POSTAL

Howard also urged area residents to submit their comments to Chelsea Officer in Charge Mike Schlump, who would collect and forward them to Howard.

"I'm the only one here tonight who gets to put my two cents in," said Howard. "But my two cents counts for a whole lot, if I have your written comments to back it up."

John Frank, chair of the Chelsea Historic District Commission and a member of the board of Preservation Chelsea, called on the Postal Service to keep the office downtown.

Frank said that the loss of a downtown facility could prove devastating to the Chelsea downtown community, as a post office can draw people into a downtown, leading to "spin-off" trips to other businesses in the area. He asked that the post office at least continue window services downtown.

He also cited the Chelsea facility's historic background. The building at 200 S. Main St. was built by the Works Progress Administration during the 1930s, and boasts exterior wall reliefs of a plane, train and truck, and an interior mural.

Frank said that such features appealed more to area residents than a modernized design, such as the one shown in an illustration published in the Dec. 16 Chelsea Standard.

Howard addressed concerns about a modernized design when the issue was again raised by Sarah Haselschwardt, who said she also enjoyed the historic interior of the post office.

Howard said that the modernized design, which he referred to as a "strip mall design," was a standard interior for new buildings, but was not being considered for a renovated Chelsea facility.

Howard discussed a number of out-of-state post offices he had worked on that required historic preservation efforts. He also said he was working on a post office relocation in Holly, which would require historic design efforts to maintain the character of the downtown there.

Ann Feeney, executive director of the Downtown Development Association, presented Howard with a petition, signed by 660 area residents, asking that the post office stay in downtown Chelsea.

Trustee Brian Cashman, examining post office plans for a renovated facility, called for approximately 35,000 square feet of parking space.

He pointed out that village zoning ordinances exempt downtown businesses from some parking considerations due to municipal lots, and asked what effect such ordinances could have on post office plans.

Howard replied that the plans, by law, must include the parking area. "I'm required to look for possibilities," he said, "but the actualities (of the project) will be ironed out in planning and zoning."

He said that, in any case, parking area was not a "make or break" consideration for the facility.

When told of plans to construct another municipal lot on the present-day site of Staffan Mitchell Funeral Home and Serendipity Bookshop, he said that could impact plans even further, fulfilling many parking requirements.

Council Trustee Rob MacLeod asked Howard what effect moving sorting and carrier operations out of the downtown facility would have. Howard said that such a move would provide the necessary parking for the Chelsea office.

Frank raised a similar question in his comment, and Kim Broekhuizen, a Chelsea resident, further questioned Howard on the possibility.

John Talick, the district manager for the Detroit Postal District, cautioned the public not to pin all hopes to a separated operation, though. He said that operating cost concerns might derail such a move.

A split facility, with downtown window services and satellite sorting operations, would add costs in space rental and necessary extra manpower.

He also said a partial move of truck oriented operations could result in increased runs between sorting operations and a downtown facility.

Sue Starkey, executive director of the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce, urged council members to form small groups, representing local government, residents, business owners and area organizations to discuss community desires for a post office. Such groups could also be used to suggest sites for a full or partial relocation.

State Senator Dianne Byrum and a representative from Congresswoman Debbie Stabenow's office were on hand for the hearing. Byrum said, as a business owner, she saw the advantage of keeping postal services centered in a community's downtown.

Barbara McCallahan, Stabenow's representative, urged community members to submit comments in writing to Schlump, but also to tell their local representatives and others in the community their desires.

Following the hearing, the Chelsea Village Council adopted a unanimous resolution supporting a downtown post office. Other area municipalities have passed post office related resolutions.

However, resolutions passed by Sylvan and Lyndon townships did not specifically support a downtown facility.

Rather, the Sylvan resolution urged the post office to "minimize any effect on the already congested downtown," while the Lyndon measure encouraged the Postal Service to expand the post office while "not increasing" the traffic congestion in downtown.

Extension program sets horse lectures

Michigan State University Extension will be offering two four-week series on horse production and management in March. This series is designed for families who are interested in becoming horse owners or already have horses and need a little more information on production and management topics.

The series will be held on the last four Thursdays in March, 9, 15, 23 and 30. This series will be held at the Sandy Hills Farm, 9101 Cherry Hill Road, in Ypsilanti. The cost of each series will be $40 per family. These series are designed to be hands-on learning experiences. Horses will be present at most of sessions so participants will have the opportunity to practice the handling and management techniques that are presented.

The topics to be covered are designed specifically for the novice horse owner. The topics will be kept at an introductory level. The purpose of these sessions is to give new or potential horse owners some perspective on the true meaning of horse ownership. The topics for these sessions include: ground handling safety and equipment; housing, fencing and manure management; selecting and buying a horse and nutrition and forage management.

Pre-registration is requested. Participants may pay at the door and walk-ins will be accepted. For more information or to register for this program please call (517) 264-5300.

Father Charlie spreads the word

By Renee Lapham Collins
Heritage Newspapers

The landscape has changed but the message is the same and it is a message that has kept the Rev. Charles Irvin on the move since he was ordained in 1967.

The 67-year-old pastor of St. Mary's Church splits his religious duties between the Manchester parish and the Lansing Diocese, where he serves as editor-in-chief of Faith magazine, which made its debut in January.

"It's been an evolutionary process," Irvin explains. "Fourteen months ago, Bishop (Carl) Mengeling first asked me to be the editor of a newspaper published by the Diocese of Lansing. After developing discussions, we realized that we did not want a newspaper because we wanted to evangelize people, not just transmit information and news to them. We wanted to reach into the hearts and souls of people and touch them there. I think it's a well-done magazine that relies on icons and images to inspire and intrigue people."

Irvin, born and raised in Ann Arbor, has been at St. Mary's since 1997. His roots in Ann Arbor made him a perfect choice for the chaplain assignment at St. Mary Student Chapel at U-M, where he had earned his bachelor's degree and master's degrees in business, as well as his law degree.

"I was assigned to U-M in 1968 — my second assignment," Irvin says. "Those were very turbulent times. We were forming an association of Catholic campus ministries throughout the diocese and we needed to get our story out to the average Catholic, who viewed us as radicals."

"So, I started writing columns for the Catholic Times. I did it out of necessity. I had to explain to people in southern mid-Michigan what Catholic campus ministry was all about."

Oddly enough, back in the 1970s, when colleges were organizing campus ministries and guitar music was being introduced at mass, Irvin was viewed as a "liberal."

"Now, I'm considered mainstream, even conservative," he says with a smile. "But we're still preaching the same message. That's what Faith magazine is. It's the fundamental teaching of Christ in ways that people can relate to. Bishop Mengeling is an evangelizer. He wants to reach out to the alienated, the disenfranchised, the angry and hurt Catholic out there and make the Church available to them in a way that is comfortable."

Irvin's essays on Christianity, theology, and the Church were featured regularly in the Times from 1970 until 1999, when he began a monthly column in Faith. As editor-in-chief, it's Irvin's responsibility to "set the direction, the vision, and the purpose."

The staff is small—with Patrick O'Brien handling the managing editor duties, and Kathy Funk writing many of the articles that appear in the publication. Jillane Job is the office secretary, and Molly Lauffer, a graduate of Michigan State University, is a staff member. The photography is contracted out, and the 24—28-page magazine is printed in full-color by CPI Printers in Lansing.

"Faith is completely funded by the diocese, and there is no intention at the moment of soliciting advertising to support it," says Irvin. "It probably costs about $840,000 a year between printing, mailing, and salaries. And so far, of the people who have written to us, 98 percent have given us highly favorable comments on it."

Salaries for the staffers aren't the highest, but as Irvin notes, "the fringe benefits are out of this world."

"We wanted a publication that would be intriguing and challenging, and that is in the way Jesus talked to people," says Irvin. "I think two of the great images that drive Faith magazine are in the story of the woman at the well and the disciples on the road to Emmaus."

"In the telling of our story, we find the story of Jesus, and in discovering the story of Jesus, we find our own story."

The human story is a most intriguing one for Irvin. His office bookshelf is lined with books, and tomes on the First Amendment, theology, and Catholicism are side by side with titles such as The Chamber, Managing the Non-Profit Organization, Blind Ambition, and The Handbook of Good English.

"Father Charlie," as most call him, didn't set out to become a priest. After finishing law school, he spent six months on active duty as a first lieutenant in the U.S. Army.

"I had been thinking about it since 1956," he recalls. "I lost my father and the girl I was going to marry said 'good-bye.' It was a very traumatic year. 'I asked myself questions like what is life all about? Why does God allow such pain?'"

Years later, he says, while practicing law in Chicago, he participated in a retreat and had to face answers to some very basic questions.

"(I had to think about) when I die and look Christ in the eye, what can I say I did with my life?" he explains. "If Jesus Christ is God become man and if it is true that he died and rose from the dead, then what he had to say is important."

"I wanted to be a part of sharing it."

"While on a retreat when you're disengaged from your normal business and are forced to be still and silent, fundamental questions surface. Questions like, 'What does God expect of us and who is Christ?'"

Irvin "burned some bridges" that I spent a lot of time building" when he made his decision.

"I was risking the unknown," he says. "Is it hard to say 'yes' to God? It shouldn't be. It was nice to know what God wanted me to do, but it was hard to release control over my life."

"The vows of poverty, chastity, and obedience—it makes you reliant on the providence of God. You give up being in charge of your life. And to take these vows is irrational—unreasonable—unless God exists. You put your life on the line."

Irvin admits he is still asking questions.

"I can't say I've stopped asking questions," he smiles. "God gives us freedom of choice and I really believe he uses our decisions in our lives."

Certainly, getting all the answers does not concern Irvin quite as much as the journey. In fact, he says that he is "suspicious of people who present faith as a series of answers."

In some ways, the path of Faith is smoothed by mass media and technology. Irvin recognizes the role that technology ultimately will play in the continuing publication of Faith.

"The magazine doesn't stand alone," says Irvin. "It's twin is the Web site. The site, www.faith.com provides access. It's a place where people can read essays and other writings on the church. Eventually, we'll teach CCED and RCIA through the Web site."

A gray cat is sleeping in a little patch of sunlight not far from Father Charlie's feet. Irvin is wearing a U-M sweater over his Roman collar, and his posture, while relaxed, speaks of a man with a passion for people and for Christ. He talks with his hands and his smile, completely at peace with his life and eager to spread the faith.

"Faith is a quest, not an answer," he says. "It gives us adventure and intriguing questions to pursue."

"Faith keeps us on the move."

Chelsea library meetings, budget open to public

LYNN FOX
BOARD PRESIDENT

LIBRARY NOTES

I've read, as I'm sure many of you have, about the deficit in the budget of the Ann Arbor Library. As reported, the board there has, apparently, approved spending more than was actually budgeted, and is now faced with a deficit of almost $1 million dollars.

First, let me say, that this situation could happen to any village, city, township or school district. Any group funded by taxpayers needs to be fiscally responsible to its constituents.

In order to maintain that fiscal responsibility, the Chelsea District Library Board has audits prepared by an outside firm annually. No audit at the Chelsea District Library has ever been delayed. We are required by law to have an investment policy and a report on those investments is made annually.

Bank reconciliation is done monthly, and those reports are presented to each board member for review. This report includes each check that is issued from library funds. Our policy also requires that any unbudgeted purchase over $500 must have board approval.

With the passage of the operating millage in October 1999, the library board began a search for a consulting auditor to assist us with the transition of our reports and procedures to the larger budget. We are interviewing auditors during the next few weeks. Notice of the interviews will be posted in accordance with the Open Meetings Act. We invite you to participate in this process.

As board trustees, we must provide for the health and funding of library, and manage it for the public's benefit. The best way for the public to ensure that we do that job is to attend meetings, especially budget hearings.

The budget hearings of any publicly funded organization are open to the public and are your opportunity to express your concerns or ask for clarification on any budgeted item. Please attend the meetings of your local boards.

Correction

The story titled "Property issues put discussion at Village Council meeting" in the Feb. 3 edition of the Chelsea Standard contained an error. The story said Council Trustee Rob MacLeod was concerned about the site of the new village wellfield, because "the clay cap over the aquifer is very thin." In fact, there is no clay cap over the aquifer at the site, but only 10 to 15 feet of soil cover.

AGENCY

the building department, road commission, drain commission, and planning commission would all be accessed from the Zeeb Road office.

Head defended the county's performance and said that while the county has doubled its workload over the past three years, it has received fewer complaints.

The Chelsea Village Council voted 6-0 to join the agency at its Feb. 8 meeting. The vote followed council discussion of cost and liability issues for the agency.

Bill Eisenbeiser, Dexter Township clerk and a member of the group exploring formation of the construction agency, told council members that the agreement they were considering contained a modified liability clause.

Trustees expressed concern for the agreement following a Jan. 18 vote against the agreement by the Dexter board. That vote was largely motivated by Dexter trustees' concerns about liability.

Eisenbeiser told council members that he had refined the language in the agreement since the Jan. 18 meeting in order to address such liability concerns.

The revised agreement states that each municipality in the agency, and the agency itself, will carry "liability and errors and omissions insurance for their respective activities."

The agreement also guarantees that the agency will grant indemnity to the municipalities against lawsuits based in "acts or omissions of the agency."

The clause ultimately clears the village and townships of responsibility for lawsuits, as the agency will conduct mechanical, electrical, building and plumbing inspections on new buildings sites and on building renovations.

Eisenbeiser pointed out that, of four similar agencies in the area, three had never been defendants in a lawsuit, and the Manchester authority had only been named in one lawsuit in 18 years.

Trustee Brian Cashman asked Eisenbeiser to clarify what fees would be set for inspections. Eisenbeiser replied that the agency would charge the same fees as the Washtenaw County Department of Environment and Infrastructure. The county handled inspections before the formation of the authority.

As council trustees made clear, the newly formed construction agency will require fees at least as low as the county, if not lower, in order to succeed as a self-sustaining entity.

Village Manager Jack Myers has been the village representative in agency formation, and will continue to represent village concerns in the Chelsea Area Construction Agency.

The move by Chelsea left Dexter Township the lone holdout on the agreement until Tuesday. The Township Board unanimously approved the agreement, and authorized Eisenbeiser to sign an application to the state.

Eisenbeiser was named by the board to represent Dexter Township on the agency's board of directors.

In other news, Lima Township is also looking at the possibility of either revoking or amending its private road ordinance.

According to Adams, Sylvan and Lyndon townships have eliminated their private road ordinances. Adams said the board will take up the matter at its April 3 meeting and is looking for comments and suggestions from citizens about what should be done with the ordinance. Comments should be sent to the township hall by March 29.

VACANCIES

controversy influenced their decisions.

"I made my mind up long before this was even discussed," Adams noted, echoing a sentiment expressed by Trinkle and Heller.

For Adams, who still may seek office as a trustee, the decision is simply a matter of time — or the lack of it. He moved to the township to establish a farm and that enterprise now needs more of his attention. There are simply not enough hours to devote the needed time to both pursuits.

Trinkle and Heller also are hoping to slow up their schedules by stepping down.

All are concerned, however, at the lack of declared candidates.

As of this week, Township Clerk Arlene Bareis has not had any requests for nominating petitions. While only three names are needed on the petition according to state law, candidates must file by 4 p.m. May 16. They also must get their campaign finance paperwork in order.

"I don't want to scare anyone away," Adams joked when discussing the many duties performed by the supervisor.

Trinkle and Heller are convinced that good, qualified candidates exist, and they want to clear the way for them to become established.

"I think there are people who can do as a good a job, if not better, than I can do, and I'd like to let them have their turn," Trinkle said.

But while candidates will no doubt surface, the shoes left to fill are large, and the trail of progress blazed by this trio will not be easily duplicated.

Death and its Solution

Dear Friends and Neighbors,

Genesis chapter 5 gives the genealogy of the human race from Adam until Noah. We read repeatedly, "So-and-so lived so many years, then became the father of so-and-so, then lived so many years and had other sons and daughters. Altogether, he lived so many years, and then he died...and then he died...and then he died." Those last four words conclude each person's life, except for Enoch.

And those last four words will someday conclude each of our lives: "And then he/she died."

Our congregation has become painfully aware of that this year, as we already had at least four funerals before January was half over: Two of our members died, my wife Carolyn lost her father suddenly, and another member lost her grandmother.

Like it or not, each death is a painful reminder of sin. The Bible says, "Just as sin entered the world through one man, and death through sin...in this way death came to all men, because all sinned" (Romans 5:12). These facts go against our natural way of thinking, but God declares that each person who dies deserves to die due to their sins. We can furthermore conclude that we cannot solve the problem of death until we solve the problem of sin.

Thank God, He solved the problem of sin, by sending His Son for our forgiveness. This forgiveness He extends to us personally through His Word and His Sacraments. And thank God, because of that, we and our loved ones will live. "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord" (Romans 6:23).

Believers in Jesus Christ die, temporarily, in regard to their bodies, but their spirits live with God in eternity. And when their Savior returns, their bodies, too, will live.

As long as people sin and die, they will need the church's message of forgiveness and life. Won't you please join us in hearing that message this Sunday at 10:00 a.m.?

Vote NO

Dexter Township Proposed New
ZONING ORDINANCE

Dexter Township Citizens for Responsible Government

On May 18, 1999, the Dexter Township Board of Trustees, on a split vote, approved a proposed Zoning Ordinance Text and Map (Z00) to be adopted in 30 days. At this time there was a Board acknowledgement of opposition to the adoption but those in the audience were assured that in subsequent Planning Commission meetings, at least some of the opposition's concerns would be addressed.

Immediately a Notice of Intent was filed with the Board to petition for a Referendum to set aside this proposed text and map. Timely petitions were submitted containing many more than the required signatures, requiring proposed text and map not be adopted until an affirmative vote of the registered voters in Dexter Township indicate support for adoption.

Since May 18, 1999, the Planning Commission has taken no action on ANY of our concerns, and the Board of Trustees, at the strong urging of the Planning Commission, set February 22, 2000 as the date to submit the Referendum to the voters for adoption.

We urge that you vote NO because:

1. The current 1973 zoning ordinance (Z73) contains no provisions that have inadequately protected Z73's philosophy of protecting the rural character of Dexter Township.
2. The February 22 election date seems intentional to take the Planning Commission "off the hook." There has been no response from the Planning Commission to the Board of Trustees' assurances that their concerns would be addressed.
3. In a January 25, 2000, comparison between the Z73 and Z00, the Planning Commission's hired consultant, with the approval of the Planning Commission, states that Z73 and Z00 are "substantively (sic) similar," while in fact the following shows a few examples of how, with Z00, you were about to be "ambushed:"
 - A. The Zoning Inspector, among others, can require a performance bond, absent any criteria for the need, for ANY Zoning Permit issued, and both YOU or developer needs that permit to construct almost ANYTHING.
4. Like Z73, Z00 keeps as one-acre the minimum size lot that can be created in the new Lakes Residential District (encompassing most township lakes), but Z00 makes almost all subdivision lots throughout the township created since 1973 non-conforming and subject to paragraph "C" above. WOW!!!
5. We believe, as do many experts, that the Z73 provision for residential density of not more than one dwelling per acre contributes to less land waste (sprawl), and because of its application throughout residential applications, is much more defensible in court than Z00's provisions.

This referendum election is concurrent with the Republican Primary. Regardless of your party affiliation or preference, we urge you to vote NO on the February 22 referendum. Any money contributions to this effort are greatly appreciated. Make your contributions payable to: Dexter Township Citizens for Responsible Government and send to: DTCRG c/o Donna Terhune, 9072 Dexter-Pinckney Rd., Pinckney, MI 48169

You are invited to gather further information at infossessions to be held on Saturday, Feb. 19 @ 10:30 a.m., at the Dexter Township Hall, or on Monday, Feb. 21 @ 7:30 p.m., at the Portage Yacht Club.

Dexter Village

Larceny
A larceny was reported in the 7700 block of Kookaburra Court in Walkabout Creek apartments Feb. 7. A 42-year-old woman told a Washtenaw County Sheriff's deputy that her 31-year-old roommate, a 31-year-old woman, stole several items that she had stored in boxes. The apartment and temporarily left the items in a garage. When she returned, the woman noticed her Coca-Cola collection, paint, a green bin and a set of car keys missing.

Police interviewed the suspect, who admitted to having the car keys but denied having the other items. Police contacted the woman's probation officer to let the officer know what was going on. The suspect is currently on probation for larceny.

Chelsea Village

Fraud
Fraud was reported at the Amoco gas station, 1830 S. Main St., Feb. 8. A 34-year-old Brighton man told Chelsea Police that a man claiming to represent JTS Maintenance Co. said he fixed the carwash, which had been out of service for a couple of weeks. The complainant said he paid the repairman $124 in cash. When he looked at the carwash later, however, it had not been repaired.

The complainant had a receipt from the suspect, but the company was not identified. Police have a surveillance video tape of the man.

Threats
Threats were reported to Chelsea Police Feb. 11. A Dexter Township woman living on McKinley Heights Court said that a Chelsea woman threatened her. The victim said the suspect is threatening her over money she owes. The victim says she does not have the money to repay the woman. When contacted by police, the suspect denied threatening the victim.

Dexter Township

Domestic Assault
Domestic assault was reported Feb. 2. A 36-year-old man called police after an altercation with his wife. The man said he and his wife have not been getting along. In the morning, his wife was brushing their daughter's hair but the girl didn't want her hair brushed. The man said his wife grabbed the girl's arm when the girl tried to get away. The man then said he grabbed the camera and took a photograph of what was going on. He said he and his wife argued over what he was doing with the camera. She followed him and tripped while trying to grab the camera. The woman said her husband pushed her on the bed and punched her in the head while they struggled over the camera. She said she tried to kick while he stood over her. She told police she is afraid of what he will do with the picture.

Webster Township

Lost Property
A Webster Township man said he was talking on his cellular telephone when he pulled into C.J.'s Party Store on the corner of Webster Church and North Territorial roads. He thought he set the phone on his car seat when he went inside the store. When he returned, however, the phone was gone.

The man said he is positive he locked the car doors. He thinks he may have dropped the phone in the fresh snow when he went inside the store.

Warrant Arrest
Michael L. Morrison, 49, of Manchester was arrested on Feb. 7. The vehicle in which he was a passenger was initially stopped for speeding. The officer checked computer records and discovered that Morrison was wanted on a warrant for failing to appear in court on a matter involving the Friend of the Court. He also was wanted for violating probation related to a drunken driving conviction.

Scio Township

Violation of Public Health Code
A deputy patrolling the parking lot at Bel-Mark Lanes Feb. 5 found a vehicle parked in the back lot with four occupants. The deputy approached the vehicle and could smell an odor of marijuana emitting from the vehicle.

The occupants and the vehicle were searched. A deputy found a bag containing a green leafy substance in a coat pocket. A 20-year-old Milan woman, who was the only person not wearing a coat, admitted it was hers.

The woman told police that three of the four occupants were smoking the marijuana.

Attempted Suicide
Attempted suicide was reported in Scio Farms Estates, 6655 Jackson Road, Feb. 6. A 33-year-old woman took an overdose of anti-depressants and washed it down with a 40-ounce beer because she said she was having a rough time since her divorce two years ago. The woman told police that she attempted suicide as a teenager by slitting her wrists.

The woman was taken by ambulance to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital for treatment. The investigating officer signed a petition to have her committed in the event that she refused treatment.

Embezzlement
Embezzlement was reported at the Amoco gas station, 325 N. Zeeb Road, Feb. 7. The manager, a 48-year-old Ohio man, told police that he suspects two former employees of embezzling cash from the business. The man said money was taken Nov. 15 and Dec. 12.

The manager said he has conducted an internal investigation and discovered several hundreds of dollars missing from the cash register. The two employees he suspects no longer work for the company.

The company's records indicated that an 18-year-old Ann Arbor man worked on a day when there were $568.34 in voids. One void was for $500 in cigarettes. On another date there were $103.01 in voids.

The other employee, also an 18-year-old Ann Arbor man, had $566.77 worth of voids. Computer records show he voided $30.50 worth of gasoline 17 separate times.

Suspicious Incident
A suspicious incident was reported in Scio Farms Estates, 6655 Jackson Road, Feb. 7. An 81-year-old woman told police that she woke up and found a stranger in her house. She said the man turned on her bedroom light and she screamed. She said he swung at her but missed, and she ran out of the trailer to get help.

The neighbors, however, told police that the woman has woken up in the past after having dreams that someone broke into her house. Police contacted the woman's son, who said she has called police in the past after waking up from a dream and thinking someone was in her house.

The woman's son said he is seeking new living arrangements for his mother so she won't be alone.

Drunken Driving
A 46-year-old Scio Township man was arrested on Wagner Road near Liberty Road Feb. 2 for operating a vehicle while under the influence of alcohol. The man was initially stopped for speeding. The investigating officer smelled alcohol on the man's breath and asked him to take sobriety tests. The man was unsteady on his feet and admitted to drinking earlier in the evening.

The man took a breath test, which revealed he had a .15 percent blood-alcohol level. A driver who has a .10 percent blood-alcohol level or higher is considered drunk. The man's driver's license was confiscated and he was taken to jail.

Family Trouble

Family trouble was reported Jan. 29. A 42-year-old woman told police that she told her 43-year-old male roommate that she was moving out. She said initially he was cooperative but wouldn't let her enter the apartment the next day. She said she waited for him to leave and then entered using her key. She said he returned and told her

Township needs updated ordinance

JOHN GILLESPIE
PLANNING COMMISSION CHAIRMAN

GUEST EDITORIAL

I'm sure the citizens of Dexter Township will face up to their important voting responsibilities during the national election process in November. But there is also a very important voting responsibility coming up in a little over a week.

Regardless of your political preference, all voters should go to the polls and vote on Feb. 22. While voting in the primary is important (for Republicans at least), the really important local voting issue is for the Dexter Township Zoning Ordinance referendum.

That issue is important for citizens regardless of their political beliefs.

Why is it so important? The township is being subjected to increasing developmental pressures. Demand is increasing for parcel rezonings, single family residential plans, multiple-family condominiums, and a variety of commercial enterprises. In the last year, site plan and building plan reviews have increased 44 percent and 46.5 percent, respectively. The acceptance of land division requests has increased 46.2 percent over the same period a year ago.

As you can see, there is a lot of developmental activity going on in the township. This flurry of growth was anticipated a few years ago, and a plan was put into effect by the township to better control the inevitable growth. That plan included substantial changes to the General Development Plan (GDP) and the Dexter Township Zoning Ordinance.

The Dexter Township Planning Commission, using the results of a formal opinion survey circulated to all citizens in 1994, created new and more powerful zoning provisions during the period of 1995-1999. That effort, including over 80 meetings of the planning commission, came to fruition on May 19, 1999. The proposed 1999 Zoning Ordinance was adopted by the Dexter Township Board of Trustees on that date.

There was a great feeling of pride and relief by the planning commission that a much improved ordinance was now available for handling the myriad of projects that were underway, and anticipated to be undertaken. The new ordinance improves zoning considerations in the lake and residential districts. It greatly improves consideration for environmental protection of the land, air and water during all developmental phases. It strengthens effort for retaining the rural character of the township by encouraging buffered cluster developments (Planned Unit Developments, or PUDs), as opposed to strip development and repeated driveway cuts along main thoroughfares.

Greatly improved zoning definitions and procedures were incorporated in the new ordinance for improving the fairness and consistency of zoning decisions. All in all, the proposed new ordinance provides much-needed new "tools" for use by the planning commission, and the township board, to regulate and control the long anticipated developmental pressure in the township.

But the period of elation of having a new ordinance was soon quashed. A few citizens, acting within their rights, organized a campaign to petition the board to have the question of the new ordinance's acceptance placed before the township's electorate. That petition, filed in June 1999, has, in effect, nullified the intended usefulness and benefits of the proposed new ordinance.

By necessity, the planning commission has had to try to control developmental expansion using the current ordinance, which was adopted by the Township Board in 1973. To make matters even more difficult, the township's legal counsel has decreed that neither ordinance document (i.e., the 1973 or the 1999 version) can be amended until after the Feb. 22 vote.

In essence, the zoning situation in the township has had an eight-month stagnation period, and the township has had to continue to rely on the antiquated 1973 ordinance for developmental control. This is indeed unfortunate for the citizens of Dexter Township. The growth that is being experienced, and the even more ambitious development that is anticipated, must be handled with contemporary planning and zoning tools. It is imperative that the township citizens recognize that fact and vote in support of the new ordinance and the new tools it provides.

We cannot stress too strongly how important it is to vote "yes" for the proposed new zoning ordinance (adopted May 1999) at the balloting on Feb. 22. All citizens of the township who are interested in controlled rural character development, will benefit from your "yes" voting decision.

New ordinance will harm Dexter Township

BILL GAJEWSKI

GUEST EDITORIAL

In 1992, the Environmental Protection Agency funded the "Michigan Environmental and Relative Risk Analysis." This report cited the "absence of land-use planning that considers resources and the integrity of ecosystems" as the No. 1 environmental concern in the state. It's my view that Dexter Township's proposed zoning ordinance gets poor marks in both areas.

The proposed ordinance will not only fragment ecosystems but, also, minimal consideration was given to our water resources.

Water resource land planners know that in watershed communities, such as Dexter Township, clustering and the preservation of open space helps protect the watershed and the water quality of lakes, rivers and streams. However, they also know that large-lot sprawl will significantly degrade water quality by increasing imperviousness and non-point pollution (as little as 10 percent imperviousness).

Planned unit development clustering, such as open-space zoning, is not allowed in common-use residential, recreation-conservation, agricultural, convenience commercial or general commercial zoning districts.

And it's only allowed to a limited extent in lake residential and rural residential districts. Clustering is not allowed in rural residential unless on pavement or within half a mile of pavement, which very much restricts its use.

This may preserve roads at the cost of the environment.

All of these zoning districts contain riparian and/or watershed lands, yet clustering is not allowed or it's of limited use. The proposed ordinance instead mandates two- and five-acre large lot parcels.

Large lots translate into large road networks, such as long and wide country roads, to serve these parcels, which would create an extensive network of roads throughout the watershed. Obviously, when you spread homes out, it takes more road to reach them (up to 50 percent more imperviousness).

Open space communities help protect the watersheds. Large-lot sprawl degrades them.

Dexter Township's proposed ordinance promotes road building (impervious surfaces) and planned sprawl at the cost of rural character, ecosystems, bio-diversity and the water quality of our lakes, rivers and streams.

The irony is that township residents just spent $11 million on sewers to preserve water quality and this proposed ordinance will degrade it.

Out of our 50 states, the Sierra Club ranks Michigan 49th in the nation for poor land-use planning. We have to do better than this. It's our choice and our future.

To this end, vote "no" on Dexter Township's proposed ordinance Feb. 22.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Article didn't tell the full story

Phil Keren's article about the proposed development by Medallion Homes left me feeling perplexed.

The tenor of his article suggests that Steve Karbel and Sid Moss want to develop the 650-unit mobile home park for purely altruistic reasons. Let's not overlook that mobile home developments generate a lot of money for the developer and they are bound by very few restrictions.

In a recent article, Bill Balenger, editor of Inside Michigan Politics, writes "since 1976, local units of government have been in a no-win situation with respect to mobile home park development. State law does not permit locals to exclude mobile home parks from their jurisdiction; to set standards for roads, utilities, open space, and recreational facilities within mobile home parks; or to tax them the same as other residential subdivisions. In essence, state law has created a Bull Market for mobile home parks."

Another point I would like to dispute is Karbel's statement that his community "would be developed at no cost to the residents of Lima", again the word "bull" could be applied.

Common sense tells us that with the addition of 650 homes there would obviously be a need for more police and fire protection, and not to be redundant, but again the children do need educating. Those burdens fall onto the shoulders of the property-tax paying citizens in this area.

Believe it or not - Mister Mighty Developer, we did not fall off the turnip truck yesterday! So unless those trees you plan on lining your "streets" with grow money on them it will cost us.

Karbel stated that research concluded that mobile home park communities tend to have fewer school-aged children. That the highest proportion of mobile home residents are "young couples, empty nesters and retirees."

Michigan Manufactured Housing Association website gives statistics on who lives in manufactured homes, they indicate that in 8 percent of the homes, the household head is younger than 30 years of age. While in 43 percent of the households, the head of that household is between 30-49 years of age. Though some of those could be considered young couples starting out, I would guess a "few" might also be parents of children thirty percent are between the ages of 50-59, and 19 percent are 70 years and older.

In conclusion I think the sad part of all this is that Karbel and Moss can tell us anything they want in order to get what they want. But in the end they are not accountable to us and will not be around when things go awry.

Downtown location was well supported

This letter is in response to Linda Ballard's letter to The Standard last week. It is insulting to the library advisory committee and others who worked very hard for 13 months to dismiss the results of the polls and surveys that were done.

Parking was not the No. 1 issue; the downtown location was, by a large margin. It is not only "a small minority of downtown village residents" who feel the library belongs downtown in our historic McKune House; it is people from every township who have expressed concern about the library moving permanently from its downtown location.

Through the generous and hard-working efforts of the DDA and others, the parking problem at the downtown location is being addressed and will soon be solved. To maintain our district library, we all need to work together to ensure its success.

Farmland set aside is priceless gift

Over 200 acres of farmland have been protected from development, thanks to Helen and Stan Parker and Bruce Manny of Scio and Lima townships. These long-standing farm families decided to sell their development rights to the state, rather than the highest bidder, to ensure that their property would remain undeveloped in perpetuity.

They were aided by Barry Lonik of the Washtenaw-Potawatomi Land Trust in preparing the paperwork which was submitted to the state, and by Scio Township which provided matching funds of $50 an acre.

Although both families surely could have made a large profit if they had sold their property to a developer, they wanted to ensure that agricultural land and open space were protected for future generations. Twenty or 30 years from now, their grandchildren and ours will be able to appreciate the beauty and rural heritage of this area.

What a priceless gift. In 50 years time, another strip mall, gas station, housing development, mobile home park or industrial park will show signs of wear and tear and will undoubtedly be seen as outdated. But in 50 years time, the aesthetic value of the Parker and Manny farms will be of even greater value.

What a wonderful legacy they pass on, not only to their families, but to all of us who live here. Wouldn't it be wonderful if more long-standing farm families and townships followed the example of the Parkers and Bruce Manny and of Scio Township, and worked together to preserve our area's rural heritage?

Local project part of state upgrades

As part of the Michigan Department of Transportation's (MDOT) $1.4 billion road and bridge program for 2000, Gov. John Engler recently announced the approval of 99 projects totaling over $130 million for transportation improvements across Michigan.

"Our 2000 road repair program continues to focus on the worst roads first, moving us closer to bringing 90 percent of state roads and bridges to good condition by 2007. These projects continue to benefit taxpayers by coming in well below internal estimates," said Engler.

This announcement includes 38 projects to improve over 238 miles of road, five bridge projects, seven railroad improvement, 29 traffic signal, seven airport improvements, and 13 design projects for future construction.

The announcement includes 91 state and eight local projects. Among these are 6.4 miles of preventive maintenance on M-52 between Roepke and Green roads, and extensive pavement reconstruction and bridge work along the M-14 and I-94 corridor. The M-52 work will take about 20 days and will cost $181,042. The highway and overpass project will cost $18,858,665 and will wrap up in September.

On average, each project received six bidders with the low bids averaging 14 percent below engineers' estimates.

"Our efforts to get projects in the hands of our contractors early will continue to pay off. We've already seen that this advance cooperation with contractors leads to better project management and fewer inconveniences for motorists," said State Transportation Director James R. DeSana.

Each month, a competitive bid process results in an award of contracts for road, bridge and other transportation improvements to pre-qualified private sector construction companies.

Shepherding the flock

Williman helps guide congregation & transition

By Jim Silver

Staff Writer

When a minister decides to move from a United Church of Christ, he or she will usually give the congregation three months to choose an interim pastor, to assume leadership of the church until a new permanent pastor is elected.

The congregation at St. Paul United Church of Christ did not have that opportunity. The former pastor of the church, the Rev. Lynn Spitz-Nagel, died suddenly in December. His death left the congregation bereft of a popular and influential leader.

The loss left an absence in the pulpit. But the Rev. Orval L.E. Williman, formerly the pastor of Bethlehem United Church of Christ in Ann Arbor, will fill that void for the present. He retired from the Bethlehem pulpit two years ago, but has stayed active in UCC churches as a part-time interim pastor, at Emanuel United Church of Christ in Manchester last year, and now at St. Paul.

In UCC congregations, an interim pastor can be a temporary position, but a member of the clergy with specialized training often fills the role. Williman emphasized that, while he is serving as a kind of firewall pastor, he is sensitive to some of the special needs of a congregation still feeling the loss of a pastor.

He says that the situation at Emanuel Church may have served as on-the-job training in soothing parishioners reeling from a missing pastor. He pointed out that the situation was different there, as the church suffered the sudden departure of a popular minister, but not through death.

"However, there is always a grief when a minister leaves suddenly," Williman says.

"The tragedy here meant there was no time for planning. I'm here to allow the congregation to plan for a full-time interim."

His tenure at St. Paul will be open-ended, until a full-time interim pastor can take over duties. Until that time, he spends three days a week at the church, seeing to duties, as well as any extra time that may prove necessary.

Williman comes to the church nearly two months after Spitz-Nagel's death. He says that the congregation has opened itself to him, although parishioners have made it clear they don't want to forget "Spitz" too soon.

He credits Tom Gerstenlauer, the director of Christian education, and church secretary Meena Bhattacharya with easing the transition, for himself and for the congregation. He says that Gerstenlauer, who is currently pursuing a master's of divinity at Chicago Theological Seminary, has proved to be a capable and dedicated worker for the church's future.

Gerstenlauer will take a turn in the pulpit in March, when Williman and his wife make a previously planned visit to Berlin. He will be visiting a daughter who has recently given birth, and has asked people familiar to the congregation to take over ministerial duties for that month.

"Tom will take over for two weeks, along with the Rev. Irving Cook for one week, and (Chelsea High School English teacher) Paul Terpstra for one week."

He also expressed his appreciation for Lynn Spitz-Nagel, widow of the minister, who has also ease his arrival in the congregation. He notes that she received an outpouring of support from the congregation, and has been supportive, in turn, for the staff.

While the circumstances of Williman's advent at the church are sad, he is not unhappy with the chance to work there. He held the congregation in high regard in the past, as a neighboring minister, and knew that the church held a high position in the UCC conference. He was also friendly with some members of the congregation.

Chelsea Village has proven to be a pleasant surprise, though. Williman says he was not familiar with most of the community, as his duties at Bethlehem church largely brought him to St. Paul church, the hospital and the retirement center.

Williman says that he and his wife, Ruth, have spent time before and after his retirement visiting villages in the region.

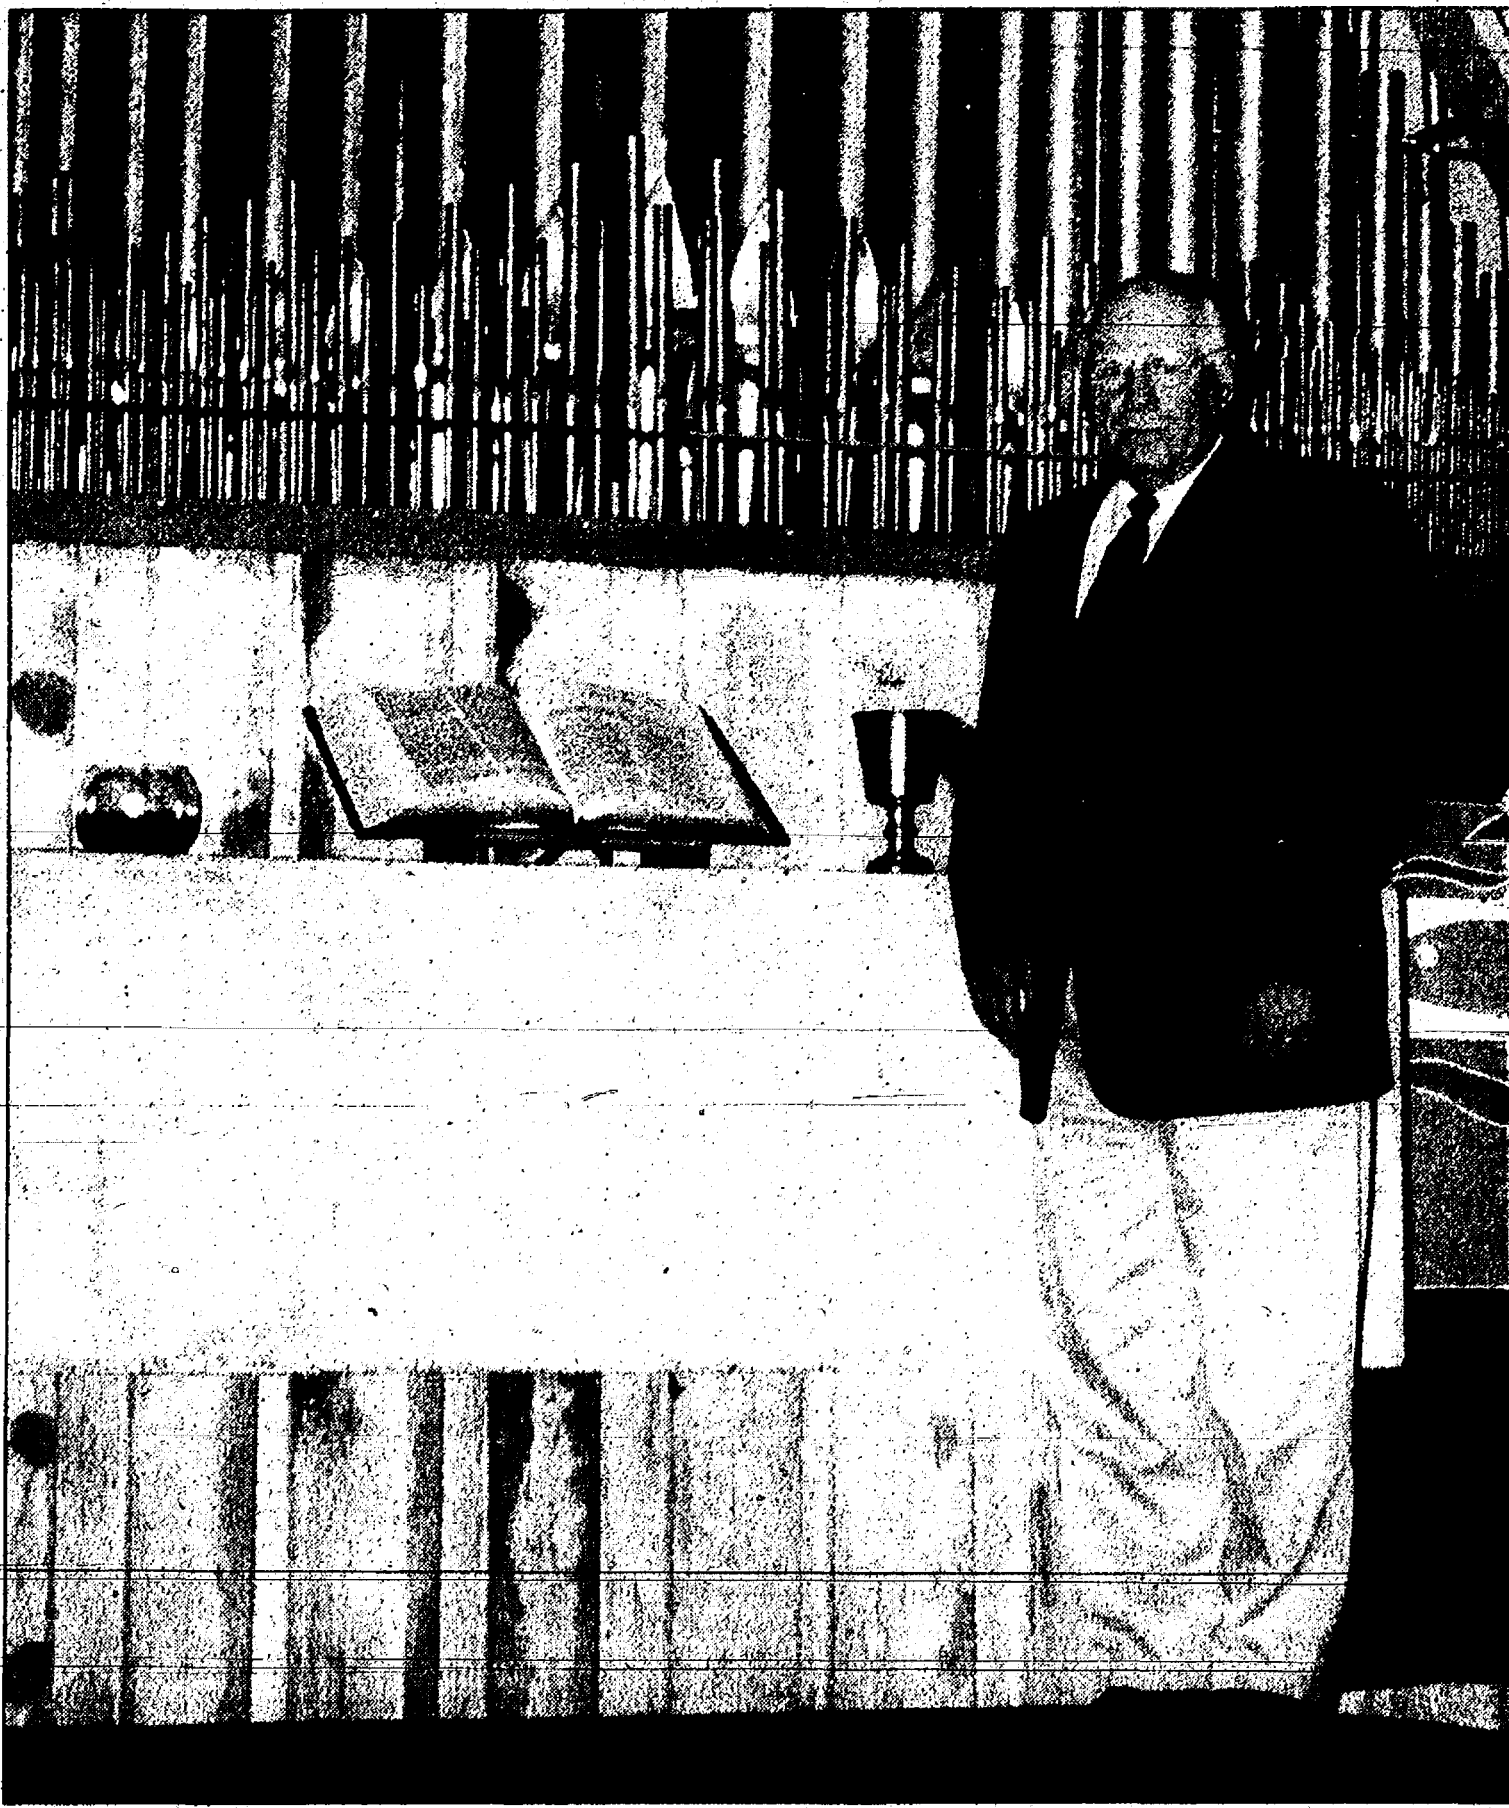

"We have seen few villages as vibrant and dynamic as Chelsea," he says. The village also offers some specific advantages to the pastor that is ultimately selected to take over at St. Paul.

"The town as a whole is in a growth mode, and that provides an exciting opportunity for a ministry. You can grow and expand, but also find a way to maintain traditions."

Williman has been a guiding voice in the region's UCC conference for many years, serving on the board of directors of Olivet College.

He also completed a 22-year term on the board of directors, 20 as chair of the board, for the Evangelical Homes in Saline, Sterling Heights and Port Huron. That term included expanding facilities in Saline to include a retirement center, and opening retirement housing in Detroit and Saline.

Ruth Williman is no stranger to the church either. She was born in India to missionary parents, and spent the first 18 years of her life there.

Orval Williman serves as interim pastor at St. Paul Church in Chelsea. Williman comes to the church after the sudden death in December of the late Lynn Spitz-Nagel. The candle at the left of the altar burns during church services to commemorate the late pastor.

Orval Williman says that his wife speaks fluent Hindi, which has made her fast friends with Bhattacharya.

The two met at Elmhurst College, and were married before he went on to Eaton Theological Seminary. He has maintained a long-standing relationship with the seminary, working for development there.

While Williman has enjoyed Chelsea, and loved his life in Ann Arbor, he planned on visiting the rest of the country after retirement.

"I enjoyed Ann Arbor for some of the same reasons I enjoy Chelsea — the vibrancy, the feel of living in a city — but now, I find pleasure watching a flight of geese or a muskrat on the lake.

"We live on Manitou Lake, and I planned on boating and visiting family, but spending winters elsewhere. But the first winter of my retirement, 1998 to 1999, we enjoyed life on the lake so much, we didn't want to leave."

He says that prompted his decision to make himself available to UCC churches in need, which has now brought him to Chelsea.

Because of the unique situation the village finds itself in, Williman says that the parishioners of St. Paul's find themselves at a turning point in selecting a full-time interim pastor as well as a permanent minister.

"They will have to resolve many issues in the coming months and will have to assess where they are, and where they want to go. There are many pitfalls in the process, but it is also an exciting opportunity."

Smith shares his passion for learning with students

By Michelle Rogers

Associate Editor

Whether you're a child or an adult, stepping into Eric Smith's classroom at South Meadows Elementary School is like a jolt to your brain.

It's immediate stimulation, from the tarantulas and snapping turtles to all of the scientific gadgets, posters and puzzles. There are thousands of items — some hanging from the ceiling, others on tables and stuck to the walls — designed to make you think.

"I like to bring in anything that will keep kids interested," says Smith, who has been teaching in Chelsea for 26 years.

Walking through his classroom is as interesting as it is revealing about a man who has put countless hours into constructing a masterpiece. And although it may appear to be a mess at first glance, everything in his room has its place.

Smith credits his mother, Alice Irene, with instilling his sense of order and bit of perfectionism. His late father, Carl, got him interested in nature and science. Both of their influences are apparent in Smith's classroom.

An enthusiastic teacher, it's evident that Smith loves what he does for a living. But his career is not something that he had dreamed of since an early age.

In fact, it came later in life after several other attempts at finding happiness.

Smith attended Eastern Michigan University with initial thoughts of becoming an accountant, and graduated with a business degree in 1970.

"I very quickly found out that was not what I should be doing," he says. "I was good at numbers but not at business."

Smith spent the next four years in a variety of jobs related to the auto industry. He worked in an auto supply store, as an auto mechanic and learned the ropes of running a gas station.

"I did a whole lot of jobs. I couldn't tell you them all," he says.

Finally, after working as a bus driver for Ann Arbor schools, Smith says it hit him.

"That's how I got interested in teaching little kids," he says. "I had children on my route from all over the world — professors' kids. It was just kind of interesting and I said, 'Hey, this looks like it would be something fun to do.' So, I went back to school to get a teaching certificate."

In 1974, Smith added a master's degree from EMU in early elementary education, specializing in science.

At the same time, he gave up a budding career as a musician. Since junior high he had played guitar in a variety of bands and says, in retrospect, he would have liked to explore a career in music education.

In high school, Smith played gigs at high school dances, ski resorts in the area, dance halls and clubs. In college, as a member of the Royal Coachmen, he recorded an album.

"Around 1974 I decided it was a pretty tough living," Smith says. "We made a living at it but we weren't going anywhere with it. I don't know if we weren't been into nature and how things work."

Anyone who works in the schools knows about Smith's fascination with mechanics. Students and staff bring him broken household appliances and machines to fix.

"I enjoy repairing things," Smith says. "I like to know how they work."

He is captivated by physics and his classroom reflects this. It's loaded with examples, such good enough or didn't have the determination."

That's when he decided to dedicate his energy toward teaching. He was hired in Chelsea that same year to teach at North Creek Elementary School and over the years has taught students in third, fourth and fifth grades. Three years ago, Smith made the switch to South Meadows when the opening of Pierce necessitated some shifting of staff.

At South Meadows, Smith shares his thirst for knowledge with fourth-graders. Together they explore all sorts of subjects. Science is Smith's favorite.

"I am a science nut," he says. "My father got me into nature when I was young. I've always as a roller coaster machine that demonstrates motion, on display.

Besides his father's scientific influence, which is evident in Smith's classroom, Smith suspects one of his teaching mentors played a significant role in the look of his classroom. Smith recalls serving as a student teacher under a more traditional teacher, but down the hall was someone with a more creative bent. This teacher had a classroom that looks much like Smith's today.

"I was totally amazed by the classroom," he says. "A kid could be fooling around on the floor, looking up and learn something."

Eric Smith has a natural curiosity that cannot be satisfied. His classroom at South Meadows Elementary School reflects his own passion for learning and many interests, including science. Smith, pictured at the microscope, resides in Chelsea and has been teaching in the district for the past 26 years.

Understanding The Law

with Leonard K. Kitchen, J.D. and Thomas L. Stringer, J.D.

WRONGFULLY CONFINED

A person who is falsely imprisoned has the right to sue in civil court for damages arising from the incident. This act violates a basic personal interest, the right to be free from wrongful confinement. Those whose rights are violated in this manner are entitled to recover damages for physical harm, as well as damages for the mental harm they endured as a result of knowing they were not free to move in accordance with their own will. This does not mean that a person can sue over having his or her path blocked in one direction; however, it is enough that a person is prevented from leaving a given area - whether it be a room, vehicle, or building.

Thus, whether you have been detained by an individual, an organization, or a commercial establishment, you may be legally entitled to compensation. At the LAW OFFICES OF KITCHEN & STRINGER, we're committed to protect the rights of individuals from obstruction and infringement. To discuss your situation and legal options, call 426-4695 to schedule a consultation, free of charge. We also handle cases involving family law, business matters, medical and veterinary malpractice, and real estate. You'll find our offices located at 3249 Broad Street in Dexter.

HINT: If an arrest is made without legal authority, it is a false arrest and, therefore false imprisonment.

Library slates auditor interview

The Chelsea District Library has set the evening of Wednesday, Feb. 23, to interview two firms, one of which will be selected as the library auditor. The meeting will begin at 5 p.m., and will be held in the library meeting room. This meeting is open to the public.

With a new and larger tax base in place, the library is seeking more intensive consultation with a firm that has previous experience with district libraries established under the Michigan District Library Law. The library will also seek guidance as it approaches the next phase: in asking the public for a permanent, handicapped accessible building.

Dick Lee, the newly appointed library board treasurer, Library Board President Lynn Fox and Dan Kaminsky, library trustee, form the Library Finance Committee which will be conducting the interviews.

Representatives from Post, Smythe, Lutz and Ziel will be interviewed at 5 pm, and representatives from Plante & Moran at 6 pm.

Seniors announce craft show

The Chelsea Senior Citizens are pleased to announce their 15th annual fall Country Craft Folk Art Show. This event serves as one of the group's principal annual fund-raisers.

The show features over 100 juried artisans. It is held on Saturday, March 11, from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. at the Washington Street Education Center in Chelsea.

Works featured revolve around the country craft theme, and include an extensive selection of wood, fabric, ceramic, and glass works. All work is hand crafted by the artisan, and artists are selected through a jury process.

This year there will be a small selection of collectible dealers, including Beanie Babies.

Admission is $2 for adults, with children under 12 admitted free. Tickets are available at the door.

Selective Service registration mandatory

If you are a young man age 18 through 25, it's time to think about your Uncle Sam, and the best way to stay on his good side is to register with Selective Service. Although most men register when they are 18, as required by law, some fail to do so until they are older.

Selective Service Regional Director Glen Ford cautioned that, with few exceptions, a man who fails to register before turning 26 will forfeit his eligibility for certain benefits, such as federal student aid, job training, and most federal employment, in addition to facing possible prosecution as a felon.

Some states also require registration for state student aid, entrance to state-supported colleges and universities, state employment and permission to practice law.

Ford points out that men age 18 through 25 who have not yet registered can avoid the risk of prosecution and loss of benefits by registering promptly at any local post office or on the Internet Selective Service home page (<http://www.sss.gov>).

Men can register with Selective Service up to 30 days prior to their 18th birthday.

As a way to encourage his students' natural curiosity and to teach them beyond what's laid out in the curriculum, students can earn free time to explore Smith's classroom. Often they do it in small groups, playing with the various gadgets or exploring the guts of a VCR, for instance, while sharing with each other what they've discovered.

While Smith appears unconventional, he says his teaching style is very structured.

"I demand their attention but at the same time I allow them some freedom — freedom to express themselves," he says.

Understanding of children's different personalities and needs, Smith says he offers options to the more hyperactive students.

"Some kids can't sit still, so I'll work around that," he says. "I'll let someone work in another room or in the hall. I try hard to meet their needs."

In the end, Smith says he hopes students learn a lot while enjoying their time with him.

"I hope they perceive me as someone who is fun to learn with and someone who means business," he says. "School is a serious place but at the same time it can be fun."

Smith suspects his sixth grade teacher, Mr. Wright, in Milford schools, influenced this particular part of his approach with students.

"He was really fair with everybody and he taught us a lot of neat things," Smith says. "He taught us how to fly kites and play football. He was fun, and I think he was the only teacher of mine to do that."

It's at the lower grade level where Smith has found his professional niche, particularly at fourth grade. He taught third grade for 10 years and fifth for six years.

"The third-graders' maturity level is lower. They follow you around like puppy dogs, while the fifth-graders are more independent," he says.

Teaching fourth grade is somewhere in the middle. "They're pretty mellow and they like to learn," he says about his fourth-grade students.

Respect is the only hard rule in this veteran educator's classroom. "I don't have many rules but No. 1 is to be courteous and show respect at all times," he says.

"Kids can be pretty cruel. I'd like to spend some of my time teaching them how to get along together. There is a lot of violence out there and I'd like to show them how to love one another."

After spending his entire teaching career in Chelsea, Smith says he has seen a lot of changes. But what he says hasn't changed is an innocent quality about children living in this area.

"It's a little more urban now but the kids are still a little naive, and I kind of like that," he says.

What he finds unusual about teaching in Chelsea is the level of support from the community.

"They'll come in and help any time," he says. "I've never had a year yet when people wouldn't come in and help me out. So, that's one thing that has been unique about Chelsea."

Among the highlights of Smith's career are the accolades he receives from former students. He has been invited twice to the Chelsea High School Cum Laude Banquet by former students who have recognized him as a teacher who played an influential role in their lives.

"That has been a real honor," he says. "I am always really amazed they remembered me from third or fourth grade."

Another highlight is when students return as adults with children of their own and visit his classroom during open house.

What Smith looks forward to in his career is continuing to do what he does best.

"I just look forward to having kids come in here year after year, and having fun with them," he says. "I just want to keep challenging them and keep them interested. If I can do that, then I should keep doing it."

When he is not in the classroom, Smith enjoys flying kites, fixing things and playing music. He has a recording studio in his home, and in addition to performing pop and rock, he writes music.

The outdoors is his playground. Smith says he enjoys hiking, camping, skiing and taking photographs of nature. His favorite vacation spot is Grand Haven, because he says it feels like you're at the ocean but fairly close to home.

For eight years, Smith spent his summers as a bee inspector for the state Department of Agriculture. Nowadays he spends most of his spare time remodeling his house, which he shares with his wife, Jill. They met at the Woodshed, now Cleary's Pub, when he was performing there in the early 1980s.

The Smiths live in Chelsea and have two children, 14-year-old Aaron and 13-year-old McKenna. Smith has two stepchildren, as well, Ryan, 25, and Heidi, 23. Smith remembers teaching Heidi when she was in fourth grade.

Study shows radiation helps heart disease

Radiation has long been used as a method for killing cancer cells. Now researchers say radiation looks promising as a way to kill the overgrowth of tissue cells that can lead to a re-blockage of a heart artery, according to a report in today's issue of "Circulation," Journal of the American Heart Association.

"Radiation may one day offer a solution to a long-standing problem — re-blockage of a heart artery following angioplasty, particularly in patients who receive stents," says lead author Dr. Paul S. Teirstein, director of interventional cardiology at Scripps Clinic in LaJolla, Calif.

In angioplasty, a balloon-tipped catheter is threaded into the blocked artery and the balloon is then inflated to widen the narrowed vessel. Sometimes a stent — a metal coil — is implanted as well to hold the walls of the vessel open. However, doctors have found that a build-up of scar tissue resulting in the artery is a common complication after a stent is put in.

In this study, a ribbon containing sealed radioactive pellets — a technique called brachytherapy — was threaded into the affected artery. The ribbon was left in place for 20 to 45 minutes to administer the prescribed dose of radiation to the artery, and then removed.

Researchers report that after three years the patients who received the radiation had less than half the rate of re-blockage as patients who did not undergo the radiation treatment.

"Brachytherapy is of particular value to patients with in-stent reblockage for whom there is no effective alternative because their coronary artery disease is too severe," say the authors of an accompanying editorial, Dr. David O. Williams, and Dr. Harry L. Sharaf, of the cardiology division at Brown University.

Sharaf, an associate professor of medicine at Brown University says the "study alleviates some of the unknowns" about the long-term effectiveness of the radiation treatment. "This is now the largest study with long-term follow-up of this treatment," he says.

We are concerned that there might be adverse effects that would outweigh the benefits, and that we would be merely delaying the reblockage of these arteries," Teirstein says. "However, this study tells us that after three years, intracoronary radiation continues to be a safe way to treat reblockage of heart arteries."

All the patients in the study had stents, and some had in-stent reblockages. Twenty-six patients received the radiation treatment and 29 did not. Three years later, only 15.4 percent of the patients in the radiation-treated group had re-blockages of the affected heart artery, compared to 48.3 percent of the untreated group.

Additionally, researchers found that the rate of deaths, heart attacks and reblockages was much lower in the radiation-treated patients compared to the untreated group (23.1 percent vs. 55.2 percent).

Teirstein says that although the study results are promising, it does not mean that 10 to 20 years out the procedure will show the same effectiveness. "It would be premature to recommend radiation therapy as the first line of treatment for patients with clogged heart arteries," he says, and adds that additional scientific study is needed.

Spikers build momentum with two wins

By Colleen O'Neill

Special Writer

The season is rapidly coming to a close for the Chelsea varsity volleyball team. As the post-season draws near, the Bulldogs had a light week of competition, made even easier with two easy, and identical, wins.

On Monday, the Bulldogs defeated Lincoln, 15-4, 15-11, and then racked up the same score against Pinckney on Thursday. Because they had the weekend off, they will have a full week of rest when they go on the road to take on Milan on Thursday.

In just two games against Lincoln, the Bulldogs piled up 27 kills. Mora Arnold had six kills, followed by Michelle Detling and Lindsay Powers who each had four. Caitlin Deis and Jill Drexler each had three while Josie Wells, Lindsey Baker and Lindsey Brink each had two. Amber Mattocks also racked up one kill.

Baker had 19 assists in the match. No assists were needed for Larder, Powers, Drexler and Deis who all had aces, two, two, one and one respectively.

Defensively, the Bulldogs were just as strong, as eight players combined for 28 digs. Powers and Baker each had six, Brink had four, Deis and Schiller, three, Mattocks, two, and Arnold and Drexler each dug the ball out once.

For the second time in a week, Chelsea won a match in two games by the score of 15-4.

Grapppler's fall to Pinckney in close match

By Colleen O'Neill

Special Writer

The Chelsea wrestling team ended the regular season with a dual meet at home against Pinckney but lost the effort, 43-34.

Dave Graff (103), George Fairly (140), Jeremy Price (145), Darl Bauer (152), Ben Vogel (171) and Heavyweight Nate Dawson were the only winners in the dual meet.

All but Price pinned their opponents. Graff pinned in 4:47, Fairly in 3:10, Bauer in 52 seconds and Vogel in 41 seconds.

ons. Dawson also pinned his opponent and Price earned a major decision, 14-0, over his opponent, Steve Cook.

"That summarizes that," said head coach Kerry Kargel of the loss. "We just gave too many points up."

One of the biggest problems for the Bulldogs was giving up pins.

"We got pinned in too many weights," Kargel said. "One thing we've been able to do all season is keep off our backs; in this case we had a down night."

Kargel said he needs his kids to perform at the highest level of expectation because the team is not as strong as some.

"We are not a power-house," Kargel said.

The Bulldogs then went into the league meet on Saturday.

"Realistically, I looked at it and didn't think we'd have too many champions overall because of how tough the league is," Kargel said.

He was right. Only Junior Nate Dawson took the championship medal when we finished the day 3-0. But while champions were hard to find, the team did bring home eight medals.

Junior Ben Vogel took second place for the runner-up medal. Graff, Ostrowski, Fairly, Price, Bauer and Lixey all took third place medals.

Chelsea finished in third place in the league, behind first-place Saline and runner-up Pinckney.

While he does not want to offer excuses, Kargel did point out that the team has a lot of injuries right now

"When you take two or three kids out of the lineup, it is almost impossible to win," Kargel said. "We have a lot of little injuries that kept kids out this season and a couple of big injuries."

Although Kargel feels that, because of the injuries, his team has been playing catch-up all year, he is proud of the younger wrestlers who stepped to the mat.

"The backups are younger," Kargel said. "I'd like to compliment those kids. They filled some big shoes, stepped up and filled good positions."

Chelsea hosted team districts, on Wednesday, but results were not available at press time.

Linden will host the Individual District Meet on Saturday and Kargel will send his whole squad.

"That offers invaluable mat time for the kids," Kargel said. "They'll have the experience next year and understand the districts and the competition. The top four placers at districts will go on to regionals."

JV spikers win game for parents

By Colleen O'Neill

Special Writer

The Chelsea junior varsity volleyball team had a solid week and came away with two more conference wins. The junior Bulldogs defeated Pinckney at home on Feb. 10 to impress all those in attendance for Parents' Night in two solid games, 15-12, 15-3.

It took three games but they also defeated Lincoln, 9-15, 15-6 and 15-12, earlier in the week.

Against Pinckney, the Bulldogs had some difficulty with serves and serve reception that cut it a little too close in the first game.

"We actually came from behind to win," said head coach Beth Box. "In the second game I had three girls serve and that was all it took."

"It was short and sweet." Everyone got a chance to play and Box felt that everyone seemed to enjoy the floor time.

"I think it was especially nice to take them in two due to Parents' Night," Box said.

Anna Arend scored seven points including one ace. She also had seven assists, four digs and four kills. Jenelle Vleck had two perfect serves for aces and four kills. Susan Frederick scored four points and had three digs while Rochelle Stafford had a great defensive night with two blocks, one kill and one assist.

Nikki Steinaway scored four points and served one ace, and dug the ball out once. Heather Steinaway scored one point and had two digs.

Audrey Richardson served an ace for her point, added a dig and three assists, while Tracy Carter scored two points.

Connie Kolokithas, Heather Tanner, Kristy Tarantowski, Meghan Tandy, Cara Long and Jessica French all had a great defensive night as they combined for five digs and nine kills. Tandy also scored nine points.

Earlier in the week the Bulldogs once again struggled with serve receives and, at times, their serves.

"We struggled a bit but pulled through each time," Box said. "Some of the girls who earlier didn't see much playing time are now stepping up and coming on strong."

"Heather Tanner, for one, has an amazing arm."

Box said that when Tanner gets a hit on the ball, no one can touch it.

"No more love taps," Box said of Tanner's newfound strength. "Just power."

"I love the improvement of all the girls."

Arend had another spectacular night, scoring nine points, including two aces, earning 12 assists, one kill and one dig. Vleck added five kills and also had a dig.

Once again all the junior Bulldogs participated and Box got something from everyone. Stafford scored a point and had three kills and three digs. Carter got an assist and had three digs while Richardson scored two points and added an assist.

Kolokithas scored four points, blocked the ball once, had seven kills and three digs. Nikki Steinaway scored a whopping 12 points including one ace and added a dig while sister Heather scored five points and also had a dig.

Tanner blocked two shots and put three balls on the floor for kills and Frederick scored six points and dug the ball out three times. Long had a kill, Tarantowski had a block and two digs, while Tandy and French combined for three digs.

The Bulldogs have a week of rest before going to Milan on Feb. 17 and then will enjoy a weekend off and host Southeastern Conference rival Dexter on Monday.

Brian Sayers goes up for a basket in the midst of heavy Lincoln defense, while Alan Bairly looks for the rebound. The 'Dogs brought off a 76-52 victory in the game.

Varsity cagers beat Lincoln in rematch

By Jon Royce

Special Writer

After two losses, the varsity Bulldogs came through with a huge win against the Lincoln Railsplitters Feb. 8. Chelsea handled their guests easily, 76-52.

"We played pretty well. We did what we wanted to do," coach Robin Raymond said after the game, highlighting Chelsea's ability to control the game.

The Bulldogs didn't look like they were ready to play at first. The Railsplitters came out in the first few minutes of the game and went up 8-2. Chelsea scrambled back into it though, and managed to grab the lead at the end of the first quarter.

Leading by one, going in to the second, the Bulldogs had the most important quarter of the game. Fueled by an aggressive defense, the Bulldogs outscored Lincoln, 16-10, and led at the half, 29-22.

Emphasizing the half-court trap in the second half, Chelsea created a lot of fast break opportunities and broke open the game.

Senior Sean Davis blew up in the second half, scoring 22 of his 25 points in the last two quarters of the game.

"Sean took the ball to the basket really well this game," Raymond said, explaining the offensive explosion. "Our two centers also played well."

Senior Alan Bairley and sophomore Joe Tripodi combined for 12 points and 14 rebounds while holding Lincoln's star center to just 10 points on the game.

"We did what we wanted to do; Sean Davis took the ball to the basket really well this game."

— Varsity coach Robin Raymond

Junior Ben Myers also had a big game. Myers scored 10 points including two important threes in the second quarter. Myers also had three steals and three steals.

Other scorers included junior Tony Scheffer with 15, seniors Jeff Kolodica and Ethan Rendell with four each, junior Brian Sayers with two, junior Brian Sayers with two, Junior Joel Grimm had one.

The team will face Dexter Friday, Feb. 18 in Chelsea. Junior varsity tip off is set for 6 p.m.

JV cagers down Lincoln Railsplitters

By Colleen O'Neill

Special Writer

The Chelsea junior varsity basketball team had a light week with only one game, but made it a highlight with a win.

The Bulldogs defeated Lincoln, 59-54, on Tuesday at home.

Chelsea took the lead in the first quarter and added to it in the second quarter for a 30-20 halftime edge. The Railsplitters were able to match Chelsea point for point in the third to hold the deficit at 10, and even closed it up a bit in the fourth as they outscored Chelsea, 15-10, in the final quarter.

But it wasn't enough, as Chelsea held on for the win.

Three Bulldogs were in double digits on the scoreboard. Chris Kinaschuk led the team with 14 points, Jake Freeman added 13, while Tim Bentley scored 10. Nike Gadbury scored nine points, Kent Reames added seven, Dan Mueller put up four and James Ballas scored two for the Bulldogs.

"We played decent for most of the game," said head coach Mark Scheese. "They are a much improved team from the first time we played them."

The Bulldogs shot a whopping 73 percent from the free throw line in the third and fourth quarters to help seal the victory.

Chelsea played Howell on Tuesday and will host Dexter on Friday for another great SEC match-up.

Icers split in weekend action

The Chelsea hockey team opened weekend action with a win over Bedford, but lost the following night in a tough contest against league rival Pinckney, ending a 13-game unbeaten streak.

The Bulldogs traveled to Monroe Ice Arena Friday night in the match against Bedford. The Bulldogs had an earlier loss and a tie against Bedford, but evened the season series with a 3-0 win.

Defenseman Dave Poupard scored first for Chelsea on a wrist shot from the blue line.

Bulldogs Steve Williams and Brad Wright worked hard in front of the net setting the screen for the shot and picking up the assists.

Chelsea extended the lead on a well-executed one timer from the slot. Chris Tyler slid a perfect pass to Craig St. Clair for the goal with Wright picking up the other assist. Nolen Ahrens put the game away with a short-handed goal into an empty net.

Chelsea goalie Mike Osborne turned away 15 shots in his second consecutive shut out.

On Saturday night, the Bulldogs hosted the Pinckney Pirates at Optimist Ice Arena in Jackson. Chelsea came out flat in the first period but escaped without a goal being scored.

They outshot the Pirates but it took a nice save by Osborne on a Pinckney breakaway to keep the game scoreless.

In the second period Pinckney scored 2 early goals on defensive miscues by the Bulldogs, prompting a time out by head coach Don Wright.

The timeout refocused the Bulldogs and they scored their lone goal on a great pass by Ahrens to Wright in front of the net.

Mike Sayers also assisted.

The Bulldogs dominated the third period with several good scoring opportunities but couldn't get the tying goal. Chelsea outshot Pinckney 29-19 for the game.

Chelsea's next game is Friday night against Saline at 8:30 p.m. at Jackson Arena.

Tankers down two, lose to Dexter

The Chelsea Men's varsity swimming and diving team improved its overall record to 9-1-1 and its conference record to 4-1-1 last week, with wins over Pinckney, 97-86, and Mason, 118-66, before suffering the first loss of the season to Dexter, 123-63.

The wins were expected against Pinckney and Mason, as was the loss to No. 1 ranked Dexter on Thursday night.

Even in a losing effort, the Bulldogs were able to put together 14 best performances. At this time in the season this was quite spectacular.

The meet with Pinckney was the first letdown of the season for the Bulldogs. They swam flat all night long with only two personal best performances being turned in by the whole team. Top finishes for the bulldogs were as follows: Andy Hack in the 200-yard freestyle; Thiel in the 50-yard freestyle; Steve Basar in Diving, 190.05; Thiel in the 100-yard freestyle; Hack in the 500-yard freestyle; the 200-yard freestyle relay of Thiel, Rob. Rohrkemper, Hack, and Jeff Heydlauff; and the 400-yard relay of Thiel, Matt Moffett, Jared Wacker, and Hack.

The Bulldogs then had to travel up to Mason. After losing to the Bulldogs of Mason last year, the Bulldogs of Chelsea had revenge on their minds.

The 200-yard medley team of Hack, Moffett, Rohrkemper, and Heydlauff got the meet rolling with a win at 1:49.89. Zack Christman, Matt Holmes, Mike Bowdish, Mike Policht came in third at 1:59.12.

Moffett and Policht came in first and second in the 200-yard freestyle, stopping the clock at 2:04.29 and 2:11.97, respectively. Christman won the 200-yard individual medley with a time of 2:22.19, with teammate Tim Wacker earning second-place honors at 2:27.29. 8th wins, 7th splits in Beach spikers action

The Beach Middle School eighth-grade volleyball team defeated Pinckney and Milan last week to raise its record to 3-2.

At home last Tuesday, the girls served for a season-high 85 percent. The high percentage was instrumental in their 11-0, 11-4 and 11-4 three-game victory.

In the first game, Missy Marcom and Nicole Collins, each with six-of-six serving, accounted for all the points scored. Devon Lixey led the second game off with seven straight points, and Jenna Connolly added four points. Lindsey Lye and Ashley Gadbury played very strong all-around games.

Thursday, the team traveled to Milan and came home with a three-game victory, 11-2, 11-1 and 11-1. Again, the girls served well at 82 percent. Leading with service points were Collins, Marcom and Lixey with six points each. Lindsey Parker added five points and Meghan Reames four points.

Becky Sprague played her best game of the season and Rachel Dotson and Parker made significant contributions to the victory with their solid play.

The seventh grade Beach Middle School volleyball team played against Pinckney and Milan this week. They met Pinckney Feb. 8, on Chelsea's home court.

It was an exciting match, but Pinckney pulled through in a close fifth game. Scores were, 11-5, 8-11, 8-11, 11-9, 10-12.

Megan Korc served 14 total points with nine of them in a row and four were aces.

Mary Kate Setta served eight points. Amanda Mattocks served seven. Kara Kimmen served four and Kelly Kennedy had three. Jennifer DeWall, Kim Gizicki, Liberty Dickerson and Danae Seward each served two points.

On Feb. 10, the girls traveled to Milan. They beat the Big Reds in a four game match with scores of 11-0, 11-1, 11-13 and 11-3. Korc, DeWall, and Kirby Kedroske each had three assists. Top server was Korc with seven points.

Gizicki, Mattocks and Brenda Satterthwaite each served five points.

DeWall and Dickerson each served four points. Seward served three and Shannon Kinner served two points. Serving was at a season high of 88 percent.

The 200-yard medley team of Hack, Moffett, Rohrkemper, and Heydlauff got the meet rolling with a win at 1:49.89. Zack Christman, Matt Holmes, Mike Bowdish, Mike Policht came in third at 1:59.12.

Moffett and Policht came in first and second in the 200-yard freestyle, stopping the clock at 2:04.29 and 2:11.97, respectively. Christman won the 200-yard individual medley with a time of 2:22.19, with teammate Tim Wacker earning second-place honors at 2:27.29. The Dexter meet was an opportunity for outstanding competition. The Bulldogs were no match for the superior depth of the number-one ranked Dreadnaughts but gave them the best meet they could handle.

The 200-yard medley relay of Jared Wacker, Hack, Thiel, and Heydlauff swam a season best of 1:45.04 earning them second place. Moffett was quick in the 200-yard freestyle, stopping the clock at 2:01.19 and third place. Hack had a season-best performance in the 200-yard individual medley, stopping the clock at 1:59.28, which earned him second.

Thiel won the 50-yard freestyle at 22.64 with Heydlauff earning third place at 23.75. Basar and McGuinness had sea-

The meet was the first loss for Chelsea, but overall it was a victory, as the Bulldogs continued to improve.

Scouting Builds Character Serves the Community

The Girl Scout program provides important leadership and growth opportunities for girls and young women aged 5 - 18. Self-awareness, self-confidence and service to others are learned through exciting and educational programs provided at the local level by dedicated volunteer leaders.

The Scouting program allows members to learn, grow and achieve with hands-on activities and a variety of projects aimed at the specific age group of the girls.

Each Scouting unit creates its program to meet the needs of the girls in the group, and meeting times and level of activity vary accordingly. One of the most visible activities is the annual cookie sale, which generates needed funds for the program.

Scouting relies on volunteerism, and adult leaders are encouraged to learn more about Scouting in the Chelsea/Dexter area, or to receive training to become an adult volunteer, call the Chelsea/Dexter Area Council at 475-1000.

In Loving Memory of Kellie Allen

*I give you this one thought to keep—
I am with you still I do not sleep.
I am a thousand winds that blow,
I am the diamond glints on snow,
I am the sunlight on ripened grain,
I am the gentle autumn rain.
When you awaken in the morning's hush,
I am the swift, uplifting rush of quiet birds in circled flight.
I am the soft stars that shine at night.
Do not think of me as gone—
I am with you still—in each new dawn.*

*You were the wind beneath our wings
Our Love for you lives on Your Family.*

WHAT DOES THE BIBLE SAY ON... BENEVOLENCE

Benevolence or giving as we know it, is often not the same model as what we know in the world today. In the Bible we see many examples of true benevolent behavior and the way that we as Christian people should give. We are commanded to be benevolent:

1. We should visit orphans and widows - James 1:27
2. We should remember the poor - Gal 2:10
3. We should give to the needy - Eph 4:28
4. We should help fellow Christians - Cor 13:1-2

As we can quickly see, our obligation is to the church as well as to people who do not know Jesus. In the New Testament we see some of the greatest and well-known stories about helping others.

1. Parable of the Good Samaritan - Lk 10:25-37
2. Early Christians - Acts 2:45
3. Philipians helped Paul - Phil 4:14-17.

These examples give us a wonderful perspective on how we should give. Give not only your money but give of yourself today to those who need you.

PROTECTING FIRST PERMANENT MOLARS

If you have a child whose first permanent molars are now in place, it is important to keep these teeth free of decay. Permanent molars help determine the position of the child's other permanent teeth as they replace his primary teeth. One method your dentist may recommend to protect his first permanent molars from decay is the use of an adhesive sealant.

This is a painless procedure that requires no drilling. After the molars have been cleaned, they are etched with a mild acid to remove bacterial plaque and other surface material. This treatment also makes the tooth enamel more porous so the adhesive bond or sealant will be as strong as possible. The sealant acts as a barrier against the accumulation of bacteria that causes decay on the chewing surfaces of the teeth.

Adhesive sealants provide a long-lasting protective film. When the sealant becomes worn, further applications can be made as needed to protect the tooth from decay.

Frosh spikers split week's games

By Colleen O'Neill

Special Writer

The Chelsea freshman volleyball team split their schedule last week by losing to Pinckney in three games on Thursday, but defeating Ypsilanti Lincoln in two games earlier in the week.

At home on Thursday, a much-improved Pinckney team surprised the Bulldogs.

"Pinckney has really improved and we were not ready for them to come out so strong," said head coach Terri McCalla. "We played tough but couldn't pull out the victory."

The Bulldogs lost in three games, 2-15, 15-6, 13-15.

One problem early in the night for the younger Bulldogs was serving. McCalla said they had a tough time, making only 50 percent of their serves in the first game.

"I'm proud of the girls," McCalla said. "They came back and stayed focused in the second and third games, only missing two serves."

Krystal Space was one who did not struggle with her serves. She scored five points on five serves, including one ace.

Julia Arnold scored three points on four serves including two aces, and Sarah Kaminsky also scored three points on four serves with one ace. Catherine Kirkwood and Marjorie Sacks were both perfect, going two for two from the serving line.

"Again, we had a total team effort in our attacks," McCalla said.

Karri Kuczajda led the team with two kills, while the rest of the team added 10 more. Kills came from Courtney Bentley with three, Space and Kirkwood with two, Sarah Kaminsky, Amy Mattocks and Alison Sacks each added one.

"It was a disappointing loss due to the fact we were up 13-5 at one point and lost our confidence and couldn't receive Pinckney's serves," McCalla said.

Earlier in the week the Bulldogs hosted Ypsilanti Lincoln and won that match in two games, 16-14, 15-7.

"They were both tough games," McCalla said. "In the first game we took an early lead, then let Lincoln back in the game due to poor serve receive."

McCalla said she is working on serve receive daily in practice because that is the most important part of the game.

"Our serving came through," McCalla said.

Jenny Parker was perfect, scoring 12 points on 12 serves. Four were aces. Sarah Brigham scored eight points on nine serves, including three aces, while Alison Sacks scored six points on seven serves and also had four aces.

Bentley was also perfect. She scored five points on five serves with two aces, and Anna Marie Cooper and Kirkwood each had one ace.

"Chelsea had a great night attacking the ball, with great assists from Courtney Bentley and Catherine Kirkwood," McCalla said. "We were 25 of 27 from the attack line."

Kuczajda had five kills on eight attacks, Stephanie Minzey and Alison Sacks had four kills each, Space and Sarah Brigham each had two kills and Cooper and Cynthia Johnson each had a kill.

"We are improving each week," McCalla said. "We have some tough games left in our schedule but the girls are staying focused and playing well."

The freshmen record is 7-2 in the conference and 10-8-3 overall.

They played Ann Arbor Huron on Monday and will be at Milan on Feb. 17 before coming home to host the rival Dexter Dreadnaughts on Monday.

Beach wrestlers down Pinckney

Tuesday, Feb. 8, the Beach Middle School wrestlers traveled to Pinckney for the fourth dual meet of the season. The Bulldogs were able to pull ahead of Pinckney in the first round of matches due to several pins by Chelsea wrestlers.

Tim Svetkovich, Adam Ellis, Ryan Keiser, Ben Rodgers, Rory McGuinness, David Bell, Joel Powers, Karl Wint, Scott Beaudette, and Mike Queenan all won their matches by pins. Josh Clark and Shawn Bergman were able to add to the Chelsea team total with decisions over their opponents.

On Thursday, the Beach wrestlers hosted a solid Milan Middle School team at the Washington Street Education Center Gym.

Chelsea was only able to win six of the fourteen matches held. Nathan Skidmore at 100 lbs., John Lowry at 100 lbs., Ben Rodgers at 130 lbs., and David Bell at 155 lbs. won their matches by pins. Matt Robinson at 95 lbs. won a major decision on a 17-7 score, and Taft Richardson at 125 lbs. won on a 5-3 decision.

This week, Chelsea will travel to Tecumseh High School on Saturday for the S.E.C. Middle School Wrestling Tournament.

The tournament is divided into two flights so that each school can have multiple entries in the event. With the largest squad in the league, 42 wrestlers, this tournament format is a great opportunity for all of the young Chelsea wrestlers to compete.

Coaches Sam Vogel and Dave Keiser expect Chelsea to do well at the tournament and are pleased with the progress the large number of wrestlers are making in learning the sport.

The season will conclude with team awards and a meal on Thursday Feb. 25.

Frosh cagers beat Pirates

The Chelsea freshman basketball team remained undefeated in the Southeastern Conference, with a 55-42 win over the Pinckney Pirates, Feb. 10.

The Bulldogs and Pirates were tied 27-27 at halftime, but Chelsea started the second half with a 10-2 run and never looked back.

Paul Newhouse led the Bulldogs with 16 points and five blocked shots. Joe Myers had 12 points and Kyle Brown netted 10.

The entire team played strong defense in the second half holding Pinckney to 15 points.

The squad now boasts an 11-3 overall record and is 9-0 in the league.

15-11 when the team defeated Pinckney at home on Thursday, which was Parent's Night.

Unlike the Lincoln game, where nine players combined for 27 kills, against Pinckney the Bulldogs got kills from only four players, but still managed to put the ball on the floor 25 times. Arnold had six, Powers had five and Brink and Drexler each killed the ball seven times.

FARM FACTS

Hundreds of years ago, people's attitudes about fleas and lice were quite different from today. Sharing these parasites was considered a way of staying intimate with one's sweetheart because they were filled with the blood of loved ones. European men wrote love poems about fleas that lived on their girlfriends. French men put their girlfriends' fleas in tiny cages, which were then worn on necklaces. And Siberian women tossed lice at men they admired.

During the Alaskan Klondike gold rush (1897-1898), potatoes were practically worth their weight in gold. Potatoes were so valued for their vitamin C content that miners traded gold for potatoes.

Egg yolks are one of the few foods that naturally contain Vitamin D.

Homemade flavored vinegars are much safer than homemade flavored oils. Because of vinegar's acidity, the organism that causes botulism can't grow in it and form toxins. But if you add herbs to the vinegar, be sure to use only one or two sprigs — if you add too much, the acidity of the vinegar could be affected, possibly making the product unsafe. And be sure to sterilize your bottles and pasteurize your vinegar by bringing it to temperature between 140°F and 160°F.

Present: President Steele, Clerk Zatorski, Village Manager Myers
Trustees Present: Cashman, Hammer, MacLeod, Myles, Ortring, and Rauschenberger

Others Present: J. Drolett, D. Lane, J. Frank, G. Silverio, A. Feeney, J. Silver

President Steele called the meeting to order at 7:30 p.m.

Motion by Trustee Hammer, seconded by Trustee Myles to approve the Consent Agenda with the following change to the minutes of the regular Council meeting of Tuesday, January 25, 2000:

Page 2, Paragraph 12, 1st Sentence should read: Trustee Ortring gave a brief summary of what the purpose of the Committee was (1. Should the Police and Fire Departments be housed together - yes; and 2. Can they go into the current facility - no.)

6 Ayes (Trustees Cashman, Hammer, MacLeod, Myles and President Steele), 1 Nay (Trustee Ortring), 0 Absent. Motion carried.

Motion by Trustee Hammer, seconded by Trustee Ortring to approve the Regular Agenda with the following changes:

Unfinished Business: Discuss: The Work Session held 1/19/00

Discuss: Future use of the Papp property

Add: Chelsea Community Hospital's request to apply for a lottery license renewal from the State of Michigan

7 Ayes, 0 Nays, 0 Absent. Motion carried.

Trustee Hammer reported that the Fire Authority would meet on January 26, 2000.

Trustee Ortring reported that the CATS board had interviewed two people for the position of Director.

Trustee Myles referred the Council members to the letter from the DDA to David T. Howard, Real Estate Specialist for the United States Postal Service stating how important it is that the Post Office maintain its service location in the downtown area.

President Steele reminded everyone that a public hearing regarding the question of the expansion of the Post Office and the need for it to remain downtown will be held on Tuesday, February 8, 2000.

President Steele said that the next meeting of the M52 Bypass will be held January 28, 2000.

J. Drolett reported that the Chelsea Planning Commission would hold a work session on Tuesday, February 01, 2000, at the Village Offices.

A. Feeney reported that the due diligence on the Mitchell property had been completed by the DDA.

Trustee MacLeod reported on the work session held with business owners regarding the Gateway overlay and Ordinance.

President Steele said another work session is planned for the end of February and that he has suggested to the Strader Group that they do a fact sheet addressing the points brought up that the work session on January 19, 2000. It was suggested that residents of the area attend that meeting as well as the business owners.

Trustee MacLeod said that he would like to see a deed restriction put on the 25 acres purchased for wells, so that the property would be used as parkland in the future.

J. Machnik presented his request for approval for a lot split at the end of Gene Drive. He said he had requested a Certificate of Compliance from J. Drolett and had been told that he needed to make a request from the Council for a lot split before he could get a certificate.

Motion by Trustee Hammer, seconded by Trustee Myles, that the Council would like to correct an oversight on the November 9, 1999, motion granting Harry Thurkow and Al Thompson two building sites each on Machnik Drive with the condition that they bring Machnik Drive up to the County Gravel Road Standards. The intent was also that Gene Drive will have to meet the same County Gravel Road Standards up to the entrance of Machnik Drive and that should the development of the so called Farley property proceed to Village standards, Thurkow and Thompson would be responsible for Gene Drive up to Machnik from the point of that new development. Additionally there needs to be a maintenance agreement with Thompson and Thurkow relative to keeping the road to the County Standards as long as they own those properties. 6 Ayes (Trustees Hammer, MacLeod, Myles, Ortring, Rauschenberger and President Steele), 1 Nay (Trustee Cashman), 0 Absent. Motion carried.

Motion by Trustee Hammer, seconded by Trustee Myles, that the Council grant Jim Machnik the ability to have a lot split on his property at the end of Gene Drive meeting the 400 foot road frontage requirement under the condition that Gene Drive be brought up to the County Gravel Road Standards as they are being adopted in the pending RSA district and recognizing with the motion that a developer may develop Gene Drive down to the creek and that Thurkow and Thompson may develop Gene Drive down to the Machnik Road entrance. Additionally, a road maintenance agreement be developed with Mr. Machnik covering that portion Gene Drive. 6 Ayes (Trustees Hammer, MacLeod, Myles, Ortring, Rauschenberger and President Steele), 1 Nay (Trustee Cashman), 0 Absent. Motion carried.

Motion by Trustee MacLeod, seconded by Trustee Rauschenberger to approved the request to place a stop sign on West Middle Street at Grant

Maya Place brings Southwest to life

By Clare Bauer
Business Writer

Almost everyone has some favorite gift that reminds them that somebody special was thinking of them. Sometimes it's for the child who has a collection of dolls or glass animals.

There's a place in town that really caters to that kind of thinking. If you want a special gift for someone, try Maya Place on Main Street in Chelsea.

Fifteen years ago, Joan Santana opened her first store in Ann Arbor. In November 1990, she and her husband, Joe, bought the building that now houses Maya Place.

Joe, a master carpenter, renovated the building which was originally constructed in the 1860s. Using vintage materials, including wood recycled from old barns in the Chelsea area, Joe rebuilt the old building. The original tin ceiling was cleaned and restored; a whole new facelift was given to the building's exterior. The final result not only preserved a very special and historic building, it made a perfect showplace for the outstanding collection of folk art that now graces it.

Joan lived for several years in the American Southwest, where she developed a deep love and appreciation for Native American crafts. Everything from Sioux pottery to tiny ocarinas (the oldest known flute in the world), medicine wheels, dream catchers, tiny good-luck fetishes, beautiful Kachina dolls crafted by the Hopi and Zuni Indians, breathtaking Pueblo pottery and Native American baskets, Milagros and Kokopeli flute players — the store is filled with eye-catching displays that pique your curiosity.

Native Americans have always been known as spiritual people. All their art reflects some deeply held belief, and part of enjoying the pieces is learning their history. For instance, take the Squash Blossom necklace.

When a young Navajo woman reaches womanhood, her father presents her with a Squash Blossom necklace. These lovely pieces of jewelry are made of silver and vary greatly from simple to elaborate. Semi-precious stones, including turquoise, are part of the settings. The imagery of the squash, which grows more prolifically in a garden than any other vegetable, is to insure that the daughter will always have more than enough in life. At the very bottom of the necklace is an ancient symbol called the Napa, which represents the arms of the Great Spirit encircling the daughter and forever protecting her.

Upon marriage, the husband presents the woman with a full-sized necklace even more elaborate than the original one. With the giving of the necklace, the bridegroom promises to care for his bride for the rest of her life.

Fetishes are fascinating. These hand-carved objects represent the spirit of animals or the forces of nature. From the earliest times in North America, the Indians have used fetishes in an effort to master the arbitrary and unpredictable force beyond their control.

Tiny carved animals represent characteristics which the owner of the stone wants to become a part of his life. The heart of a wolf or lion, the industry of the beaver, a frog fetish representing fertility because of the hundreds of tadpoles they produce and the grace of a mountain goat are just a small sampling to be seen in Maya Place.

Artistically carved from turquoise, coral, and shell, as well as marble, travertine, malachite and woods, each fetish comes with its own history written on a small attached card. There is small bowl you can purchase in which you can keep your fetishes. Perhaps you might want to start your grandchild's collection of these delightful objects.

From the 1700s through the 1800s, Navajo women wove blankets that became highly prized and traded throughout the Southwest. With the introduction of machine-made cloth and clothing, weaving declined sharply. Even for the weaver, it was more economical to buy the fabric or blanket, rather than weave a blanket for personal use. That began to change in the 1880s when the Southwest began to open up to tourist travel and traders saw an exciting new market for Navajo weavings.

Traders sought weavings for floor use, so the Navajo turned to weaving heavier rugs. Changes in patterns and colors, large geometrical designs with borders and the addition of dozens of new colors were added to the weavers' palettes.

Today, over a hundred dye recipes, using a wide variety of berries, roots, flowers and a range of mordants which 'set' the dye to prevent running, are in wide use.

Navajo rugs are justly famous not only for their beauty, but for their durability as well. It is the handspun yarn with its lanolin, which the traditional process leaves in the wool, that helps give the rugs their strength. Rugs woven with commercially cleaned and spun yarn do not wear as well.

The craft of rug weaving is still being practiced by older craftswomen today; it is still being taught to a younger generation who carry on the tradition. Real Navajo rugs are like the fine antiques; as they age, they become more valuable.

Used both as wall hangings and floor coverings, the collection at Maya is remarkable.

Originally, Maya Place specialized in Mexican Indian folk art; hence the name "Maya."

Since those early days, the store has expanded into other areas, often sponsoring local as well as national artists. All items in the gallery are hand crafted and especially chosen for their unique and exquisite workmanship.

Maya Place is a fascinating shop that is filled with treasures from around the world, and you can spend hours just browsing. Joan Santana's store reflects not only her love of authentic crafts, but her willingness to share what she has learned in a lifetime study.
