Drug store may sue village over ban

By Eric Bowen
Staff Writer

Developers looking to put in a Rite Aid drug store on the northeast corner of M-52 and Old US-12 may challenge the village's building moratorium in court after Chelsea Village Council voted 4-2 to turn down the company's request Jan. 26 an exception.

According to Dennis M. Gannan, president of AARMAX Commercial Realty Group Inc., which is developing the site for Rite Aid, the village's moratorium is illegal with respect to his development and should not be enforced.

"The ordinance as it applies to our property is blatantly unconstitutional," Gannan said Friday. "There must always be a reasonable relationship between an imposition of property rights and the reason for that imposition."

At issue is whether the village can stop a development that will reduce water usage, which is the main stated reason for moratorium.

Gannan said the drug store will decrease the number of residential equivalency units on the site from five to one. The village uses REUs to measure the amount of services used by buildings as compared to a typical house, which equals one REU.

In a letter to the council, Gannan said his company is losing money by waiting on the village's moratorium. But he said Friday that he hopes the dispute can be resolved without resorting to a lawsuit.

"My first course is to resolve this amicably as a good neighbor and a good citizen of the village," Gannan said Friday. "Litigation continues to be a last resort."

Gannan said he plans to come back to the council for another try after pleading his case with more letters. But if the discussion among council members is any indication, he may not better received the next time around.

Trustee Jim Myles, who voted to deny Gannan's request, bridled at the devel-

NEWS BRIEFS

Nine candidates set sights on village council

Chelsea Village is looking at a month and a half of hard campaigning as a field of nine candidates aim for four seats on the village council. The huge outpouring of interest in the election is the largest in recent memory, according to Village Manager Jack Myers. Incumbents Jim Myles, Joe Merkel and Brian Cashman face a tough crowd of experienced politicians in former Village President Charles Ritter, Chelsea District Library board member Dan Kaminsky and Bob Clark, a former trustee. Newcomers Todd Thurkow, Robert MacLeod, and Janice Orthbring fill out the remaining hopefuls.

Three two-year positions are up for grabs in the election. One year of former trustee Richard Rigg's term is also available because Rigg resigned mid-term in July.

The candidates' names were correct as of press time but were not officially validated.

Village to change meeting location

Chelsea Village Council will be moving its meetings out of Sylvan Township Hall sometime in April, according to Village Manager Jack Myers. The council will be meeting at a newly built board room at the Washington Street Education Center (old high school).

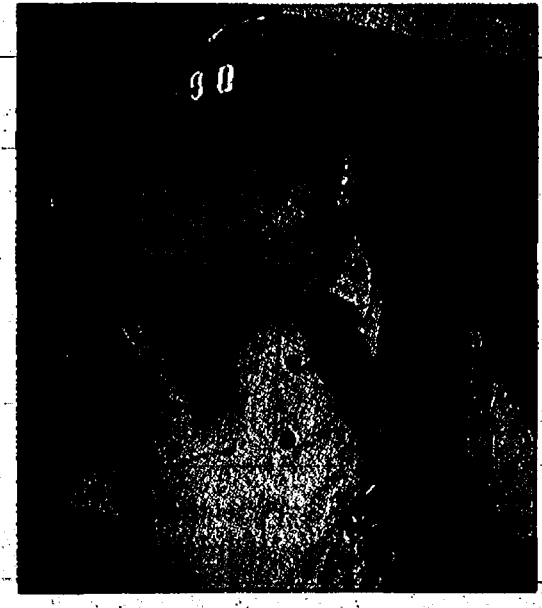

Sylvan Township sold the hall to developer Rene Papo in December in anticipation of moving into the township's new office near Sylvan Center. Since Sylvan's contract gave the township the right to stay in the building until its operations can move, Papo has allowed the village to stay as well.

Jeff Rohrer, community education director for the school district, said last Thursday that the meeting room is largely finished. Furniture is all that the room lacks.

Chelsea in Miniature

Lima Twp. faces uninsured future

By Michael Rybka
Staff Writer

Citing the township's entanglement in five lawsuits in five years, Lima Township's primary insurance company told the township Jan. 25 that its liability policy will not be renewed after it expires April 1.

The township's parent insurance provider is the Kalamazoo-based Burnham & Flower Agency. However, it is an undisclosed underwriter of that firm that is deciding to cut its ties.

The Burnham & Flower Agency expressed its desire to retain association with Lima at the same time it had to be the bearer of bad news.

The agency explained the situation to the township once in a detailed telephone call to Supervisor Gary Adams on Jan. 25 and in a comparatively less explanatory letter addressed to Clerk Arlene Bareis dated the same day.

According to Adams, it was a provision in the policy covering "errors and omissions"—which indemnifies the township against claims of financial loss and deprivation of property use—that led to the township being abandoned. The policy also covers the town hall and its contents, and full car and driver coverage for municipal use.

The five claims that concerned the underwriter were:

- The Poljan lawsuit: This involved a petition to rezone 92.5 acres of agricultural property on McKinley Road to rural residential. Eventually settled out-of-court, it still cost the township $30,000 before it was resolved.

- The Stierle lawsuit: The oldest of the five, it arose during William VanRiper's tenure as supervisor. It involved the rezoning of a parcel on the northeast corner of Fletcher and Trinkle roads from agricultural to rural residential. A neighbor contested the rezoning and the township incurred legal fees of $20,000.

- The Reddeman Farms lawsuit: Naming Karen Armbruster as a co-defendant, the plaintiff accused the planning commission of improperly allowing Armbruster to relocate her dog kennels, interfering with the plaintiff's business and domestic privacy.

On Monday, Adams learned that a court dismissed the golf course's claim against the township. In addition, the township has heard a rumor that Armbruster and the golf course have reconciled their differences, Adams said, but neither party has been available for confirmation.

While the legal fee cost to the township has not been tallied, the underwriter had estimated a pay-out of $20,000. Adams said that this amount is probably overstated and derived by averaging the other fees.

- The mobile home park lawsuit: This challenged the township's rejection of a proposed trailer park north of where Chelsea-Dexter road crosses Freer Road. The property is owned by Martin Merkel and was to be developed by Steve Tracy and Phil Jenkins. Although the township won in court, it still produced a $17,000 legal bill.

- The Bateson gravel pit lawsuit: This years-long legal hassle includes an injunction filed by the township against a gravel pit on Scio Church Road owned by Ernest Bateson. The township claims Bateson's operation was unsanctioned. Bateson disagreed and sued the township for damages.

Bateson is involved in a similar decade-old lawsuit with Local business leaders to consider private Internet hub

By Eric Bowen
Staff Writer

Local business leaders frustrated with slow Internet connections in Chelsea may look for another exit to the information superhighway. Businesses are now considering banding together to form their own high-speed connection to the global network.

The idea was first floated at a Jan. 27 Chelsea Chamber of Commerce meeting during a presentation about electronic commerce and retailing over the Internet. Presenter Gary Baker, president of Online Technologies Corp., suggested businesses could pay for a digital line that would go about 28 times the speed of the fastest connection currently available.

"I thought that was a great idea," said Gary Davis, president of BookCrafters Inc. "It's certainly something that we would participate in. If these aren't significant issues today, they will be soon."

The line would be costly, Baker said, but businesses could offset the price by splitting it among several different businesses. A centrally located building could house the necessary equipment, and other businesses could plug in to the line with their own cables.

Chelsea Community Hospital was the early favorite for the Internet hub as some members discussed a location where all business would have easy access. Dan Waltz, chief information officer at Chelsea Community Hospital, said last Thursday that no one had contacted him about the idea.

"I'm not sure if we have the facilities to manage that type of thing," he said. "It may be that since it's a central location in town they were considering us for the hub."

Waltz said the hospital has what's known as a T-1 line, which is 50 times faster than the typical household modem. The hospital's primary use of the Internet is passing digital oper's threats of a lawsuit. He said similar statements made in November, the first time Rite Aid asked for the expropriation, "didn't endear the hearts of the community."

Calling the corner of M-52 and Old US-12 "one of the most important intersections in the community," Miles said the development should be a "new entry" to the village. He also questioned whether Rite Aid would contribute to the community in terms of sponsoring community activities.

Trustee Carol Rauschenberger started off her comments with a list of questions about the development's intentions for the site. She asked if Chelsea needed another drug store added to two others on the corner and whether Gannan had considered the historical significance of the buildings there.

Trustee Frank Hammer attached the proposal by saying the moratorium was clear about prohibiting new construction. He said the council was not saying Gannan could not build at all, just not before the moratorium was lifted.

Gannan's support came from trustees Steve Daut and Brian Cashman.

Daut first reminded the developer that the village has high expectations for development, citing the Farmer Jack moratorium.

What we cannot do today is transmit large graphic files that contain book information," he said. "Most of the publishing world has moved away from hard media. Once they've got a book finished, they have to put it on a disk and send it to us."

"If we had capable Internet services, that graphic file could be transmitted and printed out at a local digital printer. We can't do any of that today because the Internet service is not capable to do that."

The high-speed line would require help from Ameritech, which would likely run the cable to the central hub, according to company spokesman Jean Medina. The cable Baker was talking about would be the equivalent of having 28 T-1 connections at one and could be divided among several businesses and subdivided into different lines within a business.

Though some businesses have complaints about the speed of Internet connections, Medina said service in Chelsea is the same as anywhere else with rapid connections available to businesses.

versions of CAT scans to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital for examination, and the current system is adequate for that use.

Waitz said that the hospital is looking into doing teleconferencing, which would require extra equipment and the speed of a T-1 line or greater to get decent quality video and sound. He said the hospital currently has no plans to use the technology for patient care, but the up-and-coming technology may be on the horizon for the future.

Davis said his principal use of the Internet is sending electronic copies of books back and forth between Chelsea and the company's office in Virginia. BookCraters' recent installation of a T-1 connection at both locations and has plans to do the same at its major contractors.

Currently, Davis said, BookCraters has to send electronic files on diskettes through the mail or overnight delivery. The process slows down book delivery, giving BookCraters a competitive edge.

Adams said there is a limited number of insurance companies that will cover municipal titles.

In the event that Burnham & Flowers are unable to find another underwriter, Adams is conferring with Lyndon Township Supervisor Maryann Noah for recommendations.

Scio Township, Lima and Bateson will face off in a non-jury trial Feb. 19 which will undoubtedly add to the $8,000 in fees the township has already incurred over the matter.

Adams said there is a limited number of insurance companies that will cover municipal titles.

In the event that Burnham & Flowers are unable to find another underwriter, Adams is conferring with Lyndon Township Supervisor Maryann Noah for recommendations.

Trustee Frank Hammer and Village President Richard Steele said they considered the project an expansion of an existing business. "Though not specifically exempted in the ordinance, the village has allowed other businesses to expand their existing buildings," Gannan, however, told the council his business had as much right as Lane to put in a new building. He also said he was mindful of the corners of the village and wanted to improve the look of the corner.

Council hopes new chemical will reduce discolored water

By Eric Bowen

Staff Writer

Hoping to alleviate some of the murky water problems in the village, Chelsea Village Council voted Jan. 26 to start injecting a new chemical into the water system. Water Department Superintendent Dan Rosentreter told the council that a blended phosphate compound will help with corrosion problems and discolored water.

Rosentreter said that the new chemical would coat the inside of pipes, both in village mains and to a smaller degree in residents' homes. The coating would reduce the amount of minerals that come off the pipe.

The blended phosphate would replace a caustic compound currently in use, Rosentreter said. The cost of treatment would also drop by approximately $7,500 to under $10,000 per year.

Though the phosphate treatment is not new, it can only be used with the chlorine treatment, Rosentreter said, because it is a source of food for bacteria. This year is the first the village has chlorinated through the winter months, making the phosphate treatment a possibility.

Trustee Frank Hammer wasn't satisfied with the new treatment, however. He wanted to see the village return to pumping water straight from the ground to village residents without treatment.

Hammer said the village water comes from groundwater, which should be clean enough to use without treating with chlorine. He also doesn't agree with regulations of how much copper is allowed in water sources, something the village has run afoul of in previous years.

"Why can't we take the position that we're not going to do it," Hammer said. "Let them sue us."

Hammer's thoughts were echoed by other council members, but the council decided to go ahead with the new treatment. But at least one trustee thought the council should reconsider the issue if the treatments don't solve the dirty water problem.

"If the treatment isn't the solution, then we have to consider dropping the treatments," Trustee Brian Cashman said.

The council also got an update on the well drilling. Rosentreter told the village that not much has been done because of the wet weather.

The village is looking for water about three miles outside the village southwest of the intersection of Garvey and Pierce roads. A test well garnered a flow of about 80 gallons per minute. The village is looking for a well of approximately 1,000 gallons per minute.

Chelsea Water Department and consultants will test the water quality, then drill a larger production well to see the ultimate flow the village can expect. Most likely, according to Hart Drilling, the village will get about 500 gallons per minute on the site and may have to drill another well nearby to get the required flow.

To help fund the water improvements, the council voted in a contract with McNamee, Porter and Seeley to create a water system project plan. The plan is a first step before the village can apply for state funding under a reduced loan program.

The study will include a review of the current system and its limitations, plus identify improvement that need to be made to extend the life of the water system. The study will then be sent to the Department of Environmental Quality for consideration for funding under the Drinking Water Revolving Fund.

Total cost for the plan is $18,000.

In other business last Tuesday, the council took action on the following:

- The council appointed Brian Cashman and Steve Daut as delegates to the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments. Cashman was the primary delegate and Daut was the alternate.

- The council voted to forward to the planning commission an annexation request from Bob Daniels for his lumber business.

- The council voted to bill 16 residents and companies for snow removal conducted on Jan. 11. The property owners failed to clear their snow within two days, and the village had to clear the snow.

The biggest violator was Pamida, who was billed $590, followed by Harris Homes Development Corp. at $225, and Consumers Energy at $215.

- The village amended its amusement device ordinance to match the zoning ordinance, which allows an amusement center in the C-3 zoning district. The amusement ordinance only allowed the devices in a C-4 zoning, according to Zoning Inspector Jim Drolett.

County district offers statistics

Teacher salaries in the Chelsea School District were the highest in the county two years ago, according to the latest information available from the Washtenaw Intermediate School District. WISD released a report this fall of statistics for all its member districts.

Chelsea teachers received a starting salary of $33,434 for teachers with a bachelor's degree, roughly 2 percent higher than the teachers in Saline, the next highest district. After 10 years, the salary rose to $50,400.

Teachers with master's degrees were second in line when compared to their educational counterparts in other districts. Starting salaries were $36,448, nearly 3 percent less than Saline teachers.

Superintendent Ed Richardson said the district tries to keep salaries high in order to attract quality teachers to the district.

Other facts provided by WISD:

- Chelsea's racial make-up in 1997 was largely white. At 2,722 students, Caucasian students constituted an overwhelming 98 percent of the student body. The remainder was composed of three Native-American students, 11 African-Americans, 15 Hispanics and 16 Asian-Americans.
- At 52 percent, male students outnumbered female students in the district in 1997. The disparity was felt at all grade levels except for fifth and 10th grade, where girls had higher numbers.
- In the 1997-98 school year, Chelsea School District served 358 special education students with the equivalent of 25.7 full-time teachers.
- Chelsea borrowed 1,118 multimedia items from WISD in 1996-97.
- Chelsea bus drivers drove 320,684 miles in the 1996-97 school year, using 50,592 gallons of fuel.

VIEWS ON DENTAL HEALTH

GARY GOCHANOUR, D.D.S.

ANALGESIA FOR CHILDREN

Maybe you have a child who keeps saying he doesn't want to go to the dentist because it will hurt. But with modern dental techniques, most of the pain and discomfort have disappeared. What has to be overcome in the case of children, in particular, is the sense of fear, and this can be accomplished with a technique called analgesia (literally, "absence of pain").

An analgesic is an anesthetic agent, such as nitrous-oxide gas, that relaxes the patient without causing loss of consciousness. Analgesia can produce a state of euphoria or well-being and tends to lessen a patient's awareness of his surroundings. This can make him much more tolerant to the thought of discomfort. If needed, a local anesthetic can be used to temporarily remove feeling from the area being worked on.

One of the best known slogans is "You have nothing to fear but fear itself". Once a child's fear is overcome, he will probably be glad to get the care he needs to protect his dental health.

Prepared by Custom Column Service as a public service to promote better dental health. From the office of:

WEDDINGS AND ENGAGEMENTS

ENGAGED: Brooke Riser and Brandon Slesker, both of Reno, Nev., have announced a June 18 wedding date. Riser is the daughter of Charl and Vicki Riser of Vallejo, Calif. Slesker is the son of Keith and Sandy Slesker of Benicia, Calif., the grandson of Robert and Mary Lou Turner of Chelsea. The bride is a 1997 graduate of Benicia High School and is employed at Little Golden Goose. The future bridegroom is a 1997 graduate of Benicia High School and is attending the University of Nevada (Reno).

Rodgers, Siegel say vows

Jennifer Rodgers and Jeffery Siegel, both of Chicago, were married at The Harbor Club in Huntington N.Y. on Oct. 4. The Rabbi Daryl Crystal presided over the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Jonathan and Anala Rodgers of Ann Arbor. The bridegroom is the son of Jerry Siegel of Syosset, N.Y. and Susan (Alex) Cnaan of Syosset.

Maids of honor were Hannah Rodgers of Chicago and Grace Rodgers of Ann Arbor. David Siegel of Syosset served as best man.

Bridesmaids were Cassandra Shultis of Shokan, N.Y., Marey Demsky of Lake Grove, N.Y., Sarah Rubenstein of St. Louis and Emily Scheffer of Boston.

Ushers were Michael Cnaan of Hollywood, Calif., Richard Dellisanti of Boynton Beach, Fla., Jonathan Rodgers of Ann Arbor, and Stephen and Daniel Grebow, both of Penlyn, Pa.

Kaitlyn Osterhoudt of Shokan served as flower girl.

A reception was held at The Harbor Club.

The couple honeymooned for two weeks in the Fuji Islands. They reside in Chicago.

The bride is a 1989 graduate of Dexter High School. She received a bachelor's degree from William Smith College in 1993 and a master's degree from Sarah Lawrence College in 1997. She is employed as a genetic counselor by Loyola University Medical Center.

The groom is a 1990 graduate of Syosset High School. He received a bachelor's degree from Hobart College in 1994 and is employed as a regional sales manager for Dynamic Nutrition of Illinois.

CHALLENGING SITUATIONS

In the process known as "voir dire" (literally, "to speak the truth"), prospective jurors are asked questions by attorneys on both sides. It is hoped that their answers will reveal any biases or preferences that will have a bearing on their suitability for serving on the jury. If one attorney believes there was an error in how the entire jury pool was selected, he or she can ask that no one on the panel be permitted to serve as a juror—a request known as a "challenge to the array." Jurors who are "challenged for cause" are excused for a specific reason (such as showing bias). Attorneys may also move to eliminate prospective jurors they believe unsympathetic to their clients ("peremptory challenge"). The ability to size people up on short notice is an important attribute in an attorney. In addition, your legal team should possess skill in eliciting information from uncooperative witnesses, and an aptitude for presenting the facts in a convincing manner. Over 27 years of experience gives the LAW OFFICES OF KITCHEN & STRINGER, J.D. the edge in cases involving personal injury, business, and family law. Call 426-4695 to schedule a free initial consultation at our offices, located at 3249 Broad Street in Dexter.

HINT: While the number of peremptory challenges that an attorney may make is limited, the number of challenges for cause is limited only by the judge's unwillingness to grant them any further.

Dexter-Chelsea Right To Life meets the third Monday each month at 7 p.m., in the Mary Room at St. Joseph Catholic Church, 3540 Dover Street, Dexter. Info., Anne Young, (734) 426-5010.

AUTO TALK

by

Bert's Auto Service

Bert Root Diane Johnson

A GOOD DEAL ALL AROUND

Increased interest in leasing automobiles in recent years has developed into a rising tide of late-model-used cars that are returning to dealer's lots at the end of their leases. Of these estimated 2.5 million off-lease cars, more than half are clean, low-mileage vehicles that are being returned from short-term leases. The benefit to consumers is that many automobile manufacturers are subjecting their best late-model cars to certification programs backed by extended warranties. This helps consumers on a budget who are looking for high-quality, low-cost alternatives to purchasing a new car. And, it helps to maintain high trade-in values, which benefits people who lease with attractive deals. The higher a car's residual value, the less costly it is to lease.

If your car is covered by a dealer's warranty, you can still bring it to BERT'S AUTO SERVICE for maintenance. Our professional technicians perform all professional car care including brake service, transmission repair, suspension, and exhaust work. We do it right the first time, and we'll save you money, time, and unnecessary repairs. A 40 point used vehicle inspection is $58.00. We're open five days a week, and there is a shuttle bus available. Call 734-769-3232 or stop by the shop located at 5984 Jackson Road in Ann Arbor.

HINT: While those who purchase pre-owned vehicles benefit from lower purchase cost, they give up a degree of control over options and lose a portion of the car's useful life.

The foundation also funds several scholarships, which are awarded at the annual Class Night.

Ann Arbor Stamp Club plans regular meeting Monday, Feb. 8

The Ann Arbor Stamp Club will hold its monthly meeting on Monday evening, Feb. 8, beginning at 7:30.

The program will be a "bourse" — as members offer to trade or sell thousands of different stamps to each other (and to any members of the public who wish to attend).

Current members of the club will draw the stamps from their specialized collections from more than 50 different countries, as well as of many topics (such as flowers) and subjects (such as railroad postal history).

The meeting is in the Salvation Army building, located at the corner of West Huron Street and Arbana Drive in Ann Arbor. The meeting is open to the public and there is no admission charge.

State Sen. sets coffee hours

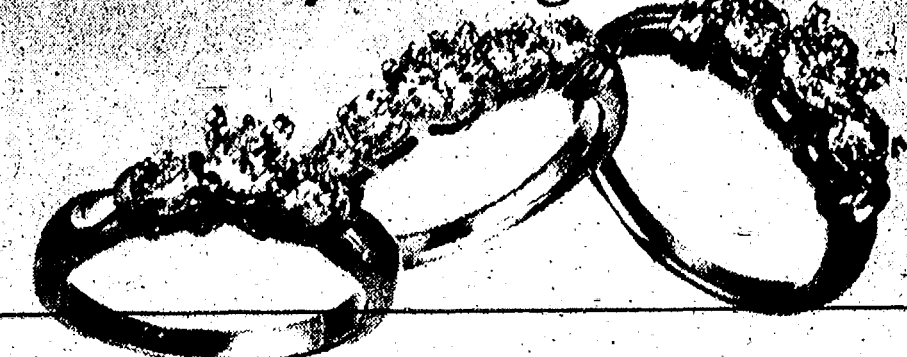

State Sen. Alma Wheeler Smith announced her district coffee hours schedule for February and March. Chelsea coffee hours are from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m. Feb. 15 and March 15 at Pierce's Pastries Plus, 103-W. Middle St.

With persistence you can stem the flow of junk mail

If junk mail could spark the same excitement in us today as it did when we were kids, we'd likely greet the mail carrier with flowers and chocolates.

However, interest in all mail devoid of personal sentiment or financial enrichment typically wanes as we enter adulthood. According to the Consumer Research Institute, Inc. (CRI), 44 percent of all junk mail is tossed in the trash, unopened and unread.

Still others, however, enjoy the choices and opportunities that advertising mail provides. They carefully peruse the endless paper stream of catalogs, coupon books and other offers of interest. They appreciate the convenience of shopping from home, learning about new products and services, and selecting the most attractive rates and features of a new credit card. This would partly explain the 4 million ton paper weight created each year, according to the CRI.

If you're a junk mail junkie, read no further. If you'd like to take much of the junk out of your mail and ease telephone solicitation traffic, read on.

Begin your quest by penning a letter to the Direct Marketing Association (DMA) Mail Preference Service. The DMA compiles a database of consumers who prefer not to receive advertising or telephone solicitations. DMA members, including Experian (formerly TRW), use the DMA mail preference file to remove names from their own mailing and telephone lists.

In addition, Experian has its own opt-out list that it shares with the other two major credit bureaus, Equifax, Inc., and Trans Union Corp.

Once your request is entered into the DMA database, it remains there for five years and the Experian database indefinitely. It may take up to three months before you notice a significant reduction in the amount of direct mail and phone call traffic.

Opting out will not, however, eliminate solicitations from local merchants, religious and charitable organizations, professional and alumni associations, and political candidates and office holders. For this, you'll need to go the source of the solicitation. The following checklist should prove helpful.

1. Contact all of your credit card companies and tell them not to release your name, address or phone number to anyone else for marketing, mailing or promotional purposes.

2. Similarly contact your credit union, bank, mortgage company.

LORI Z. BAHNMUELLER

3. Contact all magazines to which you subscribe.

4. Contact all groups of which you are affiliated.

5. Contact airline frequent flyer and hotel programs you belong to.

6. Contact your cable TV company and long distance telephone carrier, and all others who bill you on a regular basis.

7. If you move, don't fill out the post office's change of address form. Instead, inform all prudent parties yourself.

8. Contact your phone company and change your listing in the phone book. Request that your name only be listed without your address. Most phone companies will do this without charge.

Be careful of what you wish for.

Before you pick up a pen, consider your opt-out decision very carefully. Think about the choices and competitive offers that direct mail brings conveniently to your mailbox. You may find that, after opting out, you'll miss the barrage of offers that once competed so tenaciously for your attention.

Should you decide to opt out of direct mail solicitations, write a letter giving your complete name, name variations and mailing address to:

Mail Preference Service
Direct Marketing Association
P.O. Box 9008
Farmingdale, NY 11735

To remove your name from many telephone solicitation lists, send your complete name, address and telephone number with area code to:

Small business association favors national sales tax

The Small Business Association of Michigan (SBAM) supports scrapping the current tax code and replacing it with a national sales tax plan sponsored by Americans for Fair Taxation (the FAIR TAX plan).

The FAIR TAX is a consumption tax on the final purchase of goods and services.

"The debate over spending our projected federal budget surpluses masks the fact that small business owners struggle under the burden of a troubled federal tax system," said SBAM Chair E. Jill Pollock, owner of Pollock Consulting Group in Detroit. "The budget surplus should be used to help cushion a fundamental shift to a national sales tax."

The current tax system forces small businesses to bear a compliance cost burden at least 27 times greater than the largest corporations, said

Pollock. "Small business owners must use complex tax accounting rules to keep track of income, inventories, types of expenses, depreciation, various employee benefit regulations, payroll taxes (including Social Security, Medicare and unemployment taxes) and file the necessary accounting and information returns," she said. "This takes precious time away from trying to grow the business and become more profitable."

Under the FAIR TAX, only one question to small business owners would be relevant for tax purposes: how much did you sell to consumers? By reducing overhead to answering that single question, the FAIR TAX would reduce compliance costs by about 90 percent, freeing capital and entrepreneurial energy, according to Pollock.

Accounting group to offer free tax advice on two days

The Michigan Association of CPAs (MACPA) is holding the first of its two annual Ask-A-CPA Call-In-Days on Saturday, Feb. 20.

Taxpayers who are puzzled by the effects of new tax laws can get the answers to state and federal tax questions by dialing toll free 1-800-420-4CPA. For those who miss the first Saturday's opportunity to receive free tax advice, they will have another chance on Saturday, March 20.

Volunteer CPAs will be available to assist taxpayers from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. This program is completely free of charge. Participants may call as often as they wish, but are limited to two questions per call. The information given to callers is not intended to be all-inclusive and has not been approved or disapproved by the MACPA.

The MACPA maintains an office in Farmington Hills and serves over 14,000 CPAs in Michigan through its educational and professional programs. For more information, visit the Web site at www.miccpa.org.

"How Could God Let This Happen?"

Dear Friends and Neighbors,

A lot of things happen that just don't seem right. Nice people suffer terrible tragedies. Bad people often thrive and seem to get away with all kinds of evil.

Often people have asked, "Where is God?" Many have given up and turned their backs on Him. It's perfectly understandable.

If you're in that position, we beg you to give God one more try. Even though none of us might understand, we are convinced God has a reason for everything. He allows to happen.

After all, He Himself suffered the most undeserved tragedy when He hung on the cross. But He did it for us.

Please visit our church this Sunday at 10:00 a.m., as we contemplate the fact that God often doesn't rule the world in a way that makes sense to us.

Area youths make sleeping bags for the homeless

My Brother's Keep, headquartered in Pennsylvania, has a mission to provide homeless people with sleeping bags that have no monetary value, so they may not be stolen or sold for money.

Barbara Locks, a Dexter resident and media specialist at South Meadows Elementary in Chelsea, first learned of the organization from an article in a United Methodist publication.

After she viewed a promotional video and determined that the project was indeed something children could do, she called Captain Gary Felton of the Salvation Army in Ann Arbor, to ask if there was a local need for sleeping bags.

"He told me what I did not want to hear, that he could use as many bags as we could make," Locks said.

She showed the video and relayed the captain's answer to her fifth grade Sunday School class at the Dexter United Methodist Church, and they were enthusiastic about the project.

"I had earlier boxed up fabric and clothes from our fall church rummage sale," Locks said. "Church friends agreed to piece and join the seven foot squares from the donated fabric, and we were off!"

After the initial success with the class, Locks showed the video with her daughter's fifth grade Girl Scout Troop #273, and another sleeping bag was started.

How do you make them? Make one 7 foot square. Make another one. Join them along one side. Top one square with fabric: legs of polyester pants, sweaters, mattress pads (they are the best), fabrics that will warm. Fold the other square on top, like the top of a sandwich. Make sure it is not too heavy.

"Tie" the quilt, every few inches if small fill items are used, farther apart if larger pieces are used. Fold the square in half, sewing along the unfinished side and bottom to make a tube. Turn inside out, add ties, and there is the sleeping bag, finished.

So now two sleeping bags are finished. If you would like to make one, you may contact your church's mission committee, or contact My Brother's Keeper Sleeping Bag Project at (717) 289-4335.

Danielle Locks, Heather Justice and Emily Huddleston delivered the much-needed sleeping bags to Capt. Karen Felton.

POLICE BLOTTER

Chelsea Village

Warrant Arrest
Peter Lee Geyer, 33, of Ypsilanti was arrested at 1:24 a.m. Jan. 29 on Will Johnson Drive near Main Street. Police stopped Geyer on a traffic stop then ran a computer check. He was wanted on charges of contempt of court for alleged possession of marijuana out of Eastpointe and a criminal bench warrant in connection with contempt of court on a friend-of-the-court drunken driving charge out of Ypsilanti.

Property Damage

A Chelsea man filed a complaint about damage to the car wash door at Village Mobil, 1629 S. Main St. The man said a man had purchased a car wash at 10:30 a.m. Jan. 26 and the complainant later found the door damaged. Total damage is $205.

Dexter Village

Felonious Assault

An employee at Busch's Valu Land, 3219 Broad Street, told police that she was checking out customers when she noticed a teen-ager knocking things off the shelves. The employee, a 44-year-old Ann Arbor woman, said she yelled at the boy to stop and he ran through the store to find his father. The managers told the man and the boy to leave, so the man went to the front of the store to pay for groceries. While he was paying, the boy took a phone receiver off the hook and hit the woman with it. The boy is believed to be autistic.

Breaking and Entering

A 36-year-old Dexter woman called police to report a break-in at Suds 'n Stuff Party Store, 7980 Ann Arbor St. She arrived at the store at 6:46 a.m. Jan. 27 and found the pre-alarm had been tripped. The front glass door was broken out, and the cash register was knocked down, but not broken into. Police investigation revealed the suspect had entered the store through the window, without opening the door. The store's motion detector detected the man. Police tried to track the man using a police dog, but the scent was lost, likely because the man entered a car.

Larceny

A 44-year-old Brooklyn woman said she parked her car at 4 p.m. Jan. 30 in front of her workplace on Alpine Street near Main Street and locked the car. She returned at 9:15 p.m. and found her cellular phone missing from the car. No evidence of a break-in was found.

Dexter Township

Larceny

Five sets of scaffolding were taken between Jan. 22 and Jan. 26 from a house under construction in the 6000 block of Hay Rake Hollow Road. The house is secured by doors and windows, but is still not finished. Tools and other items were also in the house, but were not taken. Total loss is $900.

Sylvan Township

Recovered Stolen Vehicle

A park ranger, a 42-year-old Chelsea man, called police to report a vehicle had driven onto the ice at Mill Lake on McClure Road near Bush Road at 9:15 a.m. Jan. 23. Chelsea Fire Department also responded. Police talked to the fire chief who said he had some firefighters suiting up to rescue any possible occupants. They found the vehicle unoccupied and called a towing company to drag the car from the ice.

Police found that a bag of rock salt had been used to hold down the gas pedal. The owner, a 19-year-old Ypsilanti woman, said she kept the salt in the back of her truck to weigh it down on the snow. She had reported the vehicle stolen Jan. 21. The radio was missing from the vehicle.

Scio Township

Suspicious Incident

A 17-year-old township girl told police that a 39-year-old Novi man had called her several times on the phone and harassed her at work. She said she met the man at a friend's house and he had been harassing her ever since. He found out her phone number and called her at home in Scio Farms Estates, 6855 Jackson Road. Police contacted the man and told him not to have contact with the woman.

Warrant Arrest

Steven Edward Zahn, 40, of Ann Arbor was arrested at 5:20 p.m. Jan. 27 on Huron River Drive near River Fires Drive. Zahn was wanted on charges of assault and battery out of Ann Arbor Police Department. He was turned over to Ann Arbor Police.

Felonious Assault

woman told police that she pulled her car out of a driveway on Scio Church Road at 2:55 p.m. Jan. 22. A pickup truck was approaching on the road and she turned in front of it. The other driver, a 39-year-old Ann Arbor man, followed the woman along Zeeb Road near 1-94 tailgating her and swerving in and out of lanes without passing her. He then pulled up next to her at a stoplight, motioning for her to pull over and yelling at her. When she pulled forward, he pulled ahead and sideswiped her, then pulled into the parking lot of the Washtenaw County Road Commission. She pulled into the police station.

Police contacted the man who said he was angered by the woman's pulling out in front of him and he wanted to talk to her. He said her car hit his car when he pulled in front of her.

Domestic Assault

A 20-year-old township woman told police that she was driving into her parents' residence at 7:35 a.m. Jan. 24 when she noticed a garbage can blocking the drive. She slowed down to move it out of the way with her car, when her husband, a 32-year-old Hartford man, ran out from a wooded area and hit the driver's side window with a metal pipe. The woman accelerated and went into the house. The two have been married for eight months and separated for one month.

Recovered Stolen Vehicle

A 35-year-old Brantford, Ontario, man called police at 2:22 a.m. Jan. 30 to report the recovery of a semi trailer stolen from Zeeway Transport company of Mississauga, Ontario, approximately three weeks ago. The trailer had been left in the parking lot of Truck Stops of America, 200 Baker Road.

Breaking and Entering

A 34-year-old Dexter man told police that someone broke into Bryan Computers, 4395 Jackson Road. An alarm went off at 4:26 a.m. Jan. 30.

Cancer center offers education series

The University of Michigan Comprehensive Cancer Center will offer its winter "I Can Cope" educational series — a free, seven-week program, that provides cancer patients and their loved ones with practical information on topics ranging from diagnosis and treatment to exercise and nutrition.

The weekly class will begin on Thursday, Feb. 11, and will meet seven consecutive Thursdays from 7 p.m.-8:30 p.m. Classes will be held in the University of Michigan Comprehensive Cancer Center, 1500 E. Medical Center Drive, Ann Arbor, Floor B1, Room

The program gives participants an opportunity to share their concerns with others having similar experiences and to design ways to cope with the challenges that arise from a cancer diagnosis. Guest speakers will include University of Michigan health professionals in the field of cancer management. In addition, videotapes, print materials and class discussion provide up-to-date information for patients, family and friends.

Registration is required. For more information or to register, call (734) 936-8700.

Uncle's campaign based on Aunt Bea ordinance

Great news for the big campaign! Nobody much cares!

I read where only a couple of people are running for this position, and it has my name written all over it! What would anybody want with a position that has my name on it? They wouldn't, that's what!

At this rate, I can cinch the election by getting 20 of my friends to go down and vote for me. I'm sure I can buy that many. And I know they'll do it, because they've done it before. All I gotta do is clean their houses for the next two years. Cheap price to pay for saving the world!

Of course I'm writing this in the typical journalistic time-warped deal, so there still could be a surprise candidate or two by the time this paper comes out.

UNCLE APOLLO

But that would be cheating. Don't be fooled by anybody who filed at the last minute! They're probably trying to pull a fast one.

So, with all this campaign momentum, another thing I'm gonna fix is our small-town atmosphere. I've been talking with my running mate, Arlotta Moofellow, and we figured out how to do it. Oh, and I talked with Auntie about it too. I only tell you that because when she reads this I don't want her to think I'm confusing her with Arlotta. Auntie has never been a tree in her life.

Anyway, what we figured out was that our small-town atmosphere doesn't have anything to do with hysterical districts. Although it's nice to have tree-lined streets and quaint old houses, the small-town character we all love has to do with the characters.

Seems to me, the atmosphere is something we all breathe out, so what we really need to do is to preserve small-town attitudes. It seems to me that small-town people ought to think about other people at least a little bit. I know it's a weird concept, but we used to do that before Ronald Reagan came along.

Well, as soon as I become a Village Parent, I intend to do something about this. We have all these ordinances that tell us how to act, so I'm gonna start an ordinance that tells us how to think! I'll call it the Aunt Bea ordinance, named for the famed aunt of Mayberry.

Let's take dogs for example. Maybe we should have an ordinance that says when you're walking your dog and it poops in somebody's yard, you might think how much you'd like them to do the same to you. I'll bet Aunt Bea would disapprove if she saw what goes on out there.

Or, pulling out of a parking place. I know if you wait while somebody really slow pulls out, that you won't get home as fast and probably everybody will honk at you, but maybe that person is having a hard time. I know all this traffic gets me a little nervous sometimes. Maybe Aunt Bea might say "Stop and Count to Ten" for stuff like that.

I'll tell you, I don't even remember what Mayberry looked like all that much, but I remember that it felt like the people in it. And mainly it felt like they cared about each other. So if the Aunt Bea ordinance works, maybe, we can add an Andy and Opie and Barney ordinance while we're at it. Maybe that will help.

Village government goes easy on its own constituents

ERIC BOWEN

A CLOSER LOOK

In the game of politics, it goes without saying that, as in any game, there are a winner and a loser. That lesson was no more readily apparent than last Tuesday when a hotshot developer and local resident mixed it up with the village government and only one came out standing.

The contestants in Tuesday's contest were AARMAX development and longtime Chelsea resident Donna Lane. Both tried to jump-start their building projects by getting an exemption from the village's building moratorium. But only Lane came out with the treasured trophy.

Lane's appearance stems from her attempts to build a new animal hospital on Main Street across the street from her current location. She has skipped back and forth from planning commission to Village Council numerous times in her attempts secure the OK to go forward.

She has met with extraordinary success. Over the last few months, the various village agencies have created a special use for animal clinics in office zoning, re-zoned the property for office use, and now have exempted her from the village's building moratorium.

Lane's rapid move through the village bureaucracy stands in stark contrast to the attempts of AARMAX president Dennis Gannan. The council last week denied his second request in three months to be allowed to start the site plan process for a proposed Rite Aid pharmacy. Gannan said that his development would reduce water usage in the village so it should be allowed to go forward. He also indicated he would sue if the village didn't comply.

I suppose it's entirely possible that the village would be as generous for any Chelsea resident in Lane's situation. She has had her business in the village for as long as anyone can remember. She bought the property with the intention of expanding the hospital, then saw the state bisect it with M-52. And she's been planning on getting the village's OK for years, receiving annexation and village services for the site in 1996.

But in Lane's case the village has a bit more incentive.

Lane's property is tied up in the Downtown Development Authority's and the Village Council's negotiations to buy the Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home on Park Street. The agencies want to build a parking lot that could serve downtown and possibly Chelsea District Library. But the Mitchells want to move their operations to a plot of land north of the village — land owned by none other than Donna Lane.

Lane has been "playing hardball," as she put it at a recent planning commission meeting, refusing to sell the property to the Mitchells unless the village expedites her animal hospital plans. In large part the village has acceded to her wishes, and I would expect continuing cooperation as she moves forward with her site plan approval.

I have to admire the village council for sticking to its guns in the AARMAX case, even when faced with the threat of a lawsuit. But the developer does have a point. The drug store would eliminate four buildings and put in one, which could be a significant drop in the number of water users, the expressed purpose for the moratorium. Lane's development, on the other hand, would create an entirely new building.

Council members justified their decision by saying Lane's hospital was an expansion of an existing business. Since she's been working on it for years, the council also said that her property should fall under the moratorium's exception for development already in the pipeline.

Yet Lane is not putting an addition on her building, nor had she submitted plans to the planning commission and paid its review fees, a stipulation required in the moratorium ordinance.

Personally I think Lane should be able to move forward with her hospital for many of the same reasons that the council trustees gave. But the village should apply the moratorium consistently, giving exemptions for reasonable circumstances. If the drug store developer's water usage figures are correct, they may have a reasonable case for exemption.

At the very least, this episode is instructive about the inner workings of village government. It's nice to see that even with all the new faces in the village, the local government protects its own. Who says Washington is the only place for rough-and-tumble politics?

LETTERS

Story on Chelsea planning team was misleading

I would like to clarify a number of issues which have arisen concerning last week's article entitled, "Former House Rep. Backs Regional Planning".

The article takes the form of a two-part analysis of a proposal put forth by the Institute for Community and Regional Development (ICARD) at Eastern Michigan University, and the alleged reaction to that proposal by Washtenaw County Planning Commission Director Mark McFadden.

The first point of interest to me, was that although the reporter attended the first meeting of the year for the Chelsea Area Planning Team, there was no report on the substance of the meeting, and the focus instead turned to an attempt to generate controversy between two parties, where none exists.

The history behind Mary Schroer's involvement, was that several weeks ago during a conversation that I was having with Dr. Joe Ohren at EMU concerning a project that he is coordinating for the Michigan Association of Counties, he informed me of some grant funding that was available to assist local communities with their planning efforts. When I told him about the work being done by the Chelsea Area Planning Team, he expressed interest in assisting us, and offered that Schroer was now a staff member, and would be giving me a call to see where they could be of help to us.

During a follow-up discussion with Schroer, she expressed an interest in attending our next meeting in January, so I invited her to attend. She assured me that she would coordinate any ICARD involvement with Mark McFadden of the County Planning Commission, and understood that the Planning Commission was facilitating the process for us.

Unfortunately, I was unable to attend the meeting (Jan. 25) because of a training commitment that I had made to Macomb Community College, so I was away teaching public safety training classes in Fraser all of last week.

McFadden was interviewed the following day (Jan. 26) for the article. A number of his statements, according to McFadden, were taken out of context and in error. Neither he, nor any of the other planning team members received any advanced notice of the ICARD proposal, and the concern that was expressed in the article had more to do with the need to coordinate efforts between agencies than anything else.

What I want the public to know is this. The work of the Chelsea Area Planning Team is extremely important to me and every other locally elected official in this community, and we have taken on a leadership role in Washtenaw County through our willingness to come together to engage in "regional planning."

We will not allow this process to become sabotaged through the reporting of a "non-issue," and any concerns that exist between parties, will be resolved before we meet again.

Let me state clearly that Mark McFadden and the Washtenaw County Planning Commission will continue to facilitate our process, and we are excited about the interest shown by ICARD to assist us with several of our planning components. We will gladly accept any support offered by Ohren, Schroer, and the Kellogg Foundation, provided that support is coordinated within the framework and timetable that was approved by our committee on Dec. 11.

I find it extremely exciting that as our efforts move forward in 1999, professional planners from other areas have taken an interest in what we're accomplishing on a local and regional level, and have expressed a willingness to assist us with their time, talents, and funding.

I look forward to the future, and the outcome of this wonderful collaborative effort that we've engaged in.

Child care requires no formal training

To become certified in Michigan as a nail technician (manicurist) an individual must complete a minimum of 350 hours of classroom training and practical experience. A state board exam must be passed and the technician's work approved by a certified professional.

Once the state certificate is issued, it must be displayed at the workstation to assure all those receiving services that their fingernails are in the best care.

Michigan requires absolutely no previous experience or classroom instruction for individuals caring for young children in a child care facility. There is no state board exam, or classroom observation by an early childhood professional. Parents do not see certificates posted to assure them that each teacher is qualified to nurture and educate their precious children.

Michigan and Louisiana are the only two states in the nation that do not require pre-service training or experience and do not require annual, ongoing training hours for teachers in a child care center.

Are our youngest children at risk of harm? How necessary is early childhood education?

A multiple-choice test was given to Washtenaw County high school and community college students just beginning their early-childhood training. Many of the participants already hold teaching positions in local child care centers and family homes.

The test surveyed general knowledge regarding the following four areas of child development and nurture:

1. Physical growth and care,
2. Cognitive growth and learning,
3. Social development and discipline,
4. Safety and health.

Fifty-two students completed this test. Only eight passed with a grade of C or D (65-79 percent). Not a single student scored in the A-B range (80-100 percent). Consider how untrained child care providers might apply those incorrect answers in their daily classroom interactions.

The potential exists for serious physical, social, or cognitive harm to young children. Education is vital to quality child care.

There is no incentive for teacher training. Fortunately, however, there are early-childhood teachers who seek to further their own education without any assurance of higher wages or career advancement.

Likewise, many administrators, by their own initiative, encourage staff attendance at early childhood conferences, provide funding for educational opportunities, and conduct practical training workshops. These teachers and administrators are to be highly praised.

The field of early childhood has raised its own standards. The old perception of babysitting is rapidly fading as new information and research comes into focus. The licensing regulations of the past do not reflect the qualifications essential for today.

Twenty-two early childhood administrators in Washtenaw County completed a survey requesting their opinion on the issue of pre-service and ongoing training for teachers.

Regarding lead (or master) teachers, 86 percent of the administrators supported establishing licensing regulations requiring pre-service training. An astounding 100 percent supported on-going training requirements for teachers.

Certainly this survey reflects a serious concern for higher teacher qualifications. Michigan's 4C Association and Michigan's Association for the Education of Young Children have also called for increased licensing standards.

Attention must be given now to ensure that all young children spend their day under the supervision of properly educated, experienced early-childhood teachers. You are encouraged to write Gov. John Engler or your legislative leaders. Tell them that the developmental and intellectual needs of young children are no less important than good manicure.

Committee endorses $250,000 bypass study

By Eric Bowen
Staff Writer

Chelsea and surrounding communities took a step Friday toward building a bypass when the Chelsea Area Traffic Committee voted to recommend JJR Inc. conduct an environmental and engineering study of western Chelsea. JJR was chosen from among three candidates interviewed at a public meeting Jan. 15.

County Commissioner Joe Yekulis, who is the chair of the recommendation committee, said JJR's proposal offered the most in-depth knowledge of the area and the most flexibility.

"JJR really took their time and put in a first-class presentation," Yekulis said. "The proposal was the most flexible and they were willing to cut some of the fat out of their proposal to get down to what we can afford."

"They also recognized a better approach to construction phasing, recognizing we may not be able to build all in one fell swoop, but build it in pieces over several years."

Yekulis said that as part of the approximately $250,000 study, JJR will give a variety of recommendations for the bypass route and assess the impact on the environment. To reach this goal, the consulting firm will take aerial photographs of Chelsea and surrounding areas, suggest possible routes based on the impact on local institutions and then take a bevy of public input.

The environmental study is necessary to receive state funding and to have a chance of turning the road over to the state as an alternative to M-52, Yekulis said. Funding is expected to come from business sources and various government entities, possibly including a community development grant from the Michigan Department of Transportation.

Yekulis said the traffic committee was created to solve the increasing traffic problem in Chelsea. It is made up of leaders from the village government; Sylvan, Lyndon, Lima and Dexter townships; Washtenaw County; the Urban Area Transportation Study; and local business leaders.

Yekulis said the committee's first step was to conduct a traffic study in Chelsea, which was completed in 1997. The study showed that traffic was backed up during rush hour primarily, then gave alternatives for alleviating traffic.

Choosing the western bypass as the best alternative, the committee now has gone forward with studying how best to implement the plan.

One question the traffic study didn't fully answer, Yekulis said, was how much of the traffic is going through Chelsea to get somewhere else, not planning to stop in downtown. It is this traffic that Yekulis hopes to reduce by putting in a bypass, but the studies to date have not given a definitive answer to the question.

"There's a large amount of that traffic that has no intention of stopping in downtown Chelsea," Yekulis said. "That's the one thing that JJR hopes to address is to determine what portion of traffic is heading into town, and how much is just passing through."

The Chelsea Area Traffic Committee's next meeting will be held Feb. 19 at 3 p.m.

Village Council plans new sewage system

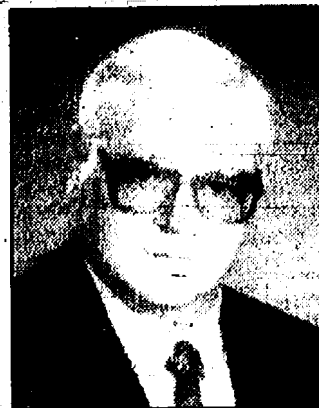

Chelsea Village Council voted Jan. 26 to purchase a newer sewage treatment system that uses ultra-violet light instead of chlorine.

Village Manager Jack Myers said the new system is large enough to meet expected increased capacity over the next few years. If the sewage treatment plant is expanded, the system will be able to handle the new load. The current system couldn't have met

A fishing tournament, card games, concert and chili cook-off will all again be part of the Chelsea American Legion's 26th annual Winter Carnival Friday through Sunday, Feb. 5-7 at the post home at Cavanaugh Lake.

The event is a fundraiser for the Herbert J. McKune Post No. 31.

The post home, located at 1700 Ridge Road, opens to the public at 6 p.m. on Friday and a euchre tournament starts at 7:30 p.m.

The fishing derby starts at 7 a.m. on Saturday and prizes will be awarded in several categories in adult and youth divisions. Weather permitting, snowmobiling and cross country skiing are also available throughout the day.

The chili cookoff starts at 10 a.m., with the official tasting and public vote at 2 p.m.

The day is capped off by the popular Monte Carlo Night. Donated prizes are awarded.

Breakfast will be served on Sunday at 7 a.m. and the fishing derby continues at 8 a.m.

A free concert featuring the band Fully Loaded will be held from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

The fishing derby ends at 5 p.m. and prizes are awarded at 5:30 p.m.

Planners choose new vice chairman

The Lima Township Planning Commission selected Terry Wesner as its vice-chairman Jan. 19. Wesner will take over the from Marvin Carlson, whose departure led to the appointment of Howard Sias to the commission.

At the same session, Gregory McKenzie was reappointed as chairman and Elizabeth Sensoli was reappointed as treasurer.

Longtime Chelsea teacher Leonard Soloman has negotiated five teacher contracts on behalf of the Chelsea Education Association. Many changes in the way contracts are negotiated have occurred during that time.

Master negotiator

Longtime Chelsea teacher weathers changes in way contracts negotiated

By Eric Bowen

Staff Writer

By looking at Leonard Soloman, you wouldn't guess that he was a militant. His gray pants with pockets on the thighs and his intense manner might give the impression of a gun-toting thug. But Soloman, a math teacher and head negotiator for the teachers union in this round of contract talks, reserves his militancy for the bargaining table.

In the more than 36 years Soloman has been a teacher in Chelsea School District he has negotiated five contracts covering more than a decade of teaching time. The contracts he negotiated in the late 1960s and early 1970s stand as models for today, winning the teachers benefits most people now take for granted.

He's been through two strikes, almost another, and has seen four superintendents come and go. Over the years he has softened his approach, but he remains true to his union ideals.

"Let's face it, if you take a look realistically at southern states and western states, you can see the effects of unionism as far as the teachers go," Soloman says. "There's only one (difference) between teachers in Arizona and teachers in Michigan and that's a strong and effective union movement."

Soloman started in the district in 1962 shortly before the state gave teachers the right to organize into unions. He was one of the founding members of the Chelsea Federation of Teachers, which for three years ran a competing union against the more established Chelsea Education Association.

The Federation, in contrast with the CEA, was what Soloman describes as militant, preferring to press its goals with demands and strikes. But the Federation didn't catch on with the majority of teachers, and it folded in 1969, merging with the CEA after teachers voted to certify the Association.

"I was more union-oriented than the majority of teachers," Soloman says. "The other teachers were more oriented toward the older teachers clubs. But that was not my vision."

The 1970s were banner years for the CEA. Soloman and other negotiators won the teachers health insurance coverage, retirement benefits and salary increases. The union also fought sex discrimination in the form of head of household pay, which Soloman says went only to men.

During those years, the local union also joined with countywide and statewide organizations to create standards for teachers across the state.

Ed Richardson worked as an administrator and superintendent in two other districts before taking over as superintendent in Chelsea. He says that in the '70s the centralized power of the union allowed teachers to target districts to benefit all of its members.

Confrontations were the order of the day. Both of Chelsea's strikes came in the '70s with a close call on a third at the end of the decade.

The atmosphere of the talks themselves was acrid as well, Richardson says. He remembers excusing himself from his first negotiation as a principal when the teachers pounded their hands on the table demanding concessions.

"We were bludgeoned over the head with the fact that they had the money," Soloman says.

"And we bludgeoned them with the threat of a strike."

The tenor of negotiations began to change during the 1980s, Soloman says, culminating in reforms passed in 1994 that revised the rules governing public employees. Public Act 112, Soloman says, virtually ended outright strikes by eliminating pay for teachers during a walkout and reaffirming the illegality of strikes.

Equally important in changing arbitration was the passing of Proposal A in the same year, Richardson says. The proposal revolutionized how districts were funded, shifting the burden from local districts to the state level.

No longer could teachers ask the district to go to the public for more money, Richardson says. Administrators and teachers are limited to the foundation grants the state sets every year in the Legislature.

"The effect has been more of a consideration of a share of the pie, instead of going out for more pie," Richardson says.

Soloman agrees that Proposal A has had a substantial impact on negotiations. The union now examines the limitations that the foundation grants put on the district's revenues as part of its bargaining position.

Soloman says Proposal A has had other side effects as well. In attempting to equalize revenues across the state, he says the Legislature has limited richer school districts whose residents would accept higher taxes. Those districts now get their money from the state.

Soloman also worries that the foundation grants are allocated at the whim of the Legislature and the state's economy. He fears that changing market conditions could force the state to cut costs.

"As long as the economy is going well, then the foundation grants will continue to grow," he says. "As soon as the economy goes south, then we'll have a problem."

Legislative reforms weren't the only changes that affected negotiations, Soloman says. A shift

Shirmohammad dumps law for teaching career

By Michelle Rogers

Associate Editor

Had Kathryn Shirmohammad not decided to follow her heart after one semester of law school, she would be in a very different place today.

But instead she sits comfortably and confidently at her desk grading English papers written by eighth-graders at Beach Middle School.

"At first I wasn't sure I was up to the challenge," Shirmohammad said about teaching. "It's very difficult in many ways, but it's also very rewarding. Anything worth doing is difficult, I think."

As a University of Wisconsin freshman, Shirmohammad took law courses but quickly discovered a career as an attorney wasn't what she wanted.

"It didn't appear to me to be a helping profession, so I came back and worked with preschoolers and really loved it," she said.

"I wasn't following my heart at first and I should have."

After working eight months as a preschool teacher, Shirmohammad returned to college, but this time at the University of Michigan.

She earned a bachelor's degree in English from U-M in 1994, then took education classes at Eastern Michigan University. Two years later, she earned a teaching certificate.

"I realized that I had always enjoyed babysitting and being around kids and this seemed like a great way to combine the two," she said.

Shirmohammad completed her student teaching in Ann Arbor and was a substitute teacher in the neighboring district before she was hired full time in Chelsea in 1997.

"It's a great district," Shirmohammad said. "I heard a lot of good things about Chelsea while I was living in the area. And I always loved coming to town, going out to eat and looking around."

Shirmohammad's first year was spent teaching seventh-grade English and geography. Now she teaches six sections of eighth-grade English.

The middle school appears to be her niche. Shirmohammad said she can't imagine teaching at any other grade level.

"I like the students because they're old enough to zip up their jackets but young enough to have fun," she said. "I really feel they're old enough that you can speak to them as adults but young enough to enjoy activities. I just feel this age is the best blend of old and young."

"I also think they have a different perspective of the world. They have a different take on so many things."

What Shirmohammad enjoys most about her job is listening to students discuss literature.

"They're very insightful," she said. "Sometimes more so than we would expect them to be."

Students read essays, non-fiction, fiction, historical novels and the classics. Shirmohammad said it's important to expose students to a variety of literature so they can find something they enjoy but also learn about different literary devices not used in any single genre.

Students also write research papers and keep journals.

TEACHER FEATURE

Shirmohammad describes her teaching style as demonstrative and outgoing. She uses a magic wand as a pointer and accents her words with hand gestures.

"I am definitely not a yeller," she said. "But I don't think I am necessarily laid back either. I am constantly standing. I never sit down. And if I have to dance, I'll dance."

"I also like to give the students a chance to ask questions and give feedback," she said. "We put to practice whatever they're learning in class."

Although she was a good English student while growing up in Plymouth, Shirmohammad said she is sympathetic with those who struggle with it, and she works hard to help them.

"I think writing has always come easily to me, and it's a challenge when you're a teacher to realize it doesn't come easily to everyone," she said.

Shirmohammad said it's ironic that she became an eighth-grade English teacher because her favorite teacher in school was Dawn Soerries, who held the same position. Now a professor at the University of Washington, Soerries left a life-long impression on a young Shirmohammad.

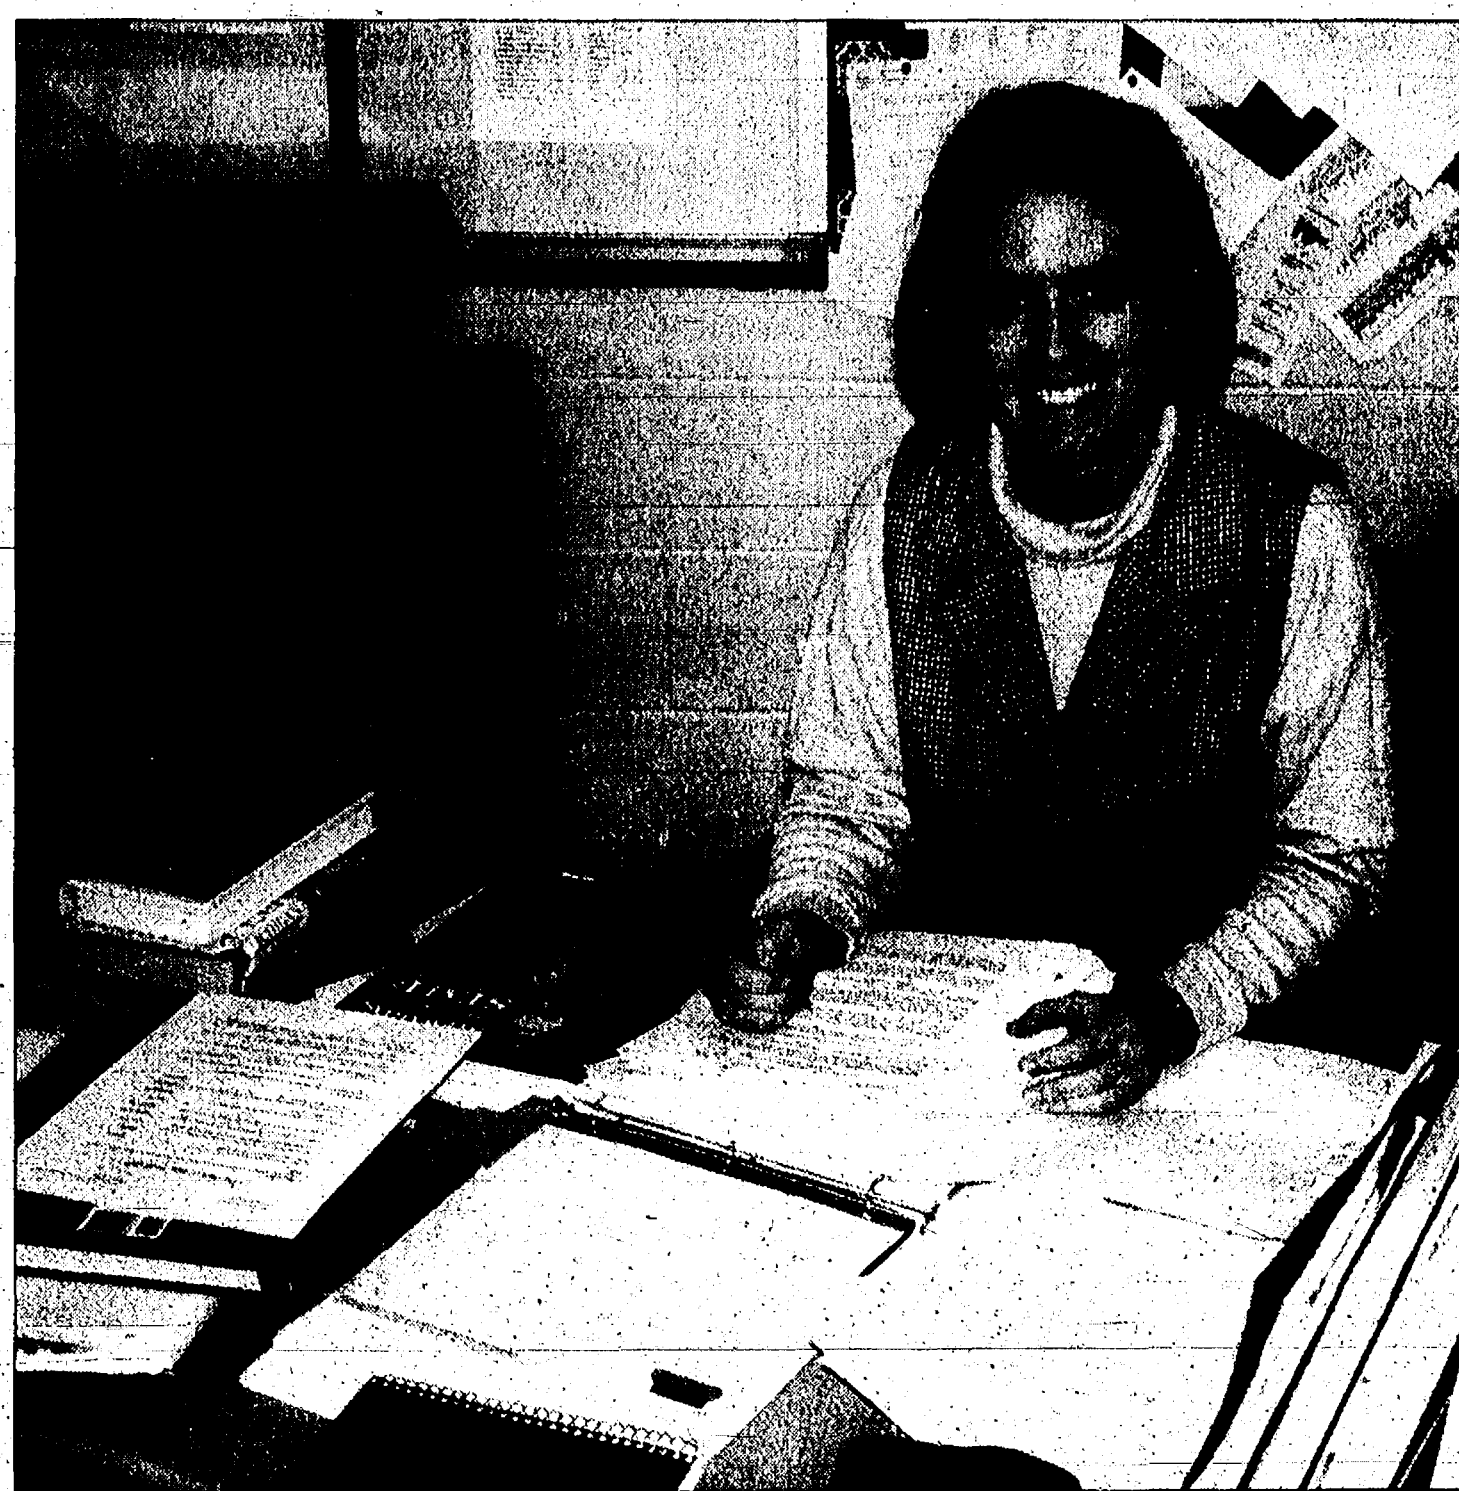

"She treated us like adults and she shared her own writing with us," Shirmohammad said. "I do that sometimes because I think it's important."

"She also talked about issues and personal things. It was more than 'Did you get your homework done?'"

Today Shirmohammad emulates that same philosophy in her classroom.

In turn, she hopes students see her as caring, capable and intelligent. And like Soerries was to her, Shirmohammad hopes that she is a role model to students.

"We have a lot of students who would make great teachers," she said. "They're caring, capable, intelligent, organized, and they hold a love for learning."

What Shirmohammad said she enjoys the most about middle school students is their energy. As a substitute teacher in Ann Arbor, she said she was disappointed to see many high school students falling asleep during class.

In Chelsea, Shirmohammad is impressed with the recently renovated middle school and the technology available throughout the district. She said when students are done with their English assignments and have extra time, they can pull up a science project on the computer and finish working on that.

"I am very excited about the technology," Shirmohammad said. "We have computers and

Bulldogs' best game of year buries Saline

By Jon Royce
Special Writer

In its best game of the year, the Chelsea varsity basketball team defeated Saline 72-42 in the SEC Showcase Jan. 29 in Chelsea. The Bulldogs are now

4-3 in Southeastern Conference play.

For the second consecutive game, the Bulldogs played their style of basketball. This time, however, they played defense and rebounded.

Brian Groesser plays tight defense for Chelsea against the Saline Hornets last Friday night at home.

Chelsea dictated to Saline how this game was going to be played, applying both full-court and half-court traps, forcing Saline to run.

Chelsea had 13 steals, 18 assists, out-rebounded Saline 33-21, shot 46 percent from the floor and shot 76 percent from the free throw line.

If you wanted a synopsis of the game it could be found within a 60 second span provided by senior guard Brian Groesser. Groesser had a steal, an assist and a rebound one on top of the other.

Chelsea dominated almost the entire game. Coach Robin Raymond was happy with the win.

"This is the best game we've played," he said.

"We had a good rotation with the kids coming off the bench. They played extremely well. This was an overall emotional team effort. We played hard 28-out of 32 minutes. We had a lull in the third quarter but we got out of it."

Junior Sean Davis, who had trouble scoring the first half of the season, seems to be out of his shooting slump.

"I've been shooting about 500 shots a night with my older brother, Rob. (My shot) was just something I needed to work a little harder on. Now the ball just seems to go in."

Chelsea played well the entire first half, going into the locker room leading 33-24.

In the third quarter the Bulldogs fell into their customary lull but this time it was cut short by senior guard Rourke Skelton. He ripped off eight straight points, hitting two three-pointers and taking the ball in for a lay-up, swinging the momentum back to the Bulldogs.

After that Chelsea never let up as they increased the lead throughout the rest of the game.

Davis led the team in scoring with 17. Skelton had 14. Alan Bairley 13. Tony Scheffler 12, including a three-pointer. Aaron Ruhlrig four.

Ethan Rendell three, Mike Holloway three, and Jeff Kolodica, Vince Scheffler and Groesser rounded out the scoring with two points each.

Despite playing an up-tempo game and shooting 53 percent from the field, Chelsea lost to Fowlerville, 74-80, at Fowlerville Jan. 26.

The Bulldogs allowed Fowlerville 19 offensive rebounds and did not play good defense down the stretch. Chelsea is now 4-6 for the season.

Raymond was pleased with the pace of the game but disappointed with the loss.

"I liked the tempo of the game but we gave up 21 points off the glass. That is a lot," he said.

The turning point of the game came in the third quarter. The Bulldogs ended the half leading 40-36 but Fowlerville hit two three-pointers to start the third quarter and led the rest of the way.

Raymond was particularly pleased with the play of junior center Bairley and Groesser.

"Bairley had a good game, Raymond said.

"He had 20 points and six rebounds. Groesser played well coming off the bench. He had six points and two assists."

Davis had 12 points, Skelton had 11 and led the team with five assists. Ruhlrig had nine and led the team with four steals. Kolodica had six points, Vince Scheffler had five, and Tony Scheffler and Sam Compton both had two.

Swimmers split meets

Chelsea varsity swimming team continued on its path towards a fourth consecutive top-five finish in the state meet with a decisive win over the Fenton Tigers on Tuesday night (136-48). But the Bulldogs lost a tough meet to second-ranked Milan (97-89) Thursday night, moving Chelsea's record to 5-1 overall and 2-1 in the SEC.

The Bulldogs took command of the Fenton meet from the first event and never looked back.

The 200-yard medley relay team of Andy Hack, Matt Johns, Josh Hack, and Andy Thiel won easily at 1:47.94 with Jared Wacker, Mike Offenbacher, Matt Moffett, and Jeff Heydlauff placing second in 2:02.09.

Greg Cook was dominant in the 200-yard freestyle, winning in 2:01.74 with Moffett placing second at 2:12.30 and Joe Rueter placing fourth with a time of 2:31.46.

Bobby Rohrkemper won the 200-yard individual medley with a solid time of 2:21.77. Wacker was second at 2:27.78 and Zack Christman was third with a time of 2:31.03.

The sprinting squad of Matt Johns, Thiel and Heydlauff finished 1-2-3, respectively, in the 50 freestyle.

Alex Hess and Steve Basar had season-best performances in the one-meter diving with scores of 105.40 and 155.60. Gabe McGuinness placed second with a score of 160.10.

Josh Hack won the 100-yard butterfly with a time of 53.74. Jeremy Bacon was fifth at 1:17.21.

Johns continued to be impressive in the sprint events, winning the 100-yard freestyle with a time of 53.51. Heydlauff was second at 56.54 with Rueter earning fourth place with a time of 1:05.09.

Cook had a season best time in the 500-yard freestyle winning his second event of the evening at 5:22.40. Moffett stopped the clock at 5:41.81 and earned second place.

Thiel, Rohrkemper, Johns, and Hack won the 200-yard freestyle relay with a solid time of 1:34.34. Mike Bowdish, Bacon, Offenbacher, and Wacker came in second with a time of 1:52.78.

Andy Hack and Wacker combined for a 1-2 finish in the 100-yard backstroke, with teammate Max Sprinkle earning varsity points by placing fourth at 1:30.38.

Rohrkemper won the 100-yard breaststroke at 1:14.13 with Offenbacher stopping the clock at 1:17.97 and second place. Christman finished third.

In the 400-yard freestyle relay, Hack, Heydlauff, Thiel, and Rohrkemper combining for a winning time of 3:44.24.

The meet with Milan has traditionally been a close meet and this year's confrontation was no exception. Both teams were primed and ready with both coaches confident that their teams would rise to the occasion.

Twenty-three state qualification times were set by both teams through the course of the meet, with Chelsea turning in 21 season-best performances.

In the 200-yard-medley relay, Chelsea placed second and third in the event with Wacker, Cook, Rohrkemper, and Heydlauff swimming a season-best effort at 1:52.78. Sprinkle, Offenbacher, Bacon, and Reuters were third.

Returning state champion Josh Hack proved that he is still the most dominant 200-yard freestyle swimmer in the conference with a decisive victory in 1:48.14. Cook placed fifth with a time of 2:00.67.

Andy Hack was second in the 200-yard individual medley with a time of 2:05.80. Rohrkemper was fifth at 2:21.20.

Andy Thiel qualified in the 50-yard freestyle as he placed second at 23.62. Johns was third with an impressive 23.74 and Heydlauff had a season-best of 25.08 for fifth place.

Justin Fitch had a season-best performance in the one-meter diving with 126.10 points. Basar was second with 151.30 points. And Gabe McGuinness was third with 149.70 points.

Rohrkemper was second in the 100-yard butterfly at 57.27, with Bowdish placing fourth at 1:16.11 and Bacon earning fifth place at 1:16.85.

Johns qualified for his second individual event for the state championships, "placing second in the 100-yard freestyle with a time of 51.99. Thiel was fourth at 53.26 and Heydlauff was fifth with a time of 55.96.

Cook continued to improve as he dropped to 5:18.94 in the 500-yard freestyle with Moffett also having a season-best performance at 5:37.46, which was good enough for fourth place. Sprinkle placed fifth at 7:23.25.

The most impressive event of the evening for Chelsea was the 200-yard freestyle relay. Thiel, Johns, Andy Hack, and Josh Hack combined for All-America consideration time at 1:30.89.

Andy Hack came right back in the 100-yard backstroke to win in 58.88, beating Brian Kanitz who beat him at last year's state championships. Wacker was third at 1:00.60 and Christman was fourth at 1:09.58.

Josh Hack won the 100-yard breaststroke easily at 1:01.02, with Offenbacher earning third place at 1:16.28.

The meet came down to the 400-yard freestyle relay where Chelsea had to place first and third to win the meet.

Johns, Thiel, Josh Hack, and Andy Hack ran out of gas and placed second with a time of 3:30.39. Cook, Heydlauff, Wacker, and Rohrkemper placed third in a great time of 3:46.25.

The Bulldogs are on pace with the other top teams in the state, said coach Dave Jolly, and are excited about what March has in store for them. Chelsea hosts the Pinckney Pirates on Thursday at 6:30 p.m.

Beach Middle School seventh grade volleyball team defeated Lincoln in four games on Jan. 26, 11-3, 8-11, 11-2 and 11-6.

"The team played well for their first match," said Chelsea coach Linda Turok.

Melissa Koch had two aces for the Bulldogs and Missy Morcom and Nicole Collins each had one. Meghan Reames had two assists and Rachel Dotson, Brittany Denison and Collins each had one.

Morcom led the team in serving with a total of 13 points, including nine in a row. Jenna Connelly and Koch each served five points and Beth Robertson served four.

Dan Dault, left, had the best day of any Bulldog at the Chelsea quad last Saturday.

Wrestlers whip Dreadnaughts

By Frank Dimich

Special Writer Chelsea coach Kerry Kargel wasn't sure how his team would perform in Thursday's Southeastern Conference dual meet with Dexter because he had to make some substitutions in his regular lineup because of injuries.

"We were both beat up a little bit," Kargel said. "I had no idea what the outcome was going to be."

The outcome turned out well for Chelsea as the Bulldogs won 51-23 to go to 3-1 in the SEC and 8-4 overall in dual meets.

Mike Kattula won by forfeit at 103 pounds. Dan Graff moved up to 112 because of Dexter's void at 103 and won by pin in 1:42.

George Fairley won by pin in 1:48 at 130. Justin Nadolny by pin in 2:19 at 135. Aaron Smith by pin in 20 seconds at 140. Nate Kaiser by a 10-8 decision in overtime at 145. Ben Vogel by pin in 3:28 at 152. Dan Dault by a 9-3 decision at 171. Alex Underwood by injury default at 215 and Ian Kummer by an 8-2 decision at heavyweight.

Kargel was happy to see so many wins at the middle weights, and was especially pleased with the performance of Fairley.

"We normally don't get that many wins on the inside," he said.

The Bulldogs went 1-3 at the Chelsea quad meet Saturday.

8th graders win two matches

Beach Middle School eighth grade volleyball team swept Lincoln in three games Jan. 26 at Lincoln, 11-4, 11-5 and 11-7.

"The team opened their season with a strong serving effort and played well, especially considering their limited amount of practice time due to snow and end-of-semester interruptions," said Chelsea coach Ann Schaffner.

Jenny Parker led the Bulldogs with eight service points, Carly Daniels and day, beating Division III Vandercook Lake 63-18, and losing to Division III Jackson Lumen Christi 35-31 and Division I Belleville 60-6.

Dault won all three of his matches. "Dan Dault really looked sharp on Saturday," Kargel said.

Derek Egeler, who has one of the best records on the team, also returned to the lineup after missing the Dexter meet due to illness, and won one match.

"We're just glad to have him back on the mat," Kargel said. "After you get sick, it takes a while to get conditioned."

Against Vandercook Lake, Graff won by pin in 11 seconds at 103. Dav Broft by forfeit at 112. Grant Bollinger and Jason Smith by forfeit at 130 and 135, respectively. Eric Lixey by pin in 1:28 at 145. Vogel by 7-1 decision at 152. Derek Egeler by pin in 1:16 at 160. Dault by pin in 3:52 at 171. Mark Polzin by pin in 19 seconds at 189. Underwood by forfeit and Kummer by pin in 53 seconds at heavyweight.

Against Lumen Christi, Graff won by pin in 1:35 at 103. Broft by pin in 3:53 at 112. Bollinger by pin in 5:05 at 130. Dault by a 15-2 major decision at 171 and Nate Dawson by pin in 1:56 at heavyweight.

Against Belleville, seven matches were decisions of four points or less, but Dault was the only winner, getting a pin in 1:20 at 171.

Anna Arend had five and Julie Inwood had four.

Chelsea got errorless play from Daniels (12-12), Courtney Bentley (12-12), Alison Sacks (10-10) and Arend (20-22).

JV cagers have good week

Chelsea junior varsity basketball team ran its Southeastern Conference record to 5-2 last week with a 54-49 victory over the Saline Hornets Friday, Jan. 29, in Chelsea.

With the win, Chelsea is 8-4 overall.

"We are playing pretty good basketball right now," said Chelsea coach Mark Scheese.

"Our defense has stepped up in the last three games and offensively we are moving the ball around."

Ben Myers led Chelsea scorers with 23 points. Chris

Cooper added 14, Mike Radka six, Brian Sayers five, Cory Picklesimer two, and Chris Brigham two.

In other action Jan. 25, the Bulldogs defeated the Fowlerville Gladiators on the road, 67-40.

Myers again was the team's high scorer with 23 points. Brigham scored 10, Cooper nine, Nick Battistone six, Radka five, Sayers five, Picklesimer five, Chris Evans two and Matt McAtee two.

Lindsay Powers drives the ball back over the net against the Dexter Dreadnaughts in a losing cause.

Varsity volleyball team sluggish in loss to Dexter

By Frank Dimich
Special Writer

After playing only one match the week before, the Chelsea varsity volleyball team was playing a little flat coming into a week when it had three Southeastern Conference matches and a tournament, coach Dan Montgomery said.

Fortunately for the Bulldogs, they were able to beat Milan Jan. 25, 15-11, 15-10 and Tecumseh in a makeup match Jan. 27 15-6, 15-5, but those teams are in the lower half of the SEC standings.

Unfortunately, playing flat cost them Thursday in a 4-15, 4-15 loss to Dexter, a team that is in the upper half of the SEC and was in a tie for second with the Bulldogs at 4-1 after last week. Chelsea was 15-6 overall.

"I think they got so worked up and keyed up that they couldn't move," Montgomery said.

The Bulldogs were able to recover and looked sharp again in a 15-17, 15-10, 6-15 loss to a strong Birmingham Seaholm team in the quarterfinals of the University of Michigan-Dearborn Invitational Saturday, Montgomery said.

"We slowly raised it (the level of play throughout the day) and we're back to playing normal," he said.

The Bulldogs advanced to the quarterfinals by finishing first in their pool with a 4-2 record.

They split with Allen Park, losing the first game 12-15 and winning the second 15-3. Chelsea also split with Edsel Ford 15-8, 9-15 and swept Ecorse 15-0, 15-2.

Lindsay Powers led the team with 32 kills. Kristin Ellis had 17, Amy McCalla 15, Karla Dettling 10 and Lindsey Brink seven.

Setter Miranda Harris led with 57 assists.

Celeste Bycraft led the serving with eight aces, Brink had seven, McCalla six and Harris and Val Schiller five each.

Ellis was named to the all-tournament team.

Against Tecumseh, Ellis and Powers led seven kills. Powers had six and Dettling and Jill Drexler three each.

Harris led with 20 assists and was 15-of-15 serving with three aces.

Against Milan, Ellis and McCalla led with six kills each. Powers had five and Brink three.

Harris led with 13 assists. Brink was 11-of-11 serving with three aces.

Against Dexter, Powers led with five kills.

JV volleyball wins Invitational

By Frank Dimich
Special Writer

The Chelsea junior varsity volleyball team used a strong game at the net offensively and defensively to win the Clinton Invitational Saturday by beating Leslie 15-3, 15-3 in the finals.

"Michelle Dettling, Catie Boshoven and Emily Royce played a strong game at the net offensively and defensively," Chelsea coach Laura Cleveland said.

Dettling led the Bulldogs with 26 kills in the tournament. Royce had 16, Caitlin Deis 18 and Boshoven 12.

The Bulldogs advanced by beating Tecumseh 15-8, 15-10 in the semifinal and Clinton 15-10, 15-6 in the quarterfinal.

They went 8-0 and finished first in their pool by winning two games each against Saline, Clinton, Britton and Morenci.

Every player was able to contribute to the wins, Cleveland said.

Chelsea freshman cagers beat Milan Big Reds, Fowlerville

The Chelsea freshman basketball team used a pair of strong third periods to beat Milan 51-42 at home Jan. 25 and Fowlerville 67-61 Jan. 26 in a nonleague game at Fowlerville.

Chelsea was up 22-12 at halftime and outscored Milan 17-11 in the third period to put the game out of reach, leading 39-23.

"We kind of had a slow start, but we tried to play more our pace in the third quarter," Chelsea coach Scott Barrett said.

The Bulldogs were up 32-27 at halftime before outscoring Fowlerville 24-17 in the third by coming out in a press and forcing turnovers. They led 58-44 after three.

"Our guys seem to be in pretty good shape and press whenever I ask them to," Barrett said.

Chelsea is 8-1 and 5-1 in the Southeastern Conference.

Joe Tripodi led the Bulldogs in both games, scoring 12 against Milan and 15 at Fowlerville.

Against Milan, Eddie McClendon had 10 points, Tim Bentley had nine, Kent Reames six, Dan Mueller three each, Nick Gadbury and Jeff Walters two each and Mike Mignano one.

At Fowlerville, Gadbury had 14, McClendon 10, Bentley eight, Walters and Mueller six each and Reames, Smith, Kyle Schrotenboer and Mike Millikan two each.

Freshman volleyball team wins a pair

The Chelsea freshman volleyball team won its first two Southeastern Conference matches of the week, beating Milan 15-7, 15-1 Jan. 25 and Tecumseh 15-8, 15-9 Jan. 27.

But then they took their undefeated SEC record against Dexter, which hasn't lost a match all season and lost 10-15, 6-15.

The Bulldogs are now in second place in the SEC at 4-1 and 10-4-2 overall.

"They were definitely our toughest opponent of the year," Chelsea coach Terri McCalla said. "We got a real slow start and out serves were off. Their attacks were falling where we weren't."

The Bulldogs also finished fourth at the 12-team Jackson Western Invitational Saturday, losing in the semifinal to Grand Ledge 9-15, 5-15.

"We thought we could beat Grand Ledge since we had beaten them in the pool, but we just couldn't serve," McCalla said. "Grand Ledge hit the ball over in one or two hits and it took us awhile to adjust."

Audrey Richardson led with 12 points on 13 serves.

"She was serving great, she had a lot of aces," McCalla said.

The Bulldogs beat Coldwater 15-7, 16-14 in the quarterfinal. They finished 4-2 in pool play by splitting with Portland 17-15, 8-15, beating Jackson Western 15-6, 15-6 and splitting with Grand Ledge 15-2, 10-15.

In the first game against Milan, Richardson was 7-for-8 serving and led with four aces. Tracy Carter had three aces and Cara Long, Jenelle Vleck, Rochelle Stafford and Heather Tanner had one each.

In the second game, Vleck was 9-for-10 serving with three aces. Susan Frederick and Richardson had one each. Meghan Tandy had no serving errors.

Against Tecumseh, Stafford was 8-for-8 serving with two aces, Carter 7-for-8 with two aces and Richardson had two aces and led with three kills.

In the first game against Dexter, Stafford was 7-for-7 serving. Vleck had two aces and Long one. In the second, Carter had two aces and Vleck and Tanner one each.

Beach wrestlers start strong

Beach Middle School seventh- and eighth-grade wrestlers defeated Lincoln last Tuesday, winning 18 of the 28 matches.

Chelsea's first win came at 70 pounds when Josh Clark won by pin. After losing matches at 85 pounds and 90 pounds, Chelsea came back with three pins by Randy Ostrowski at 100 pounds, Ryan Keiser at 105 pounds, and Ben Rodgers at 110 pounds.

After losing the next three matches, Chelsea responded with eight pins. Pinning their opponents were Karl Wint at 130 pounds, Dave Dault at 137 pounds, Adam Egeler at 137 pounds, at Darl Bauer 145 pounds, Adam Egeler at 145 pounds, Ross Davis at 157 pounds, Z. Powers at 167 pounds, and Josh Rohrer at heavyweight.

At the Middle School level wrestlers are paired by mutual weights rather than by a specific weight class and all wrestlers are paired for matches if possible. In order to do this more wrestlers will wrestle more than once so that other kids can wrestle.

In second-round matches against Lincoln, Chelsea recorded wins by Fred Dehn at 80 pounds, Dave Graft at 90 pounds, Ed Escher at 100 pounds, Dave Dault at 134 pounds, Jared Powers at 150 pounds, and Dan Roberts at 181 pounds.

The next home meet for Chelsea is Tuesday, Feb. 9.

Seconds after the power went out, the Kohler® Standby Generator kicked in... and there was light.

Unfortunately, the neighbors decided to skip the Kohler standby generator. So when the power went out, they were out of luck. And lights. And heat. And all the other conveniences we take for granted.

The time to think about an emergency generator is now — before an emergency. A Kohler standby generator starts automatically within seconds of a power outage. So even if you're on vacation, your sump pump or furnace and other essential appliances keep running. Connected directly to natural gas or propane line, the system never

Hockey Club nearly beats rival Dexter

Chelsea Bulldog Hockey Club did everything possible to win on Friday, Jan. 29, but had to settle for a 4-4 tie.

An estimated crowd of 275 people watched as the Bulldogs held a two-goal lead, lost the lead, tied the game, and watched as the last shot of the game by Todd Osborne miraculously found its way into the glove of the Dexter Dreadnaught goalie.

The Bulldogs (13-10-2, 5-1-1 league), needing only one more win this season to double the total number of wins (7) from last season, began the opening period a bit sluggish. The checking intensified and Jim York banged in the first goal of the game on a sweet set up from Jesse Hyde. Though Dexter outshot the Bulldogs 13-10 in the first period, Chelsea led 1-0.

Osborne extended the Chelsea lead to 2-0 when he scored just two minutes into the second period. Chelsea held the lead by checking the Dreadnaughts at every opportunity. Dexter scored with just 3:40 left in the second period when a shot eluded the Bulldog defense and squibbed by Chelsea goalie Casey Johnson.

Todd Osborne handles the puck for the Chelsea Hockey Club against Dexter.

sea goalie Casey Johnson.

The Bulldogs dominated the game, then took a nasty turn for the worse.

To beat Dexter's high-octane offense, there is little room for error or let down. Unfortunately, Chelsea lost focus and let their intensity lapse, as Dexter scored two unanswered goals within the first two minutes of the third period, thus taking their first lead of the game, 3-2.

Bulldog coach Don Wright, sensing a potential unraveling, called a time out, and inspired his team to get back on track.

Nolan Ahrens tied the score on an unassisted goal midway through the third period tying the score 3-3. With 6:46 left in the game, Cal Dunham scored an acrobatic go-ahead goal for the Bulldogs.

Bulldog goalie Johnson made save after save and faced 37 Dreadnaught shots on the night.

Just when it looked like the game's intensity and excitement levels could not get any higher, they did.

Dexter made a desperation offensive adjustment and tied the score with just seconds left in the game on a shot from the blue line through many players.

With five seconds remaining, Osborne turned the moans of disappointment by Bulldogs fans into near pandemonium as he picked up a loose puck at center ice. He raced toward the Dexter goalie, two defenders in his back draft, faked the goalie and shot glove side. But Dexter made the glove save.

Chelsea's next game is Saturday, Feb. 6 at 7 p.m. against Grosse Ile in Jackson.

Beach swimmers win invitational

Beach Middle School swim team won the 32nd annual Erie Mason Invitational last Saturday, scoring an impressive 324 points to lead the team field. Dexter was second with 202 points.

"This was a great team," said coach Dave Brinklow. "It's always fun to win a big meet like this. But it is so much more meaningful when you have a group of kids who are so enjoyable to be with. They are very cohesive and feed off of each other's success. The support they give each other and the support from parents sitting in the stands is just phenomenal."

The Bulldogs scored an incredible 52 points in the first event alone and never looked back.

The 200 medley relay team of Alexis Jolly, Matt Holmes, Julie Mida and David Grabarkiewicz took first place with a time of 2:00.51. Rebecca Armstrong, Alise Augustine, Katrina Moffett and Jimmy Baker were fifth with a time of 2:07.69.

Moffett and Kayla Hack were first and second in the 200 freestyle with times of 2:10.30 and 2:11.87, respectively. Laura Adams was eighth at 2:20.89 and Danielle Hughes 12th at 2:33.87.

In the 100 individual medley, Jolly was fourth at 1:11.25; Augustine seventh at 1:11.96; Sarah Manville eighth at 1:12.09; and Holmes ninth at 1:14.91.

Grabarkiewicz was third in the 50 freestyle with a time of 25.59 and Baker was ninth at 27.71.

In diving, Grabarkiewicz was 10th with 95.3 points and Andy Ceo 11th at 94.1.

Mida was third in the 50 butterfly in 27.90, Armstrong sixth in 30.94 and Noelle Temple eighth in 32.00.

Hack led the way in the 100 freestyle with a third place in 59.87. Moffett was eighth at 1:02.95; Tim Wacker 10th at 1:04.39 and Adams 11th at 1:04.89.

Grabarkiewicz, Baker, Wacker and Hack combined for a big win in the 200 freestyle relay in 1:49.13 and Liz Rohrkemper, Meghan Minnick, Temple and Adams were seventh at 1:58.98.

Armstrong was fourth in the 100 backstroke in 1:09.32 and Jolly was sixth in 1:12.35.

In the 100 breaststroke, Holmes was second in 1:15.37; Augustine third in 1:17.17 and Manville seventh in 1:20.98.

The 400 freestyle relay team of Hack, Armstrong, Jolly and Moffett set a new school record with a second-place finish at 4:03.95. Adams Rohrkemper, Wacker and Baker were seventh at 4:19.51.

Brinklow also commented on the outstanding performances that were not in the finals.

"This team has more depth than I've ever had," he said.

"The ruling at this meet is only two relays per team in the top 12. If we could have picked more relays, our third medley relay would have been 10th. Our third 200 freestyle relay ninth, and our third and fourth freestyle relays would have been 10th and 12th."

Members of those relays were Tracy Stetson, Sheauan

Plicker, Sarah Tonihart, Mike Wacker, Katie Minnick and Kyle Brown.

Other participants were Sarah Kaminsky, Teddy Keilman, Andrew Broth, Lauren O'Connor, Anna Maroney, Ray

Canine Hip Dysplasia and OFA

By Jeff La Huis D.V.M.

Anyone who has considered purchasing a large breed dog has seen reference to hip dysplasia or OFA. Hip dysplasia, literally means abnormal growth of the hip joint. Dogs afflicted with this problem are usually large breed dogs, with Golden Retrievers, German Shepherds, and Labrador's as some of the more commonly afflicted. Dysplasia occurs because the puppies bones grow faster than its muscles. This allows the hip joint (a ball and socket joint) to become looser which in turn can damage the cartilage of the joint. As the dog ages, this damage takes the form of arthritis and can be crippling, even at a young age. There are several things that can have an effect on this condition: rate of growth, amount of calcium in the diet, and excessive exercise. However, the most important cause of hip dysplasia is genetics. That is to say that the dogs with hip dysplasia are more likely to have puppies with hip dysplasia. Dogs that are to be bred should have their hips checked by OFA (Orthopedic Foundation for Animals) or by a newer method termed the Penn Hip. If you are considering a large breed puppy be sure to ask about dysplasia and if the parents have been certified. Next week I will talk more about hip dysplasia and certification. If you have any questions, please call Westarbor Animal Hospital at (734) 769-5391.

Mallbox cover slips over your existing mailbox!

Promote postal personality with this cedar chalet cover and support post. Designed to slip over an existing metal mailbox, the chalet cover is an easy way to give your tired-looking mailbox new life. Only a few boards are needed for the front, back, sides and roof. Siding is made from thin strips of wood and shingles can be hand split from ordinary pine or cedar. The flag mounts to the chimney and a tulip cutout or numerals can be added to the lid cover. Just a few saw cuts will turn an ordinary post into an elegant support. A twelve-foot length of cedar or treated 4-by-4 will yield all the parts for the support post. The cover is 13" wide, 15" high and 20" long. Request #2088 ($9.95 plus $2.50 shipping charge).

PMS describes specific set of symptoms

Question: I am currently starting a relationship with a girl who has told me she suffers from PMS quite severely. I have known her for nine weeks, and twice she has been very emotional, erratic, and acted like she was in a panic. Can you help me understand her condition and suggest things I can do to help her during these times? It is very important.

Answer: Premenstrual syndrome, often abbreviated as PMS, is so ubiquitous that the term has become a part of the common vocabulary. It describes an occurrence of anxiety, depression or other changes in mood before the onset of the menstrual period. Other symptoms such as breast tenderness, fatigue, bloating and abdominal cramping may also be present.

Most women have some or all of these symptoms associated with their menstrual cycle, but in a mild and brief form. For an unfortunate few women, estimated at between 3 to 8 percent, the mood changes and other physical symptoms are both longer in duration and more severe in nature. It can truly become a disabling condition.

In PMS the symptoms clear up within a day after the start of the menstrual period. All seems well for another two to three weeks. Then one to two weeks before the next period is due, another episode begins.

The label "PMS" is often used by both men and women to describe a woman who is irritable, anxious and moody, particularly if she "growls" at those around her.

In more than 80 percent of cases, the cause of the mood disorder is not PMS. Depression, anxiety or even too much coffee or other drugs can be the cause.

In fact, women don't have exclusive rights to moody behavior. Men act this way about as often, and there just isn't a catchy acronym to describe their behavior.

For the majority of women with PMS-like symptoms and for all those men who act the same way, the treatment is directed at the underlying depression, anxiety disorder or psychiatric condition. Fortunately, we have treatments today that are very effective for these problems. Unfortunately, we are not as successful with true PMS.

The cause of PMS has not been identified. Most researchers currently believe that it is a subtle disorder involving the relationship between the levels of sex hormones, principally estrogen and progesterone, and the chemicals in the brain called neurotransmitters, particularly serotonin. Because of this the current "cure du jour" includes the use of an antidepressant medicine that raises the level of serotonin. It is beneficial for most.

There are other medicines that are also helpful for some sufferers, but there are also a number of prescription and non-prescription products that have been touted as the cure du jour for PMS and are now proven to be ineffective. High doses of progesterone, vitamin B6, vitamin E and Primrose oil are among these.

The use of calcium and magnesium supplements are currently in vogue, and they may or may not ultimately prove to be beneficial.

There are two important things you can do for your friend: Be emotionally supportive, and encourage her to talk to a family doctor or gynecologist about what may be causing her symptoms. It may be true PMS or it may be another condition. In either case, suitable treatment can be recommended once the correct cause of her symptoms has been established.

WEBSTER & SCIO TOWNSHIPS WASHTENAW COUNTY, MICHIGAN AMENDMENT #3 ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION OF LOCK ALPINE SANITARY AUTHORITY

This Amendment #3 of the Articles of Incorporation of Loch Alpine Sanitary Authority of Webster and Scio Townships, Washtenaw County, Michigan is adopted by the Constituent municipalities under the provisions of Act 233 Public Acts of Michigan of 1955, as amended.

Article VII is amended to provide as follows:

ARTICLE VII

The governing body of this Authority shall be a Board of Trustees which shall consist of seven (7) members. The Township Supervisor and the Township Clerk of each of the constituent municipalities and a third member of the Township Board of each constituent municipality shall be members of the Authority's Board of Trustees. Each said third member shall be so appointed by the Authority's Board of which he or she is a member for a term of four (4) years commencing at 12 noon on November 20 of the year in which the general election at which township officials are elected is held. In the event that any member of the Authority Board who is a member of the Township Board chooses not to serve as a member of the Authority Board, that member may nominate any person who is a qualified elector of that Township to serve the term of that member, provided that such nomination is approved by the Township Board of that Township. The seventh member of the Authority's Board shall be a member of and shall be appointed by the Board of Directors of the Loch Alpine Improvement Association, a Michigan corporation, for a term of four (4) years commencing at 12 noon on November 20 of the year in which the general election at which township officials are elected is held.

The members of the Authority's Board who are Township Supervisors and Clerks shall be deemed qualified as members of said Board by taking and subscribing the oath of such township offices, copies of which shall be certified by the respective Township Clerks to the Authority. The other members of said Board shall qualify by taking the constitutional oath of office, which shall be subscribed and filed with the Authority and with his or her respective municipal clerk.

A membership of the Authority's Board shall become vacant upon occurrences causing a township office to become vacant as provided by statute. Vacancies for unexpired terms shall be filled for the remainder of such term by the respective appointive bodies authorized by law to fill the vacancy thereby existing on the Board of such appointing authority.

Notwithstanding the terms above specified, the members of the Board of Trustees on the effective date hereof shall so continue, and their term shall expire at 12 noon November 20, 1998.

The Board of Trustees shall on the 20th day of November of each even numbered year at 8 o'clock p.m., local time, at the Township Hall for the Township of Scio hold a meeting of the Board for the purpose of organization. At such organization meeting the Board shall select a Chairman, Vice Chairman and Secretary-Treasurer who shall be members of the Board. Such officers shall serve until the next such organizational meeting. Special meetings shall be held for the purpose of selecting officers to fill any vacancy that may occur. At the organizational meeting the Board shall provide by resolution for the time and place of its regular meetings, and shall also select two of the Board members who, with the chairman shall serve as an operating committee. The officers of the Authority on the effective date hereof shall continue to serve in their respective offices until the next organizational meeting.

This Amendment #3 of said Articles of Incorporation shall be published once in The Dexter Leader, a newspaper circulating within the territory encompassed by the Authority. One printed copy of this Amendment of such Articles of Incorporation certified as a true copy by the person herein designated therefor, with the date and place of such publication shall be filed with each the Secretary of State and the Clerk of Washtenaw County. This Amendment shall become effective upon such filing.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF the constituent municipalities, the Townships of Webster and Scio, have adopted and authorized to be executed this Amendment #3 to the Articles of Incorporation of Loch Alpine Sanitary Authority of Webster and Scio Townships, Washtenaw County, Michigan, on behalf of the respective constituent municipalities by the Supervisor and Clerk of the respective said municipalities.

The foregoing Amendment #3 of the Articles of Incorporation was adopted by the Township Board of the Township of Webster, Washtenaw County, Michigan, at a meeting duly held on the 7th day of July, 1998.

D. F. Fisher
Supervisor of Webster Township

Wanda M. Baldus
Clerk of Webster Township

The foregoing Amendment #3 of the Articles of Incorporation was adopted by the Township Board of the Township of Scio, Washtenaw County, Michigan, at a meeting duly held on the 15th day of September, 1998.

R.S. Tickle
Supervisor of Scio Township

Gary F. Korschuh
Clerk of Scio Township

I hereby certify that the foregoing is a true and correct copy of the Amendment #3 of the Articles of Incorporation of Loch Alpine Sanitary Authority of Webster and Scio Townships, Washtenaw County, Michigan. I further certify that said Articles were published in the Dexter Leader under date of September 15, 1998.

Scientists still can't explain many mysteries of existence

WILLIAM R. MATTOX, JR.
AMY FOUNDATION

REAL ANSWERS

When I was in school, I spent too much time listening to recording artists like Sam Cooke and not enough time studying concepts like the second law of thermodynamics. As a result, I "don't know much about history, don't know much biology, don't know much about science books, don't know much about the French I took."

But I do know (or at least I always assumed) that someone somewhere does know all about these things. I mean, even though I am no rocket scientist, surely there are rocket scientists who know everything there is to know about say, nuclear physics. Right?

Well, I don't want to alarm anyone, but a Nobel Prize-winning physicist named Leon Lederman made a surprising admission in The Washington Post recently. Lederman was asked to comment on a recent scientific discovery which invalidates the "Standard Model" physicists have developed over the last 75 years to explain how nature works at its most basic level.

Lederman said the theory-busting discovery "shows us that we really just don't know nothin'" about the processes that give sub-atomic particles their masses.

Frankly, I find this humble admission by one of the world's leading physicists very refreshing. Yes, I know there is something disquieting about having physicists in the Nuclear Age admit they don't know everything they once thought they knew. But there is something even more disquieting about having physicists in any age believe they know more than they actually do.

Indeed, one of the problems with the natural sciences today is that many scholars have confidently ruled out certain possibilities — like the existence of a Creator God — even though their knowledge about the cosmos is quite limited.

Now, I am not suggesting that the hard sciences are full of imbeciles. I am just suggesting that when we consider the entire cosmos, all of us — even the most learned scientist — must confess that we "don't know much." Or at least that there is far, far more that we don't know than that we do know. And so long as there are gaps in human knowledge, no one can confidently say that there is no God.

In a fascinating speech several years ago, the Czech Republic's poet-president Vaclav Havel lamented the fact that science today is so often divorced from the quest for transcendent meaning. "We may know immeasurably more about the universe than our ancestors did," Havel noted. "Yet, it increasingly seems they knew something more essential about it than we do."

That "something more essential" may very well be that the "heavens declare the glory of God" (Psalm 19:1). Or at least that the pursuit of truth should not be limited to those things that science can tell us. As University of California-Irvine biologist Francisco Ayala notes, "There is a lot to be said about the world that is outside the realm of science."

While it is important to recognize the limits of science, Mark Richardson of the Center for Theology and the Natural Sciences believes it is also important to "challenge the popular stereotype that religion and science can only have an antagonistic relationship."

Richardson recently organized an academic conference at the University of California-Berkeley entitled, "Science and the Spiritual Quest," which attracted a number of distinguished physicists, cosmologists, biologists, and computer scientists from places like Oxford, Sussex, and the Paris Institute of Astrophysics. These scholars spent several days wrestling with issues surrounding the integration of religion and science, including those raised by the latest discovery in the field of physics.

Now, there are no doubt some who believe that exploring the intersection between religion and science is a bigger waste of time than listening to Sam Cooke recordings. But many of us who "don't know much" (but want to know more) seem to think there is wisdom in seeking truth in both science and religion. In this, we have good company.

The greatest physicist of the 20th Century, Albert Einstein, once said, "Science without religion is lame, religion without science is blind."

CHS One Act Drama performs 'Alice'

On Saturday, Jan. 30, Chelsea High School's one-act drama team gave an outstanding district performance of "Alice," an adaptation of "Alice in Wonderland" and "Through the Looking Glass," which earned them a I rating and a trip to regional competition.

Competing against Ann Arbor Pioneer, Kalamazoo International Academy of the Arts, Litchfield, and Richland Gull Lake, Chelsea's team emerged as the top contender from the district.

The theater festival is organized by the Michigan Interscholastic Forensics Association (MIFA) and is held each year. The nature of the productions alternates between drama and comedy each year with this year being comedy.

Schools choose their own script and produce a show that must be set up, performed, and struck in less than 45 minutes. All productions are judged by three theater professionals who score acting, use of the stage, set, costumes, make-up, tempo and pacing, and total effect.

Besides placing first as a team, individuals were recognized by the judges as having outstanding performances. Earning acting awards were Lisa Zimmerman, Chris Trudell, Andrew McGuire, Camilla Albertson, and the ensemble. A superior award was also given to the entire cast and crew for the total overall effect of the show.

The award-winning show, directed by Dawn Swartzen-druher, assistant director Marcy Ott, and technical director Scott Mancha, will be performed for the public on Saturday, Feb. 6, at 8 p.m. in the new high school auditorium. Tickets are $6 for adults and $4 for students and may be purchased from any cast or crew member or at the door.

Woman's Club tours high school

Woman's Club of Chelsea held its January meeting at the new Chelsea High School on Jan. 26. It was preceded by a tour of the facility.

Lois Moore introduced Jeff Rohrer, director of Community Education, who led the ladies on the tour of the new building. The tour included both levels of the classroom loops, the performing and applied arts, physical education and athletic department, and the administrative offices as well as the Commons Area and cafeteria.

The women were all impressed with the most updated technological innovations for young people's instruction and education. Also impressive was the beauty and cleanliness of the entire facility.

Hostesses for the evening were Janet Fulks and Marilyn Haug, who served refreshments after the business meeting in the Commons Area.

The next meeting will be Feb. 23 at Chelsea Retirement Community's town hall. Jackie Frank, a Chelsea resident, will speak about historic homes in the community.

Beach students perform at Hill Auditorium

Beach Middle School students Erin Byrne, Rachel Common, Katie Houk and Chelsea Kummer appeared at Hill Auditorium on Jan. 23, with the State Honors Choir.

The students wrapped up several months of day-long practices attended at sites all over the state. The girls made friends with other middle school students, statewide.

As part of the Michigan School Vocal Music Association the girls were honored to work with many talented choir conductors. The performance at Ann Arbor's Hill Auditorium was to a packed house. Their music teacher is Andrea Miller and their voice teacher is Lisa Hinz-Johnson.

Membership Exceeded

in the relationship between the teachers and the administrators calmed the fires of both groups.

The reduction of tensions produced a climate for Chelsea School District to consider collaborative bargaining. In 1994, the district hired a company to teach Mutual Gains arbitration, which focuses on breaking down the interests of each side and trying to see where points of agreement can be found.

Soloman says mutual gains requires a lot of trust and the ability to see both sides of the debate. He says both teachers and administrators have had to be more flexible to meet both needs.

"Now that we're under the mutual gains," he says, "there's an atmosphere of coming up with what's best for the district, the teachers and ultimately the children."

Soloman's overtures toward the district have earned him the moniker of conservative among some of his fellow teachers, a far cry from his early radical days. But Soloman says his transformation is the result of maturity and the recognition that the union has changed its mission to a more cooperative approach where both sides compromise for a good solution.

That doesn't mean, however, that Soloman doesn't pine for the good old days. He says he enjoyed the camaraderie of the teachers and even administrators that came from a common cause, not to mention staff-management basketball games and social events.

It's a bond, he says, that has been lost.

"It was a different situation," Soloman says. "Administrators and teachers, although they were far apart on negotiations, they were a lot closer as a unit."

"I don't know when we lost this, but generally speaking we were a family. From my perspective that was a lot of fun."

TEACHER

TVs in our classrooms, new carpets and desks. I love all of that, and people who don't think that helps their children learn are kidding themselves."

Although they are subtle changes, Shirmohammad said the result is students seem to show more respect and they have pride in their school.

Besides the building's appearance, Shirmohammad is happy with the staff she works with at Beach.

"I think they're very professional and I enjoy working with them," she said.

Highlights of her career come when she is able to interact with students outside of the classroom. Shirmohammad coaches the middle school's girls' cross country team in the fall. She also coaches quiz bowl and has helped organized Air Band, a stage show where students dance and lip sync. The event is taped and two performances are aired during the spring.

"I like it because you get to know the students on a different level and you get to know their different strengths," Shirmohammad said.

What she looks forward to in her career is getting a master's degree in secondary education. Shirmohammad expects to receive the degree from EMU in about two years.

Shirmohammad also looks forward to becoming a tenured teacher and sharing her craft with aspiring educators as a mentor.

When she is not in the classroom, Shirmohammad often can be found at home in Ann Arbor grading papers or catching up on a reading assignment for the class.

"If I am not working, I am just trying to get some sleep," she said.

On the weekends, Shirmohammad enjoys visiting her sister in Chicago and parents up north. She also enjoys reading and watching movies.
