Library looking ahead toward millage

By Eric Bowen
Staff Writer

Chelsea District Library has a long way to go before deciding how much money it will ask for in a millage, according to Library Director Metta Lansdale. Though the board accepted a recommendation of site choice from its planning task force Monday night, numerous details, such as cost and a general proposal, have to be ironed out before the library goes for a millage ballot measure.

First on the agenda will be making a final determination of the size of the building, Lansdale said. The planning task force recommended 24,000 square feet, which would dramatically increase the floor space from the library's current 4,500 square feet.

Lansdale said the size was an estimate based on the number of people the library will serve. She said the task force is using an estimate of 16,000 people in the library district, garnered from statistics from the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

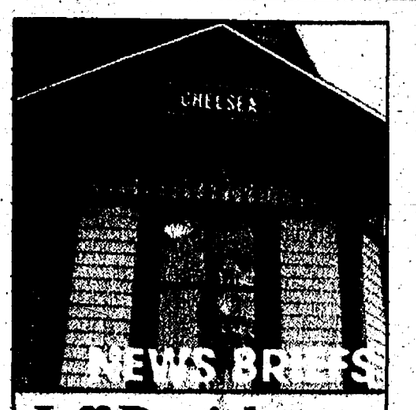

The size of the library will offer enough space to handle increased population expected in the next 10 years, according to estimates given at a community forum in May. Residents at that time wanted to plan for the increase to make sure the library would not need additions in the future.

Lansdale said the square footage is also dependent on the services the library will provide. Based on the May forum the task force recommended that the largest area be given to adult services, followed by general support, youth services and circulation, technical services and administration.

"I think that there are a lot of factors that went into that," Lansdale said of the building size. "Some of the members of the board are concerned about it not being big enough and some of the task force members think it might be too big. We haven't looked at a building plan with that kind of detail yet."

According to Deputy State Librarian Jeff Johnson, libraries should fit with the community they serve. He said the state organization has minimum standards for the size and services of libraries, but they are merely a measure of how much a library must provide to receive state funding.

Jeff Daniels to read Sleeping Bear legend

Actor Jeff Daniels is scheduled to narrate an animated special of "The Legend of Sleeping Bear," at 7 p.m. Nov. 21 on WDIV Channel 4. The special is an adaptation of local publisher Sleeping Bear Press' new children's book of the same name.

The special will be broadcast nationally on PBS stations in December.

Chamber of Commerce moves offices

Chelsea Chamber of Commerce moved in with the village last week, setting up its office in the basement of the Chelsea State Bank building, according to Chamber Director Sue Starkey. The chamber vacated its office in the Sylvan Building Nov. 10.

Chelsea Village Council voted to allow the chamber's move last month, citing lower costs. The chamber will use the building rent-free.

Starkey said the office is staffed Monday, Wednesday and Thursday 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. The chamber can be reached at 305 S. Main St., Suite 200, or P.O. Box 94. Or call 475-1145, or e-mail edirector@ameritech.net.

Work crews began to widen the railroad crossing at McKinley Road Monday in preparation for closing the East Street intersection. ConRail and the Michigan Department of Transportation promised to pay for crossing upgrades throughout the village in exchange for closing the crossing.

East Street rail crossing closed, trucks re-routed

By Eric Bowen
Staff Writer

At a well-attended Chelsea Village Council meeting Nov. 10, residents came out to voice their opposition to a plan to close the railroad crossing at East Street. Citing increased truck noise and safety concerns, residents urged the council not to close the crossing until a plan for re-routing the trucks was found.

"We don't need to be supporting truck traffic," said McKinley Road resident Janice Ortbring. "The safest place for them is not in a residential neighborhood."

Acceding somewhat to the residents, the council voted to pursue a new route for the trucks, while still closing the crossing. In two separate votes, the council approved the crossing closure and then approved a motion to close it immediately.

The council's motivation for closing the crossing was safety and a financial windfall from Consolidated Railroad and the Michigan Department of Transportation. The two transportation organizations agreed to pay for substantial road improvements throughout the village in exchange for closing the crossing.

Also included in the deal was an impetus for finding an alternate route for trucks. When the crossing is closed, trucks heading to Chelsea Industries will have to turn onto Dewey and follow a circuitous route through McKinley, North and N. East streets to reach Chelsea Industries' loading dock.

Lyndon Township considers standards for wayward roads

By Michael Rybka
Staff Writer

Addressing a long-standing concern over non-approved private roads being inaccessible to emergency vehicles, Lyndon Township Supervisor Maryann Noah introduced minimum safety standards for consideration at the board's Nov. 10 meeting.

The recommendations were given with the anticipation that they will be included as amendments to the township's current private road ordinance.

Noah said such changes were essential as a few seconds differentiate between the life or death of a heart attack victim.

She also said that the emergency vehicles themselves were in danger of being damaged or wrecked.

To remedy the problems of the non-approved private roads Noah suggested the following:

•All must have street and stop signs at all intersections. The signs must be purchased through the Washtenaw County Road Commission. These signs, which include a perpetual care provision, cost $295.

•House numbers must be clearly visible. If the home is 50 feet or less from the road the address must be on the residence. If greater, it may be posted at the end of the driveway.

•The minimum width of the road must be 12 feet. Fire engines are generally 11-feet wide.

•The road grade shall not exceed seven percent.

•Roadbeds must accommodate an axle load of 40,000 pounds even during the spring thaw.

•Permanent side markers must be erected where the road's edge is adjacent to a body of water. If the road's width is fewer than 12 feet, a guard rail may be required.

•If the road's width is less than 12 feet, a 12-foot wide, 60-foot pull-off must be provided every 600 feet.

•A turn-around must be provided. Either a cul-de-sac with a 50- degree turning radius or a "T" 12 feet wide and 50-feet long on both wings of the "T" are acceptable.

Noah said the proposed amendments could be enforced by not issuing zoning permits if the applicant's road was not in compliance.

Noah also said that no more variances should be considered.

Francis said that a statement of inaccessibility in a deed would spook insurance companies and thereby coerce homebuyers into compliance.

Noah and Francis laid part of the blame for the existing non-approved roads on the Washtenaw County Road Commission.

Both said the granting of such byways was tied to the road comission being elected officials. They did not elaborate.

Clerk Janis Knieper said that the proposed amendments would draw heat from environmentalists and that the township's best recourse was to elim-

Village bid for town hall too late

By Eric Bowen
Staff Writer

Chelsea Village Council made a bid to buy Sylvan Township Hall Nov. 10, but it came a little late. The hall has been sold, according to Township Supervisor Jerry Dresselhouse.

Sylvan Township recently signed a contract with developer Rene Papo to sell the building for $160,000. Dresselhouse said the sale is currently in the closing stages, but Sylvan's board will have to decide if it wants to use the village's bid as a backup.

The sales agreement came after no one made a bid to offer the township its asking price of $190,000. Sylvan Township Board put the building up for sale Sept. 1 accepting sealed bids until Oct. 26.

Dresselhouse said he was surprised by the village's bid, which was $145,000. After no one bid the minimum, he said he assumed no one else wanted the property, and went ahead with Papo's bid.

"I had thought the village was aware of the fact that we had a purchase agreement signed," Dresselhouse said.

Dresselhouse said that the township will continue to occupy the building until mid-spring, when it will move into its new office building near Sylvan Center. The new building is proceeding on schedule, Dresselhouse said. The roof is being put on this week.

Papo said he plans to use the building for office and retail space. He said he has already had interest from a retailer selling fine arts and antiques.

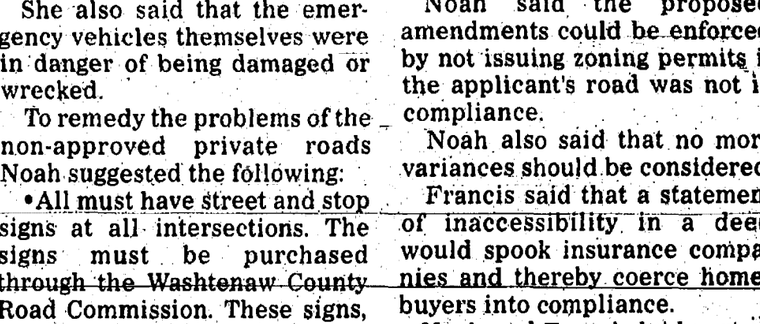

Though the building will require renovations, Papo said he would keep the outside of the building intact. He said unlike many buildings downtown the Township Hall hasn't changed hands much since it was built, so it has remained largely unchanged.

"We're going to fix it up, make it look nice," Papo said. "It hasn't really changed in all these years. The historical nature of the building will stay intact."

In other business Nov. 10, the council voted to allow the Salvation Army to ring bells for Christmas again this year. The organization collects money for needy families.

Pinpoint position

Chelsea Rod & Gun Club donated $200 to the Chelsea Fire Department recently to purchase a global positioning satellite receiver. Firefighters have used the device four times this month to give Med Flight the exact coordinates of their position, speeding up access to emergency services. Before buying the receiver, the fire department could only give directions based on streets. Pictured are Rod & Gun Club president Noal Brown, Fire Chief Dan Ellenwood and Assistant Chief Bill Paul.

Legislator heads back to school as part of freshman class

Back to School

Retired superindendent hits the books as one of 64 freshman legislators

By Eric Bowen
Staff Writer

After 14 years as a school superintendent and 10 years as principal, John Hansen, Democratic winner of the 52nd District race Nov. 3, has done his fair share of educating. But not two weeks from the election, Hansen was the one headed back to school, as he spent three days last week learning the ropes of the freshman representative.

"Basically we sat there and listened. Everybody who came in gave us one of these," Hansen said holding a stack of booklets and pamphlets he stored in a cardboard box.

"It reminds me a little bit of what we used to do in Dexter for our new teachers," Hansen said. "I don't know that you ever understand it all. But it was a start and a good way to meet everybody."

The booklets were labeled "Welcome to the Budget Process," "Guidelines and Policies" and "Fiscal Fundamentals." They ranged in subject matter from health benefits to procedural matters, and even a forewarning of another 15-event training on the "Top 10 Policy Issues Facing America Today."

With his background, Hansen said he wasn't surprised by many of the items, especially the budgeting process, which he went through in detail as superintendent. But he was awed by the amount of information he had to know so quickly.

"Most of the things weren't that shocking," Hansen said. "But I was aware that this is a big, big job and you have responsibilities in many areas."

Aside from getting up to speed on the legislative agenda, Hansen said there were numerous nuts and bolts issues to take care of. He had to clean up his campaign expenses, decide his health insurance and enter a lottery for an office space.

Most pressing was the need for new technology. Hansen, who hadn't owned a home computer before his election, now plans to set up voice mail, e-mail and a fax machine at both his Lansing and home offices. He said he would get a new phone line and replace the answering machine that had recently blown out during a storm.

He also has to work out living arrangements for the three days a week he spends in Lansing. Hansen said he has a friend there he can stay with, but he feels he would overstay his welcome if he were to stay there every week.

Staffing the office will be another challenge, as most of the staffers are leaving. But Hansen did interview Rebekah Warren, who worked for Mary Schroer and made a bid for the Democratic nomination against Hansen for Schroer's open seat.

Once the basic issues of starting a new office are out of the way, Hansen will have to face the impact on his family life. Though much of his time as superintendent was spent on the job, his three days in Lansing will be a change.

But Hansen said that he will likely be able to return home most nights and he hopes his time away from home will be habitual soon.

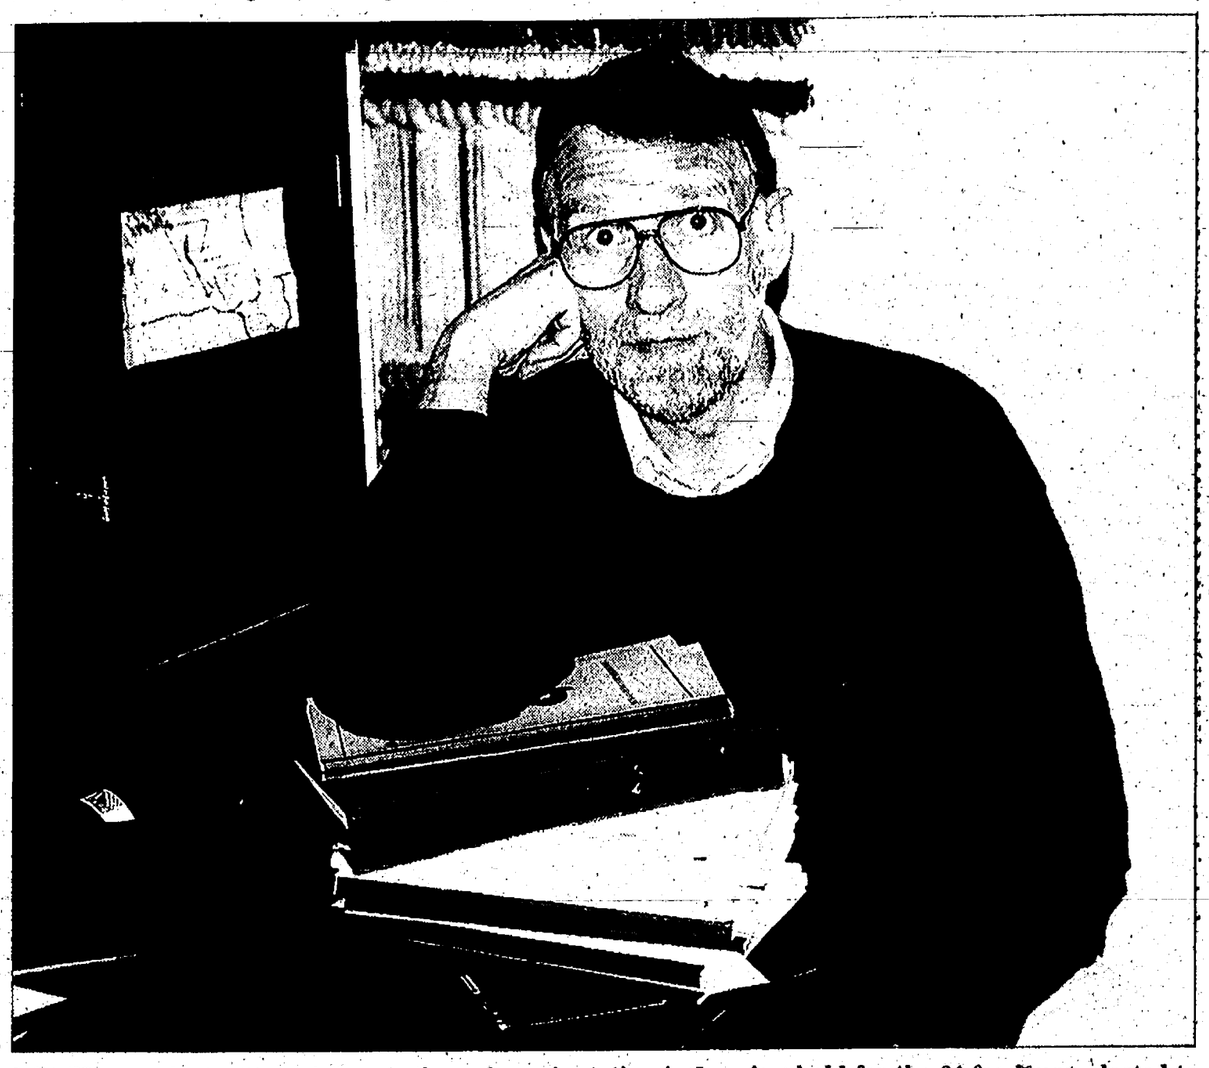

"I hope there's some type of rhythm to it, so people can catch me on the phone," he said. "I just think that there's been 110 people in the legislature and they all lived through it."

Hansen is not alone in the adjustment to his new life as a representative. Because so many representatives were term-limited, the group entering the state House this year is one of the largest freshman classes to enter the House in its history.

Hansen said the short terms of representatives will likely have a hastening effect on the legislature as new people coming in try to work their ideas through the legislature. No longer will bills take years to get through, because all of the representatives will be out of the House by then.

He said it's also possible that representatives will come to rely on the government staff and lobbyists for information, because it will be difficult to become knowledgeable on every issue. Hansen already has had some lobbyists contact him, and he said the power shift may allow those outside the legislature to have greater say in forming policy.

To counter some of the problems, Hansen said he would become involved in issues he is familiar with, such as education, the environment and health care. He said he hopes to be able to advise on a rational education budget for the state.

John Hansen just returned from a three-day orientation in Lansing held for the 64 freshman elected to the state House. Hansen recently won election to the state House in the 52nd District.

Hansen was reminded several times that the reason he is in office is because of term limits. But overall Hansen said he thinks term limits denies legislators experience, and thinks voters have an opportunity to evaluate their representatives every two years.

Whatever the take on term limits, the freshman class will certainly bring new faces to the House. And Hansen said he thinks that in the first year that representatives have faced term limits, he will have many eyes watching his action.

"In the long run," Hansen said, "we're going to be studied to death."

LIBRARY

Some libraries may want to emphasize children's books if the community has a lot of young families, or more adult books if they have a large senior population. Others may focus on textbooks if they are a source for the school district.

The 24,000 square feet would make Chelsea's library bigger than Dexter and Saline's libraries, which serve similar populations.

Dexter library serves about 10,600 people with floor space of 4,400 square feet, according to Dexter District Library Director Paul McCann. Though the amount of space is small, Dexter library makes do by rotating its collection regularly and making the majority of space open to the public.

McCann said the library moved into the building about two years ago after passing a 1-mill tax measure in 1994. Before that Dexter had half the space and a much smaller operating budget.

"If you're asking me as a librarian, eventually we'll meet the space constraints," McCann said of the current building. "At this point we're really happy with our building.

"It's been a great change and doubled our space from the last building. It's a good sized building for us."

Saline library serves a larger population of 15,698 with a 16,450-square-foot building, according to Library Director Leslee Niethammer. She said the Saline Library spent $2.8 million on its library in 1994.

Niethammer said the library worked with a space planner to determine the amount of space the library would need to plan for 10-year growth. She also said the library looked at how much revenue would be generated from different millage rates and chose 1 mill to support the library.

"We made a judgment call," she said. "(We thought) if we kept our millage under 1 (mill), people would vote yes. We worked within those constraints."

McCann said that Dexter had a much different situation from Chelsea when it went looking for a new building. The library had only income from the sale of its former building and some millage money.

The new building and renovations cost about $430,000, McCann said. But while Dexter only worked from its millage budget, Chelsea has the opportunity to pass a bond and a millage at the same time.

"The difference you have with Chelsea is the district library is creating a new district library," McCann said. "For me personally the decisions were already made. My first night on the job was where the board sat down and approved the purchase of the building."

Lansdale said that once the board has made a decision on how to proceed, the library will have to quickly come up with a plan to meet its intended timeframe for a millage election, which they have tentatively set for May.

Included in the plan will be such items and a final size and general building plan, though Lansdale said it was unlikely to have site plans before the election. Also on tap was a measurement of how much the library would cost.

"In the very near future we're going to have to do a building plan and make sure that we've got everything included that we need to," Lansdale said. "I hope to have some cost estimates very soon."

Library services change with new technology

While the Chelsea District Library wrestles with the growing pains of the local area, libraries around the state have attempted to adapt to growth by using new technologies. According to Deputy State Librarian Jeff Johnson, libraries have begun to focus on using the Internet and CD-ROM indexes and full-text listings as alternatives to books.

Johnson said the library's role has shifted toward sifting through the multitude of information and making judgments about what is useful. He said the Internet has a lot of doubtful information, and it's the library's job to find out what is reliable.

Libraries also focus on training people to be able to find the information quickly, he said.

"They used to think that 90 percent of the stuff people needed would be physically in the building," Johnson said. "It's kind of a balance of how much should be remotely provided and how much is there on site."

Johnson said that 80 percent of the libraries in Michigan now have some kind of Internet service, though many are still using slower dial-up connections. The libraries also are served by a central state system that provides access to many commercial databases.

Many of the services can be accessed using the Library of Michigan's Web site www.libofmich.lib.mi.us.

Reducing space for books has been attempted in a variety of ways. At Eastern Michigan University, Johnson said, a robotic arm moves through book stacks to get books, instead of having enough space for people to walk through.

The move toward greater reliance on computer technology has followed the move toward a more decentralized workforce, Johnson said. Many people now work from home and instead of using a large, downtown library, they come to the smaller branches.

"Now the kinds of things that people used to ask for at the downtown library are being asked for at branches," Johnson said. "Fortunately a lot of those things are available on the Internet."

Oil Pipeline

IPL Toledo Pipeline has begun work on a crude-oil pipeline that will pump oil approximately 35 miles from Stockbridge, to Freedom Township. The pipeline route was changed from the original path to fall along a utility corridor through Dexter and Lima townships after the original path drew opposition from area townships.

Storm has little effect on village power

By Eric Bowen
Staff Writer

Heavy winds last week knocked out power for thousands of people throughout Michigan, but Chelsea Village residents came out relatively unscathed, according to Electric Department Superintendent Bob Shepard. Aside from a 15-minute disruption to power at the Common Grill, no one lost power.

"We didn't have a customer out of service," Shepard said. "We dodged the bullet here a little bit."

Some residents in outlying areas weren't as lucky. Consumers Energy reported about 10,000 people in the local area who were without power from the Nov. 4 storms, according to Chris Thalen, spokesman for Consumers Energy.

Thalen said that the hardest hit areas were in western Michigan, some of whom were still without power Friday. Though the energy company tries to prepare for the weather, it couldn't compete with 90-mile-an-hour winds.

"We always try to maintain a state of preparation for storms," Thalen said. "When we first saw the impact of this, we had about 500 total crews working on this, from our own crews, contractors, and out of state crews."

Shepard said that he credits the village's tree-trimming over the summer as a major reason why the village wasn't hit by the high winds. He said the majority of outages occur from trees or other obstacles falling on the power lines.

Shepard also said the village can respond to any problems quickly because they are locally based.

"Normally the poles and wires will take a big blast of wind, but when a tree comes down, they come down," Shepard said.

Because of the village's track record, Shepard said he has gotten some calls from township residents who want to switch over to the Chelsea power. In one instance, the village wanted to put a line across a woman's property, and she said they could do it only if they hooked her up.

Chelsea does have one vulnerable spot, Shepard said. Since the village buys power from Consumers Energy on a wholesale basis, the entire village could go out if the lines from Consumers' substations were to go down. The village faced this problem once, when a transformer from Consumers' substation went out for three hours.

The village has considered putting in limited generators for peak times that could be used in an emergency, Shepard said. The village is also looking into putting in a new substation to route more power to the village grid.

Shepard said, however, that the village has a good relationship with Consumers Energy. The village uses Consumers' expertise in running its energy company.

Despite the possible problems, Shepard said Chelsea has been a reliable source of power for the village. Shepard himself lives outside the village's service area, and was one of the people without power from Consumers Energy.

"I can't give you any spectacular news," Shepard said of the storm. "I have a lot of people wanting to come out to hook up with us. I wish I was on Chelsea power."

approach but did say the proposed amendments would generate enough controversy that a public hearing on the issue would need to be held in a large locale such as the old Chelsea High School.

"We can't sit back and jeopardize public safety, equipment or personnel," Noah said. "We need to raise the level of responsibility in people."

CROSSING

Council members hoped that a new route could be found by improving a parking lot north of the industry's building. The drive is partly gravel and the concrete is uneven. The proposed route would also require fixing tight turns through chain-link gates.

To help with the costs of revamping the north parking lot, the council voted to allocate some of the railroad money to the project. The council plans to forego putting in a traffic light at the corner of Freer and Dexter-Chelsea roads, which was proposed by the railroad and MDOT.

One possible problem with the plan is that MDOT may not allow improving private property with public money. But the council hopes to use the money anyway, working with MDOT to find a solution.

Aside from the truck issue, most of the residents and council members were in agreement that the crossing should be closed. The railroad and federal transportation agencies intend to close as many as 25 percent of the railroad crossings to prepare for high-speed trains through this area.

With the prospect of having trains traveling over 100 miles per hour through the village, the council members thought it would be safer to close the crossing. MDOT helped make it possible by providing the financial incentives.

The council was pressured to make a decision because ConRail asked to close East Street this month. Originally, the crossing was to be closed in the spring, when ConRail plans to improve the McKinley crossing to handle truck traffic.

But ConRail asked the village to close East Street now, because the railroad company's crews were in town this week. The company said it would save money not to have to re-do the East Street crossing, only to have it torn up when the village closed East Street in the spring. ConRail offered to pass along the savings to the village.

The promise of more money convinced all council members except Village President Richard Steele, who voted against the early closure.

The council's decision satisfied Ortbring, who said the village was able to look forward and make a fair decision for all involved. She said she has two small children who routinely cross the railroad tracks and she wanted to ensure the safety of her children.

"I can understand the pressures of having a lot of money at stake," Ortbring said. "I appreciate the fact that despite the pressure, the council listened to us and made a compromise so that everybody wins."

One person who is not happy with the East Street closure is Chelsea Industries President Jim Gale. He sees the vote as further evidence that the village doesn't want the industry in the downtown area.

With two years left on the company's lease, Gale said Chelsea Industries is looking for a place to move its operations. He said the company is looking for space near Manchester to build a new building more suitable for the company's needs.

"As far as I'm concerned it's just one more nail in the coffin that convinces us we need to get out of Chelsea," Gale said of the council's decision. "We have a couple years remaining on our lease. It's almost like it doesn't matter at this point."

Chelsea Industries will likely be replaced with office or retail space, according to Jim Gartin, president of McKinley Commercial, which manages the Chelsea Industries building. Gartin attended the council meeting last week and told the council that the truck problem will be gone when Chelsea Industries moves out.

"They will not be there in two years," Gartin said. "It will be changed substantially and our intention is to move stuff out. What we're dealing with is a temporary situation."

In another motion, the council nominated Janice Ortbring to be an at-large member of the Chelsea District Library Board. The board itself will decide who among the nominations will get the post. Chelsea has two members on the library board who represent the village, but will lose one member as part of a revised district library agreement signed last year.

The council also voted to allow Chelsea Community Hospital Auxiliary to get a lottery license. The council's OK was needed before application could be made to the state for the fund-raiser.

Developers address Dexter Twp. concerns

By Michael Rybka
Staff Writer

Developers Billy and Fady Salamey, who are proposing a gas station, car wash and convenience store on the southwest corner of North Territorial and Dexter-Pinckney roads, said they weren't prepared for the public's response at the Nov. 4 Dexter Township Planning Commission meeting.

The Salameys said they had called Zoning Inspector Harley Rider beforehand and requested that the issue be tabled until modifications were made to a preliminary site plan.

With that understanding, the Salameys said that they considered not attending the meeting but were persuaded by Rider that it would be a good way to judge the mood of the residents.

However, the Salameys said they did not expect a tabled issue to be given such an extended public forum.

Because of this, the Salameys said they came without a preliminary presentation and were unprepared for a formal response to the backlash.

The Salameys said that they left the meeting noting about four legitimate concerns to add to the ones they had already anticipated. A week after the meeting the Salameys said that they now feel confident that all of the residents' concerns have been addressed.

Concerns over water

Residents said that a car wash could lower the water table. They were also worried about contaminated run-off.

The Salameys said that the water table would not be affected because a well will not be needed.

According to the Salameys, the car wash will use four 1000-gallon tanks. Three will recycle water while the fourth will be used for refuse. Water will come from an outside source and be replaced approximately – every three months. The effect will be to use less water daily than an average household.

An isolated retention pond will contain wastewater, the Salameys said, and the nearest wetland will be approximately 350 feet from any standing water.

Light Pollution

Residents said that light from the business would be detrimental to astronomers at the University of Michigan (Peach Mountain) Observatory.

The Salameys said that the zoning ordinance requires all lighting to be low-level, low density, isolated within five-feet of the station perimeter, and focused downward. A skirted canopy is also planned.

The business would be located 183 feet from roadways and driveways will be designed so that headlights will be directed to vacant or undeveloped properties.

Hours of Operation

Rumors had circulated that the Salameys were requesting 24-hour operation.

The Salameys deny this was ever a consideration. C-2 zoning does not limit hours of operation but the Salameys said they will follow the zoning of a C-1 site which limits hours from 6 a.m.-10 p.m. from Memorial Day through Labor Day.

Traffic Congestion

Standard safety issues were expressed by residents.

The Salameys said that they will construct, at their own expense, a center turn lane and a right deceleration lane on both North Territorial and Dexter-Pinckney roads under supervision of the Washtenaw County Road Commission.

According to the Salameys, 17,000 vehicles go by the site daily during the summertime. They said with only 70 of the potential 17,000 people the business would affect showing disapproval, that left a considerable number of potential advocates.

The 12-acre site has been for sale as a C-2 zoning parcel since 1973, Billy Salamey said. He believes it has remained dormant this long because the two brothers who own the property demanded a cash transaction.

"The nearest store in the area is 12 minutes away," said Salamey. "It would satisfy a real need in the community — a community we want to be a part of."

IS MY DOG SENILE?
By Jeff LaHuis, D.V.M.

As animals age, they can go through many of the same health problems that face older Americans. Problems such as kidney disease, heart conditions, and arthritis are not unheard of in the older pet. Recently a new clinical condition has been recognized in aging canines: cognitive dysfunction syndrome, better known as senility. Signs typical of this disorder include multiple behavioral and cognitive changes. Changes such as a loss of housebreaking, abnormal vocalizations, and changes in sleeping patterns. Diagnosis of cognitive dysfunction hinges on eliminating the other possible causes of these signs. (Other possible causes include: kidney or liver disease, encephalitis, or tumors. There has not been a treatment available for cognitive dysfunction syndrome, until now. Recently studies have shown that a drug used for the control of Cushing's disease can also alleviate the signs of canine cognitive dysfunction syndrome. If you have any questions about aging in pets or any other questions, feel free to call us.

We will be happy to answer any inquiries. Westarbor Animal Hospital (734) 769-5391.

Genealogical Society to hold meeting Nov. 22

The Genealogical Society of Washtenaw County will meet at 1:30 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 22, in Lecture Hall #2 of the Liberal Arts and Science Building at Washtenaw Community College, 4800 E. Huron River Drive, Ann Arbor.

Jan Zaleski, past president of the Polish Genealogical Society in Detroit, will present two topics. He will speak on "Eastern European Research" and will follow with "Accessing Records on People Who Entered the U.S. from Canada 1895-1954."

Anyone interested in family history, or this topic, is welcome to attend.

Do the math before refinancing

LORI Z. BAHNMÜLLER

YOUR MONEY MATTERS

Peer pressure nearly prompted my husband and me to refinance our mortgage — again. "Everyone's doing it. We're thinking of doing it a third time," a family friend proudly informed us. "Why aren't you?"

As long-term interest rates remain comfortably low, homeowners are lining up twice and three times to refinance their mortgage. In the first three months of this year, 53 percent of the mortgages written were refinancings, an all-time high, according to the Mortgage Bankers Association. The association expects that number to average 43 percent this year. That translates into 4 million to 5 million in refinancings.

And while many of those standing in line to refinance prove to profit from the move, still millions more should have never taken a number in the first place. Consider the following from the Marc Eisenson, author of "Invest in Yourself, Six Secrets to a Rich Life."

Invest the time to think through how long you're likely to live in your house, or your refinancing could cost you more than sticking with your current loan.

The right time to refinance is when easy calculations show that you'll save money — forget about the spread in rates. The longer you intend to be in your current home, the less rates need to drop for you to save money. Sometimes, less than a one percent drop will save you money.

To do the math, calculate the total cost of your current loan — between now and when you plan to move — not for the remaining term of your loan. Then do the math for the same term, but at the lower rate you could get now. Add closing costs to the amount you'll be borrowing.

To really save money, invest at least as much money in your new loan as you do in your current home loan.

While refinancing reduces your monthly payment, it also typically stretches out the term of your loan, which can dramatically increase your total cost. That's because the heaviest interest charges are at the start of the loan, and beginning a new loan means making those high interest payments all over again. And if you take the full time to pay off the new loan, refinancing could easily cost you more than remaining with your current loan.

Investing in your mortgage always makes sense.

Whether or not you refinance your current mortgage, it's true you'll save thousands (perhaps tens of thousands) by paying as much over the required amount as you can, whenever you can. If you or your spouse receives a significant holiday bonus, you might consider earmarking it for an additional mortgage payment rather than overspending on gifts.

But that doesn't mean to discount refinancing. At least run the numbers. If your number crunching indicates that refinancing will save you money, pursue it. Then prepay by sending in at least as much as you had been paying before you refinanced. By combining refinancing with pre-paying, you can quadruple your savings from refinancing alone.

Invest in some serious soul searching before borrowing a bigger amount for home improvements or family vacations, which could wipe out the home equity you've accrued over the years.

Remember, your house is on the line. Home improvements can be good investments, but many can be done slowly, with your own sweat equity, rather than by eating into the equity you've worked so hard to attain. And while a fabulous family vacation sounds appealing, the great memories will quickly fade if times get tough and you're drowning in debt.

Do the math before agreeing to fold up-front closing costs into your refinanced loan.

Invest the time to think through what's really in your best interest. You can't count on the lender to do that.

And remember, anytime a lender suggest that you fold in costs on an already big loan, you're likely to lose in two ways. First you probably won't comparison shop or negotiate fees as hard if you're not paying them up-front, out of your pocked. So you may pay more than is necessary in closing costs. Then you could get stuck paying interest on these high-priced fees for a long time, maybe as long as the 30-year life of the mortgage.

Marc Eisenson's new book, Invest in Yourself: Six Secretes to a Rich Life (Wiley, 1988), which he wrote with Gerri Detweiler and Nancy Castleman, analyzes how we can spend our time, energy, and money for the greatest payoffs in life.

Pastor finds heaven in 1968 Camaro

By Gary Gosselin
Heritage Newspapers

Stop by the Dix United Methodist Church Downriver some Sunday and you're likely to see a hot 1968 Chevy Camaro SS Supersport convertible – in the pastor's space.

The butternut-colored Camaro is not your typical pastor's car, but then again, the Rev. Jim James, 56, is not what you would categorize as your typical pastor.

James would be hard pressed to find his collar, and said usually he tools around in a comfortable shirt, jeans and tennis shoes.

"God calls all kinds of people — the suits are OK, but you just can't get with the people if you're stuck in a suit," James said. "People just love it."

He's been a pastor for 18 years (three in Lincoln Park), but only after serving 20 years and six months in the Army. Among other jobs, he worked as a helicopter inspector and aircraft technician.

He retired in 1980 as a master sergeant, and almost immediately became a Methodist pastor.

"I've always felt a strong calling in my life to be a minister, and when I retired, I decided to follow that calling," James said. "And, no, I'm not typical, I'm the only pastor in the ministry with a purple heart."

James said he's built and rebuilt a number of cars through the years, and found this one in a barn about six years ago.

Beams had fallen on both the front and rear bumpers, and although the 350 V-8 engine was in good shape, the body wasn't so fortunate.

He ended up replacing both sets of fenders, put new metal on the doors, and just replaced both rear quarter panels this year.

James had the engine bored out and balanced, added Camelback 202 racing heads and added an Edlebrock performance cam, all of which brought his horsepower up to about 430.

To match the more powerful engine, James added a 373 Auburn posi-traction rear end and Buick 700 R automatic transaxle. He had Mickey Thompson slicks on the car, but the soft rubber would get on the car's body making for a difficult cleanup before shows. He's got white oval radials on it now.

"It'll move if you get on it, but I'm really careful in Lincoln Park," James said. "You have to pick your moment and you have to be safe above all else."

James' oldest son, Jeff, had helped him rebuild the car, and pushed him to get it done. Jeff died three years ago, so the car has a special significance in the James household.

"This car will be with us forever," James said. He added that he even took Jeff's ashes with him to a show in Gibraltar last month.

Owning and working on a classic muscle car is therapeutic, James said, because as a pastor there are not just joyous events, but a fair share of hard times as well.

Tinkering on the car helps James work through some emotions that all people get, even atypical pastors.

'Rush Hour' gives hilarious ride

By Jennifer Daniels
Heritage Newspapers

"Rush Hour," the movie starring martial arts expert Jackie Chan and comedian Chris Tucker, is an action-packed, hilarious ride.

Although the laughs abound, swearing and excessive violence do not.

For an action comedy, the movie was surprisingly mild. The language got a little rocky at times, but the characters used mostly mild expletives. And the action, while violent, avoided the gore that is common in many movies.

The plot of "Rush Hour" revolves around the kidnapping of the Chinese consul's 11-year-old daughter.

The FBI is called in on the case, but the girl's distraught father believes he needs to do more. The consul brings in one of his own men, Detective Insp. Lee (Chan), from the Royal Hong Kong Police.

The FBI agents, however, do not appreciate the foreign interference. They assign Los Angeles Police Department Detective James Carter (Tucker) to the case, counting on him to keep Lee out of the picture.

As an added twist, the criminal who kidnapped the little girl is the same man who killed Lee's former partner.

Lee and Carter quickly become embroiled in the case, turning up in the middle of the action over and over.

The physical action of the movie is very enjoyable. Chan gets a chance to show some of his legendary moves in the action scenes, sometimes joined in the action by Tucker. There also is a dancing scene, where Carter tries to show Lee some of his moves, which was one of the funniest parts of the movie.

The surprise of "Rush Hour" was the interaction between Chan and Tucker. Although they start of in conflict, they quickly develop a true partnership.

There's something almost sweet about the way Chan and Tucker's characters interact, sharing their cultures and backgrounds. They argue through the entire movie, giving Tucker a chance to exercise his energetic mouth, but their bickering is harmless, and they seem to form a real bond.

The end of the movie leaves one with the feeling that we might be on the verge of a string of sequels — which would be just fine. New Line Cinema, PG-13.

Supporters reflect on defeat of Proposal 1

From the Michigan Farm Bureau

Just a few years ago Mike Fusilier was finishing 3,000 hogs a year. Today, the Washtenaw County farmer's operation has been reduced to primarily a greenhouse operation. Urban spawl has forced farmers like Fusilier to either abandon their farming operations or dramatically change. It's not a new problem in Michigan, but one still imploring a solution.

Washtenaw County, neighbor to highly developed Wayne and Oakland counties, was the first to tackle the issue with a plan to control growth and curb farmland loss. But voters didn't buy in, rejecting Proposal 1 and its 0.4-mill property tax, which was to be levied each year over a 10-year period to help protect farmland and open space.

"I think this is a real setback for agriculture in Washtenaw County," Fusilier said in reaction to the proposal's 52,260 to 38,643 defeat. "I'm disappointed with the results. You're going to see farming decline in this county until it's extinct. Farmers can't buy farmland and cash flow it, so young farmers are having a very difficult time purchasing any ground. This (defeat) is going to make it much more difficult."

The Washtenaw Purchase of Development Rights (PDR) proposal would have generated an estimated $3.5 million annually, of which 50 percent was earmarked for voluntary purchase of development rights from farmers, who, in return, give up the right to ever develop their property.

Two groups united to campaign for the proposal, "Save Our Land, Save Our Future," funded by a mix of individual citizens and environmental interest groups, and "Farmers for Farmland Preservation," supported largely by 10 county Farm Bureaus across the state.

Earl Horning, chair of Farmers for Farmland Preservation, says even though the campaign included much literature and exposure on the issue, voters needed more education about farmland preservation and what the proposal would do for Washtenaw County. "Many of them didn't understand — it was just no, no, no. I don't have an answer for what happened at the polls, other than it was big money that stopped the issue."

Over the last 15 years, Washtenaw County has lost 60,000 acres of farmland to development. Many farmers see the defeat of the proposal as a green light for that trend to continue. "Its economic impact will be astounding as farmers continue to move out rather than face increased traffic and nuisance complaints about sound agricultural practices," Horning said.

The proposal was met with strong opposition from Washtenaw Citizens for Responsible Growth, a group comprised and funded by homebuilders, contractors and realtors.

After hearing the election results, Washtenaw County Farm Bureau President Laverne Leach says he's trying to figure out what went wrong and what could have been done differently to get the proposal passed. "According to some early phone grids, it was indicating about 70 percent in favor," he said. "I was surprised to hear it went down in pretty much all the townships, only carrying Ann Arbor."

While the results were not what the Farm Bureau wanted, Leach says they're not giving up. "I think we need to look at other options. We need to meet with the committee that opposed it and find out what better way there is," he said. "This proposal has worked in Maryland and Pennsylvania and some of the other states, but evidently the people here weren't for it. I'm interested to see what other solutions are out there."

Leach hopes Washtenaw's election results won't discourage other counties from trying to preserve farmland in a similar manner. "Hopefully we'll see some results in this state as a result of the increased awareness brought forth by this proposal," he said. "It is my sincere hope that the issue of farmland preservation will remain in the spotlight long enough to develop alternative solutions to curbing urban sprawl — before it's too late."

Walking pneumonia usually not severe

JOHN C. WOLF, D.O.
ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF FAMILY MEDICINE OHIO UNIVERSITY COLLEGE OF OSTEOPATHIC MEDICINE

FAMILY MEDICINE

Question: I have had a cough and have felt sick for the last few days, but not sick enough to stay home from work. After I had an X-ray, my doctor told me that I have walking pneumonia. I know that people die from pneumonia. I'm worried. Should I be concerned about dying from this?

Answer: Pneumonia is a term that describes a disorder of the lungs. It is usually the result of a bacterial or viral infection and can sometimes be caused by a fungal infection. It's also possible to have pneumonia as a result of a chemical irritation to the lungs.

There are about 3 million reported cases of pneumonia each year. The majority of these are in young children or people 60 and over, but individuals of all ages do get pneumonia. Regardless of the cause, pneumonia is a significant and often serious illness. Cough, shortness of breath, chest discomfort and general fatigue are typical symptoms.

Walking pneumonia is a slang term, not a medical one, which describes an illness that is generally mild. The infected person is still "walking" about. Your ability to continue to work while sick with pneumonia is characteristic of "walking pneumonia." While the term does not describe the cause of the lung infection, this type of pneumonia is often due to a virus rather than bacteria.

I think you should go ahead and make your car payment this month, because you are not going to die from your "walking pneumonia." Certainly pneumonia can be a fatal illness, but this typically occurs in those who have significant additional health problems such as AIDS, chronic lung disease or cancer. There are also a few very aggressive strains of bacteria and viruses that can rapidly kill a previously healthy person. Fortunately, these illnesses are rare, and they certainly make you sufficiently sick that the condition would never be called "walking pneumonia."

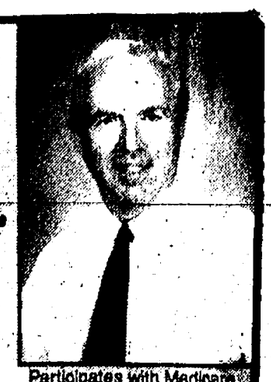

Despite the milder nature of "walking pneumonia," it often takes six weeks to totally recover, even when antibiotics are prescribed. By total recovery, I mean a return to your normal level of energy and physical endurance.

Walking pneumonia can be a complication of flu, so one of the important things you can do for your health as well as for the health of those around you is to get a flu shot this year. Now is the time to do this, since the immunity it provides only last about six months. A flu shot gives protection against the most severe forms of influenza that are expected to be common this winter. Unfortunately, it will not protect you from all forms of influenza or from other causes of respiratory tract infections.

Another shot you should consider is pneumonia immunization. This shot doesn't protect you from all pneumonia, but it does protect against the most severe forms caused by the pneumococcal bacteria. Ask your doctor about pneumonia shots if you have a chronic heart or lung problem or are 65 or older, since individuals in these groups are at the greatest risk of contracting this potentially deadly form of pneumonia.

Brush up on winter driving skills

The first snow of the season will test winter driving skills, says AAA Michigan. To help motorists prepare, the Auto Club offers the following winter driving tips:

• Improve visibility by clearing snow and ice from the entire car.

• Drive with headlights on low-beam for better road illumination.

• Slow down. Posted speed limits are set for ideal road and weather conditions.

• Avoid sudden starts, stops and turns. Accelerate carefully.

• Don't brake hard. The best technique for braking on ice or snow is "threshold" or "squeeze" braking. This is done by applying the brakes firmly to a point just short of lock-up, and then easing off the brake pedal slightly. Applying steady pressure is better than pumping the brakes.

If your vehicle has anti-lock brakes, continuous, firm pressure is recommended. Check your owner's manual for procedures.

• In a skid, ease off the accelerator and don't lock up the brakes. Carefully steer in the direction you want to go and straighten the wheel as soon as the car begins to go in the desired direction.

• Anticipate potential danger such as ice on bridges, snow-covered lane markings, stalled cars and poor visibility. Adjust speed, increase stopping distance between other cars and change lanes to avoid trouble.

Consider house plants as gifts

M.S.U. EXTENSION SERVICE

GARDEN CORNER

Home-grown gifts for friends and family may be as close as your houseplant collection.

The friend or relative who never fails to "ooh" and "ah" over your plants may not be consciously dropping a hint, but chances are that he will appreciate a plant you've propagated from one long admired.

The easiest and quickest plants to propagate are those grown from cuttings or plantlets, says Mary McLellan, Master Gardener program coordinator at Michigan State University. These include wandering jew (Tradescantia and Zebrina), Swedish ivy (Plectranthus), strawberry begonia (Saxifraga sarmentosa), coleus, piggyback plant (Tolmiea menziesii), Aftrican violet (Saintpaulia), snake plant (Sansevieria) and spider plant (Chlorphytum).

Dividing plants or separating plantlets from parents gives new plants almost instantly, she observes. Strawberry begonias and spider plants produce plantlets on stems that merely need to be severed from the parent plant and potted up. (They can also be rooted while they're still attached and then separated.) African violets, many ferns, bromeliads, episcia (flame violets), prayer plant and sansevieria are among those propagated by division. They can be divided either because they produce multiple crowns from the same root system or because they send up offshoots, or "pups," from their roots. Dividing them gives you new plants.

African violets can also be propagated by leaf cuttings, McLellan notes. And Swedish ivy and most vinelike houseplants can be multiplied from stem-tip cuttings.

To divide a plant, simply remove it from its pot and cut through the soil and roots to sever the new crown or offshoot from the parent plant. Cutting them apart is recommended because it causes less injury than pulling them apart and is more likely to provide both plants with adequate roots, McLellan explains. Pot the divisions in appropriately sized pots, water thoroughly and give them a few days in a location with subdued light while they adjust and develop some new roots. Then you can return them to their usual environment and care.

Rooting plantlets that grow on long trailing stems, such as strawberry begonia, is easy, too. In fact, plantlets often root themselves if they come in contact with soil in their own or some other pot. Secure them to moist potting soil or some other rooting medium while they are still attached to the parent plant or snip them off first — either way usually gives good results, McLellan notes.

The piggyback plant grows new plants on top of old leaves. To root them, fasten the parent leaf to the rooting medium with pins, water and cover with plastic. As the new plant develops, the old leaf will wither away.

Plants that can be propagated from leaves include African violets, rex begonia and snake plant. In each case, the method is slightly different.

For African violets, start with a healthy young leaf with about 1 inch of leaf stem attached. Insert the stem (the stem only, not the leaf blade) in a sterile rooting medium, water and cover with plastic. Pot when roots are numerous.

To propagate rex begonia, remove a leaf and make a crosswise cut on each of the major veins on the underside. Then place the leaf on the surface of the moist rooting medium, using hairpins or toothpicks to hold it against the medium. Then cover with plastic. New plants will form in one to three months at the slit veins.

Snake plant is propagated from leaf segments. Remove a leaf from the parent plant and cut it crosswise into a number of segments. Insert each segment into moist vermiculite or some other rooting medium. Be sure to keep the leaf portions right side up, McLellan cautions. The cut edge that was closer to the base of the plant should be inserted into the medium. Leaves inserted upside-down won't root, she explains. Pot cuttings when new shoots are several inches tall.

To propagate Ivylike plants, take a 1- to 4-inch cutting from the growing tip of a stem. Remove the shoot just below a leaf and remove the leaves on the lower end of the stem, keeping at least two at the tip. Insert the cut end of the stem in a moist rooting medium, cover with plastic to keep the air around the cutting humid, and set the cutting in a warm spot with subdued light until cuttings are well rooted. This may take as little as a week with plants such as wandering jew, coleus and Swedish ivy. Then pot in a standard houseplant potting mix and care for as usual.

"Even with easy-to-propagate plants, it's a good idea to start more than one, in case that one fails to grow," McLellan suggests.

Once you've successfully propagated your home-grown gifts, be sure to give the recipients care instructions along with their plants, she suggests. Describing the conditions under which the plants have been growing at your house improves the recipients' chances of similar success with the new plants.

Farm facts

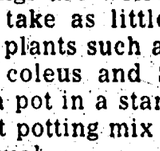

More than half of the total market for deli-processed beef products in foodservice is made up of hot dogs. Beef hot dogs represent 54 percent of the total volume at 270 million pounds. Second is deli roast beef at 95 million pounds, then corned beef at 45 million pounds. All other products, such as beef bologna, pastrami and summer sausage, total $58 million pounds.

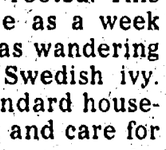

A diet rich in leafy green and yellow-orange vegetables and fruits, whole grains, raisins and nuts supplies plenty of antioxidants — substances that prevent and reduce oxidation in the body's cells. Oxidation in cells appears to play a role in aging and chronic diseases. Two enzymes were examined. One, a copper-containing enzyme called superoxide dismutase, dropped by two-thirds when plant-rich diets were followed. A selenium-containing enzyme, glutathione peroxidase, dropped by one-third.

In 1997, the Department of Labor certified that U.S. workers were unavailable to fill 23,352 farm jobs, opening them to temporary foreign guestworkers. The number is up from 17,557 in 1996 and 12,173 in 1994. Increased enforcement of immigration laws has led many farm employers to fear loss of much of the current labor supply in agricultures. Estimates of the share of fraudulently documented workers in the domestic hired farm labor force range from 25 to 75 percent.

CRIMINAL EFFECT

Victims of crime who are weighing the possibility of filing civil suits against those who caused them injury should know that filing a civil suit is independent of the status of any criminal proceeding. The victim can file a civil suit while a criminal proceeding is under way. He or she can also sue if no criminal charges are filed or if the defendant is not convicted. If the criminal case does end in a conviction, evidence of the defendant's guilt can be used in the civil case. A plea of guilty can also be admitted in a civil case. And, even if the defendant is not found guilty in a criminal case, this does not prevent the victim from filing a civil case.

In addition, one need not bring suit against the defendant in the criminal case, but can choose to name another party, if you believe they are responsible by virtue of neglecting to take reasonable steps to protect clients, patrons, or tenants from harm. To discuss your options, call the LAW OFFICES OF KITCHEN & STRINGER, J.D. at 426-4695 to schedule a consultation, free of charge. You'll find our offices located at 3249 Broad Street in Dexter. We charge no fees unless we win for you...and you collect.

HINT: Even though O.J. Simpson was found not guilty in a criminal court, the Browns and the Goldmans were still able to prove their civil case against him by a preponderance of the evidence.

Problem Solving at Bates

Students at Bates Elementary School work on problem-solving skills, a goal set for North Central Accreditation, during lunch. Pictured are students Aaron Geer, Montana Feazel, Zach Reed, Josh Bennett and Chris Bryant with teacher Candy Burns. Teachers Phyllis Wilkerson, Marie Kemner and social worker Betty Kottak also lead the activity.

Handmade gifts will be theme at Waterloo Farm

Waterloo Farm Museum takes a look at what rural 1800's Michigan farm families did to prepare for Christmas when it explores "The Gifts of Christmas Past: A Handmade Tradition."

The farm will welcome visitors Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 5-6, from 1 to 5 p.m. each day.

Presents, some finished, some in process, will be displayed in each of the rooms on the first floor open for the occasion. In the kitchen and the pantry, baked goods and sauerkraut for Christmas treats will be readied. The dining room and sitting room will show evidence of decorations in the making and small gifts being made by carving, spinning, weaving, and other hand arts, along with baked goods and Christmas specialties from the German heritage of the area.

Decorations for the tree cut from paper, strung popcorn and cranberries and other delights will speak of a time when heart and hand, skilled and unskilled work, created the treats and surprises of Christmas.

Natural decorations of dried herbs and flowers, nuts, fruits, cedar and pine cones will set the scene in the downstairs rooms of the house, where costumed guides will detail the activities which would have been taking place in each room for an 1800's Christmas.

Christmas music will be played during the afternoon on the parlor melodeon. Long-ago days on a Michigan wilderness farm will be brought to life once again.

Visitors will be welcomed with hot spiced cider and cookies in the Hannewald Barn, where there are items from the gift shop to fill stockings and recall old time amusements. Books, toys, handmade soaps, candles and other gifts will be offered for sale.

Special items in the gift array this year include a history of the local area, "The Settling of Waterloo," written 20 years ago by Donald L. Katz. This 517-page, out-of-print book has been recently reprinted by the Historical Society, which is offering it for sale.

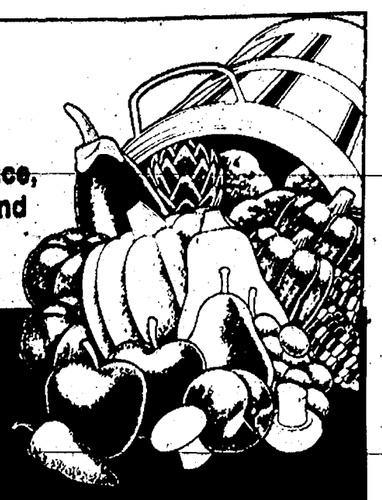

Local authors Deanna and Allan Mallan's history based story featuring fictional characters, "The Friendly Spinning Wheel," will be available. The setting for their book is the Waterloo Farm of the 1800's.

Admission to this special Christmas event is $1 for adults. Students and young children are free.

The farm is located three miles north of the Village of Waterloo which can be reached from I-94 via Clear Lake Road to left on Waterloo Road. For further information call (734) 426-4980 or (734) 769-2219.

Lutz presents new Indian motorcycle

By Dave Chapman
Auto Writer

DEARBORN — It was the introduction that wasn't.

Recently, at the Ritz-Carlton hotel, representatives from Eller Industries Inc. were joined by retired Chrysler Vice Chairman Bob Lutz to introduce their soon-to-be, all-new motorcycle from Indian Motorcycle.

Alas, the actual introduction never took place, won't take place for some time and may never happen.

Lutz and company were to unveil an actual working prototype of the American icon, but were relegated to showing an early artist's rendering.

They spent most of the press conference backpedaling on their grand scheme to resurrect the Indian Motorcycle nameplate and explaining some legal woes.

The introduction was torpedoed late last week when parties battling Eller for trademark rights to Indian Motorcycle filed a lawsuit to block Eller's introduction of the prototype.

Eller and the Cow Creek Band of the Umpqua Tribe in Mrytle Creek, Ore., have been working together for the past few years to revive the Indian Motorcycle company.

Besides being involved in the auto industry, Lutz is an avid motorcycle fan and rider, and early in his career worked in the BMW motorcycle program.

He joined Eller as a consultant in September and has deferred his salary until the company is up and running.

Lutz also has put Eller in touch with a Colorado law firm Chrysler has used to help Eller in his court battle over the trademark.

The no-show prototype was designed by renowned Michigan designer James Parker, who has won numerous awards for his work.

Parker also holds more than a dozen patents in motorcycle technology.

If they are built, the prototype Indian motorcycles will feature a fuel-injection, 90-cubic-inch (1,480 cc), air-cooled, 50-degree, four-stroke, V-twin engine. The all-new engine was designed with the aid of Livonia-based Roush Industries.

Indian Motorcycle began manufacture in 1901 of the first motorcycle to be massed produced in America. The bikes are well known for their skirted front and rear fenders.

In 1953 the motorcycles stopped rolling off the assembly line. Many people have tried to restart the company in the past 45 years, but no one has come as close as Eller seems to have.

If Eller wins the lawsuit, the all-new motorcycle is scheduled to be built by the Umpqua Indians at a state-of-the-art facility in Oregon.

Technology Upgrade

Jeff Judd of Romulus and Dan Sulfaro of Monroe City laid new fiber optic cables for Ameritech Monday. The project is part of a general upgrade of technology throughout the area.

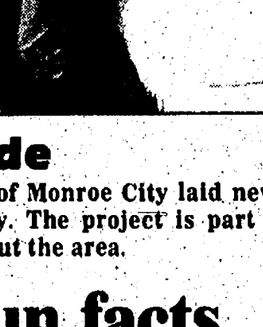

Farm Bureau fun facts

A bacterium patented by the Agricultural Research Service to reduce Fusarium dry rot in stored potatoes has proven 50 percent more effective than a synthetic chemical now used to control rot in commercial storage bins. Tests were done on the bacteria on potatoes stored in bins for four to eight months at four North Dakota and Idaho sites. Dry rot fungi plague the potato industry worldwide, causing a dark tissue discoloration on the potato that eventually forms a dry, crumbly rot. Annual losses in stored potatoes in the Untied States are estimated at more than $100 million.

Ecuador may have more types of peanuts than any other country in the world. The country's peanut diversity offers rich sources of genes that breeders worldwide can use to improve commercial varieties. The country is rich in native varieties known to scientists as landraces. Some of the useful traits that may be found in these landraces include resistance to pests, diseases, and environmental stresses. Several landraces were previously unknown to science.

African-American teenage girls tend to be taller and heavier and to mature faster than their peers in other ethnic groups. A newly published study of 136 healthy, 8- to 17-year-old girls suggests one possible reason for this — higher blood levels of leptin, a hormone that helps cue "fullness." Leptin is a biochemical cue for curbing appetite and burning calories. Research has suggested that higher leptin levels may speed sexual maturity and make the body better at conserving energy. Higher energy efficiency could help explain why African-American girls grow faster than peers in other ethnic groups.

Wylie Spelling Bee

Ryan Donahue was named the overall champion of Wylie Middle School's Spelling Bee last week, while fifth-graders Joshua Gardner and Chris Dombkowski and sixth-graders Danny Farra, Molly Bahm and Karen Tachian will participate in the district spelling bee later this month. They are pictured with fellow schoolmates and winners: Bryce Skeean, Candice Marrin, Whitey Holmes, Seth Porinsky, Eva Nell, Steve North, Emily Kain, Leigh Rudner, Jared Meyers, Bryan Vessels, Heidi Clements, Jonathan Carrender and Nika George. Missing from the photograph are winners Gardner and Abbie Stauffer. District competition is slated Nov. 21 in Saline.

Senior population expected to grow

Aging of the region's population will play a major role in growth of the Southeast Michigan region, according to figures recently adopted by the general assembly of SEMCOG, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

According to the forecast, the region will add 721,000 people between 1995 and 2025, for a total population of 5.4 million. Households will increase by 427,000 by 2025, growing at a faster rate than population as a result of continued decreases in average household size.

The biggest changes over the forecast period, however, relate to aging of the population, especially the baby boom generation — people born between 1946 and 1964. By 2025, that group will be between 60 and 79 years old. Aging of the baby boomers, plus increases in longevity, will result in an increased elderly population and contribute to smaller households.

Aging of the population also accounts for the lack of job growth forecast for the period after 2010. Although the region is currently adding jobs at a rapid pace and the forecast predicts a full employment economy through 2025, job growth will halt after 2010.

The reason for the halt in job growth is because the number of prime working-age adults (ages 18 to 54) will drop by 166,000 between 2010 and 2025.

"As a result, there will need to be major increases in labor force participation of older workers just to maintain a workforce at 2010 levels — about 2.9 million," notes Jim Rogers, manager of SEMCOG's Data Center.

Regional Forecast totals (RFTs) provide numbers of population, households and jobs for the Southeast Michigan region at five-year intervals to the year 2025. Approved RFTs are the first step in producing a detailed small area 2025 Regional Development Forecast, also at five-year intervals. Producing a forecast for each of the region's 233 local communities provides SEMCOG's member local governments with an essential component of their comprehensive planning. These numbers will also be used to update future travel needs in SEMCOG's Regional Transportation Plan and satisfy planning requirements of the federal Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century.

A printed version of this forecast "The Past and Future Growth of Southeast Michigan: Population, Households, Jobs and Land Use, 1965 to 2025," presents the 2025 Regional Forecast Totals, placing the numbers in the historic context of growth and change in Southeast Michigan since 1964.

SEMCOG is a regional planning partnership of governmental units serving 4.8 million people in the seven-county region of Southeast Michigan.

Manchester set to host Christmas event Nov. 21

Village of Manchester is holding "Christmas in the Village" this Saturday, Nov. 21.

Local churches will have craft shows and bake sales.

Santa will make an appearance at 10 a.m. in the Santa Parade. It starts at the Emanuel Church on Main Street and ends at the Manchester Mill downtown.

Santa will lead the parade in a horse-drawn carriage. The parade will also include the high school band, playing the music of the season.

Students will be dressed in holiday fashions and Key Club members will be Santa's helpers.

Santa will be at the mill for photos and will host a lunch from noon to 1:30 p.m. for children ages 5-12. Younger youngsters must be accompanied by a parent or guardian.

An arts and crafts exhibition at Emanuel Church will include more than 40 exhibitors. Raffles will be held throughout the day and caricature artist Walt Griggs will be on hand. An exhibit of more than 100 nativities from around the world will also be on display.

The annual Cookie Walk will be held at the Manchester United Methodist Church. Luncheon will also be served there.

Free carriage rides will be available from the churches to downtown and back for easy parking.

A "Christmas in the Village" brochure available downtown will provide all the details on participating businesses and specials available throughout Manchester.

DRAINING EXPERIENCES

The number of aluminum components (including cylinder heads, water pumps, manifolds, and engine blocks) under the hood of today's cars seems to be increasing each year. The two primary heat exchangers, the radiator and heater, are also aluminum, which requires a great deal of corrosion protection provided by the vehicle's coolant. Because the corrosion protection provided by green and red antifreeze is depleted after two years, it is a good idea to have the cooling system flushed and the coolant replaced within this time frame. The newer, super-long-life antifreezes (usually orange in color) may remain in service for longer intervals. Do not try to replace red or green antifreeze with the orange type without first consulting an auto technician.

When the cooling system in your car needs service, come to BERT'S AUTO SERVICE. We've been serving the community since 1981, and are known for our integrity and expertise. We are the largest, independent, modern full-service facility in the area, and use the latest, state-of-the-art computerized equipment to diagnose and repair automotive problems. If you have any concerns about your car, call 734-769-3232 or stop by the shop located at 5984 Jackson Road in Ann Arbor.

HINT: The inhibitors in orange antifreeze are not compatible with those found in green or red.

Dental tips offered for older population

Older adults have special oral health needs and concerns, but with the right care and hygiene habits, they can keep smiling through the years.

University of Michigan School of Dentistry faculty listed here address many aspects of oral health in older people.

Change your habits. Even if you've had good teeth all your life, your oral health habits need to change as you age, says Jonathan Ship, associate professor of dentistry.

Gum tissues tend to recede with age, exposing more tooth surface and larger areas between the teeth. In addition, the exposed root of the tooth is covered with cementum, a mineralized material that is less resistant to decay than tooth enamel.

"People with receding gums are not necessarily going to get more cavities, but they're at greater risk," Ship says. Careful brushing and flossing become more important than ever, and special devices such as floss threaders and small brushes to clean between teeth may be necessary.

Older people also may need to use fluoride rinses or have their dentists coat their teeth with fluoride varnishes to help prevent cavities.

Reduce your risk of infection. Brushing and flossing may be the farthest thing from the mind of someone facing surgery for a hip or knee replacement. But good oral hygiene is especially important for people who have total joint replacements, says Jed Jacobson, associate professor of dentistry.

A major cause of failure in joint replacements is infection. This can happen when bacteria travel to the site of the replacement from other parts of the body — including the mouth. Jacobson, who helped draft an American Dental Association statement on this problem, says that patients who plan to have a total joint replacement should make sure that their dental health is good.

Practicing good oral hygiene after the surgery is equally important — especially for the first two years. To further reduce the risk of infection, dentists may advise some joint replacement patients to take antibiotics before certain procedures, such as having a tooth pulled or having oral surgery. However, this is a decision the dentist must make for each patient, taking into account the patient's general health and medical history and the type of procedure that is being done.

Longer life spans present challenges for older people and their dentists. The percentage of older Americans without their natural teeth has dropped dramatically — from 70 percent to 40 percent — over the last four decades.

But because more people than ever are living into their 80s and beyond, the actual number of older people without teeth has increased, Kenneth Shay noted in a presentation at a recent meeting of the American dental Association in San Francisco.

The longer a person lives without natural teeth, the greater the likelihood of bone loss in the ridge that runs under the gums. This problem is made worse by osteoporosis, a widespread condition among older women. Bone loss under the gums can lead to a host of problems that interfere with the fit of dentures, says Shay, an adjunct associate professor in the School of Dentistry and chief of dental service at the Ann Arbor Veterans Affairs Medical Center.

For example, the gum tissue may become soft and flabby or the tongue may enlarge. Other problems, such as infection and calluses in the mouth, result when people wear poorly fitting dentures for too long.

For these reasons, it's important that even people who have lost their natural teeth see their dentists once a year. The yearly visit also is a good time for the dentist to check for signs of oral cancer, which is more common in older people, but can be treated effectively if caught early.

Before you turn out the light, kiss your dentures good-night. Removing dentures before going to sleep is a must for good oral health. Yet many denture-wearers have never let their spouses see them toothless.

"If you understand that the undersurface of the denture is a great place for bacteria and yeast to grow, you'd want to get that denture out at night and give your mouth a rest," says Jonathan Ship, associate professor of dentistry.

Tell your dentist what you take. Finding relief from dry mouth, oral irritation, taste changes or gum disease may be as simple as reviewing your medication list with your dentist. Hundreds of common medicines — from antihistamines to hormones to heart drugs — can have effects on oral health and comfort, says John Gobetti, professor of dentistry.

"People with these problems go through all kinds of extensive testing and emotional trauma, and don't realize that the simplest thing to do is to check the medications they're on," says Gobetti.

"Some 450 to 600 drugs, including many of the most commonly prescribed drugs, have oral side effects, from dry mouth to irritation of the mouth and even enhanced gum disease."

Patients should be sure to tell their dentists about all the medicines that they are taking, including herbal remedies and over-the-counter medications.

In some cases, dentists can cooperate with a patient's physician to make medication changes that will relieve the problem. When such changes are not possible, dentists can recommend other ways of finding relief and preventing further problems, such as chewing sugarless gum, letting sugarless hard candy dissolve in the mouth, or using artificial saliva products.

Care-givers, offer extra help. People with physical limitations or memory problems may need extra help taking care of their teeth. Care-givers who notice that the people they care for are neglecting their oral hygiene should first try to figure out why, says Jonathan Ship, associate professor of dentistry.

"Is it because they can't grip the toothbrush and need to get a special one with a larger handle? Do they need an electric toothbrush that will do the work for them? Do they lack the hand-eye coordination they need to floss their teeth?"

Mouth pain, diet changes, and dry mouth also can affect older people's oral health. In some cases, a care-giver may need to do the brushing and flossing for the person. It's important, too, says Ship, for a care-giver to go along on dentist appointments, to get any special dental care instructions.

More readers' recipes offered from our holiday guide

On Oct. 28, staffers from Heritage Newspapers invited the finalists of the holiday recipe contest to drop off samples of their entries for a taste testing and judging. After savoring upward of 30 different dishes in categories ranging from main dishes to desserts, the winners were selected.

The grand prize winner was Linda Meloche's Zesty Italian Wreath, an hors d'oeuvre that tingled the tastebuds of the panel of judges. She collected a $100 prize. Linda, a Chelsea resident, also was the winner in the snack category for her harvest muffins.

Carlyn Boivin of Saline was first runner-up for her Old Milwaukee Potato Salad, which also was named best in the salad category. She received $50.

In the main dish category, Mary Olmstead's Red Wine Pot Roast was the favorite of the panel of judges. Mary is a resident of Manchester.

Connie Branson of Ann Arbor was the winner in the casseroles category with Ann's Sweet Potato Casserole.

Jean Satterthwaite of Chelsea had the best-tasting dessert, with her superb holiday Carrot Cake.

Our winning recipes and many more are included in this week's Holiday Entertaining Guide, inserted into this week's Chelsea Standard and Dexter Leader.

Thanks to all the area cooks who took the time to submit recipes and dishes for the judging.

Blackberry-Pecan Streusel Pie
Mary Jo Olmstead
Manchester

Single Crust
1-1/3 cups sifted flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup Crisco
3 teaspoons water

Filling:
4 c. fresh or frozen unsweetened blackberries
1 c. sugar
1/3 c. Quick Tapioca
1 tsp. ground cinnamon

Pecan Streusel Topping
Combine: 1/2 c. flour, 1/4 c. sugar. Using a pastry blender, cut in 1/4 c. butter (cold) until the pieces are the size of small peas. Stir in 1/4 c. finely chopped pecans.

Prepare pastry for the crust. Line a 9-inch pie plate with the pastry with a double thickness of heavy foil. Bake the crust at 450 degrees for 8 minutes. Remove the foil. Bake for 4-5 minutes more, or until the crust is set and dry. Reduce the oven to 375 degrees.

In a medium saucepan, combine the blackberries, sugar, tapioca, and cinnamon. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture starts to bubble. Reduce heat and simmer the berry filling uncovered for 10 minutes, stirring frequently.

Pour the berry filling into the prepared pie crust. Top with the pecan streusel topping.

Bake at 375 degrees for 25-30 min. or until the crust and top are golden brown. Makes 6-8 servings.

Gingered Pork Roll Appetizer
Gretchen McCann
Ann Arbor

Pastry:
8-oz. cream cheese, softened to room temperature
1/2 pound butter, softened to room temperature
2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon salt

Beat cheese and butter at high speed until creamy. Gradually add flour and salt. Knead until it clings together. Divide into quarters and chill 3-4 hours.

Filling:
1 pound ground pork
1/2 cup crabmeat or shrimp
1/2 cup chopped water chestnuts
2 minced green onions
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons grated ginger or 1/2 teaspoon ground
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1/4 cup dry bread crumbs

Thoroughly cook pork. Add all ingredients. Cool.

Roll pastry into 4, 9"x 12" rectangles; spread filling and roll. Seal seam with water. Brush roll with egg and milk glaze. Slice halfway through at 1-inch intervals. Bake at 375 degrees for 30 minutes. Yields 48 appetizers.

Taco Salad
Vicki Stark
Chelsea

Mix together and set aside: 1 can enchilada sauce and 1 packet taco seasoning. Brown together 1 1/2 pounds ground round and 1 large onion, diced. Drain grease. Mix in 2 tablespoons chili powder and garlic to taste (1/2 - 2 teaspoons). Refrigerate.

Mix together in large bowl: 1 head of lettuce, shredded; 2 pounds cheese (cheddar, cojack, or marble cheese); 1 medium onion, diced; 1 large bag Doritos; 2 tomatoes, diced.

Add meat mixture, mix together. Add enchilada sauce and mix. Refrigerate several hours.

Chocolate Ecstasy
Jennifer Toth
Saline

1 (21.5 oz.) package brownie mix
1/4 cup coffee liqueur (optional)
2 small packages chocolate pudding
1 (12 oz.) container Cool Whip, thawed
8 (1.4 oz.) Heath bars, finely chopped
1 cup pecans, chopped

Prepare brownies according to package directions. Cool. Using toothpick, poke holes into brownies. Brush with liqueur. Coarsely crumble and place half of brownies in a 3-1/4 to 5 quart serving bowl.

Prepare pudding according to package directions, but don't chill.

Spread half the pudding over brownies in bowl. Spread half the Cool Whip over pudding. Sprinkle with half the Heath bars and half the nuts. Repeat layers. Cover and refrigerate several hours or overnight.

Apple Pie Slices
Vicki Stark
Chelsea

Mix: 2-1/2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon salt, and 1 cup shortening together until crumbly. Add 1 egg yolk with milk (together makes 2/3 cup). Mix well and divide in half to roll out 2 crusts for 10"X14" pan.

Place 1 cup crushed corn flakes in over bottom crust in pan. Layer 6-8 cups sliced apples on top of them. Sprinkle apples with 3/4 to 1 cup sugar and 1 teaspoon cinnamon. Dot with 1/4 cup stick of butter. Add top crust. Brush with egg white.

If desired, it may be drizzled with a glaze after pie is partially or fully cooked. Mix together 1 tablespoon milk, dash cinnamon, and about 1 cup powdered sugar.

Sandra's Carrot Torte
Sandra J. Xenakis
Chelsea

4 large, free-range eggs, separated
1 cup grated raw carrot
1 grated medium lemon
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon non-aluminum baking powder

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Separate eggs and beat whites until stiff. Set aside. Beat yolks until lemony. Combine with grated carrot, lemon rind, and sugar. Sift flour and baking powder into wet ingredients and mix well. Fold in egg whites.

Pour into 8-inch, well-greased round cake pan. Torte sticks easily, so oil and flour bottom of pan well. Bake for 40 minutes at 325 degrees. Torte is done when you tap lightly with a fingertip in the center and it springs back.

Remove from oven and let cool in pan, covered with a clean cloth. If torte cools too quickly or if you open the oven while it's baking, the torte may fall. Serve with whipped cream.

Breakfast Casserole
Jennifer Toth
Saline

1 pound sausage, cooked, crumbled
2 tablespoons grease from sausage
2 cups sliced onions
1 clove garlic, minced
1 cup green onion, chopped
2-3 cups sliced, cooked potatoes with skins
4 beaten eggs
2 cups milk
shredded cheese

Sauté onions, garlic, and green peppers in the sausage grease. Mix with cooked potatoes and put in a buttered casserole dish. Mix eggs and milk and pour over top of vegetables. Bake at 375 degrees for 45 minutes. Top with cheese during last few minutes.

Linda's Cherry Chicken Pie
Linda Meloche
Chelsea

1 pie crust
1 pound boneless, skinless chicken breasts, cut into 1" chunks and boiled until no longer pink
4 potatoes, peeled and chopped
3 parsnips, peeled and chopped
5 large carrots, peeled and chopped
1 cup dried cherries
1/3 cup butter
1 medium onion, chopped
1/3 cup flour
1 cup whole milk
2-1/2 cups chicken broth
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Prepare pie crust. Boil potatoes, parsnips, and carrots until tender. Drain and add cooked chicken and dried cherries. Set aside.

Melt butter in large skillet, add onion, and sauté until tender. Slowly add flour, stirring constantly. Then add milk and chicken broth; cook until thick and bubbly. Add salt and pepper and remove from heat. Add sauce to chicken mixture and stir to coat.

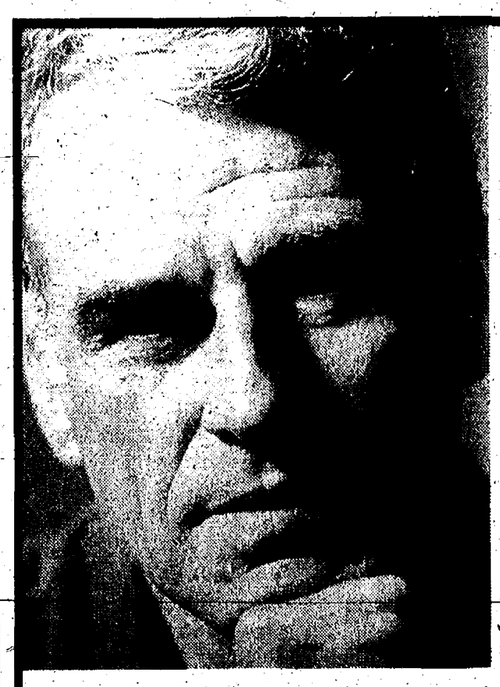

Place filling in bottom crust. Cover with top crust and cut a few slits to vent steam. Seal and flute crust and decorate as desired with additional crust. Let cool for 10 minutes before cutting and serving. Enjoy!

Curried Butternut Squash Soup
Hiroyo Russell
Clinton

4 teaspoon butter
1 medium onion, chopped
2 celery ribs
5 cups squash, cubed
1 cup carrots
1-1/2 teaspoon curry powder
1-1/2 teaspoon basil
1/2 cup white wine
2-1/2 cups chicken broth
1 cup heavy cream
salt and pepper to taste
parsley for garnish

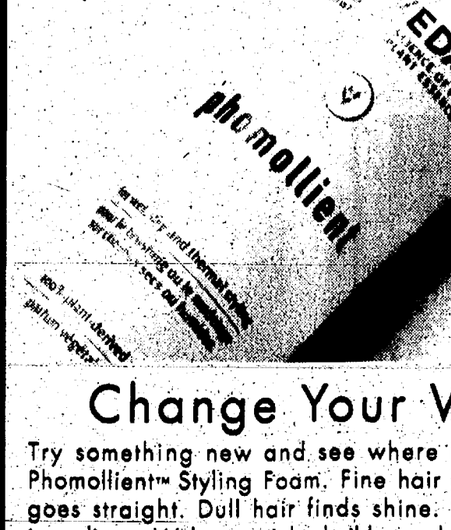

Melt butter in a pan on low heat. Add onion and celery, cover 10 minutes. Add squash, carrot, basil, and curry powder, cover 10-15 minutes. Add broth and wine; simmer 15 minutes until smooth. Add cream, salt and pepper to taste.

POLICE BLOTTER

Chelsea Village

Runaway

A 15-year-old Chelsea boy ran away from home on S. Main Street at 7 a.m. Nov. 11. His mother called home from work and the boy's sister, 14, said he was trying to drink alcohol. The mother left to go home, but when she arrived he had climbed out the window of his room. The boy later called and told his mother where he was, and the officer found him sleeping on the couch.

Property Damage

The driver's-side window of a pickup truck was broken Nov. 14 in the 400 block of N. McKinley Street. A 28-year-old Chelsea man told police he parked the truck about 4:45 p.m. Later a neighbor told him the window was broken.

A Chelsea woman told police that someone had vandalized a bulletin board in the 200 block of Wilkinson Street. Someone burned the edges of the notice on the board, and the bulletin board also was damaged.

A fake gang logo was drawn in permanent black ink on the vacuum unit and door panel at Victory Lane carwash, 920 S. Main St., between 9 p.m. Nov. 10 and 8 a.m. Nov. 11. A 28-year-old Chelsea man told police that the marker was difficult to remove from the surface. He estimated the damage at $300.

Civil Dispute

An 18-year-old Chelsea woman told police that her ex-boyfriend, a 22-year-old Dexter man, threatened her. She said she was driving to a friend's, and he pulled his truck behind her and tailgated her. She said a friend also told her that he had made threats to pull her over and assault her. Police advised the woman about a personal protection order. The woman said she just wanted the behavior documented.

Attempted Break-in

A 26-year-old Chelsea man was returning home to his apartment at 3:08 a.m. Nov. 14, when he saw someone breaking into Seitz's Tavern, 110 W. Middle St. The man went to the police station, and police responded, but found no one. The man said the suspect had a small build and was wearing a mask. Nothing was taken, but a window broken in the crime cost $10.

Obstructing Justice

A 41-year-old Detroit man entered Palmer Family Ford, 222 S. Main St., at 12:25 p.m. Nov. 12 and asked to use the copier. A proprietor at the dealership called police because he became suspicious of the man. The police located the man and stopped him. He said they were picking on him because he was black. Police asked for identification and the man said he lived in a homeless shelter in Ann Arbor and had no job because he is finishing his doctorate in fine arts and humanities at the University of Michigan. He was found to have five active warrants out of Detroit for trespassing. The Detroit police did not want to pick him up, so he was released with a warning.

Warrant Arrest

Leonard Ralph Adams, 25, of Jackson was arrested at 9:30 a.m. Nov. 13 after police pulled him over for having his license plate taped to the rear window of his car. He was found to have a civil warrant for child neglect out of Adrian. He was taken to the sheriff's department.

Delinquent Minors

A 42-year-old Chelsea School District bus driver told police Nov. 11 that she was having trouble with a student who rides her bus near the Lindley Road stop. The student, a 16-year-old Chelsea boy, came up to her and asked to get off the bus, but she wouldn't let him, because it wasn't his stop. At the next stop the boy became belligerent and tried to grab the handle to open the door. The driver called the bus station on her radio and they called the police. The driver finally let the boy off. His family was informed that he could not ride the bus any longer.

Stolen Property

A 500-foot reel of copper wire was stolen from a work site at Chelsea Community Hospital, 775 S. Main St., over the weekend, prior to Nov. 11. A Jackson man reported the incident, showing the police where the roll was before it was stolen. Police determined that it had been rolled onto black top, where it was taken. The man said the roll weighed about 1,000 pounds and would require at least two people to lift it.

Gasoline was stolen from Perky Pantry, 501 S. Main St., when a van drove away without paying for the gas at 11 a.m. Nov. 11. The driver, a Sterling Heights man, told police that he had just forgotten to pay for the gas. He said he would make arrangements to pay the $7 he owed.

A Northville man told police that someone stole his license plate. He had been in Chelsea between 6:30 p.m. and 9:45 p.m. Oct. 24. The next morning, he discovered the plate missing.

Two teens were arrested at 4:50 p.m. Nov. 9 at Polly's Market, 1101 S. Main St., after they were found to be shoplifting. The boys, ages 16 and 13, were found to be carrying cards, air fresheners, pens, pencils and gum. Since it was their first time shoplifting, they were turned over to their parents.

Three radios were stolen from new vehicles at Village Motors, 1185 S. Main St., over the weekend of Nov. 7-8. A Chelsea man told police the cars were unlocked at the time and no signs of forced entry were found.

Dexter Village

Larceny

A 36-year-old Jackson woman told police that her ex-husband, a 42-year-old Munith man, stole her license plate after an argument. The man and woman recently divorced, and she was awarded the automobile in the divorce settlement. The man came to her house on Huron River Drive at 1 p.m. Nov. 10 and asked her to sign over the title to him for a car he was awarded. She refused, telling him that he should return some property of hers. He then said he had the license plate to her car and showed it to her. The two later met with their lawyers and signed over the titles. The man bought a new license plate. No further prosecution was done.

Property Damage

A 76-year-old Dexter woman awoke at 1 a.m. Nov. 11 to the sound of breaking glass in her home on Wall Court. Because of the bad weather, she believed that her window had been broken by a tree branch. But when she investigated, she found a pumpkin had been thrown through her front picture window.

Warrant Arrest

Mike Bruce William, 39, of Newport, Mich., was arrested at 7:07 a.m. Nov. 14 on Main Street near Broad Street. William was wanted on a bench warrant for failure to appear on a charge of driving while his license is suspended. He was arrested without incident.

Dexter Township

Drunken Driving

A 71-year-old Whitmore Lake man was stopped on the side of Huron River Drive at 12:22 a.m. Nov. 14. An off-duty police officer told police that he had found the man slumped over the wheel and belligerent. The man resisted arrest by stiffening his body and trying not to be put in the patrol vehicle. The man was cooperative at the jail, however. His blood tested higher than the legal limit for driving.

Sylvan Township

Structure Fire

Police were dispatched to the 19700 block Ivey Road at 11 a.m. Nov. 11 on a report of a structure fire. the police arrived to find the fire had been extinguished by the Chelsea Fire Department. An investigation revealed that a candle had been left burning on a dresser, which caught fire. The dresser fell onto the carpet, which ignited the rest of the house. With water and smoke damage throughout the house, the fire department determined that the house was not in condition to live in. The cause was determined to be accidental. Total damage to the house was estimated at $20,000. No one was injured in the fire because the homeowner and her children had left the house because of a power outage.

Webster Township

Home Invasion

Electronics equipment, including a CD player, computer and TV, was stolen from a house under construction on Poplar Road. A 39-year-old Dexter man told police that he had been storing the items in the house while he was moving from another house. He found the items missing Aug. 10, but he did not know when the theft occurred. Total value of the stolen items is $2,615.

Runaway

A 16-year-old Webster Township girl ran away from her home on Scully Road at 7 p.m. Nov. 9. The girl's mother, 48, had grounded the girl and did not allow her to use the family car. The girl had been allowed to use the car on the family's property, but drove away with the car. The girl is in counseling for drug and alcohol problems. The family wishes to press charges for driving away with the automobile.

Scio Township

Suspicious Incident

A 20-year-old Dexter woman was at work at 2:20 p.m. Nov. 3 when her ex-boyfriend, a 21-year-old Chelsea man, entered the business. He demanded that she get off the phone. She was talking with her friend, a 24-year-old Dexter woman. She hung up, and the man grabbed her and threatened her. The woman's friend called the police and informed them of the situation. When the police arrived, the man fled out the back door of the business. Police could not locate him.

Property Damage

A safety glass door was damaged between 7 p.m. Nov. 11 and 6:43 a.m. Nov. 12, in the 4300 block of Jackson Road. A 38-year-old Scio Township woman told police nothing was missing from the building. Total damage is $250.

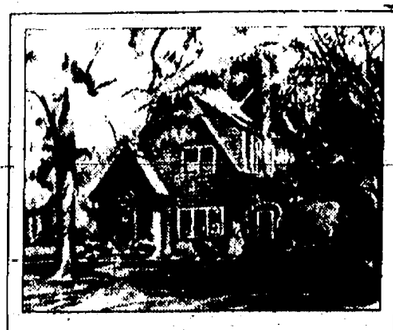

Retail Fraud

A 36-year-old Scio Township woman told police that she saw four teen-agers enter Scio Party Store, 6950 Jackson Road, at 4:30 p.m. Nov. 12. The four were loitering in the aisles and she told them to buy something or leave. Three of the teens left, but one stayed.

A witness, a 32-year-old Scio Township man, told police he saw the youth, later identified as a 9-year-old Scio Township boy, take some candy and a padlock and put them in his pocket. He then tried to leave the building, but was stopped by the woman. The boy was returned home, where his father, 40, told police the boy was grounded and not supposed to be out. The boy said he had taken the candy because he didn't have any money and didn't want to be ridiculed by his friends.

Local resident wraps up basic military training

Marine Pfc. Jennifer E. Forsythe, daughter of Randall R. and Carolyn S. Forsythe of Dexter, recently completed basic training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C. and was promoted to her present rank.

Forsythe successfully completed 12 weeks of training designed to challenge new Marine recruits both physically and mentally.

Forsythe and fellow recruits began their training at 5 a.m. by running three miles and performing calisthenics. In addition to the physical conditioning program, Forsythe spent numerous hours in classroom and field assignments which included learning first aid, uniform regulations, combat water survival, marksmanship, hand-to-hand combat and assorted weapons training. They performed close order drill and operated as a small infantry unit during field training.

Forsythe and fellow recruits ended the training phase with the Crucible, a 54-hour team effort and problem solving evolution which culminated with an emotional ceremony in which the recruits were presented the marine Corps Emblem and were addressed as "Marines" for the first time since boot camp began.

She is a 1998 graduate of Dexter High School.

NEWS FROM DEXTER

Buck pole draws hunters, protesters

■ Annual spectacle makes evening news.

By Michelle Rogers
Associate Editor

It's a familiar site in the Dexter area. The roads surrounding state land are lined with trucks. Orange hats and camouflage clothing dot the local landscape. And the intersection of Dexter-Chelsea Road and Main Street is a traffic mess.

If you hadn't guessed, it's that time of year again. Firearm deer hunting season got under way dawn Sunday.

And with it came the annual hunters vs. protesters spectacle at Mill Creek Sport Center, caught on tape and played on the evening news.

TV crews and Detroit newspaper journalists were at the sporting goods store, located on Main Street just outside the village limits, to capture the annual event.

In defiance, store manager Maureen Cross donned a fur coat while talking to a television reporter as protesters picketed nearby.

Nearly 50 protesters, shouting "Real men don't hunt" and holding signs that said "Ban blood sports" and "Stop sport hunting," lined the bridge crossing Mill Creek, while hunters and onlookers stood inside the gates leading to the store.

A dozen or so deer were hanging from the store's buck pole by 5 p.m., but Mill Creek Sports Center owner Ray Kroske expected to see about 200 by Monday night.

Jodi Louth, co-leader of Michiganders Against Sports Hunting, said this is the seventh consecutive year they've targeted Kroske's buck pole.

"Every year it's getting bigger and bigger on our side," she said about the number of protesters, as occasional passersby honked their car horns in support. "Quite frankly, I am surprised there aren't more hunters here. They must be waking up to the overpopulation myth."

Louth contends Michigan's Department of Natural Resources manipulates the deer population to keep money coming in through licensing fees. In the end, she said, we all pay.

"The DNR maintains the deer herd at about 2 million so hunters have plenty of targets," Louth said. "And we all end up paying through higher insurance costs due to deer-auto collisions and crop damage.

"It's not a coincidence. It's money."

Angie Lamb, a 1996 Dexter High School graduate, sees it differently.

"The hunters are helping to reduce the problem with over population," she said. "The deer are competing for food. They are way overpopulated, and the hunters are helping to reduce the numbers."

Sarah Mark, Lamb's fellow graduate, agreed as they stood watching the protesters.

"They (the deer) need to be handled and this is a fun sporting way to do it," she said.

Although they grew up in the Dexter area, this was the first time both women had been to the buck pole. And it was the protesters who drew them there.

"I wanted to see what the protesters' deal were," Mark said. "But I don't think they have many good points."

Besides making their views known to hordes of reporters on hand, protesters and hunters came face-to-face on a couple of occasions.

Kroske went head-to-head with Eric Diez, a University of Michigan student protesting the buck pole.

Kroske argued that he is a carnivore and God gave him teeth to eat meat. Diez countered that deer hunting is a trophy sport and commercial enterprise run by the state.

In the end, they agreed to disagree.

Later inside his store Kroske said, "I think this is rather amusing. The buck pole isn't any different from Burger King. I don't know where they're coming from.

"I am obviously pro-hunting as long as they make use of what they've harvested.

"I have a problem with someone who will picket our buck pole and sit down to a nice turkey dinner at Thanksgiving," he said.

The buck pole didn't just draw hunters and protesters. Children were a common sight. Many stroked the fur of the animals that hung from the pole with a pool of blood underneath. Some even laughed and tried to shake their hoofs.

Kroske said that's not uncommon.

"They enjoy coming in," he said about children and non-hunters. "They like to see it. They don't know anything about hunting and here they can learn."

Bruce Fetterolf of Belleville, who was out hunting earlier with his 7-year-old son, Travis, was checking out what others shot and he tasted some of Kroske's venison stew.

Teddy Small and Garrett White, both 5-year-olds from Hudson, were among the curious. Small's father said they used to live in Dexter and he has brought his son to see the buck pole for the past three years.

This is the buck pole's ninth year at Mill Creek Sports Center. Kroske said he put it up because a lot of hunters were stopping by to show off their kill anyway. It can accommodate 50 in all.

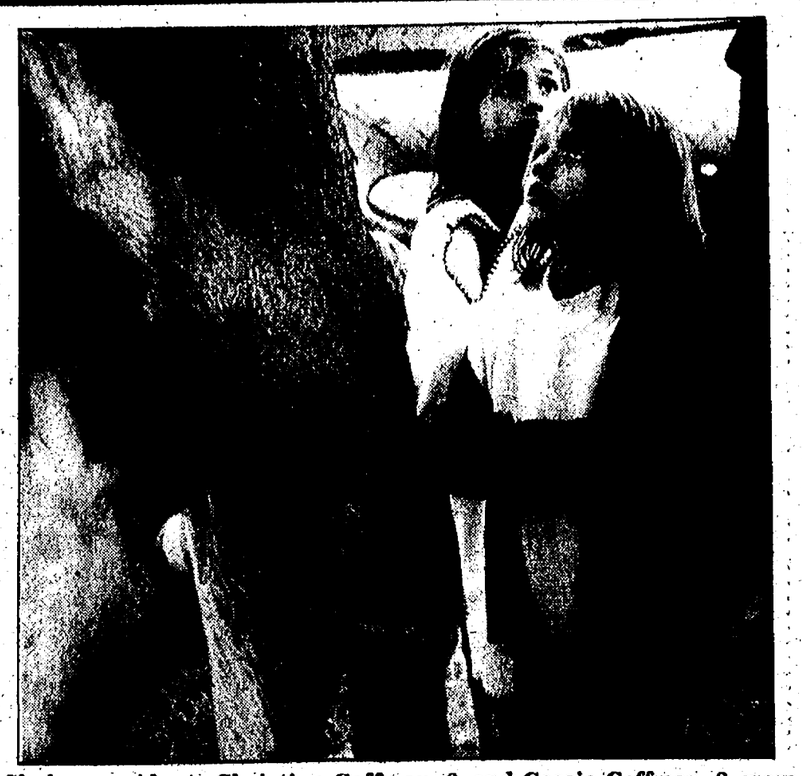

"The idea of the buck pole isn't something we created," Kroske said.

But it is reportedly the largest of its kind in the state. That's why Louth said her group has targeted it.

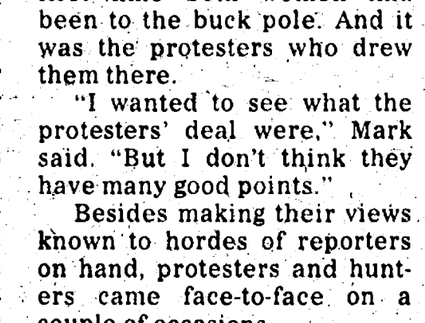

And, she said, they won't back off.

"As long as we feel we can do some good, we'll be here," Louth said. "A lot of people in this community feel the same but are too scared to be out here with us."

Louth said the protesters included residents of Dexter, Manchester, Saline, Ann Arbor, Jackson, Royal Oak and Detroit.

Chelsea residents Christina Coffman, 6, and Cassie Coffman, 8, were among the curious checking out the buck pole Sunday.

Chelsea thrives on service

BRIAN HAMILTON

OPENING REMARKS

If you both live and work in Chelsea village, as I do, you probably hardly noticed the effects of last week's windstorms.

We had a couple of big branches come down and barely miss the house. Our trash cans were blown around, and our gutters filled up with pine needles.

On the other hand, locals who live outside the village lost electrical power, in some cases for days. Some had to stay with relatives in the village so they could shower and not pretend they were camping out.

At work and at home, there wasn't even a flicker. None of our digital clocks flinched.

It's times like these that make it easy to appreciate the village's electric department. We have far fewer problems than anyone living outside the village. And when we do have a major disruption like an ice storm, the department is on the problem in a hurry.

It's one more reason I'm glad we moved back into the village a couple of years ago.

A local woman came in the other day to tell me about her very pleasant experience dealing with Sam Johnson at Johnson's How-To Store downtown. She suggested a "Way To Go" column or some other method of telling stories about local merchants who go above and beyond the call of duty.

I'm not going to go into the specifics of this woman's story for now, but her suggestion is a good one. So this is an open call for your stories about exceptional local service. We'll find a way to tell those stories.

This woman's story about Johnson's touched a nerve with me because I have had many such experiences locally, including several at Johnson's. It's one main reason I always shop locally first.

We were first introduced to this wonderful way of business when we moved to town in 1981 and we needed to buy a stove for our first house. We went downtown to Heydlauff's, and to our astonishment, our check was accepted with no identification. In our previous locales, we had been used to showing two or three pieces of ID for a $10 purchase.

We also had to have some measuring done for this stove. From our previous experiences, we figured one of us would have to stay home from work all day to wait for someone to come. George Heydlauff offered to come by that evening on his way to a club meeting. He even offered to have the stove delivered after hours.

That sold us. Now, when we need an appliance, Heydlauff's is our first stop, and usually our only stop.

In addition, every prescription we fill comes from Chelsea Pharmacy. Why? Because owner Dan Murphy once opened the store after hours to fill a pain prescription for our son.

I do very little comparison shopping for price because I can't put a price on this kind of service. There are so many places in Chelsea where it is a pleasure to do business because of the attitude of the store owner and its employees.

It's one big reason I'm glad we live in this town.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Thanks for approving millage

We would like to take this opportunity to extend heartfelt thanks to those who voted "yes" in the recent Dexter Township election for the approval of the fire millage. Your overwhelming support allows funds to be earmarked specifically for fire protection in your township.

We are dedicated to providing you with the best professional fire and EMS protection available. Feel free to contact us should you have any questions.

Drug store project would change Chelsea

Whatever can the city fathers be thinking of to allow a third drug store to move into Chelsea?

Rite-Aid is similar to Wal-Mart; when it comes to town, something's got to give and it will probably not be the other chain drug store we already have. Small home-town merchants are usually the first to go and then what are we left with? Only big impersonal stores that have nothing to do with the heart and soul of a community.

But what really boggles the mind is the area this big-money operation is going to encompass. Four small businesses are being swept aside as this monolith moves in. The first thing anyone traveling into our village proper will see is this large expanse of ugly parking lot.

And what is even more amazing is that a most unusual building (The cobblestone building that now houses a realty firm) is going to go under the bulldozer. This most interesting structure has been a unique landmark at the south entrance to Chelsea for many years. Do we really want to lose that?

Haven't the decision makers in this town learned anything from the debacle perpetuated in recent years on small towns across the country and which Chelsea, until recently, has escaped? That mentality says let's cut down as many trees as possible, demolish all the old buildings and small-town businesses and let the out-of-town boys with the big bucks come in and change us completely. Is this really what Chelsea wants? Think about this before it is too late.

Veterans event was wonderful

On behalf of the American Legion Post 31 of Chelsea, I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Chelsea Rod and Gun Club for hosting the Veterans Day celebration for all local veterans.

It was a wonderful and thoughtful deed, performed for veterans by a non-veteran organization. It was a candle-light dinner, (due to power outage) with a warm fire in the fireplace and warm stories told by all. There were many door prizes donated by local businesses.

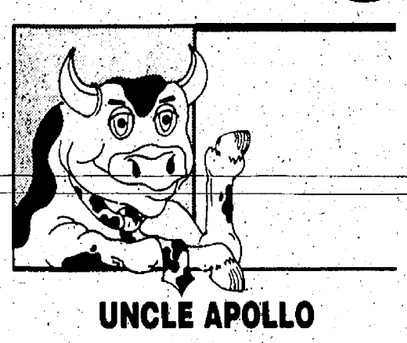

For all of the veterans who didn't make it, hopefully this was the beginning of many to come.

I would also like to thank the sponsors: Chelsea State Bank, Nil Young Excavating and Grading, H & H Sales Inc., Chelsea Motorcycle Supply, Three D Sales & Service, Vole's Party Store, Johnson's How To, O & W Beer Distributors, Wolverine Restaurant, Springier Agency Inc. and The Chelsea Standard. And a special thanks to Mary Gunnis and her helper Jeff for making this night happen!

To all of you, we salute!

Mark E. Leidner

Signs indicate a 'light' winter

UNCLE APOLLO

Well, the elections are over so it's time to start thinking about turkey. Mainly about the ones who got into office and what they're gonna do to us for the next couple of years. And how we're gonna protect ourselves against all these marauding bands of cows and criminals that will be roaming the countryside because of the proposals going down.

But also, we gotta think about the hams and turkeys on our dinner plates. Personally, I'm a little worried that we're gonna need to buy Hawaiian hams, because the Arlottometer is predicting another non-winter. And I'll tell you, the early signs are there.

As I write this, it seems more like May than November. And I see where the snow blower guys are giving half your money back if you buy a snowthrower and don't use it this winter.

Now I have to tell you. This Arlottometer is based on the most up-to-date principles of snowfall prediction possible.

First, we collect all these wooly caterpillars and dump them into the thing for statistical trends in the brown-to-black ratio. We measure the thickness of every cow's coat in the entire region and the number of car washes that have been built over the summer.

We even get a count of the number of boxes of Jiffy Mix that have been sold, because it was determined by our staff psychologist that when it's gonna get cold, people tend to stock up unconsciously. (I told you this was very sophisticated).

Some of the other things involved is determining how many furnaces break down in November and how many republicans got re-elected. Then there's the bark color of the native ironwood tree, the average number of broken legs on Daddy Longlegs spiders, how far the Chelsea "l" is leaning on the water tower, and the number of purple bowling balls in storage at Chelsea Lanes.

Generally, we also throw in the number of kids that got sick on Halloween candy, just to be safe.

Once we collect all of this stuff, we feed it into the Arlottometer, and it cranks through this incredibly complicated set of calculations, permutations, and fortifications, and comes up with the answer, which is either light, medium or heavy.

Well, this year, it came up with light. Meaning light snowfall, of course. Or maybe it means it will be light out, or it's possible it means that we were light on data and we need to give it more. But I've been through that before, and I absolutely refuse to count the number of dog walkers who don't clean up their poop from their neighbors' yards. So if we're light on data, that's just too bad.

Anyway, since the meter says light, don't put away the suntan oil or golf clubs or bathing suits. Looks like we're in for a mild one this year.

How do you feel about the buck pole in Dexter?

"Hunting for the purpose of gaining a trophy is an unnecessary manifestation of insecurities. The deer's rack size is left purely up to chance, rather than proving the skills of the hunter. It merely makes it an easier and larger target."

Cammila Albertson
Sylvan Township

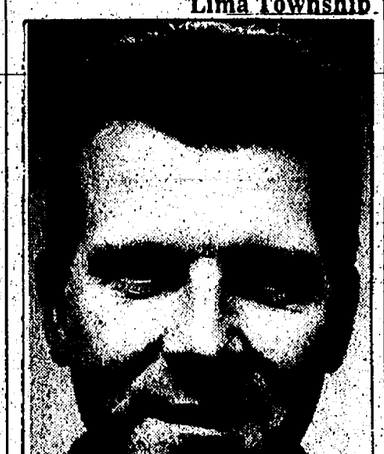

"I think it's an entertaining way of taking care of over-population. I don't think that comparing rack sizes is any different than sizing fish. I would rather see a deer on someone's grill than on my car grill."

Michelle Gilsdorf
Sylvan Township

"As a Reiki master, I believe that when an animal is killed with integrity and grace, and for sustenance, and not sport, then both parties are blessed."

Mary Lee Radka
Lima Township

"I personally don't hunt, but I don't have a problem with those who do. I know some hunters will only shoot a deer with a massive rack, and I think that's a good thing."

Fit to teach

Corey Knight teaches students importance of exercise, nutrition

By Michelle Rogers
Associate Editor

Athletics taught Corey Knight about leadership and responsibility. Now as a second-year teacher at Beach Middle School and assistant varsity football coach, he is hoping to share what he learned with Chelsea's youth.

Knight, a native of Granger, Ind., went to Hillsdale College on a football scholarship. He was All-Conference, All-Area and received All-State Honorable Mention as a high school football player after making his debut on the gridiron in fifth grade.

"Football and the coaching I received played a huge part in making me the person I am," Knight said.

"It prioritizes your life. You get to set goals and I think it helps you develop a leadership role."

Knight decided he wanted to be a teacher in high school. It was his coaches and teachers and the way he saw them make a difference in students' lives that influenced his decision.

"Hopefully I can give back to other people the leadership and responsibility they gave me," he said.

Knight graduated from Hillsdale College in 1997 after studying physical education, early childhood education, elementary education and general sciences. He plans to start a master's degree program in the summer.

Knight decided to make his home in Michigan with his fiancée, Catherine, a financial analyst who lives in Novi. They recently purchased a home in Chelsea, which Knight plans to move in to after they marry this summer. For now, he lives in Ann Arbor.

Knight was hired last year by Chelsea schools. He teaches physical education to sixth- and eighth-graders and health to seventh-graders. Knight is also the assistant varsity football coach for the Bulldogs and seventh grade basketball coach.

Knight said it was Chelsea High School graduate Jeff Lantis who put in a good word for him with Chelsea schools. Lantis works in the admissions office at Hillsdale College and Knight was a student teacher where Lantis' son attended preschool.

The timing was perfect, Knight said, because Chelsea was looking for a physical education teacher and a coach.

Knight describes his teaching style as easy-going. He said he is fair, understanding and respectful.

"Hopefully they think I am a fun teacher and one they can talk to about any problem or anything for that matter," Knight said.

The only hard rule in his classroom is to use good judgment. Knight said his favorite expression is "Use your head."

"I think the big difference we teach here is know the difference between right and wrong and teach common sense," he said.

It's Knight's goal to teach lifetime fitness to Chelsea's youth, and he models the behavior for his students. Knight enjoys athletics and has recently taken up running. He said he is always setting new goals, on and off the field.

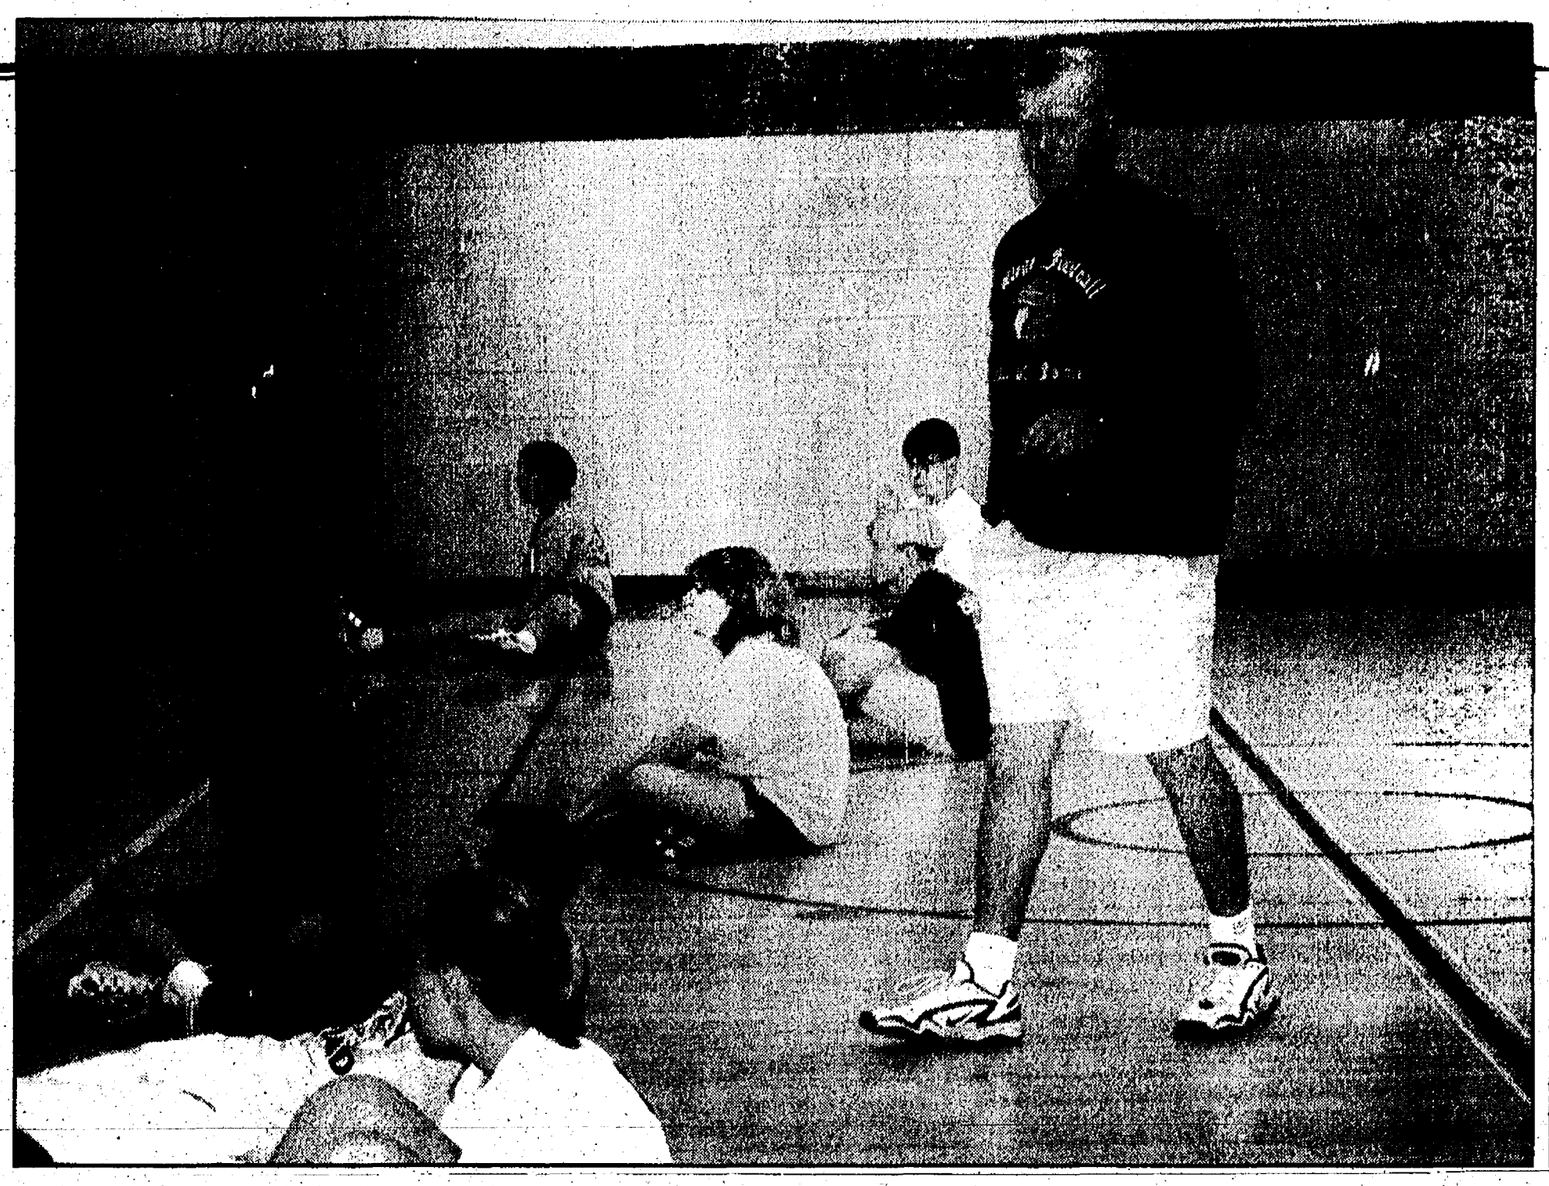

Todd Blomquist, Knight's colleague in the physical education department at Beach, has been an inspiration. Blomquist recently ran a marathon in Columbus, Ohio. Now Knight has set a goal to run the Traverse City marathon this spring, before his wedding.

Knight's students are required to run a mile once a week, among other physical activities.

"We try to teach them it's fun, not all hard work," Knight said about regular exercise. "It's fun and social. You can meet a lot of new friends and talk to your friends while running or biking."

In health class, Knight covers nutrition and exercise.

"The No. 1 cause of death is heart failure," Knight said, "and it's something that can be corrected with nutrition and exercise. With nutrition and exercise, most things can be stopped."

Corey Knight teaches lifetime fitness and health at Beach Middle School. A native of Indiana, he joined the staff two years ago after graduating from Hillsdale College.

Knight said he enjoys teaching at the middle school level because he is able to see the students mature during their three years there.

"They grow so much and you can see the friendships they are starting to form, and it's fun to watch them repeat what they've learned," he said.

Knight also enjoys his job because of the way it's set up. He gets to know all 750 students through either physical education classes or health class.

The arrangement also helps him as a coach at the high school level.

"They don't know it, but they're showing a lot of their work ethic now and what kind of person they are," Knight said about the future high school athletes.

What Knight finds unique about Chelsea schools is that the district enjoys a high level of community support. He also said students are respectful for the most part and there are few disciplinary problems.

Knight said every day on the job is a highlight for him.

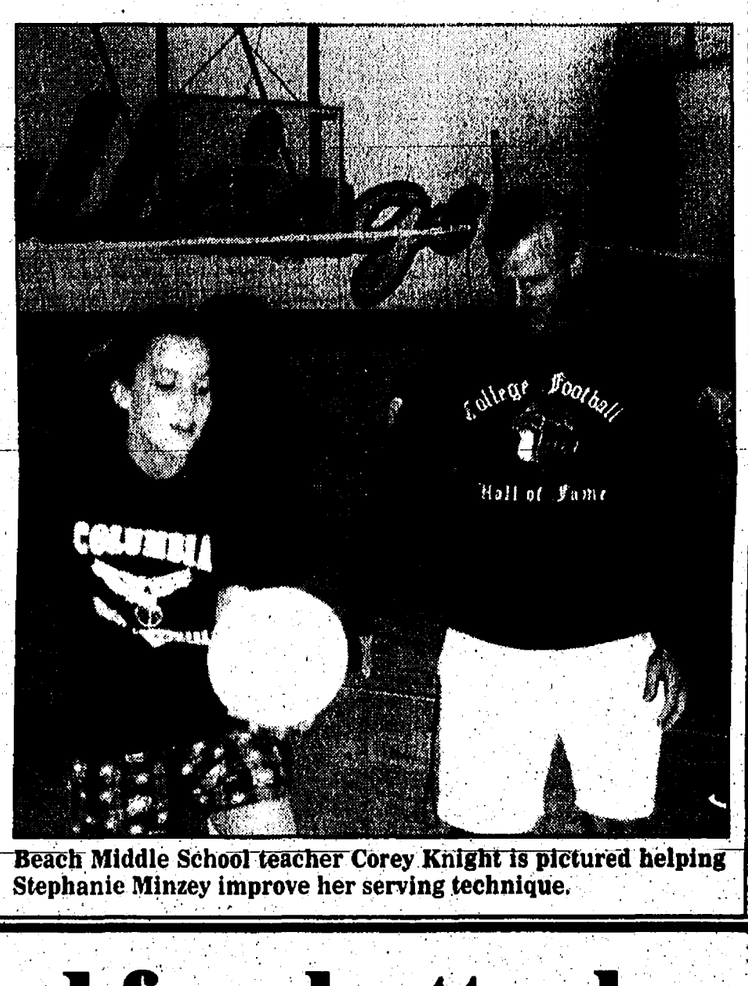

TEACHER FEATURE

"I enjoy just getting up and going to work," he said. "And a lot of people can't say that.

"I know each day, with all these different kids, is going to be unique."

What he looks forward to is seeing the success of his students. Knight said he will feel proud watching his former students go on to high school, college or technical school and eventually join the work force.

When he is not in the gym or the classroom, Knight can be found — if you hadn't guessed — playing or watching sports.

Local business serves as training ground for shutter bug

By Michelle Rogers

He knows when your relatives are in town or when you've been on vacation, but he is not a private eye.

His name is Steve Hutchinson and he manages Chelsea's Huron Camera.

Hutchinson started his career in the Dexter store at age 16 and now manages the Chelsea and Saline locations.

When he turned 18, Hutchinson started his own business, Hutchinson Photography Services Inc., and made local history as the youngest member of the Dexter Area Chamber of Commerce.

His accountant mother, Debbie Hutchinson, helped him set up the business.

It was his job — first as a shipping and receiving clerk and then in the processing lab and sales at Huron Camera — that introduced him to photography.

"I always liked taking pictures but I never thought to do anything with it," he said.

An employee discount persuaded Hutchinson to buy a professional camera and his grandparents' golden wedding anniversary served as his first assignment.

"After that, it was like 'Wow, people get paid for doing this? This is fun,' " he said.

"Now, I am crazy busy. Business is booming. I just love it. I've always wanted to be my own boss."

Hutchinson, 20, has invested $20,000 in equipment, including a $7,000 Hasselblad camera especially made for portrait photography. The rest is in lighting, backdrops and lenses.

Hutchinson specializes in graduation photos, drumming up a lot of business at his alma mater. He graduated from Dexter High School in 1996.

Hutchinson also books weddings, family portraits and commercial work. Within the next year, he hopes to open his own studio in the Dexter-Chelsea area. For now, he works mainly on location.

It was the three business partners at Huron Camera — Milt Campbell, Jerry Schmidt and Bob Clouse — who Hutchinson said nurtured him as a photographer and future business owner.

"I just love working at Huron Camera. They're like my three dads," he said. "I learned a lot from them."

Hutchinson said he learns something every day, from all kinds of people. He enjoys talking to them, "picking their brains," he said.

"You always learn something from somebody. I always try to learn from each person I meet."

What he enjoys most about working at the camera store is the responsibility the job carries and his interaction with people.

PERSONALITY

"I like the responsibility of being able to run the store. I like being in control of things," he said. "It's fun to have people look up to me as a leader in the company."

Hutchinson names his parents, Ralph Hutchinson of Pinckney and Debbie Hutchinson of Arizona, as two people who truly shaped his life.

"I had the most incredible childhood, even after they divorced," he said. "They did an incredible job, as far as morals and everything.

"We have an extremely tightly woven family," he said.

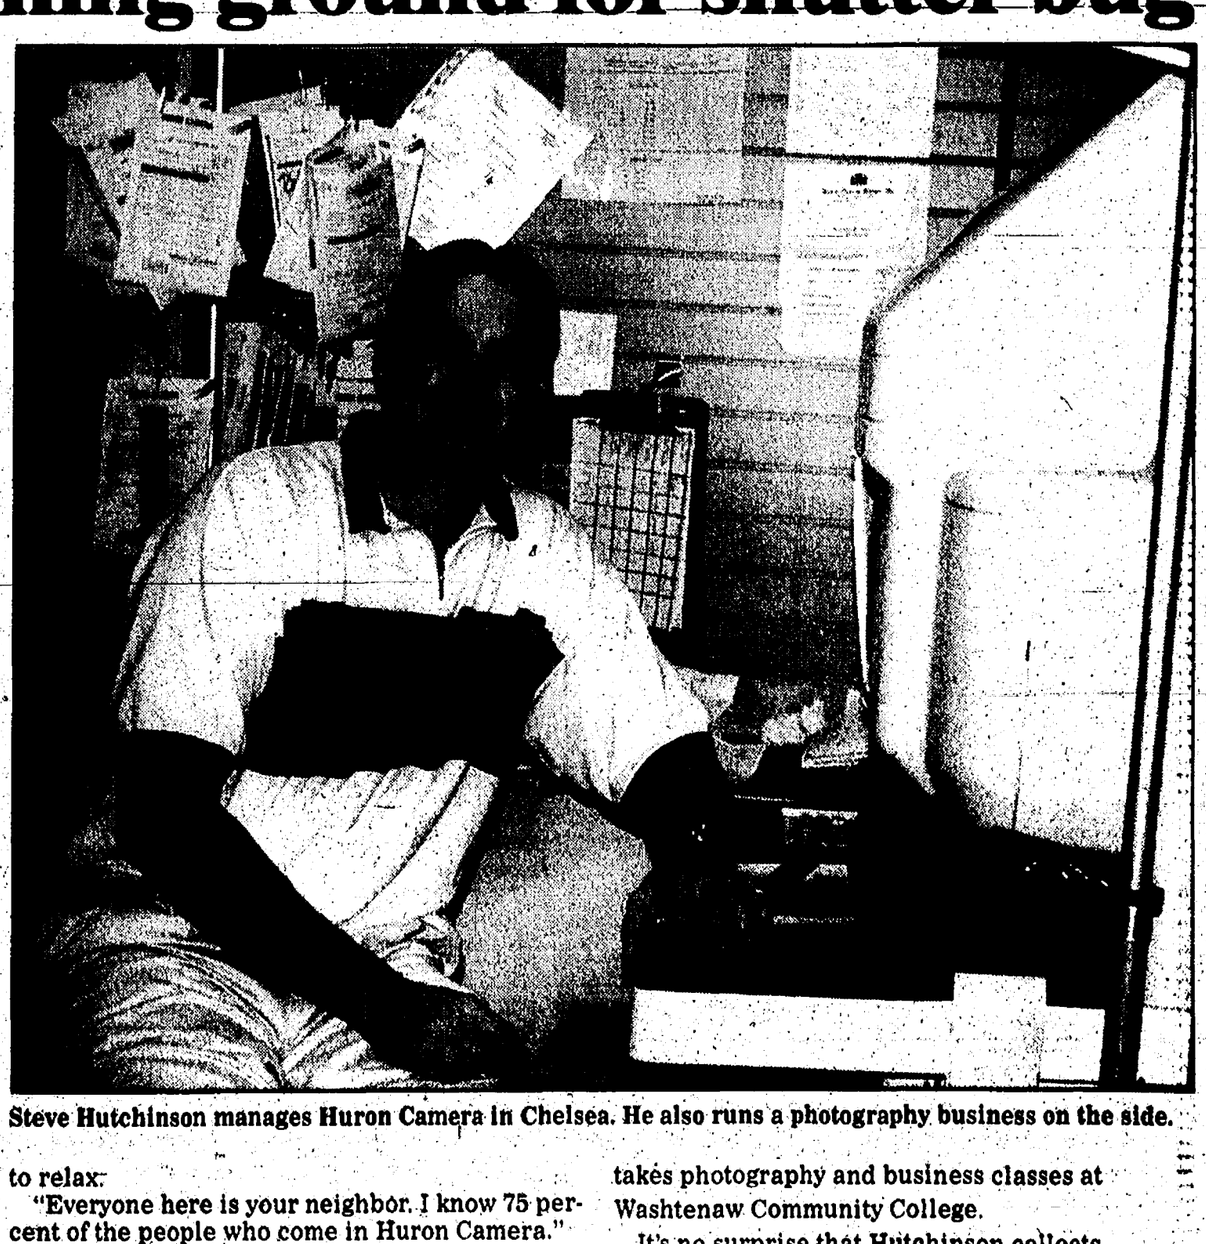

At least once a month, grandparents, aunts, uncles and cousins get together.

Hutchinson said his grandparents, Dorothy and Robert Hutchinson, played an active role in raising him. He recalls many summers spent on their sheep farm.

With his mother recently remarried and now living out of state, Hutchinson lives in Pinckney with his father, who is married to Camille. Hutchinson has a sister, Jenni, 17, and stepbrother, Mike Johansen, 22.

Although not far from Dexter, Hutchinson said his heart will always be there. He was never keen on the big city.

"Everybody is really friendly and down to earth," he said about this area. "I never liked the city. People are too uptight. They don't know how to relax.

Steve Hutchinson manages Huron Camera in Chelsea. He also runs a photography business on the side.

"Everyone here is your neighbor. I know 75 percent of the people who come in Huron Camera."

When he is not working at either business, Hutchinson can be found spending spare time with his fiancée, Stephanie Griffith. He also takes photography and business classes at Washtenaw Community College.

It's no surprise that Hutchinson collects antique cameras. He also likes to play pool and go to the movies.

WEDDINGS AND ENGAGEMENTS

Laura Thomas, Thomas Rayer marry

Laura Marie Thomas and Thomas Joseph Rayer were married Oct. 10 at Island Wedding Chapel in Las Vegas. The Reverend James Worsham presided.

The bride is the daughter of James Thomas and Patricia Bedwell of Ann Arbor. The groom is the son of Thomas and Patricia Rayer of Ann Arbor.

Catherine Peak of Galveston served as maid of honor. Erik Kinsler of Ann Arbor served as best man. 62 guests and relatives attended.

The reception was held at the MGM Grand Rainforest Cafe in Las Vegas. An open-house was also held on Nov. 7 at the newlyweds' home in Dexter. They honeymooned on a seven-day Carribean cruise.

Mignano, Taylor recite vows

Kathleen Mignano and Adam Taylor, both of Chelsea, were married Sept. 12 at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Chelsea. Father Joseph Rinaldo of St. Louis Center presided over the ceremony.

Mignano is the daughter of Sheila Rodenkirch of Chelsea and Joe Mignano of Chelsea. Taylor is the son of Rebecca Barkley of Chelsea and Thomas Taylor of Chelsea.

Christine Mignano of Dexter was maid of honor. Jenni Meyers of Dexter, Jessica Rodenkirch of Seattle, Sherry Dukes of Chelsea, Jen Tonjes of Ohio and Martha Taylor of Chelsea served as bridesmaids. Allie Smith of Chelsea served as flower girl.

Thomas Taylor of Chelsea was best man. Ryan Beggs of Albuquerque, Rick Clouse, Chris Dunham, Ben Hurst and Adam Tillman, all from Chelsea, served as ushers.

The reception was held at the UAW hall on M-52. They are residing in Chelsea but will soon move to Albuquerque and then Florida.

The bride is a graduate of Eastern Michigan University. She is employed at Children's Playspace in Ann Arbor.

The groom was attending the University of New Mexico when he was drafted by the Cleveland Indians. He is employed at Chelsea Schools and will report to the Cleveland Indians' Double-A minor league camp in Florida in the spring.

ENGAGED: Allison Wesla Keen of Chelsea and Michael David Marable of Macomb Township are engaged and planning a May 8 wedding. The future bride is the daughter of Theodore and Margaret Betts of Birmingham. She is a 1991 University of Michigan graduate and is employed by the University of Michigan Press. The future bridegroom is the son of David and Janet Marable of Macomb Township. He is a 1993 Walsh College graduate and is employed by Borders Group, Inc.

Church plans another dinner

The Chelsea First United Methodist Church's first monthly community fellowship dinner was a success.

"We apologize to those who came and had to be turned away. The response was greater than we expected," said a church spokesman. The church will host a chicken dinner on Thursday, Dec. 10, from 5:30 p.m.-7 p.m.

The menu will include chicken, mashed potatoes, green beans and homemade pie.

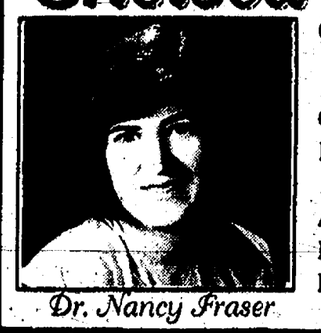

Tickets are $7 for adults and $4 for ages 4-12. Tickets available at the door.

Call the church office at 475-8119 for information.

Cagers nip Saline in finale

Margaret Schick sank a free throw with 1.4 seconds left in the game to give Chelsea a 42-41 victory over the Saline Hornets in the final game of the regular season last Thursday.

The victory gave Chelsea an overall record of 11-9 and a 7-5 mark in the Southeastern Conference.

It was a game marked by very aggressive play by both teams.

The game was close throughout, although Chelsea built a 24-18 by halftime.

Karla Dettling led the Bulldogs with 14 points. Michelle Dettling scored 10, Lindsay Powers had nine, Lindsey Brink and Amy McCalla had four each, and Schick had the lone free throw.

The previous Tuesday, Chelsea upended the Pinckney Pirates 46-39.

The Pirates made a run in the fourth quarter, outscoring the Bulldogs 14-8 after falling behind 38-25.

Schick paced Chelsea with 14 points, while Brink added 11, and Powers had eight.

Chelsea was scheduled to play the winner of the Brooklyn Columbia Central-Tecumseh game last night in its first game of the district tournament in Brooklyn. A win would put Chelsea in Friday's finals at Brooklyn Columbia Central, most likely against state-ranked Dexter.

"When one looks at the final record of the Chelsea soccer team this year, one might think that this team was average," said head coach Chris Orlandi.

"This team was more than average because it achieved its full potential by the end of the season.

"These guys responded well to me as a new coach. They learned my system, and they played their guts out in their final couple of games. I know these players will remember the upset of Saline on Soccer Night and how well they played against Lumen Christi in the district competition. We were pretty sure we would end our season with a

JV basketball team concludes outstanding season

Caitlin Deis goes up for the shot against Saline.

Chelsea junior varsity basketball team suffered only its third loss of the season last Tuesday, Nov. 10 to the Pinckney Pirates, 53-48.

The teams dueled to a draw in both the second and fourth quarters. The Pirates led 16-14 after the first quarter, then stretched their lead to five, 43-38, in the third quarter.

Pinckney shot 49 percent from the field, including three three-point goals.

Jessica Cole led the Bulldogs with 16 points. Caitlin Biedron scored 10, Lindsey Baker and Caitlin Deis each scored eight, and Sally Compton had six points. Biedron grabbed seven rebounds and Baker had five steals.

Chelsea rebounded on Thursday, Nov. 12 to take a thrilling 53-46 victory over the Saline Hornets in overtime.

The Bulldogs fell behind by nine points at halftime, 23-14, and found themselves down by the same amount at the end of the third quarter.

The fourth-quarter comeback was led by Baker, Tara Koch, Deis and Biedron.

Then Cole dominated the overtime period by scoring seven of her 24 points.

Rounding out the scoring were Deis with 10, Baker with eight points, Biedron with seven and Koch and Compton with two each.

Deis, Cole and Biedron each had five rebounds, while Baker and Koch each had three steals.

Although the loss to Pinckney dropped the Bulldogs into second place in the Southeastern Conference, Chelsea still finished with a 10-2 mark in the league and a 17-3 record overall.

Hockey club knocks off Pinckney Pirates

The Chelsea Bulldog hockey club split a pair of games last week. Both were very close and high energy.

Friday, Nov. 12 proved unlucky for the Bulldogs as they lost 2-1 to the very physical Grand Rapids Falcons.

Goalie Mike Osborne faced 23 Falcon shots, stopping all but single goals in the second and third periods.

Chelsea was aided by many key penalties by the Falcons but could only capitalize on a single goal by captain Bill Lucas. Assisting on the lone Bulldog goal were Steve Williams and Nolan Ahrens.

Chelsea was outshot 23-17 but played sound defense in mustering a strong effort against this very fast and physical team.

After two one-goal losses in the first two games of the season, history was almost repeated on Saturday, Nov. 14, as the Bulldogs played host to the Pinckney Pirates. More than 225 spectators watched as the Bulldogs erased a 2-1 Pinckney lead to score two of their own in the third period for the 3-2 win.

Chelsea outshot the Pirates 35-16, but still had to rely on a tenacious defensive stand and key saves by goaltender Casey Johnson in the closing moments of this very exciting game.

Scoring for the Bulldogs were Lucas, Brett Poupard, and the game winner coming from Williams with just 4:50 remaining in regulation play. Chalking up assists were Williams, T.J. Smashey, and two from speedster Ahrens.

Chelsea outshot Pinckney 35-16, but needed a motivational speech between the second and third periods by coach Don Wright. This lit a fire under the team as they dominated play in the final period, allowing just five shots on net.

Cal Dunham moves the puck against Pinckney.

loss.

"A coach's hope is that his players will go down with everything they have to give. We saved our best games for last, and that made this season tremendously satisfying.

"The guys that are coming back next year will be ready to accept whatever new challenges they face. The defense should be a strength as all four starters will return. Offensively, the team will have to find production from new people if they are to move up in the SEC standings.

"This was an interim job for me, and my goal was to teach these kids how to work hard and play together. I want to be able to find a quality coach to give this program the respect it deserves."

JV soccer team gives out awards

Chelsea JV soccer team concluded their 1998 season by joining the varsity team at a banquet at the Chelsea Community Hospital dining room.

The JV overall record was 6-8-1 with a Southeastern Conference record of 2-7-1.

The team scored 31 goals on 148 shots while giving up 42 goals from 197 shots.

The team's best performances came in some close losses, such as the Ann Arbor Huron 3-2 loss, the 2-1 loss against the Milan varsity team during the SEC Showcase, and an extremely physical game when Chelsea hosted Pinckney the second time around the SEC.

The team had an outstanding game early in the season when it beat Jackson Lumen Christi 4-2. The team dominated Ypsilanti, Monroe Jefferson and Lincoln in two games.

According to coach Jim Hicks, the team also should be commended for its sportsmanship both on and off the field.

The leading scorer for the season was Andy Montero with nine goals and two assists. Jeff Heydlauff led the team in assists while only playing in six games before an injury took him out for most of the remainder of the season.

Outstanding defensive players included Brian Phillips, Kevin Phillips, Chris Klien and Derek Egeler. Charlie DeGryse had 116 saves as goalkeeper, appearing in all the games. Scott Holefka had 18 saves as the backup keeper.

Captain's arm-bands were presented to tri-captains Patrick Murphy, Robert Huehl and Scott Holefka.

Individual awards were decided by a vote of the players.

The Most Improved Player Award was presented to Jacob Carty. Carty was cited for his excellent one-on-one tackling ability. He was also one for one from the penalty mark.

The Most Valuable Player award had co-recipients as the team voted evenly for Brian Phillips and DeGryse.

Phillips was outstanding at sweeper this season and had a commanding voice in the running of the team defense, Hicks said. DeGryse played outstanding ball in the goal mouth, turning away 116 out of 151 shots on goal. He had a 2.33 goals-against average.

Hicks pointed out in presenting the award that DeGryse also set the standard for effort in practice throughout the season.

Participation awards went to juniors Phillips, Murphy and Egeler, sophomores DeGryse, Heydlauff, Huehl, Klien, and Mike Miller. Freshmen receiving class numerals were Adam Poplawski, Kevin Phillips, Montero, Holefka, Robert Dorer, Carty and Zac Christman.

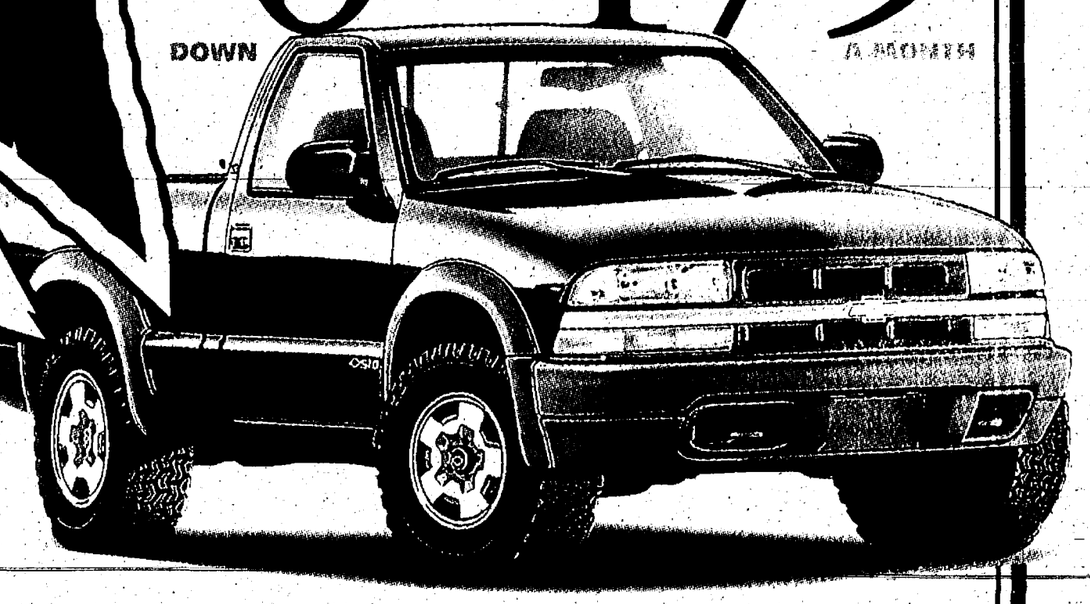

A special award went to Matt Hollo, the team manager and the fastest ballboy around.

Unlikely that wolverines ever lived in state

JERRY D. POSEY

ABOUT THE OUTDOORS

Ask any sports fan what a wolverine is and he will probably describe it as being large, mean and very defensive.

He might tell you that they are fierce fighters and are usually found in packs of 11 or more. Then he will add, oh yea, they wear blue-and-gold uniforms and are hard to defeat in any game they play.

That is all true, and it may be a good description of the only type of wolverine that ever inhabited our fine state.

Though the sports teams from University of Michigan were named after the fearless fur-bearing wolverine, and most years they try hard to live up to its reputation, there is little, if any, proof that the critters ever actually inhabited any part of the state.

Most biologists and historians agree that if there ever were any in Michigan, they disappeared long before 1900. No proof of a live wolverine existing in the wilds of our state has been produced since that time, and most evidence that they ever existed at all has not been provided to the liking of those who determine these kinds of things.

It is an accepted fact that wolverine pelts were traded in our state long ago, by the early fur trappers, but there is no real proof that they were actually trapped and caught on what is now Michigan land. Since many trappers moved around a great deal, the skins could have traveled great distances before ending up at the local trading post.

The stories about the cunning and wile of this creature, as told by the hunters and trappers of years gone by, made good reading material. The stories probably spread from far away places and the names and places were changed each time the stories were told to make for a more exciting episode.

One of my favorite wolverine stories was about one mean ol' male that set up a vendetta against an upper-peninsula trapper back in the days of old Fort Michilimackinac (the original one).

It seems this old trapper had taken the ornery critter's mate in one of his traps and started a battle that went on for a whole winter and covered more than 50 miles of the old man's trapline. It was claimed that this wolverine thought just like a man and was always one step ahead of the trapper in his attempts to survive in the northern Michigan wilderness.

The creature that thought like a man would run the trapper's trapline each day, ahead of the trapper, and destroy each and every fur the man was lucky enough to catch.

When the trapping season ended in the spring, the trapper had only a few badly chewed up furs to show for his efforts. Before he caught the first boat out of the territory, he made sure that anyone who would listen knew of the "devil beast" that had ruined his dreams of fame and riches.

Probably not all the stories about this critter of the wilderness and solitude were of a negative nature, but I cannot remember hearing anyone say anything nice about these animals.

The wolverine (the furry kind) now seems to do well in places like Alaska where they (and any other animal so wishing) can be born, live a long life and die without ever seeing or hearing anything that has to do with another creature called man.

It is believed that there are a few wolverines in some of our Northwestern states, such as the remote areas of Montana, Idaho and Wyoming. But most biologists feel these animals are itinerant and have not really established home territories since they wandered across the border from Canada.

Not long ago there was much talk about placing the wolverine on the Endangered Species list, but to the best of my knowledge it has not yet been done.

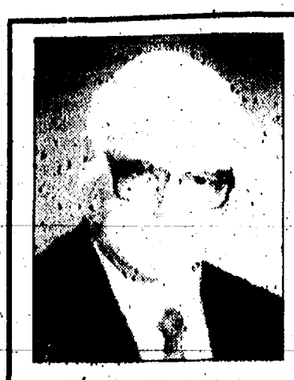

The wolverine is a fierce fighter and has been reported as being able to more than hold its own when involved in a territory dispute or a battle over the remains of an animal carcass.

Many much larger animals will avoid a confrontation with a hungry wolverine. They say that even medium-sized bears and mountain lions will give space to an intruding wolverine if they have had occasion to run up against one at an earlier date.

Wolverines are good parents and take excellent care of the two to four young that they can produce each spring. The males don't hang around long after the young are born. They will sometimes help the female obtain food for the young when needed, but only after they have eaten their fill.

The wolverine needs solitude and wide open spaces to roam around in, so it has not converted into a creature that can co-exist with mankind as some other animals have. Those like the coyote and fox continue to do well in areas where man has developed the wilderness into farmland and homesites, but the wolverine has not done so.

Even if there were no Michigan wolverines in the wild in our state, we still have the blue-and-gold type from the Ann Arbor area to support and root for. That is, unless they are playing against Michigan State. Right?

Proceeds from the sale will go to the emergency room renovation and expansion project. For more information call 475-3913.

Village Council to discuss bus service Nov. 24

Chelsea Village Council will discuss bus service between Chelsea and Ann Arbor Nov. 24, after tabling the measure at its recent meeting. The council wanted to ask the Ann Arbor Transit Authority about efforts to raise ridership.

According to information provided by AATA, Chelsea ridership increased over the course of last year, reaching over 30 passengers per day during the summer months. The council will likely decide whether to continue the service at its next meeting.

Michigan Streams and Lakes — Opening Day of Trout - April 26th

Stream MAP of Michigan

Why every fisherman needs this map

It is estimated that 10% of all the fishermen catch 90% of the fish. Regardless of which group you fall into... there's a sure way to up your odds... simply try new fishing waters. Fish where few fishermen ever fish.

Michigan is loaded with great fishing waters...many of them overlooked. From the AuSable River to all of the Great Lakes tributaries to the Pere Marquette River...thousands of miles of streams, lakes and rivers are now easy-to-locate on one map.

Professor Higbee's Stream Map of Michigan is the first and only highly detailed map of its kind. This new 4 foot by 4 foot color map shows virtually all of the 35,000 miles of Michigan streams & lakes on both peninsulas. That's almost two times the earth's circumference!

Professor Higbee's® STREAMS

LOST STREAM MAP FOUND AND RESTORED

The recently published STREAM MAP OF MICHIGAN is just like another map - known to Pennsylvania anglers as the "Lost Stream Map."

The "Stream Map of Pennsylvania" was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible...a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand, the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 x 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well -- until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates, declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to the landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

The experts had always told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue. Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Holding an updated map, Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

Then, by combining Professor Higbee's knowledge with computer technology - the STREAM MAP OF MICHIGAN was created.

RAVE REVIEWS

"It is amazingly detailed and names some creeks in the Mohawk Valley that can't even be found on topographic maps."
John Pitarres
OBSERVER-DISPATCH-Utica

"If you're looking for the most definitive maps ever created depicting every single creek, river, stream, pond and lake ...then "Professor Higbee's Stream Maps" are without question the finest.
Howard Brant
THE NEWARK STAR-LEDGER

"It is in showing where to find out-of-the-way trout streams that makes the map such a treasure to the fisherman.
Joe Gordon
TRIBUNE-DEMOCRAT-Johnstown

FREE LOCATION GUIDEBOOK INCLUDED

Pinpoint the best fishing in Michigan with this valuable 40 page guide. Easily locate over 5,000 streams and lakes shown on the "Stream Map." Your map and guidebook will take you to the top 443 fishing waters - select waters for 14 species of gamefish.

Spanking not accepted today

JAMES JACKSON
AMY FOUNDATION

CROSSROADS

A Nevada mom was arrested for leaving a baby in a car in summer heat to go gambling.

A Midwest mother was arrested after a bystander saw her swat her kid on the bottom, and called the police.

Both women were sentenced to attend "parenting classes." While it certainly seems appropriate to force a misguided parent to learn the proper way to protect and discipline a child, a government-run "parenting class" sounded rather chilling.

I contacted one such program for more information. I was advised that parenting classes teach parents all areas of child rearing; changing diapers, potty training, discipline, decision-making, etc.

I asked whether the instructors had successfully raised families of their own. I was told that some instructors are parents, but most are childless, single, and often recent college graduates. But the entire staff, she assured me, were certified in the latest child-rearing methodology (which didn't ease my mind much).

The program director said the most prevalent problem is improper parental discipline. "You wouldn't believe how many parents still don't realize that under no circumstances should spanking or hitting be used to discipline children.

"The second most frequent problem," she said, "is not parent endangering children, but, rather parents who try to 'control' their children, which stifles self-expression."

She dismissed my suggestion that there is a big difference between spanking in love to bring about correction and beating, and that a parent who places gambling, drugs or anything else ahead of a child's safety needs to first rid themselves of self-defeating personal behavior before they can benefit from parenting classes.

She advised me that such an unenlightened approach to discipline was antiquated and not applicable in rearing children of the "90's." The philosophy behind such programs promotes social engineering rather than effective parenting. Steeped in secular humanism, "corrective parenting" programs are the antithesis of traditional, proven child-rearing steps.

For instance, parenting experts believe spanking teaches a child to use violence to resolve conflict. Experts tell us to choose words that inspire the child to behave. When words don't work, the only acceptable recourse is to place the child in "time out" mode (during which the child typically either screams and trashes his room, or sulks defiantly).

The Bible says, "He who spares the rod hates his son. But he who loves him disciplines him promptly." Today's social engineers have reversed this concept by teaching that love means never having to discipline a child.

Discipline may, at once, be punitive (when required), corrective and instructive. It is terribly ineffective when any one of those approaches is used to the exclusion of the others.

Each new generation thinks it has created a better way. Today's politically correct approach encourages moral degradation through music, print and TV while frowning upon such concepts as personal integrity, accountability and morality. Instead of parents guiding their children, many young simply drift through life with little or no direction, embracing any fad or counter-culture gimmick and making heroes of people who were once considered social outcasts.

Dramatic increases in child crime, violence, irreverence and immorality trumpet the failure of today's dominant philosophy that strives for "good feelings" rather than teaching children to be good. In past generations, parents, teachers and churches worked together to teach children to make proper life choices and to respect authority, which usually resulted in strong, honorable adults.

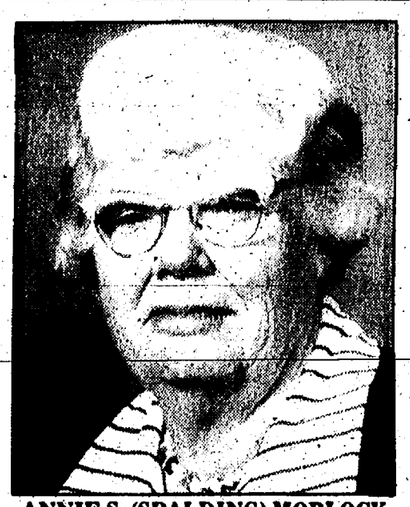

Families sat around the dinner table (families rarely eat together today), where parents learned what was going on in their kids' lives. Is the child involved in inappropriate activity or violent or profane music? Who are their friends? Are they involved in illegal behavior or gangs?

Children learned how to address life issues from their parents. Most parents knew their children so well that they could almost read their thoughts just by eye contact. Likewise, they could send a corrective message to a child across a crowded room. Today, the child appears to be in control more often than not.

Parenting is tough, but it's not the government's job. Parents are charged with the responsibility to teach and discipline their children. Those who believe that discipline and moral absolutes should be avoided may have lots of book knowledge, but I'd rather depend upon the Book by the One who has infinite knowledge.

Antiquarian Society meets

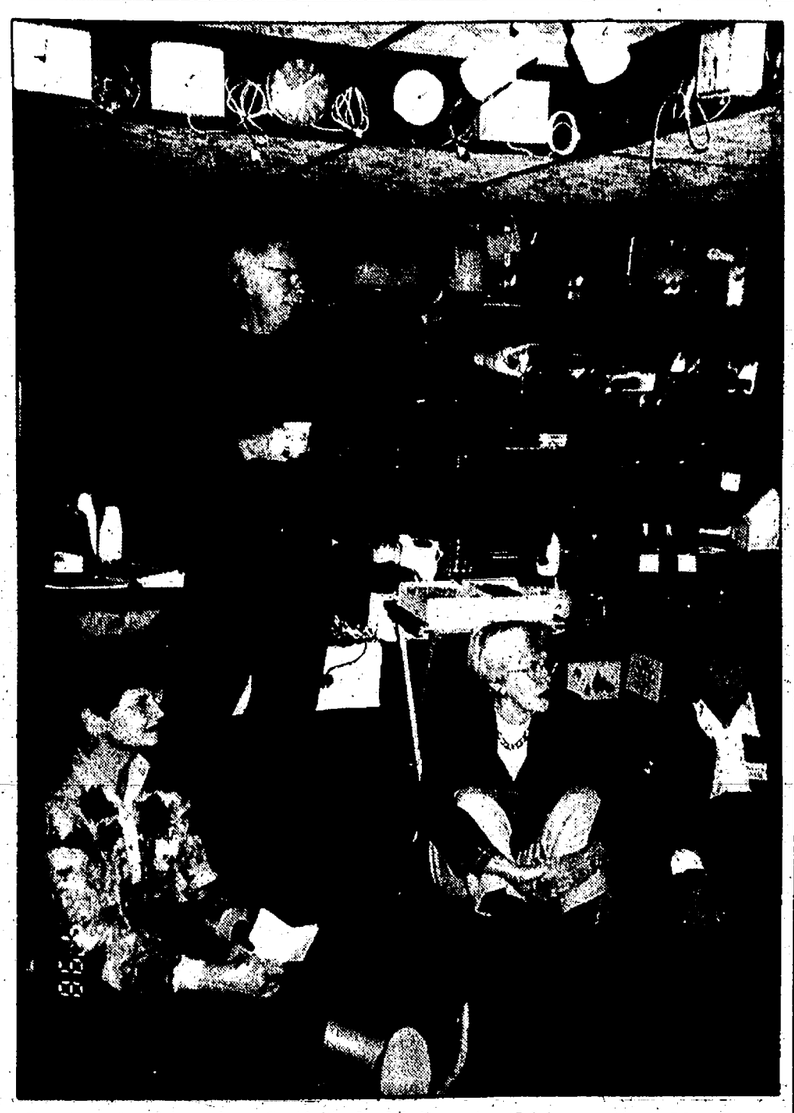

Members of the Dexter Antiquarian Society took a step back in time Nov. 4 when they visited Ann Arbor resident Herbert Pfabe in The Chrome Zone.

Pfabe collects vintage electric kitchen appliances and has them on display in his basement, which he has dubbed The Chrome Zone. Among the items are waffle-makers, juicers, blenders, sandwich grills, electric flour sifters and toasters.

Some of his most interesting appliances are a GE mixer with a light bulb to shine on the batter, a conveyor belt toaster from the late '40s, a Detroit double-action drawer toaster and a Manning-Bowman Twin-O-Matic waffle iron, which he said was a popular wedding gift in the '40s.

Dexter Antiquarian Jean Thomas added to Pfabe's toaster collection, presenting him with a heart-shaped Universal toaster from the late 1920s.

Pfabe has amassed hundreds of gadgets over the years by scouring antique fairs, flea markets and garage sales in Ohio, Virginia, New York and Connecticut, as well as across Michigan.

Dexter Antiquarian Society held its monthly meeting Nov. 4 at the home of Herbert Pfabe, a collector of vintage electric kitchen appliances. Pictured with Pfabe are Cece Copeland, Mary Lou Speers and Madonna Ruhlig.

Local resident in Marine exercise

Marine Lance Cpl. Aaron A. Klapperich, son of Ted J. and Mary L. Klapperich of Dexter, recently participated in Exercise Cooperative Best Effort '98 in the former Yugoslavian republic of Macedonia with the 22nd Marine Expeditionary Unit (MEU).

During the seven-day exercise, Klapperich's unit conducted a non-combatant evacuation more than 80 miles ashore, demonstrating its ability to operate independently of the Amphibious Ready Group ships.

The third annual training evolution of its kind, Cooperative Best Effort '98 hosted 27 NATO and Partnership for Peace nations with a focus on understanding and friendship among participants. The exercise provided a forum to exchange, learn and practice skills gained in peacekeeping operations in recent years and assess the quality of infantry within NATO's militaries.

Home based in Camp Lejeune, N.C., Klapperich's unit is an expeditionary intervention force with the ability to rapidly organize for combat operations in virtually any environment. MEUs are composed of more than 2,000 personnel and are divided into an infantry battalion, an aircraft squadron, a support group and a command element, with the combination of these teams, Klapperich's unit supplies and sustains itself for either quick mission accomplishment or clearing the way for follow-on forces.

The 1994 graduate of Dexter High School joined the Marine Corps in February 1997.

Hospital first to offer new prostate treatment

Chelsea Community Hospital is the first hospital in Michigan to offer a nonsurgical, microwave treatment for enlarged prostate disease.

The treatment is called prostration transurethral microwave thermotherapy (TUMT). Prostatron is the only medical device approved by the FDA for treatment of both symptoms and obstruction caused by non-cancerous enlarged prostate disease, a condition known as benign prostatic hyperplasia (BPH). BPH is estimated to affect half of all men over age 60.

Approved by the FDA in May of 1996, the prostatron uses microwave energy to safely eliminate excess prostate cells, thereby relieving symptoms such as the need to urinate frequently, hesitancy or urgency. The treatment's built-in cooling system circulates water within the catheter containing the microwave antenna, thus protecting adjacent tissue from excessive temperatures. Throughout the treatment, a fiberoptic thermosensor continuously monitors the treatment temperatures for safety. Performed in an outpatient setting, the one-hour, single session procedure requires no anesthesia.

Dr. Howard Usitalo, urologist at Chelsea Community Hospital says, "We now hold the enviable position of being able to offer the most advanced treatment alternative to men suffering from prostate enlargement. Men have been waiting for a choice of treatment that is a painless, non-surgical procedure which allows them to resume normal activities almost immediately — this is the prosatron."

BPH is the enlargement of the prostate gland, which causes urinary problems in at least 50 percent of men over age 60 — some 20 million men in the United States. Increasingly common as men age, excess cell growth in the prostate gland squeezes the urethra, causing a variety of urinary symptoms, including increased frequency, urgency and straining to urinate. The condition may cause considerable discomfort and diminish one's quality of life.

Used in Europe and Asia since 1991, the prostatron technique has treated over 50,000 patients worldwide. There have never been any incidents of incontinence or impotence associated with the procedure, which are potential side effects of other procedures.

To locate a physician trained in the prostatron technique and who will provide more information, call the Chelsea Community Hospital Physician Referral Line at (734) 475-4050.

Hors d' oeuvres

Party Cheese Ball
Carlyn M. Boivin
Saline
Category Finalist

1 (8 oz.) package cream cheese
2 small cans deviled ham, Underwood brand
1 package Hidden Valley Ranch Dressing
1/4 cup mayonnaise OR salad dressing
2 cups shredded colby or cheddar cheese

Blend cream cheese and ham until creamy. Add dry ranch dressing mix and mayonnaise. Continue blending until smooth. Stir in cheese and mix well. Spoon mixture onto a large piece of waxed paper. Wrap well and shape into a ball. Chill overnight. Great with crackers or party rye bread.

Ham Balls
Kelly Drake
Saline
Category Finalist

1 pound ground pork
1 pound ground, fully-cooked ham
2 eggs
3/4 cup milk
2/3 cup crushed, shredded wheat cereal

Sauce:
1-1/2 cups packed brown sugar
2/3 cup water
1/3 cup vinegar
3/4 teaspoon ground mustard

In a bowl, combine pork, ham, eggs, milk, and cereal; mix well. Shape into 1-inch balls; place into 9"X13" baking dish. In a saucepan, combine sauce ingredients. Bring to a boil over medium heat. Reduce heat; simmer, uncovered, for 4 minutes. Pour over hamballs. Bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees for 60-70 minutes or until browned.

Holiday Ham Balls
Vicki Stark
Chelsea

Main Course

Grilled Lemon Rosemary Chicken
Gretchen McCann
Ann Arbor

Marinade:
1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
1/2 cup lemon juice
1/2 cup white wine vinegar
1/4 cup chopped shallots or onion
2 tablespoon fresh rosemary
2 tablespoons Dijon mustard
2 cloves minced garlic
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon salt
1-1/2 cups salad oil

Combine all ingredients except salad oil in bowl of food processor or blender. Slowly add oil through feeding tube or blender opening. Process thoroughly.

Marinate 10-12 chicken breasts, halved, in sealed bags several hours or overnight. Grill 6 inches from heat, brushing with marinade frequently, or boil under broiler in oven.

Stifado (Greek stew)
Gretchen McCann
Ann Arbor

1/4 cup olive oil
1-1/2 pounds boneless beef chuck cut into 1-1/2 inch cubes
2 tablespoons flour
12 oz. small white pearl onions, peeled
1 pound tomatoes (peeled, seeded, and chopped) or canned, drained
3 cloves garlic, minced
1 teaspoon thyme
1 teaspoon oregano
1 teaspoon rosemary
1 bay leaf, crumpled
1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
2 cups dry red wine
1/2 pound feta cheese, crumbled

Heat oil in heavy Dutch oven. Toss beef with flour in large bowl. Add beef to pan with oil in batches. Cool until brown, stirring occasionally, approximately 3 minutes per batch. Add onions to pan and cook until light brown, stirring. Add tomatoes, garlic, herbs, and cumin to onions. Return beef and any juices in bowl to pan. Stir in wine and bring to boil. Transfer to large, covered casserole dish and bake at 350 degrees until beef is tender, about 2 hours. (If prepared ahead, rewarm at 350 degrees). Stir feta into stew. Return to oven and continue baking until cheese is heated through, approximately 10 minutes.

Mexican Chicken Soup
Dale Dedrick
Ann Arbor
Category Finalist

1 to 1-1/2 pound boneless, skinless chicken breast
2 (14.5 oz.) cans stewed tomatoes, undrained
2 chicken bouillon cubes OR 2 teaspoons powdered
1 (4 oz.) can chopped green chilies, undrained
1 teaspoon chili powder
1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
1/8 teaspoon ground red pepper
1 cup frozen whole kernel corn
1 cup chopped zucchini, cup into 1 to 1-1/2 inch pieces

Combine 4 cups of water and all ingredients except corn and zucchini in large pot. Bring to boil; simmer in covered pot 30 minutes. Remove chicken and cut or shred to bite-sized pieces. Return to pot and add frozen corn and zucchini. Cook an additional 10-15 minutes and serve.

Parsley and Radish Soup
Hiroyo Russell
Clinton

3 cups chicken broth
1 bunch parsley and radish
2 green onions
2 cloves garlic
1/4 teaspoon salt and pepper
2 teaspoon butter
nutmeg to taste

Puree parsley, radish, green onion, and garlic in blender. Melt butter in sauce pan; add vegetable paste. Add broth, salt, pepper, and nutmeg. Bring to boil and simmer 2 minutes.

Chicken Veggie Pot Pie
Karen Lange
Saline
Category Finalist

1 can cream of chicken soup
1-1/2 cups chopped, cooked chicken
2 cups frozen mixed vegetables, thawed

Mix all ingredients and pour in an unbaked pie shell. Top with pinch salt and 1/4 teaspoon pepper. Cover with leftover mashed, whipped potatoes, or with prepared Orieda mashed potatoes. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour.

Pork Loin with Vegetable Stuffing
Jennifer Toth
Saline

4 tablespoons plus 1-1/2 teaspoon butter
1 tablespoon plus 1-1/2 teaspoon vegetable oil
1 cup finely-chopped onion
1 cup finely-chopped celery
1 cup finely-chopped green pepper
4 or 5 cloves garlic (minced)
2 tablespoons plus 1-1/2 teaspoon Cajun seasoning
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
4-5 pounds boneless pork loin

Melt butter and vegetable oil in large skillet. Add all vegetables and seasonings. Sauté for 4 minutes. Slit pork loin lengthwise. Stuff with vegetable mixture. Tie roast together with string and rub remaining mixture over roast. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate 24 hours. Set roast at room temperature 2 hours before cooking. Place in roasting pan, uncovered and cook at 275 degrees for 3 hours. Then at 425 degrees for 15 minutes. Let stand 20 minutes before carving. Serves 6-8.

Zucchini Crescent Pie
Cathie Simmons
Chelsea

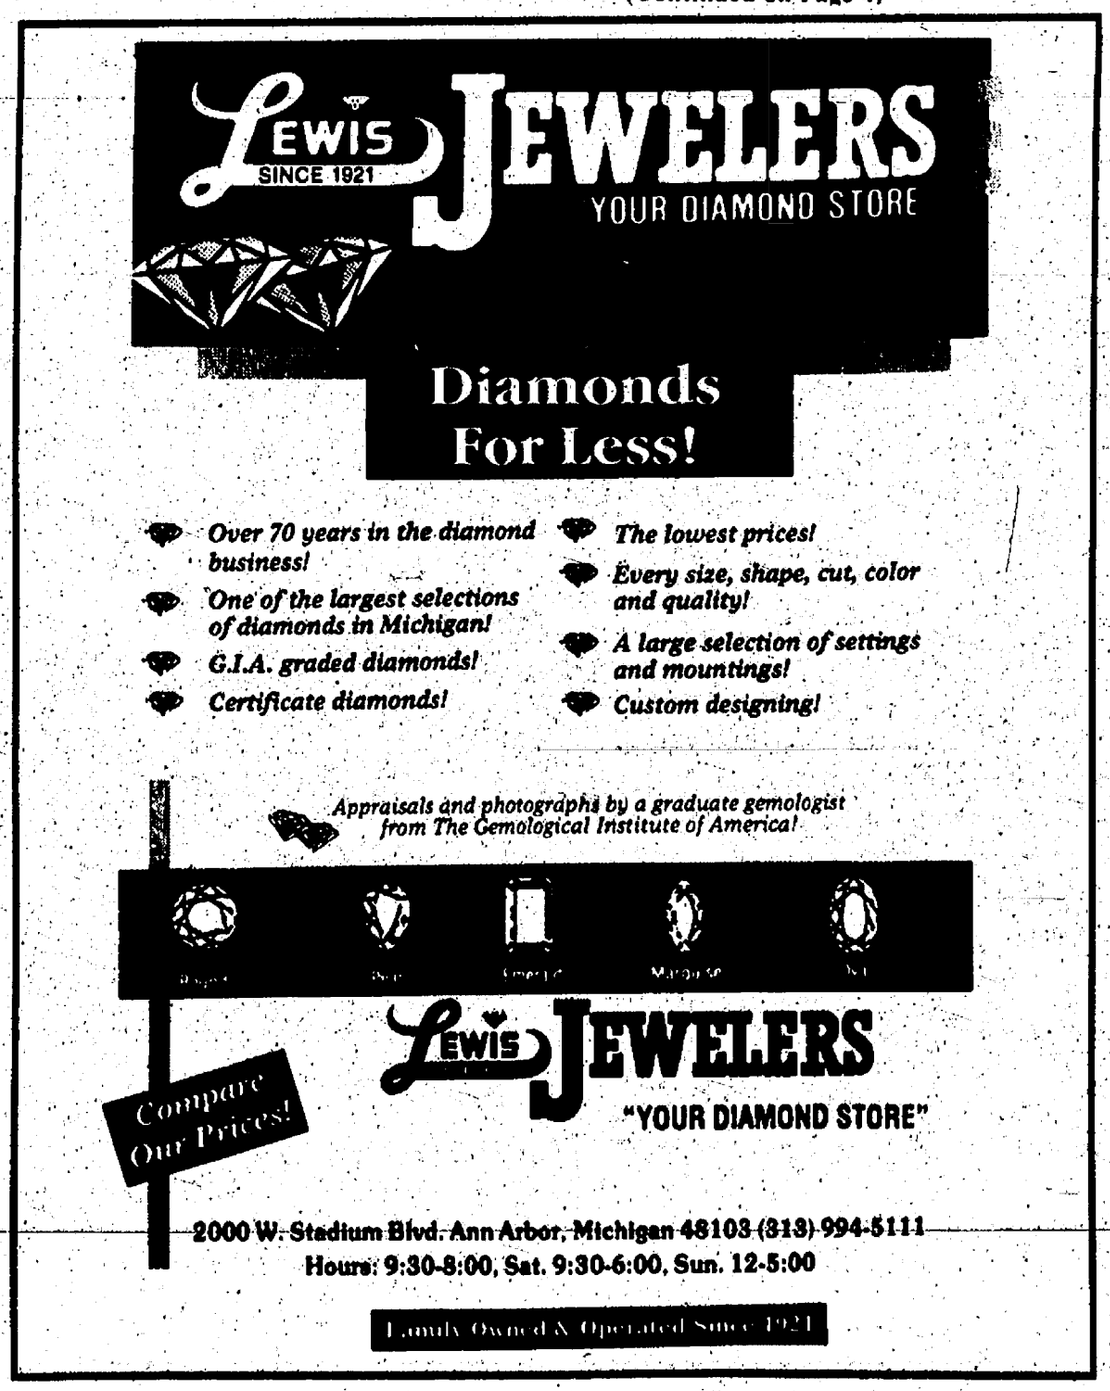

4 cups thinly-sliced, unpeeled zucchini
1 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup margarine
2 tablespoons parsley
1 teaspoon mixed Italian seasonings
2 eggs, well beaten
2 cups mozzarella cheese
1 can Pillsbury refrigerated crescent dinner rolls
2 teaspoons Dijon mustard

Heat oven to 375 degrees. Sauté zucchini and onion in margarine until tender. Stir in parsley and seasonings. In large bowl, blend eggs and cheese; stir in vegetable mixture. Separate dough into 8 triangles for 10-inch pie pan OR 2 strips for 12"X8" baking pan. Press over bottom and up sides of ungreased pan. Spread crust with mustard. Pour vegetable mix evenly onto crust. Bake for 18-20 minutes, or until knife inserted near center comes out clean.

Crab Stuffed Squash
Hiroyo Russell
Clinton

2 medium butternut squash; stemmed, halved, cavity cleaned vegetable oil cooking spray
1/4 cup chopped mushrooms
4 tablespoons shallots, minced
1 garlic clove
1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
1/2 cup skim milk
1/4 cup white vermouth

6 oz. crabmeat, drained
1/2 cup bread crumbs
2 tablespoon parmesan cheese
1/3 cup sundried tomatoes, chopped and soaked in boiling water for 15 minutes. Drain.
1/2 teaspoon pepper

Place squash on a microwave-safe dish and microwave each half for 5-10 minutes. Spray large skillet with vegetable oil cooking spray and place over medium heat. Add mushrooms, shallots, and garlic, sauté 5 minutes or until tender. Stir in flour until blended. Gradually blend in milk and bring to boil. Add vermouth and stir for 3 minutes or until thickened. Remove pan from heat and add crabmeat, breadcrumbs, parmesan cheese, tomatoes, and pepper. Evenly divide the stuffing into squash halves. Microwave 1 additional minute just before serving.

Meat Balls
Laverne M. Boike

3 pounds ground sirloin
3 eggs
1/2 teaspoon pepper
3 teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon sugar
3/8 teaspoon nutmeg
6 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1-1/2 cups dried bread crumbs
2/3 cups milk
2/3 cup tomato juice

Mix together all ingredients. Form into balls and brown. Freeze ahead – thaw and put into crock pot. Add 1 jar beef gravy, 1 jar onion gravy, and 1/2 cup hot water. Heat on low for 3 hours. Makes 100 small balls.

Sausage Stuffing Balls
Loretta Beal
Stockbridge
Category Finalist

1 pound pork sausage
1 box Stove Top stuffing mix
3/4 cup hot water
1/2 cup finely-chopped onion
1/2 cup finely-chopped celery
1 egg, beaten
1/2 teaspoon baking powder

Combine stuffing mix with hot water. Break sausage into small pieces and add to stuffing mixture. Stir in onion, celery, egg, and baking powder. Shape into balls (1/4 cup mixture for each ball). Place in baking pan. Cover tightly with foil. Bake at 325 degrees for 15 minutes, remove foil, and turn oven to 350 degrees. Bake for 25 minutes more, or until brown. Makes 18-22 balls. Serve with chicken gravy and mashed potatoes.

Make Ahead Breakfast Casserole
Sandra Rich
Saline

2 pounds pork sausage
12 eggs, slightly beaten
3 cups milk
2 pounds Ore Ida O'Brien hash browns, defrosted
1 teaspoon dry mustard
2 cups shredded, sharp cheddar cheese

Brown sausage, drain, and spread into bottom of a 9x13 pan. Mix remaining ingredients and pour over meat. Cover and refrigerate overnight. Bake at 350 degrees for 60-70 minutes. Let stand for 5 minutes then cut into squares.

Note: Can put frozen hash browns in microwave to defrost.

For 9x9 pan, use: 1 pound sausage, 8 eggs, 1-1/2 cup milk, 1 pound hash browns, 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 cup shredded cheese; and bake 45-55 minutes.

Baked Tomato
Hiroyo Russell
Clinton

3 tomatoes, cut in half horizontally (round and big tomatoes are better) pepper to taste
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoon butter
3 teaspoon vegetable oil
1/2 cup onion, finely chopped
1 clove garlic, chopped
1/2 cup breadcrumbs
1/4 cup parmesan cheese
1/2 cup mozzarella cheese

Preheat oven at 375 degrees. Put salt and pepper on tomatoes, set aside for 5 minutes. Heat pan on medium, add 1 teaspoon oil and 1 teaspoon butter. Add onion and garlic. Stir until tender. Add breadcrumbs. Stir 1 minute. Heat pan on high. Add 2 teaspoons oil. Put tomatoes cut-side down and fry for 30 seconds. Fry other side in same fashion. Put them on oven-safe dish. Cover tomatoes with onion mixture, cheese, and remaining teaspoon butter, divided. Bake for 10 minutes or until cheese is melted.

Bread Mushroom Stuffing
Irene Smith
Milan

1/2 cup margarine
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 cup chopped celery
1 tablespoon minced fresh parsley
1 package chopped fresh mushrooms (9-12 oz.)
1-1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
1/2 teaspoon black pepper
1 loaf (20-22 slices) white bread

Melt margarine in large fry pan; add onion, celery, parsley, and mushrooms. Sauté until tender. Add salt, poultry seasoning, and black pepper. While mixture in sautéing, hold individual slices of bread under water faucet to dampen; squeeze out any excess water and place in a large bowl. Add sautéed mixture to moistened bread slices and mix. Sufficient stuffing for 12-15 pound fresh or completely thawed turkey.

Sweet Potato Casserole
Laverne M. Boike

1 23-oz. can sweet potatoes
2 tablespoons margarine
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/4 cup orange juice

Melt margarine. Add brown sugar and orange juice. Pour over potatoes. Bake covered 30-40 minutes, basting occasionally. Serves 6.

Uncle Rick's Taco Casserole
Leesha Glenn
Milan

1-1/2 pounds ground beef, browned and drained
1 can Campbell's Nacho Cheese soup
1 can Campbell's Chili Beef soup
1 green pepper, chopped
1 pound cheddar cheese grated
1 onion chopped
2 tablespoon garlic
1 tablespoon chili powder
1-1/2 tablespoon cumin
1 package flour taco shells
1 can water

Combine all ingredients, except taco shells and cheese. Heat until all soups are melted. In a greased pan, line with taco shells. Add 1/2 mixture, top with 1/2 cheese. Add another layer of shells, remaining mixture, and cheese. Bake at 375 degrees for 45-60 minutes.

Baked Beans
Leesha Glenn
Milan

1 large can baked beans
2 tablespoons molasses
1/3 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup ketchup

Pumpkin Bread
Kathy Moberg
Saline

Preheat oven to 350°. Grease two 9x5 loaf pans. Sift together in large bowl: 3-1/3 cup all purpose flour, 2 teaspoons backing soda, 1-1/2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, and 2-1/2 cup sugar.

Add 1 cup vegetable OR canola oil, 4 eggs, 2/3 cup water, and 16 oz. can of plain pumpkin (2 cups). Stir in 1 cup chopped walnuts. Optional: add 1 cup raisins.

Pour into prepared pans and bake for 1 hour 5 minutes or longer, until tests done.

This is good for breakfast on Thanksgiving, or as a snack to tide people over until dinner. Freezes well, so you can make it well ahead! Yields: 2 loaves

Desserts

Blueberry Streusel Coffeecake
Gretchen McCann
Ann Arbor

2 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 cup butter
1 cup packed brown sugar or white sugar
2 teaspoon grated lemon rind
3 eggs
1 cup sour cream
1 cup fresh or frozed blueberries

Combine flour, baking powder and baking soda. Cream butter until soft and fluffy; add sugar and lemon rind. Beat well. Add eggs, one at a time, and beat after each addition. Add dry ingrediants alternately with sour cream. Beat well after each addition. Spread batter in a greased 13"x9" pan. Sprinkle blueberries and 3/4 topping (see recipe below) over batter. Using a knife, fold berries and topping into batter, marble-cake fashion. Batter is shallow - do the best you can. Sprinkle remaining topping over batter. Bake at 350 degrees for 30-35 minutes.

Topping:
1/2 cup brown sugar
3 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons cinnamon
2 tablespoons butter
3/4 cup chopped pecans

Combine sugar, flour, and cinnamon. Cut in butter until mixture resembles crumb. Stir in nuts.

Colossal Cookies
Gretchen McCann
Ann Arbor

1/2 cup butter or margarine (1 stick)
1-1/2 cups white sugar
1-1/2 cups packed brown sugar
4 eggs
2-1/2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 18-oz. jar peanut butter
2 cups dry quick oats
1 (6-oz.) package of chocolate chips

Beat together butter and sugar in large roasting pan or Dutch oven. Add eggs and vanilla. Sprinkle baking soda over and mix thoroughly. Mix in peanut butter. Combine oats and chocolate chips and add to peanut butter mixture, mixing well.

Drop by large spoonfuls onto ungreased cookie sheet. Flatten with fork. Bake at 350 degrees for 10-12 minutes. Cool 1 minute on cookie sheet.

Cream Cheese Pie
Kathy Moberg
Saline

Graham Cracker Crust: Mix 1-2/3 cups graham cracker crumbs, 1/4 cup sugar, and 1/4 cup melted butter. Press firmly on bottom and sides of 9"X13" baking dish.

Filling: Heat oven to 375 degrees. In large bowl, beat at medium speed until smooth: 3 8-oz. packages cream cheese, 4 large eggs, 1 cup sugar, and a teaspoon vanilla. Pour into crust and bake 20 minutes until puffed and set. Remove to a rack and let stand while preparing topping. Turn oven to 425 degrees.

Topping: Mix 2 pint sour cream, 1/2 cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar, and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Carefully spread evenly over pie. Bake 5 minutes.

Cool pie on wire rack. Cover and chill 2 hours or overnight. Can be garnished with fruit. Serves 12 or more.

2 cans pineapple tidbits in natural juice, drained
1 jar Palaner Apricot All-Fruit
3/4 teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons small tapioca
1/4 cup granulated sugar (or 1 teaspoon Sweet'n'Low Bulk)

Prepare pie crusts per package instructions. Place one crust in pie plate. Mix all other ingrediants in bowl and pour into crust. Top with remaining crust, pressing edges to seal. Cut 6 slits in top crust. Bake 45 minutes at 400 degrees, until golden brown. Refridgerate leftover pie.

Chocolate-Glazed Triple Layer Cheesecake
M. Olmstead
Manchester

1 (8 oz.) package chocolate wafer cookies, crushed
3/4 cup sugar, divided
1/4 cup plus 1 tablespoon butter, melted
2 (8 oz.) packages cream cheese, softened and divided
3 eggs, divided
2 (1 oz.) squares semi-sweet chocolate, melted
1-1/3 cups sour cream
1/3 cup firmly-packed, dark brown sugar
1/4 cup chopped pecans
5 oz. cream cheese, softened
1/4 teaspoon almond extract
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 tablespoon flour

Combine cookie crumbs, 1/4 cup sugar, and butter in medium bowl; blend well. Press into the bottom and 2 inches up sides of 9-inch springform pan. Set aside.

Combine 1 (8 oz.) package cream cheese and 1/4 cup sugar; beat until fluffy. Add 1 egg and 1/4 teaspoon vanilla; blend well. Stir in melted chocolate and 1/3 cup sour cream. Spoon over chocolate crust.

Combine remaining (8 oz.) package cream cheese, brown sugar, and flour; beat until mixture is fluffy. Add 1 egg and 1/2 teaspoon vanilla; blend well. Stir in pecans. Sppon gently over chocolate layer.

Combine 5 oz. cream cheese and remaining 1/4 cup sugar; beat until fluffy. Add egg; blend well. Stir in remaining 1 cup sour cream, 1/4 teaspoon vanilla, and almond extract. Spoon gently over praline layer.

Bake at 325 degree for 1 hour; turn off oven and leave cheesecake in oven for additional 30 minutes. Then open oven door and leave cheesecake in oven for another 30 minutes. Cool and chill 8 hours. Remove from pan. Spread warm chocolate glaze over cheesecake. Garnish with chocolate leaves, if desired.

Chocolate glaze:
6 (1 oz.) squares semi-sweet chocolate
2 tablespoons water
1/4 cup butter or margarine
3/4 cup sifted powdered sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine chocolate and butter in top of a double broiler; cook until melted. Remove from heat; stir in remaining ingrediants. Stir until smooth. Spread over cheesecake while glaze is warm.

Zesty Italian Wreath
Linda Meloche, Chelsea

Bread ingredients:
1 package yeast
1-1/4 cup warm water (105-115 degrees)
1 tablespoon sugar
2 teaspoons salt
3 to 3-1/2 cups all-purpose flour

Filling ingredients:
2 tablespoons olive oil
4 cloves garlic
1 large onion, thinly sliced
2 red or green pepper, thinly sliced
8 oz. pepperoni
4 oz. provolone cheese, cut in strips
4 oz. mozzarella cheese, cut in strips
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 egg, beaten with 1 teaspoon water
poppy seeds

Dissolve yeast in warm water. Stir in sugar, salt, and 2 cups of the flour. Beat until smooth. Stir in enough remaining flour to make dough easy to handle. Knead on lightly-floured surface until smooth and elastic. Place in a greased bowl, cover, and let rise until slightly more than double its original size (about 1-1/2 hours). Punch down dough; cover and let rest 15 minutes.

In a sauce pan, sauté garlic, onion, and red or green pepper in olive oil until tender. On a slightly-floured surface, stretch and roll bread dough into a 30"X7" rectangle; place on lightly-greased baking sheet. Arrange sautéed vegetables down the center of the dough, leaving 1-inch border at each end and a 3-inch border on each side. Layer pepperoni and cheese slices on top of vegetables and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Using a knife or scissors, make a series of 3-inch cuts, 1 inch apart, along the long side of the filling-topped dough. Bring dough strips up and across the filling at an angle, alternating sides to give a braided effect. Carefully pull bread into a circle and seal the ends together, forming a wreath. Set aside to rise in a warm, draft-free location for 30-40 minutes, until puffy. Brush wreath with egg mixture, sprinkle evenly with poppy seeds.

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Bake 35 minutes, or until golden brown. Immediately remove bread from baking sheet and cool 5 minutes on wire rack. Decorate as desired and serve.

Salad Winner

Old Milwaukee Potato Salad
Carlyn M. Boivin, Saline

12-14 Medium red potatoes
2 Large chopped onions
1 pound bacon
salt and pepper
2-1/2 tablespoons flour
1 cup vinegar
1 cup water
1 cup sugar

Boil, cool, peel, and slice potatoes. Cut bacon into small pieces. Fry bacon and drain. To the bacon drippings, add: flour, vinegar, water and sugar. Cook mixture until it makes a hot, thick brine. Alternate layers of potatoes, onions, bacon and salt and peppers in a large bowl. Pour hot brine over mixture and stir gently. Let set at room temperature. Best served warm.

Main Course Winner

Red-Wine Pot Roast
M. Olmstead
Manchester
Main Course Category Winner

1 tablespoon oil
4 pounds chuck roast OR 2 chuck steaks
1/4 cup soy sauce
1 cup water
1 stick cinnamon
4 or 5 anise seeds
1 envelope onion or vegetable soup mix
1/4 cup brown sugar
1/4 cup red wine (sherry or sweet wine)
2 tablespoon cornstarch dissolved in 1/4 cup cold water

In a Dutch oven or heavy pot with a tight cover, heat the oil. Put the meat in bottom. If using 2 steaks, put one on top of another, cover with lid, and allow steam. Turn down and simmer for 30 minutes. The meat should be cooking in own juices. Mix soy sauce, soup mix, sugar, water, and anise seeds. Put cinnamon stick at side of meat and continue to cook for 1 hour longer. After 45 minutes, add wine. The meat should be tender. Slice and put in casserole dish. Strain juice into sauce pan. Add cornstarch mixture, stirring constantly. Cook until clear. Pour over meat. Keep warm until served.

Chocolate Mocha Bundt Cake
Sandra L. Rich
Saline

1 (18.5 oz.) Devils Food cake mix
1 (3.4 oz.) instant vanilla pudding mix
3 large eggs
3/4 cup oil
1/3 cup brandy OR 2 teaspoon rum extract
2 cup sour cream
2 tablespoons instant coffee, dissolved in 1 tablespoon boiling water
1 cup (6 oz.) semi-sweet chocolate chips

In large bowl, combine cake mix, pudding mix, eggs, oil, extract, coffee and sour cream. Mix well until very smooth. Add 1 cup chocolate chips and stir well to combine. Pour batter into greased and floured bundt pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Do not overbake. Set cook in wire rack for 10-15 minutes. Carefully turn out of pan and let cool completely before glazing.
Glaze:
1/2 cup semi-sweet chocolate chips
2 tablespoons unsalted butter
1 tablespoon light corn syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla

In a saucepan, combine 1/2 cup chocolate chips, butter, and corn syrup. Stir over low heat until chips are melted. Remove from heat and stir in vanilla. Frost cake with glaze. Chill until set.

DOG BISCUITS

1 (¼ oz) envelope active dry yeast
¼ C. warm water (110-115 degrees)
1 C. warm beef broth (110-115 degrees)
2 T. molasses
1¾ to 2 C. all purpose flour, divided
1½ C. whole wheat flour
1 C. cracked wheat flour
½ C. cornmeal
½ C. dry milk powder
1 t. salt
2 t. garlic powder
1 large egg
1 T. milk

Combine yeast & warm water; let stand 5 minutes. Stir in broth & molasses. Stir in 1 cup all purpose flour & the next four ingredients.

Turn dough on floured surface. Knead enough remaining flour to make a very stiff dough (five minutes). Divide dough in half. Cover and let stand 5 minutes.

Roll and cut into desired shapes. Place on greased baking sheets. Combine egg and milk, stirring well. Brush over biscuits.

Bake at 300 for 35-45 minutes. Turn oven off and let cool in oven overnight. Yields 20-25 biscuits.

FOR CAT BISCUITS:

Add 1/3 C. fish food flakes & substitute chicken broth for beef broth.

Roll and cut into desired shapes. Bake at 300 for 20 minutes. Remove from cool oven.

Salads

Caramel Apple Salad
Loretta Beal
Stockbridge

3 cups apples, cubed with peeling
1 small can crushed pineapple, drained
1 cup dry roasted peanuts
1 cup miniature marshmallows
1 small box butterscotch instant pud-ding, prepared as instructed on box
1 (8-oz.) container of Cool Whip

Mix together all ingredients, folding in Cool Whip. Refrigerate until serving time.

Orange Buttermilk Jello Salad
Loretta Beal
Stockbridge

1 (20-oz.) can crushed pineapple
1 large box orange Jello
1 cup coconut
1 cup pecans, chopped
2 cups buttermilk
1 (8-oz.) tub Cool Whip, frozen

Boil pineapple, then add Jello. Stir constantly until Jello dissolves. In mixing bowl, combine pecans, coconut, and buttermilk. Pour Jello mixture over pecan mixture and mix well. Fold in Cool Whip until Cool Whip melts. Pour into dish and refrigerate until firm. Enjoy.

Caramel Apple Salad
Laverne M. Boike

1 package (3 1/2 oz.) instant butter-scotch pudding
1 (8-oz.) carton frozen whipped top-ping, thawed
1 (8-oz.) can crushed pineapple, with juice
1 cup mini-marshmallows
3 cups chopped apples with peel
1 cup dry roasted peanuts or walnuts

Mix together dry pudding, thawed whipped topping, pineapple and juice until well blended. Stir in apples, marshmallows and nuts until thoroughly combined. Refrigerate until ready to serve. Serves 8.

Strawberry Salad

Laverne M. Boike

1 (6-oz.) package Strawberry Jello
1-1/2 cups boiling water
2 (10-oz.) packages frozen strawber-ries, partly thawed
1 (13-1/2-oz.) can crushed pineapple with juice
2 diced bananas

Dissolve jello in water. Mix in strawberries and pineapple. Add bananas. Pour into bowl and cover with Cool Whip, when set.

Orange Jello Salad
Laverne M. Boike

1 large package orange Jello
2 cups hot water
1-1/4 cups cold water
1/2 cup pineapple juice
2 packages Dream Whip
1 cup milk
1 20-oz. can of pineapple chunks, drained and diced in half
1-1/2 cups miniature marshmallows

Prepare Jello and chill until slightly congealed. Prepare Dream Whip. Combine with Jello and whip thoroughly. Add pineapple and oranges. Pour in lightly-oiled, 9"x13" pan. Cut in squares or just spoon out. If using mold, omit 1/4 cup cold water.

Manderine Orange Salad
Laverne M. Boike

1 can mandarin oranges
1 can crushed pineapple
1 small box orange Jello
1 small carton cottage cheese
1 small carton Cool Whip

Combine drained oranges and pineapple. Sprinkle Jello over it and let it dissolve. Blend in cottage cheese and Cool Whip and chill.

Raspberry Jello Salad
Patricia Eaton
Saline

Scald 1 cup milk with 16 large marshmallows. Stir until dissolved. Cream 1 small package lemon Jello with 1 large package cream cheese. Add 1 cup boiling water. Slightly mix with the marshmallow mix. Chill until syrupy. Then add 1 cup crushed pineapple, well drained, and 1/2 cup chopped walnuts. Fold in 8-oz bowl of Cool Whip. Pour into 9x13 pan and chill until firm.

Topping: Mix 2 packages of frozen red raspberries, 2 packages of red raspberry Jello, and 3 cups of boiling water. Let cool, then slowly pour over lemon mixture. Refrigerate overnight until ready to use.

Bottom layer: Mix pretzels, butter, and 3 tablespoons sugar together. Spread in bottom of a 9"X13" pan, bake 8-10 minutes at 400 degrees. Cool.

Middle layer: Blend cheese and 1/2 cup sugar. Fold in Cool Whip and spread on cooled crust.

Top layer: Dissolve Jello in boiling water. Stir in frozen strawberries. When partially set, pour over middle layer and refrigerate.

Gingered Red Cabbage Salad
Hiroyo Russell
Clinton

6 cups shredded red cabbage
2 tablespoon grated fresh ginger
3/4 cup cider vinegar
1 tablespoon honey
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1/4 teaspoon salt and pepper
1/2 cup golden raisins, plumped in 1 cup boiling water for 15 minutes
3 scallions, sliced
1 cup grated carrot

Steam cabbage, carrots, and onion in a vegetable steamer over boiling water for 5 minutes. Place in a glass bowl. Combine ginger, vinegar, honey, oil, salt, and pepper in a jar; shake to combine. Pour dressing over vegetables. Marinate at room temperature for at least 2 hours, stirring occasionally. Place mixture in a colander. Drain; reserve liquid. Boil down juices until only 1/2 cup remains. Stir dressing back into the salad. Add scallions and raisins. Chill for at least 1 hour before serving.
