Police make drug arrest

■ Chelsea K-9 unit helps in Christmas Day drug bust in Sylvan Township.

By Sheila Pursglove
Associate Editor

Local, state and county cops received a Christmas Day surprise, but not from Kris Kringle. More like "Kris Kriminal," a felon whose idea of a white Christmas allegedly had more to do with cocaine than snowflakes.

At about 9:25 p.m. Dec. 25, a Michigan State Police trooper stopped a car headed eastbound on Interstate 94, near Pierce Road in Sylvan Township, for having a defective taillight.

The state trooper discovered the male driver had a long criminal history and recently had been released from prison for a 1998 homicide.

A trooper found drug paraphernalia and residue after receiving consent to search the suspect and the vehicle.

While the trooper was contacting backup units, the driver appeared nervous and became uncooperative. Police said he fled a couple hundred yards down the freeway, up the shoulder and into the woods before he was tackled and arrested after a short struggle.

Officers from the Chelsea Police Department, Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department and Michigan State Police responded to the scene.

Chelsea Police Officer Jeff Staebler and his German shepherd Tango were called away from home to help.

Staebler said he was called because the county's K-9 teams weren't available.

He and his four-legged partner conducted a search of the area where the foot chase took place and located a baggie of cocaine near where the man was tackled.

"The trooper suspected the man had thrown something when he ran," Staebler said. "With the white cocaine in a clear baggie, it would have been very hard to find without Tango's help."

Staebler said it took about an hour out of his Christmas celebration at home.

Michigan State Police Cmdr. Beth Moranty said the involvement of the K-9 team was a key to finding the cocaine.

The man, who was arrested for possession of cocaine, resisting arrest and parole violation, was held at the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department prior to being sent back to prison with a new felony narcotics charge to his name.

"This stop was an excellent example of cooperation between city, county and state officers to apprehend a dangerous and repeated felon," Moranty said.

1,100 acres of land in Washtenaw County, Lonk said.

He expects another 500 acres of Washtenaw farmland to soon become part of the state's purchase of development rights program, also aided by the land trust.

Lonk also heads the committee looking for parcels of land to buy with Washtenaw County's open-space acquisition fund.

"The Washtenaw Land Trust served as a great vehicle for me to accomplish both professional and personal goals of preserving land," Lonk said.

"I'm very proud of having created the organization and very proud of the accomplishments that have happened during my tenure."

Lonk said he was looking at a number of other opportunities to continue the work of saving land in Washtenaw County.

"I'll continue to pursue that as a goal, but it will take a different form," he said. "Also, my continuing work with the county area natural preservation program will generate a lot of interest throughout the community."

Chelsea hospital enjoys growth

Chelsea Community Hospital marked many milestones in 2001.

The hospital began a surgery department renovation and expansion project last summer to meet the growing needs of the community.

The project included adding a fifth operating room, enlarging two of the four existing operating rooms, expanding the instrument care area, adding another consultation room, expanding the recovery room, and adding new space for mammography, ultrasound and bone density.

Hospital Marketing Director Becky Pazkowski said last week that all phases of the project will be completed by November.

Holiday Gala 2001, a fund-raiser for the project, drew 168 people, the largest crowd ever to come to the event, Pazkowski said.

The Women's Health Center also began a much-needed expansion last fall and is slated for completion in the first quarter of the year. The expansion includes a spacious reception area, additional exam room and an additional nurses' station.

The hospital also expanded the scope of the orthopedic services. In September, a fourth orthopedic surgeon joined Chelsea Orthopedic Specialists and the program was moved to the new Health and Wellness Center, which opened its doors on Oct. 1.

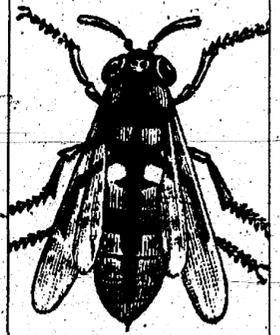

Outpatient physical and occupational therapy, and the cardiac and pulmonary rehabilitation department also found a new home in the center.

The Health and Wellness Center held a grand opening Oct. 7 that drew more than 800 people. The hospital also hosted the annual Heart & Sole run in May, drawing more than 400 participants.

The hospital held its annual auction, golf classic at Red-deman Farms and a Breakfast with Santa for the children of employees.

"All in all, 2001 was a tremendous growth year for Chelsea Community Hospital, which is a reflection of the support and needs of those we serve," Pazkowski said.

PATROLS

Southworth said.

Sturtevant said that there will be no changes in the number of troopers at the Sylvan detachment, but there will be an increase in the number of troopers patrolling the southwestern portion of the county.

"We took some of the troopers who were patrolling in general areas and reassigned them to areas that have not contracted with the county," she said.

The state police was able to pull troopers from Bridgewater, Lodi, Scio and Dexter townships and reassign them because those areas have contracted for police services with the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department.

The state police has 31 state troopers who patrol the highways, trunk lines and non-contractual areas of the county.

Washtenaw County Under-sheriff Herb Maloney said that in 2000 the county received 1,008 calls from Sylvan Township. Of that number, the sheriff's department handled 498 calls. State police troopers handled 398 calls.

Understanding The Law
with Leonard K. Kitchen, J.D. and Thomas L. Stringer, J.D.
FIRST IMPRESSIONS
Good trial lawyers present their most compelling evidence at the beginning of a trial, when the jurors are most receptive and least likely to have developed an opinion. As the trial progresses, research shows jurors are more likely to adopt "predecisional distortion." That is, once they develop a leaning or tentative preference based upon some case-specific information, their tentative leanings influence the manner in which they view subsequent information. Jurors may not be aware of their biases or that they are distorting the facts to support their views. It is the lawyer's job to present the facts of the case in a manner that overrides any possible propensity on the part of the jurors to believe what they want.
First impressions count: that's why.

Thomas' poems evoke images

KENT WALTON

BOOK REVIEW

The first part of Laurence W. Thomas' book of poetry, "Songs Sacred and Profane," derives from what he has witnessed in his garden on "Greenside Up," as he refers to the road where his suburban house stands.

The poems not only chronicle his responses to the four seasons as they evolve in his garden environment, but also to the particular days, mornings, flowers, plants and animals that inhabit his immediate landscape.

The poems are personal, contemplative and observant, detailing the dramas seen often from his kitchen window. The language and similes are uncomplicated, yet refreshing: "From under, tender umbrella hearts, tiny faces touch, shy as lovers." (From "Violets.")

Observation sometimes gives way to philosophizing, as in "Gardens."

"Except for permanence, gardens provide what pictures deny: grounds for growing, away from conformities."

In contrast to the more sacred poems about the golfs-on in the small, complex world of a Michigan garden and Thomas' intrigued responses, the second part, titled "Let It All Hang Out," demonstrates his self-styled profane side.

Here is a mixture of poems and poetically structured prose that provokes without being strident. It is wide ranging in content in contrast to the contained "Greenside Up" selection. Yet the reflections remain personal, whether they tackle computers, religion, the U.S. Postal Service, abortion, aging or war.

Thomas reveals his cynicism, wry wit, anger and sadness, sometimes all in one stanza. "The irony is on us when what we regard as progress turns to grief and every change constitutes a loss that leaves us stronger, maybe, but more alone." (From "Pyramid.")

The two parts of the book contrast almost as though there were two of him — the suburban pastoral, and the worldly acerbic who can say laconically, "I called upon my soul one day but, of course, nobody was home."

The poem "Autumn," in the second half, is not about the drawing down of summer or the leaves, "yellow, red, orange, gold before they fall from branches," as in his poem "The Fall" in part one. "Autumn" is about fear of death.

The book is a selection of poems from other works by Thomas together with many poems not before published in book form.

Thomas has taught English in Uganda, Costa Rica, Saudi Arabia, Michigan and Florida. He now resides in Michigan giving lectures and concentrating on writing poetry and some fiction.

Thomas will read poems 7 p.m. Jan. 11 at the Little Professor Book Center, 1250 S. Main St., in Chelsea. There will be an open microphone for local poets to follow.

Help is nearby

The Assessment Triage Group at Chelsea Community Hospital is on-hand to receive telephone calls from members of the community who require emotional help.

"Referrals to our psychiatric services have remained steady for the past three months since the events of Sept. 11," Nancy Siegrist, director of behavioral health services at the hospital, said Thursday.

"While the calls we receive are not necessarily directly attributable to those tragic events, the national tragedy has certainly exacerbated problems for some people or prolonged recovery, especially in the higher levels of care," she said. Siegrist said terror attacks have resulted in an outpouring of emotions and feelings across the country.

"People who may have trouble expressing emotions now feel they have permission to freely express themselves and perhaps seek the professional help they might not otherwise have sought," she said.

Siegrist said that the holidays can be a very difficult period for some people.

The number to call is 475-6051. The Assessment Triage Group will guide people to a person who can help.

Achieving Salvation vs. Receiving Salvation

Dear Friends and Neighbors
Many people are under the impression that eternal life, gaining acceptance with God, is something we humans have to achieve. Most people think this is what religion is all about. The fact is, doing things to achieve God's favor is the main idea behind almost every non-Christian religion. And even some Christian denominations profess that view: There is an entire theology that believes that Jesus got the ball rolling, but it's really up to us to finish the job. In other words, Jesus provides the strength to work one's way up to God, but the individual has to do the work, namely, lead a moral life.

This view, at best, leaves a person in doubt: How could you ever know you've done enough to satisfy God? How could you ever say you tried hard enough?

The view also makes Jesus only partial Savior: He does his part, but we have to do the rest.

The real teaching of the Bible is more straightforward, and more certain, yet far less flattering for human egos. The Bible teaches that there is nothing good in us by nature, nothing we can do that could contribute to our being accepted by God. The Bible also teaches that God Himself has done everything necessary. When Jesus said on the cross, "It is finished," He meant everything was taken care of for us. And He rose from the dead a few days later to prove it.

Picture your self drowning in your sins. Jesus did not come just to give you strength or encouragement to swim for your life; He actually pulled you out of the water to safety. He achieved salvation for you.

The owner of the boat noticed that the tarp was ripped and water had damaged the interior. A window was also smashed on another boat parked nearby. Police think that the suspect probably stepped on the window while trying to remove the tarp.

Someone damaged a cement mixer between 5 p.m. Dec. 19 and 8:30 a.m. Dec. 20 at a construction site in the 3900 block of Jackson Road.

The owner of the construction company noticed the belts to the

HELP

Manhattan, once counted George Washington among its worshippers.

St. Paul's now serves as a respite center for workers at Ground Zero, providing food, fresh clothes, a place to rest, sleep and unwind.

Gillingham said he was surprised at the number of different professions represented there.

"I was expecting to see firefighters and police, but there was a whole conglomerate of people — members of the National Guard, the Coast Guard, engineers, ironworkers, clergy and even chiropractors and massage therapists," he said.

The Shalom center helped at different workstations, handing out more than 1,300 meals, providing counseling and talking to people. They also handed out markers for people to sign banners.

"Many of the rescue workers are working 12-hour shifts and are extremely fatigued," Gillingham said. "Some of them were very quiet and others were loud and upbeat. We saw the whole gamut of emotions."

"We heard that in the early days at the center you could hear a pin drop. But now that it's been three months since the attack, some workers are a little more upbeat."

Gillingham, who treasures a yellow construction hat signed by 45 rescue workers, said there are several volunteer teams doing similar work.

"As we left, there was a team coming in from Connecticut," he said. "Also, many New Yorkers are donating a day or so a week to help on an ongoing basis."

Jereya Christensen, an 18-year resident of Dexter Township and a member of the Shalom congregation for 10 years, was also among the volunteers, as was Dexter resident Helen Karns.

"Three of us are members of the Stephen Ministry, a lay ministry, and it was wonderful to be able to share our skills in a different setting," Christensen said. "We were able to pray with people, offer encouragement, hug and hold people, and let them know that people from all around the world love and care for them."

Christensen said her 12-hour night shift flew by and that most of the team was ready to do another 12 hours.

"We were so incredibly privileged to be in that sacred spot in the midst of all the chaos and destruction," she said. "St. Paul's is hallowed ground, and was not damaged on Sept. 11."

"God knew people needed a place to be."

Christensen said the experience gave her insight into what it must be like to live close to the World Trade Center.

"I talked to people who had seen the towers when they were built, and they were a beacon for them," she said. "Other people were there for the first time and were stunned at the incredible hole in the skyline."

Gillingham said the Shalom team was in high spirits during the ride to New York and was still upbeat on the way home despite the intense and oft-somber experience.

"I found I also appreciated the trip for sharing the experience with others," he said. "I was with people I've known for 10 years and yet I got to know them even better on this trip. Shalom members are very special people."

Gillingham said church members are making tentative plans for a second group of volunteers to make a trip to Ground Zero Jan. 16.

We can benefit from historic district

GREGORY PARKER

COMMUNITY ROOTS

There's something I've never understood about Chelsea. Walking downtown Main Street, it seems obvious. Just look at the storefronts, the facades. Examine the McKune House. Study the structures on Middle and Park streets. Given the historic significance of a still-standing and still-operating Main Street commercial district dating to the 19th century, I've never understood why downtown Chelsea isn't on the National Register of Historic Places. Shouldn't there be some sort of plaque commemorating the downtown commercial district? Of course, the issue goes far beyond a plaque. But I'm getting ahead of myself. I recently learned that a few years ago, a group of Chelseans worked tirelessly to make the downtown area a historic district and place it on the national registry. I don't want to reopen this can of worms, but let's just say that the idea of a historic district — with its rules and regulations regarding the appearance of historic structures — didn't sit well with some businesspeople, many of whom successfully opposed the plan. Regardless of one's opinion on the historic district issue, the opposition also led to the downfall of a plan to place the downtown area on the national registry, which has no binding stipulations whatsoever. Somewhere, somehow, many people bought into the notion that both the historic district and the national register were bad for Chelsea. Specifically, they believed that the proposals were oppressive to real estate and business owners in the affected district. For now, it seems like the historic district proposal — with its preservation codes and binding authority — is still on the back burner. But according to December's edition of the Chelsea Downtown Development Authority newsletter, the quest to place portions of the downtown area on the national registry has been revived. Unfortunately, once again, it appears that there's some opposition. And this time, more misinformation and misunderstanding are clouding the issue. Hopefully, this will clear up some points of contention. For a historic area to be placed on the national registry, it must be of historic significance (as determined by state and federal governments). Also, a majority of its property holders must not object to such a designation. Thus, significant opposition could once again stop the proposal in its tracks. The thing is, there's simply no logical reason to oppose being listed on the national registry. Remember, this isn't the historic district we're talking about, with its binding rules and regulations governing outward appearance. Maintaining the historic appearance of buildings on the national registry is completely voluntary. Let's see what the Michigan State Historic Preservation Office, which administers the program for the state, has to say about the national registry:

"Listing in the national register, however, does not prevent a private citizen from altering, managing or disposing of the property." There you have it. Straight from the horse's mouth. But if building owners did decide that they wanted to renovate or restore based on historic specifications, they may qualify for extra tax breaks, including a 20 percent federal Investment Tax Credit. There are other tax breaks — not to mention the fact that properties on the register are given special consideration for federal and state aid. Talk about a win-win situation. Let's look at the other benefits. Of course, we can get those great plaques commemorating the downtown area. We can market Chelsea's downtown area as being on the national registry, which attracts tourists and other heritage buffs. Also, while the register doesn't prevent property owners from altering their buildings, it can help them fight to save their structure from outside forces. For example, let's say that the state wanted to widen M-52 or alter it in some other way. Since the state must consider how such decisions impact historically significant areas, being on the national registry could work in our favor. I can't speak for everyone, but for me, being on the national registry is also a matter of pride. I'd love to say that I live in a town that's got a historic area, with plaques to prove it. If others agree, then it could translate into higher values for properties in the village. The list of benefits to being on the registry is significant, and it greatly outweighs any costs. In fact, I can't think of any costs. It's not binding, and it has nothing to do with a historic district designation. There's been much talk recently about preserving the small-town character of Chelsea, keeping its Main Street alive, maintaining its ties to the past. Let's recognize all of these goals and work for a listing on the national registry. Let's support the DDA's efforts — and the efforts of others who have worked tirelessly toward this goal. Let's get those plaques. Gregory Parker is a free-lance writer living in Chelsea. He can be reached at gparker@umich.edu.

We can spy on our children

DENNIS OLANDER

HOME FRONT

It's 10 p.m. Do you know where your kids are? That was the catch phrase for parents a generation or two ago. Nowadays, high-tech gadgetry is making it easier for parents to keep tabs on their children, and the emphasis has shifted from finding out where they are to checking on where they have been. There is software available, for instance, which goes beyond filtering inappropriate Web sites and restricting access to chat rooms, e-mail and other Internet functions. Now, parents can install so-called Internet "monitoring" software to secretly record their child's incoming and outgoing e-mail, instant messages and chat room conversations. The software can be set up to track Web browsing habits — even to take "snapshots" of text and images on monitored screens and e-mail them to the person doing the virtual surveillance. Concerned about whether a youngster is abusing drugs? Check out a home drug-test product and determine once and for all whether that smile on junior's face is the real thing or a byproduct of the club drug Ecstasy. The test kit comes with complete instructions. The parent, though, is on his own when it comes to explaining why he is asking his son or daughter for a urine specimen. For parents worried that the procedure might damage the bond of trust they have nurtured with their kids, the kit features a "patented masking agent" detection system" to determine if the urine samples have been tampered with or if the child has taken a masking agent to conceal his drug use. Software developed by a Wisconsin-based company that markets integrated management solutions for public school systems allows parents to become part of the "education team." Just like an administrator researching whether teachers' benefits meet budgetary requirements, parents use a password to sign on over the Internet for a real-time look at their child's attendance record, grades and class schedule. They can get a detailed report on disciplinary incidents and can even get a breakdown on what their child is eating for lunch. Using a card hanging around their neck, students swipe a bar code reader to pay for their food in the lunchroom. The company cites an example of parents who used the system to learn their child was buying ice cream and fruit juice for lunch every day. Now, when the student shows up at the cash register, the computer alerts the lunch lady that the parents have arranged to block the sale of juice and ice cream to their child who, instead, gets a banana with Perrier or whatever else mom and dad permit. The system speeds up the lunch line, reduces theft of lunch money and improves the school's overall record keeping, advocates say. It is less clear, though, whether the nutritional benefits of a banana so outweigh those of ice cream that a student deprived of exercising his judgment is any better off than one who succumbs to his sweet tooth. Even foggiest is the notion that secretly recording a child's Internet use and conducting home drug tests somehow will strengthen the ties that bind. Though the measures are touted as being "proactive," if parents are banking on a software upgrade and test strips to reach their kids, the battle may already be lost.

Chelsea tankers off to fast start as season begins

With decisive victories over Adrian 107-85 and Pinckney 100-80, Chelsea's boys' swimming and diving team is off to another solid start.

Though the Bulldogs graduated six talented seniors from last year's squad, this year's team has regrouped and seeks another top finish in the Southeastern Conference and at the state level.

Chelsea got its dual meet season started against the Maples Dec. 14.

The Bulldogs began the meet winning the 200 medley relay. Zack Christman, Matt Holmes, Aaron Connell, and Andre Bravo stopped the clock at 1:50.23. Finishing second was the foursome of Andy Kellogg, Tim Wacker, Mike Bowdish and Josh Haynes in 1:55.88.

In the 200 freestyle, Mike Policht placed second to top the finishers from Chelsea. His time of 2:04.87 was considerably better than his clocking last season. Matt Kellogg placed fourth in the event at 2:07.79.

Christman had one of the best performances of the evening, winning the 200 IM with an impressive early season time of 2:13.97. Tim Wacker was second with a career best of 2:20.00. Chris Moyle was fifth at 2:43.97.

The 50 freestyle, a premier event for the Bulldogs, proved to be outstanding for the team again. Junior Jake Holton made the state qualification standard in the event as he blasted to victory at 23.10. Andy Kellogg was second in the event at 24.64 and Bravo was third, stopping the clock at 25.55.

Diving saw two new faces for Chelsea. Freshman Cliff Ballard scored 148.80 points in his first dual meet, placing him third overall. Shawn Bergman, another freshman, finished fourth at 122.70 points.

Senior captain Bowdish led the way for the Bulldogs in the 100 butterfly, placing second at 1:05.13. Sophomore Connell looks to contribute, as he finished third with a time of 1:07.92. Freshman Chris Moyle took fifth place.

The 100 freestyle, probably the strongest event for Chelsea, was dominated by Holton, who cruised to a first-place finish at 52.41. Bravo was solid at 55.45 for third place, with Haynes taking fourth at 57.07.

Matt Kellogg improved upon last season's performance, winning the 500 freestyle with a time of 5:45.90. Policht was third and Andrew Ceo was close behind at 6:04.40.

Holton led off the 200 freestyle relay followed by Wacker, Andy

Though the Bulldogs graduated six talented seniors from last year's squad, this year's team has regrouped and seeks another top finish in the Southeastern Conference and at the state level.

Kellogg and Haynes, who combined for first place at 1:38.69.

Christman again proved that seniors definitely get the job done right the first time, winning the 100 backstroke in a time of 1:01.18. Sophomore Ryan Kelley was third, stopping the clock at 1:10.91.

Holmes was dominant in the 100 breaststroke, easily taking charge of the event and winning in 1:07.88. Andy Kellogg was second at 1:10.23 and Tim Wacker was fourth at 1:14.79.

The last event of the evening was the 400 freestyle relay. Christman, Haynes, Bravo and Holton proved that Chelsea's sprinting is powerful, cruising to victory in a solid time of 3:44.39.

The meet against Pinckney Dec. 18 was a different story.

The Bulldogs came out a little flat, getting themselves behind going into diving. This is a position the team hasn't been too accustomed to in the past few seasons.

Andy Kellogg, Holmes, Bravo and Christman got the team off to a good start by winning the 200 medley relay. They had a solid time of 1:51.88.

Following the 200 medley relay, the Pirates jumped all over Chelsea, winning the next three events in a row.

Holton was upset in the 200 freestyle, as the Pinckney swimmer moved by, never looking back.

Tim Wacker had his best time in the 200 IM, but it was to no avail, as he earned second at 2:17.10.

In the 50 freestyle, Christman got caught sleeping a bit on the start and was out-touched by two of the Pirates, finishing third with a time of 23.70.

The Bulldogs got a few points back as Chelsea placed first and second in the diving competition. Ballard won the event, with Bergman taking second.

The comeback really took hold after the 100 butterfly, as Bowdish ended up second in the event at 1:04.43. Connell was third and Bravo came in fourth, outscoring the Pirates 9-7 in the event.

Holton qualified for the state meet with a sterling time of 50.90 in the 100 freestyle, earning him second place. Haynes really impressed the coaching staff, taking third at 55.93.

Matt Kellogg continued to improve his 500 freestyle performance, dropping his time to a season best of 5:39.71.

Holton, Bravo, Andy Kellogg, and Jeff Diekis won the 200 freestyle relay by a whisker, as Diekis just got his hand on the wall before the Pinckney swimmer.

Christman won the 100 backstroke at 1:02.14. Ryan Kelley was third in a season best 1:10.16.

Holmes continued his dominance of the 100 breaststroke, winning the event easily in 1:07.65. His time was just shy of the state cut standard.

The last event was the 400 freestyle relay. Chelsea could not muster up enough energy to sweep the relay events, but Christman, Haynes, Wacker, and Holton ended up second at 3:40.01.

Chelsea's record is now 2-0 and 1-0 in the SEC.

The Bulldogs next compete at the Dewitt Invitational, which they captured last year.

Chelsea freshmen divers Shawn Bergman (left) and Cliff Ballard helped lead the Bulldogs to season opening victories over Adrian and Pinckney last week.

Bulldog frosh spikers hit court

By Don Richter
Staff Writer

Chelsea's freshman volleyball team hosted Ann Arbor Pioneer in its home opener, winning 15-9, 15-6 Dec. 17.

"We won the first game with consistent serving and by playing as a team," said Chelsea coach Terri McCalla. Danae Sauers finished 9-of-9 serving with three aces.

In the second game, the Bulldogs continued serving well, sweeping the Pioneers.

Liberty Dickerson ended up with five aces, while Christina Toon was 4-of-5, with one ace.

Michelle Alber finished with three kills, while Clara Worden was 3-for-3 on serve receive.

"The team is working hard," McCalla said.

On Dec. 18, Chelsea competed in a tournament in Saline.

The Bulldogs participated in a six-team pool comprised of Ann Arbor Huron, Pinckney, Plymouth Salem, Livonia Churchill and Tecumseh.

Chelsea began the tournament by defeating Ann Arbor Huron 15-7, 15-13.

"We played as a team and had 12 aces," McCalla said.

In their next game, the Bulldogs split with Pinckney 15-17, 15-13.

In its following two matches, Chelsea fell to Plymouth Salem 14-16 and 5-15 and Livonia Churchill 10-15, 11-15.

In their final match of pool play, the Bulldogs swept Tecumseh 15-5, 15-10.

"We had to beat Tecumseh to continue on after pool play and the girls proved they really wanted it," McCalla said.

With the victory over the Indians, Chelsea finished third in its pool.

In their first match out of pool play, the Bulldogs lost to the host Hornets 8-15, 7-15.

"It was a very long day, but we played well," McCalla said.

Out of 12 teams competing in the tourney, Chelsea finished sixth.

Megan Korc and Amanda Mattocks paced the Bulldogs with seven aces each.

Annie Guertin, with six kills and Shannon Kinner, with five kills led Chelsea.

In serve receive, Danae Seward and Dickerson played well.

"It was a great experience and I believe we will only improve in future tournaments," McCalla said. "We have four tournaments this year — the most ever for a freshmen team."

On Dec. 13, Chelsea began its season against Saline losing 15-8, 13-15, 6-15.

"The team played well for the first competition of the season," McCalla said. "We know now what we need to work on."

The Bulldogs had three aces, receiving one each from Kelly Kennedy, Kinner and Mattocks.

Kara Kimmens, Guertin and Dickerson led Chelsea in kills.

"We need to improve on serve receive to win games, but for our first match, it was good competition," McCalla said.

The Bulldogs next travel to the Brighton Invitational 9 a.m. Saturday.

Chelsea hockey ties Saline

By Don Richter
Staff Writer

The score officially goes down in the record books as a 1-1 tie.

But for those who played in the Chelsea-Saline hockey game Dec. 21, the outcome was unofficially different.

Two Bulldog goals, one each by junior center Drew Warren and senior Josh Barron, were disallowed in the tightly called contest.

"It was unfortunate," said Chelsea coach Don Wright. "It's disappointing. I felt we played good enough to win."

The visiting Bulldogs (7-4-1, 1-1-1) took an early 1-0 lead as freshman Brad Tyler scored in the first period.

Assisting on the play was Warren.

Early in the second period, Chelsea appeared to go ahead 2-0, as Warren turned the light on after a scramble in front.

The referee, however, saw things differently, disallowing the goal, saying Warren kicked in the puck.

The Hornets went on to tie the game, scoring a power-play goal with less than a minute remaining in the period.

The puck bounced over freshman net minder J.R. Englebert's pads for the score.

"It was a fluke goal," Wright said.

In the third period, the Bulldogs again appeared to take the lead, as Barron scored midway through the frame.

Or did he?

The referee again disallowed

the apparent score, saying the puck never crossed the goal line.

For the night, Chelsea out shot Saline 28-14.

Despite the disappointment, Wright felt his team played well.

"We played a strong game defensively," he said. "We held them to a couple of good scoring opportunities. We've been working on our defense. I was pleased with our performance."

Chelsea next hosts Pinckney Saturday at 7 p.m.

On Wednesday, the Bulldogs travel to Plymouth Canton for a game at 7 p.m.

Extreme Sport Palace top notch

Ben Walton, 16, summed up the overall feeling best at the Dec. 21 grand opening of the new Extreme Sport Park in Dexter.

"This is the best thing that has ever happened to me," said Walton, standing in his inline skates looking around at the radical terrain inside the 24,000-square-foot building. "This has to be the best day of my life."

Walton, like the rest of the 60 or so athletes on hand for the grand opening is a new breed of athlete. Maybe not big enough to play football or tall enough for basketball, he has to channel his athletic ability and boundless energy in another direction.

But unlike many Dexter athletes, kids like Walton haven't had a place to focus and release that energy.

Until now. "Oh gosh, the kids, they just needed someplace to go," said Bonnie Chubb, one of three Extreme Sport Park owners. "There was no place in the area for inline skaters and skateboarders to practice their hobby."

"I mean, you get fined for skateboarding in downtown Ann Arbor. I thought to myself 'That's ridiculous.' So we got together and started planning the Extreme Sport Palace."

Chubb, along with her husband, Art, and relative, Sandy McClure, decided to get together on the project after the Chubbs' Dexter home burned to the ground about this time last year.

"Naturally, you're depressed when your home burns down," said Chubb, CEO of ESP and a former champion roller speed skater. "My husband kept telling me, 'Bonnie, you need a hobby.'"

"Well, my son, Bryan, is an avid aggressive inline skater and I had this idea to start a park for some time. So we just decided to go for it and here we are."

For Bryan, the reality that his mom owns a skatepark is still sinking in.

"You have no idea," he said. "This is like a dream come true."

The Chubbs and McClure pulled out all the stops, investing nearly a quarter million dollars in the facility.

The ramps, built of wood and covered with a revolutionary, high-tech surface known as "Skate Light," range in difficulty from beginner to expert.

Half pipes, quarter pipes, extensions, metal coping, vert, banks, rails, boxes are all set up for skateboarders and aggressive inline skaters of all ages and abilities. It is, as Bryan Chubb put it, a "dream come true" for the area's alternative sport athletes.

"It's good for the community," said Matt Brushinski, 19, of Dexter. "It'll keep kids from destroying property, mainly curbs, marble ledges and stuff. I think every city should have one."

Skateparks are nothing new to Michigan. In fact, they've been around for some time.

What makes ESP different is that it's indoors. Athletes need not worry about the ever-changing elements outdoors.

"The kids in the Ann Arbor area who skateboard and inline skate deserve a place like this," said McClure, vice-president of ESP. "They have for some time."

"We hired the ultimate in skatepark design and construction companies to build this park. And not only will it be a stand out facility of its kind in the region, but it will also be one of the premier skate parks in the United States."

McClure, whose 13-year-old son Ron uses the park, said ESP keeps kids busy and out of trouble.

Though the park is a challenge for even the most talented athletes, it welcomes newcomers.

"We have areas for beginners as well," McClure said.

Plus, lessons are available onsite from some of the area's best skateboarders and in-liners for those yearning to improve their skills.

Safety equipment, specifically a helmet, is required at the park.

When it's time to take a break, athletes can check out the park's full-on arcade, eat pizza from Cottage Inn or browse through the fully stocked pro shop managed by Ann Arbor-based Modern Skate shop.

In the future, ESP plans on holding competitions, demos by pros and even hosting bands at the facility.

Walton said ESP would be a benefit to skaters in the area.

"Man, there's nothing to do in Dexter," he said. "Anybody can learn how to skate. And if they stick with it, they'll get good real quick."

"And you know what? You're going to see a lot of Dexter kids get real good, real quick here."

Young golfers get own tour

The Game of Your Life Foundation (GOLF) has announced plans to run a mini-tour for young linksters ages 6 through 7 this summer.

The tour, the only one of its kind in the nation, tees off at Jackson's Arbor Hills Country Club June 17.

The six-event season wraps up at Tanglewood in South Lyon Aug. 1.

Tournaments are open to both genders. A youth's age as of Aug. 1, 2002, determines eligibility.

Each tournament will be a 9-hole stroke play event played at approximately 2,200 yards for the boys' division and 1,600 yards for the girls' division. There is no limit to the number of events a player may participate in.

The tournament will allow a maximum score of 12 strokes per hole for the first eight holes. On the ninth hole, the player must completely hole out.

Entry fees for each tournament will be $30.

Besides Jackson and South Lyon, the tournament will travel to golf courses in Mt. Pleasant, Big Rapids, Ann Arbor and Battle Creek.

To participate in the mini-tour, linksters do not need to be members of GOLF.

The mini-tour is designed to give young golfers the chance to play in competitive 9-hole tournaments.

GOLF also hosts the Power-Bit Junior Tour for ages 11 through 19 and the Meijer Junior Tour for ages 8 through 19.

For additional information about the mini-tour, call 1-517-278-4892 or 1-734-475-0943. Or mail questions to G.O.L.F., 491 Jonesville Road, Coldwater, MI 49036.

One can find further information online at www.juniorgolf.org or e-mail concerns to jrgolf@cbpu.com.

JV cagers battle Pirates

By Don Richter
Staff Writer

Behind 16 points from Joel Hohnke, Chelsea's JV boys' basketball team defeated Pinckney 50-45 Dec. 18.

The visiting Pirates started out quick, leading 10-8 after one quarter and 25-21 at halftime.

In the second half, however, the Bulldog offense heated up, while their defense stiffened.

In the third quarter, Chelsea (3-2) outscored Pinckney 15-9 taking a 38-34 advantage into the fourth period.

In the final frame, the Bulldogs netted 14 points, while limiting the Pirates to 11 sewing up the "W."

Besides Hohnke, Brian Kinashuk led Chelsea with 10 points while Mark Borders had seven points.

MARKING A MILESTONE

As Hilda Pierce celebrates her 100th birthday, she looks back on her many accomplishments.

By Will Keeler
Staff Writer

While Chelsea marks its 168th birthday this year, Hilda Pierce also celebrates a milestone. The former Lima Township treasurer will turn 100 years old in eight days.

Pierce is a distant relative of one of the village's founders, Nathan Pierce. As she celebrates her birthday Jan. 11, she will look back at a century of achievements.

Pierce was born Jan. 11, 1902, on a small farm on Lima Center Road in Lima Township, the daughter of Frederick and Emma Wenk. The small farmhouse that her father built still stands. And Pierce recalls many memories of her childhood home, just a mile from her current home on Jackson Road.

Pierce remembers riding the electric streetcar along Jackson Road into Chelsea. For 5 cents, she took the streetcar into the village and to the high school at its former location on Park Street.

When the snow hadn't been cleared from the roads, Pierce and her family would ride into town on a horse-drawn sled.

The third oldest in a family of six other siblings, Pierce kept busy on the family farm by helping her mother with household chores. She recalls spending many hours churning butter and waiting for the cream to rise.

"It was hard work, but it was well worth the work," she says.

One of her fondest memories as a child was when she went ice skating with a friend at a nearby pond and was injured by her friend's skate.

"My friend went to grab onto me and she slipped and the skate hit my knee. My father had to carry me into school several times," she says.

Pierce was confirmed at St. Paul United Church of Christ in 1916. She remembers the service was given in German — a tradition she says faded after World War II.

Pierce graduated from Chelsea High School in 1920 with 32 other classmates.

"Back then, I thought 33 was a large class," she says. "But these days, there are classes that are well over 300."

As a constant reminder of her earlier years, Pierce still wears her class ring with the fine etchings of Class of '20 on its surface.

On Oct. 4, 1926, she married Elmer Pierce on her parents' anniversary. The couple exchanged vows in Toledo, Ohio, with her uncle, Emil Wenk, officiating.

The couple had two children, Donald and Joan, who continued to farm in Lima Township. The couple raised their family on Lima Center Road. Pierce and her husband raised cattle and kept busy year-round by canning vegetables in the fall and preparing for a new planting season in the winter months.

Pierce says that times were tough, especially during the Depression and World War II, so the family butchered its own meat, smoked hams and made its own sauerkraut.

"We had to be careful with our rations," she says. "We had to make sure we had enough sugar for baking."

Pierce enjoyed sewing — something she now considers a hobby.

In exchange for grains and feed, the local milling company gave Pierce feed bags that she later sewed into aprons, shirts and other clothing for her children.

Pierce's life is a lot like some of her long-lasting accomplishments. For 24 years, she served as treasurer of Lima Township. She says people urged her to run for the position, but initially she wasn't interested. Pierce eventually changed her mind and was elected to the post in 1952, the same year her husband died.

"I really didn't have an interest in the job. My husband was a Republican and I was a Democrat, and he would always joke with me and say that when he voted it really wouldn't count because my vote would cancel out his."

Pierce also found time to work at an antique shop near her home.

"I really enjoyed working there after my husband died," she says.

Pierce also volunteered at the Chelsea Senior Citizens Center until she was 95 years old.

"I worked in the nutrition department and met a lot of nice people over the years," she says.

Pierce gave her time to many church activities. She served as secretary and treasurer of the church offices and spent many hours watching children in the church nursery. Recently, the church recognized her efforts by giving her a certificate for "Best Babysitter of the Century."

As Pierce looks back on her life, she says that she is amazed by some of the new gadgets, like the telephone, computer and television.

"I remember listening to the radio, but now everyone has a TV," she says.

Pierce enjoys spending time with her family and looking at pictures of the past. Her granddaughter, Kathryn Squires of Chelsea, has organized a history of the Pierce family. She also enjoys doing some household chores and making meals for herself.

Pierce celebrated her 100th birthday with family Christmas Day at her granddaughter's home in Homer, a small town near Jackson.

Staff Writer Will Keeler can be reached at 475-1371 or via e-mail at wkeeler@heritage.com.

On Jan. 11, Hilda Pierce will celebrate her 100th birthday. She gathered for a birthday party Christmas Day with friends and family in Homer. 'Mushroom Man' hunts morels in Chelsea

By Sheila Pursglove and Sven Gustafson
Heritage Newspapers

Larry Lonik jokes that there are Bigfoot sightings reported every year in the Dexter-Chelsea area.

"When you get a guy like me, at 6-foot-7, creeping around the woods, it generates some interest," he says.

Lonik — also known as "Tree," "Spore Boy" and "The Mushroom Man" — spends a lot of time in local woods hunting for mushrooms.

His company, RKT Trade Publishing, is based in Chelsea, where local resident Jan Manning works as his assistant.

Mushroom hunter, world traveler and author, Lonik has been called "our foremost morel authority" by CBS Morning News. He has been interviewed on National Public Radio and quoted in The Wall Street Journal. Lonik has even hung out with Martha Stewart and cooked for the first President George Bush.

Lonik regularly tours the country, selling mushrooms and giving cooking demonstrations. He also promotes his books and video, "Motherlode," which features forest-floor footage from the "Squirrel Cam" and Celtic music by the Ann Arbor group Nutshell.

A lifelong Michigan resident, Lonik says he has been interested in hunting mushrooms since age 6, when his father took him into the woods near Grand Rapids to search for morels. It was that experience that sparked in him a passion for the outdoors and turned him into a naturalist.

"We're just another living thing on this planet," he says. "We get a little arrogant sometimes. You have to look at Mother Nature to realize how intelligent its systems are."

"The answers to who we are, where we came from, what happens when we die... the answers to me are all out there in nature. We just don't ask the right questions. My hope is that someone that I interest in nature will ask the right questions."

And Lonik, who has been on tour as the Mushroom Man for the last three years, seems to be interesting plenty of people.

"The people that do these different trade shows have been shocked at the thousands of people that have questions about mushrooms who come to these shows and never come to a boat show or an outdoor show, ever," he says. "But when they find out where the Mushroom Man is, they all have questions about mushrooms."

Lonik offers weekend morel hunting outings, which include meals, seminars, guided hunts, strategy sessions and cooking demonstrations.

Lonik leads groups of 60 people at a time into the woods. Then, he watches as his apprentices, who average 40 to 60 years of age, turn into 10-year-olds, crawling around on their hands and knees, yelling, "Don't move! I got one!"

"That's sort of my reward," he says.

Every spring, Lonik waits for the temperature to inch above the 60-degree mark. Then, he puts on his boots and comfortable walking clothes, and grabs a mesh bag.

Mushrooms depend on spores for reproduction. Lonik created Spore Boy, a mesh bag that allows spores to sprinkle to the ground and create more mushrooms.

"Any mesh bag will work, but I created Spore Boy like a Johnny Appleseed character," Lonik says. "I used a paper bag for 20 years. I could walk into a wall, I'm so stupid."

Each morel cap contains up to 500,000 spores. It takes five years for a morel spore to produce an edible fruit.

"We can produce more mushrooms than we've ever seen," Lonik says. "It gets back to understanding where we are in nature, where our place is."

Locally, Lonik says morels come out in late April and early May. First come the black morels, then the white. Then come giant morels, and so on until the weather heats up to 80 degrees.

"And then you go north," he says.

For Lonik, that could mean a trip up to Gaylord, which he says boasts a bounty of morels within a 60-mile radius of the intersection of M-32 and I-75. Or the Porcupine Mountains in the western Upper Peninsula, where Lonik finds black morels he can sell for $10 for a 1-ounce plastic bag of the dried delicacies.

Lonik has picked morels in 17 states, as well as in Poland, Czechoslovakia, Mexico, every province of Canada and Peru. He says Michigan may be the most known of any place in the world for morels.

Larry Lonik displays Chanterelle and Portabella mushrooms along with his new video, "Motherlode," at the Royal Oak Farmers' Market. Following a book and seminar tour, Lonik will return to Michigan Jan. 30 for the Silverdome Boat, Sport & Fishing Show in Pontiac, and to the Royal Oak Farmer's Market on Mother's Day.

"It's not because there's more morels here. It's because the travel bureau does a good job promoting the mushroom festivals in Michigan," he says.

Lonik says there are 25 different kinds of edible mushrooms in Michigan, and no poisonous ones in the springtime. Mushrooms like sandy, well-drained soil, and some — like honey mushrooms, hen-of-the-woods and chicken-of-the-woods

REVIEW

June
28—More than 1,200 motorcyclists took to the rural streets around Chelsea and the neighboring areas Sunday for the annual Thin Blue Line Benefit Ride. The group met at Chelsea Fairgrounds and made the 70-mile trek to benefit fallen and stricken police officers and their families.

28—An Ingham County judge denied an injunction June 13 filed by Lima and Sylvan townships to stop Chelsea's plans for cityhood. Now Circuit County Judge James Gidding will consider a motion by Attorney General Jennifer Granholm, representing the State Boundary Commission, to dismiss the townships' lawsuit.

28—Alyssa Van Nuys, 21, of Jackson, pleaded not guilty to a charge of indecent exposure and an alternate charge of disorderly conduct at a pretrial hearing Monday in 14A District Court in Chelsea. Van Nuys, who was arrested outside Art & Soule Gallery May 26 during a publicity stunt arranged by photographer Harvey Drouillard, appeared before Judge Richard Conlin.

July
5—Village officials say a special assessment district, not a millage, may be the answer to Chelsea Area Transportation Authority's financial woes. Transportation officials had initially asked that a millage request be placed on the village ballot. But according to a legal opinion from the village's attorney, the council doesn't have the power to ask for a millage to support the bus system.

5—Lima Township Board held a special meeting June 28 to discuss a proposed agreement with Sylvan Township to supply sewer and water services. Gary Adams, a former Lima Township supervisor, recommended that Lima Township join Sylvan and Lyndon townships' sewer project.

5—A familiar face will soon be returning to Chelsea Village Council. Despite choosing not to run for re-election in the spring, Brian Cashman is back. He was appointed to fill a seat vacated by Trustee Richard Rigg May 22. The term expires March 2002.

19—The group Friends of Pickerel Lake hopes it can talk the Department of Natural Resources into imposing a moratorium on improvements planned for the boat landing and the surrounding area at the lake until further research and negotiations are done.

19—Although the Village Council failed to support a request to fund a sidewalk study along M-52 during its last meeting, the issue may not be dead. Village President Richard Steele said the council will reconsider funding July 24.

26—More than two dozen business leaders and residents attended a meeting at the Washington Street Education Center last week to learn more about Chelsea's quest for cityhood status. The driving force behind the move is a citizens committee of 12 residents led by Jack Merkel. Merkel presented information about Chelsea's quest July 18 at the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce breakfast meeting.

August
2—Chelsea's water woes continue through a long, hot summer. Sunday's torrential downpour did little to provide relief, giving an inch of water in about 11 minutes in Chelsea.

2—The village recently received a clean bill of fiscal health from an auditor who examined the books. Accountants with Plante and Moran told Village Council trustees July 24 that the village's records and funds appear to be in good shape.

9—Sylvan Township residents Walter and Sandy Zeeb were recently presented with a key to the village and recognized as Citizens of the Year. The Zeebs have owned and operated Chelsea Greenhouse for more than 40 years.

16—An 11-year-old boy drowned in Independence Lake

Saturday in Webster Township during a field trip from the St. Louis Center, a home for developmentally disabled youths and adults located in Sylvan Township. Matthew Swanson of Pinckney, a resident at the center for several years, was pronounced dead at approximately 9:30 p.m. after he was taken to the University of Michigan Medical Center.

16—Lima and Sylvan townships are not pleased that the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce is supporting Chelsea's drive to become a city. Lima Township Supervisor Ken Unterbrink said the Chamber of Commerce is an entity that represents a number of services to the community, not just the downtown businesses, and should look for everyone's interest.

23—It's the end of an era in Chelsea. At 10 a.m. Aug. 13, buildings once housing the Serendipity bookstore and Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home came tumbling down to make room for a new municipal parking lot.

23—The Village Council voted last week to pursue a sidewalk study south of town. The village will pay Tetra Tech, an engineering firm based in Ann Arbor, $9,500 to provide cost estimates for installing sidewalks on both sides of M-52, from Interstate 94 to Old US-12.

30—Saturday's closing of Camp Waterloo, an inmate rehabilitation program in Waterloo Township, will have an impact on surrounding communities as municipalities lose reduced-cost laborers and one police department possibly becomes homeless.

September
6—More than 3,000 registered voters in Dexter Township will have the opportunity to cast a vote Oct. 16 during a special election that will determine the amount of police coverage in the township beginning Jan. 1. By a 5-0 vote Friday, the wording for the ballot proposal was approved at a special meeting of the Dexter Township Board.

13—Chelsea residents joined Americans across the nation Tuesday as they reacted in stunned disbelief to terrorist attacks on New York City, Washington, D.C., and Pennsylvania. Two hijacked jets crashed into the twin towers of the World Trade Center in New York City, a third hijacked plane crashed into the Pentagon in Washington, D.C., and a fourth, possibly on its way to attack Camp David or the White House, crashed in rural Pennsylvania.

13—After more than three hours of discussion and public comment last week, the Lima Township Board voted to negotiate with Sylvan Township over providing sewer services to Lima.

13—If a proposed subdivision near the intersection of Freer and Dexter-Chelsea roads is constructed, the village could see a sharp increase in the number of houses. And some residents living near the proposed project are not happy about it. The vineyards would consist of 352 single-family homes that would be constructed on more than 150 acres of land owned by Marty Merkel.

13—Washtenaw County Commissioner Joseph Yekulis was named president of the Michigan Association of Counties. He was sworn in last month in Gaylord.

20—Lima Township will enter into an agreement with Sylvan Township to receive sewer services and oppose the Chelsea Village initiative to become a city. The board approved both decisions Monday.

20—The new Dexter Township Hall opened Sept. 12. The hall was built in about 1970 and the employees were crammed in 3,300 square feet of space. The addition provides another 2,850 square feet. The cost for the new surroundings is about $550,000.

27—The Chelsea High School auditorium was packed on Friday evening as the community came together for a memorial service for the firefighters, police officers, emergency service workers and victims of the recent terrorist attacks. More than 500 people gathered to hear a message of hope and healing.

27—If local residents have their way, plans for a new subdivision near the intersection of Freer and Dexter-Chelsea roads will be scrapped for a village park. Chances, however, are unlikely.

27—Sylvan and Lima townships say they do not oppose Chelsea's efforts to become a city as long as the village doesn't gobble up the townships' agricultural and residential land in the process. More than 100 people gathered Tuesday afternoon at the Chelsea High School auditorium for a public hearing about Chelsea's quest for cityhood.

October

4—A report by the Michigan Municipal League Consulting Services suggests the Chelsea Area Fire Authority upgrade the fire chief's position to full time, hire an additional full-time firefighter and seek a millage to support additional services.

4—Lima Township Supervisor Ken Unterbrink is saying the township no longer supports the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce and is asking the Chelsea Area Fire Authority to withdraw its membership. The controversy stems from a recent vote of the chamber's board of directors to support Chelsea's drive to become a city.

4—in the past few months, officials in Lima and Sylvan townships have discussed sharing police services with the village. But now they are trying to settle arguments over land. Many area residents have mixed feelings as to whether Chelsea should become a city. Homeowners in some of the outlying areas were unhappy when they found out that their land soon may become part of the village or new city.

11—The student count in Chelsea has dropped this year. There are fewer pupils at the elementary and middle schools and more teens enrolled at the high school and Chelsea Alternative High School. There were 2,943 students registered last fall. Looking at the September 2001 unofficial count, the final total is down 20 from an estimated 2,924 students.

11—One of Chelsea's top 10 employers, Chelsea Industries Inc., will move most of its workforce to a new facility in Saline by next March. The company is establishing a new manufacturing and technical center in Saline's Sauk Trail Industrial Park on South Industrial Drive.

18—Despite bad weather Tuesday, 365 voters in Dexter Township made it to the polls and passed a five-year police millage, 205-160.

18—Alyssa Van Nuys, 21, the Jackson waitress who achieved notoriety as Chelsea's "Lady Godiva" in a nude horseback ride, returned Monday to 14A District Court in Chelsea. Judge Richard Conlin upheld a charge of indecent exposure, overruling defense attorney John Minock's argument that the ruling violates Van Nuys' constitutional rights to free speech.

25—Dexter Township voters may have passed a police millage thinking they would get the services of two full-time deputies, but officials have other ideas in mind. Dexter Township Board has decided to contract for three deputies beginning Jan. 1.

25—By next summer, members of the group Friends of Pickerel Lake may get their wish. The Dexter Township Board is considering a "no wake" and "no gas motor" ordinance for the lake, which has been at the center of debate since the Department of Natural Resources announced plans to improve an existing boat launch.

November

1—Chelsea's drive to become a city is now being considered by the State Boundary Commission. Since the commission's Sept. 25 public hearing, where residents of Lima and Sylvan townships opposed the taking of their land, the City Study Committee has downsized the amount of land to be incorporated into the proposed city.

1—Residents living on Werkner Road may have been startled to see a man in a hazardous materials suit Oct. 21 investigating a white powdery substance in a neighbor's yard. The white powder, which caused the anthrax scare, turned out to be a hoax, Fire Chief Dan Ellenwood said.

8—in the past two months, many village residents have voiced concerns over the 187 acres of farmland targeted for a 352-unit subdivision called The Vineyards. The Committee for Chelsea Park, a grassroots group opposed to the development, would like to see a park at the site instead of homes. The group kicked off a petition drive Nov. 1 in hopes of collecting 1,000 signatures from village residents to convince the village to buy the land for a park.

8—The Washington Street Education Center board room was filled Monday evening when the Chelsea Board of Education presented a community survey focusing on funding issues for the district. Board president Scott Broshar, who joined Superintendent Ed Richardson in delivering two back-to-back 30-minute presentations, estimated about 70 people attended.

15—Helen May Leonard, former newspaper publisher of The Chelsea Standard and The Dexter Leader, died Friday at the age of 84. She and her husband, Walter, were at the helm of the two newspapers for almost five decades. They received the Chelsea Citizens of the Year award in 2000.

15—At a court hearing Nov. 5, Judge Richard Conlin sentenced Alyssa Van Nuys, who achieved notoriety after a nude horseback ride in Chelsea, to six months non-reporting probation and a fine of $125 after she pleaded guilty to disorderly person/obscene conduct.

15—A 12-year-old resident of the St. Louis Center in Sylvan Township has been charged with the murder of 11-year-old Matthew Swanson of Pinckney, another resident of the center. Swanson drowned Aug. 11 in Independence Lake in Webster Township during a field trip from the St. Louis Center.

29—Local businessman Ron Weiser left today for Bratislava, the capital of Slovakia, where he will serve as U.S. ambassador during the remainder of President George W. Bush's term. Weiser was sworn in Tuesday by Secretary of State Colin Powell at the State Department in Washington, D.C.

29—The grassroots group Committee for Chelsea Park may need more leverage to save 157 acres of undisturbed land along Dexter-Chelsea Road. The Chelsea Village Planning Commission voted Nov. 20 to recommend that the Village Council approve the housing development despite the committee's desire for the property.

29—The village's bid to buy the former BookCrafter's building at 140 Buchanan St. has been accepted — an early Christmas wish for village officials. The move will allow all the village offices, including the administrative offices, zoning department, police department and Department of Public Works, to be located in one facility.

December

6—Robert Fowler, the South Carolina native accused of the April 24 murder of his wife, former Dexter resident Sylvia Mae Fowler, appeared before Washtenaw County Circuit Judge Archie C. Brown Nov. 30. Fowler pleaded guilty to second-degree murder, punishable by up to life in prison. He will be sentenced Jan. 4.

13—Two parking spaces on West Middle Street have spurred a lawsuit between a local business owner and the village. Joanne Oesterle, who owns a building at 115 W. Middle St., is asking the village to label the two parking spaces in front of her building as "no parking." The spaces have been marked for three-hour public parking since last spring.

20—Chelsea Village Council denied a request Dec. 11 to rezone 16 acres of farmland so that developers could begin work on an apartment complex. The Village Council followed a recommendation Dec. 13 from the Planning Commission to deny a zoning change for Magellan Properties.

MAN

—like areas around oak trees. "There are some interesting flavors out there," he says. "If you know what to look for and when, it's really not that difficult to do."

After springtime, mushroom season in Michigan doesn't recommence until the end of summer, when the woods fill up with chanterelles, shaggy mane and puffballs, which he says taste like eggplant.

Lonik says the woods around these parts provide ideal conditions for mushroom hunting.

"When you get woods that are 100 years old and more, because of the age of the forests, they are an ideal breeding ground for fungus," he says. "All the leaves and branches are broken down by fungus, which is what mushrooms are."

Lonik says wild mushrooms are very good for circulation, and contain many vitamins and nutrients. Scientists, he says, will be releasing lots of information about the food in the coming years.

Lonik is a member of the Outdoor Writers Association of America and has authored four books, including "Basically Morels: Mushroom Hunting, Cooking, Lore, and Advice" and a book about honey.
