Cityhood plans move forward

Judge denies Lima and Sylvan's request for an injunction.

By Will Keeler
Staff Writer

An Ingham County judge denied an injunction June 13 filed by Lima and Sylvan townships to stop Chelsea's plans for cityhood.

Now Circuit County Judge James Gidding will consider a motion by Attorney General Jennifer Granholm, representing the State Boundary Commission, to dismiss the townships' lawsuit.

If the lawsuit is dismissed, the village could move ahead with its plan for a public hearing Aug. 29. The hearing would be held to solicit comments from residents and officials of the village, as well as surrounding townships, about the village's plans to become a city.

Following the hearing, the Boundary Commission could order a referendum on cityhood and an election of charter commission members.

Officials in Lima and Sylvan Township believe that the petitions were flawed in number and validity. They are disputing whether the village should have used numbers and information from the 2000 census rather than the 1990 figures when collecting petition signatures.

Ann Feeney, a member of the Chelsea City Study Committee, said the state Attorney General's Office gave the committee permission to collect names based on the 1990 census figures.

"I just hope this doesn't drag out, but we will proceed with usual business," she said.

A Michigan law requires petitions to be signed by at least 5 percent of registered voters and land freeholders in the affected area.

The village is requesting to become a city because of the lay of the land between the two townships. Residents are sometimes confused when it comes to

Dexter Township may hire 2 deputies

Special election may be called for police millage.

By Lisa Allmendinger
Staff Writer

Dexter Township Board approved a tentative commitment with the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department to hire two deputies next year and may seek a millage to pay for it.

The resolution also includes provisions that negotiations to share police with Webster Township and the village will continue.

Voters could be asked in November to pay 1 mill for law enforcement services.

The June 19 board meeting was township officials' last chance to make a decision before the July 1 deadline set by the county. The vote came at the urging of a handful of residents who were concerned there would be no police protection next year.

On Jan. 1, county subsidized road patrols will cease in municipalities that do not contract with the county. The township currently pays for half the time of a sheriff's deputy, while Dexter Village pays for 4/5 officers.

As of Jan. 1, the township can no longer have just half the services of a deputy, so it must either increase the number or rely on the state police for protection.

Each deputy costs $118,000, but the county will kick in approximately $40,000. Dexter Township will have to come up with $156,000 to pay for two deputies.

"The money is not in the budget," said Township Clerk Harley Rider, who estimated

Relay raises record amount

Stormy weather, lightning and sprinkler soaking fail to douse spirits of participants.

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

Just like the cancer survivors who walked their victory lap, the American Cancer Society's Relay for Life overcame major obstacles on the path to victory Friday and Saturday.

The event, which raised about $80,000 — double the amount of money raised last year — got under way in good weather Friday evening, but storm clouds hit the area on Saturday afternoon.

In a frightening moment, a lightning strike was felt by several people and a 42-year-old woman was taken to Chelsea Community Hospital, where she was treated and released.

On a lighter note, the sprinkler system kicked into action at the football field in the early hours of the morning, threatening to soak the auction items in the tent. Fast action by several people, including emcee Art Finger, saved the day.

Cancer survivor Chad Starkey, a 1990 graduate of Chelsea High School whose sister-in-law, Beth, captains Team Starkey, cut the ribbon at the opening ceremony to get things rolling.

His parents, Sue and Stan Starkey, and grandmother, Marilyn Kansorka, also a cancer survivor, looked on proudly.

"Two years ago, I couldn't come to the relay. Chad had just been diagnosed and it was too emotionally devastating for me," Sue Starkey said Tuesday. "Now our feelings have changed so much since we know he will be cured."

"We're just hoping that one day there will be a cure for everyone. The money raised from this event stays locally, so we'll see some amazing results from it."

Finger told the crowd how cyclist Lance Armstrong called Chad Starkey with support and encouragement. Like Starkey, Armstrong fought back from testicular cancer.

"Chad was at our home when Lance Armstrong called him and talked to him for about 20 minutes," Sue Starkey said. "He discussed the treatment with him and told him he would be fine."

"When Armstrong was winning the Tour De France, Chad's doctor called from California and asked if he was watching the race on TV. She told him, 'Lance is winning his race and you're going to win yours.'"

Beth Starkey said her children were very proud of their Uncle Chad cutting the opening ribbon. "It was a wonderful weekend with him here," Beth Starkey said. "Just the fact that he has sur-

'Lady Godiva' makes court appearance

Jackson waitress pleads not guilty to charges of indecent exposure and disorderly conduct.

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

Alyssa Van Nuys, 21, of Jackson pleaded not guilty to a charge of indecent exposure and an alternate charge of disorderly conduct at a pretrial hearing Monday in 14A District Court in Chelsea.

Van Nuys, who was arrested outside Art & Soule Gallery on May 26 during a publicity stunt arranged by photographer Harvey Drouillard, appeared before Judge Richard Conlin.

Ann Arbor attorney John Minock represented Van Nuys, who was charged after taking off her clothing while riding horseback through town to promote Drouillard's opening of an exhibit of nude photographs. A hearing has been set Aug. 6.

"At that time, we'll argue a motion to dismiss the charges based on the First Amendment and the right to free expression," Minock said after Monday's hearing.

Ann Arbor attorney John Minock (left) and Art and Soule Gallery manager Harvey Drouillard flank Jackson resident Alyssa Van Nuys. Van Nuys appeared in 14A District Court on Monday on a charge of indecent exposure and an alternate charge of disorderly conduct after her May 26 "Lady Godiva" ride in Chelsea, when she was arrested by Chelsea police for taking off her clothes while riding horseback through town. The hearing was adjourned until Aug. 6.

"At issue is whether fleeting nudity done in the production of a work of art is lewd and obscene or not," he said.

Drouillard is close to completing his book, "The Spirit of Lady Godiva," with photographs of nudes around the country. Art & Soule gallery was opening an exhibit of his photographs that evening. He had arranged for Van Nuys to ride to the gallery on the evening of May 26 and briefly drop her coat and bare all for his photograph.

A large crowd, including children with parents, turned out for the spectacle.

Chelsea police pulled Van Nuys from the horse and held up a blanket while she put her jacket back on. She was arrested, handcuffed and taken to Chelsea police station, where she was fingerprinted.

After her release, Van Nuys returned to the crowded art gallery, where she paraded around in the buff for a half hour.

Van Nuys, who is currently working part time at the gallery managed by Drouillard, said few people recognize her when they meet her there.

Minock represented Drouillard four years ago when the photographer was arrested and prosecuted for staging a nude shot in front of a newsstand in Ann Arbor. Judge Elizabeth Hines dismissed the case on the grounds that fleeting nudity in those circumstances was not lewd or obscene, Minock said.

The lawyer, an art lover who is taking payment in the form of a front cover from the "Spirit of Lady Godiva" book, said that when Van Nuys was pulled from the horse, both the amount of naked exposure and length of time were increased.

Van Nuys, a waitress at the Olive Garden in Jackson, said this was her first experience of being arrested and appearing in court.

An experienced horsewoman, she used to break in horses for the Jackson Posse. Her uncle, Danny Van Nuys, was a member of the mounted police unit.

According to Drouillard, it would take three charges of indecent exposure for a person to be placed on the sex offender's list.

"This shouldn't even count as one strike," Drouillard said.

"If Alyssa is found guilty, then it raises the question is what I'm doing legal? I have dozens of people who have been in more than three nude situations while I photograph them.

"If this is illegal, then my art career is over."

The father of a 5-year-old boy, Drouillard said he has a code of ethics such as no nude photography in front of children. He trains his models with a stopwatch to drop clothing and redress quickly to cause the minimum amount of exposure.

On the same day of the Chelsea photo shoot and arrest, Spencer Tunik, another photographer of nudes, staged a two-hour mass nude shoot in Montreal, without incident, Minock said.

Tunik, who was featured recently in an HBO special, has also done a nude photo shoot on New York's Broadway when the only police involvement was to block traffic for the event, Minock said.

"I think if people came to the gallery to see the photos, or went to my Web site, they would see the nude photography in the spirit of what I'm doing and would not be offended," Drouillard said.

Group launches letter-writing campaign

State expected to make a decision about Pickerel Lake July 9.

By Lisa Allmendinger
Staff Writer

The Friends of Pickerel Lake took their grassroots effort to leave the pristine lake in its present state on the road to Lansing earlier this month. A core group met with a host of state officials, including state Sen. Alma Wheeler Smith.

The group does not want the state Department of Natural Resources to make any changes to Pickerel Lake, which is located in Dexter Township.

The DNR has plans to make improvements to the roadway that leads to the secluded lake. It also wants to put in a gravel ramp and allow motorboats on the small lake, which is now used for the quiet enjoyment of nature, swimming and scuba diving.

A letter-writing campaign has been launched in an effort to raise awareness of the group's efforts and to show the state that more than 350 people would like the lake to remain pristine.

The group wants to maintain the lake as a natural area unpolluted by motorboats so that fishing and other placid activities can continue.

The group hopes to prevent the addition of cement, gravel, motorboats and the tearing down of trees around the lake. They are urging people to write letters to state officials on the lake's behalf.

Friends of Pickerel Lake said they met with state and local officials, as well as several legislative aides, earlier in the month to plead their case. The meeting, which was originally scheduled for an hour, lasted two hours. The state is expected to make a decision July 9.

Easy to Learn Self-Defense Strategies for Your Complete Protection

Expecting the Unexpected!

Most of the time, we are safe. We are in control of what happens to us. We don't make strategic mistakes. But...regardless of how organized we are, regardless of how well we have planned, occasionally something happens unexpectedly. We:

- lock our keys in the car
- we run out of gas
- we get lost
- somebody comes to the door late at night

None of these situations are difficult to handle...if you've prepared in advance. Here is one of the simple "StreetSmart" truths: We are vulnerable when something happens to knock us out of our usual way of doing things. Mistakes are made when you are caught off guard. When something unexpected happens, caution and safety are lost in the commotion.

For example: You return to your car, late at night. You can't find your keys in your purse...because they are in your ignition. And you don't have a spare. You can't get to your car phone. So you find yourself walking, alone, through a bad part of town, trying to find a pay phone.

Get the idea? Guess what? So do the "bad guys." They have a built-in radar. Always on the lookout for somebody in distress, somebody lost...somebody unprepared.

Let's consider the above example again. The "StreetSmart" woman says, "Rats, I locked my keys in the car. Good thing I always keep a spare in my purse." And happily, safely, drive home.

So here is your homework: List as many possible "emergency" situations as you can. Like the ones I've mentioned above. Include ones that are particular to your own situation. Then write down your "Preparation Strategy" for each possible situation. Follow through on your plan. Remember, these are usually easy problems to solve. In advance! So — DO this exercise. Get your pen and paper right now! You will enjoy the confidence, capable state that it puts you in. You will feel safe and empowered!

Chelsea hires new teachers

■ Six new-hires will come on board in the fall.

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

Chelsea school board approved the hiring of three full-time teachers, a part-time teacher, a teacher consultant and a psychologist at the June 11 board meeting.

Jason Morris, who will teach seventh grade at Beach Middle School, is already a familiar face at the school. He did his student teaching there two years ago and is currently a substitute in the sixth grade.

A graduate of Eastern Michigan University, Morris holds a bachelor's degree with endorsements in history and geography. He succeeds teacher Susan Craig, who retired at the end of the 2000-2001 year after 30 years. Morris was chosen from a field of six, whittled down from more than 50 resumes received for the position.

Morris, who helped organize the eighth-grade trip to Washington, D.C., also has been a member of the school's Starfish Committee, a program targeting the needs of the school's at-risk students. He is also director of the Beach Club, an after-school study group.

He also has been assistant baseball coach at the varsity and freshman levels at Chelsea High School, and created Web-sites for the Chelsea High School varsity football and baseball programs, as well as the A. Green Summer Baseball Program.

Kristine Shaw will be joining Morris on the Beach Middle School staff as a part-time seventh-grade teacher.

A magna cum laude graduate of EMU, Shaw holds a bachelor's degree with endorsements in history, English and psychology.

A graduate of Saline High School, where she played in the marching band, Shaw did her student teaching at Crague Middle School in Ann Arbor. She worked in an eighth-grade classroom, where she facilitated Living through History units involving American history leading up to The American Revolutionary War.

Kathryn MacKercher will join the district as an alternative education teacher. The position has gone unfilled since Denise Cain resigned in September 2000.

MacKercher, who holds a bachelor's degree in education from Central Michigan University, was chosen from a field of eight applicants. She is currently working on her master's degree from EMU and will return to school to pursue an endorsement in special education.

Lead teacher for the Alternative Education Program in Manchester since 1997, MacKercher has taught at Boyssville and Imlay City. She modeled the Manchester program after the Chelsea program, and is already well known to the Chelsea Alternative Education staff.

Susan Langen has been hired as a special education teacher consultant, assigned to South Meadows Elementary School. The position opened up when Mary Koert relocated to Boston.

Langen, who did her undergraduate student teaching in Chelsea, was chosen from a field of 19 applicants. She is currently employed as a special education teacher in Whitmore Lake schools.

Langen holds a bachelor's degree from EMU and a master's degree from Marygrove College. She has a strong background in the use of technology for special-needs students. She also took part in this year's in-service training activities with alternative education teacher Joe Tinsley.

Holly Heaviland was chosen from a field of nine applicants to be the district's new psychologist assigned to Chelsea and Manchester high schools. She replaces Kathy Stevens who is moving to Washington, D.C.

She holds a bachelor's degree in psychology from CMU and a master's degree in educational psychology. She also has an education specialist degree in school psychology from Miami University in Ohio.

Heaviland, who has more than six years of experience, comes to Chelsea from Lincoln Consolidated School District. She has been involved in working directly with parents, teachers and students in an intervention role — a collaborative model that, according to Chelsea Assistant Superintendent Iva Corbett, represents the vision held by Chelsea and the Washtenaw Intermediate School District's Region V.

Gina Watson, a recent graduate of Siena Heights University in Adrian, where she majored in history and minored in English, will teach English and social studies at Chelsea High School.

Watson, who was among a field of 50 applicants, did her student teaching in Deerfield Public Schools. She taught and tutored a class of at-risk youth in Jackson, and has been a substitute teacher in Addison, Deerfield, Tecumseh and Clinton school districts.

A four-time Academic All-American, Watson has experience running track and cross-country and will likely coach the middle school level and then varsity.

As a volunteer at Lenawee Historical Museum, Watson has participated in archival work and the creation of new displays. She has served as a research assistant for Charles Lindquist on the book "The Antislavery and Underground Railroad Movement in Lenawee County."

She also enjoyed treading the boards in college, participating in a musical production of "Kiss Me Kate."

School board approves budget

■ Coffers get $1 million boost for 2001-02 year.

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

Monday night's Chelsea school board meeting marked the last appearance of Vice President Sandra Merkel, who lost her bid for re-election, and Trustee Jan Roberts, who chose not to run in the June 11 election.

Special Education Director Hank DeYoung, who is retiring at the end of the month after 25 years, also spoke to the board.

The board approved the budget for the next school year. It has increased by a little over a million dollars, said Jim Novak, executive director of business and operations. Anticipated revenues and expenditures for the 2001-2002 year are $24,627,110 and $24,857,306, respectively.

The majority of the increased revenues will come from the state, which increased its pupil grant by $300 to $6,873. With close to 3,000 students in the Chelsea School District, this was an increase in state funding of approximately $900,000.

The board also amended the 2000-01 budget with projected expenses for the general fund expected to be $24,428,187 with revenues of $23,864,254.

Health insurance costs are projected to increase close to $100,000, a rise of 7 1/2 percent from last year.

The technology budget was also established and includes $335,000 for replacing hardware. The district is on a five-year cycle to replace the hardware components, primarily computers that were purchased between 1995 and 1998 with money from the 1995 bond issue.

The food service budget is set at $864,921, and the athletic budget is $622,353. The two budgets are up a combined $40,000 over last year.

Novak said that this will be the first year the district is not borrowing from the school bond loan fund. This is because the revenue generated from property taxes will equal the payments due on long-term debt.

Three millages support the school district budget. The non-homestead budget for the general fund is set at 18 mills. The debt millage remains at 7 mills and the sinking fund is at .0222 mills.

In other business, the board approved Superintendent Ed Richardson's contract, with a pay increase of 2.25 percent. Richardson, who has been superintendent for seven years, will get a base salary of $98,450. His contract is extended through June 30, 2004.

The board approved the hiring of one full-time and one part-time teacher, as well as a full-time teacher consultant. The board also approved the acceptance of an anonymous donation of $5,000 for the Chelsea senior citizens program.

The contingent fee arrangement promotes equal access to justice when pursuing personal injury litigation. The fee paid by the client will ordinarily be a percentage of the total amount of any recovery. The "contingent" aspect of the fee means that if there is no recovery, there is no attorney fee owed. The most obvious advantage to this type of arrangement is the absence of risk of owing an attorney a fee when there has been no recovery. Moreover, the client can feel secure in knowing that his or her attorney has cast his or her fate along with the client. This is a reflection of the degree of confidence that the attorney has to obtain a recovery in the case.

So, if you have been injured, or suffered a material loss due to negligence or assault, financial concerns should not prevent you from taking action, or at least learning more about your legal options. To schedule a free initial consultation at the LAW OFFICES OF KITCHEN & STRINGER, call 426-4695. You'll find our offices located in Dexter, at 3249 Broad Street. We have over thirty years of experience, and handle cases involving personal injury, veterinary malpractice, equine litigation, real estate, business matters, family law, and criminal defense.

P.S. The contingent fee arrangement also provides the attorney with motivation to maximize the client's recovery.

SIN NOW, REPENT LATER!

Dear Friends and Neighbors,
It's so easy to use a credit card as my wife and I often do. You don't have to worry about withdrawing money in advance, you don't have to worry about checking your balance, you don't even have to set foot inside a gas station. You just plop your card down or slide it through, sign on the dotted line, or pay at the pump. It can save time and be much more convenient than cash or checks.

Of course, we always pay off our balances each month making sure we avoid service charges and interest charges.

Not everyone is so fortunate. The buy now, pay later approach has landed several million Americans in deep financial trouble, with outrageous interest charges and continually accumulating principal in escalating amounts.

Spiritually, the Bible sometimes compares sin to a debt. The good news is that anyone who becomes alarmed about their sins and turns to the Lord in faith receives forgiveness for that debt, because Jesus paid the debt when he suffered and died on the cross.

The Bible also says that anyone who truly knows a u d.

believes this will do everything possible to avoid a life of sin. The Bible says, "No one who lives in Him keeps on sinning. No one who continues to sin has either seen Him or known Him" (John 3:6).

I've talked with people who were planning a sinful course, and knew it, yet they wanted to think of themselves as Christians and they even told me, "I can just repent later, can't I?"

The real question is, "Will you?" Will you live long enough to repent? And even if you live long enough, will you ever want to repent? Or will you be so deep in sin's debt that you either won't want to repent, or won't believe God will listen to you?

Before your debt escalates any further, turn to the Lord. He offers you free forgiveness. Leave your life of sin. This includes the sin of not worshipping Him.

Join us this Sunday morning at 10:00 a.m. or next Wednesday evening at 7:30 p.m. and publicly thank Him for paying your debt of sin.

ship Police Department who saluted and paid tribute to their fellow comrades.

Detroit's Karen Newman sang both the Canada and American national anthem. Erickson later thanked Newman for her continued support of the group and gave her a Thin Blue Line jacket.

The group held a moment of silence for those who died and Merle Bradley, a 26-year veteran of the Michigan State Police, recalled the numerous times he stood beside the bedsides of injured or sick officers.

Bradley thanked the Thin Blue Line for its efforts and said a short prayer ensuring the safety of all the riders.

Reinacher and an Ohio State Police officer called the roll of the officers who died in the past year.

Reinacher asked the family of fallen Detroit Police Officer Dick Voorhess to step forward. Voorhess, a 25-year veteran of Detroit Police Department, was the most recent officer lost in line of duty.

Erickson welcomed the Voorhesses into the Thin Blue Line family and gave them a jacket as a symbol of remembrance.

"I hope when you wear these jackets you will be embraced by the law enforcement community of Michigan," Erickson said.

Several other Michigan officers recounted their stories of despair and how the Thin Blue Line got them back on their feet.

A Hamburg Township police officer recalled his financial troubles following back surgery, and how a small donation from the Thin Blue Line helped him and his family pay for some of the hospital bills.

The Thin Blue Line also helped Tamara Hardy, the wife of a former Detroit Police officer. Hardy lost her husband a couple of years ago, when he was struck and killed by a hit-and-run drunk driver.

"The Thin Blue Line has made it possible for me to go to seminars and talk to other widows about this devastating experience. I am a survivor," Hardy said.

The crowd kept still during the families' testimonies before Reinacher explained this year's route.

Leading the pack of cycles was the Chelsea Police Department. All included, 71 officers from 21 police departments around Michigan led the large group of participants.

The procession started and ran up through Pinckney along Dexter-Pinckney Road through Gregory. The path continued along M-106 through Stockbridge to Mt. Hope Road and then cutting up to Old US-12 and back to the fairgrounds.

Sgt. Terry Parsons, who followed in a patrol car in the back of the procession, said that even though he hasn't experienced a loss of another colleague, he is glad to take part in the annual event.

"It's one of the most worthwhile experiences, especially when you see this much community support," Parsons said.

vived cancer and is still with us makes you feel truly blessed.

"We recently lost a close family friend, Ed Adams, to cancer. So, we shed a few tears for him during the luminary ceremony but knew he was with us in spirit. We had over 100 luminary bags purchased in memory of him this year."

Karen Vanneste, who co-chaired the event with her husband, Glen, and Laura Seyfried, said the opening ceremony set the tone for the rest of the 24 hours.

"The relay went great — people coming together to honor survivors, as well as those who have passed," she said.

"We had a lot more teams this year and you really noticed it with all the people on the track."

Organizer Deanna Shackelford estimated the number of participants at more than 450. Approximately 74 cancer survivors joined the victory lap, which was lined with at least 2,100 lighted bags honoring both survivors and those who lost the battle with cancer.

New to the relay this year was the auction held on Saturday afternoon, which raised $5,000 for the cause.

"The auction was very successful, in large part due to the Hellers, who did a great job auctioning off the items and keeping people laughing," Vanneste said. "The only stressful part was when the storm came and we had to evacuate to the gym and finish off the auction there."

Shirley Blumenauer of Manchester watches over her granddaughter, 2-year-old Anne Cobb, as the little girl points to the luminary bag honoring Blumenauer as a cancer survivor. Blumenauer's daughter and son-in-law Carla and Ken Cobb of Chelsea, were co-captains of the Fire Walkers team. They were joined by their children, Hunter, Glen and Paul. The family cheered Blumenauer as she walked in the survivor's victory lap that kicked off the 24-hour event.

Vanneste commended the Chelsea Area Fire Department, which walked the track with their Fire Walkers team and kept everyone informed about the storm. Firefighters also set up the tent for the auction and participated fully in the event.

"Art Finger also did a fabulous job as emcee for the entire 24 hours," Vanneste said. "He really is kind of an unsung hero for keeping everyone motivated the entire time."

Cancer survivor Shirley Blumenauer from Manchester went to the relay last year with her daughter, Carla Cobb, but was not part of a team. This year, Blumenauer had the full support of the Fire Walkers cheering her on in the victory lap. The team was co-captained by Carla and Ken Cobb, and Lynn Higelmire.

"It was a wonderful event and very emotional," Carla Cobb said. "Our team was certainly kept busy between walking, helping at the auction, rescuing the tent from the sprinklers and then coping with the thunderstorm."

Out of every dollar donated to the American Cancer Society, Shackelford said 4 cents goes for management and 40 cents for research. There are currently 20 research grants at institutions throughout the state totaling some $6.6 million. Twelve of those grants total more than $4 million at the University of Michigan.

Fund raising takes 18 cents from every dollar, the maximum allowed by the American Cancer Society, Shackelford said. Relay for Life events are expected to stay at or below 10 cents per dollar.

Fifteen percent goes toward patient services, including Reach to Recovery, Road to Recovery, Man to Man support groups, the Loan Closet, Wig Bank and the Look Good, Feel Better program for women undergoing chemotherapy treatment. It offers hair, make-up and skin care advice to combat the signs of treatment and rebuild self-esteem.

Eleven percent goes toward prevention and 12 percent goes to detection and treatment.

DEPUTIES

that a special election would cost the township $8,000.

"We'll need a full mill to do this," he said.

The trustees got a push forward from several residents who said residents would likely prefer to pay the millage than rely on the Michigan State Police.

Every township and village in the county must tell the sheriff's department what they plan to do by July 1. Should the municipalities decide to hire sheriff's deputies, they must sign a contract by Aug. 1.

However, there is an "out" clause should a municipality find itself unable to pay for the services prior to Jan. 1. If Dexter residents turn down a millage request in the special election, the township could back out.

Sheriff Dan Minzey, who spoke to the trustees last week, said he needs six months to plan staffing levels for next year. Planning is needed to accommodate for sick time, vacation and paid time off.

Minzey said the department needs to make sure it has enough officers to cover all of its contracts.

Dexter Township has also applied for a grant to fund a sheriff's deputy, but Supervisor Robert Tetens said the township won't know whether the grant is approved until September.

Trustees are hoping they can combine forces with either Webster Township or the village to increase coverage even further. It would take five police service units to have round-the-clock coverage.

Minzey wants to see townships increase their levels from just response level to proactive levels. This means that sheriff's deputies could be proactive in an area and not just respond to emergencies.

"This is why I've suggested a regional push," Minzey said.

He said that by pooling resources surrounding townships could have more deputies at a shared expense.

Webster Township is looking at the possibility of hiring two deputies on its own, Minzey said.

Dexter Township trustees said if residents vote down the millage, then they will go with the state police and continue to negotiate with surrounding communities.

Minzey said that the state police deliver services differently. He used two townships in Oakland County as an example, saying that there are times when calls come in and there aren't any state police available, so people have to wait for an officer to respond.

There is, however, a mutual-aid agreement where police from surrounding jurisdictions are called in life-threatening situations.

"There is no back fill from state police," Minzey said, citing a day recently when all of the state police officers were in training and no one was manning the post in Sylvan Township.

Rider said he'd like to hear from township residents about whether they want a special election. He suggested writing letters or starting a petition drive.

"I'd like to hear from a large number of people," he said, "to collectively tell us that's what (they) want."

A special election could be called in November.

Staff Writer Lisa Allmendinger can be reached at 433-1052 or by e-mail at yankee@izzy.net.

taxation and voting because of the way the village hugs the townships, Feeny said.

If Chelsea becomes a city, the city would annex portions of township land and population outside the village limits. The village would benefit from an expanded tax base and get a better handle on its swelling population's concerns, she said.

The townships, however, would lose more than just land and population. Tax revenue also would be lost, which concerns township officials.

Attorneys John Etter, who is representing Lima Township, and William Fahey, who represents Sylvan Township, were not available for comment at press time.

School lunch prices to increase in fall

Last increase was in the 1997-1998 school year.

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

It will cost more for Chelsea students to eat school lunch this fall.

On June 11, the Board of Education approved a price increase for the 2001-2002 year. The cost will jump from $2 to $2.25 for elementary and middle school pupils, and from $2 to $2.50 for high school students.

The high school cost is more since the food court is more costly to operate, according to Karen Carty, food service supervisor for Chelsea schools.

The last lunch price increase was in the 1997-98 school year when prices were raised from $1.80 to $2 per meal.

Jim Novak, executive director of business and operations, said fuel prices and other economic issues have increased food costs 18 percent, 4 percent and 8.5 percent over the last three years, respectively. Moreover, the district is no longer able to get some commodity foods for free.

Township discusses zoning

Planned unit development option would help protect open space.

By Kent Ashton Walton
Special Writer

Lyndon Township officials are deciding whether to adopt a new type of zoning that surrounding municipalities have been using for years.

The Lyndon Township Board, the planning commission and Zoning Board of Appeals discussed zoning for planned unit developments June 19. Erin Perdu, a planner for Washtenaw County, presented the concept during a meeting that included landowners and officials.

Lyndon Township Supervisor Maryann Noah said that because the township has a unique topography, she is looking for fairness in the way land is used.

"Personally, I love it," she said about the concept.

Noah said a PUD allows the community to have more control over development.

In her presentation, Perdu said the main purpose of a PUD is to assure the permanent preservation of open space, agricultural lands and other natural resources. Open space should not just consist of land unsuitable for building, such as wetlands and steep slopes, she said.

The basic idea of PUD is to offer an alternative to the traditional subdivisions and site condominiums for residential developments. Also proposed are residential cluster developments for single-family residences, which are intended to preserve open spaces, as well.

Typically, land zoned agricultural-residential in Lyndon Township allows a minimum of two-acre lots with one house. PUD zoning would permit denser lots. The remaining land would be preserved as open space with natural features and recreational areas owned and maintained by the homeowners' association.

The county draft outlined by Perdu states that when calculating the amount of open space, natural features should be no less than 20 to 40 percent of the total area of the development site. Additional open space should be devoted to recreation, including pedestrian and bike paths, greenbelts and buffers.

Developers could be granted additional lot density in exchange for "recognizable benefits to the community" in the form of land preservation.

According to the draft, "No less than half of the open space within the open space community shall remain in its natural state..." and typically no less than 10 percent will be above the area's high water mark.

The draft also states that certain areas are not to be included as part of the open space area, including public streets, private roads, easements, areas below high water marks of lakes, rivers, or ponds, storm-water detention or retention ponds, yard setback areas, and parking and loading areas.

There are other proposed restrictions on the use of pesticides, herbicides and fertilizers, the use of motorized off-road vehicles, removal of plant material and activities that may cause soil erosion, and dumping.

Several farming community residents voiced concerns that the PUD regulations would unfairly limit their choices and could dissuade developers. Noah said PUD and cluster developments are options in addition to traditional zoning.

Some residents expressed the need for additional support for farmers so that they aren't forced to sell land.

Noah said the board doesn't want to penalize farmers, and wanted to respond to the values of the Lyndon community. She also said that the proposals must be considered within the context of the regional master plan.

Resident Suzan Morse said that there were a variety of values within the Lyndon community. The purpose of the PUD, she said, is not to increase the number of lots per acre, but to promote an exchange for giving something of value to the community.

The board and commission members decided to continue their discussion 7 p.m. July 17 at the Lyndon Township Hall.

The camp is offered by the Chelsea Center for the Development of the Arts. Classes for both adults and youngsters are offered, in drawing, painting and pastels, watercolors, jewelry, mosaic vases and cartooning.

State offers well tests

The state will offer free drinking well water screening at Michigan State University's annual Ag Expo in East Lansing July 10 through 12.

"Michigan continually strives to enhance the quality and safety of the state's domestic well water by offering screening opportunities like this to help identify and resolve potential problems," said Dan Wyant, director of the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

Testing will be limited to 1,800 water samples, which will be analyzed for nitrates and triazines. All participants will receive their confidential testing results in the mail, along with information on how to resolve potential problems.

The free program is sponsored by the Michigan Groundwater Stewardship Program, a public-private partnership that first began in 1993 and is administered by MDA. The program has been nationally recognized as one of the most effective and efficient groundwater protection programs in the country.

Because of the program, more than 10,000 farmers have received one-on-one technical assistance to identify and correct potential risks to groundwater from pesticides and nitrogen fertilizers.

In addition, nearly 4,000 abandoned wells have been properly decommissioned, and nitrogen best management practices have been voluntarily implemented on over 88,000 acres.

For more information or to get proper sampling bottles, contact the MSU Extension or conservation district office.

Corporate America has invaded our landscape

GREGORY PARKER

COMMUNITY ROOTS

Next time you drive through Chelsea, pay close attention to the landscape. And pay particular attention to the signs.

Not street signs. I'm talking about logos, brands and symbols - corporate ones, to be exact.

I'm talking about signs that stand two stories tall. Colorful, recognizable logos that tell you the locations of grocery stores and drug stores, of banks and gas stations. Some contain elements of the most recognizable images in the world, and most are images of multi-billion dollar global companies.

They're so recognizable that you don't need to read them. When you see the golden arches, you know what to expect.

If you're south of town, these signs assault your senses. They obscure the horizon and compete for your attention. But they're large enough to read in your peripheral vision, and you don't have to take your eyes off of the road to figure out their meaning. But that's the idea. They work pretty well, I suspect. The strip malls and shoebox-styled buildings along M-52 are always packed with patrons.

Have you ever actually walked up to one of these huge signs and stood beside it? They're much bigger up-close than they seem at a distance.

In your car at 45 miles per hour, for something to safely grab your attention, it has to be huge and distinct.

It's like the dotted lines on highways. When you're driving by them at 75 miles per hour, they look like they're about 18 inches long. But if you get out, and actually walk down the freeway (I don't advise this), you see that they're much longer. In a sense, speed compresses them. The same thing holds true for large, roadside signs. To compensate for speed's compression, they must be built disproportionately large.

Downtown in the village, it's a different story. There are very few multi-story or neon-festooned logos - these signs are smaller, subtle and they're usually a part of the structure, not separate from it. And out-towners would have a hard time recognizing the logos of these local businesses.

Very few of the village signs are perpendicular to the road - you have to actually turn your head to the side if you're driving to read the names and logos of these businesses. It's nearly impossible to discern the theme and content of the village's merchants from a moving automobile. But, again, that's the idea. These signs were not designed to be read by drivers. They're designed to be read by pedestrians.

And these work pretty well, too. Downtown stores are busy with customers, and the sidewalks are often filled with strollers and window shoppers.

So, let's get this straight: Big signs representing multinational chains and franchises on the fringes, where autos are the dominant method of travel, and lots of independent businesses with small signs downtown, where walking prevails. Of course, there are many independent businesses (some with large signs on the fringes, but the landscape seems dominated by the larger corporations).

It's no coincidence that the incredible growth and importance of logos, corporate symbols and signs happened around the same time the suburbs became the dominant lifestyle in America. As citizens reordered their lives around the auto, businesses did as well. They developed, honed and cultivated images that are recognizable simply by silhouette, simply by color. You could travel by these images at 90 on the interstate and still know for what they stand.

These symbols spread beyond the highway, beyond roads and billboards. They infiltrated print, television and even radio media. They're on the Internet. They dominate sports, and conversation in general. Have you ever actually tried to spend a day without mentioning one of the Fortune 500 corporations?

It's harder than you think. Their logos, their advertising pitches, their clichés have embedded themselves into daily culture.

While autos are not entirely responsible for growth of corporate influence in society, they share part of the blame. And they provide a vehicle (pun intended) for looking at how huge corporations affect our lives.

What's this got to do with Chelsea? Not much, unless you consider that while mega corporations shape our culture, our definition of cool and our spending habits, they shape our landscape, too. If you don't believe me, take a special trip down M-52, or any highway, and look at the landscape.

Even if you tried a Fortune 500 boycott, you couldn't do it - you can't boycott the landscape, after all.

Unless you close your eyes while driving south of town.

Building relationships can prevent violence

LORIN KUMMER

GUEST EDITORIAL

In the past couple of years, we have seen several school tragedies. Young people made fatal decisions. The TV news media made their usual crusades to find someone to blame.

Did they talk to anyone? Did they have a reason? If they talked about it, why didn't someone do something? Why didn't they call the police? Why didn't they stop this?

While the media is hunting for someone to blame, the Governor of California makes a statement informing kids to talk to someone if they are having these violent thoughts.

Who would that be? If you are feeling hurt, confused, angry and full of rage enough to want to kill, who would you talk to? Who would you trust not to stigmatize, judge or make your thoughts criminal?

Lately, it seems that the mere ideation of rage is a criminal act. Does thinking or speaking violently always result in the act of violence?

We want answers, but we don't want to ask questions that dig deeper than "Who can we blame?"

Why was this young person allowed to be teased to a point of hopelessness and rage? Why didn't someone do something? Why did they feel that violence was the only answer? Why didn't someone do something? Why didn't they turn to their parents for help? Why didn't the adults that heard them talking about violent plans do something? We love to ask that question.

Let me ask a more difficult one. Your son, neighbor or child's friends come over. You overhear the kids talking about a person or a situation at school or elsewhere that they seem quite upset with. Maybe they even say, "I feel like killing that guy."

Now, you are in your living room remembering your drive home that afternoon and the truck that cut in front of you and how for a moment your anger got the better of you, and you swore at the truck driver. "I'd like to kill that guy!" You said it. Did you do it? Do you need counseling? Police intervention?

If I am a passenger in your car should I call the police on you because you might have made a threat? Maybe, if I knew you and this was an escalation of previous behavior, or if you had acted out violently in the past or if your tone, body language or other behavior was leading me to believe there was cause for concern.

That is, if I was trained to recognize such things. But then who would I call? Would I call a trusted health care professional? I might, if I knew you had one. Would I call a mental health clinic? Is there one? Does this guy have the insurance it takes?

Let's face it, if you were a passenger in that car overhearing your friend, you really wouldn't know what to do. We don't really have a good idea of who to turn to. We don't want to make a mistake and stigmatize our friend or ourselves if we are wrong.

To do something implies that we would all know exactly what to do and how to do it in a well-prescribed manner. We do not.

We are not sure what to do and we don't want to hurt or embarrass the other person or ourselves. It is easier to do nothing, except maybe on our conscience.

Doing nothing saves us from being embarrassed or wasting someone's time because we are not sure what to do and who to contact. And the person we are concerned about may not need, want or accept help from us. After all, would you trust if you were about to act out violently?

So, we take a chance and do nothing, and nine out of 10 times this is OK. It's the one time out of 10 that really hurts and scares us. The one time when doing nothing isn't OK.

After a tragedy, we will say we didn't know they were capable of that, to defend our not doing something. We will say we really didn't know them all that well. We must not have known the real person. All those things may be true. But it doesn't help us feel any better.

There is something we can do, if we really want to break free from the stunned emptiness we feel after each one of these tragic shootings. We can start this moment to look around at the children and young adults we come in contact with every day.

We can make a conscious decision to look into a face and exchange a smile, a nod, a hello, ask how things are going and then take time to listen to the whole answer. In other words, we can do something.

Begin to develop caring, concerned relationships with as many young people as you know care about and want to keep safe and well.

Building caring relationships takes time and commitment and a willingness to stop what we are rushing off to do, to hear the concerns of a child, teen or young adult. This is a hard question. Why don't we do something that we know works? Relationships work. Being a caring adult works.

Blame, finding fault, accusing and criminalizing might make us feel momentarily better, but it just puts a bandage on a wound that will be ripped wide open again when the next time comes.

Why don't we all do something that works? Take time to build relationships with the children you see every day. You may not just save their life, you may save your own and others you love, as well. It takes more time than blaming, but it has far greater rewards.

We live in a throw-away society

JOAN DYER ZINNER HERITAGE NEWSPAPERS

HOME FRONT

When I spoke to a woman involved in the Chinese Shar-Pei Rescue of Michigan recently, I told her that I was somewhat surprised that the wrinkled breed was in the need of rescuing.

I was aware of the Doberman Rescue group and I've heard of Greyhound Rescue, which finds homes for former racing dogs. But why, I wondered, does the charming dog with a skin too big for its body need to be rescued?

Every breed has a rescue group, she informed me. Cute, or not, dogs are "disposable items."

I guess I shouldn't have been surprised. We live in a "throw-away society" where we toss out everything from old model TVs and cassette recorders to slightly used and bruised furniture. (Just check the curbside on trash day in your neighborhood.)

We throw away last year's coats, shoes and sweaters and discard anything else that doesn't meet with the current season's fads and fashions.

Our society even throws away relationships when we get tired of them, resulting in a 50 percent divorce rate in the United States.

So, I guess it makes sense that if we don't bother to take the time to make a relationship work we won't bother keeping a less-than-perfect pet.

The Shar-Pei rescuer said the reason people discard their dogs often has nothing to do with the pet's behavior or demeanor. Sometimes, people move and their dog "doesn't fit" in the new house or new neighborhood.

Maybe, their pet is no longer among the top favorites in the dog world, and so he is replaced with the breed that won the last American Kennel Club's best in show.

Sadly, some loyal house pets are discarded because they have grown old. Just like humans, an older dog may develop health problems and become a bit slower and less energetic. And, just as we sometimes cast aside the elderly members of our families, our throw-away society also discards its aging pets.

Sometimes, the popularity of the breed can work against it, the rescuer said. When a breed becomes extremely popular, puppy mills may place too many dogs on the market. Then, when the fickle public turns to another breed, the supply of the former most popular breed exceeds the demand.

Why are pets discarded? For all of the above reasons and more, said the Shar-Pei rescuer. Thus, there is a need for groups, like hers, to assist by temporarily boarding homeless dogs and finding new homes for them.

Animals do have some good friends who are ready to adopt an unwanted pet, but there are not enough good-hearted people to take them all, especially the older ones.

There's someone I know who adopted a skinny kitten dropped off in his neighborhood during the winter. I've also seen children with good hearts collect food and blankets for animal shelters.

If you need a reason to befriend a dog, think of Mark Twain's observation about canines: "If you pick up a starving dog and make him prosperous, he will not bite you. That is the principal difference between a dog and a man."

Joan Dyer-Zinner is the editor of The Heritage Newspaper chain.

Sadly, some loyal house pets are discarded because they have grown too old.

Pierce Lake hosts charity golf outing for Alzheimer's

By Don Richter
Staff Writer

With former University of Michigan head football coach Bo Schembechler kicking off the festivities, the 2001 South Central Michigan Alzheimer's Association's charity golf outing commenced Monday morning.

Linksters from throughout the area converged at Chelsea's Pierce Lake Golf Course to help raise funds for the fight against Alzheimer's disease.

Alan Esper, development officer for the South Central Michigan Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association, said events like Monday's help raise awareness of the disease.

"That's No. 1," he said. "But also these events help fund local programs. We have about 3,100 families in Washtenaw County that are affected by Alzheimer's and through our support groups, workshops and family connections and other programs, we can do that."

Esper said programs could be costly.

"Generally, we have one staffer working with one family over a period of years before early detection and perhaps placement many years later," he said. "It's very labor intense, which is expensive. Our fundraising events all go for local programs and services."

Esper also said events such as Monday's help bring people together.

"We're a people organization," he said. "We were founded by local people 20 years ago. Families got together and saw a need for a support system. (At the time) they didn't even know it was Alzheimer's. It was just thought of as dementia."

"As a result of those three or four people that began (the program), we now serve nine counties from Ohio, up to Lansing and over to Jackson.

"We're (driven) by people power and events are people things, so we like to see that happen."

Tricia Bridgman, public relations coordinator for the South Central Michigan Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association, said Monday's outing was encouraging.

"We're having a great day out here," she said. "It has been a big success. We're pleased with the turnout and the community support. Everyone came out to support the Alzheimer's Association and enjoy a good round of golf."

Bridgman said she was impressed by how Pierce Lake handled the event.

"We're very happy with the staff and how they've accommodated us here at the course," she said.

Last year, Bridgman said the association held its fund-raiser at U of M's golf course.

"It (outing) moves from year to year to different golf courses throughout Washtenaw County,"

Sports facilities top-notch

By Don Richter
Staff Writer

How's this for starters: Twelve retractable glass backboard basketball rims; an elevated, four-lane indoor running track and a spacious locker room and training office that also features an athletics department that one needs a road map to navigate.

Add to that, a 100-acre complex that when completed will include a brand-new baseball diamond, softball and soccer fields, tennis courts and indoor pool.

If Dexter's sports facilities were, at one time, lagging behind other schools', come spring 2002, the Dreadnaughts will set the standard.

According to Dave Messner, Dexter's assistant superintendent for special projects, the design committee responsible for the new high school's look and feel focused on seven themes - a student-centered learning environment; quality, flexibility, openness, connectedness, spaciousness and lots of light.

"I think we've accomplished that," Messner said.

Indeed. Especially when it comes to athletics.

One look inside the cavernous gymnasium, surrounded by its elevated track and topped off by a rounded ceiling can attest to that.

The Dread Dome, as Richard Weaver, the voice of Dexter athletics has called the arena, should be quite a home-court advantage for any Dreadnaught team.

The improved athletic facilities are a welcome sight, according to Bill Spargur, Dexter schools' superintendent.

"It complements the whole high school itself," he said. "It really fills in a need. We didn't have a soccer field and to (now) have 10 tennis courts will be a complement to all the programs we have going. It will just enhance it."

"The academic building itself is wonderful and this (athletics) is an important area. We want to have first-class facilities all the way across the board. It just makes Dexter an even better place to live and we're really looking forward to it."

Messner said an advantage for the future baseball diamond would be its location.

"It will not be near woods," he said, referring to the current field surrounded by trees. "If you hit a ball (foul), it won't disappear. Also, there will be stands on both sides for people to sit on."

Messner said having a soccer field on school grounds is also a plus.

"It's a step up," he said. "In the past, teams had to go to Hudson Mills. It makes sense having a field at the school."

The Chelsea Bulldog 12-year-old baseball team captured the Stockbridge Panther Tournament last weekend.

Chelsea prevailed in four consecutive ballgames to win the event.

The Bulldogs defeated Fowlerville "A," Fowlerville "B," the host Stockbridge Panthers and cross-town rival Chelsea

Merchants to claim the championship.

Leading hitters for Chelsea were Jeff Adams, Chet Hopp, Matt Schwarze, Alex Stephens, Kyle Bucholz, Zach Leszczynski and Jim Krichbaum.

Defensively, the Bulldogs were paced by Ben Bradburn, Josh Ripberger, Nate Ripberger, Adam Connell and Todd Elliott.

Chelsea, Dexter sports facilities would have made me a star

When I was in high school, I played on the football team. I was on a squad that included future University of Michigan defensive tackle Jack Walker and future Wolverine tailback Tony Boles.

I "played" mainly in practice. In fact, some of my fondest memories were on those dusty fields opposite Irma Kionka Field, my school's home stadium.

I'll never forget landing on my back, looking up through my facemask, at the pale, blue sky after Walker had, once again, vaulted me through the air during one of the many blocking drills I had to endure.

I was 5-foot-10, 155 pounds and Walker was 6-4, 230 pounds. You do the math.

Picture me as Rudy, but without the talent. It was always so much fun to finally think I was going to lay a lick on Boles - only to have him invariably kick it into a higher gear leaving me grasping at air. Fun, fun, fun.

Anyhow, enough of my grid-iron highlights. What brought on this wistful look back at my glory years was a recent visit to the new Dexter High School, which is projected to be completed by spring 2002.

My reason for trekking over to the 100-acre plus complex was to check out its athletic facilities. Small colleges should have it so good.

When I played football, our team lifted weights in a hallway adjacent to the gymnasium. Many a time, we'd have to stop our workout to let a student into his or her locker.

DON RICHTER

ON THE SIDELINE

The Dreadnaughts won't have to worry about that. They have a state-of-the-art weight room, complete with trainer's office and spacious lockers.

Our "training office" was a gymnastics mat laid out behind the gym bleachers.

And in my first year, we shared our lockers with the varsity swim team. To this day, the smell of chlorine reminds me of football.

The athletic facilities at both Chelsea High School and Dexter's new high school are second to none.

Both schools should be proud of their improved gymnasiums, locker rooms, training rooms, weight rooms, baseball diamonds and softball fields.

The baseball, softball and soccer fields at the new Dexter High School are yet to be completed, but they should be something.

Take one look at Chelsea's baseball field, Dreadnaught fans. There's your future, and then some.

After spring 2002, both Dexter and Chelsea will have sports facilities that rank right up there with the best in the area - if not the best.

Having updated sports facilities doesn't cure the world's ills, but it sure is nice for the student-athletes who devote so much of their time and effort making their schools and communities proud, to have amenities that mirror their performance on and off the athletic stage.

If I would've had access to facilities like the ones at Chelsea and Dexter, there's no way Walker would have knocked me on my keister, or Boles would have eluded my grasp.

I would have been the one playing in the "Big House." I would have shown those two. Walker would have been the one looking up at the sky.

Yea!

On the other hand, I sure hope they don't read this.

Guide to Milan Area Schools

One of Washtenaw County's smallest "Class B" school districts, Milan straddles the Washtenaw-Monroe county line, drawing its student population from the city of Milan and seven townships: York, Augusta, London, Pittsfield, Exeter, Saline and Milan. Although traditionally a rural district, explosive growth in northern and western Washtenaw is finding it's way to Milan.

To better serve the needs of newcomers and long-time residents, The Milan News-Leader is teaming up with the Milan Area Schools to produce the third annual Milan Area School Directory, which will feature information about the district's school buildings, schedules, telephone numbers, community education programs, clubs and staff, as well as the latest update on the new high school, set to open in 2003.

This quality publication is guaranteed to appeal to every parent of school-age children, and will be distributed as well to those families eyeing Milan as a possible hometown. The Milan Area School Directory is a valuable advertising tool to market your business or service, so take advantage of this opportunity to let residents in the district know what you have to offer and reserve your space today!

According to Messner, the Dexter soccer program also would have two practice fields, once construction is finished.

With the expanded facilities and increased acreage, Messner said Dreadnaught cross-country teams also would be positively affected.

"There's a possibility that cross country might be able to run (meets) on campus," he said.

Besides increased space outdoors, the new high school promises to have plenty of room indoors, as well.

There will be expanded varsity locker rooms, both for boys and girls, plus JV and freshman locker room areas.

In addition, there will be larger training facilities, spacious team meeting areas and improved coaching offices.

According to Messner, the football locker rooms will remain in its current spot at the old high school.

At the completion of this year's gridiron season, however, Messner said improvements would be made to the football field and track.

"The current track will be taken up and replaced, the field will be reseeded and leveled and a new drainage and irrigation system will be installed," he said.

Besides advice from design experts, Dexter officials also asked students for input when planning the new athletic facilities.

"I thought it was an excellent opportunity, especially since we don't often get asked to be involved," said recently graduated senior Dan Adams, who along with junior Caitlin Kaike, was asked to take part in the project.

"I wanted to make sure that the problems we had in the old building weren't repeated in the new building."

Adams, who'll attend the University of Michigan in the fall and major in either political science or pre-law, cited lack of parking, crowded hallways and locker rooms as a few of his concerns.

"I tried to make sure students' needs were addressed," he said.

Adams, who was a member of the Dexter varsity swim team for three years, said he is impressed with the new school.

"It has really lived up to what we expected," he said. "I really like the gymnasium and the indoor track."

Adams said having a brand-new building would lift the spirits of students.

"It will improve morale," he said. "It will also give sports teams the ability to train year round."

Adams said he focused on the years ahead when deciding on what issues he'd push for during planning meetings.

"I thought of my (younger) brother and his classmates," he

Hiking for Habitat

Minister raises funds while walking the Appalachian Trail

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

High on an Appalachian mountain during a thunderstorm, Dave Horning started to panic.

"I've never been in such torrential rain," Horning says. "There was lightning and the trail was like a trench running with water over the top of my boots."

To say he was frightened was an understatement.

"I just put my faith in the Lord," he says. "He had put me there for a reason and I knew I would be all right."

The reason Horning was there — hiking five miles in a downpour in waterlogged boots — was to raise money for the construction of Habitat for Humanity Huron Valley Chapter's Cornerstone House.

The minister of St. James' Episcopal Church in Dexter — who is 15 pounds lighter than when he left Dexter — set out along the Appalachian Trail shortly after Easter, and plans to walk till the end of his sabbatical leave on July 31. He hopes to reach Harper's Ferry, in West Virginia, the midpoint of the trail, roughly 1,000 miles from its beginning in Springer Mountain, Ga.

Horning is seeking pledges for each mile of the trail that he completes. So far, he has raised about $400 — much of it from hikers he has met along the way. Donations have ranged from one cent to 20 cents a mile.

Len Arntson, a longtime Chelsea resident and member of the steering committee for Habitat for Humanity's Cornerstone House 2001, is helping with Horning's sponsorship pledges and publicity.

In a phone call from Damascus, Va., about 475 miles from the start of his hike, Horning described some of his adventures, as well as his misadventures.

All creatures great and small have crossed his path, from bears to mice. Horning heard horror stories from fellow travelers, including a story about a bear that dragged a sleeping hiker out of his tent and the hiker who woke to find six mice nibbling the cherry lip balm on his lips.

"I didn't freak out when I saw a bear cross the trail," he says. "It was just looking for food, and there weren't any cubs with it. I just quietly and quickly moved around it and went on my own way."

Horning, whose trail nickname is "Padre," has become known as the trail chaplain, counseling and talking to fellow hikers. Many actively seek him out after seeing his entries in the shelter sign-in books.

"Some hikers are on the trail to sort through difficulties and contemplate life decisions," Horning says.

He counsels and prays with these hikers and leads worship services in shelters and hostels.

Horning, who trained for the hike along the local Potawatomi Trail, sometimes finds it hard to leave the resting stages along the route.

"The small towns are almost always in valleys, so going downhill into town is easy. Your pack is almost empty, and you're excited and pumped up," he says. "When you leave, your pack is full of food again and you're full of a good breakfast, and the hike is uphill. It can be hard to get out of town; you can't move your feet and almost get trapped there."

Horning, who covers an average of 10 miles a day, devised a litany to recite as a distraction from the uphill struggle.

"I think of how Jesus said, 'Take up your bed and walk,'" he says. "For me, it's 'Take up my sleeping

Life goes on

Ron Borders learns to adapt after tragic accident

By Elizabeth Wagenschutz
Special Writer

When Ron Borders went to work last May at Chelsea Milling Co., little did he know what life had in store for him.

The Chelsea resident was on a lift at the Jiffy Mix plant when it malfunctioned and he fell from the third floor to the basement. He distinctly remembers losing all feeling in his legs when he hit the ground, becoming instantly paralyzed from the chest down.

Ron remained conscious throughout the fall and the immediate afterward. He remembers taking the Survival Flight helicopter to the University of Michigan Hospital, where doctors stapled his head injuries together.

The following couple of weeks were quite a harrowing experience for Ron and his wife, Pat. It was overwhelming for both, and the first month, in particular, was the hardest.

"The first two weeks were really rough," Ron said.

Ron was moved from one room to another and shuffled around to different units in the hospital. In all, he spent two months at the hospital. During much of the time, he had to wear a full upper-body mold, called a "turtle shell," as well as a neck brace.

When he wore both at the same time in his hospital bed, all of his movement was restricted and he couldn't see anything except the ceiling. This meant that he also couldn't see his wife when she visited.

"But he never complained," Pat said. "We both hated that turtle shell. He could hardly wait to stop wearing it."

After two months in the hospital, Ron was transferred to the Eisenhower Center in Ann Arbor. He remained there for five months, only able to go home for visits on Sundays. He couldn't fully return because the house wasn't ready. Many changes were and continue to be made so the house is handicapped accessible.

Pat said her life changed the split second after the accident. She spent seven months commuting between Chelsea and the hospital in Ann Arbor. She also split her time between the Eisenhower Center and supervising renovations at their house. Among other things, the bathroom had to be enlarged, a wheelchair ramp built outside, the stairway expanded, a wheelchair lift added and the kitchen completely reorganized. Essentially, the entire house had to be reconstructed.

Pat said the seven months at the Eisenhower Center were made easier by the constant visits from family and friends, as well as the support received from the Chelsea community.

"They couldn't get over how much company he had," she said.

Ron said it was the visits and care that made the time bearable.

"I think without it, it would have been real bad," he said. "(It) keeps morale up if you have company coming in. And they couldn't believe at the hospital how many cards I got."

The support and concern expressed by the community has continued for the family even after Ron moved back home, which itself was cause for celebration. Since then, the couple has entertained many well-wishers.

"We still have a lot of company," Pat said. "Family comes by a lot, and we've gone to different houses."

Ron said that some friends and relatives have built ramps so that he can easily enter their homes.

Pat and Ron still go out to eat and shop for groceries together. Ron does a lot of the household chores, such as carrying grocery bags inside and bringing in the garbage bin.

Recently, they attended a party to celebrate Ron's retirement from Chelsea Milling Co. after 42 years.

Ron said everyone at the company, especially those in the human resources department, has been supportive and caring since the accident happened, and that many of them visit often to see how he is doing.

Although he has a wide support network, Ron feels frustrated at times thinking about the things he can no longer do.

"I can sit here and look out but can't get out by myself," he said. "I see all the stuff I used to do and can't do now."

One thing he has not been able to do again is his woodworking, which is a hobby that Ron really enjoys and had looked forward to doing more of after retirement.

But the Borders family continues to be very positive, and Ron has maintained a good outlook on everything. He said his atti-

VILLAGE OF CHELSEA'S THIRD ANNUAL WATER QUALITY REPORT
 The purpose of this report is to provide our customers with information about their drinking water. This report will explain where your drinking water comes from and the treatment it undergoes before it reaches your tap. The report will also include the results of the routine monitoring and testing that is required by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality.
 Your tap water comes from four wells located northwest of the downtown area. Specifically, 442 W. North street. The water treatment plant (pump-house) sits just behind and west of the Public Works building. In the back of the pump-house are two of the four wells called wells 1 and 1A, across Letts Creek to the northeast are the other two wells known as wells 2 and 3. All of the wells are approximately forty feet deep with an overlying clay layer that acts as a natural barrier against contaminants on the ground surface. The oldest of the four wells, well number 1 was drilled in 1941, following that was Well 1A in 1952 and wells 2 and 3 in late 1958. These wells are what are commonly called "drift wells", meaning that they are terminated in the glacial drift as opposed to being a rock well which is set in the bedrock below the drift. The wells are in a gravel formation with a well screen to allow water to pass through while keeping the sand and gravel from entering the pump.
 The water from the four wells is pumped into the treatment plant (pump-house) where it moves through the iron removal filters. Before entering the filters, the water is saturated with air to facilitate iron removal in the filter tanks. Once the water has passed through the filters it enters the ground storage tank. On its way to the ground storage there is 1/2 of a ppm (part per million) of chlorine and 3 ppm of a poly-ortho phosphate blend fed into the water. The phosphate blend is added in an effort to help control the corrosion of your plumbing lines and fixtures, and also to sequester (tie-up, keep in solution) the iron that does escape through the filters. The chlorine is added as a disinfectant to help prevent the presence of any bacterial contamination in the ground storage tank.
 As the water leaves the ground storage tank on its way to the community, it is once again chemically treated with another 2 ppm of chlorine and approximately 8/10 of a ppm of fluoride. This time the chlorine will help prevent any bacteriological contamination in the distribution system, and the fluoride is added for healthier teeth and bones. There is naturally occurring fluoride in the raw well water of approximately 3/10 of a ppm, therefore we add another 8/10 of a ppm to bring the fluoride concentration to 1.1 or 1.2 ppm. The water is carefully metered and the chemicals are carefully weighed each and every day to ensure accurate chemical doses.
DRINKING WATER AND YOUR HEALTH
 Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that the water poses a health risk. More information about the contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the EPA's Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 1-800-426-4791.
 The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs and wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally occurring minerals and, in some cases, radioactive material, and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity.
 Contaminants that may be present in source water:
 Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, which may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations, and wildlife.
 Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, which can be naturally-occurring or result from urban stormwater runoff, industrial, or domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining, or farming.
 Pesticides and herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture, urban stormwater runoff, and residential uses.
 Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum products, and can also come from gas stations, urban stormwater runoff, and septic systems.
 Radioactive contaminants, which can be naturally occurring or be the result of oil and gas production and mining activities.
 Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbial contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (1-800-426-4791).
WATER QUALITY DATA

Local farmer helps the poor

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

Lima Township farmer Jerald Heydlauff was part of a contingent of four people driving two ambulances to Mobile, Ala., last week. The ambulances, donated by Huron Valley Ambulance, were bound for a hospital in St. Lucia in the West Indies.

Heydlauff's fellow travelers were his son-in-law, Stephen Starling of Jackson, Ross Pobanz of Indian River and Norman Sholler of Clarkston.

Starling and Doug Brown, an emergency medical technician, arranged for the donation of two used ambulances from Huron Valley Ambulance for St. Jude Hospital in St. Lucia.

Heydlauff, a Chelsea native who has lived on Dexter-Chelsea Road for 48 years, left with the group early on June 18 arriving in Mobile the following night. They drove back in a rental car.

"The ship the ambulances were originally scheduled to leave on had some problems, so they had to be transferred to another ship, but they should be on their way now," Heydlauff said.

A member of the Chelsea Community Fair Board, Heydlauff is retired from Honnegers Mill, where he worked for 40 years. He spent 27 years as a manager.

Heydlauff and his wife, Shirley, have spent the last four years traveling through Mexico, as well as Central and South America, and are familiar with the lack of medical facilities in these countries and the West Indies.

St. Jude Hospital, managed by The Sisters of Mercy in Des Moines, Iowa, serves a population of approximately 75,000 people on the southern tip of St. Lucia, a 26-mile-long island in the lower region of the West Indies.

These will be the first advanced life support ambulances to serve St. Lucia and officials are excited about the possibilities.

Starling and his wife, Sharon (Heydlauff), traveled to St. Lucia last December to volunteer at St. Jude.

"We found ourselves cleaning, running the modest gift shop, walking babies and sitting with patients who lost limbs to diabetes. You name it, we did it," Sharon Starling said.

Lima Township farmer Jerald Heydlauff drove this ambulance to Mobile, Ala. Two ambulances donated by Huron Valley Ambulance, are on their way to St. Lucia, West Indies.

During their stay, they learned that a Lovola University medical student performed CPR on a critical patient for nearly three hours while being transferred to a northern hospital with a resuscitator. St. Jude has no resuscitator, defibrillator or ambulance equipped for emergency transport, so the Starlings came home determined to find an ambulance.

After hearing about the trip from Stephen Starling, Doug Brown got the idea to ask Huron Valley Ambulance western operations office for a used ambulance in good condition.

Conversations between St. Jude Hospital administrators and HVA Vice President Dirk Borton indicated that two ambulances would better serve the region. Two ambulances retired from local service were then readied for the trip to St. Lucia.

Heydlauff's sister, Grass Lake resident Ann Alexander, arranged for the donation of eight new tires from her employer, Discount Tire. A member of Salem Grove Methodist Church, Alexander is also involved with the Chelsea Community Fair.

Addison Fire Board and the Spring Arbor Township Fire Department donated cots and backboards.

The Samuel Higby Camp Foundation, along with the Spring Arbor Fire Department, also donated a defibrillator. The Jackson Rotary Club breakfast group and Richmond Brothers Investments agreed to cover some of the costs of moving the ambulances to Alabama.

Stan Mitts of Spring Arbor, who paints Jackson Transportation Authority buses, painted St. Jude's name on the ambulances. Rotary Club members spruced up the outsides of the vehicles and children from St.

Joseph's School cleaned and shined the insides.

To volunteer or make contributions to St. Jude Hospital, contact Stephen Starling at 1-

Budget Bathtub Liners
Company offers solutions for tub troubles

When was the last time you did a fantastic job cleaning your bathroom, only to realize the tub still looked less than stellar?

If the finish on your bathtub is chipped, peeling, faded or permanently stained no amount of cleanser and scrubbing will do the job. The bathtub needs to be fixed.

Visit our 12,000 sq. ft. factory showroom located in Madison Heights where we sell over 6,000 bathtub liners and wall surround systems annually. We also sell a complete line of whirlpool, soaker tubs and hydrotherapy massage tubs.

Reglazing is an option, but only a temporary one. There's no guarantee the finish won't go bad again, and the reglazing process is difficult and involves many dangerous chemicals.

The bathtub could be replaced, but there is even more mess involved, not to mention the cost.

There is another solution, though, and Budget Bathtub Liners Co. with showrooms in Lincoln Park and Madison Heights, has the answer: a new bathtub liner or total complete system consisting of Bathtub Liner and Wall Surround system.

One of the hottest trends in bathroom remodeling, bathtub liners and wall systems fit over not only existing bathtubs, but also ceramic walls in your bathroom. That means less mess and less time between what your bathroom looks like now and a completely new appearance.

For a limited time only, bathtub liners are on sale from $389 installed. Complete systems, which include bathtub liner and wall surround, are on sale from $1295. That's about 1/2 the cost of replacing an old tub and ceramic tiles.

Budget Bathtub Liner is able to offer the low price, according to Dean Hartley, because of the large volume of business it does.

"We're the largest distributor of Acrylic Bathtub Liners and Wall Surround Systems in the country," Hartley said. "I'm proud of that."

When a homeowner places an order for a new liner, employees take 15 different measurements and general photographs of the existing bathtub. The measurements and photos are then sent to the company's factory where a custom liner is made using one of 750 molds in stock.

In addition, seven colors and faux marble finishes are available along with a complete line of matching accessories which includes a full line of Delta and Kohler fixtures. These are options current fixtures are working fine.

"If you buy a new car, you wouldn't ask them to put used tires on it," he said.

All Bathtub Liners and Wall Surround Systems are made of DR/ABS Owens Corning High Impact Acrylic and carry a Lifetime

Warranty. This is the same material football helmets are made from and the liners are about three times the thickness of those found at home improvement stores and are guaranteed not to chip or peel and to retain their finish. In addition, installation, which can usually be done in one day, is guaranteed.

Budget Bathtub Liners Co. is at 25170 John R. Madison Heights and 3387 Fort St., Lincoln Park, between Emmons and Champaign adjacent to Mickey Shorr. The showroom is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Mondays Wednesdays and Fridays, 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays and 12 Noon to 4 p.m. Sundays. For more information, call Budget Bathtub Liner at 1-800-BATHTUB.

Many people would like to change the way their bathrooms look, but cost and time concerns prevent many from being able to tear out and replace a worn bathtub. Budget Bathtub Liners has the solution. Located in Lincoln Park, the store has hundreds of liners to choose from, most of which can be installed in a day or less.

tude has been helped by all the support he has received.

"We've felt blessed by our friends, and we want to thank everybody for all the prayers," Pat said.

"All the prayers that have been offered by all the churches have been answered in his good outlook, and that to me — we've just been blessed. Without all the prayers... I don't know where we'd be, I honestly don't."

Ron agrees, saying that it's been difficult readjusting.

"I had a lot of plans for retirement. Things will just have to be different," he said. "You go about it a different way."

"You just have a new normal,"

Pat said. "He said to me, 'All my plans.' I said, 'We have to make new ones.'"

And they have. One goal was for Ron to take care of the lawn again.

"That was his goal from day 1," Pat said.

And on May 4, 2001, exactly one year to the day that he fell, Ron was finally able to try out his new riding lawn mower for the first time.

"That was really good. I really enjoy mowing my grass," he said.

Even though Ron encounters frustrations in not being able to do everything that he might like to, he's slowly gaining back his freedom and independence, taking it day by day, and living with a new perspective of what is normal.

bag and walk."

"And I think about raising money and building Cornerstone House to motivate me."

A painter, and drywall and plastering contractor prior to his ordination in 1978, Horning has been a very active participant in each build. He provides morning prayer on the first day of a build, serves as drywall and painting team leader, and provides the blessing on completion of each of house.

"Habitat for Humanity provides a means for those people at or near the poverty level to obtain affordable, decent housing," he says. "And being that the Cornerstone House is a church-based group, it allows us to put our faith into action."

Horning's son, Luke, who hiked the entire trail last year, joined him for a week in late May.

"It was wonderful to have Luke with me. He has so much energy and confidence," Horning says.

"When we hiked, Luke took the lead, and just seeing him walking ahead was an inspiration to me. Now that he's left, I'm just keeping that image of him in my mind for the rest of my hike."

Horning's wife, Jane, is used to the routine of preparing and mailing food drops to post offices along the trail.

"Vegetables are slowly drying in my oven," she says. "I've gotten clever at creating a variety of trail mix combinations. Nuts, dried fruit, sunflower seeds, coconut — that is Dave's daily menu."

"This time I know to mail things as early as possible. These small mountain towns always take more than the promised two days delivery."

Jane Horning says she would have joined the adventure but knows her limitations — her Morning Star daycare also requires her presence.

"I miss Dave and pray for his safety on the trail," she says. "I'm counting the days until he returns."

HABITAT FOR HUMANITY FACTS

- Cornerstone is a group of Lutheran, Episcopal and United Church of Christ churches building houses for Habitat for Humanity Huron Valley chapter.
- Formed in 1997 with a group of 20 Lutheran and Episcopal churches, they raised $40,000 and took part in a building blitz in Ypsilanti, building five houses in a week.
- The following year, the group banded together again, raising $40,000 to build another house to provide a family with decent, affordable housing.
- By the third year, the United Church of Christ churches joined in.
- All the money raised goes directly to the house. Food is donated, prepared and served by volunteers from one of the churches during the full workdays. The churches also provide most of the labor with help from some professionals.
- To help the group reach its $50,000 goal, the Rev. Dave Horning of St. James' Episcopal Church in Dexter is walking 1,000 miles of the Appalachian Trail and seeking pledges for each mile he walks.
- Cornerstone is planning to build a home in Ypsilanti during the fall. Work on clearing the site will begin in mid-July with a Thanksgiving move-in date set.
- To support Horning and Habitat for Humanity Huron Valley Chapter, call Heather Davis at 428-8247.

Scouts on trek in New Mexico

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

A group of 11 Chelsea Boy Scouts and leaders — part of a contingent of 36 from the Great Sauk Trail Boy Scout Council — left Saturday for Philmont Scout Ranch in New Mexico.

The world's largest camp for boys covers some 215 square miles and features a wilderness backpacking experience in the Rocky Mountains. Other activities include rock climbing, gold panning, rifle and shotgun shooting, and a conservation project.

The group, subdivided into three 12-person crews, traveled from Ann Arbor to New Mexico in a 36-hour train ride. After an overnight checkout and orientation at base camp, each crew left on a different 10-day backpacking trek.

Ryan Allen, 14; James Daly, 15; Sean Steinbach, 14; and Michael Worthington, 15; are from South School Troop 476.

Jason Hawley, 14, and Neil Turluck, 15, represent Troop 425, sponsored by the Chelsea Rod and Gun Club. Hawley, son of the Rev. Wayne Hawley of North Lake United Methodist Church, will serve as the group's chaplain.

This crew also includes Ted Dey of Webberville, Christopher Dennis of Fowlerville and Alex Kramer of Ann Arbor.

Chelsea residents Tom Proko and his son, Shawn, 18, a member of Pinckney's Troop 312, will also be on the trip.

Adult advisers John Daly and Doug Worthington of Troop 476 and Daniel Turluck from Troop 425 will accompany the Scouts. One of their primary responsibilities is the boys' safety.

"One of the major objectives of Boy Scouting is to turn boys into capable young men," Daly says. "The crew chief, 15-year-old Ted Dey, will be in charge of the crew once we reach Philmont. We adults are on vacation."

"The boys will come back changed, with a confidence in their abilities that they may not have had before."

The Chelsea area crew will cover 62 miles in 10 days, climbing Mt. Baldy — at 12,441 feet the highest mountain at Philmont — in the process. The crew will be completely away from civilization for 10 days, stopping at a staffed outpost every three or four days to replenish food supplies.

Daly is a veteran of two Philmont treks in 1968 and 1970 and is now attending with his son, Life Scout James Daly.

"Even at age 17 and in the best condition of my life, climbing Mt. Baldy was an incredible amount of work," Daly says. "It will not be a climb requiring technical skill, just the determination to keep climbing a steep hill that never seems to stop."

"Once we got to the top, it seemed like we were standing on top of the world. Some of the routes to the top follow ravines. In those ravines, before we get to the top of the tree line, there will be snow and we can count on a few snowballs being thrown in the hot summer sun."

As a young Scout, Daly heard an older boy talking about his Philmont trip and his fantasy of hitting a golf ball off the Tooth of Time, a rock formation that drops off precariously.

"Though that Scout never returned to Philmont, I carried an old one-iron and a sleeve of balls on my second Philmont trip and several of us lived out his fantasy," Daly says. Daly says the crew decided, in tribute to Chelsea, to make Jiffy corn muffins while on the trip and will borrow Dutch ovens at the camps.

The crew recently carried out a seven-hour conservation project in the Waterloo Recreation Area cleaning up trash at various trailheads. This project, combined with a three-hour conservation project that each crew will complete at Philmont, will allow crew members to receive the Boy Scout 50-Miler Award.

Nicholas Ryan Nelson, 21, died June 17, 2001, following injuries received in a motorcycle accident. He was born on March 28, 1980, in Ann Arbor, the son of Mark A. and Kathryn S. (Newsted) Nelson.

Mr. Nelson was a 1998 graduate of Pinckney High School, a 2000 graduate of Jackson Community College and a recent graduate of the Toyota T-10 University. He was employed as an auto mechanic with his father at Bob Sacs Toyota in Farmington Hills.

Loved by all who had the pleasure of knowing him, Mr. Nelson was definitely a memorable and unique 21-year-old. He worked hard at what he loved and all of his dreams were coming true. He lived fruitfully on the edge, never regretting anything and always striving for the next goal he would soon achieve.

With years of teaching and guidance from his father, he had become a phenomenal mechanic. He had an amazing skill for discovering a problem and a terrific talent for fixing anything and everything.

Mr. Nelson enjoyed spending all of his time and money on his many toys. Always having the best, biggest, and fastest toys was his ultimate intention. He loved music and craved more speakers and fancy sound systems.

One of his prized possessions was his enormous Toyota truck. He devoted countless hours and many months to achieve its perfection. Hand-piecing every mail-order part with his father and friends, this sacred truck proved his amazing talent. After any given rainy day, he could be found driving his truck through any mud hole he could find.

Mr. Nelson enjoyed long weekends up north with the camouflage-colored van packed full of dirt bikes, Dad and friends. He especially enjoyed riding his dirt bike with his dad. He rode his bike with a passion, like nothing else. Always beaming with pride, he worshipped his new bike and his ability to ride.

Mr. Nelson lived to have fun and to make everyone smile. His family will cherish their memories and hold him dear to their hearts, always knowing that he died doing what he loved best.

Ride on into heaven, Nick.

In addition to his parents, Mark and Kathryn Nelson, he is survived by his sister, Tricia Nelson of East Lansing; his grandparents, Donald and Margaret Newsted of Chelsea, and Frances Nelson of Whitmore Lake; his beloved dog, Sadie; his best friends, Marc, Chris, Justin and Lindsey; and all his riding buddies from Brighton. He is also survived by four uncles, three aunts and six cousins.

A funeral was held at the Holy Spirit Catholic Church in Hamburg, with the Rev. William Thomas officiating. Interment followed at Fairview Cemetery in Brighton. The family received friends at Keahn Funeral Home in Brighton.

Memorial contributions in Mr. Nelson's name may be made to the Tricia Nelson Education Trust. Envelopes are available at the funeral home.

Guide to Saline Area Schools

Anyone who reads the regular "Welcome to the Neighborhood" column in The Saline Reporter knows that upward of 90% of people who choose Saline move here because of the excellent reputation of its school district. Just four years ago, the Saline Area School District put the finishing touches on a $39 million bond issue that included two new school buildings. Last year, school officials, community members, and parents were involved in a community-wide planning process that resulted in the approval of a $124.5 million bond issue for two new schools.

To better serve the needs of newcomers and long-time residents, The Saline Reporter is teaming up with the Saline Area Schools to produce the fourth annual Saline Area School Directory, which will feature information about the district's school buildings, schedules, telephone numbers, community education programs, sports schedules, clubs, and staff as well as the latest reports on the bond issue and a look back at Saline Schools from former teachers and students.

This quality publication is guaranteed to appeal to every parent of school-age children, and will be distributed as well to those families eyeing Saline as a possible hometown. The Saline Area School Directory is a valuable advertising tool to market your business or service, so take advantage of this opportunity to let residents in the district know what you have to offer and reserve your space today! Festival lines up two days of fun

The Chelsea Merchants Association is finalizing plans for the 28th annual Chelsea Summer Fest. The event will be held July 27 and 28 in downtown Chelsea.

The theme for 2001 is "Summer Survivor."

This year's event promises to be bigger and better than ever with several new attractions, along with a variety of exhibitors, several fine arts booths and a full slate of entertainment.

The festival runs from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. each day.

Crowds of between 5,000 and 10,000 people from all over Michigan and Ohio are expected to attend the event, which is cosponsored by McKinley Associates and the Chelsea Downtown Development Authority.

There are several new entertainment acts and attractions scheduled for this year's Summer Fest, along with many local performers and youth groups.

The lineup for this year features a Friday night combo of the renowned Rattlebox and the rockabilly blues sounds of Kung Fu Diesel, one of Michigan's most popular bands.

Longtime Summer Fest favorites and homegrown musicians The Sea Cruisers, featuring the Dover brothers, kick off the Saturday night show. The Cracker Jack Band, last year's big-hit band, will follow.

"This is a very diverse lineup of entertainment," said Steve Daut, entertainment coordinator for the festival. "We have everything from rock 'n' roll to folk, reggae to blues, classic rock to rockabilly, and then some. It's going to be a fun two days."

Kids will be entertained by Colors the Clown, Yo-Yo Master Zeemo, pony rides, Jeff Boyer's magic show and the Flying Aces Frisbee Team, which is a new act this year.

The popular classic car show is back on Friday night, featuring hundreds of treasured automobiles from all over the state. Entertainment at the car show will be provided by the Red Garter Band.

Downtown merchants will host two days of sidewalk sales and in-store specials.

New attractions and events this year include a community wide garage sale with maps provided that list the locations of participating homes, and a Friday night chicken broil at the First Congregational Church on West Middle Street. The broil, co-sponsored by the Church of the Nazarene, will be held during the Classic Car Show.

On Saturday night, a steak cookout, sponsored by the Chelsea Rotary Club, also will be held downtown. In addition, Preservation Chelsea will offer guided walking tours of landmark residences around the downtown area.

A full complement of food vendors and children's activities will be available near the entertainment area in the municipal parking lot behind the Common Grill restaurant.

In addition to the many food wagons, the Common Grill will be serving special festival dishes outside in a terrace setting. The social tent will serve beer and wine from a larger designated area from 3 to 11 p.m. both days.

"The planning committee and area merchants are really, really excited about this year's festival," said Ric Saue, festival director. "We have a great entertainment line up with an unbelievable stage and sound system coming in."

"We've also added many new exciting attractions this year and expanded others. As the event continues to grow, we urge everyone in and around the community to come down and experience the event. We have come a long way from the old sidewalk sales from years ago."

The Chelsea Summer Fest has grown considerably the past three or four years and is the single biggest downtown event of the year. In addition to the many attractions, area merchants as a group hold their largest combined sale of the year.

The festival has become a major source of income for area organizations, which offer food stations during the weekend.
