Voter turnout high in area

Strong showing at polls mimics state, national voting trends

By Scott Hagen
Staff Writer

High voter turnout in the area mimicked that found across the state and country in a polarizing election in which voters dug deep for patience, both while waiting to cast their ballots and while waiting for results.

In the six township region of Dexter, Lima, Lyndon, Scio, Sylvan and Webster, as well as the city of Chelsea, election officials witnessed lines of voters who were sometimes willing to wait hours to cast their votes for president, as well as local candidates.

In Scio Township's Precinct 1, comprised of voters from Dexter Village, a steady wait of 1 1/2 to two hours greeted ballot seekers. The heavy wait dismayed some who turned around, only to return hours later to find the same long line.

There was rarely a lull. Voters turning up mid-afternoon, a traditionally quiet time, still stood for hours.

Sue Amsdill of Dexter stood in line for 1 1/2 hours and was only flirting with the front of the line. Her daughter, Katie, stood in front of her, ready to vote for the first time.

Amsdill had no complaints.

"I was expecting it to be worse, so it has moved pretty fast," Sue said.

The scene at the pool mirrored stories bouncing around the Internet and on television of a long dedication to the voting process, one that seemed either to breeze by quickly for some, or to spin into countless hours for others.

In Scio Township, no precinct reported fewer than 75 percent voter turnout, with the highest precinct reporting about 90 percent. Sylvan and Webster townships both reported about 80 to 85 percent turnout.

In Chelsea, where the city held its first presidential election, the turnout was even higher. By 5 p.m., 1,400 people came to vote at the polls, and nearly 900 had submitted absentee ballots. The total approached the 70 percent mark of Chelsea's nearly 3,500 registered voters.

Staff Writer Scott Hagen can be reched at 475-1371 or shagen@heritage.com.

Two Democrats win board seats

Earl Heller, Reuben Lesser ousted from office

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

A race that began as a bitterly partisan brawl of opposing candidate slates ended Tuesday night with a shocking and razor-thin coupe by two Democratic candidates, who won two Sylvan Township seats — including the Township Board's top position of supervisor.

Democratic challenger Michael Williams topped the incumbent Sylvan Township Supervisor Earl Heller by a mere 34 votes. Democratic trustee challenger David Solo beat incumbent Sylvan Township Trustee Reuben Lesser by only 12 votes.

Those two victories mark the first time in at least 24 years that any Democrat has won a seat on the Sylvan Township Board.

Each general election year since 1980, Republican candidates have been elected to all Sylvan Township seats, according to the Washtenaw County Clerk's Office records.

Republican Patrick Merkel, who ran with a more centrist image, retained his seat, enjoying the highest margin of victory in

Republicans take board race

Longtime treasurer garners the most votes

By Maria Sprow
Staff Writer

Republicans held their ground in Tuesday's general election in Dexter Township.

Of the eight candidates who were running in the contested local trustee race, the four Republican candidates succeeded.

They are incumbent Trustee Michael Howard, and board newcomers Carl Lesser, Marcia Ottoman and Mark Wojno.

Voters did not elect members from the independent slate, which included Anne Williams, Guerin Wilkerson, Barry Lonik and Jeff Prenevost.

Those elected will officially take over their new duties Nov. 20. They will join incumbent officers Pat Kelly, Harley Rider and Julie Knight, all of whom ran uncontested.

Dexter Township, which has three precincts, had a total of 4,432 registered voters, according to the Washtenaw County Clerk's Office.

According to information provided by the Washtenaw County Clerk election Web site, 68.85 percent of registered voters in Precinct 1 voted, 64.67 percent from Precinct 2 voted and 56.36 from Precinct 3, for a total of 2,841 registered voters. Overall, 64.1 percent of Dexter Township voters went to the polls.

However, Rider said he believed those percentages to be higher æ more than 80 percent, he said. His figure would include the 794 absentee votes sent in by township residents.

"Until at least noon, people were lined out into the parking lot," Rider said of the township hall. "There were a lot of people determined to vote, and they were determined to get out there early."

The most popular Dexter Township board member, according to voters, is Treasurer Julie Knight, who garnered 2,553 votes.

Following are the voting results for Dexter Township board races. Incumbents have asterisks and winners are in capital letters.

Supervisor

*PAT KELLY, independent, with 1,934 votes. There were 18 write in votes for this position.

Clerk

*HARLEY RIDER, Republican, with 2,521 votes. There were 24 write-in votes for this position.

Treasurer

*JULIE KNIGHT, Republican, with 2,553 votes. There were 20 write-in votes for this position.

Trustees (4)

*MICHAEL HOWARD, Republican, with 1,633 votes

CARL LESSER, Republican, with 1,727 votes

MARCIA OTTOMAN, Republican, with 1,565 votes

MARK WOJNO, Republican, with 1,522 votes

Guerin Wilkinson, independent, with 822 votes

Barry Lonik, independent, with 931 votes

Jeff Prenevost, independent, with 904 votes

Anne Williams, independent, with 1,017 votes

In addition, there were 14 write-in votes cast in the trustee race.

Wilkinson said he was disappointed by the results, but not necessarily surprised. He added that, going into the race, he did not know what to expect from Dexter Township voters.

"We didn't have any pollsters out there checking things out," he said. "I guess they weren't ready for us."

"I was kind of expecting

STATE

Harvest Gathering campaign under way

Secretary of State Terri Lynn Land recently kicked off the 14th annual Michigan Harvest Gathering campaign by challenging state workers to top last year's donations of more than 80,000 pounds of food.

Joining Land were Dan Wyant, Michigan Department of Agriculture director, and Jane Marshall, Food Bank Council of Michigan executive director and chief executive officer.

The Michigan Harvest Gathering campaign runs through Nov. 7.

To help with the campaign, Land said in a press release, all Secretary of State branch offices are making collection boxes and pledge cards available to the public.

In 2003, Department of State employees collected nearly 15,000 pounds of food and other nonperishable items, besting the previous year's record by more than 1,000 pounds.

"Hunger knows no age, gender or race," Land said in a statement. "It's not just a problem of large urban areas. Forty percent of Michigan's hungry live in suburban and rural areas.

"The Secretary of State's Office is proud to participate in this worthwhile program. Collection boxes for canned goods and other nonperishable foods will be available in all branch offices. I encourage our customers and staff to help us beat hunger by overflowing those boxes with generous donations."

Pledge cards are also available for those wishing to contribute money. Branch offices do not collect pledge cards, but mailing envelopes are provided.

"I am inviting and encouraging all employees to participate," Wyant said. "The Michigan Department of Agriculture has spearheaded the campaign for state employees for the past fourteen years. In the coming year, about one million people in Michigan will use a food bank. One half will be seniors or children."

Branch offices are open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays. Wednesday hours for most branches are from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Donations from the campaign benefit the Food Bank Council of Michigan's member food banks and more than 2,700 community agencies, such as soup kitchens and food pantries. Any food collected stays in that community to help friends and neighbors facing a tough time.

Money raised assists food banks in recovering the transportation costs of collecting food and distributing it to local emergency feeding programs, as well as purchasing hard-to-obtain food items.

This year's goal for Harvest Gathering is to raise $250,000 and collect 250,000 pounds of food. Since Michigan Harvest Gathering began, the combined efforts of state government, businesses and individuals have raised more than $4 million and nearly 6 million pounds of food.

BOARD

that more people would know who we were because we did a lot of door-to-door campaigning," he added.

Howard said he was not surprised by the election results, for a variety of reasons.

"I think the independents were talking about changing things that the last administration had already changed through the ordinance that was passed," he said. "They were looking at things that were already there."

Both the Republican and independent candidates attributed the results to the independent candidates' lack of party affiliation, at least in part.

Independent candidates do not benefit from straight-ticket voting in the same way as Republican and Democrat candidates, Rider said.

"It's tough to run as an independent," he said. "The people who run in a party always have an advantage."

Ottoman agreed with Rider, but added that she believed experience played a role, as well.

"After the candidate forum that we had last week, I just don't think that the independents had a real good handle on what was happening in the township," she said, though she added that she was impressed by what several had to say.

She said she believed name recognition helped several of the Republican candidates, such as herself and Carl Lesser, even though both candidates said they did not campaign using signs. Both Ottoman and Lesser have lived in the community for decades.

Rider hopes he continues to hear from the independent candidates who cared enough about township issues to run for election.

"I hope they don't just go away," he said.

Wilkinson said he is still glad he decided to run for the Township Board, despite the loss.

"If I hadn't run, I wouldn't have learned anything," he said. "I think people probably looked and saw 'no political affiliation,' and unless they paid attention to the things we sent them, they wouldn't know what we represented."

EVALUATION

The 45-year-old Chicago native took the then-Chelsea Village's top managerial spot March 1, after resigning his city manager job in Gering, Neb., late last year.

He became Chelsea's city manager a short week later, when Chelsea residents overwhelmingly voted to pass a city charter March 8.

According to his three-year employment contract, Steklac's job performance is evaluated at least annually, with provisions for six-month evaluations, although Steklac already has been with the city for eight months.

After reaching his one-year mark and on an annual basis thereafter, Steklac's contract can be extended by one-year increments.

Steklac currently earns $68,000 annually. A provision for periodic review of his compensation is included in his contract — and his salary likely will be discussed during his upcoming review.

Evaluation forms, adapted from the Michigan Municipal League, were to be filled out individually by City Council members and returned to Feeney Tuesday. The closed session will meet within the next few weeks, Feeney said Monday.

The evaluation forms include 25 assessment criteria, rated 1 to 5 — from "unsatisfactory" to "outstanding." Evaluators are asked to provide an overall rating at the end of the form, which also provides spaces for additional comments throughout.

Feeney will compile the assessments and complete a composite performance evaluation, which will be placed in Steklac's personnel file.

City Council members will discuss the composite evaluation during the closed session.

However, Steklac also will be provided individual forms, so that he may discuss issues with specific trustees.

"It would be helpful to know issues that individual council members may have," Steklac said Monday. "The closed-door session should also allow the council members to be free with their comments."

Steklac said the composite evaluation would be subject to disclosure as public record.

At an Oct. 26 City Council meeting, however, Trustee Jim Myles argued that individual evaluations could be disclosed via the Freedom of Information Act, unless a contract negotiation was in progress.

Myles also argued that Chelsea City Clerk Terri Burtch should be the recipient of the forms as a third-party, "due to potential political considerations," he said.

Steklac also will complete a self-assessment for the evaluation process, in which he will suggest goals for the next six months.

"(The self assessment) will allow the City Council and me to compare my perceptions of my performance with their perceptions," Steklac said. "I would also like to formulate some goals to be evaluated on.

"The City Council and I can work together to ensure the goals are the same ones that they want me to address."

Feeney said the evaluation process would foster important discussions.

"As a council, we've never chatted about where (Steklac) sees the city going," Feeney said. "It's also nice to know what (the City Council trustees) expect of him."

The mayor had positive things to say about Steklac Monday.

"I don't think he has anything to fear," she said. "He's done a nice job.

"People in Chelsea appreciate his accessibility and visibility, whether he's putting cornstalks on the streets or visiting River Gallery. People get the feeling that whoever does that, cares about what they think."

For his part, Steklac said Tuesday that his new job is going well overall.

"In general, I think my performance has been good, considering some of the major challenges that have come about since my appointment," Steklac said.

"I generally think that my working relationships with the City Council and city employees are good.

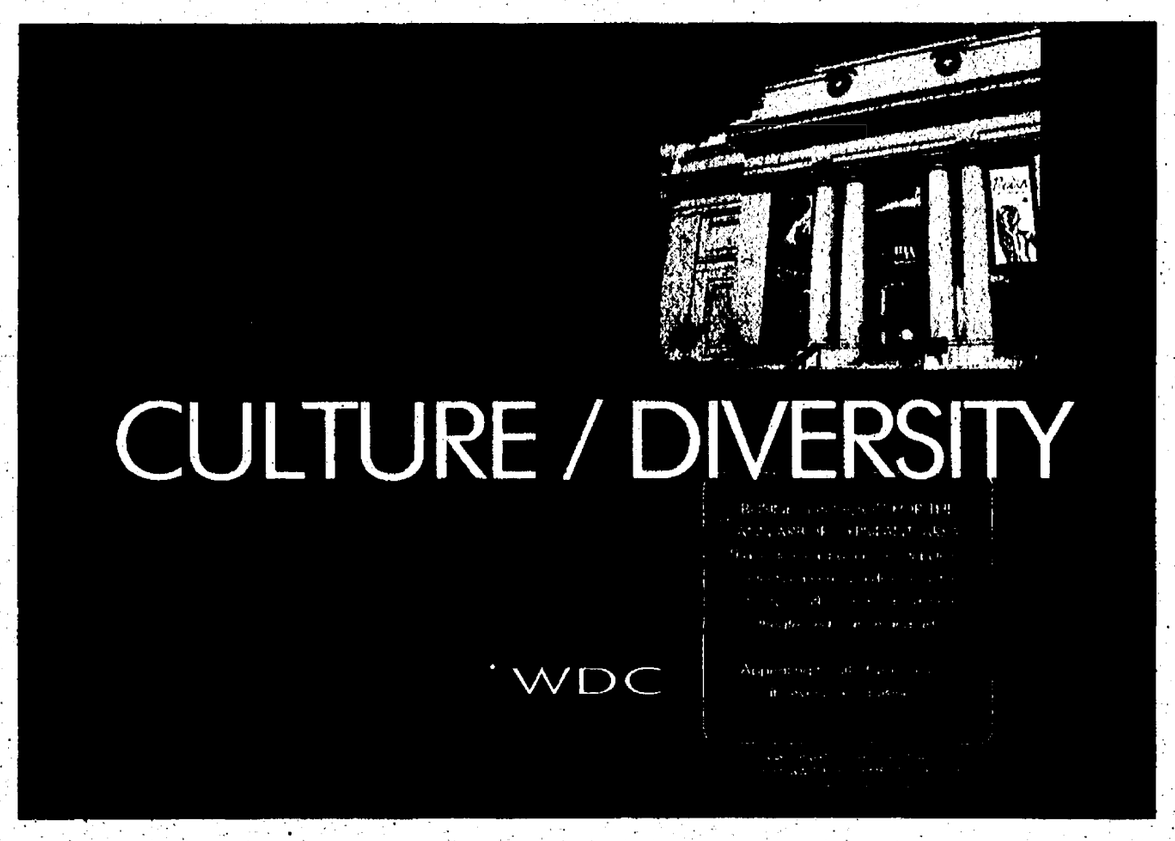

"Relationships can always be improved, but I do think that the professional relationships with the City Council and city employees are productive."

LIMA TOWNSHIP

Residents prove their faith in current board

Election winners must respond to planned developments

By Maria Sprow
Staff Writer

After Tuesday's election, nothing much has changed for Lima Township residents, at least on the local level.

Because the races for the five seats on the Lima Township Board were all uncontested, incumbent Republicans Ken Unterbrink, Arlene Bareis, Nanette Havens, Donald Laier and Gregory McKenzie will continue to work toward solving residents' concerns.

Ken Unterbrink

Arlene Bareis

Donald Laier

Gregory McKenzie

According to Washtenaw County's unofficial election results, the most popular Lima Township Board member, according to voters, is Bareis, the township clerk, with 1,198 votes. There were only nine write-in votes for the clerk position.

Following are the voting results for the Lima Township Board. All candidates have been re-elected.

Supervisor

Ken Unterbrink, Republican, with 1,156 votes. There were 18 write-in votes for this position.

Clerk

Arlene Bareis, Republican, with 1,198 votes. There were nine write-in votes for this position.

Treasurer

Nanette Havens, Republican, with 1,170 votes. There were eight write-in votes for this position.

Trustees (2)

Donald Laier, Republican, with 1,070 votes.

Gregory McKenzie, Republican, with 1,063 votes.

There were 13 write-in votes for this position.

Lima Township had 2,058 registered voters, according to the Washtenaw County Clerk's Office. Of those, 1,660 voted in the election, resulting in a high voter turnout of 80.66 percent.

More than 350 registered voters cast absentee ballots this year. That number was higher this year than in any previous year when Bareis has served as clerk, she said.

In addition, more than 350 residents had voted by 10 a.m., Unterbrink said. More than 20 booths were set up at the township hall, he added.

Bareis has been the township clerk since 1977 a. d has witnessed voter turnout in six past presidential elections. Of the incumbents, Bareis has been on the board the longest.

Unterbrink was first elected to the post in 2000, after having served on the Lima Township Planning Commission from 1980 to 1985.

Laier and McKenzie were also first elected in 2000. McKenzie also has spent six years as chairman of the Planning Commission and was also a member of the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Havens was appointed to the board when Betty Messman died more than six years ago.

With elections over, Lima Township Board members will continue to stress their previous goals, which include preserving the rural character of the township and updating the area's zoning ordinance and master plan.

They must also react to planned developments, both those inside and outside the township's borders.

There are several planned, proposed or conceptualized developments for the Parker Road and Fletcher Road areas, and the Washtenaw County Road Commission has proposed an extension of Dexter Townhall Road to Dancer Road, which could end up creating a major north-south thoroughfare to Interstate 94.

Laier said the board and the Road Commission have also discussed straightening Dexter-Chelsea Road, which runs through the township's north side.

The major developments include a subdivision by Medallion Homes LLC and the conceptualized Harvest Valley development by Peters Building Co., which could add up to 800 housing units just east of Parker Road in nearby Scio Township.

Unterbrink said one project the board will work on in the next several years is ensuring that development will be centered around Parker Road, where Dexter High School is located.

"I think that the township needs to formulate a plan for development, looking at the city of Chelsea expanding east and the village of Dexter expanding west," he said, adding that he plans to change the zoning along Parker Road to allow for more one- and three-acre lots.

Board members also will work toward building a substation for the Chelsea Area Fire Authority on the property adjacent to the township hall, as well as figuring out a way to reduce costs of fire services.

Currently, the township uses both the Chelsea Area Fire Authority and the Dexter Area Fire Department for coverage. But costs of fire services have increased to the point where officials soon may have to consider a millage or a change in services.

"We haven't come to any conclusions (about a millage) as of yet. If it gets to the point where the Fire Authority takes more money from the general fund, we are going to have to," Laier said.

With all the projects on hand, Laier said he is still pleased to be a part of the township's government for another four years.

"It's a lot of homework for a farm boy," he said.

POLICE BLOTTER

Dexter Township

Property Damage

A 35-year-old man called police Oct. 22 after he found damage to his car caused by a bowling ball at his home in the 13000 block of North Territorial Road.

The man told police the car had been parked near the road. He has been trying to sell it for the past year.

The man awoke to find the front hood of the car dented with scratches on it. He also found an orange bowling ball on the grass.

A police report states that it appeared whoever threw the ball at the car was trying to hit the windshield, but hit the hood instead.

Dexter Village

Larceny

The 32-year-old general manager of Dexter Chevrolet, 7120 Dexter-Ann Arbor Road, reported missing rims and tires from two cars Oct. 17.

The man told police he arrived for work that morning and learned that the rims and tires were missing.

The theft of rims and tires has been a problem at the dealership before, and the similar incident was reported in September.

The last time the vehicles were seen intact was the Saturday before the incident occurred.

The rims and tires were stolen from a pick-up truck and a sport coupe, according to police reports.

Webster Township

Contributing to the Delinquency of a Minor

A 21-year-old man was cited for buying alcohol for a 16-year-old girl Oct. 24 after a deputy found a group of teens hanging out in their cars in the middle of a road in North Meadows subdivision.

Both vehicles were occupied when police arrived at the subdivision. Members of the group said they were watching a movie on the car's DVD player. A deputy could smell an odor of intoxicants coming from one of the cars.

The 16-year-old girl registered a 0.10 blood-alcohol content, more than is allowed under the no tolerance law for minors under the age of 21.

A search of the vehicle turned up a mostly-empty case of an alcoholic beverage.

Police took the girl home. She told her mother the 21-year-old man with the group had bought her the alcohol, the report stated.

The teen and the older man were both cited.

Embezzlement

The 35-year-old owner of Milligan's Landscaping Service, called police Oct. 12 after learning that a past employee had stolen about $1,000 by paying bills with company funds.

The man told police he became suspicious after a phone call from the bank reported that a check from the employee, 41, had bounced. The woman also failed to show up for work numerous days in a row.

The owner told police he had called the Ann Arbor Police Department. Police told him to check his accounting records.

The man turned up three checks that were cashed by the employee, but were reported in the check ledger as going to legitimate associates of the business.

One check was written to Verizon Wireless for $278, and two other checks were written to the employee, one for $618 and another for $150.

The case is still under investigation.

Scio Township

Larceny

According to a police report, the man said he arrived at the property at 7 a.m. to find one tree stand missing and another laying on the ground broken apart.

When he walked back to his vehicle, parked about 300 yards away, he discovered a note on his car seat that stated, "Please do not kill animals, God cares." The man did not know if the note was related to the stolen tree stand, but told deputies this is the second time one of his tree stands had been stolen from the site.

Deputies have no suspects in either incident.

Retail Fraud

Two men fled the area Oct. 29 after they were caught shoplifting from the Jackson Road Meijer store.

The men were both described by store security as being between 22 and 25 years old and having facial hair.

According to a police report, a store detective saw one of the men concealing a Texas Instrument-84 calculator down his pants. The suspect also tried to conceal a DVD in the same manner, but was unable to do so. The man placed the DVD back on the shelves, and store detectives bagged it for fingerprinting.

The store detective confronted the men after they attempted to leave the store without paying for the calculator. One of the men began swinging at the Meijer employee, yelling "You can't touch me," according to the police report.

After struggling with the store detective, the man was able to make it to his vehicle in the parking lot, and the second suspect followed. They drove away from the scene, almost causing an accident with another vehicle.

The store detective was able to provide police with a license plate number, but a computer check on the plate came back without positive results.

WASHTENAW COUNTY

Recycles Day set Wednesday

The Washtenaw County Division of Public Works will host its second annual Washtenaw County Recycles Day celebration from 5:30 to 8 p.m. Wednesday.

The event will be held at Leopold Brothers brewery, 523 S. Main St., in Ann Arbor. It will celebrate recycling, as well as the Waste Knot Program and its partners.

This year marks the eighth anniversary of America Recycles Day. It's a national event held to promote the importance of recycling.

The theme of this year's event is paper recycling. Currently in the United States, 49.3 million tons of paper was recycled, yet 39 percent of household trash continues to be recyclable paper.

"It all comes back to you," is the slogan of 2004, and is a reminder that every person can make a difference. According to a press release, if every person in the United States recycled one-tenth of his or her newsprint, 25 million trees would be saved annually.

Waste Knot is a program that provides recognition and assistance to local businesses, schools, non-profits and governmental agencies that demonstrate leadership in waste reduction and recycling.

This year's event is intended to educate the public on 150 Waste Knot partners that make recycling and community leadership a top priority, and to encourage citizens to support the participating local businesses.

The event is free and will include food, prizes and educational displays. Attendees may fill out an America Recycles Day pledge card at the event that automatically enters them into a nationwide raffle to win a Ford Hybrid Escape.

To encourage paper recycling, there will be an old phonebook drive at the event.

For more information, call 222-6874 or visit www.recycle.ewashtenaw.org.

LYNDON TOWNSHIP

No surprises in board race

But heavy voter turnout creates long lines

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

The outcome of Tuesday's Lyndon Township Board race produced few surprises, as all candidates running for board positions were unopposed.

But the sheer volume of voters who flocked to the polls early did surprise township officials, who were already expecting a high voter turnout.

As of early afternoon Tuesday, Lyndon Township Clerk Linda Reilly reported that more than half of the township's 1,876 registered voters already had made it to the polls or handed in absentee ballots.

As a cold rain began to fall by late morning, volunteers from the Chelsea Area Fire Authority erected a second tent to shield voters from the elements, as they formed a long line that snaked outside the township hall.

Voters stood in line for approximately 45 minutes in the morning, Reilly said.

A long line formed at 6 a.m. Tuesday at the township hall, 17751 North Territorial Road, an hour before polls opened.

Reilly said voters came to the polling site, which contained 10 voting stations and one optical scanner, at a rate of about 100 per hour throughout the morning hours.

More than 300 absentee ballots were returned to the township by early afternoon, Reilly said.

As of early afternoon, Reilly said a Democratic greeter and two Democratic challengers had been at the township hall since the polls opened to observe election procedures, but that no Republican challengers had shown up.

Reilly, who said voter registration numbers had spiked for the election, characterized voter turnout as "very high."

"We've never had to erect a second tent before," Reilly said. "The weather did not stop them. They stood out in the rain."

Reilly said she hadn't overheard residents in line discussing whom they were voting for. Instead, many of them read ballot proposals while waiting in queue to vote, she said.

"Mostly, people were just being neighborly," Reilly said.

WASHTENAW COUNTY

Ouimet gains seat on Board of Commissioners

Mark Ouimet will be the only new face on the County Board

By Maria Sprow
Staff Writer

Scio Township resident Mark Ouimet now has a new role to fill within his community, at least for the next two years.

Voters on Tuesday elected him to represent the 1st District on the Washtenaw County Board of Commissioners.

The 1st District covers all of Lyndon, Dexter, Sylvan and Lima townships, as well as parts of Scio and Webster townships.

The Republican was facing Chelsea Democrat Don Ratliff in the election. They were seeking to replace the seat left empty when former Commissioner Joe Yekulis, a Republican from Chelsea, decided to run for the 52nd District.

Mark Ouimet

According to the unofficial election results posted on the Washtenaw County Clerk Web site early Wednesday morning, Ouimet generated 10,019 votes, while Ratliff generated 7,769. That's 56.19 percent to 43.57 percent.

Ouimet will be the only new face on the board.

According to election results, Ouimet will be joining eight Democrats and two other Republicans on the board.

All of the other winning candidates are incumbents.

They include, respectively by district, Democrat Martha Kern, Republican Stephen Solowczuk, Democrat Wesley Prater, Democrat Rolland Sizemore, Democrat Ronnie Peterson, Republican Robert Brackenbury, and Democrats Barbara Levin Bergman, Leah Gunn, Conan Smith and Jeff Irwin.

Of those, only Kern, Prater, Sizemore, Peterson and Brackenbury faced an opponent.

Traditionally, the 1st, 3rd and 7th district seats have been a stronghold for Republicans. Democrats have typically dominated in the county's 8th, 9th, 10th and 11th districts, which cover parts of Ann Arbor.

Ouimet said he is looking forward to beginning his work on the board.

He attributed his win to gaining bipartisan support and having a strong ground campaign that involved

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Treaty will be bad for the United States

I believe that an issue of great importance to most Americans was being deliberately ignored by both major party candidates and the news media during the campaign for president.

The issue I refer to is so-called "free trade." As if NAFTA has not done enough to export jobs and lower our standard of living, President Bush is secretly working on a treaty to greatly expand NAFTA.

That treaty, called the Free Trade Area of the Americas, is planned for a Senate vote early next year. It will take in all countries in the Western Hemisphere, including North and South America.

What makes the FTAA even worse than NAFTA is that, like the European Union, it's intended to be a political as well as economic union.

Borders between countries within the FTAA will become like our state borders. Our Constitution and Bill of Rights will be superseded by the FTAA constitution, which places no limit on government power. Essentially, if the FTAA becomes law, the United States will cease to exist as a sovereign nation.

If you're opposed to seeing our Constitution, which limits government power and thus assures us freedom, being replaced by an FTAA constitution that has no limitations on government power, then contact your U.S. senators and U.S. congressional representative to see where they stand on this important issue. Go to www.stoptheftaa.org for more information.

We should respect our right to disagree

During the Waterloo Township Board meeting Oct. 19, a resident's letter, read into the minutes, complained about vandalism to campaign signs of the Democratic candidates for Waterloo Township Board positions.

A heated discussion followed among some board members who were critical of the letter they felt was insinuating the opposing party's candidates were somehow partially responsible for the vandalism.

The discussion expanded to include other residents' Democratic candidate support articles. Some members felt these articles contained misrepresentation, lies and were misleading about issues and the current board's actions.

Since these residents' articles supported the Democratic slate of candidates for Waterloo Township Board and I ran for re-election on that slate, I was criticized for the residents' articles and their support of my candidacy. I was asked if I had seen their articles and approved of them.

I saw and read published letters supporting both slates of candidates and opposing views on some issues. I believe that, on both sides of the issues, residents' letters reflect their perceptions of township actions and management.

I am extremely disappointed in criticism by officials that leans toward censorship of residents' rights to express or publish their comments, concerns and actions by their representatives or about development in their township.

As elected officials, we should always be professional in our conduct, and should listen with respect to any residents' concerns, comments, opinions and ideas, whether we agree or not.

It's our responsibility to take this input and address the issue of concern, providing the best answer or solution possible.

We need to work together with residents to resolve difficult issues. We need to work to retain and promote a neighbor-friendly atmosphere in Waterloo Township. Most of all, we should never disrespect, demean or humiliate any resident.

Respect your neighbors right to disagree. Let's work together for solutions.

Ronald Beyer
Waterloo Township

Residents have a right to express themselves

At a recent Waterloo Township board meeting, I was publicly lambasted by Clerk Dave Sweet and Treasurer Bill Schultz for supposedly accusing the board of involvement in the theft of campaign signs in a letter that appeared in The Chelsea Standard Oct. 19.

Mr. Schultz proceeded to continue his attack against me in a letter to the editor Oct. 21.

I want to make it completely clear that at no point in my letter did I accuse or imply that Mr. Sweet, Mr. Schultz or any board member was involved in the incident. I merely pointed out the fact that all opposition signs had been removed from the entire township, while those supporting the current board remained, generating the appearance that the theft was perpetrated by a supporter of the current board.

Mr. Schultz claims that "the events sound more like Friday night pranks rather than a conspiracy." An eyewitness to one of the thefts clearly described the culprit to police as a middle-age white male who one would assume would be too old for such nonsense. Based on his statement, I can only conclude that Mr. Schultz doesn't take such law breaking very seriously.

Mr. Schultz also publicly attacked Mike Hinkle for his Oct. 19 letter to the editor. Mr. Hinkle made reference to the recent ill-advised Woodhouse/Burgess rezoning of agricultural land to rural non-farm. Mr. Schultz mistakenly concluded that Mr. Hinkle was referring to the Woodhouse/Burgess land division recently approved by the board.

Land divisions are controlled by the state, under the Michigan Land Division Act, and are not under the control of local government. Rezoning, however, is the responsibility of the Township Board.

All of the board members, except for Trustee Ron Beyer, voted in favor of the rezoning, which has the strong potential to result in higher-density development around Portage Lake, an area that is already overstressed and suffering from declining water quality.

It's essential that Waterloo Township residents understand the distinction between land splits and rezoning, and not allow politicians to plant the seeds of confusion in their minds.

I find it incredibly ironic that at a time when residents of our community have family and friends fighting for democracy overseas, that citizen rights are being threatened here at home.

In Waterloo Township, citizen involvement, whether it's in the form of running for office, campaigning on the issues or expressing an opinion in a newspaper, is at risk of being squelched. If you hold a dissenting opinion regarding the conduct of our local government officials, perhaps the best treatment you can hope for is to be completely ignored.

A more likely scenario, based on behavior exhibited at recent board meetings, is that your letters will be misinterpreted, excerpts read completely out of context, and that you will be ridiculed and verbally intimidated by the very people who are supposed to represent you.

Or, as in the case of yet another resident, Mr. Sweet might threaten you with a lawsuit merely because you have the gall to disagree with him.

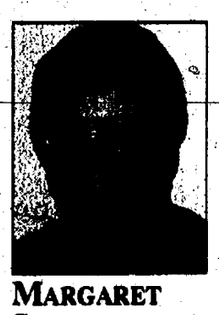

Since I fully expect that Mr. Sweet and Mr. Schultz also will have some difficulty with this letter, I will clearly state here that the above is an opinion, and this opinion is mine and mine alone.

Baby boomer recalls fluoride treatments

MARGARET STEPTOE

Just before running some errands about a month ago my husband asked me to pick up some toothpaste for him.

"Sure," I said, "what kind do you want?"

"Oh, just some regular old toothpaste."

"Well, there's no such thing anymore," I said. "Do you want the intense freshening, extra whitening or cinnamon rush? Or how about baking soda and peroxide, rejuvenating effects or fresh citrus breeze — you know, the kind that makes Emeril yell 'BAM!' in that TV commercial waking up his poor, sleeping wife when he brushes his teeth late at night?"

Yes, it's hard to buy just regular old toothpaste these days. Have you seen all the selections our stores have to offer? You can get some fresh confidence in a tube, as well as a way to whiten your teeth a few shades without making a dentist appointment.

Gone are the Crest commercials of youngsters running up to their proud moms after a dental checkup with a note clutched in their hands and declaring, "Look mom, no cavities."

It has been awhile since I've seen a Colgate ad claiming that its product "Cleans your breath while it cleans your teeth." Or even, "You wonder where the yellow went when you brush your teeth with Pepsodent."

And who could forget Bucky Beaver singing "Brusha, brusha, brusha. Here's the new Ipana," just before he saves the fair maiden from the black knight of germs and tooth decay?

Of course, most of the products today contain fluoride. But before fluoridated water and grape flavored fluoride tablets, there was a time when youngsters gathered together in groups for fluoride treatments. The Child Study Club of Dexter sponsored them while I was growing up.

I recall that the treatments took place during our summer vacation at Bates Elementary School in Dexter during the 1960s. But my memory was a little foggy about it until I talked with friends and relatives my age that helped take me back in time.

One friend recalls that four children sat in a row train-style on a raised platform. I'm sure the chairs were elevated so that when the fluoride was applied, the technicians — or maybe they were nurses — would not have to bend down all day long. Then they placed one-size-fits-all cotton rolls around our gums and teeth to keep our mouths open

Byrnes pulls away with 52nd seat

Democrat reverses losing trends of 2002 vote and captures seat

By Scott Hagen
Staff Writer

The call of congratulations came from Gov. Jennifer Granholm at 11 p.m., but the night would wean well into the early morning for Democrat Pam Byrnes, as she celebrated a decisive victory in the 52nd District state House seat.

A long list of endorsements from political groups and unions, combined with a solid base of support, propelled Byrnes to victory by about 5,000 votes over Republican and outgoing Washtenaw County Commissioner Joe Yekulis.

Byrnes, a Washtenaw County Road commissioner, was able to reverse trends from the 2002 state race. Then, she failed to garner the 52nd seat and fell to Republican Gene DeRossett by 2,000 votes.

At 9 p.m., Byrnes paced the concrete floors of her election campaign office in Scio Township, waiting to hear early, or any, results. A large board with each precinct held good news: Byrnes was winning in numerous precincts, and was pulling more votes than presidential candidate John Kerry in some places.

Joe Yekulis

And with poll workers stationed at a majority of the precincts, Byrnes learned later that night that she succeeded in finally securing a spot in the state House.

> "Right now, I have such an awesome responsibility to mend the gap ... I have to earn their trust and respect."

Byrnes attributed the win to a broad range of endorsements and a solid grassroots effort. She also said it was a sign of the evolving demographic in western Washtenaw County.

"Washtenaw County, and Michigan, too, is not representative of the entire country," Byrnes said early Wednesday morning. "You have a much more progressive community here. Look what happened in Scio Township."

There, a slate of four Democrats were able to overpower a traditionally Republican majority and ascend to the board.

Historical election results also show the area, particularly the six township region of Dexter, Lima, Lyndon, Scio, Sylvan and Webster, steadily becoming Democratic.

Although Republicans scored well across the country in presidential, senate and congressional races, local elections saw Democrats making gains.

In Scio Township's Precinct 1, comprised mostly of voters from Dexter Village and a traditionally Republican demographic, Byrnes beat Yekulis 815 to 641. Byrnes, however, did not win her home region of Lyndon Township, and fell there by a slim vote count of 766 to 724.

But Brynes' margin from voters in the Ann Arbor area was too much for Yekulis to overcome, even with strong results in outlying townships.

Across the state, Democrats were able to take five seats away from the 63-47 Republican-controlled House.

"That's going to help the governor a lot, and that's what we wanted to do: give her the leverage to push through the programs she set forth in the sate of the state address," Byrnes said. "Now that she has more of her supporters in the Legislature, we'll be able to help her implement those goals and visions."

Byrnes promised to unify a divided 52nd District electorate.

"Right now, I have such an awesome responsibility to mend the gap because there are still a number of constituents who voted for Joe," she said. "I have to earn their trust and respect, and I plan to be as visible as possible in the district."

Numerous phone calls to Yekulis' campaign office, home and campagin manager seeking comment were not answered.

WHO'S WATCHING THE CHILDREN?

The Orange County Register thought its readers might like to know about the criminal histories of workers in the state's day-care facilities. After all, the paper's readers were placing their own trust and their children's well-being in the hands of those workers.

But the state of California turned down a series of newspaper Freedom of Information requests to look at those histories, citing the privacy rights of the workers. It also refused access to its data base of offenses and other day-care center violations unless the newspaper paid $45,000 for the information.

In the end, the Register won its fight for access to documents–which were used to track down the criminals and public court records that revealed their histories. The newspaper also built its own data base from nearly 50,000 pages of inspection and complaint reports in Orange County. These efforts allowed the Register to unveil for the state's parents the uncomfortable truth. Throughout California, thousands of day-care workers had long criminal histories. The results of the data base analysis also showed pervasive problems of mistreatment, neglect, overcrowding and unsafe conditions.

If you lived in Orange County, or any other county with day care, wouldn't you like to know whether the adults your children come in contact with have committed crimes?

FLUORIDE

and then painted the fluoride on.

My brother recalls sitting back in a chair while they stuffed as much cotton in our mouths that they could before applying the fluoride.

"The taste was foul and the nurses would keep warning us, 'Don't swallow it, it's not good for you.' But swallowing a little was almost impossible to avoid," he said.

My brother also joked that he couldn't wait to get that cotton out of his mouth, and he's pretty sure his stomach lining will never get a cavity.

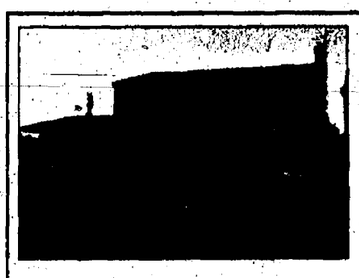

My sister remembers that the fluoride was brushed on with a Q-tip type device and we had to keep our mouths open for a long period of time, giving the substance a chance to dry while all the cotton was busy soaking up our saliva.

I don't remember how bad it tasted, but I do have a faded vision of having to use one or two of my fingers to hold the cotton in place for what seemed like an eternity to a 10-year-old. I think those cotton rolls were more like one-size fits all adults.

If you check out the Internet, you can read that there's plenty of controversy surrounding the use of fluoride. But it's still around, so it must be working. Heck, you can even get toothpaste for your pets now.

For us baby boomers, cavities may no longer be much of a problem, but, alas, new tooth troubles have reared their ugly silver colored fillings. The chant announcing "Look, mom, no cavities," is now more like "Look, honey, no cavities, just two crowns and a root canal! Hope our insurance is up to date."

SYLVAN TOWNSHIP

Officials unveil new informational Web site

Plans include posting links to Township Board meeting minutes

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

A new Web site is in the works for Sylvan Township that could provide a sorely needed information conduit for residents as the municipality grows and changes.

The Web site, www.twp-sylvan.org, is currently running on the Internet with a preliminary page only, which does not contain completed information.

Sylvan Township Clerk LuAnn Koch said last week that the Web site would not be developed further until the current election season ends.

Sylvan's Web site, which will be hosted by Washtenaw County's Internet infrastructure at no cost to the township, will resemble a new Web site for the city of Chelsea, at www.city-chelsea.org, that launched last May.

Koch said she would provide information for the site to county Web developers, who will prepare and maintain the site.

The county will provide township officials computer-training classes, showing them how to access the site to make changes themselves.

Koch said township residents looking for general municipal information have requested the Web site.

Plans for the Web site include posting links to Township Board meeting minutes, schedules of upcoming meetings and treasurer's office information as well as links to various township committee pages and other Washtenaw County municipal Web sites, Koch said.

Other local news and announcements, such as spring cleanup and fall leaf pickup dates, could be posted as well.

Koch said possibilities for the Web site are far ranging, including the prospect of publishing The Sylvan Insider — a newsletter township officials recently began publishing — on the Web page.

Of particular interest for civic-minded residents, the county will provide e-mail addresses for township officials on the Web site, which would also facilitate better communication.

Koch said if the current Township Board is re-elected, it would budget for new computers for the next fiscal year, which will be adopted in March.

Shahzad Rauf, a Washtenaw County business analyst, said Monday that the county would train Sylvan Township officials in Microsoft software applications and in Zope, a content management system that will enable them to update Web site information.

The county offers free training in a multitude of other computer programs, as well, including Microsoft Outlook and Microsoft Excel XP.

Rauf said Sylvan's new Web site would look familiar to local Web surfers.

"The site will resemble Web sites of other local government units," Rauf said, including those of the cities of Chelsea and Ypsilanti.

"They all look alike except for some colors, and the navigation is different. It's up to them," he said.

"The Web sites allow local units to basically communicate with citizens and provide ongoing information. They help citizens learn about their local governments."

Rauf said the most popular items on other municipal Web sites have been information about board or commission meetings, agendas and local news items, as well as information about city or township services.

Some municipalities scan entire meeting packets into their Internet sites for residents, Rauf said.

Other governments provide links to local school systems and other Washtenaw County sites, Rauf added.

The county provides the Web services through a local program called 1Washtenaw, which was established in 2002.

Township officials initially go through three hours of Zope training, after which they are put in touch with technical support specialists for further assistance, Rauf said.

The next Zope training session Sylvan Township officials can attend is scheduled for Nov. 18.

Rauf said all county governments could participate in the professional development programs.

FIRE REPORT

A house fire that broke out in the attic of a home in the 9000 block of Dexter-Chelsea Road kept firefighters from four different departments busy for several hours Oct. 29.

Dexter Area Fire Department Capt. Larry Wagner said the department was first notified of the fire at 10:15 a.m. One person, an adult, was home at the time of the fire, but safely escaped.

Firefighters from Dexter, Chelsea, Scio Township and Putnam Township responded to the scene with trucks, manpower and water.

Six firefighters and an engine from the Chelsea Area Fire Authority were at the scene.

Wagner said on Monday the fire was most likely caused by lightning, but the official fire inspector's investigation has not been completed.

The fire caused heavy damage to the building's roof, but the roof did not collapse, Wagner said. The home is salvageable, he said.

Firefighters aided in the search of a lost hunter Oct. 20.

Chelsea Area Fire Authority Lt. Matt Tuttle said the department received a 9-1-1 call at about 11:10 a.m. The caller reported that he and two others had been hunting on some private property near Waterloo and Werkner roads when one of the men came up missing.

The caller said the man, 21, had been having difficulty breathing the last time he was seen.

A canine unit was sent to search the area and nine firefighters responded with several vehicles, including a helicopter.

The man was found at 11:55 a.m., about a half mile from the other hunters. He said he was not aware there had been a problem and did not realize there was a search party looking for him.

•

At 7:30 a.m. Oct. 20, firefighters responded to a crash in which a car struck a tree on Rainbow Drive. Huron Valley Ambulance transported one person to the Chelsea Community Hospital for neck, shoulder and back pain.

•

A two-vehicle crash on Lima Center Road south of Dexter-Chelsea Road at 4:13 p.m. Oct. 22 resulted in one person being taken to Chelsea Community Hospital for breathing difficulty.

•

The fire department is investigating a possible arson related to an Oct. 24 outhouse fire at Inverness Country Club on North Territorial Road. The fire, which was noticed at 6:10 a.m., resulted in total loss of the outhouse, valued at $650.

"We worked really hard to get a real grassroots type campaign," said Ouimet, who has served on the Ann Arbor City Council and is the CEO of Construction Loan One. "I was just pleased that the work of so many people had paid off."

He said he does not believe the board's strong Democratic leanings will affect the work it does for the Chelsea and Dexter areas.

"I really focus on the issues and progress, and not let party politics get in the middle of trying to accomplish what is necessary for our citizens," Ouimet said. "Most of the things that go on at the county level are not Republican or Democratic issues."

Working on solving transportation issues, such as the proposed Chelsea bypass and the Parker Road extension and Main Street bridge in Dexter, will be a primary concern of his, he said.

Making sure Washtenaw County continues to develop in such a way that suits current residents is also an important aspect of his new position, he said.

"The biggest issue is growth and how to deal with it," Ouimet said. "There's a strong sentiment out there regarding what our communities want to look like."

Ratliff could not be reached in time to comment for this article, but Ouimet said he believed the race both parties ran was "extremely positive."

"It was a discussion on ideas and thoughts," he said. "I found (Ratliff) to be very up front about issues."

SURPRISES

Tuesday's contest saw only the second Lyndon Township Democrat — Lyndon Township Clerk Linda Reilly — elected to the board after a long history of Republicans serving in government positions.

It was the first election for Reilly, who was appointed as clerk in late 2002.

The other Democrat — Lyndon Township Trustee Kathryn Francis — was first elected in 2000.

All five unopposed candidates for Lyndon Township Board seats garnered nearly 1,000 votes each, if not more.

Incumbent Lyndon Township Supervisor Maryann Noah won the lion's share of township ballots, with 1,022 votes.

Incumbent Lyndon Township Treasurer Mary Jane Maze was the second highest vote-winner Tuesday, garnering 1,001 votes.

In 2000, President George W. Bush narrowly beat Vice President Al Gore by a margin of 639 to 565 among Lyndon Township voters.

The outcome of this year's contest between President Bush and Sen. John Kerry among Lyndon Township voters remains to be seen.

Republicans LuAnn Koch, the incumbent clerk, and Arlene Grau, the incumbent treasurer, won more than 50 percent of the vote in races for their seats.

Both Williams and Solo ran on platforms that opposed a proposed western route bypass — which has been discussed by local politicians for years — to ease traffic congestion along M-52, an increasingly populated thoroughfare that runs through downtown Chelsea.

Additionally, both Williams and Solo alleged that the incumbent Township Board communicated poorly with its constituents, and made development deals that did not withstand public scrutiny.

Upon the closing of Sylvan Township polls Tuesday night, Sylvan Township Clerk LuAnn Koch reported a "tremendous amount" of voter turnout at Sylvan Township Hall from early Tuesday morning until noon.

During peak morning hours, township voters waited in line for approximately 45 minutes to vote.

Voters lined up shortly after 6 a.m., Koch said, which was an hour before the polls opened.

By afternoon onward, however, Koch said there was "very little" voter traffic streaming through the polls, and no lines to speak of.

The township polling site used 15 voting stations and one ballot scanner.

Upon the closing of polls, Koch had received 492 absentee ballots. Sylvan Township has 2,289 registered voters of which 1,827 — or about 80 percent — voted.

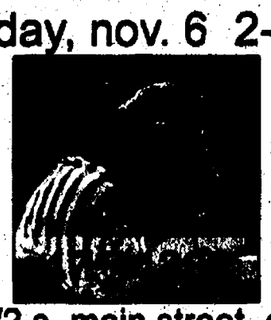

Sylvan Township's voting dynamics changed this election cycle with the removal of one voting precinct, which formerly was contained within the village of Chelsea.

The majority of Sylvan Township residents voted for Republican presidential candidates in every general election year since 1960, except for 1964, 1992 and 2000, when majorities of Sylvan residents voted for President Lyndon Johnson, President Bill Clinton and Vice President Al Gore, respectively.

Traditionally, western Washtenaw townships have been heavily Republican areas, but dynamics are slowly changing with shifting demographics and new people increasingly moving to the area.

Whether Democrat or Republican, however, all candidates vying for seats acknowledged that population growth and development pressures are likely to increase in Sylvan Township — perhaps drastically.

Now, with an almost evenly split, bipartisan Township Board, the methods the municipality uses to deal with those factors are certain to change.

LOVING HOMES NEEDED

DAIMOND-Diamond is a darling puppy. She is sweet and friendly. What a charmer. Diamond was given to the shelter by a homeless person who knew she needed a home with a yard to play in. Diamond is very young and a little shy as puppies her age are when they are away from their litter mates and awaiting their forever home.

MR. T-I pity the fool who doesn't come to meet Mr. T! (Really did you expect me not to say that?) Though his hair is much nicer and he only wears a tasteful collar or bandana, Mr. T is like his namesake in that he belongs on an A team of wonderful dogs! He enjoys going for walks, or, as you can see, just hanging with his humans, having a good time. He's a year and a half old and house trained.

BOOTS-Boots is a very talkative cat who craves attention, and loves to rub his head against yours. He's a supermodel in training as you can see from the picture! His previous home didn't work out because he didn't get along well with the other cat living there, so he'd be perfect in a home where he can be the only kitty and rulse the household!

YOUR DECORATING DOLLAR

PAT ALLEGRA

Display your collectables

Most of us have a collection of one sort or another. Some of us don't even know it. But in my book, if you have three or more of one item — and I am not talking shoes, ladies — then you have a collection.

We collect all sorts of things, from tea pots, dolls and sports memorabilia to silver spoons, trinket boxes and clocks. If you name it, then you can collect it.

Deciding exactly what to do with these collections is another story. Often we start collecting something because it gives us pleasure. However, finding a place to display your treasures can be tricky.

The first rule of thumb is to keep your collection all together. If it is scattered all over the house, then it has little impact. But grouped together, you are making a statement.

Side tables, bookshelves or the mantel are all good places to house your collection. If it's something that can be mounted to the wall, (such as plates or quilts, then give consideration to the wall along the staircase or a hallway. These spots are often neglected.

Usually our collections are kept in the obvious rooms. Plates are in the kitchen, sports memorabilia in the den and teddy bears in a bedroom. But why is this?

Remember that a creative use of your space is always much more interesting. How about a teapot collection in the master bedroom, decorative plates in the powder room and the Lionel trains on top of your kitchen cupboards? Simple glass vases in assorted sizes filled with your shell collection would be unique in the guestroom.

There are lots of places to display your collection that will not use up valuable living space. Installing a simple shelf below the ceiling is a perfect place to see and appreciate your collection. You can make the shelf as long as you need, perhaps going around the room for an extensive collection.

The "soffit," the area of space on top of your kitchen cupboards, is a perfect example of being able to enjoy your collectibles without requiring the use of needed space. Out of the way, but visible to enjoy. A cornice board over a window is another great idea. The top of the cornice can be used as a shelf.

Some collections are very valuable and are often placed in special cabinets or cases to keep them safe. But more often then not our collections only have value to us. Whether they are sentimental or just make us happy to look at, our treasures deserve a special place in our homes.

Webster Township Clerk Wana Baldus checks and signs absentee voter ballots. Tuesday was Baldus' final election as clerk. She is retiring from the position after 34 years and will leave the job with Mary Dee Heller, who ran unopposed and won the seat.

WEBSTER TOWNSHIP

End of an era

Baldus ends 35-year career as clerk

By Scott Hagen
Staff Writer

When Wana Baldus first started as clerk for Webster Township, meetings were held in her home.

Nearly 35 years and a lifetime of change later, Baldus, 81, is retiring as clerk of the township, a position she has held since the middle of President Richard Nixon's first term.

Baldus will leave the job in the fitting hands of Mary Dee Heller, who has served as deputy clerk for 20 years and ran unopposed in Tuesday's general election.

When Baldus first started, anyone who wanted to register to vote had to come to the Baldus farm to do so. Now, she works out of a relatively new township hall that is appropriate for the amount of time she spends at work, which extends into the weekend near elections.

"I think it's time," said Baldus. "Between how many years I've been in and my age and when you think about running for four more years, it looks like a long time. So, I thought it was time. But I will miss it."

The start of the new term will mark the first time in more than half a century that a Baldus will not be a clerk. Wana took over the position in 1970 from her mother-in-law, Donna, who served for 17 years, elected at the same time of Dwight Eisenhower.

"I thought (17 years) was forever," Baldus said. "Little did I know I would be here this long."

And although the names aren't the same, the job will stay in the family. Heller is married to Baldus' oldest son, Nick.

In 1970, Donna no longer wanted to serve on the family farm, and swapped houses with Wana and her husband, Donald. The move put Donna in a different township, and Wana got the job.

"I always say I kind of inherited the job with the farm," Baldus said, adding that she didn't plan on staying at the post long. "I was just going to fill out the term, and here I am."

Baldus said that the "official" gatherings in her living room ended when rumors spread about secret meetings.

But Baldus called the meetings anything but regular, and said they were mostly short with bills being discussed and decided. But a move to the old township hall on Gregory Road soon followed.

"When we first started having meetings there, I had to go ahead and build a fire in the stove to keep it warm," she said. "Eventually, we got a little furnace and finally a phone. Even the pencil sharpener was a big thrill."

Eventually, the township services moved into their new hall on Webster Church Road in 1996.

Through her 3 1/2 decades of service, Baldus has seen the job change dramatically, keeping in step with changes the township has experienced.

She has seen a lot of farm fields replaced with subdivisions and the list of registered voters increase by eight times.

"One of the first meetings I went to, we were talking about getting different voting machines because we were clear up to 700 registered voters," she said. "Now, I have 5,600 registered voters, and three precincts instead of one."

Other aspects of the community have changed, as well.

"We're not as rural as we used to be," she said. "You just kind of hate to see the farmland go, but I guess that's progress. The more people there are, the more homes that are needed."

Baldus enjoys all aspects of the job, the bookkeeping, the record keeping and the interaction with the public. But, most of all, she will miss her co-workers.

Baldus plans to stay on at the position as deputy until Heller learns the role completely.

She is looking forward to becoming more active in volunteer organizations in Dexter things she did before the township started a still unfinished growth spurt and the clerk position demanded more of her time.

She will remain at the township as the deputy clerk until Heller becomes completely comfortable with the job. Then, she will say goodbye.

"It's kind of scary," Baldus said of her retirement. "It's been my way of life for a long time."

Many benefited from GI Bill

By Anne Sullivan
Heritage Newspapers

A law that is credited with changing this country from a nation of renters to a nation of homeowners turns 60 this year.

The G.I. Bill became law June 22, 1944 and opened the door for veterans of World War II to buy a house and get an education, among other benefits.

"That is a bill that remade the country," said U.S. Rep. John Dingell, D-15th District. "It took the country where an education of grade school and high school was the norm to a point where a high percentage of Americans have a college education."

A World War II veteran, Dingell is one of millions who used the bill to attain a college education. The G.I. Bill not only was designed to benefit the individual, but also to benefit the nation. And in the end, Dingell said, it didn't cost the nation anything.

Veterans were making more money, paying income tax on higher salaries and the money spent on the G.I. Bill has been paid back over and over again, he said.

There were no limits, on what one could study, Dingell added. Veterans could study nuclear physics or cosmetology, cooking or engineering.

A host of benefits are available to all veterans, and they can check them out at www.va.gov.

The G.I. Bill enabled Dingell to enroll in Georgetown University after being discharged from the service in October 1946. It paid for three years at Georgetown and his first year of law school, he said.

"It enabled people like my dad to say, 'My son, John, is the first member of our family to graduate from college,'" Dingell said.

It can be a complicated process to determine who is eligible for benefits from the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs, said Paul Pirlot, a veterans' service officer with the Marine Corps League, a veterans' service organization. It provides the assistance to former personnel in all branches of the military.

Every Friday, Pirlot explains the benefits offered to veterans, veterans' widows and widowers, and dependents.

Some veterans don't know they are eligible for benefits, Pirlot said.

For example, Vietnam veterans with diabetes mellitus type 2 are automatically eligible for benefits, he said.

"If you are a veteran who was on the ground in Vietnam, and you get type 2 diabetes, it is presumed to be brought on by (exposure to) Agent Orange," Pirlot said.

Benefits an individual qualifies for are based on years of service and, in some cases, income, said Terry Jemison, a Veterans Affairs spokesman.

World War II veteran Jim Kenzie served in the Navy from 1945 to 1946.

WASHTENAW COUNTY

Miss Washtenaw set Saturday

Celebrating its 10th anniversary, the Miss Washtenaw County Scholarship Pageant will be held 7 p.m. Saturday at the Chelsea High School Center for the Performing Arts, 740 Freer Road.

Two of the contestants are from Chelsea and one is from Pinckney.

As a special feature to celebrate the anniversary year, a pre-show featuring many of the former Miss Washtenaw County titleholders will be held at 6:30 p.m.

This year's theme, "Country Dreams," honors the area's rural heritage, and comes complete with a barn and a harvest moon.

Nineteen young women ranging in age from 17 to 22 will compete for the title of Miss Washtenaw County and more than $10,000 in cash and prizes. The winner will receive $2,500 in cash as well as in-kind scholarships to Baker College and Cleary College, totaling $6,000, and a full-ride one-semester scholarship to Eastern Michigan University.

Four runners-up will receive cash prizes ranging from $500 to $800. All contestants receive gifts donated by local businesses throughout the county.

Chelsea Fair Queen Mandy Kitchens will be featured as a special guest. She joins Gina Valo, last year's Miss Washtenaw County. Lucy Ann Lance, host of the morning show on WAAM radio station will serve as emcee.

The young women will be judged in several areas, including a private interview in which each one will have an opportunity to present a social-issue platform important to her. The platform then serves as a basis for the coming year for developing and executing community programming relevant to that issue.

Contestants also will be judged on fitness and a healthy lifestyle in a swimsuit component, and poise and self-confidence in the evening wear component. Talent will be judged, as well.

This year will feature several singers covering a wide genre of styles, a viola performance, several dancers, including lyrical, jazz, tap and interpretive dance, and an interpretive reading.

The nonprofit event is a Miss America preliminary pageant and the winner will represent Washtenaw and Livingston counties at the Miss Michigan pageant in June.

Contestants include Teresa Stewart of Monroe, Nicole Stasunas of Brighton, Starr Burke of Belleville, Jade Curry of Ann Arbor, Christina Broughton of Ann Arbor, Lisa Jaeger of Saline, Stephanie Dent of Chelsea, Katie Lorenz of Plymouth-Canton, Angela Corradin of Muskegon, Amanda Krueger of Monroe, Demi Fragale of Haslett, Michelle Ahleman of Blissfield, Samantha Snabes of Wayne, Emily Bowman of Monroe, Alexis Floyd of Ypsilanti, Semaj Porter of Jackson, Chasidy Clark of Pinckney, Sarah Misenheimer of Chelsea and Brittany Fox of Grand Haven.

Tickets will be available at the door.

Planting a Seed

BILL

He used the G.I. Bill to buy his first house in 1952. The 3.25 percent interest rate enticed him and his wife, Rose, to buy the house, which they still live in.

Bob Johnson, a World War II Navy veteran, and his son, Bob Jr., a Vietnam Navy veteran, used the G.I. Bill to better their lives in different ways.

The senior Johnson used it to buy a house in 1946 at a 4 percent interest rate shortly after he was discharged.

Two decades later, his son used it after serving in the Vietnam War from 1961 to 1965, for a college education and earned a bachelor's degree from Lawrence Technological University.

"It helped me tremendously," Johnson Jr. said. "When I got out of the Navy, I couldn't put two dimes together. I couldn't get a job; that's why I went to school."

Army veteran Robert Cochrane served in Korea from 1954 to 1955, after that war.

After leaving the service, Cochrane used the bill to pay his way through the University of Michigan and graduate in 1958 with a degree in journalism.

His tenure in the Army foreshadowed his future career. While in the Army, he was assigned to the historical division, where he wrote about the exploits of the 9th Corps where he served.

"The G.I. Bill paid my board, books and tuition at (the University of) Michigan," Cochrane said. "Obviously, it couldn't do it today."

His tuition was about $3,000 a year, and after graduating, his annual salary was $7,000, he said.

"I was very fortunate to have the G.I. Bill and didn't have to depend on my parents (to pay for college)," he said.

After graduating, Cochrane worked at several newspapers in Michigan and Indiana.

It wasn't that easy for Fernando Joaquin when his tour of duty in Vietnam ended in 1972.

He set his sights on buying a $17,000 house. But even with the VA assurances, he said no bank would give him a mortgage.

Earning $4.75 an hour, Joaquin said he was told he didn't make enough money to qualify for a home loan. And when he asked about low-income loans, he made too much money.

But with a wife and three children, he didn't give up. In 1973, he purchased a $23,000 house through a Federal Housing Administration loan.

The home loan benefit for veterans has the guarantee of the U.S. government behind it, Jemison said. It is intended as an incentive for local bankers to give loans to veterans.

In the last fiscal year, the VA guaranteed 508,436 home loans to veterans — valued at $65 billion, he said.

While rejected for one veteran benefit, Joaquin is using another, the disability benefits for service-connected injuries. He lost the hearing in one ear and has post-traumatic stress disorder.

In the past, he was rejected for the benefit request, but since 1991 he has received them.

Like Cochrane and Bob Johnson Jr., veterans discharged from service can take advantage of the educational benefits offered, Jemison said, adding that they have changed over the years.

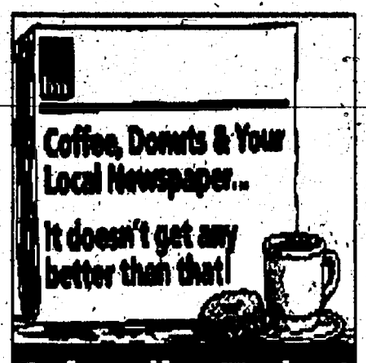

Today, the VA pays $965 a month to a veteran who served at least three years. It pays that amount for 36 months of schooling, or about three years on a school calendar, he said.

The amount decreases for fewer years of service or for those in the reserves, he said. Veterans have up to 10 years to use the benefits.

"Only about 50 percent of those eligible are using the benefit," he said.

That puzzles Jemison because every veteran pays $100 a month into the educational program during the first year of service, he said.

For more information on benefits available to veterans, call 1-800-827-1000.

SYLVAN TOWNSHIP

Local couple gives back to vets

Jeff and Mary Gunnis began organizing party six years ago.

By Rita Fischer
Special Writer

While the country marks Veterans Day Nov. 11, local veterans will be treated to a special dinner Saturday thanks, in part, to Jeff and Mary Gunnis.

The Sylvan Township couple has organized the annual party, to be held 2 p.m. at the Chelsea Rod and Gun Club, for six years based on their love of country and respect for the veterans who have fought for America's freedom.

The Gunnises met in high school and started dating their sophomore year, eventually marrying in June 1970, just before Jeff was sent to Germany with the U.S. Army. He was assigned to the 570th U.S. Artillery Group and was eventually promoted to the rank of sergeant, leading a special weapons team. Mary joined him shortly after his arrival.

Jeff concedes that he was more fortunate than many in those days. "I had a good tour, with relative day-to-day safety," he said.

After his military service ended, the couple moved to Milan and then Ann Arbor before buying property in Sylvan Township, where they built their home in 1982.

They started a family. Their daughter, Heather, now lives in Gwinn with her husband, Troy, and their two children, Conner, 2, and Olympia, 3 months.

Mary has made a living as a loan officer at Chelsea State Bank, while Jeff has worked as a draftsman at Daniels and Zermack Architects.

While they were in Germany, they joined in a tradition in Jeff's Army unit in which married couples invited the single men in the unit to their homes for dinner during the holidays.

"It was a small thing, but we made sure no one was alone for any holiday," Jeff said. "Mary still enjoys making up to 13 lasagnas every Christmas that we gives to local single guys to continue that tradition."

Out of that experience and a tradition of family values that honors those who serve the country, the idea of a Veterans Day party in Chelsea was born. The couple gathered several sponsors and approached the Chelsea Rod and Gun Club with the idea.

"The first year, we had about 70 veterans and no power," Jeff said. "Due to a storm, we put the party on with Coleman lamps and space heaters.

"The event has grown steadily from the initial group to about 150 currently."

This is the last year, however, that Jeff and Mary will be involved to the extent they are today. They are looking forward to spending more time up north with their grandchildren, and devoting more time to friends and family.

Their list of community service activities is extensive. In the last eight years, they have served as Santa and Mrs. Claus at Christmas for the Chelsea Rod and Gun Club, Festival of Lights and at other venues.

In addition, Mary has served as president of the auxiliary at the Rod and Gun Club and Jeff has been the club's president.

Mary has made quilts every year to raffle off at the Veterans Day party to help defray cost of the dinner. She also has made quilts for conservation group fund-raisers, taking in at least $2,500 for local causes.

Jeff has taught hunter safety courses for the last decade, as well as a few adult firearm safety classes. He also has served on the Sylvan Township Planning Commission and Zoning Board of Appeals.

In addition, they have joined Craig and Stacy Meyer in running the Memorial Day Parade in Chelsea for the past few years.

After the first year of the Veterans Day party, Jeff said he knew it was something worthwhile. That first evening, a color guard was formed to lower the flag at sunset. The weather was cold, with a sharp wind from the north filled with sleet and rain, he said. Several of the veterans went outside to hear the trumpeter play "Taps."

"I went out to get a picture," Jeff said. "I happened to look back at the building from the flagpole, and saw what had to be all of the older World War II vets and the rest of the guys staring out the windows. They where squatted down, leaning on each other, standing on chairs — some saluting, some with their hand over their heart — craning to see the flag come down.

"This was the flag they had defended for so many years, served their time under, and still they could not be kept from showing their reverence for it.

"A perfect Norman Rockwell setting. Seeing the older vets help one and other stand for the national anthem at our annual gathering still brings a tear to my eye."

Did the right man win?
Dear Friends and Neighbors,
By now we hopefully have a pretty good idea of who will be sworn into the presidential office in two months. At least the actual voting is over.
The question is, "Did the right man win?" The answer depends on whom you're talking to. Many will say, "Yes." Many will say, "No." Many will say, "I don't know."
We all have our ideas about who's good for the country, but what is God's idea? The Bible says, "Everyone must submit himself to the governing authorities, for there is no authority except that which God has established. The authorities that exist have been established by God" (Romans 13:1). This is not easy to accept, especially when we disagree with the authorities, or worse, when we consider their behavior and decisions immoral. The truth is, though, that when this verse was written 19-1/2 centuries ago, the Roman government was far worse than anything we could ever dream of in the United States.
God knows who's in office. He allows the person to be there. And I firmly believe that He gives each nation the government they deserve, for better or for worse. With Him, there are no accidents.
God has a far higher agenda than foreign policy, the economy, jobs, and taxes. God's purpose in allowing a particular government always has to do with the spread of His Gospel, the message of Jesus Christ. Sometimes that is done best with a more favorable government, and sometimes it is done best with a government like that of ancient Rome, which persecuted Christians.
Did the right man win? We at Faith Lutheran Church don't have any policy on who the "right man" is in terms of the White House. We're convinced it is not the church's place to meddle in politics. But we can assure you that, in God's eternal government, the right Man did win. That Man is Jesus Christ. He conquered His opponent, Satan, on the cross, and won His Father's approval, which was given at His resurrection Easter Sunday morning. No matter who is in the White House, He is in charge of things.
Please worship Him with us this Sunday morning at 10:00 a.m.

Halloween Happenings

The table with the doughnuts had many repeat customers. The cinnamon, chocolate and plain donuts were placed on plates while students, whose hands had to be behind their backs or only touching the plates, tried to be the first to finish eating. Sarah Daniel (left) and Michelle Kellogg forget all their table manners as they race against each other in a friendly competition.

Seventh- and eight-graders at Beach Middle School celebrated Halloween early Oct. 22 with a dance and various fall activities. Numerous children, teachers and parents worked furiously to get the school ready as rowdy kids lined up outside the door waiting for the fun to begin. The cafeteria served as the dance floor and was draped in spider webs. Skeletons, ghouls, cornstalks and bats were strewn throughout the hallways. Stations were set up for doughnut-eating contests, pumpkin decorating and group photos on bales of straw. Pizza, caramel apples and cider were offered as snacks for those too timid for the contest.

The pumpkin-decorating station had a lot of traffic. Students were able to choose their pumpkins and had an assortment of paint, markers, straw, eyes and felt to embellish them. Brittany Erskine, dressed as a crazy person for Halloween, wraps raffia around the stem of her

Chelsea gridders ground Airport in playoff opener

Bulldogs score two defensive TDs in state district contest

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Anyone.
Anywhere.
Anytime.

Those words were draped over the front railing of the Chelsea student section, at last Friday night's Division III state playoff game against Carleton Airport at Jerry Niehaus Field.

The visiting Jets should have used the words as a warning, and landed at some other stadium.

Instead, the Bulldogs (10-0) defeated Airport 44-6 before 4,500 screaming, blue-and-gold-clad fans.

"We're excited about where we're at," said Chelsea coach Brad Bush. "It's been a couple years since we've won a playoff game."

Chelsea, ranked No. 2 in Division III, pounced on Airport early, taking a 13-0 lead two minutes into the first quarter.

To begin the contest, the Bulldogs scored on their opening drive as senior running back Alex Rabbitt hauled in a 27-yard touchdown pass from senior quarterback Bryan Dunn with 10:27 left in the first quarter.

The Jets took over at their own 42-yard line, fumbling on their first play from scrimmage. In the ensuing melee, Chelsea senior defensive end Josh Liebeck scooped up the ball, returning it 42 yards for a touchdown.

Rabbitt kicked the extra point and the Bulldogs led 13-0 before either team broke a sweat.

"I picked up the ball and I had tunnel vision," Liebeck said of his fumble return for a score. "I was going flat down the line, I jumped over some blockers and then I saw the ball pop out. I was looking for a touchdown and nothing else. I never stopped looking at the end zone.

"That was the first time I've ever scored. That was the first time I've ever touched the ball."

On Airport's next possession, the Jets ran six plays before Liebeck (5-foot-8, 190) recovered his second fumble of the night. The Jets, however, hunkered down defensively, forcing a Chelsea punt three plays later.

On Airport's third possession of the game, a sack by Bulldog junior linebacker Cam Hawkins (6-1, 215), subbing for injured starter Aaron Parisho, forced the Jets into a punting situation.

"I picked up the ball and I had tunnel vision. I was going flat down the line, I jumped over some blockers and then I saw the ball pop out."
Josh Liebeck, Chelsea end

On the punt, a whole host of Chelsea players burst through the line, blocking the kick. Hawkins caught the ricochet in mid-air, running it back 15 yards for a touchdown.

With Rabbitt's extra point, the Bulldogs increased their advantage to 20-0 with 1:53 left in the opening quarter.

"They dropped the snap and our guys blocked it (punt)," said Hawkins. "I saw it in the air and ran under it and there was no one else there, so I just took it in (to end zone). It was a good feeling."

"We didn't quit," said Airport coach Eric Redmond. "It was tough to fall behind early. We thought we could move the ball a little bit. I don't know how long we could have hung with them, but we needed to move the ball.

"But boom, boom, boom turnovers and four scores and it was like, holy smokes. And they're awfully good. Brad (Bush) does a heck of a job."

Two plays later, Rabbitt sprinted 33 yards untouched around right end for a touchdown. His extra point kick split the uprights, increasing Chelsea's lead to a commanding 27-0, with 11:38 remaining in the second quarter.

With 5:35 left in the first half, Rabbitt blasted a school record 47-yard field goal, giving the Bulldogs a 30-0 lead.

To begin the third quarter, Airport not only had to contend with Chelsea's defense, but a thick fog, which covered most of Jerry Niehaus Field.

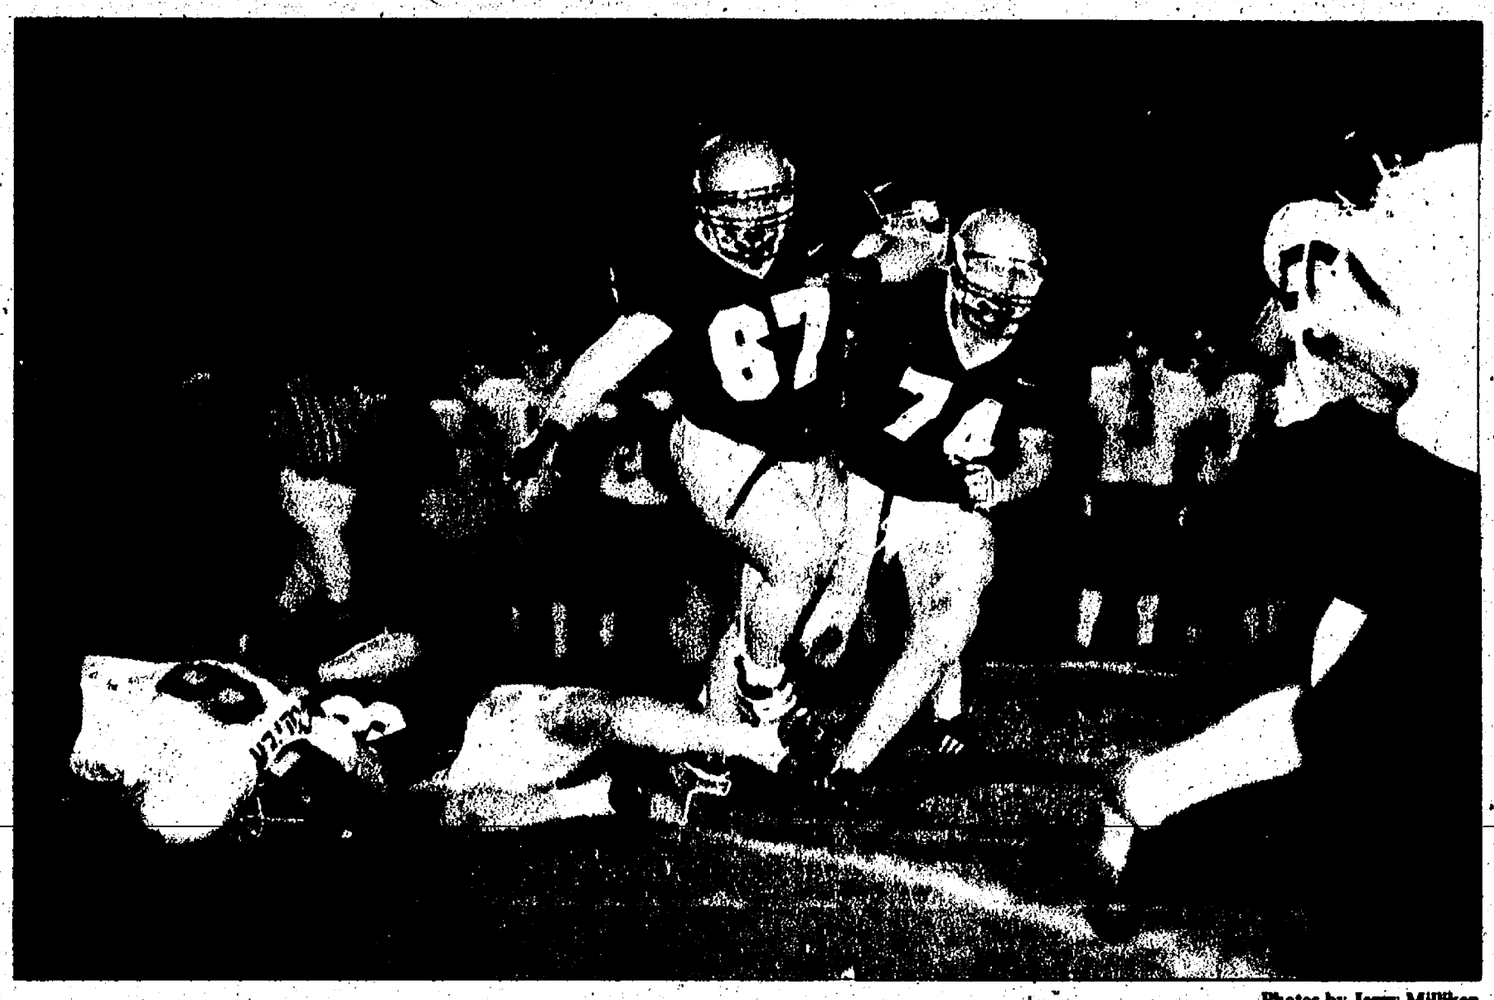

Fog certainly didn't help the Jets. Six plays into their opening second half drive, Bulldog senior defensive back Danny Swain intercepted a pass, returning it 55 yards for a touchdown. The score was Swain's second interception return for a TD in the last three games.

Rabbitt's point-after kick was good and Chelsea led 37-0 with 9:24 remaining in the third quarter.

Airport senior Mitch Hooten returned the following kickoff 43 yards to midfield, setting up the Jets' only score of the night. Eight plays later, senior running back Marcel Priester hit pay dirt on a three-yard run.

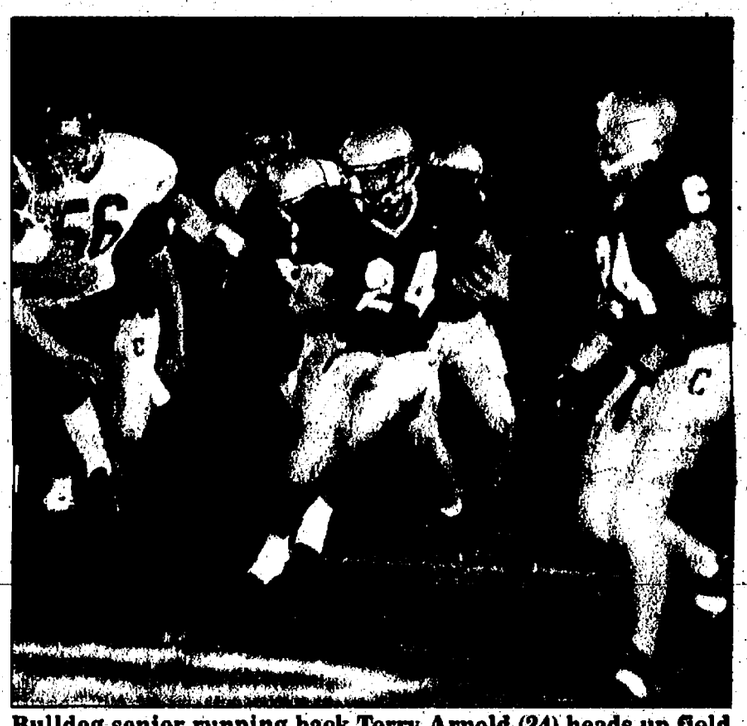

A two-point conversion pass from Duffy to senior tight end Zach Hamilton fell short as the Bulldogs continued leading 37-6 with 4:16 on the third quarter clock.

SWIMMING AND DIVING

Tankers hit pool against county rival

The Chelsea girls' swimming and diving team concluded its dual meet season last Thursday, losing 126-60 to crosstown rival and Division II No. 2-ranked Dexter.

Despite the loss, the host Bulldogs (8-3), ranked No. 5 in Division II, performed well, setting numerous season best times.

Chelsea's 200 medley relay foursome of junior Allison Frayer, senior captain Tara Jennings, junior Nicole Lodewyk and sophomore Ayla Detroyer swam a season best time of 1:58.93.

Bulldogs sophomore Julie Adams, sophomore Anne Thiel and freshman Aurora Knopper each clocked season best times in the 200 freestyle. Adams finished with a 1:24.17, followed by Thiel with a 1:25.30 and Knopper with a 1:32.04.

Chelsea senior captain Kara Stiles continued her impressive season with a career-best dual-meet time of 2:11.51 in the 200 individual medley. Her clocking earned her second place and will seed her very high at the upcoming Southeastern Conference White Division championship this weekend.

Detroyer got back on track in the 50 freestyle, placing second in the event with a clocking of 26.15. Jennings was third with a time of 26.67.

"Both girls are favored to place at the SEC meet," said Chelsea coach Dave Jolly.

Chelsea senior captain Kara Stiles finished first in the 100 freestyle, with a pool record clocking of 53.79, during the Bulldogs' 126-60 loss to rival Dexter last Thursday.

Bulldog sophomore Hillary Phillips also swam well, earning fifth-place points at 27.71 in the 50 freestyle.

"This was an important meet for her as she tried to back up her school record-setting performance from last week," Jolly said.

Stiles powered through the water, besting the field in the 100 freestyle and placing first in a pool record 53.79.

"She proved that she is one of the finest sprinters in the state, breaking the pool record," Jolly said.

Chelsea junior Kellyn Pagliarini also performed well, earning fifth-place points in the 100 freestyle with a clocking of 59.45.

In the 100 backstroke, Frayer paced the Bulldogs, touching the wall in a season best 1:06.88.

"Frayer continued her improvement, which has been steady since the first meet of the season," Jolly said.

Junior April Adams also had a season best in the backstroke event, stopping the clock at 1:08.62 for the Bulldogs.

Jennings finished third in the 100 breaststroke with a time of 1:15.56, just missing the state cut in the event.

Runners qualify for state meet

No. 5-ranked Chelsea places second at regional race

By Don Richter

Winning the 17-squad regional was two-time defending Division II state champion and current No. 1-ranked Dexter with 26 points.

Cold water finished third with 94 points, while East Lansing was fourth with 115 points and Battle Creek Harper Creek fifth with 165 points.

"For the fifth time in the past six years, we have advanced to the state finals," said Chelsea coach Eric Swager. "The top three teams from each region qualify. I am pleased that we, once again, reached our first goal."

The Division II state meet is 2:30 p.m. Saturday at Michigan International Speedway.

Leading No. 5-ranked Chelsea was sophomore Brendan Smith, who finished ninth overall with a time of 16:58. Teammate junior Ian Girard was right behind, placing 10th in 17:01, while senior Dan Lewis was 20th in 17:38 for the Bulldogs.

Senior Max Wineland crossed the line 22nd with a clocking of 17:47, while sophomore Chet Hopp was 26th in 17:59 for Chelsea.

"Max and Chet moved up in the second half of the race to solidify our team effort," Swager said.

Sophomore Jeff Squires placed 50th in 18:55, while sophomore Teddy Eyster was 55th with a time of 19:02 for the Bulldogs.

"At the start of every season, we set state qualifying as our goal," he said. "Less than 20 percent of the schools (throughout the state) make it, so I am pleased.

"We now gear up for (Saturday's) state championship at MIS. A top 10 finish would be a great cap to a fine season."

Last year, Chelsea placed 18th at the Division II state meet.

Leading the Bulldogs at the regional was Rachel Severin. The junior placed first individually with a time of 18:41.

"She had a magnificent race," Clarke said.

Finishing third overall was Chelsea sophomore Amanda McKenzie, who had a clocking of 19:14.

Crossing the line ninth was Bulldog sophomore Katelyn Ciaccio in a personal best 20:09.

"She came back from walking pneumonia last week," Clarke said. "Katelyn ran one of the gutsiest races that I've seen in years. She was our runner of the day for her performance."

Chelsea sophomore Nicole Bougher ended up 20th with a time of 20:55. Bulldog junior Athena Eyster finished 30th in 21:36.

"That was (Athena's) first race back on the varsity," Clarke said.

Placing 46th for Chelsea was senior Meg Wheeler in 22:11, while sophomore Joy Wilke was 66th in 22:55.

"This team rebounded strongly from a disappointing SEC (Southeastern Conference) final a week ago (placing second to Dexter), to win one of the strongest regional meets in the state," Clarke said. "I am extremely proud of every girl on this team and of their total team attitude."

Week 7 Brings Northern Style 'Tea Party' to Power Points Winner

Midwest Results Week 7 – They haven't had this much to cheer about in Boston since that famous tea party awhile back.

The cursed Red Sox finally defeated the Yankees, then went two up in the World Series against Saint Louis. Meanwhile, the Patriots extended their record winning streak to 21 games, and, oh yes, Boston College whipped rival Notre Dame. Who could be happier than these New Englanders?

Johnson entered the contest through the Duluth Budgetter News in Duluth.

Pontiac... Jamie Peters (104 points)

Saline... Michael Lehr, Manchester (99 points)

Sophomore forward Rachel Fitzsimmons added eight points, while sophomore center Paige Dennison had six points for Chelsea.

The visiting Bulldogs (13-4) fell behind 9-5 in the first quarter. In the second and third quarter, Chelsea outscored the Indians 28-13, taking a 33-18 lead into the final frame.

Annie Hollandsworth paced the Bulldogs with 13 points and four steals. At the foul line, she finished 5-of-6.

Chelsea shot well from the free-throw line, canning 16-of-26 for 62 percent.

On Oct. 26, the Bulldogs beat Saline 33-30.

Similar to its game against Tecumseh, Chelsea trailed 4-3 after one quarter. In the second and third quarter, the Bulldogs outscored the host Hornets 25-10, taking a 28-14 advantage into the fourth frame.

Bentley led Chelsea with nine points. Hollandsworth netted seven points and five steals, while Gunden had six points and nine rebounds.

Anna Foley chipped in four points, while Hannah Guenther, Shrosbree and Lynn each had two points and Kelly Anderson one point for the Bulldogs.

On Oct. 11, the Bulldogs travel to Dexter for a game at 5:30 p.m.

Freshman Basketball

Emily Rabbitt led the visiting Bulldogs with 20 points.

Nellie Daniels had four points, while Brogan Darwin had three points for Chelsea. Jenna Jarvis and Samantha Minzey each netted two points, while Maureen Lynn had one point for the Bulldogs.

"This was the best game we have played all year," said Chelsea coach John Ruhlig. "Tecumseh is a tough team and we gave them a terrific run. The girls played with extreme intensity and executed well.

"Even though we lost, I am extremely happy with the effort and very proud of the team."

On Oct. 26, the Bulldogs lost to Saline 41-35.

"It was not our best effort," Ruhlig said. "We got behind early, but fought to within one (point) at the half. We didn't come out strong in the third and they outscored us 13-7. We just couldn't make it up in the fourth.

"The girls never gave up, but this one did not go our way."

Rabbitt led visiting Chelsea, with 10 points. Casey Keilman and Jarvis each added six points, while Sara Myers and Darwin each had four points.

Minzey scored three points, while Lynn had two points for the Bulldogs.

DEER HIT SEASON IS FAST APPROACHING

The National Safety Council estimates that each year, about 700,000 animal-vehicle collisions cause about $1.2 million in damage, the Insurance Institute estimates. About 120 people die and another 10,000 are injured annually in such crashes.

While deer-vehicle collisions can happen any time of year, fall is the peak of the season for the deer-car accidents. That's mainly because autumn is mating and hunting season so deer are more active and more likely to roam beyond their normal territory. In addition, harvest time helps the herds begin to move.

There is no foolproof method to keep deer off highways and away from vehicles. Deer whistles have their advocates; some motorists insist the devices have helped them avoid collisions. But the Insurance Institutes for Highway Safety (IIHS) says there's no scientific evidence to support claims they prevent deer from approaching cars or reduce crash risk. According to Matt Mason, Administrative Manager at Roberts Paint & Body, Inc. "we fix a lot of deer hits with deer whistles still attached to the bumpers."

You can avoid an unplanned meeting with a deer or minimize the damage to your vehicle by following these safety tips:

- Be aware of your surroundings. Pay attention to "deer crossings" signs. Look well down the road and far off to each side.
- At night, use your high-beam lights if possible to illuminate the road's edges. Be especially watchful in areas near woods and water. If you see one deer, there may be several others nearby.
- Be particularly alert at dusk and dawn, when these animals venture out to feed.
- If you see a deer on or near the roadway and think you have time to avoid hitting it, reduce your speed, tap your brakes to warn other drivers, and sound your horn. Deer tend to fixate on headlights, so flashing them may cause the animal to move. If there's no vehicle close behind you, brake hard.
- If a collision seems inevitable, don't swerve to avoid the animal; your risk of injury may be greater if you do. Hit it, but control the vehicle. Report the accident to the police.
- Always obey the speed limit and wear safety belts.
- Call Roberts Paint & Body, Inc. 734-475-1149 to help work through the details of the insurance claim and repair process.

Pirates invade Chelsea for district final

Talented, powerful Riverview up next for Bulldogs in playoffs

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

One down. Four to go.

Four more wins and Chelsea football will be crowned Division III state champions.

Game No. 2, on the state title ladder, is 7 p.m. tomorrow at Jerry Niehaus Field against Riverview.

The Pirates (10-0), champions of the Huron League, are arguably second only to Allen Park as Downriver's premier high school football program.

Riverview has a rich and hallowed football tradition. The Pirates reached the state final in 2002 and in 1997, losing, coincidently by the same 42-13 score each time.

From 1984 to 1993, Riverview made the state playoffs every year, except one.

In the past 10 seasons, the Pirates have an overall record of 66-35, with four playoff appearances, including two out of the last three years. Chelsea is 72-28 during that same time span.

If metropolitan Detroit has a "Cradle of Coaches" it would be Riverview.

Game Two

Who: Riverview (10-0) at Chelsea (10-0)
What: Division III district final playoff game
Where: Jerry Niehaus Field
When: Tomorrow at 7 p.m.
History: Riverview leads series 1-0

University of Michigan coach Lloyd Carr is a former Pirate, as are former college and pro head coaches Woody Widenhofer and Bill McCartney. Michigan prep football Hall of Famer Don Lessner is also a former Riverview coach.

Last season, the Pirates missed the playoffs, going 5-4 overall.

This year, Riverview third-year coach Brian Flint, who took over for the legendary Lessner, has the Pirates playing well.

Riverview has been somewhat of an offensive juggernaut this season, averaging 34 points per game. Defensively, the Pirates aren't too shabby, either, allowing only 12 points per contest this year.

Overall, Riverview has scored 341 points this season, while yielding 119 points.

Six times this year, the Pirates have scored 30 or more points, including four games over 40 points.

Chelsea has scored 364 points, while giving up 121 points.

Last week, in a Division III district first-round playoff game, Riverview beat Trenton 27-24. The 24 points were the most the Pirates have given up this year. In Week No. 9, Riverview overwhelmed the Trojans 39-3.

In Week No. 5, the Pirates defeated Huron League foe Carleton Airport, who was unbeaten at the time, 20-12. Last Friday, Chelsea dominated the Jets, winning 44-6.

"It's tough to compare the two teams," said Carleton Airport coach Eric Redmond. "Riverview is very physical defensively. They're very athletic.

"They run a veer offense. (Senior quarterback Ted) Tackett is a player. If you don't wrap him up with a couple of guys, you won't bring him down."

Redmond said the Bulldogs' offense could pose problems for the Pirates.

"Chelsea does a few things offensively that could put their (Riverview's) 5-3 (defense) in a bind," he said.

The series history between Riverview and the Bulldogs is a short one. In 1986, the Pirates beat Chelsea 3-0 in the only meeting between the schools.

Riverview is a well balanced club, able to pass or run effectively.

Besides Allen Park junior running back/defensive back Derek Brighton, Riverview senior tight end/linebacker Josh Kaltsas (6-4, 225) might be the best player in Detroit's southern suburbs.

A hard-hitting, powerful player, Kaltsas will be a load for anyone trying to block or cover him.

Both Tackett and Kaltsas are Division I-type football recruits.

Other top players for Riverview are senior wide receiver/defensive back Mike Voelz (6-0, 165) and offensive guard/defensive tackle Brian Crayne (5-11, 245).

Chelsea, however, has its share of big-time players, as well. Just ask Brighton and his Jaguar teammates.

Or for that matter, give Airport a call.

Four more wins.

High scoring second quarter keys cager victory

Cowen leads hoopsters over Lincoln in SEC match up last week

By Don Richter

The Dexter girls' basketball team defeated Southeastern Conference White Division foe Ypsilanti Lincoln 42-17 last Thursday.

The host Dreadnaughts (8-9) jumped out to an 11-6 first-quarter lead. In the second stanza, Dexter heated up offensively, and clamped down on defense, outscoring the Railsplitters 12-3 to increase its advantage to 23-9 at halftime.

In the third quarter, Lincoln came out stronger, scoring seven points, while limiting the Dreadnaughts to six points and heading into the fourth frame trailing 29-16.

In the last quarter, however, Dexter regrouped, outscoring the Railsplitters 13-1 for the night's final margin.

The Dreadnaughts received balanced scoring as junior guard Jenny Cowen led the way offensively with nine points, including one three-pointer.

Senior forward Kristin Burrows and junior forward Julia Keinath each netted six points for Dexter, while junior guard Amy Roberts had five points.

Senior guard Emily Prusakiewicz and juniors forwafd Bailey Wandyg and guard Maegan Michalik each added four points, while junior guard Laura Schultz and sophomore guard Chantel Jennings each chipped in two points for the Dreadnaughts.

On Oct. 26, Dexter lost to Adrian 40-26.

At halftime, the Dreadnaughts trailed 14-13.

Heading into the fourth quarter, the Maples increased their advantage to 26-23. In the last frame, however, Dexter was outscored 14-3 for the game's final margin.

"We had too many unforced errors," said Dexter coach Mike Bavineau. "We weren't as tough with the basketball as we needed to be. We made too many mental errors with the basketball.

"But, overall, we played pretty well."

Cowen led the Dreads with 10 points, while Burrows had two points.

Adrian was paced by All-State-caliber junior guard Kelly Kohn, who had 21 points.

"We made her earn everything she got," Bavineau said. "The first time we played, she scored at will."

Dexter next travels to Tecumseh for a game 7 p.m. today.

On Nov. 11, the Dreadnaughts host county rival Chelsea at 7 p.m.

JV Basketball

Dexter's JV girls' basketball team defeated Ypsilanti Lincoln 37-28 last Thursday.

The host Dreadnaughts (13-4) were led by Heather Bradshaw with 12 points. Sherri Gamble added eight points.

"We were surprised to see Lincoln play man-to-man from start to finish, which is not what we expected," said Dexter coach Joel Anderson. "Our girls played great team basketball. Everyone played hard, and we really worked together."

Dexter dominated the glass, hauling down every rebound.

"There were numerous signs of well-executed block outs, which held Lincoln to only one shot," Anderson said.

Anderson said Rachel Moir, Camille Hanks, Adie Heyne, Laura Van Voorhis and Laura Schroeder rebounded well for the Dreadnaughts.

"Margarita Malysheva also played a great game," Anderson said. "She is just a great person and a hard worker. She joined this team in the summer and has never played school organized ball before. She is one of the nicest girls I have ever worked with. She has improved so much."

On Oct. 26, Dexter defeated Adrian 32-22.

The visiting Dreadnaughts jumped out to a 12-4 first-quarter lead.

"That is big for us," Anderson said. "If we can jump on a team right away and gain some confidence, we generally play very well."

In the second quarter, the Maples rallied, outscoring Dexter 7-2 and entering the locker room down 14-11.

"For some reason, I chose to stop pressing that quarter," Anderson said. "That gave them room to breathe."

Heading into the fourth frame, the Dreadnaughts continued leading, 20-17.

In the fourth period, Dexter outscored Adrian 12-5 for the night's final margin.

"Our girls did a great job in the fourth quarter, doubling down in the post and taking away their low post opportunities," Anderson said. "They really understood and executed well.

"Other than shooting 8-of-20 from the foul line, I thought we closed the game out, which is what good teams must be capable of doing."

Heyne paced the Dreadnaughts with 10 points. Kelsey Johnson added seven points, while Bradshaw had six points for Dexter.

Celia Kuzon finished with five points, while Gamble and Van Voorhis each chipped in two points.

The Dreadnaughts next travel to Tecumseh for a game at 5:30 p.m. today.

On Oct. 11, Dexter hosts county rival Chelsea at 5:30 p.m.

Freshman Basketball

The Dreadnaught girls' freshman basketball team beat Ypsilanti Lincoln 44-24 last Thursday.

Host Dexter (8-9) ran out to a 12-2 first-quarter lead. At halftime, the Dreads increased their advantage to 28-9.

Entering the fourth quarter, Dexter led 36-17.

"After four losses in a row, we really needed to get back on track," said Dexter coach Rob Leadley. "Our players responded by playing well defensively and really sharing the ball on offense."

Breanne Svihra added seven points, while Journey Benjamin and Georgina Rutherford each netted six points for Dexter. Sonya Lewis and Gina Steffey each finished with four points for the Dreads.

Erica LeBlanc had four assists for Dexter.

Four plays later, junior running back Zack Gregory scored on a seven-yard ramble over left guard. With Hawkins' extra point kick, the Bulldogs ended the scoring at 44-6 with 25 seconds remaining in the third quarter.

With a running clock for the majority of the second half, the fourth quarter passed quickly. With sophomore quarterback Jon Seelbach's knee, the clock struck zero and Chelsea moved on to the district final.

"Anytime you score two defensive touchdowns and a special teams TD, you're not going to lose," Bush said. "That was huge. Our defense and special teams carried the day.

"It was the strangest game. We only ran 18 plays in the first half, and yet we were up 30-0."

As a team, Chelsea finished with 253 total yards of offense, including 216 on the ground. Airport ended up with 250 yards of total offense with 233 rushing yards.

The Jets controlled the clock, keeping the ball for 33:03, while the Bulldogs had possession for 14:57.

Gregory led Chelsea, running for 70 yards on seven carries, while Rabbitt had 64 yards on four attempts.

Senior Corey Cutler was tops for Airport with 81 rushing yards on 14 tries.

Duffy finished 2-of-10 for 17 yards passing. Dunn was 2-of-5 for 37 yards.

Receiving-wise, Rabbitt had one reception for 23 yards, while senior Spencer Daniels had one catch for 14 yards for Chelsea.

Priester caught two passes for 17 yards for Airport.

Senior linebacker Chris Yoas paced the Jets with four stops.

Chelsea next hosts Riverview (10-0) 7 p.m. tomorrow in a Division III district final.

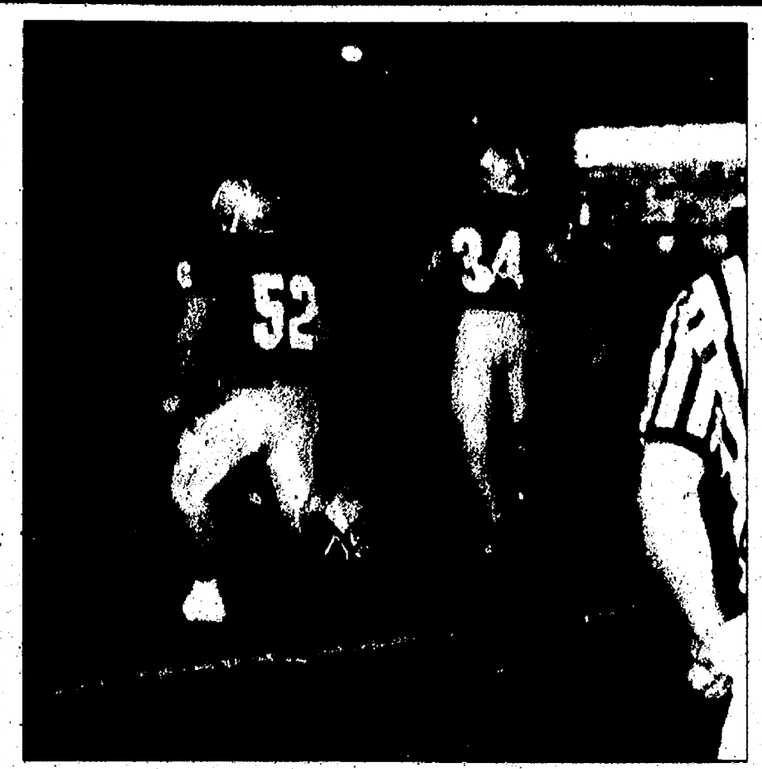

"Riverview should be a great challenge," Bush said. "It should be fun."

Julie Adams also had a superior time, stopping the clock at 1:23.70 and recording her second season best performance of the evening.

Chelsea is now preparing for the SEC championship meet tomorrow and Saturday at Saline.

"There is no doubt that great performances will be turned in throughout the weekend," Jolly said. "The goal of the team is to cut loose and try to get a few more state cuts, and to try and defend their impressive third-place finish at last year's state championship."

The Division II state meet is Nov. 19 and 20 at Eastern Michigan University.

"It's tremendous to go into the end of our season strong, by winning some games," said Gibson.

Lewis said it was a relief stopping the team's four-game losing skid.

Mitchells attend annual meeting

Gloria and John Mitchell Sr. of Chelsea were among more than 300 funeral service professionals who attended Selected Independent Funeral Homes 86th Annual Meeting in Montreal, Quebec, Canada, held Oct. 5 through 10.

Mitchell is president of Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home in Chelsea and Caskey-Mitchell Funeral Home in Stockbridge. He is a former board member and served as secretary-treasurer of Selected Independent Funeral Homes.

"It's always a valuable experience to get together with my Selected Independent Funeral Homes colleagues," Mitchell said in a press release. "The meeting offers a variety of informational seminars and opportunities to share insights and ideas, which help our funeral home to better serve the families of our community."

Seminars held throughout the course of the meeting focused on reviewing issues concerning the funeral service profession, sharing successful service program ideas and providing practical business advice.

In addition, members participated in the interactive "headlines" session, which featured discussions on the impact of the U.S. Congress on the funeral profession, as well as current operations for military funeral services from the perspective of the U.S. Army Mortuary Affairs.

The association also welcomed its new president, Richard Bibber of Bibber Memorial Chapel in Kennebunk, Maine.

Festival gets makeover

The Chelsea Festival of Lights is being revamped this year with a new name and attitude.

Now dubbed Chelsea Hometown Holiday and Light Parade, the celebration will take place the first weekend in December. It still will offer some of the favorites the community has come to love, such as a tree-lighting ceremony, visits with Santa, merchants' events and gingerbread displays, but also will feature some new additions.

The American Legion Washtenaw County Voiture 957 train, which will be brought in by Hospice of Michigan, will arrive Dec. 3. The train will transport Santa down Main Street to his stop at the VFW Hall following the tree-lighting ceremony. It then will stop on Middle Street, where children may listen to stories and explore the train.

In addition, there will be a holiday light parade for the first time. The parade is set for Dec. 4. The parade will begin staging floats at about 1 p.m. in the parking lot of Chelsea State Bank, 1010 S. Main St., before starting at 6 p.m.

The procession will travel down Main Street and end at the Clock Tower complex, where parade watchers will be entertained and the evening will cap off with a community sing-a-long. Refreshments will be provided.

"We are very excited to have these new additions to our event," said Pam Racliffe, assistant director of the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce and event chairwoman. "They would not be possible without our generous sponsors, Hospice of Michigan, The Chelsea Teddy Bear Co. and McKinley Properties."

"We have several businesses, neighborhood associations, and community organizations already on board to participate," said Lori Whitesall, parade chairwoman.

Whitesall said there still are opportunities to participate in the parade. The only requirement is the unit be lighted.

Applications are available at the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce Offices, 522 N. Main St. The deadline for applications to be submitted is 5 p.m. Nov. 15.

MONEY SENSE

Think twice before using your credit cards

MARY DAVIS

I'll never forget my first credit card: a Visa with a 22 percent interest rate. I was a starry-eyed college freshman eager to fit in with my new plastic-flashing friends.

When the opportunity to apply for a credit card came up, I jumped at it. Emboldened by what I perceived as financial freedom, I used the card freely. It wasn't long before I was up to my ears in debt, which followed me through college and into my early career.

Things haven't changed much since I was in school. Students are still barraged by credit card offers. And they're still going off to college without a clue as to how to manage money.

According to a survey by the Jump$tart Coalition for Personal Financial Literacy, 85 percent of college freshman go to school with little or no personal finance education.

If you're a parent with a child in college and you haven't talked to him or her about how to manage money, it's not too late. In fact, now is a good time. There's a lot riding on your student's ability to manage his or her finances.

The consequences of having a poor bill-paying history are long lasting. A poor credit score means he or she will have a difficult time getting a job, an apartment, a loan and insurance.

Consider encouraging your student to adopt these simple and reasonable money management practices.

TRACK SPENDING

During these first months of college, have your student make a list of non-tuition expenses. Include items such as food, clothes, entertainment, travel expenses, haircuts, cell phone costs and miscellaneous needs. Ask your child to write down every penny he spends for seven days (be sure to include the weekend expenditures).

Next, note any convenience or unneeded items, such as Starbucks double-mocha lattes, newspapers and magazines purchased at the newsstand, candy, soda, cab rides and weekly jaunts to the dry cleaners.

Lastly, if your child has a prepaid college meal plan, have him or her record how much money is spent on food not covered in the plan.

CRAFT A REALISTIC BUDGET

Ask for a list of monthly income sources such as scholarship money, part-time job income and student loans. Then, list fixed expenses such as tuition, books, car payment and auto insurance, along with how much it will take to cover weekly social aetivities — a movie and dinner, a party or a concert.

Your student can use whatever is left over for the convenience or unneeded items recorded in a journal.

Tracking expenses will allow your child to know when to stop spending before he or she goes over budget.

OPT FOR A CREDIT UNION OR BANK PREPAID CARD INSTEAD OF A CREDIT CARD

Instead of using a credit card, consider establishing a debit card for your student. Because debit cards are limited to the amount of money in the account of the financial institution that issued the card, students can't acquire gobs of debt.

Visa offers Visa Buxx, a prepaid reloadable debit card issued in the student's name. It can be reloaded by parents online, via the telephone, and automatically by setting up the transfer of a pre-selected amount of money from a credit card, check card, or checking account every other week or once a month.

Spending is limited to the amount of money that is on the card. Parents, if they wish, can review the student's account online to see how much he is spend-ing and where it's being spent.

If you do select a credit card for your child, consider one from the credit union that's on campus. The card likely will come with a better rate and fewer fees than a bank-issued card. Set a low limit on the card at $500 or $1,000 so your student doesn't overextend himself or herself.

Credit unions often conduct educational seminars on good money management practices and the wise use of credit. Encourage your student to sit in on one of these classes so he or she is better equipped to use credit in the future.

Eventually the information, whether it comes from you or a financial institution, will sink into your student's brain.

Options to look for in a card include no annual fees and low annual percentage rates.

Play nominated for award

The American Theatre Critics Association has nominated Tim Clue and Spike Manton's new play "Leaving Iowa" for its ATCA/Steinberg New Play Award. The play had its world premiere on the Purple Rose Theatre Co. stage in Chelsea and played to sold-out audiences last winter.

Six new play finalists will be chosen in January, and three new play winners will be announced in April during the Humana Festival in Louisville, Ky.

Since 1974, the award has honored new plays produced outside New York City. Winning plays will have citation and excerpts in Best Plays, the theater yearbook started in 1920 by Burns Mantle and now edited by Eric Jenkins.

One emerging playwright will also be chosen for ATCA's annual Elizabeth Osborn Award. Clue and Manton will be considered for the award, as well.

"Leaving Iowa" is the fourth Purple Rose world premiere production to be nominated for this prestigious award since 1998. "Across The Way" by Jeff Daniels was nominated in 2002; "The Hole" by Wendy Hammond was nominated in 1999; Lanford Wilson's "Book of Days" was nominated and won the award in 1998.

"Leaving Iowa" has been described as a warm and nostalgic comedy that celebrates the complexity of family relationships. It tells the story of a middle-age writer searching for the perfect spot to scatter his father's ashes. Along the way, he relives the summer vacations he spent trapped in the family station wagon as a young boy.

"The beautiful thing about this play," director Anthony Caselli said in a press release, "is that through comedy, we see our hero finally reach an understanding: our parents are people just like us, with uncertainties just like us, who make the best choices they can."

"This play is about realizing that the journey is as important as the destination," he said. "Once that realization sets in, a lot of life becomes about family, reconciliation, and sacrifice.

"There are moments when you think 'What would I give to go back and live part of that journey just one more time?' The only thing we can do is decide how to live our lives from this point on. That's the part where our parents' sacrifices often influence us the most."

The production ran for eight weeks, from Jan. 22 through March 13, 2004, at the Chelsea theater. It broke both sales and attendance records to become the best-selling winter production in Purple Rose Theatre Co. history. Overall attendance percentages were second only to world premiere plays by Jeff Daniels and Lanford Wilson.

ANN ARBOR

Concert set Monday at Hill

James Nissen will lead the Ann Arbor Concert Band in John W. Stout's "Milestones," a work commissioned to celebrate the band's silver anniversary season, 8 p.m. Monday at Hill Auditorium in Ann Arbor.

Also on the program will be Percy Grainger's "The Power of Rome and Christian Heart," inspired by Grainger's World War I Army service, and his "Children's March," Morton Gould's Symphony No. 4 "West Point," William Schuman's "Chester Overture," and James Filmore's rousing march "His Honor."

"It's a good, varied program and challenging for the musicians," Ted Smith, a band member since 1990, said in a press release. "Come hear some quality entertainment."

A highlight will be Stout's "Milestones," which the band is premiering at the concert.

A graduate of the University of Michigan with bachelor's and master's degrees in composition and conducting, Stout's arrangements and original compositions have been published by Hal Leonard, Manhattan Beach and Columbia Pictures. He has been the recipient of several commissions and grants, including a commission from the Boston Pops Orchestra.

A former Ann Arbor Concert Band member and conductor, Stout was pleasantly surprised when he heard the band play his piece for the first time during rehearsal Oct. 25.

"The piece sounds very much the way I conceived it," he said. "The band has played a number of my pieces. It premiered Jamaican Folk Song Fantasy in 1990."

Tickets are $8 for adults, $5 for students and seniors. They will be sold at the box office on the night of the performance.

Musician performs in Paris

A Chelsea musician who has been performing as part of "The Breath of the Spirit" in New York has taken his talent overseas.

"The Breath of the Spirit," a verse drama and musical composition for organ, flute, and two narrators, features a series of nine poems by poet-playwright Ken Gaertner.

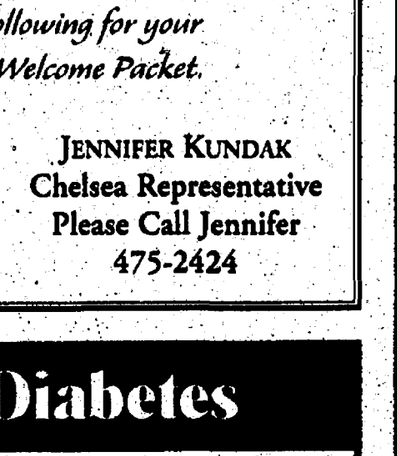

The poems speak of the emotional and spiritual worlds of several biblical characters. The work features a score by Gregory Hamilton that explores the emotional and spiritual imagery of the poetry.

It's performed by organist Marilyn Mason and flutist Don Fishel of Chelsea, a teacher at the Chelsea Center for the Arts, with poems narrated by actors Margo Hammond and Frank Hankey.

Fishel, an orchestral and solo flutist, is also a popular songwriter, with songs translated into eleven languages.

"The Breath of the Spirit" ("Le Souffle de l'Esprit") left New York after the premiere to perform in three concerts in Paris Oct. 26 and 28 at L'Eglise Saint-Augustin, and Oct. 30 at Cathedrale Notre-Dame de Paris.

Performances will continue in Vienna Feb. 12, Lisbon May 20 and Madrid May 25 before returning to the University of Michigan next fall.

WASHTENAW COUNTY

Haz-Mat team wins second place in contest

Firefighters from Chelsea and Scio Township participate

By Maria Sprow
Staff Writer

The Washtenaw County Hazardous Materials response team knows what it's doing.

The county's team recently placed second out of 10 teams competing in a knowledge and skills contest that was part of the annual Michigan Emergency Managers Association and Michigan State Police-sponsored summit.

Matt Tuttle of the Chelsea Area Fire Authority and Tim Andrews of the Scio Township Fire Department were two representatives on the four-member team.

The other two were Craig Liggett of the Pittsfield Township Fire Department and Chuck Rork of Huron Valley Ambulance.

The competition was the lead-in event to the summit, which focused much of its attention on showing firefighters and other emergency personnel new equipment that can be used when fighting and detecting hazardous materials.

"There are a lot of companies that are coming up with new technology that is making our job a lot easier," Andrews said.

One such item is a device that uses light waves to determine the identity of an unknown liquid or powder. The county Haz-Mat team is planning on purchasing the new equipment in the near future, Andrews said.

Andrews has been a firefighter for 23 years and a member of the Haz-Mat team since its inception in 2000.

Going to the conference, he said, was a good opportunity to network with other area emergency departments and learn how they operate.

"Originally, I was just interested in going to the conference itself. The competition was an afterthought," he said. "Doing as well as we did really surprised me."

The group, which had to work as a team in all its contests, took first place in two of the competition's five events, then scored 40 out of a possible 50 points in the final challenge — a timed obstacle course that combined each of the five previous tests.

Each team was given 40 minutes to complete the course.

The county's Haz-Mat team excelled in air monitoring and an event called the "leak monster."

In air monitoring, first-responders use a variety of monitors to test the air for different types of chemicals. In leak monster, first-responders sort through a maze of pipes to find a leak, then patch up the damaged areas.

The other tests were in grounding and bonding, computer-aided management of emergency operations and patching up a cylinder leaking chlorine.

In grounding and bonding, flammable chemicals are transferred from one tanker to another. Hoses must be properly grounded to ensure that static electricity caused by the chemicals or liquids does not build up and result in an explosion.

In the computer-aided test, responders must use a computer program to help them in chemical research. Using weather and chemical information, the program can identify the size of the area affected by a chemical spill.

Tuttle, a firefighter at the Chelsea station for seven years, said he was confident in the team's ability to do well, despite its relative newness.

He just didn't think the team would do as well.

"I didn't get nervous during the whole competition until before the last station. We had about 45 minutes to sit and wait, and they started posting up different scores for the different stations," he said.

"After realizing we had actually scored the highest in two of the four stations up to that point, I knew we were doing really well, and I wanted to continue to do well."

In the obstacle course, team members had to suit up into full gear, then identify an unknown substance using the Haz-Mat equipment. They next had to plug and patch a leak monster, then work as a team to build a bridge to carry equipment over a hazardous spill. The final phase involved proper self-decontamination, in which firefighters must properly discard their suit.

"We were hoping to be in the top five because we are a newer team, and for them to come in second place, that was outstanding," said Haz-Mat director William Wagner. "Next year, we would hope to win, to continue to improve."

Because they took second place in the competition, the team was awarded with a $2,000 FastAct air neutralizer, which is now home at Haz-Mat's central location in Ypsilanti.

Wagner said other teams that did well included Muskegon County, which took first place overall; Windsor, Ontario, which took third place; and a Lansing area team, which took fourth place.

Although the team members held extra practices in preparation for the summit, Tuttle said other factors also gave the team an edge.

"Consistently practicing safe work habits is probably what helped us out the most," Tuttle said.

The county's Haz-Mat team consists of 38 firefighters and other emergency personnel, including personnel from Chelsea, Scio Township and the Dexter Area Fire Department.

Andrews said that many of the other members on the Haz-Mat team could have represented the county just as well.

"It really was a team effort. The citizens of Washtenaw County can be proud," he said. "There are any number of guys who could have taken our place out there."

DEXTER VILLAGE

Rotary club plants trees

As the emerald ash borer and other pests and diseases devastate various tree populations in Washtenaw County, local municipalities are faced with the challenge of removing dead trees.

Local neighborhoods are faced with the need to replace them to restore the beauty of their streets.

In Dexter, volunteers from Dexter Rotary Club have stepped in to help fill the void left by the loss of six dead trees that the village removed last summer.

On Oct. 23, volunteers from the club planted six new trees near the locations of the lost ones. The volunteers worked with Christianson Nurseries to obtain a variety of tree types, including two tulip trees, two sweet gums and two red oaks. Planting materials were donated by Carpenter Lumber in Dexter.

"The loss of our elm and ash trees has taught us the danger of monoculture, where only one tree species predominates in an area," Sandy Hansen, a Rotary volunteer and local landscape architect, said in a press release.

Homeowners have been recruited to care for the replacement trees.

Rotary International is a humanitarian organization of business and professional leaders whose objective is community service.

Musician on cable show

Chelsea composer and musician Brian Brill will be the featured guest beginning 7:30 p.m. tonight on "Around Town With Linda," the local interview program on cable Channel 18 that highlights people who live and work in Chelsea.

From his home studio, Brill chats with host Linda Meloche about his career as a professional music composer and arranger for TV and radio commercials, and takes viewers through the step-by-step creation and production of "Around Town," the program's new theme song.

Brill also discusses meeting his wife, Ann, a teacher in the Dexter School District. He also talks about his daughter, Margy, a sophomore at Chelsea High School, and his evolution from a "starving" professional jazz musician to his current career as a successful composer/arranger and studio musician for many national TV and radio ad campaigns.

A sampling of Brill's work, including spots for DeBeers Jewelry, GM Trucks and Coca-Cola, are also included in the interview.

In addition to creating music for commercials, Brill focuses his talents in other areas such as the production of a CD he recently created as a fund-raiser for Chelsea's First United Methodist Church titled "Sunday Morning." The CD is now available at the Village Shoppe for $15.

"Around Town With Linda" is produced entirely by local volunteers and is broadcast daily on cable Channel 18 at 7:30 a.m., noon, 7:30 p.m. and 10 p.m.

TALKING HEALTH

Get your screen test for cancer

ERNIE HARWELL

Every year, many of us lose family and friends to colorectal cancer, breast cancer, lymphoma and other forms of the disease. Now I believe that death is a part of life, but that doesn't make these losses any easier.

What we all need to keep in mind is that these diseases, if caught early, are treatable.

Screening for cancer isn't something we like to think about, but it's an important part of taking care of ourselves. So talk to your doctor and ask about cancer screening.

The decision to have a certain test will take into account several factors:

- Person's age, medical history, family history, risk factors and general health.
- Accuracy of the test.
- Risks associated with the test.
- Preparation required before the test.
- Sedation necessary during the test.
- Follow-up care after the test.
- Convenience of the test.
- Cost and insurance coverage of the test.

After all, you owe it to yourself and to your family and friends to get the screenings you need.

Remember to take care of your health before it's long gone.

VILLAGE OF DEXTER NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ZONING BOARD OF APPEALS

Pursuant to Michigan Public Act 207 of 1921, as amended, notice is hereby given that the Dexter Village Zoning Board of Appeals will hold a public hearing at 7:00 p.m., Monday, November 15, 2004 at the Senior Center, 7720 Ann Arbor Street, Dexter, Michigan, for the purpose of hearing public comment regarding the following variance application:

The applicant, Thomas and Nancy Kuthy, are requesting a variance from Section 4.03, Nonconforming Lots, for the parcels located at 3647 and 3667 Inverness Street. Section 4.03 states the following:

If two or more lots or combination of lots with contiguous frontage in single ownership are of record at the time of adoption or amendment of this Ordinance, and if all or part of the individual lots do not meet the requirements established for lot width and area, the lots involved shall be considered to be an individual parcel for the purposes of this Ordinance. No portion of said parcel shall be used, occupied, or sold in a manner which diminishes compliance with lot width and area requirements established by this Ordinance, nor shall any division of an parcel be made which creates a lot with width or area less than the requirements stated in this Ordinance. These provisions shall not apply to contiguous lots in single ownership where each of the lots is occupied by a dwelling unit.

Upon application, the Zoning Administrator may permit the combination, in whole or in part, of nonconforming lots of record into building sites less than the size requirements established by this Ordinance, provided that the combination of lots reduces the degree of nonconformity and results in a parcel which is capable of accommodating a structure that is in conformance with the building area, setback, and side yard requirements of this Ordinance.

The applicant is requesting a variance to permit the combination and division of the lots located at 3647 Inverness Street and 3667 Inverness Street.

Information regarding the application is available for public inspection at the Village Offices, 8123 Main Street, Dexter, weekdays between 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. or by phone at (734) 426-8303 Ext. 2. — DAY-TRIP DESTINATION —

Destination Dundee

Nearby town offers many attractions

IF YOU GO...

WHAT: Village of Dundee.
WHERE: Located 15 miles west of Monroe. From US-23, drive east down M-50.
ATTRACTIONS: Cabela's, one of the world's foremost outfitter retailers; Silver Bells store Christmas collectibles; Swan Creek Candle Co.; The Cat and The Goldfish specialty store; Old Mill Museum; and Wolverine Park.

It's billed as the "World's Foremost Outfitter." And Cabela's is also one of the world's foremost merchandisers, with everything from a freshwater aquarium and live bait shop to a wildlife art gallery and a 40-foot mountain tucked inside its 225,000-square foot facility in Dundee.

But Cabela's isn't the only reason to travel to this village, located 15 miles west of Monroe. Dundee also offers a rich variety of activities and attractions centered on its distinctive downtown.

If you come to Dundee from US-23 and drive east down M-50, one of the first attractions you'll see is the Silver Bells store. Once the grandest house in town, this red-brick building now houses a gift shop filled with Christmas collectibles and ornaments, as well as other seasonal items.

Further down the road, you'll encounter Dundee's town square, which is actually a triangle. On the Riley Street side of the triangle, the Swan Creek Candle Co. maintains an outlet store. This unique establishment, which occupies three storefronts, combines antiques on the basement level with a coffee shop and candle store above. Candles of nearly every color, size and scent can be purchased there. Candles also can be customized with a container and fragrance.

Around the bend from Swan Creek is a place called The Cat and The Goldfish. It sounds like a pet store, but it's actually a gift shop with cards, candies and a closeout room with merchandise discounted 30 to 70 percent off every day. The Cat and The Goldfish is also a good source for Red Hat Society scarves, pins and purses.

After you've finished shopping, you might want to continue down M-50 to Dundee's Old Mill Museum. Built as a gristmill in the 1840s, this imposing Greek Revival structure also was once part of Henry Ford's Village Industry program. Thanks to this association with the carmaker, it is a recognized destination within the Motor Cities National Heritage Area.

Today the mill is operated as a museum of local history, with three floors dedicated to fixed and changing exhibits. Operating hours are noon to 4 p.m. Friday through Monday, and admission is free.

Connected to the museum is a limestone building that serves as the site for countless community activities, including an annual antiques show, to be held this year Nov. 6 and 7.

The community building is also the starting point for the 2004 Candlelight Christmas Home Tour, scheduled for Dec. 12. More information on both these events can be found at www.dundeeoldmill.com.

Adjacent to the museum, Wolverine Park also hosts its own share of special events, among them the Mayfly Music Festival. This country-theme event draws thousands of visitors to the riverfront each June.

And speaking of the river — properly termed the River Raisin, not the Raisin River — this winding waterway splits the town in half and is accessible from several points. For instance, canoeists can put in at Wolverine Park and paddle upstream toward Petersburg.

There's also a livery four miles east of Dundee that will enable you to follow the river downstream toward Monroe. Check out their Web site at www.riverraisincanoelivery.com.

Fishing enthusiasts are welcome to wet a worm on either side of the river, just below the Old Mill dam.

Residents and visitors are welcome to fish between the bridge and the dam in downtown Dundee.
