Council rejects plan

Officials agree with Planning Commission recommendations for changes.
By Lisa Allmendinger

Chelsea Village Planning Commission took issue with the density requirements for manufactured housing in the final draft of the Chelsea Area Regional Plan and, as a result, recommended officials not approve the document. The village's comprehensive plan, specifically the location and number of allowable manufactured housing and the minimum lot size, is in conflict with the regional document that was recently sent to the Village Council for approval. Village President Richard Steele delayed action on a resolution to adopt the regional plan Dec. 12 when he pulled it from

Planners review cell phone proposal

Some residents object to another tower on North Territorial Road.
By Kent Ashton Walton
Special Writer
As one drives off M-52 onto North Territorial Road, a few miles north of Chelsea, a sign indicates a scenic area with winding road. Beyond the sign, stands a 1,000-foot-high TV tower erected on one of the scenic hills in the area. Just behind the trees on the left stands another shorter communications tower. These lattice towers are beacons, with flashing red lights at night and flashing white lights during the day. Towers, mostly for cellular phone transmission, are proliferating across the American landscape. Last Thursday, the Lyndon Township Planning Commission held a public meeting to discuss another proposal for a cellular phone tower. A new tower is planned for Roepke Road, less than two miles to the north of the existing 1,000-foot tower. It would stand on property owned by Tom and Leeann Shanahan. Leeann Shanahan is a member of the Lyndon Township Board. John Enos of Site Development Services presented details of the proposed 240-foot tower to the Planning Commission earlier in the month. The project is one of three towers considered necessary for cellular phone communications in the area. The other two currently under construction are in Ingham and Stockbridge townships. Each tower is designed for five or six carriers, with familiar names such as Sprint, Nextel and Verizon. At the earlier meeting, the Planning Commission heard assurances from Enos about the lack of health risks due to electromagnetic radiation. He said property values are not affected by the presence of towers, and agricultural land with towers can continue to be farmed. At the recent public meeting, the commission and Jeff Purdy, a community planning consultant, questioned presenter Peter Preston, the leasing and zoning manager for Site Development Services, about the need for another tower when there are two in the vicinity that carriers can use. Purdy was asked whether carriers could co-locate on existing towers. The need to camouflage the tower and surrounding structures was also addressed. The public response at the meeting focused on health issues and the purported need for more towers. Some residents had concerns about the need for studies looking at the effects of electromagnetic waves on people and animals. Area resident Lynn Meadows provided the board with two articles on electromagnetic radiation that indicate there may be health risks associated with tower radiation. Resident Susan Morse expressed sympathy for farmers who needed the income from leasing their land for towers. Morse suggested that the nearby 1,000-foot TV tower was underutilized and could hold at least two more antennas. She also expressed distress that the starlit sky she sees from her window may be blighted by another flashing tower. Resident Dave Wolter wanted to know how many more towers would be needed if carriers continue to multiply. He said he thinks there is enough coverage for cellular phone use in the area because he sees people using phones in the township. Resident Jerry Mason also wondered how many towers would be enough and how many more carriers would eventually be demanding use. Lyndon Township Supervisor Maryann Noah said if

Committee recommends changes

Recommendations designed to enhance small-town character.
By Lisa Allmendinger
Staff Writer
A citizens committee has offered its final recommendations to the Chelsea Village Council for commercial design standards, a gateway district and landscaping requirements. Committee Chairman Fred Mills said few changes were suggested for the commercial design ordinance that is intended to encourage development and redevelopment in the village and enhance its small-town character. One of the more significant changes was the extension of sidewalks toward the village limits from the last business on the street that has a pedestrian entrance. The ordinance lists restaurants and personal service establishments as examples. A map was added to the gateway district that clearly defines a larger area than the current ordinance, and the committee recommended that the new ordinance apply to all the parcels of land specified on the map. The gateway district is defined as the entrance to the village. Its purpose is to encourage the traditional small-town character of Chelsea and clearly identify the edge of the urban core of the village and the surrounding areas. The committee and the Village Planning Commission also discussed a revision to the landscape ordinance, with input from consultant Brad Strader. Strader called the village ordinance "overkill," and the committee recommended that the consultant write a landscape requirement ordinance to replace what is already on the books. The council sent the changes to the Planning Commission for review and comment, and recommended that a public hearing be held about the map. In other business, the council voted Jan. 9 not to pay the Huron River Watershed Council an assessed fee of $2,185 for phosphorus loading. Village Manager Jack Myers said the village was under the required limit. Although the council agreed the collaborative approach was a good one, it didn't feel that the village needed to spend the money. The vote was 5-2, with Councilmen Richard Rigg and Brian Cashman voting against a motion not to pay for the initiative. The council unanimously approved the purchase of a $29,500 four-wheel-drive Ford dump truck with a plow. It will cost the village $910 a month for three years. The vehicle will be used to plow parking lots.

Couple donates land for a nature preserve

■ Sharon Township property adds to county's nature sites.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Staff Writer

Land preservation in Washtenaw County has increased by another 57 acres with the donation of a Sharon Township farmstead to the Washtenaw-Potawatomi Land Trust.

The 57.5-acre property is a diverse mix of mature oak-hickory woods, kettle wetlands, oak savanna and old field, with fantastic scenic views of surrounding lands from its highest point.

"The Sharon Hills, despite their name, are one of the taller landscape features in the county," said Barry Lonik, executive director of the land trust. "You can see for a significant distance in all directions, from that high point on, the land."

The property borders Sharon Hollow Road on its west side and is named The Sharon Hills Preserve, the trust's third preserve and the first in western Washtenaw County. The property is located between Walker and Washburne roads on Sharon Hollow Road.

An agreement was reached between the land trust and the donors in transferring the deed. The agreement says the property must be used and perpetually maintained for purposes of a nature preserve, limited to passive, quiet, non-vehicular uses.

The use restrictions accompany the land so that it will always remain in a natural and open space state. Donors of the property, who have owned it for about 30 years as a country retreat, wish to remain anonymous.

"It was their retreat, and now it will be a retreat forever," Lonik said.

There are no structures on the land, although it was originally a farm property. Lonik said the house and outbuildings had fallen into disrepair and were demolished several years ago.

The donors had used the land to enjoy bird watching and hiking over the years and considered it a place to get away. Lonik said the preserve is an ideal spot for cross country skiing, hiking, bird watching and nature study.

The native species of prairie grasses and wildflowers on the property are indicators of a great wildlife habitat, Lonik said.

"The wetland area is often used by waterfowl during their migratory periods," he said. "You'll also find frogs, toads and salamanders, particularly in the spring."

An old field, formerly used as grazing land is now grown over and includes native and non-native grasses and wildflower species. Little and big blue stem grasses and blazing star wildflowers are among the indicators that the property has a healthy biological diversity.

"As owners and managers of the property, we will want to increase that diversity," Lonik said. "We'll look at opportunities to do controlled burns to eliminate the non-native grasses and wildflowers, while restoring the native resources."

Lonik said that the land trust looks forward to establishing trails and other means for appropriate uses.

"This is an outstanding natural resource property with terrific potential for restoring native plants and plant communities.

"The donors were both generous and forward-looking," Lonik said.

In addition to knowing the land will be forever protected, the donors will be able to declare the value of the property as a deduction for federal income tax purposes.

A qualified real estate appraiser has been retained to establish the property's current market value for that purpose. The deduction can be spread over as many as six years, according to the donor's personal tax situation.

The property is immediately accessible for quiet uses by the public.

"That is our intention with all property that we own," Lonik said. "We would like to open it to quiet, natural, non-invasive activities."

He added that there would also be an educational aspect to the land trust's stewardship of the land.

"We hope that we can recruit volunteers to help us build the trails, help with the controlled burns, and other opportunities," he said. "This gets people outside and also gives them an opportunity to see what it is that we do."

Signs will be posted at the entry to the property shortly, indicating that this is a nature preserve.

The Washtenaw-Potawatomi Land Trust is working on a number of land preservation projects, including purchase of a property for a nature preserve, purchase of a conservation easement on a small farm property and a several conservation easement donations across Washtenaw County.

New Washtenaw County undersheriff takes office

By Renee Lapham Collins
Heritage Newspapers

Milan Police Chief Herb Mahony has taken over as Washtenaw County undersheriff post.

He was appointed by new Sheriff Dan Minzey, a former sheriff's sergeant in Dexter.

The Washtenaw County Board of Commissioners scrutinized the Dexter Township resident's administrative team at a meeting Nov. 30. Mahony tendered his resignation on Dec. 1 and took office earlier this month.

"I'm pretty excited about this opportunity," Mahony said.

Mahony, 40, started his career in Milan as a patrolman in 1985. He had been chief since 1990, replacing Bill Zsenyuk, who had been his mentor for several years.

Born and raised in Manchester, Mahony graduated from Manchester High in 1978. He finished his police academy training at the now-defunct Jackson Police Academy, now the Washtenaw Police Academy.

Before he came to Milan, Mahony worked as a corrections officer at the county jail and then was a full-time patrolman in the village of Manchester, which had sponsored him in the academy.

Mahony also has attended Eastern Michigan University, Washtenaw Community College and Northwestern University.

While in his hometown, Mahony also worked under Zsenyuk, and first was acquainted with Minzey, who was a part-time officer in Manchester before he joined the sheriff's department.

"I've known Dan for more than 20 years, and he will do a great job," Mahony said.

As Minzey's second-in-command, Mahony now has direct responsibility for finances, overseeing operations in the department as a whole and dealing with the challenges of an overcrowded jail and the new way that the sheriff's department will handle police services within townships.

"Dan ran a strong and effective campaign, and I think that there will be some very positive changes in the sheriff's department," Mahony said.

The new appointment will give Mahony yet another chance to exercise the political savvy he's honed over the past two decades. In addition to frequent interaction with the Milan City Council, Mahony was a trustee on the Manchester Village Council from 1995 to 2000.

In his 15 years with Milan, Mahony has supervised the construction of a new police station in the city.

Mahony's departure will deal a double blow to the city of Milan. Mayor David Ludwig said that the chief also has served as the city's unofficial head of information systems.

"Herb has been a vital part of not only the police department but also has been instrumental in keeping our computers and programs current," Ludwig said.

"He is respected by the people who work for him."

Mahony's contributions to the department, Ludwig said, included bringing video cameras and computers into patrol cars to better protect officers and to make them more visible to the public by being able to spend less time in the office doing reports.

Sylvan makes zoning changes

■ Zoning amendments approved by Township Board.

By Lisa Allmendinger
Staff Writer

What constitutes a building envelope?

How about a lot area?

Confused?

These, and other zoning questions, have now been defined and clarified by an amendment to the township zoning ordinance, which was approved Jan. 2 by the Sylvan Township Board.

Sylvan Township says a building envelope is "the part of a lot that is enclosed by the interior lines of required yards and the portion of a lot in which the principal building or structure may be located."

A lot area is "the area within the lot lines, excluding the area in a road right of way or easement, in a regulated or non-regulated wetland or a body of water, such as a pond or lake."

These envelopes must be contiguous and cannot be separated by an easement, right of way or by a wetland.

Also changed were the requirements for measuring yards, lot widths and measurements for yard widths.

The township also has a new road ordinance, which states that the planning commission shall review the layout of all proposed roads in a subdivision.

The roads, must, whenever reasonable, be connected with one another. They must also extend to the property lines and connect with an existing road.

Also, the roads cannot leave the property landlocked or leave land in a size or shape that makes it unusable.

The roads also are to have minimum impact on the wetlands, streams, drainage, wood lots, trees or fences.

Layouts of new roads now will be reviewed by the Planning Commission, and applicants can choose to submit plans to the Washtenaw County Road Commission before showing them to the commission.

All new roads must receive preliminary approval from the Washtenaw County Road Commission before planners can approve it.

PLAN

the agenda and sent it back to the Planning Commission for further study.

Steele said there were some contradictory things in the document that he wanted the Planning Commission to address with regard to the village's master plan.

Chris Rode, chairman of the Planning Commission, said that the board "strongly recommended" that the council refuse to adopt the plan in its current form and ask for changes in both the language and the maps.

In a letter to the council, he said: "The regional plan identifies too many areas as appropriate for manufactured housing. It also implies that all of these areas would be able to accommodate the higher densities that would be expected from a typical manufactured-housing development."

In the recently adopted village comprehensive plan, the areas in question were identified as almost exclusively low-density, single-family residential. These areas were intended to serve as a transition to the even lower density residential areas in the neighboring townships.

The Planning Commission recommended that the regional plan be adjusted so that the medium-density, urban residential area reflect single-family homes and not manufactured housing. It also stated that the zoning code requires a 10,000-square-foot minimum lot size in these areas.

The letter also recommended that the regional plan section that identifies manufactured housing be changed to identify the recently rezoned portion of Sylvan Township at the western end of Brown Drive, as well as areas at the western border of Chelsea identified in the comprehensive plan as multi-family residential.

The commission further recommended that the number of manufactured-housing units proposed in the plan be reduced to 5 percent of the housing types, for a total of 365 units to be located in the areas specifically designated for this type of housing.

The area regional plan is a two-year combined effort between Chelsea and the townships of Lima, Lyndon, Dexter and Sylvan, with guidance from the Washtenaw County Metropolitan Planning Commission.

Its purpose, which is not legally binding on the municipalities, was to update the master plans of the participating municipalities. The document is also to be used as a guide to help in the planning and zoning processes in these municipalities with regard to land use.

The Chelsea Village Planning Commission also took issue with the map in the regional plan that increased the density of housing in the area surrounding the village. The village's master plan calls for single-residential homes with a minimum of 10,000-square-foot lot sizes.

The regional plan takes into account both the present and projected land uses in the five participating municipalities. Local officials tout it as a working plan that can be used area-wide as a tool to help plan the most efficient and logical allocation of land uses.

TOO LITIGIOUS?

Several recent surveys should help dispel the notion that our society is quick to resort to litigation to settle disputes. According to The National Center for State Courts' 1999 survey, entitled "How the Public Views the State Courts," the greatest percentage of respondents (40%) have attended court as observers, while only 27.9% had been either a defendant or a plaintiff in civil or criminal court. Despite widespread talk about an explosion in litigation, only 13% of Americans have ever filed a lawsuit, according to a January 2000 Roper Starch survey. And, the American Bar Association's "Perceptions of the U.S. Justice System" survey found that a civil proceeding was the most recent court experience for just 15% of respondents.

While the adjective "litigious" tends to have a negative connotation, there are many individuals who would do well to take the time to learn their legal rights in situations which involve loss, injury, malpractice, wills, estate probate, and disputes or questions involving real estate, contracts, and business matters. In order to assist you in learning more about your legal rights, the LAW OFFICES OF KITCHEN & STRINGER invite you to call 426-4695 to schedule a complimentary consultation at our offices, conveniently located in Dexter, at 3249 Broad Street.

HINT: According to the American Bar Association survey mentioned above, 46% of respondents have used a lawyer within the past five years, and of those, 75% were satisfied with the legal expertise they received.

"Heavy-Duty Christianity Makes Me Nervous"

Dear Friends and Neighbors, I honestly don't know the results of Canada's recent elections, but I heard one man running for Prime Minister was named Stockwell Day. Mr. Day's religious beliefs apparently became a major focus in the campaign, as the media played up his views on dinosaurs and evolution and the creation of the world and a literal reading of the Bible.

This led one Canadian pharmaceutical researcher, Phillis Roseau, to remark, "I do like his message on taxes. Plus he's real cute. But heavy-duty Christianity makes me nervous."

How many "Christians"...and churches...today would have to say something similar about God Himself: "I like His message about love and peace and forgiveness and heaven! But heavy-duty Christianity makes me nervous." So they shy away from churches that insist on moral standards of behavior, and on the literal interpretation of the 6-day creation, Noah's flood, and many Bible miracles. And many churches shy away from teaching those things, and end up offering little more than a watered-down religion that tries to make everyone feel good. But what's the point? If we're not going to accept the entire Bible as God's truth, why bother with any of it? If we don't teach that God created the world in six days, how can we teach Jesus came alive from the dead in less than three days?

We beg you: Please check out a church which teaches the entire Bible. Visit us this Sunday at 10:00 a.m. Look into heavy-duty Christianity. Anything less is not Christianity at all. Even if it is "real cute," to use Ms. Roseau's words.

Chelsea landmark makes way for new pharmacy

■ The daughters of Paul Pierce share memories of 'The Corners.'

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

A Chelsea landmark fell to the wrecker's ball recently to make way for a new CVS Pharmacy.

Paul Pierce, grandson of the family who pioneered this area, built the structure on the northeast corner of M-52 and Old US-12 in the late 1920s. He ran a small lunchroom and gas station called "The Corners."

His three daughters, Lois Lantis of Hamburg, Shirley Walker of Canadian Lakes, and Betty Ingram of Whitmore Lake, sold the property to CVS, retaining one parcel of about an acre, the last remaining vestige of a richly textured heritage.

The original property encompassed 400 acres, a land-grant farm deeded to Nathan Pierce in 1833 by President Andrew Jackson.

The old Pierce farmhouse, which is still standing, is the oldest house in Chelsea, built for Nathan Pierce in 1831 by a builder named Garleck.

Nathan Pierce, who brought his family to Detroit from Massachusetts in 1832, traveled through wilderness to a tiny settlement that first bore the name Pierceville, before being renamed Chelsea.

When he moved away in 1844, he left the farm with two of his sons, Hiram and Mowry. Hiram bought out his brother in 1856.

The farm finally left the possession of the Pierce family in 1949, and was later broken into lots for residential and business development.

The Pierce name is prominent in the area, with Pierce Road, Pierce Park, Pierce Lake and Pierce Cemetery on Old Manchester Road, where several early family members are buried.

The Depression-era Pierce house, designed and built by Paul Dancer Pierce and featuring beautiful stonework by Clarence Vogel, sat at the intersection of two major wagon roads, on the main route from Detroit to Chicago.

Pierce, who married Ivy Margaret Kinsey, also built a smaller stone house, which once housed a family of six.

"Daddy also sold ice cream and pop for a nickel each, and on Saturdays he'd hold specials: two hot dogs for a quarter for people on their way to ball games," Lantis says.

The three Pierce girls grew up in Chelsea and attended school here.

Lantis moved away in 1960. She retains some very special memories of the old house.

"I lived there until I was 10, then we moved to a house in town," she says.

"Our uncle, Richard Kinsey, mom's brother, used to fish on Pierce Lake with Daddy where the condos are now. We used to ice skate where Polly's stands today."

"I also remember I had a pony. Star, we kept in a little barn, but the barn is long gone."

The family mutt, Buster, would bark when customers came to the store.

"I remember Buster very well," Lantis says. "We used to joke that some gas stations have a rubber hose that dings when cars drive over it to let you know customers have driven up. We used to call Buster our dinger."

Walker lived in the house through her high school years.

"It became quite the stop over place and gathering point for farmers and other local people, who would gather there for discussions and some pretty heated political debates," Walker says.

Walker has treasured childhood memories of summertime Wednesdays when her grandfather, Herman Pierce, would bring his eggs and garden vegetables to town to sell.

"Grandpa would beep his horn as he drove past into town," she says. "Pretty soon, he'd drive back and stop at Dad's establishment."

Walker and her grandfather would sit on stools at the lunch counter, near the cigar case, and share one of Walker's favorite treats, a Milky Way bar. The candy bar cost a nickel in the 1940s.

"One of my other memories of my grandfather was how much he loved his favorite horse, Jim," Walker says.

When the new US-12 was built, Pierce's business suffered, and he sold out. While the upper part of the building was turned into apartments, the lower part became the Chelsea Restaurant, where Lantis and Walker were once employed.

Fire Authority launches fund-raiser

■ Officials want the community to pay for new truck.

By Lisa Allmendinger
Staff Writer

Tower 1, the 45-foot long fire truck with an 85-foot boom, was officially unveiled at the Chelsea Fair parade this summer. Since then, it's become the most requested piece of fire equipment the Chelsea Area Fire Authority owns.

Purchased for $65,000 as a used vehicle from the city of Adrian, its maiden service voyage went back to its former home for a mutual-aid call, said Chief Dan Ellenwood. Since then, the truck has been called out to scenes about 10 times and used three times.

The authority is hoping to replenish its equipment fund by asking for donations to cover the truck's purchase.

Ellenwood said the authority needs more modern and up-to-date equipment, and the purchase depleted its fund.

Between the authority and the village of Chelsea there are approximately 13 pieces of equipment, including utility trucks, three fire engines, one tower truck, a medical squad vehicle and two donated personal watercraft.

But Tower 1 is the authority's treasure. What's unique about this specially-designed, 1976 Suphen fire truck is that it can help rescue people trapped in buildings two stories or higher and pump 1,000 gallons a minute.

Chelsea Fire Chief Dan Ellenwood, Lyndon Township Supervisor Maryann Noah and fire authority business manager Sandi Bird stand with the Tower 1 fire truck.

"It can peel the bricks off a house," Ellenwood said. "They call it a water cannon."

The bucket, which is part of a moveable elevated platform, has a harness and can raise firefighters 85 feet. With the continued upward growth of buildings and the number of senior citizens living in the area, Ellenwood said this type of equipment has become a necessity. The Chelsea Area Fire Authority owns the truck. It's stored at Station 1, which is the hub of the authority. There are stations in Waterloo Township and Dexter Township, as well.

Because the new truck is so long all of the part-time firefighters had to learn how to drive and operate it, which required hours of extra training.

The fire authority doesn't employ any full-time employees. The chief works part time, as well. The closest the department has to a full-time employee is one firefighter who works 30 hours a week, Ellenwood said.

The board would like to change that, however, because of the amount of work that needs to be done on the equipment and around the three stations.

All fire calls go through the Chelsea Police Department and are then forwarded to the fire department. The townships of Lyndon, Waterloo, Lima, and Sylvan, as well as Chelsea Village, make up the Chelsea Area Fire Authority.

Dexter Township does not have a representative on the Chelsea fire board, but it contracts with Chelsea Area Fire Authority and the Dexter Area Fire Board.

"This is one of the most highly trained departments around," said Lyndon Township Supervisor Maryann Noah, who serves as the treasurer for the authority.

"The technical expectations (of a fire department) are higher," Noah said, explaining that people want highly skilled firefighters.

To provide quality service, all firefighters are required to attend numerous hours of training. In the 2001-2002 budget, more than $9,000 has been allocated for training.

"Not many people in this day and age will drop what they are doing and go," Ellenwood said.

Ellenwood said with a paid on-call department, he never knows how many volunteers will show up at a scene. He said on average a dozen respond.

"We always try to keep two people (at the station) just in case the firefighters on the scene need something,"

Ellenwood said.

Firefighters are required to attend 154 hours of training before they can go to a fire, while first medical responders must complete 65 hours of additional training. There is also specialized training for hazardous materials cleanup and rescues from confined spaces and trenches.

A small percentage of the calls the fire department gets are for fires. Some 60 to 70 percent are for medical help.

While the fire authority does not charge for service calls, it does charge for others. The breakdown of fees charged by the authority includes $850 for a motor vehicle crash, $500 for a structure fire, $750 for a motor vehicle fire and $55 per hour for machinery for a hazardous material call.

For the first false fire alarm response to a home or business, it's $50. After that, it's $700 for each successive false alarm for up to one year, said Sandi Bird, the authority's business manager. Once the year is up, the slate is wiped clean.

"We really try to discourage false alarms," she said.

With an operating budget in the fiscal year 2001-2002 of $562,372, Chelsea pays $191,914; Dexter Township, $45,460; Lima Township, $518; Lyndon Township, $84,338; Sylvan Township, $134,841, and Waterloo Township, $27,298.

Chelsea Cleaners changes hands

■ McArthur's move on after 20 years at the helm.

By Marsha Chartrand
Staff Writer

Since mid-November, there have been new faces at the counter at Chelsea Cleaners, but not much has changed.

That's because the same reliable service that residents have become accustomed to is being provided to customers in Chelsea, Dexter and Manchester thanks to the new owners.

While the on-site dry cleaning business remains in the building on Park Street in Chelsea, established drop-off sites in their respective towns serve Manchester and Dexter customers.

Judy and Warren McArthur of Chelsea, who have owned the store for 20 years, simply found that it was "time to move on," Warren McArthur said.

He will pursue a new business as an environmental consultant.

New owners Kyung Ho Kim and his wife, Eui Sook Kim, have lived in Ann Arbor for 12 years. Both are natives of Korea.

Prior to purchasing the Chelsea Cleaners, Eui Sook Kim worked in an Ann Arbor dry-cleaning establishment and her husband was employed in Hamburg.

The business will be a full-time job for the Kims.

In Manchester, Village Gifts is the drop-off spot for Chelsea Cleaners. The Kims own the Village Cleaners storefront in Dexter.

McArthur originally purchased Chelsea Cleaners in 1980. At that time, the deal included the Manchester drop spot. In 1982, they bought the Dexter site and four years later bought a store in Pinckney.

The Pinckney store was sold prior to the sale of the Chelsea, Manchester and Dexter locations.

"During our ownership, we expanded our service area to a wide region of Washtenaw County," McArthur said. "Actually, we have customers from a 600-square-mile area. It sure floored me when I figured that one out."

McArthur said the business has customers from Stockbridge to south of Manchester, as well as extending west to the Grass Lake area.

The dry-cleaning operation is in the basement of the Park Street building, while the service counter and the finished clothes are upstairs at street level.

Kim said the business' service would remain the same from the customer's perspective.

After several weeks as the first-time owner of a business, he said that business has been a bit slower than he expected but, so far, things are going well.

"With bad weather and the holidays, it has had an effect on our trade," he said.

"I would like it to be more busy. I will do my best to serve the customers."

In addition to dry cleaning, the business takes in alterations and repairs.

Warrant Arrest

Washtenaw County Sheriff's deputies arrested Christopher M. Restorick, 28, of Whitmore Lake after identifying him during a routine traffic stop. Restorick had a bench warrant from the Chelsea Police Department for failure to appear on a citation of possession of fireworks. He was taken to the Chelsea Police Department.

Police arrested Arnold C. Whitley, 33, of Belleville Jan. 12 at 296 Jackson Plaza.

Police were called to the building where Whitley works for another incident. When officers arrived, they learned that Whitley was wanted on a bench warrant out of the city of Ypsilanti for failing to appear on a drug charge.

Police transported him to the Ypsilanti City Police Department without incident.

Driving With A Suspended License

Police arrested a 34-year-old Dexter man around 1 a.m. Jan. 12 after finding he was driving on a suspended license. The driver had six prior suspended license convictions.

While patrolling Zeeb Road near Jackson Road, police noticed a suspicious vehicle in the parking lot of the Burger King restaurant, 151 S. Zeeb Road.

Police noticed that the car's engine was running, but no one was in the vehicle. Burger King was closed at the time.

Police came back to the parking lot later and saw someone driving off in the 1986 Chevy Blazer.

When officers got within about 50 feet of the Blazer, the driver stopped and then proceeded after waiting about 10 seconds.

Police impounded the suspect's vehicle and transported him to the Washtenaw County Jail.

Larceny

Someone stole an extension ladder over the New Year holiday weekend from a construction site of a new subdivision on Meadowlands Drive.

The 24-year-old man who owns the ladder said that when he left his job site around 5 p.m. Dec. 31, the ladder was there. When he returned to work at 9 a.m. Jan. 3, the ladder was missing.

He checked the area and the adjoining job sites and did not find the ladder, which is valued at $700.

Property Damage

All the windows of a 1991 Geo Metro were broken after a 20-year-old woman left the car at her ex-boyfriend's home on Jan. 1 in the 500 block of N.

Zeeb Road.

The woman's father, who owns the car, gave permission to his daughter to drive the car. The woman said that she left the car at her former boyfriend's home and was planning to pick it up later in the week.

The woman said that she received a message from her ex-boyfriend that if she did not pick up her car that it would be dismantled.

Police told the woman to get an estimate of the damage.

Dexter Village

Threats

A 35-year-old woman told police she was threatened by three of her bosses between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. Jan. 6 at her workplace on Newman Boulevard.

The woman said her three bosses, all in their late 30s, walked by her desk several times saying they were going to "burn down her apartment."

The woman said that last October during a company meeting, another male colleague passed by her desk and said that "first we are going to fire you, then we are going to kill you."

The woman said that she has an attorney and plans to sue the company for sexual harassment.

Chelsea Village

Found Property

A check written in the amount of $3,500 was found along Main Street and brought into the Chelsea Police Department Jan. 7.

An unidentified woman found the check. She said she did not want to leave her name or be further involved.

The check was issued to Antuan Daniels and signed by Timothy Williams. The check was drawn from an account belonging to D.W. Technologies, 31097 Schoolcraft Road, in Livonia.

The three people named on the check were contacted and police kept the check until the owner retrieved it.

Lost Property

A 16-year-old woman reported to police that she lost her cellular telephone in the early evening of Jan. 6 at the Big Boy restaurant, 1610 S. Main St.

The woman called the restaurant and was told no one found the telephone.

The woman's mother called Verizon, the cellular phone company, and was told that three calls had been made after the phone was reported missing.

Police called the three numbers and the people answering the phone did not speak English, only Spanish.

The phone service was discontinued.

Stolen Vehicle

A vehicle was taken without permission and later returned damaged to its owner a day later.

The 37-year-old owner of the 1997 Chevy Cavalier said that the car was taken between 8 p.m. on Jan. 6 and 9 a.m. Jan. 7.

The woman said that she noticed the front, right quarter panel was damaged when she went out to her car on Jan. 7.

Police later noticed that the right headlight had been broken, and deer hair was in the head light assembly.

The woman told police that she was missing a key from her coat pocket, which was in the house.

The woman contacted her car insurance company to report the damage to her vehicle.

Stolen Property

Someone stole 48 cans of Coca-Cola around 4 p.m. Jan. 12 from a delivery truck parked at the loading dock behind the Pamida store, 1040 S. Main St.

The driver said that he made a delivery to Pamida and when he went to his next stop he noticed the four cases of 12-pack cans were missing.

He called his company in Lansing and told them of the loss, estimated at $50.

Suspicious Incident

The manager of the CVS Pharmacy, 1125 S. Main St., called police around 5 p.m. Jan. 11 to report seeing a man get out of his car with a handgun.

The manager said that she parked her car in front of the store and saw a man getting out of his car carrying a silver handgun. She said he then put the gun in his jeans.

She told police that he went into the store, purchased a magazine and left without incident.

The manager described the man to police, and was later told to call if the man returns.

Compiled by Staff Writer Will Keeler based on reports filed with Chelsea Police and the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department.

Residents take part in program

More than 100 people from all over the Huron River watershed spent Saturday afternoon looking for stoneflies in creeks and river sites.

Individuals and families from Livingston, Oakland and Washtenaw counties formed 25 teams to investigate 50 study sites as part of a long-term scientific study being conducted by the Huron River Watershed Council.

The stoneflies complete all of their growth in two months of winter. Since they cannot fly, they can be seen walking on the snow next to the stream when they are ready to mate.

Winter stoneflies grow rapidly in the middle of winter while the water conditions are favorable and most of the fish won't eat them because they are dormant.

These insects are of interest because their life cycle makes them relatively immune to metabolic stresses during the summer, and climatic conditions in the winter usually ensure adequate oxygen even in moderately polluted sites.

Parents make a difference in children's lives

JENNIFER KUNDAK

PARENTING 2001

So it's 2001 already, and families are still learning the life-long skills of parenting.

We have learned a lot so far but should also expect that growth and change will challenge and surprise us constantly.

In this column, and several to follow, we'll take a look at the role of parenting, which includes biological parent, adoptive parent, stepparent, foster parent, grandparent, guardian and other primary caregivers, with practical approaches to raising successful children.

The very first idea parents must believe in is that you do make a difference. Communication is the key to building life-long, strong, healthy relationships.

And while it is sometimes not easy, the results are well worth the commitment of time and energy.

The Search Institute has developed a model for understanding the developmental needs of children and adolescents by studying more than 250,000 youth in sixth through 12th grades.

A nonprofit organization based in Minneapolis, the Search Institute, provides research, programs, ideas and resources to help create healthy communities for young people.

The framework identifies more than 40 developmental assets, or "building blocks," that all children and teens need to grow up healthy, caring and competent.

There are external and internal assets, which include family support, a caring neighborhood, parental involvement in school, positive peer influence, a commitment to learning, positive values, skills in resisting negative peer pressure and ways to build positive self-esteem.

Starting with the myth that teens don't want much involvement or participation from parents, here are some tips from the book "How to Help Kids to Succeed-Proven, Practical Ways to Raise Good Kids," available at the Parenting Resource Center at the Chelsea District Library.

•Give more hugs and verbal reinforcement. Don't assume that your kids know how much you love them. Tell them.

•It's not true that all kids want their parents to stop hugging or kissing them once they become teen-agers. Ask your children to tell you what feels comfortable for them, and respect their boundaries.

•Eat at least one meal together every day. Also, have family dinners occasionally with conversation focusing on one topic. Brainstorm as a family what you might talk about, then share whose turn it is to pick the topic.

•The fewer topics you declare off limits, the more your kids will talk to you. If you don't know the answer to a question, help your kids find it. Visit the library, ask an expert or search the Internet together.

•Participate in the parent-teacher organization at your child's school. If you can't volunteer a lot of time, say so. Try to attend school board meetings, or meet with the teacher, curriculum director, counselor, social worker, principal or others who may be the appropriate resource for you.

•In general, parents tend to be most involved with their children's education during elementary school, less involved during middle and high school. Make it a priority to stay actively involved for as long as your child is in school.

Another highly recommended book available at the library is "Healthy Teens-Facing the Challenges of Young Lives," by Alice McCarthy. This comprehensive new edition includes up-to-date information on teen sexuality, mental health, violence, substance abuse, sexually transmitted disease, AIDS and much more.

One of the most powerful tools you have is the networking and support that can be shared through everyday interactions. When parents communicate with each other about peer pressures, curfews, behavioral guidelines and related adolescent concerns, everyone can benefit from clear expectations and standards.

Also, when parents help kids in developing critical thinking and planning skills through accurate information, they are giving a lifelong gift not only to their own family, but also to the future of the entire community.

Chelsea is rich with its own assets, and parents have abundant resources all around them. Terrific examples include our public school teachers and schools, home schoolers, Chelsea Education Foundation, clergy and churches, Girl and Boy Scout organizations, Chelsea Area Responding to Teens, Chelsea Community Hospital's Teen Clinic, a multitude of local athletic activities, many wonderful local service organizations, and so many more who advocate for and help teens everyday.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Found ring renews one resident's hope

Each day we are faced with the bad news our radios and newspapers dish out to us, creating a never-ending litany of all the bad that surrounds our every move. Rarely do we hear of the uplifting good that others provide.

I received that gift last week. For weeks, I had failed to find a ring given to me by my late father that he had made from my mother's wedding ring after she died. My wife and I had just moved and I was sure it had been lost in the move.

I received a phone call from the new owners of the Chelsea Cleaners, Eui Sook Kim, and her husband, Kyung Ho Kim. Eui Sook Kim had my ring and had found it in a pocket corner of a coat I'd brought in for cleaning.

I had checked that coat many times. What a surprise and relief knowing that the ring was safe. As most things go, the value is more in the memories than the cost of the ring, but the unexpected gift of honesty is worth equally as much if not more.

My thanks to the new members of our business community, the Kim family, for giving me back some memories.

Honor Holmes by living his legacy

Although the article about Howard Holmes last week listed many of his charitable contributions, I believe it is impossible to fully understand the value that he and his family have brought this community.

I have a story to share that may help to put their contributions into perspective. It concerns the St. Louis Center, a home for developmentally disabled boys and men, located just west of Chelsea on Old US-12.

Twenty-five years ago, the Rev. Germano Pegoraro of the St. Louis Center was riding a Greyhound bus with one of our residents. They were coming back to Chelsea after a visit with the boy's parents. As they rode, they chatted with an elderly woman who was riding in the seat next to them.

When they got to Chelsea, the woman struggled with a heavy bag and the resident jumped to her aid, asking if she needed more help. She declined, but questioned him about where he lived, and what the St. Louis Center was like.

Within days, Germano received a call from the woman, inviting them to come to Chelsea Milling and take home with them as much Jiffy mix as they could use.

That woman was Howard Holmes' mother, and her action began the Holmes family's ongoing support of our center. Howard, Howdy, Dudley and other family members have contributed in many ways through the years and we are grateful to all of them.

I remember my days on the board of the CATS bus, our amazement and pleasure that even though Mr. Holmes could have hired whoever he wanted to drive him to work, he walked when he could and rode the CATS bus when walking was not possible.

It was not simply a matter of priority for him to support local services and stay connected with people, it was a way of life.

From Greyhound to CATS, the legacy left by people like Mr. Holmes and his mother is one of the things that makes Chelsea the place it is today.

Our wonderful little town is not built simply of bricks and mortar, but of the caring, quiet connections between the people that build it.

Let us truly honor Mr. Holmes by living that legacy.

HARMONY in your home

Dexter Township woman Feng Shui expert

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

Walk through the front door of Lynn Meadows' home on Island Lake Road in Dexter Township and you have a direct view through the living room, dining room, hallway and into the bathroom.

"This is clearly not aesthetically pleasing," Meadows says. "From the Feng Shui point of view, it drains energy as soon as you walk in the door."

According to Meadows, a Feng Shui consultant, while the art is more popular on both East and West coasts, it is starting to catch on in the Midwest.

"I don't have to help people with the pronunciation Fung Schway as much as I did at first," Meadows says. "There are only a few consultants in the area so it's a wide open field."

Feng Shui is about how places affect people and their feelings.

"It is the fine art of placement and balance that creates environments where people experience peace, harmony, health and abundance," Meadows says.

"We've all been in places where we've immediately felt at home and wanted to stay, and other places we could hardly wait to leave. These feelings and impulses are a part of the art of Feng Shui, that we can evaluate and alter for the best effect on our lives."

The art of Feng Shui, originating in China more than 4,000 years ago, and still practiced throughout the Far East, includes consideration of climate, topography, neighborhood and buildings. The goal is to balance chi, or energy, making sure it moves appropriately.

"For example, sometimes we need to reduce chi in children's bedrooms so that sleep is possible," Meadows says.

If it sounds a bit off the wall,

Feng Shui expert Lynn Meadows displays some items used in the ancient oriental art. These include a special compass, rocks, crystals, flowers and eucalyptus, that she describes as welcoming and invigorating. Meadows has loaned a video about Feng Shui to the Chelsea District Library.

Feng Shui has its roots in sound principles. Most people will work more efficiently, for example, if their desk is uncluttered.

Placing your chair facing a door, where you can see who is approaching, makes you less vulnerable and more powerful.

The placement of the home itself can affect whether it is protected from the elements and warmed by the sun.

In her own home, Meadows placed storage units with a tall plant to soften the feeling of facing the end of the cabinets, and guide the eye to an angle into the living room.

"A hinge door closer keeps the bathroom door almost closed," she says. "Full wall mirrors in a tiny hall open up the area and make it more inviting."

A fashion and interior designer, Meadows first discovered Feng Shui in 1993 and her old interest in functional interior design was awakened.

"I went to Borders Books and bought the only two books on Feng Shui they had at the time, both by the same author, Sarah Rosback," she says.

"I used the Internet to look for Feng Shui schools, called every lead I could get, and talked to people all over the country, to learn about how and where to study."

With nothing available in the Midwest, Meadows headed to Boulder, Colo., for an intensive, two-week course.

"My launching into the art in Boulder was an overwhelming experience," Meadows says. "In addition to Feng Shui, I had to study Bau biology, Chinese astrology, the I Ching, aromatherapy, sacred geometry, Chi Kung or Tai Chi, and the list goes on."

"It is truly a lifetime study, and I understood why traditionally, practitioners first spend 20 years as apprentices before being considered masters."

Meadows found the immersion course very helpful in exposing her to many teachers from various countries and traditions, giving her a broad view of the field.

Since her Rocky Mountain course, Meadows has taken weekend and weeklong classes on both coasts, and completed a certification program with the Feng Shui Institute of America in Florida.

"This school teaches a more westernized version of Feng Shui," Meadows says.

"That has been my goal: to learn the tradition and adapt it to our culture. Because so much of it works on a subtle level, it needs to be tailored to specific people."

Meadows, who originally thought she would "feel weird" putting bamboo flutes in her house, takes the advice of a former teacher to heart.

"She said that when you leave someone's house, you don't know

Serendipity serenade

Chelsea couple makes sweet music together in duet and quartet

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

Ian Cumming, one quarter of the Congdon Quartet, likens the difficult task of getting a string quartet together to trying to organize a four-way marriage.

"First you have to find musicians who have the ability and time, not to mention the interest," Cumming says. "Even harder, you have to find people who can relate to each other satisfactorily."

Cumming and his wife, Sara, form two quarters — or one half — of the Quartet that calls the Chelsea Depot home. The other two members are Angela Leidig and Nathan Peters.

A native of Melbourne, Australia, Ian Cumming started learning piano at age 9 and the violin at 11. His introduction to the viola was quite serendipitous.

"My older brother, Geoff, learned viola," Cumming says. "I took it up quite by accident when I wanted to play music instead of doing my homework and my violin was at school. I tried Geoff's viola and found I had an affinity for it."

The rest is history. Cumming's main interest throughout childhood was electronics.

"It was accepted family lore that I would be an electrical engineer," he says. "I spent most of my time making radios — the old valve kind, this was before transistors existed — and listening to Morse code on short-wave radio."

However, music and Mozart won out over Morse code.

"One day, when I was 16, I was playing first violin in Mozart's clarinet quintet with some fellow students I had met through the National Music Camp Association of Australia," Cumming says.

"I decided that day that this was what I wanted to do, dropped my interest in electronics and started studying music seriously."

Cumming completed his secondary school course in science and mathematics then did an extra year of languages, music practice and music theory.

He then attended the Conservatorium of Music at the University of Melbourne to study violin and viola.

"I resided in Ormond College on a scholarship that required me to provide music in the college chapel every Sunday," Cumming says. "This meant anything from playing the harmonium, or solo violin, to organizing groups of music students to play appropriate music."

"I often had groups of up to 15 players, and had to arrange music for whatever instruments were available."

Cumming's ability to tinker with his hands was not completely in abeyance. While in college, he earned money doing car repairs for fellow students.

After three years of a four-year course, Cumming was finding it tedious and uninspiring.

"The administration of the conservatorium was appalling," he says. "It was especially galling that students were not allowed to accept outside playing engagements without written permission from the conservatorium at least a month in advance. This was a ridiculous requirement, as most jobs were not organized that far ahead."

Cumming was constantly bombarded with calls from various organizations wanting him to play viola and, defying college rules, gained plenty of experience playing in shows, operettas and concerts.

"This was far more useful than anything that went on within the confines of the conservatorium," the rebel musician says.

At the end of his third year at the conservatorium, Cumming heard that a new opera and ballet orchestra was starting up, to be based in Melbourne.

Chelsea residents Sara and Ian Cumming play in the Congdon Quartet and the duo, Salut D'Amour. They also teach at the Chelsea Center for the Development of the Arts.

The Australian Elizabethan Theatre Trust Melbourne Orchestra officially started on May 5, 1970, with Cumming playing viola.

"The gross salary was $80 per week — a fabulous sum," he says.

The orchestra toured for five months of the year, to the other capital cities and larger towns.

"When on tour there was a substantial touring allowance," Cumming says.

BEGINNINGS OF GUM DISEASE

By now, most people are aware of the seriousness and impact of gum disease - the leading cause of tooth loss in adults - but how many people know how it begins and what causes it?

There is a space between the gum lining and tooth called the SULCUS. Bacteria fills this space and unless it is removed by brushing and flossing, it can irritate the gum lining. The cells in the lining swell and separate. Gradually the material inside the lining cells, or the cementing substances which hold the cells together, are destroyed. As the sulcus becomes diseased, a pocket forms.

At this point, toothbrushing or eating hard foods might cause your gums to bleed. THIS BLEEDING IS NOT NORMAL. Unless steps are taken to correct the situation - and it is reversible - it may lead to the destruction of more gum tissue and bone, and eventually the loss of the teeth themselves.

Prepared by Custom Column Service as a public service to promote better dental health. From the office of:

Chelsea Education Foundation announces grants

The Chelsea Education Foundation recently announced the recipients of its grants.

The foundation's grant program is its most wide-reaching program, affecting thousands of residents.

Since its incorporation, the foundation has granted more than $67,000 to the Chelsea School District and community organizations. This year, close to $20,000 was awarded.

For all of the Chelsea School District elementary schools, $500 was awarded for author Kathy-JoWargin to visit; $1,800 for Buck Wilder to visit; $690 for the program Journey through Space for fifth-graders; $630 for the Creepy Critters program; $485 for the Picture Person program; and $1,000 for a historic Mackinac tour.

At North Creek Elementary School, $500 was awarded for the elementary special education camp; $750 for the Bay City marine biology trip; $321 for the program Perspective Diversity; $1,000 for PILOTS, an interim grant program to support teacher ideas; and $150 for Physical Fitness Day.

Pierce Lake Elementary School received $500 for a CD burner and $400 for special education camp.

South Meadows and Pierce Lake Elementary schools together received $390 for a revolutionary war re-enactor.

South Meadows Elementary School received $455 for the program Ages and Ages Ago.

At Beach Middle School, $800 was awarded for the program Everyone Reads at the Beach; $600 for Washington D.C. scholarships and sixth-grade camp; $504 for student-to-student mentoring and $100 for the Science Olympiad.

Chelsea High School received $1,350 for making biology more interactive; $1,444 for the program Prevention in Practice; $750 for Writing-10 Anthology; $750 for Sophomore Writing Anthology; $100 for a Shakespeare presentation and $400 for anodized jewelry.

Chelsea Community Education Preschool received $1,000.

The Chelsea Council for the Development of the Arts was awarded $250 for the Congdon Quartet Performance and String workshop.

Silver Maples of Chelsea Retirement Community received $2,230 for "Chasing the Blues and Dealing with Depression."

Founded in 1990, the Chelsea Education Foundation is a non-profit, tax-exempt organization supported solely by contributions from individuals and businesses. Friends and supporters organized the foundation as a link between schools, businesses and the community to strengthen Chelsea's future. The foundation is in the midst of its annual direct mail fundraiser. Contributions to the CEF are fully tax deductible. To make a donation, send a check to the Chelsea Education Foundation, P.O. Box 295, Chelsea, MI 48118. For more information, see www.com-net.org/cef.

MEADOWS

that it has been Feng Shuid, you just know that it feels better.

Meadows started doing Feng Shui consultations five years ago on a part time basis.

"Since retiring, I've been focusing more energy into developing my practice," Meadows says.

She consults on apartments, houses, offices, businesses and stores around Ann Arbor and the surrounding towns, and is starting to get clients from farther away, including the metro Detroit area.

"I also do quite a bit of teaching and give talks to various interested groups," she says. "The response to my series of talks last fall for Art Van stores in Ann Arbor, Royal Oak, Novi, Sterling Heights and Warren was very exciting, and last week I gave a talk to the Art Guild of Brighton."

Meadows has also recently given talks to Real Estate One in Ann Arbor and the Livingston County Builders Association in Brighton.

"Many builders and real estate people are finding their clients are asking about the Feng Shui of properties," she says.

Meadows first got her fashion feet wet by studying fashion and interior design at Bowling Green State University in Ohio. After earning a bachelor's degree in 1959, she went on to get a master's degree in fashion merchandising from Eastern Michigan University in the mid-'60s.

For several years, she taught classes in fashion and interior design at Ann Arbor, Eastern Michigan University, Dearborn Community College and Monroe Community College, among others.

Meadows put her skills to work for a little over a decade, as a buyer and merchandise manager for Goodyear's Department Store in Ann Arbor.

In 1979, she made a change, and spent the next 10 years as an independent clothing sales representative, covering Michigan, Ohio and Kentucky.

Meadows then became assistant manager of Friend's Gift Shops at the University of Michigan Hospital, a position she held until her retirement in 1999.

Retirement certainly didn't mean resting on her laurels. In addition to her Feng Shui consulting, Meadows enjoys a packed agenda of ballroom and contra dancing, downhill and cross country skiing, yoga, Tai chi, Chi Kung, quilting, concerts, theater, reading, kayaking and sailing.

Meadows called Ypsilanti home from 1959 through 1971, before moving to Milan, where she spent 18 years.

Milan residents will remember her as Lynn McElhany. While raising her two daughters, Jill and Gwen, she found time to be active in the Milan Arts and Crafts Club, serve as a Girl Scout leader, and was a member of the People's Presbyterian Church, where she sang in the choir and served on committees.

She also did volunteer work for Washtenaw Area Council for Children and the Bubulonian Encounter Project, a program teaching children about safe encounters.

In 1989, the Ohio native changed both her name and her residence, moving to Ann Arbor, and taking the last name Meadows.

She calls her move to Dexter Township a little more than a year ago "a dream come true."

"I have a little house on quiet Island Lake, a lake with no motorboats allowed."

Meadows' daughter, Jill Joseph, has followed in her footsteps, and is an interior designer with Herman Miller in the Washington, D.C., area. She and her husband have three children, ages 2, 8, and 10.

Meadows' other daughter is local resident Gwen Stubbs, who has a preschool and kindergarten in Chelsea schools.

Meadows is currently involved with volunteer work for Interfaith Council for Peace and Justice in Ann Arbor.

She is also a member of the Green Party of Michigan and is establishing a local offshoot, the Tamarack Greens.

Chelsea United Way is raising funds

The Chelsea United Way is currently at approximately 80 percent of its campaign goal and is anxious to make this another successful year.

The Chelsea United Way supports local agencies helping the Chelsea community directly. Member agencies include Faith In Action, Chelsea Area Transportation System, the Girl Scouts and the Boy Scouts, Chelsea Recreation Council, Chelsea Help Line, the Parents as Teachers program and many others.

This year's goal of $130,000 will enable these agencies to function for the Chelsea community, with community support from both individuals and local businesses. Nearly 100 percent of the money collected goes to the agencies, and the organization operates with an unpaid all-volunteer board.

Contributions are still being accepted and can be mailed to Chelsea United Way, 1119 S. Main St., Suite 147, Chelsea, MI 48118-1426.

MUSIC

"The orchestra would fly us, or reimburse us if we preferred to drive. I bought an ancient bus to live in, and groups of us would drive from city to city and live in the bus in a caravan park during our stay."

"We experienced lots of spectacular breakdowns and had lots of fun — at least, it was fun in retrospect," he says.

During the seven years Cumming stayed in the Trust, he came to love the opera repertoire.

"I left the Trust because I had started playing as a casual extra with the Melbourne Symphony, an orchestra of a much higher standard," he says.

At that time there was very slow turnover of players in the Australian Broadcasting Commission orchestras, and the average age of the players was probably more than 60.

"I'll never forget the unbelievable sound the strings in this large orchestra produced in very soft passages," Cumming says. "As a part of it, I didn't dare breathe in case I jerked my instrument and caused some audible sound to blurt out."

There was also a lot of session work available, so Cumming worked free-lance, took on tutoring at National Music Camps and got involved in various orchestrating, arranging and composing projects.

He eventually went back to the Trust, renamed the Elizabethan Melbourne Orchestra, this time as a violinist.

"Much of the free-lance session work had either dried up or been moved to Sydney. So, I did another two-year stint, then left to join the Melbourne Symphony as a permanent member when a position became vacant and I auditioned successfully," Cumming says.

By then, electronics had advanced and computers became commonplace. Cumming returned to an earlier interest.

"I discovered I had a knack for programming, and started working in this area, first on a part-time basis while still in the orchestra, then full time," he says.

"I reasoned that with the better income this would bring I would have more time to devote to chamber music, my first love."

Cumming met his future wife when Sara came to Australia, and was looking for some chamber music opportunity.

"A pianist friend and I were looking for a cellist to form a trio," Ian Cumming says. "Along came Sara, and I found both a musician and a marriage partner."

A native of Ann Arbor, Sara Cumming started learning piano at the age of 9 and cello two years later.

She moved to Chelsea with her family in 1977 and graduated from Chelsea High School.

"I took the more conservative musical route by completing two degrees at university," she says.

She earned a bachelor's degree in cello performance from the University of Illinois and a master's degree in music from Rice University.

In addition to attending Banff and other music festivals, Sara Cumming has experience with orchestral performing and chamber music, and has taught private cello lessons in Scotland and Australia.

Along the way she taught, free-lanced and, at times, held substitute positions in various orchestras.

"I'm fascinated by how people learn, and never tire at teaching Twinkle and being completely amazed at how each child or adult has a different outlook on what I used to think of as a simple piece," Sara Cumming says.

She has completed three levels of Suzuki teacher training in the United States and the same three levels plus one more in Australia, which has a different system of accreditation.

"I feel that Suzuki truly believed no one is ever too old to learn or to change," she says. "If you have done something incorrectly 10,000 times then you try 10,001 more times to do it correctly. I have always had a wonderful class of adult students wherever I have taught and this adage has always proven true."

To Sara Cumming, the best thing about her adult students is that they are there by choice, not because of parental pressure.

"I've also been fortunate to have started many young students. Many people are unaware that cellos range in size from 1/16, 1/10, 1/8, all the way to full size," she says.

"The youngest pupil I've seen taught was 2. My decision to start a student is based on attention span. Most children are ready between the ages of 4 and 5."

After the two musicians met in Melbourne, they played chamber music on a regular basis and soon formed a duo Salut d'Amour, playing at weddings, parties and social functions.

"We moved back to Chelsea from Australia in 1998 to be close to my mother, who still lives north of town where I grew up," Sara Cumming says. "We felt Chelsea was a great place to raise our children."

The Cummings' three offspring inherited their musical genes. Megan, Graham and Emmeline all started playing the piano at the age of 3, each one on a different continent.

"Meg started in Scotland, Graham in Australia and Em here in Michigan," Sara Cumming says.

"They all study with Renee Robbins, a Suzuki piano teacher in Ann Arbor. It was pretty neat that their teacher in Melbourne, Nehama Patkin, who is very well known in the Suzuki circle, was able to recommend Renee to us. It is such a small world."

Megan, 10, and Graham, 7, are pupils at Pierce Lake Elementary School. Emmeline, 4, attends the Chelsea Community Education preschool program.

In another touch of serendipity, the Cummings were delighted to find the Chelsea Center for the Development of the Arts was established and in need of string teachers.

"Even more wonderful was meeting Nathan Peters to form a trio, and then to be joined by Angela Leidig to complete our string quartet," Sara Cumming says.

"It was so amazing to have this lifelong dream recognized in Chelsea. Four people with the burning desire to perform, give up the time to do so and all get along fiendishly well — it's a true miracle."

The Chelsea Chamber Players has now been registered as a non-profit organization and includes the Congdon Quartet, McKinley Trio and Salut d'Amour.

"We hope to provide the Chelsea community with live music concerts at the railway depot, perform concerts and workshops in area schools, and run a chamber music camp in the summer in Chelsea for local music students," Sara Cumming says.

The Congdon Quartet, still in its relative infancy, manages to get together and rehearse at least once a week.

"Ideally a group such as this needs to be working together all the time," Ian Cumming says. "But the days of wealthy patrons seem to be over, so we all need to spend most of our time earning a living."

In his case, this is by computer programming and teaching music, and for the other three members, it's by teaching.

Students come from Chelsea, Ann Arbor and other towns in the surrounding area. The Quartet advertises its concerts throughout Washtenaw County.

"We're hoping we'll be able to attract some sponsorship so that we can re-organize our lives to fit in more rehearsal time and concerts," Ian Cumming says.

The Congdon Quartet's next concert is set for 3 p.m. April 1 in the Chelsea Depot.

Resolve... to protect your drinking water

From the well or the tap, the watershed is the source of your drinking water.
It's precious...
• Water makes up three-quarters of our planet.
• Only 1% of all the water on earth is accessible and clean enough for our consumption.
• All people, plants and animals must share this same 1% water supply.
Make every drop count...
• A watershed is all the land that drains into a common water body, such as a stream, creek or lake.
• The Huron River is the cleanest urban river in Michigan. The Huron provides drinking water, recreation and hydro-electric power to over 500,000 people.
• Preserving the Huron River and its watershed means protecting your drinking water resources.
Resolve to do more...
• Call us for your free packet of tip cards. You'll see that protecting the Huron River also saves you time and money!
• Become a member of the Huron River Watershed Council. We've been protecting water resources for over 35 years, and have a proven history of efficient, effective use of funds.
Remember... small actions make a big difference. It's that simple.

Music and muscles

Whether you're jogging outdoors, spending hours on the stair-climber or pumping iron at the health club, listening to music can help make your workout time more fun. Today's convenient and powerful technology tools provide many options and make it easy to bring music into fitness activities.

"With so much new technology available for the fitness enthusiast, work out time is becoming the most enjoyable part of the day," said Laurie Bauer, spokesperson for Best Buy, the nation's leading retailer of consumer electronics, personal computers, entertainment software and appliances. "From the new generation of portable CD players to portable MP3 players that can store more than 100 hours of music, there's never been a better time to take your music with you."

Here's a list of the newest products that can help you look forward to the weekly workouts:

Portable Stereos

If listening to the radio is your thing, today's portable stereos are more powerful than ever, ensuring you can hear your station at the health club or while running outdoors. Even better, many health clubs have televisions that you can tune in on the radio. New designs like armband models provide increased mobility that make music on the run hands-free, so you can focus on the workout. Prices start as low as $9.99 for AM/FM tuners with cassette.

Portable CD Players

The new portable CD player has been designed for people on the go. Today's units have 10-second skip protection as a standard, with most models boasting a 45-second buffer, making skipping a thing of the past. There are several models designed specifically for jogging, with durable sports design and water-resistant parts. Prices start below $25, with jogging models starting at $89.99.

Portable MiniDisc

Slim, lightweight and extremely portable, Minidisc is the perfect music medium to take with you. Able to store 74 minutes of music on a 2.5 inch disc, Minidisc's provide digital audio and can be re-recorded more than a million times without losing sound quality. MD's can also encode and display information about the recording, including artist name, album/track titles and timing information. Better yet, Minidisc's are virtually skip-free. Prices range between $149.99 and $249.99.

Portable MP3 Players

For the techno-savvy fitness guru, MP3 is the only way to go. Portable MP3 players are just a fraction of the size and weight of a portable CD player, and with no movable parts, skipping isn't even an option—you could run a marathon or test out a trampoline without missing a beat. MP3 players come with a variety of memory capabilities, from 32MB with enough room for a few tracks to the 6 GB jukebox from NOMAD, which allows for more than 100 hours of storage. MP3 is a dream come true for music lovers, with thousands of tracks available for download on the Internet. Prices range between $139 and $420.

Portable TV

For the exercisers who don't want to miss their favorite show, portable TVs are the easy answer. These mini TVs are better than ever with stylish designs and crystal-clear LCD screens. Perfect for when you're strapped to the stationary bike or training on the treadmill, handheld televisions can make any workout routine more entertaining. Prices for these portables range from $99.99 to $199.99.

With all of the great technology tools available today, no workout needs to sacrifice fun for fitness.

Longevity

For as long as man has inhabited the Earth, he has attempted to unravel the mystery of healthful longevity. Ponce de Leon searched his entire lifetime only to die being recorded in history as a wishful dreamer by some and a charlatan by others.

The average man in the 21st Century lives to about 70 years of age and the average woman about 74. Is this really the best we can do in our modern medical times? Really not much seems to have advanced in the area of longevity as these ages are not much better than our forefathers — George Washington and Benjamin Franklin lived until 87 and 84 respectively.

So the search continues for the Fountain of Youth. Today, a select group of scientists believe a new door appears to be opening that seems to answer many questions as to why healthier, longer lives have been elusive.

The scientists, exploring the possibilities inherent in a therapeutic called Anticort under development by publicly traded Steroidogenesis Inhibitors International (Ticker: STGI), have been researching reactions by the body that result following stress. For years numerous studies have concluded that stress is a major contributor to health. Basically put, stress kills. But, the question is why? The answer seems to lie in a natural chemical secreted by the body.

The adrenal cortex, located above the kidneys produces 40 different hormones called corticosteroids. These hormones as a group help regulate the metabolism of salt, water, carbohydrates and protein within the body, and they play an important role in the body's response to stress. However, one, known as Cortisol, a hormone that rises significantly in the body each time adrenaline is released to provide the sudden bursts of energy necessary to counter stressful situations, appears to be playing a major role in destroying the immune system and shortening lifespan.

While most hormones decrease with age, cortisol tends to do the opposite: it increases and seems to be retained by the body. This conundrum has puzzled researchers for years as they have studied numerous diseases and found a correlation with high cortisol levels. The question to be answered was which came first: high cortisol levels or the disease? As research expanded, cortisol seemed to be indicted as the culprit, leading the way to many illnesses and premature aging.

And the research is staggering. Published studies in the "Journal of Clinical Endocrinology" have already concluded that high cortisol levels result in loss of muscle and bone mass — the first physical symptoms of aging. Others have shown that high cortisol levels are associated with cognitive impairment and dementia.

So, is the answer to healthful longevity in a therapeutic that prevents the elevation of the body's production of cortisol?

Dr. Janet Greeson, CEO of STGI, and renown, best-selling author elaborates: "Research continues to indicate that high levels of cortisol are intimately related to the many diseases plaguing mankind today and that it actually does lessen our health and longevity. Today, under the expertise of Dr. Vassili Papadopoulos and his staff at Georgetown University's Medical Center's Division for Hormone Research, therapeutic Anticort is being explored as an alternative for the control of hormone and stress-induced cortisol production by human adrenal cells. So far, these researchers have found strong data to support the belief that Anticort may prove to be a significant ingredient to a longer, healthier life." She added, "Most people don't mind getting older, it's just that we don't want to be sick and older."

Anticort is based on a proprietary complex generic form of procaine HCL, which is currently being used as an immunomodulator. As such, Anticort is a type of drug that conceptually seems to be favored by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), which has asked scientists at pharmaceutical companies to explore new uses for "old" drugs. The FDA approved Procaine, the main ingredient in Anticort, over 40 years ago.

Currently, research is being conducted in the areas of HIV/AIDS, dementia and assorted chronic diseases. High cortisol levels to date have been tied to diseases such as ulcers, depression, myocardial infarction, stroke, diabetes, cancer, Alzheimer's, Parkinson's, multiple sclerosis, skin diseases and AIDS. Interesting to note, high cortisol levels have also been suspected in alcoholism, substance abuse, anorexia and smoking. When tested in sixty-six AIDS patients in Brazil, Anticort drastically reduced the mortality rate of the test patients. Specifically, Anticort was shown to be effective in increasing these patients' CD4 levels (immune cell counts).

So what can you do to increase your health and longevity until Anticort or other similar anticortisols become available as therapeutics? Continue to dream and envision a longer healthy life and be practical today: Eat well, get a good night's sleep, exercise, don't worry, don't hurry and laugh as often as you can!

Sport Specific Workouts

For many of the 6.5 million high school athletes in United States who have returned to school, now is the time to get back into shape for fall and winter sports.

SportsHuddle.com, the first national network of high school sports sites, offers tips from coaches and trainers specializing in a variety of sports to help get athletes back into general and sport-specific shape. Following the advice of SportsHuddle's panel of experts will not only impress your coach and give you an edge over your competition; it could also cut down your risk of injury.

The following are some general and sport-specific fitness and nutrition tips:

- Always stay hydrated. This tip should be followed all year round but especially in warm climates when the heat can be especially brutal on the body. Remember, by the time you feel thirsty, you're already dehydrated.

- Exercise with a friend. This will get you into the competitive frame of mind and help break the boredom that can arise from a workout.

- Always warm up. Warming up is important to prepare the cardiovascular and muscular system for the upcoming, strenuous physical activity necessary to practice at full speed.

Your warm-up is an essential component of practice and should improve your overall performance.

- Maintain your workouts during the season. It would be wise to decrease the intensity and frequency of your training sessions, and you should consider taking two days off before a game or meet. But you shouldn't stop workouts entirely.

- Change up your workouts. Change your workout every four to eight weeks, depending on the phase of training and the sport season. Ideally you should try to peak your strength and power for the season.

Football

Based on the sport requirements, breakfast is extremely important for two reasons. First, you want to consume a large amount of calories to gain or maintain weight. Having three meals a day is essential for maintaining weight. To gain weight you should try to eat two additional small meals for a total of five meals a day. Second, you need to have a full tank so when it's time to exercise or play a game, your reserves will be ready to go.

Soccer and Field Hockey

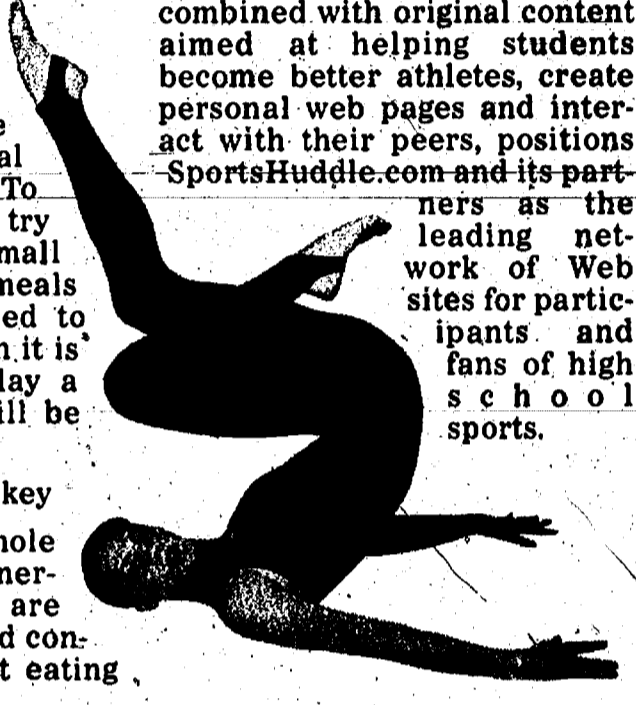

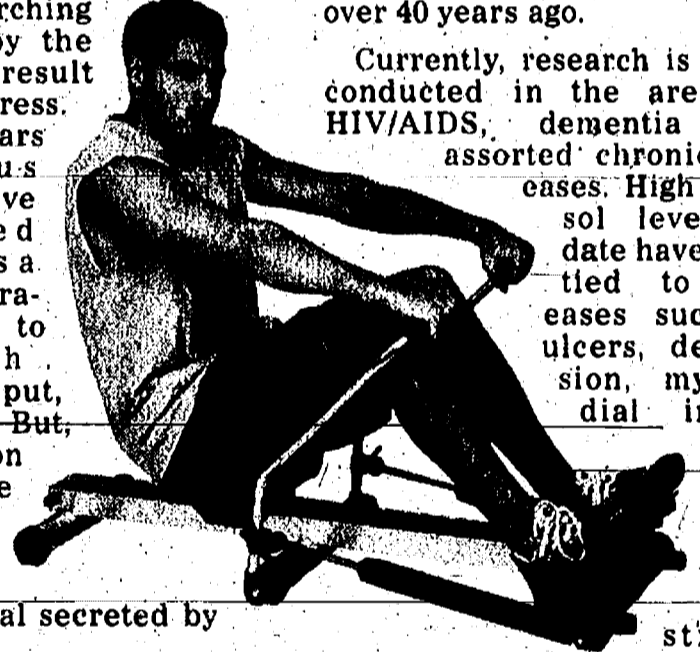

To compete for a whole game, you need a high energy level, so be sure you are eating appropriately and consistently. If you are not eating and drinking enough, you may not find out until the overtime of the most important game of the season.

Cross Country

You need to keep your glycogen stores up so that you do not "bonk" during a race, so be sure you are eating appropriately and consistently. Eating after a hard workout is the best way to make sure you replenish your glycogen stores.

Chelsea icers get defensive, sweep weekend opponents

By Don Richter
Staff Writer

Behind goaltender Michael Osborne, the Chelsea hockey team defeated Dearborn Heights Crestwood, 7-1, Jan. 12 at Canfield Ice Arena.

The senior Bulldog net minder was strong between the pipes, turning away 35 Charger shots.

Chelsea was led on offense by senior captain Dave Poupard, who scored two goals.

The visiting Dawgs opened the night with a goal by senior Rob Molina. Josh Barron and senior alternate captain Craig St. Clair recorded the assist.

Chris White, Drew Warren, senior Brad Wright and Barron rounded out the Chelsea scoring.

Against Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes on Jan. 13 at Lakeland Ice Arena, Chelsea continued its winning ways with a convincing, 7-1 victory.

The road warrior Bulldogs capped off the two-day, two-game set, outscoring their opponents by a combined 14-2 margin.

As was the case versus Crestwood, the Bulldog defense ruled.

Earning the win in net for Chelsea was Andy Mossburg.

Wright, with two goals, paced the Bulldog attack offensively.

St. Clair started things off with a bang for Chelsea, notching a nifty top-shelf goal.

It was all downhill for the host Lakers from there.

Trevor Maveal, Barron and Molina also scored for the Bulldogs in the lopsided win.

Chelsea next travels to the Monroe Sports Complex tomorrow to take on Bedford at 9:30 p.m.

After battling the Mules, the Bulldogs return home after a three-game road trip, hosting Plymouth Canton, 7 p.m. Jan. 20 at the Chelsea Arctic Coliseum.

The Canton game is the first of a four-game home stand for Chelsea.

The Dawgs play host to New Boston Huron Jan. 24 and Pinckney Jan. 27 before ending the month against county rival Dexter Jan. 31.

All games are slated to begin at 7 p.m.

In the bedlam that was Dexter High School's gymnasium, the Chelsea boys' basketball team fell, 59-54, to its county rivals Jan. 12.

Despite 23 points and seven rebounds from senior 6-foot-5 forward Tony Scheffler, the Bulldogs (5-3) could not overcome the hot shooting of Dexter's 6-foot senior sniper John Cowen, who blistered the nets for a game-high 26 points.

It seemed every time Chelsea looked to have the Dreadnaughts (5-3) on the ropes, Cowen would bury a jumper.

Despite falling behind early in the first quarter, 12-6 on Cowen's first of three triples of the night, the Bulldogs battled back and on a Paul Newhouse three-pointer with 16 seconds left took the lead, 16-14.

A lanky 6-4 sophomore, Newhouse ended the night with 10 points, including two treys.

To begin the second quarter, Dexter junior guard Dan Mutschler nailed a triple and Cowen drained a free throw, putting the Dreads up, 18-16, with 7:46 remaining in the half.

Chelsea roared back, and after junior guard Eddie McClendon's steal at midcourt and subsequent basket, took a 32-27 lead with 3:27 left.

A triple by Cowen with 32 seconds on the first half clock tied the score at 32-32. But a Brian Sayers reverse lay-up with 16 seconds left gave Chelsea a 34-32 advantage as the two squads headed to the locker room.

To begin the third quarter, the host Dreadnaughts went on a 9-2 run, breaking out for a 41-36 lead on Brian Caldwell (18 points) and Matt Michalik (seven points) buckets.

But two straight baskets by Scheffler and a jumper from the left wing by Newhouse ended the quarter with Dexter on top by a slim, 47-46, margin.

Four Cowen free throws helped spark Dexter to a 5-1 run to begin the final period as Dexter increased its lead to 51-46 with 4:48 remaining.

With the score 53-48 Dexter, the Dreads went into a mini-stall, milking the dwindling clock.

With the Dawgs on their heels, Dexter point guard Michalik found a wide-open Caldwell underneath the basket for a 55-48 lead.

With the bucket, Chelsea called time out.

After two Scheffler free throws, the Bulldogs scrapped back to 56-52 with 1:37 left on the clock. But a basket by Cowen and free throw by Caldwell sealed Chelsea's fate and ended the ballgame.

"They (Chelsea) shot well enough to win," said Dexter assistant coach Jason Rychener. "But in the fourth, we played about as good a quarter as we have all year."

Besides Scheffler and Newhouse, junior Joe Tripodi, who finished with eight points and four rebounds, paced Chelsea.

For the game, the Dawgs held Dexter to 41 percent from the field while shooting 46 percent itself.

At the charity stripe, Chelsea finished 5-of-8 for 63 percent. Dexter ended up 17-of-25 for 68 percent.

On Jan. 9, the Bulldogs hosted Ann Arbor Pioneer and won, 67-61.

McClendon, with 23 points, four rebounds and two steals, led the Chelsea attack.

According to Bulldog coach Robin Raymond, Chelsea's season-high 57 percent shooting from the floor was key to its victory.

"We shot extremely well," he said. "That was the difference in the game."

In contrast, Chelsea's defense held Pioneer to a paltry 38 percent from the field.

Besides tickling the twines, the Dawgs played together as a team.

Ostrowski paces Chelsea matmen at Athens tournament

By Don Richter
Staff Writer

The Chelsea wrestling squad traveled to Athens Jan. 13 for a 16-team tournament and came away with a strong fifth-place finish.

The Bulldogs ended up with 122.5 points.

Winning the meet was Bronson with 177 points.

Placing second was Caledonia with 141.5 points, while Lakeview and New Lothrop tied for third with 129.5 points.

"Overall, I saw some good things," said Chelsea coach Kerry Kargel.

Capturing a tournament championship was Bulldog sophomore Randy Ostrowski (125 pounds), who beat his opponent 6-2 in the finals.

"Randy wrestled some tough matches," Kargel said. "He looked real good."

Two other Chelsea grapplers advanced to the tournament championship.

At 171 pounds, sophomore Darl Bauer finished second, falling in the finals, 7-6.

At 152, Adam Egeler dropped a hard-fought 6-4 decision in the championship.

Eric Lixey (160) placed third for Chelsea, winning his final match in a major decision, 9-0.

Also placing third for the Dawgs was Jared Powers (215). Powers pinned his final opponent in 4:27.

Placing fifth for Chelsea was

Chelsea coach

Robert Herst (189), who despite losing his first match, finished strong, winning his last four.

Other wrestlers performing well for the Dawgs were Josh Clark (103), who ended up 0-2 for the tournament; Matt Robinson (112), 0-2; Adam Ellis (119), 0-2;

Mike Kattula (130), 0-2; Ryan Keiser (135), 2-2; Mike Steger (140), 2-2; Pat Jolly (145), 0-2 and Alex Slocumb (heavyweight), 1-2.

On Jan. 11, Chelsea met up with Ann Arbor Huron winning, 57-15.

The River Rats forfeited six matches.

Earning victories for the Bulldogs were Clark (103), 2-0 decision; Ellis (119), forfeit; Ostrowski (125), forfeit; Kattula (132), 8-1 decision; Keiser (135), forfeit and Steger (140), on a forfeit.

Others winning for Chelsea were Egeler (152), on a pin; George Fairley (160) on a major decision, 13-2; Bauer (171), forfeit; Herst (189), forfeit and Powers (215) on a pin.

The Bulldogs travel to Dexter tonight for a match beginning at 8:30 p.m.

On Jan. 20, Chelsea travels to the always-tough Williamston 22-team tournament that starts at 9:30 a.m.

"That will be a really good test for the kids," Kargel said.

Bulldog tankers battle Brighton, Saline

Hack, Heydlauff, Basar help pace state-ranked Chelsea swimmers in split

The Chelsea swimming and diving team lost a tough meet against Brighton Jan. 9, 98-88.

The Bulldog coaching staff knew it would be rough swimming because Brighton's team was a four-school combined squad.

The Brighton team is made up of swimmers from Howell, Hartland and Fowlerville to go along with the host school.

"It's hard to go up against such an opponent because they will always have fresh swimmers," said Chelsea coach Dave Jolly.

Despite the stacked odds, the Bulldogs performed well.

Andy Hack, Matt Holmes, Greg Cook and Jake Holton started things off right for Chelsea, winning the 200 individual medley (1:47.28).

In the 200 freestyle, Bulldog Jeff Heydlauff touched first with a career best (1:52.03). The time qualified him for the state championship meet in March.

In the 200 individual medley, Hack dominated, aching the field by nearly one length.

At this point, Chelsea was holding tough, but the next event would do some real damage.

Despite a season best time, Jared Wacker finished third in the 50 freestyle. Holton was close behind in fourth place.

In the one-meter diving competition, Steve Basar captured the top spot with 235.20 points.

"That was the diving performance of a lifetime," Jolly said.

After the diving event, the meet was tied at 39-39.

Heydlauff won the 100 freestyle with a season best (49.85).

In the 500 freestyle, Cook cruised to victory with a season best (5:21.17).

In the 200 freestyle relay, the Chelsea foursome of Heydlauff, Wacker, Holton and Zack Christman won easily (1:34.33).

In the 100 backstroke, Hack had possibly the meet's most impressive swim winning (53.94).

"He was incredible," Jolly said. "His time nearly made the All-America standard."

In the last event of the meet, the group of Hack, Cook, Heydlauff and Wacker captured the 400 freestyle relay.

It wasn't enough, however, as the Dawgs dropped their first meet of the season.

On Jan. 12, Chelsea came from behind to defeat a much-improved Saline squad, 96-90.

The meet didn't get off to an auspicious start as the Bulldogs' winning 200 medley relay team was disqualified.

"That put us behind the eight ball right from the start," Jolly said.

After two events, Chelsea was down, 21-9.

Cook broke the bad luck, winning the 200 individual medley (2:15.35).

In the 50 freestyle, Heydlauff touched first to help bring the Dawgs back.

In diving, Gabe McGuinness finished second despite a season-best 206.25 points.

In the 100 freestyle, Heydlauff placed first and in the 500 freestyle Cook finished first to again bring Chelsea back.

With four events left in the meet, the Bulldogs needed to make up six points.

The foursome of Heydlauff, Andre Bravo, Holton and Hack won the 200 freestyle relay (1:34.51), cutting the deficit to four points.

A first by Wacker in the 100 backstroke (1:00.3), a third by Christman and a fifth by Josh Haynes helped cut the deficit to two points.

Hack and Holmes put the Dawgs ahead to stay with a first- and second-place finish in the 100 breaststroke.

In the meet's final event, the foursome of Heydlauff, Cook, Wacker and Hack won the 400 freestyle relay (3:25.53) to seal the hard-earned victory.

Chelsea, ranked No. 6 in Class B-C-D, next host Class A No. 1-ranked and defending state champion Ann Arbor Pioneer tomorrow at 6:30 p.m.

Stiles sets new standards for Beach

By Don Richter

Staff Writer

Chelsea's Beach Middle School swimming team fell to visiting Brighton, 94-76, Jan. 9.

Kara Stiles set new school records with wins in the 200 freestyle (2:05.89) and 100 freestyle (57.30).

Stiles' time in the 200 freestyle broke the old record of (2:07.49) held by Katrina Moffett. Her time in the 100 freestyle broke the old record of (57.92) held by Kim Grossman.

The 200 medley relay four-

Pagliarini, Allison Frayer and Katie Grabarkiewicz placed third for Beach.

Jessica Lodewyk finished first in the 100 individual medley. Andy Kellogg captured the 50 freestyle.

In diving, Danielle Houle placed first for Beach.

In the 200 freestyle relay, the team of Kellogg, Pagliarini, Lodewyk and Stiles touched first.

In the 100 backstroke, Adams finished second.

In the 400 freestyle relay, the group of Stiles, Grabarkiewicz, Lodewyk and Kellogg placed second.

Against Tecumseh Jan. 8, Chelsea prevailed, 109-61.

In the 50 freestyle, Stiles broke her own record with a time of (25.75).

In the 200 medley relay, Stiles combined with Pagliarini, Kellogg and Lodewyk for first place.

In the 200 freestyle, Kelly Butcher touched first, while in the 100 individual medley, Kellogg finished first.

In the 50 butterfly, Stiles captured first place, followed by Lodewyk in second.

In the 100 freestyle, Kellogg finished first, with Pagliarini taking the 100 backstroke.

Adams captured the 100 breaststroke with Stiles, Lodewyk, Kellogg and Butcher winning the 400 freestyle relay.

The 200 freestyle relay foursome of Adams, Liz Skidmore, Tara Jennings and Hanna Taylor finished second.

Beach grapplers begin year

The seventh- and eighth-grade wrestling squad at Chelsea's Beach Middle School began its 2001 season by competing Jan. 13 in the 13-team Hillsdale Dan Taylor Memorial Tournament.

Fifteen of the 26 middle school grapplers from Chelsea were able to take part in the tournament.

Geoff Wonders captured first place in his weight class to lead the Beach contingent.

Justin Esch finished fourth in his class.

A number of Chelsea wrestlers were able to win one or two matches at the tournament before being knocked out of competition due to a loss.

Among the wrestlers who won matches for Beach were Derek Jolly, Nate Montange, Drew Wint, Shawn Bergman, Taft Richardson, Brandon Coffery, Austin Rodgers and Josh Liebeck.

Beach coaches Sam Vogel, Corey Knight and Jared Bradley said they were pleased with the technical knowledge that those wrestlers new to the sport were able to show at the first wrestling competition.

Beach Middle School grapplers begin the regular dual meet season at home Jan. 23 against one of the new league squads, Adrian Drager.

According to Beach coaches, both Adrian middle schools, Drager and Springbrook, have excellent wrestling programs and will prove tough competition for Chelsea.

On Jan. 25, Beach will travel to county rival Mill Creek Middle School in Dexter for a meet.

Chelsea's home meets are held 4 p.m. in the gymnasium of the Washington Street Education Center.

'March Madness' fuels Chelsea's Sayers

Bulldog senior guard leads squad by example, toughness in quest for postseason run

By Don Richter
Staff Writer

It was during last season's playoff run that it hit Brian Sayers.

It was during that thrilling ride Sayers, a senior guard on Chelsea's basketball team, finally understood what "March Madness" is all about.

"It's unbelievable," he said, about Michigan's boys' high school basketball tournament held during the calendar's third month and so named for the upsets and craziness that occur within its days. "It was the best experience."

The "Madness" hit Chelsea hard last year as the Bulldogs won 13 consecutive ballgames, advancing to the quarterfinals before falling to eventual state champion Orchard Lake St. Mary's, 74-49.

It was that experience at Eastern Michigan University's Convocation Center, home of the school's Division I basketball team, which really awed the 5-foot-10 Sayers.

"The arena was huge," he said, looking up and spreading his arms wide. "There were so many people and the crowd was so loud."

Despite losing to St. Mary's, Sayers, a two-year varsity performer, said it hasn't tainted his goals for this season.

"That has only fueled my desire this year to get back there," he said. "And even go beyond."

And going beyond is something Sayers, who began playing basketball in the first grade at North Creek Elementary, is not immune to - at least when it comes to effort on the basketball court.

Arguably one of Chelsea's main vocal leaders when it comes to enthusiasm and intensity on the hardwood, Sayers said he relishes his role on the squad.

"I try to keep everyone together and focused," he said. "I'm kind of like the glue of the team."

Chelsea coach Robin Raymond agreed.

"Brian brings a variety of things to the team," he said. "He plays a variety of positions for us."

"He's a good penetrator, an excellent picker and he's one of our floor burn leaders."

"He's not afraid to put his body on people. He's real scrappy on the glass. He is a team leader by example."

A well-rounded athlete - at Chelsea, Sayers was a key member of the Bulldogs' state-ranked football team this past fall and is one of the area's top second basemen in baseball.

In fact, baseball appears to be the sport he'll play at the next level.

"I hope to play in college," said Sayers, who plans to major in finance.

Hope College and other Division III schools have shown a keen interest in his athletic ability.

Sayers, who is a self-confessed stock market junkie - "I love to follow it," he said - believes the fortunes of this year's team, like most blue-chip stocks, is on the rise.

"We're definitely hungry to get back to the quarterfinals," he said. "Last year we showed we could play with anybody."

Raymond summed up Sayers' importance to the Bulldogs succinctly.

"Brian does the intangibles that don't appear in the box score," he said. "He does the little things that help us be successful."

Dettling paces JV

By Don Richter
Staff Writer

A 20-0 third-quarter run by Chelsea helped spark the Bulldogs to a convincing 71-43 win over county rival Dexter Jan. 12.

"Dexter is always tough to play," said Chelsea JV coach Mark Scheese. "But our run in the third quarter put the game away."

After a 12-12 opening quarter, the Bulldogs outscored the Dreadnaughts 16-9 in the second frame to head into the locker room with a slim, 28-21 advantage.

Besides exploding in the third quarter offensively, Chelsea clamped down on the defensive end, limiting Dexter to four points.

Heading into the fourth quarter, the Bulldogs held a commanding, 53-25 lead.

In the final stanza, both squads battled to an 18-18 tie to end the game.

Scott Dettling, with 21 points, paced the Chelsea (8-0, 1-0) attack.

David Grabarkiewicz added 11 points. Even Wildey chipped in eight and Kyle Brown, Jake Freeman and James Ballas all recorded seven points for the Dawgs.

Chelsea next hosts Ypsilanti Lincoln tomorrow at 6 p.m.

Chelsea freshman spikers finish third at Brighton Invite

By Don Richter
Staff Writer

Despite playing up in class, the Chelsea freshman volleyball team showed itself well, finishing third in its pool at the Brighton JV Invitational Jan. 13.

According to Bulldog coach Terri McCalla, her squad missed a tournament in Saline and she thought competing at Brighton would be beneficial for her young, but talented team.

"We were looking for another tournament when the Brighton JV tournament had some schools cancel," McCalla said. "They asked if we would like to attend."

"The experience is so good for the girls that I said yes. The girls were scared and excited at the same time.

"They proved to themselves that they could keep up with the JV teams. We were in the toughest pool, but took third out of five teams."

To begin the tournament, Chelsea fell to host Brighton, 7-15, 15-17.

"They were the toughest team all day," McCalla said. Brighton's varsity is ranked No. 7 in Class A.

Lindsay Parker served eight of nine, Rachel Dotson was nine of nine on serve returns and Brittany Denison had two kills.

The team's play against Brighton spurred the Dawgs on the rest of the tourney.

"We knew we could win if we played hard," McCalla said.

And play hard they did.

In its next match, Chelsea defeated Lansing Sexton, 15-11, 15-5.

Nicole Collins was 10 of 11 serving and Becky Sprague was dominant at the net.

Against tournament semifinalist Hanover-Horton, the Bulldogs lost 10-15, 8-15.

In their fourth match, the Bulldogs split with Waterford Mott, winning game one, 15-4, and dropping game two, 7-15.

Kaylyn Rohkohl served well, while Missy Morcom led the offense with three attacks.

In the final standings, Chelsea was tied with Northville for third place. The tie forced a one-game playoff.

In a thrilling match, the Bulldogs fell, 14-16.

"We had our chances, but came up short," McCalla said.

"If we would have beaten Northville, we would have played our Chelsea JV team."

The Bulldog JV ended up capturing the tourney.

McCalla was pleased with her squad's overall performance.

"It was a great experience playing in a JV tournament," McCalla said. "And to do so well was an added bonus."

On Jan. 12, Chelsea traveled to Ann Arbor Pioneer and came away with a victory, 15-4, 11-15, 15-7.

"It was hard to get in the flow of the match because Pioneer was struggling," McCalla said. "They could not get their passes to target and we were having trouble with their rotation."

The Bulldogs were having troubles of their own with serving.

"Our serving was 41 percent," McCalla said.

Parker, however, finished the match 18 of 19 serving with four aces, Denison was nine of 10 with four aces and Renee

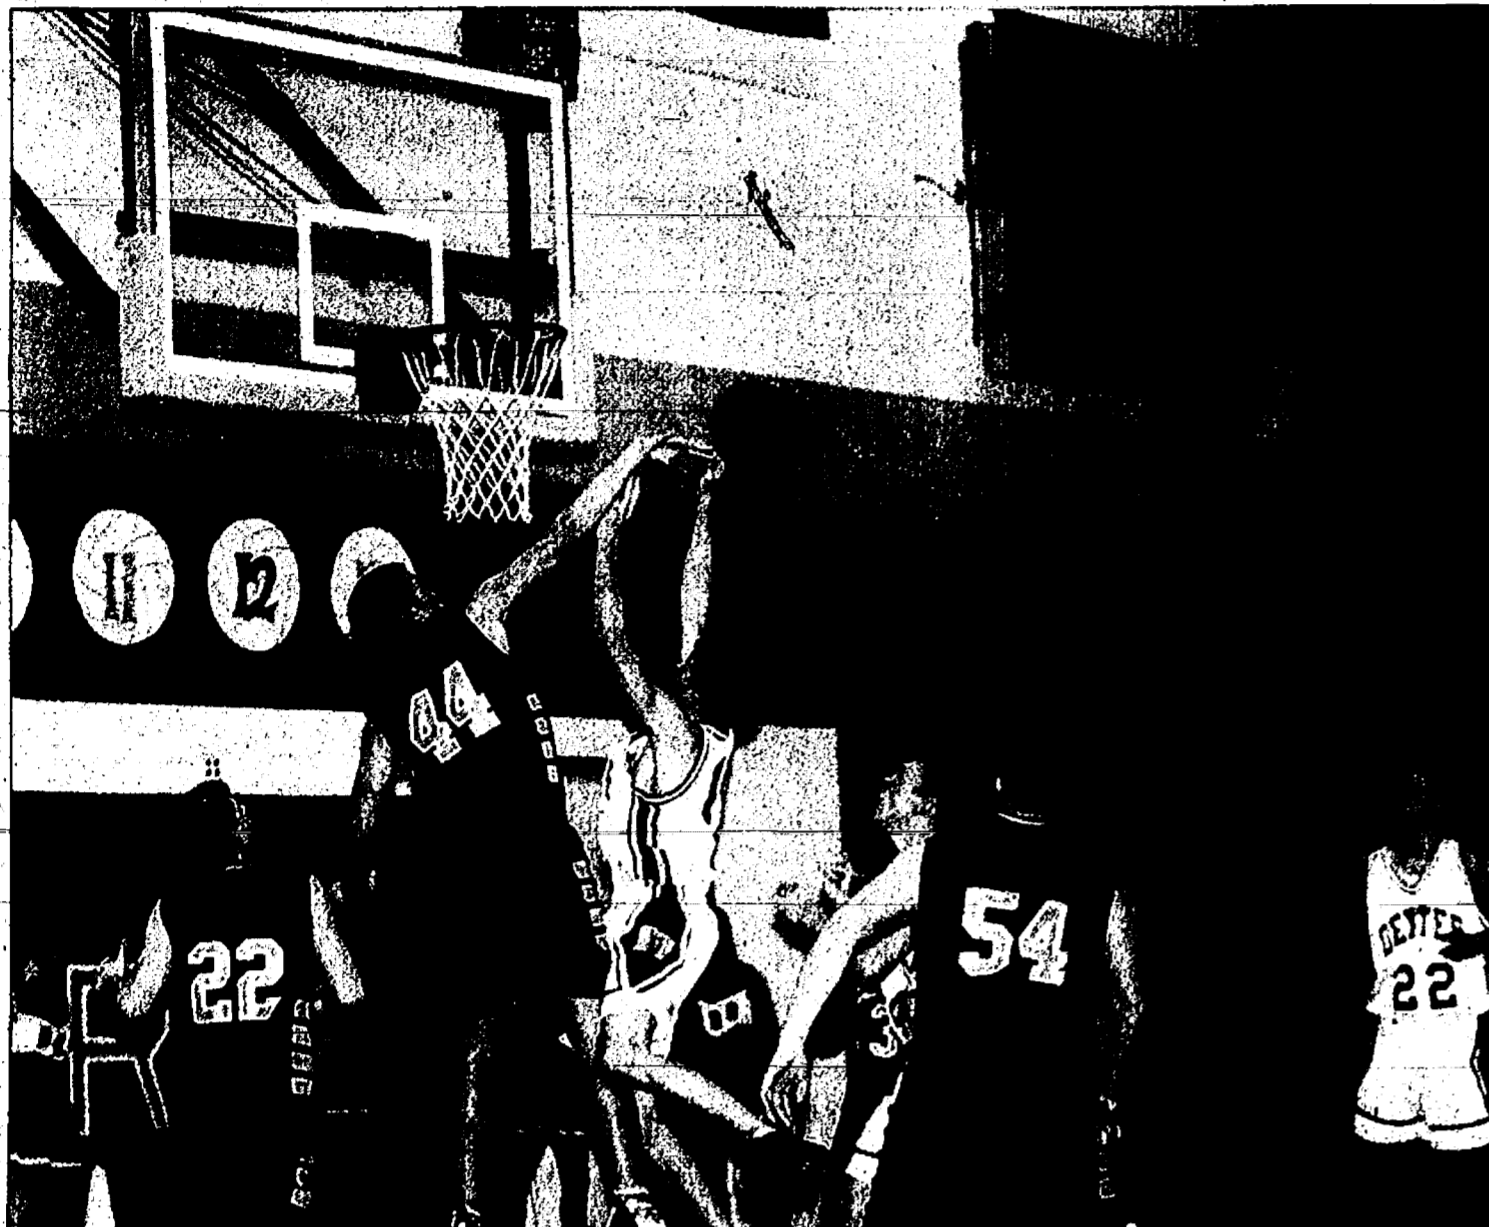

Johnston was six of seven with one ace.

Leading Chelsea (6-1-1, 1-1) in attacks were Dotson with 10, Meagan Reames with six and Sprague with two.

Morcom and Dotson set well, with each recording 22 and 17, respectively.

"We played well and pulled together as a team," McCalla said.

The Bulldogs next host Dexter today at 6 p.m.

For the game, Chelsea finished with 24 assists.

"That was the best passing and most unselfish game of the year for us," Raymond said. "We did a good job moving the ball and getting it to the open man."

Scheffler, with 10 points, 10 assists and a team-high 11 boards, and Tripodi, with 10 points and five rebounds, helped lead the Bulldogs.

Chelsea next hosts Ypsilanti Lincoln 8 p.m. tomorrow.

Inkster basketball tourney

North American Youth Sports is holding its annual youth basketball tournament at Inkster High School and the Inkster Recreation Center April 6 through 8.

The tourney will feature 10 different brackets.

The brackets are as follows: fifth- through sixth-grade boys; fifth- through sixth-grade girls; seventh-grade boys; seventh-grade girls; eighth-grade boys; eighth-grade girls; ninth- through 10th-grade boys; ninth- through 10th-grade girls; 11th- through 12th-grade boys and 11th- through 12th-grade girls.

The entry fee for the tournament is $95 and guarantees each team a minimum of two games. There will be awards presented in each bracket.

The entry deadline is March 16.

For additional information, contact Mark Garrigan at 1-800-787-3265 or tournament director Ruth Williams at 728-7530.

Easy to Learn Self-Defense Strategies for Your Complete Protection

Karate Master
Keith Hafner

"Partner Up"
for Safety!

I'm going to share with you one simple strategy. If you follow this piece of advice, you virtually eliminate the possibility that you will find yourself in a self-defense situation.

However, you might resist this advice. You might say that:

- "It's too inconvenient."
- "I've never had a problem before."
- "It's not fair that I have to do this!"

You might raise any number of objections. But the fact remains that what I am going to tell you works. And if you are serious about self-protection, you will heed this advice.

To ensure your safety, all you have to do is not go out alone. Almost every woman who has found herself in a self-defense situation was alone when she encountered her assailant.

Remember what we said last time about bad guys? They are looking for easy targets...not difficult ones. And by having a "buddy" with you, you will cause that bad guy to decide that it's just not worth it.

So here's what you do. First, identify all the situations where you may currently be traveling alone...walking to your car alone, shopping alone, etc.

Next, find yourself a "StreetSmarts" Buddy. A friend who understands the things we are talking about. Who feels the same way you do about personal protection.

You might plan to run errands together.

Show this article to a potential "StreetSmart" buddy. Chances are, she has the same concerns you do. And then... "Partner Up!" You will feel safe and empowered!

Your Friend,

DEATHS

STELLA MAE ROBINSON
Taylor
Stella Mae Robinson, 90, died peacefully Jan. 10, 2001, in her daughter's home in Chelsea. She was born on Feb. 8, 1910, in Dickenson County, Va., the daughter of Watson and Cassandra (Robinson) Owens. Everything Mrs. Robinson did revolved around her family. She married Robert Robinson in Cannady, Va., on Oct. 30, 1930, and he preceded her in death in 1970. Survivors include one daughter, Charlotte (Robert) Harshberger of Chelsea; one son, Jack (Karen) Robinson of Rochester; one sister, Sarah Robinson of Virginia; nine grandchildren; and eight great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by one son, Harold. Funeral services were held Friday at the Fred Wood Funeral Home in Livonia. Burial was at Parkview Cemetery in Livonia.

D. STEWART PECK
Chelsea
D. Stewart Peck, 82, died Jan. 9, 2001, at Arbor Hospice. He was born in Grand Rapids Oct. 19, 1918, the son of Arthur E. and Ruby E. (Cole) Peck. Mr. Peck had been a resident of Allentown, Pa., for many years and moved to Chelsea in October of 1993. He received a master's degree from the University of Michigan in 1940 and had been an electrical engineer for Bell Laboratories in Allentown, Pa., retiring in 1980. Mr. Peck authored several textbooks on semiconductor reliability, which was his field of expertise. Following his retirement, Mr. Peck established the D. Stewart Peck consulting firm dealing with semiconductor reliability data handling. He was much sought after and consulted in many countries throughout the world, including China, Mexico and Europe. On Sept. 3, 1943, he married Mary M. Miller and she preceded him in death on Sept. 10, 1997. Surviving are his children, Donald S. (Deborah) Peck of Chelsea and Priscilla Jane (Steven) Dunn of Seminary, Miss.; three grandchildren, Amanda Peck, Shannon D. (Tim) Nelson and Melissa (Dan) Quin; and two great-grandchildren. Also surviving is a cousin, Gwen Schulling of Grand Haven. His sister, Marion Brooks, preceded him in death in 1994, and two grandsons, Howard R. DuRussell III and Zachary Dunn, preceded him in death. Funeral services were held Saturday at the Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home, with the Rev. Richard Dale officiating. Burial was in Oak Grove East Cemetery in Chelsea. The family received friends Friday at the funeral home. Expressions of sympathy may be made to Arbor Hospice.

BRENT WARD BERRY
Pinckney
Brent Ward Berry, 23, died Jan. 11, 2001. He was born on May 18, 1977, in Royal Oak the son of Dennis and Rhea Berry. Mr. Berry is survived by his parents; his sister, Sarah; maternal grandparents, Clovis and Yvonne Albert; paternal grandmother, Pauline Berry; several aunts, uncles and cousins; and longtime friend, Sarah Mark. Mr. Berry worked as an installer for All Seasons Gutters Inc. He was an avid hunter who enjoyed the outdoors. Visitation was held Jan. 15 at Hosmer-Muehlig Funeral Chapel in Dexter. Funeral services were held Jan. 16 at St. Andrew's United Church of Christ in Dexter, with the Rev. Gary Kwiatek officiating. Interment was in St. Andrew's cemetery. New kid on the block

Lyndon Township resident appointed to County Road Commission

By Will Keeler
Staff Writer

Pam Byrnes is keeping close to home.

After several unsuccessful bids for political office in recent years, she was recently named to the Washtenaw County Road Commission.

The Washtenaw County Board of Commissioners appointed Byrnes last month to replace Herman Koenn. She now sits on a three-member road commission panel. Each member serves a six-year term.

"It's good to have some new blood on the road commission," said County Commissioner Christina Montague.

"(Byrnes) has the desire and the knowledge of what the people want in the western county," Montague said.

This won't be a full-time position for Byrnes, who is the first woman to be appointed to the road commission. Members on the commission operate as a somewhat autonomous body and are paid $9,600 a year, plus 33 cents per mile for official travel.

Other members on the commission are Norman Kennedy, a former Ypsilanti City Council member and Fred Veigel, a local union leader.

The three-member panel is responsible for more than 1,500 miles of local roads and decides how to spend some $35 million in transportation funds allocated to the county every year.

Despite growing up in Cincinnati, Byrnes, who now resides in Lyndon Township, is quite familiar with Washtenaw County. She has lived in Ann Arbor, Saline and Ypsilanti and has jumped into the political arena several times.

In 1984, she ran for probate (juvenile) judge, but was unsuccessful.

She said that "being quite the novice" probably led to her unsuccessful attempt in the primary.

Byrnes didn't give up. In 1986, she was approached by a local Democratic to fill the vacated county treasurer's seat. She was defeated again in the primary.

In 1998, Byrnes was encouraged to vie for the state House seat vacated by Mary Schroer, but she lost again in the primary.

"Although my runs for political office were not successful for one reason or another, the process has created a great network," Byrnes said.

Byrnes has been networking and working with several entities for more than 20 years.

After graduating from the

Pam Byrnes

University of Michigan with a degree in Far Eastern studies, Byrnes accepted a job in 1989 with the National Security Agency translating Japanese.

She later worked as an investigator for the Maryland Human Resource Commission in Baltimore.

While in Maryland, Byrnes studied law at night and received her degree from the University of Maryland at Baltimore.

Byrnes returned to Ann Arbor in the late 1970s with her former husband, who was studying medicine at the University of Michigan.

After the birth of her daughter, Katie, Byrnes accepted a job at the Washtenaw County Friend of the Court as a referee. Due to changes in the staffing, she was quickly promoted to assistant Friend of the Court and then appointed Friend of the Court.

Byrnes worked for three years as the director of the Friend of the Court, overseeing a staff of 39 employees, with a budget of more than $1 million. She interacted with the public, county commissioners and circuit court judges.

After getting divorced and becoming a single mother, Byrnes left the Friend of the Court in 1981 to enter private practice with a law firm in Saline.

While working and living in Saline, Byrnes became active in community activities. She served briefly on the Historic District Commission, the Saline Planning Commission and was a board member of the Saline United Way.

In the mid-'80s, she started her own private-practice law firm in Ypsilanti and became active in several Ypsilanti community activities.

While participating as a member of the Ypsilanti Central Business Community, Byrnes met her husband, Kent Brown.

Both have been and still are active in community events in Ypsilanti. They are members with the Ypsilanti Chamber of Commerce, the annual Heritage Festival, and have helped with the Festival of Lights during the holidays, and with the Fourth of July parade. Byrnes currently serves as the president-elect for the Ypsilanti Rotary Club.

Byrnes and Brown moved to Lyndon Township in 1994 and enjoy their spare time raising miniature donkeys.

Byrnes' daughter recently earned a degree in aerospace engineering from the University of Michigan and now works for Ford Motor Co.

Brown's daughter, Jodie, from a previous marriage, recently graduated from Western Michigan University, earning a degree in elementary education.

Byrnes said that she hopes she can add a new dimension to the road commission.

Non-Arranged Citizen Participation
- P. Cousins, 7648 Forest, introduced the new owner of Cousins Heritage Inn, urging the approval of the transfer of the liquor license.
- J. Adams, 443 Cambridge, spoke in opposition of approval of the location of a cell tower in the IP, stating that definitive studies have not been done to indicate the safety of a cell tower and that property values do decline due to the proximity of a tower in a residential neighborhood.
- J. Seta, 411 Cambridge, offered his concerns regarding the location of a proposed cell tower in the industrial park and posed questions regarding the amount of research done by Trustees, the legality of process, tower height, and lack of demonstrated need for such tower.
- J. Carlson, 402 Cambridge, spoke against the proposed location for the proposed cell tower and stated that he had attended 4 Village meetings regarding the proposed tower and to date he has not seen a Trustee state that a tower is needed. He further urged Council to rethink the issue.
- M. Kowski, Grand Ave., stated he is not opposed to the tower, as it does not seem obtrusive, and an industrial park is a logical location. He further stated his opinion that the types of services that will be a result of this tower are in demand today.

Communications
Council packets contained the 10 items listed on the agenda.

New Look

Chelsea's famous Purple Rose Theatre undergoes extensive renovations

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

In August 1999, the curtain came down on "Criminal Genius," the last performance of the 20th century for members of the Purple Rose Theatre Co.

This Saturday, the curtain will rise on a world premiere performance of Lanford Wilson's "Rain Dance," as the company, forged into a new century in its newly renovated home.

A skeleton staff of nine have called the old Chelsea Standard building on N. Main Street a home away from home for the past year and a half. Here they planned the reopening while continuing to raise funds for both operating costs and capital expenditure.

The staff — now expanded to 20 — moved back into their new digs in November after a delay caused by the collapse of a foundation wall.

With an additional 37 feet gained eastward along Park Street, the octogenarian structure, now completely handicapped accessible, has had quite a facelift.

"It's taken 10 years to build this theater company," says founder and executive director Jeff Daniels. "Our dream was to have a nationally recognized regional theater company. Once we had that, the old wooden warehouse wasn't good enough."

"It was time to give the professional theater company a thoroughly professional appearance."

Guests at this Saturday's gala event will be given behind the scenes tours of the new facilities.

The theater will also offer tours to the public noon to 8 p.m. on Feb. 5.

The new era dawns as soon as you pass through the front doors into the newly expanded, spacious lobby.

The performance area itself remains small and intimate — a loud sneeze by a front-row patron could easily blow the leading lady clear across the stage.

Reminiscent of theater in the round, it's theater in the square, with five rows of purple seats along three sides of the stage. After gaining 20 feet from front to back, an extra row of seats was added on each of the three sides.

With room for 49 additional playgoers, a packed house will now number the grand sum total of 168.

"That raised some other logistics," says Alan Ribant, managing director of the Purple Rose Theatre Co. He has been on board since the Purple Rose first bloomed in 1991.

"We had to upgrade the heating and air conditioning systems to cope with the extra people and add more restrooms."

A second audience entrance was added for latecomers.

"Before, if anyone came in late, they often had to step right in front of the performers and audience, which in such a small theater was very disruptive," Ribant says. "Having two doors to the auditorium will help alleviate that problem."

Ribant is particularly pleased with the new booth for the stage, lighting and sound managers, three critical members of the team who will no longer have to battle for elbow room in an area the size of a matchbox.

"We also now have a video booth so that performances can be filmed from the balcony," Ribant says. "In the past, we were lucky to poke a camera through a hole in the wall."

"The lightning designers used to hang their lights on the old trellises and beams. We tore down the old stuff and installed a professional lighting grid. Now we can use the lighting much more efficiently and improve the quality of the art."

J.C. Beal, the Ann Arbor construction company that did the renovations, faced some unique problems in bringing the structure up to code.

Alan Ribant, Managing Director of the Purple Rose Theatre Co., stands ready to welcome playgoers to a new season.

"This building was never intended for use as a theater," Ribant says.

"It was built after the First World War as a car garage, and we still had a hoist for cars and buses in the basement."

An old exhaust vent in the lobby bore testament to another reincarnation as a pizzeria.

In the '30s and '40s, W.R. Daniels, Jeff Daniels' grandfather, used the building as storage for Big Thrill's Buick dealership.

"They would pull cars through the front windows and stack them up like cords of wood for the winter," says Daniels, whose office boasts an old advertisement for the dealership, alongside his honorary doctorate from Central Michigan University.

Books on scriptwriting line a large bookshelf, while his guitar stands beside his desk — "just don't look for any great playing from me," he says.

Daniels and his team are happily ensconced in their new offices, although in some degree of disarray. Packing boxes vie with purple chairs as the central focus of furnishings.

A highlight of the new administrative area is the spacious and airy corner conference room, with picture windows looking out over Chelsea to the north and east.

A library and research area houses the hundreds of scripts submitted over the years, as well as tapes, CDs and reviews of past shows.

Technical director, Andy Gorney, and his assistant, Gary Ciarkowski, no longer have to clamber to an elevated office in a loft, but have a redesigned scenery shop with storage areas for paint and supplies.

Performers will enjoy relaxing in that tradition of the theater, the Green Room — something of a misnomer in that every room in the place is green, with purple trim.

The new facilities also provide classroom and meeting rooms, a new kitchen and dining area, and a laundry room.

In a salute to sentiment — or possibly to recycling and cost saving — many of the original beams were saved. Although some were painted over, several still bear the signatures of past performers, a theater tradition Daniels intends to continue.

Theater renovations don't come cheap. The capital campaign raised $1.8 million.

An additional $600,000 was raised from fund-raising efforts such as the Jeff Daniels Comedy

Golf Jam. The state of Michigan, which recently honored Daniels for his contributions to the arts in his native abode, also contributed grant money.

The company runs with an annual budget of 1.3 million. But don't look for Daniels playing guitar on Park Street while passersby toss coins in the case. With a box office that offers double the size, double the staff and more phone lines to accommodate ticket buyers, the company hopes to increase sales beyond the highly respectable previous average of 25,000 tickets a year.

The phone lines likely will be ringing off the hook through the 2001 season, with the world premiere of "Rain Dance" on Saturday.

The play runs through March 17. The season continues with "Orphan Train: An American Melodrama," and "Completing Dahlia."

Return to Open Session at 7:00

Audience guests were on hand and signed in.

Oath of Office:

Judge Conlin was on hand and administered the oath of office to John Gourlay.

Agenda Review and Additions

The Agenda was approved with the following changes:

Gourlay: Bylaws update - granted
Audience: Requested more time in Community Comments segment - granted

Presentations:

Jim Mumby Library Architect:

Jim presented a narrative update on three issues:

- 1) Integrity of McKune House
 - 2) Capacity of the site to accommodate an expanded library facility
 - 3) Recommendations on the correct size of an expanded library facility integrity and value of McKune, architecturally, to the project.
- The exterior has been severely compromised by sandblasting the brick work to remove the paint, many years ago. The brick has lost its seal and needs to be sealed; the mortar in the brick needs to be completely replaced. Moisture is permitted to seep in and compromise the structure.
 - Architecturally, the exterior Italianate design is not unique and the interior spaces have been so compromised over the years with adaptations that there is little historic inside.
 - Adaptive re-use of the interior would be appropriate: the cinder-block addition on the back will be removed; the front door would have to be closed off due to accessibility problems at that grade; north side entrance would be possible - this was historically an entrance to the house; south entrance would be inappropriate due to trees and green space needs on that side.
 - Little architectural value in preserving the house. This should be differentiated from the sentimental value the house has for the community and would be addressed differently.

Capacity of the site to accommodate a 24,000 square foot or larger building: three options are presented for use of the McKune and contiguous properties:

- Attach the extension to the back of McKune but angle the building around the existing Staffan property and buildings, using McKune and DDA/parking property. Maximum size building: 24,000 SF.
- Attach the extension to the back of McKune but go back directly and impinge somewhat on Mr. Staffan's property and use McKune and DDA property. Maximum size building: 24,000 SF.
- Remove the existing McKune and replace it with a completely new building that utilizes McKune and DDA/corner property, within the context of the community. Maximum size building: 24,000 to 27,000 square feet.

Jim asked the board for a decision on the size of the building.

Judy Smith presentation:

Judy presented a signed petition from the residents inside and outside the Village of Chelsea, offering options for the use of 121 Orchard St. Lynn Fox agreed to put their issue on the agenda at the December board meeting.

Residents presented requested clarification on charges for FOIA request and their ability to view the documents without having copies made. The Director invited them to come with advance notice to view the documents requested. Advance notice is requested so that the library may block out information exempted from the FOIA.

Residents requested clarification on the planned use of 121 Orchard St. They were invited to the Charette and to subsequent board meetings. Cynthia Faulhaber advised the group about use of the FOIA and the responsibility of the public to be vigilant about informing themselves of library board activity.

Major Discussion Topics

Building Committee Budget: Money budgeted in the Board line item may be used for the Charette expenses.

Fund Raising Committee Budget:

Professional Services line has money for Fund Raising consultant. This line may be used for publication design. Money in printing may be borrowed with reimbursement expected out of money raised.

Bylaws:

Bylaws need to be revised to allow for election of At Large Trustee and other issues. Lynn asked the Policy Committee to take this on.

LOVING HOMES NEEDED

FELIXEM - Log Number 65054

Felixem arrived October 26. She had a family that left her with another family, and that one couldn't keep her. So she came here in hopes she might find a family that would be able to care for her for her lifetime. She is about one and a half years old and 10.4 pounds. Can you help us match Felixem up with a lasting home?

Sereta - Log Number 63988

Sereta doesn't mean to look grumpy - but she does! She's been waiting for a new home since she arrived as a stray September 16th. She is a 7 pound Persian, about 2 years old. While having a home to call her own and a loving family won't necessarily put a smile on her face, it would sure make her feel warm and cozy!
