Local man's son-in-law escapes attack

Victim worked on 85th floor of Tower 1.

By Lisa Allmendinger
Special Writer

On Sept. 9, Janet Adams was packing for a flight to New Jersey to baby-sit one of her grandchildren.

Gary Adams, a former Lima Township supervisor, said she was really upset about the trip. She did not want to stay in New Jersey until Sept. 16, her scheduled departure date. But because the difference in airfares was so great, this was the most economical way to go.

"She was really upset that Sunday before," he said. "Then later this calm came over her and she said to me, 'God wants me there.'"

On Sept. 10, Gary took his wife to Detroit Metro Airport—a trip the two had taken many times during the last five years since their daughter, Jean, married Ray Bruening and moved to Red Bank, N.J.

Gary came back home to take care of a long list of chores on the couple's 220-acre Oakcleft Farm. That evening, Janet called from Red Bank, to say they had gotten back to the house and were sitting around talking.

The morning of Sept. 11, Ray headed to work in New York City. He traded crude oil on the New York Mercantile Exchange and his office was located on the 85th floor of the World Trade Center in Tower 1.

Gary went outside to do chores and take care of the more than 40 beefalo. When he came back inside, he noticed that his mother had called three times in 20 minutes. Thinking that odd, he called her back. It was then that Gary heard about the terrorist

Lima gets sewer, opposes cityhood

Handful of residents speak against sewer agreement.

By Kent Ashton Walton
Special Writer

Lima Township will enter into an agreement with Sylvan Township to receive sewer services and oppose the Chelsea Village initiative to become a city.

The board approved both decisions Monday.

The issues surrounding the Sylvan sewer service have been hotly debated in several recent meetings. At Monday's meeting, there were still many vocal opponents to the plan.

Some property owners are concerned about incurring costs when special assessment districts are created. Others questioned the need for an expensive sewer service that is perceived as benefiting developers rather than the community.

Among the 20 or so people at the meeting, some saw the sewer issue as a pointless political maneuver to block annexation by Chelsea Village. Others questioned the technology and expenses involved, comparing the costs of tap-ins by Chelsea and Sylvan Township.

The board argued that joining with Sylvan Township offered Lima some degree of control over future development, with the sewer costs being borne by developers, but admitted that bringing a sewer to Lima would encourage development, which they viewed as inevitable.

The resolution to join Sylvan Sewer Authority includes a variety of conditions, including an open-ended time period for completion of the Lima sewer districts, and no time limit on the start of construction.

It also requires no accrual of interest or fees for unused capacity as part of its financial obligations with the start of sewer use.

There was little discussion or disension over the board's resolution to oppose Chelsea's initiative to become a city. The opposition to the move centers on the township's potential loss of revenue.

If Chelsea Village becomes a city, it will annex land in Lima, reducing the taxable value and property tax going to Lima Township coffers.

The board's resolution states that the State Boundary Commission has expanded the boundaries of the proposed city to include additional land in Lima Township, thereby reducing revenue to the township.

The move would also mean that the township's operating

New township hall opens

Employees no longer have to work in the basement.

By Lisa Allmendinger
Special Writer

At 8:30 a.m. last Wednesday, Dexter Township Hall employees were dressed casually, beaming with energy, while beginning their first of numerous trips from their dingy basement digs to their bright, airy new offices in the township hall addition on the first floor.

Carrying box after box up the stairs, the employees joined two movers as the procession progressed throughout the day. And in the end, where once there were hundreds of file boxes, then there were none.

Township Hall was officially closed on Sept. 12 as employees directed movers with heavy file cabinets into the new offices upstairs.

For office manager DeNette Bolyard, after almost seven years in the "dungeon," a move to the window-filled, well-ventilated new office space was a welcomed change.

"I can't wait," she said as the well-orchestrated move was beginning.

Dexter Township Hall was built in about 1970 and the employees were crammed in 3,300 square feet of space. The addition provides another 2,850 square feet.

Clerk Harley Rider and his wife, Vita, the assistant clerk, were sharing not only a cramped office but also a desk.

"We'll have the same amount of office space," Rider said, "but it will be laid out better and there will be two desks."

The staff had one window air-conditioning unit for the entire area, with walls that separated the clerk's and treasurer's corner offices from the main space that housed the office manager, her assistant, the supervisor, zoning administrator and assessor. Heat was provided primarily by space heaters.

Bolyard didn't have a desk. Her computer and some of her files sat on a large table. She looked at a wall decorated with a few posters, and a window that was partially above ground level.

By Thursday, she was seated at a desk, surrounded by light blue walls, blue-and-gold speckled carpet and tile that leads in from the new front entrance.

The color scheme and office furniture décor were chosen following six months of planning and research by Kim Jordon, the assistant office manager.

"It was a lot of work," she said with a smile.

Jordon, like her coworkers, was excited to put the new area to use.

Last Thursday, Lawrence Salliotte, a builder from Ann Arbor, had the distinction of being the first person to be helped by staff at the new counter.

The total cost for the new surroundings is about $550,000. Bowers and Rein Associates of Ann Arbor are the architects.

TERRORISM'S LONG REACH

People flock to local churches

■ Services and vigils held throughout week.

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

Local churches have provided sanctuaries of prayer and emotional healing for people since the recent terrorist attacks.

Pastor Alice Sheffield opened the doors of North Lake United Methodist Church on the day of the attack, inviting the community to come for a time of prayer.

"Several people stopped and were thankful for the opportunity for a quiet time in the presence of God," Sheffield said.

The Rev. Jeff Crowder of the Chelsea Church of the Nazarene said his church has participated in community events in addition to regular church services.

"These have been important to help provide a place for those without a faith community," Crowder said. "They have also been a source of unity and camaraderie between different congregations."

Crowder said he has seen a full range of emotions displayed, including pride in the efforts of rescue workers, anger and vulnerability.

"I've heard many speak about their need to reprioritize their life," he said. "Things that seemed important just a week ago now seem much less so."

"I've had the privilege of working with folks who have decided that financial security and military might are not all they've been cracked up to be."

The Rev. Dave Horning of St. James' Episcopal Church in Dexter said some of his parishioners seem frustrated.

"It's as if the adrenaline has kicked in and there's no way to focus," Horning said. "Others have had a depressive response — just let me go to sleep and wake up when it's over."

Horning held a prayer service on Friday. He is using e-mail to send prayers to members of his congregation.

On the evening of the attack, people gathered at worship services at St. Mary Catholic Church and Our Savior Lutheran Church. The Chelsea Ministerial Association held an ecumenical service at the First Congregational Church, with members of The Chelsea Church of the Nazarene, Zion Lutheran Church, the First United Methodist Church, St. Paul United Church of Christ, and St.

James Episcopal Church of Dexter.

The Rev. David Cleaver-Bartholomew of the First Congregational Church of Chelsea said that local resident Candace Pappas contacted him and volunteered to call around to spread the word. Alex Weddon also put out information over the local news network.

Cleaver-Bartholomew contacted other members of the clergy who put telephone trees into action.

"Our primary purpose was to give people a place to gather together for comfort and support," Cleaver-Bartholomew said. "A lot of people were still in shock, with a sense of denial."

Members of the different churches gave scripture readings and meditations, providing a variety of religious responses and viewpoints for the participants.

"There was a lot of personal prayer and reflection, a lot of silence, and sympathy for the victims and their families," Cleaver-Bartholomew said.

Throughout the week following the attack, churches opened their sanctuary doors for people seeking solace, and held prayer services.

President Bush declared Friday a National Day of Mourning and Remembrance, and churches responded with prayer services.

An impromptu prayer service and candlelight vigil was held Friday night in the parking lot of the Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home, with clergy from St. Mary Catholic Church, Chelsea First Methodist Church, the First Congregational Church and St. Paul United Church of Christ.

Cleaver-Bartholomew said that local clergy has seen huge increases in attendance at their churches.

"What I tried to impress upon my own congregation was that Judaism, Christianity and Islam are all three sisters of the same family," he said. "There has been backlash against Muslims and people of Arabic descent, but we should not evaluate the entire Islamic faith on the basis of some extremists and radicals."

TERRORISM'S LONG REACH

Teachers help students cope with events

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

Chelsea educators have spent the past week trying to help students cope with the devastating events of Sept. 11, when terrorists attacked the World Trade Center in New York City and the Pentagon in Washington, D.C.

Beach Middle School Principal Bill Wescott said the staff is trying to keep school and activities as normal as possible for pupils.

"Staff and students have done amazingly well but, like all of America, we are trying to deal with this senseless tragedy," Wescott said.

The school held a moment of silence on the National Day of Prayer and Remembrance Friday. The Student Council is raising money for Red Cross relief efforts, with staff and students donating to the cause.

Wescott said counselors are available for students on an individual basis.

Barb Fisher, lead teacher at the Alternative High School, said it has been rough to teach students of high school age.

"The day of the attack, we spent most of the day glued to the television watching the events unfold," Fisher said. "The students were anxious and had questions as they watched."

"Wednesday was a much more difficult day because more information was available and the shock was wearing off."

On Thursday, the alternative leadership class decided to ask students to vote on making a donation to the American Red Cross from their fund-raising account. Students voted to send $300, money that would have gone toward field trips and social events.

Students, working in teams, made hundreds of red, white and blue ribbons and distributed them in the community.

"I think this activity made them feel like they were doing something to make a difference," Fisher said.

Fisher said staff was able to review the geography of the Middle East this week and discuss the consequences and alternatives that the United States faces.

Students had a donation box available at their annual barbecue, held Tuesday to kick off the new school year.

North Creek Elementary School Principal Sharon Whitmore said her pupils are responding well to an atmosphere of safety and security.

"We answer their questions as honestly as we can, always referring them back to their families," Whitmore said. "We feel our greatest power in overcoming any anxieties is to give them a way to help out and experience a feeling of control and power."

To that end, North Creek pupils will be sending a card to New York City, collecting pop cans to donate money to the Fireman's Fund, and making and selling ribbons to help victim's families.

South Meadows Elementary School Principal Lisa Nickel said each teacher spent a few minutes of the day following the terrorist attack to discuss the event and ease concerns.

"After that, I've had very little talk about what is going on, not even at recess or lunch," Nickel said. "I do think that for many of the elementary students, it is beyond their scope of comprehension."

Nickel said that her staff is aware that if an individual student needs assistance such as counseling, it can be available fairly quickly.

"I anticipate that if this is needed, it will be for those students whose families are directly touched such as military or family members who are missing," she said.

At Pierce Lake Elementary School, students signed posters proclaiming their pride in being Americans. The posters were displayed at the Sept. 13 open house.

All three elementary schools paid tribute to the country by holding Red, White and Blue Day.

Chelsea High School Principal Ron Mead said that teachers, especially those who teach social studies, are using the events to teach about history and how it relates to the students.

Student Council President Janelle Vlcek led moments of silence at all three lunches on Friday, the National Day of Mourning and Remembrance.

During the Southeastern Conference cross country Jamboree at Hudson Mills last week, high school senior Sarah Maynard played the national anthem on her violin, and a moment of silence was held prior to the race.

Approximately 35 high school students attended a prayer vigil in the parking lot prior to Friday's football game against Saline. Student Council members placed luminaries at the entrance to the stadium.

Pre-game ceremonies included the band playing "America the Beautiful." Saline students were invited to join with Chelsea students in singing. A Saline student joined with high school student Molly Walters in singing the national anthem, followed by a moment of silence.

"We performed as students from Chelsea and Saline, and spectators in the stands sang along," band director Rick Catherman said. "It was an emotional situation for me as a musician, teacher and American."

Catherman said the recent terrorist attacks in New York City and Washington, D.C., were made personal to the music students because of their annual trip to New York City in February. The entourage has stayed at the Marriott in the World Trade Center.

"Many of the students toured the top of the towers while on the trip, which made the tragedy that much more personal," he said.

THE UNINTENDED
Unintentional torts make up the largest amount of litigation in the field of personal injury law, but not every unintentional act that results in an injury to another person, or in damage to property, is a tort. Only those acts that are negligent form the basis for a tort. For one to be liable for damages for an unintentional tort, the injured party (plaintiff) must prove that the other party (defendant) was negligent. To do so, the plaintiff must show that the defendant owed a duty of care to the plaintiff, that the defendant breached that duty through a negligent act or omission, and that the negligent breach of duty owed was the proximate cause of the plaintiff's injury.

An example of unintentional injury would be an accident which occurred as a result of one driver losing control of his or her vehicle due to icy conditions and sliding into another vehicle. Of course, if the first driver was driving in excess of the speed limit, then he or she would be considered negligent. ## TERRORISM'S LONG REACH

Help is available to handle stress

In light of terrorist attacks in New York City and Washington, D.C., Nancy Siegrist, director of behavioral health services at Chelsea Community Hospital, said that the Assessment Triage Group has been on call to receive telephone calls from members of the community who are troubled.

The number to call is 475-6051 or 1-800-328-6261. The Assessment Triage Group will help guide people to a person who can help them.

Doug Dault, director of social work at Chelsea Community Hospital, sent a memo to hospital staff members outlining the sort of stress responses to traumatic events that people might expect to experience.

"The events of Sept. 11, 2001, have evoked powerful and overwhelming emotional responses and reactions that we do not expect to cope with in our daily normal living," Dault said in the memo.

Whether involved directly or indirectly, people are most likely experiencing physical and psychological responses, he said.

Dault said that these reactions are normal responses to abnormal events and that recognizing this will help people cope more effectively. He added that it is important to remember that stress reactions will ebb and flow as more information becomes available.

Some physical responses may include headaches, heartburn, fatigue, difficulty sleeping, nightmares, loss or increase in appetite.

Psychological or emotional responses may include denial, numbness, anxiety, fear, feelings of helplessness, anger, outrage, grief, inability to concentrate and intrusive thoughts.

Dault said that stress responses usually happen immediately and will change over time in intensity, frequency, duration and character. Emotional wounds take time to heal and vary with each individual. Traumatic stress reactions must run their course.

The passage of time and talking things out with family, friends, colleagues, clergy or counselors will help. People should take good care of themselves by eating healthy meals and getting plenty of rest and staying in touch with people who care.

Too much exposure to the TV or media can overload the senses and slow down the healing process. Alcohol and drug abuse can prolong the pain.

Dault said if the impact of the event exceeds a person's ability to cope and if the intensity of their reactions increases or is prolonged, they should seek help from someone who can assist them.

Seniors make ribbons for service

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

Members of the Chelsea Senior Center are making ribbons to be given away at tomorrow night's community memorial service 7 p.m. at Chelsea High School.

Chelsea Greenhouse donated the ribbon material and Chelsea Pharmacy donated pins.

Colleen O'Neill, director of the Chelsea Senior Center, said she is seeing a lot of emotional pain among the seniors since the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center in New York City and Pentagon in Washington, D.C.

Lois Verville, 67, a child during the attack on Pearl Harbor, said that last week's attack is far worse than what happened in Hawaii during World War II.

"This is on our own mainland soil," Verville said. "Pearl Harbor had some good and bad. The bad was the fact we were at war. The good that came of it was that people helped each other."

Elizabeth Drouare, in her late 80s, said that this attack was foolish and unnecessary.

"They hate the United States because we are a good nation," Drouare said. "We don't ask for anything, we just give and give."

Drouare feels that just as the attack in Pearl Harbor led to young men signing up in the armed forces in droves, there will be a wellspring of young people volunteering to fight.

Alison Marable was celebrating her birthday on Sept. 11. It was a day she will never forget.

The Chelsea resident was listening to the radio that morning when the news broke of the first airliner hitting the World Trade Center. Marable ran to the TV set to watch the news.

"My first thought was that this was no accident, and if, indeed, it was intentional, Washington D.C. would be the next target," she said. "Sure enough, it was."

Marable has a sister who works in downtown Washington, D.C., and who has children in nearby schools.

"I was crying all day and kept trying to call her," Marable said. "I couldn't get hold of her. It wasn't until 2:30 in the afternoon that she made it home and called me."

"Her husband didn't arrive home from work until late that night due to traffic from the evacuations."

Marable's husband, Michael, was also impacted by the disaster. His employer, Borders Group Inc., had two stores in the World Trade Center.

"CEO Greg Josefowitz sent out e-mails to employees saying he was trying to locate the staff,"

Is There a Safe Place in this World?

Dear Friends and Neighbors,

Technically, we were pretty safe out here in Dexter Township last week Tuesday. It was a beautiful day, and life went on as normal for the birds and butterflies and chipmunks.

But it wasn't normal for us, because we knew what was happening, and even though it was happening over 550 miles away, we couldn't help but feel for the thousands of people and their families who were undergoing unspeakable things. Their suffering was, and continues to be, our suffering.

"We also couldn't help but wonder, 'What's going to happen next? Can any place be safe ever again?'"

Yet the Bible says, "If you make the Most High your dwelling...then no harm will befall you, no disaster will come near your tent" (Psalm 91:9-10). "The Most High," of course, is the true God.

The Bible does not guarantee physical safety for anyone. Undoubtedly many victims of last Tuesday's disaster were devout Christians. The Bible does make several things clear, however: "When we put our trust in God through

His Son-Jesus Christ, He's not going to let anything happen to us unless it's for our eternal good (Romans 8:28). Also, nothing "will be able to separate us from the love of God that is in Christ Jesus our Lord" (Romans 8:39). That includes terrorist attacks; it even includes death.

Is there a safe place in this world? You might say, "No, after what we saw last week no place is safe." Then again, you could say, "YES, through faith in Jesus Christ, God's Son, my Savior, I have made the Most High my dwelling, and for me every place is safe. No matter what happens to me here, nothing can tear me away from Him."

Please join us in worship this Sunday morning at 10:00 a.m. Make the Most High your dwelling. He might not make you perfectly courageous overnight, but He will be with you in this life and give you eternal salvation in the next life.

TERRORISM'S LONG REACH

Sales of American flag in huge demand

Local storeowners waiting for deliveries.

By Will Keeler and Shella Pursglove
Staff Writers

Area businesses have been swamped with people trying to buy flags in the wake of recent terrorist attacks in New York City and Washington, D.C.

Many storeowners have sold out of the American emblem and are waiting for delivery.

Hackney Hardware, 8105 Main St. in Dexter, sold its last flag Sept. 12.

"We didn't have much in stock," said store manager Bill Devoe. "A tragedy like this, you really can't beef up your stock."

The store carried 10 different kinds of American flags in a variety of sizes, but most of the stock was flags small enough to fly off of a porch, he said.

The store hopes to restore its depleted supply by next week, but Devoe said it may be difficult because flags are high in demand. Nationwide, ACE Hardware has sold more than 48,000 flags.

Busch's ValuLand, 3219 Broad St. in Dexter, has also seen the same sell out.

The store sold the rest of its inventory left from the Fourth of July holiday.

"There is really no way to get any more in stock," said store manager Steve Hernandez.

"I'm waiting in line for more flags like everyone else."

GRP Flag sales in Williamston, near Lansing, ran out of flags by Saturday.

Owner Joe Ellsworth is taking names and will contact people when he has stock.

"People were asking me to scour the back room," Ellsworth said Tuesday. "I was finding flags back there that I didn't even know I had."

Ellsworth buys from several suppliers. He said that Annin &

Co. has stopped processing orders at its five plants until it can catch up with demand.

Another supplier, Flag Zone in Georgia, ran out of material. Flag making company, Eder, in Wisconsin, has told him that orders will take six to eight weeks to process. Ellsworth is hoping to get more flags soon from Flag Source in Chicago.

Ellsworth, who said he has never before seen an outpouring of interest like this, said he hopes people will maintain their interest in flying flags.

"We should always be proud to fly the American flag," he said. "People should also understand flag ethics, how to treat it and fly it. Our flag boxes have pamphlets explaining this."

GRP's Web site can be accessed at www.GRPFlags.com or 1-877-477-3524.

Dayspring Gifts, 115 S. Main St. in Chelsea, sold out of flag lapel pins almost immediately. Senior associate Veretta Whitaker said the store will order more pins and flag T-shirts.

When the Arbor Nook Gift Shop at Chelsea Community Hospital ran out of flags, hospital auxiliary volunteer Mary Harris called her son, Rob Stofer, of RE/MAX real estate company.

"We provide the village of Chelsea with American flags every Fourth of July," RE/MAX manager Kelly Cooper said. "We were happy to donate some of the flags we had left over to Chelsea Community Hospital to distribute to those who were unable to find them after the recent tragedy in our country."

Becky Pazkowski, Chelsea hospital's marketing manager, said that the flags were distributed within two hours. The gift shop still has some lapel pins and candles bearing the flag emblem.

Pazkowski saw hundreds of flags flying across the country during a harrowing drive from San Diego on the Wednesday morning after the attacks. Unable to get a flight home, she and a woman from Indianapolis rented a car together and drove 2,400 miles across country.

"In all the major cities, there were huge flags hanging from overpasses and buildings, and smaller flags flying from homes and cars," she said.

In a massive outpouring of patriotism, residents all around the local area flew the U.S. flag.

Flag etiquette

Information on flag etiquette can be found online at www.history.org/betsy/flag-etiquette.html.

Summarize a few of the rules. When the U.S. flag is displayed against a wall, the union should be to the flag's own right, to the observer's left. The flag should be displayed in a window, doorway, or on a wall, and should be illuminated at night, even by something as simple as leaving a porch light on.

A flag should never be draped over the hood or off the back of a vehicle, or a boat or train. While some flags are made to attach to a car antenna, the staff of a larger flag should be fixed firmly to the right fender of the vehicle.

The flag should never touch the ground, floor, water or merchandise.

It should never be used as apparel, bedding or drapery, or used as a covering for a ceiling.

It should never be fastened, displayed, used or stored in such a manner as to permit it to be easily torn, soiled or damaged in any way.

A lapel flag pin should be worn on the left lapel near the heart.

To fold the flag: fold the flag in half width-wise twice. Fold up a triangle, starting at the striped end and repeat until only the end of the union is exposed. Then fold down the square into a triangle and tuck inside the folds.

attacks in New York City.

He got off the phone with his mother and played the phone messages. There was one from his daughter telling him that she was on the phone with her husband when the plane hit the World Trade Center.

Numerous phone calls went back and forth to New Jersey and to other family members.

Gary was alone in Chelsea watching the events unfold on television. His wife and daughter were praying for a phone call from Ray.

"They were terrified watching the replays," Gary said. "The skyline was in smoke and we all knew Ray was in the building."

"I felt the possibility that he was alive was extremely small, but I didn't know."

Meanwhile, his wife and daughter were trying to shield toddler Stephen from what was going on so he wouldn't be traumatized, Gary said.

The wait continued. Within two hours, there was good news. "Dad, he's alive," his daughter said.

A massive phone-call campaign to family members and friends began.

"We are all concerned about how he will deal with the ear-nage he saw," Gary said. "It's worse than what people have seen on TV."

Janet arrived back home Sunday — driven by other family members. Both sets of husbands and wives were reunited.

Police misidentify teen

Police say message on rock was in poor taste.

By Will Keeler
Staff Writer

A Chelsea teen-ager was misidentified and detained Sept. 11 after he painted a message on the rock at Pierce Park. After terrorist attacks in New York City and Washington, D.C., last week, the teen and his friends painted a peace sign on the rock and wrote "Bush is not my president. God help us."

Officers stopped by the park and told the group that the message was in poor taste and village officials painted over it.

"The message was in poor taste in regard to the attacks," Chelsea Police Chief Lenard McDougall said.

McDougall said that the rock is a symbol of public speech, but thought the message might offend someone.

The officers later returned to the park because they thought that the teen was someone who had a warrant out for his arrest.

According to the teen, police did not ask him for identification, but handcuffed and put him in the back of a patrol car.

When officers realized that the teen was not who they thought he was, they apologized and immediately released him.

McDougall said that it is customary at times to detain someone while officers look into a matter, especially when a situation may be volatile.

Schools block Internet sites

Computers have Cyber Patrol installed.

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

The technology specialists at Chelsea schools are on patrol to prevent students from viewing Web sites that the school district deems as inappropriate.

Technology specialist Scott Wooster gave a presentation to the school board Aug. 27 about the Children Internet Protection Act.

The district has about 800 computers connected to the Internet, Wooster said.

"To help make the Internet as safe and appropriate as possible, we utilize Cyber Patrol," he said. "This software helps to block access to inappropriate Web sites in the K-12 educational environment."

Cyber Patrol scans the Internet on a daily basis looking to block sites deemed inappropriate.

"On a nightly basis, our system contacts Cyber Patrol and downloads the latest sites to block," Wooster said. "There are multiple categories we have options to block."

The school district blocks sites that have partial nudity, nudity, intolerance, sexual acts and text, satanic or cult information, alcohol and tobacco, militancy and extremism, violence and profanity, gross depictions, questionable illegal and gambling, and drugs and drug culture.

In addition to using the blocking software, Wooster said that adult supervision is utilized.

When the Internet is used for research, teachers are encouraged to already have appropriate sites available. Students are then directed to specific, pre-approved sites.

"It's our goal to continue to seek new technologies that will help us monitor Internet use in the district," Wooster said.

Red Cross reports outpouring of help

The Washtenaw County Chapter of the American Red Cross reported that as of Tuesday more than 6,000 people had donated blood at local donor centers, or registered to make an appointment to donate.

A phone bank had been established to field the thousands of incoming calls from people wanting to know how they could help after the Sept. 11 terrorist attack on the World Trade Center in New York City and the Pentagon in Washington, D.C.

More than 1,880 volunteer hours have donated over a period of five days.

Local residents are also giving generous monetary donations, with contributions totaling more than $40,000.

The Red Cross is asking that people call 1-800-GIVE LIFE or the local chapter at 971-5300, or log on to www.wc-redcross.org to schedule an appointment to donate blood. Blood will be needed for weeks to come.

To hold a corporate blood drive, call Randy Hadcock at 1-734-487-3334.

Checks may be sent to the American Red Cross Disaster Relief at the American Red Cross, 2729 Packard Road, Ann Arbor, MI 48108. Secure credit card contributions may be made online at www.wc-redcross.org.

The phone number of the local chapter of the American Red Cross is 971-5300.

LIMA

budget would be borne by fewer residents.

Township Supervisor Ken Unterbrink summed up the board's mood by saying, "As the needs of the township residents grow, so must the township."

At the meeting, there was a feeling that history had been made and the township had fought another battle for survival.

Explorer Post Donation

Millage rates stay the same

The total taxable value of all properties in the Chelsea School District is $587,952,417.

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

Chelsea School District Superintendent Ed Richardson has been wearing two hats since Jim Novak, executive director of business and operations, left in early August to take a job in San Francisco.

At the Sept. 10 school board meeting, Richardson recomended that the board appoint him as election administrator and deputy to the board secretary for the purpose of conducting and supervising all school elections, a responsibility Novak once took care of for the school district.

Richardson also recommended that he handle election-related matters and serve as deputy to the board treasurer to perform the duties of the board treasurer. The board approved both recommendations.

The board also approved the 2001 millage rates. The total taxable value of all properties in the Chelsea School District is $587,952,417, with $563,338,891 in Washtenaw County and $24,613,526 in Jackson County.

The 2001 taxable value of non-homestead and non-qualified agricultural property is $190,885,581. The operating millage on these properties remains at 18 mills.

A debt retirement millage of 7 mills will be divided equally for paying the 1995 debt and the 1998 debt.

The sinking fund millage, used for facility repair or improvements, is set at 0.9782.

Rodgers ends training

Grace Rodgers, a 1999 graduate of Dexter High School, has graduated from the Army Reserve Officer Training Corps Basic Camp Challenge at Fort Knox in Kentucky.

The camp is a five-week training program that serves as the Army's two-year ROTC program entry point. College students experience and examine the Army without incurring an obligation and quality for the Advanced ROTC Course program.

The Army observes and evaluates cadets to determine their officer potential, leadership abilities and skills, while cadets are trained to have a sound understanding of traditional leadership values.

Cadets receive training in fundamental military skills, rifle marksmanship, small arms tactics, weapons training, drill and ceremonies communications and squad-level operations field training.

Rodgers, a student at Michigan State University, is the daughter of Jonathan and Anala Rodgers of Scio Township.

Amazing Grace

Local poet's work published in new book for children

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

When Ginny Ryan gets an idea for a poem or story, she usually mulls the idea over in her head for a few days. She then jots down her thoughts in longhand on a yellow legal pad before heading to the computer.

But not this time.

Her poem, "Breakfast Prayer," published in "Amazing Graces: Prayers and Poems for Children," evolved in about 20 minutes, she says.

"The lines sort of wrote themselves," she says. "I feel very fortunate to have had my poem selected for June Cotner's book."

The book is a juvenile version of the best-selling adult anthology "Graces," now in its 24th printing and compiled by Cotner.

Ryan's three verses, which have the honor of opening the section on mealtime prayers, gives thanks for several things, including wheat and corn, cows and bees, warm rain and sun.

The Dexter Township resident knows plenty about farming. A native of Iowa, she grew up in a large Mennonite community near Iowa City. She moved to this area in 1968.

Ryan's foray into writing was as a high school student in Iowa.

"It just seemed a natural thing to do," she says. "It was a personal method of expression in which I found fulfillment."

Ryan finds inspiration from such writers and poets as Madeleine L'Engle, E.B. White, Robert Louis Stevenson, Emily Dickinson, Robert Frost and Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

"My most favorite book as a child was 'Girl of the Limberlost' by Gene Stratton Porter," she says. "I treasure an old copy I found at a used book store some years ago."

"Other favorite books were Nancy Drew and the Hardy Boys. Our choices weren't nearly as great as they are today."

Ryan is well aware of the positive results of reading to children early. She says she started reading to her own son, Carl, "as soon as he would hold still," and the two read poems and stories together until he was ready for middle school.

"We still talk about books that we read when he was a youngster," she says.

Ryan has been a member of an Ann Arbor children's writing circle since 1987, a group she found after an article appeared in a local paper. The writers meet once a month.

"It's made up of six to eight individuals who write principally for children," she says. "We critique for each other and support one another's endeavors in getting our creative efforts published."

"This group has provided a great deal of encouragement and know-how in the manuscripts I have submitted for their consideration."

Ryan, who enjoys writing for the 5- to 8-year-old range but has also written for pre-teens and young teen-agers, has had stories published in a Sunday school paper, "Story Friends," but has so far not had any books published.

"I place my emphasis on writing clearly and graphically so that children can understand and picture in their minds what the story or poem is about," she says.

Having taught in Ann Arbor for 30 years, Ryan brings a wealth of experience to writing for children. While her early teaching experience was in regular elementary school classes, she holds a master's degree in special education for emotionally impaired students.

"I was drawn to special education by the special-needs children in my regular classrooms who struggled to keep up with the other students or who were so preoccupied with their emotional problems that they couldn't focus on learning," she says. "I found that working with them required extraordinary patience but was very satisfying."

She also has been a Sunday school teacher, pianist and secretary-treasurer of the Ann Arbor Mennonite Church, a small group that meets at the Arrowwood Community Center in Ann Arbor.

Since retiring from teaching in 1988, Ryan has volunteered with the Care and Share Cancer Support Group in Chelsea and Meals on Wheels in Dexter. She also has been involved in the Ypsilanti Hope Center as a live-in hostess for an elder hostel near Sturgis and with the Friends of Stinchfield Woods, an organization of people who hike in and appreciate the 777-acre University of Michigan property.

Nature is one of her main interests and subject matter for her writing. While Ryan's Iowa upbringing brought her into daily contact with cows, pigs, chickens, dogs, cats and Banty roosters, allergies prevent her from keeping pets. She centers her wildlife interest mainly on bird watching and has written on the topic.

"My other interest, bee keeping, is based on 17 years of beekeeping with my husband," she says. "I've written several articles about beekeeping experiences, none of which have been published."

Ryan's future plans are to continue writing, and to travel, hike, volunteer, take piano lessons and enjoy her two granddaughters, Becky and Catherine.

Lucky girls. This grandma not only reads to her grandchildren, she writes poems and stories for them, too.

Marge Hinerman (left) and Steve Rogers, residents of the Chelsea Retirement Community, enjoy a quiet moment in the new rhododendron garden beside the retirement community's chapel. Rogers, a member of the Ann Arbor chapter of the American Rhododendron Society, was instrumental in the creation of the new garden. Two "Marjie Kay" plants in the garden are hybridized rhododendron plants named for Marge Hinerman by her late husband, Dorin Hinerman.

Rhododendron garden is a haven for Chelsea retirees

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

When Steve Rogers moved from Ann Arbor to the Chelsea Retirement Community a year ago, he found himself homesick for his rhododendrons.

Turning yearning into action, Rogers, a member of the Ann Arbor chapter of the American Rhododendron Society, envisioned a rhododendron garden in a sheltered nook beside the community's chapel.

As a gardener plants a seed, so Rogers planted the idea in the minds of Chelsea Retirement Community Administrator Connie Amick and Rhododendron Society President Clyde Higerson.

Project Rhododendron did not exactly get off to a blooming good start. Three weeks of prolonged rain in May kept the plants in society member Jan Gibala's Ann Arbor backyard until they could be moved to their new home, well beyond their blooming period.

Members of the Rhododendron Society provided plants for a layout designed by chapter secretary Sandra Hansen of Dexter.

Don Golec, director of plant operations at the retirement community, assistant George Schaeffer and other maintenance staff prepared the ground, put in a walkway and donated a wood bench.

When the garden, which includes varieties of rhododendrons, azaleas, ferns and hostas, was complete, a dedication service was held on Sept. 5.

Approximately 40 people attended, including society members, local residents, and retirement community staff and residents. Heath Goodwin, a retired minister and resident of the retirement community, gave the blessing.

Carolyn Dana Lewis and Marie Cochrane, members of the Ann Arbor chapter of the American Rhododendron Society, participated in the dedication ceremony, and memorialized members of the society who are now deceased.

This was not the first attempt at a rhododendron garden at the Chelsea Retirement Community. A few years ago, resident Marge Hinerman donated several rhododendron plants from her Ann Arbor home.

The plants, sometimes referred to as the "King of Shrubs," are delicate in the Michigan climate and require special care, Hinerman said. They failed to thrive in the area where they were planted. The little garden beside the chapel provides a sheltered corner, protecting the new arrivals from the elements.

Hinerman has a particular affinity for rhododendrons. Her late husband, Dorin Hinerman, a former Chelsea Retirement Community resident who died in 1996, hybridized rhododendrons as a hobby. He was a founding vice president of the Ann Arbor chapter of the American Rhododendron Society.

When he produced a plant of special beauty and quality, Hinerman would name it and register it with the Royal Horticultural Society of England. He named several plants after members of the family, including one after his wife, in the 1980s.

To her delight and surprise, members of the Rhododendron Society arranged for two of the bright pink hybridized "Marjie

County to set traps for virus study

■ Dead crow infected with West Nile virus found in area.

By Will Keeler
Staff Writer

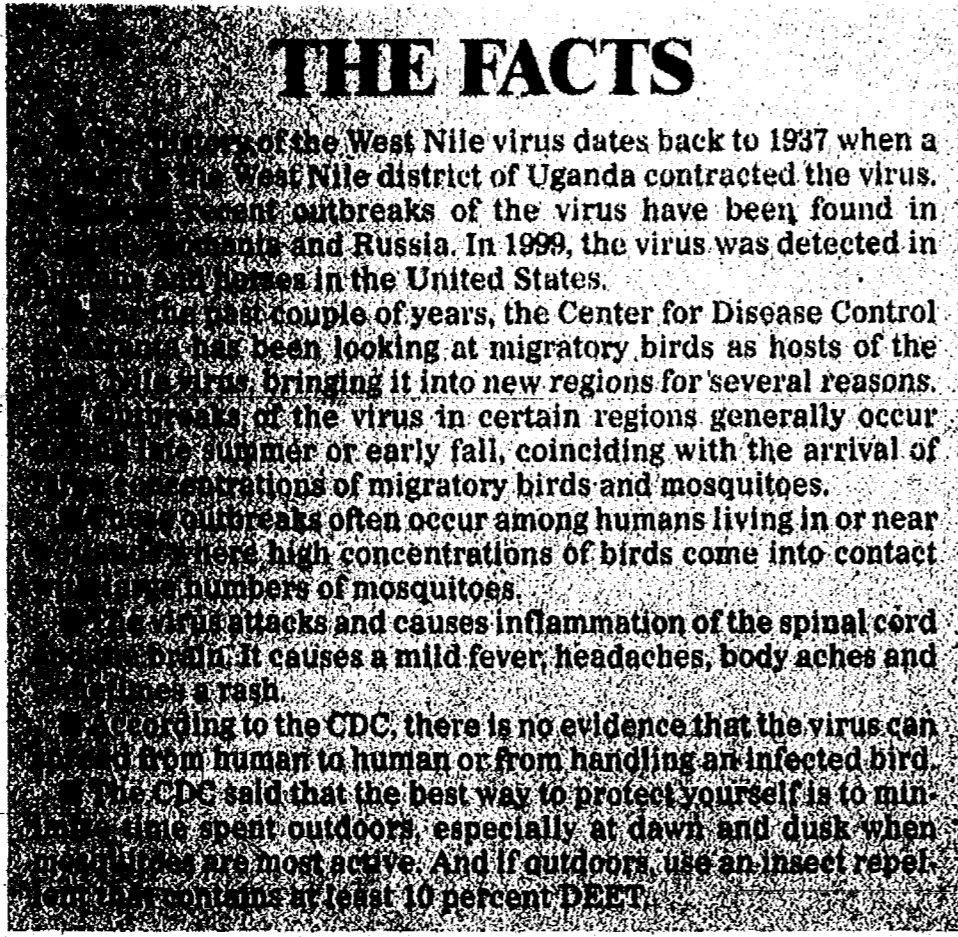

To help learn more about the West Nile virus, the Washtenaw County Health Department is joining other health departments in surrounding counties to set mosquito traps near area homes.

The health department said that the traps will help them determine the path of and severity of the virus.

As of Sept. 11, the health department had identified one crow near Ann Arbor that was infected. There have been no positive reports of the West Nile virus in the Dexter or Chelsea area.

Collectively, 44 crows in Michigan have tested positive for the virus, with an additional 10 awaiting confirmation, said Karen Bamsey of the Washtenaw County Environmental Health Department.

Bamsey said that a group from the health department will be asking permission from residents to set traps in many areas in the surrounding area.

THE FACTS

The history of the West Nile virus dates back to 1937 when a West Nile district of Uganda contracted the virus. Recent outbreaks of the virus have been found in Europe and Russia. In 1999, the virus was detected in Florida in the United States.

In the past couple of years, the Center for Disease Control has been looking at migratory birds as hosts of the virus, bringing it into new regions for several reasons. Outbreaks of the virus in certain regions generally occur in the summer or early fall, coinciding with the arrival of large numbers of migratory birds and mosquitoes.

Outbreaks often occur among humans living in or near areas with high concentrations of birds come into contact with large numbers of mosquitoes.

The virus attacks and causes inflammation of the spinal cord. It causes a mild fever, headaches, body aches and muscle pain.

According to the CDC, there is no evidence that the virus can be passed from human to human or from handling an infected bird.

The CDC said that the best way to protect yourself is to minimize time spent outdoors, especially at dawn and dusk when mosquitoes are most active. And if outdoors, use an insect repellent that contains at least 10 percent DEET.

Two types of traps will be set. The first will use a mixture of water, fermented rabbit pellets and grass clippings that brews over several days and attracts certain types of mosquitoes.

The other kind of trap uses a combination of dry ice and light to attract the mosquitoes.

Bamsey said that the mosquitoes are attracted to the dry ice because as it evaporates, carbon dioxide is given off, and mosquitoes are attracted to the carbon dioxide.

The health department said that the best protection for humans against the virus is to avoid mosquito bites. To avoid bites, one should wear long sleeves and pants when working outside. Anyone older than 2 years old should also use mosquito repellent with DEET.

The health department also said that to keep mosquitoes out of buildings use door and window screening and drain standing water in yards where mosquitoes may lay eggs.

For more information about the West Nile virus, call 1-734-481-2505.

Friend of the library

Cole honored as a longtime library supporter and member of library group

By Sheila Pursglove
Staff Writer

Some of Allen Cole's earliest memories of the Chelsea District Library are of spending evenings there with his brother, Dale, when he was a youngster.

The owner of Cole Funeral Chapel moved to Chelsea in 1977 when his father, Don, bought the Burghardt Funeral Home.

"Believe it or not, some of my first memories of the Chelsea library were nights my brother and I would go there so we wouldn't have to be so quiet," Cole says. "We weren't supposed to make much noise when there were visitations downstairs."

Cole, who was honored in August as Friend of the Year by the Friends of Chelsea District Library, has had many connections with the library since then.

After graduating from Chelsea High School in 1984, he headed to Michigan State University and earned a bachelor's degree in mathematics education.

After marrying his high school sweetheart, Chelsea native Wendy Westphal, in 1988, he taught high school in the Grand Rapids area for a couple of years before moving back to Chelsea to join his father at the funeral home in 1991.

"I loved the library, its staff and, in particular, the used book sales," Cole says. "Ben Bower, who chaired the book sales at that time, asked for help, and I couldn't refuse Ben."

His involvement in the book sales led to Cole becoming a friend of the library, and then to serving on the Library Board for about a year.

"I enjoyed being a board member but had to resign when we moved out of the village into our home on Sibley Road," he says.

Cole later became active with the Friends, eventually serving as the group's president for several years, then as its treasurer for three years. He also served as Sylvan Township's representative on the Chelsea District Library Committee.

"I don't currently hold a position in the Friends, but was really thrilled when the Friends chose to honor me in this way," Cole says.

Cole, who has two sons, Brian, 7, and Joshua, 3, says he loves being a dad more than anything else. He volunteers in Brian's North Creek Elementary School second grade classroom with computers and reading, and helps with Den 2 Pack 435 Cub Scouts.

He is an active member of the Chelsea Free Methodist Church and a member of the Chelsea Rotary Club. The club has done several repair projects at the library, carried out reading projects in local schools and sold books to raise funds for the library.

Cole also has been active in December's Festival of Lights, and used his ties to the library to get them involved in this holiday celebration.

His own taste in reading runs primarily to nonfiction.

"I love to learn new skills and find out how and why things work," he says.

Cole says the best improvement ever made at the library, in his view, was becoming part of the Michigan Library Network. This has enabled him to search the resources of more than 60 libraries to find unusual or obscure topics.

He enjoys books on tapes, especially for long car trips, and sometimes borrows music CDs.

"Things I'm not sure that I want to buy but that I'd like to hear first," he says. "And, of course, with two young boys, I primarily borrow children's books now."

Cole and his family also enjoy the summer reading program and the children's reading sessions.

The funeral chapel has its own library on grief and funerals.

"I get great satisfaction from helping families who are struggling with the loss of a loved one," Cole says.

His favorite Friends of the Library activity is still the used book sales, seeing them as a three-way win.

"Somebody gets rid of a book they no longer want, somebody buys a book they want for just a dollar or two, and in the process the Friends make a lot of money for the library," he says.

Staff Writer Sheila Pursglove can be reached at 475-1371 or via e-mail at spursglove@heritage.com.

The Friends of Chelsea District Library honored Allen Cole at an Aug. 5 potluck. He is a longtime member of the group, board member and loyal supporter. Pictured are Treasurer Jay Jernigan, Jennifer Kundak, Secretary Mitch Planck and Cole. Not shown is Greg DeGraff, acting president of the group.

Library to repeat gardening program

The Chelsea District Library will host a repeat of the fall gardening program with Advanced Master Gardener Connie Bank. The previous program resulted in a long waiting list.

The new session is set for 7 p.m. Wednesday in the meeting room at the Chelsea District Library, 500 Washington St.

Bank, who earned her advanced master gardener certificate from Michigan State University Extension in 1993, owns Garden Tutor. She will discuss what to plant in the fall for the best results in the spring; the proper way to cut back and winterize; and she will answer questions.

Registration is required. Call the library at 475-8732.

GARDEN

Kay" plants to be planted in the CRC Rhododendron Garden.

"It was a wonderful surprise," Hinerman said. "It was such a thrill to sit and watch the society members planting the Marjie Kay rhododendrons in the garden."

Hinerman said that her son-in-law, Michael Stenning of Massachusetts, who has a garden full of plants named for family members, will now order Marjie Kay plants for his yard.

Hinerman praised Rogers' efforts in bringing the project from conception to fruition.

"Steve is very efficient and gets the job done," she said.

Rogers, who worked for Ford Motor Co. before his retirement, said there was previously some "pretty scruffy stuff" in the corner where the garden now lies. He said the garden is a work in progress, a challenge he is looking forward to meeting.

It's that time of year again: fall cleanup

CHARLENE HARRIS
MASTER GARDENER

GARDENS & NATURE

The rain and cooler fall weather is most welcome. Now is the time to get a jump on spring with fall cleanup and preparation of new beds for next year.

I started last week cutting down my perennial foliage. First to go were German, Japanese (Ensatia) and Siberian iris leaves. This week, I cut back the daily foliage and the remaining lily stalks that haven't been nibbled away by rabbits. As I cut back the foliage, I mark the plants that need dividing or that I want to move, with bamboo stakes.

A couple of my hostas have outgrown their location. They are out of proportion with the surrounding plants. The two very large "Sum and Substance" hosta have a 5-foot spread and are crowding out the delicate Maiden Hair and Japanese Painted Ferns beside them. The hostas take up two-thirds of the 15-foot bed. The plants are impressive but oversized for the location.

I've been looking at it for weeks out the window, imagining new possibilities. Over the Labor Day weekend, I decided to bite the bullet, dig everything out and redesign the entire bed.

The bed is highly visible, directly in front of our living room bay window near the front door. I pass the window from the inside at least a couple dozen times a day en route to the bathroom or as I walk in and out of the house.

I've had a humming bird feeder hanging over the bed for the last three years, and it's become a high traffic area for them. It is not unusual to see three or four of them feeding with others zooming around the feeder in holding patterns. In early summer, the feeder requires daily refilling. By mid-summer, twice a day is normal when the mother bird starts bring the young ones to feed.

Some authorities speculate one humming bird requires 5,000 flowers to provide its daily energy requirements, so refilling an eight ounce feeder twice a day must make up for a lot of flowers. Hummers consume their body weight in nectar every day. If you hold a penny on your finger, you'll get a sense of what they weigh.

In the last week, activity at the feeder has decreased. The humming birds are headed south. The male birds begin the migration first, followed by females and young. They leave with the onset of cooler night temperatures and shorter daylight hours in September. The Ruby-Throated Hummingbird's long journey crosses the southern United States through Texas and ends in Mexico and Central America.

The humming birds fly between 25 to 30 miles per hour, and some fly non-stop 500 miles across the Gulf of Mexico. Just north of Corpus Christi the town of Rockport, Texas, holds an annual celebration for the migrating hummers. The hummingbirds gather in Rockport before beginning their journey across the Gulf of Mexico. The Monarch Butterfly also migrates through Texas.

I've decided to focus on nectar source plants for the humming birds since I enjoy watching them feed on the hanging basket of fuchsia near the feeder. And although I'm not a big fan of annuals, I might consider a few of the New Guinea Impatiens in spring, just for the hummers.

I went around the garden and made a list of other plants I'd like to move. I found several humming bird favorites. One is a leggy 5-foot-tall P.J.M.

Rhododendron I've wanted to move into better soil. This was a bonus, two problems solved in one plant move.

The bed in front of the window has glorious soil; it will be perfect. Three years ago, I made the raised bed with a mix of 30 percent each compost, pine bark and topsoil with a couple of wheelbarrows of rotted horse manure. I then added a generous amount of rock phosphate, granite dust and green sand when I planted it. No wonder the hosta has outgrown the bed in only two seasons.

In addition to great soil, the bed receives plenty of moisture. A stone filled dry stream surrounds the raised bed. The rain runs directly off our roof into a stone-filled dry stream that drains the south and west side of our house. We have no gutters.

I find this method of using rainwater most effective. The dry stream directs the run off of rainwater around the house, down a slope to another bed on the north side of our house. To protect the north side bed from washing out, I created another dry stream with larger rocks.

The rocks here range in size from 4 to 6 inches to 1 foot or more. They are arranged like small rapids to slow the water flow down during heavy downpours. It works great and keeps things well watered when we have rain. When I water the beds along the dry stream, any excess water flows around the house to the north side bed.

Scattered around other areas of our yard, the hummers enjoy the nectar-producing Flowering Quince (Chaenomeles japonica), Weigela, two Exbury Azalea, a couple of tulip trees (Liriodendron Tulipifera) and the wild Honeysuckle (Lonicera) that grows in our woodland. On the flat near the lake, we have a natural area with the wild blue-flowered lobelia (Lobelia siphilitica), Foxglove (Digitalis), Dame's Rocket (Hesperis matronalis), Columbine (Aquilegia), Bleeding Heart (Dicentra) and Blazing Star (Liatris).

Elsewhere in my garden, I found a couple more nectar source plants I decided to move to the new bed. Two Cardinal Flowers (Lobelia cardinalis), which enjoys rich moist soil and Palace Purple Coral Bells (Heuchera sanguinea). I like the idea of mixing the dark red leaves of the Palace Purple with the soft blue-green fronds of the Japanese Painted Fern that are flourishing in the moist bed. The veins on the fern fronds are dark wine-red. The fern would also make a nice under-planting for the Rhododendron.

My new bed is beginning to come together, with foliage color and texture, and nectar source flowers for the humming birds.

Now the only dilemma is to find a large enough spot, with adequate shade for the large hosta. Of course, there's always a glitch, I have to prepare a new site for them.

I found the spot. My husband has been complaining about mowing a 15-foot long tongue of grass between one of my beds and the rock wall. It's on the north side under an oak, perfect for the large hostas. They will provide a backdrop for the bed in front, which has several smaller hostas, variegated Solomon seal and an assortment of small dwarf hemlocks (Tsuga canadensis).

Now all I have to do is kill the grass, turn over the sod, add some rotted horse manure, turn over the soil again, add the amendments, dig and move the hosta, and mulch them. Since it's difficult to mow, it's also impossible to till, so hand digging is the method of choice.

Once the hosta are moved, I can return to my initial project to create a humming bird friendly bed. Why is it that every good garden idea, results in two to three days of unplanned work?

Eligible taxpayers will receive advanced tax refund checks

SUSAN JACOBS
ACCOUNTANT

TAX TIPS

Question: Why am I getting money back?

Answer: As part of the Economic Growth and Tax Reconciliation Act of 2001, signed into law May 26, eligible taxpayers will be receiving advanced refunds ranging from $300 to $600.

To be eligible to receive an advanced refund check, a 2000 tax return must have been filed, income on this return will have had to meet or exceed the new 10 percent bracket and the taxpayer was not claimed as a dependent on someone else's return.

Many taxpayers believe this advance refund is an extra refund for the 2000 tax return. It is actually an advance refund of the 2001 tax return.

When the new law passed in May, the new 10 percent bracket, was created retroactively to Jan. 1, causing wage earners to automatically be over withheld on their federal withholdings.

As a measure to stimulate the economy, this over withholding is being issued now, instead of making taxpayers wait until they file the 2001 income tax return in 2002.

Question: So how much will I get?

Answer: The new 10 percent bracket applies to the first $6,000 of taxable income for single filers, the first $10,000 for heads of households, and the first $12,000 for joint filers. The calculation for the advance refund is the 5 percent savings from the taxable income that was taxed at 15 percent that will now be taxed at 10 percent.

Single filers will receive a maximum of $300 (5 percent of $6,000), heads of households will receive a maximum of $500 (5 percent of $10,000), and joint filers will receive a maximum of $600 (5 percent of $12,000).

Question: Is it taxable?

Answer: This advance refund is not taxable on the 2001 tax return.

Question: So what do I do with it?

Answer: Taxpayers whose actual 2001 refund is greater than the advanced refund will simply need to reduce the actual refund by the amount of the advance refund and request this difference as a refund.

Taxpayers who are entitled to the advance refund but don't receive it, will simply claim the full actual refund amount on the 2001 return.

And, finally, taxpayers whose actual 2001 refund is less than the amount of the advance refund will not be required to repay the difference or include it in taxable income. Yes, you are reading this correctly. It's a gift from Congress.

The IRS Web site provides an overview of the advance payment and explains how to calculate the amount taxpayers are entitled to. It also includes a

Public can help improve water quality

Meeting set for 7 p.m. today at the library.

By Kent Ashton Walton
Special Writer

Members of the Huron River Watershed Council and Natural Resources Conservation Service held a public meeting Monday at the Chelsea District Library to discuss Mill Creek.

Elizabeth Rigg and Dennis Rice of the Huron Watershed Council, along with Steve Olds of the Natural Resources Conservation Service, provided information about the creek's problems, and provided residents with an opportunity to offer opinions and possible solutions.

The public meeting will be repeated 7 p.m. today at the Chelsea library, 500 Washington St.

Rigg said that there are concerns over water quality in Washtenaw County and, particularly, the downstream north fork of Mill Creek, which runs through Chelsea.

Although the aquatic population has been recovering since periodic oil leaks occurring near Chelsea up until 1997, Rigg said that as open space and farmland are converted into residential or commercial development, environmental conditions in the creek will continue to decline.

After an overview about the Huron River Watershed area, Rigg outlined some of the problems plaguing the Mill Creek sub-basin, a drainage area covering more than 92,000 acres. Problems include excessive nutrients, frequent algal blooms resulting from high phosphorous loads, siltation, and poor quality of habitat for fish and aquatic life, especially in Letts Creek. Most of the problems stem from urban and agricultural runoff.

The residential use of fertilizers, herbicides and pesticides for lawns is a major contributor to local water pollution.

Rigg said that of the remaining open land in the Mill Creek sub-basin, 40 percent is projected for development in the next 20 years. Development with roads, houses and parking lots causes water to run over ground instead of through the ground, she said, carrying pollutants to rivers and lakes and causing stream banks to fail. It also means a loss of wetlands acting as filters and flood plains.

The solution, Rigg said, is a comprehensive and integrated management plan.

Rigg made suggestions for local residents to help alleviate some of the water-related problems. Her suggestions included the use of low phosphate detergents and fertilizers; not cutting grass shorter than 3 inches; using native plants instead of grass; and choosing "walkable" communities with fewer roads.

Local musician to perform Sunday

Local musician Martha Folts will perform in two upcoming concerts.

The first is scheduled 4 p.m. Sunday at St. Thomas the Apostle Catholic Church at 517 Elizabeth St. in Ann Arbor.

The concert of music for baroque flute, recorder, theorbo and harpsichord will include works by composers Bach, Telemann and Couperin.

Folts will perform on the harpsichord and will be joined by Corinne Schat-Hillebrand on the recorder and baroque flute, and Gregory Hamilton on the theorbo.

The second performance will be a candlelight concert of early baroque music. It is set for 7 p.m. Sept. 30 at St. Paul United Church of Christ at 14600 Old US-12 in Chelsea.

The program includes music of several Italian composers. The ensemble of musicians includes Kiri Tollaksen on cornetto, Daniel Foster on violin, Ulrike Goldstein on theorbo and Folts on the harpsichord.

The concert is a benefit performance for the music department of St. Paul Church. Suggested donations are $10 for adults and $5 for youth through 15 years of age and seniors. For information call St. Paul Church at 475-2545.

Folts recently received her doctoral degree in harpsichord performance from the School of Music at the University of Michigan.

She has performed as a harpsichord soloist and continuo player throughout the United States. Previous to her harpsichord career, she has given organ performances in the United States and Europe.

Folts has taught at Iowa State University, Miami University in Ohio and at the University of Michigan. She presently teaches at Adrian College.

Folts, who is minister of music at St. Paul United Church of Christ in Chelsea, has recorded for the Musical Heritage Society and Delos labels.

Charity golf outing set Oct. 6

The Maple Syrup Urine Disease Family Support Group is holding a charity golf outing to raise funds for the 2002 MSUD Symposium.

MSUD is a rare, life threatening disorder. Children born with it lack the enzymes in their liver to break down branched-chain amino acids that are found in almost all foods.

Those who are afflicted by it have a restricted diet and have to drink a special formula to thrive. These children are often hospitalized with the slightest illness.

The symposiums, held every two years, give the families and children who live with the disorder a chance to be with other people who live similar lives. The purpose of the golf outing is to raise money to help families who want to attend but cannot afford it because of costly medical and food expenses.

The outing is set for 1:45 p.m. Oct. 6 at Reddeman Farms Golf Club. The cost is $100 per golfer, and includes 18 holes of golf with a cart, three meal tickets and dinner and prizes. Participants should arrive one hour in advance to register.

Harriers second at New Boston

Behind two top 10 finishes, the Chelsea girls' cross country team placed second at the New Boston Invitational last Saturday.

Birmingham Marian captured the overall title with 43 points.

The Bulldogs were next with 82 points, followed by Dearborn Divine Child with 83 points, Grosse Ile with 88 points and Monroe Jefferson with 118 points.

The only other area team at the invite was Tecumseh, which finished 10th with 238 points.

Leading the Chelsea charge was Alice Gauvin, who placed sixth with a career-best time of 20:03.

Finishing in ninth place for the Bulldogs was Kim Gaseski in a career-best 20:37. Gaseski cut 90 seconds off her previous best time.

Other top performers for Chelsea were Ashley Brainerd, who placed 18th (21:22); Sarah Kaminsky, who finished 19th (21:28); Alison Sacks in 30th (22:01); Brenda Satterthwaite in the 34th spot (22:16); and Michele Oberholtzer, who ended up 36th with a time of 22:20.

"We ran just wonderful today," said Chelsea coach Pat Clarke. "We beat three state final teams from last year. We continue to improve dramatically with every meet, and that is what cross country is all about."

In the JV race, Chelsea's top times were turned in by Kari Moyle (22:31), Genny Gourlay (22:54), Jessica Dean (22:58), Ashley Houle (23:13) and Savannah Hyssong (23:17).

On Sept. 12, the Bulldogs finished first at the Chelsea Jamboree.

The Bulldogs tied Dexter with 30 points, but were awarded the victory on a tiebreaker.

To break the stalemate, both squads' sixth-best time was compared. Chelsea's time was faster and the Bulldogs were declared Jamboree champion.

Finishing third was Tecumseh with 84 points followed by Ypsilanti Lincoln with 97 points.

Gauvin was Chelsea's top finisher, placing third in 20:38.

Brainerd was next, ending up fifth with a time of 22:02.

Gaseski finished sixth (22:06), Kaminsky was seventh (22:09) and Sacks was ninth (22:25).

Oberholtzer placed 11th with a personal best time of 22:51, while Gourlay was 12th (23:16).

In the JV race, Ashley Houle finished 13th (23:26), Moyle 18th (23:55), Hyssong was 24th (24:19), Meghan Tandy was 40th in a career best 24:53 and Candel Dickerson was 49th with a time of 25:40.

Defense, big play lead Bulldogs over Hornets

By Don Richter

Staff Writer

When it comes to football, Saline is a traditional area power.

The Hornets aren't used to being held in check.

Last Friday, host Chelsea (4-0) blanked Saline 24-0.

Holding the Hornets (0-4) to a goose egg on the scoreboard pleased Chelsea coach Brad Bush.

"The key for us was our defense," he said. "Anytime you shut out Saline, you have to feel good."

In the first quarter of last Friday's game, neither team was feeling up to snuff.

Both squads struggled, ending the opening frame deadlocked at 0-0.

Enter Bulldog Kent Reames.

The senior receiver hauled in a relatively short pass from senior quarterback Zack Miller and turned it into an 81-yard touchdown reception.

With the successful extra point, Chelsea led 7-0 midway through the second quarter.

With under three minutes remaining in the half, Reames made it 10-0 on a 22-yard field goal.

By halftime, the Bulldogs continued to lead 10-0.

It wouldn't last for long.

Two plays into the second half, Chelsea recovered a Saline fumble.

On the ensuing drive, Bulldog senior Eddie McClelland scampered in from 11 yards out for a 17-0 Chelsea advantage.

The Bulldogs finished off the Hornets in the fourth stanza as junior fullback Darl Bauer sprinted in for a 55-yard touchdown run.

Bush said his team won the battle of field position.

"We were able to get the lead and never turned the ball over," he said. "Saline had a long field to play with. Scoring early in the third quarter was important."

Despite the victory, Bush said his team needed to continue to improve.

"We still had eight penalties on offense," he said. "We still need to be consistent on offense."

The two-quarterback system Chelsea has used so effectively this season, was interrupted against Saline.

Junior signal caller Jake Freeman sprained his ankle early in last Friday's contest, limiting his playing time.

Miller ended up taking most of the snaps.

"We're hoping he (Freeman) can be back for next week," Bush said.

As for shutting out Saline, Bush said that was unusual.

"That doesn't happen too often," he said. "Their record is deceiving. They've been in games, they just haven't been able to pull them out. They haven't been consistent."

With the Bulldogs' victory over the Hornets, Chelsea has increased its regular season winning streak to 19 games.

The Dawgs next travel to Southeastern Conference foe Ypsilanti Lincoln tomorrow for a game at 7:30 p.m.

Staff Writer Don Richter can be reached at 475-1371 or via e-mail at drichter@heritage.com.

Bulldogs win third straight title

The Chelsea boys' cross country team captured its third consecutive New Boston Huron Invitational championship last Saturday.

The Bulldogs finished first in the 12-team invite, with 73 points. Grosse Ile was second, also with 73 points.

Chelsea was awarded the victory based on a tie-breaker formula.

To determine a winner, officials compared both Grosse Ile's and the Bulldogs' sixth-best time. Chelsea's time was faster and, thus, the Bulldogs were named champions.

Finishing third was Carleton Airport with 94 points, while Monroe Jefferson was fourth with 123 points.

Pacing Chelsea was David Fedele, who finished seventh with a personal best time of 18:52. Fedele shaved 20 seconds off his previous personal best.

"We are becoming increasingly solid, and Fedele's performance today adds another dimension to our race strategy," said Chelsea coach Eric Swager. "Our work is still continuing, but I like our progress thus far."

Besides Fedele, other top Chelsea performances were turned in by Kyle Brown, who finished 13th with a time of 17:26, James McKenzie, who placed 16th in 17:31, and Levi Hyssong, who finished 18th with a personal best time of 17:40.

Trevor Bach placed 19th (17:44), Joel Gentz finished 26th (18:05) and Max Wineland ended up 34th with a lifetime best time of 18:30 for the Dawgs.

In the JV race, Jeff Fitch finished ninth with a time of 18:40 and Andre Bravo 10th in 18:42 to lead Chelsea.

On Sept. 12, the Bulldogs captured the Chelsea Jamboree, outdistancing Dexter by one point, 37-38.

Tecumseh placed third with 60 points followed by Ypsilanti Lincoln with 108 points.

"We had a plan coming into this meet, and we did a good job executing our strategy," Swager said. "Our one-point victory indicates the true team nature of our sport. Also, the narrow margin is an indicator of how

Tennis marathon

Chelsea girls' squad endures consecutive, time consuming matches

By Don Richter

Staff Writer

Six hours is a long time.

Most professional baseball games and Academy Award shows seem to last that long, but high school girls' tennis?

Behind eight tiebreakers and enough volleys to give anyone's neck a work out, Chelsea's girls' tennis team needed six hours to complete its last two matches.

"It says wonderful things about their spirit," Chelsea coach John Capper said about his marathon-style squad. "It shows splendid athleticism, tenacity and perseverance. It's a wonderful tribute to them."

Last Friday, the Bulldogs fell to host Temperance Bedford 6-2 and tied Brooklyn Columbia Central 4-4 Sept. 10.

The Columbia Central match took three hours and 45 minutes to complete.

A normal match generally lasts two and a half hours.

"It went on forever," Capper said.

Against Bedford, earning victories for Chelsea were senior Amy Baker at No. 2 singles, 6-1, 6-2 over Emily Dindoffer and junior Kirra Sheremet at No. 4 singles, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3 over Petra Whitcroft.

Baker, who has moved her way up the singles ladder this year, has impressed Capper.

"She has been winning matches consistently," he said. "She's proving to be quite a player this season."

Falling in singles play for the Bulldogs were senior Andrea Daane at No. 1, 6-1, 6-3 to Megan Whitcroft and senior Alyssa Warren at No. 3, 4-8, 6-3, 7-5 to Amanda Whitcroft.

Capper said Warren's match lasted 30 minutes longer than any other during the day.

"It was way over three hours," he said.

Though Warren's match was long, nobody on Chelsea's team has put in more hours the last two contests than the No. 1 doubles duo of senior Rochelle Stafford and sophomore Lindsay Tye.

Against Bedford, the Bulldog twosome lost 7-5, 7-5, 7-5 to Chelsea Kitzmiller and Ashley Zack.

Against Columbia Central, the combo fell to Kelly Feurstein and Jennah Jones 6-7 (1), 7-6, 7-8 (3) in a three-hour match.

"I have never seen that," said Capper, in his fifth season, about his No. 1 twosome's back-to-back, three-set marathon matches. "It's too bad they had to lose."

Against unbeaten Bedford, the Bulldogs were swept in doubles. It was only the second time this year Chelsea's doubles flight has been shut out.

"Ann Arbor Pioneer was the other team," Capper said. "And they're ranked No. 5 in the state."

At No. 2 doubles, Bulldog seniors Kourtney Barlow and Jessica French lost to Suzy Brown and Amy Czupich 6-1, 6-4.

Senior Sam Hepburn and sophomore Lindsay Parker dropped a 6-3, 6-1 decision to Hallie Scheid and Shannon Buck at No. 3 doubles.

At No. 4 doubles, juniors Nancy LaDuke and Jenny Parker fell to Mallory Bieringer and Stephanie Cupich, 6-4, 6-4.

At Columbia Central, Daane defeated Michelle Smith at No. 1 singles 6-0, 6-7 (2), 6-4.

At No. 2 singles, Baker beat Laura Osborne 6-3, 6-1.

Sheremet lost to Lindsey Geeting 6-2, 6-3 at No. 3 singles.

At No. 4 singles, Warren fell in another three-set battle 3-6, 6-3, 6-0 to Holly Smith.

In doubles, the No. 2 team of Barlow and French defeated Ashley Peleshak and Catrina White 6-3, 6-3.

Lindsay Parker and Jenny Parker lost at No. 3 doubles to Toby Kelik and Beth Pratt 6-7 (6), 6-3, 6-3.

At No. 4 doubles, Hepburn and LaDuke bested Dakota Bahlau and Chelsea Bones 6-7 (6), 6-2, 6-3.

In the exhibition matches, junior Cynthia Johnson and freshman Stacia Morrison fell to Erin Hehl and Stephanie Robinson in two sets at No. 5 doubles.

At No. 6 doubles, seniors Kelly Clement and Sarah Maynard lost to Lindsey Psychas and Tiffany Pickell 7-5, 6-3.

Capper said Chelsea's long-winded affair with Columbia Central was one of the best he's been involved in.

"That was one of the closest and most exciting tennis matches in a long time," he said. "Five matches went to three-set tiebreakers. One match went to three sets involving tiebreakers in each set."

"I don't think we've played a tighter match ever. It was a very fair result, though. Brooklyn's girls always give Chelsea a strong match. It was a fun night."

In its past two matches, the Bulldogs have endured eight tiebreakers, winning three and losing five.

"We need to focus on winning the third set," Capper said. "We need to change tactics."

Chelsea next hosts Dexter today at 4 p.m.

On Saturday, the Bulldogs host their own quad at 8:30 a.m.

Chelsea running back Karl Wint rambles upfield during JV football action against Saline last Thursday. Teammate Joel Powers (76) helps clear the way for Wint.

Last second stop leads Dawg JV

Despite an offensive explosion where both teams combined for almost 1,000 yards, it was a late defensive stand that made the difference for Chelsea's JV football team in a 40-35 victory over host Saline last Thursday.

On the final play of the game, the Bulldog defense stopped the Hornets at the Chelsea 3-yard line, preserving the "W."

"This was a very exciting game," said Chelsea coach Mark Scheese. "We really hurt ourselves with two fumbles in the second half at the Saline 3- and 10-yard lines.

"We stopped them when we had to, but we need to play better defense in the future."

For the night, Saline rushed for 422 yards on 57 carries and was 7-of-18 through the air for 84 yards.

- Chelsea rushed for 118 yards on 18 attempts and had 291 passing yards.
- Bulldog quarterback George Royce threw five touchdown passes, finishing 11-of-16 for the night.
- Chelsea started quickly, notching the game's first two scores.
- The Bulldogs' first TD came on a 70-yard catch by Mark Borders from Royce.
- Chelsea's second score came on a 2-yard dive from Karl Wint.
- Both extra point kicks were unsuccessful, giving the Dawgs a 12-0 lead.
- After a Saline touchdown ended the first quarter, Chelsea responded early in the second frame, with a 57-yard TD reception by Borders from Royce.
- After a Hornet 60-yard run for a score, Royce hooked up with Brian Kinashuk on a 33-yard touchdown pass.

After Kyle Franks booted both extra points, Chelsea led 26-14.

The Bulldogs recorded one additional score in the first half, as Kinashuk grabbed a 32-yard TD reception from Royce.

The duo combined again for the two-point conversion.

Chelsea's last first half score was sandwiched between two Saline touchdowns.

The wild first half ended with the Dawgs on top, 34-28.

Both teams made adjustments in the second half, as neither team found pay dirt in the third quarter.

In the fourth period, Saline scored on a 16-yard run. With the successful extra point, the Hornets led for the first time, 35-34.

Chelsea answered with a 33-yard touchdown pass from Royce to Borders. The two-point attempt was unsuccessful, giving the Bulldogs a 40-35 advantage.

Borders finished the contest with six receptions for 182 yards and three TDs. Kinashuk added three catches for 72 yards and two scores. Andy Hurst had two receptions for 37 yards.

Hurst led the ground attack, rushing for 66 yards on eight carries. Wint ended up with 28 yards on six attempts and a touchdown while Royce had one rush for 27 yards.

Besides throwing for five touchdown passes, Royce was intercepted once.

Defensively for Chelsea, Neil Sterling had an interception and Ryan Keiser and Franks each recovered a fumble.

The Bulldogs next host Ypsilanti Lincoln today at 7 p.m.

Tankers cut down Maples

The Chelsea girls' swimming and diving team defeated Adrian 120-68 in its first Southeastern Conference meet of the season last Thursday.

The Bulldogs continued their perfect year, improving to 4-0 overall.

"We've been training very hard and didn't rest much for this meet, but the girls were still expected to race hard and they did quite well," said Chelsea coach John Crispin.

Recording state cut times for Chelsea were junior Dani Sawyer in the 200 freestyle; sophomore Kayla Hack in the 200 individual medley; junior Rebecca Armstrong in the 100 butterfly and 50 freestyle; freshman Kara Stiles in the 100 butterfly; and sophomore Katrina

Moffett in the 100 backstroke.

Other top performers for the Bulldogs were senior Katie Lowman, who anchored the 200 medley relay; freshman Anna Drow, who placed fourth in her first varsity 200 freestyle; and sophomore Emily Drinkwater, whose gutsy finish in the 500 freestyle completed a 1-2-3 sweep for Chelsea behind teammates junior Tracy Stetson and sophomore Lindsay Cook.

The Bulldogs next host Saline today at 6:30 p.m.

"It's a big SEC clash," Crispin said. "Over the last seven or eight years, we've always swam and dived well against Saline, but haven't had quite what it took to win."

"If we can rise to the challenge and have our best team performance of the year, then I think we can win it this time."

It doesn't get any easier for Chelsea.

After the Hornets, the Bulldogs hosts perennial state power Ann Arbor Pioneer at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 27.

Adrian's speed too much for Dreads

By Don Richter
Staff Writer

Speed, speed and more speed. That was the difference last Friday night as Dexter lost to visiting Adrian 34-6.

The Maples (2-2) simply out-quicked the Dreadnaughts (1-3). "They have some speed," said Dexter coach Tom Barbieri. "And we lost our speed kid when we lost Pete (Vollbrecht) in the first quarter."

Vollbrecht, a junior running back/defensive back, sprained his ankle early in the first quarter and missed the rest of the game.

"We were rotating defensive backs just to stay with them," Barbieri said. "They have a speed game to the outside that was bothering us."

Adrian coach Bill Kohn agreed speed was a factor Friday in his team's victory, but also felt experience had something to do with it too.

"We do have good speed," he said. "But we're also in a position right now where our program's been around a while. We're a little more established. I think that had a lot to do with it (win)."

Barbieri is in his first season as Dreadnaught coach after many successful years leading Hartland and Gaylord's high school gridiron programs. Last season, Dexter finished 0-9.

Barbieri knows a Dreadnaught turnaround won't happen overnight.

"This is a long process," he said. "When you play teams like Adrian, you have to learn by it." Despite the setback, Barbieri said his squad improved.

"The thing is, my kids kept playing," he said. "It would have been easy for us to quit."

On the contrary, the Dreadnaughts played until the final whistle.

Trailing 34-0 with 1:27 left in the game, senior defensive tackle Jeff Hunt (6-foot-1, 290) recovered an Adrian fumble at the Maples' 2-yard line.

Two plays later, Dreadnaught junior quarterback Andy Muchmore snuck in for a touchdown. The subsequent two-point pass attempt was incomplete.

Undaunted, Dexter recovered the ensuing outside kick at Adrian's 49-yard line with 50 ticks left on clock.

Dreadnaught junior kicker Dave Evanski recovered the ball.

Consecutive 20-yard receptions by seniors Jimmy Knapp and Mike Sullivan from Muchmore moved the ball down to the Maples' 11-yard line with 12 seconds remaining.

Dexter ran four more plays, but was unable to score, the last pass falling incomplete in the left corner of the end zone.

"It would have been nice to score that second touchdown," Barbieri said. "Andy (Muchmore) did a nice job of running the clock." Muchmore, getting the nod in place of injured starter Chris Puuri, unable to play quarterback because of a hand injury, played admirably despite little practice.

"He's limited in what he can do," Barbieri said. "We (as a team) were limited in what we could do."

"We found out Monday (Sept. 10) he's our starting quarterback and we don't practice Tuesday because of the (terrorist attacks). We had to come back Wednesday and have a double-session practice."

"We went into the game with a pretty simple offense. We'll expand it next week."

Both coaches expressed difficulty in playing last Friday after the terrorist attacks Sept. 11.

"We weren't totally focused," Barbieri said. "It was hard."

Kohn felt playing would take the tragedy off his players' minds.

"We met on Tuesday and talked at length about it," he said. "We felt playing would be a good diversion for them."

Adrian bolted out to a 28-0 halftime lead, scoring on four of its first five possessions of the night.

Junior running back Dylan McAfee scored the game's first two touchdowns, both on 1-yard dives.

The Maples' third score came on an 18-yard pass to sophomore wideout Darryl Howard from sophomore quarterback Thomas Molter.

Adrian's fourth touchdown came on senior Chad Gurica's 36-yard gallop. Gurica led all rushers, finishing with 66 yards.

The Maples scored their final touchdown on McAfee's 6-yard scamper with 7:17 left in the third quarter. It was McAfee's third TD of the night.

Adrian finished with 293 total yards. Dexter ended up with 148 total yards.

Muchmore threw for 138 yards on 19-of-33 passing. He was intercepted twice.

Molter was 5-of-12 for 93 yards. Dexter senior Brian McLogan led the receiving corps, snaring seven passes for 51 yards. Junior Chip Reynolds added four catches for 17 yards and Knapp had three receptions for 41 yards.

Junior defensive back Tim Gross paced the Dreadnaught defense with 10 tackles. Knapp added seven stops while senior Chris Zink and junior Bobby Barden each recorded six tackles.

"We're just looking to win the next game," Barbieri said. "We have to use tonight to get better."

Dexter next travels to South-eastern Conference rival Tecumseh tomorrow for a game at 7:30 p.m.

Dreadnaughts record best times

HARRIERS

By Don Richter
Staff Writer

It was a season's best meet for the Dexter girls' cross country team last Saturday at the Holly Invitational, as numerous Dreadnaught runners recorded top times.

"We did a great job," said Dexter coach Amy Wolfgang. "Almost the entire team, including JV, ran season's best times."

With their performance, the Dreadnaughts finished second behind Richland Gull Lake at the 20-team invitational.

Dexter ended up with 104 points behind Gull Lake, which had 63.

Rounding out the top five were Flint Powers Catholic in third place, followed by Milan and Jackson Lumen Christi.

Individually, Dexter had three runners in the top 10.

Leading the way for the Dreads was Kalli Williams in fourth place, with a season's best time of 19:55.

Finishing in eighth place was Jen Gunderson in 20:24 while Natli Nalli placed 10th with a time of 20:43.

Rounding out Dexter's contingent in the varsity race, which included 123 competitors, were Rachel Udow, in 29th place (21:52), Sondra Brines in 53rd spot (23:04), freshman Jenny Heldt in 55th place (23:09) and Lauren Russell in 81st position with a time of 24:10.

In the invitational's JV race, Dexter's Emi Wisniewski finished ninth out of 150 participants with a time of 24:15.

"She ran an excellent race," Wolfgang said. "She's really running well."

On Sept. 12, the Dreadnaughts placed second at the Chelsea Jamboree.

Dexter and the Bulldogs each finished with 30 points, but Chelsea was awarded first place on a tiebreaker.

In cross country, the top five times determine the winner. Since Dexter and Chelsea were tied at the end of the competition, officials went to each squad's sixth-best time, to determine the victor.

Chelsea's sixth-best runner placed 11th overall, six spots ahead of the Dreadnaughts.

Behind Dexter and Chelsea, Tecumseh placed third with 84 points and Ypsilanti Lincoln fourth with 97 points.

Individually, Williams finished first with a time of 20:01.

Gunderson placed second in 20:37 and Nalli fourth in 20:54.

Placing eighth for the Dreadnaughts was Udow in 22:20, while Brines finished 15th with a time of 23:39.

Nikki Jones placed 17th in 24:00 and Heldt 18th with a time of 24:46.

"I'm very satisfied where we are at this point in the season," Wolfgang said. "We have to try and bunch our top seven runners closer together. Chelsea does that very well. They have a really good pack."

Dexter next travels to Chelsea to compete in its invitational at 8:30 a.m. Saturday.

On Tuesday, the Dreadnaughts travel to Ypsilanti Lincoln for Jamboree No. 2 at 4:30 p.m.

Dexter cross country fifth at Holly

The Dexter boys' cross country team finished fifth at the 21-team Holly Invitational last Saturday.

"The team really stepped it up with the absence of two of our top five guys," said Dexter coach Jaime Dudash. "It is a real testament to the quality and depth of this team."

Leading the Dreadnaughts for the third meet in a row was junior Chris Burke, who placed fifth with a time of 18:55.

"Chris is not a real rah-rah type guy, he leads by example," Dudash said.

Sophomore Dan Meyer placed 12th with a time of 17:23. Tony Nalli finished 29th with a lifetime best 17:54.

"That was his first trip under the magical 18-minute barrier," Dudash said about Nalli's time.

Juniors Andrew Porinsky and Nate Leonard ran seasonal bests of 18:29 and 18:36, finishing 51st and 56th, respectively.

"The juniors made the difference today," Dudash said. "We put three freshmen, three juniors and a sophomore out on the course and the kids just performed."

In the JV race, Dexter took three of the top five spots.

Mike Little placed second (18:41), Jay Meyer finished third (18:45) and Matt McCarthy ended up fifth (19:06).

"We must have had a dozen seasonal bests and one lifetime best," Dudash said. "The kids are pumped and each practice they want to work harder and harder as they are now enjoying the fruits of all the hard work."

Recording the only lifetime best was Jim Whitehead. He, along with Jay Meyer, were named "Stars of the Meet."

On Sept. 12, Dexter finished second at the Chelsea Jamboree.

The Bulldogs captured the event with 37 points. Dexter had 38 points.

Burke led the Dreadnaught group, placing third.

Dan Meyer finished fifth with a time of 17:19.

Ending the race eighth was sophomore Ryan Boluyt in 17:57. Finishing 10th was freshman Lex Williams with a time of 18:05.

Individually, Williams finished first with a time of 20:01.

Gunderson placed second in 20:37 and Nalli fourth in 20:54.

Placing eighth for the Dreadnaughts was Udow in 22:20, while Brines finished 15th with a time of 23:39.

Nikki Jones placed 17th in 24:00 and Heldt 18th with a time of 24:46.

"I'm very satisfied where we are at this point in the season," Wolfgang said. "We have to try and bunch our top seven runners closer together. Chelsea does that very well. They have a really good pack."

Bad weather plagues bike ride fund-raiser

VISEL

LETTERS FROM ROMANIA

EDITOR'S NOTE — Peace Corps volunteer Mike Visel, a Dexter graduate, is riding through Romania to raise money for Trebue, an organization for special-needs children and young adults.

Well, it is my 11th day of my bike tour and tomorrow I will reach my 1,000 kilometers, meaning that I am about halfway done.

I have just crossed through the highest part of the mountains that I will see on my northeast to northwest route. I should reach my northwesternmost point of the trip in two days. From there, I will be heading south, crossing the southern part of the Carpathians and then southeast toward the Black Sea.

Much to my surprise, the mountains have not been all that difficult for me. I still have been able to ride around 80 to 100 kilometers per day, putting me well ahead of schedule.

The only problem is that the last seven days have been long, rainy, wet and cold. It just so happens that the area I was in had the worst weather. I can't believe that I haven't caught a cold. But, hopefully, the weather will change for the better.

Since I have left, I have seen some great country. I have passed through rolling hills and vineyards, through flat, farm country, the mountains, and now I am in Transylvania.

Here I have heard a lot of German, Hungarian and, of course, Romanian languages spoken. I also have had a chance to see and visit many monasteries, churches and some old castles.

I have seen people dressed in traditional wear, small-town soccer games played in the middle of cornfields, and just yesterday I saw loads of people for about 20 kilometers standing along the side of the road trying to sell drinking glasses. That was kind of funny, actually. Don't ask me why.

And, of course, I have been able to speak with and meet many hospitable people. They are not scared to lay a big spread of food on the table for a guy.

As you know, I am also trying to raise money for the organization, Trebue. And when I am in towns that don't have one of their offices (which is the majority of the time), I have to try and contact the local media on my own.

Some towns have been receptive, while others could care less. Most of the media attention has been local, but hopefully I can attract some national coverage as I begin my second half of the trip.

I completely understand that one problem is that the economy is bad here and people are not so eager to donate. Another is that many are suspicious that it is all a scam.

Anyway, I and all the members of this organization are still trying, and working hard. I have adjusted my course so that I can visit all seven branch offices.

I tell you, with assurance that everything this organization is trying to do for people with mental disabilities is impressive, especially considering the limited resources they have.

In conclusion, everything has been good so far. My legs are strong and the bike is working well. I could just use a little nicer weather and my cellphone back. The phone somehow fell in the toilet and is no longer functional.

There is still plenty of time to donate. For more information and details on how money will be handled and transferred to Romania contact Shannon Tobias at stobias@med.umich.edu or Mike Visel at viselmichael@hotmail.com.
