Water woes continue

■ Tempers flare over neighborhood water use.

Those brown lawns and wilted flowers are beginning to look ugly, but so are tempers as neighbors point fingers at those found wasting water, summer's most precious commodity.

Sunday's torrential downpour did little to provide relief, giving an inch of water in about 11 minutes in Chelsea. Rain was forecast for today, and the summer weather continues with torrid temperatures.

On Tuesday, Village Manager Jack Myers said that despite Sunday's downpour, the water situation remained the same. He asked residents to continue to conserve water by not watering their lawns or washing cars.

Someone calling himself a "concerned Chelsea citizen" listed the recipients of the "Shame On You" awards in a flier distributed around town. The anonymous writer named two local businesses and the addresses of 14 residences where water was used on lawns, flowers, plants and cars despite a water-use advisory issued by the village.

The person, who signed off with "Lord, save our town," wrote that the citizens of Chelsea could thank the offenders if people have to start boiling water for cooking or drinking, if white clothes are ruined because sludge is loosened in water tanks, or if a house burns.

Water Department Superintendent Dan Rosentreter said Tuesday that the village is in no way in such dire straits.

"It's not as if we're one foot in the grave and the other on a banana peel," he said. "We're

Auditor says village books look good

The village recently received a clean bill of health from an auditor who examined the books.

Accountants with Plante & Moran told Village Council trustees July 24 that the village's records and funds appear to be in good shape.

The firm sent a letter to the village in the spring saying strong internal controls and procedures have led to an overall positive condition of the financial records.

Martin Olejnik, an accountant with Plante & Moran, had a few recommendations for village officials, however.

"By keeping the general fund balance healthy and the water/sewer fund sufficient, the overall condition outlook should be good," Olejnik said.

Plante & Moran said that for several years the village has maintained a general fund balance averaging more than $750,000.

In the prior year, ending Feb. 29, 2000, the balance slipped to $628,000 and in the current year it dipped again to approximately $605,000. The reason for the decline is partly due to unexpected and unbudgeted expenses, said Village Manager Jack Myers.

The general fund is financed through revenue from property taxes, state-shared revenue and other sources.

The village generates the majority of its revenue from property taxes. In the 2000 fiscal year, the village collected approximately $1.6 million. The following year, the village netted an additional $100,000 from property taxes.

With continued growth and new revenue generated from property taxes, the village estimates the general fund will hit Chelsea's Downtown Development Authority is getting the wrecking ball ready for the demolition of the former Serendipity bookstore and Staffan-Mitchell funeral home on Park Street.

The DDA accepted a bid from the Farrow Group, a Detroit engineering firm, to bring down both buildings. However, officials said that the buildings likely wouldn't come down until the end of August because permits are pending.

The DDA has contracted a separate company to remove the asbestos from the building and permits will be needed from the Department of Environmental Quality before the demolition begins.

The DDA recently chose the demolition contractor from among bids ranging between $43,000 to $124,000.

Tetra-Tech, an Ann Arbor engineering firm, researched the 10 bids submitted and recommended the lowest bidder.

DDA member Ann Feeney said representatives from Tetra-Tech would supervise the demolition.

For approximately $43,000, the Farrow Group will take down both structures and then possibly break up the foundations and bases, creating holes in the center of the foundations for drainage.

Since the properties have been deeded to the DDA, taxpayers will not be affected by the costs, Feeney said.

Project funding will come from tax increment financing revenue generated from increases in property value at businesses located within the DDA district. The district is located from the clock tower building to Chelsea State Bank's downtown branch.

Soon after the debris is cleared, the DDA plans to lay gravel and open the area to public parking. The area will be paved in the coming months.

Waterloo residents want to preserve land

■ Citizens group meets to discuss urban sprawl.

By Maria Heczel
Special Writer

Preserve the land. That was the wish expressed by the residents of Waterloo Township at a July 24 meeting called to address urban sprawl.

Waterloo Citizens in Action, a group formed in April to promote citizen involvement and educate the public about local issues, sponsored the meeting. Charles Reisdorf, executive director of the Region 2 Planning Commission, was the guest speaker.

Reisdorf explained the importance of citizen participation when deciding on a development plan.

"One of the biggest frustrations of my career as a planner has been the lack of citizen involvement," he said. "It is critical to get involved."

It is the responsibility of residents to say how they want development to occur and it's the municipality's responsibility to turn the wishes of the people into a master plan, he said.

Reisdorf explained the process of developing a master plan, which was adopted by Waterloo Township last fall. Waterloo is now waiting for a zoning plan.

Reisdorf also explained the effect the adopted plan can have on the township.

Jackson County has been engaged in the preparation of a countywide master plan, which is a long-range plan for township sprawl. The kind of sprawl Waterloo Township is dealing with involves changes that take place on individual lots.

"In this plan, we're looking at problems in land-use which extends beyond local unit boundaries. We are looking at enhancing the coordination between communities," Reisdorf said.

The plan is intended as a guide to the development of the township. It includes the adoption of a land-use plan spanning 20 years. The plan is not legally binding.

Waterloo Township's plan attempts to reflect the wishes of the people. It is based on a survey, but doesn't represent all views, Reisdorf said.

The plan mentions farmland preservation, residential development, a road network, a recreation area, as well as strategies for extending public services. All of that seems reasonable, but some people cringe when they hear the words "open-space communities," they visualize cluster.

Cindy Leiter, a member of the citizens group, does not want farming to be lost and the quality of life it brings.

"I worry about seeing a cluster community adopting a suburban lifestyle," Leiter said.

There are other options, such as areas dedicated for different use and infrastructure closer to the city, she said.

Furthermore, Jennifer Puntenney, an earth science teacher at Huron High School in Ann Arbor and resident of Waterloo, wants to see a broader choice for people, more than what's mentioned in the plan.

"The choice for me in this plan of development is a very narrow definition and I would like to see that you can still have value to the land and get the money that you want out of it," she said.

The only solution she sees in the present is to help people buy the land to preserve it. However, people at the meeting said buying land and farming it are expensive.

In addition, Spring Schulz, residency associate at the University of Michigan, wants to see homes built on larger lots. By having homes on one-acre parcels, the stores will come next, then the police stations and other facilities, she said.

"Why does it have to be one or three acres? Why can't it be five and 10 and up? Why can't it be a bigger acreage? That's what I would like to see planned," Schulz said.

While density is a better deal for the developers, citizens do not have to agree with the decision of the county, Reisdorf said.

"A county cannot tell a township what to do. The plan is the decision of the people."

Gawkers

Dear Friends and Neighbors,

We've all been delayed by them, especially on the freeway. You can spend an hour or more driving just a couple miles, and then when you get to the place where the slow-down originated, it might be the most insignificant thing, but the gawkers had held traffic up for miles and miles.

As I was jogging in the park a few months ago, I observed two other things about gawkers: 1) they are fascinated by someone else's misery or misfortune; 2) they don't want to be observed gawking.

This second point I hadn't consciously noted before. But as I jogged in the park, obviously not very comfortable on a warm day, I noticed people trying to sneak a look at me in my agony, and as soon as I looked back at them, they looked away. Interesting.

My next thought was, This world is full of spiritual gawkers. By nature we want to sneak a peek at Jesus in His agony on the cross. But it makes us very uncomfortable when He looks back at us. Uncomfortable for two reasons:

For one thing, we know in our hearts that our sins put Jesus on that cross. We caused His agony, so that He became more disfigured than any man (Isaiah 52:14). This fact is difficult for us to come to grips with and admit.

For another thing, we know that what He did calls for a response from us, a response that changes the entire way we live our lives. We can no longer live for ourselves, but for Him who died for us and was raised again (2 Corinthians 5:14).

We know what Jesus did for us. But we also know that Jesus didn't die to make us feel uncomfortable. He died to save us forever, because He loved us. Every day of our lives, not just on Sunday morning, each of us should ask, "Am I just a gawker? Or am I a disciple?"

Please worship with us - Sunday morning at 10:00 a.m., or Wednesday evening at 7:30 p.m.

Officials require burn permit

■ Chelsea fire officials review policy.

By Kent Ashton Walton
Special Writer

What are the consequences for township residents who fail to get permits to burn leaves or grass?

The Chelsea Area Fire Board looked at the issue and other policies during a meeting last month.

The board said township residents need to obtain a permit whenever they intend to burn materials on their property. If they don't and someone calls the fire department, the owners will be charged for the response, even if the fire is under control. The charge is usually at least $500.

Village residents don't have to worry, though. They are not allowed to burn anything within the village limits anyway. Neither is a resident living within 1,400 feet of the village proper. According to Chelsea Fire Chief Dan Ellenwood, if a permitted fire goes out of control, the resident still will be billed for the department's services. But without a permit, the fire department has the option of contacting the Department of Natural Resources to request charges be brought for damages, as well as services.

Ellenwood said that when passersby call to report a fire out of control, a record of the resident's permit avoids the need to make a run and to bill for charges. The resident simply may be called to ensure the fire is under control.

Obtaining a permit is easy, Ellenwood said. All it takes is a call to 475-1339 and a dispatcher completes the necessary forms over the phone. The resident does not need to go to the fire station or mail in a form.

After a resident applies for a permit, instructions are given as to where and what can and cannot be burned. Residents can also get advice and information about conducting burns.

They can also find out about regulations for burns in approved containers that don't require permits.

In other business, the fire board agreed to charge Chelsea resident Vince Burg for repairs to a gas meter manifold damaged when struck by the homeowner's riding lawnmower. Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. informed the board that the damaged manifold the company repaired is the property of the homeowner.

Also, Mark Nottley, consultant for the Michigan Municipal League, presented an update to the board on the Needs Study Project report for the Chelsea Area Fire Authority. He is interviewing firefighters and contacting other fire agencies as part of an investigation into whether the fire department requires full- or part-time employees.

Nottley said the demographic data is still incomplete and, although it would be difficult to project needs 10 years ahead, he hoped to provide an idea of the costs and requirements of moving from a paid-on-call to a full-time operation.

The information will help officials determine whether a millage for fire protection is needed.

Nottley said a preliminary draft of his report would be available by Aug. 15.

The board tabled a vote to hire Robert Moore, an equipment appraiser for MCM Group Inc. and an independent consultant, to do an assessment and inventory schedule to bring the fire authority in compliance with state requirements.

Recycling fees may increase

■ Public hearings set to establish special assessment districts.

By Lisa Allmendinger
Staff Writer

The cost for recycling in western Washtenaw County may get a little more expensive.

The Washtenaw County Board of Public Works has called for two public hearings to get residents' input regarding a proposal that would establish two special assessment districts to pay for recycling.

District 1 is comprised of the villages of Chelsea and Manchester. Its recycling assessment will increase from $30 to $37 per year.

District 2 would place the townships of Bridgewater, Dexter, Lima, Lyndon, Manchester and Sylvan into a separate special assessment district. Recycling fees would be $22 per year for each household that has been located on a parcel in the district for a five-year period. Township residents are currently paying $17 per year.

A public hearing will take place at 7 p.m. Aug. 22 at Manchester Township Hall.

The recycling authority cites a drop in market prices for recyclable material as the need for the increase in fees.

About 3,100 tons of materials are recycled via the Western Washtenaw Recycling Authority, reducing the amount of solid waste that is taken to the landfills.

The types of materials recycled through the program are newspapers, cardboard, magazines, phone books, glass bottles, aluminum, tin, aerosol cans, plastic, office paper, and clear and colored glass.

The cost of recycling these materials does not cover the cost of the program, which includes drop-off points, the processing center and educational programs.

There is a report on file that breaks down the costs of the program at the Washtenaw County Director of Public Works office at the Washtenaw County Annex, 110 N. Fourth Ave., Room 200, Ann Arbor. For more information, call 994-2398.

Understanding The Law

with Leonard K. Kitchen, J.D. and Thomas L. Stringer, J.D.

Whether it is for drawing up a will or purchasing real estate, nearly every one calls upon the expertise of a lawyer at some point in his or her life. When doing so, a recent survey indicates that three-quarters of Americans rely on family and friends as their resource. When choosing a lawyer, a similar percentage (75%) of Americans indicate that trustworthiness is the most important criterion, while 53% put the greatest emphasis on the attorney's years of professional experience. Forty-two percent choose a lawyer on the basis of cost. These are telling numbers in that they indicate the realization on the part of the public that the serious matter of legal rights requires serious consideration of quality.

At LAW OFFICES OF KITCHEN & STRINGER, J.D., in practice for over 30 years, we offer a free initial consultation so that prospective clients can discuss their legal needs and concerns without financial consideration. While one of the largest firms in the area, we offer personal one-on-one service for a wide range of legal issues, including those that involve real estate, wills and estate probate, family law, contracts and business concerns, and civil litigation. To schedule a consultation at our offices, located in Dexter, at 3249 Broad Street, please call 426-4695.

"The dollar amount in the general fund is a good size, but could be a little larger for other funding needs for the months of March to June," said Michael Swartz of Plante & Moran.

Following property taxes, state shared revenue was high on the list of generated funding. The bulk of the money comes from state sales tax. Last year, the state contributed $446,000 to the village. The numbers climbed to $554,000 this year.

Billing for public safety, general government costs and payments for employee benefits and insurance comprised the majority of the general fund's payouts.

Funding for public safety has remained steady since 2000, with a little more than $1 million in operational costs.

General government expenses topped out at nearly $500,000 last year, but dropped to about $423,000 this year.

With additional staffing and a couple of early retirements, employee benefits and insurance costs increased for 2001. The amount has jumped more than $100,000 from last year.

The accountant's financial report showed a deficit in the water and sewer funds. Water is at approximately $123,000 and sewer is at an estimated $516,000.

Olejnik said because a significant portion of the funds' capital has been contributed in the form of connection fees, grant funding or donations, it is more appropriate to look at the working capital as a measure of the fund's financial position.

"As of Feb. 28, the water and sewer funds had working capital net of debt, available to fund construction costs of approximately $304,000 (water) and $589,000 (sewer). On this basis, the water and sewer funds appear to be in a good financial position," he said.

Overall, the consulting group said it was pleased with the village's record keeping and recommended that the village pay attention to the water and sewer funds, ensuring they provide sufficient revenue for the future.

Council Trustee Jim Myles asked the firm if the village is on steady ground and heading toward a healthy future.

"You are definitely not heading in a wrong economic direction, but during an economic downturn you need to keep your general fund and economic fund healthy," Swartz said. "You also need to consider other factors like population changes and the down turn of state shared revenue, because that's what makes these funds thrive."

WATER

just asking people to conserve water until Mother Nature helps out and sends us some substantial relief.

"We're in much better shape than a lot of other communities, and we can stay that way if people cooperate and don't use any more water than they have to."

The village asked for voluntary conservation efforts a couple of weeks ago when it was clear Chelsea's four wells were having a tough time.

One well quit pumping when the aquifer level fell too low. While the three remaining wells were able to meet the daily demands of local residents, the problem was refilling the tanks in the absence of rain in recent weeks, Rosentreter said.

The elevated water tank, which usually holds 400,000 gallons, was at less than half of that for several days a couple of weeks ago. The ground storage tank, which holds 200,000 gallons, also fell to half that capacity.

By being careful in their water consumption, local residents have reduced their water usage by 200,000 gallons a day, down to 800,000 from the usual level of one million gallons a day.

"This has enabled us to build the tanks back up to full levels and we have almost 600,000 gallons in storage," Rosentreter said.

"However, we still have the problem of the aquifer we pump out of being low because of over pumping to meet the community's needs, and there's been very little rain to recharge it."

Rosentreter said that when the new well comes on line in November or December, Chelsea should not be faced with the problem again. He said the new wells should keep the tanks full all the time.

In the meantime, residents should get into good water conservation habits even if the area does get a good soaking of rain, Rosentreter said.

He said that grass will go dormant but should recover in cooler, wetter weather. If residents need to water their shrubs and trees, Rosentreter said they should put the hose at the base of the tree and water the roots directly rather than turning on a sprinkler that loses water to evaporation.

He also recommended people turn off water while shaving or brushing teeth, take shorter showers, run dishwashers and washing machines only with full loads, and repair leaks and drips. "It's surprising how much water you lose even with only a small drip," Rosentreter said. "If everyone conserves just a little, it means a lot."

Sam Vogel named as new transportation director

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

By the end of the summer, Sam Vogel will have driven every inch of the Chelsea School District.

Sam Vogel

Vogel, who was named transportation director for Chelsea schools in June, is familiarizing himself with the territory. As he drives around the district, he finds out first-hand about every pothole, bump, twisting gravel road, overhanging tree branch and other obstacles that bus drivers face each day.

"There are some really narrow roads, with a lot of overhanging summer growth," he said. "When school starts again, we'll have to remind drivers to keep their roof windows down or they'll get whacked until the County Road Commission trims the trees."

Vogel said he is amazed at how the school district is growing, especially in Sylvan Township, where many new subdivisions have cropped up. He and his staff have been busy mapping new roads and working to increase the use of computerized records.

"We'll be able to fully utilize our new system to run routes, use maps and get complete printouts for our drivers," he said. "It's certainly a step beyond sticking pins in maps."

Vogel, who succeeds Robin Melton in the position, oversees a fleet of 40 vehicles and 47 drivers, substitute drivers and monitors who cover 28 routes a day. He is assisted by transportation secretary Chris Frayer, head mechanic Jim Zenz and assistant mechanic Steve Wolk.

Vogel estimates Chelsea buses cover an average of 1,400 miles a day, many of those on dirt roads.

"The shortest route is 19 miles; the longest 28. Most are in the mid-20s," Vogel said. "The routes are run twice a day, and then we also have the trips to Ann Arbor for special education students."

Vogel, who holds a bachelor's degree in political science and a master's degree in school administration, is a familiar face in Chelsea schools. He taught government and history at the high school from 1970 to 1978, and was the school's assistant principal from 1978 to 1984.

Vogel has coached football and wrestling at various levels for three decades, and for the past seven years has been the middle school coordinator for football and head-middle-school wrestling coach.

After running a custom drapery business in Jackson in the 1980s and early '90s, Vogel became a permanent substitute teacher at the high school in 1997.

He also spent the last 10 years teaching GED preparation classes at Cassidy Lake Boot Camp for Chelsea Adult Education. He originally taught in the '60s at Cassidy Lake for the Department of Corrections when the facility was an unfenced minimum-security prison, and helped design the school in 1971.

"Back then, the school had all the technology that people are excited about getting here in Chelsea today," he said. "We had cable in the classroom and a broadcast system. The only thing we weren't allowed to have was access to the Internet."

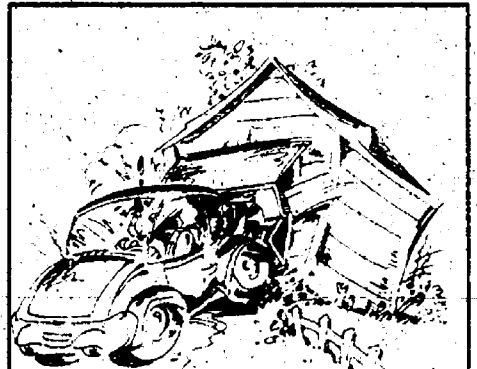

The Garden City native has lived in Chelsea since 1971, although his parents were "summer people" in the area for years. He lives on the family property on Island Lake Road that his parents bought in 1941.

The Dexter Township resident is married to Cheryl Vogel, a fifth-grade teacher at North Creek Elementary School.

The couple has been busy celebrating graduations this summer with twin daughters, Alicia and Beth, graduating from the University of Michigan and son, Ben, graduating from Chelsea High School.

Vogel has served on the board of Chelsea First United Methodist Church and has been a member of the Chelsea Kiwanis Club since 1972.

He also has been assistant manager at Pierce Lake Golf Course for five years, and stays active by working there on Sunday mornings.

■ Officials appear supportive of new regulations.

By Kent Ashton Walton
Special Writer

Lyndon Township officials met recently to discuss zoning for planned unit developments and how to make lot size calculations in the township.

Officials agreed to consider PUD regulations at its next meeting, but the issue involving lot size calculations and easements is more complicated. Officials have agreed additional research is needed before making any changes to the current law.

A couple of trustees said they wanted to avoid "cookie-cutter" lots and integrate natural features into future site plans. Some officials asked who decides what is in the public's best interest, what counts as rural in Lyndon Township and what are design benefits?

Township Supervisor Maryann Noah said that PUD zoning should help the township avoid surprises in the future. Under a PUD agreement, if a developer declares bankruptcy, any purchaser of the land must still abide by the terms of the zoning agreement. Any change of zoning would have to be negotiated with the township, Noah said.

Noah said PUD allows mixed uses in a development without having to rezone for each type of use, such as stores, gas stations and schools. Ultimately, she said, PUD zoning supports the concept of a neighborhood.

Township Ordinance Officer Merritt Honbaum brought up the issue of parcels in properties that are not platted, or properties not divided into subdivision lots, such as those around lakes, where easements are included in calculating property acreage.

Examples of such easements would be the area to the center of the road, usually 33 feet from the edge of the property. Another would be the area along power lines or pipelines running through property.

Honbaum said that Lyndon Township is unusual in that it allows the inclusion of an easement as part of the legal lot size of properties that are not platted. The issue comes up, he said, when property owners want to split parcels, particularly if they are located on a corner.

A corner parcel, he said, could lose 33 feet along two sides of the property. Although the easements are still owned and the legal lot size remains the same, the amount of land one can build on is considerably reduced.

This is especially a problem for septic sewer and water planning on a reduced-size lot, he said. It also means that many two-acre minimum lot sizes have less than two acres of land that can be built on.

POLICE BLOTTER

Scio Township

Embezzlement
Washtenaw County Sheriff's deputies arrested a 38-year-old Ann Arbor man for illegally selling a grill to loss prevention officers at about 5:30 p.m. July 23 at Meijer, 5645 Jackson Road.

Customers complained to store personnel that the suspect, a former store employee, had been attempting to sell a grill and pocket the money.

The loss prevention officers dressed as customers and approached the man. The two officers asked the suspect about grills and the man told them that he would sell the grill for $100 if they didn't tell anyone.

The employee helped carry out the grill and took the $100. The grill was worth approximately $280.

After loading the grill into the car, the officers identified themselves. The man was read his Miranda rights and said that he was behind in paying his rent and was going to be evicted. He was taken to the Washtenaw County Jail.

Warrant Arrest

Deputies arrested a 23-year-old Ann Arbor man on a bench warrant at about 1:30 p.m. near the intersection of Staebler and Park roads.

Officers noticed the man as they passed by him driving south on Staebler Road near Scio Farms Estates, 6655 Jackson Road.

The suspect was involved in a previous complaint and the Michigan State Police were looking for him.

Indecent Exposure

Deputies were called at about 1:30 p.m. July 25 to the parking lot of the McDonald's restaurant, 373 N. Zeeb Road, after a man exposed himself to a 13-year-old Ann Arbor girl.

The girl was standing in the parking lot with another girl playing ball. Both were waiting to meet other friends.

A man in a late-model Toyota was parked nearby and lifted his buttocks out the window and showed the girls. The man drove off when the girl screamed and ran to her mother.

Police put out a bulletin, alerting area officials about the man.

Larceny

Someone broke into a van and stole a number of hand tools between 6:30 p.m. July 23 and 7:30 a.m. July 24 in the 6900 block of Jackson Road.

An employee at Harper Electric Co., 6920 Jackson Road, said that the van was parked near the business. Five windows were smashed and tools were taken.

Stolen Vehicle

Someone took an employee vehicle and did not return it during the night of July 23 from Auto Appearances Corp., 3880 Jackson Road.

The owner of the auto shop said that he believes one of his employees may have taken the late-model Ford. The suspected employee was paid for additional work he did and the following day, the day the car was found missing, he did not show up for work.

The owner said that he is not sure of the license plate number because he uses several plates on a number of the cars.

Police searched the area for the car and has failed to reach the man.

Suspicious Incident

After calling police at about 9 a.m. July 23 to report that a forklift was missing, an employee of FabServ, 145 Dino Drive, found the forklift along the drive of the business. It was damaged and the key was in the ignition.

The $2,000 machine was last seen at the business when an employee left at about 7 p.m. July 22. The employee said that it was missing when he returned to work at about 5 a.m. the following day.

Domestic Assault

A 40-year-old woman called police at about 10:30 p.m. July 19 after her 14-year-old son threw a plastic bowl full of ice cream at her.

Police visited the woman at her apartment. The woman had a large bruise on her upper lip. She said that she told her son to put away the ice cream because she was already making something for them to eat. The boy became upset and hit her in the face with the bowl.

The boy said that he didn't intentionally mean to hurt his mother.

The boy's mother said that this isn't the first time she has had difficulty with her son. The mother said that she has been unable to control her son's behavior. She said that about six weeks ago, her son stepped on her toes and broke them during a fight.

Police called Safe House in Ann Arbor about the incident and filed a victims rights form.

Breaking and Entering

Someone broke into a home between July 17 and July 20 in the 800 block of Parker Road.

Someone pried the back door open and damaged a doorknob and door jam. The owner of the house said that nothing appeared to be missing.

Damage to the door is approximately $100.

Lima Township

Breaking and Entering
More than $2,000 worth of items were taken between 7:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. July 25 from a home in the 9700 block of Jackson Road.

The owner of the house said that when he came home at about 4:30 p.m., he approached the back of the house and noticed the back doors were opened and damaged. Damage is estimated at approximately $1,400.

When he entered the house, the man immediately noticed that his gun and several of his wife's belongings were missing.

The homeowner also noticed damage to a screen window. He said that he thinks that the screen may have been removed to pass the items through the window.

Lyndon Township

Drunken Driving

A 44-year-old Chelsea man was arrested for drunken driving at about 10:40 p.m. July 21 near the intersection of M-52 and Clark Lake Road.

Police noticed the man speeding southbound along M-52 north of Clark Lake Road. The man was driving 71 mph in a 55-mph zone.

When officers approached the man, he admitted to police that he was speeding. Officers noticed that the man's eyes were bloodshot and they could smell a strong odor of alcohol on the man's breath.

He was given a Breathalyzer test, and had a blood alcohol level of .16 percent. A blood alcohol level of .08 percent is considered legally impaired.

The man was taken to the Washtenaw County Jail.

Dexter Village

Property Damage

Someone smashed a van's window between 8 p.m. July 26 and 1:30 p.m. July 27 in the 7700 block of Forest Street.

The van was parked in the yard adjacent to the driveway at about 8 p.m. and the rear of the van was facing Forest Street. The following day, the owner of the van was leaving and noticed that the rear window was smashed.

Home Invasion

More than $1,500 worth of coins and personal belongings were stolen between 9 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. July 23 from an apartment in the 3200 block of Broad Street.

The homeowners had left for the morning to volunteer at Ann Arbor's Veterans Hospital. When they returned, they noticed their apartment had been ransacked.

The suspects came into the apartment through an unlocked door on the west side of the building.

Other items taken included a $5,000 Rolex watch, a $3,500 diamond ring and several other pieces of jewelry.

Chelsea Village

Warrant Arrest

A 40-year-old Belleville man was arrested on a warrant at about 3 a.m. July 27.

Chelsea police officers stopped the man on Main Street, near Will Johnson Drive, when they noticed the man driving a late-model Jeep without any taillights.

The man was wanted on warrants from the Van Buren Township Police Department. He failed to appear in court on a charge of resisting arrest.

He was taken to the Michigan State Police post in Ypsilanti before custody was transferred to Van Buren Township police.

Property Damage

Someone attempted to break into a Dodge minivan between 7:30 p.m. July 26 and 9 a.m. July 27 in the parking lot of Village Motor Sales, 1185 S. Main St.

The perpetrator attempted to break into the van by prying open the front door. Damage is estimated at $430.

Theft

Someone stole a stereo from a vehicle between 7:30 p.m. July 26 and 9 a.m. July 27 at Village Motor Sales, 1185 S. Main St.

The perpetrator broke into the front door and took a stereo valued at $530. Damage to the door is estimated at $430.

Assault

A 31-year-old Manchester man punched a 20-year-old Chelsea woman in the chest July 27 at her home on West Middle Street.

The woman said that she was babysitting the man's son on July 27 and man became rough with the boy when he picked him up from the house.

She told the man not to handle his son in a rough manner, and he struck her in the chest. He then grabbed her and pushed her to the floor.

The woman's husband then came from another room and told the man to leave.

VIEWS ON DENTAL HEALTH

GARY GOCHANOUR, D.D.S.
426-8336

REPLACING DENTURES

If you've been wearing dentures for five years or more, you should take a close look at your appearance to see if there have been any changes. For example, when you look into a mirror does the distance from your nose to your chin seem shorter than it used to be? What about your mouth? Has it "fallen" somewhat or lost some of its resiliency? Does your upper lip tend to pucker more than the bottom one? If any of these conditions are noticeable you may need a new set of dentures.

Dentures tend to settle into the mouth over a period of time and show other signs of wear that may be detracting from your appearance. Even though you may have thought your dentures would last a lifetime, this is not usually the case. They usually need to be adjusted from time to time, and when serious problems develop, they may need to be replaced.

With new dentures some of the defects in your appearance, such as sags and wrinkles in the mouth area, may be decreased or eliminated altogether.

Mosquito testing under way

The Washtenaw County Environmental Health Division, in cooperation with the Michigan Department of Agriculture, Michigan Department of Community Health, Michigan State University and other local health departments will be collecting mosquitoes to be tested for Eastern Equine Encephalitis, St. Louis Encephalitis and West Nile virus this summer.

Encephalitis, an inflammation of the brain, may be caused by many different kinds of viruses, some of which are carried by mosquitoes.

Birds are the reservoir in nature for the two strains of encephalitis and West Nile virus. The viral infection can be transmitted only through the bite of mosquitoes that have previously bitten infected birds.

If the surveillance detects any of these strains, the public will be alerted to take extra precautions to avoid being bitten by mosquitoes. Surveillance is being conducted in several other Michigan counties chosen because they have environments suitable for the transmission of these viruses or because viral activity has been recorded there in the past.

The mosquito samples will be collected weekly and tested for the presence of viral infection.

Dick Fleece, director of Environmental Health, said that mosquitoes could be infected any time and personal measures to avoid being bitten should be taken at all times.

COMMUNITY ROOTS

Get ready for a new era. An era of voting in a central polling place for all elections. An era of paying taxes to only one government entity. An era of living under one local unit of government. An era of more local control.

Kiss the village moniker goodbye, and say hello to the city of Chelsea.

Wait a minute. We won't be called a village anymore? What about the charm?

City of Chelsea, it sounds so urban, so urbane. I suppose next we'll soon see homeless people and increased crime and traffic jams and trash blowing down Main Street - you know, city things. Maybe we'll build a skyscraper and plan for a subway system. Things like that happen in cities.

OK, we'll call it the city of the village of Chelsea.

Whew. That was a close one. We almost took more than 100 years of charm and tossed it out the window.

Excuse my hyperbole. I just had to do it. Believe it or not, it has a point.

A citizens committee is taking strides to make Chelsea a city. Currently, it is chartered by the state as a village. States allow various units of government to incorporate, if they wish, to allow for more home rule.

The state Legislature votes to approve charters, which basically transfer some of the state, county and township power to a more local authority. This gives residents more control over the places in which they live.

Chelsea has outgrown its original village charter dating to the 1800s. The citizens committee seeks to establish another charter, which would incorporate the village of Chelsea (with some annexations) as a city. Chelsea would become an essentially independent unit of local government, gaining more home rule privileges in the process.

So, for the most part (there are exceptions), becoming a city is a good idea. It's hard to argue against giving Chelsea more control of its destiny.

That brings us to the name game. When the state Legislature considers a charter, it incorporates the entity under a name. If Chelsea is chartered as a city under the name "Chelsea," it will be called "Chelsea city." The "village" title will be lost forever.

One solution is to charter under the name "village of Chelsea." That way, you can erect "Now entering the village of Chelsea" signs on the outskirts of town, even though you're a city. That way, you can still call Chelsea a village.

The citizens committee is entertaining this idea. It's not without precedent. Clarkston, in Oakland County, recently established a city charter under village of Clarkston. Orchard Lake Village is also chartered as a city.

I suppose it's a matter of spin, or maybe a matter of aura. What's the first thing that comes to mind when you hear the word "village?" For most, village equals charm. I think of a tranquil stream running through green fields with a cluster of thatched-roofed dwellings. There are horses, maybe some sheep, and maybe the stream turns a mill... I think I'd better snap out of it.

The American Heritage Dictionary appears to agree with me. It defines village as "a small group of dwellings in a rural area, usually ranking in size between a hamlet and a town."

On the other hand, what's the first thing you think of when you hear the word "city?" I think of office buildings and sidewalks and buses and concrete. The dictionary defines city as "a center of population, commerce, and culture; a town of significant size and importance." Is that more appropriate for Chelsea? Maybe not. Where's the charm?

Perhaps we should incorporate under the name of Charm. "Now entering Charm, Michigan," the signs would say. That would definitely make you think quaint thoughts when you mentioned the city.

On a daily basis, none of this matters. Letters arriving here won't be addressed to "Village of Chelsea, Michigan." Newspapers probably won't print datelines with "Village of Chelsea, Michigan" leading the story. And whenever someone refers to Chelsea, they're not going to add "village of" in front. Nobody does this now, and it's doubtful it'll happen in the future.

The only place "village of Chelsea" would be used is on brochures and welcome signs.

Believe it or not, I think that when the city charter is drafted, the issue of keeping the "village" name may become a significant debate, a source of controversy.

Maybe it all comes down to this: Let's say you're on vacation, in Florida, perhaps, and someone asks you, "Where are you from?"

Would you answer, "The Village of Chelsea, Michigan?"

Are you careful to state that you're from a village?

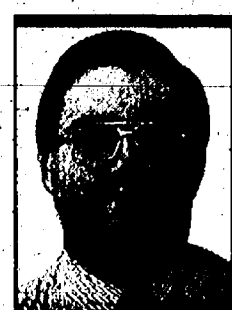

I don't think so.

Instead, you answer, "Chelsea." And now, maybe you'll add, "Plain old Chelsea."

Yeah, that's more like it.

where, but instead a direction in his life.

He talked to me, all smiles, saying he had stopped at a few gas stations and told them his predicament, but no one was willing to help him.

That probably should have been a clue. I bet gas station and convenience store owners get a hard-luck story a day.

His next move reassured me at the time that everything was legit.

He said that he would be in the area every day for the next few weeks and that he would meet me back in the same parking lot the next day to repay me. Or, he said he could mail me a check.

Because I already had plans for the following day, I opted for his second gesture of just mailing me the money.

I didn't have a pen on me so I told him to hold on while I walked back to my car to see if I had one there so I could write down my address for him.

That was the perfect opportunity, I thought, for him to speed away had it all been a con. But he didn't. He stayed there while I rummaged through my car to find a pen, which I never did find.

Walking back to his truck to have him check to see if his wife had a pen in the truck someplace, I noticed his license plate number.

I thought to myself that I should try to remember it, just in case something went wrong.

Nah. That idea soon went out of my mind. He couldn't be dishonest. Everything he had said and done had made perfect sense, plus, he hadn't driven away when he had the opportunity.

Back at his truck, he looked around a little and said there wasn't a pen in there, either. So I reached into my wallet and handed him one of my business cards.

Just mail it to me here at work, I told him.

He agreed, thanked me a few more times and drove out of the parking lot.

And I went on my way, thinking I had done something nice for a man in need.

I did do something nice, but I'm not quite sure that it was for someone who needed or deserved the generosity.

Needless to say, I've gotten plenty of mail here at work since the incident, but nothing has been from the mystery gas man.

In retrospect, I wish I had thought to look at his gas gauge to see if he even needed gas. I'll never know.

But what I do know is that, luckily, he is not the only type of person who has stopped a vehicle to talk to me.

A little while after being ripped off, my car broke down. Ironically enough, near where I met the man.

After steering it to the side of the road and calling for roadside help, one motorist - a noticeably pregnant woman - stopped her car, got out and asked if I needed any help.

She didn't have a cellphone, she told me, but she could drive up the street looking for a pay phone to call someone for me.

After telling her that I already had called for assistance, I thanked her for taking the time out of her day to bother with someone else's problem.

That doesn't happen a lot these days.

"No problem," she said. "I know you would have done the same thing for me."

I only wish I could say that I would have, but I honestly don't know that I would.

Nothing personal against her or anyone else, but in today's busy society, we tend to look straight ahead of us, ignoring all of the problems others are facing to the sides of us, even if they are right upon us.

It's too bad, though, that she wasn't the one to ask me to borrow the $20.

I gladly would have given it to her.

Children work hard at 4-H Youth Show

I was so happy to get The Chelsea Standard and see a picture of kids from our community at the 4-H Youth Show. Thank you for making our kids feel important.

I was a judge at the 4-H fair for the scrapbooking and it was neat to see how hard our kids worked. When given the opportunity and shown a hobby or craft, some kids really get into it.

Children came up and proudly showed me pictures of their pets, friends and family members. With so many kids in line, I had to hurry through a few and the kids were so happy to show me their books that they would say, "Wait a minute, you skipped the page with my dog on it."

One girl even made the whole scrapbook out of paper and hand-wrote and decorated every page. I encouraged her to enter it in the Michigan State Fair.

Some boys did a fine job, too. This year and I gave one honors because he took the time to journal everything about a trip that he was on.

Keep up the great job all who participated in the 4-H Youth Show, the moms and dads who took time off, the leaders who made it happen and, lastly, the paper for showing them off.

Chelsea doesn't need a super-sized library

The July 28 issue of The Chelsea Standard published an article concerning the building of a 24,000-square-foot Chelsea District Library.

In October 1999, there was a millage request for a 24,000-square-foot library. The citizens in the Chelsea District Library voted "no."

The library has hosted charettes this past year seeking community input. At the last charrette I attended several weeks ago, citizens in attendance overwhelmingly said "no" to a 24,000-square-foot library. Bigger is not necessarily better.

More and more computers are in offices and homes for research, genealogy and for the vast information available through the Internet. Federal, state and municipal authorities are wisely looking to contain or control budgets.

The public library, though important to a community, is a changing institution in the 21st century. The large Carnegie libraries of the early 20th century are not valid today.

Yes, our community needs a new library, but not a super-sized 24,000-square-foot facility. Our community needs a library facility that focuses on general reading, children's services, current periodicals and local history, among other things.

An oversized library will require more and more funds for additional staff, maintenance, and operational costs that are beyond what is practically needed to adequately serve this community.

Now is the time to give our attention to a practical proposal for a Chelsea District Library.

Scheffler ends prep career at football all-star game

By Don Richter
Staff Writer

Every athlete wants to test his or her mettle against the best.

Every athlete has the desire to know if he or she can cut it against the elite in their sport.

Last Saturday, at the 21st annual Michigan High School Football Coaches Association All-Star game, Tony Scheffler found out.

Though his team lost, Scheffler proved he is one of the best in his chosen sport.

He can definitely cut it.

Behind three touchdown receptions by Braylon Edwards of Harper Wood Bishop Gallagher, the East defeated the West 38-14 at Michigan State's Spartan Stadium.

A wide receiver, Edwards, 6-4, 209 pounds, is headed to the University of Michigan to play football.

Scheffler caught two passes and was the West team's go-to receiver.

Though snaring just two receptions, the West quarterback looked like Scheffler's way often. The problem was the East's fierce pass rush rarely gave West quarterbacks Carlton Brewster from Grand Rapids Creston and Matt Bohnet from Grand Ledge time to accurately throw.

Though able to get open, the ball was often under thrown or off the mark to Scheffler. "They (West) wanted to give me the ball, but the East was focused on stopping (the pass)," said Scheffler, a starter for the West. "They (East) played well."

Scheffler, headed to Western Michigan University on a football scholarship, said Saturday's game was memorable. "It was awesome playing with so many (future) Division I players," he said. "Soon we'll be able to watch these guys on TV. Just meeting them and developing friendships was great."

Also great was renewing old rivalries. Matched up against Scheffler most of the afternoon was Chris Roberson from Farmington Hills Harrison.

Harrison knocked Chelsea out of the playoffs last fall en route to a state championship. Though Roberson, who'll play for Mid-American Conference foe Eastern Michigan in the fall, was injured for that game — he missed the majority of the season — he still was a Hawk.

"There was a lot of jawing and pushing," Scheffler said. "I didn't have much to say about the Harrison game, obviously. But I had a lot to say about him going to Eastern. I thought Western was a little bit better, so I let him know that."

Roberson said he enjoyed battling Scheffler, both verbally and physically. "He was talking a little junk," he said. "I told him, 'You aren't getting nothing this play. You know, the usual stuff. He's like, 'All right, we'll see.'"

Chelsea's Tony Scheffler started for the West squad at last weekend's Michigan High School Football Coaches Association All-Star game. A wide receiver, he caught two passes.

"He's a big fella. He's kind of strong. He can get off the line. But I'm much quicker than him. He's pretty good, but I didn't have too much trouble with him because of my speed. The height would have been a problem if they (West) had tried to fade (pass). But they didn't do that."

What the West did was go deep to Scheffler.

In arguably the West's top passing play, Scheffler sprinted down the left sideline diving to make the catch near the East's goal line. Scheffler's acrobatics brought the crowd to its feet.

"I would have liked to get the ball more," Scheffler said. "But everyone got the ball a lot. At least I made a big catch."

Making a big tackle was Milan's Jimmy Stines, a fullback for the West squad.

After a West score midway through the second half, Stines, who was on the kickoff team, barreled down the field knocking East return man Roberson off his feet and into the air.

The play brought oohs and ahhs from the crowd.

"Before the play I was like, 'I'm just going to go down the field and put a hit on somebody,'" said Stines, headed to Western Kentucky on a football scholarship. "I saw him (Roberson), he was coming right toward me. I just took it (frustration) out on him. It got me riled up."

Stines, (6-1, 242 pounds) said playing in the all-star game was a great way to end his high school career.

"Getting to know people from all over the state, from the U.P., it's been fun," he said.

Stines said he has definite plans for his future. He said he is going on "to bigger and better things, hopefully."

"At the end of this month, I will be down there (Western Kentucky) ready to play again," he said.

The county's final player in the game was Saline's Chris Schuyler.

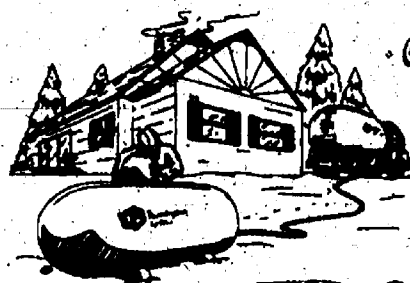

A cornerback, the 5-9, 180-pound Schuyler was matched up against Edwards, Detroit Denby's Robert Strickland (6-4, 205-pound Michigan State recruit) and Kahari Stewart (6-6, 235-pound Iowa recruit).

Michiganians win with full telephone competition

David Palsrok

Michiganians are overpaying for long-distance telephone calls by more than $1 billion per year.

That's because long-distance giants are pocketing that money instead of passing along savings to consumers. For example:

- AT&T hiked rates 11 percent in July;
- WorldCom and AT&T imposed a $1.50 per month "billing charge" on Michigan customers' phone bills — a 74 percent mark-up of the local phone companies' charge; and
- AT&T kept millions of dollars in federal access reform money intended for Michigan consumers.

Recently, the Consumer Federation of America and the Consumers Union wrote, "It is also clear that competition in long distance is not strong enough to translate lower costs into lower prices."

The only way to make sure Michiganians win and start saving money is to bring full competition to the marketplace by allowing all phone companies to compete for all customers.

Soon, the Michigan Public Service Commission (MPSC) may approve an application to allow Ameritech to enter the state's long-distance market, bringing full competition to Michigan.

If the application is approved, Michiganians will benefit from competitive long-distance prices, better service and more choices — for both local and long-distance.

For more information on gaining full competition for Michigan consumers and to support the MPSC's process, contact me toll free at (866) 825-1265 or e-mail palsrok@voyager.net or log on to www.connectmichigan.org.

It's safe to say Schuyler didn't cover too many receivers that big during the Hornets' season last fall.

"It was weird," Schuyler said. "I'm not used to being the smallest one out there. It was wild. It was kind of what I expected, but a little more."

Schuyler said the all-star game experience was enjoyable.

"I came in here only knowing Stines and Scheffler," he said. "Then my roommate didn't show up so I got a new guy. We hit it off. We had a lot of things in common."

Schuyler's roommate was Jeremy Cochrane (6-3, 195 pounds), a defensive back, from Montrose.

Like Schuyler, Cochrane was a state-ranked wrestler in high school.

"All the guys on the (West) team wrestled," Schuyler said. "We talked about that a lot."

Schuyler is undecided on which college he'll attend. "I'll go somewhere," he said. "I think my first year I'll just go to school. Maybe after that I'll play sports."

Chelsea's

CANINE COP

Jeff Staebler, a Chelsea police officer, was partnered with Ripley until a shoulder injury forced the dog into retirement 2 1/2 years ago. His current K-9 partner, shown here, is Tango.

Officer, police dog work side by side

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

Chelsea police officer Jeff Staebler and his partner climb out of their cruiser and head into the Chelsea Village Police station. Staebler settles down to write a report, while his partner stretches out on the floor for a nap.

It's not that his partner is lazy. He's a dog.

The German shepherd named Tango is a familiar sight around town, pounding the pavement with Staebler, his handler.

Tango is the Chelsea officer's second K-9 partner. A dog lover all of his life, Staebler bought Tango's predecessor, Ripley, from a breeder in Wisconsin with the hope she might be used for police work. The pair became Chelsea's first K-9 team in 1995.

Ripley was forced into retirement two years ago by a shoulder injury while tracking a car-jacker for the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department.

Like many retirees, she didn't take kindly to her new status. Staebler says Ripley — named for the strong female protagonist in the movie "Alien" — showed her displeasure by trying to destroy the house.

"Ripley's a 100-mph dog," he says. "She was a great working dog, very friendly but high strung and constantly wound up."

Staebler tried out another German shepherd, Ranger, but realized he wasn't cut out for police work.

The five-year member of the Chelsea police force then chose his latest partner from among five dogs he evaluated at an Ohio breeder. Tango, who was paid for by the police department's drug forfeiture fund, fit the bill perfectly.

"A successful police dog needs to be very confident in its actions," Staebler says. "They were all good dogs, but some had stronger points."

"Tango's personality was what I was looking for. I do a lot of PR (public relations) work with children, and take Tango to schools, Scouts and all kinds of special events around here, so I need a dog that is friendly and laid back when he is not on the job."

And laid back he is. Seeing Tango sprawled on the police station floor, or responding to a child's hug, the 85-pound pooch looks deceptively cuddly. But this canine can leap into action at a single word from his handler, as lawbreakers find to their chagrin.

"Most people won't challenge a dog so they are a good deterrent," Staebler says. "By their presence alone they can de-escalate a situation."

The duo is among more than 3,000 members of the North American Police Working Dog Association, formed in October 1977 and dedicated to assisting police dog teams throughout the world.

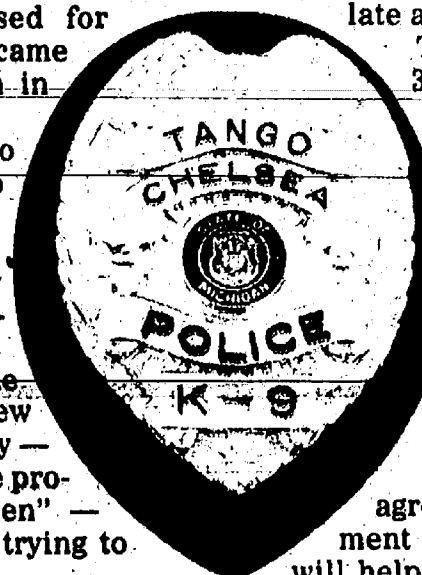

The K-9 team has helped the state police and the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department, and tracked armed robbers in Chelsea.

Chelsea has a mutual-aid agreement with other law enforcement agencies. Tango and Staebler will help out if other K-9 teams are not available.

According to Staebler, the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department has two K-9 teams, Ann Arbor has three, the state police post in Ypsilanti has one and Pittsfield and Northfield townships each have one.

Like Ripley before him, Tango undergoes rigorous training at the K-9 Academy in Romulus, under the direction of owner Terry Schoenbach who has trained police dogs for almost three decades.

After an initial month-long intensive program, K-9 teams train twice a week for two months, followed by once weekly maintenance.

Lansdale's path from bugs to books

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the first in a series of articles The Chelsea Standard will be presenting called "Get to Know Your Officials."

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

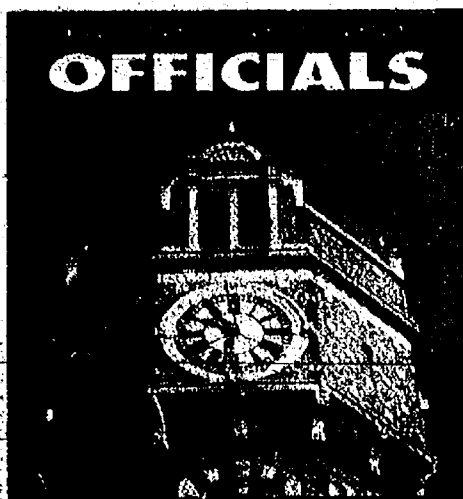

As a child in Cleveland, Metta Lansdale loved bugs.

"We had a huge backyard at home and I was always fascinated by bugs like caterpillars, praying mantis, butterflies and moths," she says.

At the age of 8, Lansdale decided she wanted to be an entomologist. While her eventual career took a different turn, Lansdale, the director of Chelsea District Library, still enjoys natural history books and visiting the Exhibit Museum of Natural History in Ann Arbor, the city she has called home for three decades.

The path from bugs to books began after she graduated from Shaker Heights High School in Ohio. After earning a bachelor's degree in English at Transylvania College, a small liberal arts college in Lexington, Ky., she took her first job as a pre-professional assistant at the Cleveland Public Library, with duties that were half librarian, half secretary.

"It was a wonderful job at the big downtown library," she says. "One of my colleagues was a U of M grad and encouraged me to come to Ann Arbor."

While studying for a master's degree at the University of Michigan Library School, Lansdale developed an interest in medical librarianship.

"I had a wonderful mentor at the library school who said, 'Don't be afraid of it. If you know the English language, you can be a medical librarian,'" Lansdale says.

In 1971, she took her first post-graduate position at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital managing medical and consumer health information.

In 1994, Lansdale moved back to the University of Michigan, where she served MLink, providing specialized information services for public library clients throughout the state of Michigan.

"The hospital environment can be tough, and I always wanted to be a public librarian," she says. "At the U of M, I served as the remote librarian, using the Internet and online databases, doing in-depth information gathering."

Lansdale was in on the ground floor of the development of the Michigan Electronic Library, where she utilized her medical librarian background as selector of the health information resources section.

Lansdale, who also holds a permanent professional certification from the Library of Michigan, became director of the Chelsea District Library in late 1997. It was a homecoming of sorts.

"I used to bring my dog to the Lane Animal Hospital years ago, and when my current dog, Bear, broke his leg, I brought him in," she says. "When I walked through the door, the staff greeted me with, 'Hi Metta,' even though they hadn't seen me in years. It was like coming home."

When she came on board at the library, Chelsea was putting the finishing touches on its district library agreement, forging a coalition among Lyndon, Lima, Dexter and Sylvan townships, and Chelsea Village.

Since then, the director's primary objectives have been to provide the "very best possible library service" and help the board in its efforts to move the library back downtown.

Lansdale says the new library will be fully accessible, have a "fabulous" collection, and offer a wide range of library programming for children and adults.

"McKune Memorial Library, something greater than the sum of its parts, will make all of the Chelsea community proud," Lansdale says.

As if being library director weren't enough to keep her busy, Lansdale is also serving a three-year term as an elected at-large representative to the Public Library Division of the Michigan Library Association.

The fourth child in a family of five girls, Lansdale says she gets some of her best reading suggestions from her sisters and parents. Her current tome is David McCullough's book on America's second president, John Adams.

"I got interested in McCullough's books when my kids and I were at camp and a woman spent the whole week clutching his book on Harry Truman," Lansdale says. "She told me, 'If you read nothing else, read this.' I also read his book, 'The Path Between the Seas' about the Panama Canal, and resolved to read his other books."

A few years ago, Lansdale went on a binge of Patrick O'Brian's series of 20 historical fiction novels about naval exploits of the Napoleonic era.

Metta Lansdale, Chelsea District Library director since 1997, has an eclectic choice of interests, from weaving and music to reading and natural history.

'Marketing MBA In a Day' comes to Southgate

By Mark Rutkowski
Heritage Newspapers

All the skill in the world won't help you succeed in business if you don't know how to attract the right clients.

That, in essence, is the message of marketing expert Dennis Creps, who will bring his award-winning "Marketing MBA in a Day" program to Southgate for a one-day presentation.

The program runs from 9 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. Aug. 8 at the Holiday Inn Southgate-Heritage Center, North Line Road just east of Interstate 75.

Cost of the seminar, which is sponsored by Heritage Newspapers, is $79.

According to Lynn Shaffner, classified advertising director for Heritage Newspapers, the seminar is perfect for business owners, marketing managers, sales professionals and all entrepreneurs.

"It's all about marketing," added Creps, CEO of Tuscon, Ariz.-based Success Seminars, an education and consulting company. "All businesses face a common challenge. That's breaking through the advertising clutter and getting the attention of the customer."

"Most people fail in business because they're invisible to their market. I will show them how to create visibility for whatever product or service they're providing."

In his seminar, Creps will share marketing secrets aimed at increasing sales. Participants will leave with skills and insights they can use immediately, according to Shaffner.

Among the techniques to be taught are:

- Ten ways to attract attention to your ads.
- Rules advertisers break that waste their money.
- Information needed to succeed in an Internet economy.
- Creative ways to attract new customers.

In addition, Creps will talk about one simple idea that added $10,000 to his own income and another that has generated more than $25,000.

"Being a good marketer improves your chances of success," he said. "Being a great marketer guarantees it."

An internationally acclaimed speaker, Creps has appeared before more than 130,000 business professionals in over 400 cities in the United States, Canada and Australia.

A continental breakfast will be served at 8:30 the morning of the event. For more information, call Shaffner at 1-734-246-0892.

nance training.

To receive national certification, ensuring their suitability in the field, the Chelsea pair received training in seven areas:

- Obedience, both on and off the leash, and response to verbal and hand signals.
- Agility
- Building search.
- Searching for felons or lost individuals in large outdoor areas.
- Searching for lost or discarded evidence.
- Tracking or trailing fleeing felons and following the trail of lost people.

• Aggression control, apprehending the fleeing felon and protecting the handler from physical attack.

Additional training and certification is offered in narcotic, explosive, cadaver, accelerant and wildlife detection.

According to Staebler, his four-legged partner particularly enjoys tracking and protection work.

As the human equation in the partnership, Staebler must have complete control over his dog. He uses a variety of spoken commands in German for different actions.

"I use German words so that Tango doesn't get confused between a command meant for a suspect and one meant for him," Staebler says. "He was used to understanding German since he came from Germany when he was 18 months old."

"You can't throw a pebble around these parts without hitting someone with a German heritage, and that includes the two of us."

Staebler says a handler must have complete confidence in his dog.

"A dog would take a batter for his handler," he says. "I know of dogs that have been injured or shot in the line of duty."

Tango was injured crawling through a wire fence while tracking in Washtenaw County but continued despite his pain.

"I didn't realize he had been hurt," Staebler says. "I only discovered later that he had a wound on his rib cage. Since he was lying down in snow, the cold probably sealed the wound shut so it didn't bleed."

Staebler enjoys the challenge of learning dog-handling skills and having Tango and the other two dogs as part of his family.

While Ripley may have been forced to concede her police position at Staebler's side to Tango, at home she is still the boss.

"Ripley lords it over Tango and Ranger," Staebler says. "She rules the roost."

Staff Writer Sheila Pursglove can be reached by telephone at 475-1371 or e-mail at spursglove@heritage.com.

"I had to let him catch up with me," she says. "The books are fabulous, with tremendous detail of politics, culture, dress, food and the ships, and the sailors go all over the world. I couldn't put the books down."

Music is another passion. Lansdale sings alto with the adult choir at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Ann Arbor, where she assists with the church Web site and has also served on its vestry.

"I like singing madrigals, they're pretty bawdy," she says.

A violinist as a child, Lansdale would like to find time to play again. She also plays guitar, banjo and mandolin.

Lansdale has passed her musical interests on to her two teenage children. Her daughter plays piano and stand-up bass in a jazz combo that played at the recent Ann Arbor Art Fair while her son plays bells in a church bell ensemble and used to play French horn.

While working at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Lansdale developed an interest in hand weaving on a floor loom, taking classes at the YWCA and Ann Arbor Community Education.

"I would love to get back to that, and I'd also like to start a herb garden, but with so many evening meetings some days my hobby is just to get to work and get home again," she says.

To nominate a public official for this feature, contact Staff Writer Sheila Pursglove at 475-1371 or e-mail spursglove@heritage.com.

VILLAGE OF CHELSEA REGULAR COUNCIL MEETING — JULY 10, 2001

Present: President Steele, Village Clerk Branson
Trustees Present: Ritter, Schumann, Myles, Cashman
Absent: Trustees Orbring and Hammer, Village Manager Myers

Others Present: Jim Drolett, Cynthia Dopp, William Keeler, Ric Sauer, Barbara Fredette, Rick Fortman

President Steele called the meeting to order at 7:30 p.m.

Motion by Ritter supported by Schumann to approve the Consent Agenda. All Ayes. Motion carried.

President Steele requested that Summer Fest be added to the agenda under New Business. Motion by Myles supported by Ritter to approve the Regular Agenda. All Ayes. Motion carried.

Audience Participation:

Ric Sauer spoke representing OpAve, the Village's web host. He proposed adding a discussion group to the website, at no additional charge, targeted at Chelsea becoming a city. Citizens can post their opinions and thoughts. President Steele asked that this be discussed at the end of the meeting after Summer Fest is discussed.

Correspondence:

President Steele brought to the attention of Council the following correspondence: Summons and Complaint filed by Davenport Construction Co., letter from Village Manager Myers to McKinley Properties, Notice of Variance Hearing for DDA parking lot, zoning text changes, Chelsea Area Construction Agency June 2001 Statement and Interlocal Agreement, Chelsea Summer Fest Operations Manual, handout from Trustee Cashman regarding benefits, a corrected copy of the resolution regarding Western Washtenaw Recycling Authority, letter from McKinley to Manager Myers, and the monthly Zoning Report.

Report from Council Committees:

Trustee Myles reported that the DDA is going forward with dismantling of the Mitchell property and the buildings should be removed by the end of the month and a gravel base will be installed for the parking lot.

Trustee Ritter attended a Lima Township board meeting. Five citizens were appointed to study the contract with Sylvan Township and an engineering firm was hired regarding water and sewer.

Reports from Village Offices:

Jim Drolett, Planning and Zoning Administrator, reported that the next Planning Commission meeting is July 17, 2001 and there will be four site plans and one rezoning request on the agenda. He has spoken to President Steele regarding appointments to the Planning Commission, which should be made this month as three Commissioner appointments expire.

Unfinished Business:

Motion by Myles supported by Schumann to approve the contract with Tetra Tech MPS, not to exceed $11,000, with the report available at the first meeting in August and these funds to be recouped in a special assessment district if and when assigned. Roll Call: Ayes: Myles, Schumann, Steele. Nays: Cashman, Ritter. Motion carried.

(The Village Attorney advised staff on July 12, 2001 that this motion required four yes votes to pass. He referenced Section A-1.13 of the General Law Village Charter. This matter must be addressed at the next Council meeting.)

The Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department Underwater Search and Rescue Team recovered a body in Four Mile Lake July 25. A 14-year-old boy was fishing in the Chelsea Recreation Area, off Dexter-Chelsea Road, when he made the gruesome discovery. The victim appears to be a white male in his 40s, but his body was too badly decomposed to offer any other clues to his identity.

"Uptown, Downtown, All Around Town," is the theme for the 23rd annual Chelsea Sidewalk Festival set Aug. 2 through 3. This year's festival promises to be bigger and better with more events happening at both ends of town.

As expected, the Chelsea Village Council followed the recommendation of its Planning Commission and denied a rezoning request to change 157 acres of agricultural land to allow for a mobile home development. The land is located at the northeast portion of the village off Dexter-Chelsea Road near the wastewater treatment plant.

His car went out of control as he successfully avoided an oncoming car while rounding a curve. He went into the ditch and struck an embankment.

Bill Brown's service station, 295 S. Main St., lost $400 to daylight thieves. According to a report by Chelsea Police Chief John Palmer, two strangers appeared at the station shortly before noon asking if the station was in need of change. Bill Brown Jr., on duty at the time, told them he needed none and they went away. At about 12:30 p.m., the two returned asking prices of tires and directions to Chicago. One of the men stayed in the front of the station while Brown was showing the tires to the other man in the rear. Both men left without making a purchase. Their suspicious actions were recalled when the money bag containing the cash and checks was missed at 3:15 p.m.

Daylilies are beautiful and edible

CHARLENE HARRIS
MASTER GARDENER

GARDENS & NATURE

One of my favorite perennials for color, durability and drought resistance is the daylily. Botanically, the name is Heimerocallis (hem-er-o-KAL-is). The Greek translation is "beautiful for a day," thus daylily.

The daylily, a native of Asia, Japan, Siberia, Korea and China, has now naturalized throughout our country. These exotic plants were brought over by the early settlers in the 16th and 17th century, and escaped from the cemeteries and homesteads. They are now found in most of the United States and Canada.

Grown as a vegetable in the Orient, the leaves, roots and flowers may be eaten raw or cooked. The flowers may be eaten from the bud stage to withered flower. The flower buds are usually cooked. I've tried both the buds and flowers raw; the texture is like crisp lettuce.

The colorful flowers perk up any salad, and they are slightly sweet at the base where the nectar collects. In the Orient, the flowers are collected at the end of the day as they wither and close, then dried and used as thickeners and flavorings in soup.

The tuberous roots are said to have a nutty flavor. I can't vouch for that yet. The younger thinner roots are supposed to be tender and can be eaten raw, while the older thicker roots are said to be rather fibrous and tough and are best cooked.

The predominant wild species that have naturalized in the United States are the fragrant lemon yellow daylily (Heimerocallis liliophylla) from Asia, and orange to tawny daylily (Heimerocallis fulva).

The tawny daylily is tenacious and spreads by runners. Favored as the most desirable "edible daylily," they are tough plants. You will see the tawny orange daylily growing along our roadways. Their roots can penetrate through hard roadbed surfaces.

Since the early 1930s, both English and U.S. hybridizers have been broadening the pallet of colors. Today's colors include near-whites to near-blues and blacks, pinks, purples, and vivid reds and an endless range of color combinations, sizes and petal shapes.

Daylilies do best with at least a half day of direct sunlight. Morning is best. They like good drainage and soil with a neutral pH. They will do well enough with dappled sunlight. The darker, brighter colors fade less with a bit of afternoon shade, particularly at this time of year when it's hot and dry.

The tetraploid cultivars have thicker foliage, are more heat resistant, and have longer lasting, sturdier blooms. The difference is in the extra chromosomes in their gene structure. They are more like romaine lettuce.

The daylily is also a source of nectar for butterflies and birds. Some of the newer varieties have an extremely long bloom period. They begin as early as May and continue blooming until frost, or they may re-bloom throughout the summer. Many varieties are fragrant, and if given the choice I love fragrant flowers that fill the garden with scent.

The larger daylily's foliage can reach 24- to 36-inches tall, with the flowers held well above the foliage. Their blooms vary greatly in size, from 5 to 8 inches across on average.

By comparison, some of the elfin daylily blooms are only 2 to 3 inches across. The delicate little lemon-yellow daylily, Penny's Worth stands only 10-inches tall, with 2-inch blooms. It brightens up a corner in my rock garden. Moisture Retentive Soil Additives

I have often recommended using moisture retentive polymer crystals in the soil around rhododendrons, azaleas and other moisture-sensitive plants. Throughout the years, I have increased its use, and now when planting, I always ask, should I add the crystals?

Growers of potted plants have long used the polymer crystals in greenhouse plant production.

The crystals absorb moisture and can hold up to 200 percent of their weight in water. They work like a reservoir in dry periods. As the soil dries out, the crystals release the water, which is taken up by the plant roots. The crystals are non-toxic and biodegradable, and last 3 to 5 years in the soil.

Some products claim they help aerate the soil by expanding and contracting. As the crystals absorb water, they expand into gel cubes and the cubes contract again as the plant roots absorb the water.

Care should be taken when mixing the crystals into the soil at the time of planting. I had the experience of placing too many crystals in a hole and having the plant lifted out of the soil as the crystals expanded.

This is a great product to use in houseplant soil, planter boxes and outdoor containers. They can reduce the need for frequent watering and prevent the soil from becoming soggy due to over watering.

For outdoor use, the crystals should be mixed in dry soil along with any amendments. I generally dig a slightly wider hole than normal when using the polymer crystals. I want to encourage the roots to grow out and avoid the plant being lifted out of the ground by too many expanded crystals beneath the plant.

Most products recommend about 1/4 teaspoon in a 4- to 6-inch container. These products are also a great to use when starting seeds. Professional greenhouses mix it into their bulk planting mediums. The size of the crystals will vary; some are about the size of sugar, and available in most home and garden stores.

Finer powder types of the polymer are commercially available for use in planting mediums. The powder is available through professional horticultural supply stores and on the Web.

The two trade names I've used are SoilMoist and Supersorb, but there are others. Simply ask for the polymer crystals that absorb moisture.

Watch children near water

By Marla McMackin
Heritage Newspapers

For children, summer is a season of fun, especially time spent in back yard pools.

Water safety experts remind parents, however, that being vigilant while their children swim is a surefire way to save lives.

About 350 young children drown in pools each year nationwide, and more than half of these incidents occur in June, July and August, according to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission.

"Summer is a great time to relax, except when it comes to water safety," said Connie Harvey, an American Red Cross safety expert. "Playing it safe in and around the pool and following a few simple guidelines will help prevent many accidents."

The best advice for families with pools at home is to make sure that all family members, including children, know how to swim, she said.

Other pool safety tips from the Red Cross include:

- Never leave a child unattended near water. It only takes a second for a small child to fall into a pool and slip underwater. When infants or toddlers are playing near a pool, an adult should be no more than an arm's length away.

- Keep basic lifesaving equipment near the pool, and learn how to use it. This could include a reaching pole, a portable phone and flotation devices — such as life jackets and ring buoys.

- Surround a back yard pool with a fence at least 4 feet high on all sides. The safest fences will have vertical bars with spacing small enough that children cannot slip through them.

- Keep toys away from the pool area. Toys can attract children, so it is a good idea to keep them out of sight when the pool is not being used.

- Learn CPR and consider insisting that anyone else who cares for your children also learn CPR. Post clear CPR instructions and your local emergency number in a visible place near the pool. Installing a phone in the pool area or keeping a cordless phone nearby also is useful.

- Make an emergency plan. If a child is missing from the pool area, check the pool first. Make sure to go to the edge of the pool and scan the entire body of water, bottom and surface, as well as the surrounding pool area.

By taking these safety precautions, pool owners can reduce the high number of drowning deaths that occur each year among children 5 years and younger.

"To put it simply, never, ever leave a child unattended around a pool," Harvey said. "Almost one-quarter of the infant and child drowning deaths each year occur in the home, the majority of which could have been prevented if an adult had been there to supervise."

Guide to Dexter Area Schools

Dexter Community Schools is in a state of change. An ambitious building project is expected to culminate in the spring of 2002 with the opening of a new high school. In the fall of 2002, there will be shift, with the transformation of the old high school into Creekside Intermediate School, which will house pupils in fifth and sixth grades. Wyllie Middle School will become an elementary school for third- and fourth- graders. Bates and Cornerstone elementary schools will serve pupils in kindergarten through second grades. Mill Creek Middle School will continue to accommodate seventh- and eighth-graders.

Ross Stephenson, deputy superintendent of Dexter schools, said enrollment in 2000-2001 topped out at 3,089. He anticipates an increase of 100 students next school year.

To better serve the needs of newcomers and longtime residents, The Dexter Leader, in cooperation with the Dexter School District, will produce the annual Dexter Area School Directory, which will feature information about school buildings, school board members, school officials, schedules, community education programs, clubs and staff. GUIDE TO MANCHESTER AREA SCHOOLS

DEADLINE IS FRIDAY, AUGUST 10
Published September 20

When families look to relocate, among the first places they look is at the reputation of the community's school district.

The turn of the century is an exciting time for the Manchester district as plans move forward for a bond issue to expand and renovate its current facilities and build a new high school, in response to rapid growth throughout the Manchester area. A long-range planning committee has been formed and has made great strides in assessing the existing facilities and the needs for the future.

To better serve the needs of newcomers and long-time residents, the Manchester Enterprise is teaming up with Manchester Community Schools to produce the first annual Manchester Community Schools Directory, which will feature information about the district's school buildings, board members, schedules, telephone numbers, community education programs, sports schedules, clubs and staff as well as the latest reports on the community-wide planning process and a look back at the district from former teachers and students.

This quality publication is guaranteed to appeal to every parent of school-age children, and also will be distributed to families eyeing Manchester as a possible home town. This directory is a valuable advertising tool to market your business or service, so take advantage of this opportunity to let residents in the district know what you have to offer. Reserve your space today!

Over 2500 copies will be published September 20.

Dexter Daze to be another success

By Corey Roepken

Staff Writer

Downtown Dexter will be overrun with art, crafts, food and entertainment during Dexter Daze Aug. 10 and 11.

The event, marking its 23rd year, will be held from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. next Friday and Saturday, with most activities taking place in Monument Park in the heart of downtown.

On Saturday, a parade will make its way down Main Street, beginning 10 a.m. at Wylie Middle School and ending at the village hall.

A new feature of this year's parade will be the Celtic Pipe and Drum Corps, directed by George Kate. Other traditional parade sights will include the Dexter High School marching band, local Scouts, fire trucks and classic cars.

The Celtic Pipe and Drum Corps will perform a concert at the gazebo following the parade.

The park will be full of booths both days displaying the wares of artists from Dexter and across the United States.

In addition, six musical acts will grace downtown with their sounds beginning in the late afternoon each day.

The Herrold-Gordan Small Band will play jazz music at the gazebo

Lots of fun is on tap for Dexter Daze, which is slated Aug. 10 and 11 in downtown Dexter. The annual festival features arts and crafts, musical entertainment, children's entertainment and a social tent.

stage from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Friday. They will be followed by the "oldies" music of Big Pinky and The Joint Effort Band from 5:30 to 7 p.m., and Al Hill and the Love Butlers will play blues and rock 'n' roll from 8 to 11 p.m.

The Witch Doctors will open

Erin Alber of Chelsea had a caricature drawn of her during a past Dexter Daze. The artist who did the drawing was among many to line Monument Park during the two-day festival. This year's event promises just as much fun, with artists, entertainment, food and children's activities.

Saturday's musical entertainment with rock and blues, beginning at 3:30 p.m. The RFD Boys will play bluegrass from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m., and George Bedard and The King Pins will close the festival with some rock, blues and "oldies" from 8 to 11 p.m.

Other live entertainment will include Max the Moose, Zeemo the Magnificent, storyteller Adam Mellema, Colors the Clown, the Dexter Orchestra Band and juggler Jonathan Park.

Live entertainment won't be the only attractions, however. The Knights of Columbus, 8265 Dexter-Chelsea Road, will host a bingo tent, and the Dexter District Library, 8040 Fourth St., will hold a book sale on Saturday.

The Dexter Area Museum, 3443 Inverness St., will display artifacts and archives of early Dexter families, as well as handmade miniatures of a schoolhouse, log cabin and farm machinery from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. both days.

There will be a cemetery tour at 2 p.m. Saturday, and Dexter American Legion Post 557 will sponsor a steak fry Friday, with St. James' Episcopal Church hosting a chicken barbecue Saturday.

Dexter Daze began as a sidewalk sale organized by business owners to increase downtown business and has evolved into a two-day festival complete with all the attractions.
