Graduation to be held Sunday

Chelsea High School graduation ceremonies will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday, June 7, at the high school. The class of 197 students will graduate from the school that afternoon.

A pre-graduation "Class Night" will be held at 7:30 p.m. June 5 at the high school.

Tax hearing set for June 9

Chelsea Village Council set the date of June 9 for an annual public hearing to set the property tax for the village. Village Manager Jack Myers said the tax rate will be lower than last year.

Myers said because of the truth in taxation law, Washtenaw County gives the village a set amount it can assess. The council must go to voters every year to approve the full amount.

The council also extended the deadline for paying late property taxes. Taxes are due Sept. 14, but the village now can collect late taxes until Feb. 12. All taxes paid after the Sept. 14 deadline will be assessed a 1 percent administrative fee, which will go to the village.

Before this resolution, Washtenaw County collected all late taxes. The money came back to the village in June.

The newly elected treasurer, Anna Fournier, made the suggestion to change the deadline. She said it would improve cash flow in the village because the municipality would get the money earlier than if the county collected the taxes.

Beach art show to be held today

Beach Middle School will hold its annual art show from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday, June 4, at the school. Artists will display their work in a variety of styles and all residents are invited to attend.

Farm Safety Day to be held June 16

Washtenaw County will hold the 1998 Family Farm Safety Day from 4:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. June 16, at the Washtenaw County Farm Council Grounds.

Attendees can choose from six half-hour sessions with each offered five times during the evening.

Topics covered will be protective equipment for pesticide users, sprayer calibration, farm family safety planning, farm first aid, spill clean-up and livestock handling.

Presenters will be

Washtenaw MSU Extension, Washtenaw County Farm Bureau, Washtenaw County Conservation District/Americorps, Dible Equipment, E.G. Mann & Sons and local farm families.

Safety Day-goers will receive four pesticide recertification credits. For more information or to preregister, call 971-0079.

Council passes DDA millage

Voting 6-1 with Trustee Carol Rauschenberger against, Chelsea Village Council agreed to extend the 2 mill tax on downtown businesses for another year.

The tax will be used for operations of the Downtown Development Authority, which continues to pay for the streetscaping project from a few years ago and maintenance of the improvements.

Authority proposal draws fire over potential costs

By Eric Bowen
Staff Writer

As government officials around the area begin to pore over a proposed fire authority agreement, members of the fire study committee continue to work out the details of how the authority will be set up.

In its current form the authority would encompass the village, and Waterloo, Sylvan, Lyndon and Lima townships. A governing board would be set up consisting of one member appointed by each of the participating municipalities.

The authority's jurisdiction would cover all of the member townships. The service area would be no less than the size of the current coverage area of the Chelsea Fire Department.

Dexter Township would likely contract with the authority to cover areas currently covered by Chelsea Fire Department. Though not an incorporating member, Dexter is slated to have a representative on an administration board that would recommend policies to the fire authority board.

Acknowledging Dexter's history with Chelsea Fire Department, the agreement would give the township the option to join the authority at any time before a millage is passed. After that, Dexter would have to follow the procedures for other municipalities, which would mean that all of the original members would have to vote to accept the new member in.

Once in place, the authority would have broad powers to run the department, from hiring to voting in budgets and purchases. The authority would also be able to issue bonds and to condemn property.

One question still up in the air is how much the authority is going to cost. The state law allowing authorities authorizes a maximum of 20 mills to run the authority. Residents in the authority would have to vote to accept a millage, which would be set for a specific time frame.

Village Council Trustee Richard Rigg has said the current thinking is to ask voters for 2 mills to cover the cost of the fire department, meaning an extra $200 for a home with a market value of $200,000.

However, Sylvan Township Supervisor Jerry Dresselhouse said the 2 mill figure was only one option. The fire committee is still looking at what level of service the fire department

Library talk nails down priorities

By Eric Bowen
Staff Writer

Chelsea District Library took another step toward nailing down service priorities for the district Saturday in a four-hour session designed to give out information and solicit input from local residents.

The number of attendees was small, about 40 people consisting mostly of board and task force members, and employees and devotees of the library. But the group had a tough job, tackling the issues of the library's future.

"It's been good," Leila Draugelis said mid-way through the proceedings. "It's been very important and I'm looking forward to the discussion portion of the program."

The organizers of the program first told participants about the results of a recent phone survey of village residents. Running down the list of responses, the major determination was that residents wanted more space for library services and more parking for residents.

Architects then showed slides of libraries built in communities similar to Chelsea, including Saline. They showed floor plans and use of space, plus the reasoning behind the space division.

The architects hoped the comparisons would help Chelsea determine a good framework for deciding three issues put to them in the next portion of the program. The participants divided into small groups to hash out the related issues of how much space to plan for, what the emphasis should be for services and whether any special use places, such as tables and reading nooks, should be built into the library.

Architect Dan Jacobs of Ann Arbor Architects Collaborative said the space issue was key to every decision for the future of the library. He said the amount of space would decide the use of McKune House, the cost of construction and the level of services that could be offered.

Jacobs said a general rule for space would be to have one square foot for every person in the service area. To serve Chelsea District's current population, approximately 17,000 square feet would be needed.

However, most of the groups decided to plan for a five- to 10-year expansion so the library doesn't run out of space in the near future. To make enough space for expansion, close to 24,000 square feet would be necessary.

Library Director Metta Lansdale said McKune House currently has 2,000 square feet of usable space, which is inadequate when compared with the projected totals. She said it is still too early to determine whether a new building will be built or whether McKune will be expanded to fit the need.

"We want the community to give us direction," Lansdale said. "The surveys showed people want us to stay downtown. Certainly when we look at what we want we'll have to consider the best place for us."

The groups were also asked to rate several categories of services to determine which were priorities.

Most groups chose to put adult services first because they felt Chelsea School District provides for youth adequately. Library Board Trustee Dan Kaminsky said seniors need to be better served by the new library, especially with disabled access and perhaps a bookmobile to deliver books to retirement communities.

Kaminsky's group also decided age-specific reading areas would allow people to spend time in the library without being bothered by young children in the youth section. The group also said library services should be emphasized over providing a wide range of community services like meeting rooms.

Planning task force member Terry Butcher said she has been involved in the process from the beginning and still learned a few things from the presentation. She said that despite the low turnout, she thinks the information was beneficial.

"I would have like to see a few more people who weren't involved," she said. "But it takes a lot of dedication to drop four hours. I think it was well-received."

Duck Expert Jenny Carty spent the semester talking to experts and researching her subject in Ruth Stielstra's fourth-grade class. The most interesting thing she found out was that ducks rub oil secreted from a gland on their tails on their feathers to make them waterproof.

North school kids become experts in fields of choice

By Eric Bowen
Staff Writer

Chelsea School District residents looking for experts in a field no longer have to call up those stodgy professors at the University of Michigan to get answers. They need look no further than Ruth Stielstra's fourth-grade class at North Creek Elementary for information on topics ranging from comic books to ducks.

Stielstra's students spent the entire semester doing an independent research project on a topic of the students' choice. Each student completed 10 steps of independent research, finishing with a showcase of the projects May 27 and 28 in which they dressed up as their subject and gave a presentation to their parents, teachers and schoolmates.

The goal for the students was to become an expert in their field, and to be able to interest others with facts about the topics. They spent about four hours a week examining research materials and asking other experts to hone their research skills.

"We wrote letters to the experts so we could become experts," said Jacquelyn Daane. Her project was on English Setter dogs.

The first step in the process was to define a topic. Students chose something they were interested in so they would remain engaged throughout the lengthy process, Stielstra said.

Students then fleshed out their idea with an exercise to determine where to start looking for information.

"We made webs where we wrote the name of the topic then wrote things that related to it," said Adam McGuinness, who did his project on comic books. "I found out what I already know."

With the initial stage complete, the students began more in-depth research. They went to the library and wrote letters to experts. Some students also searched the Internet for information.

When all the research was complete, students created a report for the class, a newspaper and a computerized explanation on a program called hypercard, which links cards together with the click of a mouse.

Alysson Boyd researched dollmaking. As part of her project she created a ceramic and stuffed doll, complete with eye

Council rehashes sidewalk issue, commits to study

By Eric Bowen
Staff Writer

With new construction going in at a quick clip south of town, Chelsea Village Council Trustee Frank Hammer asked the council to again consider putting in a sidewalk along M-52.

The council voted to have the new village engineer, Christine Linfield, study the prospects over the next six months to come up with a cost estimate and feasibility of the sidewalk with the intention of putting it in next summer.

Hammer said that with a new amusement center going in on Commerce Park Drive, he was concerned about children walking and riding along the heavily traveled road. Other residents have also approached him about being able to walk to businesses in the southern corridor.

Hammer said many of the buildings along M-52 agreed to put in a sidewalk as part of their site plans, so the issue was not new. He said the sidewalk would need a special assessment of business owners to pay for the construction.

Hammer's motion ran into opposition from trustees Richard Rigg and Brian Cashman, who both voted against the study. Rigg said a

A Closer Look

By Eric Bowen

As the Chelsea Planning Commission and Farmer Jack head back to their respective corners after the first round of the grocery store bout, it's not quite clear whose nose got the most bloodied.

Farmer Jack scored a hefty right cross with Zoning Inspector Jim Drolett's endorsement that the firm has met all of the requirements for the zoning district. But the commissioners got in a few body blows of their own, labeling the proposed offices the Briarwood of the West and calling for windows in the building to make an overlook off of M-52.

The planning commission should ensure Farmer Jack's plans are fit for Chelsea. Too often big companies come in to communities and slap down a model project without much input from the community, leaving a blight on the landscape rather than adding beauty.

Like any self-respecting business, Farmer Jack is out to make a buck, and will try to cut costs as long as it doesn't hurt them down the road. Farmer Jack's model store is frankly, ugly, and they need to understand the village's interest in having control over the look of Chelsea's southern entrance.

Having looked at plans and drawings for the Chelsea site, I commend Farmer Jack for making a lot of concessions to the village planners. Their site plans have lush trees and grass, a brick facade and a corner clock tower that fits in with the village's image.

Yet despite these changes, some commission members seem ready to micro-manage the plans out of existence. The village is hitting below the belt with its requests for split stone to reflect the village's stonemasonry heritage and picnic tables to take advan-age of the golf course view. If the planning commission wants a state park, they should call the DNR, not try to force one out of a business that doesn't lend itself to scenic vistas. These items smack more of obstacles to the development rather than legitimate concerns.

To give the village planners credit, they are looking out for the village's interests. Farmer Jack's attempted entry into the village epitomizes the concern for growth in Chelsea. It is likely we will see several more battles such as this in the coming years as the village continues to expand.

But as Farmer Jack's research shows, Chelsea needs another grocery store. The chain says a huge proportion of people are going out of town to shop because they can't get what they need in Chelsea. Farmer Jack is going out of its way to reach those people because it thinks spending a few more dollars on the building will be small compared to the business the store will receive in Chelsea.

The village can't stop the expansion entirely, but can mitigate its negative effects through good planning. Farmer Jack's eagerness to enter the village makes for a good opportunity for the village to determine what kind of development the village will receive. The village shouldn't waste that opportunity through concern over trivialities.

It's time for a new grocery store, and Farmer Jack is in the right place, sandwiched between other commercial development along the M-52 corridor. I'm not a big fan of big business bullying small communities, but Farmer Jack shouldn't have to take it on the chin to open up shop.

I guess we'll have to wait until round two to see how the negotiations wind up. I have a feeling this process will go the distance, and by the end, both sides will feel knocked out.

Letters to the Editor

Self righteousness is evil power

I pray that my friends in the gay community will accept these, my personal thoughts and feelings regarding the active participation of openly gay people in the Christian church, with the spirit in which they are offered.

The writer of a recent letter to the editor regarding this issue based his message on a passage from the first letter of Paul to the Corinthians (1Cor 6:9-11). Paul's letter includes a list of wrongdoers who will not inherit the kingdom of God and is a reminder to the people of the church of Corinth of whence they came.

The writer to The Standard focuses on the term "homosexuals" in the list, and it is evident that those who are openly homosexual present a clear target for him and anyone who agrees with him.

It would seem that any of the others included in Paul's list would be likely to be the object of the same type of judgment. It would be safest, then, for a person who falls into any of these so-called sinful categories to not be open about it, should that person choose to worship in the company of the writer and those who agree with him.

Or perhaps the point is that a select group can recognize and judge wrongdoing, and can help a wrongdoer reject his sinful nature, and then that person can feel secure that there is no more sin in his or her life and participate in the judgment of others.

Christianity isn't that simple, nor are we humans. I believe that there is clear guidance offered to us in the words of Jesus as he was engaged by the Pharisees and an adulteress.

Jesus said, "Let anyone among you who is without sin be the first to throw a stone at her." (John 8:7) I know I couldn't possibly give attention to my own sinfulness and judge someone else at the same time; I couldn't throw the stone.

Please also consider the words of Christ as reported by Luke, Chapter 6:37-42, which begins "Do not judge, and you will not be judged." Could it be that there are some in our community who are so righteous as to have no fear of judgment?

I cannot imagine a more evil power in this world than that which presents itself in human self righteousness and judgment of others.

I am enrolled in the Master of Divinity program at the Chicago Theological Seminary, and I am a member of the United Church of Christ. I am a Christian, and many of my homosexual friends are Christians.

I am a sinner, responsible for my own behavior and for no one else's I believe I am redeemed in Christ by the grace of God alone; no human can grant the grace of God.

I pray that those who seek may find such comfort as I have, worshipping with all of my fellow Christians as followers of Jesus; together celebrating God's love for us and our love of God.

Tom Gerstenlauer

hope that you are not dishonored by the somewhat vocal opposition.

Reflecting on how the Scriptures were often used to condemn the ideas of Copernicus, Galileo, and countless others, George Bernard Shaw once observed, "All great truths begin as blasphemies."

Perhaps one day, we will all acknowledge the Creator for our increased capacity to understand and accept, rather than as our personal justification to condemn and reject. And looking back, our children will shake their heads and wonder how the contrary had ever been true.

Uncle Apollo

We were sitting around the pool when this swarm of Michigan mosquitoes moved in and started gnawing at us. Well, I don't know what it is about, Auntie, but those little critters seem to like her a bunch and she started looking like she was sprouting the instant chicken pox. I went into action with my slingshot as quick as I could but these guys were not only big, they were fast. It took nearly a whole bag of marbles to knock them all out.

Well, after all the critter dust settled, I was mudding Auntie up from all the bites and she said, "I don't know what's wrong with those people at the village. They have all these ordinances to stop nuisances, so why don't they do something about these mosquitoes?"

Well, the more I thought about it, the more I liked the idea. So I thought I'd put together an ordinance for the Village People and send it in.

But I'm gonna need your support, so call your favorite council person and tell them you want this thing adopted. For your information, here it is:

"Whereas the Village of Chelsea is a nice village and a pleasant place to live with what has to be the cleanest cars anywhere around and fixin' to get cleaner with even more car washes, and;

Whereas the Village Council, Village President, Village employees, all the businesses, residents, pets, all the king's horses and all the king's men, and Arlotta Moofellow want to keep this place as good and livable and pleasant and all that it can be, and;

Whereas flying insects are nasty things that not only bug you and make terrible buzzing noises, get stuck in your teeth when you ride motorcycles, make big ugly green marks on your car windshields that are hard to get off necessitating a whole lot of car washes, sometimes make you swell up like you got the instant chicken pox, cause itching, stinging, ouchies as well as being generally hairy and gross if you look at them up close, which anyone can see just by watching the movie "The Fly," and;

Whereas these flying bugs are generally outside but sometimes even trick you and slip inside once and awhile, and;

Whereas people like to go outside and do stuff like mow their lawns and have barbecues and lay around by their pools and take walks and let their dogs relieve their cares in other people's lawns so they don't have to clean it up. And they also like to sleep and do other stuff without being bothered inside, and whereas;

These stupid flying insects, by their obnoxious behavior and truly gross looks and habits make it hard sometimes for people to do the aforementioned things they really like to do;

Now therefore, be it known, that we don't want no flying insects round here and so make their presence illegal within the village limits, except if they need to fly in any case bug any of the taxpaying residents of the Village.

That ought to take care of this problem once and for all.

Marathon Bridge ends

Chelsea Community Hospital Ladies Bridge Marathon ended on Tuesday evening, May 19, at the Woodland Room at the hospital.

June Wilson and Gloria Mitchell were the winners for the season, and each received a gift certificate from the Arbor Nook.

Dessert and beverages were provided by the hospital and bridge was played.

If there are any women there who would like to join the bridge marathon, please contact Daphne Hodder at 475-7238 before Aug. 15. The marathon consists of 12 teams who play each other over a nine-month computer generated schedule. The cost is $20 per person and all proceeds are contributed to the hospital.

Clarification

An article about the fire authority in the May 21 edition stated a 2-mill tax on a $200,000 home would be $400. Since taxes are assessed on only half market value the actual cost would be $200.

The article also stated the village would lose total control over the fire authority. The village would lose full control, but would have an appointed member of the governing board to represent the village.

Authority proposal draws fire over potential costs

Dresselhouse said the committee has begun to look at several levels of service and how much of a millage will be needed to provide those services. He said the committee would report those figures to the various boards before the authority is formed.

Rigg has said that the committee is looking at putting in place a substation in every township and hiring new staff as one option. The cost of these services has not been entirely determined.

In addition to the millage, the articles of incorporation give the authority the power to charge fees for specific runs. Sylvan and Lima townships both charge fees for accidents and other types of fire service. If a municipality doesn't want to charge for those services it can pay for it out of the municipal funds.

The issue of cost is a hot one. Village Council trustees Carol Rauschenberger and Brian Cashman both said at the council meeting May 26 that they would hesitate to accept the authority without knowing how much residents would have to pay for service.

"I want to know what the budget is likely to be," Cashman said. "That's an important question. I wouldn't vote for the authority without knowing the cost."

Cashman went further to say that so far, the authority hasn't appeared to be advantageous to the village. The council agreed to forward the authority agreement to a lawyer to give a report about the benefits to the village residents.

Lyndon Township Supervisor Maryann Noah said at the fire board meeting that the townships primarily want to be represented in fire policy. She said the townships pay a large portion of the fire costs for Chelsea Fire Department, and she thinks they ought to be able to determine how that money is spent.

She also said that with growth occurring largely in the townships, the area for fire coverage will continue to grow with most of the residents falling outside the village limits.

She said the fire department will need to expand to serve those residents.

Township residents will also receive a break on their homeowner's insurance if the fire department builds substations close to residents.

Noah also said that if the village did not want to become part of the authority, the townships would likely sign an agreement among themselves. She said she was tired of hearing that the village will not benefit from the fire authority and that an expanded system will benefit everyone.

"I don't think that the village is giving up anything," she said. "All will gain a whole lot."

Fire Chief Dan Ellenwood agreed with Noah by saying that firefighters could be more difficult to find if there were two fire departments in the area. He said having the townships in the mix has enabled the department to provide better service with more up-to-date equipment.

Ellenwood said that he worried about the fire department's future if the townships weren't involved.

"My feeling is the fire department will stagnate and the level of service will drop," Ellenwood said. "Down the road the village would be hurt tremendously."

Dresselhouse said the issue of whether to create the authority comes down to providing the best service for the lowest cost. He said the townships could each duplicate services with their own chiefs and equipment, but it doesn't make sense to have several fire departments when one could serve the area better and more efficiently.

"What provides better service to the public?" Dresselhouse said. "That's what it really boils down to."

The arguments over the authority are not unique to Chelsea. A few communities around Michigan have formed or attempted to form authorities since the 1989 authority law was enacted.

Oxford Village and Oxford Township, just north of Detroit, formed a combination police and fire authority several years ago to address their fire coverage, according to Rose Bejma, Oxford Village clerk.

Until the authority was formed, the village owned the departments and contracted services to the township.

In Oxford, residents were mostly concerned about how to coordinate services between the township and village, Bejma said. She also said residents were concerned about the feasibility of a 12-person board, so it was dropped to just seven members.

Bejma said Oxford residents voted in a 7 mill tax to cover both fire and police protection to cover about 13,000 people. She said firefighters like the arrangement, because they know where money is coming from to pay their salaries, and residents like it because the tax base is spread more evenly.

"It's worked out really well for us," Bejma said. "The politics was taken out of it."

The story is different in Jackson. Four years ago, the city and three townships, Blackman, Summit and Leone, had talked about putting an authority in place, but ended up scrapping the idea, according to Jackson acting Fire Chief Michael Hendges.

Hendges said the main sticking point was Jackson's attempts to push responsibility onto the townships' fire departments. As it stands, each township has its own fire department and would have had to share more of the load if the authority were put in place, he said.

Unlike Chelsea's plan, Jackson's did not have separate taxation. Each of the joining municipalities would have paid into the system from their general funds, which is similar to the Chelsea Fire Department.

Hendges said that though he couldn't speak for the Jackson government, he would support an authority that was based on equal taxation. He said it supports the fire department, because it would be money strictly for the use of the department and couldn't be taken away for other purposes.

"Right now, everyone is voting for the same general fund dollars," he said. "With an authority its sole function is to provide fire and rescue services."

lashes and rosy cheeks. "You start out with greenware and put it in a kiln," she said. "Then you paint the legs, eyelashes, eyebrows and put it back in the kiln."

"Then you stuff the doll's body and sew it."

At the final showing of the projects, the students dressed up and even brought in live animals to depict their subjects. Jennifer Carly donned a duck mask to present her project, succeeding in the class' purpose of interesting others in their favorite things.

"To get people interested, I dressed as a duck," she said. "I brought a duck nest and lots of stuffed ducks."

Money Management

Prepared by the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants

Another tax deadline is fast approaching.

June 15 is the deadline for filing the second installment of estimated taxes. Estimated tax payments are the government's pay-as-you-go plan that requires taxpayers to pay as they earn or receive income during the year.

The rules governing estimated tax payments can be complicated and the penalties substantial, so be sure you understand your responsibilities for making estimated tax payments, recommends the Michigan Association of CPAs (MACPA).

Who Pays Estimated Taxes?
If you are an employee, income tax is generally withheld from your pay based on the amount you earned and the withholding information you supplied on Form W-4. Taxpayers with significant income from other sources that are not subject to withholding may need to make estimated tax payments. This category of income includes pension and IRA distributions, self-employment earnings, investment income including interest, dividends and capital gains, alimony payments, unemployment benefits, rental income and pass-through income from partnership and S-corporations.

Keep in mind that you may also have to pay estimated taxes if the amount of income tax withheld from your salary is not enough. However, you are exempt from making estimated tax payments if you had no tax liability for the preceding tax year (providing such a year was a 12-month period). In addition, there is no underpayment penalty if you owe less than $1,000 for 1998 after reduction for withholding tax paid. This amount has increased from $500.

Avoiding Estimated Tax Penalties

If you do not pay enough tax during 1998 either through withholding or by making estimated tax payments, you may be subject to an underpayment or estimated tax penalty. To avoid this penalty, generally your estimated payments during the year must cover the smaller of 90 percent of your actual tax liability for the current year or 100 percent of the prior year's tax liability.

Say, for example, that your 1997 liability was $20,000, and this year you estimate your tax liability will be $25,000. You can avoid an IRS penalty if you paid at least $20,000 (the amount of last year's tax liability since that is less than $22,500 or 90 percent of the $25,000).

CPA's point out that for 1998, the prior year safe harbor is 100 percent for all taxpayers. The rule requiring individuals with adjusted gross incomes (AGIs) over $150,000 ($75,000 for married individuals filing separately) to use 110 percent of last year's tax bill as the second part of the test does not apply in 1998. (A modified rule applies to returns for 1999, 2000 and 2001, when individuals with income over the above-listed AGI threshold will be required to pay 105 percent of the prior year's tax liability to avoid penalty.)

The law provides an alternative method of payment for people with seasonal or fluctuating incomes. With the annualized income installment methods, the amount you pay in each installment reflects the income you earn in the period immediately before the installment is due.

When To Pay Estimated Taxes

For estimated tax purposes, the IRS divides the year into four unequal "periods." The due dates for paying quarterly estimated taxes are April 15, June 15 and Sept. 15, of the current year, and Jan. 15, of the following year. If the due date falls on a Saturday, Sunday or a legal holiday, your payment is due the next business day. You may pay the total amount due on the due date for the periods in which you first had taxable income, or you can divide your annual payment into four equal amounts due on each of the due dates. Note that if you do not pay enough by the due date of each payment period, you may be charged a penalty, even if you are due a refund when you file your return.

How To Make Your Payments
There are three ways to make estimated tax payments. If you paid estimated taxes last year, you should use the pre-printed payment vouchers and the window envelopes you received in the mail. Using these vouchers will speed the processing and reduce the chance of a crediting error.

If you did not pay estimated taxes last year, you will need to get a copy of Form 1040ES to accompany your payment. Make sure you mail your payment voucher to the address shown in the Form 1040ES instructions for the area where you live. You should not use the address shown in the standard instructions for Form 1040. You also have the option of paying your estimated taxes electronically by using the Electronic Filing Tax Payment System (EFTPS). For more information, call (800) 945-8400 or (800) 555-4477.

Taxpayers who overpaid their taxes in one year have a third option. They may apply the overpayment to the following year's estimated tax bill.

If you need assistance in determining whether you are subject to estimated tax or in calculating your estimated tax payments, you may want to consult with a CPA.

Weddings, Engagements and Anniversaries

ENGAGED: Jennifer McGeown and John-David Alford are engaged and planning a July wedding at St. Mary's Student Parish in Ann Arbor. Jennifer is the daughter of Mervyn and Ellen McGeown of Dublin, Ohio. She is a 1993 graduate of Walled Lake Central High School and a 1997 graduate of the University of Michigan. She is a registered nurse working in the Critical Care Medicine Unit at the University of Michigan Hospital. John-David is the son of James and Janet Alford Jr. of Chelsea. He graduated from Chelsea High School in 1993 and the University of Michigan in 1997. He is completing post graduate studies in the horticultural field at Michigan State University and plans a December 1998 graduation.

ENGAGED: Courtney Christena Gorton of Chelsea and Corey Joseph Roberts of Portland, Ore., are engaged and planning an August 20 wedding. Courtney is the daughter of Gayle (Wilnans) and Lawrence Gorton of Chelsea. She is a 1993 graduate of Chelsea High School and will attend Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah, in the fall. Corey is the son of Debbie and Clay Roberts of Portland. He is a 1994 graduate of Benson High School and will also attend BYU in the fall. The couple recently returned from missionary work for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Saline Celtic festival has unusual activities this year

By Sheila Pursglove
Special Writer

"Yoo-hoo! Sweetie! Here's your lunch!"

Splat.
Legend has it the noble sport of Haggis Hurling has its origins in ancient Scotland, when Highland wives would throw their husbands' lunches across the stream to them, presumably before some bright spark invented the lunch-pail.

The term Haggis Hurling does not refer to the understandable digestive reaction to finding a sheep's stomach stuffed with its heart, liver, lungs, oatmeal and suet on your plate, but rather to throwing the haggis as far away as you possibly can, which would be most people's second reaction.

It is one of the sporting events the public can try during this year's Saline Celtic Festival, on Saturday, July 11.

"We use real frozen haggis from Akroyds store in Detroit," explains committee chair Rob Carmichael. "Physically, they're a little larger than a softball and weigh about a pound. Last year we made the mistake of keeping them in a cooler, and by the time we started the contest they were pretty mushy. We learned from our mistake, and this year, we'll keep them in a freezer 'until we need them."

Strict Highland custom is adhered to. Participants stand on a half a whiskey barrel, and dirty their hands with peat soil from auld Scotland. Anyone successfully throwing their haggis across the 'dram line' is rewarded with a wee dram of whiskey.

Men and women compete in their own divisions, with $100 prizes going to the winner's charity of choice.

The second sport open to the public is the Farmer's Walk, a trial of brute strength, where contestants walk with a 200-lb. weight in each hand. In earlier times, heavy milk churns or logs were used.

Members of the public can compete against the professional and amateur athletes, with a $200 purse for first place, and other cash prizes for second and third.

"Last year's event was won by professional athlete Harry MacDonald, who managed to struggle 300 feet, going right through the course, through the merchant's area and almost into Mill Pond," says Carmichael. "However, several members of the public managed to walk for 150 feet which was very good. You really need to be in shape for this, although dedicated shoppers, used to lugging heavy shopping bags around the mall, probably have a head start on the rest of us."

Participants are easily recognizable as those whose knuckles hang to the ground for several days afterwards.

The public contests will take place after the amateur Highland events, and should start by early evening.

Sidenote: Volunteers who would like to be a part of this year's festival, and can give an hour or two to help out at the parade, parking, the Celtic sales booth, volunteer desk, hospitality tent, decorating Mill Pond Park, and assisting merchants, are invited to call Kathy Chapin at the Celtic Festival office, 944-2810, or at home, 429-0538. Chapin promises volunteers fun, free admission to the festival, and a festival T-shirt.

Deadline nears for state PDR program

Landowners contemplating applying for the Michigan Purchase of Development Rights Program (PDR) have little time remaining.

The state PDR program, funded by lien funds from the Farmland and Open Space Preservation Act, compensates landowners for the difference between farmland value and the development value. In return, landowners give up the right, in perpetuity, to develop the land. Applications are currently being accepted for only the second time in the history of the program.

Although the application deadline is not until June 30, Michigan Farm Bureau Legislative Counsel Scott Everett says landowners must allow themselves plenty of time to compete the application and then receive approval from their local unit of government.

"Landowners need to understand it's their responsibility to circulate their application form to the required agencies for their review," Everett said. "You need to get with your township or county clerk, depending on who does the zoning, and request to be out on their next meeting agenda for a vote to approve your application. The other two items — the soil conservation information and your landowners information — can take just a couple of days or so, depending on how busy the Soil Conservation District office is."

According to Robin Pearson, coordinator of Michigan's PDR program, there are two key criteria that must be met by landowners when submitting applications. "Any land that is going to be submitted for the state PDR program must have at least 51 percent of that land devoted to an agricultural use. About the only thing we don't consider an agricultural use under this program is the managing and harvesting of timber or woodlots," she said. "Just about every other type of agricultural use is considered."

"Secondly, for land to be considered for the PDR program, it must be supported by way of resolution from the local unit of government that zones that property," Pearson continued. "Without those two criteria met, we cannot consider the application."

Incomplete applications, lack of approval from local units of government, or missed deadlines during the last application period in 1997 resulted in 120 of the 768 applications submitted being disqualified.

Interest in the state PDR program is staggering, Pearson said. Approximately 86,000 acres were nominated during the first application period. A PDR selection committee then pared that list down to the top 50 applications based in a scoring system that considers agricultural value being selected for the PDR program.

Pearson estimated the PDR program will spend $7 million on those 37 farms.

Roughly $10 to $12 million will be available for the current sign-up period. Pearson hopes the state's PDR program will qualify for matching federal dollars that could add another $1 million to the fund.

"That level of funding, however, is woefully inadequate, according to Everett. He said locally funded and managed programs operated in conjunction with an adequately funded state program is essential for long-term success and utilization of PDRs.

"Funding for the current state program will soon be tapped out, and we haven't started to meet the need and demand from landowners for a PDR," Everett said.

Pearson acknowledges local interest is considerable but that adequate funding is a hindrance. "We'd like to do more, we'd like to be able to continue to do more than the percent of the farms that we've been approving each year," she said. "But until we get a larger, long-term funding source, that will not be possible."

For more information about the state PDR program or current sign-up details, contact Robin Pearson at 517-373-3328.

Porinsky earns scholarship

Rebecca Porinsky of Dexter was recently awarded a $2,000 Member Scholarship from Lutheran Brotherhood. Porinsky plans to attend Wisconsin College in Milwaukee, Wis., this fall.

Member Scholarships are awarded to selected undergraduate students who are Lutheran Brotherhood members. Recipient selection is based on academic excellence, church and community involvement, and leadership. Porinsky was one of 756 applicants selected from 2,642 applicants for this national award.

Porinsky is a member of Friends in Fellowship Branch #8081, one of Lutheran Brotherhood's 969 member volunteer group organized for fellowship and community service. Karen Bristle, John Major and Cary Varblow are the Lutheran Brotherhood district representatives serving the local branch as fraternal branch consultants.

Lutheran Brotherhood is a member-owned fraternal benefit society of 1.1 million Lutherans joined together for financial security, benevolent outreach, and volunteer service.

WHY DO MY DOG'S EARS STINK?
By Dr. Andrew Maglott, D.V.M.

Ear infections are a common problem for many dogs and their owners. Most ear infections in dogs involve the external ear canal, that is the portion of the ear between the flap and the eardrum. In humans, most ear infections involve the middle ear, between the eardrum and the base of the skull. Several factors contribute to a dog's risk of developing an ear infection, including the breed, the type of ear flap (upright or hanging), swimming, allergies, and the amount of hair present in the ear canal. Certain breeds of dogs, most notably spaniels, retrievers and setters, seem to be at higher risk of ear infections. The large, pendulous ear flaps of the spaniels and setters serve to trap moisture and dirt in the ear canal, increasing the risk of infection. Cocker spaniels also seem to have very narrow ear canals, making removal of debris more difficult. Swimming dogs, especially retrievers, can get water and other debris into their ears, increasing their risk of infection. Dogs with allergies either to food or other substances in the environment, also seem to be prone to ear infections. Certain medical conditions, like hypothyroidism and Cushing's disease, can also increase a dog's risk of infection. Treatment for ear infections involves routine cleaning, and specific medication for whatever organism is causing the infection. Routine cleanings are usually necessary to make sure the infection is completely resolved. Routine cleaning can often reduce a dog's risk of developing an infection. If you have never cleaned your dog's ears, please have your veterinarian show you the safest way, and recommend a routine cleanser for your pet. If you have any questions, please call Westarbor Animal Hospital at (734) 769-5391.

Family Medicine

Moles should be examined by physician

By John C. Wolf, D.O.
Associate Professor of Family Medicine
Ohio University College of Osteopathic Medicine

I have mole that has been on my arm for many years. Now, I have many little new ones that are just hanging on by a thread. What can I do for them?

To a physician the term "mole" means a specific type pigmented skin growth. More properly called a nevus, this growth may be raised above the surface of the surrounding skin.

A mole may be present at birth, but most develop with the passing years. In fact, the majority of us ultimately develop at least 25 of them. Moles are usually less than 1/4 inch across and have a darker pigmentation than the surrounding skin.

In addition to the "raised mole" I mentioned earlier, they may be flat, or even hanging from a stalk. They may be smooth, rough or even have hair growing from them. The junction between the mole and the surrounding skin, both its change in texture and color, is quite different.

In my practice, I've noticed that most non-physicians use the term mole to describe any type of clearly defined area of different appearing skin. Therefore, I'm concerned that your "mole" may actually be something quite different.

There are a number of "non-mole" skin growths that can look like an innocent mole to an untrained eye. The most serious of these, of course, is cancer. One million new skin cancers are diagnosed each year, so they are quite common. Many of these were first thought to be a mole. Early detection and removal of skin cancer almost always produces a cure. This is true even for the most serious form of skin melanoma.

So what can you do for your "mole?" The short answer, in your case is to see your family doctor, or dermatologist soon so that a correct diagnosis can be made. For the rest of my readers, the question is when should a mole or other skin growth prompt a visit to the doctor. Since we all have moles on our skin, this can sometimes be a difficult decision.

Here are some tips to help identify potential skin cancers, the scariest type of skin lesion:

- a skin lesion that recently changed in appearance (not compared to last year but compared to last month);
- one that has an irregular border;
- one that has changed in color, particularly gotten darker;
- one where the color fades into the surrounding skin instead of having a distinct border; or
- one that has become painful or started itching.

I suggest that you recruit the help of a spouse or a very good friend to examine every inch of your skin, including your back, between your toes and other areas where the sun don't shine. Any "mole" that fits one or more of these criteria should be brought to the attention of your doctor. He or she may recommend that the entire growth be removed if it be excised so that it can be studied under microscope.

Fortunately, your moles may actually be moles. In that case, you can just leave them alone. Your doctor, however, will probably suggest removing them anyway if they are over 1/2 inch in size, are frequently irritated by clothing or activities, or if you find them cosmetically objectionable.

Auto license plate renewals offered on World Wide Web

Secretary of State will give Michigan motorists another option for renewing their license plates, this time on the Internet.

Secretary of State is the first state department in Michigan to give residents the opportunity to pay fees on the Internet.

"Early in my administration we made a commitment to use technology to improve customer service," Secretary Candice Miller said.

"Nothing could be more in keeping with that commitment than giving our customers the option of using the Internet to do business with our office."

Motorists will be eligible to renew using the Internet if they are willing to pay registration fees by credit card and have vehicle insurance with a company participating in the Secretary of State's electronic insurance verification program.

To date, the department has received electronic insurance verification for nearly 2.9 million vehicles from a total of 16 participating insurance companies.

Additionally, the Secretary of State's office is anticipating three other insurance companies to join the program in early summer, which will raise the weekly percentage of registrations eligible for renewal by Internet and touch-tone telephone from 45 to 65 percent.

The Internet renewal program is similar to touch-tone telephone renewal of license plates. Motorists eligible to renew on the Internet must have a nine-digit PIN on the lower left side of their vehicle. The PIN indicates that insurance for the vehicle has been verified.

To renew by Internet the motorist uses a personal computer with an Internet connection and secured Web browser. After verifying that the name and address on the renewal notice are correct and that the license plate has not expired, they access the Secretary of State Web site: www.sos.state.mi.us/renew.html.

Payment of fees must be made by a valid Discover, MasterCard or VISA. By providing an e-mail address, the motorist will receive confirmation that the transaction has been received.

Once the transaction has been processed, license plate tabs and copies of the registration will be sent by mail to the vehicle owner within several days.

The Internet renewal option is also being extended to watercraft owners whose boat registrations are up for renewal.

A stroke can change your life forever

Former Dexter resident writes book called 'Mama Drama'

By Alice Tippery
Heritage Newspapers

Was the recent observance of Mother's Day a pleasant get-together with a woman you feel at ease with or was it more like manning a battle zone? If the former is the rule rather than the exception, you are not alone in the foxhole.

But at ease mates, former Dexter resident Denise (Rutledge) McGregor may have written just the manual to disarm combative emotions when it comes to Dear 'Ol Mom.

"Mama Drama: Making Peace with the One Woman Who Can Push Your Buttons, Make You Cry, and Drive You Crazy" hit the area bookstores this past Mother's Day. For those who have endured an entire lifetime of dodging bullets and reloading, it is a welcome handbook.

For others, who have no idea why a mother would pose such a threat, be thankful, forgo the book and buy your mom some flowers instead. But if you answer yes to one or more of the following questions, you probably have played support to your mother's lead: Can your mother make you feel guilty in 30 seconds or less? Are you putting your life on hold to live your mother's dreams for you instead of your own? Does your mother push your buttons so much that it's hard to find anything positive about her?

"Mama Drama" was birthed at her dying mother's bedside where McGregor saw her mom's "humanity and divinity in one split second." And she would like to give other daughters and mothers a head start on the blessing of a peaceful relationship.

"Sometimes it was difficult being Vi Rutledge's daughter, especially in high school," recalls McGregor. "Now, when I look back, I'm proud of her. She taught me how important it is to take a stand no matter how unpopular. Of course, I gained this perspective the older I got. At the time I took it on the chin socially."

McGregor refers to the outspokenness and passion for which Viola Rutledge was well known. Rutledge, the first woman to serve on the council for the village of Dexter, paid for a full-page ad in The Dexter Leader in August of 1983 urging voters to turn down the district's 21-mill ballot proposal. In print she pointed out that the teachers and administration already were adequately paid and charged that the school board was trying to "steamroller the voters into a take-it-or-leave-it attitude."

The proposal failed by two votes, and a Detroit newspaper picked up the story. Incidents like this and other highly visual encounters made for a low profile in the community of 1,000 or so for Rutledge's only daughter.

McGregor indicates that when women don't settle up with Mom, they may "wear the conflict" in all that they do, especially relationships with men, co-workers and their own children.

"Sometimes avoiding our mothers can be such a pattern in our lives that it goes underground and creates major breakdowns in our lives," explains McGregor, who earned a master's degree in guidance and counseling at Eastern Michigan University and served as a guidance counselor at Saline High in the early '80s.

McGregor notes that she is not a therapist, but that her book is meant to direct daughters to begin taking responsibility for their own actions.

"When we stop blaming our mothers and start facing the consequences of our own actions, we are so much freer to create the life we want," maintains McGregor.

She points out that while scores of daughters can list what they dislike about Mom, not many have thought to ask themselves, "what kind of relationship do I want with my mother?" "Mama Drama" introduces the concept that an attitudinal shift is available—maybe not overnight—but possibly sooner than imagined by exercising the coaching tools woven throughout the book.

"To truly turn the corner in our relationships, we need to find out who we are," explains McGregor. "We need to discover what we want and then carve out our own identity. Most importantly, we need to keep our mothers in the picture, and connect with them on different terms."

"Mama Drama" offers techniques that can encourage healing, help to avoid repeating the same "dramas" with our own daughters, and ways to learn to say "no" to one's mother when appropriate.

"As long as we are desperate for our mothers' love and approval, we will be under our mothers' control," explains McGregor.

But she says that risking that approval can result in the refreshing benefit of "being ourselves" around our mothers.

McGregor draws on the life stories of more than 50 women plus her own experiences to present the reader with a viable starting point for reconciliation of one of life's most-potentially precious relationships.

"Mama Drama" was written from the perspective that harmony can become more compelling than the dramatics we have acted out with our mothers.

"Once you get a taste of peace, you will never be satisfied with the drama again," promises McGregor.

Former Dexter resident Denise (Rutledge) McGregor, author of "Mama Drama," offers suggestions to mothers and daughters experiencing conflict in their relationship. McGregor, the daughter of Harley Rutledge and the late Viola Rutledge of Dexter, recently has appeared on Fox TV, NPR, and a national radio morning drive tour promoting her new book, which is available at the Little Professor Book Co.

AAA: Michigan motorists lose $3 million to auto fraud

Michigan motorists contributed about $3 million in the past five years to a group of con artists. That's one way of looking at the announcement in March by law enforcement authorities that they had broken up an auto-insurance-fraud ring operating in Southeastern Michigan, says AAA Michigan.

Police officials estimate the group cheated insurance companies out of approximately $3 million since 1993 by buying old, almost undriveable autos at auctions, insuring them for their blue book value, then wrecking them and filing a claim for that value. Individuals in the group have been charged with filing a total of 276 fraudulent claims.

"The cost of fraudulent claims is reflected in the rates of everyone who buys auto insurance," said James Oliver, AAA Michigan's senior vice president, property and casualty insurance. "Based on Insurance Information Institute research, we estimate the average Michigan family pays at least $100 per year for insurance fraud. Nationally, it's estimated 10 cents of every claim dollar paid is fraud." Planned criminal fraud such as that uncovered in March is not the major cause of increased insurance rates, Oliver said. "Exaggeration of claims for legitimate losses — a practice known as 'buildup' — is more pervasive than criminal fraud, and its effect on costs is greater than the practice of staging or faking claims," Oliver explained.

A recent study by the Insurance Research Council (IRC) reported that one of four persons surveyed believes it is "all right" to increase the amount of an insurance claim to make for insurance premiums paid in the previous years. However, the study also shows that 76 percent of Americans favor encouraging insurance companies to investigate more thoroughly for fraud before paying claims, regardless of whether investigation delays a legitimate payment.

"AAA Michigan is a steward of its members' insurance dollars, and we took a major step in our war on fraud in 1984, when our Claim Investigation Unit (CIU) was formed," Oliver said. "The unit now has a staff of 21. The CIU's efforts have deterred more than 4,800 suspect claims valued at more than $38 million," he noted.

Oliver explained that a recently launched state-of-the-art, anti-fraud system, "Detect," now automatically analyzes by computer all new auto claims, searching for indicators that show need for further investigation before payment is made.

"AAA Michigan has always been firmly committed to prompt settlement of legitimate claims, and we will continue that commitment, while working to detect claims that strongly indicate fraudulent activity. We owe that to the overwhelming majority of our insureds who are honest, and who don't want to pay higher rates because of fraud perpetrated by those who are dishonest," Oliver said.

Workers feel overloaded despite shorter hours at office

From the University of Michigan

Even though people of all ages are working fewer hours and retiring earlier than their parents and grandparents did, many of them feel overloaded. "Especially in two-job families with young children, life can seem like one long sprint, without time for real exercise or real leisure," says University of Michigan psychologist Robert L. Kahn.

By middle age, the predictable result is a collection of stress-related, chronic ailments that are often and mistakenly viewed as the inevitable accompaniments of aging.

According to Kahn, the course of most of these ailments can be reversed by making a few key lifestyle changes. And many could be prevented in the first place by trading in the traditional eight-hour workday for a new model of working life — the four-hour work module.

Kahn, an 80-year-old emeritus professor of psychology and public health at the U-M, is the co-author of "Successful Aging," just published by Pantheon Books with Mount Sinai School of Medicine's John W. Rowe. Based on 10 years of research and analysis by an interdisciplinary team of scientists, and funded by the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation, the book debunks a number of myths about aging and describes the genetic, behavioral and social factors that enhance effective functioning in late life.

Among the key findings:

- The longer we live, the less important genes become in determining our vitality and well-being. The lifestyle choices we make become an increasingly dominant influence.

- Regular exercise is the single most important factor in sustaining late-life health, but diet, strong emotional ties, and mental challenges are also important.

- It's impossible to get too much emotional support from family, friends and neighbors. But excessive hands-on help with daily tasks can lead to "learned helplessness," decreased function, and increased dependence.

- Older Americans are much more productive than they're widely believed to be, and most remain so until late in life.

"The US Bureau of the Census and many other groups still define productive activity as paid work," Kahn says. "But some time ago, national surveys, conducted by the U-M Institute for Social Research began defining productive activity in a broader way as the creation of economic value, rather than the receipt of pay." Under this new definition, for example, taking care of your grandchildren while your daughter works outside the home, fixing your own car, or growing and canning your own vegetables, are all counted as productive activity.

Data from several national U-M surveys using this new definition show that the vast majority of Americans over the age of 55 remain productive, Kahn points out. About three out of 10 older people work for pay, and about the same proportion engage in productive activities, including volunteer work, for which they receive no money.

To maximize the productivity of older workers, and increase the satisfaction and productivity of younger workers, as well, Kahn and Rowe advocate exchanging the eight-hour day for the four-hour work module. Those who want to work eight hours a day (or more) would still be able to do so, while others would have the flexibility of working fewer hours.

"Increased individual choice about hours of work would take many forms and satisfy all age groups," they write.

"For large numbers of older employees, phased retirement would replace the present unsatisfactory choice between full-time work and full-time retirement."

At the moment, Kahn notes, only a lucky few older Americans have this option. "That we need better allocation of paid employment, education, and other activities throughout the life course is clear. The policies and procedures best suited to achieve those goals are not equally clear."

Experimental trails of the four-hour work module, and other promising proposals for reorganizing work life are needed, Kahn and Rowe maintain, similar to the clinical trials used in medicine or marketing trials employed in business. "The United States itself, established more than 200 years ago with an unprecedented democratic structure, has been called a social experiment," they note. "To solve the complex policy problems of our own time, and our aging society, we need to become an experimenting society."

Understanding The Law

with Leonard K. Kitchen, J.D. and Thomas L. Stringer, J.D.

RULES OF THE GAME

As we take to the ball fields this season, it may pay to look at who might be liable for any injuries we might suffer. Under the assumption of risk doctrine, there is generally no legal duty to eliminate or protect players against any of the risks inherent to their sport or activity. However, coaches and instructors have a legal duty not to negligently increase risks above the ones inherent to the sport. Also, there is generally no liability to other players for ordinary careless conduct carried out during play. Instead, players' liability to each other is limited to injuries that arise from intentional or reckless misconduct that is totally outside the range of ordinary behavior when playing the sport. It's tough to make a good "Call" regarding the suit worthiness of a specific situation unless the injured party meets with an attorney to discuss the circumstances surrounding the occurrence. If you or a member of your family has incurred an injury or material loss due to negligence or assault, call the LAW OFFICES OF KITCHEN & STRINGER, J.D. at 426-4695 to schedule a complimentary consultation - we charge no fees until recovery. You'll find our offices conveniently located at 3249 Broad Street in Dexter.

HINT: Under the assumption of risk doctrine, participants in contact sports assume the risk of injury associated with the natural and ordinary risks of physical contact.

Reading program set

The Dexter District Library has announced its Summer Reading Program. The program will be open to all children 12 years and younger. Registration will begin Wednesday, June 10, at the Dexter District Library, 8040 Fourth St. in Dexter. The program is designed to encourage children to read during the summer months when school is not in session.

Children sign up throughout the duration of the program during open hours starting June 10. The library is open Monday through Thursday 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Friday 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Saturday 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

When children sign up for the program, they will be asked to set a reading goal. Children may select a certain number of books they will read during the eight-week program, or they may choose to specify the amount of time each week they will spend reading. Forms will be available at the library to keep track of the books children have read or the time they have spent reading. There will be weekly surprises and drawings as well as a grand prize drawing in August.

This year's Summer Reading Program marks the fourth consecutive year the Dexter library has offered a program for area children. The program will last eight weeks, running from the June 10 sign-up day through Friday, Aug. 14.

There will be a special program open on Thursday, July 23 at 10:30 a.m. featuring the Timestep Players from Chicago. They will present "Looking for the Dinosaur."

At the end of the Summer Reading Program, children who meet their reading goal will be awarded a certificate of completion and plastic book bag. Two additional shows on Friday, Aug. 14 will feature Absolutely Baffling Magic at 11 a.m. and Dino-tek's Jurassic Science at 2 p.m. These programs are also open to everyone.

THE GARDEN CORNER

MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY EXTENSION SERVICE

Stay away from beans, dirt in wet weather

Q. My grandmother told me I should stay out of the garden when plants are wet. Is this just a superstition, or is there a science-based reason for it?

A. At least stay away from your snap beans -- the spores that develop into the disease bean rust can be spread through a bean planting if you brush against the plants when they're wet. Another reason to stay out of the garden in wet weather is to avoid compacting the soil. Walking on the soil when it's wet squeezes soil particles together, driving out oxygen and making it difficult for water and roots to penetrate.

Q. When's the best time of day to cut flowers in the garden for fresh bouquets?

A. In the heat of midday, flowers may be wilted. Morning is good because flowers will have revived overnight, and evening is good because foliage and flowers are then high in stored food. Using a floral preservative and making fresh cuts on stems to improve water absorption will add days to the life of fresh arrangements.

Q. I cleaned out my freezer in preparation for the harvest from my vegetable garden. It's an odd freezer but seems to be running OK. I don't have a freezer thermometer, though - is there any other way to tell whether it's really cold enough to freeze vegetables quickly and maintain high quality?

A. Store a carton of ice cream in the freezer. If you can spoon it easily, the temperature is likely in the 20s. If it's difficult to spoon, the temperature is probably between 10 and 20. Bricklike ice cream indicates the freezer is closer to 0 degrees and the right temperature for preserving your garden harvest.

Q. Why do tomato fruits crack?

A. Two types of cracks develop in tomatoes. Concentric cracking around the top isn't attractive but doesn't usually cut deeply into the fruit. Radial cracking, which starts at the stem and runs down the side, often cuts deeply. Molds may grow in the cracks, fruit flies may lay their eggs there and sap beetles may invade the fruit through the cracks. Radial Cracking often occurs when rainy weather occurs as fruits are nearing maturity. Keeping plants well watered and mulched during dry weather may reduce the likelihood of cracking.

Q. What purposes do insects' antennae serve?

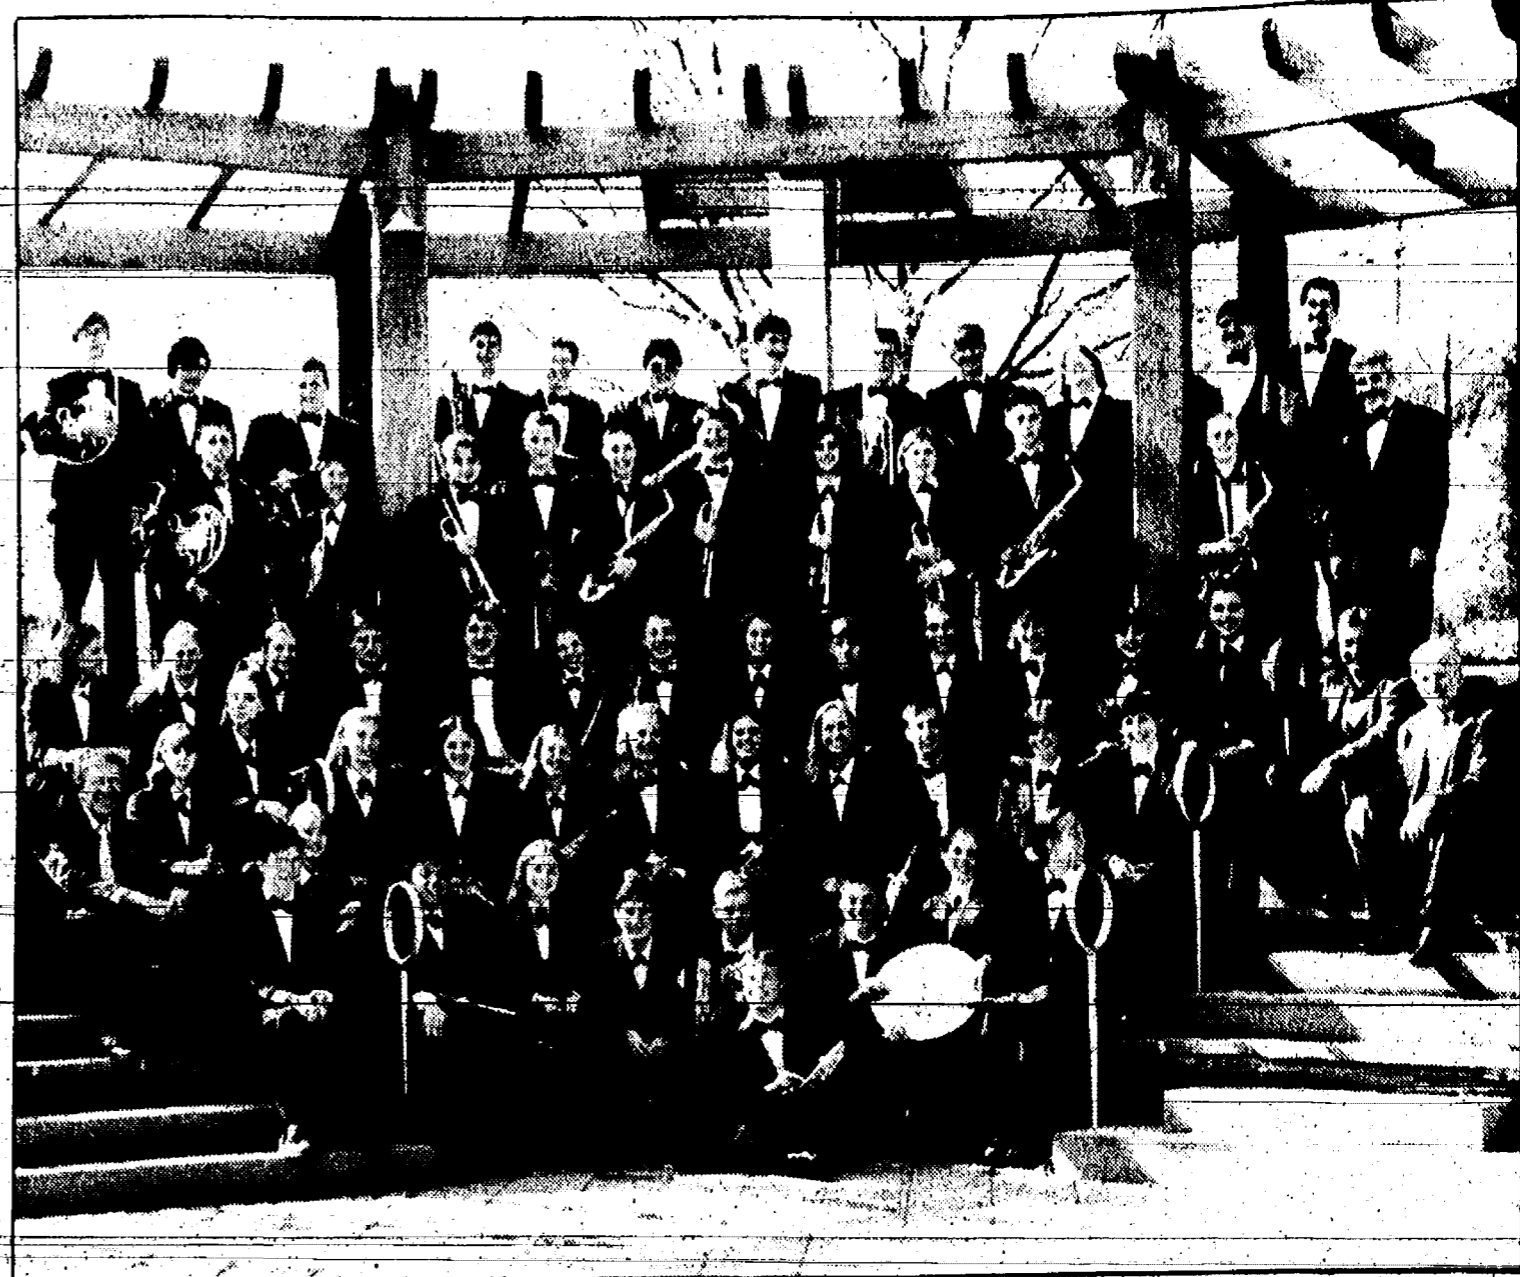

A. Antennae are multipurpose sense organs. Hearing, taste and smell are associated with antennae. Insects use them to find mates, food, and prey or plants to lay their eggs on. Colonies of ants use their antennae to pick up chemical signals from their nestmates. Without their antennae, many insects would have virtually no clues about what was going on in their environment.

Q. My neighbor and I both planted potatoes this year, though different varieties. I think mine developed flowers; his didn't. Is this significant? Is there any relation between flowering and potato production?

A. Weather and the cultivar are the factors usually cited as accounting for blossoming in potatoes. Your garden and your neighbor's are enjoying the same weather, so you can probably chalk up the difference to the varieties you chose to plant. There's no connection between flowering and tuber formation.

Farm fact

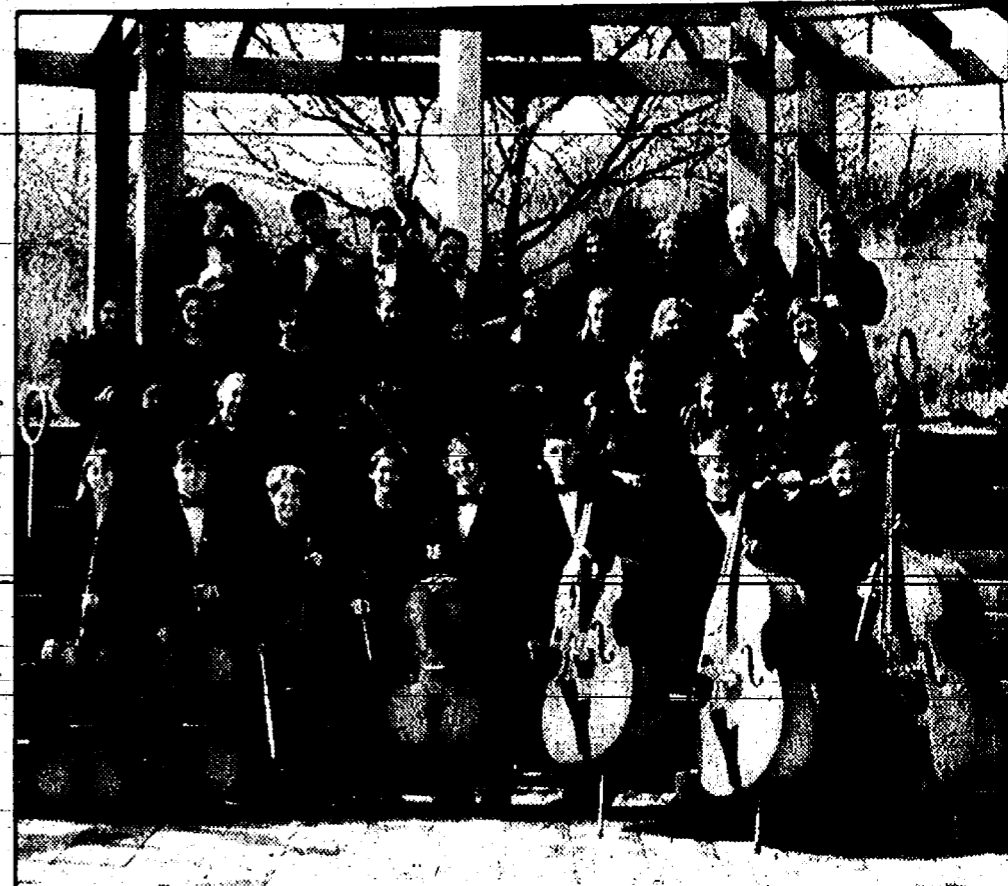

In the South, erosion is controlled with sticks and stones. Dormant willow sticks are planted in streambeds and come to life in the spring. They have a deep root system, and hold soil in place during the spring thaw. Limestone rocks are piled parallel to the bank and break the energy of the current.

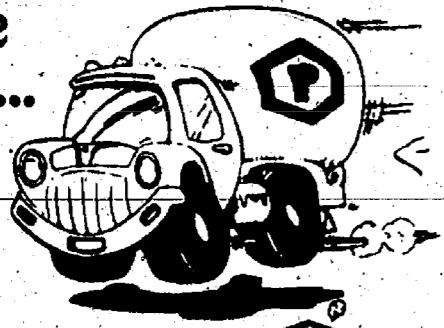

Music Tour

Music groups from Chelsea High School performed at the Earth Day Celebration at the Hackensack Meadowslands Development Commission in New Jersey as part of a tour of several states ending in New York. The choir (below) sang selections such as Ave Maria, Set Me

As a Seal and Stormy Weather. The chamber orchestra (at right) performed the Russian Easter Overture among others. The New Jersey auditorium is located in a nature center. Above is the wind ensemble.

Money Management

Prepared by the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants

Take the continuation of finance quiz to ensure stability

As promised, we will continue with part two of the money-management quiz.

Today's continuation of Kiplinger's Personal Finance Magazine's money management quiz will look at financial penalties much like football, little mistakes can mean a loss of yards. We will also take a look at life's little safety nets and what kinds of precautions you and your family should take to assure a safe financial future.

QUIZ #2

1. You've been a happy homeowner for six years and the value of your house has risen, but you're still paying $450 a year for private mortgage insurance. How much equity do you need to have in your home before your lender will consider lifting the insurance requirement?

- a. 10 percent
 - b. 20 percent
 - c. 30 percent
 - d. Any increase in your home's value is enough, so go for it.
2. How much should a lawyer charge you to prepare a simple will?
- a. $50
 - b. $300
 - c. $1,000
 - d. $2,500

3. You're leaving your job and are entitled to a distribution from your 401(k) tax-deferred retirement plan. You ask to have the money paid to you directly so that you can reinvest it. What happens next?

- a. You're in for a great vacation.
- b. A big chunk of your money will go straight from your employer to the IRS.

- c. You'll owe a penalty as well as the taxes due.
- d. b and maybe c

4. You own a vacation cottage in the mountains, which you rent-out part of the year and treat as business property on your tax return. You and your kids spend a couple of weeks there every summer. Now your sister-in-law wants to stay there for a few days while she visits a local craft fair. Should you let her?

- a. Why not? She's family, so you won't lose your tax break.
- b. No way. You're the only family member who may use the house.
- c. Sure, as long as she pays the utility bill.
- d. Sure, if you're willing to give up some of your summer vacation or some of the tax breaks that go along with the house.

5. Your beach vacation wiped out your wallet and you had to take a cash advance on your credit card. When you get your next statement you notice that a hefty surcharge has been added to your bill. What gives?

- a. Sand and salt must have eroded the magnetic strip.
- b. You exceeded your credit limit.
- c. You were hit with an uncapped charge on cash advances.
- d. You were out of state when you got the money.

6. Your car has finally died and you're looking for a cheap loan to buy a new one. You decide to borrow against the $30,000 you have in your tax-deductible IRA. What happens next?

- a. You drive off in a shiny new Jeep Cherokee.
- b. You get a below-market interest rate.
- c. You're hit with an early withdrawal penalty of 10 percent.
- d. You look elsewhere for a loan because you can't borrow against an IRA.

the money to a rollover IRA or another 401(k) plan. Any part of the payout you don't roll over will be taxed in your top bracket. And, if you're under the age of 55, you will be hit with a 10 percent penalty for early withdrawal.

4. D, you may have to give up vacation time or tax breaks. Your cottage qualifies as a business property, giving you the chance to deduct losses only if family members limit their usage to 14 days a year, or 10 percent of the time it is rented, whichever is greater. In Uncle Sam's eyes, your sister-in-law is considered family.

5. C, you were hit with an uncapped charge on cash advances. Such charges can be as much as 2 percent to 5 percent of the loan amount, so check your card's policy before you take out the cash, or switch to a card that puts a ceiling on its cash-advance fees.

6. D, you can't borrow against an IRA. You can withdraw from the account, but you'll be hit with a 10 percent penalty for premature distribution if you are younger than 59. Plus, the full amount of the withdrawal will be included in your income for the year and taxed in your top tax bracket. However, the law does allow you to borrow against your 401(k) plan if your employer permits it.

You're doing great! Keep up the good work and relax; there's only one more quiz to go.

Answers

1. B, 20 percent. Lenders generally look for a loan-to-value ratio of 80 percent, meaning the loan amount is about 80 percent of the value of the house, before they'll drop the mortgage insurance. But to make your case, you may have to pay for a new appraisal.

2. B, $300. Drawing up a simple will is so inexpensive that you can't afford not to do it, especially if you have minor children for whom you should name a guardian.

3. D, 20 percent withholding for the IRS is automatic if the money is paid to you. However, you can avoid that hit by having your company transfer

Hospital Health Fair Demonstrations

Chelsea Community Hospital's Health Fair last Saturday morning featured numerous health-related activities and information displays in the hospital dining room. Displays featured information on everything from herbal dietary supplements to blood glucose readings. Left, Robin Ashlock gives a massage to Carl Legg of Adrian, who participated in the 5K run. Right, Mary Jo Freitas tests the night vision of Ross Fortner, one of the participants in the walk race that morning.

Numerous issues decided at recent meeting

number of the business owners on M-52 were strongly against the sidewalk, and he didn't think the council should bring it up again after essentially killing the idea last year.

"I thought the consensus was that we had turned it down," Rigg said. "I think we'll upset people and they'll think we put one over on them."

But Trustee Carol Rauschenberger disagreed, arguing that the sidewalk was necessary for the village. She said that having tried to walk along M-52 herself, she found it was a dangerous road and she would like to see sidewalk for the residents.

Rauschenberger said business owners need to be good corporate citizens and look after members of the community.

"Business owners need to step up and listen to what people want," she said. "We need to make Chelsea a walkable town."

Trustee Jim Myles sided with Rauschenberger, saying that the new development was going to generate a lot of traffic in the south area. He wanted to be sure kids were taken care of.

In other business, the council officially hired Linfield as village engineer with a vote of 7-0. Since Linfield had already started working for the village the previous Monday, the vote was a virtual lock.

Linfield's term of employment lasts until Feb. 28 with an automatic renewal until Feb. 28, 2002. Her salary will be $43,084.

The council tabled an examination of the cost and feasibility of allowing Cavanaugh, Lake to tap into the village's sewer lines. Lake residents had asked the village for cost estimates two weeks ago so they could be included in a feasibility study of putting in a sewer at the lake.

Tabling the measure likely means the figures will not be included in Cavanaugh Lake's study. The sewer study was scheduled to be discussed at Sivan Township's board meeting Tuesday night.

The village council also voted May 26 to have Media One monitor village resident payments when the company raises cable rates. According to Village Manager Jack Myers Media One asked to raise rates 27 cents for basic cable and $2.60 for expanded service.

Myers said the village passed the resolution to ensure that if the rates were forcibly reduced, residents would receive refunds from the company.

Attention Medicare Recipients:

"You mean I pay nothing more than Medicare? And I get all these extra benefits? How is it possible?"

The concept of getting more, but paying less, has always been hard to believe. Yet, that's exactly what you get with M-CARE Senior Plan.

More benefits. Lower cost.

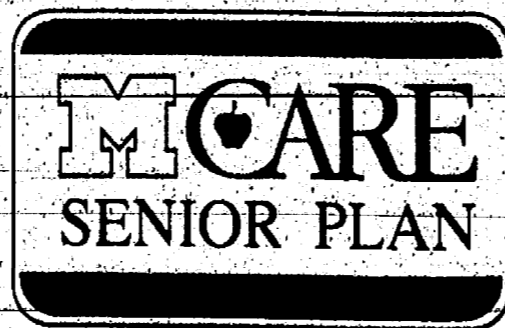

And M-CARE is accepted at most leading hospitals you already know and trust right near you.

Now is the time: Find out how much you can save. Get full details at an M-CARE Senior Plan informational meeting in your neighborhood.

Multiple-class reunion to be held

Chelsea High School Class of 1968 will sponsor a multiple class reunion on July 31 and Aug. 1 this summer in celebration of its 30-year reunion. Classmates from 1965-1971 have been invited to attend.

On Friday, July 31, the classes will come together at the Chelsea Lanes for an evening of bowling, pool, karaoke and pizza.

A casual dinner dance will be held at The American Legion Hall in Manchester on Saturday, Aug. 1. The cost of the dinner dance will be $25 per person. Music from the '60s will be provided by The Sea Cruisers, a group that includes several CHS graduates.

Members of the classes from 1965-1971 who have not received an invitation are encouraged to call Mary (Weir) Alber at (734) 475-7385 or Sarah (Taylor) Steele at (734) 475-1222 for information on how to make a reservation. Reservations are limited.

Warrant Arrest

Andrew Paul Frost, 20, of Chelsea was arrested at 3:35 a.m. May 25 on Dexter-Chelsea Road near McKinley Road. Police contacted the man and did a computer check on his identity. He was wanted on a bench warrant for failure to appear on a charge of impaired driving out of 14-A District Court. He was taken to jail.

Delinquent Minors

Police were dispatched to Perky Pantry, 501 S. Main St., at 6:38 p.m. May 26 on a report an adult had purchased a pack of cigarettes for a minor. A 32-year-old Chelsea man entered the store and purchased a pack of cigarettes. The clerk, a 47-year-old Clinton man, became suspicious and followed the man. He found a 17-year-old Chelsea girl in possession of the cigarettes. The man was ticketed, though he stated he didn't know she was too young to buy cigarettes.

Burglary

A Chelsea woman called police at 4:10 p.m. May 22 to report a burglary in her mother's home in the 700 block of Taylor Street. Someone had gained entry through the kitchen window, which had its screen removed. Nothing was taken. Police suspect a 20-year-old Portage Lake man and a 17-year-old Chelsea boy of the break-in. The two are related to the victim.

Found Property

A Chelsea man told police at 5:20 p.m. May 22 that his daughters found a safe in the creek behind his house in the 300 block of Wilkinson Street. The man turned over the safe to police. It had been broken into.

Delinquent Minors

Police were dispatched to the new high school construction site, 13965 Trinkle Road, at 5:25 p.m. May 24 to detain two Chelsea boys who were on the site. A security officer, an Ypsilanti man, told the boys they should not be on site until the school opens in the fall. Both agreed not to return.

Larceny

An 18-year-old Chelsea woman told police at 9 a.m. May 26 that her flute was stolen from the band room of Chelsea High School, 500 Washington St. The woman had placed the instrument in a locker that was normally locked after school. The band director told her to wait until the next week to report it, because the instruments usually turn up. The instrument was still not at school the next week.

Dexter Village

Dumpster Fire

Police responded to a dumpster fire at 7:05 p.m. May 25 at the senior center, 7744 Ann Arbor Street. The fire department was called to put out the flames. Police interviewed a witness, a 39-year-old Dexter woman, who said she saw a vehicle drive up to the dumpster and throw ashes from a portable grill into it. She said she approached the driver, later identified as a 37-year-old Ann Arbor woman, and told her it wasn't a good idea to put hot ashes in the Dumpster. The suspect drove away and the witness took her license plate number.

The driver was contacted by police and told them she had a grill in a nearby park and she thought the ashes were out before she put them in the Dumpster.

Shoplifting

Retail fraud was reported at 2:46 p.m. May 26 at Busch's Valu Land, 3219 Broad St. A 42-year-old Whitmore Lake woman who is an employee of the store told police she saw a 40-year-old Pinckney woman place a plant in her trunk without paying for it. Police contacted the woman who said she was going to take the tag in to pay when she was contacted by the employee. The woman's son was in the vehicle and was not taken inside. The suspect was released from the sheriff's department pending prosecutor review.

Home Invasion

Home invasion was reported at 5:40 p.m. May 28 in the 7900 block of Fifth Street. A 35-year-old Dexter man told police his house was entered by force. He said his son has taken things before but never anything this extensive. Hunting equipment, including rifles, semi-automatic weapons and hunting knives, had been taken. Total loss is more than $2,400.

Sylvan Township

Felonious Driving

Felonious driving was reported at 3:36 p.m. May 16 on M-52 near I-94. Three motorcyclists were riding north on M-52 and saw a car stopped in the southbound lane. One of the motorcyclists was then struck by a car that had entered the other lane to pass the stopped car. A second cycle collided with the first.

The driver of the first motorcycle, a 54-year-old Ann Arbor man, received severe injuries, including broken arms, legs, a broken hip and several broken ribs. He is now in a coma. The second motorcycle rider, a 54-year-old Northville man, injured his femur and tibia.

The driver of the car, a 77-year-old Chelsea man, told police he saw the car stopped in the road and went to pass it. He didn't see the motorcycles until it was too late. He tried to veer back into the lane, but hit the bike. The car smashed the bike between the moving car and the stopped car.

Dexter Township

Attempted Break-in

A 51-year-old Pinckney man told police at 8:24 a.m. May 29 that someone had tried to break in to Dexter Party Store, 7490 W. Huron River Drive. He said a telephone box on the side of the building was tampered with, an electrical box on another side was removed and gas pipes on the roof were damaged.

A witness, a 53-year-old Dexter man, said he heard the burglar alarm go off for about 10-15 minutes and then the electricity to his house was cut off. He didn't see anything out of the ordinary when he drove by the store.

Larceny

Larceny of boat accessories was reported at 11:56 a.m. May 22 at Klaves Marina, 8789 McGregor Road. A 58-year-old Hell resident told police his boat had been in for repairs at the marina for three years. During that time several items were taken from the boat, including a fish finder, a radio and life jackets. Damage to the seats and mooring cover were also reported. Total damage is $2,233.

Minor in Possession

Police were dispatched to a loud party at 5:30 a.m. May 23 in the 9400 block of Horseshoe Bend. Upon arrival, police found a 17-year-old Ann Arbor boy and a 20-year-old Pinckney man drinking. They were both given a breath test and were arrested.

Drunken Driving

Police were dispatched at 1:21 a.m. May 23 to a vehicle that had rolled over in the 5200 block of Dexter Townhall Road. A 17-year-old boy was found in the vehicle and was taken by ambulance to the hospital.

Police investigation found that the car had been traveling northwest and entered a curve without braking. The vehicle went down a ditch and rolled several times ending up on the roof. A witness, a 23-year-old Chelsea woman, said she drove by the accident and saw the boy crawling on the ground. When she stopped, he got into the passenger side of the car. Police took a sample of the boy's blood for investigation of alcohol.

Lima Township

Drunken Driving

Police were on patrol at 10 p.m. May 22 on Jackson Road near Lima Center Road when they observed an auto ahead of them swerving on the road. Police stopped the car and contacted the driver, a 40-year-old Chelsea man, and asked him to take a sobriety test. Police noticed his speech was slurred and he admitted to having a beer earlier. The man was arrested and submitted to a breath test, which showed he was above the legal limit for driving.

Indecent Exposure

A 15-year-old Chelsea girl was walking her dog at 6:35 p.m. May 27 on Lima Center Road near Jerusalem Road when a car passed her. The car stopped about 200 feet ahead of her and a man got out of the car. The girl noticed that his pants were pulled down. The girl ran away and told her parents. The man drove away before police arrived.

Scio Township

Child Neglect

A 17-year-old Scio Township boy called police at 7:53 p.m. May 25 to report that his mother, 44, was drunk. He said she had been depressed and angry since her husband was sent to prison. He said she takes medication for depression, and alcohol makes it worse.

The boy said the mother had become angry about a telephone conversation and then began yelling at her children, including two girls age 7 and 6. The woman was approached by police, who noticed she was drunk. Child Protective Services was called and the case was turned over to them.

Larceny

A 55-year-old Alamogordo, N.M., man told police at 4:17 p.m. May 30 that he parked his truck at the Wolverine Truck Stop, 200 Baker Road. He went inside to take a shower, and returned to find that his lights had been removed and refrigeration unit turned down. It is unknown if the lettuce in the truck was damaged from the reduction in refrigeration. Damage was $300.

Structure Fire

Police responded to a structure fire at 5:18 a.m. May 30 at Scio Farms Estates, 6655 Jackson Road. A 25-year-old Scio Township man was found by a neighbor, 35, lying partially outside his residence while his house was on fire. The man was interviewed by police and told them he had been drinking heavily. Police called the owner of the burned residence to inform him of the fire, but he was unavailable. The man said that he was smoking in the residence before the fire.

Assault and Battery

Assault and battery was reported at 4:15 p.m. May 20 at Little Folks Corner Day Care, 4850 Dexter Road. A 22-year-old employee of the facility told one of the customers, a 40-year-old woman, that her son, 5, had been assaulted by another employee. The boy told police that one of the workers, a 56-year-old Whitmore Lake woman, grabbed him by the face. The other employee said she witnessed the incident as well.

The suspect had not been contacted at the time of the report. The mother also said the employee had grabbed her arm in an argument over the incident.

Auto Theft

A 37-year-old Whitmore Lake man told police at 2:06 a.m. May 27 that he had parked his car outside the Wolverine Truck Stop, 200 Baker Road, when he reported to work. He left the keys to the vehicle on a table in the break room and returned to find them missing. The car was also missing. He had a friend take him home and reported the car missing. He said a CB radio was also in the car.

Violation of Personal Protection Order

A 38-year-old Scio Township woman told police at 8:47 p.m. May 26 that a 25-year-old Ann Arbor man violated a personal protection order by calling her at her home in Scio Farms Estates, 6655 Jackson Road. The woman said she had gotten the order after he had contacted her over several months after what she characterized as a casual relationship. The man was contacted by police and he said his friend, not he, had called the woman. He also categorized the relationship as more than casual. The friend, a 44-year-old Ypsilanti woman, said she called the woman and the man didn't know about it.

Property Damage

Malicious destruction of property was reported at 7:24 a.m. May 19 in the Scio Farms Estates, 6655 Jackson Road. A 24-year-old Scio Township woman told police she heard something hit the side of her mobile home and thought it was some kids outside. She went outside and found damage to the siding of the trailer. Damage was reported from a BB gun at two residences. A 14-year-old neighbor was contacted, but no further action was taken pending investigation.

A 28-year-old Hudson man told police at 9 a.m. May 21 that he noticed four round paint chips in his new truck while washing his vehicle May 16. He said he brings his vehicle to a job site in the 1100 block of Country Club Road where he is a builder. He said he had seen a neighbor's child, 12, shooting a BB gun nearby and has found several BBs inside the house where he works. The child's mother, 40, said she would allow police to interview her son when he was not in school.

Larceny

A 22-year-old Howell man told police at 3:54 a.m. May 14 that he returned to his vehicle in the parking lot of the Wolverine Truck Stop, 200 Baker Road, for a work break. He found the vehicle had been rummaged through and several items taken. The vehicle was unlocked at the time.

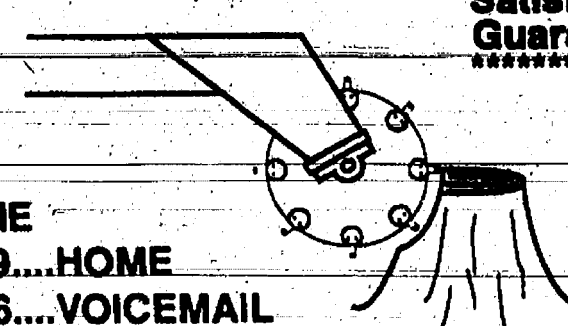

Drunken Driving

Police were dispatched to a crash scene at 10:35 p.m. May 21 to Miller and Wagner. They made contact with the driver of the vehicle, a 29-year-old Gregory man, who stated he was driving and began to slide sideways and could not correct the vehicle. He struck a tree. He was transported to the hospital for injuries, and took a blood test for alcohol.

Well-known general wages war on pipeline

Retired general to fight pipeline project

By Eric Bowen
 Staff Writer

Retired four-star general Dwight E. Beach graduated from West Point, went to war in the Philippines, spent four years in a Japanese POW camp and when he returned had a school named after him in his home town. Now the 90-year-old Lima Township resident who fought the Germans has another foe — IPL Toledo Pipeline.

According to Beach's son, Dwight Jr., the pipeline company wants to put a crude oil line across Beach's land. The pipeline would follow Detroit Edison power lines that run through Lima and other area townships.

"They would like to run the pipeline through the farm," he said. "I don't agree to that. Our position is they shouldn't be allowed to do that."

IPL Toledo Pipeline created a stir among residents last fall when the company began asking people in Sylvan and Lyndon townships to grant an easement through their land. Township officials questioned the route of the pipeline saying it was unnecessarily cutting across residents' property.

Lynn Downey, acquisitions manager for the IPL Toledo pipeline project said IPL also ran into problems with the state Department of Natural Resources. The original route was hampered by regulated wetlands and IPL could not put the pipeline through.

The townships suggested that the pipeline follow the existing public service corridor under the Detroit Edison power lines. When IPL changed the route about a month ago, it landed in the new controversy.

Downey said that up to this point the company has not had much opposition to putting the pipeline along the new route. He said out of 135 landowners along the route, only nine have not signed on to the agree-

Having received a permit from the Michigan Public Service Commission and a license from the Secretary of State, Downey said that IPL does have the power to condemn property. He said that he doesn't think it will be necessary because he is continuing to negotiate with the remaining property owners.

"We are continuing to make telephone calls and schedule meetings to continue negotiations with the nine remaining property owners," Downey said. "I'm optimistic about on-going negotiations."

Beach, however, said he and his father have hired attorney Alan Ackerman to ensure the pipeline doesn't go through the farm his family has held for 150 years. Ackerman, a Troy-based lawyer, is a specialist in property law and has represented clients against other utilities in the past.

Ackerman said his clients want to be treated fairly by IPL Toledo. He said utilities are required to pay fair market value for the property, and he wants to ensure his clients are getting everything they deserve.

"In all likelihood they are undervaluing the property," Ackerman said. "People expect appraisals and expect to be treated fairly, and that's not the perception that's happening right now. Equally important with being treated fairly is feeling like you're being treated fairly."

After fighting against I-94 and the Detroit Edison power lines, the younger Beach said he is going to fight the pipeline as far as he can go. He said he doesn't want to be seen as obstructing it, but he's tired of companies cutting across his property.

"Enough is enough," he said. "It's one thing to have clean electricity and it is quite another to put in crude oil."

"This farm has been in our family for 150 years. All of my family is buried in the cemetery — not 200 feet from where the pipeline will go in. We're not just going to go down smiling."

Board candidates give next-term goals

By Eric Bowen
 Staff Writer

With two Board of Education incumbents running unopposed, voters in the June 8 elections may not have many burning issues to decide. But despite the lack of opponents, the candidates looking for new terms have definite ideas about what they hope to achieve in the next four years.

Board president Jane Diesing, 51, has been on the school board for eight years and has been president for five. She said she wants to continue her time on the board because she has a strong interest in education in Chelsea.

Diesing said one of her main goals is to finish the school construction project. Diesing has been on the school board since the beginning of the construction process and she wants to see it through to completion.

"I feel we've really invested a lot in this construction project," Diesing said. "That was an important point for me. I want to continue so I can see through the construction to deliver what we promised to the community and spend the dollars as efficiently as we can."

Diesing said she also wants to set some goals for improving the district's curriculum. Among the important considerations are

- continuing the board's goal to improve reading
- ensuring the integration of technology into the curriculum,

• improving MEAP scores. "We're making changes in improving teaching and lowering class sizes, but I want to be sure that is effective in improving reading," Diesing said.

"We need to form a plan to replace, upgrade and maintain the $3.5 million of worth of technology. We need to plan now so we have the money in the next five or six years."

Diesing also wants to move forward with revising the policy manual. One of the most contentious issues will likely be the building use policy, which may set up fees for using school facilities, Diesing said. She wants to ensure that people can use the facilities without overly straining the school's budget.

Aside from her duties in Chelsea, Diesing is president of the Washtenaw Association of School Boards. She also served for four years on the education and technology committee for the Michigan Association of School Boards. Diesing has lived in the Chelsea area for a total of 30 years. She grew up in the area, moved away after college, then moved back 10 years ago.

Holding a bachelor's degree in medical technology, Diesing worked in the medical field before returning to Chelsea. She now is co-owner of Village Shoppe.

District champs!

Thunder in lineup leads to region berth

By Tim Russell
Special Writer

Togetherness has always been a theme for the Chelsea softball team.

"When a lot of teams get tired of each other and start falling apart, ours has really stuck together," Chelsea coach Ronnie O'Brien said. "It makes it fun, which is what it's supposed to be."

Winning also makes softball fun. The Bulldogs took home another district title Saturday, beating Eaton Rapids 16-4 at Mason High School.

Chelsea avenged two earlier defeats, beating Jackson Northwest, 3-0, in the semifinal.

"We feel very good winning the district again," said pitcher McKenna Houle, who allowed three hits and struck out nine against Northwest. "It was a goal for all of us. We were really looking forward to playing Jackson Northwest because they best us twice."

"We really came out mentally prepared for them. Then in the second game, we all hung in there. We kept playing hard and batted well that game."

In the semifinal, Margaret Schick extended a 1-0 lead to 3-0 with a two-run double in the fifth.

Jess Ritter (14-1) and Houle (18-8) combined to pitch the second game.

But it was the offense that helped the Bulldogs in the final.

Ritter went 4-for-4 with three RBIs while Sarah Pruess had two hits and three RBIs.

Karen Kuhl went 4-for-5 with 3 RBIs and Schick had two singles and two RBIs.

"It was a team effort," O'Brien said. "It was just nice to see everyone step up."

"This wasn't a goal that we talked about, but because we won districts last year, you always want to do as well as the year before. Our main goal was to win our league. That was a big deal, to beat Tecumseh three times. From here on out, it's like icing on the cake. We'll work as hard as we can. If we keep playing together, I think we'll do very well."

After the tournament ended, the team again showed its togetherness, dumping on O'Brien the remnants of the water cooler.

"That was a first-year coach thing to do," said O'Brien. "I fell for it all the way."

"But this feels great. We win our league. Then I was nervous coming in here where you only get one shot, but the girls have been working really hard."

"This is a great group of girls. They all work really hard and they all hustle. It's not something that I have to get on them about all the time."

Chelsea will travel to the Carleton Airport, regional on Saturday, where they will face Trenton.

Mistakes lead to Bulldogs' demise in baseball district

By Tim Russell
Special Writer

For the Chelsea baseball team, this season has been a long, frustrating time.

The Bulldogs ended their season on Saturday, losing to Jackson Northwest, 8-2, in a district semifinal at Mason. Northwest won the district final.

"We had swept them earlier in the year and we thought this district was very winnable," Chelsea coach Wayne Welton said. "In a lot of ways this was the story of our season."

"Northwest had some clutch hits. We made mistakes and they made us pay."

The Bulldogs (21-15) finish the season with 20 victories for the 10th consecutive season.

"That's an accomplishment that the program is pretty proud of," Welton said. "That's more than 200 ballgames. That really says something."

"We were frustrated with some of the things we weren't able to do, but (consecutive 20 win seasons) don't happen very often."

Saturday, Chelsea and

Northwest battled to a 1-1 tie early in the game. Don Reilly had the Bulldogs' lone hit, batting in a run early on.

Northwest scored seven runs in the fifth and sixth innings to take command of the game.

Scott Basar batted in Reilly with a sacrifice fly in the sixth to end the scoring.

"We made mistakes and Northwest didn't," Welton said. "But they made some nice defensive plays on us. We could harp a lot on defense, but in this case, Northwest deserves some credit."

"They hit the ball and pitched great."

Chelsea wasted a fine outing by pitcher Ryan Hubbard, who gave up just two walks while striking out 13.

"On other days, Hubbard probably would have won," Welton said. "To have 13 strikeouts against a pretty decent team is pretty good. We just couldn't overcome some things."

Hubbard ends his career with a 23-7 record, including 10-4 this year for the Bulldogs.

Last week, Chelsea lost a non-conference twinbill to Ann Arbor Huron, 14-3 and 14-5.

Reilly hit his 10th home run of the season in the first game. Huron pounded out 15 hits while giving up just six.

Chris Herter fell to 1-3 on the mound for the Bulldogs.

In the nightcap, Chelsea had 10 hits, but could only push five runs across the plate.

Huron broke open a 7-5 game with seven runs in the seventh inning.

In the two games, the Bulldogs committed eight errors.

Arnold wins all-state track honors

Mora Arnold earned all-state honors this year.

Sophomore Mora Arnold became the first girl from Chelsea in five years to earn class B all-state track honors.

Arnold earned the award by placing third in the 200 with a time of 28.10 in Saturday's state meet at Saginaw. The award was especially nice because Arnold edged rival Deanna Vogel of Tecumseh for the first time this season.

The first three finishers in each event earn all-state awards presented by MITCA, the Michigan Interscholastic Track Coaches Association.

"This is quite an accomplishment for Mora. She has had to do a lot for the team this season, and it is nice that she can wrap it up with individual honors," said coach Bill Bainton.

Arnold also ran in the 400, and her 58.90 just missed the top eight.

The last Bulldogs to be all state were Lisa Monti in the 1600 and 3200 runs, and the 3200 relay team in 1993.

Cindy Richard had a throw of 34.0 in the shot.

Bekkah Burby had a good day in the discus with a throw of 108.3.

Karen Pieper ran in the 800 and finished in the top 12 in 2:26.5.

Jeannie Spink finished her Chelsea career with season's bests in both the 1600 (5:23.2) and 3200 (11:57.5) but missed the medal positions in each race.

"These four seniors have had a good four years in track. It would have been nice if they could have all placed in a state meet and with good performances," said Bainton.

Five athletes from the girls track team competed at the Selby Classic, an honor roll meet for the top nine runners in each event, at Jackson High School on Tuesday, May 26.

The Bulldogs brought home six medals, with two each in the shot.

McCalla had her best throw ever, 34.2 1/2, to place third in the shot.

Burby also had her best throw ever, 33.8, to finish fourth.

"We've had a great season from our throwers. It was nice to see the three of them medal in a meet like this. Coach Bert Kruse and the girls have done a lot of hard work to have this success," Bainton said.

Spink won the 3200 in a season best of 11:58.3.

Richard earned a second medal with a fourth-place finish in the 100 hurdles. Lisa Ballas jumped well in the pole vault, clearing the first three heights on the first attempt, but her sixth place just missed the medal positions.

The Selby Classic is for individuals only and no team scores are kept.

Boys place in two relays at state

Chelsea boys' track team finished the season with a 34th place finish at the state track meet May 30.

The Bulldogs scored six points and were among nearly 200 schools to participate.

Both the 200 and 1600 relays earned medals, which coach Eric Swager said is a "notable accomplishment."

The 800 relay of Aaron Montero, Matt Kennedy, Rourke Skelton and Mike Holloway placed eighth in 1:31.2. The same boys ran the 1600 and placed fourth in 3:27.

Aaron Ruhlrig ran the 1600 and finished in 4:34 but did not place.

Holloway clocked a 50.7 in the 400 dash and Skelton ran 41.2 in the 300 hurdles, but neither boy placed.

At the Jackson Selby meet last week, Holloway set a school record in the 200 at 22.62 to take third place.

Ruhlrig won the mile by .02 seconds by outleaning Stockbridge all-stater Jamey Lister.

The 800 relay team won the event in 1:31.5.

Swager said could be a sophomore record.

Skelton set a school record in the 300 hurdles at 40.1.

Overall, the boys finished fourth in the Southeastern Conference and second in the region.

Lets Go

District champs!

Thunder in lineup leads to region berth

By Tim Russell
Special Writer

Together they have always been a theme for the Chelsea softball team.

"When a lot of teams get tired of each other and start falling apart, ours has really stuck together," Chelsea coach Ronnie O'Brien said. "It makes it fun, which is what it's supposed to be."

Winning also makes softball fun. The Bulldogs took home another district title Saturday, beating Eaton Rapids 16-4 at Mason High School.

Chelsea avenged two earlier defeats, beating Jackson Northwest, 3-0, in the semifinal.

"We feel very good winning the district again," said pitcher McKenna Houle, who allowed three hits and struck out nine against Northwest. "It was a goal for all of us. We were really looking forward to playing Jackson Northwest because they beat us twice."

"We really came out mentally prepared for them. Then in the second game, we all hung in there. We kept playing hard and batted well that game."

In the semifinal, Margaret Schick extended a 1-0 lead to 3-0 with a two-run double in the fifth.

Jess Ritter (14-1) and Houle (18-8) combined to pitch the second game.

But it was the offense that helped the Bulldogs in the final.

Ritter went 4-for-4 with three RBIs while Sarah Pruess had two hits and three RBIs.

Karen Kuhl went 4-for-5 with 3 RBIs and Schick had two singles and two RBIs.

"It was a team effort," O'Brien said. "It was just nice to see everyone step up."

"This wasn't a goal that we talked about, but because we won districts last year, you always want to do as well as the year before. Our main goal was to win our league. That was a big deal, to beat Tecumseh three times. From here on out, it's like icing on the cake. We'll work as hard as we can. If we keep playing together, I think we'll do very well."

After the tournament ended, the team again showed its togetherness, dumping on O'Brien the remnants of the water cooler.

"That was a first-year coach thing to do," said O'Brien. "I fell for it all the way."

"But this feels great. We win our league. Then I was nervous coming in here where you only get one shot, but the girls have been working really hard."

"This is a great group of girls. They all work really hard and they all hustle. It's not something that I have to get on them about all the time."

Chelsea will travel to the Carleton Airport regional on Saturday, where they will face Trenton.

Mistakes lead to Bulldogs' demise in baseball district

By Tim Russell
Special Writer

For the Chelsea baseball team, this season has been a long, frustrating time.

The Bulldogs ended their season on Saturday, losing to Jackson Northwest, 8-2, in a district semifinal at Mason. Northwest won the district final.

"We had swept them earlier in the year and we thought this district was very winnable," Chelsea coach Wayne Welton said. "In a lot of ways this was the story of our season."

"Northwest had some clutch hits. We made mistakes and they made us pay."

The Bulldogs (21-15) finish the season with 20 victories for the 10th consecutive season.

"That's an accomplishment that the program is pretty proud of," Welton said. "That's more than 200 ballgames. That really says something."

"We were frustrated with some of the things we weren't able to do, but (consecutive 20 win seasons) don't happen very often."

Saturday, Chelsea and

Northwest battled to a 1-1 tie early in the game. Don Reilly had the Bulldogs' lone hit, batting in a run early on.

Northwest scored seven runs in the fifth and sixth innings to take command of the game.

Scott Basar batted in Reilly with a sacrifice fly in the sixth to end the scoring.

"We made mistakes and Northwest didn't," Welton said. "But they made some nice defensive plays on us. We could harp a lot on defense, but in this case, Northwest deserves some credit."

"They hit the ball and pitched great."

Chelsea wasted a fine outing by pitcher Ryan Hubbard, who gave up just two walks while striking out 13.

"On other days, Hubbard probably would have won," Welton said. "To have 13 strikeouts against a pretty decent team is pretty good. We just couldn't overcome some things."

Hubbard ends his career with a 23-7 record, including 10-4 this year for the Bulldogs.

Last week, Chelsea lost a non-conference twinbill to Ann Arbor Huron, 14-3 and 14-5.

Reilly hit his 10th home run of the season in the first game. Huron pounded out 15 hits, while giving up just six.

Chris Herter fell to 1-3 on the mound for the Bulldogs.

In the nightcap, Chelsea had 10 hits, but could only push five runs across the plate.

Huron broke open a 7-5 game with seven runs in the seventh inning.

In the two games, the Bulldogs committed eight errors.

The last Bulldogs to be all-state were Lisa Monti in the 1600 and 3200 runs, and the 3200 relay team in 1993.

Cindy Richard had a throw of 34.0 in the shot.

Bekkah Burby had a good day in the discus with a throw of 108.3.

Karen Pieper ran in the 800 and finished in the top 12 in 2:26.5.

Jeannie Spink finished her Chelsea career with season's bests in both the 1600 (5:23.2) and 3200 (11:57.5) but missed

"These four seniors have had a good four years in track. It would have been nice if they could have all placed in a state meet and with good performances," said Bainton.

Five athletes from the girls track team competed at the Selby Classic, an honor roll meet for the top nine runners in each event, at Jackson High School on Tuesday, May 26.

The Bulldogs brought home six medals, with two each in the shot.

McCalla had her best throw ever, 34-2 1/2, to place third in the shot.

Burby also had her best throw ever, 33-8, to finish fourth.

"We've had a great season from our throwers. It was nice to see the three of them medal in a meet like this. Coach Bert Kruse and the girls have done a lot of hard work to have this success," Bainton said.

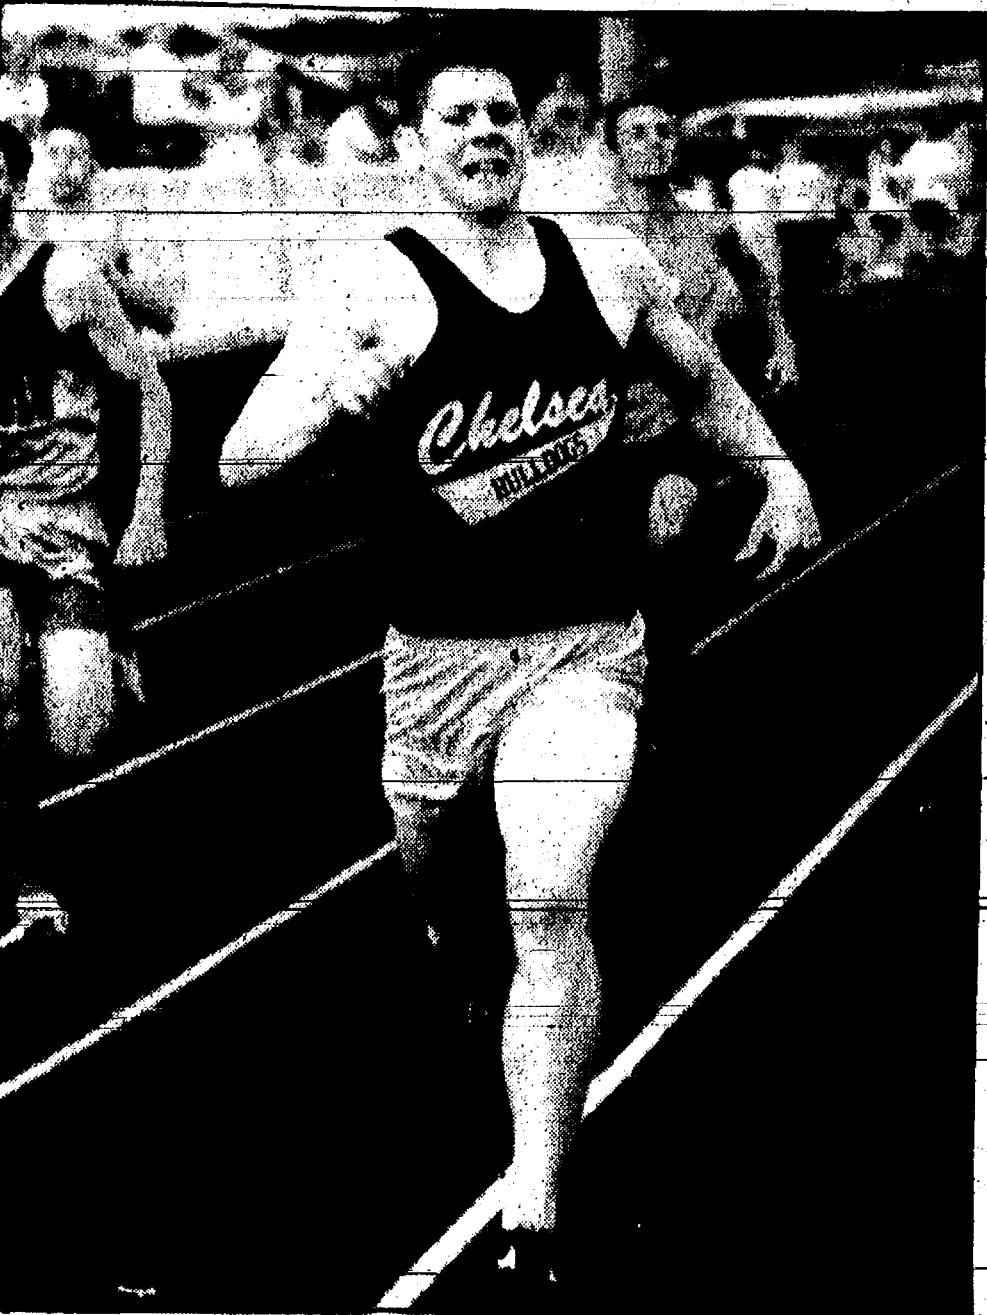

Spink won the 3200 in a season best of 11:58.3.

Richard earned a second medal with a fourth-place finish in the 100 hurdles. Lisa Ballas jumped well in the pole vault, clearing the first three heights on the first attempt, but her sixth place just missed the medal positions.

The Selby Classic is for individuals only and no team scores are kept.

Mora Arnold earned all-state honors this year.

Mike Holloway was part of two state-placing relay teams. He also set two individual school records in the 200 and 400.

Boys place in two relays at state

Chelsea boys' track team finished the season with a 34th place finish at the state track meet May 30.

The Bulldogs scored six points and were among nearly 200 schools to participate.

Both the 200 and 1600 relays earned medals, which coach Eric Swager said is a "notable accomplishment."

The 800 relay of Aaron Montero, Matt Kennedy, Rourke Skelton and Mike Holloway placed eighth in 1:31.2. The same boys ran the 1600 and placed fourth in 3:27.

The 800 relay team won the event in 1:31.5.

Swager said could be a sophomore record.

Skelton set a school record in the 300 hurdles at 40.1.

Overall, the boys finished fourth in the Southeastern Conference and second in the region.

JV softball team has fine final week

Chelsea JV softball team ended a successful final week of the season winning five of their last six games to finish the season with more victories than defeats.

"These girls have made so much improvement that it is nice to see them rewarded," said Coach John Ruhlig.

Lindsey Baker pitched all of the games as the team first defeated Saline 12-9 and 13-9. In the first game the offense was led by Amy Dault and Lindsay Powers, who each collected two hits. The hitting leaders in the second game were Collette Monpetit with four hits and Betsy Ruhlig, Tracy Kern and Ashley Augustine with two hits each.

Adrian next visited Chelsea and the teams split, with Adrian winning the first game 14-5 and Chelsea bouncing back to win the second game 3-2. The highlights of the win were a long triple by Powers to drive in the winning runs and Karen Tabaka's outstanding running catch in the right field to preserve the victory.

The final competition of the season found the Bulldogs traveling to Dearborn to play against Annapolis. The Chelsea team was victorious in both games, 12-6 and 27-17. The leading hitters on the day were Augustine, Powers, and Lindsey Baker. Both games were total team victories as all the players on the roster contributed with eleven different players collecting at least one hit.

School board candidates run unopposed

Despite her many careers, Dising said her main focus for the last 20 years has been raising her three children, Jeff, 23, James, 21, and Jenny, 15. Her husband's name is David.

Dayle Wright, 48, serves as secretary for the board and is finishing her first term. Wright said she is looking forward to her second term on the school board and wants to continue to serve because she feels a strong commitment to public education.

"I want to continue improving and refining the delivery of our curriculum," she said. "I do it because I really believe in public education."

Wright said she is particularly interested in completing the construction in the district. She said making sure the construction was completed on time was of utmost importance.

She also said focusing curriculum on students was important to the future of the district.

"I'm especially interested in the reading curriculum," Wright said. "I want to do whatever we can to ensure reading curriculum is adequate to meet the needs of the students. We need to organize resources so teachers can be prepared to deliver that curriculum."

Wright is a member of the Chelsea United Way board. She served on the board of trustees for McKune Memorial Library and as secretary of the

Freestyle wrestlers have fine season; Egeler qualifies for national tourney

Chelsea freestyle wrestlers had an outstanding season. Derek Egeler, wrestling at 167 pounds, went undefeated with a 37-0 record and won the state championship. Derek will represent team Michigan and compete in the nationals at Fargo, N.D.

Adam Egeler, (49-9) placed in every tournament and finished fourth at the state finals. Daryl Bauer won the state championship at 125 pounds for the AAU state finals. He completed the season with 42 wins and three losses.

Ryan Kaiser finished third in the state and medaled in every tournament. His record was 37-4.

David Dault medaled in six tournaments. He had a fine season with a record of 27-6. Eric Lixey placed in every tournament and finished his season at 18-3. David Graff wrapped his season up at 20-5.

Graff has medaled in every tournament he has competed in and took the bronze medal at the state championship.

Ryan Lundquist wrestled in two tournaments placing first and fourth. He had a final rec-

Farm facts

The Florida strawberry crop has suffered $23 million in damage this year. By the end of the season, Florida will have suffered between $10 million and $12 million in damages, thanks to El Nino's heavy rains.

Ever wonder what makes peppers so spicy? Well, they're chemicals called capsaicinoids. Capsaicinoids stimulate pain receptors in your digestive tract, and send "hot" and "spicy" messages to your brain. In some people, capsaicinoids also relieve pain, and they're used in certain arthritis creams. They produce a burning sensation and then relief.

VILLAGE OF CHELSEA NOTICE TO VILLAGE RESIDENTS

The Village of Chelsea Public Works Department DOES NOT PICK UP GRASS CLIPPINGS. A compost pile has been developed at the Solid Waste Facility (located on Werker Road) for you to use for grass clippings. The compost pile is for the deposit of leaf and lawn rakings and must be removed from plastic bags. There is no charge for use of the compost pile. Public Act 264 of 1990 "Yard Clippings Diversion Act" prohibits lawn clippings from being placed with your garbage.

Brush and tree trimmings may be placed on the extension and will be removed by the Public Works Department. Brush should be piled separately and should be no longer than 4 foot in length. Leaf rakings may be placed on the extension for pick-up but should be placed either in a 30 gallon trash can or in the paper compost bags (which may be purchased at area hardware stores). Please do not place any item for pick up in the street. It must be placed on the lawn extension - not in the street - during rains. Lawn debris plugs the storm sewers if placed in the street. Thank you for your cooperation.

Michigan Farm Bureau fun facts offered

You've got it, a great dinner idea for the family. Round steak, red skin potatoes, and carrots with a honey glaze. You open the freezer and find your round steak has a rough texture and the carrots look dehydrated. Tough vegetables and dry, shriveled meats are telltale signs of freezer burn. It occurs when the water in foods migrates to the coldest part of the freezer. In order to prevent freezer burn, squeeze most of the air out of food containers, and be sure they're sealed tightly before freezing. Also, use freezer bags instead of plain food storage bags, and plastic wraps made of polyvinylidene chloride.

A cure for Hong Kong's Avian Influenza may be close. ARS Southeast Poultry Researchers, along with Protein Sciences Corporation, Meridian, Conn., have created a vaccine that, during a controlled study, kept chickens disease-free. ARS microbiologist Mike Perdue took this new vaccine to Hong Kong last week for further tests.

The third eyelid in sheep is the key to detecting scrapie in live animals. The third eyelid is believed to collect the disease-causing protein, and researchers have discovered a new antibody that can detect it. Producers and veterinarians will be able to analyze eyelid tissue and discover the disease before symptoms occur. This new test will only cost $25 and be less risky than current options.

Iron may be just as important in bone development as calcium and Vitamin C. An Ohio State University study showed that the femurs of rats fed an iron-deficient diet were 28 percent more likely to break than rats fed a diet rich in iron.

INTERNET JOURNAL

TERRY LINDSTEDT

I love getting e-mail! Every time I log onto the Net, one of the first things I do is to check my e-mail.

I started out by sending to my son in Dallas, and he would respond (maybe once to every four of my messages), but I wanted more!

I looked up my friends in Dallas, e-mailed them and the response was great. I still wanted more!

Getting an e-mail is like having a little present waiting for you when you log on. Since I spend so much time on the World Wide Web gathering things for my journal, chatting with virtual friends, reading and learning, I can only assume that I have a heck of a lot more time put aside for sending e-mails than anyone else I know. I could "get a life," but I have a life — and it very much includes time on the Internet.

So what did I do about wanting more e-mails? Well, I responded to an unsolicited mailing one day, inviting me to sign up for Joke-A-Day. (There is also a Web site for Joke-A-Day at <http://www.jokeaday.com>.) I like jokes as much as the next person, so I figured, "Why not?"

Signing up was simple enough. All I had to do was respond to the e-mail. Now, every day, I get an e-mail with two jokes. (Warning: the jokes can be off-color, so if you are offended by such things, do not request this service. Mr. Joke-A-Day doesn't make up the jokes, he just posts them; and if someone complains, he loves to get into flaming matches with them.)

The guy who operates Joke-A-Day has sponsors, which is how he is able to keep things going on such a huge email listing. He has over 100,000 subscribers. He also has a "real" job and sometimes has to travel.

When that happens, he gets a guest host to compose the Joke-A-Day e-mail and send it out. At times like that, the guest host usually plugs his own something-a-day. At other times, Mr. Joke-A-Day simply recommends another something-a-day for your consideration.

A different type of e-mail-A-Day is called Daily Holiday. The hostess of this daily e-mail also has a Web site. (To join this list, send an e-mail to dailyholiday@bignetwork.com and put the word "SUBSCRIBE" in the subject line.)

Each day is a holiday, according to the lady who established this e-mail service. Actually, she gives each day two holidays. Some of the holidays, of course, are real; but other holidays are made up by the Web/email mistress or her subscribers. In fact, she encourages people to submit their own suggestions for holidays.

In addition to announcing the daily holidays, she describes the reason for the holiday and gives Web site URLs for the reader to visit. The first time I viewed one of these e-mails, I thought was that teachers and students might be interested in checking this out. As far as I can tell, this is always a clean-minded e-mail service. You can visit the Daily Holiday Web page at <http://www.bignetwork.com/dp/dh/>.

Chefs! Receive a new recipe every day at Recipe-A-Day: <http://www.bignetwork.com/dp/rd/>. This e-mail service does just what the title suggests. It gives subscribers one e-mail recipe each day. For some reason, there were a lot of Mexican food recipes in the month of May (possibly because of Cinco de Mayo); but we weren't complaining about that! Now, there seems to be a lot of outdoor grilling recipes, since this is the season for such things.

If you visit the Web site mentioned at the beginning of this paragraph, you will find a place for subscribing to Recipe-A-Day at the bottom of the page.

Neat Net Tricks, a semi-regular e-mail service, is written by a guy who started his service by posting his nifty hints on a Web page. It caught on very quickly with Net surfers, and he eventually had to change it to an email service. Soon, even that was overwhelming for his server, so he had to move it to a mail list server, which is more capable of handling large volumes of email lists.

The Web site where you can learn about Neat Net Tricks is at <http://www.angelfire.com/sd/jteems/index.html>. (Beware!

there is a continually-playing MIDI of "Under the Sea" in a steel drum version with no access to its controls, so you aren't able to turn it off. Use your own sound control if this drives you crazy!)

The best thing about the Neat Net Tricks e-mail is its suggestions on improvements and gadgets for your Web site. Mixed in with the Web site suggestions are random site recommendations, as well as ideas for your own computer's programs. It's a great way to learn more about your entire computer experience.

The Freeware.Com newsletter is an e-mail very similar to Neat Net Tricks, in that its focus is on your computer. However, in this e-mail service (which is not a daily), the administrator suggests other Web sites where primarily freeware is offered. He chooses what he believes are the most useful freeware tools available. He also suggests some of the best shareware currently on the Internet.

Many of these are available on a trial/demo basis, which you can download and use for a specified amount of time. Some of these self-expire, unless you purchase, register and receive a code which allows the program to continue functioning. The Web site where you can look at a more organized format of freeware programs is at FREWARE32.COM \(http://www.freeware32.com/\). Just remember the best protection for your computer before downloading anything from the Internet is an anti-virus program.

If you've been reading this column for a while, you know that my sons and I enjoy professional wrestling — enough so to have created and maintained a Web site dedicated to the WCW/nWo. (Twist my arm and I'll give you the URL again — OUCH! See it at <http://www.geocities.com/Heartland/Hills/8642/index.html> and leave a message in the guestbook, please.)

Therefore, my list of e-mail subscriptions wouldn't be complete without something to do with wrestling. We were excited when we found The Ringside Times (Formerly Wrestling Times) e-mail service. The people who created this e-mail also have a Web site by the same name as the e-mail. It's located at <http://www.prowrestling.com/wtn/>.

Happy surfing, and have fun with the Web cams!

You are herein notified that a hearing will be held by the Chelsea Zoning Board of Appeals on Wednesday, JUNE 17, 1998 at 5:00 p.m., or as soon thereafter as possible, in the Sylvan Township Hall, 112 W. Middle Street, Chelsea, Michigan to consider objections to said request.

Persons requiring reasonable accommodations to disabilities in order that the hearing be accessible to them, are requested to notify the Zoning Board of Appeals Chairman no later than five (5) days prior to the date of the hearing of such disability.

DONALD T. OSBORNE, CHAIRMAN
ZONING BOARD OF APPEALS

TOWNSHIP OF WEBSTER WASHTENAW COUNTY

The Township of Webster Ordains:
Section 1. Permission is hereby granted to THE DETROIT EDISON COMPANY, a Michigan corporation, its successors and assigns, to construct, maintain and operate in the public streets, highways, alleys and other public places in the Township of Webster, Washtenaw County, Michigan, all needful and proper poles, towers, wires, pipes, mains, conduits and all such lines and other apparatus requisite for the transmission, transforming and distribution of electricity for public and private use, and to transact a local electric business within said Township subject, however, to all conditions and restrictions hereinafter contained.

Section 2. The conditions of the foregoing grant are as follows:
A. The grantee shall do no injury to any street, highway, alley or other public place, or to any shade trees, or in any manner disturb or interfere with any water or gas pipes, or with any public or private sewer, now or hereafter laid or constructed by any authorized person or corporation.

B. To ensure the reliability of service and the safety of the general public, line clearance of trees shall be done in compliance with all existing governmental laws, ordinances, rules and regulations.

C. The construction of the said lines shall be in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Michigan Public Service Commission or its successor.

D. The said grantee, before entering upon any street, highway, alley or other public place for the purpose of erecting and constructing any poles, wires, pipes, mains, conduits, or other apparatus, shall notify in writing, the Township or its representatives of the proposed construction, and shall file with the Township so required, file with them a sufficient plan and specification, showing the nature and extent of the proposed erection and construction.

E. No street, highway, alley or public place shall be allowed to remain open or encumbered by the construction work of the said grantee for a longer period than shall be necessary to execute the said work, and the grantee shall at all times conform to all ordinances of the Township now or hereafter in force, relative to the fencing and lighting of obstructions and excavations.

F. The grantee shall save the Township harmless from any judgment that may be recovered against the Township by reason of the wrongdoing or negligence of the said grantee in the erection and maintenance of said poles, mains, wires and other apparatus or construction.

G. Said grantee shall make due provisions, upon five (5) days notice in writing, by raising its wires or otherwise, for the passage of any barn, building or other structure on or over any street, highway, or public place occupied by the poles, mains, wires, and other apparatus of said grantee.

Section 3. In consideration of the granting of this franchise, grantee agrees that its rates and charges for electric service in the Township of Webster shall not exceed its rates and charges for like service elsewhere in its service area, as evidenced by its uniform rate schedules at the time on file with and approved by the Michigan Public Service Commission. It is understood that the grantee is subject to regulation by the Michigan Public Service Commission and that any order, rule, or regulation by that Commission, or its successor, will prevail over any regulation herein contained or provided for in case of conflict.

Section 4. This grant shall take effect if said grantee shall, within fifteen (15) days from the date of the passage of this Ordinance, file with the Township Clerk, its written acceptance of the terms of the same, and upon the confirmation of this grant, by the affirmative vote of a majority of the electors of said Township voting on the franchise at a regular election to be held on Tuesday, August 4, 1998, as provided for by the Statutes and the State Constitution. If not confirmed by the electors voting on the franchise at said election, this Ordinance shall be null and void.

Section 5. This Franchise and Ordinance shall be and remain in force for thirty years from and after the date of its confirmation by the electors of the Township of Webster, Washtenaw County, Michigan.

Section 6. Nothing in this grant shall be construed to alienate the title of the public in and to any street, highway, alley or public place or any portion thereof; neither shall anything herein be construed in any manner as a surrender by the Township of Webster of its legislative power with respect to the subject matter hereof, or with respect to any other matter whatsoever; nor as in any manner limiting the right of the said township of Webster lawfully regulate the use of any street, avenue, highway or public place within its jurisdiction, as to all other matters.

CROSS ROADS

By Linda Wacyk Amy Foundation

On a balmy, sunlit day on the campus of Michigan university, surrounded by family, at the seasoned age of 42, I graduated from college.

I did so as one of the university's "non-traditional" students. Since I began my studies in 1974, some might consider "non-traditional" an euphemism for "slow learner." Not so. Like many traditional students, I earned this degree in just four years of study. Like most non-traditional students, however, I took a big break between years.

During that break, I managed to accomplish a number of non-academic goals, including raising four children and running a small business. Non-traditional students learn to balance academic demands with the stuff of "real life." Of course, real life has a way of intruding on pedagogical pursuit, but we learn to embrace the interruptions in the interest of family, employers and community. Along the way, we content ourselves with small gains and find that we learn some valuable skills.

Though I doubt many traditional students had to choose between term papers and toilet training, books and board meetings, there is one decision I now share with the 2,000 or so other who graduated alongside me: "What will we do now?"

For some of us, it's a scary question — not because we are afraid to take on adult responsibilities, and not because we're incapable of hard work. We hesitate because we want to do more than make a living; we want to make a difference.

Graduation, like any transition, is a natural time to look for a mission. We stand at a fork in the road, at the summit of success. We look around and ask, "What shall I do with my life?" For those of us still waiting for a reply, Richard Nelson Bolles, an ordained Episcopal minister and author of the perennial best-seller "What Color is Your Parachute," has some bad news.

"At some point in your life your mission may involve some grand mountaintop experience, where you say to yourself, 'This, this, is why I came into the world,'" Bolles writes. "But until then, your mission is here in the valley and the fog, and the little calling moment by moment, day by day."

It is an "ancient principle," to which Jesus alluded to often, Bolles says. Unless you are faithful in small things, how can you expect to be given responsibilities over great things? (Luke 16:10-12; 19:11-26) Our mission may be some splendid task. But we will only accomplish it when we make choices, moment by moment; that let God's kingdom come. His will be done, on Earth as it is in heaven.

So to the class of '98, and to all who are looking for purpose, here's some advice: Come down from the mountain and live out your day-to-day mission in the valley. Moment by moment, make the choices that will bring more service, kindness, forgiveness, patience, honesty and love into the world.

And next time you are asked, "What will you do now?" declare you want to live a "non-traditional" life — one that values relationships over goals, is content with small gains, and chooses to turn interruptions into building blocks for success. If you do, you cannot help but succeed in accomplishing great things. George Washington Carver knew it: "When you can do the common things of life in an uncommon way, you will command attention of the world."

AREA DEATHS

JIM JUDSON

Grass Lake

Age 80, died suddenly Tuesday, June 2, 1998, at Chelsea Community Hospital. He was born on Jan. 1, 1918, in Ann Arbor, the son of John Raymond and Dorothy (Wrathell) Judson. Jim lived in the Chelsea area most of his life. He was a member of the Rainbow Riders (Honda Riders Club of America). Jim retired from ANR Truck Lines, and was a member of the Teamsters (Local 299 and Local 164) for 32 years.

He married Anita L. Beckington in Chelsea on Feb. 27, 1971, and she survives. Military honors were provided by Herbert J. McKune Post #31 American Legion at Mount Olivet Cemetery, Chelsea. Expressions of sympathy may be made to St. Mary's Catholic Church.

Wolf Expert

Katherine Lixey learned that wolves join together in packs of up to 20 animals as part of her research in Ruth Stielstra's fourth-grade class. The class spent the semester learning the 10 points of independent research. Lixey made wolf-shaped cookies, wrote an infomercial and sent letters to experts as part of her project.

Township begins property scans from bird's eye view

By Michelle Rogers
Associate Editor

If you live in Dexter Township and you're building without a permit beware. Big Brother is watching from above.

Zoning Inspector Harley Rider has taken to the air. Last Wednesday was his first official flight over the township.

Rider got his private pilot's license in August 1996 and is currently working on his instrument license, which he expects to get in the next few months. All told, he has logged 220 hours in the air and loves doing it.

"I'll take any excuse to go flying," he said.

And that's the impetus behind a new program to cover the township every month from 500 to 1,000 feet above.

There is no cost to the township. The May flight, which lasted a little over an hour, cost Rider $75 of his own money. He admits it's not a great way to find zoning violations but, he said, "It's a lot of fun."

"It's a real peaceful and relaxing experience but it's challenging at the same time. I love a challenge."

From the four-seat Cessna he borrowed from the University of Michigan Flying Club, Rider could see new construction, from homes to pole barns and decks. Leaves on the trees made it difficult to see in some areas but since this is a year-round program, he expects to do better in the winter.

Rider didn't find any violations this time. But each time he goes up, he is becoming more familiar with the area from above. As time goes by, the newly hired inspector said he will have a better handle on who has a zoning compliance permit and who does not. And then, watch out.

"I want to have a real good handle on what is going on in the township," Rider said. "I have no idea if we will find anything, but there is a possibility we will find things people are doing that they don't have zoning permits for."

Rider doesn't know how many decks, garages, sheds, pole barns or additions are built in the township without permits, but he knows it goes on.

"I know it happens. To what extent, I don't know," he said.

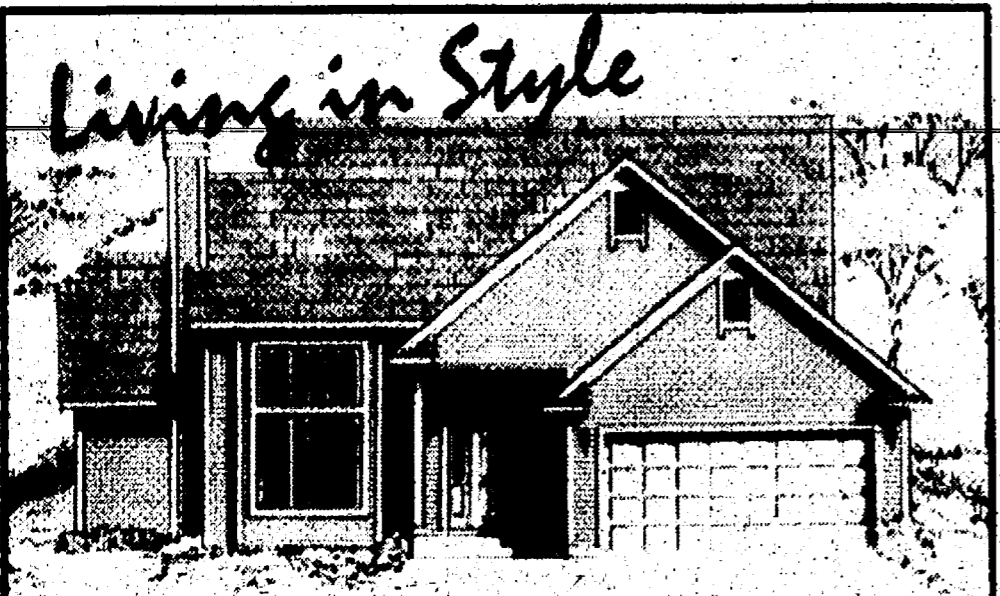

If Rider catches somebody, a stop-work order is issued and the person is cited for failing to get a zoning compliance permit.

Currently, violators face misdemeanor charges and fines. However, the Township Board is considering an amendment to the ordinance this month that will change it from a criminal case to civil.

Inspecting the township from the air is just the beginning for Rider. He also is considering lake-front checks by boat.

Antiques market promoter makes store fantasy land

By Alice-Tippery
Heritage Newspapers

Nick Easton thinks big. The promoter of the Chelsea Antiques Market has fashioned an extraordinary banquet facility/antique mall/general store in one building in the heart of Ann Arbor on South First Street near Liberty.

Perhaps it is his Fantasy Land Background — he worked at Disneyland and Walt Disney World — or maybe his ideas stem from his love of the unusual, but the result is an uncanny ability to transform the mundane to the celestial.

As a friend of Easton's recently said, "Nick took a 140-year-old cellar two years ago, and a half million dollars later

His voice trails off because Easton's "wonder down under" requires a first-hand look to be appreciated.

Nick and his sister, LuAnn Easton, opened the first floor of their three-story business, the Antiques Market Place, in December 1994. The main level houses the bulk of the antiques displayed for sale.

The structure was built in 1853 for the Ann Arbor Brewery. It was sold 15 years later to Ann Arbor Flour Mill and then to Ann Arbor Implement, which it remained for 75 years.

When a passerby chanced to offer first dibs on his extensive old-fashioned general store collection to Easton, the wheels probably could be seen turning in Easton's head. He already had the perfect second-floor spot, in his 24,000-square-foot building, for the butcher's ice cabinet, scales, meat rack, original marble counters, and unique display cases. The deal included a peanut roaster complete with dispenser and a host of rare county store paraphernalia and museum-quality pieces.

The Eastons' establishment is not lacking for usable space. There is another second floor 2,400-square-foot section — with a hardwood floor fit for dancing — undergoing wiring and duct work to accommodate banquets and the like in grand style.

Celebration Cellars is the newest part of the Eastons' blossoming facility. The European-style cellar opened in time for the December holiday rush and has hosted all-day business meetings, corporate affairs, and assorted parties. The former tractor repair entry is now the colorful entrance to Eastons' rain forest theme "fantasy banquetland."

And it works — from the murals and waterfall to the deepest catacombs of the former brewery turned reception hall — Easton has thoughtfully made full use of the vaulted arch ceilings, nooks, and open spaces. What once was storage area, is now a 350-capacity party setting, which is intimate and flexible.

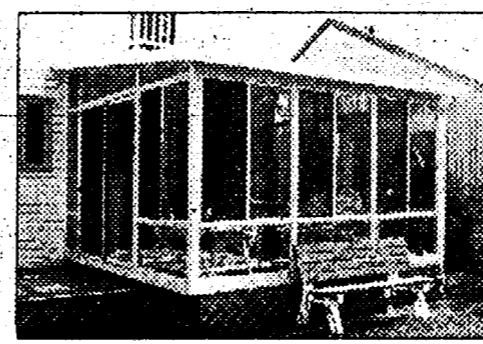

Also available in the rathskeller area is a full-size angel-adorned bar, which the Eastons stock and manage. Clients may hire their own caterer, who enjoy the use of a walk-in-cooler, sinks, counter, and steamers in a separate room.

Easton, who taught kindergarten in the Inkster Schools at one time, gives tours of the facility to area school children.

Currently in the works are plans for horse-drawn carriage rides. Easton recently purchased a stately coach from Mackinac Island, which will provide tours of the downtown area and the University of Michigan campus on Friday and Saturday nights from the Ann Arbor landmark.
