Plans for Chelsea Fairways subdivision move forward

The Chelsea Planning Commission reviewed the conceptual site plan for the proposed Chelsea Fairways subdivision at its Nov. 19 meeting. The Chelsea Fairways proposal is a planned unit development, consisting of more than 110 units, to be built near Pierce Lake.

Richard Lewiston, president of Stoneleigh Development Corp., presented the proposal to the commission for questions and comments, and will use feedback from the commission in designing the preliminary and final site plans to present at a later date.

"We seek a development that is charming and beautiful that fits into the community," Lewiston said.

Among the problems the planning commission found with the conceptual site plan is that it calls for the right-of-way width on the public streets to be 60 feet. According to the village's public street standards, the right of way for streets has traditionally been 66 feet.

Chelsea's professional community planner, Carl Schmitt, said the proposed 60-foot right-of-way for the streets would be of little consequence. The 66-foot right-of-way is a matter of historical convenience, as it is four times the length of one rod, which is 16.5 feet.

Assistant Village Manager Bruce Pindzia found the 60-foot right-of-way width to be more significant, however.

"The 66 foot width has a historical significance associated with it, but more importantly, it is what the village is accustomed to working with," Pindzia said in a memo to the planning commission. "The village needs the room to maintain the public infrastructure."

Lewiston said increasing the width to the desired 66 feet would make it necessary to redesign the entire project, taking away a great deal of the subdivision's charming residential atmosphere. He added that if the width is allowed to remain at 60 feet, the developers will be able to accommodate additional affordable housing units in the subdivision.

The planning commission decided that answering the right-of-way width question would set a precedent for future developments, and should be addressed independently of this particular instance.

The conceptual site plan of Chelsea Fairways calls for a minimum lot area of 10,000 square feet and a minimum lot width of 80 feet. The planning commission was happy with this aspect of the proposal, as these lot areas are larger than the zoning designation requires.

The P.U.D. calls for open space in several areas of the development, which will be beneficial to the subdivision as a whole.

Paving Freer Road is also part of the plan, along with installing five-foot wide sidewalks along Old US-12, Freer Road and the interior streets.

Members of the commission plan to visit the proposed site in the near future to get a better idea of exactly how the subdivision will be laid out. This will allow them to solidify their recommendations and help make Lewiston's P.U.D. the "charming and beautiful" subdivision he desires.

Library board wants townships to move toward new agreement

As the community of Chelsea continues to grow, what do you do with a library that serves the whole area but is primarily funded by the village?

District Library Planning Committee has answered that question by proposing to change the library to a district library.

More than two years ago, the Village of Chelsea, and the townships of Dexter, Lima, Lyndon and Sylvan chose representatives to form a group of local citizens to explore the issue.

After months of meetings and public hearings, the District Library Planning Committee has begun taking working copies of the resolution to all parties. Because McKune Memorial Library was legally created as a village library, the Village of Chelsea had to be the first to sign.

Since then Sylvan Township has also signed. Dexter, Lima, and Lyndon are being asked to consider the matter during December. The resolution simply states that the community is interested in creating a district library serving the entire community of Chelsea.

Currently the McKune Memorial Library is supported primarily by village residents. If these agreements are signed, a new district library board would be formed with representatives from each township and the village. The new board would then begin the task of planning for the future. A certain period of time is required for passage of a millage or the library reverts to its previous village status.

Because of the changes on the township boards, newly elected officials are interested in knowing what their constituents think.

Lima Township meets on Monday, Dec. 2 at 8 p.m. Cynthia Faulhaber of Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone will be present to answer questions about the proposed District Library Agreement.

Dexter Township meets twice next month, Tuesday, Dec. 3 and 12 at 7:30 p.m. Dexter ran an advertisement in The Chelsea Standard last week asking for people who are interested in serving on a new District Library Board.

Lyndon Township meets on Tuesday, Dec. 10 at 7 p.m. All these meetings are open to the public.

Lima Township Planning Commission voted last week to amend the township's master plan and take public comment on any proposed changes.

The board will discuss changes to the plan Tuesday, Dec. 17. The public hearing is slated Tuesday, Jan. 21.

The board was told by an audience at the Nov. 19 meeting that it was chasing its tail. Residents suggested if the public makes any valid points for other changes at the public hearing in January and the board agrees, another public hearing will have to be held so people can comment on those proposed changes.

The planning commission agreed any future changes to the master plan should be made per section instead of opening the entire plan up for scrutiny.

The master plan was approved in December 1995. It was re-opened in August and amended. Additional changes were proposed before the October scheduled adoption so the most recent hearing was set.

"We've been at this so long I am desperate for closure," Marvin Carlson, co-chair of the planning commission, commented during the meeting.

Organizers of former Dexter Township Supervisor Jim Drolett's write-in campaign filed a recount petition last week.

Dan Rhodes, a Drolett supporter, said recount results are not anticipated until mid-to late-December. He said Washtenaw County Board of Canvassers has certified the election but the state must also before the recount can commence.

As it stands now, John Sdao is the winner in the Nov. 5 general election. His first meeting as supervisor is slated Tuesday, Dec. 3.

Then, when in college, something that could have been devastating to Mullane's dreams happened to him. He went to see a doctor who told him he needed to wear glasses. At the time, this eliminated the possibility of him ever becoming a pilot or an astronaut.

Mullane joked to adults in the audience that the best part of his experience was getting to meet models Cheryl Tiegs and Christie Brinkley.

"This man right here is the reason Christie Brinkley's marriages keep breaking up," Mullane said, pointing to himself in a picture with the model.

Mike Mullane, an astronaut who logged 356 hours aboard the space shuttles Discovery and Atlantis, landed in Chelsea Nov. 21 to sign copies of his book, "Liftoff: An Astronaut's Dream" and deliver a message to young people about how they can make their dreams come true.

"I had a dream come true, and I'm going to tell you what you can do to make your dreams come true," Mullane said.

The retired astronaut presented slides from his childhood and space missions to the audience at Beach Middle School, and told about how he managed to make his dream of being an astronaut come true.

Mullane said as far back as he can remember, he wanted to become a pilot. When he was 12 years old, the Soviet Union launched Sputnik, and a new word entered his vocabulary: astronaut. It was then that he decided to become an astronaut and pursue the dream for his future.

He then started his own model of space exploration by building rockets at home and launching them off the roof of his house. Mullane said it was at that time for him to build them own rockets by mixing chemicals together, loading them into a pipe and launching it into the air. Unfortunately, he said, this practice often resulted in serious injuries. He explained to the audience how dangerous this activity was, and how lucky he was to have escaped injury.

Opening Remarks

By Brian Hamilton

How best to preserve our Chelsea community is one of the hot issues of our time. But what exactly are we trying to preserve?

Historical groups want to save and restore buildings and other symbols of our past. This is fine and it certainly adds to the character of the village and outlying areas.

Our family lives in what I have been told is an historical home, although there are no plaques or ghosts that we've encountered yet. People know the house by the name of the people who built it and lived in it for about 110 years. I promise we won't put aluminum siding over its wonderful brick work. Does that make us preservationists? Is it okay to update the plumbing or do we have to keep using the out-house?

People who live in the country—open spaces—want to preserve their views and uncongested way of life. They don't want more traffic and they don't want someone to build a house where they now watch deer and look for the Manchester panther, especially if their neighbor stands to make a lot of money by selling or subdividing the property.

Many farmers want to preserve agricultural land, which is probably a good idea since we all have to eat. But whom they'd preserve it for is not real clear as farming doesn't seem to be one of the hot fields for young people to enter.

Not all undeveloped property is farmed but almost all of it has agricultural zoning, which makes for a very sticky set of problems. The character of Lima Township, and perhaps others, is as likely to be shaped by court challenges as careful planning.

Much has been made about preserving the Chelsea downtown over the years and that's been handled extraordinarily well to this point. The downtown is beautiful and vibrant. But new challenges loom. There's a big parking problem. Traffic is awful at certain times of day. Is it in the village's best interest to address these problems or ignore them? Is diverting traffic a good idea or not?

So how or what to preserve isn't necessarily all that clear cut or easy to figure out, and some of it is probably out of our control.

Which gets me to the point of this whole column. As we enter this holiday shopping season, there's one easy thing everyone here can do to help preserve Chelsea—shop locally.

It's in everyone's best interest to keep Chelsea's business district thriving, and this is the time of year that can make or break a business. When you buy clothes, or jewelry, or appliances, or hardware any of the hundreds of other items available from I-94 to Werkner Road, you help preserve jobs, help businesses pay their taxes, and help businesses support your group's special projects. Virtually every dollar spent here ripples through the local economy.

If preserving Chelsea is a priority to you, shopping locally is an easy step to take. And it does make a difference.

Uncle Apollo

Once again we have missed an opportunity to make use of existing resources and solve a bunch of big problems at the same time. When I point it out, I'm sure many of you will whack yourselves on the forehead and wonder why you didn't think of it.

What I'm talking about, of course, is using the old water tower to solve the school's bussing problems.

When I was a kid, all sorts of people were having a ball by riding barrels over things like Niagara Falls. And in the fun houses, they put these rotating cylindrical rooms where kids can act like hamsters and pay big bucks to do it.

Well, I don't know if it occurred to you or not, but the old water tower looked a lot like a barrel. Imagine how much fun the kids could have if they could all get together in that thing and roll their way to school in the mornings. There would never be a problem getting them to ride. And we could probably win a President's Physical Fitness Award to boot.

Do you have any idea how heavy one of those big steel barrels is? I don't either but it's got to be really heavy and therefore great exercise to get it moving. It would probably move slowly enough that kids could transfer in and out of it on the fly and it would never have to stop moving.

In addition to making the kids healthier (as long as we don't line it with death carpet), there are a lot of other benefits. Since we wouldn't have to hire bus drivers, the schools could save enough money to pay their sewer connection fees for the new schools. Also, instead of having to spend all that money to pave the road to the high school, they could just roll it a couple of times with the old water tower full of kids and it would get so hard they'd probably never have to worry about it. And if the kids ever got too tired to run the thing, we could hitch up some of the local cows that are just hanging around doing nothing.

It could have become a symbol of the community. We could sell advertising to the local merchants, with logos plastered all around the thing, inside and out. We could have had an anti-drug event called the Annual Hash Smash where all these drugs got piled on the streets and the kids run over it with the tower, smashing them into smithereens. We could have had Dueling Towers Day,

BE SURE OF YOUR TRAVEL INSURANCE

When an illness or other personal crisis hits, travel insurance can help keep vacation dreams from turning into nightmares — if you are a savvy consumer. The ins and outs of travel insurance can be complicated. The most important thing is to make sure you understand what type of coverage you are, and are not, getting. For example, trip cancellation waivers that are often offered by cruise lines typically protect the consumer's prepayment if the passenger needs to cancel within a specified period of time. The key here is to find out exactly how much money will be refunded, by what deadlines, and for what allowable reasons. Also, different insurance policies may be available through independent agencies or by the cruise or tour companies themselves. An experienced travel agent can help ensure that you understand the fine print and sort out what all the options mean for you.

Other important travel insurance involves a visit to UNIGLOBE CHELSEA TRAVEL, INC. We offer travel insurance that your trip will be a special one. If you're like most travelers, you've worked hard to be able to set aside the time and costs of a memorable vacation. Stop by 1070 South Main Street, and let us make sure your time and dollars are not wasted. We will prepare a complete itinerary for your trip, whether for business or pleasure. One call does it all - 475-3110. HINT: Money you pay for travel insurance is almost never refundable, even if the money for your trip is.

MAKE A SICK BUILDING WELL with the LIVING AIR XL-15

According to the EPA, indoor air pollution is our nation's biggest pollution problem. Modern homes and buildings are so energy efficient they block out nature's air cleaning agents and trap pollution inside—inside where you probably spend 90% of your time. What can you do? Ventilation systems can be expensive, and filters provide only a partial remedy. Why not look at nature? Living Air looked to nature before designing the revolutionary XL-15, an electronic thunderstorm in a box. A thunderstorm is nature's most powerful air cleaning activity.

Lima Twp. Planning Commission negotiates gas station agreement

It appears as if the Lima Township Planning Commission has reached an agreement with a developer who owns property near the Old US-12 and I-94 intersection.

Stan Kint, who has proposed a gas station/convenience store and a model home display, brought his attorney to the Nov. 19 meeting and negotiated a verbal agreement. Details must still be put in writing and the zoning change request must be amended from C-3 to C-2.

The township's master plan, however, calls for C-3 zoning in that area. But the township planning commission wants more control over the project. The commission originally suggested the developer agree to a planned unit development designation.

Under the C-2 zoning compromise Kint would need to request a special land use permit to operate the gas station/convenience store.

Resident outcry over the project surfaced earlier this fall. A petition was submitted to the commission with residents objecting to a truck stop or 24-hour operation. Marvin Carlson, co-chair of the planning commission, cautioned Kint to heavily weigh any concerns voiced by surrounding residents.

Kint's request was tabled until the planning commission's next meeting, Dec. 17.

Couple seeking waiver on township's 10-acre zoning

A request by a couple to change Lima Township's zoning map to allow for a planned unit development was referred to the Washtenaw County Metropolitan Planning Commission and the township planner for consideration last week.

Lima Township Planning Commission considered the request after a public hearing held Tuesday, Nov. 19.

The couple originally asked the commission to change the zoning on a 9.16-acre parcel from agricultural to rural residential. Lima Township Board, however, sent the issue back to the commission to reconsider for a P.U.D. designation.

It's the couple's intention to divide the lot so they can build a home on a three-acre sub-parcel. They want to be near an elderly relative presently living in a home on the property so they can care for her.

According to the township ordinance, agricultural zoning requires lots of at least 10 acres in size. There was some speculation the 9.16-acre lot was established prior to the township's 10-acre minimum was put on the books.

If the couple is granted their P.U.D. designation, they will need to submit a site plan, specify landscaping and have the plan sealed by an architect or engineer. Once they've met requirements, the planning commission makes a recommendation to the township board, which has final approval.

Some 50 people attended the planning commission meeting Nov. 19. The couple's proposal received mixed reaction. One township resident suggested every time the township breaks its 10-acre minimum it opens itself up to lawsuits. Another resident supported the plan, saying the planning commission needs to consider the family unit, and individual commission members need to follow their hearts.

Mullane delivers inspiring message

He also showed a slide of his hometown of Phoenix, Ariz., that he took while aboard one of his space shuttle missions.

"When I took this picture I was crying for joy, because I had a lifelong dream come true," Mullane said. "I want you to do that someday, to cry for joy because your dreams have come true."

He said the most beautiful things astronauts see while aboard the space shuttle are sunrises and sunsets, because the sunlight is split into a prism, and all of the different colors of light can be seen. Because of the way the shuttle circles the Earth, the sun rises and sets every 45 minutes for the astronauts aboard.

Mullane said one of the downfalls of going into space is the sickness that about half of all astronauts get. He demonstrated to the audience how astronauts use "barf bags," which can be a bit of a challenge in presence of weightlessness. Mullane recalled that often, not all of the contents intended for the bag get inside.

"I remember one time I felt something warm and wet on the side of my face," he said. "It was the attack of the floating blob of barf."

Mullane said one belief his space missions have instilled into him is that Earthlings are not alone in the universe.

"I do believe there are intelligent beings out in the universe, because it's just so enormous," he said. "There's probably lots of alien civilizations out there."

Mullane told the audience that if they remember anything from his speech he wants them to take with them his three steps to accomplishing dreams: taking care of your body, always doing your best and staying in school.

Study shows friendship becomes easier with age

She bends your ear off with daily installments of her latest life crises. She borrows your best earrings and never returns them. She knows all your secrets.

Best friends get on our nerves less as we age, according to a University of Michigan study presented Monday, Nov. 18 at the annual meeting of the Gerontological Society of America.

"With age, we also tend to feel that our best friends are less demanding," says Aurora Sherman, a U-M psychology student who co-authored the presentation on best-friend relationships with U-M researcher Toni Antonucci.

For the study, Sherman and Antonucci analyzed the give-and-take between best friends ranging in age from 13 to 94 years old. Only 73 of the 1,498 people surveyed were eliminated from the study because they said they did not have a best friend.

The researchers analyzed the degree of reciprocity in each friendship by asking: "During your life, would you say you have provided more support, advice, and help to your friend, has it been about equal, or has your friend provided more to you?"

They found that the vast majority of people felt their relationships with best friends were about equal. But among those who thought the give-and-take was unequal, twice as many felt they were giving more than they were getting.

"Feeling that you're putting more into a relationship than your friend has a big impact on how satisfied you are with the relationship," says Sherman. "Teens who felt this way were the most likely to say their friend was too demanding and got on their nerves."

"But we were surprised to find that feeling over-benefited seemed to have little impact on how good people thought their relationship was."

According to a widely accepted explanation called equity theory, getting a really good deal in a relationship is supposed to make you feel guilty, and guilt has as great a negative impact on the quality of the relationship as feeling angry and resentful because you're giving too much.

But the over-benefited best friends in the U-M study felt their relationships were just as good as those who gave and took equally.

Sherman and Antonucci found few significant differences between the best friendships of men and women. But their findings did confirm the popular view that disclosing private feelings and concerns to a best friend is much less important to men than to women.

"Men who are best friends report a low level of disclosure," says Sherman. "For women, disclosure tends to define what it means to be a best friend."

As cold weather approaches, be cautious with the use of antifreeze. If a bottle is left open or drained on to the floor, dogs and cats may drink it because of the sweet taste of Ethylene Glycol.

Poisoning can occur after drinking just a few ounces. Early signs are depression, vomiting, and seizures. Later signs are total kidney failure and coma. Prompt treatment (within hours) is essential for recovery. Hospitalization, intensive treatment including periodic blood work is required.

If you have any questions, please feel free to contact us here at Lane Animal Hospital (475-8696). We have 24 hour emergency service for our clients.

A visit by Santa Claus, tree lighting ceremony, other events slated Nov. 7

Dexter has a full day of events slated Saturday, Dec. 7 to celebrate the holidays.

Dexter Merchants Association has organized its fourth annual Holly Daze event. The Luminaria work bee is also set.

The Luminaria work bee is set for the day at 9 a.m. in the village square. Kits are available at the village square. The kits will be distributed to village neighborhoods and put out Christmas eve, illuminating the streets of Dexter. For more information call Dave Amsdill at 426-3741.

Local Christmas bazaars open at 9 a.m. Dexter Area Historical Society will hold its annual bazaar at Dexter Area Museum. Dexter Girl Scouts will hold theirs at St. Andrew's United Church of Christ and Dexter Co-op Nursery will hold its bazaar at Copeland in the Dexter Senior Center. Some bazaar items include evergreen wreaths, dipped candles, home-made confections, baked goods, crafts, hand-crafted ornaments, hand-made rugs and garlands, jams and jellies.

Holly Daze begins with a visit by Santa Claus in Monument Park. Santa will greet children and pose for photographs from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. in the gazebo. The gazebo will be decorated to resemble an old-fashioned village complete with sleigh. Children from Dexter schools will contribute many of the decorations to create the scene.

For the second consecutive year a light parade will be held at 6 p.m. Area residents are asked to dress up their vehicles, floats, themselves or a pet in lights for a parade through town. For more information call Ralph Schlaff at 426-1900.

Community caroling in Monument Park will follow the parade. A dedication of the new lights in the park will follow the sing.

Dexter Firefighters Association will be presented a plaque for individuals' work over some 30 years in purchasing holiday lighting and decorating the village at Christmastime. Dexter Merchants Association took over the job this year, raising funds through two golf outings and using the reserve from Bruce Waggoner's clock fund.

A sock and mitten tree at Dexter Bakery benefits needy families through Faith in Action and Dexter Family Services. This is the fourth year Dexter Merchants have collected items for the agency.

Besides the events scheduled Nov. 7, downtown merchants will hold open houses, provide refreshments, sales and specials for shoppers.

Linda Grant, assistant sales manager at Farmer Grant's, is pictured with Department 56 Snow Villages. The local market and greenhouse on Jackson Road is featuring Snow Villages, Christmas Camera in Dexter.

Dancer, a reindeer originally from Alaska, relaxes at the Waterloo Tree Farm. The reindeer, and his friend, Prancer, can be found taking it easy there until Christmas, when they will be helping Santa make his way around the world on the annual gift-giving journey. Pictured is tree farm owner John Klink with a couple of his helpful elves.

Scio Township

Larceny
A 25-year-old woman reported her purse had been stolen from Unique Hair Salons, 3905 Jackson Rd in Scio Township, Nov. 21. The woman said she wasn't sure where she had set her purse down in the salon, but she was certain she had brought it in with her. When she was ready to pay for her services, she could not find her purse. The contents of the purse included miscellaneous papers, her driver's license, $80 in cash and change, two car keys, a checkbook and five credit cards. The woman went home immediately to cancel her credit cards, and found one of the cards had been used to make purchases at Hudson's Department store. The woman's purse was later found at the Briarwood Mall in Ann Arbor, and her checkbook and credit cards were missing.

Breaking and Entering
A 58-year-old Scio Township man reported his home, in the 4700 block of Dawson Road had been broken into

Nov. 21. Police believe the suspect used a key that was concealed in a rock outside the front door to gain entry into the house. The man noticed a Sony boom box was missing from the kitchen when he got home from work. After determining his wife had not taken the boom box in for repairs, the man checked the rest of the house. He then found that a Realistic turn table was missing, along with a plastic box containing rolled coins. The total estimated value of these items was $450. When police checked the rock containing the house keys, they found both of the keys to the house were in place.

Warrant Arrest
Jack Robert Bilkovsky, 56, of 3836 Dexter Road, was arrested at his home Nov. 20. A deputy learned of a valid felony warrant for assault with a dangerous weapon, went to Bilkovsky's home and apprehended him without incident.

Medical Assist
Police responded to a request for medical assistance for a medication overdose at Scio Farms Estates trailer park Nov. 18. The subject said she has migraine headaches and severe arthritis in her neck and back. She had taken 15 Relafen pills, four Dicyclomine pills and one Zolofit pill. She said she has taken that many pills before without adverse side effects. The woman said she was not suicidal, and did not suffer from depression. Medical teams who responded to the scene found the pill bottles were all expired. The woman was transported to the University of Michigan Hospital for treatment.

Sylvan Township

Warrant Arrest
Hope Densie Nav, 30, of Jackson was arrested when stopped for a routine traffic violation Nov. 21 on Sibley Road. When a search was conducted, it was found that there was a valid warrant out for the woman's arrest for writing checks with non-sufficient funds. Nav was taken into custody without incident.

Kevin Robert Palmer, 35, of 518 Ganson Road in Jackson, was arrested at the intersection of I-94 and Notten Road in Chelsea Nov. 21. Police found there was a valid warrant for Palmer's arrest for failure to pay child support. He was taken into police custody without incident.

Car Fire

Officers reported to the corner of Kalmbach and Garvey roads Nov. 18 to follow up on a car fire that was reported Sept. 11. The 38-year old man who had owned the vehicle at the time of the incident stated he no longer owns the vehicle in question. He said he had traded the vehicle to Ann Arbor Auto for services rendered, because the vehicle was not worth the amount of the bill. Police found that the vehicle identification number was not valid, and the vehicle was no longer in the impound files.

Homeowners encouraged to decorate for Festival of Lights

The Chelsea Festival of Lights Committee, chaired by Ken Gietzen, has announced that they will once again sponsor a contest to recognize homes that are especially well-decorated for the holiday season.

Everyone in the Chelsea area is encouraged to participate.

Homes will be judged in one of three categories: Best Use of Lights, Most Artistic, and Best Religious Display. The Chelsea Merchants Association will be providing $50 gift certificates for the first place in each category, and honorable mentions will also be publicly recognized.

The awards will be presented at the All Community Sing, which will be held at 9 p.m. at the Chelsea Depot on Dec. 6, the evening of the festival. Judging will take place on the evenings of Dec. 4-5 so decorations must be prominently displayed by Tuesday Dec. 3 in order to be considered.

If you live outside of the village, and would like to be considered for this contest, please call the Chamber of Commerce office at (475-1145) to register your address.

The Holiday Decorating Contest is part of the 9th Annual Festival of Lights, which will be held on Friday, Dec. 6, with events running from 6 p.m.-9:30 p.m. Activities include the lighting of the tree, Santa's Workshop, a live nativity, hospitality centers, hayrides, caroling, and much more. Look in next week's

Movies offered for young people

The Ann Arbor District Library will present free showings of two popular children's movies (recommended for ages 6 and up) in the Youth Department Story Room at the Main Library during the month of December. Because of the wide appeal of these films, registration is required.

On Monday, Dec. 23, at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m., the library will present the Academy Award nominated film "A Little Princess." Based on the popular children's title by the same name, the film magically captures the tale of a little girl whose fortunes are dashed with the apparent death of her beloved father. Sent to a cold attic in a home for young girls, she uses her imagination and the help of new friends to survive. This film received wide critical acclaim when released last year.

Registration for this film begins Monday, Dec. 9.

Chelsea family featured on national TV show

By Angela Trotter
Staff Writer

When Paul and Kathy Osborn of Chelsea decided to make a prank video for the retirement party of one of Paul's colleagues, they never dreamed the video would earn them money. Nor did they dream that the video would be broadcast on national television during prime time hours and subject to millions of viewers. And even more far-fetched would be the possibility of them getting an all-expense paid trip to California, as guests of that national television show.

America's Funniest Home Videos is a television show that asks viewers to send in humorous video they have shot with their home video cameras. It airs every Sunday night at 7:30 on ABC.

The Osborns sent their video into the show about a year-and-a-half ago. The show's producers telephoned them soon after to let them know they might be using the video for the show, and asked them to sign a release form. Then they didn't hear anything further for quite some time.

It was not until a few weeks ago that the show's producers called the Osborn family and told them they were still planning on using the video. Then, about two weeks ago, on a Monday afternoon, the producers called again, and told Paul and Kathy they would like to fly the family out to California the following Saturday to appear on the show.

"They usually pick four families every week to fly out there, three that make it to the final round, and then one placebo," Kathy said. "We just figured we were the fourth."

The video, which was shot by Kathy and Paul's son, Todd, was filmed at the Ann Arbor Airport. It opens with a shot of Paul pumping on an air pump and telling his friend that he has almost finished creating his retirement gift. Then, the camera moves to a wide shot, that shows Paul standing with his pump in front of a Good-year Blimp.

The family's trip was entirely paid for by the show, and they were even given spending money.

Paul said one of the highlights of the trip for him was running into Sparky Anderson, former head coach of the Detroit Tigers professional baseball team, at LaX airport. He said he got to talk to and take pictures with Anderson. The family was also impressed with how they were treated by the staff of America's Funniest Home Videos.

"Everybody at the show was really nice, which was surprising," Kathy said. "We had no kids or animals in our video, so we didn't think we'd place."

As it turned out, the Osborns did make it to the final round, in which the show's audience votes for their favorite video of three choices the producers have presented. Their video placed in the top three, but if you want to find out whether they got first, second or third, you'll have to tune in to ABC on Sunday, Dec. 2 to find out.

The Osborn family of Chelsea recently traveled to California as guests of America's Funniest Home Videos television show. The family, and their winning video, can be seen Dec. 2 at 7:30 p.m. on ABC.

The Way It Was

Shoes, schools much different years ago

By Kathy Clark
Special Writer

Thirty-eight Chelsea students with their teacher Marie Bacon are posing for an elementary school photograph. It was probably taken at the turn of the century.

The first thing that caught my eye was the soles of the cobbled shoes and boots lined up in the front row. If you look closely, you can see the nails in them. One boy in a frilly white shirt (or dress, as boys did once wear dresses!) is wearing an especially large pair of boots.

As far as I know shoes were not mass produced at that time. They were sewn and nailed together on iron shoe forms by a cobbler. Several of the shoes look like they had an arch. Right and left look fitted properly. I mention this because once shoes and boots were exactly the same shape for each foot.

Children in the class may range in age from five to 14 years old. Kindergartners are in the bottom row. Some of the oldest are dressed in suits in the top row. The 38 children likely made up the entire student body in a school the size of the schoolhouse shown.

Two or three of them are slightly smiling. The rest appear to be seriously well-behaved, with expressionless faces. In early photographs the shutter exposure was much longer and the subject had to sit very still. Blinking eyes or moving mouths would blur the photograph. Children hadn't thought of the rabbit ears (or horns) behind the head trick yet!

The schoolhouse with wide front steps was in Chelsea. It was located either next to the old high school on Park or Harrison Street, or on Middle Street.

Many other smaller country school houses were built outside of Chelsea. There were so many country schools in Washtenaw County most kids didn't have to walk more than a couple of miles.

I recently spoke with a local country school graduate who was somewhere between 65 and 75 years old. He said the bigger kids helped the little kids. They were much like a big family. Often playing outside they'd come in soaked and strip down to their underwear to dry everything out. No one thought anything of it.

In those days the teacher was more like a mother. She could give hugs and sit some of the smaller ones on her lap as she taught. All of the kids helped keep the stoves full of wood or coal. If discipline was needed the teacher often relied on the older boys to help with the younger boys (not to bully but to be more like a big brother). Sometimes an older girl would help keep everyone in order, too.

He said an academic benefit of the younger with the older was they could hear the arithmetic, spelling and reading lessons over and over. If a child didn't catch on by grade one or two, they had several more years to absorb the lessons. Children were not singled out as slow learners, or dumb.

Figuratively speaking, the shoes we walk in today are very different than 100 years ago, and we all own many more pairs.

New local medical practice unorthodox

East is meeting West in a new medical practice that has opened in Chelsea.

The practice, Integrated Health Care of Chelsea, was recently formed by Dr. Martin Gleespen, a long-time local internist and a medical director at Chelsea Hospital. The practice moved into new office facilities at 1290 South Main on Labor Day.

"I wanted to change my practice from a less clinically oriented setting to a more personal, patient-centered practice," said Dr. Gleespen, formerly of the group practice of Chelsea Internal Medicine. "For the new practice, we chose the word 'integrated' because we are bringing together the best of modern Western medicine and complementing therapies that have had proven results in the East."

The Eastern influence comes from Dr. Gleespen's wife Milagros Paredes, a graduate of Toronto's Shiatsu School of Canada. Paredes, who was born in the Philippines, has opened a Shiatsu practice in the facility's Health & Healing Center. The couple were married this summer.

Shiatsu, Paredes said, is a body-centered healing technique similar to acupuncture. Shiatsu operates on the foundation that certain pressure points on the body relate to mental and physical health.

"Instead of fine needles, I use fingers and hand pressure," said Paredes. "It's very much like acupuncture — but without the needles."

Dr. Gleespen still firmly believes in the diagnostic techniques and steadily advancing technology of modern American medicine. A graduate of the Medical College of Ohio, he's practiced for 10 years in internal medicine with a special emphasis on geriatric disorders and addiction. Currently, he's medical director of the Older Adult Chemical Dependency Program at Chelsea Hospital, believed to be the first geriatric addiction program of its kind in the United States.

But like acupuncture, the couple said, Shiatsu has been found to be effective with people who are suffering from symptoms such as anxiety, headaches, shortness of breath and chronic pain, symptoms that often don't appear to be linked to a particular disease. Many times such symptoms are stress related, Dr. Gleespen said, and if go untreated, develop into more serious disorders.

"Most people come to a doctor long before they've actually developed a recognizable disease," said Dr. Gleespen. "Traditionally, a doctor might prescribe a medication for symptoms and it may or may not help or get at the root cause. The Shiatsu can help such a patient."

Paredes said that in the Shiatsu School in Toronto blended Eastern and Western sciences as well, placing emphasis on physiology, pathology and anatomy. Shiatsu is widely practiced in Toronto. It was developed in Japan.

Dr. Gleespen and his wife both subscribe to the holistic approach to healing, evaluating patients by looking at more than just symptoms. Exercise, diet, relaxation techniques and life style changes can often have a direct effect on patient's physical complaints.

Dr. Gleespen said he's learned quite a bit about Eastern medical philosophy practicing with his wife.

"What she knows seems to compliment my traditional way of looking at medicine," he said. "Some symptoms that don't appear to be related in Western diagnosis often have a direct connection within the Shiatsu framework."

The couple said working together as a married couple also seems to have affected the practice in ways they didn't expect.

"We wanted to offer more of a family setting," Dr. Gleespen said. "And people seem to be responding to the fact we're man and wife. They feel comfortable with people who are family. They like the personal nature of it."

Lets Go Bulldogs!

Dogs beaten in finals

Chelsea's basketball team closed out the regular season with a 38-16 win over Brooklyn Columbia Central.

The win gave Chelsea a 16-5 overall record and an 11-1 SEC champion mark for the regular season, one of the best in school history.

As has been the case most of the season, Kasie Ruhlig led the way with 22 points. She set a school record with five three-pointers, and added nine steals and six assists.

"Kasie was great that night," head coach Charlie Waller said.

Ruhlig's 22-point performance left little scoring for the rest of the team, but Melissa Carty did add five.

Chrissy Hodgson pulled down seven rebounds to lead the Bulldogs in the win.

Ruhlig set another school record in the team's district opening with 11 steals.

Chelsea scored 18 third-quarter points in a 48-40 win over Onsted at Dexter.

Ruhlig secured a double-double with 14 points. She also dished out seven assists.

Cindy Richard scored eight points, and grabbed nine boards.

The win sent Chelsea into the district finals against the SEC's second-place team, Milan.

Chelsea swept the season series with the Big Reds, winning on September 24 in the SEC opening 40-34 and then again on October 24 47-32.

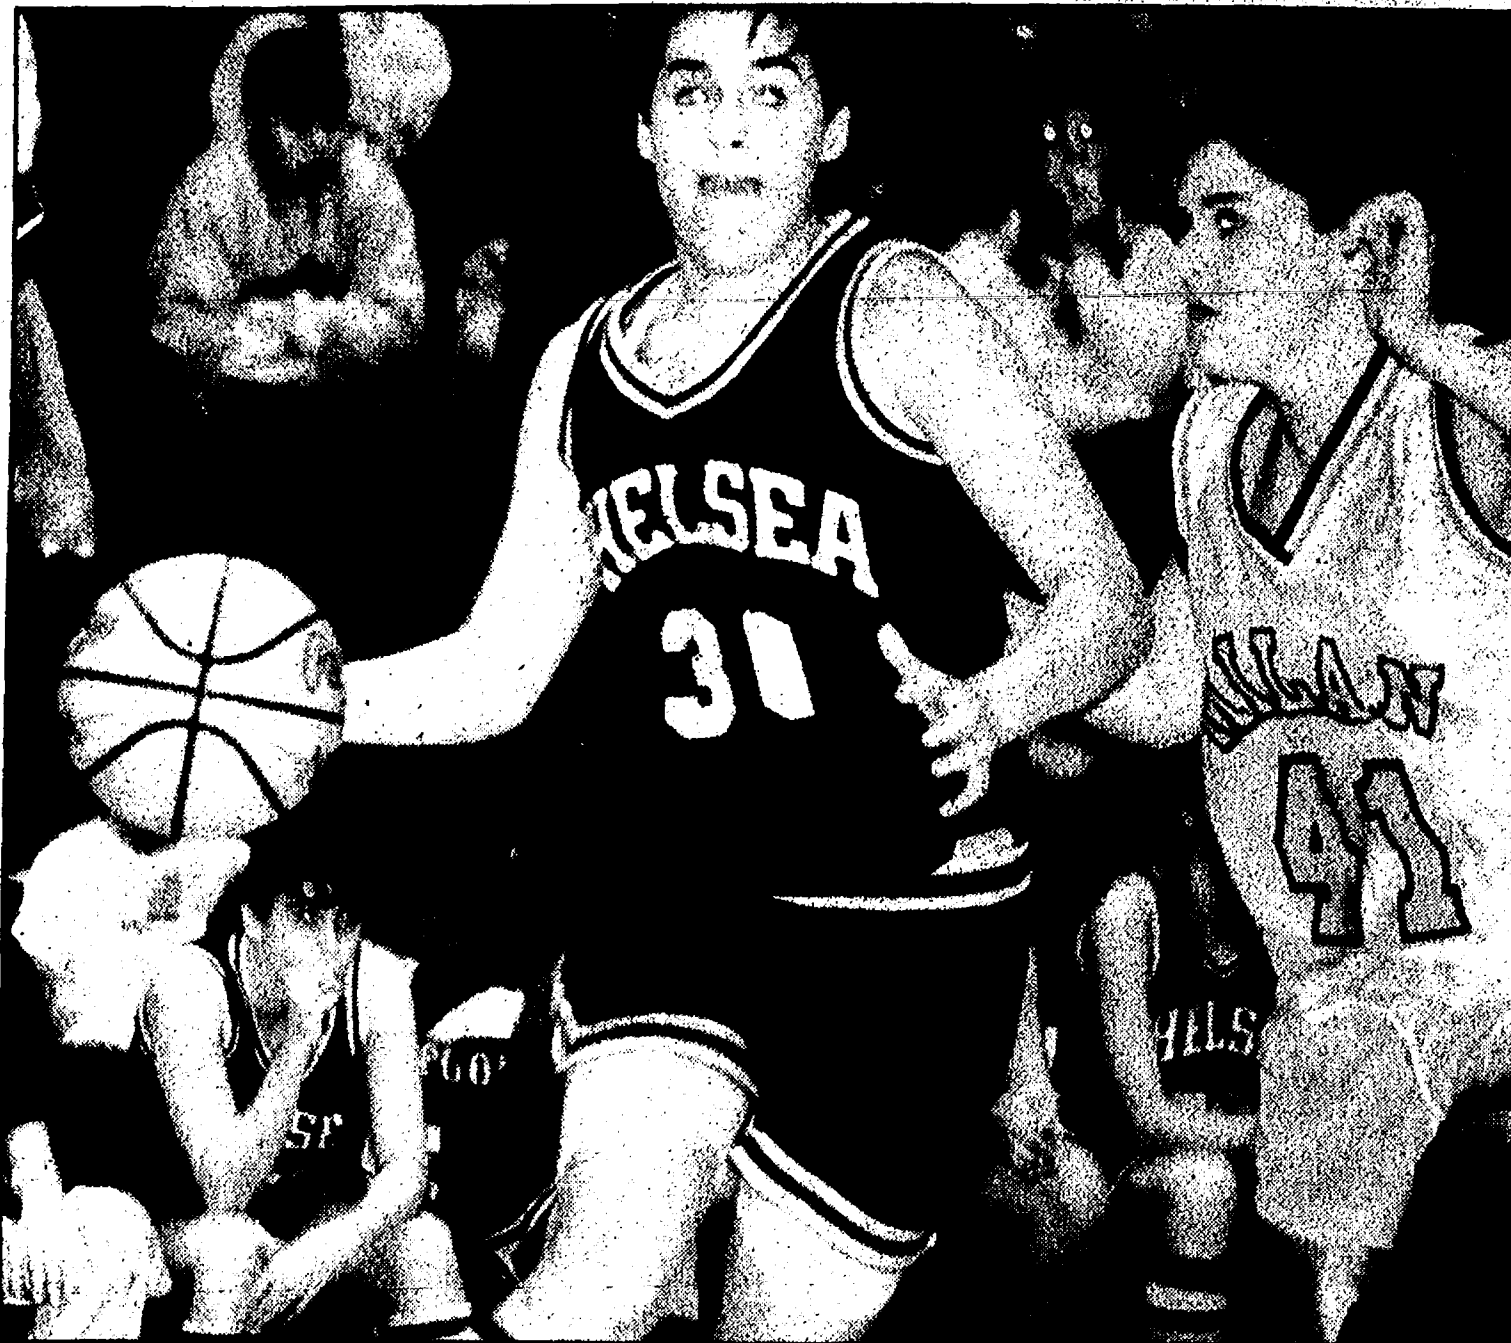

But as the saying goes, it's tough to beat a team three times in the same year.

Milan proved that theory true as the Big Reds, with a healthy Heather Frank, ended Chelsea's run 48-33.

Cindy Richard led the way for the Bulldogs with 15 points and played a great game, according to Waller.

Ruhlig scored eight and added five steals and eight assists. Hodgson and Lucas each added four rebounds.

The season ended for Chelsea with a 17-6 record, but the quality of the season goes far beyond that.

The Bulldogs started the year with a 2-4 record, and went on to win 15 of their last 17 games, an unparalleled streak in these parts.

Among those wins were a sweep of Milan and an upset of highly-ranked Willow Run.

Waller had a sensational team and the season record and SEC title reflect the hard work and determination that this team put forth.

About the Outdoors

by Jerry D. Posey

It was the last day of the deer hunting season and although I had seen several deer and even had one quick shot, I still had not yet filled my tag.

After spending the morning sitting in the woods and stomping alongside each and every fence row, I returned to the farmhouse intending to take a break before going back out in the early evening for more hunting.

As I stood at the kitchen sink drinking a glass of the cold well water, I watched the elderly lady who lived next door as she walked across her small backyard to the fence that surrounded her one-acre property which sat about 50 yards from my mother-in-laws big farm house.

Her actions got my attention because she had on no coat or sweater which was a bit odd since it was quite cold and windy at the time. When she got to the fence she dumped the contents of the dishpan that she was carrying over the fence, and she returned to the house.

As I watched her enter the rear door of her small home a movement back at the fence line caught my eye. I couldn't believe what I was looking at. The largest deer that I had seen all season, had just stood up and was moving toward the spot where the lady had deposited the dishwater or whatever it was that was in the pan.

It was easy to see from that distance that the deer was a huge buck and the rack it was carrying had at least 10 nice points.

While I stood there not believing what I was seeing, the deer, after a nonchalant walk of about 20 yards, stopped to eat from the lady's offerings.

As I rushed around, putting on by boots and coat and uncasing and loading my shotgun while the family watched, a car pulled into the neighbor's driveway. The deer never flinched until the car doors started slamming, then it turned and trotted across the field and disappeared into the woods.

Of course I followed the tracks as best I could, but I never saw that deer again.

I was young at the time this true story took place, but I learned a little about deer hunting that day and have taken advantage of what I learned several times since and it has helped me to score on a few nice deer.

The next day I met the neighbor lady while getting the mail. When I told her what had happened the day before, she shocked me with her response. She said that the deer had been in that same spot almost every day since the season opened and each day she would dump her potato or apple peelings over the fence then return to the house and watch as the deer approached to eat what she had left.

As the years have gone by I found that this scenario is not as uncommon as it may seem. Often a deer, usually an older more experienced one, will find a spot near buildings or a residence where it feels safe. It will hide out there during the daylight hours while the hunters are tromping around in the woods and fields, often passing very close to the hiding spot but never thinking to check an area this close to human activity.

It seems as though some of these deer have figured out that it doesn't take much to hide an animal as small as they are when they are laying down and they use this knowledge to their advantage now and then.

I once observed a nice sized buck walk across a large open field just after daybreak and lay down alongside a telephone pole in a very small clump of weeds in the center of the field.

After checking with the farmer, I attempted to sneak to within shooting range of the deer, knowing he could see me coming in any direction for at least 75 yards. As expected, he jumped and fled before I was close enough to get a decent shot.

The next morning daylight found me sitting in the clump of weeds with my back against the telephone pole. About 7:30 he came strolling across the field heading for his day bed. At 8:00 I was field dressing him about 40 yards from the pole.

In areas where dogs are allowed to run loose this may not happen as often, but I always check out this type of hiding place after the first week of the season, when the deer are getting tired of being rousted from their normal daytime resting places.

Keep in mind that these backyard bucks are not the stupid branch of their family. They were smart enough to figure out the humans' movement patterns in the area and made adjustments that may help them to see another deer season.

Chelsea 8th-graders lose to Saline, 45-18

The eight grade boys basketball team lost its season opener on Friday, Nov. 15 to the Saline Hornets, 45-18. Saline got out to a fast start scoring 15 points in the first quarter to just two for the visiting Bulldogs. "This was our first game," commented coach Jim Tallman, "while Saline already had a games experience under their belts". "Our inexperience showed as we were unable to get un-tracked the entire game."

Chelsea's inability to score continued in the second and third quarters as Saline outscored the Bulldogs 36-8. The fourth was the only quarter in which the Bulldogs managed to outscore their opponent but it was too little too late. Leading scorer for Chelsea was Rob Hoenke with four points. Other Bulldogs who contributed in the scoring were Greg Kennedy, Chris Cooper, Nate Keiser, Nick Battistone, Joel Grimm, Robbie Bassett and Randy Peace all with two points.

The Bulldogs are a better team than they showed on that Friday and they proved it on Monday when they traveled to Dexter to face the Dreadnaughts. Chelsea reversed the tables this night as 11 different players entered into the scoring to defeat their opponent 35-21. Leading the parade was Tony Scheffler with six, Cory Picklesimer with five, Joel Grimm and Chris Brigham with four, Greg Kennedy, Chris Cooper and Randy Peace with three, Mike Radka, Rob Hoenke and Robbie Bassett each with two and Brian Sayer with one. "The balanced scoring effort is always gratifying to see in a young team and usually shows a great deal of team strength," commented Tallman.

On Thursday, Chelsea entertained Pinckney for its first home game of the season and had another outstanding effort by a number of performers. Chelsea defeated Pinckney 37-35. Leading the way in the effort was Ben Meyers with 16, Rob Hoenke and Randy Peace with six, Cory Picklesimer with five, Chris Brigham with two and Tony Scheffler and Brian Sayers with one apiece.

IMPLANT LENSES

There is a lot of confusion about some terms used in eye surgery - cataracts, implants, transplants, contacts - the whole subject is a "blur" to most people. An implant is a lens that is surgically placed inside the eye at the time of cataract surgery. In cataract surgery, the normal human lens is removed from the eye because it has become cloudy. In the absence of the human lens, the lens implant is needed for focusing. The lens implant, also called intraocular lens, allows the patient to have good vision without wearing contact lenses or the thick glasses that used to be worn after cataract surgery.

The lens implant is permanent, and never needs to be removed or cleaned, since it is inside the eye. They are very small, only about one-fourth inch, but are designed to be held firmly in place. Lens implants are made of a special type of plastic, and come in different powers to correct for nearsightedness or farsightedness.

Improvements in lens implants are only one of the great advances that have been made in modern cataract surgery, allowing the great majority of cataract patients to have a rapid return to excellent vision.

LaFave honored at banquet

The annual Chelsea Football banquet is usually a changing of the guard for the squad.

Welcoming in the new seniors and thanking and honoring the ones that will be graduating is the usual agenda, but this year, it was more than that.

Gene LaFave celebrated his final banquet along with his 13 seniors. The coach's 23-year tenure ended after the final game of the year.

"It's always a sad event," LaFave said. "But this year, knowing it was the end, it was especially hard."

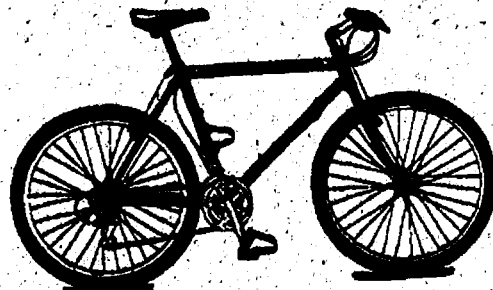

The event was held Nov. 11 at the high school, and a crowd of about 400 people attended.

Team awards were presented to Dustin White, as team MVP; James Hadley, Brian Hall, and Laramie Paxton as the team's most improved players; Jay Schick and Casey Westcott as most valuable backs; and Jamie Holzhausen and Christian DeSarbo as most valuable linemen.

Special awards were given to LaFave from the players, the school district, and athletic director Wayne Welton.

"This was a great group, and we had an outstanding season," LaFave said. "This was a very nice send-off for them and myself."

Local dancers to present 'A Christmas Fantasy' Dec. 14-15

The Dance Arts Performing Ensemble has completed auditions for the 1996-1997 season and moved into an active rehearsal schedule for their December show.

On Dec. 14-15 the Ensemble will present A Christmas Fantasy with ballet and tap performances as well as the final act of The Nutcracker ballet. Ensemble dancers, coming from Chelsea, Dexter, Manchester and the surrounding areas, range in age from 9-16. All dancers are required to take a minimum of two dance classes per week in addition to attending classes and rehearsals of the Ensemble.

A volunteer Board of Directors manages the business of the ensemble — everything from sewing costumes to paying the bills. The artistic director is Susan Buck Heinz — who volunteers not only her time but also the use of her dance studio.

Heinz has been teaching dance in the Chelsea area for 11 years. She initiated the formation of the ensemble last year in order to provide her students with the opportunity for a larger repertoire of dance as well as more performance experience.

Heinz has both her bachelor's and master's degrees in dance from Indiana University and attended the National Academy of Dance, a performing arts high school, in Champaign, Ill. While at Indiana University she was on the Children's Dance Faculty and studied with Anna Paskevskaya, author of "Both Sides of the Mirror," "The Science and Art of Ballet" and other books about dance. She has studied with renowned dancers Gwynne Ashton, Michael Maule and Anthony Valdor, as well as nationally acclaimed tap and jazz teachers.

Her studies have taken her to the Joffrey School of Ballet, the Southwest Ballet Center and the Houston Ballet Academy. She has performed with the Texas Ballet in Houston and been a guest artist with several national ballet companies. Her studio in Chelsea provides dance instruction in ballet, jazz, tap and modern dance for all age and skill levels. She offers a serious attention to correct technique and professional standards, combined with joy in dancing and perpetual emphasis on positive self-esteem for her students.

Heinz is bringing in guest choreographer Lisa Pelio for the December show. Pelio returned to her native Michigan in 1994, after an absence of nearly a decade of building her reputation as a choreographer and master teacher in New York, Atlanta and Chicago. She has taught for the Illinois Dance Festival, Northside High School for the Performing Arts (Atlanta), School of Atlanta Ballet, Ruth Mitchell Dance Company, Barat College and others.

Pelio has choreographed original full-length children's ballets and full-length classical ballets for various companies around the country. She was selected to set her works on some of the nation's finest dancers at the National Craft of Choreography Conference in New York.

Pelio was Ballet Mistress for the 1994 Michigan Opera Theatre production of "Cinderella" and 1995's "Nutcracker" for the Lansing Children's Ballet at the Wharton Center. She is the Artistic Director of Danse Michigan. Pelio was also appointed to the Michigan Humanities Council by Gov. Engler in the fall.

Family Medicine

By John C. Wolf, D.O.

Associate Professor of Family Medicine, Ohio University College of Osteopathic Medicine

Question: My sister had a hip fracture. I know that taking calcium is important in reducing my risk of hip fracture, but are there other things I should do?

Answer: Hip fractures, particularly in the elderly, are often associated with loss of bone strength. To understand why our bones become more fragile as we age, it is necessary to understand a little bit about how they normally function. Our bones — made up of both living cells and stored minerals (principally calcium) — are not inert objects. Instead, they are in a constant state of flux. In adult life the amount of new cells and minerals that are added each day are roughly equal to that which is taken out. This process is known as "absorption" and "re-absorption," and the end result is that our bones appear unchanging.

In osteoporosis, bone loss greater than bone production and the bones, therefore, lose mineral content. This makes them weaker and increases the risk of a broken hip. It also makes spinal and wrist fracture much more likely.

Twenty-five million Americans suffer from osteoporosis and women are afflicted with it eight times more often than men. The greatest risk for osteoporosis comes from age alone. Fifty percent of women 50 and older have this condition.

There are several things that reduce one's risk of fractures from osteoporosis. Consuming 1,000 to 1,500 milligrams of calcium each day, as you suggested, is an important first step. An eight ounce glass of skim milk or calcium-fortified orange juice provides 300 milligrams, as does eating 1½ cups of broccoli. Most people, however, prefer taking a calcium supplement instead of consuming sufficient quantities of these calcium-rich foods. In addition to the calcium, it is also important to take 400 IU of vitamin D every day for those of us who live where sunlight exposure is very low in the winter months.

Taking estrogen, whether by mouth or by skin patch, reduces the risk of osteoporosis-related fractures by 50 percent for postmenopausal women. Regular vigorous physical activity and larger body size are also beneficial.

There are a few medicines that help increase bone strength while there are many more that tend to contribute to osteoporosis. Your doctor or pharmacist can talk with you about the benefits and risks posed by any drugs you take.

Sometimes specific preventive therapy should be started before you have a fracture. Gathering information about bone density can be of some limited help in this regard. Other factors — such as family history, vision, coordination, balance, muscle strength and body build — also need to be looked at. From your letter, the only one of these risk factors that I know about is your family history. Before I could make a recommendation about whether or not estrogen or other preventive therapy is warranted, I would need to know if you have a frail or sturdy body build, if you can maintain your balance when doing "heel-to-toe" walking, and how "in shape" your muscles are. Your family physician can examine you and take all these matters into consideration.

Regardless of how physically fit you are, I recommend you talk with your doctor about the types of physical activity that would be best for you. If you are not in shape, you need to get in shape; and if you are in shape, you need to stay in good condition through sane and sensible exercise.

There are also general safety issues such as use of throw rugs, lighting, extension cord use, and placement of grab rails in the bathroom that your doctor will probably want to talk to you about, too. Each of these items also relates directly to your risk of hip fracture. In this case it's not by strengthening bones but by significantly reducing your risk of falling. "Family Medicine" is a weekly column. To submit questions, write to John C. Wolf, D.O., Ohio University College of Osteopathic Medicine, Grosvenor Hall, Athens, Ohio 45701.

X-ers dubbed 'Clean Generation'

By Mary Harvey
Extension Outreach
Communications

According to a recent survey sponsored by the Soap and Detergent Association, Generation X-ers are potentially the clean generation. This group, which ranges in age from 18 to 29, rates cleanliness a priority in everything from housekeeping to personal appearance and hygiene. In fact, the survey shows they often shower several times a day.

Estleman to visit area

Nationally known mystery and western author Loren Estleman will be the featured speaker at the Tuesday, Dec. 10 edition of the popular noon-time Book For Lunch discussion series at the Ann Arbor District Library.

Estleman, creator of the best-selling Amos Walker mystery series and the historical Detroit trilogy fiction series, will reveal secrets of his trade with a lecture entitled "The Writer's Craft."

The Book For Lunch series is held in the Multi-Purpose room on the lower level of the Main Library from 12:10 to 1 p.m. Admission is free and open to all. Complementary tea and coffee will also be available.

The Main Library is located at 343 S. Fifth Avenue, Ann Arbor. For more information on the program call Dietmar Wagner at 994-2352.

The survey showed that Generation X-ers have the most questions about which cleaning products to select. This may account for their preference for all-purpose cleaners. In contrast, the Depression generation — 51 years and older — trust task-specific products. However, both these groups share the same high standards for household cleanliness.

The Boomers — ages 30 to 50 — expressed less concern for household cleanliness. This generation is strapped for time — attending to children and/or grandchildren, maintaining jobs and caring for aging parents. What little time they have for cleaning is mainly directed to the most used and most visible rooms — the bathroom and kitchen. Twenty years ago, when most baby boomers were 18 to 29, they expressed the lowest level of enjoyment related to cleaning.

Those interviewed maintained that women are still responsible for the majority of household cleaning. Despite busy lifestyles, more women today — 56 percent — think it is very important to keep their homes neat and tidy, compared with 48 percent of women in 1975.

Krupp Engineering begins new facility on Luick Drive

Krupp Engineering, producers of advanced, fully-dense powdered metal (P/M) and metal injection molded (M/M) components, broke ground and began construction of the new Krupp Technology Center. The 10,000 square foot facility, located at 13460 Luick Dr. in Chelsea, in the burgeoning high-tech manufacturing corridor near Ann Arbor, will serve as Krupp's production and administrative headquarters.

The groundbreaking was the culmination of three years of intensive research and investment to site and begin constructing a new facility. The Technology Center gives Krupp a fully-controlled manufacturing and test environment, and provides much needed space to accommodate increasing production demands and new equipment. "The new facility will give us much improved operating efficiency," said Stephanie Krupp, vice president of marketing. "This equates to quicker production turnaround on orders and lower costs for our customers."

"We need the added capacity to meet the growing demand for our high-performance, proprietary F2 processed P/M and M/M components," added Krupp. The new site is designed to accommodate future expansion up to 140 percent (to 24,000 sq. ft.), and the company has first option to buy the adjoining parcel of property. The Technology Center is scheduled for completion in the first quarter of 1997.

Literature contest open to middle, high school students

A national writing project called "Letters About Literature" offers students in grades 6-12 a chance to address letters to authors, living or dead, describing how that author's work has changed the student's thinking.

State winners, who will receive cash awards of up to $100 each, will be selected by a local panel of judges.

A grand prize winner and nine national winners will be selected by READ magazine. The grand prize winner will receive an all-expenses paid trip to Washington, D.C. for five days/four nights with a parent or guardian. Included will be lunch at the Library of Congress at the national Center for the Book. The winning essay will be published in the student issue of READ in April 1997. Nine national winners will also receive cash awards.

The Michigan Center for the Book, a program of the Library of Michigan in Lansing, is co-sponsoring the annual contest with READ magazine and the Weekly Reader Corporation.

Deadline for submissions is Dec. 6. Interested teachers, principals and school librarians can obtain information packets from the Weekly Reader Corporation by calling 800-638-2400. Submission forms from the Michigan Center for the Book, which may be photocopied as needed, will be mailed to schools in early October.

For more information, please call the Michigan Center for the Book at 517-373-4427 or Weekly Reader Corporation at 800-638-2400.

Mystery club features Ross

Mystery readers can learn more about one of the most successful new mystery authors, Kate Ross, on Monday Jan. 6 at 7:30 p.m. upstairs at the McKune Memorial Library. The meeting, originally planned for December, has been rescheduled because of the many holiday activities.

Yvonne Herron will host this first meeting of the 1997 year. She will share information about Ross' careers as an author and lawyer. She also will lead the club discussion about Ross' three mystery novels.

The Book Club holds their regular meetings on the first Monday of every month at the library at 7:30 p.m. New members and guests are welcomed. The Club is sponsored by Friends of McKune Memorial Library.

Lutton stars in theater production

Shea Lutton, son of David and Louise Lutton of North Zeeb Rd., Dexter, is featured in Denison University Theatre's production of Noises Off by Michael Frayn. The production is directed by Vail-Artist-in-Residence Paul DeBoy who studied at The Royal Academy in London.

In this ingenious play-within-a-play, a troupe of touring actors struggle nightly to perform a second-rate sex farce called Nothing On.

Lutton, a first-year student majoring in media technology and arts at Denison, plays the role of Frederick Fellowes in the production. He is a 1996 Dexter High School Graduate.

Juggling family, job a leading cause of stress

Juggling the demands of family and work life is one of the leading causes of stress today. Parents can be filled with self doubts that may fuel personal and family stress according to Dr. Richard Earle, Ph.D. family stress expert and consultant to the IOF Foresters, a Fraternal Benefit Society.

To help parents cope, a free brochure offering tips on balancing responsibilities effectively is available by calling 1-800-922-4-IOF and asking for "The Family Stress Juggling Act."

Earle advises that juggling demands effectively is the key to managing stress. Whether at home or work, stress heats up when the gap between "I should" and "I really can" grows too big.

Stress-reducing suggestions include:

- Lower expectations and abandon the notion of being perfect. Sometimes the dishes can wait but your family can't.

- Get the entire family to help run the household from day-to-day. Give up the idea that only you can do a certain job.

- Develop a support network of friends or family to help you out at certain times, especially if you're a single parent.

Partners can shift tasks, like shopping or bill paying, to each other for short periods of time whenever one of you needs to focus on something of immediate importance.

Busy parents should learn to budget time wisely, plan regular stress breaks for the whole family, and stop trying to do everything.

A Fraternal Benefit Society with more than one million members, the IOF Foresters (<http://www.iof.org>), is dedicated to helping families through such programs as free fingerprinting for children, care for needy hospitalized kids through the Children's Miracle Network, and child abuse prevention programs.

HOW OFTEN SHOULD YOU SEE DENTIST?
If you are married to a dentist, you will probably see him every day. For patients it used to be every six months. Today, most dentists believe it should be "as often as necessary."
I know there are more pleasurable things to do than making a dental office visit when there's "nothing wrong", but at the very least, no one can clean his own teeth perfectly and it allows the dentist to keep track of developing problems.
Even if you are certain you have no decay or gum condition, the dentist will probe the gums to make certain that periodontal disease, which can affect everyone, is not quietly developing and will minutely check your teeth with an explorer, or take X-rays to find and treat any hidden cavities. He may find that the potential for trouble is there and want to see you in three months - or may feel that seeing you twice a year is sufficient.
Billions of dollars are spent each year on dental restoration rather than prevention. Regular visits to your dentist are tiny investments in comparison.
