Chelsea school employee faces kidnapping charges

■ Steve Goddard found in Saginaw-area hotel with his victim.

By Jim Silver
Staff Writer

An employee of JB's Party Center and Deli was abducted Tuesday by her ex-boyfriend, a 34-year-old computer technician at the Chelsea School District.

But Buena Vista Township police found Steve Goddard and his victim in a hotel less than four hours after the ordeal began.

Chelsea police received a 911 call at 7:50 a.m. on April 18 that Goddard had forced the woman from the party store and into his car.

Employees of JB's Party Store declined to comment for this story.

Goddard reportedly hoped to persuade the woman to come back to him, following a recent end to their relationship. Reports indicated that Goddard was not armed.

Chelsea Police Chief Lenard McDougall said the local police department put out an area broadcast asking all local law enforcement agencies to be on the lookout for Goddard.

Chelsea Police Officer Tom Tanner, made an inroads on the case by calling Goddard's cell phone.

The man answered the phone, telling Tanner that he and the woman were headed to Tennessee. He also told the officer his victim had come

NEWS BRIEFS

Residents warned on hydrant flushing

Dan Rosentreter, water department supervisor for the village, told the Village Council at its April 11 meeting that the department has begun flushing hydrants.

The process, which clears debris from village water pipes, is expected to last until the end of April. The flushing could mean that water to homes could appear rusty and brown.

Rosentreter warned residents and council members to check their water before doing laundry, especially in the morning. Hydrants are opened each week from Sunday to Thursday, between 11 p.m. and 6 a.m.

Yard waste fires can cost residents

Residents in Chelsea Village and Dexter, Lima, Lyndon, Sylvan and Waterloo townships should notify the Chelsea Area Fire Authority about any open burning they plan.

Open burning is a fire made of natural material, such as yard waste, not contained in a burn barrel. It cannot include any chemical, must be more than 1,400 feet outside of the village limits, and must be done between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Any runs that the fire department makes due to smoke from open burning will be billed to the resident. Permits are not required for fires in a burn barrel.

To notify the fire authority of a fire or to find out about a burn barrel, call 475-1339.

Quartet sets concert

The Congdon Quartet will present a concert at the Chelsea Depot. Quartet members are Nathan Peters, Ian Cumming and Sara Cumming, teachers at the Chelsea Center for the Development of the Arts, and Angela Leidig, a teacher in Chelsea, and the Ann Arbor School for the Performing Arts.

Performances are set for 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. on Sunday, April 30. Tickets can be purchased in advance by calling 433-1622, or at the door.

Fine Form

Members of the varsity tennis team kicked off their season by blitzing the competition in the Pinckney Invitational Tournament last weekend. The Bulldogs dominated their flights and brought home the first-place trophy. Water plant talk centers on funds, filtration system

■ Council, public say clean water central to village future.

By Jim Silver
Staff Writer

Village Council members voted unanimously to move ahead on plans for a proposed water treatment plant for the village, a plan that has provoked some complaint from the community.

Discussion of the plans centered on whether the design should include space for a new filtration system, and what financing options existed for the plant. The design phase of the project is budgeted at $206,000.

In a letter to the council, Michael Harvey, of engineering firm McNamee, Porter and Seeley, proposed to begin the design work for the village, deferring payment until Sept. 30, the end of fiscal year 2000. At that point, Harvey proposed a payment based on bond proceeds.

Alternately, the village is applying for a grant from the Drinking Water Revolving Fund (DWRF), and could use proceeds from that grant to repay the design fee. The total projected cost for the project to be funded by the DWRF is $8.9 million.

Village Manager Jack Myers responded to that suggestion, saying that the village should not depend on receiving DWRF funds by Sept. 30. He cited information he had received from village financial advisor Kari Blanchett.

Blanchett said that she had heard at a meeting that the village was unlikely to receive DWRF funds before the end of fiscal 2000.

Myers said that the village could apply for a Federal Housing Administration (FHA) loan, and use DWRF funds to repay that loan at a later date.

He said that other municipal-

Area sheriff's patrols in funding jeopardy

■ Plan would increase costs to Lima, Lyndon and Sylvan townships.

By Shawn Lawrence
Heritage Newspapers

A recent proposal by members of the Washtenaw County Commission to restructure sheriff's department financing would result in a vast increase in cost to taxpayers in Lima, Lyndon and Sylvan townships if they want to retain police services from the county.

This proposal is the first to surface after months of debate on how to more equitably share costs and resources around the county. The proposal would raise the cost of contracted deputies and would eliminate the general road patrol in all but life or death situations for municipalities that do not contract for deputies.

Under the current system, municipalities without their own police departments can contract with the sheriff to have deputies assigned to their location. If a municipality won't contract or can't afford to contract, the sheriff provides a minimum level of service (known as general road patrols) as a part of their jurisdiction over the entire county.

But under the new proposal, that minimum level of service will be eliminated and the Michigan State Police would be the only agency responding to any general calls for service.

Under the proposal, in order to maintain the current level of police services, the townships that do not currently contract for deputies (Lima, Lyndon and Sylvan) would be required to pass a millage to contract for police services. The new cost for one deputy is approximatley $109,000, minus a $33,000 'county grant,' resulting in a cost of about $75,000. Dexter Township, which already contracts for a half-time deputy, would remain largely unaffected.

But County Commissioner Joe Yekulis said he and other members of the board will not support the proposal.

"I will not accept any proposal that does not provide road patrol protection for western Washtenaw County," he said.

Yekulis said he will bring a counter proposal to the board this week that will provide for the general road patrols to continue in rural areas of the county.

But Yekulis said he believes the county board members are nearly split on the issue, and the future of the general road patrol is anything but certain at this point.

"We need eight votes (on the county board) to make something happen," Yekulis said. "It may come down to a one-vote decision on which way it goes.

"We're at a very significant crossroads right now in providing law enforcement services to the citizens of Washtenaw County, and everyone on the board is working very hard to make sure that they're representing their constituents," Yekulis said. "Everybody has their own agendas. My agenda is to make sure we preserve a level of protection for all of the citizens."

Much of the debate over funding has been characterized as a dispute between Ann Arbor residents and out-city residents, both of whom are questioning whether they are subsidizing each other for county services.

Ann Arbor residents, who pay for their own police department, are questioning why they should have to pay for the sheriff to patrol townships outside of Ann Arbor.

Township residents have argued that the city of Ann Arbor receives more than its fair share of county dollars in other areas.

Manchester Township Supervisor Ron Mann said that if the county eliminates the general road patrol, his township would be receiving very little from the county for the taxes the area contributes.

"In Manchester Township, we're sending over a half million to the county each year," he said. "I'm not sure what we're getting for that. If we're not paying for police services, I'd like to know what else we are paying for."

Mann said that if the current proposal becomes a reality, he hopes the township board would consider alternatives to the sheriff's department.

"There are other departments in the county," he said. "I don't know if they'd be interested or not but I think it's only fair to the voters that we would explore that."

Mann said he is worried the commission as a whole may not come up with a plan that is fair to the entire county.

"I think the commissioners are not acting as county commissioners, they're acting only as district commissioners," he said. "I don't think that is right. If I, as a township supervisor, only voted for what I thought was good for the area near where I live, I would be doing a disservice to the people I represent. But willingly. Members of the woman's family live in Tennessee.

However, after speaking with Goddard, Tanner talked to the victim, and determined that the woman had been taken against her will.

Goddard and his victim were next seen in Buena Vista Township, checking into a Red Roof Inn.

Debbie Vargas, the clerk on duty, said that Goddard sent his victim in to get a room.

"She came in on her own while I was dealing with another customer. She told me to act like I was still dealing with the other man, and then told me she had been kidnapped.

"Eventually, (Goddard) came in and asked her what she was doing, and she said she was just waiting her turn."

Vargas called Buena Vista police, who apprehended Goddard a short time later. Det. Loretta Price said that the suspect released his captive, then surrendered.

"He opened the door for her, and then he came out. It was very peaceful," Price said.

By noon on Tuesday, Goddard was in the custody of Chelsea police, and the woman was back on the job at the party store.

For a brief time during the search, the Federal Bureau of Investigation was involved in the search for Goddard and his victim, when it appeared that the two had left the state on I-75. But then it became clear the duo had stayed Michigan-bound.

Goddard called in sick to Chelsea High School on Tuesday. School District Superintendent Ed Richardson said Tuesday afternoon that Goddard, a district employee since February 1999, is now on paid administrative leave.

"I do not anticipate any repercussions for Steve until I have an opportunity to talk with him," Richardson said.

Richardson did say that Goddard had not had any problems at the district schools.

Goddard was arraigned on Wednesday, April 19, on charges of felony kidnapping. If convicted, Goddard could face a life sentence.

ities had pursued the option, but Village President Richard Steele questioned whether the village would be eligible for such a loan.

Village Council members asked whether the project could be paid for with funds raised from sewer and water fees from several upcoming local projects, including an ice rink and a hospital wellness center.

Trustees Frank Hammer and Richard Rigg questioned the inclusion of a membrane or reverse osmosis filtration system in the design.

Glenn Burkhardt, president of McNamee, Porter and Seeley, said that such systems would represent an augmentation of the village's current filtration system.

He said that a membrane filtration system would address aesthetic issues of water filtration, such as hardness, and could remove more organic contaminants at the molecular level.

Burkhardt stressed that there was no reason to suppose that the water supply was currently infected by any such organic threats.

Ultimately, council members told Harvey to move ahead with design work, including provisions for a membrane filtration system. But they emphasized that such provisions should be adaptable if the system was not included.

Without the filtration system, a new treatment plant would allow for increased capacity and could also accommodate other increased or unified services.

Rigg said he would vote to move ahead on the project, because the village, "to be a viable community for the next 20 years, must have good water."

In the vein of village planning, Charles Ritter asked council what the status was of the village's move to become a city.

Myers said that petitions on the matter were currently circulating. When they are completed, Myers said the village would be sending them and maps to the State Boundary Commission. He said the package should be going soon.

I don't believe the county commissioners are looking at it that way.

"I don't envy the commissioners. This is a big job, and. I don't expect it to be equitable across the board all the way around the county. Some townships need more than others whether it's jail space, social service, human services ... but if we're going to look at one service the county provides on an individual basis, shouldn't we look at all the services county provides? If we did something like that, I believe the Ann Arbor commissioners might be surprised to find out that they are getting a lot of services in some areas — more than their fair share, so to speak.

"Somehow, we've got to come up with something that serves everyone in the county."

Hospital offers training

Chelsea Community Hospital was recently recognized as a provider of continuing education for nurses. Using criteria developed by the American Nurses Credentialing Center, CCH will be able to award contact hours for continuing education activities for nursing staff through the approval period of two years.

In celebration of this recognition, CCH is holding a "Diabetes Update," for area nurses Tuesday, April 25, at 5:30 p.m. in the Woodland Room. This free program features dietician Francey Wheeler, and nurse Dawn Crane, and focuses on the diabetic diet, monitoring, medication and treatment strategies. Nurses will receive 2.4 contact hours for the program.

Spectrum ends on-site treatment

Helping people with addictions receive the treatment they need will remain a key part of Spectrum Prevention & Treatment Services' mission, but on-site treatment will no longer be offered at the agency as a result of managed care and funding changes.

Treatment clients will be referred to and provided assistance in entering other high-quality programs already existing in Washtenaw County. Spectrum will continue providing a wide variety of prevention and education programs that annually reach nearly 17,000 people.

"It's no secret that managed care has had an enormous impact on organizations like Spectrum," says Dr. Robert Ause, president of the Spectrum Board of Trustees. "As a result of ongoing funding reductions and an increasing proportion of subsidized clients, the cost of our outpatient treatment program has grown to significantly exceed our income in this area.

After studying every available option, the board of trustees and executive staff have decided that the best way to continue serving our mission is to start referring people in need of addiction treatment to the other fine programs in our community and focus our resources on prevention, education and helping people get treatment."

Spectrum, which celebrates its 40th anniversary this year, was one of the first organizations of its kind in the nation and has been a community leader in fighting alcoholism, drug abuse and addiction since its founding as the Washtenaw Council on Alcoholism in 1960. The name was changed to Spectrum Prevention & Treatment Services in 1998 to better reflect the mission and scope of the organization.

"We want to emphasize that no one will be left in need as a result of this change," Ause said. "We will help all of our current and potential clients enter the fine programs offered by other local agencies. We will also be considering the development of new programs that further facilitate getting proper into treatment, regardless of their ability to pay."

Last year, Spectrum provided outpatient treatment to over 400 clients. As a result of this change, six positions representing four and a quarter full-time equivalents will be eliminated. Referral and funding sources have been cooperative and supportive of Spectrum's realignment of services, and will provide the assistance necessary to place current clients in other programs.

"Making a change of this type is always a difficult decision, but in this case it is clearly what's best for Spectrum and for the community," says Susan Custer, Spectrum's executive director. "The long-range impact will be to make Spectrum a stronger organization, better able to fulfill its mission, and to help us make more efficient use of our community's treatment resources."

Spectrum will continue to offer an array of prevention and education programs reaching people throughout our community, working with schools, businesses, the clergy, civic organizations and many others. Included are programs ranging from Teen Life Challenge (assisting at-risk teens and their parents) and Minors in Possession (an option to criminal conviction for first offenders of alcohol possession age 17-20 in partnership with the courts and law enforcement) to Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Education and many others.

"We will now be able to more efficiently focus our resources on prevention and education activities and pursue many new opportunities to fulfill our mission of helping people in our community overcome addiction," Custer said. "We're looking forward to a lot of new and exciting things at Spectrum."

Lions set for 'prom'

Guests will be treated to festive food and drink, provided by the hospitality culinary arts program of the South and West Washtenaw Consortium and will enjoy the sight and aroma of fresh flowers from the Chelsea Greenhouse. Party favors will be provided.

And then there's the music. The sounds of 2-4-7-David Swain will set the mood for wallflowers and rug-cutters alike.

The event is open to all area residents age 55 and older.

The club, which provides community service with a special emphasis on helping the visually impaired, will accept cash donations at the door.

Transportation is available and may be arranged by calling 475-9242.

River event draws strong local support

Ninety people took waders, nets, and forceps to study the populations living in the Huron River and its creeks on Saturday, April 15. They were helping with a scientific study of the Huron River system conducted three times a year by the Huron River Watershed Council. Watershed residents came from Livingston, Oakland, Monroe, and Washtenaw counties to study sites in all of those counties.

"I was struck by the difference between the two streams. One was polluted, with little life; the other was abundant," said one participant.

The results won't be known until people return in two weeks to identify and count all of the creatures collected. The impression received while looking in the river on Saturday was that the water levels were unusually low, but the river looked generally healthy.

Some of the comments made by participants are listed here.

"Letts Creek is in great shape – lots of diversity."

"Boyden Creek at Huron River has improved since the last time I was here!"

"We saw lots of effects of human intervention."

"I learned that we have many people who care about the river."

"I learned that many people are dedicated to working on this."

"Miller Creek needs a lot of help!"

"People in the area seem to be taking care."

"I found how good the stream can be!"

A Girl Scout said, "It was very fun. We found all sorts of stuff! I would like to do it again."

Volunteers requested

Volunteers are needed in the Meadows assisted living area of Silver Maples Retirement Community.

Volunteers help residents by walking with them around the grounds in nice weather, helping them to the dining room at meal time and by accompanying them on trips and outings. They also assist with projects like journalizing life stories in written and recorded forms, playing board games and engaging in active pastimes like bowling and exercise classes.

During the individual visits, volunteers also help teach residents to use computers.

If you would like to volunteer, please call Judy Hein at 475-4111.

Bone marrow drive unites community

By Colleen O'Neill
Special Writer

There are many reasons people choose to live in a small community like Chelsea.

One is that people care.

That was certainly proved to be true when the St. Mary Youth Ministry of Chelsea held a bone marrow testing drive in conjunction with the high school National Honor Society's blood drive.

The bone marrow testing drive was organized in hopes of finding a match for one of Chelsea's own. Barbara Phelps and her husband live in Chelsea, their children attended Chelsea schools and they attend St. Mary church. Phelps is in need of a bone marrow transplant to combat Non-Hodgkins Lymphoma, a disease she has been battling for 13 years.

The American Red Cross employees who helped coordinate the bone marrow drive indicated that a successful drive will usually have between 35 and 50 people tested.

Not in Chelsea.

The Red Cross came with 120 prepared vials.

By noon, supplies were running low.

Mary Lou Hahn-Setta, the coordinantor of Youth Ministry at St. Mary, helped pull the drive together. As the supply of the vials dwindled, Hahn-Setta sent none other than Barbara Phelps out for more. Making stops at every doctor's office in Chelsea and the hospital, Phelps was able to obtain nine more tests.

Every test was used and people still had to be turned away.

The people of Chelsea turned out to honor one of their own and to help. Volunteers came for many reasons.

Chelsea High School senior Mark Walters said he got tested because his best friend's little brother died of leukemia when they were younger.

"I know how important it is," Walters said.

Other volunteers came because they had always meant to get tested and appreciated having the opportunity. One volunteer told Hahn-Setta that she lives in Dearborn but has a summer home in Chelsea and gets the newspaper. She saw the article describing the marrow drive and drove in to be tested.

Yet another put it quite succinctly when asked by Hahn-Setta if she came because she knew Barbara.

"No," came the reply. "I came because I live in Chelsea."

That is why people chose to live in a place like Chelsea, because people care in a small-town community. Because people do care and will go out of their way for people they know and for people they don't know.

Another high school senior, Brian Phillips, also was tested. He was tested for personal reasons.

"Because I love Mrs. Phelps and I want to help her," Phillips said. He also admitted that if he is a match for anyone else he would donate to a stranger, too.

Wendy Fitch of Chelsea agreed.

"If I match anybody, I can do a lot of good and it doesn't take a lot of time or money," Fitch said. "Who knows, one day my kids or my husband may need something."

Before heading out to collect more tests, Phelps just had one thing to say.

"Just look at all these people."

The results will be available in two to four weeks.

AAA urges bicycle safety

Bicycle crashes with motor vehicles are too frequent in Michigan, but most accidents can be prevented by following simple safety guidelines, AAA Michigan says.

In 1998, more than 3,000 bicycles were involved in motor vehicle crashes, an increase of 6.9 percent from 1997. Twenty-seven bicyclists were killed and 2,510 injured. Children under age 16 accounted for 11 (40.7 percent) of the fatalities and 1,294 (52 percent) of the injuries. Males comprised 25 of the 27 bicyclists killed.

"Significantly, wearing bicycle helmets could have saved many lives," said Jerry Basch, AAA Michigan Community Safety Service manager. "Our data reveals that most people killed chose not to wear them. This is tragic since helmet use reduces the risk of serious head injury by 85 percent."

Safety must come first when bicycling, Basch said. Children especially need to be protected from their inability to assess risk. Parents should evaluate their bicycle skills and understanding of traffic to determine whether they can ride in the street.

Bicyclists of all ages can be "safety smart" by following these guidelines and avoiding common collisions with motor vehicles.

2) Go with the flow. Always ride on the right side of the road, with traffic, just like cars do. It's the law. Motorists do not expect traffic to be approaching from the wrong direction. This creates a situation for a crash, which is the main reason why it is unlawful to ride facing traffic.

3) Avoid riding at night. Avoid dark conditions, narrow roads and roads with highway speeds over 35 mph.

Tips for tornado preparedness

By Larry DiVizio
Heritage Newspapers

Daylight-saving time is here and its arrival marks the start of the season for thunderstorms and the possibility of tornadoes.

There is nothing that can be done to stop the formation of the nightmarish storms and terrifying vortexes, but there is a considerable amount people can do to try to remain safe and avoid injury if they strike.

Hearing the word

The most important step people can take in protecting themselves and their families from severe weather is to remain informed.

According to information compiled by Gov. John Engler's office, 10 tornadoes, 25 floods and numerous thunderstorms last year in Michigan killed three people and damaged or destroyed more than $7 million in property.

When the weather starts to look bad or the wind begins to pick up, it is time to turn on the television or the radio.

Most cable systems will run a banner at the bottom of the screen warning of severe weather, but to be sure, you should tune into the Weather Channel or a local news station.

The easiest way to remain aware of the current weather forecast and any watches or warnings that have been issued is to tune into the National Weather Service radio system.

According to the NWS, the radio system is an "all hazards" network that offers "the single source for the most comprehensive weather and emergency information available to the public."

The network broadcasts current weather information: forecasts, warnings and after-the-fact information about natural disasters. Information on man-made problems such as chemical or oil spills also will be issued by the agency.

As an added benefit, some of the radios that receive the NWS broadcasts will sound an alarm when severe weather warnings are issued for some areas.

The NWS suggests having a unit that runs on battery power so if electrical service to your home is lost, you can still keep track of the weather. The NWS is currently campaigning making the radios as prevalent in homes as smoke detectors.

Prices on the radios range from $30 to $100.

Getting ready

Working with the NWS is the American Red Cross with the programs Storm Ready and Project Safe Side.

The programs provide information on how to be prepared when a storm strikes.

In the case of a thunderstorm, the Red Cross says that people who hear thunder are close enough to be struck by lightning, so it's time to take cover.

And in the case of hailstones, take cover immediately.

One of the victims of the thunderstorm and two tornadoes that hit Fort Worth, Texas, recently died of injuries suffered from being hit by hailstones.

Much of the advice is valid whether you are seeking shelter from a severe thunderstorm or a tornado.

One suggestion that the Red Cross makes is being prepared by having a set place for people to go to in the event of a severe storm.

If a basement is available, select an area where an emergency kit containing a flashlight, a battery-powered radio and extra batteries are kept. The group also suggests that extra clothing, snacks and bottled water be stored in the area.

If there is no basement available, then go to a center hallway, a bathroom or a closet on the lowest floor of the home.

Also, keep a list of written instructions on how to turn off electrical, gas and water service to the home if necessary.

Other suggestions made by the Red Cross are:

- If you must take shelter in a car, do it only in a thunderstorm and not during a tornado warning. Cars can be picked up and tossed by tornadoes.
- In a thunderstorm, stay away from tall objects and get out of the open to avoid being struck by lightning. If outdoors in a tornado, find the lowest spot possible to seek shelter.
- Avoid taking a shower or bath during a thunderstorm. Water pipes leading to the shower or tub could conduct an electrical charge from a lightning strike. The same goes for using telephones that are wired to the wall. Cordless phones should be safe.
- Draw blinds or drapes over windows to prevent glass from being driven into the home if debris breaks the windows.

In the aftermath

If a tornado or a severe storm hits, the danger has not ended when the storm leaves the area.

Be sure that there are no electrical lines down near your home and do not touch fences if there are.

A wire could be lying across the fence and since they are all interconnected, a potentially deadly charge could be carried a long distance.

If power is out, keep the doors of refrigerators and freezers closed to keep food cold.

And the advice that is always offered and on occasion ignored is to stay away from any downed utility line. It may not seem to be energized, but it could still be live and kill or severely injure anyone who touches it. Also, be sure to keep pets away from downed lines and fences.

In the event of downed power lines, call Detroit Edison at 1-800-477-4747.

For more information on Project Safe Side, call the American Red Cross at 1-800-552-5466 or log onto the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration Web site at www.noaa.gov or the Red Cross site at www.redcross.org and go to the areas on disasters.

Mow high!
Make your lawn easier and cheaper to maintain by mowing high—three inches is the rule!
The roots of your lawn grow as deep as the grass grows tall, so taller grass has deeper, healthier roots. Keep your lawn 3" or higher and never cut off more than 1/3 of the blade each time you mow.
A healthy lawn tolerates hot, dry weather better—so you won't need to spend your summer watering and fertilizing.

Artist of the Week

Jeffrey Dinser, a second-grader, was named Artist of the Week at Cornerstone Elementary School. Dinser and his classmates learned about printmaking through the use of shapes during art class. They overlapped shapes of animal parts cut out of tag board. Each piece was glued to mat board and then inked with rollers. The students rubbed the back of their printing paper to make the animal appear.

New rules apply to Clean Corporate Citizen program

New administrative rules expanding and improving Michigan's Clean Corporate Citizen program were recently announced by Department of Environmental Quality Director Russell Harding.

The rules strengthen participation requirements and create additional regulatory benefits for Clean Corporate Citizen designees. The current benefits in air-permitting programs are being expanded to include the DEQ's water-discharge permit programs. At the same time, environmental compliance criteria are being tightened to ensure that designations are made to the most qualified applicants.

"The 22 companies that have been designated as Clean Corporate Citizens have all made strong commitments to environmental stewardship," Harding said. "These new benefits and strengthened eligibility criteria enables the department to expand this important incentive program and drive additional environmental improvements.

The new benefits in the water-permitting programs provide for expedited permit decisions and reduced reporting requirements. These benefits, however, do not affect the core environmental performance requirements. Discharge limitations and other requirements controlling environmental impacts of a company's operations remain in full effect.

The rules contain important changes to the applicability requirements and performance criteria. The program previously was limited to facilities that had air emissions under the state's air-quality protection laws. It now is open to establishments regulated under any of Michigan's environmental statutes.

In addition, the compliance criteria were strengthened to ensure full compliance with all environmental laws, and to prohibit participation in situations where the state has imposed administrative penalties.

The program recognizes and encourages companies that demonstrate that they meet the participation criteria, which include a strong compliance record, effective environmental management system, and active pollution-prevention initiatives. It was proposed by Gov. John Engler.

It is built on the concept that existing Michigan facilities meeting the program's criteria are demonstrating a strong environmental ethic and can be relied upon to carry out their environmental protection responsibilities with less-rigorous oversight. This rewards good environmental performance and allows the DEQ to focus its regulatory attention on problem facilities.

Participation is voluntary. Proposed designations are subject to public review. They are valid for one year and must be renewed annually.

Wildlife management guide published

A new publication is available to assist Michigan landowners in improving their land for the sake of wildlife, whether the species are backyard songbirds or back-40 ducks and deer.

Managing Michigan's Wildlife: A Landowner's Guide is the result of a four-year effort by private groups and public agencies to present complete information and a variety of techniques for providing habitat and easing modern pressures on ecosystems.

"The manual is a great example of how private conservation groups and state and federal agencies can successfully work together for the benefit of our natural resources," said James Goodheart, executive director of the Michigan United Conservation Clubs.

The statewide conservation organization was commissioned to publish the guide and assist with the production.

Designed as a user-friendly resource tool, the 288-page publication is divided into 72 chapters that advise on how to plan habitat; how to manage forest, wetlands, grasslands, croplands, and residential lots for wildlife; how to improve land for a particular species; and where to find sources of further information on those and other land and wildlife matters. Step-by-step, users of the manual learn everything from how to plant a tree to how to restore a prairie.

The publication contains many attractive and helpful illustrations, including drawings of native plant and animal species and maps that demonstrate management options discussed in each chapter. A three-ring binder and reference tabs further assist landowners in using the manual.

"The reason this guide is valuable is because private lands are a key to managing natural resources in our state," said Mark Sargent, private lands coordinator in the Wildlife Division of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

He noted that more than 75 percent of the state's land is privately owned, including more than 60 percent of timber resources, a majority of land on which hunters depend for recreation, and most of Michigan's lakeshore and streamside property.

A 29-member working group, representing private organizations and public agencies, set out in 1995 to create the guide to instruct landowners in managing their property for wildlife.

To order, please call 1-800-777-6720 or write to Michigan United Conservation Clubs, P.O. Box 30235, Lansing, MI 48909.

SLIP AND FALL

When a person falls and is injured on someone else's property, the liability of the property owner may hinge on whether he or she knew about the dangerous condition and had time to warn others of its existence. Thus, if a shopper slips and falls on a loose floor tile, the ability to sue for damages largely depends on when the tile came loose and whether the storeowner knew of the dangerous condition. If it appears that the tile had been loose for some time and the storeowner did nothing to make repairs, there is good basis for a personal injury suit. If the injured shopper was the first to notice the loose tile, the storeowner may not be liable.

Personal injury cases aren't as open and shut as they may seem. That's why it's so important to choose experienced legal representation. In practice for over 30 years, the LAW OFFICES OF KITCHEN & STRINGER, conveniently located in Dexter, at 3249 Broad Street, is currently offering individuals the opportunity to discuss their rights and legal options with an attorney, free of charge. To schedule an appointment, please call 426-4695. We also handle cases involving real estate, family law, wills, trusts, and estate probate, and criminal defense.

HINT: Even though someone else's negligence may have resulted in your injury, there are several defenses that can relieve the defendant of having to pay damages.

Local farmer attends farm seminar in Washington

More than 130 Michigan farmers, including Dale Lesser of Dexter and Alvin Ernst of Washtenaw County, keyed-in on three priority issues facing agriculture, as they talked with their U.S. congressmen and senators as part of the 2000 Michigan Farm Bureau Washington Legislative Seminar, March 14-16, in Washington, D.C.

Farm Bureau members urged their congressmen to take action on farm policy, additional funding for bovine tuberculosis eradication and research, and on establishing permanent, normal trade relation status with China. They also discussed the need for scientific implementation of the Food Quality Protection Act and the opposition to labeling of biotech crops.

Following a briefing session from American Farm Bureau staff on the issues, the group had breakfast the next morning, March 15, with all of Michigan's U.S. House Representatives.

The group then met with the national bovine tuberculosis coordinator at the U.S. Department of Agriculture, as well as other veterinarians, to discuss the issues and receive the latest information. The group received strong USDA support for additional TB funding and a clear call for a ban on deer feeding and baiting.

"They spent some time visiting the galleries, watching the House and Senate in session, visiting hearings and visiting their own congressmen or congresswoman's offices," said Sarah Black Michigan Farm Bureau national legislative counsel.

Before flying home, Michigan farmers had breakfast, March 16, with aides from Sen. Spencer Abraham and Carl Levin office's to again ask for movement on the targeted issues.

Be careful storing pesticides

Proper storage practices help to protect health of people, animals and the environment. The beginning of the 2000 cropping season is a good time to review on-farm pesticide storage practices.

One of the best ways to minimize risks associated with on-farm pesticide storage is to minimize the quantity stored, according to Jason Frenzel, Michigan Groundwater Stewardship Program.

This can be done by hiring a commercial pesticide applicator to do all the farm spraying, or arranging for pesticide delivery immediately prior to when application is planned by the farmer. When just-in-time delivery is practiced, remaining product can be returned to the agricultural supplier after field applications are completed.

Pesticides stored on the farm, even temporarily, must be stored according to label directions. The pesticide storage site should be located away from any water well and surface water bodies to avoid potential for water contamination by runoff or leaching, and as far away as possible and downhill from homes, children's play areas, feedlots and barns.

It is preferable to have a separate, dedicated building for pesticide storage. If pesticides are stored in a general-purpose building, they should be on the ground floor. Pesticides should not be stored in a building that contains office or other work space, unless the pesticide storage is well isolated and good ventilation is maintained in the storage area.

Basements of homes are risky places for pesticides and other agricultural chemical storage.

A portable storage unit may be used for small quantity pesticide storage. A specially manufactured unit can be purchased. Some farmers have modified closed trailers and truck boxes for pesticide storage.

All pesticide storage units should be locked when not in use and posted with a pesticide warning sign. They should be either naturally or mechanically ventilated to reduce fumes and dust.

A secondary containment system (vinyl liner or a concrete curb) should be installed to capture any spill for reuse or disposal. Every farm that uses pesticides should also have a spill kit readily available in case of an accident.

Michigan State University Extension Bulletin has a brochure that provides additional details on pesticide storage. Call Jason Frenzel, groundwater technician at (734) 761-6721 ext. 5 for more information.

New guidebook for Michigan manufacturers available soon

A new guidebook for Michigan manufacturers concerning environmental rules and health and safety programs will be available in May.

The Michigan Manufacturers' Guide to Environmental and Safety and Health Regulations was written by program specialists from the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality and the Michigan Department of Consumer and Industry Services' Bureau of Safety and Regulation.

"This major collaboration between our agency and the DEQ has resulted in a publication providing one-stop shopping for guidance through environmental and health and safety regulations," said CIS Director Kathy Wilbur.

DEQ Director Russell Harding points out the guidebook's benefits.

"Helping manufacturers gain a better understanding of environmental regulations will lead to improved compliance," Harding said. "That's our primary goal, and this easy-to-read guide will be a valuable part of that effort. Anyone who is responsible for keeping workers safe, protecting the environment, or operating a profitable business will benefit by using the guide."

The guidebook begins with a self-assessment checklist that leads readers to applicable chapters. Each chapter has a concise reference section that tells where to go for additional help and lists the corresponding telephone numbers, Websites and publication documents.

Upcoming workshops designed to review the guidebook are titled "Regulations 101: An Environmental and Safety and Health Course." Sessions are being offered May 9 in Gaylord, May 11 in Marquette, May 16 in Flint, May 18 in Saginaw, May 23 in Kalamazoo, May 25 in Grand Rapids, May 30 in Novi and June 1 in Warren.

A $70 registration fee includes a continental breakfast, lunch, workshop materials, and one copy of the regulatory guide. Additional guidebooks can be purchased for $25.

To register or receive additional information, call the DEQ's Environmental Assistance Center at 1-800-662-9278.

Childcare providers receive grant money

Gov. John Engler recently announced $345,000 in new grants to childcare providers around Michigan. Grants were awarded only to licensed or registered providers who serve children from low-income families subsidized by the Family Independence Agency.

Local recipients include Charlene Goodnuff, Janice Robinson, Claudia Allen and Kimberly Washington.

"These grants will provide greater licensed childcare options for low-income persons," Engler said. "They will help provide safe, licensed environments for parents who are pursuing their economic dreams in the Michigan workforce."

The grant program, called Enhanced Quality Improvement Program or EQUIP, is targeted to increase the quality and quantity of childcare in Michigan. Special focus is on increasing infant and toddler care, care for children with special needs and care during non-traditional working hours.

One 118 applicants secured grant awards ranging for $615 to $3,500. Lansing-based Michigan 4C Association, the leader in the field of childcare resource and referral services, awarded the grants.

Funded proposals address equipment to increase or improve infant or toddler care; equipment to increase or improve sleeping arrangements for second- and third-shift care; computers and age-appropriate software to enhance pre-school and after-school education; indoor equipment for preschool education and development; outdoor equipment for physical fitness and gross motor development; issues of health and safety such as fences, railings, safety gates, and car seats; newsletters and resources that support parent education and understanding of early childhood development; resources and workshops to improve staff knowledge and caregiver techniques; and barrier-free enhancements and equipment for special needs care.

"Access to quality childcare is an important element in a public assistance family's effort to become self-sufficient," said Family Independence Agency Director Douglas Howard. "This program works toward that end by building important resources in Michigan communities. This is an effective and prudent use of public funds that meets the needs of all Michigan citizens."

Dexter Village

Missing Property

On April 11, a 33-year-old woman came to the sheriff's substation in Dexter to report her cell phone missing from her car. She said that the phone could have been misplaced, and the car showed no sign of forced entry.

The woman said that remote door keys for other cars had been working on her car, so it was possible that played a part in the disappearance of the phone. Total value of missing property was $100.

Dexter Township

Property Damage

On April 9, a sherif's deputy was dispatched to the 13000 block of Rainbow Drive for a report of property damage and larceny.

The deputy met with a 20-year-old Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, man, who said that the night before, he had been at a party at the address, the home of his 18-year-old girlfriend from college.

The couple had gotten into an argument during the party, following which some of her friends, two 19-year-old Chelsea men and a 19-year-old Stockbridge man, confronted him.

Later in the night, the boyfriend found his car damaged and the faceplate to the car stereo and three CDs missing. The man said he suspected the woman's friends.

The woman confirmed his account of the night before, but said she had no reason to suspect her friends.

A 19-year-old woman, friend to the girlfriend, said that the man's car was parked in the garage "where alcohol was located," so anyone at the party could have taken the missing items.

Damage to the car was estimated at $1,981.94, and total value of property taken was estimated $330.

Lima Township

Warrant Arrest

On April 13, a sheriff's deputy made a traffic stop on I-94 near Parker Road for children not wearing seat belts. The deputy made contact with 33-year-old Robert L. Bailey Jr. of Detroit, a passenger in the vehicle. A computer search showed that Baily was wanted on two warrants for child neglect out of Wayne County. He was arrested and taken to the county jail.

Lyndon Township

Missing Person

A deputy was dispatched to the 20000 block of Hidden Lake Drive on April 12 on a report of a missing person.

The deputy met with a 44-year-old woman, who said that she had last seen her 18-year-old son the night before, when he asked for $100 to pay off a drug dealer in Ann Arbor.

The man had told his mother that he, an 18-year-old friend and another man owed the drug dealer $300 for marijuana, and the dealer had been leaving threatening messages on an answering machine.

The woman said she was concerned for her son, and had tried to page him that morning, but he had not called her.

Later in the day, the woman called the sheriff's department to say that her son had called her to say he was all right.

Scio Township

Warrant Arrest

On April 4, a deputy made a traffic stop on I-94 near Jackson Road for an expired plate. A computer search showed that the driver, 26-year-old Diana S. Hafley of Chelsea, was wanted on a misdemeanor warrant out of Westland for improper plates. She was arrested and turned over to Westland police.

On April 8, a deputy made a traffic stop on M-14 near Wagner Road for impending traffic. A computer search showed that the driver, 50-year-old Marsha L. Knapp of Battle Creek, was wanted on a bench warrant out of Adrian for violation of probation on charges of drunken driving. She was arrested and turned over to Adrian police.

A deputy was dispatched to Baker Road near I-94 on April 10 to receive custody of 27-year-old Melvin L. Suggs of Ypsilanti. Suggs was stopped by State Police, who discovered that he was wanted on a bench warrant for violation of probation out of Ypsilanti. He was arrested and taken to the main station of the sheriff's department.

On April 13, a deputy was dispatched to Speedway gas station, 750 Baker Road, to receive custody of 44-year-old Michael L. Bondie of Belleville. Bondie was wanted on a felony warrant out of Ypsilanti. He was arrested and turned over to Ypsilanti police.

Unauthorized Driving Away of Automobile

On April 15, deputies were dispatched to M-14 near Wagner Road. They found a middle-aged man sitting in a car, apparently intoxicated. When the deputies asked him for his name, the man gave the name of a 76-year-old man.

The man was obviously not that old, so deputies again asked him for his name, to which he replied that he did not know his name.

He gave deputies papers for the car he was in, which belonged to a family the deputies knew. The man then gave two more false names. One of the deputies also noticed an empty pint bottle of vodka in the back seat of the car.

Because the man was not revealing his identity, one of the deputies went to the home of the car's owner. There, the deputy met with the owner's husband, who said the woman was filing a report that the car was stolen.

The deputies took the man to the site of the car theft. On the way there, he told them he was Al Capone, and threatened to have his gang kill the deputies and their families.

The son of the car's owner identified the man as his roomate, 46-year-old Albert F. Newman of Ann Arbor. A computer search showed that Newman was wanted on warrants for violation of probation out of the University of Michigan Police Department and the sheriff's department, and warrants for possession of marijuana and malicious property damage out of the sheriff's department.

Newman was arrested and taken to the county jail. On the way, he told the deputies he was sorry for what he had said earlier, and was glad to get the whole thing over with.

Minor in Possession

On April 14, deputies were dispatched to Maxey Gravel Pit, on West Delhi Road near Miller Road, on a report of minors' consumption of alcohol.

They found a number of teen-agers in the gravel pit, with two kegs of beer. The teen-agers began to leave when the deputies arrived, and backup was called in to ensure a safe and orderly departure by the teen-age drivers.

Two of the deputies arriving as backup saw a car parked in a nearby field, occupied but with its lights off. The driver of the car was spinning its tires and revving its engine in a futile attempt to get away.

The deputies approached in a car, activating spotlights. The other car then led them on a short chase over a single lane track, never going faster than 30 mph.

When the vehicle stopped, the deputies approached the car on foot. They found that the driver, a 17-year-old Ann Arbor boy, smelled of alcohol and seemed to be intoxicated.

The deputies also noted two kegs of beer under a blanket in the rear of the vehicle. They asked the boy if he had had anything to drink that night, to which the boy replied he had had "a couple of sips."

He also said he initially fled from the deputies because he was scared, and did not want to get caught with beer.

A search of the car turned up two kegs of beer, one nearly empty, the other full. The 17-year-old boy was taken to the sheriff's station. After he left the deputies' car, they found a tin containing a green leafy substance, believed to be

Two Days When All The World Should Worship

Dear Friends and Neighbors,

Good Friday, the day the Son of God was put to death, and Easter Sunday, the day He rose again, are two days which are not to be ignored.

We realize not all churches celebrate these days at the same time or in the same way, and we won't argue about that. The Bible gives us no command about how to observe them.

Yet these two events, Jesus' death and His resurrection, are so dramatic and significant, that it would be impossible to overdo the celebration. They deserve nothing less than the best preparation of every Christian preacher, and the fullest participation of everyone who calls himself or herself a Christian.

They also deserve the attention of those who do not call themselves Christians. On that first Good Friday God forced people to pay attention when He covered the earth with darkness for three hours. Anyone who didn't pay attention then, or now, ignores the Lord's work, and will one day experience His judgement.

What other religion states that its god came to earth, suffered and died for human sin as a substitute for the human race, and then rose again to show that forgiveness had been accomplished?

Christmas is a joyful occasion, but it cannot compare with the significance and joy of Good Friday and Easter.

Please- If you don't have a church of your own, even if you're not sure what you believe, be our guest at our Good Friday worship tomorrow evening at 7:30 p.m., and our Easter Sunday worship at 7:30 a.m. and 10:00 a.m. (we have two entirely different services Easter morning).

The Lord's blessing to you!

POLICE

marijuana, and a roach clip.

The kegs and roach clips were kept as evidence, and the green substance was sent to the state police for testing.

A report of the incident was turned over to the prosecutor's office, and a warrant was being sought for minors' consumption, trespass, fleeing and eluding, minor possession of alcohol or controlled substance and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Drunken Driving

On April 16, a deputy on patrol stopped a car on Jackson Road near Zeeb Road for swerving onto the shoulder several times.

On approaching the car, the deputy noted that the driver, a 29-year-old Manchester man, appeared to be intoxicated and smelled of alcohol. He also had trouble concentrating when asked for his license, registration and proof of insurance. However, the man said he had not had anything to drink.

The man performed poorly on all field sobriety tests, twice jumping from "I" to "T" and stopping there when asked to recite the alphabet. A preliminary breath test showed that he had a blood-alcohol content of .23 percent, more than twice the legal limit to be considered too drunk to drive.

The man was arrested and taken to the county jail until he was sober. The charge was the second drunken driving offense for the man. A report of the incident was sent to the prosecutor's office.

Embezzlement

On Dec. 27, a deputy was dispatched to the BP-Amoco gas station, 325 N. Zeeb Road, at the request of the manager, who said an intoxicated clerk was running the station.

The deputy found a 35-year-old man running the station. He seemed to be intoxicated, and was telling customers not to pay for gas or merchandise, as it was all "on the house."

The deputy closed the station and made all customers present to return any merchandise. The manager took over the gas station, and said the man would be fired.

Later, the manager said that the man gave away $1,122.23, including $260 worth of cigarettes and $531 worth of soda. The matter was originally reported as a civil complaint, but the manager later said he wanted to pursue the incident as an embezzlement complaint.

Lost Property

On April 10, a 22-year-old woman came to the sheriff's station to report lost property. She said that on April 6, she had left her wallet in the game room of the Pilot Truck Stop, 195 Baker Road.

She said she had returned to look for the wallet, but it was gone, and no one reported it or turned it in. She said the wallet held $12 in cash, and two driver's licenses.

Total value of missing property was estimated at $38.

Suicide Attempt

On April 10, a deputy was dispatched to Scio Farms Estates. The deputy met with a 35-year-old woman, who said she had made comments about suicide while upset at her 34-year-old boyfriend.

She said that the man had recently betrayed her confidence, which made her angry. She made the comments while in that state of mind.

The woman said she was upset police were at her home, and was not thinking about suicide, as she was not angry.

The woman was taken to the University of Michigan Hospital for observation. A short time later, personnel there contacted the deputy that the woman was being released and returning home.

Larceny

On April 10, a deputy was dispatched to the 2800 block of Bayridge on a report of larceny from a building. On the scene, he met with a 56-year-old woman.

She said that a month earlier, she had had a contractor doing work on her house. She said that she recently noticed jewelry missing from her house.

She gave the deputy the name of the contractor, a 38-year-old Chelsea man. The deputy spoke with the man, who said he had had two helpers while working on the woman's house, a 17-year-old man and a 19-year-old man, both of Jackson.

The contractor said he had fired the men after they took $100 from his wallet. He said he suspected them of the theft from the woman's house, but had no proof. As he was bonded, he said he would repay the woman.

The deputy contacted the 17-year-old man, who agreed to talk about the incident. Total value of stolen property was estimated at $1,400.

Assault and Battery

On April 4, a deputy was dispatched on a report of an assault. At the scene, the deputy met with a 45-year-old woman.

She said that, earlier that night, Ann Arbor Police had dropped off a 48-year-old man she knew at her apartment, asking if he could stay with her.

The woman said that the man became upset when they disagreed over what to watch on television. He went to her kitchen to fix a drink for himself, and returned to throw a bottle of milk at her.

She said that, at that point, she went to the front door and asked the man to leave, but he refused. The man eventually came to the front door, but began to hit her.

She said that the man hit her in the face, chest and stomach. She passed out during the attack. When she awakened, she found the man gone, and the front door standing open.

She found that the man had destroyed much of her furniture in her apartment. Eventually, the woman found her car keys and eyeglasses.

She went to the neighbor's, but found no help. She started to drive to the Ann Arbor Police Department, but was in pain and started spitting up blood, so pulled into a gas station. The woman was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital for treatment.

The deputy tried to contact the suspect, responding to the man's last known address. The man's roommate, a 69-year-old man, said he and the suspect had gotten into a fight, at which time the older man called the police. He said he had not seen the suspect since.

The woman also told deputies that the suspect might be in an alcohol rehabilitation center or in a veterans' center in the Battle Creek area.

A report of the incident was sent to the prosecutor's office, but was left open.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

'Gag order' was majority decision

I wish to respond to two points in the letter by Frank Hammer that was printed in The Chelsea Standard's March 30 issue on the commentary page.

Trustee Hammer had an issue with the "gag order" placed on the council 90 days out from the election regarding other options for the village hall. A majority of the council felt that it was necessary to hold off any other considerations at such a late date, due to the fact that it might be wasted energy should the citizens approve the bond. The citizens deserved to have the opportunity to decide what to do with property and a building they already own, especially after all the time and money that was spent.

In addition, for those who do not have the time to follow the council's activities from one week to the next, I will indulge in some history of past events surrounding this matter.

In the spring/summer of 1999, with a 6 to 1 vote, including Hammer's favorable vote, the council decided to spend $83,000 to evaluate the space needs, design and cost to remodel our existing building. It was determined the building met the space needs and three bids were received from construction companies. With that information it was decided to present this to the citizens.

To spend that kind of money on researching a viable alternative that the majority of council members had agreed was worthy of pursuing, and not let the citizens decide what they should do with their existing building, would have been irresponsible.

Hammer went before the library board after the gag order was in place and stated he, as a representative from the council along with a representative from the DDA, would like to explore working with the library for a combined complex of some type on the Mitchell property.

He was corrected at that meeting that he could not state he was representing the council on that issue. He then corrected himself and stated he was taking it upon himself to take such action.

As it pertains to the DDA, I'm on the board of the DDA and there was no agreement at that time toward exploring any combined use options with the library. In fact, before the evaluation of the old village hall was pursued, the potential for using part of the Mitchell (property) for the village use was brought up at a DDA board meeting by me.

A number of board members were against this and stated that the Mitchell property acquisition was made to relieve the parking issue downtown and the library, not to build a municipal complex.

Furthermore, if the village had any plans of using any of the Mitchell property for any such purpose they would have to pay for it.

This point was driven home by the DDA in a closed session meeting with the council. With that position understood, the council continued to evaluate the existing village hall.

Hammer further suggests a joint venture "... opens opportunity to explore other options for more cost effective ways (in dollars per usable square foot) to provide adequate space for all the village government" says something in itself.

For those who can't read between the lines, I suggest it means it will cost more, especially when the purchase of land is thrown in.

At the Western Washtenaw Republican meeting that was held the Saturday before the election, Hammer stated he believed we could build a new village office for less than the proposed bond. I countered Hammer's statement with the fact that Dowagiac built a new 11,000-square-foot city hall with police station in 1998 for approximately $1.6 million. The land was given to them.

Since the DDA's position requires the village to purchase any land the DDA owns and building costs have only escalated since 1998, and if Dowagiac built on free land for $1.6 million, be prepared for the cost to run between $2 million and $3 million, if not more.

Hammer was on the committee two and half years ago that negotiated the lease agreement we now have with the bank. The original agreement had a no kick-out clause for five years. The council voted against that agreement.

Brian Cashman and I were invited to discuss the issue with the bank and reworked the agreement to allow a kick-out clause with 6 months notice after two years occupancy. At the next the council meeting the revised agreement was approved unanimously.

At that meeting, Hammer stated that we should aggressively seek to find a permanent solution for our village offices. I was in total support of that position and still am.

I'm hoping it doesn't take another two and a half years to aggressively decide on another option. It appears that we will need to use the last three years of our lease agreement at a cost of over $200,000 to the taxpayers.

Forgiving Third World debt is needed

We in the Chelsea area have the privilege of often choosing to ignore many of the issues and concerns of the wider world. In fact, one reason why some folks move out here is to escape the "problems" of the city (for example, in Ann Arbor or Detroit).

Yet, the people here are not unfeeling or lacking in compassion. People here do care! This fact was amply demonstrated in recent article on the Rev. Jerrold Beaumont, Faith In Action, and the support which that organization receives from this community. This gives me the confidence and optimism to believe that when folks here are made aware of the plight of their brothers and sisters in our human family and/or they see a true need, they will generally respond lovingly, caringly and generously.

On Sunday, April 9, a public rally demonstrating support for the Jubilee 2000 Campaign was held in an attempt to influence the World Bank, the International Monetary Fund, and the U. S. Congress to take actions canceling the debt of the world's most impoverished countries. This rally attracted between 5,000 - 7,000 participants from across the United States and from around the world, and was peacefully conducted.

Unfortunately, I suspect that this rally, which was of international importance, is not well known by the residents here.

The Jubilee 2000 Campaign is an international campaign calling for the elimination of the unpayable debt of the world's poorest countries by the end of this year, without imposing conditions that will further harm people living in poverty or the environment.

The campaign understands that the issue of debt forgiveness is a complex one, and it recognizes that there is plenty of blame to go around when it comes to the current debt situation. However, the campaign also recognizes that millions of innocent people are suffering and dying.

The rationale for Jubilee 2000 is grounded in the spirit of debt forgiveness found in Leviticus 25 of the Hebrew scriptures (that is, the Christian Old Testament). The Jubilee 2000/USA Campaign was launched at the Summit of the Group of 8 Governments (hardly a liberal group) in June 1997.

While the campaign includes significant involvement from religious communities (such as Jewish, Christian and Muslim) it is not limited to institutions and persons with a religious perspective. The common ground for Jubilee 2000/USA is a moral commitment to debt cancellation for poor countries.

I suspect that most Chelsea-area residents will find the following facts quite disturbing:

In 1996 the government of Mozambique spent twice as much money "servicing" its international debt as it spent on health and education. Yet, one out of four children in that country dies before reaching the age of five due to infectious disease.

Zambia spends $4 on debt service for every $1 on health, while infant mortality rates are rising.

In Ethiopia, debt payments are four times public spending on health, while over 100,000 children die every year from easily preventable and treatable diarrhea.

In 1996, Uganda spent only $3. per person on health care while spending seventeen dollars per person on repaying its debt. Yet, one of every five Ugandan children dies from a preventable disease before reaching the age of five.

It would not be expensive for the United States to cancel the debt owed to it by the world's most impoverished countries. Canceling this debt would cost less than $3.00/citizen. Granted, canceling the debt will not automatically, or necessarily, result in improved conditions for people living in poverty. But, it can bring a new opportunity for hope to millions who are currently unable to meet their basic human needs and are dying every day.

Because of our country's political and economic influence, its position on debt relief is critical to the Jubilee 2000 Campaign's worldwide success. Motivating our political and financial leaders and institutions to support cancellation of the crushing, and literally deadly, debts of poor nations will require the active participation of individuals and groups throughout the land.

Therefore, I invite the residents of this area to consider taking action, to participate in the Jubilee 2000/USA Campaign. I invite those who have a religious perspective to pray for discernment and guidance, and I invite those with a non-religious outlook to consult their conscience and heart for direction.

As you ponder the merits of the Jubilee 2000 Campaign, I ask you to keep in mind the "Golden Rule," an aphorism that has held an esteemed position in human history.

In other words, if you were in one of this world's most impoverished nations, and if you had to witness the needless suffering and death of men, women and children because a significantly disproportionate amount of your country's monetary resources were going to debt service rather than to food, shelter, clothing, or health care, would you not want someone in the world's wealthiest country urging its government and financial institutions to forgive the debt of your country? I know that I certainly would.

If you choose to participate, there are many ways to do so (for example, you could contact your national elected official). For more information about Jubilee 2000/USA and/or how you can get involved, you may contact the campaign's headquarters at: Jubilee 2000/USA Campaign, 222 E. Capitol St., N. Schaible named bank VP Longtime Chelsea State Bank employee David Schaible has been promoted from assistant vice president to vice president. CSB President and CEO John Mann made the announcement.

Schaible has been an employee at Chelsea State Bank since 1984, when he started as an assistant office manager. He is a lifelong resident of Chelsea.

"Dave has been with the bank for many years — his dedication and personal commitment to our customers is highly regarded," says Mann.

"The Schaible name is an institution at Chelsea State Bank. David represents the same respect and fortitude that his father and grandfather have exemplified with CSB for over 90 years."

The Schaible family has a heralded history with Chelsea State Bank, dating back to 1908, when Paul G. Schaible Sr., grandfather of David Schaible, helped organize Farmers and Merchants Bank. That institution merged with Chelsea's other bank, Kempf Commercial & Savings, in 1933 to form Chelsea State Bank.

Paul Schaible Sr. served as president until his retirement in 1962. Paul Schaible Jr. was president of CSB from 1985 until he retired in 1994, and continues to serve as the CSB board chairman.

BOWL OF CHERRIES

High school friends play together, stay together

By Jim Silver
Staff Writer

The temperature in Las Vegas was 68 degrees when Sarah Steele, Dianna Roberts, Lynne Faist, Karen Baize and Jan Borst touched down.

They took that as a good omen, because all of the women graduated from Chelsea High School in 1968.

The five members of the Back 40 bowling team were in Nevada for the Women's International Bowling Congress' (WIBC) annual tournament.

But they, with Georgia Beeman (also a '68 alumnus of CHS), had been bowling as the Back 40 in Chelsea for two years, and they had been friends since elementary school.

The team had its roots in their 30th high school class reunion. Following the official reception in one night in July 1998, many of the attendees went to Chelsea Lanes for a bowling night.

Steele said that the six friends enjoyed the evening so much, they decided to make it a regular event. They bowl in the Century 21-Northstar league at Chelsea Lanes on Wednesday nights, often joined by their unofficial coach, Charlie Borst.

They have allowed a little deviation from their central rule, letting Mary Picklesimer, a '69 grad, to substitute when illness leaves the team a woman short.

Beeman says that the origin of the team has led to a tradition.

"Anytime we see a 68 score in a game, we all stand up and applaud," she says, even going so far as to clap for another bowler's 68 in a recent game.

But the team took what had been a Wednesday night pastime to competition level at the 2000 WIBC tournament. They landed in Nevada on April 8, and were among the 400 women competing in the tournament the next day.

They had one day to prepare before they were scheduled to bowl. But the time may not have lent itself to preparation.

"It was like a slumber party," Baize says. "By the time we bowled, we hadn't slept for 24 hours."

The tournament puts team members together for three games. They then split up, playing three doubles games partnered with another bowler, and three singles games.

The Chelsea team came home with a score of 1924, which could be another good sign. Borst noted that that was the same year that her mother was born.

The trip allowed the team to try out a new name. Since they all have turned or will turn 50 in the year 2000, the Back 40 will soon become 50 Grand. They gave the name a test run at the tournament.

Although the 50 Grand bowlers have been back a week-and-a-half, they won't know the results of the tournament until July. The date they bowled was only one in a three-month stretch. Teams from across the country will be bowling at the National Bowling Stadium in Reno through June.

But win or lose, the teammates say, the trip was already worth it. Borst, who works in travel, immediately thought of her friends when she saw an announcement about the 2000 tournament.

She had bowled in the 1983 WIBC tournament with her mother, but she said this year was something else entirely.

"This was a once-in-a-lifetime chance," she says. "We're all turning 50, so I thought our birthday gift to ourselves could be bowling in Reno."

They followed the tournament with a short tour of Nevada and California around Lake Tahoe, then flew back to Chelsea.

And they face a new challenge this week.

Moss teaches students problem-solving skills

TEACHER FEATURE

By Michelle Rogers
Associate Editor

Duane Moss is a hands-on learner. He learned in school by doing and now enjoys teaching students in Chelsea the same way.

Moss teaches technology classes at Beach Middle School. It's a subject he didn't grow up with but became very familiar with in college.

"It's a very important subject right now. You can look around and see the impact," he says.

"It seems like a perfect match for me. I can't see myself doing anything else."

A graduate of Milan High School, Moss worked his way through college as a carpenter. He started out at Washtenaw Community College studying architecture. A college professor, the late David Byrd, nudged him toward teaching.

Moss graduated in 1994 from Eastern Michigan University with a bachelor's degree in industrial arts and technology education. He did his student teaching under Ann Arbor middle school teachers Gary Graff, a Chelsea resident, and Richard King. Moss said both were exceptional and shared two different teaching styles.

"In my opinion, (Graff) is one of the best technology teachers in the area. A lot of what I do is based on our conversations and activities," he says.

Moss sought Graff out as a mentor on the recommendation of one of his education professors at EMU.

"I wanted to be with the best," he recalls.

Moss continues the relationship today by leaning on Graff for support and advice.

It was 1994 when Moss was hired in Chelsea, succeeding Rich Bareis, who retired. He sought the position on the recommendation of Graff, who is familiar with his hometown district.

"All of my family is in this area and I wanted to stay close, and it worked out for me," Moss says.

"I think I've found a slice of heaven here. I want to continue as a teacher, improving my teaching skills, my technology skills, and constantly improving for myself and the students."

Moss teaches Technology I, Technology II and computer classes. Students learn, for instance, how much weight a Truss bridge can hold by building a model and doing tests, and they make robotic arms that have the ability to pick up balls.

Moss says the school district's recent bond issue to upgrade the schools has improved the technology program 10-fold.

"There has been a transition brought about from the bond," Moss says.

The program has evolved, he says, with the addition of computers and digital equipment. Prior to the bond passing, his classes focused on using wood and other materials.

Moss expects to see even more changes over the years and says he is looking forward to it.

"That's what keeps me going," he says. "I look forward to changes in education as technology becomes a larger part of education, and I look forward to implementing them."

Duane Moss says he has found a slice of heaven in Chelsea. He teaches technology classes at Beach Middle School. Moss is a hands-on learner and teaches he students the same way. He is pictured in the shop working on a project for students to see.

Changes in technology and education are inspiring to Moss, who enjoys sharing new ideas and inventions with his students and connecting what they learn with their everyday lives.

"I want to make the experience great for kids," Moss says. "I don't want to get stuck in a rut. I try to tie in the real world so kids can make a connection to what we're doing.

"That's so important. If they can see the connections to their life then it has value to them."

Moss describes his teaching style as hands-on and easy-going. He also says he is fair and shows respect to students.

"I am the ultimate in fairness," Moss says. "I am very respectful to all the students and I am trying to instill that in them.

"I am an easy-going guy. I just challenge the students to do their absolute best, and I challenge them on their own level. I think it's important because

A Cultural Experience

I would really like to thank Mary Lou and the youth of St. Mary for arranging the bone marrow testing drive for me and thank the National Honor Society for helping to schedule it along with their blood drive. Colleen, you did such a wonderful job with the newspaper article. I really think it contributed to the wonderful turnout. Gosh, what can I say to all the folks that took the time out of their busy schedules to come and be tested except thank you all so very much. Thank you also to the people that made monetary donations to help offset the expense. God bless all of you.

Love, Barbara Phelps

Thinking About Cuba

Cadette Girl Scout Troop 82 studied the country of Cuba for Thinking Day 2000. They did research on the country, put together a poster of information, prepared a Cuban dessert, pan dulce, and made tiny Cuban flags to trade with other Scout troops involved in the Thinking Day 2000 event. MOSS even as adults we're not all on the same level.

"I have a curriculum and I stick to it. Every student will hit the goals, but each has individual challenges. I may alter projects so they still learn problem solving yet still experience success. There isn't always one right answer. There are many answers."

Moss makes himself available to students who need extra help or to those who want to be challenged beyond what they're learning in class. He comes in an hour before school every day and on average says a dozen students join him.

"They like being here and I am glad they feel comfortable here," he says. "I think that's a good thing."

Moss has found his niche in the middle school, where he enjoys working with students who are curious and full of enthusiasm.

"I think it's the development (I see in) the student and their age. They are kids but they want to be adults," he says.

"This is an opportunity to be a role model, make an impact and be in a position where you can make a difference.

"There is nothing better than looking across your shop and seeing 24 students engaged in what they're doing," he says. "That's really neat. Sometimes I'll sit back and say, 'Wow.' "

Moss makes his rules clear to students so they know what to expect. Most center on respect and safety in the shop, where students build their projects.

"I want a respectful, safe atmosphere. That's the No. 1 thing," Moss says.

"In creating a safe atmosphere where students can learn, I want them to trust me and feel safe."

Moss considers Chelsea schools among the best in the area.

"I personally believe, and not because I am a member of the school district staff, it's one of the finest in Washtenaw County," he says. "We have great parents and great kids. We have everything working for us here."

When he is not in the classroom, Moss can be found enjoying family life. He is married to Krista, his high school sweetheart, and they have a 3-year-old daughter, Madison. The family resides in Milan, with plans to move to Chelsea in the next year or so.

"I want my daughter to go to Chelsea schools," Moss says. "I know she would get a first-class education here."

In his spare time, Moss enjoys tinkering with muscle cars and watching motor sports sports.

FRIENDS

Locally, the Back 40 team is in first place in their league, but only by four points. They are battling to keep that spot on their league's April 19 position night.

"We were in last place in 1999, and we were in last place part of this year," says Steele.

"We just came for fun, but its always more fun when you're winning," Roberts says.

The Back 40 team's faces tough competition from the Quit Claim team, which includes Sandy Eisele, Linda White and Kathy Greenleaf, also members of the CHS Class of '68.

"It's not often you can get nine people together from one class in one place," Borst says. "We always have a class reunion."

The team members say they are happy to be able to spend a couple of hours with friends from their childhood at least once a week.

Steele says that the spirit of the team, and their shared class, can be summed up in a reading used at the Class of '68's 25th reunion, written by columnist Lois Wyse.

"We all know we can't bring back the old days; but we can renew old friendships, and give ourselves the present of friendship, time to grow and time to renew it."

The Chelsea varsity soccer team has a winning 4-1 record, which doesn't reflect the total domination they have demonstrated in their first five games. The Bulldogs have outscored their opponents 26-4.

That is domination.

Chelsea opened the season March 28 with a 7-0 shutout of Columbia Central and defeated Ypsilanti 6-1 two days later. Their only loss came from Saline on April 11 before they handed their second shutout of the season to Milan 11-0 on April 13. And Friday the Bulldogs took a tough Southeastern Conference shutout from Pinckney, winning 2-0 in a typical defensive SEC contest.

Against Pinckney Sarah Poplawski and newcomer Quinn Peyser combined to score both goals.

Chelsea dominated play early with good passing. Poplawski got a tough shot from the right side of the penalty area. When the Pinckney goalkeeper deflected the ball, Peyser was there to put the Bulldogs in front in the fifth minute.

Pinckney responded with aggressive play and dominated for the next 15 minutes, but Chelsea defenders Carolyn Wineland, Amy Sporer, Rebecca Metzler, Chris Broshar and Kate Wheeler kept the Pirates off the board.

"Once we survived Pinckney's push in the first half, we were able to control much of the play from that point," said head coach Chris Orlandi. "Our second goal was a direct result of our offensive adjustments made at halftime. That goal was about hustle and desire."

The second goal was a reverse of the first one. Peyser brought the ball to the 18-yard line where she collided with the Pinckney goalkeeper. As the ball trickled away from the fallen players Poplawski got to the rebound and placed a perfect shot through three helpless defenders.

Laura Baird and her defense kept Pinckney scoreless for the duration of the game.

"SEC shutouts are always tough to get," Orlandi said. "Pinckney has an excellent defense and plays with great desire. This was a great effort by our squad."

Three days prior the Bulldogs earned their second shutout of the season in a lop-sided match against a young Milan team.

"We got to work on our possession game and I was really impressed by how we moved the ball," Orlandi said. "Whenever nine different people score including three defenders, you know you've had pretty good offensive execution."

Peyser, Poplawski, Beth Stankevich, Caitlin Biedron, and Kate Huehl each scored in the first half. Wineland led off the scoring in the second half. Lara Zajic, Sporer and Metzler also scored, each earning their first-ever varsity goals.

On April 11 Chelsea took its only loss of the season against SEC rival Saline. Baird was excellent in the loss, making 12 saves, but a dominating Saline defense created a literal Hornet shooting gallery.

"I thought our defense played very well with the exception of Saline's first goal," Orlandi said. "And Laura Baird was outstanding. We simply weren't able to handle the pressure that Saline put on our offensive people."

The Bulldogs started the season in March with two dominating wins.

The Bulldogs outshot Ypsilanti 36-3, scored early and a lot. And they did it without Peyser, Huehl, Kim Touroo, and Stankevich offensively and with out Wineland on defense.

"That means that we were without our two leading scorers from last year (Touroo and Huehl) and our current leading scorer (Peyser)," Orlandi said. "We tried everybody we could think of at forward. We even threw in a defender and our starting goalie up there for awhile."

While the Bulldogs wanted another shutout, Orlandi was willing to give up a goal or two if it meant giving younger players a chance to learn on the field.

Chelsea won the Ypsilanti match 6-1.

The first game of the year was a 7-0 shutout over Columbia Central. Peyser scored, Huehl scored, Caitlin Biedron scored, Peyser scored again, all in the first half.

"We dominated this game from the beginning," Orlandi said. "I was really pleased that our offense came out firing."

For the season Peyser and Poplawski each have six goals, Biedron has three, Huehl and Stankevich two each.

The Bulldogs face SEC rival Dexter on Monday, April 24, on the road. The game will begin at 4 p.m.

Baseball team leaning toward perfection

Perfection seems to be the season trend on Chelsea diamonds as the varsity baseball team equaled the varsity softball team's unbeaten record in the first week of competition.

On Thursday, April 13, the Bulldogs played Fowlerville and swept a doubleheader. Chelsea mercied their guests 12-2 in just six innings in the first game. The Bulldogs actually improved their performance in the second game with a 16-3 mercy in five innings.

Nate Keiser pitched the first five innings of the first game and struck out 10 before Jason Young came on in relief. Chris Cooper had two hits including a home run and Nate Keiser added three safeties. Phil Fishburn and Ryan Barwick had two hits apiece.

Jason Young started the second game and pitched two innings. Mike Radka finished the last three frames.

Chris Cooper fires away in Saturday's game against Lincoln.

Tony Scheffler, who hit two long home runs among his three hits, drove in five runs to lead the offense. Ben Myers had two hits and had three RBIs in the second game.

On Saturday the Bulldogs started conference play by taking two games from Lincoln. The first game was a solid 12-5 performance but the Bulldogs needed to score three times in the bottom of the seventh to eke out a 7-6 win in the second game.

Chris Brigham pitched the opener and went seven full innings, striking out five and walking three. Cooper, Barwick, and Brigham had two hits each with Brigham driving in four runs.

Cooper pitched the second game and got the victory by only walking four while striking out eight.

Scheffler led the hitters again by going four-for-four with a home run, two doubles with two RBIs. Ben Myers also had two hits.

The Bulldogs entered the seventh inning down 6-4. Scheffler led off with his third homerun of the spring to make it 6-5. Brian Sayers was safe on an error, Barwick moved him to third with a ground out, Keiser walked, and pinch-hitter Brigham grounded out to tie the game.

The Bulldogs opened the season with doubleheader victories over Fowlerville and Lincoln.

"With two out and Keiser on second, sophomore Matthew Moffett, came in to pinch hit and singled to left to drive in Keiser for the game winner," said head coach Wayne Welton.

The team is now 4-0, 2-0 in SEC. They will see more SEC action at Saline on Thursday April 20 and host Coldwater on Saturday.

"This will challenge the Bulldogs," Welton said.

Girl thinclads claim early season tourney win

The Chelsea girls' track team won the B Division of the 25th annual Chelsea Relays Saturday by edging out Bloomfield Hills Marian 92-90. It was the fifth Bulldog championship in the relays and their first since 1995.

Six relay teams earned medals for finishing in the top three in their events.

The Bulldogs were led by the shot put relay of Tara Koch, Jennifer Gallas, and Kari Taylor who won the only Chelsea first-place medal. They combined for a total of 93'9". Taylor's throw of 37'8" bettered her outdoor school record. The same trio took third in the discus with a total distance of 245'3". Julie Mida and Rachel Klein earned the third-place medal as a relay team in the pole vault.

The 800-relay team of Kari Moyle, Julia Arnold, Jill Drexler and Mora Arnold captured the third-place medal with a time of 1:51.0. That is the fastest Bulldog time in that event in six seasons. In the sprint medley, Moyle, Drexler, Sarah Brigham, and Jennifer Young also took the bronze medal. The 1600 relay of Moyle, Katie Taylor, Nina Kramer, and Arnold finished second in 4:19.9.

Jill Drexler, Allison Sayers and Julia Arnold jumped a combined 43-1/4'. "They were paced by Drexler's lifetime best jump of 15'5" to place second in their division in the long jump. Also placing second was the intermediate medley of Joyce Lewis, Katie Bach, Erin Kenney, and Erin Dronen.

The distance medley team of Allison Sacks, Katie Taylor, Sarah Kaminsky and Michelle Oberholtzer took third place. Taylor, Katie Bach, Rachel Klein and Jennifer Young survived a fall in the shuttle hurdles to take fourth place.

"Jill Drexler had an outstanding day for us," said head coach Bill Bainton. "Not only did she have her best long jump ever, but she also ran excellent times on her three relay legs, including her best-ever 200 split."

Bainton also gave credit to the throwers who, other than Taylor, had not had any big-meet experience, Kari Moyle who earned three medals and Mora Arnold who ran two outstanding races.

"It was a good meet for us, not only because we won, but we also had many great efforts and improved performances. Our athletes seemed to be very focused on this meet."

The Bulldogs opened the dual meet season on April 13 with a good performance but a loss to Ypsilanti Lincoln.

Taylor won the shot and the discus and Mora Arnold won the 100 and 200 and anchored the winning 800 relay but all of that was not enough, as the Railsplitters pulled out a 76-60 win.

Taylor threw the shot 36'7" to lead a Bulldog sweep in the event. Jennifer Gallas took second with a throw of 30'6" and Catherine Kirkwood threw 28'1" for third. Taylor also took first in the discus with a throw of 104'4" and Koch threw a 76'7" for third place.

Arnold won the 100 in 13.0 and the 200 in 26.9. Teammates Sarah Brigham took second in the 100 in 14.0 and Moyle took second in the 200 with 29.1. Moyle won the 400 in 1:04.5. Drexler and Julia Arnold combined with Moyle and Mora Arnold for the only relay win of the meet, with a 1:52.4 in the 800 relay.

Other Bulldog scorers were Sara Brigham who took second place in the high jump, Drexler took third in the long jump and Taylor took second in the 300 hurdles. Nina Kramer took third in the 400, Alison Sacks was third in the 800 and Kaminsky ran very well with a third in both distance runs.

"We ran very well for a first meet," Bainton said. "Lincoln's second runners in the distance races were better than we expected and that was one of the keys in the meet. In spite of the defeat, we are very pleased with where our performances are right now."

The Bulldogs travel to Saline on Thursday April 20 and to Dexter on April 24 for some tough conference matches.

Tennis team on a roll

By Colleen O'Neill
Special Writer

The Chelsea tennis team opened its season Thursday, April 13, with a crushing win over Monroe.

The Bulldogs dropped only one match during the day and won all but one of the rest in just two games.

Head coach John Capper felt that the team went out a bit tentative because there are five freshmen on the varsity squad this year, but they certainly did not play that way.

Brian Merkel at the number four singles was the first freshman and player off the courts after overpowering his opponent 6-0, 6-1. Seniors and co-captains Joe Arend and Jon Spooner demonstrated their leadership and tennis skills as they both won in two sets at the number one and two positions, respectively.

Capper paired senior Shawn Hayes with freshman Mark Tapping in the number one doubles flight and they needed just two sets to finish Monroe's number one doubles pairing. Sophomore Robert Gray added his experience to the power of freshman Andy Mossburg for their win.

"The closest matches occurred at number three and four doubles but both teams exited as winners," Capper said. "Sophomores Joel Gentz and Andy Smith could not get going in the first set but pulled it together in the next two to win the three doubles pairing."

The inexperienced freshmen team of Mike Groesser and Evan Wildey were winners of a tight two-set contest.

Chelsea won all the junior varsity matches. James Ballas, David Deis and Mike Offenbacher won at singles. In doubles Scott Dettling, Chris Dotson, Chris Johnson, Tim Parham, Jamie Stimpson and Joel Wilke were all successful.

"I was really pleased with the whole team's performance," Capper said. "The freshmen were outstanding in their first varsity match.

The team will be at Haslett April 20 for a 4 p.m. meet.

Terpstra closes out Steller career

Ann Terpstra graduated from Chelsea High School after a stellar basketball career. She was voted most valuable player three times and was named the Ann Arbor News Player of the Year in 1998. She was named to the All State Class B First Team by the Associated Press, to the All State Class B Second Team by the Detroit News and still holds the all-time leading scorer record at Chelsea High School for both boys and girls with 1,236 points. She also holds the state record for the most blocked shots in a season with 178.

Terpstra went on to play at Adrian College and never skipped a beat.

Her college highlights include All League First Team three years in a row, 22 career double-doubles, 1,108 points and only the fourth Adrian player to go over 1000 points and 500 rebounds. She was named Most Valuable Player in her sophomore year, her junior year and at the banquet a few weeks ago, for her senior year.

Varsity softball team blasts way to perfect 6-0 start

By Colleen O'Neill
Special Writer

The Chelsea varsity softball team has blasted through the start of its season with a perfect 6-0 record. Aware that there were people who doubted that this team could equal the spectacular season the Bulldogs had last year with a district championship, a regional championship and a runner up trophy in the state championship, the Bulldogs are doing a fine job of proving those people wrong.

Last Thursday they played Fowlerville at home and took both games of a double header, winning 5-0 and 7-1. Offense is necessary to win games, but defense may be more important.

"Against Fowlerville the defense was stellar," said head coach Kim Reichard. "They allowed only one error in both games."

Jenny Diesing has stepped into the head-pitching roll. In both games she had 22 strikeouts while putting only eight runners on base with walks. In the first game Ann Larder had a triple and a RBI and Michelle Dettling had a double and a RBI.

In the second game, a 7-1 win, Betty Wescott had a hit that brought in two runners and Dettling had two hits, including a double and two RBI's.

On Saturday, the team got off to a rocky start just trying to get to the Corunna Invitatonal. The bus got lost and when the team did arrive at the fields they had just 15 minutes to get organized before their first game against Ithaca.

Stepping up to the challenge, the Bulldogs pulled out 7-0 win against Ithaca with Diesing on the mound where she stayed all day. She struck out 12 batters in that first game.

Ashley Augustine went three for three in that game and Stephanie Crews had two hits including one double.

In the second game of the tournament the Bulldogs again had no errors which helped them defeat Owosso 13-6.

"We had 16 hits as a team in that game," Reichard said. "Crews had four hits with two going for two bases. Hammer had three hits and one RBI."

The Bulldogs won their third game against Lansing Everett 15-5.

"We've got good hitting but they shouldn't have scored five runs," Reichard said. "We should have mercied them but we opened the door a little bit."

The Bulldogs racked up 19 hits in that game with 12 RBIs.

Augustine and Lindsay Powers both had four RBIs. Betsy Ruhlig had two hits.

The three wins in pool play put the Bulldogs in the championship game against Chesaning.

"Jenny had 11 strikeouts in the championship game," Reichard said.

Chesaning made it more of a game, holding the Bulldogs to only three runs, but they could only put up one themselves. The final score was 3-1.

Wescott had two hits as did Dettling, who also recorded two RBIs.

Carly Daniels came in to relieve Diesing for an inning in the games against Chesaning, Everett and Owosso.

"Daniels is suffering from mononucleosis but did a great job for the Bulldogs to close out the games," Reichard said. "She came in for one game with two outs and two base runners but I had confidence in her that she would come through. And she did.

"Everybody was ready to go and if someone was hurt or ill and someone needed to go in for relief they did."

Reichard admitted that everybody made mistakes including herself. But she said the best thing about the day was that someone picked it up when someone else made a mistake.

"The combined team effort," Reichard said. "That was the best thing."

The Bulldogs will play Saline Thursday, April 20 to open the SEC season.

Reichard said she's aware that last year's team struggled at the beginning of last year, then peaked later in the season.

"I'm thrilled we're doing well at the beginning but we also want to peak at the end as well," Reichard said. "This is just the beginning."

JV soccer team posts winning week

The Chelsea junior varsity soccer team has a solid 3-2-0 record for the season but the two heartbreaking losses came from Southeastern Conference rivals.

On April 14 the junior Bulldogs played a valiant game against the Pinckney Pirates, almost pulling out a comeback victory but finishing with a 4-2 loss.

Pinckney scored twice in the first half on two great plays to take a 2-0 lead. The Pirates dominated the shots in this game, but the defense and goalkeepers held firm and the offense was amazingly efficient.

Chelsea only took four shots in the game but scored on two of those.

"I saw a 'don't give up' attitude from the team that almost provided a comeback victory," said head coach Jim Hicks.

In the 19th minute of the second half, Genny Goulay scored from an extreme angle to the far post with an assist by Anna Marie Cooper. Four minutes later Rebecca Armstrong made an unassisted shot, took her own rebound and scored.

Chelsea goalkeeper Candell Dickerson had 10 saves.

The day before, the Bulldogs won a solid shutout over Milan at home, winning 7-0. They were lifted by the play of Alicia Edgeworth, who completed a hat trick with two assisted goals and a third score on a penalty kick.

Armstrong scored the first goal of the game, another unassisted goal, on a breakaway. Shortly after that, Edgeworth took a crossing pass from Katie Personke to get the second goal of the game for the Bulldogs and her first of the game. She scored the third goal for Chelsea on a penalty kick late in the first half.

The hat trick came in the ninth minute of the second half when Devon Horvath got the ball to Personke who got the assist for Edgeworth.

Edgeworth was finished scoring for the day, but the rest of the Bulldogs were not. Gourlay earned two assists when both Armstrong and Sarah Manville scored. The final goal of the game was made when Ana Abreu shot a goal off an errant Milan goalkeeper punt for an unassisted goal.

"Devon Horvath was instrumental at stopper in keeping the ball in the Milan end of the field," Hicks said.

Hicks used the high scoring game as an opportunity to give the less-experienced players some quality playing time.

Earlier in the week the Bulldogs took their first loss of the season in a painful 9-0 shutout at home to Saline.

"Saline has been one of the toughest teams in the SEC and showed it again today," Hicks said.

The first two games of the season were solid wins, including one shut out. Chelsea defeated Ypsilanti 3-1 and opened the season with a 4-0 blanking of Brooklyn Columbia Central.

Against Ypsilanti, a crossing pass from Gourlay and a quick shot by Personke was "picture perfect" according to Hicks. Anna Marie Cooper scored the other two goals, assisted by Edgeworth in the first half and by Heidi Schultz in the second.

Sweeper Kirra Sheremet and outside defenders Katie Fox and Jenna Sattherwaite and reserve defenders Abreu, Caroline Shanks and Horvath stood their ground and limited Central to one shot on goal.

"It was great to start out the season with a shutout," Hicks said.

The Bulldogs will be on the road to SEC rival Dexter on Monday. That game will start at 4 p.m.

House bill supports locker searches

By Rachel Miller
Heritage Newspapers

LANSING — School locker searches won't be the exception anymore.

Soon they'll be the law.

Last week the state Senate passed House Bill 5233, 35-2.

The bill, which also was approved in a 90-13 vote by the state House of Representatives last month, amends the Revised School Code to require school boards to adopt a policy on school locker searches.

The bill also states that students who use any school locker are not entitled to privacy of the locker or its contents because lockers are school property.

Supporters of the bill say that it is added support for schools and courts. They also say it is a push toward school safety.

"This provides the foundation for schools to know that they can continue to do the things they are doing," state Sen. Loren Bennett (R-Canton) said.

"It creates a foundation in law so that they are not having problems and making mistakes."

Opponents say that it is unnecessary legislation and was only approved as a "show" law.

"It may look good on a piece of campaign literature, but it doesn't deal with the real issue of school violence in our schools," said state Sen. Gary Peters (D-Bloomfield), one of two senators to vote against the bill.

"This bill does absolutely nothing," state Sen. Burton Leland (D-Detroit) said.

School officials already have the authority to perform locker searches, Leland said.

And, many legislators who voted for the bill said they don't disagree with that statement.

State Rep. Gloria Schermesser (D-Lincoln Park) said she agrees that schools already have the authority to do locker searches, so, "it was no big deal to vote for it."

She also said she doesn't believe the bill is a move toward school safety.

"It would be nice if it did, but I don't see it as preventing school violence," she said.

State Sen. Christopher Dingell (D-Trenton) agreed.

"There's no one single fix for school violence," he said. "There's a lot of things that are necessary."

The bill heads back to the House for approval on an amendment before it goes to Gov. John Engler to be signed into law.

A Voice from the Past

Sixth-graders at Wylie Middle School recently traveled back in time to learn about Canada's early economy in the fur trade and about the life of a voyageur. Voyageurs of the 1600s canoed the Great Lakes area and Canada as wilderness delivery men, trading European pelts. The pelts were sent to Europe where the fur was used in the making of men's hats. Randy Baker of Naturalist Endeavors is pictured portraying a voyageur. Dexter PTO funded his visit.

Psoriasis a common but treatable problem

JOHN C. WOLF, D.O.
ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF FAMILY MEDICINE OHIO UNIVERSITY COLLEGE OF OSTEOPATHIC MEDICINE

FAMILY MEDICINE

Question: I have recently developed a problem with my scalp. It started with a small area that itched and had dry flaky scales on it. Occasionally, one of these sores makes a sticky substance. Now the condition seems to be spreading over my entire scalp. I saw a dermatologist, who said I have psoriasis. He gave me a prescription for a special shampoo, but this doesn't seem to help very much. Can you recommend something that I can do to cure this problem:

Answer: I think most people are familiar with the name "psoriasis" but may not understand the nature of the condition. Medical scientists believe that psoriasis is due to an abnormality in the body's immune system, specifically in the helper T-cells. In this disorder, the immune system attacks apparently healthy tissue — most commonly skin, joints or nails — and causes inflammation of it. This results in a reddish-colored skin lesion with thickened, often silver-colored areas on top that are called scales.

These psoriasis lesions can develop on any part of the body, but they are most common on the outside surfaces of the elbows and knees, on the scalp, the palms and the feet.

Psoriasis is certainly a common problem — it afflicts about 6.4 million Americans. It may first appear at any age, even in childhood, but most people don't show signs of it until they are adults.

Psoriasis also has a strong genetic component. That's why those with a family history of it have a much greater risk of developing the disorder. Specifically, the general population risk is about 4 percent, but if one parent has psoriasis, the risk rises to 28 percent, and if both parents suffer from the disease, the risk rises dramatically to 68 percent.

Men and women are troubled with this in equal frequency, so the disorder is not linked to the "X" chromosome. Actually, most experts think that there is more than one gene involved in the inheritance of this disorder.

Although a cure for psoriasis hasn't been found, we are fortunate to have a number of treatments that do give a temporary clearing of this lifelong condition for most sufferers. The shampoo your dermatologist prescribed is one of these. Don't be disheartened that it didn't work. To borrow an explanation from my carpentry experience: You don't use a sledgehammer to drive a carpet tack.

Your doctor started you on the mildest medicine that was likely to give you relief — a tack hammer, if you will. Go talk to him again. He has many other treatment options available before getting to the "sledgehammer" one.

You shouldn't limit your treatment for psoriasis to only the drugs you get from your doctor. A psoriasis attack can be brought on by emotional stress, so try to view life from a more relaxed perspective. Skin irritation from chemicals or tight clothing can do it too, so obviously you should avoid these.

One of the most effective treatments you or your doctor can prescribe is sunlight exposure, but don't overdo your first few days out in our gorgeous spring weather because sunburn can make psoriasis worse.

I'd suggest that you talk to your dermatologist again because of the medical concerns and the significant social consequences of your condition. You may also want to contact the National Psoriasis Foundation at 6600 S.W. 92nd, Suite 300, Portland, OR 97223, or call (503) 244-7404) or (800) 723-9166 for more information about your condition. You can also go to the Internet URL: htt;//www.psoriasis.org.

MDOT to study I-94 section near Jackson

The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) recently announced the start of a major study of I-94 between M-60 and Sargent Road in Jackson County.

The I-94 Freeway Modernization Study will focus on upgrading this nine-mile stretch of I-94 and will include a review of existing conditions and future traffic demands. Future improvements, including the eventual widening of I-94, will be driven by this study.

"I-94 is a critically important road to Michigan's economy. This study allows us to identify future capacity needs and how best to meet those needs," State Transportation Director James R. DeSana said.

The study was officially presented to the Region Two Planning Commission's Jackson Area Comprehensive Transportation Study Technical Advisory Committee on Tuesday, April 11, for inclusion in their Transportation Improvement Program (TIP) and long-range plan.

It is anticipated that the $2.5 million study will take two years to complete. Over the next several months, MDOT will hire a consultant to conduct the study and will work on forming an official steering committee.

Funding for this project was made possible though efforts by Congressman Nick Smith to secure high priority funding as designated in the federal TEA-21 bill.

A total of $9 million was identified to engineer, design and improve I-94 in Jackson and Calhoun counties. The remaining funds will be used in making improvements to I-

Smoking poses health risk to unborn children

The rate of smoking during pregnancy decreased by nearly 70 percent during the 1990s for Washtenaw County residents.

In 1990, approximately 15 percent of Washtenaw County mothers who had live births smoked during their pregnancy.

This rate steadily dropped to only 5 percent in 1997. This same overall trend is true nationally, but the rate of decline has not been as dramatic, according to the National Center for Health Statistics. National rates of smoking during pregnancy in 1997 were 13.2 percent, over 60 percent higher than Washtenaw County rates.

Reductions in smoking during pregnancy even occurred in high-risk groups such as Washtenaw County teen mothers, whose rates dropped from 25 percent to 6 percent during 1990-1997. Generally, teens' rates for smoking during pregnancy are 30-50 percent higher than those for older aged mothers. Nationally, teens' smoking rates have increased during the 1990s.

According to a recent article in the Journal of the American Medical Association, overall national declines in smoking during pregnancy are likely the effect of decreasing rates of smoking initiation, rather than smoking cessation during pregnancy.

Smoking during pregnancy is a significant health risk. Maternal smoking increases the chance of having a low birth weight (LBW) baby (weighing less than 5.5 pounds at birth). These babies are 40 times more likely to die during the first month of life and have twice as many colds, respiratory and ear infections as larger babies.

The more a woman smokes, the higher the risk of LBW. The risk of LBW increases 26 percent for each additional five cigarettes smoked per day.

No matter how long a woman has been smoking, both she and the baby benefit from her quitting. The sooner, the better, according to A Guide for Counseling Women Who Smoke: A Focus on Pregnancy and the Childbearing Years, First Step Campaign.

BY SHEILA PURSGLOVE
HERITAGE NEWSPAPERS

"Preparation for the Workforce of the Future" is the slogan for the South and West Washtenaw Consortium, providing career and technical education programs for the five school districts of Chelsea, Dexter, Manchester, Milan and Saline.

"We maintain communication with business and industry through advisory committees, school-to-work programs, and local area partnerships, and make every effort to keep programs up-to-date with state-of-the-art equipment," explains program director Diane Skinner.

"The main purpose of the courses is to prepare students with entry level and transferable skills and knowledge needed to obtain employment."

COURSES INCLUDE: Agriscience, Auto Technology, Building Trades, Child and Adult Care Services, Cosmetology, Hospitality/Culinary Arts, Industrial Electronics, Machine Tool Technology (CAD/CNC), Marketing, Visual Imaging, Business Services Technology, Metal Processing and Welding.

The program provides a variety of school-to-work offerings, giving students the real world experience of learning about a particular field, including co-operative education, work experience, internship programs, apprenticeships, and work study, as well as job shadowing, unpaid work experience, and mentorships.

Kids enjoy the challenge of learning new moves in summer programs.

Log school served as district's building block

BY WARREN HALE
MILAN HISTORIAN

Milan's first citizen arrived from New York State in 1831. He was followed by a steady influx of pioneer settlers until they collectively formed the nucleus of a community. By 1837, there were enough youngsters in the infant hamlet to justify the establishment of a school.

Accordingly, concerned citizens caused a log schoolhouse to be built on the south side of E. Main Street near the business district. That first school was actually an in-town, country school which served grades one through eight.

The town's population continued to increase and the small, log school became over-crowded. About 1847, a larger, one-room, frame building was erected closer to the road on the same parcel of land. That school, which also served grades one through eight, became so over crowded, it, too, was replaced.

In 1862, a two-room brick schoolhouse was constructed on a much larger parcel of land on a block north of Main Street, bounded by Hurd, Ferman, Second and North Streets. It was expanded to four rooms and a library in 1874. This school had the space to include grades nine and 10, and in 1885, the first class to complete 12 grades graduated in the town's first "commencement exercises." An over-heated furnace caused the school to burn to the ground January 10, 1900.

A modern, 12-room building was completed on the site in time for the first day of school in September of that year. A large addition was added in 1926 to house grades nine through 12, and the older school was occupied by grades K-8.

Taxes were levied to support a general fund which provided for the needs of the school and staff wages. The Milan schools were attended by village students only and a locally-elected school board controlled the educational process. The state provided an annual allowance (or tuition) for country school students attending Milan High School.

Rural schools flourished in the Milan area, offering an education for pupils in kindergarten through eighth grade. Enrollment depended upon the school age population of each district and ranged from about 12 students to 50 or more per school. The country schools were also directed by a board of education and financed through taxes levied in each rural district.

The Milan Area School District was formed in 1954 by the consolidation of 18 surrounding districts situated in portions of Washtenaw, Monroe, and Lenawee counties. The area in Lenawee County was later incorporated into other districts.

The general shape of the incorporated district, its student population and transportation difficulties mandated that three outlying schools be established in neighborhood areas. These relatively large schools were expensive to operate and when conditions permitted, they were closed and all rural students were bused to Milan.

Area residents of the district have conscientiously supported continuous building programs and have looked after the educational welfare of their children. Bond issues built Paddock Elementary, Milan Middle School, and Milan High School, and voter-supported school taxes also funded improvements, including bond issues in 1990 to build an addition to Paddock, and in 1995 to erect a new High School "librarium," media center, technology upgrades and new gymnasium. In 1998, voters again showed their support, giving the district a three-year, $3 million building and site fund for additional improvements and renovation not covered by the 1995 $11.6 million bond issue. This solid citizen support established the Milan Area School system as a quality educational operation of the highest caliber, and well-equipped to meet the needs of the next century.

This past March, Milan area voters again showed their support for the school district by passing a $49.9 million bond issue for a new high school, slated to open in the fall of 2003.

Child care providers offer loving homes

By Sheila Pursglove
HERITAGE NEWSPAPERS

Two children squeeze Play-Doh at the kitchen table, another builds a Lego space ship, two more are finger-painting, as another strings beads to make a necklace. In a few minutes, the materials will be cleared away to make way for snack time, followed by outdoor play or a trip to the park.

Welcome to another day at home daycare, where dedicated providers provide a loving home away from home for local children, from infancy on up.

There are more than 30 of these smaller childcare facilities in private homes in and around Saline: either family home daycares, licensed for up to six children, or group home daycares licensed for 12.

None view themselves as "babysitters" but as professional child care providers, with the knowledge and experience to provide a safe, loving and developmentally stimulating environment for young children, preparing them for the school years ahead by teaching them sharing, socializing, good manners, good hygiene, and instilling a love of learning and discovery.

Child care providers often "buddy up" with other family daycare homes for picnics and outings, and enjoy the many facilities Saline has to offer—local parks, orchards and pumpkin patches, police and fire stations, the Recreation Complex, Saline District Library, and the bowling alley. The surrounding area also offers a share of places to visit on field trips including dairy farms, ice rinks, museums, fairs and 4-H shows, parks and pools.

Providers must attend orientation meetings; have the facilities checked and approved by the Department of Social Services; meet rigid guidelines; stay current with CPR and First Aid certification; provide nutritious meals and snacks; and developmentally appropriate toys and activities. Many belong to federal food programs, which provide guidelines on serving balanced meals, with menus and newsletters and record keeping, and send representatives to daycare homes on a regular basis.

Many providers attend classes and meetings, or study in their free time, to keep up to date with information on child development. Newsletters and parenting magazines are freely shared with families in their care, along with the many years of experience in dealing with food fads, toilet training, sibling rivalry, sleep problems, colicky babies and temper tantrums.

Saline Family Child Care Providers get together on the first Wednesday of each month; meetings have included talks by doctors, nurses, and accountants, CPR and First Aid courses, craft ideas for children, or presentations by group members. The group provides referrals for parents looking for a daycare home; call 429-4193. Another resource is the Washtenaw Child Care Network at 975-1840.

SALINE LATCHKEY SUMMER PROGRAM

Saline Community Education will run BOTH Summer Latchkey Camps from 6:45a.m.-6p.m. daily. AGAIN this year we will divide the children grades K through 4th grade at Woodland Meadows and grades 5 to age 14 at Heritage. We will be taking some of the field trips together and others we will be taking separately. This is the eighth, fun filled summer the Latchkey program has been operating. The programs will take approximately one field trip per week. This year field trips will be taken to such places as swimming pools, movies, plays, play parks, and science centers. We also do arts and crafts, sports, games, special guests, and special days. Saline Latchkey is licensed by the Dept. of Social Services, State of Michigan.
