NEWS BRIEFS

Competition opens for 2000 fair queen

The search has begun for the 2000 Chelsea Community Fair queen, leading up to an Aug. 26 coronation.

Girls who will be attending Chelsea or Dexter high schools in the fall are eligible. Each candidate must be sponsored by a high school class, a club, a community organization or an area business, which must provide a float for the candidate to ride in the fair parade.

Anyone interested in entering the competition should call Jane Shrosbree at 475-1711. The deadline for entry is June 29.

Republicans to hold monthly meeting

At 9 a.m. Saturday, the Western Washtenaw Republicans will also hold their monthly meeting at Wolverine Food & Spirits. The guest speaker will be Andy Anuzis, chairman of the Republican 8th Congressional District Committee, who will discuss action at the party's state convention in May. The meeting is open to the public.

Garden clubs set tours for June 12, June 14

The Chelsea Area Garden Club will hold its regular monthly meeting at 12:30 p.m. Monday at First United Methodist Church, 128 Park St. Members and guests will meet at the church before visiting local gardens. For more information, call club President Christine Forsch at 475-273 or Vice President Janet Wamboldt at 433-5451.

The Chelsea Evening Primrose Garden Club will tour the Marlas Greiger Garden in Howell on Wednesday. The members will meet at 6:15 p.m. at the Chelsea Depot, 125 Jackson St., to carpool. Guests are welcome and the tour is free. For more information, call Jo Bach at 473-9534.

Church sets collage concert for Friday

The First United Methodist Church of Chelsea, 128 Park St., will offer a collage concert at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in its sanctuary.

Featuring choirs of all ages and instrumental music groups, the program will include contemporary songs as well as an orchestral performance of a Wagnerian overture.

Class of 2000 graduates

An exceptional class.

That's what Chelsea High School Principal Ron Mead called the class of 2000 at its commencement Sunday.

"This is the first class to graduate from Chelsea High School in the new millennium," Mead said, noting, however, that the class also stood out for many other reasons.

Two graduates are heading to U.S. military academies and four students will be attending the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit. And, 130 students received scholarships based on their Michigan Educational Assessment Program test scores, for a total of $250,000.

Impressive numbers from 199 graduates, Mead said, and rare for a school the size of Chelsea.

But, he pointed out, he knew the class was one of a kind because he had to take one of them to the emergency room during the eighth grade trip to Washington, D.C.

Jon Spooner, a graduating senior, told his classmates that high school graduation was a golden opportunity. They would have a chance to redefine themselves, to decide who they were without the burden of their own histories.

Spooner quoted the Cheshire Cat, from "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland," answering Alice's question of which path to take. The cat tells Alice that first she must know where she wants to go.

"We can't be like Alice," Spooner said. "We need to know where we want to go, so we know which path to take."

He made his point by taking a $50 bill, throwing it on the floor and stamping on it. No matter what choices they had made up to that point, he said, "the worth of our lives comes not in what we do, what we have or who we know, but by who we are."

The senior class president, Jill Drexler, expressed the awe some of the graduates might have been feeling: "We're about to graduate – whoa!"

She said the steps the grad-

Candidates gear up for school board election

■ Ballot also to include Headlee override issue.

By Jim Silver
Staff Writer

Voters will go to the polls Monday to elect two trustees to the Chelsea Board of Education.

Four candidates are vying for two four-year seats.

Board President Scott Broshar is running for a second term.

Also on the ballot are newcomers Susan Moore, Rodney Branham and Chuck Walters. They are seeking the seat being vacated by Trustee Jill Taylor, who said in January that she would not run for another term.

Monday's ballot also will include a request for a Headlee Amendment override, which would allow the school district to collect the full 18 mills on non-residential properties.

School Superintendent Ed Richardson has discussed the override at school board meetings, emphasizing that the district cannot receive full per-pupil foundation grants from the state until it collects a full 18 mills in non-homestead taxes.

Under the Headlee Amendment, the district is limited to less than 18 mills, however. The override will not affect homeowners, but will be levied against businesses.

If the override does not pass, the district has said it will lose about $53,000 next year and $100,000 the following year.

Library opens bids on McKune

■ Board looks at October defeat in move toward building bond.

By Jim Silver
Staff Writer

At a special morning meeting May 30, library board members opened bids from architectural firms on the first design phase for McKune House renovations.

Library trustees looked at 10 firms' proposals for the project, with a low bid of $15,000 from Luckenbach/Ziegelman Architects and a high-end bid of $64,800 from PDA Architects.

The bids cover design work leading up to a bond election, including renderings, layout and consulting on a budget for the project.

Kathy Sprawka, library board vice president and chairwoman of the board's building committee, said the budget for renovation should include construction, furniture and technology costs.

Sprawka said the first phase of the project would include community forums, so the library could share plans with area voters and hear input on the project.

She said that, with such forums, the board hoped to learn from the lessons of October's election, in which an increased operating fund was approved by voters but a bond initiative to fund renovations was defeated.

"After the election last fall, we looked at the results to see what voters were trying to tell us," Sprawka said.

"The passage of the operating meant that the voters like the library. What we heard about the bond defeat was that voters were not sure what we wanted, and they felt the Mitchell-DDA deal was still too tentative.

"Now, it looks like that's really locked in, so we want to be clear what we're asking for (with a building bond)."

The deal between the Mitchell family and the Downtown Development Authority, which would pave the way for a municipal parking lot adjacent to McKune House, is in its final stages, with the Mitchell family going through due diligence proceedings and due diligence already concluded for the Downtown

Roads, trash top action for Lima trustees

■ Plan prohibits new incinerators, encourages recycling centers.

By Phil Keren
Special Writer

Solid waste, more recycling centers and area roads were among the topics discussed Monday at the Lima Township Board meeting.

The board unanimously approved the Washtenaw County Solid Waste Plan update.

Susan Todd, the environmental manager for the county's Division of Public Works, said a committee comprising government officials, representatives of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, environmental groups and private business representatives came up with the plan.

The new plan prohibits the siting of new landfills or incinerators, while encouraging more recycling centers in the county.

A new recycling center would require the approval of both the county and the host municipality. The plan also calls for a greater emphasis on commercial and industrial generators as well as more work between neighboring governments on waste management.

The county is requesting that each municipality approve the plan before it is sent to the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality.

The board also approved appointments to the Chelsea Area Construction Agency. The board named Bruce Connell as a building official, Tom Miller as a building inspector, Danny Hanson as a mechanical inspector and Joe Terlecki as an electrical inspector for the agency.

The agency started its operations from Sylvan Township Hall on June 1. The townships of Lima, Sylvan, Lyndon and Dexter and the village of Chelsea formed the group to provide building inspections and to issue building permits. The agency is taking over the permit and inspection work from the county.

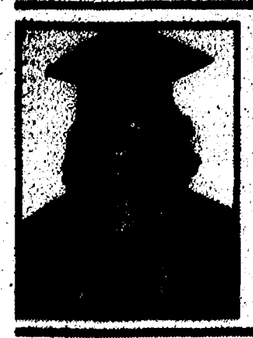

The board also approved a contract with the county road commission for three applications of brine on all gravel roads in the township. The brine work will help reduce dust on area roads.

The applications will cost $27,885. The county will provide $13,712 in matching funds to cover about half of the expense.

Township Supervisor Gary Adams said the board usually OKs two brine applications, but decided to do more due to the possibility of another dry summer and higher traffic volume on the gravel roads because of construction on M-14 and I-94.

Adams said budget constraints and the extra brine application leaves no funding available for any preventive maintenance on township roads this

BOARD

The district of 2,900 pupils has an annual budget of $22.5 million.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. in the cafeteria at the Washington Street Education Center.

Absentee ballots will be available in the superintendent's office from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. today and tomorrow and from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday.

The Chelsea Standard sent questionnaires to each of the four school board candidates. Their replies follow, in the order they were received.

Susan Moore

Susan Moore, a Lyndon Township resident, is familiar with Chelsea classrooms. She and her husband, Leon, have three sons, 13-year-old Christopher, 11-year-old Garrett and 3-year-old Scott, so Moore has worked as a helper in elementary class rooms, middle school camp and other activities. She also has worked with government and industry on environmental concerns.

Moore, a real estate agent, grew up in Ann Arbor but moved to Chelsea in 1996. In addition to her three sons, she also has a stepson, John, who does not go to school in Chelsea. She is running for school board for the first time.

Why run for school board?

I am confident that Chelsea is a great place to attend public school and I want to do my part to contribute to that excellence.

Since I will have children in the school system for the next 15 years, I am committed to ensuring the long-term quality of the school system.

Why would you make a good school board trustee?

I believe in finding the facts and making decisions based on what I find, and I will stand up for what I believe in.

I have extensive experience in communications. It takes open communication between administration, parents, school board, students and teachers to maintain a world-class school system.

What do you hope to accomplish while in office?

I hope to:

•Ensure that updated policies are in place that will allow the district to stay current with innovative educational trends and utilize all technology resources possible, while maintaining a small-town feel.

•Help each student prepare for whatever they choose to do, whether it is to enter the workforce, continue on to higher education or start a family.

•Continue building excellence in music, sports and other extracurricular activities, as this excellence builds school pride, which is important to education.

What areas of school business do you have concerns about? What action would you recommend to address those concerns?

Not meeting the needs of each student. We must provide the best education possible by identifying each child's needs. I recommend consistent and frequent communication between the parents, school system, students and community.

Discipline policies and procedures: The policies affecting students should be uniform throughout the district. We must have the same expectation of each student, whether they are involved in sports, music or other extracurricular activities.

The school must constantly review and update policies that are not applicable or do not work well in the Chelsea district. An effective approach would be to look at what is successful in other districts and borrow the best of those policies.

What positive steps do you think the school board has taken over the years?

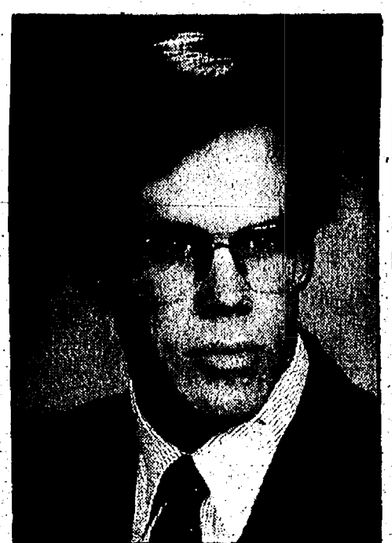

The district has expanded the schools to accommodate growth and developed a program to review and improve the curriculum.

What issues do you think the board will be facing?

Growth: I will contribute by assuring that current facilities are utilized most effectively without creating overcrowding. Moreover, we should make certain that there is adequate staff with appropriate training and expertise that will provide each child the tools needed to prepare for the future.

Keeping up with new educational trends and computer technology: I want to assure that a sufficient portion of the budget is allocated to this issue and that those budgeted dollars are used in the most effective manner.

Depersonalization in education due to growth: We must implement policy that allows for continual training for teachers, staff and students, and routinely evaluate the services provided to assure that each student's individual needs are met.

Scott Broshar

Scott Broshar, a 10-year Dexter Township resident, is running for his second term on the school board. In the last four years, he has served as treasurer and then as president of the school board. His board tenure has included work on a number of committees, including finance, policy and personnel.

He also was a member of the negotiations team for the last two teachers' contracts and has taken part in ongoing negotiations

Broshar and his wife, Wendy, have two daughters: Christine, a sophomore at Northwestern University, and Christine, a Chelsea High School junior.

Parenting has led Broshar to an active involvement in and co-presidency of the Chelsea Aquatic Club, as well as coaching positions for various sports teams.

He is the president of Absolute Title, an Ann Arbor company, and has worked in local real estate law groups.

Why run for school board?

I would like to continue the work that we have started as a school board. We have completed construction of our new schools and we now have the opportunity to focus on student achievement.

Why would you make a good school board trustee?

During my four years on the board, I believe I have earned the respect of fellow board members and school district personnel with whom I have had the opportunity to work closely. There are many different opinions in our community on almost every issue that faces the board. It is important for board members to listen to all sides and pursue a course of action that is in the best interests of the students and the district, approaching problems from the broadest possible perspective. I believe that I can accomplish this in a rational and respectful manner. It is also important that we have creative problem solvers on the board.

What do you hope to accomplish while in office?

It has been a bit of a mission for me to "encourage" the district to use plain English in its communications, policies, documents, etc. That may seem like a simple task, but it is amazingly difficult to write clearly and concisely while addressing the concerns of all involved. I think that most English teachers would agree that it is easy to write a lot of words, and eventually what needs to be said gets said, but often after the audience gets lost. It is work to craft clear communications, but work in which the board and district should take a leading role.

What positive steps do you think the school board has taken over the years?

The board has accomplished a number of things during the last four years, the most obvious of which is the completion of construction of two new schools and remodeling of the rest of our buildings.

We have also opened an alternative high school to address the needs of students who prefer learning in a different environment.

During the past year, we have conducted board meetings at the various school buildings throughout the district, rather than remaining in the board room. Also during the past year, we have worked very hard on a rewrite of the entire district policy manual, which should be completed this summer.

What issues do you think the board will be facing?

There are many issues we know that the school district will face over the next four years, including growth, funding and student achievement. I would also expect to have numerous issues arise that we cannot anticipate.

Funding: We must cope with the fact that we have almost no local control over the amount of funds available to the district. New programs, innovation, growth and maintenance of our expanded facilities all come with costs. We will need to carefully monitor our expenditures to maintain fiscal responsibility within the district. One step toward fiscal responsibility that I support is the Headlee override, which will be on the June 12 ballot.

Growth: The growth in the Chelsea area and in our surrounding communities is both a blessing and a curse. The increased number of students means an increased amount of money coming to the district from the state each year, which can be used to maintain the quality of our current programs and to fund new programs. But that same growth also increases the financial demands on the district. We need to anticipate growth so that we can adequately provide facilities for all of our students.

Student achievement: I believe that we do a good job of educating our students. I also believe that we should continually strive to improve. One of the tasks of the board will be to determine how we measure student achievement, taking into account the many possible variables of standardized test scores, student grades, student participation, reading levels, etc. Once we have determined how we should measure, we need to determine, with community input and involvement, what a Chelsea education represents.

Chuck Walters

If elected, Chuck Walters said he would bring to the school board a master's degree in guidance counseling and his experience as a high school and middle school teacher in the 1970s.

He has lived in the area for 25 years, raising three children with his wife, Susan. The couple has raised the children in the Chelsea school system. They are Sara, a May 2000 graduate of Arizona State University; Mark, a 2000 Chelsea High School graduate; and Jeff, who will be a junior at the high school next year.

Walters runs Chuck Walters Real Estate and for the last six years also has worked on the golf course at Barton Hills Country Club.

Why run for school board?

I would like to see the school board become a voice for the people in the community, especially the parents, instead of being a rubber stamp for the superintendent.

I am very concerned with what is happening to the band director, Mr. Gourley. Chelsea schools desperately need an administrator who can work with teachers instead of trying to destroy them.

Why would you make a good school board trustee?

Someone who has lived in the community for 25 years and has had active interaction with the Chelsea schools while raising three children.

I believe that it is important to have school board trustees that care, listen and will speak up for the parents

What do you hope to accomplish while in office?

I want the school board to openly encourage the people of the community to participate in the writing and review of all school policies.

I would like to see the school board ask for volunteers to serve on these committees and to study individual policies in depth and help rewrite them on a regular basis.

What areas of school business do you have concerns about? What action would you recommend to address those concerns?

I am most concerned about something that the superintendent of Chelsea schools told me. The superintendent said that he believes in the public humiliation of students, because that shows that he is in charge. The superintendent did not seem the least bit concerned about what harm public humiliation can do to students.

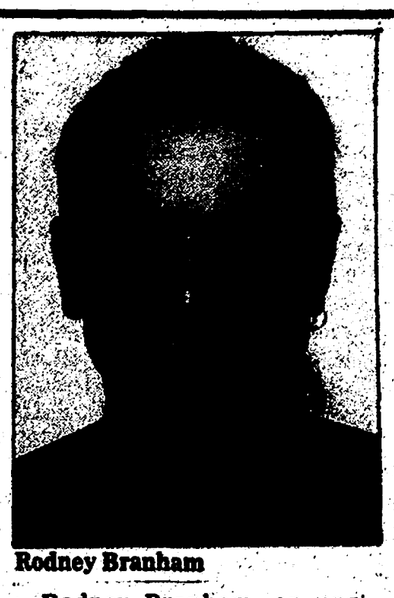

I believe in the golden rule, treating other people the way that I would like to be treated. I have found that most teachers put the idea of the golden rule in their classroom rules.

What positive steps do you think the school board has taken over the years?

Building the new high school and redoing the track facilities.

What issues do you think the board will be facing?

The morale of the teachers and school employees is at an all-time low and needs to be addressed by the school board.

Rodney Branham

Rodney Branham, an engineering technician with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, is making a second run for the school board.

Branham, a lifelong area resident, and his wife, Dorothy, have four children, including 18-year-old Ryan, a 2000 Chelsea High School graduate.

He has served as a volunteer with the EPA's Emergency Response Team, as well as vice president of a homeowners' association and past president of his union chapter.

Why run for school board?

To try to get the schools returned to what is in the best interest of the students. There is too much turmoil going on within the teachers and staff and I would like to try to get things steered towards the return of a motivated and productive school system once again.

Why would you make a good school board trustee?

I would research all the issues to ensure that I was making an informed decision for the vote. I would listen to staff and community concerns and bring forth the issues and encourage the superintendent and board to listen.

What do you hope to accomplish while in office?

Getting the staff and community to bring forth their issues and concerns without fear of retribution.

Making the "rules and guidelines" fair for all students.

Enabling Chelsea to be leaders in the technology field.

Keeping the class size at manageable levels to enable a more productive teaching environment.

Keeping focused on what is best for the future leaders of America ... the wonderful students of Chelsea.

What areas of school business do you have concerns about? What action would you recommend to address those concerns?

Educational funds spent in a reckless manner are a big concern within the community. We need to get the spending back under control and stop the insane taxation within this great and supportive community. There has been too much reckless expenditure of funds such as the $750,000 drain fiasco, a $60,000 lawn mower, numerous renovations of offices, etc. This is educational money that is spent carelessly. This is money that is taken out of the classrooms needlessly. The community supported a new school and they have watched their money handled in a bad manner. Now, the superintendent wants more money.

Take for instance the Headlee Amendment override. While it is true that it does not raise the taxes directly for a homeowner, it certainly does raise them indirectly. When the businesses in this community keep getting their taxes raised, which is where this "tax increase that is not a tax increase" comes from, who pays for it? The community does. This way of conducting business has to cease. We need to regain the trust of the community.

What positive steps do you think the school board has taken over the years?

The board has gotten a beautiful new high school constructed for the future of our kids.

They have reduced the class size, which makes for a better learning environment.

What issues do you think the board will be facing?

The growing community of Chelsea will once again, eventually, make the class size expand. We will need to keep an eye on that to ensure that when it does happen, we take the necessary steps to correct it by increasing teacher staff.

The budget will need to be brought back under control and an effort to ensure that this great community's money is spent in an efficient manner.

I think that the board will need to look at some of its policies and rewrite some to ensure that legal fees are kept in check from frivolous, needless lawsuits that could have been prevented very easily by some simple negotiations.

Relay for Life set for June

The committee for the Western Washtenaw Area Relay for Life in Chelsea invites all cancer survivors to the 2000 Relay for Life June 24-25 at the Chelsea High School track.

There will be various cancer-survivor activities, including an inspirational victory lap for all cancer survivors, a dessert party following the progressive potluck dinner and a luminary ceremony that begins at dusk.

The luminary ceremony is a special part of the Relay for Life, gathering family, friends, co-workers and neighbors to honor and remember those who have battled cancer. Luminary candles are purchased for a $10 donation and then decorated or printed with the name of the loved one on the outside of the bag.

The luminaries are placed around the track and burn through the night to honor or remember those individuals touched by cancer. The name of the person the luminary was purchased for is read during the ceremony.

To register as a cancer survivor and participate in the survivor events or to find out how to purchase a luminary for the Western Washtenaw Area Relay for Life, call Deanna Shackelford at (734) 971-4300.

Slate still open for Lima Twp. Board

By Phil Keren
Special Writer

Lima Township is still looking for supervisor candidates.

Nobody turned in a petition to run for the supervisor's position before the May 16 primary deadline.

Candidates who wanted to run under a certain political affiliation had to hand in a petition by May 16. Prospective candidates still have until 4 p.m. July 20 to hand in a nonpartisan petition.

Lima Township Clerk Arlene Bareis said that potential candidates need to get the signatures of three to 10 registered voters in the township to get their names on a ballot.

Bareis recommends that interested candidates acquire a few extra signatures to ensure approval of the petition.

There are six candidates for the two trustees seats that are being vacated by Bob Heller and Harold Trinkley.

Sponsors needed for farm tour

More than 500 people have attended tours in the last three years to learn more about agricultural and rural community resources in Washtenaw County. This year, local residents will be touring their own backyards.

Local farm families and the RCA Tour Planning Committee organize the annual RCA Tour. This year's tour will be held in the Dexter and Webster Township area on Sept. 16. Tour stops will include the Breuninger Dairy Farm on Parker Road, D.D. Llama Farm on Gregory Road, and a hands-on learning session about water quality on the banks of the Huron River.

The RCA Tour Planning Committee is currently visiting with local businesses that would like to support this educational event. Tour sponsors will help cover expenses related to insurance, promotion and logistical support.

Businesses providing financial support will receive advertising space in promotional fliers, and at tour sites on the day of the event. For more information, contact Mike Score, MSU Extension, by calling (734) 097-1678, ext. 2619.

In other township news, Adams said an attorney will review Medallion Homes' mobile home park rezoning petition and plan before the township Board of Trustees take action on it.

Medallion is looking to rezone 136 acres of land at the corner of Jackson and Parker roads for a mobile home park. The Lima Township Planning Commission is still reviewing the petition and must make a recommendation regarding the petition before the Board of Trustees can vote on it.

In a letter to the township, Medallion said it would provide financial and traffic studies by the end of the month.

Drexler invites seniors to begin the future

By Jill Drexler
Commencement Speaker

Good afternoon, board members, faculty and staff, family and friends, graduates. I'd like to say thanks to my fellow classmates for giving me the opportunity to speak today and I'd also like to say congratulations . . . you're about to graduate.

When we walk across this stage today, we take a big step in our lives. Now, you may be thinking, "it's not really that hard to step across a stage." You may forget your normal walk and quicken your stride in your excitement or walk with a bounce of pride.

Some of us girls may be talking baby steps if we haven't practiced walking in our heels. Well, I'm not talking about the actual step you'll take to cross the platform, I'm talking about the symbolic step — the end of this first part of our lives and the beginning of the next.

Emphasis on the word "beginning." On the invitations for this event it says: "Commencement Exercises, Sunday Afternoon, June 4, 2000, 3:00." Commencement Exercises.

The word commencement means "a beginning." It's the beginning of the rest of our lives. You can take that to mean whatever you want. In all reality, the beginning of each day is the beginning of the rest of our lives from that point. But graduating from high school marks a different kind of beginning.

For most of us it's freedom and independence and responsibility. For me, it also means I have to learn how to do my own laundry.

For the past 18 years or so of our lives, we've lived at home and learned from our parents; we've gone to school and learned from our teachers.

We've learned from siblings, friends and peers. We've learned from our own mistakes and hopefully we now know more about ourselves. Our lives have been shaped by our experiences and by the people we've come in contact with.

Many of us, including myself, have grown up in Chelsea. The schools and the community are locked in our memories. Those of us graduates that went to elementary school here in Chelsea remember the rivalry between the South School Seals and the North School Knights.

I mention South first, of course, because I'm a former Seal. There was always a controversy over whose playground was better. We laugh about it now that we're all friends and bulldogs.

In sixth grade we met kids from the other elementary that we'd never seen before and we started making new friends. Almost everyone played an instrument or sang in the choir.

We went to sixth-grade camp and slept in cabins. We competed for the cleanest cabin and I think my cabin won. You wouldn't know that now, looking at my bedroom.

Commencement speaker Jill Drexler talks to fellow graduates about the days to come.

Then in eighth grade we traveled out to Washington, D.C. We visited many historical sites, museums, and monuments. It was actually very educational, but we were usually too busy having fun to notice.

Then came high school. At the old school the outdoor hallways were always leaky when it rained and so refreshing when the weather was nice.

The fishbowl was the ultimate hangout and basketball games were so close and crowded. At the new school we have wonderful facilities. The auditorium is top notch and this gym is gigantic. We have elevators that teachers occasionally catch us riding, though we're not supposed to.

We have a lot of good memories from both high schools. We branched out and became friends with people younger and older than we were. There were plays and concerts, clubs and teams, dances and pep rallies, classes and more classes.

Then thee were our teachers and friends. We've had a lot of the same experiences, but I'm sure we don't all have the same memories. Now we take all of these memories and experiences and put them back here and we move forward.

For a long time we've lived at home and have to answer to our parents. We've gone to school and had to answer to our teachers. We've been guided by and watched over by many adults.

Usually it's people that care about us and try to teach us. Pretty soon, we'll be out on our own. We'll have to answer to our boss at work, supervisors and the government.

We're not always gonna have someone there to hold our hand and we won't always get off as easy as we do with detentions and groundings.

This is the real thing. We're growing up and we're on the edge of a new beginning into maturity and adulthood ... well, some of us are.

It's our time to look at ourselves, think about our futures and decide what kind of life we want to live. With any new beginning, we may be unsure, a little scared and a little curious.

That's all fine and natural. Whether we dive off the board or just sit on the end to get our feet wet, we can always dry off. If we find we aren't as happy or as successful as we'd like to be, we can make changes and adjustments.

One thing I hope for all of us is that we do have happy and successful lives. If I could create a potion that would induce happiness and success, believe me, I would do it in a second.

There would be a lot of money in that. However, There's no chemical formula for happiness and success. Being happy and successful is different for everyone.

One person might be happy just relaxing in a cabin in the woods while another person would be bored to death in that cabin and long for the big, busy city.

Success for one person might mean owning a nice car and making a lot of money, whereas another person might feel successful by raising a big family.

We need to find out what makes us happy and then we can work on being our own definition of success. We do need to work at it, though. Sometimes we have to make a conscious effort to not be in a bad mood. We all have our days when we wake up on the wrong side of the bed. Have you ever awakened 10 minutes before you set your alarm to go off? Then you think, "Man! I just lost 10 minutes of sleep. Now I'm gonna be tired and grumpy." Well, now you'll be grumpy for sure. You have that mindset. Being happy in life follows the same idea. Other people and things don't make us happy. We do it for ourselves.

As far as success goes, we are also in control. If you don't feel successful, it is your own fault. We spend too much time blaming others for things we have complete control over. The best advice is that which we've heard all our lives, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again." The more time we waste pointing fingers and blaming others, the less time we have to try again. Don't let these expectations scare you off. Rather, heed the challenge. This is a beginning. You can decide what you want and then put your energy into getting it. Congratulations, class of 2000. I wish you all happiness and success after you cross this stage, no matter what stride or step you chose to use.

uates took across the stage were steps away from the shelter of parents and teachers and steps toward newfound responsibility.

"You may forget your normal walk and quicken your stride in excitement, or walk with a bounce of pride," Drexler said. "Some of us girls may be taking baby steps if we haven't practiced walking in our heels."

But, she said, the real step was symbolic, a step into "the beginning of the next part of our lives.

"This is the real thing," Drexler said. "We're growing up and on the edge of a new beginning into maturity and adulthood.

"I wish you all happiness and success after you cross this stage, no matter what stride or step you choose."

Spooner and Drexler were chosen by their classmates to speak at the ceremony, and with their activities, they represented many other students.

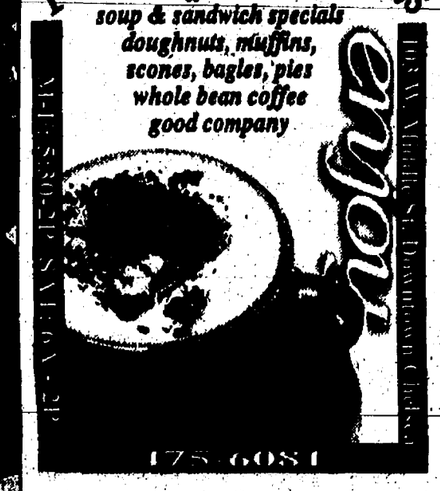

Spooner, who will leave Chelsea for Ricks College in Rexburg, Idaho, was a member of the tennis team, the first Chelsea team sent to state competition, and participated in one-act drama competitions throughout high school.

And Drexler, soon to become a Michigan State University Spartan, was active in volleyball, basketball and track, as well as student council through the last four years.

The weather seemed to join in honoring the class of 2000, with rain holding off until Monday, leaving graduates and their families with sun for the post-graduation celebrations.

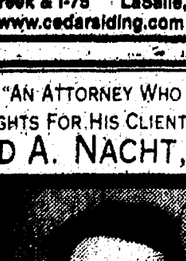

The high school concert choir, directed by Steven Hinz, sang "Pass It On," by Chelsea resident Lisa Hinz-Johnson, with a solo performance by Sarah Horazdovsky.

Domestic Assault

A domestic assault on May 31 was followed three days later by a report of stolen narcotics by the suspect in the assault.

Officers were dispatched May 31 on a report of a domestic assault. They met with a 17-year-old girl, who said that her 43-year-old father had punched her in the groin.

The girl said the assault came about when her father accused her of stealing his prescription drugs. The girl denied it, and slapped away her father's hand when he pointed it at her.

The girl said he responded by punching her in the groin. The man's 14-year-old son said he hit his father when the girl was knocked on the floor.

The man said he had discovered the loss of 20 or 30 of his pills that morning, and had accused his daughter as he thought either she or her 18-year-old boyfriend had stolen the pills. He said his children had assaulted him unprovoked, and that he had not hit them.

The man was arrested for domestic violence, and a safehouse worker was contacted about the children.

On Saturday, the man called police to report that 70 of his pills were missing. He named his daughter's boyfriend as a possible suspect, as well as two boys 14 and 15 years old.

During his interview with police, the man gave several different amounts for the numbers of pills missing.

The man's doctor said he had begun seeing the man recently, and that the man had shifted among many different doctors and pharmacies.

Larceny

A 15-year-old Grass Lake boy was caught May 25 riding a stolen bike and stealing from parked cars

Officers were dispatched when an employee of Polly's, 1101 S. Main St., called to report a boy riding a bicycle through the parking lot of the store, looking into parked cars.

Witnesses told the officer that the boy had then ridden over to the parking lot of Pamida, 1040 S. Main St.

A 19-year-old man and a 43-year-old man said they saw the boy take something from a car parked in that lot.

Officers then were contacted by a security guard at the Chrysler Proving Grounds. The guard said he had heard radio traffic about the boy, who was then found in the Chrysler parking lot.

The guard held the boy until police arrived. They found a cellular phone in his pocket, which turned out to belong to a 45-year-old Gregory woman.

Officers also found that the bicycle the boy was riding had been stolen from Beach Middle School earlier that day.

The boy said he didn't know where the bicycle had come from, but admitted to stealing the cellular phone. The boy could face criminal charges on both thefts.

Property Damage

On May 31, an employee of Chinese Tonite, 1127 S. Main St., found that he was unable to put his key in the lock of his car door.

Police were dispatched to the restaurant and spoke with the man. They found that a branch had been broken off in the lock, making the mechanism inaccessible.

Dexter Village

Property Damage

On May 23, a Washtenaw County sheriff's deputy was dispatched to the Railway Express Agency, 3487 Broad St., on a report of property damage.

A 52-year-old man said he had left the business two days earlier, and when he returned found two outer windows and two interior window broken by a rock. Total damage was estimated at $200.

Found Property

A 61-year-old man called the sheriff's department on May 31 to report that a bicycle was left in his yard in the 2300 block of Webster Road.

The man said he had noticed it three days before, but waited to see if the owner would return for it.

A deputy retrieved the bicycle, which had not been reported stolen. The silver 10-speed bicycle is being held in the sheriff's property room.

Dexter Township

Break-in

A 26-year-old Howell man employed at a building site was named as the suspect in a May 24 theft from the site.

A 34-year-old Ypsilanti man called the sheriff's department to report the theft of several power tools from the site of a house under construction. The man said the suspect had been hired to hang drywall on the house, but was doing an unsatisfactory job.

Following a discussion of the suspect's work on May 23, the older man said he discovered the tools missing the next morning. He called the suspect, who denied any knowledge of the incident, but did not return to work.

A neighbor said he had seen a man matching the suspect's description at the site after hours the night before.

The deputy was unable to contact the suspect, and the case is open pending an interview with the man. The value of the missing items was estimated at $690.

Drunken Driving

A traffic stop on May 25 for a 34-year-old Pinckney man turned up three prior drunken-driving convictions.

A deputy on patrol stopped the man on Dexter-Pinckney Road near McGregor Road for speeding. The deputy noticed that the man had a hard time finding necessary paperwork.

In addition, the deputy noted that the man smelled strongly of alcohol. The man said he had not had anything to drink and attributed the smell to kissing his girlfriend, who was drunk.

The man performed poorly on field sobriety tests, and a preliminary breath test showed a blood-alcohol content of 0.20 percent, twice the legal limit under Michigan law. A search of the man's car turned up a partially empty bottle of peppermint schnapps.

The man's driving record showed three prior drunken-driving convictions and one conviction for driving under the influence of a controlled substance. A report was sent to the prosecutor's office.

Lima Township

Arson

The Chelsea Fire Department was dispatched to a boat fire Friday on an anonymous tip, and the sheriff's department is investigating the incident as possible arson.

The incident, on Four-Mile Lake Access Road, left a $5,000 boat destroyed. The boat was unrecognizable, and the sheriff's department was searching for the owner.

A pool of an oil-gas mixture was found underneath the boat, and partially burnt wood and paper filled the boat's shell.

The case remains open.

Drunken Driving

A deputy on patrol Saturday stopped a 20-year-old Jackson man for crossing the centerline on Dexter-Chelsea Road near Parker Road.

The deputy noted that the man smelled strongly of intoxicants and that his eyes were bloodshot. He showed mixed results on field sobriety tests, but a preliminary breath test showed a blood-alcohol content of 0.124 percent, above Michigan's legal limit.

The man begged the deputy to take him back to a wedding he had been attending, but the deputy arrested the man and took him to jail, to be released when he was sober. The man had one prior drunken-driving conviction.

Lyndon Township

Reckless Driving

A 52-year-old woman may have been injured while trying to keep teen-agers from speeding down a private road May 19.

The woman said she was disturbed about the number of drivers using Herrst Lane and Meadowview Court as shortcuts from Freer Road to Trinkle Road. She said that young drivers especially had been speeding on the roads and doing doughnuts in the area.

The woman told a sheriff's deputy that she decided to stop motorists May 19, and blocked one lane of the intersection of Herrst and Meadowview with her car.

When she saw two cars speeding toward the intersection, she got out of her car and stood in the road, signaling for them to stop. One car drove onto an adjacent lawn to get past.

The second car slowed down to pass by, and the woman said the driver, a 17-year-old Dexter boy, began yelling at her, saying she had no right to stop traffic.

The woman said the boy then drove into her slowly, hitting her knees with his front bumper. As another area resident, a 40-year-old woman, drove up, the boy backed up then drove through the nearby yard to pass. The woman said she did not have any signs of internal injuries.

The boy denied hitting the woman in the legs, and said the woman had been yelling at him. The deputy warned the boys to stay off the private roads, and told the woman she could be injured trying to stop cars. He advised her instead to form a neighborhood road association and put up signs.

Scio Township

Warrant Arrest

On June 1, 18-year-old Ryan Patterson of Dexter came to the sheriff's department to turn himself in. Patterson was wanted on a felony warrant for assault out of 22nd Circuit Court in Ann Arbor. He was taken to the county jail.

Marijuana Possession

While investigating a possible underage party Saturday, a sheriff's deputy found a car idling in the rear of a subdivision under development.

The driver of the car, an 18-year-old man, said he and his passenger, also an 18-year-old man, had pulled into the area to fix the cars muffler. When asked why he would choose such a remote spot, the driver said he didn't know.

The deputy noticed that the passenger seemed unusually nervous, and asked the man if he had any contraband on him. The man said he did not.

The deputy then patted the passenger down, finding a film canister in the man's pocket. When asked what was in the canister, the man said it was probably a little hashish. The deputy looked inside and saw a substance he believed to be marijuana.

A search of the vehicle turned up a pipe used to smoke marijuana. The passenger was arrested and taken to the county jail. The pipe and the substance believed to be marijuana were sent to a police lab for testing. The case is open pending test results and prosecutor's review.

Stolen Vehicle Recovered

A stolen car was retrieved and the thief nabbed after a pursuit by Saline police May 28.

The theft was discovered by a 30-year-old employee of Varsity Ford. He went to the lot where the dealership stores its cars and found that someone had broken into a shed where keys were kept.

The owner of the dealership said he already knew a car had been stolen from the lot when Saline police recovered the car following a chase. He also told a sheriff's deputy he wanted to prosecute the thief, a 20-year-old Whitmore Lake man.

Larceny

Two 17-year-old Chelsea girls paid a high price for a movie May 29.

The girls told a sheriff's deputy that when they left a movie at the Quality 16 movie theater, 3686 Jackson Road, they found they had been robbed.

The car they had ridden in had been broken into, with stereo equipment, a cellular phone, a radar detector, a purse and 100 CDs missing.

The driver said she knew the vehicle had been locked, but found it unlocked. She had no idea who the culprit could have been.

The value of missing property was estimated at $2,900.

Webster Township

Break-in

A 36-year-old woman called the sheriff's department June 1 to report a theft of more than $10,000 in horse equipment, including a $7,000 saddle.

The woman said she stored the equipment in the basement of her home during the winter. She said about three weeks before, her husband had broken a basement window, replacing it temporarily with a tarp.

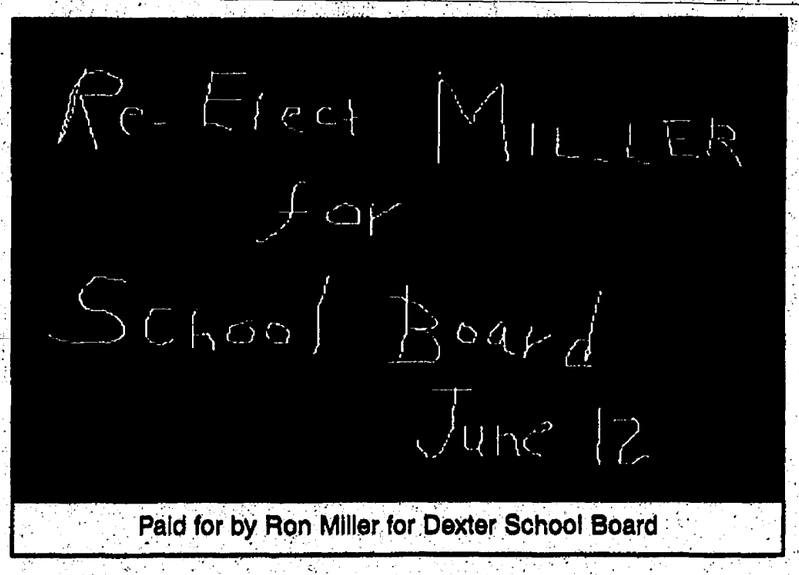

The woman said she discovered the loss May 30, when she was preparing her trailer for a horse show. She initially thought she might have misplaced the equipment, but a search of barns and trailers did not turn up anything.

She said she then knew the equipment had been in the basement, and found that the tarp had been pulled away from the wall.

A sheriff's deputy contacted local businesses that sell horse equipment, in case the thief tries to resell the saddle or any other equipment. The value of stolen property was estimated at $10,595.

We're Not That Kind of Lutherans!

Dear Friends and Neighbors,

On a trip to Wisconsin last month, I was presented with a copy of the May 6 Milwaukee Journal Sentinel. The front page headline was, "Lutheran Group Blesses Gay and Lesbian Unions."

I believe it is of utmost importance that I, on behalf of Faith Lutheran Church and of my Lutheran church body, state very clearly: THAT'S NOT US! The Bible makes it very clear that homosexuality is sinful and contrary to God's will, and that anyone living the homosexual lifestyle has turned their back on God and is outside His kingdom.

Faith Lutheran Church belongs to the Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod (WELS). We believe that the Bible is not to be explained away, even when it conflicts with modern opinions.

Our church harbors no hatred for homosexual people. We recognize the Lord calls us to love all people, and that homosexual orientation is not necessarily a person's choice. We also recognize that homosexuality is no greater a sin than sex between heterosexuals who are not married to each other. We further recognize that the blood of Jesus, God's Son, purifies us from all sin, and that there is forgiveness for homosexuals as well as for heterosexuals who repent their sin. Those who come to faith in Christ will prove their repentance by leaving behind their immoral lifestyles.

Homosexuality is not the main issue in the Bible; I've rarely mentioned it in a sermon. But if a church body can go so blatantly against the Bible by "blessing committed same-gender relationships," how can that church body possibly be trusted to stay with the Gospel of Jesus Christ for eternal salvation? How could anyone who claims to believe the Bible stay in such a church body? It's time for Americans to wake up and find out what's going on in their church bodies - and not just Lutherans, but all denominations.

If you're disturbed by the moral slide of our society and at least would like a church that is based on Biblical faith and values, please visit us. Worship is Sunday morning, 10:00 a.m., and beginning June 21, also Wednesday evenings at 7:30 p.m.

Spooner says finding identity helps choose path

By Jon Spooner
Commencement Speaker

Welcome faculty and staff, friends and family of the graduates, and most importantly, the graduates. Everyone here has come to watch us, the class of 2000, graduate. It seems impossible to think that we won't all be here in the fall. It still hasn't hit me that there won't be any more hanging out in Mr. Scheese's room, no more Phil Fishburn jokes, no more old grandpa days, or getting my fall wardrobe at Value Village. Well, actually I might still do that.

In Lewis Carroll's classic, "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland," Alice finds herself coming to a crossroads with two paths before her, each stretching onward but in opposite directions. Alice is confronted by the Cheshire Cat, of whom Alice asks, "Which path shall I take?"

The cat answers, "That depends on where you want to go. If you do not know where you want to go, it doesn't really matter which path you take." We've come to a crossroads in our lives with many more than two roads before us, but we can't be like Alice. We need to know where we want to go, so we know which path we want to take.

While we are in high school our lives are spent doing only three things — eating, sleeping, and finding our identity. If we aren't sleeping or eating, we are doing what we think defines who we are. Sometimes, we define ourselves by what sport we play, by our grades, by what we have, the car we drive or what we wear. Who we are may determine how we play a sport, or how we treat our teammates, but a sport, grades or a car doesn't define us. Sometimes, we get labeled and assigned to a specific group and people won't let us break out of that group. But now is the time to choose whether to stay on that path or choose a different one, not taking a path simply because it was suggested by the Cheshire Cat, but making an informed decision about the path we take.

I have here in my hand a brand new crisp $50 bill that I received for a graduation present. Raise your hands if you'd like to have it! Well, before you answer too quickly, let me do this. (crumple) Who wants it now? Well, now wait a minute, what if I do this (grind it on the floor. Now, who wants it? As expected, no matter what I would do to this money, you would still be willing to take it off my hands. That's because no matter what I could do to this money, it does not decrease in value. It will still be worth $50. Many times in our lives, we are crumpled, dropped, and ground down by the choices we make and the circumstances we find ourselves in. Sometimes we feel as though we are worthless and alone. But no matter what has happened to us, what group we've been assigned to, or what bad choices we've made, we will never lose our value. Dirty or clean, crumpled or creased, we are still of value to those who love us. The worth of our lives comes not in what we do, what we have, what we wear, or who we know, but by who we are. We are the only class of 2000; there will never be another one.

The decisions we've made may have determined what kind of experience we had in high school, but our past decisions don't have to determine our future. We can make wise choices from now on, take what we've learned and use it, and add to it. It won't be all fun. It will be like an old time train ride, continuous stops and starts, a lot of smoke, cinders and dust, but occasional vistas of grandeur.

We come to the end of high school and it is truly sad to leave. We may be leaving friends that we will never see again, but we have the chance to deliberately, not accidentally, follow a path to new friends and opportunities, to change our own lives and improve the lives of those around us.

Thank you for giving me this opportunity to speak. It has been a privilege and an honor to spend these four years here. I've only missed a half day of high school in these four years, so my parents have figured out what I'm really good at — showing up. I'm certainly happy to show up today. I hope you know that it has been a pleasure to know you, through fun times and hard times, that we should look back without regret, be grateful for our challenges, and look forward with determination. Thank you.

CHS alumni excel after graduation

Tara Zyburt, daughter of Jeffrey and Nancy Zyburt of Chelsea, received class honors from Ohio Northern University in a recent honors program. Zyburt is a freshman majoring in biology in the university's Getty College of Arts and Sciences.

James Tallman of Chelsea, Andrew Scott of Pinckney, John Farren Jr. of Pinckney, Alexander La Bute of Pinckney and Erich Bauer of Whitmore Lake were named to the dean's honor list for fall 1999 in the University of Michigan College of Engineering.

Ron Montagne of Chelsea received a bachelor's degree in general studies from Madonna University on May 6. Montagne, who had previously worked as a builder, is the father of four.

Andrew Ludwig and Ryan Ludwig, both of Chelsea, graduated in May from the University of Findlay in Findlay, Ohio. Andrea received a bachelor's degree in art education, while Ryan received a bachelor's degree in criminal justice.

Russell Blackwell, son of Frank and Rose Blackwell of Grass Lake, received the John Wayne Stringer Award in English from Albion College in May. The award recognizes exceptional academic and personal achievement during the school year. Blackwell, a CHS graduate and now a sophomore majoring in English, is also a member of the Ford Institute for Public Policy and Service.

Angela Tanner graduated with honors from Kent State University, with a bachelor's degree of science in architecture, as well as a bachelor's degree in architecture. Tanner, a 1995 graduate of Chelsea High School, has been accepted to Harvard University's master's degree program in landscape architecture for fall 2000.

More than 2,800 students, including approximately 1,370 undergraduates, completed requirements for degrees at Vanderbilt University during the past year.

Those degrees were conferred by Chancellor Joe B. Wyatt during the May 12 commencement exercises, which marked the completion of the 125th year of classes at Vanderbilt.

Sara Mead of Chelsea joined other undergraduate students in receiving bachelor's degrees from the College of Arts and Science, Blair School of Music, School of Engineering or Peabody College of education and human development.

If the library wins support for a renovation bond in an election, the architectural firm selected would then begin work on the second phase of renovations.

With that in mind, the bids also included preliminary information on phase two costs. Library Director Metta Lansdale said the bids with lower costs for phase one were generally higher for the second phase of the project, while higher bids usually projected lower costs later.

Sprawka said the library's fund-raising committee was hoping to defray some of the costs with community donations, rather than asking for them in bond money.

"The voters here are generous, and we hope the community will support fund-raising in place of borrowing," she said.

She said the library hasn't set a timetable for the renovation, but the board is keeping in mind that the clock is ticking on the lease for the library's temporary home at the Washington Street Education Center.

Ride set for Chelsea area

The Chelsea police will be leading the way in the third annual Thin Blue Line Ride on June 18. More than 1,200 motorcyclists from across the state are expected to participate in the event, which will begin at the Chelsea Fairgrounds and wind its way along 80 miles of area roads.

The ride benefits the Thin Blue Line, an organization that helps law enforcement officers injured in accidents, the children of officers who incur medical costs beyond insurance coverage and the families of officers killed in the line of duty.

Anyone interested in the event can contact the Thin Blue Line of Michigan, P.O. Box 42, Adrian, MI 49221, or call (517) 265-1787. Information and advance registration forms are available at the Chelsea police department.

Close family means wisdom nearby

MARYANNE LAWRENCE

HOME FRONT

My dear readers,

When I began writing this column, I did so with the hope that it would initiate intelligent discussion between parents within our readership. Throughout history, successful parenthood has relied upon such discussion and sharing. Until men and women began moving away from home and staying away, raising a family included being part of an extended family, with all the communal experience and wisdom that came along with it.

Job transfers and out-of-town or out-of-state college attendance have contributed a great deal to the separation of parents from their children, and siblings from one another. Leaving the nest is expected and encouraged today. We go where the money is, as the saying goes. While this separation has made for a more independent society and a more accepting society where differences are not so distinct or frowned upon, we have lost the benefits of running down the street or even down the steps for maternal advice. For many, mothers, aunts, sisters, cousins, are scattered all over the state, the country, or even the world.

My son made a comment to me the other day as we were driving down the road. It makes an interesting point. Very young children have no concept of time. When they want something, they want it now. At that moment, as I was taking him to preschool, Andrew announced he wanted Papa (his name for his grandfather) to take him to school. Never mind that Papa was working or that he lived several miles away.

It reminded me of my own early school days when my grandfather, who was retired, walked me to school on several occasions. Grandpa and grandma lived less than a mile away, down the block, over the railroad tracks, around the box factory, up a couple blocks, second house off the corner. It probably took my grandfather quite a while to make the walk, but he did it anyway. And I took his proximity for granted. When I grew older, I often made the walk myself when things were boring or when I was fighting with my parents.

Grandpa died when I was nine. It was the beginning of a new phase of my life which would only end in adulthood. My sister and I formed the habit of spending the night with my grandmother several times a month. When I entered my preteen years, my family moved in with my grandmother for a couple of months, after my father had sold our house and we had nowhere to go. My parents and older brother stayed for about two months, but my sister and I stayed for nearly a year.

As my parents had moved several cities away, overnight visits became more frequent. We did chores around the house, had our own bed and dresser. All our favorite food was there. It was in every way our second home.

In the same way, my uncle's home was our third home. With six children, my uncle and aunt had their hands full, but never too full for a couple more. This house was around the corner from my grandparents', so summer sleep-overs were usually divided between the two.

This closeness afforded opportunity for sharing between my mother, aunt and grandmother, but I am sure the men also confided their problems to one another.

Since then, fatherhood has changed. Working mothers rely on their husbands to split the responsibility for keeping the home and raising the children. Women who are away from their families rely on their husbands for support and advice.

For various reasons, mothers and fathers have been sharing stories and swapping advice whenever they can. Sharing and confiding our everyday disasters and successes, ideas and philosophies, opens us up to new possibilities for growing as parents.

That is one of the reasons I began writing this column. For those of you who have been reading since its inception, or for those who can remember my first column, I extended an invitation to my readers. I hoped that the column would provide an opportunity for discussions on parenthood, based on reader feedback. Unfortunately, I haven't heard much.

So I am offering you another invitation. I know you are busy. I know you have been bringing home the bacon and your social calendar is full, but maybe you can spare a few minutes for your fellow mothers and fathers. Maybe you have a suggestion for a column, a story to tell, or maybe just a pet peeve to air. You can send a letter to the Chelsea Standard/Dexter Leader, 20750 Old US-12 Chelsea, MI, 48118, e-mail editor@chelseastandard.com, or call (734) 475-1371.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

All parents should ask for school nurse

In response to the concerns of many parents, the Chelsea School District is beginning to consider the addition of a school nurse to its staff. I would like to encourage every person in this community who cares about the health and safety of students to continue to speak out to the school district administration and school board about this important need.

As has been learned, a school nurse can play a key role in developing strong, clear policies and guidelines in a number of significant areas. Such a qualified health professional can work in partnership with other school staff to provide in-service training, including better education regarding proper dispensing of medications to students.

Students with serious chronic conditions like asthma and diabetes could be more carefully followed. A nurse can improve crisis intervention, coordination of appropriate resources and referrals, and participate in the general classroom health education curriculum, especially areas like substance abuse education, mental health, reproductive health and nutrition.

Without detailing a much longer list of benefits to students, it is evident that we can and must increase the quality of knowledge and protection to all of our students.

While the administration and school board continue their commitment to research the direction to take, I urge them to remember that our children are priceless. It is my hope that dedicated attention will be given to finding resources as the school board holds a public hearing on the proposed 2000/2001 budget, on June 12, at 7 p.m., in the Board Room.

I expect our leadership to use responsibility, vision and open-minded creativity to explore all possible funding sources for a full-time school nurse position. Again, my thanks to everyone for their support, and all the positive difference we can make!

Potpourri pleasing to eyes, nose

M.S.U. EXTENSION SERVICE

GARDEN CORNER

Potpourris, those aromatic mixtures of dried plant materials, are easy and inexpensive to make, and many of the ingredients can be found in your garden, in woods and fields, and in your own kitchen.

The basics of potpourris are few, says Mary McLellan, Master Gardener program coordinator at Michigan State University. They are aromatic plant materials, thoroughly dried; decorative plant materials, thoroughly dried; other aromatic ingredients, such as whole spices, chips of pleasant-smelling wood and bits of citrus peel; essential oils; and fixative, which combines with the essential oils to preserve their fragrance.

Except for the fixative and essential oils, most of the ingredients are free for the picking.

Aromatic plant materials include such things as rose petals, marigold flowers and foliage, scented geraniums, lavender, mints, fragrant herbs of all kids and evergreen needles.

"You can use almost any plant material for its scent, color or shape," McLellan says, "as long as it's thoroughly dried so your mixture doesn't mold."

Dry by hanging plant materials upside down in bunches in a cool, well-ventilated area, spreading them on paper towels in a well-ventilated spot out of direct sun, or placing them between layers of paper towels in a microwave oven. Then combine them with whole cloves or stick cinnamon, bits of cedar bark, and visually interesting items such as gum tree seed pods and pine cones.

To this mixture you then add a fixative and a few drops of a compatible essential oil for a stronger, longer lasting scent than the dried ingredients alone can provide, McLellan says.

The most common fixative is orris root, which should be available wherever you purchase the essential oils. It's sold in powdered or chunk form. Chunks tend to be effective longer and work better in sachets or pillows because they can't sift through the fabric as the powdered form can.

Because materials have to be collected and dried, making potpourri from gathered materials is not a spur-of-the-moment project, McLellan says. On the other hand, you don't have to wait for a particular time to start collecting — you can start accumulating the dried ingredients any time.

Needles from a discarded Christmas tree can be the beginning. Then rose petals from a Valentine's Day or Mother's Day bouquet, marigolds from the garden, Queen Anne's lace from the roadside, bittersweet berries from a backyard vine, chrysanthemum blossoms, weed seeds and pine cones — collect whenever the opportunity presents itself. Then dry the materials and store them in tightly sealed glass containers (canning jars are good) in a spot where they'll be protected from heat and sunlight.

Mix the desired materials in a glass or ceramic bowl or a sturdy plastic bag. Follow a recipe or invent your own. Be sure to write down the ingredients and the quantities you use in case you ever want to recreate a given mixture, McLellan suggests.

Stir the mixture with a wooden spoon or shake it gently in the plastic bag. Then put it in jars, along with the fixative and essential oil, close the jars and shake well. Label and store in a cool, dry place and shake daily.

Let the potpourri age for at least a month before you use it, she suggests. If the scent is fainter than you want, put another drop or two of oil on a little fixative, add it to the mixture, shake and age some more.

Potpourri is often placed in cloth bags or sachets for use in closets and dresser drawers. It can also be used in shallow bowls or decorative glass containers to add fragrance to a room. This is where visually interesting items such as strawflowers, Queen Anne's lace flowers, dried berries, seed pods and cones come into the picture. They make the mixture pleasing to the eye as well as the nose.

Kidney foundation seeks car donations

Michigan residents can turn their "lemons" æ used cars, trucks, motorcycles, and boats æ into lemonade this summer for people who are suffering from kidney disease.

By donating these "lemons" to the National Kidney Foundation of Michigan, car owners help raise money to fight kidney disease, have their unwanted vehicle towed away for free, and may be eligible to receive a tax deduction.

Donating a used car is an environmentally friendly way to get rid of an unwanted vehicle. The removal of used cars and trucks prevents hazardous fluids from entering ground water, and improves the appearance of local neighborhoods. A majority of the proceeds from the donation helps fund programs and services for kidney patients in local communities.

You can donate a car, truck, motorcycle, or boat through the Kidney Cars Program and join the fight against kidney disease. Donating a vehicle is simple, easy and completely free. Vehicles must have their titles. For more information, please call (800) 488- 2277.

The National Kidney Foundation of Michigan benefits from the donation of each vehicle. In Michigan alone, there are more than 8,700 patients on dialysis and more than 1,700 awaiting life-saving kidney transplants. Through programs in research, patient services, organ donation, professional education and public information, the foundation brings help and hope to thousands of Michigan residents.

The National Kidney Foundation of Michigan is committed to the prevention, detection, treatment and eventual cure of all kidney diseases.

Elizabeth Wagenschutz
Staff Writer

Of the 207 members of the class of 2000, 125 received awards and scholarships during the annual Class Night June 2.

There were 411 awards given to the students. Vice Principal Robyn Raymond led the Class Night ceremony, and many teachers and local organization representatives were on hand to present the students with their awards.

The 2000 senior film, produced by graduate Jeremy Bacon, was also shown. The film included baby pictures of almost every senior and was set to music, including the senior class song "Here I Go Again, On My Own" by Whitesnake.

Below is a list of the students who received honors.

Deborah Adams was awarded the President's Education Award, the Michigan High School Athletic Association Scholar-Athlete award for girls swimming and diving, the Vilate Olson Scholarship, a Chelsea Scholarship Committee Award, the Michigan Merit Award and a Chelsea Education Foundation Academic Scholarship. She received the University Scholar Award from Brigham Young University, and graduated summa cum laude.

Owen Anderson was named a 2000 United States Physics Team nominee and won the Michigan Merit Award.

Erin Anthony received a Michigan Merit Award.

Joseph Arend won the Michigan High School Athletic Association Scholar-Athlete Award for boys tennis, a Chelsea Scholarship Committee award, the Michigan Merit Award and two CHS Scholar-Athlete awards for boys tennis and boys soccer. He graduated cum laude.

Mora Arnold received a Michigan Merit Award and a Kiwanis Scholar-Athlete Award.

Jeremy Bacon won the Career Training Foundation: Imagine America 2000 Scholarship.

Timothy Bailey received a Michigan Merit Award.

Robert Baird received the Outstanding Senior Award in choir and a Chelsea Center for the Development of the Arts award. He won the Ford Dependent Scholarship Program, an L.D.A. Scholarship and a T.I.P. Award. He also won an Eastern Michigan University Alexander Talent Award.

Alan Bairley received the President's Education Award, the Michigan High School Athletic Association Scholar-Athlete Award for football, a Michigan Merit Award and the U.S. Military Academy offer of admission. He was named a 2000 U.S. Physics Team nominee and a Gene LaFave Football Scholarship finalist. He graduated magna cum laude.

Samantha Barlow received a Merit Award, a Knights of Columbus Scholarship and an Eastern Michigan University Eagle Leadership Award.

Kristine Barner received a state tuition grant.

Erik Barnes received a Michigan Merit Award and a Center for Creative Studies scholarship.

Ryan Barwick won a Michigan Merit Award, a Kiwanis Scholar-Athlete Award, the Chelsea Athletic Boosters Coaches Award and was named the Gene LaFave Football Scholarship winner.

Collin Bertram received a Michigan Merit Award.

Laura Borden received a Central Michigan University Board of Trustees Honors Scholarship, a Concordia University Presidential Scholarship, the Michigan High School Athletic Association Scholar-Athlete Award for girls track and field, a Michigan Merit Award and the UAW #1284 Scholarship. She graduated magna cum laude.

Lindsay Boyce received a Michigan Merit Award.

Ryan Braidwood received the President's Education Award, the Michigan High School Athletic Association Scholar-Athlete Award for boys soccer, the Southeastern Conference All-Academic Award, Outstanding Senior awards in choir and mathematics, a Michigan Merit Award and a Chelsea Kiwanis Club Scholarship. He received a University of Michigan Regents Merit Scholarship and was named a 2000 U.S. Physics Team nominee. He graduated summa cum laude.

The Chelsea Education Foundation presents many scholarships each year. Recipients in the class of 2000 are Diane Richardson, Walter P. and Helen May Leonard Scholarship; Ben Heumann, Robert W. Wagner Engineering Scholarship; Melody Whitaker, the Brewster Earl Peabody Scholarship Award; Andrew Thiel, Robert W. Nancy McKinnon's professional fate was set early in life. Her grandmother was a teacher in a one-room schoolhouse and her aunt taught in Saginaw. Although she never got to visit their classrooms, the seed was planted. Today, McKinnon teaches third-graders at South Meadows Elementary School.

McKinnon's professional fate set early

TEACHER FEATURE

By Michelle Rogers
Associate Editor

Nancy McKinnon has teachers' blood running through her veins and ever since she can remember wanted to embark on a career in education.

"I think I've always known I wanted to be a teacher," says McKinnon, who teaches third grade at South Meadows Elementary School. "I was one of those kids who loved school. I thought it was the greatest place to be."

Her grandmother taught in a one-room schoolhouse before getting married and her aunt was a teacher in Saginaw.

"I never saw their classrooms, but I used to go to my aunt's house to make decorations for her classroom," she recalls.

While working as a receptionist and dental assistant in high school, McKinnon considered a career in dentistry.

"I always kind of knew I wanted to be a teacher, but there was a short time I thought maybe I'd be a dental hygienist because I worked for a dentist," she says. "But that's not what I wanted to do with my life. I wanted to be with children."

McKinnon got an early taste of her future career as a high school student while helping out in a second-grade classroom.

"I had a free period in the day, and I am not the type to just sit around, so I went to my counselor and asked if I could go to the elementary school down the block and help in a classroom," she recalls.

The experience sealed her fate. McKinnon says she fell in love with the students and teaching profession in general.

"The kids were just so open and truthful and excited about learning," she recalls. "They loved their teacher."

That summer McKinnon continued to explore the career while working in a reading program for elementary school students.

With her mind made up, she attended Central Michigan University and, in 1970, earned a bachelor's degree in English and biology. McKinnon has since taken graduate courses in early childhood education at Oakland University and Eastern Michigan University.

McKinnon started her career that year in Clarkston, teaching kindergarten. She stayed for three years when a move to Ann Arbor landed her a position in Brighton schools. McKinnon taught sixth grade there for three years then took time off to start a family.

She returned to the profession in 1986, teaching preschool through Chelsea Community Education. In 1989, she was hired to teach kindergarten in Chelsea schools.

McKinnon says teaching younger children is where she has found her niche. "I like the younger children. I guess I relate to them better," she says. "It's the age I've always enjoyed."

A native of Vassar, in Michigan's thumb area, McKinnon says it was her dream to teach in a small town. The family settled in Chelsea 18 years ago.

"I grew up in a small town and I really liked that — the sense of community," she says. "I just think there is something special about a small town."

Three years ago, McKinnon gave up kindergarten at South Meadows for third grade. She made the move when staff changes were made throughout the school district with the opening of Pierce Lake Elementary School.

"There was an opening in third grade and talk of moving kindergarten to a center at the old high school, and I really didn't want to be there," she recalls. "I wanted to be in a school where I could see my former students grow. That's a thrill for me. I like to see their development.

"I also had been told by other teachers that third grade is a great year. The kids are at a neat age. They're reading and willing to tackle more curriculum and take on more responsibility. So, I thought I'd do it. I also wanted a little bit of a change to challenge myself."

McKinnon's favorite subjects to teach are reading, science and Chelsea history. "I like anything that provides a lot of hands-on activities," she says.

McKinnon is able to combine her interests in English and science with a unit called "Mysteries of the Deep." Students read three stories, write up facts about sea creatures, type up the information and draw the critters for a display that shows off what they've learned.

The Chelsea history project is one of her favorites because, besides giving students a first-hand experience, McKinnon learns more about the communi-

21ST ANNUAL SPORTS PHYSICAL DAY

WEDNESDAY
JUNE 14, 2000
U-M CHELSEA FAMILY PRACTICE CENTER

Grades six through twelve:

Last Name Begins With:	Report At:
A-H	1:15 P.M.
I-P	2:15 P.M.
Q-Z	3:15 P.M.

A cost of $5 is to be paid at the time of the examination. Physical forms are available at the family practice center and the Athletic Director's office. Health history on the physical form must be completed prior to the physical examination.

This examination is intended to detect any significant health problems which would prevent a student from participating in athletics, and to meet the Michigan High School Athletic Association guidelines requiring an annual physical. This is not intended to serve as a substitute for a comprehensive health evaluation by your regular physician.

We regret that we are unable to offer a second date for those out of town on June 14, 2000.

VIEWS ON DENTAL HEALTH
GARY GOCHANOUR, D.D.S.
426-8336

ONE TOOTH CAN MATTER

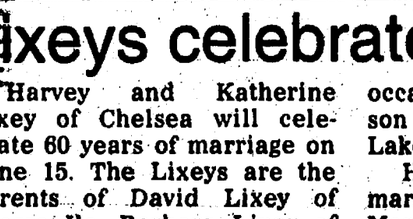

Maybe your teeth are free of decay and your gums are healthy, but you have one tooth right in the front of your mouth that's unattractive. It may be chipped or discolored. Or maybe it's been twisted out of shape for some reason or is longer than it need be. Don't let it detract from your appearance. Ask your dentist what can be done about it.

A tooth that is longer than it need be, for instance, can look like a "fang." It may even give you an "angry" look when you open your mouth. This tooth can be shortened and reshaped, and what a difference it will make in your smile! The same goes for a tooth that has been rotated or twisted out of shape. The problem may be that it doesn't blend symmetrically with your other teeth. Your dentist can solve this problem for you.

Chipped or discolored teeth can be unsightly, no matter where they happen to be in your mouth, but especially if they are up front where they show easily. Chips can be repaired, and discolored teeth can be bleached and colored to look natural again. Ask your dentist about it.

Creativity at Work

More than 100 parents, teachers and students attended the annual Creative Writing Reading Program recently held at Pierce Lake Elementary School. A total of 32 fourth- and fifth-graders from Chelsea's three elementary schools read papers they had written during the past year while taking part in the creative writing segment of the Talent Development Program. Topics ranged from poetry, a baseball report, fictitious stores and reports of spring trips. Sponsors of the Talent Development Program are the Chelsea School District and the state. The Chelsea Education Foundation funds the writing program with the Parent Teachers Association, with teachers lending their help. Pictured at the event are fifth-graders Alex Doering and Stephanie Dotts.

Summer Fest set July 28-29

The 2000 Chelsea Summer Fest has finalized its entertainment and has exciting things planned for the upcoming festival.

This year's event will be taking place July 28-29 in and around downtown Chelsea.

"This year's Summer Fest line-up is fantastic," said Steve Daut, entertainment chairman for the event. "We have tried to offer something for families and adults."

The Summer Fest's family entertainment includes local favorites Colors the Clown, Jeff Boyer Magic Show, Jeremy Allan Kittel, Roots & Wings and Power's Pony Rides.

Other family entertainment includes PAWS, the Detroit Tigers Mascot, Ann Arbor native Leslie Frederick, who will be performing folk and pop music, the nationally known musician and storyteller Laz from Gemini and returning Yo-Master Zeemo, who will dazzle you with his yo-yo antics.

For the adults, things kick-off 4 p.m., Friday night, with the In The Pocket Band, featuring legendary musician Billy "Soulman" Kennedy. In The Pocket is a soulful, high-energy band that will delight you with its selection of Motown, blues, pop, jazz and top 40. The Sea Cruisers return Friday evening at 7 p.m. to bring back memories as they perform hits from the '60s and '70s.

On Saturday, Steve Somers Band, featuring lead vocalist Valerie Barrymore, starts things rockin' at 4 p.m. with a selection of soul-flavored R & B, blues, rock and top 40. Capping off the evenings at 7 p.m. is Bobby Lewis & The Crackerjack Band. Offering a unique mix of classic rock, jazz and blues, this band was proclaimed by the late Detroit Free Press columnist Bob Talbert as one of the "Detroit area's top 10 most respected bands."

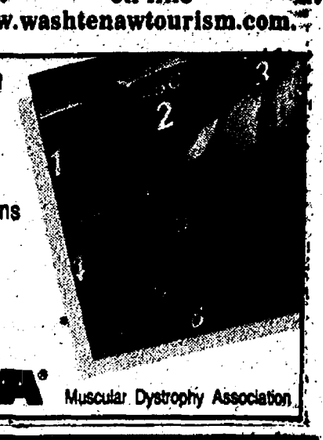

The Chelsea Summer Fest is sponsored by the Chelsea Merchants Association and would not be possible without the support of the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce and the village of Chelsea. For a detailed entertainment schedule, phone (800) 265-9045 or visit on-line at www.washtenawtourism.com.

Chelsea grads on dean's list

The outstanding academic achievements of undergraduates at Vanderbilt University have been honored with publication of the spring 2000 dean's lists for the College of Arts and Science, School of Engineering, Peabody College of Education and Human Development and Blair School of Music.

Liana Austin and Sara Mead of Chelsea are on the list.

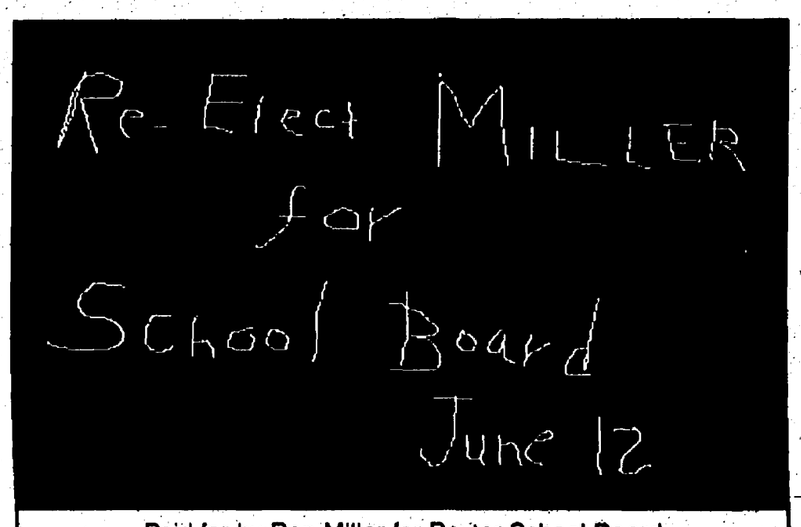

To qualify for the Arts and Science dean's list, students must receive grades equivalent to a 3.5 on a 4.0 scale for the semester.

In the School of Engineering at Peabody College, a minimum grade point average of 3.25 earns dean's list honors. Students with an average of 3.5 or better are recognized with high honors, and those with a perfect 4.0 average receive highest honors.

A 3.25 average is required for the Blair School of Music's dean's list.

Vanderbilt University is a private research university of approximately 5,900 undergraduates and 4,300 graduate and professional students.

Founded in 1873, the university comprises 10 schools, a public policy institute, a distinguished medical center and The Freedom Forum First Amendment Center. Vanderbilt, ranked as one of the nation's top universities, offers undergraduate programs in the liberal arts and sciences, engineering, music, education and human development, and a full range of graduate and professional degrees.

Reading Neighborhoods

MCKINNON

ty she now calls home.

"I like learning along with the kids," she says. "I learn from them. They teach me things about Chelsea. I've only been here 18 years. Some of their families have been here much longer."

As part of the unit, students walk downtown to see the buildings and learn about their history. This year, they also met with Chelsea artist Ben Bauer, who has done a series of watercolor paintings on the various Chelsea school buildings over the years. They also got to see an antique school desk and appliances on display at Chelsea First United Methodist Church.

"It's things the kids can touch and learn firsthand. It's exciting," McKinnon says.

This veteran educator describes her teaching style as structured but flexible.

"It's pretty structured in lessons but flexible in learning environment," she says. "Sometimes we (work in) whole groups, small groups, centers or individually. It depends on the lesson.

"They need to know the rules and what's expected of them, and that there is a time limit they have to get their work done," she says.

Although McKinnon now calls third grade home, she was just as happy teaching kindergarten.

"I absolutely love them both," she says. "You really can't compare them. They're so different."

This is the last year McKinnon will be teaching some of her former kindergartners.

"I am going to miss that," she says. "It has been very exciting to see how much they've grown since kindergarten."

What she enjoys most about teaching third grade is that she can delve deeper into the curriculum.

"It's the fact that they really can get interested in academics," she says. "They are really capable of learning new concepts and ideas, not just memorizing facts.

"They're at a fun age," she adds. "They like to tell jokes and kid around with me, and they're still young and impressionable."

The only hard rule in McKinnon's classroom is respect.

"They have to respect themselves and they have to respect others and other people's property," she says. "We talk about it all year long."

Students also know that in McKinnon's classroom you can never say, "I can't," you always say, "I'll try," she says.

"I tell them you never really learn anything the first time," she says. "You have to practice it."

In the end, McKinnon says she hopes students see her as fair and someone who cares about them. She says it's important to provide a safe learning environment where they feel comfortable.

"So they enjoy school," she says. "Their attitude about school is important to their lifelong learning process."

career are numerous, from seeing the students grasp a new concept to visiting Silver Maples retirement community, where students cross the generations to develop new bonds.

"In general, I would say the highlights are the excitement when the kids have mastered a new concept or lesson. The excitement shows in their faces, their voices and their body language," she says.

For the past few years, students in her class have visited Silver Maples' assisted living section.

"The residents love it and the kids love it," she says. "It's developing nice relationships between the two generations that are really special."

What McKinnon looks forward to is continuing in a career she absolutely loves and exploring better ways to teach.

"I am always looking for new and creative ideas to present lessons that will interest a child," she says. "I'd like to set up more centers in science, with more hands-on activities.

"I think my strengths are that I am a good team player," she adds. "I don't just sit in my room and do my own thing. I like to share ideas with other teachers. I am also open to suggestions and I try to be a good listener."

When McKinnon is not in the classroom, she can be found reading mysteries, walking her dog, baking and in-line skating at Hudson Mills. She is married to Dave, a real estate agent, and they have two daughters, Jill, 22, a Hope College graduate, and Kristen, 20, a sophomore at Western Michigan University.

Celebrity golf tourney to benefit St. Louis Center

Former professional football and baseball celebrities along with a former Olympic gold medal speed skater and current professional hockey pros will swing their clubs in honor of the boys and men at St. Louis Center with developmental disabilities at the sixth annual St. Louis Celebrity Golf Tournament on June 26.

The tournament will be held at 1 p.m. at the Fox Hills Country Club in Plymouth. Golfers will play on the Golden Fox Championship Course.

Former Detroit Tigers set to play include Steve Gromek, Fred Holdsworth, Gary Ignasiak, Mike Kilkenny, Bill Zepp, Milt Wilcox and Tom Timmerman. Former Detroit Lions taking part include Lem Barney, Leo Marentette, Tom Watkins, and Doug Gallagher. Olympic gold medal speed skater Terry McDermott, Detroit Red Wings star Darren McCarty, former University of Michigan football player Bill Dufek and former New York Yankees Bob Kuzava will round off the group.

Proceeds from the event will go to maintain services provided to the developmentally disabled boys and men who call St. Louis Center home. The St. Louis Center, a non-profit organization, is in Chelsea.

New manual helps teens

The Ann Arbor Mayor's Task Force on Increasing Safety for Women Youth Violence Prevention Committee in collaboration with Young Adults Health Center Inc. has published a manual called "The Sexual Assault Educational Resource Guide" to help provide accurate information concerning peer pressure, sexual coercion and sexual assault.

The manual is used in connection with The Corner Health Center's Theatre Troupe and The Adult Crisis Center, which are both located in Ypsilanti.

The guide provides information necessary to help educators, following an appearance by the troupe in their classrooms. The guide offers curriculum suggestions to reinforce students newly acquired knowledge of sexual assault, and where to go if they become a victim.

The Ann Arbor Mayor's Task Force on Increasing Safety for Women was established in 1995. It's housed in the City Administrator's Office and provides centralized support and leadership for a community-wide coalition.

The coalition includes local agencies that provide specialized services to survivors of domestic and sexual violence, local and university law enforcement, two major health systems, the county health department, secondary and higher education, business, clergy and other organizations.

The Corner Theatre Troupe was formed in 1982 and has performed for over 45,000 audience members since then. The troupe uses interactive theatre to educate teens on important health issues like alcohol and other drug use, STDs, HIV/AIDS, and violence prevention. By reaching teens on an emotional level, information is more readily integrated and accepted by audience members.

The Corner Health Center's mission is to help young people make healthy choices now and in the future by providing a broad range of basic health care support services and education.

The Corner Health Center sees young people ages 12-21 and their children, offering care for common health problems, birth control services, pregnancy care, and pediatric care; social work and other support services. Those support service include HIV testing and counseling; Women, Infants, and Children (WIC) Supplemental Food Program; and health education such as the teen theater troupe, "A Star Is Born" parenting education program, as well as outreach and community health education.

Funding for development of the resource guide was provided by the Ann Arbor Area Community Foundation, the city of Ann Arbor's Community Development Department, the Detroit Edison Foundation and the Michigan Department of Community Health.

'Dogs end season

Senior Jeff Kolodica hammers one out in Chelsea's 7-4 win over Ann Arbor Huron.

By Colleen O'Neill
Special Writer

It was an awesome season.

The 2000 Chelsea varsity baseball team has gone into the record books in several different categories including giving head Coach Wayne Welton his 500th career win — a win that tasted mighty sweet against rival Dexter.

Welton finished the season with a career record of 514-214-9.

The team set a single-season team home run record. Together they combined for 39 homers to best the previous standard of 36, set in 1998.

Tony Scheffler set a new record with 59 hits in a season, breaking the old school record of 58 held by Jake Rindle since 1992.

The team also had the third highest win total in school history, bested only by the 1991 state championship team, which went 33-3, and the 1997 team that went 31-3. The Bulldogs finished the 2000 season with a 29-7-1 record.

Eight senior ball players will say goodbye to Chelsea High School. In the last regular season home game against Ann Arbor Huron on May 31, Welton started all but two of his seniors. Third baseman Ryan Barwick, first baseman Chad Schwartzenberger, short stop Jeff Kolodica, out fielder Ethan Rendell, left fielder Phil Fishburn and Jerry Milliken. The only reason seniors Jason Young and Luke Olinyk did not start was because they are both recovering from injuries sustained during the season.

"Each departing senior has contributed to our team and program," Welton said. "We wish them the very best."

In the 7-4 Bulldog win over Huron, seven different Chelsea batters registered hits.

Barwick got an RBI single, Schwartzenberger also got an RBI single, Kolodica and Ben Myers both had a single, Rendell added a double and Scheffler and Brian Sayers also had RBI singles.

"Chelsea played a solid game heading into the districts," Welton said.

Cory Picklesimer and Nate Keiser shared the pitching duties with Picklesimer picking up his fourth win of the year and Keiser earning the save. Keiser came in to pitch in the sixth inning with the tying run at the plate and got a fly out to end the threat.

The team hosted the MHSAA district tournament June 3, and the Bulldogs faced archrival Dexter. Although pitchers Chris Cooper and Chris Brigham were solid, Dexter's Eddie Drukis was tougher on this day.

Dexter took a 3-0 lead in the top of the fourth inning and Chelsea answered with two runs in the bottom half. A Fishburn double and an RBI single by Sayers were followed by Brigham's RBI single. The 3-2 score held until the top of the seventh when Dexter scored two unearned runs in its half of the inning. Chelsea put up a valiant rally in the bottom of the seventh as Scheffler led off with a triple and scored on Myers sacrifice fly. But with the tying runs on base, the last out was made and the season came to a sudden, heartbreaking halt.

Junior Tony Scheffler tries to tag out Dreadnaught Chris Puuri in the league championship. The 'Dogs lost the game in a one-point heartbreaker.

"The loss was tough on us all," Welton said. "But it is part of educational athletics."

Welton added that the team accomplished most of the preseason goals. Winning the SEC championship. It did that. Defending the St. Joseph Invitational. The team did that, too. Winning over 25 games. Did that. Playing as a team. Definitely. Only the last goals of advancing to the state tournament and playing for a regional championship at home were not met.

"We did have a fantastic season and I hope that our fine group of seniors will have fond memories of a great spring trip, excellent competition, friendships that will last a lifetime and an SEC championship," Welton said. "We did have a great year."

Chelsea runners complete finals, win recognition

Chelsea's women's track team had seven athletes compete in the MHSAA State Division II finals at Grandville Saturday. The Bulldogs scored 25 points, giving them an eighth-place finish. Detroit Renaissance won the meet with 84 points, followed by Battle Creek Lakeview with 61, Ypsilanti with 56, Mattawan with 30 and Corunna with 29.

There were more than 150 teams in Division II and 55 of them scored in the state meet. This effort was the most points the girls have ever scored in the state meet and is their highest finish since 1992 when they finished fifth.

Two Bulldogs earned all-state honors. Mora Arnold was all-state in two events, the 200- and 400-meter dashes, for the second consecutive year. Arnold was second in the 400 in 56.96, setting a school record. Sara Jane Baker of Mattawan won the race in 56.16, a new class B record. Janaule Bennet of Niles, who won last year, was third. In the 200, Arnold ran stride for stride with Jennifer Lawson of Renaissance, but came in second with a time of 25.15 to Lawson's 25.11 on the automatic phototimer. Third was Erin Anderson of Renaissance in 25.69 and fourth was Julia Stevenson of Renaissance in 25.93, the same time that Arnold won with in 1999.

"It was disappointing that Mora didn't repeat, but that doesn't detract from how well she ran," said coach Bill Bainton. "She ran two outstanding races and the field in both events was very strong. Her qualifying times ranked her third in the 400 and sixth in the 200 coming into the meet. She has had an outstanding four years and has been a joy to coach and watch."

Sophomore Kari Taylor earned all-state honors in the shot put, finishing second with a throw of 39' 4 ½". Taylor hit that mark on her first throw of the competition. Natasha Neal of Wyoming Park won at 40' 11¾" and Kelly Shelton of Grand Rapids Catholic was third with 39' 1". Taylor also medaled in the discus finishing eighth but setting a school record of 118' 2" in the process.

"Kari had a good meet, which is what you hope happens at the state," said Bainton. "She had a big throw early in each event and it held up."

CHS tennis team places at state meet

By Colleen O'Neill
Special Writer

The Chelsea men's tennis team, in its first ever trip to the Division III state finals, finished a respectable 14th, scoring three points.

Scoring points for the Bulldogs were Brian Merkel at 4S and James Ballas and Evan Wildey at 3D.

Merkel earned one point for his victory over Jeff Moulton of Flint Powers High School.

"Brian has played many three setters this season but none more important to him than this one where he had the better of it 6-1, 6-7(4), 6-1," said head coach John Capper.

The win was Merkel's 15th of the season and he became Chelsea's most successful player this season, barely topping Jon Spooner by one win. In the second round Merkel faced the No. 2 seed at 4S, Billy Alt, from East Grand Rapids. Alt won the match in two sets.

Ballas and Wildey scored the other two points for the Bulldogs. After a bye in the first round, they earned two points by defeating their second-round opponents, Tom Neil and Jeff Wenstrom, respectively, from Lansing Catholic Central 6-1, 6-1.

Girls' varsity soccer team defeats Northwest

By Colleen O'Neill
Special Writer

For the second year in a row, the Chelsea varsity soccer team defeated Jackson Northwest in the championship game of the Division III Tecumseh District. The Bulldogs won the game 2-0.

"I think that play fired us up a little. We realized that our season was about to end if we didn't turn things around in a hurry."
— Chris Orlandi

Northwest controlled the first half as it pressured the Bulldog defense relentlessly. Midway through the half, the Northwest pressure led to a Mountie attacker taking the ball through the Chelsea defense for a breakaway. The Bulldog's goalkeeper, Laura Baird, timed her attack perfectly and denied Northwest's attempt.

"I think that play fired us up a little," said head coach Chris Orlandi. "We realized that our season was about to end if we didn't turn things around in a hurry."

The scoreless tie held through halftime, but the Bulldogs came out on fire after the break. Kim Touroo received a throw-in from Ashley Cook in the half's opening minute, got through a defender and sent the ball in toward the Northwest goal. The shot was coming in low and hard, and the Northwest goalkeeper didn't have a good view of the shot. The ball snuck inside the back post to give the Bulldog's deflate. We started to dominate from that point."

More Chelsea pressure led to a second goal about 12 minutes later. Sarah Poplawski received a pass from Quinn Peyser near the penalty spot and sent a shot off a defender's foot and into the goal. The Chelsea defense did the rest. Baird, Carolyn Wineland, Amy Sporer, Rebecca Metzler, and Corinna Christman did the job defensively and kept Northwest off the board.

This is the second year in a row that Chelsea hasn't allowed a goal in district play.

"We may not be the best team in the state," Orlandi said. "But we're darn difficult to score on and that makes us a tough out in this tournament."

The Bulldogs earned their shot at the championship game with a 2-0 win over Parma Western in the District Semi-final on June 1.

Kate Huehl opened the scoring midway through the first half after receiving a perfect set-up pass from Ashley Cook. Huehl set up the shot in front of the goal and sent a hard shot at the back post.

Beth Stankevich added insurance in the second half after knocking in a rebound that came as a result of a shot from Lara Zajic.

Baird did a solid job in the net, making eight saves, and the defense also started to step up their play.

Orlandi said his team is looking forward to another shot at the regional semi-final. The Bulldogs have a 14-4-2 record and played Haslett on Tuesday night in Linden. Results were not available at press time, but a Chelsea victory would put the team in the 7 p.m. match today.

The girls' varsity soccer team won the district trophy to move on to regional play, where they beat Haslett 2-0 on Tuesday. The team plays Flint Powers at 7 p.m. today at Park Lyndon. The varsity team includes Corinna Christman, Amy Sporer, Kate Wheeler, Chris Broshar, Quinn Peyser, Sarah Poplawski, Kristie Barner, Kim Touroo, Ashley Cook, Lara Zajic, Nikki Palluzzi, Rebecca Metzler, Jessica Smith, Laura Baird, Beth Stankevich and co-captains Caitlin Biedron, Kate Huehl and Carolyn Wineland. The team's head coach is Chris Orlandi, and David Pieske is assistant coach.

Chelsea varsity softball finishes season with a loss

By Colleen O'Neill
Special Writer

The Chelsea varsity softball team finished its season in a heartbreaking 9-3 loss to Jackson Lumen Christi in the district championship game on Saturday.

Head coach Kim Reichard summed up her disappointment in the district loss.

"It was hard to imagine going from being so proud to so disappointed in one day," Reichard said. "I think we thought that if we got through Dexter we'd be able to do it. I don't think we mentally choked. The errors became contagious."

The Bulldogs started the day with a 3-0 shut out over Dexter. The key in that game was timely hits. The Bulldogs racked up 14 strikeouts against Meghan Ritter, the older of the phenomenal pitching-sister duo, and only managed to get four hits in the game.

But all four hits came in the third inning and were enough to account for three runs.

"We had one big inning and then shut them out defensively," Reichard said. "And we shut them out even with three errors. We had the key plays at the right time and key hits. They left quite a few runners on."

Betsy Ruhlig started the two-out rally when she got a single with a change up in the third inning. Ashley Augustine got a single and Betty Wescott got a single to load the bases. Stephanie Crews came up and hit a two-run double to give the Bulldogs a 2-0 lead.

After those two runs, Wescott came home on a controversial no-call. With Wescott on third and Crews on second, Reichard sent Wescott home after a passed ball.

The pitcher covered the plate, but as Wescott slid into home plate touching her hand to the plate, the pitcher was seen kicking her hand. Although the parents and coaches were in an uproar, the umpire did not see the infraction, and called nothing.

But Wescott was safe. The Bulldogs took a 3-0 lead and held on for the win.

"We made three errors but they left nine runners on base," Reichard said of her team's solid defense.

In the second game against Luman Christi, Chelsea had a terrible fifth inning and let Christi score five runs to take a 9-3 lead.

This time the errors did hurt.

"We had seven errors and they had 12 hits," Reichard said.

Christi was up only 3-0 in the third inning when the Bulldogs went to the plate. Lindsay Powers hit a two-run double and the Bulldogs were back in the game.

"It seemed like the third inning when we scored, we felt like we're back in and we can do this," Reichard said. "Then we fell apart."

The team combined for only five hits. Wescott had two, including one double, Crews had a RBI single, Powers added two hits, one a double with two RBIs.

Jenny Diesing started both games but Reichard sent Cara Long in for relief in the sixth inning of the Luman Christi game.

Reichard tried to put the highs and the lows of the season into words.

"We were 29-12 for the season, and second in the SEC," Reichard said. "At one point in the season we were 11-1."

As a new coach, Reichard had to deal with the backhanded compliment her team heard again and again.

"A lot of people told me that they didn't expect us to go very far, and considering what we did we should be happy," Reichard said. "But the players and I both know that we could have been much better than we were. We hung in with a lot of teams and took some tough losses we should have won."

Reichard said her biggest challenge for next year is to work on consistency and being mentally tough.

"We defeated Pinckney 9-0 then we lost to them," Reichard said.

In going through the statistics, Reichard said she was amazed at the comeback victories or near wins her team racked up. Against Dexter in their second game, the Bulldogs were down by seven runs and almost beat the Dreads.

"We only lost by one run," Reichard said. "The toughness we had at the beginning we did not have at the end."

Reichard credits the spring break trip for the team's early success.

"We bonded so much and we loved softball and we wanted to be there and were so excited to play," Reichard said. "Toward the end, with everything else in our lives, we did not have as much bonding time."

In addition to the loss, Reichard and the rest of the Bulldogs will say goodbye to four seniors, Powers, Wescott, Traci Kern and Jessica Herman.

"Each one is very unique and provided a unique roll," Reichard said. "Powers was the funny comedian, who made key hits, and is a big-time first baseman. Wescott at catching, she had very few passed balls. She and Powers, they had so many picks-offs at first base. She did a phenomenal job with calling pitches.

"Kern didn't get a lot of playing time last year, and went from that to being starter in center field, a big accomplishment. And Herman had key hits, she's quick and was a very good leader and coach-like person. Wescott and Herman were like the two coaches. They knew the game really well."

Track team takes 7 events against Selby

Girls from the Chelsea track team competed in nine events at the Selby Classic Track and Field Honor Roll Meet at Jackson High School Tuesday.

The honor roll selects the nine best athletes in each event from the Jackson area. The Bulldogs earned medals in seven events, and Mora Arnold was named female Athlete of the Meet.

Arnold was second to Jackson's Alicia Hooper, one of the top sprinters in the state, in the 100-meter dash, running a school record tying at 12.1. Hooper was timed at 12.0.

In the 200, Arnold was first in a meet and set a school-record-time of 24.5, with Hooper second in 25.8. Arnold finished her day with a 57.4 anchor leg as she teamed with Kari Moyle, Nina Kramer and Jill Drexler to win the 1,600-meter relay in 4:11.6. Jackson Northwest was second with a time of 4:14.3.

Hooper also won the 100-meter hurdles and led off the winning 800 relay.

"Mora elected to run head-to-head with an outstanding sprinter, and they each won a race, but Mora had a bigger margin and set a meet record," head coach Bill Bainton said. "But we weren't sure that would earn the Outstanding Athlete Award. It was an interesting contrast, a senior finishing an outstanding career and a freshman (Hooper) wrapping up the first season of what should be one."

Arnold is the second Chelsea girl to win the award. Lisa Monti won it in 1993.

Kari Taylor picked up a first in the shot put with a throw of 36' 8" and was second in the discus with a 115' 11" toss. Danielle Montpetit and Julie Mida tied for third in the pole vault at 7' 6".

Jill Drexler finished a fine senior season in the long jump with a fifth-place medal jumping 14' 4¼". Jennifer Gallas placed fifth in the shot with a throw of 31' 5". Sarah Brigham ran a season best of 27.1 in the 200 and cleared 4' 6" in the high jump, but didn't medal.

The 800-meter relay team of Brigham, Nina Kramer, Julia Arnold and Drexler ran 1:52.1, just missing a medal.

HONORS

The other Chelsea participants were Danielle Montpetit who made 7' 6" in the pole vault but did not score, and the 800-meter relay of Sarah Brigham, Nina Kramer, Julia Arnold, and Jill Drexler, who ran an excellent time of 1:50.4, their best as a group by 1.6 seconds, which put them near the middle of the 27-team field.

"We were pleased with our performances in the state meet," Bainton said. "With the new division format this year, the meet was much more competitive."

After the state meet, Arnold was invited to run with the Michigan team in the Midwest Meet of Champions at Ohio Wesleyan University Saturday. The Midwest meet is a competition between teams of seniors from Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and West Virginia.

Senior athletes from Michigan are chosen by the Michigan Interscholastic Track Coaches Association based on their season and state meet performances.

Arnold is the third Chelsea girl to be selected. The others were Lisa Monti in 1993 and Erin Schiller in 1994.

TENNIS

"All good things have to end sometime and in the quarter finals they met their match in Sanjay Dandamuti and Nikil Bahadur from Detroit Country Day," Capper said. "These two went on to win the championship at their flight helping Detroit Country Day to win the tournament."

Country Day won the tournament with 28 points while East Grand Rapids took second place with 23.

The Chelsea Bulldogs tied with Marshall with three points. They finished ahead of three other teams in the tournament.

Chelsea finished the dual season with an 8-1 record, won one championship, took the runner-up trophy in two tournaments and took second place in regional competition to earn their first-ever trip to the state championship.

The key to the team's success this year was depth.

"An excellent squad of freshman didn't make the team but their turn will come next year," Capper said. "This freshman class looks to dominate Chelsea tennis for the next three years."

The team says goodbye to four seniors now, Mike Offenbacher, Spooner, Joe Arend and Shawn Hayes.

REWARD
$500.00 CASH
FOR THE RETURN OF MY CAT
"BOO BOO"

Boo Boo was last seen June 1st at the corner of Wilkinson & Chandler Streets.
Boo Boo is a 1 year old male, domestic short hair, cat. His fur is light orange, sometimes looking almost a brownish/sandy color. He has brown eyes and from a very close distance you can see the outline of a circle that is about 4 inches in diameter on the middle of each of his sides. The outline is white, the inside of the circles are the same as his fur (light orange/sandy). He is about 15 inches long and weighs about 9 pounds. I am very worried he will not live long outside. He has stomach problems and has to eat a certain type of food, or else he starts vomiting. If you think you see him, call out to him and let him come to you, otherwise he may just run, he is shy. So you have to go very slow.
I love Boo Boo very much and I just want him back. I'm not going to ask any questions.
Please, if you have any information on my cat, phone

Tips to make retirement enjoyable

PREPARED BY THE MICHIGAN ASSOCIATION OF CERTIFIED PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS

MONEY MANAGEMENT

You just can't escape it. Sometimes it seems like everywhere you turn someone else is issuing a dire warning about the need to save millions in order to retire comfortably. But the truth of the matter is that you can retire on less if you spend less. It's that simple.

While it's vital to save for retirement, the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants says that by making some compromises in your retirement lifestyle and managing your money carefully, you can achieve a full and satisfying retirement at a far lower cost than some would have you believe.

It all depends on how you play the retirement game. The following game rules for maximizing your retirement portfolio and minimizing your expenses may make it possible for you to retire on less.

By investing your portfolio wisely and drawing funds from it prudently, you can make the most of your retirement nest egg. Many new retirees assume they need to reduce their exposure to investment risk by putting their nest eggs into bonds and cash, but CPAs say you should keep anywhere from 40 to 60 percent of your retirement savings in equities. Doing so allows your assets to continue to grow during your retirement years and provides you with some protection against inflation. Also, as a retiree, you can continue to build your retirement savings by reinvesting your interest and dividends.

When it becomes necessary for you to tap into your savings, withdraw assets from your taxable accounts before you withdraw assets from your tax-deferred accounts. Doing so will allow the money in your tax-deferred plans, such as 401(k)s or Individual Retirement Accounts, to continue compounding tax-free for as long as possible.

When it comes to reducing spending, it makes sense to start with housing — the biggest monthly outflow for most retirees. Consider whether it makes sense to sell your home, pay off your current mortgage and buy a smaller home or condo with lower property taxes, energy bills and maintenance costs. If you're willing to relocate to an area with a lower cost of living and low or no income taxes, the savings can be considerably greater. Before you choose a location based on income tax savings, check what estate taxes would apply to you there.

If retirement is still several years away, do what you can to trim expenses or boost income now so you can pay off your mortgage by retirement. Having your house fully paid for at the time you retire can go a long way toward making it easier to live on a reduced income. If paying off your mortgage isn't feasible, at least try to pay off any credit card debt you may have.

Be creative. For some people, homesharing might be a good way to reduce housing costs and gain companionship. It takes careful thinking and planning, but it can work. Another option is to agree to perform housekeeping or maintenance services in exchange for free or reduced rent.

If you're "house-rich and cash-poor," a reverse mortgage, which acts like a regular home mortgage in reverse, lets you use the equity in your home as a source of income. Instead of borrowing a sum that you pay back in monthly payments, the lender typically pays you a monthly payment against the equity in your home. The payment is based on your age and the value of your home. The loan balance — the amount you've received plus interest — doesn't have to be repaid until you die, sell the house, or move.

Reverse mortgages are complicated; be sure you completely understand the terms before pursuing this option. Remember, you will be depleting the equity you have in your home.

If golf is your game, try finding a good public course and bypass expensive greens fees at a golf club. If you favor tennis or swimming, look for community courts or join the pool at your local YMCA. If you like to travel, travel out of season when others don't. And be sure to take advantage of the many deals that airlines, clubs, hotels and restaurants offer to retires.

Although, at first, it may sound like an oxymoron, working in retirement is an alternative that more and more retirees are pursuing. The right job can provide welcomed cash and self-fulfillment and, if you find something that you truly enjoy doing, it won't even feel like you're working.

If you're thinking about entering the job market after a career as a homemaker, consider how skills you have developed in raising a family, managing a household, volunteering, or pursuing a hobby might translate into marketable business skills.

Joining a Medicare managed care plan is a less expensive alternative to purchasing Medigap insurance. Many of these plans provide comprehensive coverage for a small monthly fee and/or a small copayment for office visits. On the down side, with some plans, your choice of doctors, hospitals, and other providers is limited to those in the plan's network.

If it's payments for prescription drugs that are ruining your budget, you may be able to reduce your costs by asking your doctor to substitute a generic drug. Or, you may be able to use a mail-order pharmacy that charges significantly less for some prescriptions, providing you can plan ahead and allow time for delivery.

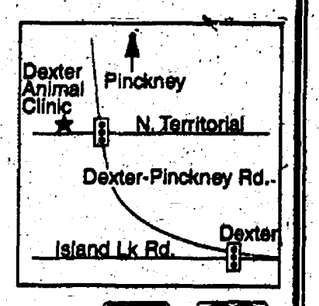

While the golden years certainly don't come cheap, CPAs say that with careful planning and the willingness to control your spending in retirement, you can enjoy a satisfying retirement even if you don't have millions in the bank.

Miller opposes federal mandate

Calling federal mandates requiring states to collect Social Security numbers from motorists an unnecessary invasion into the personal privacy of citizens, Secretary of State Candice Miller recently unveiled her plan to overturn the law requiring her department to collect Social Security numbers from all seven million of Michigan's licensed drivers.

Miller announced that she is directly seeking a waiver from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, which has the authority to exempt the state from complying with the Welfare Reform Act of 1996. The law requires states to collect Social Security numbers, starting Oct. 1, in an effort to track parents, from state to state, who are delinquent in paying child support.

Additionally, Miller will not only ask the Michigan Congressional delegation to assist her in obtaining a waiver, she is asking the delegation to amend federal law by removing the provision that requires states to collect Social Security numbers from all motorists applying for or renewing a driver license.

"I am adamantly opposed to this federal mandate requiring people to disclose their Social Security numbers for the purpose of obtaining a driver license," Miller said. "This unfunded federal mandate is an unnecessary governmental invasion into the personal privacy of our citizens."

Miller added that if a federal exemption is not granted and legislative relief is not provided, then she will pursue filing a legal challenge against the federal government.

"There are other ways for the federal government to achieve its goal of tracking deadbeat parents from state to state," Miller said. "The Michigan Department of Treasury and the Internal Revenue Service already collect Social Security numbers on income tax forms, and they could provide the numbers of those being sought.

"The actions I am announcing today are consistent with my commitment to protect the safety and personal privacy of every Michigan motorist," Miller said.

Some fractures easy to treat

JOHN C. WOLF, D.O.
ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF FAMILY MEDICINE OHIO UNIVERSITY COLLEGE OF OSTEOPATHIC MEDICINE

FAMILY MEDICINE

Question: Our daughter was in-line skating last week and had a fall. She hurt her shoulder, so we took her to the emergency room. The doctor thought she might have broken her collarbone, but in the X-ray it only appeared to be bent over. Obviously, there is a difference between her injury and a broken collarbone because he just put her arm in a sling that she is to use until it feels better. What is that difference?

Answer: I've learned that talking is easy but that actually communicating when we talk can be quite difficult. I'll give you an example: A patient of mine went to the emergency department to have an injury to his lower arm treated. When he came to see me the next day he said, "Thank goodness I only broke my arm — it could have been fractured!"

That doctor talked to my patient without communicating very well. You see, we doctors use "fracture" as the doctor term to describe a broken bone. Consequently, any broken bone can also be described as being a fracture. The two terms have precisely the same meaning.

Without seeing your daughter's X-rays, I can't tell you the correct doctor language to describe her injury. You see, there are two similar types of bone injury — fractures, if you will — that could be described as "bent over."

First, you need to think of a long bone like the collarbone or those of the arms and legs as being similar to a straw. The bone is made of a hard outside with soft porous bone on the inside.

One type of "bent over" fracture involves enough force to cause one side of the bone to fail while the other just bends. This is like the kink that occurs in a straw when it is bent over the side of a cup. The outside of the bend is rather smooth while the inside has a definite kink in it. Doctors call this type of injury a "greenstick" fracture, and it is possibly what you daughter has.

A related type of injury is called a "torus" or "buckle" fracture. In these fractures, the injuring force is directly along the length of the bone. The bone buckles under this force instead of shattering. This is similar to the type of deformity created in a straw when you pop off its paper wrapper by holding the straw firmly and slamming its end straight down on the table at your favorite fast-food restaurant. The straw often develops a subtle ring-like bulge below where you had held it. You've just made a torus fracture of the straw.

Both torus and greenstick fracture are most common in children because their bones have a bit of flexibility to them. The bones in those of us who have finished growing are more brittle. They tend to break rather than to bend.

The collarbone, like any other bone, hurts a great deal when it is broken. The treatment of the fracture usually involves placing the ends of the bone in correct alignment and limiting the movement there. This reduces the pain and facilitates healing. The collarbone is an important part of the shoulder, but its exact shape isn't that important. Therefore, it usually isn't necessary to set it and apply a cast as is necessary for fractures of many long bones.

In either a greenstick or torus fracture, the degree of bending and/or bulking at the site of injury is small, so it doesn't need to be set. Consequently, it only requires some stabilization to reduce the pain and allow the bone to heal properly.

In a collarbone fracture in children this is usually done by wearing a simple arm sling for a week or two, just as the doctor recommended for your daughter. There are other types of fractures to the collarbone, however. In rare cases, these can even be sufficiently serious that prompt surgery is necessary to pin the pieces back together. Fortunately, your daughter's injury is the more common and more easily treated kind.

DHS student plays in music festival

Jennifer Fritzler, daughter of Betty Fritzler of Dexter, participated in the prestigious Michigan Youth Arts Festival May 11-13 at Western Michigan University.

Fritzler was selected for participation in the honors band. The annual festival celebrated its 38th anniversary this year.

The festival is the culmination of a nine-month search for the finest artistic talent in Michigan high schools. The adjudication process involved over 60,000 students statewide. Of these, 750 of the most outstanding students were invited to attend.

While at the festival, students share their talents with their peers and the public through performances and exhibitions. In addition, each student has the opportunity to attend clinics, workshops and master classes in his or her own discipline. Dance, theater, instrumental and vocal music, visual arts, film/video and creative writing are included in the three-day event.

PULL OVER!

Drivers may be asked by police officers to pull off the road if they are considered to be driving erratically. If the officer discerns impairment, the driver may be asked to get out of the vehicle and perform physical dexterity tests. If a Breahtalyzer test is administered at this point, it is not admissible in court and is not mandatory. Officers are required to read "implied consent warnings" to drivers believed to be illegally intoxicated. Drivers are then asked to submit to a state-administered test to determine blood alcohol levels (refusal to do so may be cause for immediate confiscation of their license.) Drivers can request an additional test, at a facility of their choice at their own expense.

Now that most drivers have a cell or car phone, it makes sense to keep the number of an attorney on speed dial to ensure that you have immediate access to legal advice should an accident or incident involving the police occur. To discuss your concerns in cases concerning personal injury, criminal defense, business and family law, real estate, wills, and estate probate, call the LAW OFFICES OF KITCHEN & STRINGER, a full service law firm in practice for over thirty years, at 426-4695 to schedule a free consultation. Our offices are located in Dexter, at 3249 Broad Street.

HINT: If a police officer arrests you for driving while intoxicated, he or she has the right to search you and the passenger compartment of your vehicle.

AAA offers boater-safety tips

Using caution and common-sense boating procedures will ensure that powerboaters and operators of smaller sail boats should encounter no major low-water difficulties entering and exiting most of their favorite harbors, a survey this week by AAA Michigan finds.

The auto club also found boaters will pay an average 7.5 cents per gallon more for gas this year than last in Michigan and 36.5 cents per gallon more in the Detroit area when they fill up dockside.

The auto club's weekly "Fuel Gauge" survey of marina fuel prices found no-lead averaging $1.849 per gallon outside metropolitan Detroit. Prices range from $1.509 to $2.599. Diesel fuel prices average $1.596 per gallon, up 29.1 cents from last. Costs range from $1.389 to $1.999.

In metro Detroit, no-lead fuel at marinas averages $1.915 per gallon, up 36.5 cents from a year ago. It ranges from $1.599 to $2.149. Marine diesel fuel in the Detroit area averages $1.737 per gallon, up 38.9 cents from a year ago. It ranges from $1.499 to $1.989.

A statewide check of 77 public and private marinas on the Great Lakes and popular inland waters shows that boats with a draft of more than 7 feet will have difficulty entering at least 20 harbors checked. Water depths at those vary between 4 and 7 feet.

"Boaters should always call in advance for information regarding conditions before entering any harbor," says Jerry Basch, AAA Michigan Community Safety Services manager.

"Low water means boaters should take all extra precautions necessary to ensure a safe, fun time," Basch says. "Because of the increased boat traffic over the holiday, it's imperative that boaters show concern and courtesy to fellow captains and help those who may need directions or other assistance."

Before entering any marina or harbor, call the harbormaster to determine the best course of action. Phone numbers and call channels are listed in the state's new free harbors and marinas guide. Guides are available at state Department of Natural Resources (DNR) offices. Or, find a similar list on the Internet.

"Boaters can also check with other local skippers for advice on entering and leaving harbors, and locations of possible hazards," Basch adds. "Watch for possible obstructions uncovered by the low water, including old pilings, sandbars, rocks and reefs.

"And since some state harbors cannot take larger sailboats with deepest drafts, sailors should be doubly alert for any changing weather patterns.

The AAA survey found the Au Gres state Harbor of Refuge, in northeastern Michigan, closed for the season to all but emergencies due to extreme low water. However, the Au Gres Yacht Club nearby is open and is scheduled for dredging in early June. Harbors at Grindstone City in the Thumb and Suttons Bay in northwestern Michigan, are being dredged and are anticipated to reopen in early June.

One private marina on Lake Charlevoix near Boyne City also is closed until late summer due to insufficient depths. The remaining marinas report water depths adequate for most boats.

AAA Michigan reminds boaters to carry essential safety items. They include a depth finder, cellular phone and/or marine radio, tow rope, flares or other signaling devices and required safety equipment that includes personal flotation devices for everyone aboard.

Local residents on dean's list

Concordia College in Ann Arbor recently announced that Stacey Stowe of Dexter and Justin Strong of Chelsea have been named to the dean's list for each achieving a grade point average of 3.5 for the spring semester.

Stowe is the daughter of Gary and Bonita Stowe of Dexter. Strong is the son of Robert and Eleanor Strong of Chelsea.

Concordia College is a four-year liberal arts college of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod's Concordia University System of 10 colleges and universities. Founded in 1963, Concordia-Ann Arbor offers programs of study in teacher education, general liberal arts, preseminary studies, business and specially designed degree-completion opportunities for working adults.

Spruce Up

Residents of Dexter Crossing in Dexter Village recently spruced up their subdivision. The children enjoyed trailer rides and looking at the ground sparrow nest found behind the subdivision entrance sign. Residents are preparing for their annual garage sale and block party slated June 24. The subdivision has an official advisory committee that will eventually become the board for the association. Pictured are Kevin West and Ralph Dresch sprucing up the area near the entrance.

Student Council Exchange

State gives merit awards

Hard work and long hours of studying are about to pay off for nearly 37,000 Michigan high school seniors. They are among the first of two groups from the graduating class of 2000 who qualify for $2,500 under the Michigan Merit Award program. Notification letters will start arriving at most students' homes soon.

"This is an exciting time for high school seniors," said state Treasurer Mark A. Murray, whose agency administers the award. "These awards will be put to good use this fall as thousands of qualifying students begin the next phase of their education. There is no greater way to invest in our future than through the education of our youth."

The first group consists of 36,656 students who tested prior to March 2000. Students who tested in April-May 2000 will be notified later this fall after test results become available. The number of qualifiers in the second group is yet unknown.

Awards are based on performance on the Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) test, administered each year to high school juniors and seniors at public and nonpublic schools throughout the state. Students may also qualify by performing well on supplemental national tests such as the ACT, SAT or Work Keys skills test, in addition to qualifying scores on the MEAP.

Legislation passed last year created the Michigan Merit Award program with funding provided by a portion of the state's 1998 multi-state settlement with tobacco manufacturers.

Awards may be used any time within seven years of graduation, and may be applied to a variety of education-related expenses, including computers and day care for dependents.

A certified check, bank draft or satisfactory bid bond, executed by the bidder and a surety company, payable to the Village of Dexter, in an amount equal to five percent (5%) of the bid, shall be submitted with each bid.

AWARD OF CONTRACT

The Village of Dexter will award the contract to the lowest qualified bidder in accordance with the requirements set forth in the MDOT 1996 Standard Specifications for Construction. The successful bidder will be required to furnish satisfactory performance, labor and material bonds, and insurance certificates.

NOTICE OF NON-COLLUSION

Each bidder shall file a statement signed by, or on behalf of the person, firm, association, or corporation submitting the bid, certifying that such person, firm, association, or corporation has not, either directly or indirectly entered into any agreement, participated in any collusion, or otherwise taken any action in restraint of free competitive bidding in connection with the submitted bid. Failure to submit the signed statement as part of the proposal will result in rejection of the bid.

NOTICE OF DAVIS BACON

This is a Federal Aid Project under the provisions of Section 113 of Title 23 U.S.C. as amended by the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1968. The Davis-Bacon Act is applicable and requires the Secretary of Labor to determine the minimum wage rates to be paid by the contractor and subcontractors, which rates will be given in detail in the proposal.

NOTICE OF SUBCONTRACTOR LIMITATIONS

Work by subcontractors shall not exceed 60% of the total contract.

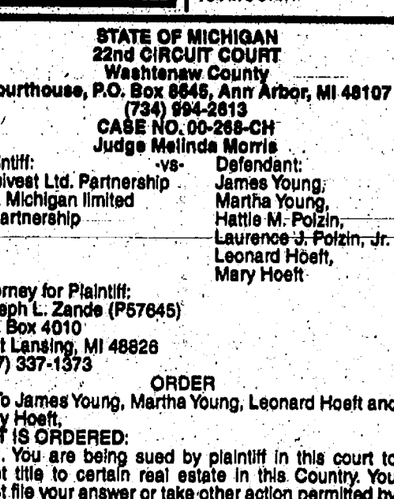

NOTICE OF MDOT PREQUALIFICATION LEVELS

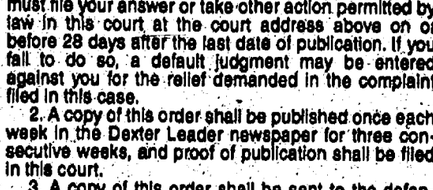

The prime contractor shall meet the requirements of MDOT prequalification classification 21J.

NOTICE OF MDOT STANDARD SPECIFICATIONS

Construction will be in accordance with the MDOT 1996 Standard Specifications for Construction.

CATS director explores options

After conferring with the board of directors, Michaelene Pawlak, director of Chelsea Area Transportation Services (CATS), determined her first priority in her new position: to connect with all of the other nonprofit organizations in southeastern Michigan that are in the business of providing transportation to elderly and handicapped citizens.

The organizations also offer services to people who must use public transportation to reach jobs or medical treatment unavailable closer to home.

She met with Ride Source, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, the Rochester Older Persons' Commission and the Washtenaw County Transportation Service Coordinating Committee, as well as with the Ann Arbor Transportation Authority.

She also has mined resources at the Michigan Department of Transportation and the Rural Transportation Assistance Program to provide training for dispatchers and drivers.

To supplement the CATS fleet, Pawlak has submitted a grant request to the Washtenaw County Workforce Development Board for an additional bus, which also would be used to transport workers to their jobs.

Pawlak's said her position with HelpSource provided experience in working cooperatively with organizations in order to secure for her clientele the help that was required.

Pawlak's position is funded for just one year, and the responsibility for developing resources to continue funding the executive director's job falls on her.

The Chelsea Community Foundation was a large contributor to the campaign to raise money for the new position and will be looking seriously at her success when it is approached a second time. Board members who have had a chance to work with Pawlak say they are impressed with the success and progress she has attained thus far.

For more information on CATS, telephone (734) 433-1338.

Motorists need to use extra caution around farm equipment on the road

Automobile accidents involving farm equipment on roads have declined steadily since 1993, but the numbers show that motorists need to be alert when driving in rural areas, says Howard Doss, Michigan State University Extension agricultural safety leader.

The two main reasons for collisions, Doss says, are that motorists misjudge the speed of farm equipment and don't see the equipment in time to avoid a collision.

Doss said a driver traveling 55 mph has as few as seven seconds to avoid a collision with a tractor and equipment traveling 15 mph if it is spotted 400 feet ahead.

"The motorist may not be able to slow down or stop in time because he or she didn't recognize the rapid closing speed involved in approaching farm machinery on the road, particularly on bright sunny days, on dark cloudy days and at night," he says.

"That's why farm equipment on the roadway should be well-marked and lighted. The minimum warning is a slow-moving vehicle (SMV) emblem, which is required by Michigan law."

With farmers in the middle of planting season, farm equipment sees a lot of road use this time of year, Doss says. Adding to the problem is the fact that more farmers work non-contiguous land and that demands more road travel.

Doss also says not to be too encouraged by the decrease in accidents.

"We're still in trouble," he says. "The number of farmers have decreased, and we still have about 200 collisions each year. The fact is that farmers with equipment on public roads are exposed to a potentially dangerous situation."

In 1993, there were 368 farm equipment-car crashes, and 337 in 1994. The year 1995 saw 292 accidents, and in 1996, 256 collisions resulted in four fatalities. In 1997, two people lost their lives, but the number of accidents fell to 251. In 1998, the last year statistics are available, there were 217 cashes and five fatalities.

Technology improvements make new SMV emblems 10 times brighter than older emblems, making them visible to motorists from twice the distance, Doss says. Still, additional reflective tape and lights are recommended, because failure to have an adequate warning system could lead to legal problems.

Doss also recommends that, if possible, farmers should select routes based on traffic volumes, and avoid road travel during times of heavier traffic.

AYA seeks host families

Somewhere in Germany, there is a teen-ager dreaming about America.

That teen-ager dreams of perfecting his or her English, sharing stories of life in Germany that a local family won't see or hear on television or the Internet, and learning everything he or she can about American culture. But most importantly, that teen-ager dreams of becoming part of an American family.

By bringing a German student into your home for five or 10 months, you can experience another culture without ever leaving your home. You can also develop a close tie to someone who genuinely wants to experience your way of life.

Eric Via, a host father from Texas, recently hosted a German exchange student, Christina.

"I know I was only her host father, but I felt like I was her real father sometimes. We'll never forget her, and I'll cherish her stay with us," he said.

For more than 19 years, Academic Year in America (AYA), a not-for-profit organization sponsored by the American Institute For Foreign Study (AIFS) Foundation, has brought international students between the ages of 15 to 18 to the United States. These bright young ambassadors of Germany will arrive in August with full medical insurance, their own spending money, solid academic records and English skills, as well as great

In addition to the tremendously rewarding experience of helping make someone's dream come true, host families can earn up to $1,000 toward any number of travel abroad programs sponsored by AIFS.

For more information on hosting a German exchange student, call Danielle Carpino at (800) 322-4678, Ext. 5164. You can also visit AYA online at www.Academicyear.org.

Michigan cherry burger vies for state recognition

A Michigan cherry and beef combination may soon have a new claim to fame, as the recently introduced cherry burger is vying for the title as the state's official hamburger.

The House gave its nod of approval May 23, and had the opportunity to taste the moister, juicier and leaner product as about 300 cherry burgers were grilled for House members and guests for lunch that day.

The decision now rests with the Senate.

The cherry burger was invented in the early 1990s when Ray Pleva and his daughter, Cindy, shocked the meat industry with the tasty new invention. The end product, Plevalean, is now marketed in 17 states through the school lunch program and several other marketing outlets.

The Plevalean cherry burger has 65 percent less fat, 16 percent more protein, 150 fewer calories, 91 percent lean beef and "is moister, juicier and, most importantly, tastes great!" said Phil Korson, president of the Cherry Marketing Institute Inc.

Michigan annually produces 70 to 75 percent of the U.S. supply of red tart cherries with an annual production of 200 to 250 million pounds.

"Red tart cherries are very perishable and therefore almost 100 percent are processed and sold as an ingredient to the bakery industry," Korson said. "The cherry industry has encouraged manufacturers to look at cherries for new, value-added products. Plevelean actually adds value to both the state's beef industry and the state's cherry industry. This value-added partnership is good for both industries by addressing consumer demand for new, low-fat products that taste good."

Demand for tart cherries has been increasing in past years, particularly in juice, as their anti-inflammatory benefits have been documented in medical journals.

"The cherry burger brings two major Michigan commodities together and ties the health benefits of each," said Bob Boehm, manager of Michigan Farm Bureau's commodity and marketing department. "If we can move more cherries and sell more beef, farmers definitely benefit."

The cherry burger is comprised of almost 15 percent cherries and lean beef. "It really separates this burger from all the rest," Ray Pleva said.

During the first week of June, Plevalean will hit meat cases in Florida; and the unique combination is also drawing international attention.

"We recently had a meeting with two representatives from Japan considering cherry burgers for their school system," Ray Pleva said. "We can precook, make it 100 percent safe, and be able to reheat it and have it taste fresh and juicy. You can't beat it and you can't do it without cherries."

The cherry burger has been a win-win for everyone, Pleva said.

"It's introduced cherries to meat products — not just hamburgers — is good for agriculture, good for the cherry industry and for Michigan State University research. And it all started here in Michigan."

Pleva said he hopes the introduction of cherries in meat products will help farmers to get a better price.

"It may help them stay on the farm and not lose the farm to someone else," he said.

Petition drive fails

State Sen. Alma Wheeler Smith (D-Salem Township) recently announced that although hundreds of signed petitions are still coming in, the HELP petition drive to provide free college tuition for Michigan residents has run out of time.

The Higher Education Learning Promotion (HELP) would have provided free tuition for Michigan resident students attending public community colleges and four-year public universities from a trust fund established under the initiative and also prescribed the schedule for an income tax rate reduction. The HELP Michigan petition drive needed 242,607 valid signatures to secure a place on the November 2000 ballot.

"Although we did not obtain the requisite number of valid signatures, I remain convinced that the concept of free college tuition for Michigan residents is the proper course of action for our state," Smith said.

"A tremendous number of people support the compelling concept of free tuition and many of those supporters worked extremely hard to bring this issue to a vote of the people. In the final analysis, however, and I come to this conclusion with some trepidation, it is clearly necessary to vendor signatures to ensure ballot campaign success in Michigan," Smith said.

Beach Recyclers

The core recycling team at Beach Middle School picks up trash from all areas of the school once a week, with a large-scale collection from every nine weeks during locker cleanout. Beach has been actively recycling paper, cans, cardboard, glass, magazines and newspaper since 1982. There are approximately 15 students and two staff members on the team. According to Western Washtenaw Recycling, Beach recycled about 60 yards of cardboard and 110 yards of paper in 1998. Pictured above, the current recyclers rest after a locker cleanout; from left are Sarah Rapai, Allie White, Rachel Misenheimer, Ryan Fark, Cathy Drew, Mikaelyn Law and Jordann Krumm.

Write-in candidates must file a Declaration of Intent on or before 4 p.m. Friday, June 9, 2000.

TAKE FURTHER NOTICE THAT the following proposition will be submitted to the vote of the electors at the regular school election:

HEADLEE RESTORATION
OPERATING MILLAGE APPROVAL
NON-HOMESTEAD AND NON-QUALIFIED
AGRICULTURAL PROPERTY TAX

This millage will allow the school district to continue to levy the statutory rate of 18 mills against non-homestead and non-qualified agricultural property required for the school district to receive its revenue per pupil foundation guarantee.

Shall the limitation on the amount of taxes which may be assessed against all property, exempting therefrom homestead and qualified agricultural property as defined by law, in Chelsea School District, Washtenaw and Jackson Counties, Michigan, be increased by 3 mills ($3.00 on each $1,000.00 of taxable valuation) for a period of 15 years, 2000 to 2014, inclusive, to provide funds for operating purposes; the estimate of the revenue the school district will levy and collect in the 2000 calendar year is approximately $53,000 (this millage is to restore the "Headlee" reduction)?

THE VOTING PLACE IS AS FOLLOWS:

PRECINCT NO. 1

Voting Place: Cafeteria of the Washington Street Educational Center

All school electors who are registered with the city or township clerk of the city or township in which they reside are eligible to vote at this election.

I, Catherine McClary, Treasurer of Washtenaw County, Michigan, hereby certify that as of April 28, 2000 the records of this office indicate that the total of all voted increases over and above the tax limitation established by the Constitution of Michigan, in any local units of government affecting the taxable property located in Chelsea School District, Washtenaw County, Michigan, is as follows:

MOVIE REVIEWS

"I Dreamed of Africa"

Movie Review

By C.J. Nodus

Despite an incredibly strong and particularly wonderful performance from Kim Basinger, "I Dreamed of Africa" is a weak and uninspired film.

Based on the autobiography of Kuki Gallmann, the movie tries not to romanticize her African adventure. This leaves nothing to cheer for except her character and the acting of Basinger.

Like its predecessor "Out Of Africa," the scenery and majesty of Africa — this time Kenya — is well-documented and presents a beautiful landscape. Unfortunately, the story is poorly written. Conflicts are never resolved and characters are never fully developed.

This is director Hugh Hudson's second foray into the bush, having directed "Greystoke: the Legend of Tarzan." Both lacked the intensity to be anything more than mediocre.

The story focuses on a decade in the life of Gallmann (Basinger) in which she decides to follow her dreams of Africa and make a new start after a serious car accident.

Another accident survivor convinces Gallmann to join him in Kenya. She uproots her son (played by Garrett Strommen) and heads to Africa.

What could have been a compelling story about coming to terms with the contradictions in her life and the poachers who come to her land to slaughter her precious elephants never really develops.

Basinger is wonderful, and despite the lack of supporting material, she makes her dream a reality. She is believable and beautiful. The film is just a bust.

"High Fidelity"

Movie Review

By C.J. Nodus

John Cusack's "High Fidelity" could be called a chick flick from a man's point of view.

Cusack plays Rob Gordon, an eclectic record-store owner who was just dumped. This causes him to muse and reflect on his previous relationships.

He remembers back to his first girlfriend, who lasted all of six hours before the inevitable first dumping.

Going from there to the present involves many characters, each with a slightly different slant on circumstances.

Among the more interesting non-relationship characters are Jack Black as Barry and Todd Louiso as Dick, Rob's two part-time employees who seemingly show up full time.

Barry is the most combative of the three, but the symbiotic relationship supplements Rob's failures with women.

What makes "High Fidelity" unique and ultimately entertaining is Cusack. When he is not serving as a posterboy for failure, he is narrating. His obsession with vinyl recordings as opposed to anything trendy also puts him in the cut-above category.

His character also satisfies a basic need we all seem to have: the need to make, fine tune and compare with others' endless lists of personal minutia, like "The five songs for letting the person who dumped you know that even though they broke your heart you can't get over them."

Rob, after thoroughly overanalyzing his past relationships, finally is dragged kicking and screaming into adulthood, something both genders can identify with.

As with most good comedies, "High Fidelity" is funny because it is honest. While some of the characters and situations are a bit over-the-top, they are believable.

"Where the Money Is"

Movie Review

By C.J. Nodus

Paul Newman again shows why he is one of the biggest and most enduring stars in the Hollywood firmament with "Where the Money Is."

Newman stars as Henry Manning, an imprisoned bank robber who devises a plan to break out by faking a stroke, getting transferred to a nursing home and escaping from there.

The plan gets sidetracked by a nurse named Carol Ann McKay, played by Linda Fiorentino.

McKay works at the home Henry is transferred to. She quickly realizes something is not right and attempts a series of distractions to break Henry's concentration. When she finally does, the fun really begins for the audience.

"Where the Money Is" in many ways is reminiscent of caper movies of a bygone era.

First, it is character-driven as opposed to violence-oriented. The nuances of Newman's facial twitches and his mastery of the physical symptoms of a stroke victim prove his genius.

Newman also brings the wisdom of age and an intelligent charm to the role that seems to be lost on today's generation of actors.

The other key acting component is Fiorentino. She is sexy, and charming with intelligence as opposed to being just a gold-digging bimbo.

Her relationship with her husband is typical of many couples in middle America, thus presenting a believability to the audience while still exercising a fantasy.

Newman and Fiorentino are an excellent match and an exciting pair. Both know how to be creative and to have fun with their characters. Despite the age difference, Henry is so dynamic that we can see why Carol would be drawn to him.

"American Psycho"

Movie Review

By C.J. Nodus

"American Psycho" is one of the few Hollywood adaptations from a book where the movie is as good as the novel.

The film is based on the controversial and horrific novel by Bret Easton Ellis.

Christian Bale stars as Patrick Bateman, a Wall Street merger and acquisition specialist who epitomizes the characters of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

His corporate persona is cool, calm and businesslike. When the spirit moves him, which apparently is often, he turns into a cold-blooded killer without a scintilla of humanity.

The question is how long this behavior can continue. For the audience, it is about 30 minutes beyond what it should be.

Director Mary Harron focused too much on atmosphere and ambiance instead of cutting to the respective chase.

This is not to say that the film is not stylish and well done. One of the subtexts of the movie — that style matters over substance — is well-developed from the beginning.

What is most intriguing about the film is the development of Bateman's homicidal tendencies. Part of the entertainment is in guessing just who will be the next victim.

Bateman is nothing if not calculating.

As the film progresses, this is what causes the intrigue and horror more than his actual murderous acts.

The randomness and dispassionate manner in which he chooses his victims coupled with the passion with which he dispatches them is masterful.

Much to her credit, Harron never gives the audience front-row seats in showing the violent acts, but shows obstructed views that are much more horrific in the minds of the audience.

"Frequency"

Movie Review

By C.J. Nodus

Since the time of H.G. Wells, science-fiction writers have pondered the prospects of time travel and the philosophical dilemma of what would happen to the present if you changed the past.

"Frequency" confronts these questions in a sort of "The Time Machine" meets "Sliding Doors."

As improbable as this appears on the surface, the premise works.

Jim Caviezel stars as John Sullivan, a 30-something cop in the 1990s who remembers the good times with his father and would do anything to undo his dad's tragic death.

While exploring for fishing gear, he finds the old ham radio gear so loved by his father.

He turns it on for old times sake and through the static, he ends up talking to a man who claims to be a firefighter waiting for the 1969 World Series.

As the conversation continues, John realizes this man is his father 30 years earlier.

John realizes he might be able to warn his father of his impending accidental death in the hopes of preventing it.

This film has great performances from Caviezel, Dennis Quaid as Frank, and Andre Braugher. It has great attention to deal in makeup, appearances and sound as far as aging characters over the 30-year span.

This attention to detail, in either characters of situations or even scientific theory (if truth be told), is what makes "Frequency a winner.

Throw in a good old fashioned mystery and some reasonable special effects and "Frequency" is a must see.

"U-571"

Movie Review

By C.J. Nodus

"U-571," the latest World War II epic, has enough flat spots, predictable scenes and inaccuracies to make it only marginally recommendable.

The fair amount of tension, claustrophobia and requisite submarine situations fall just short of believability.

From the opening scenes in port, the feeling is more of cardboard representations of the 1940s as opposed to the real thing.

Director/co-writer Jonathan Mostow did do his homework, painstakingly re-creating the internal and external compartments of a vintage U.S.S. class WWI submarine and a German U-boat.

The problem is the good-looking scenes were often mixed with bad special effects reminiscent of B-movies.

One example is where a crew member from the torpedoed American submarine is rescued from open sea. He looks as if he is kneeling or standing in a back-lot pool used to portray the Atlantic Ocean.

The premise, based on real incidents, is simple.

With Allied submariners being soundly defeated, the high command decides the fabled German Enigma encryption device must be captured to break the German's secret code.

A covert mission is developed where an American sub, fitted to resemble a German supply sub will aid a foundering U-571 and then board it, take the Enigma machine and then scuttle the U-boat.

The plans go awry, leaving the American sailors on the U-boat and pursued by Allied and German ships.

In addition, while historical accuracy is not a prerequisite for film, the British command actually secured the Enigma device, not an American submarine crew.

"U-571" is a pale imitation of previous movies. Its characters have no depth and the storylines are predictable and recycled.

For tops in the genre, rent "Das Boot," "The Hunt for Red October" or "Silent Running" and let "U-571" drift into obscurity.

DEATHS

ROBERT DONALD OETZMAN
Grass Lake

Age 67, died Tuesday, June 6, 2000, in his home with his family by his side, under the loving care of Individualized Hospice. He was born Feb. 9, 1933, in Freedom, Wis., the son of Ed and Bertha (Rohde) Oetzman.

Robert lived in Grass Lake for 22 years. He was a member of Our Savior Lutheran Church, where he was an usher. He retired from the GM Hydromatic Plant in 1988, then worked at Parts of America in Grass Lake. He loved big machinery. Robert was also a U.S. Army veteran, having served in the Korean War.

On Nov. 26, 1995, he married AnnaLee Palenshus in Dearborn, and she survives. Other survivors include two sons, Robert Brian (Linda) Oetzman of Houston, Texas, and Daniel John Oetzman of Canton; one daughter, Suzanne (Ron) Yarborough of Livonia; two sisters, Lilah (August) Ovard of Dallas, Texas, and Juanita (Martin) Schadde of Baraboo, Wis.; one granddaughter, Rachel Oetzman; two step-grandsons, Jason Dyson and Ronald Yarbrough; and many cousins, nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by one brother, Lester Oetzman.

Funeral services will be held Sunday, June 11, at 3 p.m. at Our Savior Lutheran Church in Chelsea with the Rev. Dale Grimm officiating. The family will receive friends at Cole Funeral Chapel Saturday, 5-8 p.m., and at the church Sunday, 2-3 p.m. Memorial contributions may be made to Our Savior Lutheran Church or Individualized Hospice.

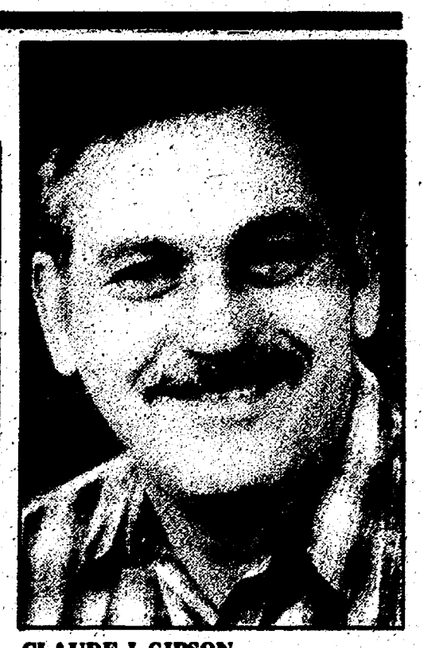

MICHAEL A. LISZNYAI
Jackson

Age 55, died suddenly Friday, June 2, 2000, at home of natural causes. He was born May 7, 1945, in Detroit, the son of Edward and Stella (Pieta) Lisznyai.

Michael had worked briefly for Eaton Corp. in Ann Arbor, but had worked for Johnson Controls in Manchester for many years. He was a member of the North Sharon Baptist Church and formerly a member of the Chelsea police reserves.

On June 25, 1966, he married Pamela J. Picord in Southgate, and she survives. Other survivors include two daughters, Kristine (Roger) Loucks of Jackson and Mary Lisznyai of Jackson; one brother, Eugene (Judy) Lisznyai of Taylor; five grandchildren, Christopher, Jessica, Jacob, Andrea and Brianna; and one niece and two nephews. He was preceded in death by one daughter, Tammy Lisznyai, in 1998 and both of his parents in 1999.

Funeral services were held yesterday at Cole Funeral Chapel, Chelsea, with Rev. Rich Ratts officiating. Burial followed at Oak Grove East Cemetery, Chelsea. Memorial contributions may be made to the Michael Lisznyai Memorial Fund.

CLAUDE J. GIPSON
Grass Lake

Age 57, passed away June 3, 2000. He was a much-loved father, grandfather, and brother. He was born July 23, 1942, to Claude and Julia Gipson, both of whom preceded him in death.

He is survived by his brothers and sisters Curmit (Pete) and Diane Gipson, Clinton and Kim Gipson, Diana Hadley, Dottie Skodak and Deborah Mundinger. He is also survived by his sons and their wives, Michael and Kathy and David and Mary, and his first wife, Mary Jo. He leaves three grandchildren, Jon, Jamie and Kristy. He also leaves his fiance, Delores Jean Hudson. He will be missed by his friends and his family, which includes many aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews, cousins. His fellow workers at Federal Screw Works in Chelsea, where he worked for over 30 years, will miss him, too, as will the people who bowled with him on many leagues and in the 700 club. Claude served in the Army.

Funeral arrangements were handled by Cole Funeral Chapel in Chelsea. A funeral service was held at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday at Cole Funeral Chapel, with burial following at Maple Grove Cemetery in Chelsea. Memorial contributions may be made to the American Lung Association.

Rehabilitation therapy holds promise for stroke survivors

Researchers have shown for the first time in humans that rehabilitation therapy may help a stroke survivor's brain rewire itself, leading to regained use of a previously unused limb. The study is in this month's "Stroke: Journal of the American Heart Association."

"This result has been a goal in neuroscience for decades, and while it has been shown in animals, it's the first time it's been shown for humans," says one of the study's authors, Edward Taub of the University of Alabama at Birmingham.

For decades it was believed that once brain cells died after a stroke, they were gone forever. Recent research is finding that the brain is much more "plastic" than previously thought. Plasticity refers to the brain's capability to rewire its circuitry to perform tasks that it was incapable of doing because of a severe injury.

This finding offers hope to researchers who believe that it may be possible to stimulate or manipulate brain areas to take over the lost functions, a process known as cortical reorganization.

Researchers used a procedure called focal transcranial magnetic stimulation to map the activity of the cerebral cortex. The thin layer of gray substance covering the surface of each hemisphere of the brain. The cerebral cortex is involved in higher mental functions, and in the production of general movement and behavioral reactions.

In particular, Taub and his colleagues monitored the area of the cortex that controls an important hand muscle, comparing the activity in the injured part of the brain with the unaffected portion. They examined 13 stroke survivors — 10 men, three women — before and after a 12-day period of movement therapy.

"The bottom line is that our rehabilitation technique recruits additional areas of the brain to participate in the production of movement after stroke," Taub says.

Before treatment, the area of the cerebral cortex controlling movements of the hand muscle was considerably smaller on the damaged side of the brain than on the non-affected side. After treatment, the size of the active area capable of generating movement in the damaged hemisphere was significantly enlarged, corresponding to a greatly improved motor performance of the hindered arm.

"These results show the potential for the improvement of impaired function after neurological injury by the use of appropriate techniques," says Taub. "This also opens the possibility of being able to produce this effect by other rehabilitation therapies or by pharmacological means."

In follow-up examinations up to six months after therapy, brain activity remained at a high level and the area of activity in the two hemispheres became almost identical. The improved motor function also persisted over this period of time.

The treatment, called constraint-induced movement therapy, involves restraining of the arm less affected by the stroke for 90 percent of waking hours for two or three weeks. On the weekdays during the period, six hours of therapy are interspersed over seven hours, with one hour of rest. The effectiveness of this therapy, according to Taub, results from the fact that it requires the continual use of the affected extremity for many hours a day during a period of consecutive weeks.

One day before treatment, the patients scored an average of 2.2 on a test that tracked arm use in 20 common and important activities of daily living and an average of 3.7 one day after treatment. A score of 2 indicates slight use; 3, half as much use as before stroke; and 4, three-fourths as much use as before stroke.

By the first day after treatment, there was 37.5 percent more activity in the damaged part of the brain than in the healthy part of the brain. This represented a near-doubling of the active area of the brain on the affected side.

According to Taub, the reorganization reflects either an increase in the excitability of neurons already involved in the development of affected hand movements, an increase in the amount of excitable tissue in the damaged hemisphere, or both.
