Planners postpone decision on 441 homes

■ Developer meets opposition from local residents.

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

"Carlson the Cow Man" calls it as he sees it. And what he sees is a complete disregard for residents impacted by a proposed 441-unit development on the Merkel farm on Dexter-Chelsea Road.

Marvin Carlson and a large contingent of residents with properties contiguous to the Merkel property packed the Sept. 19 Village Planning Commission meeting to give spirited voice to their opinions.

Calling plans for the residential development a travesty, Carlson stabbed at the conceptual site plans with a rolled up meeting agenda.

"I own the parcel that apparently doesn't exist on this map," he said.

His voice rising and falling like an evangelist preacher, the local cattle breeder — a property developer for 35 years — said no concern had been paid to commitments made by residents of the Dexter-Chelsea Road area.

"We have chosen not to develop our own property for the benefit of all," he said.

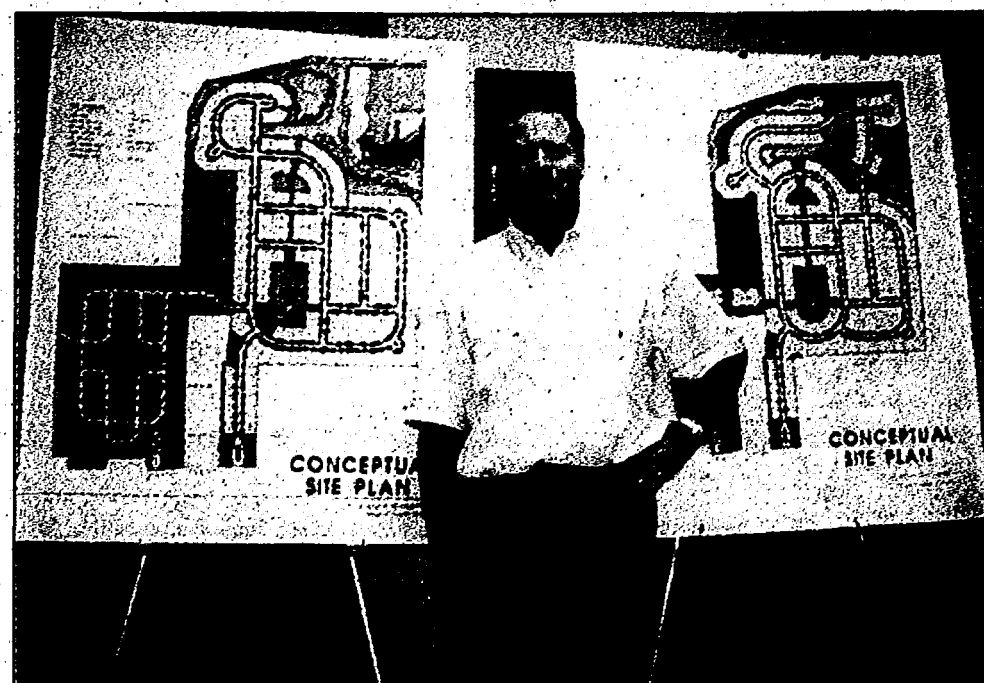

"Now we have a developer from out of town, who doesn't know us, hasn't contacted us, who is going ahead and expects us to pay $5 million of our taxpayer money to get water to his new development since our current village water supply is insufficient to serve the new site."

"Who's going to pick it up? You are," he said.

"The village of Chelsea will ask for a millage, and it will go in the developer's pocket," Carlson said.

The commission voted to table its decision on whether to rezone the 157-acre Merkel property until Oct. 17 and asked community planner Carl Schmult to summarize comments for a resolution to deny permission for site development

Committee slashes engineering services

■ Issue to be discussed again Nov. 17.

By Lisa Allmendinger
Staff Writer

Chelsea Area Traffic Committee members agreed to a reduced scope of services in its contract with consultant JJR Inc. during a meeting held Sept. 21.

Neil Billetdeaux explained that some of the engineering details could be eliminated from the budget, but he said cuts would not affect the preliminary draft for the M-52 bypass.

These reductions total $10,239 from the consultant's fees.

However, approximately $14,900 was added to the committee's bill because of project delays and the need for additional meetings, traffic analysis and historical preservation studies for the route.

About $300,000 was planned for project studies and that amount has not yet been exceeded.

Billetdeaux said that a topographical study that would map the grades, elevations and contours of the roads and surrounding areas would be under way in the next two weeks.

These are needed to plot topography detail of the area under consideration for the road project.

The committee must still secure sponsorship from the Washtenaw County Road Commission for the project application. Approval is required from the Michigan Department of Transportation, the Federal Highway Authority

Annual CROP Walk set

■ 13th annual CROP Walk helps fight hunger both locally and around the world.

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

Residents of Chelsea Retirement Community are lacing up their walking shoes and getting in training for the 13th annual Chelsea Area CROP Walk, which will be held 1:30 p.m. Oct. 1 at St. Paul United Church of Christ, 14800 Old US-12.

Led by resident Florence Barber, the senior citizens group has won the Golden Sneaker Award — for highest average pledge per walker — numerous times.

Last year, Barber led a contingent of 20 seniors, ranging in age from 85 to 95 years old.

This year, they will face a challenge — in enthusiasm, if not in numbers — from the Silver Maples Retirement Community.

More than a quarter of a million CROP Walk participants from across the United States will walk in approximately 2,000 CROP Walks and other community events.

The first CROP Walk was held in 1989, when 1,000 people in Bismarck, N.D., raised $25,000 to help stop hunger.

Since then, more than 4 million people have participated in close to 27,000 CROP Walks in the past 15 years.

Local participants may choose between a one-mile walk on the campus of Chelsea Community Hospital, or a 10-kilometer (6.2 miles) walk through Chelsea, before returning to the church between 3 p.m. and 4 p.m. for refreshments.

"Last year, a 79-year old man walked the entire 10K," said organizer Jan Roberts.

"We're a colorful group, with our balloons, stickers and CROP pins, so give us a wave and a cheer if you see us passing by," she said.

"Everyone is welcome to join in the fun. It's a great opportunity to meet friends and neighbors, enjoy some exercise, and at the same time help end hunger, both locally and around the world."

Preliminary pledge amounts for each represented church or group are posted at the end of the walk, with special commemorative pins for individual walkers who collect over $100 in pledges.

This year, CROP Walks will share more than $3.5 million with food banks, pantries and other hunger-fighting efforts nationwide.

Locally, 25 percent of the proceeds will be returned to Faith in Action for hunger relief in this area.

Through Church World Service and other private relief agencies, CROP funds are used to provide emergency relief and ongoing development programs in more than 80 countries worldwide.

"The money raised helps people help themselves to build better lives," Roberts said.

"It can provide wells and water systems, bricks to build a new home for flood victims, seeds and farming methods to start a gardening project that includes medicinal herbs, or chickens to start an egg and poultry business."

"Most importantly, people in need know that we care about them, and get new hope in the struggle to survive," she said.

Last year, 176 walkers participated, including a contingent from Dexter.

The event raised more than $15,000, which is triple the amount raised by the first walk in 1988.

"We've come a long way," said Roberts, who has gathered a wardrobe of commemorative T-shirts over the years.

"Our goal this year is to raise $20,000, and we have some new participants to help us reach that target," she said.

New participants include Chelsea Church of Library purchase concerns neighborhood

Residents want answers from library board.

By Lisa Allmendinger
Staff Writer

When residents of Orchard Street learned about the Chelsea District Library's purchase of Rob and Jennifer Reimenschneider's home at 121 Orchard St. in late August they said red flags went up. They wanted to know what the library planned to do with a $192,000 home that was paid for with taxpayer money from last October's bond issue. According to Chelsea Library Board President Lynn Fox, when the property came up for sale, the library purchased it in the hopes that it would somehow become part of the library's expansion plans.

For years, the McKune House has served as the district library. But because the building is not handicap accessible, the library's operations were temporarily moved to the Washington Street Education Center.

The library has a three-year lease with the school district and soon hopes to have a facility of its own.

The property the library board bought sits one house away from the corner of Main and Orchard streets. In between is George and Katherine Staffan's home.

The Staffans, in their 80s and longtime residents, approached the village and the library last year about the possibility of a lease option.

But Orchard Street resident Judy Smith said when she recently spoke to George Staffan about the possible purchase of his home by the library, Staffan told her that he had no plans to vacate the property.

Smith said the library sent Staffan a letter asking for the first option to buy his property when he vacated it, and he wrote back saying he had no intention of leaving.

"We have the utmost respect for Mr. Staffan. He's part of the McKune family that donated the house to us," Fox said.

"No one wants to move him. He also knows the library is not legally available for a life lease. We cannot be landlords."

But residents are concerned about the library owning a vacant home and wonder who will maintain the house in the short term, since the library cannot be a landlord.

Fox said she has spoken to the caretaker of the McKune building and he has agreed to maintain the Reimenschneider home, as well.

Residents are also concerned about a possible decline in property values. But Fox said property anywhere in town is valuable and she thinks a library in the area would only enhance the neighborhood.

Residents fear that the house will be torn down and an asphalt driveway will take its place, adding to already growing traffic problems on the short street.

Fox said the library board is not considering that plan.

"The McKune House and contiguous properties can be used in a variety of creative ways," she said.

Village Council Trustee Jim Myles said residents don't have anything to fear.

"They are not going to have concrete and asphalt right next to their property. I can promise you that," he said.

"This can be a win-win-win situation for everyone," he said. Myles said the impact on the area would be minimal because the house borders on the area of the library expansion.

The DDA, the village and the library own property in the area. Myles said all three are working together to make the library expansion happen.

The DDA owns the corner lot and John and Gloria Mitchell's property. Plans call for the Mitchell property to be turned into a parking lot.

Residents want to know about the possibility of more traffic on Orchard Street.

"I don't think that the library will cause more traffic in the area," Fox said.

She said the library has no plans for an exit or an entrance on Orchard Street.

Fox said no formal plans have been unveiled for the library expansion, but an architect has been hired.

Likewise, there is no set timeline for the project. Fox hopes that preliminary drawings will be available for public viewing this spring.

Plans call for about 24,000 square feet for the building. A bond issue to pay for the expansion is scheduled for next September.

Plans are also being considered for the Palmer Ford dealership on the other side of Main Street. The site could include a new post office and new village hall, as well as retail stores. There is a 120-space lot planned for parking in the back.

No consensus on leaf burning yet

Survey had poor response rate.

By Lisa Allmendinger
Staff Writer

A hint of fall is in the air. And as the season changes from summer to fall, a long-standing question remains unanswered.

How will residents living on Stofer and Forest courts dispose of their leaves now that a ban on burning is in place?

Residents were expected to discuss this hot topic and the five options presented by Dexter Township Supervisor Robert Tetens at a neighborhood meeting last night.

In a letter sent to the residents on Sept. 15, Tetens gave the results of a survey that was sent out following the last neighborhood meeting.

Outlined in the letter were five options available to residents. Those options included limited burning, private disposal, establishing a homeowners' association, setting up a special assessment district and a combined alternative.

Results of the survey showed no consensus from 20 of the 45 households surveyed.

There was a 44 percent response rate.

One of the more popular alternatives was Option 1, which would allow burning at specific times of the year. This option received nine votes.

The option suggested that the township institute a more stringent burn ordinance for higher density areas, but not for specific subdivisions.

According to the letter, residents in the lake areas, which have considerably high densities, would also be affected.

But Tetens said the Township Board is unlikely to support limited burning township wide.

Consequently, Option 1 may

under the existing plans. Earlier in the evening, developer Steven Fisher of Selective Enterprises had kicked off the meeting by displaying two conceptual site plans.

One was the initial rendering presented to members of the Planning Commission as a concept plan.

The other was a revised rendering, which he wanted approved.

Neither was met with much enthusiasm.

Commission Chairman Chris Rode set the ball rolling by pointing out there were substantial and significant issues to be discussed for the rezoning request.

These include the impact on the Dexter-Chelsea corridor and maintenance of the rural landscape, the village infrastructure, traffic levels and road safety, the proposed wastewater treatment plan, the cost of iron removal, an official wetland delineation plan, satisfactory funding, the capacity of the well water, maintenance of open park and pedestrian systems, and the character and look of the new homes.

Rode noted the commission has up to two years to deal with the rezoning issue, although he said he was not suggesting it take that long.

"Right up front, do we want to see these issues taken care of before we act on rezoning?" he said.

Schmult had several objections to the revised site plan, especially the public street access.

"The petition shows only one public street access to Dexter-Chelsea Road. That is not an acceptable street pattern from the standpoint of traffic flow or public convenience and safety," he said.

Schmult estimated a traffic pattern of 4,400 vehicle trips a day, and 440 vehicle trips during the peak hour.

Schmult suggested additional access points to McKinley via Elm Street, and the paving of Taylor Lane to make another public street access.

Schmult pointed out that two of the proposed lots are three-fourths a mile and two-thirds a mile from the entrance, an excessive distance for safety.

"The streetscape also needs improving to minimize the visual dominance of garages and driveways, and the layout is monotonous," he said.

Schmult suggested the commission discuss a mixture of building types with variations in the locations of garages and driveways and placement of buildings.

During public participation, Ray Howe, a resident of Freer Road, did not mince words.

"I think this proposal is absurd," he said.

"I've seen unrestrained growth in another small town that led to the loss of any sense of community togetherness."

"We have a good sense of community here in Chelsea, but we can't do that with a revolving door," he said.

"This plan is an attempt to cash in on Chelsea, with complete disregard to the values of this community."

Elise Kelley, who lives at the intersection of Freer and Dexter-Chelsea roads, and whose property would be impacted by any road extension to Freer, voiced her concern for traffic safety.

"It's difficult to leave the driveway or get mail now. This will exacerbate the problem," she said.

Chelsea High School teacher John Capper, a resident of Freer Road, agreed.

"I have the luxury of walking to work, but I have to skip across the road fast. The volume of traffic is so high that I'm lucky to be alive," he said.

"Freer Road, already very difficult at peak times, was not designed to be a major thoroughfare, and with the impact of 400-plus homes, it will be a nightmare."

Capper described the "hairy experience" of kids dashing across Freer Road on their way to athletic activities after school.

"With so many youngsters in the district, what will traffic be like for them?" he said.

"The safest thing would be to build a pedestrian bridge, which would be an eyesore and expensive, and is one of a lot of hidden expenses we haven't even begun to consider."

Resident Sherry Albertson does not envision Elm Street as a public street.

"Elm Street is only a block long, and already has traffic congestion as parents wait to turn on McKinley on their way to North Elementary," she said.

Albertson is also concerned about the architectural integrity of the area.

"These local homes have a history, and part of Elm Street will be gone forever," she said.

"There comes a point when improvement reaches a point of diminishing returns. I don't see how this proposed development will enhance the quality of life for us."

Freer Road resident Bill Crane finds it puzzling that such a large development is being added at this location.

"How much is this adding to Chelsea in one fell swoop?" he said.

"Is it premature to ask about the common sense of questions such as traffic and water supply — questions that don't seem to have been accommodated, just reshuffled?"

Anna Easudes has lived on her property for eight years, and worries about her sheep within their electric fence, and children in the proposed residential area.

"We need buffer zones between farmland and residential areas," she said.

"Who is going to protect us from lawsuits if kids get hurt?"

Property owner Ginger Haugen, voiced her concerns about maintaining the rural nature of the eastern entrance to Chelsea Village.

"We seem to be shoehorning in as many lots as possible," she said.

Resident Dean Carpenter pointed out that the original master plan for the village was to be in harmony with Lima Township.

"A farming community is not compatible with high-density housing," he said.

Armel Minix lives on Railroad Street, in one of oldest homes in Chelsea.

"I don't want cars in my living room, and that's what they'd have to do," he said.

Lima Township Supervisor Gary Adams, whose cattle operation shares a common boundary with the Merkel property, is concerned about safety and liability, and his right to continue his livestock operation.

"I'm also concerned with toxic yard waste — many landscape plants are poisonous to animals — and if any are dumped in pastures or hayfields, it will harm our animals," he said.

"We should all want to leave a good legacy to the next generation. Let's leave a coherent long-range plan, not a mess."

Property owner Steve Easudes asked several times if there were any legal ramifications that would prevent further public hearings, especially after Schmult pointed out that there is no legal requirement for the commission to hold more than one.

"If a certain threshold is crossed, we feel obligated to hold another public hearing," Rode said.

"These are significant issues to be looked at, and there will be further public hearings as issues become more concretely formulated, with more input from local residents."

Commissioner Kathy Carter was strong in her support of tabling any rezoning until the issues were resolved.

"There are some things the village needs to do, and others the applicant will need to take care of," she said.

"We expect another proposal to come back, and several of us have made a vocal commitment to a further public hearing."

"We also need to work on a plan for the Dexter-Chelsea corridor, so we can tell the developer what is needed for the site plan," she said.

The developer agreed his request should be postponed.

"It would be premature to ask the board to take action on the PUD," Fisher said.

"I recommend meeting on a regular basis to discuss and work through these issues, so that together we design a plan that is well thought out and well received by the community."

In other business, the commission voted to approve the Pierce Lake Golf Course clubhouse addition, and approved the final site plan for the Gene Court site condominium development.

The commission also discussed updating the current landscape standards to bring them into line with modern requirements and expectations of the village, in lieu of adopting the proposed landscape ordinance.

In chariot races at the Chelsea High School Homecoming pep assembly, the male sports team beat the girls. Shown are Paul Newhouse and Andre Bravo pulling Mike Mignano.

Students celebrate Homecoming

■ Students enjoy dress-up days, chariot races, three-legged races.

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

Chelsea High School students celebrated Homecoming Week with a variety of lunchtime activities, including a pajama party, Biker Day, Tacky Prom Day and Retro Day.

The week wrapped up with a Homecoming pep rally in the gymnasium on Friday afternoon, an hour of raucous cheering and goofy games.

After a stirring rendition of the National Anthem by Chris Broshar, seniors Ann Larder, Jennie Diesing and Katrina Hammer took over as masters of ceremony for the afternoon.

The band played loudly as cheerleaders performed an opening routine.

Candidates for Homecoming queen and princesses, as well as their courts, were escorted into the gymnasium by teachers and lined up to face their classes.

Freshman princess Lindsay Cook was escorted by Chris Orlandi; Alise Augustine, by Lonnie Mitchell; Missy Morcom, by Jim Tallman; and Sidney Olinyk, by Robin Raymond.

Sophomore princess Jessica Ott was escorted by Kerry Kargel; Ana Abreu, by Eric Swager; Amy Mattocks, by Ron Mead; and Jenny Wright, by Brad Bush.

Junior princess Kourtney Barlow was escorted by Mark Scheese; Ashley Hoage, by Scott Long; Kim Lancaster, by Bruce Boughner; and Rochelle Stafford, by Bill Arons.

Senior Michelle Dettling — this year's Homecoming queen — was escorted by Chad Scaling; Kaitlyn Kooyers, by Mark Arrigan; Josie Wells, by Phil Jones; and Kate Wheeler, by Bill Bainton.

The girls then got good and messy kneeling into a pool full of Jell-O to pick out Barbie doll parts with their teeth, before racing back to their respective teams to assemble the dolls.

The sophomore team of Abreu, Mattocks, Ott and Wright were the winners.

Four new teachers bravely took part in a three-legged race, running to four separate tables at which they had to eat a lemon, dill pickle, Ho-Ho and peanut butter and jelly sandwich.

After setting speed records in the race, all four teachers broke additional records racing to the nearest trash bin to spit out lemon rind.

In a fierce battle of the sexes — a sort of "Ben Her" versus "Ben Him" — the male sports team was victorious in the chariot race, in which one person, wrapped in a sheet, was dragged across the floor by two others.

While the junior class won the cheering contest, the senior class won Spirit Week by five points.

The Student Council, assisted by Student Council advisers Chris Kochan and Julie Deppner, organized the week of events.

Schools to levy millage

■ Board also discusses locker privacy, computer filter issues.

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

In a brief meeting Monday, the Chelsea school board voted to approve 18 mills for operating purposes on non-homestead property.

The levy for debt retirement is 7 mills on all property.

The board set the sinking fund rate at .8879 mills.

The board also approved a new policy on relations with community-operated programs and athletic cooperatives, a policy that arose from the board's recent decision to sponsor hockey as a varsity program.

These guidelines include consideration of cost, student interest, availability of qualified coaches, risk management issues, conformance with the board's policies and the district's budget.

School Superintendent Ed Richardson raised the issue of locker privacy.

"We've always had a rule in Chelsea that students had no presumption of privacy when it came to their lockers," he said.

"The safety of our students is obviously more important than privacy issues."

Richardson noted that under new laws, the school ruling now has legal backing from the state.

Police officers can check student lockers, and items found are not inadmissible in court.

He also noted the board will need to adopt a policy regarding computers in the school libraries.

"If you have a library that is public — and a school library does qualify as public — there must be one or more computers with filters to screen out pornographic material," he said.

"However, unfiltered computers, or a password to bypass the filter, must be available for anybody 18 or older."

Assistant Superintendent Iva Corbett noted the district uses Cyber Patrol in an attempt to regulate inappropriate material, but that nothing is 100 percent.

Richardson also asked the board members present to provide input to the other board members about a policy on self-evaluation.

The board voted to approve the agreement between Chelsea School District and Inspiring Innovative Integration Consulting Group to create a partnership for the delivery of professional-development opportunities.

The consulting group provided training for 30 Chelsea teachers this summer.

The plan is to expand the program to provide training facilities for both local staff and school teams in a 100-mile radius.

The committee hopes to have the sponsorship, the assorted surveys and a draft document ready for review by February or March.

A public hearing could be held in June and the document finalized shortly after that if everything goes according to plan.

Because some survey work still needs to be completed, the committee rescheduled its October meeting for Nov. 17.

The M-52 bypass project was initiated in 1995. A committee was formed that considered seven possible routes.

In 1998, the Chelsea Area Traffic Committee was officially formed and public presentations were made in March of that year.

By July 1998, a preliminary proposed route took shape. The routes goes from Commerce Drive, west through the industrial park, turning northwest on old US-12, west of the former Weinburg Dairy, continuing west of the United Methodist Retirement Home, crossing Cavanaugh Lake Road and heading back to Werkner Road and back to M-52.

Laptop program to help alternative high students

■ Students take part in cutting-edge program.

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

Students at Chelsea Alternative High School are surfing.

Surfing the 'Net, that is.

At the annual cookout to celebrate the start of the new school year, each student was presented with a Compaq Pentium III 500-megahertz computer.

The school uses a wireless network to access network resources, allowing students to move between classrooms with their laptops.

"The intent of the program was to make technology more available to the students," says Barbara Fisher, the program's lead teacher.

"We're not changing what we're teaching, but rather how we teach it. We don't want to get caught up in technology and lose sight of the curriculum."

The school had 12 computers in a lab, which was not sufficient for the needs of both students and teachers. Students occasionally had to go across the street to the new high school.

"Now, when we're discussing a topic, each student can have instant access to information and research," Fisher says.

Fisher finds that the laptop program changes the dynamics of the class by improving the focus and attention of her students while also stimulating their curiosity for learning.

For instance, during a recent history class, students found out that George Washington made an annual salary of $25,000.

"That got them wondering what today's politicians make," Fisher says.

"By hopping on the Internet, the kids had an answer within minutes."

The computers have been updated to Windows 98 and Office 2000, and cruise the Internet with Netscape.

"Students are learning to do Web pages, and PowerPoint presentations, and use Inspiration, PhotoShop, Illustrator and Page Maker," says technology teacher Joe Tinsley.

"We're also using Studio 3D, Bryce, Poser and Art Dabbler software to create our yearbook."

Students have developed Web pages for teachers, and for local small businesses.

"With this sort of hands-on training, our students should be able to find excellent careers, perhaps in graphics and Web page design, or other computer fields," Tinsley says.

Tinsley recalls a conversation with the installer of the school's broadband network.

"He was a graduate of an alternative high school himself, so was very interested in our program here," Tinsley says.

"He told me that being offered the chance to learn about computers led him to a challenging, well-paying career."

Students are allowed to take their laptops home at night, where they will have access to the same software they have in school.

"This (round-the-clock) approach to learning makes it easier for them to be successful with their studies, and also teaches them responsibility," Tinsley says.

According to Tinsley, many of the students in the alternative education program who are bored with conventional education may not realize the extent of their abilities.

"Our students are also unlikely to head to the library for research, or open up an encyclopedia or dictionary," he says.

"When they want an answer to something, they want it immediately."

"Let them access that same reference work on the Internet, and they'll spend hours checking out the different sites," he says.

"They love getting the information from multiple sources, with multi-media experiences, video and sound."

Tinsley has set up e-mail for the Nazarene, Silver Maples retirement home and St. James' Episcopal Church in Dexter, which is the second Dexter church joining the CROP Walk. Dexter United Methodist church participated last year, bringing in $4,000 its first year.

"The walk is one of the few events that bring together churches and a variety of community groups in a united effort to combat hunger and its causes," Roberts said.

"Excuse the bad pun, but as the CROP Walk Web site says, 'We put our hearts and soles into helping stop hunger.'"

Roberts has been participating in the Chelsea walk since 1992, when the late Rev. Mark Weirauch of Zion Lutheran Church got involved as coordinator.

The following year, she helped him coordinate the event.

After Weirauch's death in 1994, the Rev. Lynn Spitz-Nagel of St. Paul United Church of Christ helped Roberts coordinate that year's walk. Spitz-Nagel played a large role in the walk until his death last December.

"(The) Rev. Spitz-Nagel was especially supportive and involved in the CROP Walk, and people in Chelsea and the surrounding communities can honor his memory with their support," Roberts said.

She advises participants to wear layers and good walking shoes, and to train for the walk by walking a mile or two three times a week.

Weary walkers will have a special treat to ease their aching muscles this year.

"Kevin Costello, owner of Sanctuary Massage, is providing free massage therapy at the end of the walk," Roberts said.

Gina's Café will provide commemorative T-shirts, Lesser Farms will donate apples, and McDonald's restaurant in Chelsea will provide orange drink.

Walkers are still welcome, as are volunteers, who are needed to help with registration, provide refreshments and attend rest stops.

Anyone who wants to donate time or refreshments, or any new groups wanting to join the walk, can call Roberts at 475-3615.

For sponsor forms, contact local church or organization recruiters, or call Larry Wiedmayer at 475-9091.

PUTTING TIME ON YOUR SIDE

When considering filing a lawsuit, an attorney will want to examine the relevant statute of limitations. This is the time period specified by law within which an action must be filed. With few exceptions, if a lawsuit is not filed within the legally prescribed limit, then a plaintiff will be legally barred from suing. Thus, those who have been injured due to negligence or intentional wrongdoing have every reason to meet with an attorney as soon as possible. Statutes of limitation are generally set by state or federal legislatures, and may vary with respect to the type of claim and who is the respondent in the suit. These statutes are generally seldom less than one year.

Not sure if your case is worth the fees an attorney might charge to explain your legal options? The LAW OFFICES OF KITCHEN & STRINGER, located in Dexter, at 3249 Broad St., invite you to call 426-4695 to schedule a free consultation. As attorneys with over thirty years of combined experience in handling cases involving personal injury, business law, medical and veterinary malpractice, family law, real estate, wills, and estate probate, we are committed to ensuring that financial concerns do not prevent individuals from learning their legal rights.

Tinsley has set up e-mail for each student, arranged them into e-mail groups and he has created discussion sites.

"Each day, I'll e-mail questions, ask their opinions, ask them for a review of the previous day's work, or suggest they visit a certain Web site."

Tinsley finds his students are more open to sharing ideas and feelings through e-mail, especially since they can do this at any time of day.

"While this is no substitute for one-on-one interaction, it's certainly giving a lot of these kids more confidence to express themselves, and some of them can write very well," Tinsley says.

Tinsley, who also teaches at South Meadows Elementary School, has two Alternative High School students helping the younger students, which he says is a big boost to the older students' interpersonal skills.

"The laptop computer program gives our students a head start in the ever-advancing field of technology in education," says Alternative High School Program Director Robin Raymond.

"Our teaching staff now has more of an opportunity to integrate their specific curriculum with the state-of-the-art technology that is available on the Internet."

Tinsley is appreciative of Special Education Director Hank DeYoung for his dedication and support of the alternative program in Chelsea.

"Without his efforts, we would not have this opportunity to evolve into a laptop school of the 21st century," Tinsley says.

DeYoung said the alternative education teachers are committed to the infusion of technology into the curriculum.

"I firmly believe that this program will be replicated in other buildings, and in other school districts," he says.

The program experienced a temporary setback last week when someone broke into the Alternative High School and stole seven of the laptops.

Police are investigating the theft, and a parent of a student in the program has stepped forward and offered a $1,000 reward for the return of the computers.

"Obviously the students and staff of the program are very upset that this would happen," Raymond said. "The laptop program put us on the leading edge of technology. When we lose laptops like this, it certainly hurts the students."

Raymond said that the school's insurance company has been informed of the theft, and the computers will be replaced soon. But for the time being, he said, students are being forced to share computers.

"The way we designed the curriculum was that each student carries computer to each class (and is connected through) a wireless network," Raymond said. "If no computer is accessible, they need to share, which obviously isn't the same as having your own computer."

Raymond said the Compaq computers, which arrived in the district just last month, cost about $2,000 each.

BURNING

require the establishment of a neighborhood association with its own regulations. Permits from the fire department still would be required and burning would be subject to state and federal standards. There would be no cost to implement this policy.

The second most popular option was a combined alternative that allows limited burning of leaves, possible burn barrels for sticks and limbs, and some form of non-burning disposal service for the bulk of the waste material.

There were two votes for Option 2, which would eliminate burning, and leaves the responsibility of disposal with the property owner. Cost would be determined by the services requested.

Options 3 and 4 received one vote each.

Option 3 called for residents to manage their own contract with a private company that would service most, if not all, of the neighborhood.

This would require the residents to form an association and would involve a high degree of participation.

Option 4 proposed a special assessment district to fund the services, but with township oversight.

"It is interesting to note that some of the more outspoken 'no burn' advocates were among those who remained silent on the survey," Tetens said in his letter to residents.

"Obviously, unless all the residents work together in good faith toward a mutually acceptable solution, there is not much hope for this issue to be resolved."

Suicide
Dear Friends and Neighbors,
In the article on Churches and Suicide in the September 7 issue of the Dexter Leader, the most important thing a Christian minister has to say about suicide did not come through clearly. Namely, there is only one thing for which a person will be sent to hell, and that is lack of faith in Jesus Christ. And there is only one thing which brings a person eternal life, namely, trust in Jesus Christ.
Since Jesus has paid for the sins of the world, sin cannot send us to hell any more. This includes the sin of suicide.
However, a life given over to sin reveals lack of trust in Jesus Christ. And in many cases the sin of suicide is an indication of a lack of trust in Jesus, since real trust in the Lord means that, no matter how dark things look, a person believes that the Lord is there and will bring them through.
On the other hand, there are medications and medical conditions which may cause a person to lose control, but not to give up their saving faith in Jesus Christ. Only God Himself knows whether for sure whether any given person dies with faith in Jesus. If a person clearly renounces their faith, for example in a suicide note written from an obviously clear mind, we have to take their word. Otherwise, we give a person the benefit of the doubt if they had been a confessing Christian, and commit them to God's mercy.
The whole matter can be very devastating for family and friends, and must be addressed with compassion. Ultimately, though, the most important question is not, "What is the eternal fate of those who commit suicide?" but rather, "Where do I stand with the Lord?" Millions of people die without committing suicide, yet end up eternally lost. We don't want you to be one of them. Our God is gracious and will not only forgive your sins and give you a place in His heavenly home, but will also bring you through the dark days of this life.
Please worship Him with us this Sunday!

Dexter Village

Warrant Arrest
Police arrested David John Witherspoon, 19, of Ann Arbor, for an outstanding warrant Sept. 23.

Police said they were called to home in the 100 block of Baker on a complaint that someone was acting disorderly. Police said that when they arrived, they observed Witherspoon leaving the scene, and they stopped him. Police discovered Witherspoon was wanted out of Ann Arbor for failing to appear for a court date.

Chelsea Village

Stolen Vehicle
Police recovered a stolen pickup truck after a high-speed chase that led them through three counties.

The truck was stolen from Amoco gas station, 1630 S. Main St., at about 7 a.m. Sept. 20. Police spotted the missing vehicle about four minutes after it was stolen, and followed the truck through Livingston County and into Oakland County.

Oakland County police eventually captured the man who took the truck and returned the vehicle to the owner.

Police said the 23-year-old Stockbridge man they captured had an outstanding felony warrant for burglary in Mason, and also admitted to stealing the pickup truck.

Larceny
Someone stole two custom headlight covers from a truck parked at Chelsea High School. The theft took place around 2 p.m. Sept. 15.

The headlight covers were valued at about $90.

Assault
Police were called to Chelsea Community Hospital at about 8 p.m. Sept. 22 after a fight broke out between two brothers.

Police said they were told by one of the brothers that his younger brother attacked him after an argument. The victim was receiving medical treatment for a cut above his eye as a result of the altercation.

The man told police he did not want to press charges against his brother, and the case was closed.

Dog at Large
A man received a minor wound while trying to catch a large dog that was roaming in his yard. The incident took place at about 7:30 a.m. Sept. 2 at a home in the 200 block of Railroad Street.

The victim told police he was able to tie up the dog with a rope, but in doing so he received a nip on the thumb. Police tried to remove the dog, but the dog escaped.

The dog's owner was later contacted and warned not to let the dog loose in the neighborhood.

Escaped Psychiatric Patient
Police captured a 31-year-old Fenton man after he escaped from the Chelsea Community Hospital psychiatric ward.

Police said they were called to the hospital at about 10:45 a.m. Sept. 18 by hospital employees who saw the man escape. They said he jumped over a brick wall and fled during a cigarette break.

Police spotted the man downtown and eventually talked him into returning. They said the man had been involuntarily committed to the hospital.

Police escorted him back to the hospital.

Possession of Alcohol
Police issued a citation to an 18-year-old Manchester man for possession of alcohol after they observed him urinating in the Big Boy parking lot, 1610 S. Main St.

The incident took place at about 10:45 p.m. Sept. 5.

Drunken Driving
Police arrested a 35-year-old Stockbridge man for drunken driving on M-52 at about midnight Sept. 7. Police stopped the man in his vehicle after a fast-food employee told them he had come into their restaurant and acted drunk.

Police said that the man resisted arrest. They are seeking warrants for obstructing officers and assaulting police.

Warrant Arrest
Police arrested Valerie Anita Morrow, 40, of Taylor for an outstanding warrant for failure to appear at a court date. The arrest took place after a traffic stop on Main Street at about 9:30 p.m. Sept. 8.

Police arrested Corey Hurn, 23, of Detroit on an outstanding warrant after discovering him sleeping in a van in the parking lot of Polly's, 1101 South Main St. The arrest took place at about 5 a.m. Sept. 4.

Hurn was wanted in Detroit for probation violation. Detroit police were contacted and decided not to pick up Hurn, so he was released.

Police arrested Damone Renald Woods, 31, of Detroit after a traffic stop for having six outstanding warrants. The arrest took place at about 10:30 p.m. Sept. 8 near M-52 and I-94.

Police said Woods was wanted in Southfield for failing to appear for court dates, traffic infractions and child neglect charges.

Scio Township

Vandalism
Someone threw eggs at a car parked in the 6600 block of Jackson Road and slashed two of the tires on the vehicle. The damage took place sometime during the morning of Sept. 17.

Total damage to the paint and tires was estimated at about $1,000.

Police were called to investigate a damaged candy machine at the General Scientific Corporation, 77 Enterprise Drive, on Sept. 18.

Someone had pried open the door of the building and broke into the candy machine. About $30 in change was taken and $700 in property was damaged.

Police are investigating the incident.

Someone used a sharp object to scratch the paint of two new cars at the Jim Bradley Pontiac dealership, 3500 Jackson Road. The damage was noticed Sept. 18.

The loss is estimated at about $300.

Someone broke into two new vehicles at the Jim Bradley Pontiac dealership and stole two televisions. The theft was reported Sept. 18.

The thieves punched the locks on the vehicles to gain access to the TVs. The business manager told police that the TVs are worth about $3,000. The damage to the vehicles totals about $650.

Police were called to investigate a smashed window at American Broach and Machine Company Sept. 18.

Someone had used a blunt object to shatter the window over the weekend. No property was found missing from the business. The window was worth about $500.

Possession of Alcohol
A 19-year-old Chelsea woman was arrested for possession of alcohol after a routine traffic stop at about 5 a.m. on Scio Church Road Sept. 17.

Police said they could smell alcohol on the woman's breath, and a preliminary Breathalyzer test revealed a blood-alcohol level of .09. A level of .10 is considered legally drunk.

The woman was taken to the Washtenaw County Jail.

Larceny
Thieves took tools and ladders valued at about $1,750 from a construction site on Redstone Court Sept. 18. The owner of the stolen items said he left them in his pickup truck overnight, and when he returned to work, they were missing.

He told police that he checked numerous pawn shops in the area and was unable to find his missing tools.

Missing Property
A man called police to tell them he had accidentally left his computer in the parking lot at I-94 and Baker Road, and when he returned to retrieve it, it was missing.

The computer was lost Sept. 15. It is valued at about $4,000.

Drunken Driving
Police arrested a 33-year-old Ann Arbor woman for drunken driving on Zeeb Road after she swerved over the center line, forcing them off the road. The arrest took place at about 8:45 p.m. Sept. 21.

A Breathalyzer test revealed the woman had a blood-alcohol level of .22 percent. A level of .10 is considered legally drunk. The woman was taken to the Washtenaw County Jail and her car was impounded.

While she was at the jail, the woman told the nurse that she had also ingested some unknown pills, so she was taken to the hospital.

At the hospital, medical staff said she became belligerent and would not allow them to treat her, and at one point, she had to be physically restrained to the hospital bed.

Warrant Arrest
Police arrested Gregory Duane Fiser on an outstanding warrant after they contacted him while he was walking along Wagner road near Scio Church. The arrest took place at about 5 a.m. Sept. 20.

Fiser was wanted by Ann Arbor police for failing to appear for a traffic court date.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Golf course, store plan to fix problem

This letter is in reply to Ms. Mary Lovejoy's letter concerning the golf ball that went through her car window. Ms. Lovejoy's thinking that Pierce Park Golf Course would be able to help her, even though she failed to get comprehensive insurance coverage on her car, intrigued me.

If anyone is to blame for her frustration, it is the Chelsea Village Planning Commission. Pierce Park was built before Farmer Jack was even a plan. Farmer Jack's original building plan took into consideration that the store was next to the golf course.

The village — in its great wisdom — did not want the front of Farmer Jack facing M-52. So, Farmer Jack's only alternative was to turn the planned location by 90 degrees, which exposed the parking lot and front entrance to be in direct line with the sixth tee of the golf course.

Now, if we were all professional golfers and could guarantee the perfect shot, you would not have this problem.

From day one of the building of Farmer Jack, it was apparent that there was going to be problems, especially when the construction workers were dodging golf balls.

Farmer Jack, recognizing the problem early and with cooperation of the golf course, paid for the installation of some 50 trees along the fence line. Those trees were planted on the golf course to eventually stop balls from going into the parking lot. But it will take a few years before these trees are big enough to do the job.

My question, I guess, to Ms. Lovejoy or anyone else who has sustained damage, is what reaction were you looking for from the golf course personnel?

The individual who handled Ms. Lovejoy's complaint was totally correct. The golf course did not hit the shot that broke her window. I agree with Ms. Lovejoy that the situation is potentially dangerous and I also know that Farmer Jack and the golf course recognize this and are in the planning stages on how to fix the situation.

It is my suggestion to all who shop at Farmer Jack to park near M-52 or shop during hours that the golf course is not in play.

But the most important thing is to make sure you have comprehensive insurance coverage.

Avoid electromagnetic exposure at all times

Your recent article about suicide hit me like a hammer. I recently read a summary about a study done by the University of North Carolina and published in the Journal of Occupational and Environmental Medicine.

Suicide rates among electrical workers were twice those of the general public. The highest rate of suicide was among the younger workers who had the highest electrical exposure in the year before their death.

This might suggest that youth may be more vulnerable to the effects of electromagnetic exposure. It is theorized that this type of exposure may decrease levels of melatonin, which is connected to a variety of body functions, including sleep, hunger, depression and sexual desire.

I wonder if the great increase in our society's everyday exposure to EMF through all of our technology (computers, cell phones, video games and many other electronic devices) could be having a direct effect in the increase of suicide, especially in our young people!

As a feng shui consultant, I have been trained to routinely measure EMF with a Gauss meter for clients. Unfortunately, as far as we know at this time, there is no way to block EMFs. It is necessary to simply stay a safe distance away.

Be aware that it is important for anyone, but especially a child, not to sleep with their beds near TVs, computers, etc., electrical outlets and wires or power boxes, even in the basement under the bed or on the other side of a wall.

Grounding wires on water pipes are found to also carry high EMF that radiates into the rooms above. We still don't know a lot about these phenomena, but until we do, it seems prudent to avoid them as much as possible.

Proposal for power plant provokes lots of comment

I learned about the potential power plant in Dexter Township on Aug. 31 from an e-mail message posted to the group smartgrowthwashtenaw@great-lakes.net by a staff member of the Michigan Environmental Council.

I attended the Sept. 6 meeting at Mill Creek Middle School. I've read most of what I can get my hands on about the project, including the two letters in the Sept. 14 Chelsea Standard/Dexter Leader.

I'm a member of the Sierra Club Huron Valley Group Conservation Committee that will be discussing the issue at its next meeting. I live about 11 miles southwest of the plant site in Sylvan Township. The plant will have little impact on me personally.

However, as a candidate for Sylvan Township supervisor I'm fascinated by governmental decision-making and the public's perception of and participation in the process. The positions that I'm aware of at the moment fall into two broad categories. The first is "the we moved out here for the wonderful rural nature of the area and Panda will wreck it."

I agree the wonderful rural nature was even better 10 years ago or 20 years ago when I moved out here. The list of things wrecking the rural character of my neighborhood is long, but boils down to too many people.

The second approach I see is the "we don't need Panda Energy." We should be implementing energy conservation techniques, using hydrogen-powered cars and building renewable energy plants.

I agree there are better ways.

Five years as an energy management engineer convinced me that with $350 million, the cost of the Panda plant, and police powers, I could reduce demand by 1,000 megawatts (the size of the Panda plant). Notice how I subtly slipped in the police powers.

The first approach blames Panda for the loss of our past.

The second approach uses a crystal ball to predict no need for Panda. The only facts that are actually before us is that the property owner wants to sell and that one of the potential buyers is Panda. What is realistic to consider is who are the next five potential buyers if we drive Panda away.

I would be happy to trade Sylvan Township's 350-unit mobile home park for Dexter Township's 1,000-megawatt power plant.

It is pleasant to contemplate our fading past and to dream of a glorious future, but the issue is can we make wise choices between the options that reality presents to us.

A side note on Marijo Grogan's letter. She asks, "Why should corporations have the same rights as citizens? Why shouldn't communal rights be at least as important as individual rights? Why shouldn't saving our rich ecological heritage for future generations be at least as important as the quick bucks we can make today?"

These are all excellent questions. Ralph Nader is probably the only national politician with strong responses to those questions. Al Gore has a good theoretical understanding of the questions. George W. Bush thinks the answers are obvious.

GOP contributors not the only 'bad guys'

Regarding Stanley Borenstein's comments on the GOP and why we should vote Democrat: How liberal and bold of you to advance the premise that you or anyone else has any moral or ethical right to pillage my income for your arbitrary, socialist mind-set that somehow I am responsible for your housing, health care and so-called social services.

The do-no-wrong Democrats (Al Gore) sell out this country to the Chinese, pillage the moral decency of the presidency, and you Clinton lovers have the gall to paint the GOP and its contributors as the bad guys.

Mr. Borenstein, if you don't like politics as usual, do yourself a favor and study the Libertarian position regarding taxes, big government and self-responsibility. You might learn something and just maybe the next time you take a cheap shot at Republicans, you may also want to blast the Democrats.

Support for Faith in Action is appreciated

EDITOR'S NOTE — The Rev. Jerrold Beaumont is retiring from his position at St. Barnabas Episcopal Church. A story about his retirement appeared in the Sept. 14 edition of The Chelsea Standard.

I would like to thank all of the members of St. Barnabas Episcopal Church and encourage them to be of good heart — it will all work out in God's good time.

I would be most remiss if I didn't thank the Chelsea United Way, the churches, service clubs, business, industry and the citizens of the area for their confidence in and support of Faith in Action Inc.

As I have often said, we must not overlook the young people of our communities and their efforts to bring us food. You should be very proud of them.

It is difficult for me to decide what I will miss most. I guess it is safe to say, I'll miss the people whom I have worked, laughed and cried with over this past quarter century and more.

To all of you, look upon Faith in Action Inc. as your inheritance and continue to strengthen it through your support: financial, physical and spiritual. I have been blessed so many ways since coming here that I can't even enumerate them.

The Rev. Jerrold Beaumont

We cannot stop growth, but we can control it

The issue of land usage has risen to the forefront again in the form of Panda Energy's potential power plant to be located in Dexter Township.

Rightly or wrongly, development has pointed its finger at the Dexter area. As a resident, I am aware of the concerns about the future of the community and do not want it to become another suburban clone.

I am also aware, from firsthand experience, that development cannot be stopped. But it can and must be harmonized with the local community's future or it will get a life of its own and destroy all in its path.

I have lost a family farm to highway development a few years ago and more recently a serene view of farmland and livestock has been replaced with houses.

These experiences have made me acutely aware of the benefits and costs of development. The residents are correct in their pursuit of containing developers. But those who own the land have every right to reap the benefits of a lifetime of hard work.

Hopefully, they also have a deep love of and respect for the land and realize that once developed, it can never regain its use as farmland or habitat.

The township has a plan for development, which at this time does not include industrial zoning. But I think it is worth examining some of the benefits and drawbacks of having a power plant facility in the area.

Yes, a power plant will result in some unfortunate consequences. The cooling towers will create a plume, but they can be situated to have a minimal impact.

The cooling towers need not be of the Three Mile Island variety, which dominate the terrain, but rather two-story wooden structures. The stack may appear to be tall, but it is modest by power-plant standards and, consequently, not as commanding as one might think.

The stack could require flashing aviation hazard lights and perhaps white and orange striping. The facility would require new infrastructure in the form of road upgrades along with telephone and electrical improvements. Since water will be supplied by a new pipeline, only one new well would be required to supply drinking water.

The surrounding homes would lose a good portion of their front porch view. The two-year construction period would create disruptions and challenges, but they would be temporary and solvable.

There are positives to this issue also. At least 80 acres of land would be saved from further development. The night sky would not have the glow from the more than 120 homes that would take the place of this facility.

There would be 120 fewer homes in the township, 120 less homes to stress the school district, 120 fewer homes demanding roads, traffic lights, police and fire protection, electricity and natural gas.

There would be 120 fewer septic systems, 120 fewer wells lowering the aquifer, 120 fewer small gas engines polluting the air as they cut lawns, 120 fewer homes creating plumes of their own on wintry days, and 120 fewer homes demanding gas stations, convenience stores and strip malls within three miles of their driveways.

The tax base of the community would be greatly enhanced and stabilized, consequently, providing much relief from increasing taxes.

Panda Energy has said it will contribute to the necessary road improvements, thereby lowering the burden placed on the county. A gas turbine facility is the smallest, most efficient and cleanest of all electric production systems reasonably available today and results in little harm to the environment.

Finally, it has been my experience that industrial neighbors want to be good neighbors and will be around for decades. This is not true of other types of developers, or homeowners for that matter.

One solution to the dilemma of growth is to take an active part in the modest development of industry and vigorously demand it to be in harmony with the environment and the future well being of the community.

I submit that this is a chance for the community to responsibly protect the environment, night sky and its view of the future.

Population growth is looming on the horizon and with it change. Growth cannot be stopped but it can be controlled and the community has an opportunity to protect itself, and this option needs to be taken seriously.

Plant poses potential environmental threat

I am a board member of NOPE (NO Panda Energy), a citizens group formed when Panda Energy revealed plans to build a power plant in Dexter Township after negotiating with the landowner for eight months.

Consider several consequences of allowing this industrial site into our township. Yes, we need more power, but isn't that what industrial zoning is for? The energy they will generate is for sale. It is not specifically earmarked for our area.

Panda is a greenfield developer. They only develop virgin land, meaning less expense for them. They do not have to deal with previous site pollution and presumably have tapped in to the notion that farmers want to sell their land for big retirement funds.

Should we subsidize their venture with property value losses fanning out across our townships along with losses in air, water, sound and visual qualities?

It will be much easier for the next industrial developer to cite the precedent of an existing power plant in their application to the township.

Panda Energy plans to use Ann Arbor wastewater for cooling purposes, 6 to 8 million gallons daily, 80 percent of which is discharged as vapor.

At our last NOPE meeting, a chemical engineer voiced concerns about this new technology. Apparently discharging vaporized warm wastewater into the atmosphere could provide a disease transmission vector. She spoke of Legionnaires disease, calling us unwitting guinea pigs.

I invite everyone to attend the next NOPE meeting as noted on our Web site at www.usol.com/~nope.

Also, Panda has an interesting site at pandaenergy.com. The best defense is information and organization.

Pennsylvanians also waging fight

Well, Panda has got you, too?

My name is Mark Zovak. I am in charge of pollution control of the Lehigh River Stocking Association in Lehigh Valley, Pa. Our organization has opposed and fought to stop the building of Panda's gas-fired turbine power plant in our area.

For one, the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection has very little data on using sewage water to cool gas turbines. Long-term effects are unknown. The water consumption of these plants are a lot: 5 to 8 million gallons a day.

Their proposed back-up water supply bypassed our Lehigh River and was rerouted to the Delaware River below us. Though it is still the same watershed, it did little for the Lehigh River.

We have many organizations fighting this cause to stop the Panda plant in our area.

Ever since deregulation of the electric industry in Pennsylvania, 60 of these plants have been proposed. Welcome to Pennsylvania, Power Plant Capitol of the World.

Panda will tell you how clean their plant is. But the company falls to tell you that not one aging coal-fired plant will be taken offline when a new one goes on. So, you end up with worse air pollution from all of the power plants.

Wake up and speak out. Learn from those who have fought them. We can tell you a lot about Panda and the power plants invading your area, too. See <http://www.Irsa.org>; <http://www.penweb.org/users/palm>; and <http://www.penweb.org>.

VIEWS ON DENTAL HEALTH

GARY GOCHANOUR, D.D.S.

ONE DARK TOOTH

If you have one dark tooth in the front of your mouth, there is no reason why you have to live with this cosmetic liability. Your dentist can make it look as natural as your other teeth. When a tooth becomes dark or discolored, it is usually the result of some accident or injury to the tooth. It may have been so minor that you were not aware of it at the time. The injury to the tooth, however, may have caused bleeding within the tooth. With the passage of time, the blood has dried and decomposed, causing a brownish or dark-gray color to appear.

In cases where the pulp of the tooth has been damaged or if the pulp or nerve is infected or dead, your dentist may recommend root canal treatment to remove the pulp and help protect the tooth from further decay. He may then suggest that the tooth be bleached. If the tooth has been chipped, damaged, or eroded, however, he may recommend a post-crown procedure, to restore its natural appearance. Don't let a dark tooth detract from your appearance when your dentist can make it look natural again.

A cross-cultural exchange

Local woman coordinates au pair program

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

Young people coming from foreign countries to work as au pairs in the United States find a friend in Chelsea resident Krystn Stephens.

As the local childcare coordinator for EF Au Pair, she provides services and support to host families and their nannies.

These young men and women, from western and eastern Europe and Australia, live as family members for a year while helping with childcare.

Stephens' territory includes Chelsea, Dexter, Manchester, Pinckney, Saline and Ann Arbor.

"I heard about the opening through word of mouth, and as I had experience hosting au pairs, decided to apply for it," she says.

My husband and I have hosted au pairs from Japan, Italy and Germany to take care of our two children, Claire and Alex, so I feel I have good insight into the program.

Stephens' husband has Italian roots and grew up in England with Italian au pairs.

"So, we're both very familiar with how an au pair situation works," she says.

Stephens can also relate to the au pairs because she knows what it's like to be young and alone in a foreign country. When she was 21, she worked in a restaurant in Scotland for six months, and afterward she traveled to Europe.

Stephens met her husband, Robert, while waiting for a train in the south of France.

As part of her duties with the au pair program, Stephens meets with parents who are looking for childcare.

"I spend a couple of hours with the family talking about their expectations, as well as the expectations of the program, before they are sent any prospective matches," she says.

Stephens says families need to understand this is a two-way cultural exchange program, not a nanny service.

It will be the first to admit an au pair program is not for every family, but it's a wonderful opportunity for those who want the experience of cross cultural exchange," she says.

"It introduces your children to other languages and customs, and opens the door to cultural exchange for the whole family, as well as providing a wonderful, exciting experience for the au pair."

Stephens says she had a German au pair who taught Stephens' son, Alex, German.

"It was interesting how easily he picked it up," Stephens says.

Families make connections with their au pairs. Stephens says she and her family visited their German nanny last year.

After parents fill out an application, the regional manager in Boston hand picks an applicant who most closely matches the family's needs.

Phone interviews with the chosen candidate help parents determine if the person will be a good fit.

Stephens makes arrangements for the au pairs' arrivals in this country, and visits the homes after a couple of weeks to see how the arrangements are working out.

At this time of year, many au pairs are just completing their 12 months and returning home, while new ones are arriving.

"I've been very busy with the new arrivals," Stephens says. "One of them had no summer clothing because the airline lost her luggage."

Stephens checks with host families on a monthly basis.

"Very rarely, an au pair has to be re-matched with another family, not because of any big problems but just because the personality fit isn't right," she says.

Au pairs work up to 45 hours a week, and up to 10 hours a day, have previous childcare experience, and complete 32 hours of child-safety and development training.

Local offices in each country screen candidates by doing a police background check, and match families based on personality profiles.

Candidates must speak English reasonably well to communicate with their host families.

"They arrive speaking different levels of English," Stephen says. "But within a month of immersion in our language, it's amazing how quickly they pick it up."

"All the au pairs have international driver's licenses, but it can be funny when they are confronted with the monstrous American vehicles they're expected to drive."

"However, they do great."

Au pairs are also required to take six credits at a community college.

Scaling finds success in teaching

By Michelle Rogers
Editor

Chad Scaling has always enjoyed working with children. In high school, he helped youngsters improve their soccer skills and occasionally volunteered at the local elementary school.

But with a strong interest in science, he enrolled in Anderson University as a biology and chemistry major.

It was during Scaling's freshman year that he thought he would combine his interest in science with his love of children.

"I always had a great time being with kids and working with kids. So, I knew I'd be doing it in some capacity. But it wasn't until probably the end of my freshman year in college that I knew that's what I'd do," he says.

Three years ago, Scaling, a native of Casper, Wyo., received a bachelor's degree from Anderson University in Indiana. He added education courses at Eastern Michigan University the following year and was able to get a teaching certificate.

While Scaling chose EMU because of its reputation as a good training ground for teachers, it was his wife, Meg, who brought him to southeastern Michigan.

Scaling moved to the area to join his then-fiancee, a Saline native. They had met two years earlier at Miley's Resort in northern Michigan, where Scaling worked as a water ski instructor during his summers.

Scaling's first experience in the classroom was at his wife's alma mater. Scaling did his student teaching at Saline High School and was hired the spring semester of 1999 to fill in for a teacher on maternity leave.

The following summer, he was hired in Chelsea to teach biology and computer applications.

Scaling says landing the job in Chelsea has been the highlight of his short career.

"It's a wonderful school district with great people, and I feel very fortunate to be part of it," he says.

Scaling says his favorite subject is biology, particularly anatomy and physiology.

"While growing up, science, particularly biology, has been an interest of mine," Scaling says. "So, when I got into college, it was just a natural thing to move in that direction."

Scaling describes his teaching style as hands-on. He enjoys engaging the students in lab work and experiments.

"We do a lot of different things," he says. "We do group work, a lot of labs and we try to use technology quite a bit."

"Really, I just see it as I am trying to help the kids succeed anyway I can."

"I really try to present (information) in a way so there's not only a memorization, but an understanding of what's happening."

Scaling is able to achieve this through various laboratories. In one lab, he spreads jelly beans across the school's lawn and students search for them. Scaling says students find the yellow and red jelly beans first, while the green and brown ones are more difficult to find. The experiment demonstrates natural selection as the green and brown jelly beans are the survivors and the others die out.

Scaling has a handful of rules unique to his classroom. The toughest for some students is that once class starts, he does not allow students to leave.

"I don't like it when the kids have to leave the classroom to go to their lockers or to get a drink or go to the bathroom because it disrupts the flow of the class," he says.

Scaling also doesn't accept late papers.

"That helps the kids with responsibility," he says.

Besides the regular topics he covers, Scaling says he follows an unwritten curriculum that teaches students how to be organized, prepared and responsible.

"There is nothing in our curriculum, but you're teaching it anyway," he says. "I think that's part of our challenge as teachers teaching kids how to be better people."

It's at the high school level where Scaling says he feels most comfortable.

"I just like the high-school-age kids," he says. "I think my teaching style fits with them a little better."

"I think I could teach middle school. I wouldn't have a problem. But I prefer high school. It just works for me."

What Scaling says he enjoys most about teaching high school is the relationships he develops with the students.

"I enjoy being able to interact with the kids and have relationships with them, both inside and outside the classroom," he says.

Scaling's relationship outside the classroom involves coaching. This is his second year coaching boys' varsity soccer. He also helps the girls' coach in the spring. In the future, Scaling says he would like to become more involved with the Chelsea Soccer Club.

Soccer is a lifelong interest of his. Scaling played soccer, football and enjoyed downhill skiing in high school. He also played soccer in college and now plays on adult recreational teams in Ann Arbor and Jackson.

Since moving to the area,

Panda opponents plan meeting tonight

■ Site changes to house large crowd.

By Lisa Allmendinger
Staff Writer

The quarters were cramped at Dexter Township Hall for the first official meeting of the group No to Panda Energy (NOPE) earlier this month.

There were about 100 residents in a standing-room-only township hall, while others stood outside the windows and peered inside at the proceedings.

So now the group has decided to give itself some breathing room and will meet 7 p.m. today at Mill Creek Middle School.

The group also learned that following the launch of NOPE's Web site, (www.usol.com/-nope), Panda Energy has plans to launch a site that will deal directly with the Dexter proposal.

The company has proposed 1,000-magawatt electrical plant. No specific date has been set for the launch.

Tonight's preliminary agenda includes expected discussions of the group's incorporation as a non-profit organization, discussion of hiring a lawyer, updates on research, publicity, community awareness and property values.

Panda officials told residents at a meeting earlier this month that the plant should not decrease property values. Company officials said if this did happen and someone near the plant wanted to sell their home, the company would make up the difference.

Bradbury said she's disappointed that township officials have not taken a stance on the project, despite repeated questioning about it.

Township officials have said that there is no plan on the table to take a position.

Township Zoning Administrator Harley Rider spent more than an hour at the group's first meeting explaining how zoning and planning changes take place within the township.

NOPE members are getting help from residents across the country in its effort to fight the Texas-based company's proposal, although township officials have not yet seen a site plan or any other required documents for the proposal.

Mark Zovak, a resident who lives near a proposed Panda plant in Pennsylvania, contacted NOPE to tell members that despite what Panda says about not going further with a proposal if the residents don't want it, the company will.

"Panda only cares about the dollars ... They pick wide open greenfield areas," he said. "They go to areas where they think there are dumb hicks in a small township with not much of a zoning board or a township council. They think they can bowl us over."

The Pennsylvania proposal calls for a plant to be located on 86 acres in a village of 235 families. There is a church located directly across from the proposed site.

Residents there have posted signs with two types of Panda bears. "Good Panda" shows the bear munching leaves, "Bad Panda" shows two cooling towers.

Zovak said he is a member of the Lehigh River Stocking Association that is involved with a lawsuit with the Army Corps of Engineers in his home state.

He said he has been active in helping the Partners for Community Preservation, a group of residents who, like NOPE, have banded together to fight a 1,000-magawatt plant in the village of Palm in Perkiomen Valley, Pa.

The Dexter Township proposed site is located on Madden Road near Quigley on a 112-acre piece of property owned by Al Ruhlig.

Panda officials said they chose the Dexter Township site because it has two of the three things they need for an electrical power plant: close proximity to natural gas and an electrical grid.

What the site does not have is water, but there has been talk of piping in water from Ann Arbor's sewage treatment plant 17 miles away.

This is similar to the project in Pennsylvania, where Panda plans to use treated wastewater from Allentown, about 18 miles away, for the up to 8 million gallons that are needed for the operation.

Membership in the NOPE group topped 225 members last week and Bradbury says it gets new members daily. The board of directors met Tuesday night to finalize the agenda for the group's meeting.

There has been no further information about Panda's plan to call a meeting of residents, township officials and company representatives.

Voters have new info resource

Secretary of State Candice Miller recently announced that voters have a new resource for obtaining information about state candidates and issues. It's the Department of State's Michigan Electronic Voter Guide.

The Michigan Electronic Voter Guide uses the benefits of the Internet to provide voters with information about state candidates, political parties and statewide ballot proposals in one convenient and accessible site. It is located on the Bureau of Election's Web site at www.sos.state.mi.us/election/elect.html.

"The Michigan Electronic Voter Guide is the latest example of how the Secretary of State's office is using technology to meet the needs of the citizens of Michigan," Miller said. "We're making it easy for voters to get information so they can make informed choices at the polls in November."

The elected offices featured on the guide are U.S. senator and U.S. representative, state representative, state Board of Education, University of Michigan regent, Michigan State University trustee, Wayne State University governor and Supreme Court Justice.

Candidates have been invited to submit a written statement of up to 300 words, a color photograph and additional contact information.

The guide provides a link from a candidate's statement to campaign finance information filed by the candidate's committee.

Political parties qualified to appear on the November ballot may also post a written statement of up to 300 words, the party's symbol and additional contact information. The parties eligible to post statements on the guide are Republican Party,

Democratic Party; Reform Party; Libertarian Party; Natural Law Party; U.S. Taxpayers Party; and the Green Party.

Visitors to the site can also view the full text of the ballot proposals as well as the proposal language developed for the November ballot. Arguments for and against the proposals developed by the state Legislature will be posted when available.

The guide is easy to use. Candidates are listed alphabetically and by office. Maps showing boundaries of Michigan's 16 U.S. House districts and 110 State House districts also make it simple for visitors to quickly identify their congressional and state candidates.

In addition, the guide has links to information on voting, voter registration and obtaining an absent voter ballot, as well as a mail-in voter registration form that can be printed off the Web and used to register to vote.

Miller said that residents planning to vote in the general election on Nov. 7 must register to vote no later than Oct. 10.

The electronic guide is the first of its kind for the department and was developed by the Department of State's Bureau of Elections and Internet Technology Section.

Heritage classifieds get overhaul

By Mark Rutkowski
Heritage Newspapers

A very big part of the newspaper is about to undergo a very big change.

Beginning Monday, the classified sections of Heritage Newspapers' publications will take on a different look, and the changes are being made with users — both the readers and advertisers — in mind.

The changes are a result of the new Advision computer system being used for classified ads.

Perhaps the biggest change will be in the type size, which will become larger. The increased size comes in response to many requests from readers.

In addition to larger type, the section will include a variety of new graphics and section headers, all of which should make ads much easier to find.

For the reader, that means less searching, and for the person placing the ad, it means better results.

The overall look of the section, while much different, isn't the only improvement to be unveiled.

The Advision system allows advisers to better handle advertiser accounts and to send a fax proof of the ad to the placer with the push of a button, thanks to the WYSIWYG (what you see is what you get) feature.

"We believe this system will help us reach our goal of providing exemplary customer service to both our advertisers and our readers."

Daniels to appear at forum

By Pat Andrews
Heritage Newspapers

An insider is about to give you some insight on the movie and live theater industry, and on his personal commitment to the arts.

Actor Jeff Daniels, who divides his time among Hollywood, New York and Chelsea, is coming to lunch Friday at the Holiday Inn Heritage Center in Southgate as part of the Vision 21 Speaker Forum Series.

Tickets are $25 and the event will begin with an 11:15 a.m. registration for VIP sponsors and a reception, followed by a registration for other guests at 11:30. The program will begin promptly at noon.

Chairman Mike Lott said that the series committee has been talking with Daniels for several months to arrange a date.

"When he had a break in his busy schedule, we took it," Lott said. "I think this will be one of our most interesting luncheons."

Daniels is best known for his work on the screen in such box office hits as "Gettysburg,"

"Dumb and Dumber," "101 Dalmatians" and "Terms of Endearment."

The speaker was a young actor living in a small Midwestern town when the artistic director of one of the most prestigious theaters in New York asked him to join his company. Daniels jokes that he hopped the first bus to Manhattan without hesitation.

He joined the Marshall Mason Circle Repertory Company and said it was one of those "right place at the right time" occurrences.

That is how the Purple Rose

Theater Company in downtown Chelsea was founded. Theatergoers from all over Michigan and Ohio visit the Purple Rose.

"If the American theater is to remain vital, it must produce American plays and it can only do that by supporting, nurturing and developing American playwrights. Period," he said.

A playwright himself, his current work, "Escanaba in Da Moonlight," is in production at the historic Gem Theatre in Detroit.

Scaling has coached the Ann Arbor Arsenal U-14 and U-18 teams. He also coached the Saline freshmen boys' soccer team for one season.

What Scaling says he finds unique about Chelsea schools is the school staff and students.

"I've been really impressed with the high school faculty and staff, as far as their approach to the students," he says. "They have a strong desire to be great teachers, and they have the kids' best interest in mind."

Scaling says he has found that students are not only interested in what he's teaching, but they are hard workers, too.

"The kids in Chelsea are just great and they really show a desire to get better," he says. "They have a good work ethic, and that's refreshing."

In the end, Scaling says he hopes students see him as a challenging yet fun teacher.

"I would hope kids would perceive me as someone that expects the best effort and hard work from them while we have a good time doing what we're doing.

"I also hope they see me as someone they can come to when they need help," he says.

Scaling says his approach with kids is reflective of his high school math teacher and soccer coach, Frank Jobe.

"He challenged me mentally and physically to do my best and get better, but he made it enjoyable," Scaling says.

"I think if you can balance hard work and fun, it really helps the learning process."

When he is not in the classroom, Scaling is coaching or playing soccer. He also enjoys following college sports and watches the University of Michigan Wolverines every chance he gets.

Scaling and his new bride live in Dexter and hope to move closer to Chelsea soon.

"I think if you can balance hard work and fun, it really helps the learning process."

the children, plan activities and do the children's laundry. They may help older children with homework and drive them to their various activities.

"Sometimes the au pairs get together with each other so the children can play and the au pairs have company," she says.

Stephens holds monthly meetings with the au pairs, who currently number 15 in and around the Ann Arbor area. They come from Australia, Germany, Brazil, Poland and Czechoslovakia. A Polish au pair has just arrived in Chelsea.

"Sometimes we just meet for coffee. Last month, we went canoeing," Stephens says.

"It was a fun experience and a great opportunity for me to get to know them well, and discuss any problems, like homesickness."

"In June we all went to Silver Lake, where a lifeguard presented a water-safety program as part of a continuing education program we provide," she says.

"Last spring we did bike, helmet and car seat safety."

In November, a Trek Tour Company representative will give a presentation on its tours for young people, while in December everyone will meet at a host family home to make Christmas cookies.

On Oct. 14, Stephens will lead an outing for au pairs and their host families to the Dexter Cider Mill.

Of the 15 au pairs currently under her wing, only one is male.

"People usually think of au pairs as young women, but men also make great candidates," Stephens says.

"I currently have a young man placed with a family in Ann Arbor. Their two young sons are crazy about soccer and basketball, and this male au pair is an ideal match for the family."

German au pair Anett Koch, coming to the end of 12 months with a host family in Ann Arbor, will head back to Dresden, Germany, in early October.

Koch has been helping care for three children, an 8-year-old girl and 6-year-old twins.

She ferries the children to ice skating, gymnastics and swimming, arranges play dates, plays games with them, and organizes arts-and-crafts sessions.

Koch, who says she will miss the warm, friendly people she has met here, plans to stay in touch with her host family.

She has particularly enjoyed traveling, and has visited Colorado, Washington, D.C., Florida, northern Michigan, and Toronto.

Koch has found Stephens to be a huge help.

"Krystn has really been the best. She is always ready to help when you call her up," Koch says.

"I've also really enjoyed the get-togethers with other au pairs that she organizes."

Stephens, a native of Wayne, lived in Chelsea through her teens before leaving for college, and moved back to the area eight years ago.

She served a three-year term on the Chelsea Education Foundation, and has been active in school PTA organizations, and her children's sports and extracurricular programs.

Stephens may be contacted at 475-6375.

Japanese students will visit Chelsea

■ Chelsea Sister-City Committee prepares for Shimizu guests.

For the seventh consecutive year, middle school students from Chelsea's sister city, Shimizu, Japan, will visit the area.

The group will arrive Oct. 7 and stay with host families until Oct. 13.

A welcoming ceremony, with greetings by Chelsea school and village officials, will be held 5:30 p.m., Oct. 7, at Beach Middle School.

The event, which is open to the public, will be followed by a potluck supper.

Many of the students are from families who hosted Chelsea students in Japan in June.

Before arriving in Chelsea, the Japanese entourage — three boys, 12 girls and four adults representing three schools in the Shimizu school district — will spend two days visiting Washington, D.C.

The students, who range in age from 13 to 18, enjoy hobbies such as piano, fishing, ice hockey, snowboarding, tennis and volleyball.

A packed agenda is planned, beginning Oct. 8 with a Halloween hayride near Waterloo.

Other activities include visits to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Greenfield Village and police stations in Chelsea and Ann Arbor, as well as factories, restaurants and stores in Chelsea.

On Oct. 12, the visitors will attend classes with their host students, followed by a catered farewell dinner in the Chelsea High School commons room, with entertainment provided by the Chelsea House Orchestra.

The dinner — which costs $10 per person — is open to the public and alumni from previous trips.

Anyone planning to attend the potluck and opening ceremony should call Carol Blotter at 475-9812 by Oct. 4.

Varsity team dumps Lincoln, 56-28

Chelsea continued to demonstrate why it's at the top of the Southeastern Conference White Division with a Homecoming victory over a struggling Lincoln team.

The Bulldogs dominated the Railsplitters by a score of 56-28.

Chelsea jumped in with both feet at the start, racking up two touchdowns in the first seven plays of the game. The first was on a 44-yard pass from Chris Brigham to Chris Cooper.

Mike Radka's kick gave the Bulldogs a 7-0 lead. Then, Cooper ran for a 25-yard touchdown, but Radka's kick missed its mark.

Bulldogs: 13, Lincoln: 0.

Cory Picklesimer caught a 43-yard pass from Brigham to give the Bulldogs 20 points, and Radka's kick again failed.

Brigham's 41-yard pass found its way to Tony Scheffler in the end zone, but Radka still couldn't convert the extra point.

Radka made up for it on the Bulldogs' next scoring drive, with Scheffler catching Brigham's 14-yard pass in the Railsplitters' end zone. This time, Radka's kick sailed through the posts.

Picklesimer caught Brigham's 85-yard pass and Radka again made good on the point-after attempt.

Picklesimer continued to drive through the Railsplitter defense, with a 46-yard run into the end zone.

Radka's kick found its mark, as did his 34-yard field goal attempt to end the scoring.

Chelsea swimmers top field at DeWitt Invitational

By David Komer
Heritage Newspapers

It was a tough week for the Chelsea swimming and diving team. But when all the waves had settled, it proved to be a good stretch for the Bulldogs.

After besting traditional rival Ypsilanti 135-50 on Tuesday, the team traveled to Saline, where they lost, 101-85.

On Saturday, Chelsea participated and won the DeWitt Invitational, an eight-team meet with teams from the Lansing area as well as from Plainwell, Bridgeman and Milan.

The Bulldogs scored 305 points to runner-up Plainwell's 286, and 3rd place Milan's 288.

On Tuesday against a weakened Ypsilanti, a small team beset with injury, Chelsea was able to rest some of their first team varsity swimmers and let the younger athletes get a chance to prove themselves.

Some highlights included a 1-2-3 sweep of the 200 IM by sophomore Sarah Manville (1st place) and freshmen Jennifer Adams (2nd) and Shevaun Wacker (3rd).

In the 100 back Chelsea's Megan Minnick took first in 1 minute, 11.31 seconds, touching out teammate Kasey Whitley by .01 of a second who swam a lifetime best of 1:11.32.

Senior captains Ashley Augustine and Jennifer Minnick combined with freshmen Alise Augustine and Kayla Hack to qualify for the State meet in the 200 Free Relay with a time of 1:46.72.

While losing to Saline on Thursday, the Chelsea team had their best meet of the season with 6 relays and 10 individuals besting State meet qualifying times.

Both 200 Medley Relay teams of Ashley Augustine, Alise Augustine, Katrina Moffett and Kayla Hack (1st, 1:55.05) and Danielle Hughes, Julie Mida, Rebecca Armstrong and Sarah Manville (3rd, 2:02.47) each qualified for the Bulldogs.

Also qualifying were the 200 Freestyle Relays of Manville, Jennifer Minnick, Alise Augustine, and Mida (2nd, 1:49.70) and the team of Jessica Bassett, Hughes, Sarah Tschirhart and Chris Broshar (3rd, 1:49.78).

State times were also turned in by the 400 Free Relays of Ashley Augustine, Moffett, Hack and Minnick (1st, 3:51.08) and Bassett, Broshar, Tschirhart and Armstrong (3rd, 4:03.95).

"This is the first time in Chelsea history that we've had both 'A' and 'B' relays in all three events make state standards," coach John Crispin said. "It just highlights the depth of this team; we're lucky to have so many talented and hard working young swimmers this year."

In the individual events, Katrina Moffett swam to 2nd place in the 200 free in 2:04.99, Chris Broshar swam a 2:08.96 to also qualify. In the 50 free Kayla Hack took 1st in 26.01. In the 100 fly, Rebecca Armstrong swam a 1:06.48 for her first place finish.

In the 100 free Ashley Augustine broke the CHS varsity record swimming a 56.24 while Kayla Hack finished just behind in 57.31. In the 500 free Moffett (5:33.09) and Broshar (5:43.50) teamed up again for a double qualifying effort.

In the 100 back, Ashley Augustine not only took first in a season best of 1:02.31 but also broke the Saline pool record in the event. Rebecca Armstrong swam a lifetime best (1:07.39) in the 100 back to also make states. And finally, Alise Augustine won the 100 breast while qualifying for state in 1:11.50.

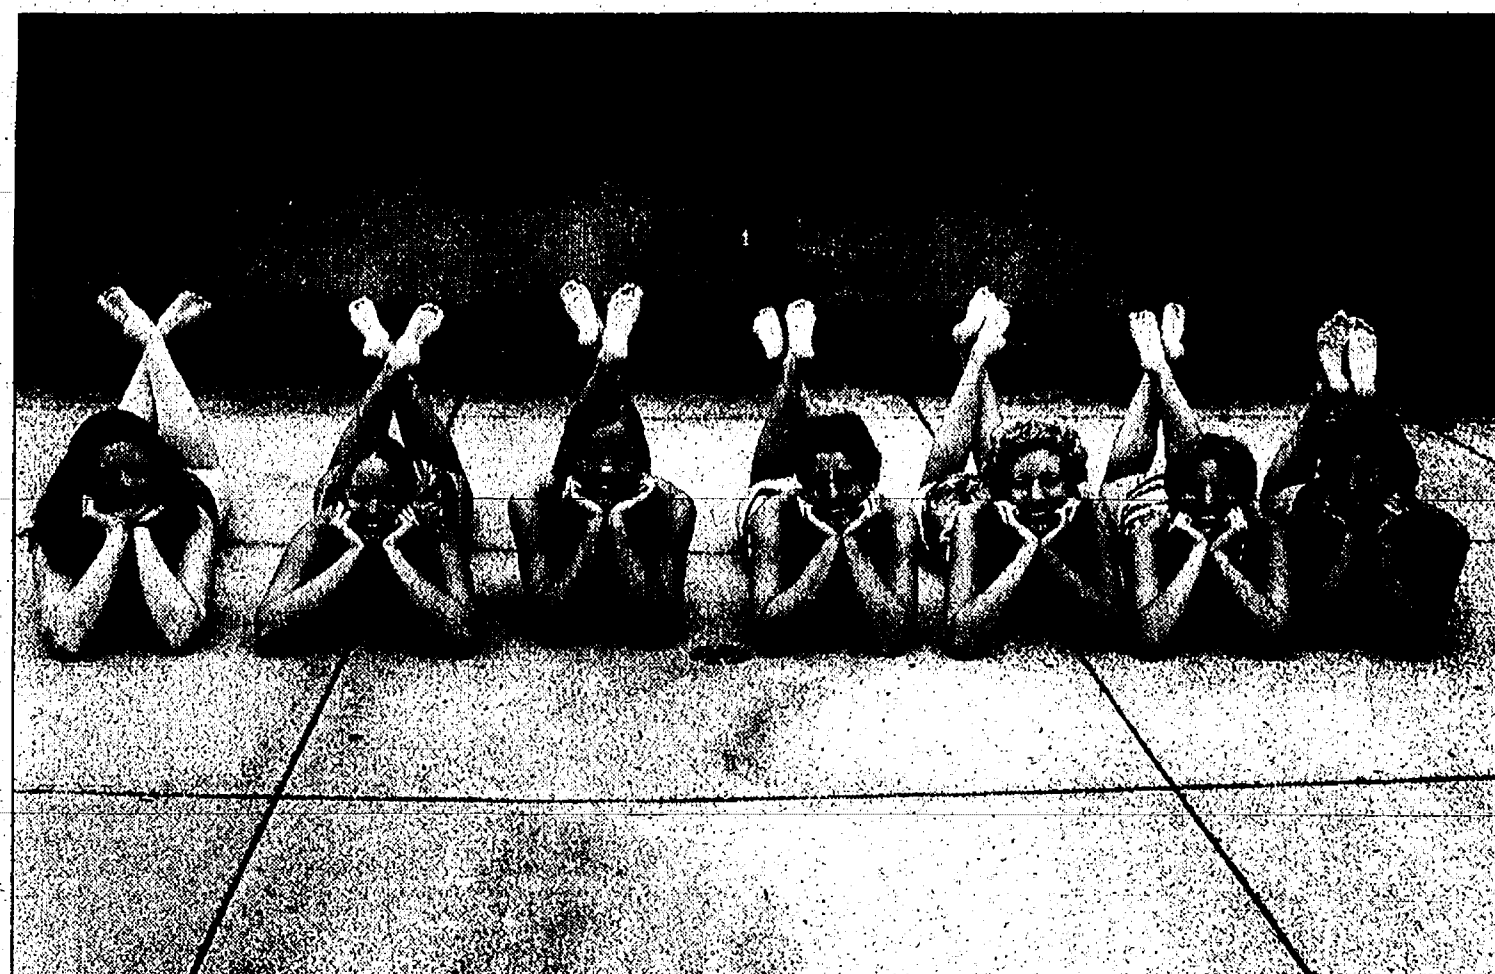

"We weren't sure what was going to happen on Saturday," Crispin said. "It had been a hard week of racing already, the girls were all involved with homecoming activities and we didn't really know much about our competition at DeWitt. But the girls performed well (and) competed hard."

Chelsea's 200 Medley Relay of Moffett, Alise Augustine, Armstrong and Hack continued their unbeaten streak winning in a time of 1:59.48.

Hack set a pool record while winning the 100 free in 56.96. Alise Augustine also broke a DeWitt pool record by swimming the 100 breast in 1:10.41.

The 400 Free relay of Minnick, Moffett, Armstrong and Hack won the event in 3:55.97.

Next for Chelsea is hosting Ann Arbor Pioneer on Thursday evening at 6:30 pm.

Senior swimmers for the Bulldogs are Mary Paul (left), Jennifer Minnick, Ashley Augustine, Chris Broshar, Bryn Warren, Nichole Williams and Margaret Yekulis.

Chelsea middle school hoopsters split two games

The seventh-grade girls' basketball team opened its season with a 25-15 win over Adrian Sept. 16.

The team was led by the efforts of Emily Woodruff, who had 10 points, three rebounds, four steals and three assists.

Hannah Myers added six points and three steals, and Shannon Hinyk had five points, two rebounds and four steals.

Jenny Carty and Sarah Iverson added two points each to round out the team effort.

At home on Sept. 20, the team made a nice comeback from a disappointing first half, when it was trailing 12-2, but in the end couldn't overcome Dexter. The final score found the Dreadnaughts on top 25-20.

Hinyk scored 10 points in the game and grabbed three rebounds. Kara Reed played well with two points, five rebounds, three blocked shots, two steals and two assists.

Iverson added four points and Carty and Rachel Vreeland each added two.

This week the girls took on Ypsilanti Lincoln and Saline.

Junior football under way

The Beach Middle School football teams split a pair of games against Saline in the teams' first action of the season.

The eighth-grade team won 20-18 while the seventh-graders fell 35-14.

In the eighth-grade game, the Chelsea defense held the Hornets inside the 10-yard line with less than a minute to go to preserve the win.

The offense was led by Alex Guenter and Terry Arnold. Brian Dunn and Tait Richardson shared quarterback duties.

The seventh-grade team fell behind early when Saline jumped out to a 21-0 lead. In the second half, Chelsea was able to match the Hornets with two touchdowns.

Joel Welton and Kolton Nelson split quarterback duties. Dave Fishburn was the leading rusher, and helping with the scoring was Austin Rodgers.

More than 120 players saw action in the games as Chelsea rotates two offensive and three defensive teams at each grade level. Middle school players competed against Lincoln this week and will travel to Dexter for next week's game.

Golf team third in tourney

By Rick Schulte
Staff Writer

It didn't count toward the final SEC championship, but the Chelsea golf team still flexed its muscle by finishing third in a crossover jamboree at Temperance Bedford.

Dexter and Bedford tied for first with 166. The Bulldogs were only one stroke back. Adrian was fourth at 169 in the event, staged at Giant Oaks.

Mike Mignano fired a career-best 38 (2-over par) to lead Chelsea, followed by Paul Newhouse and Chris Johnson (42 each) and Nate Chamberlin, who took a 45.

"Mike's effort was all the more impressive given the circumstances of the win, and being our first trip over to this course," Chelsea Coach Jim Tallman said. "It's good to see him break into the 30s as this should give him and the rest of the team an added confidence factor going into the rest of the season."

Tennis team drops Dexter match

By Chuck Nelson
Staff Writer

The recent rains haven't been much fun for anybody, but it seems to be hitting girls' tennis teams the hardest.

It only seems to be raining on days that tennis teams traditionally have matches scheduled.

But still, Chelsea's squad did manage to get in a match on Sept. 19 against Southeastern Conference rival Dexter.

The rivals played each other tough, tying 4-4.

The Bulldogs swept the singles matches, while the Dreadnaughts won all the doubles flights.

At No. 1 singles, Catie Boshoven beat Allison Holmes in three sets 1-6, 6-0, 6-2, while at two singles Andrea Daane beat Lindsay Davis 6-2, 6-4.

At three singles Ashley Cook cruised past Nikki Johnson, winning 6-1, 6-3, and Alyssa Warren also had an easier time at four singles, beating Kristin Ferszt 6-1, 6-0.

In doubles action, Denise Arnston and Jenny Parker fell in three sets, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3 to Janna Repine and Amy Coffer.

At No. 1 doubles, Courtney Barlow and Jessica French fell to Jennifer Doop and Jessica Swindell 6-1, 6-2, while Amy Baker and Kirra Sheremet fell at No. 2 to Katie Augustaitis and Amber Daczka 6-4, 6-2.

At four doubles, Sarah Kijek and Kelly Varblow got a 6-3, 6-0 win over Alicia Seamon and Kelly Clement.

Boy wins tennis tournament

■ Chelsea youngster wins Ann Arbor City Tennis Tournament.

Ten-year-old Josh Stiles, wielding a fierce two-fisted backhand reminiscent of the young Chris Evert, dominated the Ann Arbor boys' U-10 division before setting his sights on the Ann Arbor Junior Open 2000.

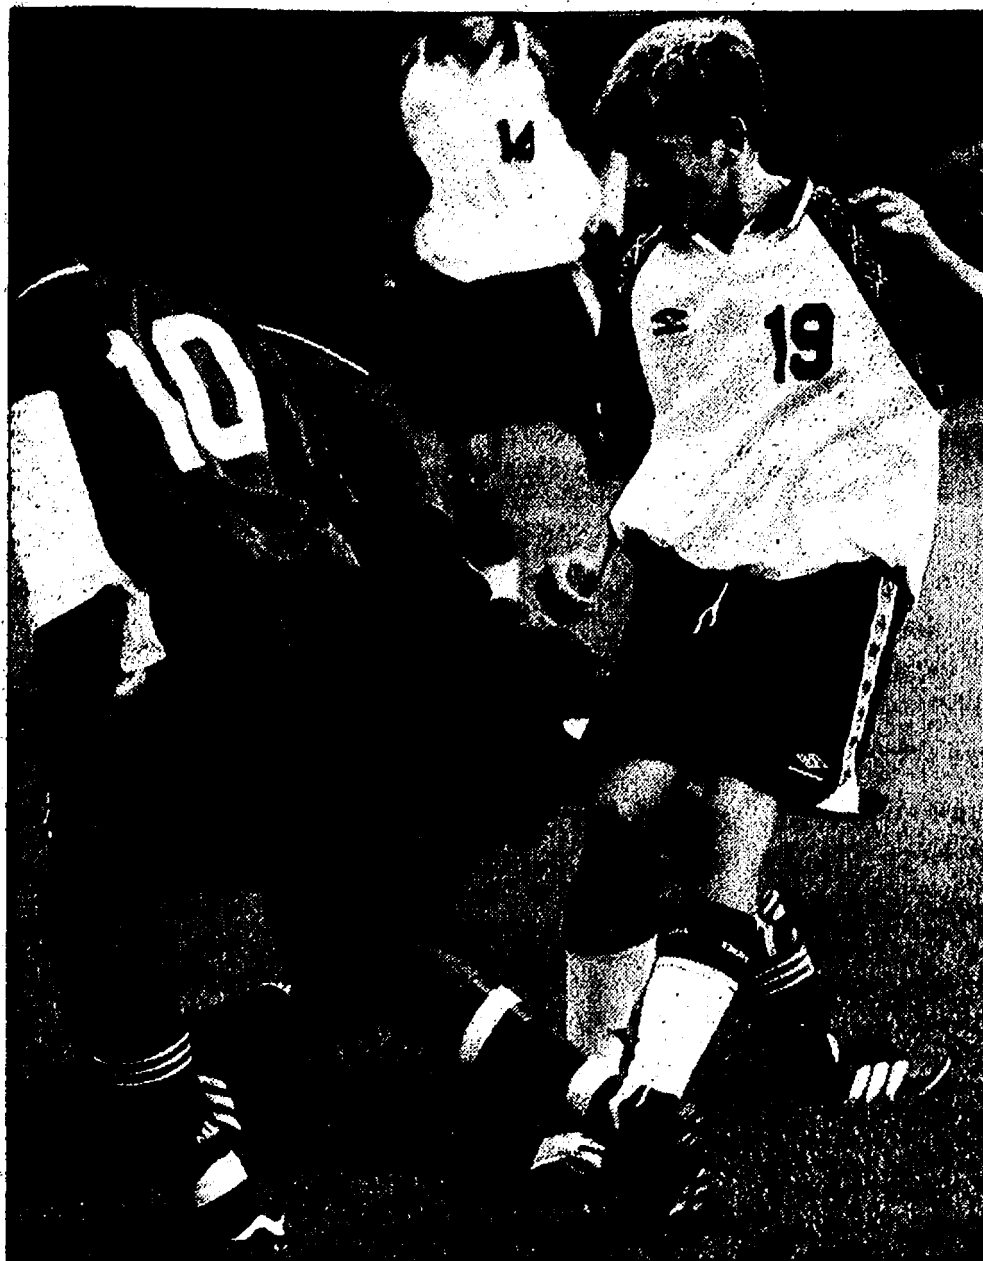

final, placing out of a field of 28 entrants. Stiles had excellent tournament results in major USTA events such as the Future Classic and Wimbledon Racquet Club's Spring Classic, reaching the semi-finals or finals in all events.

Josh Stiles dominated the Ann Arbor boys' U-10 division before setting his sights on the Ann Arbor Junior Open 2000.

A second-generation tennis player, Stiles has no shortage of coaching and practice. His father, Rich Stiles, was one of New York's well-known tournament players in the mid-'70s through mid-'80s.

Bulldogs improve

By Dave Merchant
Heritage Newspapers

The change in the weather outside hasn't hurt the Chelsea soccer team any. In fact, it may have made them play better. The Bulldogs are coming off a week in which they went 2-0 to improve their season record to 3-2-4 overall and 2-0 in the Southeastern Conference. A week ago, Chelsea took care of business easily handling Ypsilanti Lincoln. The Bulldogs downed the Railsplitters 6-0. Chelsea out shot them 13-3 in the first half. The Bulldogs scored three goals in the first half and three in the second. Senior Craig Forshee had two goals in the match, as did Mark Tapping. Greg Kennedy added one goal, as did David Jarzowski.

Earlier in the week, Chelsea slid past Ypsilanti High by a score of 3-2. It was tied 2-2 going into the second half but the Bulldogs were able to pull out the win.

Kennedy scored two goals for Chelsea and Tapping added the other.

Bulldogs head coach Chad Scaling said he was not impressed with his team's effort against Ypsilanti High.

"We didn't play well at all against them," Scaling said of his team.

He said his team is going to have to work on the mental aspect of the game.

"We really have to get our head in the game," Scaling said. "We have to be focused and well prepared each time we come out."

Chelsea will host Tecumseh today at home. The Indians are currently undefeated and they are on the same side of the SEC as the Bulldogs.

"That is a big game for us," Scaling said. "I would like us to play well against them."

Chelsea faced Adrian earlier in the week. This was the second time the two teams have met.

Equestrians grab first

The Chelsea equestrian team won its first meet of the year on Sept. 17.

This meet was double judged because the Sept. 10 meet was canceled.

The team took 234 points, beating the second-place team, Carleton Airport, by almost 100 points.

Team captain, Kelly Jackson, a junior, took 66 points.

Jackson had double winnings in western reining and trial, and one win in western bareback.

Senior Erin Ryder contributed 85 points and had double wins in saddle seat, bareback and showmanship.

Ryder took a double second place in trail.

Junior Ashley Bartlett scored 58 points and had a double win in western showmanship, and one win in hunt seat showmanship.

Bartlett took a second in western bareback and equitation.

Sophomore Rachel Klien took 10 points for the team, taking a third and a fifth in saddle seat showmanship.

Freshman Hailey Sissom contributed 15 points for the team, including taking a double second place in jumping.

The Sept. 24 meet will decide the team's qualification to go to the state finals.

VILLAGE OF CHELSEA ORDINANCE NO. 79-QQQQ

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND THE CHELSEA VILLAGE ZONING ORDINANCE, ORDINANCE NO. 78, AND TO ESTABLISH SECTION 3.17 WIRELESS COMMUNICATION FACILITIES REGULATIONS THERE UNDER.

THE VILLAGE OF CHELSEA ORDAINS:

Section 1. ARTICLE III of the CHELSEA VILLAGE ZONING ORDINANCE, Ordinance No. 79, as amended, is amended by the addition thereto of the following provisions:

3.17 Wireless Communications Facilities Regulations

A. Intent - The Village intends, by these regulations, to permit wireless communications facilities but to regulate the location and design of the facilities in a manner that will retain the integrity of neighborhoods and the character, property values, and aesthetic quality of the Village. This ordinance sets forth procedures and standards for location of these facilities within the Village. It is Village policy that all users shall co-locate where feasible to assure the most economic use of land and to prevent proliferation of duplicative facilities and services. The Village also intends that unused or unnecessary facilities will be removed. The regulations in this section are intended to be consistent with applicable federal laws and administrative rules.

B. Definitions

1. Wireless Communications Facilities - All structures and accessory facilities relating to the use of the radio frequency spectrum for the purpose of transmitting or receiving radio signals. These may include, but shall not be limited to, radio towers, telephone devices, personal communication transmission equipment and exchanges, microwave relay towers, telephone transmission equipment buildings and commercial mobile radio service facilities. This definition does not include a reception antenna for an individual lot as otherwise defined in this ordinance.

2. Attached Wireless Communication Facilities - Wireless communication facilities affixed to existing structures, including but not limited to buildings, towers, water tanks, or utility poles.

3. Wireless Communication Support Structures - Structures erected or modified to support wireless communication antennas. The term support structures includes, but shall not be limited to, monopoles, lattice towers, light poles, wood poles, and guyed towers.

4. Co-location - Location of two or more antennas of wireless communication providers of wireless communication services on a common support structure or building.

5. Wireless Communication Antenna - Any antenna used for transmission or reception of wireless communication signals excluding those used exclusively for dispatch communications by public emergency agencies, ham radio antenna, satellite antenna, those which receive video programming services via multi-point distribution services which are one meter (39") or less in diameter and those which receive television broadcast signals.

6. Provider - An entity which is properly licensed by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) and other appropriate governmental authorities to provide services through Wireless Communications Facilities.

C. Approvals Required

1. Erection of a wireless communications support structure and related equipment shall require a special use permit in accordance with Article 8.

2. Attachment of a wireless communication antenna to an existing structure and installation of related equipment shall require a special use permit in accordance with Article 8, except in instances of co-location, in which the following subsection 3 shall apply.

3. Co-location of wireless communication antennas and related equipment on a site with a valid special use permit shall be permitted by administrative approval, provided the co-location is consistent with all provisions of the special use permit.

D. Information Required

1. All information required in Article 8.

2. A preliminary site plan in accordance with Article 9, plus elevations of the support structure and accessory buildings and equipment, colors of the support structure and accessory buildings and equipment, and a survey showing all structures and lot lines within the area needed to determine compliance with the setback requirements of this section.

3. An engineer's report, prepared and signed by a professional engineer licensed in the State of Michigan, containing structural data and analysis of the support structure, the number of co-locations for which the structure is designed, and its predicted fall zone.

4. A soils report prepared and signed by a geotechnical engineer licensed in the State of Michigan. The report shall include data on soil borings and statements confirming the suitability of soil conditions for the proposed support structure.

5. Information to prove that the proposed facility is needed in the Village, the location of all existing facilities within the Village and within five miles of the boundaries of the Village, and the location of all potential co-location opportunities. The information shall include the location, height and design of each facility. The Planning and Zoning Administrator may share such information with other applicants applying for administrative approvals or special use permits under this ordinance or other organizations seeking to locate facilities within the jurisdiction of Village of Chelsea.

6. The preliminary site plan shall show the number of co-locations available on the site and the location of all equipment areas needed to serve all antennas.

7. A written agreement, transferable to all successors and assigns, that the property owner and the owner or operator of the facility shall make space available for co-location.

8. The name, address, and phone number of the person to contact for engineering, maintenance, and other notice purposes. This information shall be continuously updated during the time the facility is on the site.

9. A maintenance plan, and any applicable maintenance agreement.

10. An agreement and affidavit signed by the owner of the property and the owner of the facility which assures removal of the facility and restoration of the site at cost to the property owner, if removal is required by this section. The agreement and affidavit may provide that all costs of removal and site restoration be levied as a lien on the property.

E. Standards

1. Standards for a special land use permit, as provided in Article 8.

2. Facilities shall be located, designed, and painted a color that will be harmonious with the surrounding area.

3. All new and modified wireless communication support structures shall be designed to accommodate co-location, with a written agreement approved by the Village Attorney.

4. The applicant shall demonstrate that a feasible co-location is not available for the coverage area and capacity needed.

5. The applicant shall demonstrate that the requested height of the support structure is the minimum necessary for reasonable communication. The height of the support structure and antenna shall not exceed 195 feet, provided the height shall be less than the height that would require hazard lighting by the FAA.

6. Minimum required setbacks for a new support structure:

a. From single-family detached residential zoning districts - the height of the support structure and antenna plus 25 feet.

b. From all other zoning districts - one-half the height of the support structure and antenna plus 10 feet, provided that the setback is greater than the fall zone delineated in the engineer's report required herein. If the required setback is not greater, the minimum setback shall be the delineated fall zone plus 10 feet.

7. Landscaping shall be provided to screen the structure, base, accessory buildings, and ground equipment.

8. Accessory buildings shall be finished with brick, provided the Planning Commission may waive this requirement for a building that is located in an industrial zoning district and is not visible from a public right of way or a lot in a non-industrial zoning district.

9. A security fence shall enclose the facility. Notwithstanding Section 5.04, fences may be up to 10 feet in height and may have barbed wire, provided the wire is no less than 10 feet above grade.

10. Nonconforming conditions on the site, such as outdoor storage, signs, landscaping, unpaved parking, improper lighting, or similar conditions shall be removed prior to construction of the facility. If the site has a nonconforming building or structure, improvements shall be made to decrease the extent or impact of the nonconformity.

11. The facility shall comply with and shall be operated in accordance with applicable federal and state standards. Operating or maintaining a facility not in compliance with these standards may be grounds for revoking the special use permit.

12. The maximum height of accessory structures shall be 12 feet and shall meet setback requirements for principal buildings in that district.

13. Unobstructed access shall be provided to each site. The minimum requirements shall be a 20 foot wide easement, improved with a 12 foot wide driveway constructed on a 6" MDOT class II sub-base and an 8" 21A gravel base course. A turning area shall be provided for emergency vehicles. The access shall be maintained to be passable at all times.

14. An attached wireless communication facility and its equipment enclosure that are proposed on a building roof shall be designed, constructed, and maintained to be architecturally compatible with the building. The equipment enclosure may be located in an accessory building.

15. The support structure shall meet all applicable codes.

16. The requirements of the Federal Aviation Administration, Federal Communications Commission, and Michigan Aeronautics Commission shall be met.

F. Co-Location

1. Feasibility of Co-location - Co-location shall be deemed feasible for purposes of this section in the following circumstances:

a. A provider will pay market rent or other market compensation for co-location.

b. The support structure can support additional antennas, taking into account reasonable modification or replacement of the structure.

c. Co-location is technically feasible.

2. Requirements for Co-location

a. A special use permit for a facility shall not be approved unless the applicant demonstrates that a feasible co-location is not available for the coverage area and capacity needs.

b. All new and modified wireless communications facilities shall be designed and constructed to accommodate the maximum number of providers for co-location.

c. Failure or refusal of a provider to permit a proposed and feasible co-location shall be grounds for revoking the special use permit for that site.

d. If a provider fails or refuses to permit a feasible co-location, such provider shall be prohibited from receiving approval for a new facility in the Village for a period of five years from the date of failure or refusal.

G. Removal

1. A condition of approval of a wireless communication facility shall be an adequate provision for removal of the facility upon occurrence of one or more of the following events:

a. Failure to use the facility for 180 days or more.

b. 180 days after new technology is available at reasonable cost as determined by the Village, which permits operation of the facility without the support structure. Each applicant shall certify its agreement to provide the Village with information on such new technology if and when it is available as part of the approval process.

2. Upon the occurrence of an event requiring removal of a facility, the property owner shall promptly apply for demolition or removal of the facility and proceed with removal of the facility and restoration of the affected area to a condition reasonably acceptable to the Village.

Chelsea basks in media spotlight

■ Village on the cover of Currents, featured in Style magazine.

By Lisa Allmendinger
Staff Writer

Chelsea Village is basking in the limelight of magazine coverage this month, with the clock tower on the cover of Currents magazine and a feature story in Style magazine.

Currents, a magazine that covers Michigan municipal electric systems, ran a three-page story about the village's successful small electrical company, Chelsea Electric Light Company.

In the story, the 102-year-old utility was said to provide up to 16 megawatts of power to its customers and expects to increase its volume to 20 megawatts within the next three years.

The story talks about a new state-of-the-art substation planned for the south side to help feed the new developments.

Calling Chelsea Light and Power a small, close-knit operation, the story says it's operated by six journeyman electricians, who do all the planning, maintenance, the above ground lines, the below grade work and all without the help of contractors.

Electrical Superintendent Bob Shephard is quoted as saying, "We know every pole, every street, every transformer. We can get to a service call in less than an hour. Our customer service is second to none."

Chelsea Light and Power operates three portable generators as back-ups for Consumers Energy, which provides up to 1.3 megawatts, if needed.

magazine his crew and Village Manager with Jack Myers.

The story in Style magazine took a more artsy approach, featuring the quaint characteristics of the village. It focused on the small-town artisans who frequent its environs, drawing inspiration for their given craft from the village's "homey" feel.

Featured were Scott McElrath of Dangerous Architects, who espoused the old-town atmosphere of the village, and the Common Grill, with what the magazine called its California-

But the artists were the focal point of the story that included painters Janice Stevens Botsford, Jan Dorer, Chris Roberts-Antieau, Candace Compton-Pappas and Mary Royce.

Also included were jeweler Sandra Xenakis, doll-maker Tracy Gallup and the Chelsea Center for the Development of the Arts.

An article about the arts in Chelsea could not be adequately done without mention of The Purple Rose Theatre, actor Jeff Daniels and Chelsea Area Players.

Daniels' Purple Rose Theatre and his uncanny ability to pop in and out of the plethora of retail shops in the village, virtually without notice, all contributed to the image that Chelsea is proud to portray.

Every person interviewed had something positive to say about "48118, Main Street, USA," a place the article said, where people with diverse backgrounds and talents converge and call home.

Senior Expo set for Oct. 5

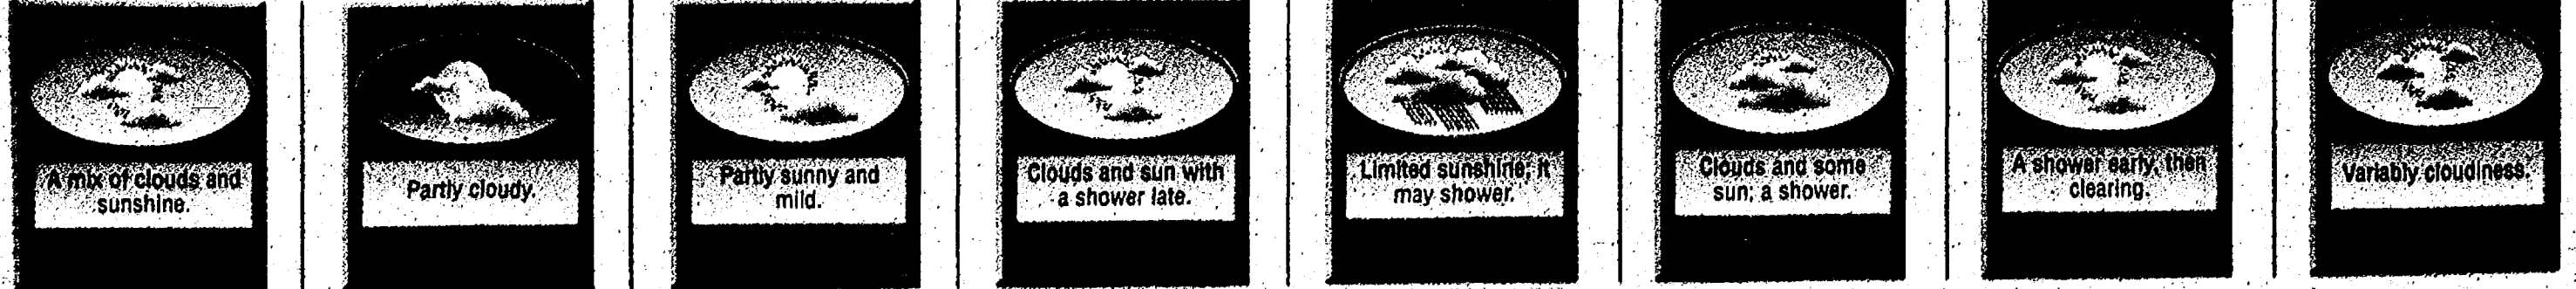

By Jackie Harrison-Martin
Heritage Newspapers
The ninth annual Golden
Times Senior Expo, set for Oct. 5, will feature a movie theme creating the perfect spotlight for businesses to showcase their services geared toward those 50 and older.
The setting will be Crystal Gardens, 16703 Fort St. in Southgate, which traditionally rolls out the red carpet for visitors to the expo.
The event is sponsored by
Heritage Newspapers.
With the spirit of movies in mind, many of the booths will represent a favorite film, adding to the festive atmosphere that has become a tradition over the years.
Movie passes will be given to those representing the booth selected as best decorated.
Space is still available for anyone interested in getting a booth.
While the festivities change a little each year to keep the event fun and exciting, everyone can still count on obtaining the latest information in health, fitness, social issues and other areas important to mature adults.

Organizers expect that 65 booths will be offering information and health screenings to visitors.
Oakwood Healthcare System will conduct bone density screenings for $10. Pneumonia shots are $25, or free with a Medicare card.
The Medical Team once again will provide the flu shots and medical tests. The shots are free for seniors with a Medicare card, $5 without.
Rather than having four speakers talk throughout the expo, two speakers are scheduled this year. Dr. Marilyn Belamare from the Southland Eye Clinic in Taylor will talk from 11 a.m. until noon on eye diseases such as macular degen-eration and cataracts.
David Brim, from the Wyandotte Social Security Administration office, will speak from 1 to 2 p.m. His presentation will touch on changes in Social Security regulations and laws.
For the first time, My Three Friends will sing various selections during the event. Also scheduled to entertain is the Frank Venice Band for the annual tea dance.

The dance is held at the conclusion of the expo and traditionally draws a crowd to the dance floor. Rivergate Complex sponsors the band.
Although several Downriver communities are on-line with the File for Life program through their respective police departments, expogers will receive information on the program and how to discuss getting their community on-line.
File for Life is a program that alerts dispatchers via computer that health information is on the caller's refrigerator door.
Dispatchers can in turn alert emergency medical technicians.
Organizers always add style to the expo event and this year will be no exception. Mervyn's
California Department Stores will provide a parade of fashions for a "Grandma and Me" fashion show.
Members of the Retired and Senior Volunteer Program, also known as RSVP will model fall fashions.
For more information on the event, call Diane Pagett at (734) 248-0858.
