to its 1996-97 year under a new board after having recognized last year's executive officers for their accomplishments.

At its Sept. 23 meeting, the club recognized 18 of its members for their perfect attendance during 1995-96. Of particular note, five of the Kiwanians received awards for stellar attendance over two decades: Thomas Bust (20 years), Norman Bauer (23 years), Walter Zeeb (32 years), Walter Leonard (38 years) and Luther Kusterer (44 years).

In addition, three club members were awarded Legion of Honor certificates for their long-standing service: George Frisinger (25 years), Elmer Kiel (25 years) and George Palmer (40 years).

At the Sept. 30 dinner, President Neil Horning presided over the final meeting of his term. Lt. Governor Barbara Bell of Michigan's District 10 was the club's guest and installed new officers.

Recognized for their contributions were outgoing Board of Directors Tom Davis, Fred Harris and Walter Zeeb. Four new directors were installed: Dave Barnett, Walter Leonard, Ray Newton and George Palmer. The Executive Board for 1996-97 was also introduced: President Conrad Knutsen, President-Elect Diana Walsh-Ramsay, Vice President Dale Cole, Secretary Ray Kemner and Treasurer Bob Milbrodt.

The Kiwanis Club meets every Monday evening at 6:15 in the dining room of Chelsea Community Hospital. Interested persons may call President Knutsen at 475-0142.

The Kiwanis Club of Chelsea installed new board members and officers Monday, Sept. 30, for the 1996-97 year. The members, from left to right, are former President Neil Horning, Secretary Ray Kemner, President Conrad Knutsen, Treasurer Bob Milbrodt, President-Elect Diana Walsh-Ramsay, Vice President Dale Cole and board members George Palmer and Walt Leonard.

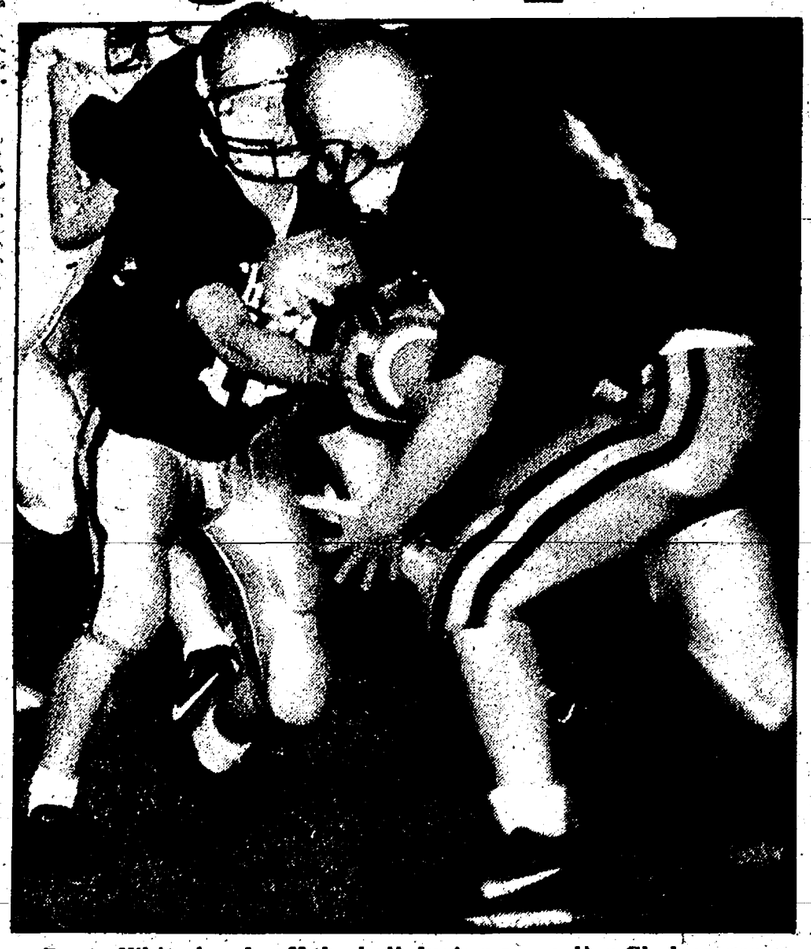
Lets Go Bulldogs!

Dogs whip Redford Union, get Dexter next



Dusty White hands off the ball during an earlier Chelsea game. The quarterback guided Chelsea to an easy victory last Friday.

Chelsea stepped out of the SEC schedule last week to face Redford Union. The Union probably wishes the Bulldogs would have stayed where they belonged after getting shellacked 35-0 Friday night.

The Bulldog offense enjoyed its best day of the season, racking up 408 total yards. And the defense wasn't so shabby either, holding Redford to just 138.

Dusty White, Chelsea's quarterback, got things going in the first quarter on a 49-yard run. His pass to Casey Wescott put Chelsea up 8-0 and provided all the scoring the Bulldogs would need.

Chelsea put up seven more in the second quarter. Mike Holloway had a nine-yard run to open up a 15-0 half-time lead after Wescott's point after kick.

The Bulldogs continued to dominate in the second half. Jay Schick scored on a 16-yard scamper. Wescott's kick made it 22-0 Bulldogs.

And in the fourth, Chelsea got touchdowns from Holloway of nine and six yards to complete the scoring.

White was 6-15 with an interception for 148 yards. He also led Chelsea with nine carries for 104 yards and a touchdown.

Schick carried the ball eight times for 79 yards, and Holloway ended the night with 77 yards on 16 carries. Chelsea totaled 255 yards on the ground.

White found Wescott three times for 71 yards. Skelton had two catches for 65 yards, and Schick caught one ball for 12 yards.

The Chelsea defense had two picks as well.

Chelsea returns to league play only a game and a half behind SEC-leading Milan and is one of two teams with a legitimate shot at catching the Big Reds.

Lincoln sits one and a half back as well.

With Milan's 14-7 win over Saline Friday night, the Big Reds control their own destiny. They have Tecumseh and Lincoln left on their schedule, so Chelsea will have to count on a loss in one of those two games to get a share of the crown.

The Bulldogs face Dexter this week at Dexter, then come home to face Tecumseh before closing the SEC season at Pinckney. Those three teams have a combined record of 3-12. The Bulldogs close the season at home against Jackson Northwest.

Varsity basketball surpasses .500 mark

Chelsea's varsity basketball team got above the .500 mark with a pair of wins last week over SEC opponents.

The week started with a 55-24 win over Lincoln. The Bulldogs took a 13-4 lead after the first quarter and never looked back.

Kasie Ruhlig scored 20 points and was 6-6 from the line. She also led the team in steals, with six, assists, with seven, and three-pointers, with four.

Mellissa Carty scored 16 points and had her best offensive night ever, according to coach Charlie Waller.

Lincoln scored more than five points in only the second quarter, when they put 11 on the board.

Karla Dettling had nine boards to pace the Bulldogs, and Carty and Chrissy Hodgson each grabbed seven.

Carty played another strong game, and Ruhlig continued her outstanding season as the Bulldogs cruised to a 41-24 win over Brooklyn Columbia Central.

Again Chelsea took a huge first-quarter lead, this time holding BCC to one point while putting up 10 of their own.

Cindy Richard led the scoring this time with 10 points. Carty added nine, and Ruhlig seven. Hodgson, who played a strong defensive game according to Waller, added six points in the win.

Richard pulled down 13 rebounds for Chelsea (5-4) and Ruhlig had seven steals and six assists to keep the Bulldogs on the winning track.

Frosh suffer close loss to River Rats

Chelsea's freshman football team played at Ann Arbor Huron on Thursday and suffered a disappointing 28-21 defeat as the River Rats scored late in the game.

Huron opened the game with a 12-play, 70-yard drive, capped by a five-yard run to take a 6-0 lead.

The Bulldogs answered on their first play as Phil Fishburn ran 75 yards to the Huron 10. Chelsea couldn't score and gave up the ball on downs on the two. Rob Mida recovered a Huron fumble on the one two plays later, and Ryan Barwick scored on the first play on a quarterback sneak. Jeremy Bacon's kick gave the Bulldogs a 7-6 lead at the end of the first quarter.

Chelsea upped the lead to 13-6 on a 55-yard run by Fishburn in the second quarter. Huron came back late in the half with a one yard touchdown run, but Derek Egeler stopped the extra point to keep the Bulldogs up 13-12 at the half.

After a scoreless third quarter, Huron took a 20-13 lead with a short run and two-point conversion with 8:30 left. The Bulldogs marched back up the field with a 16-play drive. A 10-yard pass from Ryan Barwick to Tim Parham on a fourth and six was a big play in the drive. Barwick fumbled as he as hit at the goal line on a four-yard run but Ethan Rendell recovered the ball in the endzone for a Chelsea touchdown. Barwick passed to Parham for a two point conversion putting the Bulldogs back in front 21-20.

Huron drove back down the field, benefiting from two pass interference penalties on the Bulldogs and scored on a 10-yard pass with 24 seconds left. Chelsea had a final chance to score, but a long pass from Scott Fouty fell just off the fingers of a wide open receiver.

The Bulldogs played very well defensively, with strong play from tackles Cole Graves and Alan Lowe and ends Scott Fouty and Steve Lafferty. Offensively, the blocking of center Andy McGuire led a ground attack that had almost 250 yards, led by Phil Fishburn with over 175 yards in 13 carries.

"McGuire played well against a much quicker opponent. He had some trouble with him early, than adjusted his blocking and handled him well the rest of the game," said coach Bill Bainton. "This was a great effort from all of our players. I think we learned a lot about what football is all about in this game. They also learned that you have to believe in yourselves. I think they heard some negative comments around school about having to play a big school like Huron, but proved they were competitive."

The freshmen are off this week, and play Tecumseh away on Oct. 15.

Spink leads girls to win in invitational

Chelsea's girls cross country team took third place at the second Southeastern Conference Jamboree last Tuesday, Oct. 1 at Hudson Mills Metropark. Saline won the meet easily with 31 points, while Pinckney had 57 and Chelsea 69.

Chelsea's Jeannie Spink took the top spot overall with a time of 20:23. It was the second time she's won this year.

"Jeannie ran an outstanding race," said Chelsea coach Pat Clarke.

"Juniors Karen Pieper and Sarah Jedele also had fine races to place in the top 10. We improved 13 points over the first Jamboree so we are headed in the right direction, but we still have a long way to go. Senior Sarah Metzler and freshman Carolyn Wineland both ran their best races of the season."

Other Chelsea places and times were: 9. Jedele, 21:33; 10 Pieper, 21:34; 24. Megan Smith, 23:02; 25. Meghann Ziegler, 23:13; 29. Corinna Christman, 23:36; 32. Julie Williams, 23:54.

Results of the JV meet were: 6. Metzler, 23:09; 7. Carolyn Wineland, 23:11; 13. Katie Henry, 23:37; 18. Rachel Mead, 24:20; 19. Emily Wineland, 24:25; 21. Jocelyn Anderson, 24:31; 25. Lauren Turek, 24:48; 28. Andrea Bullock, 25:00; 29. Jessica Gillespie, 25:00; 30. Rebecca Metzler, 25:03; 32. Kristie Barner, 25:17; 39. Jennifer Space, 25:45; 40. Louissa Hubbard, 25:46; 45. Dana Meza, 26:56; 46. Kim Niehaus, 26:59; 52. Becca Williams, 28:29.

The Bulldogs won the Ypsilanti Invitational last Saturday with 35 points, topping 11 other teams, including Saline. South Lyon was second with 58 points.

"This was our best team race of the season," Clarke said.

"Jeannie Spink continued her fine season and Karen Pieper ran her personal best. Corinna Christman cut a minute off her previous best to medal in 13th place."

Chelsea times and results were: 1. Spink, 19:56; 4. Pieper, 20:41; 6. Jedele, 20:51; 11. Smith, 21:33; 13. Christman, 21:39; 32. Metzler, 22:58.

Results of the JV race were: 36. Julie Williams, 23:34; 45. Bullock, 23:50; 47. Anderson, 23:56; 52. Emily Wineland, 24:15; 61. Rebecca Metzler, 24:23; 65. Barner, 24:38; 71. Space, 24:52; 107. Niehaus, 26:54; 137. Meza, 29:11; 143, Yvonne Humenay, 30:56.

Jeannie Spink, right, was impressive in Saturday's Ypsilanti Invitational. She also won her second consecutive SEC Jamboree.

JV cagers beat Lincoln in SEC

Chelsea junior varsity basketball team beat Lincoln but lost to Brooklyn Columbia Central in games last week.

On Tuesday, Oct. 10, the Bulldogs sank key free throws in the fourth quarter to beat the Railsplitters, 46-41, in a game that was close all the way.

The victory gave Chelsea a 2-0 mark in the Southeastern Conference.

Miranda Harris paced Chelsea with 14 points and seven rebounds. Other scorers included Amy McCalla 12, Kristin Ellis 9, Meghan Holefka 6, Katie Long 4, and Karen Kuhl 1.

In Thursday's game at Central, Chelsea was dominated in the first and third quarters in a 48-33 loss.

"We had too many missed opportunities," said Chelsea coach Paul Terpstra.

"We cut the lead to five but Central took control in the third quarter.

Chelsea shot 23 percent from the field and 38 percent from the line.

No one scored in double figures for Chelsea. Holekfa had a team-high nine points Ellis and Harris had six points each, Karen Kuhl had four, McCalla and Brook Stolaski had three each, and Lisa Zimmerman scored two.

Boy runners fourth at SEC Jamboree

Chelsea Bulldogs boys cross country team took fourth place at the second Southeastern Conference Jamboree held last Tuesday at Hudson Mills Metropark.

"Pinckney ran very well and we didn't perform well as a team," said Chelsea coach Eric Swager.

"We need to have five runners under 18 minutes to be competitive."

Aaron Ruhlig was the highest placer for Chelsea, taking seventh overall with a personal-best time of 17:20

Rounding out the varsity were 19. Ashley Coy,, 17:54; 20 Tim Lawrence, 17:57; 24. Jeff Kolodica, 18:15; 29. Robert Bullock, 18:31; 35. Robert Frayer, 18:46; 39. Dan Weir, 18:57.

In the junior varsity race, freshman Corey Bundon and junior Matt Kolodica ran their best times at Hudson Mills to place in the top 10.

On Thursday, the varsity took fifth place out of 15 teams at the Mason Invitational. The meet was won by Jackson Lumen Christi with 74 points, while Chelsea had 122.

"We ran our best race of the year and six of seven runners ran their personal-best times," Swager said.

Just one class B school finished ahead of the Bulldogs

"Aaron Ruhlig and Ashley Coy ran outstanding races," Swager said.

"If we run like this at regionals, we have a chance to go to the state meet."

Ruhlig placed fifth overall in 16:51. Other places and times were 17. Coy, 17:20; 31. Jeff Kolodica, 17:40; 32. Lawrence, 17:44; 37. Bullock, 17:50; 54. Frayer, 18:15; 57. Weir, 18:22.

The junior varsity team ran at the Ypsilanti Invitational on Saturday.

Jason Zatkovich, Bundon, and Matt Kolodica all ran under 19:00 and earned ribbons.

Bobby Rohrkemper and Max Cherem continue to improve, Swager said.

"The future looks bright for the program with all those young kids running well and having fun," Swager said.

"Saturday's meet at Onsted is a great opportunity for us to enjoy some severe hill running."

8th grade cagers keep on winning

Beach Middle School eighth grade basketball team defeated Milan and Tecumseh last week.

On Monday Milan came to Chelsea and the Bullpups won, 32-22, although the game was close for three quarters.

About the Outdoors

by Jerry D. Posey

It wasn't long ago that one of my fellow outdoorsmen, who had a popular outdoors show on PBS, got into quite a legal hassle with one of the manufacturers of a popular cover scent, or buck lure as they are commonly referred to.

It was at that time that I learned that there are some things a program director or commentator can say on TV and there are some things that are best left unsaid, or at least should be said in a way that it does not imply that a particular product does not do as it is advertised to do. Unless you have proof beyond all doubt that what you are saying is true.

It is my belief that the above advice also goes for outdoors writers, unless they want to find themselves in the same situation.

So without mentioning any names on either side of the court case—that ended with Fred losing control of his outdoors TV program and, from what I hear, a considerable amount of money—I have a few personal feelings that I would like to express.

First of all, there are many, possibly even hundreds, of different scent manufacturers with their products now on the market. These companies make all kinds of claims as to the drawing power or odor covering ability of their individual offerings.

Though I agree with much of what Fred had to say, which included that some of them were totally useless, I do think that some, under the right conditions, may produce some of the results that the hunter is looking for.

Although I have tried many, many different brands of these deer scents, and I will refer to them as we continue, I have in no way tried them all. But I have not yet found one that I honestly feel ever attracted a deer closer to me in any way.

Now I know, that there are many hunters out there that actually believe these scents really work, and a lot of them spend many dollars each year restocking their pockets with their favorite brands and trying each new label as it hits the market.

This must be the case or the manufacturers would not continue to do as much business as they do.

While many of these scent manufacturers claim that their product will draw the deer in close enough to you so that you can smell it's breath, others are advertised only as cover scents.

I feel the second description comes closer to describing what the product will actually do, help to cover the hunter's scent with something that is more acceptable to the deer.

The claims that some of these manufactured scents contain products taken from doe deer while they are in heat or estrus are probably true, but I question the value of these hormone solutions after they have been removed from the penned up captive does.

Many have been mixed with artificial additives to preserve them, to thin the solution down and to make it go further when filling the little $10 bottles.

It just seems to me that the exposure to the air and handling could affect the contents to the point where it may just smell strange to the wary buck, not like a long-legged little doe he would like to meet.

The coverup scents make more sense to me, especially the ones that smell like the area in which the hunter is sitting, such as a strong apple scent to be used when hunting near orchards, or pine scents to help cover human odors when hunting in an area where there are actually some pine trees.

I have found a few things while experimenting that did the coverup job as well as any thing on the market.

Fresh cut pine boughs give off a lot of real pine smell when placed around a blind, and I've also had good results when pouring a half gallon of fresh cider over a stump a few yards from my seat.

I can not say with any certainty that either method drew the deer in closer to me, but I feel both helped to cover my human scent to the point that the deer seemed to feel more at ease as they moved around in the area.

I once talked to an old-timer who told me that any "store-bought stinkum" that I wanted to smear on myself was just a waste of good money. He said that there was nothing on the market that would cover up the odor of a hunter that needed a bath, and any hunter that wanders around in the woods very long with too many clothes on, soon smells like he needs a bath.

After thinking about it for awhile I've come to believe he may be right. It is my feeling, that rather than cover up the bad smells, many of the scents just alert the deer to the fact that there is a strange smell in the area and the chances of the deer moving in closer to check it out are slim after the first few days of the season, when it doesn't take much to spook them.

In the meantime, I think I will just concentrate on reducing the body odor with an occasional bath rather than trying to cover it up.

—Chelsea High Site Work Continues—

Dirt has been pushed around for several weeks and finally excavation has begun in preparation for construction of the new Chelsea High School off Freer Road. A formal groundbreaking was scheduled for last night.

Standard sponsoring directory photo contest

The Chelsea Standard is planning to publish a Chelsea Community Directory late this year. In the directory will be information about Chelsea schools, area governments, local churches, recreational opportunities, housing, and many local businesses.

In conjunction with the new publication, we're sponsoring a photo contest. You have a chance to see your photograph on the cover of the directory as well as win a $50 gift certificate to the Chelsea business of your choice.

The rules to the contest are simple. You may submit either a color photograph or slide. It must be in a vertical format. And the subject must have something to do with Chelsea. Capture a building, person, place or anything else you can think of. You may already have the prize winner in a photo album at home.

The contest is open to anyone.

All photos must be submitted to our office by Friday, Nov. 8 at 5 p.m.

How to protect your house from pests

Every year, as the weather warms up, the Better Business Bureau hears from folks in the Chelsea-Dexter area and throughout eastern Michigan who are fighting the never-ending battle against bugs, rodents and pests. It's not fun, but it's necessary.

When easily identifiable pests like ants, roaches or mice invade a home, the signs are fairly easy to spot. Ants and roaches can be exterminated by finding and destroying their hiding and nesting places. With ants you also need to remove any food sources by storing foodstuffs in tightly closed containers. Mice also look for a steady source of food and can be kept out of the home by closing off small holes or cracks leading into your house through which they can easily squeeze.

If you plan to eliminate bugs from your home, be very careful with pesticides. Here are some tips:

• Always read the label before buying and using pesticides. Use them only for the purposes listed and in the manner directed.

• Keep pesticides away from children, pets, food and dishes.

• Many pesticides require special clothing or equipment. Avoid inhaling them. If you spill a pesticide on your skin or clothing, wash with soap and water and change clothes immediately.

• Never transfer a pesticide to a container, such as a soft drink bottle, that would attract children.

• If someone swallows a pesticide, check the label for first aid treatment. Call a doctor or go to a hospital emergency room immediately — and take the pesticide label with you.

One insect that isn't as easy to detect is the termite. These bugs live in underground colonies, and you may never see them even if they're feasting on the lumber that is holding your home together. Termites work slowly, but they can cause thousands of dollars in damage. You probably will need the help of a professional exterminator to eliminate the. Ask your friends and neighbors for suggestions on firms they have used. Get several inspections and estimates from different companies to verify the nature of the infestation and damage, then compare their guarantees. Insist on proof that they have liability insurance to cover any damage to your home or furnishings caused by their work. Finally, be sure and call the BBB to check their report to see if others have filed complaints against their companies. You can call 24 hours a day at (810) 644-9100. If you feel you are having a problem, just write the details at: BBB, 30555 Southfield Rd., Suite 100, Southfield, Mich. 48076. The office serves Chelsea and all of Washtenaw and Jackson Counties.

Tips for having carpet cleaned

A clean carpet makes every home look and smell more attractive, and it also can be a necessity for persons with allergies or asthma. Although hot-water carpet cleaning machines can be rented from many locations, the experts say that a professional carpet-cleaning firm can almost always do a better job. This is important because unskilled cleaning with lower-quality machines can sometimes damage, or even ruin, your carpeting.

We have a number of excellent carpet cleaning firms in the Chelsea-Dexter area who can do an excellent job on your carpets. Before you hire one, here are some tips:

• If your carpet is fairly new, read the warranty or ask the seller if there are any special cleaning methods recommended by the manufacturer. Some carpets actually must be professionally cleaned on a regular basis to maintain their warranty!

• Plan ahead. Ask your friends and neighbors for their experiences. Who did they use? Were they satisfied? The best advertising is always "word of mouth." Also, be sure to check their company's report with us at the BBB; call us 24 hours a day at (810) 644-9100. We can let you know if other consumers have complained, and how (or if) the company responded.

• Decide what you want cleaned and don't be talked into unneeded work.

• Examine the company's advertising for unrealistic promises or claims that are "too good to be true." You may get a coupon in the mail or see their ad in the paper. They advertise they can clean a certain number of rooms at a very low price. But an exceptionally low price might be "bait;" a gimmick to get into your home. Once the workers arrive, they quickly belittle the "inferior" advertised "special" and suggest a better type of cleaning - which may end up costing you much more. To avoid "bait" ads, call around to several cleaning firms and compare their prices.

• Ask about "extras" that may increase your cost. These could include the use of special heavy-duty traffic pattern cleaners or the moving of furniture. Some cleaners charge for these services, others don't. You may discover that the full-service cleaner is actually a better value than a so-called cut-rate discounter.

• What care is required after the cleaning? How long until it dries? What kind of ventilation is needed? Does the cleaner give a written guarantee? Ask all these important questions in advance.

If, even after all your precautions, you still have a problem let us know. Write us at: BBB, 30555 Southfield, MI 48076. Our office serves Chelsea and all of Washtenaw County.

Correction

Thanks to my friend and former commissioner. Marty Straub who called last month to ask me to clarify how the number of representitives on the Board of Commissioners is determined.

Every 10 years following a new census, a group known as the County Apportionment Commission meets to ensure that each County Commissioner District is equally divided by population. The commission is made up of the county clerk, treasurer, prosecutor, and the party chairs from each party. It is not determined by the Board of Commissioners itself, and I regret any confusion on this issue.

—Traffic Bottleneck—

Utility lines are being installed on Freer Road for the new Pierce Lake Elementary School and the construction has caused traffic delays, especially during the morning hours when children are being driven to school. The construction is likely to take another month.

Young traveler recounts her 'trip of a lifetime' to Japan

By Sarah Horazdovsky

Could you ever imagine trying to plan the trip of a lifetime? Well, last winter, nine kids, two chaperones, and I all did jus that it wasn't just our imaginations — we really were planning the trip of our lifetimes and we had yet to find out what was in store for us.

The kids were Tim Baily, George Fairley, Chris Johns, Meghan Hollo, Ben Myers, Jessica Oberholtzer, Amanda Peterson; Sonja Roberts, Betsy Ruhlig, and myself, Sarah Horzdovsky. Our chaperones were Andrea Maines aka Ms. Maines for her 7th grade bloc students, and Mrs. Karen Ruhlig, Betsy's mom.

As you may have guessed, we were all ecstatic about this trip, but knew we were going to have to work very had to be able to go.

For starters, we had to find fundraisers to do. We decided on a penny drive a book/bake sale, a Japanese stir-fry night a Cleary's Pub and a car wash at Chelsea State Bank.

It was hard work, but it sure paid off! For the four months we had to plan the trip, we had many extensive 2½ hour meetings.

As the trip came nearer, all of us became even more excited. We had great expectations for it, such as looking forward to trying all the new and different food, imagining what their schools would be like, and we were just praying that the communication between us would be good.

After those four months of planning were up, and it was June 19, we all were soon gathered in the airport at gate F12 just watching the planes as they arrived and departed.

Soon our plan came in, and everyday was hugging, taking pictures, and saying their goodbyes for the next two weeks hat we'd all be gone. Nobody really cried, except some of the moms. Then I looked over at Megan and saw her start to cry when she hugged her parents goodbye and that's when I broke down and shed a few tears. I was still crying as I waved to my parents and walked down the runway to the plane and I nearly killed myself and the little 80-year-old Japanese lady in front of me. Whoops!

Anyways, after we all boarded the plane and got situated, we were about to take off when the captain got on the radio and told us there'd be a delay of 15 minutes because of something wrong with the plane. Everyone just groaned, but hey, what's 15 minutes? Well, soon that 15 minutes turned into three hours and everyone was pretty angry. I fell asleep, so I wouldn't really know, except it was tremendously hot.

After the plane took off, everyone just did their thing like listening to music, playing cards or reading. Since the plane ride was so long (12 hours) they showed quite a few movies. Let's just say it was pretty lame.

About every 30 minutes they'd feed us something to eat. For starters we got some kind of chicken or steak thing with noodles and vegetables and a little piece of cake and, well what do ya know! A little piece of salmon wrapped around rice and seaweed. Actually, I didn't find out it was that until I ate it, but it still tasted good.

They kept feeding us and every time we got closer to Japan, they'd give us more Japanese-style food. Some of it was okay, but I think the majority of us didn't like it. At least we got to use those cool chopsticks!

Most of us couldn't sleep because it was really cramed in the plane. But for those of us who did, we were wide awake for what he had in store for us when we got off.

Our plane landed, and we got all our carry-on stuff off and we had to practically sprint through the airport to catch our next plane. It was every exhilarating!

After we got on the next plane, which was a lot smaller, some of us slept or just talked, but we were all very excited! I know I couldn't wait until I stepped off that plane and I could actually breathe that fresh Japanese air!

The flight on our second plane lasted about 2-3 hrs., and when we got off we had to go through customs and get our baggage, which we thought had been lost, and we had to meet our greeters and find the bus that would take us to Shimizu.

We found everything O.K. and after everyone was loaded onto the bus, we took off. Soon, everybody became hungry and so we stopped at a convenience store to get some food. Boy, was that interesting! People got all different kinds of stuff and when we got back on the bus we kind of split everything up so we could taste it all.

In about half an hour we all had to go to the bathroom, so the driver pulled over at a little bathroom thingie on the side of the road. People were practically jumping out the windows they had to go so bad! Well let me tell you one thing, when we ran into the building everyones' mouths dropped in awe. We'd totally forgotten about the toilets. They were like urinals in the ground! From then on, people's expectations soon became somewhat erased.

We arrived at the community center around 11:30 p.m. Japanese time, and we were so bushed! Our host guy showed us around the building, which was very nice, and then took us to our rooms. They consisted of bunk-bed-like beds with a futon mat to sleep on. Our pillows had beads in them instead of feathers, and our bath towels were the size of a dish towel. After someone was done, they didn't walk around the building in their towel.

The next day we got up bright and early, ate breakfast, and went to school. Sounds pretty typical for us students, huh? Well, yeah, except for the fact that today in school we wouldn't have to do any actual work and we couldn't understand the teachers.

That night we met our host families and they took us to their homes. For some of us, it was hard to communicate with our families, and therefore we had our dictionaries on us 24 hours a day.

At the school, the first thing I noticed was everyone wore a uniform. Outside the front was a huge field for sports, and a bicycle rack, because most students rode their bikes to school. When we got in our classes it was kind of boring because we didn't understand a word that was said, but in a way it was fun.

Besides school, some of the other sights were the hot spas (a very nice place where you get naked and sit in hot water until you shrivel up like a prune), some Buddist shrines that were made of all gold, the beautiful mountains that sourrounded Shimizu, and all of the clock towers in the different cities.

We also had a day where we toured and saw a Coca-Cola factory, a newspaper factory, and afterwards we went bowling at a bowling alley in Obihiro.

A really popular thing to do there was to sing Karaoke. We taught all our new friends some American dances like the YMCA and the Hokey Pokey. Now that was a sight to see!

After our two-week stay was up, we had a going away party. Everyone (the students and chaperones) gave a little speech about their stay in front of the various families and some of us even got choked up on the stage. The party was very nice, but we all knew what was going to happen the next day.

We all met in the town buildings parking lot the next morning and said our good-byes and cried a lot. It's amazing how attached you become to someone that you don't even know that well after two weeks.

We all boarded the bus for our long journey back to America, and all shared our stories of what great experiences we had had.

I remember walking out of the International door and up the ramp and seeing all of my friends and family standing there, waiting to greet me with smiles on their faces. I was so happy to be home, yet I was longing to be back with the people who graciously had accepted me into their homes and their lives for the two weeks I had lived in Japan.

Now we're all back, and we all just want to give all of our thanks and gratitude to the wonderful community we live in.

In case anyone is wondering, the Japanese exchange students that are coming to Chelsea this year are coming Oct. 10 and departing Oct. 16. We intend to make sure they have the same great experiences here, as we did over there.

Youngsters take long walk back in time

Students in Ruth Stielstra's fourth grade class at South Elementary School walked back in time over 4.6 billion years, through the first humans and three periods of dinosaurs, as part of a recent reading unit.

The class walked a total of two miles, or 4,600 steps, with each step representing one million years of time. As they passed through each era, the students pounded a stake into the ground to mark their visit.

As they rolled back the years, the students carried paper-mache dinosaurs they made and poems they wrote about their favorite dinosaurs.

This is the third year Stielstra has done the Dino-Walk with her students, and she said the students and parents alike have been very enthusiastic about it.

According to one student, Stephen Spielberg should have taken Stielstra's class before making the movie Jurassic Park. The movie, which is supposed to be set in the Jurassic Period, features a Tyrannosaurus Rex, a dinosaur that did not appear until later, in the Cretaceous Period.

Rachel Gentz, Samantha Bogdanski, Shannon Kinner, Alex Guenther and Jay Nabb enter the Cretaceous Period as part of their Dino-Walk at South Elementary School. The class walked more than two miles as part of a recent reading unit.

Chelsea produces much milk

In an age when low-fat foods and health clubs seem to permeate our lives, it is easy to get carried away with health-food awareness. One of the industries that has taken a bashing in the media for high-fat foods is the dairy industry.

However, recent studies have shown that milk, much of which is produced right here in Chelsea, is quite possibly one of nature's perfect foods. Some surprising facts about milk:

•Milk and other dairy products (excluding butter) contribute about 20 percent of the protein available in the nation's food supply and surprisingly, only 12 percent of the total fat.

•Milk and other dairy products provide about 75 percent of the calcium in the U.S. food supply. To get the same amount of calcium found in one glass of milk, you would have to eat more than five cups of broccoli.

•Some estimates in the United States indicate that as many as 9 out of 10 women aren't getting enough calcium in their diets. This relates to the more than 20 million women who suffer from osteoporosis, a painful bone-weakening disease.

•Intake of fermented dairy foods, such as cheese and yogurt, is linked with lower risk of colon cancer, according to Dr. Ruth McDonald at the University of Missouri.

•Mice injected with a cancer-causing agent and fed mild-derived fats developed cancer at only half the rate of injected rats not fed those fats from milk, according to Dr. Alfred Merrill at Emory University in Atlanta.

•Milk is one of the most regulated and tested food products in the country. Accordingly, it can be considered one of the safest. Tests for antibiotic residues are conducted on every truckload at processing plants.

These are some recent findings in defense of milk. When advertisers bragged that "Milk does a body good," they hit the nail on the head.

The Village of Chelsea Water Dept. is now proceeding with its Fall Hydrant Flushing program. Due to the disturbance in the distribution system, you are advised to check the color and condition of your water before doing laundry.

As of October 1, the Village is no longer feeding chlorine. We are back to normal operations (i.e. iron removal and the addition of fluoride)

Stockbridge special olympian to compete in World Games

Eight Special Olympics athletes from Michigan, including one from Stockbridge, will join Team USA at the 1997 Special Olympics World Winter Games in Toronto. A total of 133 athletes and 31 coaches make up the U. S. delegation. The games will take place in February.

The athletes from Michigan are: Christopher Wansac of Dearborn Heights, in cross-country skiing, and Rhonda Bates of Stockbridge, Marcia Dolio of Big Rapids, Laurie Dwyer of Ovid, Nadine El Masri of Dearborn, Kevin Keener of Detroit, Mike Powers of Adrian, and Mark Taylor of Pontiac, in snowshoeing. All were gold medal winners at the 1996 Michigan Special Olympics State Winter Games at Sugar Loaf Mountain Resort in Cedar. They will be joined by coaches Paul Balliet of Gaylord and Joy Sharp of Greenville. All athletes and coaches will attend the Team USA Training Camp in Lake Placid, N.Y. prior to the World Winter Games.

Special Olympics programs are patterned after the Olympic Games. In fact, Special Olympics is the only organization authorized the the International Olympic Committee to use the word "Olympics" in its name.

Long-time couples as happy as newlyweds

If a married couple can just stick it out for, oh, about 35 years or so, they're likely to find they're as happy with each other as they once were as starry-eyed newlyweds. That's one of the findings from a University of Michigan study of marital quality over the life course, published in the current issue of Social Psychology Quarterly.

Based on data from the American's Changing Lives study, a nationally representative sample of U.S. adults aged 25 and older, the study analyzes the links between marital quality, duration and various social and economic factors among 1,470 individuals in first marriages.

"Marital happiness follows a fairly predictable trajectory," says Terri L. Orbuch, a sociologist at the U-M Institute for Social Research, and the first author of the study.

After the first few years of marriage, the so-called honeymoon period, marital happiness tends to go downhill for the next 20 years. Then, right around the silver anniversary, this downward spiral stops and couples start feeling more satisfied with each other. By the time they've been married for 35 years, they're as happy as newlyweds, on average.

The study by Orbuch and U-M colleagues James S. House, Richard P. Mero and Pamela S. Webster is the first to document the reasons for this remarkable reversal in marital-happiness.

"Our results show that declines in work and parental responsibilities explain a large portion of the increase in marital satisfaction in the later years of marriage," says Orbuch.

"Declining income and increasing assets in later life also explain a small portion of this increase."

The Michigan study also showed that after 15 to 20 years of marriage, couples don't think about getting divorced or separated nearly as much as couples who have been married for shorter periods of time.

"For individuals in first marriages, thinking about divorce in later life may be influenced more strongly by the sheer duration of the relationship," Orbuch speculates, "especially by the commitment that this longevity implies and by a decline in opportunities for remarriage."

The study was supported by grants from the National Institutes of Health and the National Institute on Aging.

EMU offers accelerated degree program

Eastern Michigan University has announced a new program guaranteeing qualified students, who have already earned college credit in high school, a chance to complete a baccalaureate degree in only three years or receive free classes. The program is believed to be the first offered in Michigan.

Called the Three-Year Accelerated Baccalaureate Degree Program, it also offers merit scholarships for all qualified participants and a graduation incentive — a $1,000 stipend to return to EMU for graduate studies.

"Eastern's program will give students a unique learning edge," said Courtney McAnuff, vice-president for enrollment services. "This program will allow talented high school students the opportunity to accelerate their degree completion to three years. It is a major step in saving families significant costs and allowing students to capitalize on the head start they get through advanced placement and dual enrollment programs in high school."

McAnuff estimates that successful participants can save approximately $8,000. He said it will eliminate costs for one year at EMU (some tuition, room and board, books and supplies, transportation and other living expenses) and get students in the job market or graduate school a year earlier.

McAnuff said the program will begin with high-achieving high school juniors, who are maintaining a 3.5 grade point average or higher and meet the requirements to the University's Honors Program. "We're very excited about this," he said. "We will pledge that if students follow the advising curriculum identified for them, they will finish in three years. If there is a delay caused by the University that precludes them from finishing in the prescribed time, they will be able to take that class without paying for it."

Set to begin in the fall of 1997, the program initially will offer majors in premed and a number in business: accounting, accounting information systems, computer information systems, finance, production and operations management, management and marketing. Other eligible majors will be added. Excluded from the accelerated program will be some health-related fields, including nursing and occupational therapy, teacher education programs and any major with extensive internship requirements.

"We will begin accepting applications from high school students this fall for the 1997 freshman class. We feel this is a major step on the part of the University to reverse a trend that has been occurring for many years — lighter class loads spread over more years. The average freshman at Eastern now takes only 14 credit hours a semester. We want to promote a greater credit load and a faster move through the University system. It is highly cost effective for all parties involved. The family saves in real dollars, the University saves in delivery of services and ultimately society saves," McAnuff said.

Advising about EMU's accelerated baccalaureate degree program begins with the high school counselor during the student's junior year in high school. Participants accepted in the program would be required to earn a minimum of 16 college credits before beginning their freshman year at Eastern through Advanced Placement testing in high school, the College Level Examination Program, or dual enrollment between high school and EMU or other colleges. "Students are becoming more sophisticated about their options to earn college credit while still in high school. The State of Michigan, through the Postsecondary Enrollment Options Act allows selected students to take college courses while in high school — we plan to allow students an opportunity to capitalize on that head start," said McAnuff.

Once at EMU, McAnuff said students will earn a maximum of 36 credits each year for three years, totaling the required 124 hours for graduation. That averages 18 credit hours during fall and winter semesters (from September through April). Or, students may choose a three-term plan of fall, winter and spring (from September through June).

Students must file an approved program of study with an adviser, attend regular advising meetings each semester and meet all regular academic policies. Students would need to declare one of the eligible majors at the time they enroll for their first semester at EMU.

"The concept of undergraduate learning will be at its highest," he concluded. "Students will still have to complete the same number of hours and classes. We're packaging this for students to get through an undergraduate degree program more quickly."

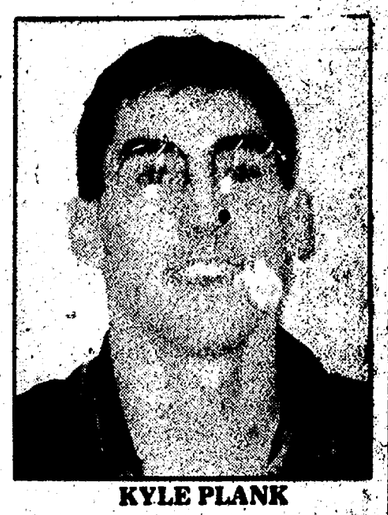
TEACHER FEATURE

Kyle Plank is active in athletics



KYLE PLANK

Kyle Plank, a physical education teacher at Beach Middle School, says for him teaching is a rewarding way to continue his involvement in athletics. The son of two teachers, Plank believes his profession is a fundamental way to have an impact on young minds.

"When you see you've made a change in a kid, turned them on to a sport or physical activity, it's rewarding," Plank said.

At 24, Plank is fairly new to Beach Middle School, but he wasted no time immersing himself in the district's activities. Besides full-time teaching, he also coaches football, basketball and baseball at Chelsea High School.

According to Plank, physical education is especially important at the middle school level because it helps kids develop and refine their motor skills.

"It's also important for physical fitness," Plank said. "Most kids are pretty active at this age but some aren't, and this can make a big difference in their lives."

He said he enjoys working with middle school students, even though it is a big challenge.

"I've found that if kids like and respect you, they sometimes have a hard time showing it," Plank said.

A graduate of Chelsea High School and Hope College in Holland, Mich., Plank said he thinks a lot of his students can relate to him better than some of his older colleagues. In some cases, however, his age has worked against him.

"One of the first things I ran into when I was fresh out of college was that a lot of kids already knew who I was and thought I was going to let them get away with something," he said.

Plank said he likes the Chelsea district because it allows teachers to be active in shaping their own programs.

In his first year of teaching, he served on a curriculum committee that redesigned the school's physical education program and implemented a co-educational format for the first time.

Plank said he approaches teaching with a very laid-back style.

"I tend to take the approach that kids do know what's expected of them, they just need to be reminded sometimes," he said.

He added that the profession is a lot more involved than he expected.

"There are a lot of other things that go into it," Plank said. "When you're working with 40 kids an hour it can be very draining and tiresome."

One thing that is unique about teaching physical education, according to Plank, is that he gets to interact with each student in the school. He enjoys watching his students learn and develop their skills.

"When I first started I was amazed at the different levels of skills," he said. "They're at the age where they can be impacted both physically and socially."

Plank said one of the greatest rewards he has experienced so far has been receiving cards and letters from appreciative parents and students. With the dedication and enthusiasm he displays, it is no surprise that Plank leaves both parents and students at ease and with a renewed confidence and optimism for the future.

Hart's slogan, "In a State of Beauty" was beat out by a Bay City man's "Great Lakes Splendor" plate. The winning plate features a sunrise over the Straits of Mackinac and the Mackinac Bridge in hues of blue and orange.

Hart was one of 12 finalists whose designs were selected from more than 4,300 entries in the contest.

The Great Lakes Splendor license plate will be available Jan. 2, for a $5 additional fee above the regular vehicle registration fee. The plate will be available in personalized, handicapped and veteran versions and will be an optional purchase for motorists.

Audit at Washtenaw Community College produces high marks

In a report presented to the Washtenaw Community College Board of Trustees Sept. 24, the independent auditing firm of Plante & Moran, LLP gave the college high marks for the management of its financial resources.

In their presentation to the board, firm representatives Jim Proppe, partner, and Tony Simbeni, associate, reported that its auditors found no significant areas for concern for financial transactions and procedures during the 1995-96 fiscal year. The end result of all the testing done by the firm meant the college would receive an unqualified opinion with no reportable conditions in relationship to internal controls or procedures.

According to Proppe, it is the best opinion the firm could provide. In academic terms, "It's like getting an 'A' on an exam," Simbeni said.

Plante & Moran has audited the college's financial practices since 1984.

Researchers believe Lyme disease cases to increase

Researchers funded by the Arthritis Foundation expect cases of Lyme disease, a serious infection transmitted by infected deer ticks, to be especially high this year possibly because of an unusually high population of infected mice in the northeast last summer. Ticks pick up the bacteria that cause Lyme disease and other illnesses when they feed on infected mice and deer.

New Jersey Governor Christie Whitman's doctor suspects she has Lyme disease or some other tickborne illness that has caused her to feel flu-like symptoms, fatigue and extreme joint pain. Her symptoms have subsided since she began taking antibiotics effective agains Lyme disease which can cause significant nerve and heart problems, as well as arthritis if not treated early.

But according to the Arthritis Foundation, you can take steps to prevent Lyme disease or minimize your risk of debilitating health problems by recognizing symptoms and seeking prompt treatment.

Preventing Lyme disease is the first line of defense agains arthritis and other serious conditions. The Arthritis Foundation recommends that people take steps to avoid the tick bites that transmit this disease. Wearing protective clothing such as long-sleeved shirts and long pants tucked into socks is especially important when you are in wooded or marshy areas. Clear away bushy areas near your home that attract ticks. You also can reduce chances of getting Lyme disease by carefully inspecting yourself, children and pets after being outdoors. If you find a tick, remove it gently with tweezers and save it in a jar with a moist piece of tissue paper for later identification by experts if needed. Be careful not to squeeze the body of the tick.

"Doctors can treat Lyme disease effectively with antibiotics, if they diagnose it early," said Justus Fiechtner, M.D., Chair of the Michigan Chapter Board of Trustees. "However, the occurrence of Lyme disease in Michigan is quite rare. Indeed, the bacteria that causes Lyme disease has mostly been identified in only a few counties in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan. People first have to recognize the symptoms and seek help. Because the ticks are so hard to see, you're likely to spot signs of Lyme disease rather than locate the tick or its bite."

According to the Arthritis Foundation, early warning signs of Lyme disease are an expanding skin rash or flu-like symptoms during the spring and summer months. The rash, which may develop from three days to a month after a tick bite, may feel hot to the touch but usually is not painful. The rash often looks like a red ring with a clear center. The outer edges expand slowly in size.

About one-third of people infected with Lyme disease never develop a rash. They may have flu-like symptoms such as a stiff neck, chills and fever. Muscle aches and joint pain also may occur. Unlike other types of joint pain, the ache may seem to travel from joint to joint, lasting only a short time in any location.

"It's best to see your doctor if these symptoms occur," said Fiechtner, "Later symptoms are more serious, including symptoms that mimic other chronic diseases of the nervous system, an irregular heart beat and a chronic type of arthritis that most often affects the knees. Treatment is more difficult in later stages," he cautions.

For more information about arthritis and a free Lyme Disease brochure, call the Arthritis Foundation office at 1-800-968-3030, or visit our site on the Worldwide Web, http://www.arthritis.org.

The Arthritis Foundation is the source of help and hope for nearly 1.5 million men, women and children in Michigan who have arthritis. The foundation supports research to find ways to cure and prevent arthritis diseases, and seeks to improve the quality of life for those affected by arthritis.

Summer of 1997's camping schedule set

If thinking about the upcoming winter gives you chills, start thinking summer! It's not too early to plan a summer camping trip at your favorite Michigan State park. Reservations for campsites can be made up to 11 months in advance.

"Most campers make their reservations when the weather warms up in the spring, and are often disappointed if they find their favorite parks are already full," said Department of Natural Resources Parks and Recreation Division Chief O.J. Scherschligt. By planning now, campers can make sure they get their first choice of parks, especially for holiday weekends."

Interested campers can call 1-800-5432-YES between 8 a.m. and 11 p.m. on weekdays and 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. on weekends. To ensure that the telephone reservation process goes smoothly, callers should be ready to provide the following information: name, address, camping equipment type and size, Visa or Mastercard number and telephone number of a contact person.
