FOND FAREWELL

A cavalcade of firefighting vehicles from 14 area fire departments headed south on Main Street, through downtown Chelsea, during a parade honoring retiring Chelsea Area Fire Authority Chief Dan Ellenwood last Thursday. The parade ended at the Chelsea Fairgrounds, where firefighters and fire chiefs from across the area paid homage to Ellenwood. Many of the chiefs lauded him for his fire-training efforts throughout Washtenaw County.

Area fire departments honor retiring chief

Parade through Chelsea marked end of 35-year career

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

What started last Thursday as a balmy spring morning quickly turned into a cold and rainy afternoon.

But the weather failed to dampen spirits as trucks and personnel from 14 area fire departments paraded through downtown Chelsea, honoring Chelsea Area Fire Authority Chief Dan Ellenwood for his 35-year firefighting career and 12 years as chief as he stepped into retirement.

Ellenwood, 62, thought his last day would be marked by a Chelsea Area Fire Authority truck taking him home from work. Little did he know that his ride home would head an impressive array of fire trucks, blaring their horns and stretching down Main Street as far as the eye could see.

Vehicles from Huron Valley Ambulance, the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Office and the Chelsea Police Department also rode in the parade.

As parade participants gathered at the Chelsea Fairgrounds, leaders of several local fire departments praised Ellenwood's contributions — many of them lauding his leadership in training firefighters.

"I feel he did what we should all be so fortunate to do — he walked away with his head held high," said Northfield Fire Department Chief Don Dominick.

"I give Danny credit for his personality, which helped assemble people to read off the same page of music," Dominick said, alluding to Ellenwood's efforts to promote inter-departmental cooperation.

Scio Township Fire Chief Carl Ferch said Ellenwood was the instructor of the first firefighter class he took.

"He was a great guy — really big on training," Ferch said. "He was very active in the Michigan Fire Fighters Training Council."

Ann Arbor Township Fire Department Chief Rick Ericson said Ellenwood's amiability had a far reach.

Dan Ellenwood, who ended his 35-year career with the Chelsea Fire Department and the Chelsea Area Fire Authority last Thursday, steps aboard a Fire Authority heavy rescue vehicle that took him home after his last day of work. To Ellenwood's surprise, the vehicle took the lead in a parade of fire trucks from surrounding areas.

"Dan is much more than a fire chief. He is a personal friend to me and every other fire chief in the county," Ericson said.

"He's friendly. He would give you the shirt off his back. When you needed something done, Dan would step up to the plate. That's rare nowadays, when everybody wants to take a back seat. Not Dan."

City pays $54K for sewer line cost overruns

Contractor faced a higher water table than expected

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

Amid harsh criticisms from two of its trustees, the Chelsea City Council approved a $36,169 settlement March 22 with a contractor.

The dispute was for cost overruns associated with construction of a sewer line at the Lanewood subdivision near North Creek Elementary School last summer.

That figure was part of a total $53,929 the city paid in excess for the project, including an approximate $13,000 settlement with the Chelsea School District and $4,800 in fees paid to engineering consulting firm Fishbeck, Thompson, Carr and Huber Inc.

The $185,000 project involved replacing a leaking sewer line that ran from the subdivision and under the school's playground, connecting to a pump station on McKinley Street.

Bailey Excavating Inc., the contractor for the project, requested extra compensation from the city for "unanticipated conditions" encountered during the project, according to a March 22 memo written by Chelsea City Manager Mike Steklac. Steklac said Monday that more dewatering of the playground soil was required than expected.

The contractor ran into a higher water table than a city soil boring indicated, Steklac said, which resulted in higher dewatering costs.

Additionally, wet conditions and rain during the project necessitated spreading out soil to dry, damaging playground sod that eventually had to be replaced, Steklac said.

At the March 22 meeting, Chelsea City Engineer Chris Linfield said the city negotiated down what was originally a $74,800 settlement.

Nevertheless, the overruns incited comments from City Council Trustees Jamie Bollinger and Jim Myles.

"Once again, Chelsea residents keep paying for problems that keep happening mysteriously. It's ridiculous," Bollinger said at the meeting.

Workers say closing direct result of strike

Union says company legally obligated to hold bargaining session

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

A meeting between the Federal Screw Works Local 437 labor union and an attorney representing Federal Screw Works owners is scheduled for tomorrow, Steve Kincer, president and bargaining chair for the union, said last week.

Kincer said the union's position is that the company owners are legally obligated to hold bargaining sessions with the union addressing the owners' March 7 decision to close the Chelsea plant, located at 425 Congdon St., as well as the effects of the plant's closing.

"They're still saying they don't have to bargain the effects, but they're willing to sit down with us. I don't know about what," Kincer said last Thursday during his lunch break at the Chelsea plant.

A manufacturer of machined parts and special fasteners for automobile parts, refrigeration and other applications, the company has seven Michigan plants, including a plant in Boyne City.

Kincer said plant management has indicated layoffs of

Sesi – 59 years in business and counting Tradition of service, honesty, integrity and caring continues

Sesi Lincoln Mercury Volvo, located in a brand-new facility at 3990 Jackson Road, between Wagner and Zeeb roads, may be a relatively new dealership, but it is backed by a 59-year tradition of service, honesty, integrity and caring.

Sesi Lincoln Mercury Volvo has been in business for 4 years but the Sesi family's successful business experience dates back to 1946 at its Ypsilanti location. Now serving its third generation of customers and still treating them like honored members of the family, Sesi's Ypsilanti Lincoln-Mercury-Mazda dealership, located at 950 E. Michigan Ave., is in the top 25 in the nation for vehicle sales among all Lincoln Mercury dealerships and is also among the fastest-growing Mazda dealerships in the nation.

With a sales and service staff averaging 15 years of service, Sesi has one of the most experienced staffs in the business. "Our employees stay and our customers keep coming back," says Joseph Sesi, owner of the dealership. "That combination has always led to our success." The unique aspects of the Ypsilanti dealership, including up front pricing, great deals in financing and dealing with the same person throughout the sale process, have extended to their new Scio Township location as well. A state-of-the-art facility opened at 3990 Jackson Road in December, offering separate and unique showrooms for Lincoln, Mercury and Volvo brands; customer lounges featuring amenities such as wireless internet, kids' play areas and flat-screen televisions.

The customer-friendly environment allows Sesi to offer better service to their customers and keeps them coming back for future purchases. More than 75 percent of Sesi's business comes from repeat customers or those referred by other Sesi customers. "Our reputation, our employees, and our customers are our biggest assets," Sesi says. Chris Conley, general manager at Sesi's Jackson Road location, is enthusiastic about the new facility and the fantastic opportunity for service it provides. "Our service and parts departments have doubled in size," he says. "Even though we're a relatively new dealership, it's important for people to know that we operate under the Sesi family's tradition. tomers who need transportation during warranty related service appointments, helps customers to have a pleasant experience even when their car needs service. "We have a great team of highly qualified and experienced mechanics who have the same commitment to outstanding customer service as our sales group," Sesi says. Sesi is also one of the top used-car dealers in the state. With a large inventory of quality low-mileage used cars, trucks and vans, Sesi says the used car selection is second to none. "They're safety-checked, cleaned, polished and priced right with no confusion," he said. "If there's a problem, we handle it." The Certified Pre-Owned vehicles have been well received by their customers. With factory-backed warranties extending up to 72 months or 100,000 miles, the

Certified Pre-Owned vehicle offers the customer greater Peace of Mind. Now that Sesi is selling cars to the children and grandchildren of its original customers, they rely on the trust they have established with generations of clientele. "Our customers trust us because we don't let them down," Sesi says. "Our reputation depends on it." The new Ann Arbor location is well on its way to establishing a tradition of its own. With true 21st-century style, Sesi hopes to become the benchmark by which all other dealerships are measured. Sesi has also integrated all of their websites under a single homepage, www.sesimotors.com. Both Sesi locations are open on Saturday for Sales, Service and Parts.

School board plans to revamp high school driveway

Plans to repair parking lot may include installing light

By Heather Connor
Staff Writer

After a tragic accident took the life of a local woman, a driveway at the site of the incident may be moved to coordinate with that of the high school.

The Chelsea school board discussed a proposal March 25 to move the Freer Road driveway of the Washington Street Education Center to align with that of Chelsea High School directly across the street.

Erica Knopper was killed in 2003 when she was helping students carry band equipment across Freer Road between the high school and athletic fields and was struck by a car.

The proposal is part of a $28.1-million long-term bond construction project that was approved by voters in June.

The first phase of the bond project is already under way. Construction at Beach Middle School began March 29. Planned renovations include the addition of a new entryway to the pool, with interior renovations of the pool and pool locker rooms.

The project's second phase includes renovation of the football stadium on the Washington Street Education Center property and the main parking lot. It also includes building a new entrance to the center and the construction of more bleachers at the soccer fields.

Ron Livengood, director of operations for the school district, presented the planned phases to the board. The new driveway and a proposed traffic light for the intersection was proposed as part of the second phase.

The district plans to work with the city to place the traffic light at the intersection. It will contribute $75,000 toward the traffic light, matching the city's planned contribution, Livengood said.

The Michigan Department of Transportation also may provide $200,000 toward improvements to the intersection that include lane-marking changes and sidewalks.

McKune library groundbreaking slated for April 17

Residents are invited to celebrate beginning of renovation project

By Heather Connor
Staff Writer

Nearly a year after voters narrowly approved an $8.2-million bond to renovate and expand the McKune Memorial Library, construction will soon begin.

Chelsea District Library officials plan to break ground for the new part of the building at 1 p.m. April 17. The public is invited to attend the celebration.

"It's gonna be quick and dirty," Library Director Metta Lansdale said March 15 at the Chelsea District Library Board meeting.

Lansdale said a light lunch will be provided under a tent in case of rain. The Chelsea High School jazz band will provide entertainment.

Chelsea Mayor Ann Feeney, Capital Campaign Chairwoman Laurel Gravelyn and Library Board President Jan Dohner are scheduled as featured speakers at the event.

Lansdale said about 460 local officials and residents were invited to the event as of March 15.

The Chelsea Planning Commission granted final site plan approval Feb. 15 with some technical contingencies.

The construction project is expected to last about 18 months, and library officials plan to ensure that construction minimally interferes with downtown retail parking. The library is coordinating this effort with the Downtown Development Authority.

Project workers will be required to park at a distance from the site and either walk or car-pool to the job, Lansdale said.

Interruptions to traffic flow at Main and Orchard streets will be minimized by the site superintendent when materials are delivered, Lansdale said.

The superintendent will communicate with the city, neighboring businesses and residents to minimize inconveniences, she said.

"The inconveniences to the downtown area will be time-limited and minimized through careful planning and communications," she said.

Lansdale referred to the construction philosophy as "building a boat in a bottle." The site will be completely enclosed with a fence around the perimeter to ensure safety and minimize construction dust and debris.

Passers-by will be able to observe the project's progress through strategically placed "peepholes," in the fence, according to a press release.

The construction site will be around and behind the McKune building, Lansdale said, in a very constrained place. The storage of construction materials, trucks and trailers will be placed at the worksite, to preserve some trees, she said.

Interior work in the McKune building will begin soon after the groundbreaking, as well.

According to a press release, interior designer Alyce Riemenschneider of Riemenschneider Design Associates said the building will feature colors and textures that characterize Chelsea.

The layout will incorporate Italianate features of the McKune home. Frank Glazier's Flemish activity building and the post office mural.

Classic accents such as marble, white and yellow bronze, and granite will give it the "Chelsea touch," Riemenschneider said.

"We're reflecting the vision of the founding fathers," she said.

The newer addition to the rear of McKune will be removed and replaced by the link to the new construction. The porch on the south side of the house will be rebuilt, said Chelsea Library Community Relations Director Shawn Personke.

The north wing of the building, which was added in the 1960s, will be replaced by a replica of the south porch, Personke said.

Features of the new library, which will be incorporated into the existing McKune building, include a media commons featuring in-demand music, CDs, movies and talking books, as well as a children's garden.

Other features of the final

HONOR

Manchester Township Fire Department Chief Bill Scully remembered that Ellenwood taught basic firefighter classes 20 years ago.

"He's probably taught half of the firefighters in the county," Scully said.

Louis Johnson, assistant fire chief for the city of Ann Arbor, said Ellenwood "has always been up front working with everybody," and "always was there to help when we needed him."

"He's been a great guy. I hate to see him leave," Johnson said. "But I know there are good people coming up behind him. I don't think (the Fire Authority) will skip a beat."

Augusta Township Fire Department Inspector Daniel Onyskin said Ellenwood made him feel less sensitive about his age.

"A few years ago, I took fire officer classes, and I was worried about being the old guy with all these kids. Then Dan took some classes with me, and he inspired me that if he could do it, I could do it," Onyskin said.

Paul Wagner, a paid on-call firefighter with the Augusta Township Fire Department, said Ellenwood played a key role in keeping mutual aid standards current, and that Ellenwood provided leadership in countywide fire training.

Wagner praised Ellenwood for obtaining between 50 and 60 cars every year from the DaimlerChrysler Chelsea Proving Grounds for use in countywide training drills.

"Dan has been a big piece of that because he worked at Chrysler and he had the connections," Wagner said. "If it weren't for him, firefighters in this county would be nearly as trained as we are."

Chelsea Area Fire Authority Chairwoman Maryann Noah said the parade spoke to Ellenwood's popularity.

"After 35 years of service, I think he deserves a sendoff like this," Noah said. "Not only was he honored by his own firefighters and officers, he was also honored by the whole county. He's really well respected by his peers throughout the county."

Gary Adams, an at-large member of the Chelsea Area Fire Authority Fire Board, said Ellenwood's efforts in helping to form the Fire Authority were significant.

"Ours is a model of something that's working well in the state," Adams said.

Fire Authority Lt. Matt Tuttle said Ellenwood helped his career.

"Dan brought me to where I'm at in the fire field, and I'll never forget him for that," he said.

For his part, Ellenwood said his last day of work was an emotional one.

He said he would start his first day of retirement by doing housework that he's put off for the last five or six years.

Looking ahead, Ellenwood said he would still help the Fire Authority secure DaimlerChrysler vehicles for training, would continue to teach some fire training classes, and that he would volunteer his time to educate taxpayers about a possible Fire Authority millage.

Ellenwood also said he would look for a new part-time job because he prefers to keep busy.

As for the sendoff, Ellenwood was clearly moved.

"I was very impressed. It felt good," he said.

"I'm an emotional person, anyhow. Even though I know this is the best thing for me, it's still an emotional feeling that it's over with," Ellenwood said, with a slight lump in his throat.

"I guess I like being chief and telling people what to do," he added with a laugh.

PAYS

"The council should be kept better informed of items running over budget."

Myles agreed. "I'm right on with Jamie," Myles said. "We seem to have a history of bids and contracts that consistently go over budget. More often than not, we're getting our pockets picked."

Bollinger said that in construction projects such as the sewer line replacement, contingency clauses of about 25 percent of total costs are typically written into contracts, to cover unforeseen expenses.

Myles said Monday that City Council trustees have asked Linfield to provide information regarding the city's contingency clause with the Bailey Excavating contract.

Linfield did not return a call from The Chelsea Standard Monday about the contingency clause.

Steklac, who accepted full responsibility for the project's problems during the meeting, said steps could be taken in the future to avoid similar pitfalls.

"Throughout these projects, we've run into soil problems, so perhaps we need to do more soil borings in the future," Steklac said. "That would require more expenses in the front part of a project, but hopefully it would save us more costs on the back end."

While Myles expressed frustration with the project overruns between the city and the contractor, he also took issue with the Chelsea School District for penalizing the city for the project.

A Feb. 2 report by Steklac, requested by several City Council trustees, reported that the city will have paid the school district an estimated $153,243, including contributions toward a future stop-light project on Freer Road, during an 18-month period ending last summer.

Those costs included city-paid police, Department of Public Works, Downtown Development Authority and engineering services benefiting the school district.

The city pays for ongoing school services totaling $92,631 annually, the report said.

Chelsea School Board President Dayle Wright said last Friday that the school district saved the city money by only requesting compensation for repair of the playground field, instead of penalizing the city for the project extending beyond a contractually specified time frame, which would have cost more.

"We feel the playground area is important for children's physical activity, so we felt it was necessary to get it restored to its original condition," Wright said.

"The schools could probably come up with figures for things we have done for the city. We feel a good relationship with the city is very important because we help each other out a lot."

Myles, however, said the school district's charges related to the project were inappropriate.

"Based on the money that our taxpayers have basically donated to the school district, I find a bit of an insult that the school board would activate a penalty clause of the contract," he said.

"It stinks. It's really insulting to the city of Chelsea. I don't think the school board realizes how much the city has provided."

Both Bollinger and Myles took exception to Chelsea Mayor Ann Feeney's comment during the March 22 meeting that the sewer project was difficult for many reasons.

"This was no special project," Bollinger said.

"We haven't been shared much details at this point," Myles said. "(Mayor Feeney) said the project was complicated. We're not stupid people, so you can share those complex issues with us. It just creates that shadow and that question."

When contacted Monday, Feeney declined to elaborate on her comment about the project's complexity.

"I was only on the outside of this," she said.

Myles commended Steklac for accepting blame for the project, but said he wasn't the sole person at fault.

"I felt it was courageous for (Steklac) to take accountability, and I respect that tremendously, but I'm convinced it's not totally his responsibility," Myles said.

Livengood said. A traffic engineer suggested the driveways be lined up to create a four-way entrance, Livengood said. The traffic light could be installed by late summer, he said. The second phase is estimated to cost $724,000, including the $75,000 contribution to the city for the traffic light. Other scopes of Phase 2 include reconstructing the parking lot. Bond money already has been assigned to put a topcoat on the existing lot, but Superintendent Dave Killips expressed doubts about the ability for it to last. Killips said the topcoat would not last five years, and a better solution would be to use sinking fund money to completely reconstruct the lot. The district also could get permission from the state to use bond money toward the project, he said. "The base is shot. The drainage is shot," Killips said of the current lot. Killips also suggested the old asphalt from the lot could be used as fill for the bowl of the new football stadium. Staff Writer Heather Connor can be reached at 475-1371 or hconnor@heritage.com.

CLOSING

remaining workers at the plant will begin April 15 and end April 30, when the facility is scheduled to close.

Union employees are eligible to receive pensions at age 58, but pension benefits will be frozen based on contributions made up to April 30, Kincer said.

With the plant closing, retirees will no longer receive lifetime company health benefits, he said.

"It was one of the best health benefit packages out there," Kincer said.

Several company employees last week said they thought the owners' decision to close the plant stemmed from hard feelings left over from a seven-week union strike at the plant in 1996.

Pleasant Lake resident Terry Baldwin, a 27-year plant employee, said he voted against the strike because he anticipated a walkout would eventually result in the plant's closing.

The 1996 strike stemmed from disagreements over contract language and pay raises, Baldwin said.

Baldwin said Jeffrey Harness, vice president of the company's Boyne City Division, told workers the company would build a new plant in the Chelsea area if workers helped meet a goal of $3 million in profits over an 11-year period.

"We carried that goal. We busted our butts," Baldwin said. "Harness wanted to bust this union. This has nothing to do with lack of work — this plant had plenty. They're just moving up to a new facility in Boyne City because it's non-union."

Chelsea resident Akel Marshall, a 32-year plant employee, agreed with Baldwin's sentiments.

"This is just company greed and (Harness') vindictive heart," Marshall said. "He wanted to get back at us for going on strike in 1996."

"He promised us for years that if we kept making a profit, he would build us a new building. We just didn't know it would be in Boyne City."

"When they first built the Boyne City plant, they told us it wouldn't affect our jobs.

It's a sad situation because it didn't have to come to this."

Marshall said a Federal Screw Works facility in Romulus is the last remaining company plant with a labor union work force.

Harness did not respond to calls from The Chelsea Standard Monday regarding the workers' allegations.

Farmington attorney Steven H. Schwartz, who represents Federal Screw Works, declined to comment about the Friday meeting, and refused to comment about the Chelsea plant closing.

Chelsea

Hit and Run

Chelsea police were dispatched March 22 to the 13000 block of East Old US-12, near Arthur Street, for a complaint of a hit-and-run crash involving a driver who appeared to be drunk.

Police found a pedestrian crossing sign had been hit and knocked to the ground at the location. A witness gave police a license plate number.

On March 23, a 36-year-old Jackson man came to the Chelsea Police Department and took responsibility for the damage. He was cited for careless driving.

Property Damage

Chelsea police responded March 24 to a report of forced entry and property damage at a single-family rental in the 700 block of West Middle Street. A Chelsea couple, who rented the property to tenants on behalf of the property owner, an Ann Arbor attorney, reported the damage.

Police determined that someone entered through the rear of the property and may have fled through the front door. Glass shards were found on the front porch, although no porch windows were damaged.

According to the report, someone poured liquid building material into two sink drains and then turned on the water, causing flood damage.

One of the renters told police that former tenants could be the culprits. The renter said the tenants complained of black mold in the home. Police found a hole in closet drywall where the former tenants said black mold was present.

A Beach Middle School custodian complained to Chelsea police that a high school student caused damage to the school's ball fields March 25.

Police contacted the student, who said he was driving his father's Ford Explorer through the ball fields and got stuck. The off-road driving caused deep ruts in the fields.

The suspect told police that he was driving on the field to get closer to deer. He said he had no intention of "doing doughnuts or anything," expressed remorse, and said he wanted to fix any damage to the fields, a report said.

Suspicious Incident

Beach Middle School Principal Andrew Ingall filed a complaint with Chelsea police March 24 that he found two pupils smoking marijuana at the school March 18.

The two kids smoked marijuana March 18 between the end of the school day and the start of extracurricular activities, Ingall said.

A chaperone at a school dance noticed another pupil spraying them with a scent to mask the smell of marijuana, Ingall said.

The boys were brought into the school office and confronted about masking the scent, and admitted to smoking marijuana, Ingall said.

No contraband was found on the pupils when they were in the office, and their parents were called to pick them up from school.

Both were suspended for five days. Chelsea police contacted the pupils' parents.

Chelsea police responded March 25 to a complaint of a suspicious person who was sitting atop his car, wearing a hood and looking at people leaving CVS Pharmacy, 869 S. Main St.

Officers found the 29-year-old Romulus man in the parking lot and determined that the scene was secure.

Violation of the Controlled Substance Act

Chelsea police were dispatched March 25 to the 200 block of East Middle Street to check on the welfare of a minor.

Officers smelled a strong odor of marijuana in the home. They found several juveniles on the roof and asked them to come inside. One of the minors told police he had been smoking marijuana.

Inside the residence, officers found marijuana cigarettes, a pipe and a container containing suspected marijuana. A field test confirmed the substance was marijuana.

Officers took the juveniles to the Chelsea Police Department, where their parents picked them up.

The juvenile who admitted to smoking marijuana was released to his father. The case has been submitted to the Prosecutor's Office.

Larceny

A 53-year-old Grass Lake man reported to Chelsea police March 25 that someone stole a spare tire from his 2005 Dodge Dakota pickup truck. The incident occurred between 5 pm.

March 4 and 1 a.m. March 5, as the truck was parked in a municipal parking lot behind Cleary's Pub, 113 S. Main St.

When the man returned to his truck, he noticed that the tire was missing. He told police that he waited three weeks to report the crime because he needed a police report for his insurance company.

Suicidal Subject

The girlfriend of a 48-year-old Chelsea man called Chelsea police March 26 to report that the man was threatening to kill himself with a knife.

Police arrived at the residence and asked the man what was the matter. He told police that he wanted to kill himself. During a conversation with police, the man stated numerous times that he wanted to die, but did not say why.

The man became aggressive, so restraints were used as Huron Valley Ambulance personnel prepared to transport him to Chelsea Community Hospital, the report said.

Trouble with Subject

A 24-year-old woman in the 200 block of Wilkinson Street reported to Chelsea police that her neighbor, a 56-year-old man, left a note on her door March 28 that he wanted to see her. He also wrote his cellular phone number and signed his name.

Police called the man. He admitted to leaving the note, and told police he had hoped to see the woman.

Police told the man his advances were unwanted and advised him not to contact the woman in the future. Officers told the man about the legal options available to the woman, and that she would use them if needed.

Officers advised the woman that if the man made further unwanted contact, she should call police immediately.

Abandoned Vehicle

Chelsea police marked and tagged a 1989 Dodge Daytona parked at 311 Congdon St. March 27. The vehicle, which was registered to a 28-year-old Jackson man, did not have a valid license plate, according to a police report.

When police found the vehicle still had not been moved the morning of March 29, they considered it abandoned, and had it towed to Smith's Service Co., 11453 Jackson Road.

Police registered the car in Michigan's Law Enforcement Information Network as an abandoned vehicle.

Officers notified the man that his car was impounded.

Lima Township Suspicious Situation

A man in the 13000 block of Trinkle Road called state troopers March 26 after seeing a woman looking in his window. When he opened his front door, she was standing outside the door. She said she was an appraiser and needed to take pictures of the house, but would not say whom she worked for, the man told police.

The resident said a man was also sitting in her vehicle, a 1999 Dodge Intrepid. He reported the license plate number to state police, who contacted the woman. She said she was a self-employed appraiser. A trooper told her to fax a letterhead with her

Scio Township

Burglary

A resident across the street from Larry's Mower Shop at 5040 Jackson Road called deputies shortly after midnight March 26 because she saw two men pulling the security gate off the front doors to the shop. The men used a green SUV to rip off the door by attaching a strap to the door and the SUV.

The owner told police that two chain saws and two circular saws valued at $3,000 were stolen.

The deputies who were called to investigate were on Jackson Road handling another complaint. Their vehicle's videotape was pointed toward Larry's driveway, but did not show any vehicles exiting the driveway. They drove down Jackson Road in the direction indicated by the woman, but did not see any vehicles fitting the description.

The owner of Larry's was told to report the serial numbers of the stolen property.

Assault and Battery

A 25-year-old woman in the 1000 block of Rabbit Run Circle told deputies she was assaulted by a woman the morning of March 19. The suspect and the victim both were intimately involved with the same man, the woman said.

The woman said the suspect called and knocked on her door until she came outside. After an argument, the suspect threw the victim to the ground and they fought, the victim said. Photos of the woman showed cuts and scratches on her face.

The victim said a man came from the parking lot and pulled the suspect off her. He appeared to be with the suspect.

The suspect's story was similar, except she said the man they had been involved with had come out of the victim's home to stop the fighting. A deputy talked to neighbors. One neighbor said he heard the argument but did not look out his window.

Home Invasion

Michigan State Police were able to obtain one identifiable fingerprint from a break-in Feb. 7 in the 1000 block of Knight Road. The print was entered into a database. No matching results appeared, but the print will remain in the system for future comparison.

Property Damage

Someone smashed the rear window of a vehicle parked March 24 in the in the 2000 block of Sagebrush Road. No objects were found inside the vehicle.

Larceny

A trucker parked in the lot of TA Truck Stop at 200

Baker Road said he was in his bunk late March 24 talking on his cell phone and using a computer, while trying to help a lost trucker in Pennsylvania. When the computer gave the man a problem, he yelled. He then smelled fuel and looked outside, where he saw that someone had been siphoning fuel from his truck. About 10 gallons were spilled, seemingly because the trucker had yelled out and scared off the thief.

A police report said $350 worth of gas had been taken.

Dexter

Lost or Stolen Purse

A woman lost her black purse March 28. She had been to the Dexter Post Office, but employees there could not find it. Her purse contained $30 and a credit card.

Webster Township

Domestic Violence

A woman said her boyfriend yelled at her and pushed her lightly in the chest after drinking vodka all day. No arrest was made, but the case was sent to a prosecutor for review.

A woman was arrested March 26 for burning her husband's clothes in the front yard after he said he wanted a divorce. The man pushed her away when she grabbed his shirt and ripped it, he and a daughter said.

Both the husband and wife have been arrested for similar incidents in the past. As a result of joint possession of clothing, she could not be convicted for arson, a report said.

Property Damage

Another vehicle was reported in connection with a string of vandalism incidents Feb. 27. The vehicle had all its windows smashed out, as well as dents to the body.

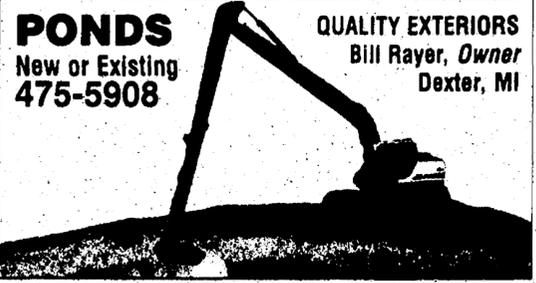

A body shop estimated the damage at more than $4,000.

The vehicle belonged to a resident in the 10000 block of West Huron River Drive. Deputies are still looking for suspects, who appear to have stolen an SUV and smashed it into mailboxes, fences and other objects, as well as using objects to smash at least five vehicles' windows.

Compiled by Staff Writers Steve Ricci and Gary Anglebrandt based on reports filed with the Chelsea Police Department, the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Office and Michigan State Police.

High school's Career Day a big help for kids

When I was in high school, I had very little idea of what a journalist did.

All I knew was that I could write. I loved to write and I was good at it. I had received a Detroit Free Press Writing Award of Excellence my junior year for writing an essay about my father. But I had no idea if I could be a writer — or if I could make money at it.

Back then, I would have loved the opportunity to meet with a real journalist before I had even stepped foot in a college classroom.

That's why I was happy to participate in the 2005 Chelsea Career Fair last week. Students were allowed to meet with local professionals from many different fields in a series of half-hour sessions.

I had the privilege of meeting with three different groups of students that morning. I had quite a few students who asked great questions and seemed to have a real interest in my field of work.

I tried to answer their questions and gave the best advice I could think of.

Many of the students weren't even seniors yet. I can only imagine how much this day must have helped kids who nowadays seem to have to know what they want to do as soon as they're born.

Our society puts a lot of pressure on young adults to set long-term goals at an early age. But the sooner they know what they want, the better off they will be. I can attest to that from personal experience.

If you think about it, standardized tests are laughable. They, no doubt, play an important role in gauging education goals for a district, but on a personal level, they can either be a big ego booster or a huge downer.

When I was in high school, it seemed that your ACT score was life or death. It was the magic number that would open or close doors for you. My counselor, God bless him, tried to convince me that it only would be a small part of what a college would look at to determine if I was worthy of their institution. But overall, it was knowing what I wanted to do and how I could accomplish it that was most vital for me. The rest was details.

Counselors and well-meaning teachers often would press me as to what I wanted to do. But I had to give some generalized answers since youth and inexperience kept me from really knowing what I wanted to do.

Chelsea High School officials had a great idea. Why not help students learn what different careers can offer through the best sources available — actual "real world" people? (I really hate that term.)

It's hard to know if students really got anything out of it. I won't pretend to think I made any real difference, but hindsight is always 20/20. If I had known in high school what I know now, I probably would have graduated sooner than I did from college.

It's easy to drift and stay in school for the sake of being in school. To have a goal and pursue it is what makes the tough days of college worthwhile.

I recently found a copy of my ACT scores. I remember how I used to think that number had sealed my fate when it came to college. Now I look at it and know that it meant nothing.

Off in the corner, the score sheet listed three colleges I had mentioned back then that I would like to attend. Eastern Michigan University was listed as the school I would least succeed at due to my ACT score.

As I sit here writing this as an EMU alumna and winner of two Michigan Press Association awards through my work on the college newspaper, I realize that it's easy to get caught up in one institution's opinion of you.

If there's any lesson to learn, it's that the world is an open palette of opportunity, no matter what age we are.

Nothing beats a pen pal

Remember how fun it was to rush to the mailbox as a child, peek inside and find a real, honest-to-goodness letter waiting for you?

There was nothing quite like knowing that someone somewhere had taken the time to put pen to paper and write you a letter.

It made you feel special, and that was a pretty wonderful feeling.

Little things like that tend to excite us when we're young, but somewhere along the way we lose that thrill.

I wonder if children today experience the same excitement of getting actual mail. Somehow, I doubt most of them do.

Online buddies and e-mail have taken the place of "snail mail."

The instant gratification of talking to anyone anywhere in the world has replaced the joy of ripping open a letter and soaking in the thoughts contained on the pages within.

And having the world at their fingertips is a wonderful thing that I'm sure has broadened the horizons of many a child.

I don't care what anyone says, though; hearing the words, "You've got mail," just doesn't measure up to a mailbox overflowing with a stack of brightly decorated envelopes.

Growing up, I developed quite an extensive network of pen pals from Alabama to

ANDREA BLUM

Alaska and London to Rome.

It was great fun examining the postmarks and imagining the far-away places, checking out homemade address labels and even comparing the varied handwriting styles.

We shared many of the same interests and the network also included the practice of exchanging friendship books, which were homemade booklets passed along from person to person that listed names, addresses and interests of possible pen pals.

It was a wonder to start a book, pass it along to a friend and have it returned to you months, even years, later, bursting with facts about people around the world.

I met one of my best friends through a pen pal in Kentucky who was writing her and suggested that I do the same.

Fourteen years later, we are practically inseparable and know everything there is to know about each other.

Of course, most of my pen pals and I drifted apart by the time our teen-age years were ending.

However, I do keep in touch with a handful and it's been interesting to see where our lives have taken us over the years.

But now I'm more likely to open the mail-

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

We should embrace a new post office

My wife and I enjoy Chelsea's vibrant downtown, but we won't mind a bit if the U.S. Postal Service builds a new post office away from downtown, or cooperates with the city in a shared building on Buchanan Street. Protests against a new site surprise us.

Chelsea has ample downtown parking, but when we've had business with the post office, we've always tried to park near it on the street or in its small parking lot. We've noticed most other postal patrons we encounter tend to do the same. Sometimes there's parking around the building, sometimes not. Other Chelsea institutions do well away from downtown. The Chelsea library, for example, has thrived in its temporary location in the former Chelsea High School complex. Librarians tell us library patronage nowadays greatly surpasses what it was in McKune House.

Of course, we support plans to return to the McKune House because of the prospect of a new, much larger building with on-site parking. We look forward to the new library opening. However, many important Chelsea places clearly thrive away from downtown — without hurting downtown.

Besides the library, one can cite the Arctic Coliseum (its financial problems were a tax issue, not a public-use issue), the Polly's and Pamida shopping centers and the new one containing Blockbuster, Hungry Howie's and Curves. Chelsea schools, of course, easily draw crowds to music and sporting events.

In our view, Chelsea residents will come to embrace a new post office wherever it is and will come to treasure a larger, more suitable building with ample parking.

We hadn't known postal employees felt crowded in their current building, but it's clear that a bigger building would be a blessing to them, too. In these days of government budget cutting, we are pleasantly surprised that the federal government wants to spend money on a new Chelsea Post Office.

MINDING YOUR BUSINESS

Make tax breaks work

The last thing that many unemployed people want to deal with is income taxes, but ignoring taxes is not a good idea.

Many people are surprised that unemployment compensation benefits are taxable.

There are things that you can do, however, to reduce the tax bite when you're unemployed.

Remember that job-search expenses may be deductible. They are deductible to the extent that they exceed 2 percent of your adjusted gross income.

Resume preparation, long-distance phone calls, Internet charges, and travel expenses related to job interviews are some expenses that may qualify as job-hunting costs.

Moving expenses also may be deductible if you move to take a new job. The move must be at least 50 miles more than the distance between your old job and your former home to take the deduction.

If you sell your home to take a new job, remember that the law has made selling your home less taxing in recent years.

WILLIAM TOLSTYKA

Unless the profit from the sale is more than $250,000 ($500,000 if you're married), you won't have to pay taxes on the gain.

The general rule is that you must have owned and lived in the home for two of the last five years. If you haven't met this two-year requirement, you may still be able to exclude some of the gain if you sell your home because of a change in employment.

If you need to withdraw money from your IRA to pay for health insurance premiums while you're out of work, you will pay income tax on the withdrawals, but you won't have to pay the 10 percent early withdrawal penalty. (Certain requirements apply.)

When you're out of work, every dime counts. Take time to check the tax issues related to unemployment and looking for work. Chances are, you'll be able to reduce your tax bill.

William Tolstyka owns and operates Tolstyka & Co., a Southgate-based certified public accounting firm.

box with a scowl as I find mostly bills and junk mail waiting for me.

Aside from the pen pal aspect, knowing how to write a proper letter also serves one well in the business world.

Even when sending a professional e-mail, there is a proper form to follow.

I see communications from time to time that lead me to think that skill may be waning.

So I hope that some children still open their mailboxes to find a letter that will brighten their day.

Whether it be from friends, family or even through a pen pal program with a soldier in Iraq or Afghanistan, it's hard to beat the personal touches of an "old-fashioned" handwritten letter.

Check the facts before signing online petition

I read with interest Sen. Debbie Stabenow's "Other Voices" column in the March 17 issue of The Chelsea Standard in which she states the reasons she is against the president's plan for Social Security reform and that personal retirement accounts is not the answer.

She urges everyone who wants Social Security protected to go to her Web site and sign an online petition against the president's proposal. She states that all of Congress, including herself, pays into Social Security. This is true, but not until the 1983 amendment to the Social Security Act, which required all federal employees hired after 1983 to pay into Social Security.

The amendment also required all of Congress to participate in Social Security as of Jan. 1, 1984. Until then, they had a retirement plan called the Civil Service Retirement System. Congress then directed the development of a new retirement plan for federal workers the Federal Employees' Retirement System Act of 1986.

Members of Congress first elected in 1984 or later were automatically covered under the FERS. Those who were in Congress already when Social Security coverage went into effect could either remain in CSRS or change to FERS.

Congress now is covered by one of four different retirement arrangements. Full coverage under both CSRS and Social Security, FERS plus Social Security, CSRS offset plan, which includes both CSRS and Social Security, but with CSRS contributions and benefits reduced by Social Security contributions and benefits, or Social Security alone.

That's right, they have four different choices. The president's proposal is voluntary. It gives you a choice. Regardless whether you chose to participate in personal retirement accounts, you will still receive a Social Security check every month when you retire. And, most importantly, with personal retirement accounts, should you die, the money will go to your family.

As it stands now, if you die, your benefits are terminated. Even if you die a year after you retire, no matter how much you have paid into Social Security, your benefits are terminated.

So, before signing any online petition, inform yourselves so that you can make the right decision, not only for yourself but, more importantly, for your children and grand children.

People have known Joanne Wiertella to be a determined person.

Just ask her neighbors. The Lima Township resident, who often keeps to herself, once had plastic flowers planted in a box at her home. When a neighborhood child came over and told her that everyone was wondering if the flowers were real, she didn't answer directly. But, later, she began moving the flowers, which were of various colors, to different places in her yard to further confuse her neighbors.

The story illustrates Wiertella's determination. You see, she isn't one to stop something once she has started.

Take her hobby as another example. Wiertella collects antique jewel boxes, which caught her fancy about 20 years ago. The boxes come from the early 20th century and were used by women to hold their jewelry. Today they're selling on eBay for $50 to $250.

Wiertella asked antique dealers about the jewel boxes, but no one knew much about their history. Someone at a gallery in Toronto told Wiertella that a man from Pennsylvania had written something on the subject, but she never found the information.

Wiertella couldn't find any other books on the subject, either. So, she wrote one. For five years, she tracked down old Sears and Montgomery Ward catalogues and trade journals containing illustrations and information on the jewel boxes.

The University of Michigan, it turned out, had all the Sears catalogues she needed on microfilm. With the help of the Dexter District Library, she convinced universities in Chicago and Colorado to send her microfilm of the old publications.

Wiertella discovered that the jewel boxes, usually made of soft metals such as zinc, were most popular from 1904 to 1915. Her book covers the period from 1900 to 1925.

Wiertella likes them partly for the view of history they give. "They're intermingled with so much of our country," she said.

The jewel boxes became popular and cheap to produce at the same time mass-production factories and the middle class started growing. With the rise of the middle class also rose the desire of people to want nicer things.

"It was a chance for average, middle-class women to have something beautiful," she said.

Wiertella self-published her book, which is titled "The Jewel Box Book," through Kings Time Printing in Webster Township, and spent $12,000 making it and getting 2,000 copies printed.

The book is full of photographs of her collection, as well as images from catalogues and old advertising. Her friend, Willa Davis, designed the book and took the photographs.

What Wiertella really wanted to learn was what she had in her collection. The book shows how to determine a box's manufacturer. There are pictures from catalogues with the original catalogue information so readers can visually compare their jewel boxes to information in the book.

The book covers design styles and motifs, such as revivalist and art nouveau. It also has a guide from an old Collier's Encyclopedia on "The Language of Flowers," which explains that people during that era would apply meanings to flowers and send messages through various floral arrangements. Many of the jewel boxes have flowers on them, Wiertella said. Roses still mean love and beauty to this day, she notes in the book.

According to Collier's, a honeysuckle means "generous and devoted affection." An asphodel means "my regrets follow you to the grave." A cabbage means, of all things, profit.

Wiertella wants to sell her books mostly through antique shops. She will be at the Chelsea Collection from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. April 9 to discuss its contents and sign copies.

Walk to benefit research into rare disease

Dexter resident Terri Klein leading local fund-raising effort

By Heather Connor

On April 23, history will be made in Dexter. Terri Klein, a longtime Realtor and Dexter resident, is leading an effort to help raise funds for a class of rare genetic diseases — the first of its kind in the world.

Klein's daughter, Jennifer, suffers from Mucopolidosis Pseudo-Hurler Polydystrophy, or ML-3 for short. The rare genetic disorder, and others like it, robs Jennifer of energy and causes skeletal complications, developmental delay, carpal tunnel syndrome and short stature.

ML-3 is classified as a glycoprotein storage disease in which a defect in the breakdown of complex molecules in the cells results in the storage of these molecules in small cellular organelles called lysosomes.

In other words, a much-needed gene enzyme in the cells is in each person's body, but in the case of storage diseases, the molecules build up inside the cell and cannot break through the cell wall to help the body function normally.

The disease causes a host of physical and neurological symptoms. Affected children suffer progressively deteriorating physical and mental skills, resulting in disability and often a premature death. There is currently no effective treatment or cure.

But the Kleins are pioneers in making treatments and a cure a reality.

Terri Klein has arranged for children who suffer from these diseases to come to Dexter with their families April 23 to participate in the first International Advocate for Glycoprotein Storage Diseases Walk/Run at Hudson Mills Metropark to raise funds for research.

This will be the first time the families, who have connected online, will meet in person. The event has been named "Crossing Oceans for a Cure."

"It's the first time, literally, in history these families will get together," Klein said.

Researchers have found a cure for infants with ML-4, a similar condition, Klein said. Now that most of the children with ML-3 have been found — creating a significant database of patients to work with — it's now just a matter of raising the funds for the researchers of ML-3, she said.

"The research and the cure are just outside our fingers," she said.

Jennifer, 13, and a seventh-grader at Mill Creek Middle School, is like any other teenager. ML-3 has robbed her of height, but her bright smile and bubbly voice fill a room with her presence. She has led an active childhood, so far. Dancing, playing instruments, skating and other sports have been Jennifer's passions.

But when she began to have arthritic symptoms, pain and tiredness when she was around 6 years old, her parents took her for X-rays. The final diagnosis when Jennifer

Book offers advice to women

'Girl Make Your Money Grow' offers logical financial advice and emphasizes need to invest

By Anne Sullivan
Heritage Newspapers

As the deadline to file 2004 income tax returns approaches, and those numbers are checked and rechecked, do you wonder where all the money has gone and pledge to have something to show for it next year?

If so, authors Glinda Bridgforth and Gail Perry-Mason might have the answer.

Their book, "Girl Make Your Money Grow, A Sister's Guide to Protecting Your Future and Enhancing Your Life," could lead to the road of financial security.

Although the book was written by two black women, for black women, addressing issues unique to that demographic group, the authors also have solid advice for anyone trying to get her financial house in order and looking to a more secure financial future.

In fact, some of their advice is so logical that the reader might wonder why she didn't think of it herself.

The primary advice from the authors is that no one can afford not to invest, regardless of how much money she makes or how old she is.

The first step to investing is to clear your debt, they say, especially that pesky credit card debt that is so easy to accrue and so hard to pay off.

That can be a hard goal to accomplish, but no one gets into debt overnight, so getting out of debt also will take time.

The authors offer tips to track where your money goes, how to pay off debts, where to invest and how to earn extra money for investing.

The book not only offers advice, but it also has exercises to complete while on the path to improving your personal finances and finding a financial strategy that will work for you.

Bridgforth and Perry-Mason also address emotional issues tied to money that can often lead to debt.

One of the obvious aspects is to invest early, but not everyone does that after landing that first job.

There's so much to pay for, including student loans, a car — perhaps the first one you've ever owned. There's a wardrobe for the new job and a place to live, not to mention a social life.

For many, weddings, children and family obligations follow and money earned is money spent.

But to see the dream of financial security all begins with a roadmap and, of course, the determination to stick to it.

Their tips make sense. First of all, determining the type of investor you are by answering the question: How much risk can you tolerate — financially and emotionally?

Not sure where to put your money once you do start to invest? The authors suggest looking around your house, checking the products you buy regularly, research those companies and invest in those stocks.

"Girl Make Your Money Grow, A Sister's Guide to Protecting Your Future and Enhancing Your Life" is 232 pages and is published by Broadway Books, New York. It lists for $19.95.

was 8 years old was frightening.

"It scared us because it was so rare," Klein said. "Only one in 650,000 people in the world have it."

Doctors had few answers for the Kleins, so they turned to the Internet. That's when they found the ISMRD.

The Kleins found support from other families dealing with the diseases and Terri Klein became actively involved in researching treatments.

"It's been very, very difficult to come up with a doctor's group to get answers to questions," she said.

But that has changed.

Three of the leading experts in the world will come to Weber's Inn in Ann Arbor April 22 — a day before the benefit walk — to meet with the children and families to discuss the research being done — another first in history.

"I think this is a new year. I think this will be a real source of hope for the families," Klein said.

Jennifer has found hope in an experimental treatment she is receiving at the University of Michigan hospital.

She suffers from severe osteoporosis that make her bones as fragile as those of a 70- to 80-year-old woman. But an experimental IV infusion of a powerful drug once a month has helped harden her inner bones.

Jennifer now suffers less pain in her legs and head, and she is a lot more alert, her mother said. Before the treatments, Jennifer would need to nap extensively after school.

But the treatment has come at a high price. Because Jennifer is not an elderly woman, insurance does not cover the treatment for osteoporosis. The Kleins pay between $1,500 to $2,100 for each infusion.

"It's a battle to keep it going. It's very expensive," Klein said.

The treatments have enabled Jennifer to remain an active teenager. She was able to continue dancing and gymnastics up until last year. Now, Jennifer enjoys playing piano and acting through the Young Actors Playhouse in Ann Arbor.

"She's a funny girl. She gets the parts on stage that are humorous that make the audience laugh," her mother said.

Jennifer said her friends have been very understanding about her condition. When asked how she feels about all the effort her family has put into helping her find the help she needs, she has one word:

"Thankful."

Summer Fest fund-raiser set

The 2005 Summer Fest, corn, peanuts and cracker-fund-raiser is ready to play jacks.

"Each year, this event gets not only bigger, but more fun," Judy Hein, co-chairwoman of the Chelsea Summer Fest, said in a press release. "And without this party, the Chelsea Summer Fest would not be possible."

The party and auction will be held from 6 to 10 p.m. April 15 at the Chelsea Comfort Inn, 1645 Commerce Park Drive. Advance tickets are $40 per person and $50 at the door.

Leading off, 11-year-old Chelsea singer Paula Modafferi will sing the national anthem, while ballpark and ragtime piano player Jerry Perrine will be on hand to keep the crowd in the game.

A silent auction has been added this year to the line up, and a live auction will close down the party. Highlights for the auction include dinner for six at The Common Grill and fine art from Chelsea's new artists cooperative, West of the Moon Gallery.

Gourmet and Chicago-style hotdogs will be served up with the rest of ballpark favorites, such as beer, popcorn, peanuts and cracker-fund-raiser is ready to play jacks.

Friday night's bands will be rockabilly in style. Saturday night's bands will feature rock and blues acts.

A hands-on art area called ARTicipation will be expanded to feature both musicians and artisans.

Tickets to the fund-raiser are available at the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce, Pierce's Pastries Plus, Chelsea Pharmacy, Dayspring Gifts and Thompson's Pizzeria.

For more information, call the chamber at 475-1145 or visit the Chelsea festivals Web site at www.chelseafestivals.com.

Events set for Donate Life Month

Patrick Pruitt was only 5 years old when an infection scarred his left cornea, gradually reducing his vision in that eye, necessitating a corneal transplant. Today, Pruitt, 19, loves to watch basketball games on television, something he could not do without his transplant.

An avid runner, Pruitt cannot imagine missing the incredible sights when jogging Michigan State University's campus. A psychology major at MSU, he expects to graduate in 2006 with an honors degree, after he spends one year writing a thesis in the field of neurobiology.

"I would not be where I am today without a corneal transplant," he said in a press release from the Michigan Eye Bank.

This year marks the 100th anniversary of the first corneal transplant. For Pruitt, many years ago, his transplant marked the beginning of an enhanced life of learning, living and growing, thanks to the generosity of his donor.

Graduating from college is a milestone many attain. For Pruitt, it's a feat he will never take for granted.

April is National Donate Life Month. Activities planned throughout the month are aimed at uniting the entire donation and transplant community, and stressing the urgent need for more organ and tissue donors.

On Monday, Buddy Day will take place at Secretary of State branch offices across Michigan. Those visiting a local branch office that day will learn more about organ and tissue donation, and have the chance to meet organ recipients, donor families and waiting recipients.

State Rep. John Gleason gives back each day as he promotes organ and tissue donation in Lansing. A living kidney recipient, the 50-year-old received a transplant from his sister.

As an organ recipient, he knows firsthand how important it is to expand the organ donor registry in Michigan to save more lives. Serving as a state representative provides Gleason the opportunity to increase donation, make a difference and continuously strive to improve current Michigan laws.

DEXTER Patterson earns honors

Emily Patterson of Dexter made the dean's list at the University of Michigan-Dearborn campus.

She is enrolled in the College of Arts, Sciences and Letters for the fall 2004 term. She is a freshman majoring in international studies.

Gleason began the push to establish a heart insignia on the front of the driver license and the state identification card more than a year ago. With the help of Secretary of State Terri Lynn Land's office, Gleason initiated the development of a heart symbol to be placed on the license indicating whether a resident is an organ donor.

Multiple bills were introduced this year to make his vision a reality. For more information on the current status of the heart insignia legislation, visit giftoflifemichigan.org. Gift of Life Michigan and the Donate Life Coalition of Michigan will unite April 14 to focus state government on organ and tissue donation at the annual Donate Life Advocacy Day in Lansing at the Mackinac Room, located in the Anderson House Office Building.

"It's a great opportunity to be heard, obtain updates on recently proposed Michigan legislation and meet one-on-one with state legislators over breakfast," Thomas Beyersdorf, executive director of Gift of Life Michigan," said in a statement.

A panel discussion will follow at 9 a.m.

In Michigan, there are currently 2,678 people waiting for a life-saving organ transplant while thousands more remain on a waiting list for tissue transplants, according to the press release.

Nationally, there are more than 87,000 people waiting for an organ, according to the United Network for Organ Sharing.

Regional bound!

Champion gymnasts prepare for Midwest meet

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Talk about an eclectic group.

Gymnasts, as one might expect, come in all different shapes and sizes. They have different interests, goals and backgrounds.

Locally, Champion Gymnastics will be well represented at this month's Midwest youth regional meet.

The Washtenaw County-based team will be sending four athletes from Level 9 and Level 8 to regionals, the most ever in the club's history. Level 9 regionals are April 15 through 17 at Michigan State University. The Level 8 regional is April 22 through 24 in Midland.

The Midwest regional includes the best youth gymnasts from Illinois, Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana and Michigan. To qualify for regionals, a gymnast had to first advance out of the state meet, which was held last month.

During competition, Champion's Level 9 and Level 8 squads are all business. Off the floor, however, they're an interesting bunch.

One gymnast loves her chosen sport because it keeps her out of trouble.

Another tried gymnastics because she hated wearing a tutu.

And a third became involved in gymnastics after her father noticed her doing cartwheels down a mall hallway.

"I started in gymnastics at age 5," said Chelsea Larsen, 16, a sophomore at Dexter

High School and a Level 8 regional qualifier. "My grandma signed me up for a class. I've just kept with it. It keeps me out of trouble. It's somewhere to go besides school to see my friends. It's better than sitting at home."

Christina Coffman, 12, a seventh-grader at Chelsea's Beach Middle School, said she began gymnastics at age

6. She's currently on Champion's Level 9 team, and a regional qualifier.

"I started in ballet, but I didn't like it," she said. "I wanted to do something close to dance, and gymnastics was the closest thing."

Emily Black, a 13-year-old eighth-grader from Ann Arbor, said she started in gymnastics at age 5. She's a member of Champion's Level 8 squad and qualified for the regional meet.

"I was doing cartwheels down a mall hallway, and some (gymnastics) coaches were there," she said. "They then talked to my dad. That's how I started."

Chelsea wrestler Dakota Cooley holds his first-place gold medal and his bracket card after winning the 80-pound AAU World Tournament championship last weekend at Ford Field in Detroit.

WRESTLING

Cooley wins youth wrestling world title

Chelsea's Dakota Cooley continues dominating the youth wrestling mats, not only nationwide, but also internationally.

The 13-year-old Beach Middle School pupil captured an AAU World Tournament championship last weekend in a meet at Ford Field in Detroit.

"It feels good to accomplish this," said Cooley, who wrestled in the 80-pound schoolboy division. "It (title) was a goal of mine."

Cooley, who finished unbeaten at 20-0 this past season for Beach, defeated nine grapplers to earn his title.

Last month, Cooley won his fourth youth wrestling state title, winning the 13- through 15-year-old schoolboy division at Lake Orion. He earned the state crown in the 85-pound weight class.

Cooley said Cael Sanderson is his favorite wrestler. Sanderson finished 159-0 during his college career at Iowa State University. He later won a gold medal at the Olympics.

Like Sanderson, Cooley has overwhelmed opponents on the mat this season. He said there are three keys to being a strong wrestler.

"You need to have good technique, set goals and be quick," Cooley said.

Later this spring, Cooley will wrestle for Team Xtreme at the middle school national meet in Danville, Ill. Team Xtreme is an elite squad comprised of Michigan's best youth grapplers.

Chelsea soccer opens season with win, loss

Bulldogs prevail over Big Reds, fall to Hornets in first week

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

The Chelsea girls' soccer team opened its season last week with two games. The Bulldogs split their first two contests, losing to Saline 1-0, but defeating Milan 2-0.

Against the always-tough Hornets, visiting Chelsea (1-1) played well, but couldn't hold off Saline (1-0) in the second half last Thursday.

After a scoreless first half, the Hornets hit the back of the net early in the second half for the night's final margin.

"After halftime, Saline picked up their pressure and we came out a little flat," said Chelsea coach Chris Orlandi. "About six minutes into the (second) half, a ball ping-ponged around our 18-yard line and ended up finding an open Saline striker. She put a well-placed ball into the side netting." Orlandi said the hard-fought loss was disheartening.

"It was a big disappointment because we had been working so well and so hard," he said. "Nevertheless, the girls kept fighting. The Saline defense was rock solid, however, and we were unable to generate any scoring chances."

"We never like losing to Saline, but this was a valiant effort. We look forward to playing them again at our place (5:30 p.m. April 28)."

The Hornets out shot the Bulldogs 11-0.

Despite the loss, Orlandi remained upbeat.

"Saline has dominated Chelsea soccer over the past decade," he said. "Last year, they beat us 4-0 twice, so a 1-0 loss is certainly a positive result for us."

Orlandi said his defense played well against the Hornets.

"We talked in pre-game about giving maximum effort, applying tons of pressure,"

Sayers, Burke, Bach compete at high level in respective sports

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Local athletes have started the season impressively at the collegiate level this spring.

Chelsea's Brian Sayers helped lead Albion College to a baseball doubleheader split against Adrian last Saturday, losing the opener 1-0, but winning the nightcap 12-0.

The senior shortstop topped the Britons, finishing 4-for-9 with a triple, double, two walks and three RBIs in the two games.

Albion has a 9-12 overall record and a 4-2 mark in the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

Dexter's Chris Burke is a member of the Brown University men's track and field team. The sophomore is competing in distance events for the Division I Bears.

Also at Brown, Chelsea's Blythe Crane begins the spring campaign as the Bears' top women's golfer. In the fall season, she led Brown, finishing eighth at the Bucknell Fall Classic. She also was 10th at the Yale Invitational and 20th at the Princeton Invitational.

Dexter's Jennie Ritter continues playing well for the

No. 1-ranked University of Michigan women's softball team. The 5-foot-8 junior pitcher improved her record to 16-0 on the year, picking up the win in the host Wolverines' 8-7 victory over Illinois last Sunday in the first game of a doubleheader.

She went all seven innings, allowing five hits, five earned runs, striking out 11 and walking two. U of M won the nightcap 10-0 in five innings.

Behind Ritter, the Wolverines have an overall record of 35-2. Michigan next travels to the University of Wisconsin for a game tomorrow against the Badgers.

In men's tennis, Chelsea's Trevor Bach lost 6-4, 4-6, 6-3 at No. 6 singles for Stetson (Fla.) University in the Hatters' 4-3 win over Florida Atlantic last Saturday. A freshman, Bach also teamed with Marcus Echter at No. 1 doubles, winning 8-6 against Atlantic.

On March 31, Bach prevailed 6-1, 7-5 at No. 6 singles and again paired with Echter to win 8-5 at No. 1 doubles in Stetson's 6-1 victory over Delaware last Thursday.

At Wayne State University, Chelsea's Matt Cunningham had one hit and one run scored, helping lead the Warriors to a 9-4 win over Michigan State in baseball March 30. A redshirt freshman, Cunningham starts at catcher for WSU (13-7). For the young season, he's batting .200, with five RBIs and six runs scored.

At Eastern Michigan University, Chelsea's Matt Moffett, finished 5-of-8 with one home run, five RBIs and three runs scored, leading the Eagles (9-17) over visiting Oakland University 5-1, 10-7 in a doubleheader sweep last Sunday.

For the year, Moffett, a junior third baseman, is batting .327, with 32 hits in 98 at-bats. He has team-leading totals of six home runs and 24 RBIs. EMU has won five out of its last seven games.

The Eagles next travel to Ohio University for a game tomorrow.

"We did a great job throughout the first half. We made a couple of defensive errors, but Maggie Manville did an outstanding job to keep the score deadlocked."

Manville, a sophomore keeper who was first-team All-Southeastern Conference and All-State honorable mention last year, was solid in net for the Bulldogs.

Chelsea vs. Milan
On March 29, Chelsea opened the season hosting the Big Reds.

Manville was strong in goal, recording the shutout in the Bulldogs' 2-0 win.

Offensively, Chelsea jumped all over Milan early, scoring 29 seconds into the game, as junior forward Jaime Franks converted a turnover into a goal, picking up where she left off last year. The Bulldogs' leading scorer the past two seasons, Franks, had 14 goals last year en route to All-SEC and All-State honorable mention accolades.

"We opened the season with a bang," Orlandi said. "Jaime stole the ball from a Milan defender near midfield, carried it past their sweeper and scored on a breakaway. It was great to get a lead early."

"Last year, we missed some early opportunities and ended up with a 0-0 draw against Milan. This year, we came out with much more fire and dominated play from the kickoff."

Despite its first half domination, the Bulldogs were unable to add to their point total.

"We had five total shots (in first half), but only two were on goal," Orlandi said.

Ten minutes into the second half, Brenda Satterthwaite scored off an assist from sophomore Sarah Reinhardt for the game's ending tally. Satterthwaite and Reinhardt converted a textbook 2-on-1 break for the goal.

"Reinhardt delivered a perfect feed to Satterthwaite who, while moving to her right, cut the ball back perfectly on a shot to the back post," Orlandi said.

Orlandi said at that point, the Bulldog defense took over.

"The defensive line of Danielle Stahl, Jen DeWall, Angela Koich, Shannon Olinyk, Jenny Carty and Jessica Lodewyk did an outstanding job of keeping Milan off the board," he said. "They made life for Manville quite easy."

Chelsea out shot the Big Reds 5-2.

The Bulldogs next host Pinckney 5:30 p.m. Tuesday.

On April 14, Chelsea hosts Temperance Bedford at 5:30 p.m.

On April 19, the Bulldogs travel to South Lyon for a game at 7 p.m.

Mill Creek Middle School, said she began in gymnastics at age 3 in daycare. A Level 9 regional qualifier, she said bars are her favorite event.

"I love swinging," she said. "It's really fun. Sometimes you feel like you're flying."

Marks, whose favorite TV show is "Extreme Makeover Home Edition," said her goal is to advance to the national meet.

"I need to score my highest all-around," she said. "And I want to place."

Only Level 9 has a national meet. The competition is May 6 through 8 in Palmetto, Fla.

Cassie Coffman, 14, a freshman at Chelsea High School started in the sport at age 8. She's on Champion's Level 9 squad.

"I like gymnastics because it's fun," she said. "It challenges you, teaches you about self-discipline and shows you how to be a stronger person."

Cassie Coffman, whose favorite athlete is Shannon Miller, won't be able to participate in the regional meet because of an injury suffered in January. She currently has to wear a cast on her foot.

"I have tendonitis in my Achilles and all the fluid drained into my bone," she said. "I'll have my boot on for another week. I'm ready to get back."

Catie O'Sullivan, 12, a seventh-grader from Jackson, started gymnastics at age 6. She's a member of Champion's Level 8 team.

"My mom wanted me to be more outgoing and not so shy," she said of her reason for beginning in the sport. "It's helped out a lot. Not many girls in my school do it (compete in gymnastics), so I feel special."

O'Sullivan, whose favorite food is pizza, said gymnastics was hard initially, but she kept trying.

"You get used to it," she said of the difficult practices.

Larsen, whose favorite athlete is cyclist Lance Armstrong, said she would tell young gymnasts starting out not to get discouraged.

"If something doesn't happen the first try, just keep with it," she said. "Don't stop if it gets hard."

Christina Coffman, who said "Friends" was her favorite TV program, said she hopes to qualify for the national meet.

"I want to try and get a 36 (all around score) and place in the top 10," she said.

Black, whose favorite school subject is language arts, said she would tell new gymnasts to take things easy.

"I'd tell them to have fun, don't rush and relax," she said. "If they have a problem, talk things over with their coach."

Cassie Coffman said she would tell a young gymnast who's just beginning to never give up.

"If something gets hard, don't quit," she said. "Keep working through it."

Champion coach Michelle Patterson said she's proud of her Level 8 and Level 9 gymnasts.

"They've all really improved this year," she said. "I didn't expect them to do this well at the beginning of the year. But they've done extremely well. I'm excited."

Sports Editor Don Richter can be reached at 475-1371 or at drichter@heritage.com.

In addition, the company provides "value added" services, and pays for an independent consultant to come into the home and evaluate it, helping sell homes faster and with a higher profit margin.

Q: Why did you choose the Dexter or Chelsea area for your business?

A: Linda Allen has been a longtime resident and business owner of Linda's Hair Care in Chelsea for more than 25 years. She comes from a family background of builders in Ingham, Jackson and Washtenaw counties. Bob Boyd has been practicing real estate in Washtenaw County for several years. The Chelsea-Dexter communities have a lot to offer the real estate business.

Purohit joins TLC staff

Dr. Surendar Purohit, a retinal specialist, has joined the team of doctors at the TLC Eyecare & Laser Center, 1800 Commerce Park Drive, in Chelsea.

Purohit received his medical degree at the University of Michigan School of Medicine.

Having grown up in Michigan, he is excited about returning to his roots and caring for patients in the Chelsea community, according to a press release from the TLC Eyecare & Laser Center.

Purohit has a practice philosophy that revolves around the patient.

"I believe that every patient should be treated as if they were a family member, and I will do my best to make sure that a patient leaves our office having all of their questions answered and fully confident in the quality of care they have received," he said.

Purohit is also seeing patients in TLC's Ann Arbor facility.

TiVo becoming mainstream

System can find time a program runs and automatically record it

By Lara Mossa
Journal Register Co.

TiVo was launched just six years ago and the name already has become a household word. Some have taken to using it as a verb as in, "I have to TiVo that program!"

But just what is TiVo?
"TiVo is an extremely smart video recorder," said Bob Poniatowski, product marketing manager for TiVo, based in Alviso, Calif. "It's like a VCR on steroids."

Launched in 1999, TiVo is a digital video recorder that was designed to make it easier for consumers to record their favorite TV shows, movies and other interesting programs.

"It's a relatively addictive service," said Richard Lippitt, 41, of Milford, who has had TiVo for three years.

Lippitt rarely watches live TV anymore. His (digital video recorder or DVR) is set to record his favorite programs. And when he does sit down to watch "24," he begins watching the entire episode a half-hour into the broadcast and fast forwards through the commercials.

Another handy feature is the 10-second rewind button, which allows him to play back the program if he missed something.

Like a VCR, a digital video recorder connects to your TV and either your cable box, satellite receiver, antennae or a combination. The product records digitally, so there is no need for a tape.

Unlike a VCR, TiVo records the program on a hard drive, so viewers can pause the action and pick up where they left off. The recorder can show the image in slow motion or fast forward a program in short segments.

But the feature that is attracting attention is the ability of the recorder to find the date and time a program runs and set the recording for you. TiVo provides a service through the phone lines that streams program information to the TiVo box.

With a remote control, you can view the program guide and choose the show you want to record. The guide can conduct a search by title, actor, director, hobby, topic or key word. You can rate shows, which directs TiVo to suggest similar programs.

The guide lists two weeks of programming. You also can choose to have the whole season of your favorite program recorded and skip repeated episodes.

If you have two TiVo units, the program information can be transferred from one to the other. If you're away from home, recording can be programmed from the Internet.

"TiVo is one of those technologies that once you have it, you can't imagine how you did without it," said Poniatowski, who is originally from Wyandotte. "It's about giving TV viewers the control to watch what they want, when they want. There's lots of great television available, but you're not there to watch it."

The TiVo service costs $12.95 a month or a one-time payment of $299, which is good for the life of the box. Consumers receive a discount if they have more than one subscription.

TiVo models start at $99 for up to 40 hours of recording.

The company was founded in 1997 by Mike Ramsay and Jim Barton. But Ramsay has resigned from the company, although he plans to stay on until a replacement is found.

While TiVo is gaining name recognition, it's not the only company that offers the service.

ReplayTV sells DVRs through the company Web site replaytv.com, Amazon.com and retailers such as Comp USA.

The company sells four DVRs with functions similar to TiVo. The units are priced from $99 to $600, and the programming serv-

'Bus Stop' explores love, life's truths

William Inge's classic mixes comedy with weightier themes

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

During a recent rehearsal of "Bus Stop," a classic American play written by William Inge opening at The Purple Rose Theatre Co. April 15, director Guy Sanville stalked the perimeter of the theater's stage, much like a football coach pacing the sidelines of a gridiron.

Occasionally, he called timeouts in the action, approaching actors, putting his arm around their shoulders and whispering directions in their ears.

Then Sanville would step back, and the actors would repeat a scene, slightly altering how they delivered their lines.

Repetition. Stamina. Playing out drills so that everything falls into place come game day.

Sanville's football-coach-like approach to stage direction feels like old hat to Brian Letscher, a former Michigan Wolverines quarterback and wide receiver who played on the team during the early 1990s.

"He does it in all the healthy ways a football coach does," Letscher said of Sanville last week before a "Bus Stop" rehearsal at Purple Rose.

"It's like being in (football) camp — it's just like how you would prepare yourself for moments of stress," Letscher said.

Youthful-looking, tall and athletic, Letscher plays Bo Decker, one of the lead characters in the play.

"Bus Stop," which originally opened on Broadway in 1955 — and was adapted into a movie starring Marilyn Monroe in 1956 — centers around Bo, a young cowboy who abducts nightclub singer Cherie, played by Inga Wilson, with plans to marry her.

Bo and Inga are part of a busload of travelers who take shelter in a roadside diner for a night as a snowstorm rages outside.

"Bus Stop," a classic American comedy written by William Inge, will open April 15 at The Purple Rose Theatre Co. in Chelsea. Pictured above, the character Bo Decker (wearing hat), a Montana cowboy played by Brian Letscher, has a serious chat with Will Masters, a local sheriff played by Grant R. Krause.

Bo Decker, played by Brian Letscher, takes his love interest Cherie, a nightclub singer played by Inga R. Wilson, by force, hoping to carry her to the wedding altar.

In "Bus Stop," character Dr. Gerald Lyman (left), an alcoholic former college professor played by John Lepard, takes a shine to Elma Duckworth, a young diner waitress played by Molly Thomas.

TRUTHS

Sanville said the local theater company, which recently concluded performances of actor-director-playwright Jeff Daniels' "Norma & Wanda," tries to stage a classic play every year, and that "Bus Stop" fit the bill nicely.

"Inge is one of my favorite playwrights," Sanville said. "He celebrates ordinary lives, and his work never strays from the truth."

At its core, Sanville said "Bus Stop" is a play about love, in its many varieties.

"It's a very funny and sad little play," Sanville said. "It asks a lot of compelling questions about love."

Twenty-one-year-old Bo doesn't kidnap 19-year-old

Cherie for malicious reasons, Sanville said. Instead, Bo can't conceive of having intimate relations with a woman without having love and marriage too, he said.

"He doesn't get it — and in his world it's right," Sanville said of Bo. "He thinks: 'Make love, get married.' (Cherie) thinks he's out of his mind. She doesn't feel she's worthy."

Other characters in the play include Gerald Lyman, a college professor on the run, played by John Lepard, and Carl, a bus driver, played by Phil Powers, who's also looking for love.

"The professor is an old drunk. He's running; he's smart; he's been married five times and maybe he'll dry out and maybe not, but by the end of the play he does the right thing," Sanville said.

Inge, who committed suicide in 1973, weaved his heartaches into his writings, Sanville said.

"He felt he no longer had value as a playwright. I think he was a very sweet and broken-hearted man. Toward the end of his life he drank too much," Sanville said.

"There's despair in this play. It has a very happy-but-sad ending."

Letscher and Wilson, who currently work as actors in New York City, said playing the Bo and Cherie characters hasn't been easy.

"Bo is absolutely honest and straightforward, and that's been a challenge," Letscher said.

"I always want to please everybody. It's difficult to play a character that isn't like that," Wilson said, adding that some of the more physical kidnapping scenes run counter to her nature.

Letscher said Bo's motives are simple — merely to find love.

"To Bo, the play is about loneliness and what you do in your life to not be lonely, and how we come together with other people to do that."

Sanville said "Bus Stop" has become an American classic because of Inge's unflinching eye for life's truths.

"People are starved for the truth. They crave it," Sanville said. "And the theater can be a safe place to get it. I've seen peoples' lives change out there in the audience. It's like a religious experience."

ice costs $12.95 a month or a $299 lifetime subscription fee. Consumers receive a discount if they have more than one unit.

Founded in 1997, ReplayTV is based in Santa Clara, Calif., and is owned by Tokyo-based D&M Holdings.

Cable and satellite companies also are getting into the market.

DirecTV sells a digital video recorder that is part of the satellite receiver box. At Circuit City, the 70-hour recorder is priced at $99.99.

Comcast offers DVRs that are part of the cable box for an extra $9.95 a month.

Comcast also offers Video On Demand, which is an alternative to TiVo. Video On Demand provides thousands of hours of TV shows and movies. Available for digital subscribers, some of the content is free, but first-run movies cost $3.99.

Consumers can take the idea a step further by buying a DVR with a built-in DVD burner and record programs onto a disc.

Humax sells a TiVo unit with a DVD recorder for $499.99 at Circuit City. Panasonic sells a similar product for $499.99, which uses a free service from TiVo Guide.

For computer buffs, TiVo has introduced TiVoToGo, which allows you to transfer recorded shows onto your computer. Microsoft sells software for the service.

Most recently, high-definition DVRs came on the market in 2003. The new technology will be compatible with today's DVDs, said Jeff Joseph, a spokesman for the Consumer Electronics Association, based in Arlington, Va.

TiVo is currently working on new products to connect the TV to the Internet, digital music and photos.

"It's no longer appointment television," Joseph said. "Now, you can watch it at your convenience. That's the incredible power of digital."

Church: A Dangerous Place?

Dear Friends and Neighbors:
A few weeks ago a churchgoer near Milwaukee, Wisconsin killed eight people, including himself, and wounded four others, apparently because he was upset about something the minister had said in a recent sermon.

When someone in my business hears that, my first question is, "What did the pastor say to upset him?" According to the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel, the point had been made in the February 26 sermon that people's problems are of their own making.

I don't know the context of the sermon. Although it is true that each of us brings countless problems on ourselves, I'm sure the vast majority of us pastors would never make the blanket statement that all of our problems are directly of our own making. There are certainly many things we have no control of.

On the other hand, the Bible teaches something more shocking still. All of our problems are what we deserve before God, in fact less than we deserve; we each deserve eternal separation from God and His blessings, due to our sins.

And then the Bible presents a still more shocking idea: All of Jesus' problems were of our making. "He took up our infirmities and carried our sorrows" (Isaiah 53:4). What a terrible thought, as we think of Him, blood and heat hanging on the cross. "I did that. I am responsible for that."

The Bible also presents another teaching: Jesus was not an unwilling victim. He chose to take up our infirmities and carry our sorrows. He did this because it was the only way to save us. He does not glare at us in self-pity and say, "Now look what you did to Me." Rather, in love He provided forgiveness and eternal life for us. Our celebration of Easter recently has reminded us of Jesus' sacrifice for us and His triumphant defeat of sin and death.

I don't expect anyone to get me down for saying these things; though millions of Christians throughout the ages have been martyred for these very teachings. In a way, though, a church that preaches this is a dangerous place. It's a place where you are told to give up your pride and self-esteem, and give all glory to Him. And when you do that, you do lose your life. He takes it.

But He gives you so much more. Please worship with us this Sunday morning at 10:00 a.m.
