226 students graduate

Chelsea High School Principal Ron Mead describes class of 2005 as positive, motivated

By Rita Fischer
Special Writer

A total of 226 seniors, including 60 cum laude, 18 magna cum laude and 19 summa cum laude students, graduated Sunday from Chelsea High School. Principal Ron Mead described them as one of the most positive and motivated classes in the school's history.

Mead opened the ceremony by saying how proud he was to have had the opportunity to know so many self-motivated individuals in the class of 2005. He also was pleased that the students went out of their way to get to know him as a person.

"The students are a positive support to one another and they are achievers," he said. "I was pleased that so many students turned out for Friday night's Class Night in support of the many that were getting awards. Even if some were not getting awards, many just came to show their support to the others."

Mead said the graduates will explore a variety of career options in their lifetime. The students stood out this year in sports, music and academics, and have many talents, he said.

Chelsea High School produced 226 graduates this year. Students and their families gathered Sunday for the commencement ceremony, which featured two high school graduation speakers and the Chelsea Board of Education, as well as administrators and teachers.

The middle and high school bands joined the orchestras in playing the prelude, as well as the processional "Pomp and Circumstance" by Edward Elgar. They also performed the national anthem.

Graduating seniors Danielle Houle and Nathan Taylor spoke on behalf of the class of 2005.

Houle, who has not yet decided what she will do after high school, made a Top 10 list of the many things that members of the class had learned or experienced throughout their high school careers. Of them, she listed the ACT, Michigan Educational Assessment Program testing, drivers' education and classes on childbirth and drug prevention as among the top five.

In addition, she cited dances, prom, the "Bubble Lady" and the student who set off the fire alarm with a coat hanger.

Houle made her classmates laugh while remembering the lesson to never swerve to avoid a deer in the road, "even if it means going into the other lane to get it."

"I learned that in drivers' education. Always hit things head on," she said.

Danielle Nelson and Beth Muszkiewicz then sang "For Good" from the Broadway Musical "Wicked" by Stepehn Schwartz.

Study: Residents value parkland

Survey indicates open space, natural areas greatly desired

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

According to an unscientific study by the Committee for Chelsea Parks, local residents value parks and natural areas near their homes and a majority wants more of them.

Kathie Gourlay, a member of the nonprofit group formed to encourage park development in areas lying within the Chelsea School District, presented findings of a park and outdoor recreation survey last Thursday at Chelsea Community Hospital.

In the past, the group has attempted to preserve 150 acres on the city's northeast side for an open park, and has supported development and preservation of other local parks.

Starting in late 2003, the group began distributing the surveys door-to-door in the city and providing them to local coffee shops.

A total of 157 valid surveys were returned. Respondents included 109 Chelsea city residents and 42 residents of townships surrounding the city. One respondent lived in Jackson County.

When surveyed on specific reasons people wanted to live in Chelsea, respondents ranked "neighborhood appearance" and "natural areas" as top attractions.

In a category surveying attitudes about transportation and walking, respondents said they wanted to see construction of a sidewalk feeding into Timbertown Park near Veterans Park.

Respondents also leaned toward construction of more bike paths, more places to walk, a creek path, a greenbelt, neighborhood parks and a park near The Purple Rose Theatre Company.

Chelsea landscape architect Cynthia Silveri is doing preliminary work on a conceptual plan to build walking trails along Letts Creek, starting in Veterans Park and extending northeast of the city.

Silveri is co-owner of Ferndale-based Silveri Architects, a building and landscape architectural design firm.

She spoke about the conceptual plan last Thursday during a Committee for Chelsea Parks meeting at Chelsea Community Hospital.

WASHTENAW COUNTY

Bill would be trouble for wireless initiative

Language related to governmental agencies causing concern

By Gary Anglebrandt
Staff Writer

A bill in the Michigan Legislature has language in it that could affect Wireless Washtenaw.

"This bill may somehow have an impact on what we're doing in Washtenaw County," said state Rep. Pam Byrnes, a Democrat who represents the 52nd District, which covers western Washtenaw County.

House Bill 4600, introduced by Leon Drolet, a Macomb County Republican, has come about because of the Michigan's Telecommunications Act is up for review, Byrnes said.

"A governmental entity shall not provide a communications service except for the use of the entity itself," is the language in the bill that is creating some concern, she said.

The county administration is talking with people in Lansing, said James McFarlane, a project manager for Wireless Washtenaw.

The initiative, planned to begin with a pilot program in November, would provide a subscription wireless broadband Internet service to people in the county. Its funding would come from a bond issue and be revenue neutral, except for staff time, county officials have said.

Charter Communications, which offers broadband services in some parts of western Washtenaw County, has taken no position on the bill itself, but governments are driven by cost recovery, not profit, said Tim Ransberger, a government relations representative for Charter.

"It feels like you're in a different league than a municipality. It's the same game, but different rules," Ransberger said.

The bill, introduced in April, is still going through a first round of negotiation, Byrnes said.

Sewer expansion may be in works

Bond sale, increased fees would fund $3M sewer project proposal

By Gary Anglebrandt
Staff Writer

The Multi-Lakes Water and Sewer Authority is preparing for a likely expansion, which is expected to begin within a year and a half of final approval.

Dexter and Lyndon townships have adopted resolutions to expand the authority, said Pat Kelly, Dexter Township's supervisor.

The resolutions amount to a letter of intent to expand, but final contracts eventually would have to be signed by the townships involved in financing the expansion.

A bond sale and increased fees would finance the $3 million expansion. The authority has $500,000 in reserve; the balance would come from a bond sale, said Dan Myers, director of development services for Washtenaw County's planning and environment department. Myers has created a project summary for the authority.

Residential fees of up to $5 per month could become necessary as well, he said.

"Our hope is that it would be less," Myers said.

The authority, built in 1995, serves areas of Dexter, Lyndon, Putnam and Unadilla townships. Each township has representation on the authority's board.

The Putnam Township Board has plans to adopt a similar resolution, Kelly said. Unadilla was not included in financing talks because it is too small, she said.

The expansion of the authority's sewer plant, located on North Territorial Road in Dexter Township, is needed because of overcapacity, Myers said. The plant also was incorrectly engineered, Kelly said. The plant cannot handle as much sewage as originally thought.

A second plan for the

A majority of those surveyed said they visit local parks and local school playgrounds or sports fields about once a month.

A majority of respondents also rated parks as "very important" to their quality of life.

Most said they use local parks for walking.

At playgrounds and sports fields, most respondents said they enjoyed using playground equipment.

One hundred respondents said they either "agree" or "strongly agree" that they prefer public natural areas within walking distance of their homes.

Eighty-seven respondents said they either "agree" or "strongly agree" that they want parks or playgrounds within walking distance of their homes.

Eighty-three people said a park or playground was located near their homes, while 38 people said they wanted a park near their home. Thirty-one people said there was no nearby park and they did not want one.

Most respondents said they were neither satisfied nor dissatisfied with outdoor recreational facilities for teenagers, while 107 out of 143 people said were either neutral or satisfied with outdoor recreational facilities for children ages 5 to 12.

Average responses reflected that people support developers preserving portions of land, government helping to preserve farms and the purchase of land for public uses.

When asked if developers should be required to preserve portions of their land for open space or parks, 128 out of 151 respondents said they either "agree," or "strongly agree."

More than 80 percent of respondents said traffic and loss of wildlife habitat cause serious environmental problems.

Close to 80 percent of respondents also said loss of farms, wetlands and scenic areas create environmental problems.

Out of 124 responses, 56 said local taxes spent on parks and open space were "about right," while 52 said local taxes spent on these areas were too low.

Chelsea planners may want to take note of another statistic: 44 of 152 respondents said they neither agreed nor disagreed that their city or township "is doing a good job managing growth and development," while 79 disagreed with the statement.

While Gourlay acknowledged that the survey would need to be administered differently to reach a scientific conclusion, she said she made attempts to put together and interpret the survey without bias.

Kathie Gourlay, a Committee for Chelsea Parks member, presents findings of a park and outdoor recreation survey last Thursday at Chelsea Community Hospital.

Gourlay said she already gave the survey data to the Chelsea City Council and the Chelsea Planning Commission, but only included responses from city residents in those presentations.

TRAILS

Silveri already has met informally with Chelsea City Engineer Chris Linfield and Chelsea Planning and Zoning Administrator Jim Drolett to discuss the concept.

Key access points to the proposed network of paths would be located along North and Buchanan streets near M-52.

The trails would be incorporated into an existing path bordering portions of the creek.

The conceptual entrance points would target an area currently under consideration by city officials for construction of a new municipal building, including a new city hall and possibly a new police station.

The new municipal building could be constructed on a site on Buchanan Street currently owned by the city and occupied by the abandoned BookCrafters building.

A site near the building also has been discussed as a potential home for a new Chelsea Post Office.

The paths would connect to a new pedestrian bridge spanning the creek in Veterans Park that is slated for construction next summer. The bridge project is a partnership between the city and the Chelsea Rotary Club.

Silveri noted that Ann Arbor Machine Co. owns undeveloped land near the site, which could be designated as a conservation area with walking trails if the company agrees to such a use.

During a meeting with city officials, Silveri said Drolett indicated the company might have plans to expand the facility, however.

"Perhaps they could grant an easement for some of the land, although they might add on," Silveri said.

The city's Department of Public Works garage is located near the BookCrafters building. Silveri's plan proposes removing the garage to create an access point.

"I thought the DPW garage is not the greatest land use beside the creek," she said.

"We could create connections along the creek and turn it into a park."

Silveri said the trail network could have a future connection to Westchester Farms, a proposed 309-home development on 178 acres off Sibley Road by Norfolk Development Corp.

Silveri said she thought the site, as a whole, would benefit from construction of a new city hall facing M-52. In that case, the new municipal building would compliment redevelopment of the Clocktower Complex, Silveri and members of the Committee for Chelsea Parks said.

Although she has not yet drawn up a larger map for the proposed trails, Silveri said the trail system could extend northeast along the creek, possibly bordering Dexter-Chelsea Road at certain points.

Crash stops mid-day traffic

Drivers stunned but not hurt in crash on M-52 near McDonald's

By Gary Anglebrandt
Staff Writer

Main Street traffic came to a halt at about 3:45 p.m. June 1 after a car crashed into a truck.

Chavalo Margarido of Gregory, who was driving a Ford F-150, pulled left out of Chelsea Commerce Park Drive, located north of Interstate 94, and Theresa Crothers of Salem Township crashed into his vehicle.

"She t-boned him," said David Dettling, an officer with the Chelsea Police Department.

The truck looked like it was about to crash into a second car, said a Pinckney man who called 911 after witnessing the crash.

"I had to pull into McDonald's to avoid getting hit," said Greg Morris.

The horn on Crothers' Mazda 6 sport wagon was stuck and sounded until someone snipped the car's battery wire, he said.

"It was chaotic," Morris said.

No one was hurt in the crash.

"I'm a little but shaky, though," Margarido said.

Both were driving work vehicles.

Crothers' car came to her via her husband's job with Ford Motor Co., which owns Mazda. The 2005 Mazda had only 2,000 miles on it. The car's front end and passenger side were smashed in the crash.

She had never been in a serious accident before.

"It was pretty surreal, actually," Crothers said. "I skidded across the road and tried to get out as fast as I could."

By 4:30, the F-150 had been removed from the street and debris had been swept away. The Mazda had gone up onto the grass in front of McDonald's. Emergency vehicles and police cars still blocked traffic, but things were already moving along better. Crothers was almost done retrieving golf clubs and other items from the car before it got hauled away.

"I'm better. I was a little shaken up at first, but I'm getting my sea legs," she said.

Crothers was just happy that she hadn't been driving her other car, a small Ford Capri two-seat convertible.

"It was very fortunate I wasn't in that car," she said.

authority is to build a sewage receiving station to handle waste from residential septic tanks hauled in by trucks. That plan would cost $840,000. Rates charged to haulers would offset the costs, Myers and Kelly said.

The state is forcing more haulers to send their loads to treatment plants instead of spreading the waste on fields, Myers said.

The Dexter Township Board is not in full agreement on the receiving station, but it is for the expansion, Kelly said.

Taylor, who will attend the University of Michigan School of Music, graduated cum laude. He was a member of the National Honor Society and a class officer on the Student Council. His speech followed Houle's.

Taylor shared his memories starting from first grade on up, playing in the sand box, the toys he treasured from the school ice cream socials, sharing lockers and that he only got detention one time for skipping in the hallways.

"We were a great class, with a ton of smart people — all of us are here, none of us flunked," he said.

Taylor ended his speech with a poem.

"Laugh often and much. We will all succeed in our own way," he said.

Superintendent Dave Killips had the honor of certifying the graduates, while Mead presented them as the graduated class of 2005. Board of Education trustees and faculty members handed out diplomas.

After singing "Alma Mater," the students were dismissed, filling up the hallways for one last time to share tears, laughter hugs and smiles. Students had much to share about high school and the years to follow.

Max Wineland, the class president, was glad to see the end.

"The past 12 years have been great, but it feels great to be graduating and moving on," he said.

Kirby Kedroske, who served as class treasurer, will hold onto his memories.

"I have so many great memories of high school and I am sad for those to be over, but I am looking forward to the amazing memories I am going to make in college," he said. "I am excited to start my own life."

Andrea Ball, who will attend Washtenaw Community College in the fall, will miss the routines associated with high school.

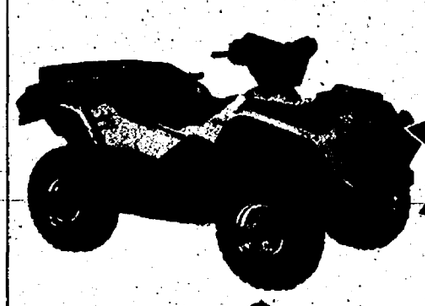

"I feel excited, nervous and scared," she said. "High school is comforting. You have someone guiding you each day. We no longer have that now that we have graduated."

Cliff Ballard, who plans to attend Kalamazoo College in the fall, is excited about his future.

"I'm a little sad, though, because I know I will miss so many people and familiar things, but I am incredibly excited for college and life on my own," he said.

Officials discuss development of 'Four Corners'

Busy intersection is zoned for commercial development

By Gary Anglebrandt
Staff Writer

Dexter Township's "Four Corners" could become home to two mixed-use developments and that has people talking.

The intersection of North Territorial and Dexter-Pinckney roads creates the Four Corners, as some call it, and is one of the busiest intersections in the township. It's the only significant commercially zoned area in the township.

Talk of developments on the northern two corners has come up between landowners and the township, but no formal plans have been presented, said Dexter Township Supervisor Pat Kelly.

Last year, the township successfully beat a proposal to build a gas station on the southwest corner. The station would have been too close to the Huron River and the land underneath the location does not have clay, the township argued.

This time, the township is considering changing an ordinance to allow mixed-use development at the Four Corners. Currently, no mixed-used developments are allowed.

Mixed use generally means some kind of residential and retail development.

During a joint meeting of the Township Board and Planning Commission May 25, there was broad consensus that mixed use should be allowed in the zoning ordinance, Kelly said. The change would give the township greater room to negotiate with developers over aesthetics, she said.

Mixed-use developments, also called planned-use developments, typically require negotiations between a developer and municipality over aesthetics and density. For example, the township could demand more open space while allowing more density.

The land is already commercially zoned, so technically a strip mall could go there, Kelly said. Planned unit developments allow flexibility, she said.

"Options are good," Kelly said.

No details have been released, but discussion of senior housing came up from property owner Tom Bell and developer Steve Brouwer during a board meeting early this year.

Bell owns 13 acres on the northeast corner. He has owned it since 1973 and isn't selling any of it until a PUD, or mixed-used, ordinance is in place, he said.

"A PUD ordinance would affect few landowners, but would impact the community positively," he said.

"At some point, those corners are going to get developed."

Since the land is already commercial, it's wise for the township to look for possibilities, instead of fighting more gas stations in court, Bell said.

"(Land) owners would like to do something nice, as opposed to call McDonald's, if you will," Bell said.

"Since corn and wheat is cheap, (farmers) want to grow houses and you can hardly blame them."

Mike Bezzeg owns about 20 acres on the northwestern corner, where the Bearclaw Coffee stand sits.

"I'm glad to hear that," Bezzeg said about the possibility of mixed-used development.

He wouldn't comment on current plan[illegible] would only sell to a developer that respects the area.

"I want to make sure the right developer comes in here, otherwise I wouldn't sell it," Bezzeg said.

Debi Scroggins, owner of Bearclaw, was skeptical about talk of development.

"They've been discussing for years and years," she said. "Nothing's going to happen."

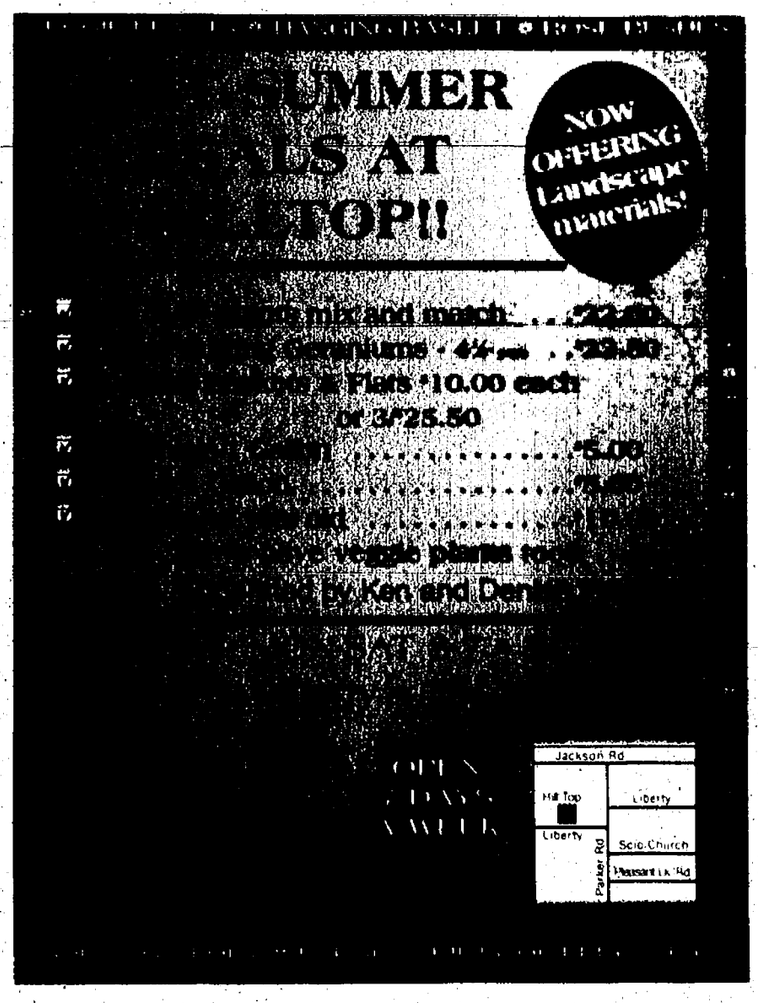

The township plans to discuss the ordinance change in upcoming weeks. At the same time, it's planning to make some changes to its master plan so residents can qualify for $2.7 million in state funds for purchasing development rights, or PDR.

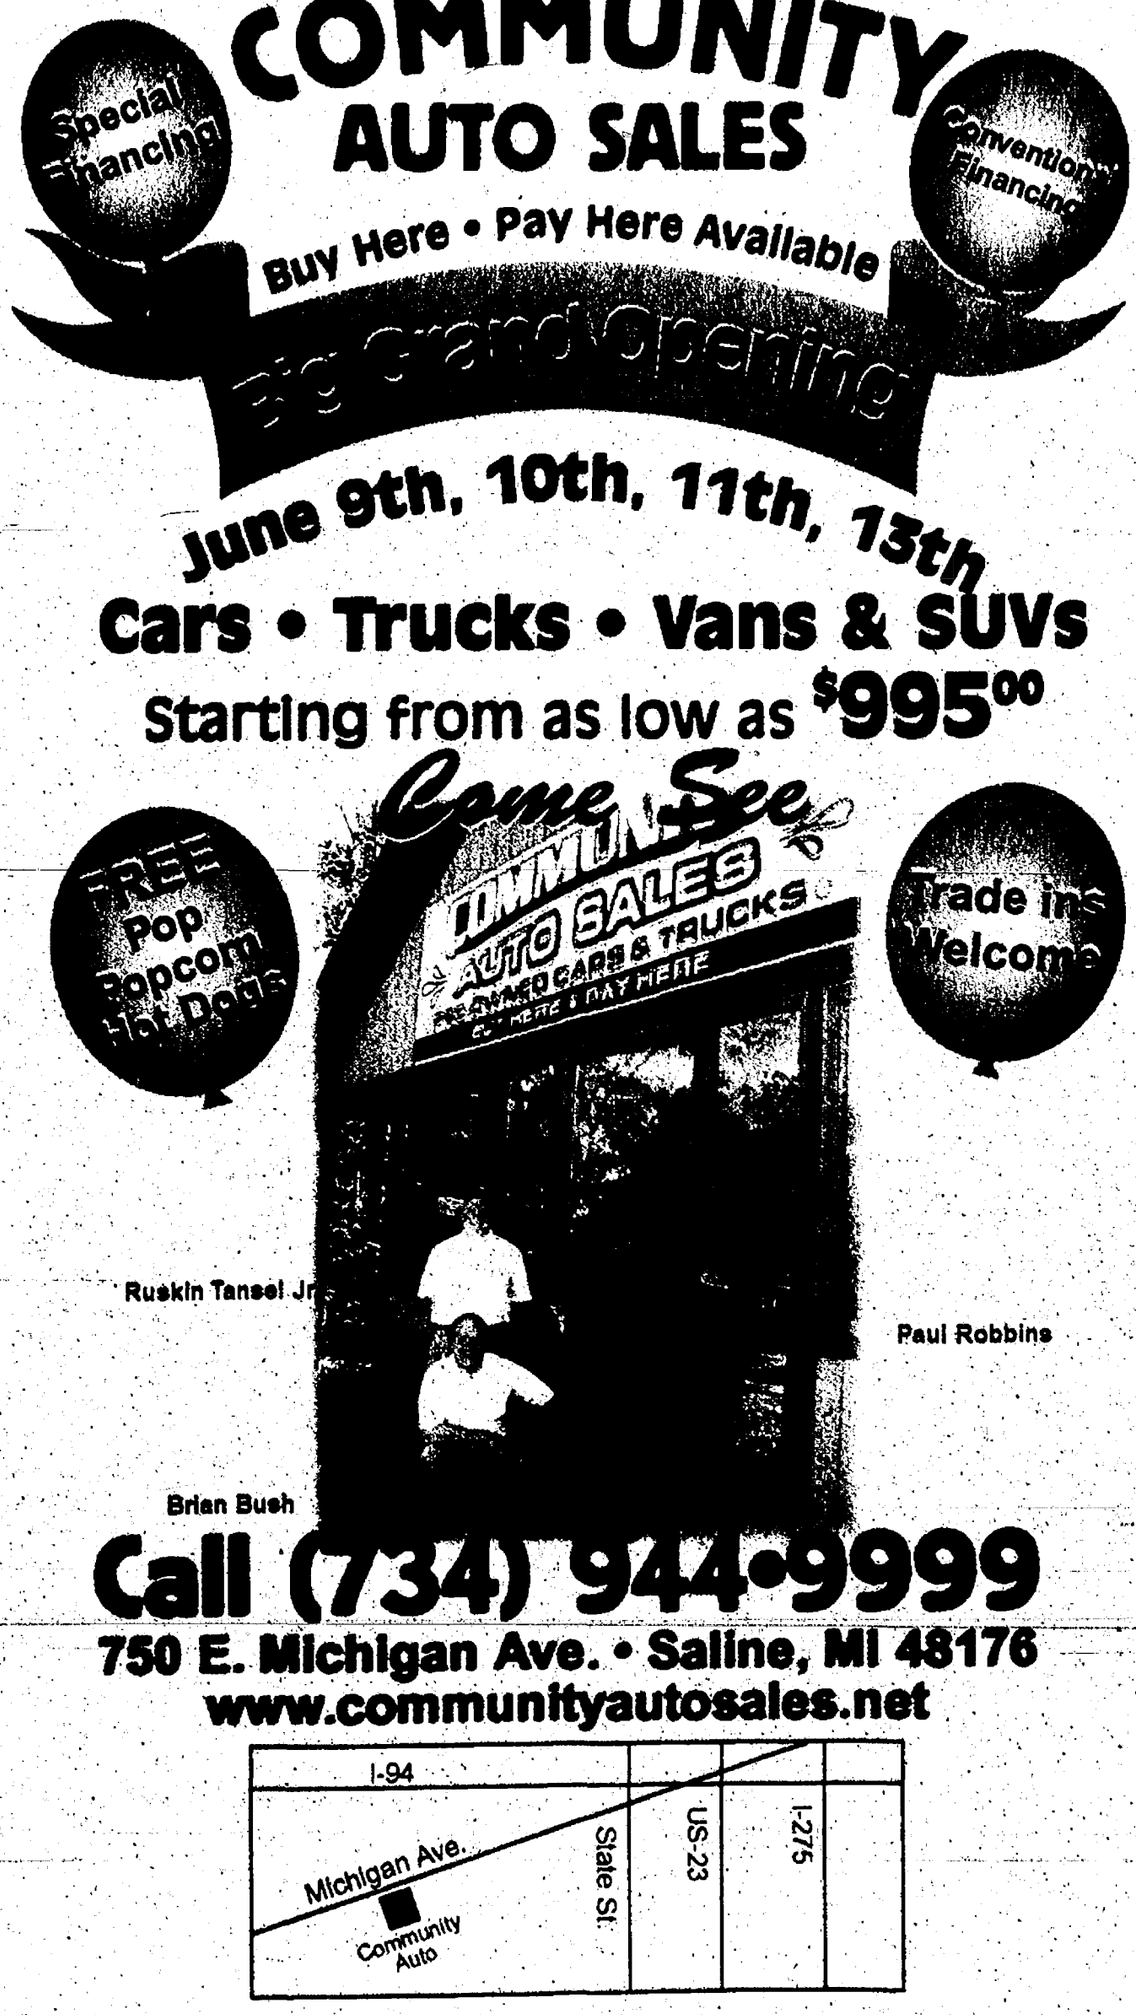

PDR is a tool used to halt development by giving a landowner the difference of the value between currently undeveloped land and the value if it were developed.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Community, schools deserve gratitude

As a family, we've just completed our third and last graduation season at Chelsea High School. It's appropriate to thank the entire Chelsea community for the tremendous support and encouragement of our top-notch educational system.

We all have heard of, and perhaps experienced, some of the shortcomings of our school system, and there always will be room for improvement. But the negatives are publicized and dissected all too often. This seems an opportune moment to point out some of the tremendous positives we in Chelsea have to be thankful for.

First of all, we must recognize Chelsea High School Principal Ron Mead for the leadership and integrity he shows in what has to be one of the most difficult jobs in the world today. He is fortunate to lead a staff of talented, dedicated teachers. A few who influenced all three of our children are Lonnie Mitchell in mathematics, Chris Kochan in history and English, and Jed Fritzemeier in orchestra.

Many more could be mentioned for their inspiration and enthusiasm.

Fortunately, many of these teachers, including elementary and middle school teachers, get singled out each year at the Cum Laude Banquet, a brilliant method of tribute for honors graduates to pick those who most influenced them. If we paid these educators what they deserved, they would all be millionaires.

It's easy when our children are finishing high school to forget the importance of the elementary and middle school teachers, and the school system administrative, maintenance and transportation staff. But many of these people have a profound influence on our children as they move through the system. Their contributions should not be overlooked.

We may not have much ethnic diversity here in Chelsea, but we have a great spectrum of economic diversity, and we should be thankful for the way the schools help to level that divide. The schools give our students the understanding of different backgrounds so vital to their future contributions to our national debate.

Also, we are lucky to have the Chelsea Education Foundation and other community groups to provide the sustaining force to help our young people achieve their dreams. It was awe inspiring to see how many scholarships were handed out to our students at the Senior Awards Night for so many diverse career paths. These are organizations that deserve our continued generous support.

Additionally, one has to recognize the value of the sad-but-essential lessons our young people have learned living in this tight-knit community. There must be a half-dozen or more scholarships handed out each year to commemorate the young people whose lives were cut short. My daughter is moved and grateful to have received the Lauren Dean Memorial Scholarship this year.

Even more moved was her older brother, who experienced this passing firsthand as a member of the Chelsea Theater Guild with Lauren the year of her death.

These scholarships are a lasting tribute to these young people and a testament to the benevolence of their families and friends. They teach our kids the important ways we all touch each other, the value of giving back to the community, and how vital it is to remember the precious gift each day of life affords.

We should be grateful for the families and friends of Lauren Dean, Josee Alverez, Kevin Bollinger, Katie Fox, Amanda Martin, Jennifer Young and others who continue to touch the community with their generosity.

Lastly, we all should be proud to live in a place that continues to support the future — through our schools, library, music and athletic boosters, theater programs, as well as arts and recreation programs.

Thank you, Chelsea, for 15 rich years of quality public education.

School violence can happen in Chelsea

In this day and time, with a lot of focus being put on school violence and the need for safer schools, one wants to believe that the local school district supports this national trend.

"No violence," "no weapons" are phrases you see and hear throughout the Chelsea School District. "Respect" is the word that students are taught. Then why is it that when an act of bullying, intimidation, or verbal or physical threats happens to our children, these words have little to no meaning?

I am the parent of a victim of school violence in which a weapon was used and verbal and physical threats were made to my child. I know of many different incidents in Chelsea schools in which students and staff have been victims of different forms of violence.

So what is being done?

In my child's case, we went through the appropriate channels only to find out that the perpetrator has more rights than the victim.

There are policies against all forms of violence and weapons in our schools, and we are told that Chelsea is a "no tolerance" school district. So, why won't the district administrators, school board and principals follow what they say they believe in and stand for?

It seems that the tendency of the school administration is to minimize each occurrence as not to jeopardize the reputation of this district, while leaving the victim and his or her family to bear the burden of what has happened to them. Meanwhile, the perpetrators live and act as they have all along with little or no consequence.

You may believe that it cannot happen to your child because that is what I thought, but it can and it may.

My only intent for writing this letter is to bring to light the travesty that is occurring in our hometown with our children. It's no longer unheard of for a child to lose his or her innocence or their life to school violence.

Recycling authority being fiscally prudent

A recycling cleanup took place May 14 at the Chelsea fairgrounds. This was an effort sponsored by Washtenaw County and structured to help the county's residents with the proper disposal of toxic and hazardous waste, as well as other materials that may be recycled or otherwise need to be removed from their property. A significant sum of money was spent on this effort.

There appears to be some residents concerned about the absence of the Western Washtenaw Recycling Authority in this recycling effort. These concerns appear to have been enhanced by the presence of Recycle Ann Arbor.

This letter will attempt to explain the reason that the board of directors of the Western Washtenaw Recycling Authority specifically decided not to become involved.

An important factor to consider is that recycling and waste disposal, like any manufacturing and goods distribution cycle, must either pay for itself or be subsidized by public money. Ideally, there is a blend of both as a revenue source.

This most recent recycling effort was sponsored by Washtenaw County government based on revenue collected from the landfill located in Superior Township. In the past, the county has underwritten efforts carried out by the Western Washtenaw Recycling Authority. The county is no longer willing to fund this through the Western Washtenaw Recycling Authority and has decided to handle its own contracting.

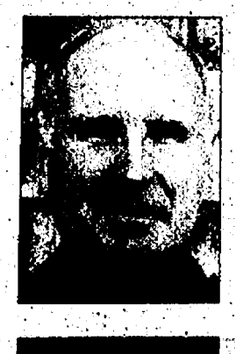

The county has contracted with Recycle Ann Arbor for

Make your concerns known on land issues

SUSAN LACKEY

It's not very often that Republicans and Democrats — liberals and conservatives — agree on public policy.

For 30 years, that's been the case with the tax benefits that have encouraged private property owners to preserve their land through gifts of land and land preservation agreements. With little or no public money, these gifts have voluntarily preserved millions of acres of land in all 50 states.

Yet, Congress' Joint Committee on Taxation has focused on a handful of individual abuses and used them as an excuse to propose wholesale changes in this highly successful program. If the changes proposed in January by the committee are adopted, private land conservation in the United States will be drastically reduced or stopped altogether.

The Joint Committee on Taxation has proposed drastic cuts in tax benefits for legitimate, voluntary donations of land and land preservation agreements.

First, deductions on donated land would be limited to the cost basis, punishing many farmers and other long-term landowners. In addition, if you donate a land preservation agreement and you live on the land, your deduction is slashed by 66 percent. If you don't live on the land, you get nothing.

If the Joint Committee on Taxation proposals are adopted, landowners will have little if any incentive to donate conservation land for public benefit, and the significant benefits of conservation donations will be lost.

•Conservation donations secure natural areas and open space at a fraction of what would be required to buy the land outright.

•The public benefits are gained without any public investment, and there is no public funding needed for maintenance, costly regulatory intervention or liability.

•Land preservation agreements allow the land to remain in private hands and on the tax rolls.

•When agreements can be obtained for several adjoining parcels, it becomes possible to maintain true wildlife corridors or consolidated blocks of working farms.

Locally, these proposals could end the work of the Washtenaw Land Trust — and other local, nonprofit conservancies — to protect the local natural areas and working farms of Washtenaw, Jackson, and Ingham counties.

The first land trust established in Michigan, Washtenaw Land Trust has the last two years. Approximately a year ago, the Western Washtenaw Recycling Authority was asked to assist Recycle Ann Arbor with the effort and without cost reimbursement. This proved to be a very expensive proposition for the following reasons:

•The proportion of true recyclables, which generate revenue, was very low and the cost of disposal of the waste very high.

•The Recycle Ann Arbor group left the fairgrounds in a mess, incurring additional costs to the Western Washtenaw Recycling Authority for cleanup and disposal.

This recent event was open to any person, regardless of residency, and it was abundantly clear that many participants did not live in the eight governmental units that support the Western Washtenaw Recycling Authority. Therefore, a very costly service — to the Western Washtenaw Recycling Authority — would have been provided to Recycle Ann Arbor and to a large number of people who do not pay an assessment for the local operations.

This does not seem to us to be wise stewardship of your dollars. The Western Washtenaw Recycling Authority Board takes very seriously your public trust and strives to run a fiscally sound operation.

The board strongly backs these clean-up efforts that assist the general public in the disposal of environmentally hazardous materials. Therefore, the board is hoping to work with the county to directly involve the Western Washtenaw Recycling Authority in future efforts, especially since this is the area in which the Western Washtenaw Recycling Authority functions.

Commissioners have their minds made up

I don't know who the Washtenaw County Commission thinks it's fooling. It's clear that as Sheriff Dan Minzey makes one last stab at fixing the county's jail problem, the commission seems to be showing the side voters should have seen before the failed February vote on the proposed tax increase.

The commissioners never really backed that proposal. All along, they had County Administrator Bob Guenzel's plan ready to go.

Guenzel's plan does little to solve the crowding problem for our growing county jail population and does more to ensure surfing the Internet is fast. The commission's true intentions became clear after its June 2 meeting.

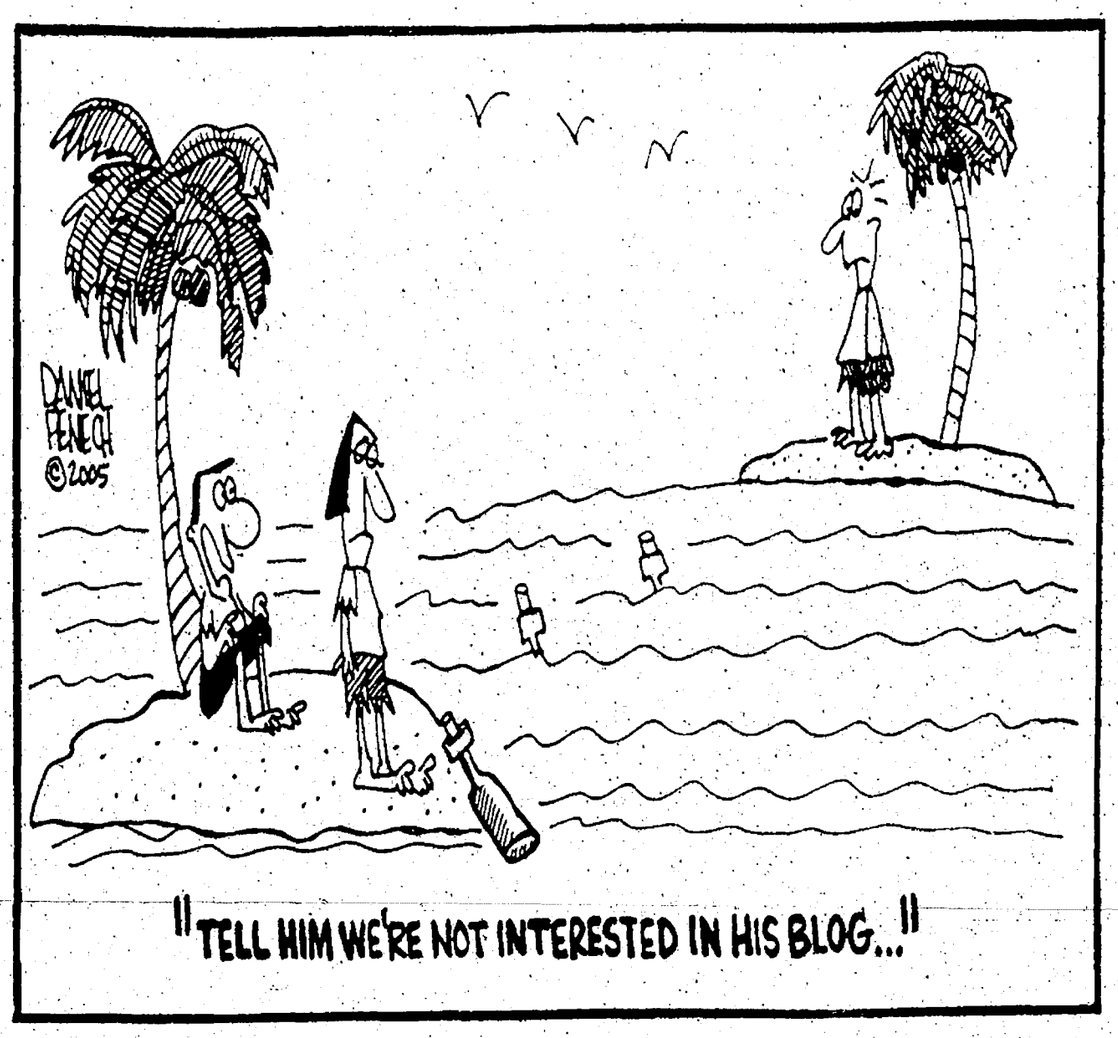

And then there's this labor debate over local jobs. What pork-barrel union leaders Greg Stephens and Fred Veigel fail to recognize is that if the county doesn't expand this jail at the least cost to taxpayers, the sheriff and county judges will continue outsourcing inmates back into the streets early.

The fiscal irresponsibility became clear when Commissioner Leah Gunn started spewing her political rhetoric that she only supports "local construction, local labor, local jobs." No kidding! Anyone will say anything to get re-elected.

Minzey, unfortunately, will take the fall here because the commission will do what it wants and leave the rest of us out to dry.

When the commission does vote to end road patrol at the expense of its hatchet man's plan, it should allocate some additional dollars to build a wall at Wagner Road, officially dividing us versus them.

protected 36 parcels totaling more than 1,700 acres. The majority of these parcels — 25 — are protected through donated land or land preservation agreements.

These donations provide public parks, nature preserves, water quality protection, groundwater recharge, wildlife habitat, productive working farms and green spaces for our community and for future generations, all at very low cost.

According to the Land Trust Alliance, the amount of land protected through land trusts is twice the amount of the entire national park system. Land trusts rely heavily on donated land and land preservation agreements. There simply are not enough resources to achieve our goals otherwise.

The loss of farmland and open space in our region, as well as across the nation, is accelerating. Now is not the time to eliminate conservation tools, particularly those that are low-cost, high-gain and completely voluntary.

The Senate Finance Committee began holding hearings yesterday on this issue. Please let our members of Congress know how important this issue is to the public.

Larceny

A 77-year-old Jackson man complained to Chelsea police that items were stolen from his camper while it was being repaired May 13 at Lloyd Bridges Traveland, 1603 S. Main St.

The man said $45 in coins and about $375 in jewelry was stolen.

Employees were given keys to enter the vehicle to make some repairs, but a manager told police none of his employees would have stolen anything.

The manager said he searched the vehicle with the man when he picked it up and found nothing missing.

A mechanic said he only entered the vehicle briefly and that most repair work was done on the vehicle's exterior.

Hit and Run

A 56-year-old Chelsea man reported to police that someone hit his car May 27 as it was parked at Dollar Arena, 1171 S. Main St.

The man said he noticed a red Dodge Ram pick-up truck pull into the space next to his car.

Non-Aggravated Assault

A 40-year-old Chelsea man was arrested for assaulting his 30-year-old girlfriend May 28.

The woman said an argument started at the man's house, and it became physical. She told police the man choked her and slapped her face.

The man told police if his girlfriend said he hit her, he probably did.

Police arrested the man for domestic violence. He was arraigned May 30 in 14th District Court.

Noisy Complaint

A Chelsea man reported to police that a work crew was making noise at the Heritage Pointe subdivision off Dexter-Chelsea Road May 29, and that he wanted the work stopped because it was a Sunday.

The city has a noise ordinance banning work on Sundays.

Police contacted the crew, which agreed to stop working.

Retail Fraud

Employees at Amoco gas station, 1630 S. Main St., told police a man stole candy from the store May 27.

The employees said they also saw him steal candy from the store on several other occasions.

The suspect, a Grass Lake resident, allegedly paid for candy and a drink May 27 and left the store with candy in his back pocket that he did not pay for.

The employees wrote down the man's license plate number and told police they would provide a surveillance tape.

Chelsea police told the suspect he had been seen shoplifting and that he was no longer allowed on store property. Police told the man he would be arrested for trespassing if he returned to the store.

An employee at Pamida Discount Center, 1040 S. Main St., told police a man stole two 30 packs of beer from the store May 29.

The employee said he saw the man loitering outside the store and later saw him coming out of the store carrying the beer. The employee chased the suspect, who got in his car and left the scene.

The employee recorded the car's license plate number. Police checked the number and found it was registered to a vehicle in Detroit.

Employees at Pamida Discount Center, 1040 S. Main St., reported to Chelsea police that someone attempted to steal a 30-pack of beer from the store June 1.

The teenager was last seen around the alley near Chelsea Grille. Store employees found the beer in the parking lot and grass west of Chelsea Lanes, 1180 S. Main St.

A store employee checked the bowling alley and found no one matching the suspect's description.

Police searched a wooded area behind the bowling alley, but could not find the suspect.

Burglary

Someone burglarized a house in the 700 block of S. Main St. May 30, stealing $15,530 worth of cash and property.

Stolen items included a safe containing $5,000 in cash and a $10,000 U.S. Savings Bond registered to the homeowner, as well as her car title and living will.

A $200 video game system, $300 worth of video games and a purse containing $30 in cash also were stolen.

The homeowner said the burglary happened some time between 1 and 5 p.m.

Police found the house's front door was kicked in and the door handle was twisted off.

A doctor told police his medical office at Integrated Health Care, 1290 S. Main St., was burglarized sometime between 6 p.m. May 27 and 9 a.m. May 28.

The man said he found $210 in cash missing from his office. He told police the office's back door had been forced open and that he replaced the lock afterward.

The man said he waited until May 31 to call police because he initially found nothing missing.

Chelsea police told the man that because of the time that had elapsed after the robbery, they would not be able to collect fingerprints from the scene or conduct a proper investigation.

They advised him that he should have reported the incident sooner, according to a police report.

LOVING HOMES NEEDED

PONCHO - Poncho! is a shepherd/husky mix who transferred here from another shelter. He's a big sweetie-pie, about 1 1/2 years old and 57 pounds. His coat is medium length and would need some grooming on a regular basis. He is also very well behaved and easy to walk on a leash. Poncho is neutered and housetrained and knows sit. He's a very nice boy.

E.T. - E.T. is an adorable 8 week old kitten. Her brothers and sisters have all been adopted and she is hoping to go to a good family too. E.T. is a tiny girl and is litter trained and also good with other cats too. Check her out!

MASON - Mason is a Corgi whose previous owner wasn't home much and couldn't give him enough attention. Children 10 or older are a must for Mason, as he does not like to have his paws touched, and he is a bit mouthy, as Corgis can be. Mason is neutered and weighs 41 pounds. He needs to loose a little weight-don't we all?-and then with a lot of love, he will be a great companion.

I Am Sold On Chelsea

QUALFYING A BUYER

Either you or your agent will want to quickly weed out potential buyers who cannot really afford to purchase your home. A number of factors will help determine whether or not you are wasting your time negotiating a sale, like the buyer's debt and credit history; current income and employment; cash position and availability of a down payment; length of time the buyer needs before closing on your home and, how interested the buyer appears to be in your home versus others.

SEEK LEGAL REPRESENTATION

When selling your home— particularly if you are selling on your own—it's a good idea to be represented by an attorney. Look for an attorney with expertise in real estate transactions. When a potential buyer puts an offer in writing and you accept it, the signed acceptance becomes the sales contract. Your attorney will be present at the actual closing to protect your interests and can assist you with the following elements of a sales contract: sale price; what is included in the sale price, i.e. draperies, carpeting, light fixtures, heating oil, etc; down payment amount; date of settlement and possession; contingencies to the sale—inspections (e.g. structural, lead-based paint, radon), required improvements; legal review of the contract by the buyer's or seller's attorney, etc; amount and length of mortgage loan, interest rate and time limits to secure the loan; and determining which closing costs are to be paid by the buyer and which by the seller.

TAX IMPLICATIONS

Selling a home can have a major impact on your federal and state tax returns. Check with your tax consultant on the factors that may affect taxes resulting from the sale of your home. For example whether you purchased the home or acquired it by gift or inheritance, whether you used your home partly for business or rental, costs associated with selling your home, home improvements or additions, which may help to offset capital gains, the sale of your home. In certain cases you can exclude up to $250,000 in gain ($500,000 for married couples filing a joint return) on the sale of property that was your principle residence for at lease two years. Generally, you can use this exclusion every two years.

Golf jams net $1 million for Purple Rose

Laughs abound as fund-raiser ends 10-year run

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

Question: Where could you play a round of golf and find a sauced Jack Nicholson, a paroled, electronic-ankle-bracelet-wearing Martha Stewart, a philosophizing Forrest Gump and Tom Massermore, Michael Jackson's new criminal defense attorney, waiting for you at different tees?

Answer: At the 10th and final Jeff Daniels Comedy Golf Jam, held Monday at Polo Fields Golf and Country Club in Scio Township.

In total, the annual golf jams, all held at the country club, have raised about $1 million for The Purple Rose Theatre Company, which was founded by Chelsea resident, film actor, writer, director and singer-songwriter Jeff Daniels.

Judy Gallagher, development director for the theater, said Monday's event raised about $100,000.

Dow Automotive was the main corporate sponsor for this year's golf jam. Becky Bray, a representative for the company, declined to say how much the organization contributed.

Eight other corporate sponsors each contributed $5,000, while groups of golfing foursomes each pitched in $2,500.

About 130 actors and volunteers also attended.

Beautiful summer weather, live music, good food, drinks and nutty comedian-actors fueled a surreal scene of bizarre hijinks.

One golfer teed off wearing only a shirt and Speedo-style underpants and a contortionist chopped his assistant into five pieces as an airplane circled overhead, towing a banner that read: "Dumb & Dumber Deserved the Oscar."

At the second tee, Phil Powers and Doug Zach banged drums and hit crash symbols as golfers swung at their balls.

"Timing is everything," Powers joked.

Martha Stewart, played by Purple Rose actress Barbara Coven, served food to her guests at Hole 14.

"This has been a life-changing experience," Coven said of her character's recent incarceration.

"I started out confined to the clubhouse," she said, looking at her electronic tether. "Now I can't go off the green."

Charley Marcuse, known as the "Singing Hot Dog Man" at Comerica Park, bellowed songs at various tees.

The Detroit Tigers told him to stop singing at the park last season, but Marcuse said he was given free rein at the golf jam.

"(Daniels) will let me sing as much as I want," Marcuse said.

A group of nine leather-clad "Bad Biker Babes" rode their Harley Davidson motorcycles around the third tee, joined by several mock-policemen, including Purple Rose Managing Director Alan Ribant, who rode in a 1954 Chevrolet squad car.

Todd Kuzma, who played Massermore, talked about his famous client at the fourth tee.

"The Vegas odds are 8-5 against us winning our case," Kuzma said. "We're going to appeal. Our client is 100 percent innocent.

"I was at the Neverland Ranch this morning and I woke up without my pants," he added. "It's the most natural thing in the world for a 45-year-old man to share his bed with a boy."

Nashville actor Paul Dengler, playing Forrest Gump, handed out chocolates and told golfers what he's been doing since the 1994 film ended.

"I have 150 shrimp boats now, and they're all named Jenny," Dengler said.

"I'll never get over (Gump's deceased wife) Jenny. Me and her were like peas and carrots."

The annual golf jams have raised a total of $1 million for the theater during a 10-year period.

Dengler said Gump still makes cross-country runs.

"I ran through Detroit real fast," he said. "I thought I was going to get shot in the buttocks."

Craig Janos, a Jack Nicholson look-alike and impersonator who frequents Detroit Pistons basketball games, said he was roaming the golf course.

"I get all the holes — who are you kidding?" Janos said.

Gallagher said although this was the last golf jam, the theater will continue to hold similar fund-raising events.

"We wanted to end on a high note, and we want to do something new and different next year," Gallagher said.

Daniels' wife, Kathleen, said her husband is looking forward to shooting a new movie titled "R.V." and costarring Robin Williams in Vancouver, British Columbia. Daniels will use his musical skills in the comedy, playing the guitar, harmonica and banjo, she said.

Dexter firefighters responded to an explosion and fire at a pole barn on the northwest corner of Zeeb and North Territorial roads in Webster Township Tuesday afternoon.

WEBSTER TOWNSHIP

Man injured in explosion

Mark Nagel listed in critical condition with burns on his body

By Gary Anglebrandt
Staff Writer

A pole barn on the northwest corner of Zeeb and North Territorial roads in Webster Township caught fire Tuesday afternoon, injuring a man working inside.

The victim, Mark Nagel, who was working in the pole barn, caused the fire while using a cutting torch on a fuel tank. The tank was probably empty and the fumes caught fire, said Dexter Area Fire Chief Loren Yates.

Sgt. Brian Filipiak of the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Office said he discovered Mark Nagel, 41, when Filipiak arrived at the barn and as firefighters already had started putting out the blaze.

Nagel was sitting on the porch of a house on the property about 100 yards away. Although injured, he was communicating at the time, Filipiak said.

"He was just sitting on the porch, trying to get our attention," Filipiak said.

Yates estimated Nagel had burns on 80 to 90 percent of his body, but Nagel was able to tell Yates what had happened. Nagel was immediately taken to a hospital. He was in critical condition, the most serious level, as of press time Tuesday evening.

The homeowners were gone at the time. The barn is one of many in a small junkyard on the property, and the owners had been letting Nagel use it for mechanical work, said Sheriff's Cmdr. David Egeler.

"We couldn't get too close because of multiple explosions outside the building."
Kyle Jones
Dexter firefighter

Many explosions were reported as other fuel and propane tanks exploded in the fire, Yates said.

Fire crews from Putnam, Hamburg, Northfield and Scio townships also arrived, as did a crew from Chelsea.

Kyle Jones, a part-time firefighter in Dexter, was one of the first to arrive.

"We couldn't get too close because of multiple explosions outside the building," he said.

After spraying the tanks, firefighters eventually got close enough to get inside and around the building, he said.

It took about 40 minutes to get the fire under control, Yates said.

Kids That Care Day to be held

Briarwood Mall will host Kids That Care Day from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday. The family-oriented event encourages children to serve their communities and educates people about the importance of helping others through volunteering.

The day will include an expo of local charities and nonprofit organizations, the Kids That Care Award, a food drive and musical entertainment.

"At Briarwood, we look forward to educating local kids and families about volunteer opportunities in the community and honoring those who already greatly contribute to our community," Dana Harvey, marketing director at the mall, said in a press release.

"Every day we see the results of people in our community who devote countless hours to giving back and the benefits of their volunteer work."

Groups will distribute information about the services they provide, as well as volunteer opportunities for kids and families. Activities such as face painting, balloon artists and arts and crafts will entertain visitors.

In addition to the organization expo, one child will be presented the Kids That Care Award. Area kids were nominated for their active volunteer work with a nonprofit or charity. The winner will receive a $250 donation toward his charity of choice and a $250 Briarwood shopping spree.

A food drive is under way at the mall's information desk. Items collected during the drive will benefit The Food Gatherers, a Washtenaw County-based organization founded to collect and distribute perishable and nonperishable food, coordinate hunger relief programs and educate the public about hunger.

RIVER RAP

Plant a tree

When I was a child, I loved the apple tree outside my bedroom window. In addition to melodious bird songs and relief from the heat, it provided an opportunity for climbing and then resting, viewing the world from a marvelous height.

My favorite activity at Girl Scout camp was canoeing and camping on the river. Later I realized that we could lose our clean, fresh water if we did not actively protect it. So, I chose a profession to help people to protect our river.

Recently, I learned about the important role that trees play in helping to protect water and how we can help the river by planting trees. Trees have an amazing capacity to move water.

When trees grow, they make food by capturing energy from the sun, taking carbon dioxide from the air and using water taken from the ground by their roots. The powerful force that carries to the top of tall trees comes primarily from transpiration. Transpiration is the process in which water is absorbed by the roots, moves up through the plant, passes through pores in leaves, and then evaporates into the atmosphere as water vapor.

When water evaporates from the leaves, it creates sufficient force to draw additional water up through the conduction tubes in the tree trunk. An average maple tree moves more than 200 quarts of water per hour in the summer.

Think of the ground as a sponge from which trees are removing water. The vast root system dries the soil, which increases the amount of rain that can soak into the ground. This achieves the primary goal of stormwater management, which is to help the rain to infiltrate. When rain infiltrates into the soil, it reduces the volume of water that runs off.

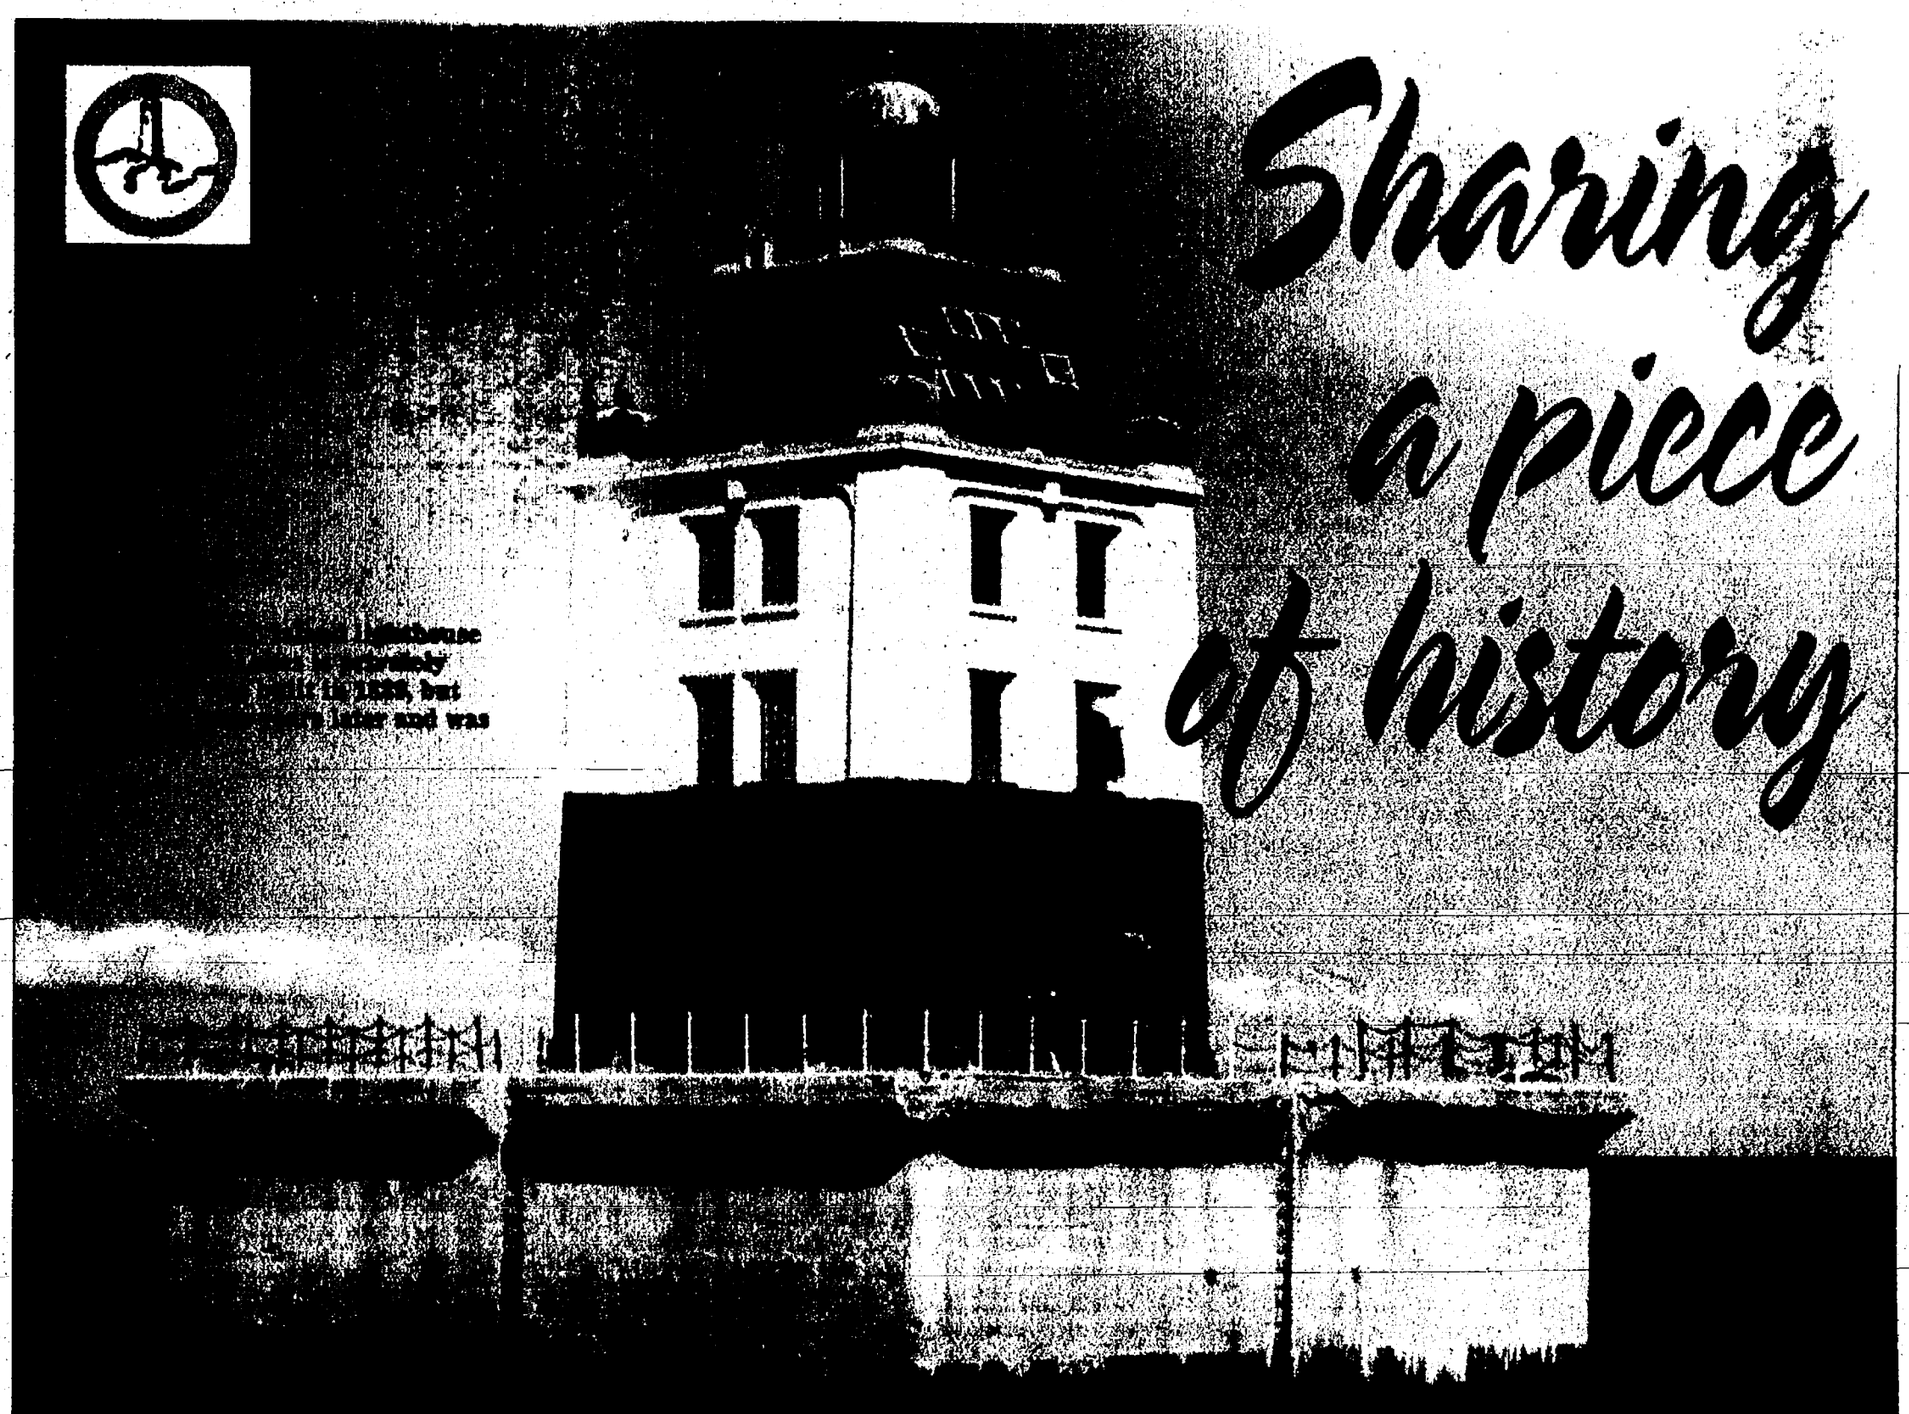

Runoff overloads our streams and harms the fish and other animals that depend on fresh water. When we construct houses and roads, we cover the soil with impervious surfaces that prevent water from returning to the earth and to the groundwater system. Worse yet, if we remove trees for a new development, we lose the free service of stormwater storage and treatment that each tree provides.

Runoff from forested areas is 17 percent less than that from developed areas. According to the Washington Arbor Day Council, our nation's urban trees soak up water and provide $400 billion worth of storm management.

Here is something everyone can do to have a positive impact on the environment: plant and nurture trees wherever there is space. This is especially important in an area that lacks trees. Could you enjoy a smaller lawn with more shade trees and the songbirds that would visit? Are you losing any ash trees? Are you living in a new house built on previous farmland?

Sharing a piece of history

Dick Moehl shares his interest in Great Lakes

By Rita Fischer
Special Writer

Dick Moehl's stories make a lot of splash.

A former sailor, the Webster Township resident retired as a financial adviser from Beacon Investments in Ann Arbor and now shares stories of the Great Lakes as part of a lighthouse tour.

As president of the Great Lakes Lighthouse Keepers Association, he and a handful of others are interviewing as many people as they can find who manned lighthouses so they can share those stories before they're lost.

Moehl has been active with the Great Lakes Lighthouse Keepers Association since 1985, when sea captain William Shepler and Moehl started the lighthouse cruises. William Shepler's son, Bill, is now in charge of the cruises with Moehl since his father's death.

The three-hour tours are narrated by Moehl and Sandy Planisek. They tell the stories of those who spent their days keeping the lights on to help keep ships safe. A portion of the proceeds from the tours benefit lighthouse preservation and restoration efforts.

Moehl says he never has a boring day. Whether he is piloting the ship, sharing stories of lighthouses of yesteryear or setting up the next tour, he loves what he does. Moehl spends every chance that he can sharing the history of the Great Lakes with school groups or training educators and others to preserve the history.

"I will have to admit that I created a nifty monster," he said. "I always heard that people wanted to see lighthouses, so supply and demand keeps the tours going."

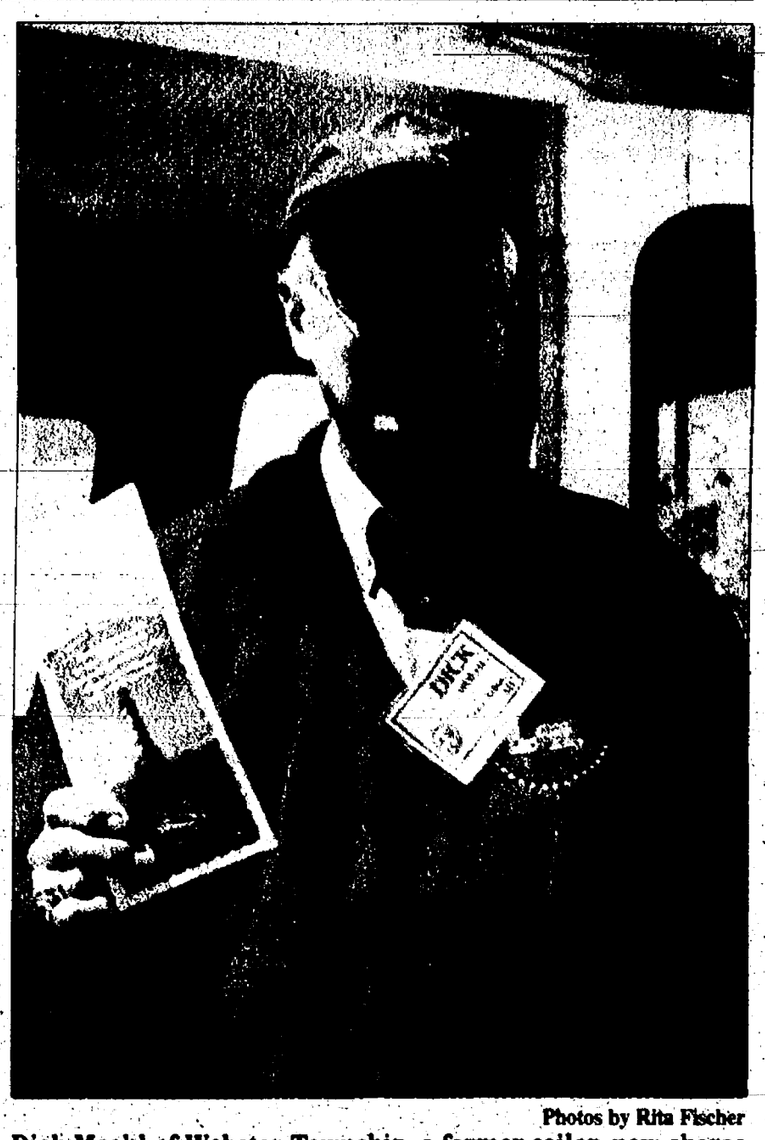

Since 1989, more than 3,000 teachers and youth leaders have joined an estimated 40,000 young people at workshops held by the Great Lakes Lighthouse Keepers Association.

Moehl is proud of the association's desire to preserve lighthouses and their stories, as well as efforts to develop a new generation of lighthouse keepers.

The association's goal is to facilitate the accumulation and exchange of information about the histories of the lighthouses and their keepers so that life at the light stations may be accurately interpreted, history preserved and a new generation of preservationists developed, he said.

The Great Lakes Lighthouse Keepers Association began restoring the St. Helena Island Light Station in 1986. The lighthouse is situated in the western straits of Mackinac in northern Lake Michigan. It was manned

Jessica Emerick probably will be best known someday for her generous heart.

The Dexter High School senior has already had a lot of hands-on experience helping those in need. Last winter, she spent her winter break in the Dominican Republic helping to build a school.

Emerick was part of the Sister Island Project, a nonprofit organization that promotes friendships between the United States and villages in the Dominican Republic. Accompanied by her mother and two of her five brothers, she said it was a unique experience to spend the holidays there.

"Especially spending Christmas there, which is so commercialized here. It makes you appreciate what you have and see how others live with what they have," she said.

Through her involvement in Family, Career and Community Leaders of America — another non-profit national organization that develops leadership skills in students — Emerick was able to provide school supplies and personal hygiene products to the children in the village.

Emerick also has been involved in the National Honor Society, the Key Club and Women in Science during her high school career.

Her empathy for others does not stop with club involvement. The 17-year-old will study biology at the University of Michigan this fall. Her future plans include working in the health field.

"I always wanted to do something where I could actually help someone and see real physical changes," she said. "I couldn't be a doctor. I don't think I have the stomach for it. But I would like to do something closely related."

While maintaining a 3.9 grade point average, Emerick has spread out her time not only between studying and club involvement, by a number of keepers and their families until it was automated in 1922.

The association received a quit-claim deed for the St. Helena Island Light Station in 1997 through legislative transfer. Numerous national, state and other awards have been achieved in this historic restoration, primarily by youth groups.

A typical cruise going east or west allows one to see the other lights that few get a chance to see. A rare treat would be to take a ride out to St. Helena and see all the restoration work, Moehl said.

Heading east into Lake Huron, passengers get to enjoy the old Round Island lighthouse that was built in 1895. Round Island Passage Light Station was built in 1947 to add a shorter route to and from the Straits of Mackinac. The Round Island lighthouse was in the movie "Somewhere in Time."

Continuing eastward, those on board the ship enjoy hearing the tales of those who live on Bois Blanc Island and the one student who attends school there. The lighthouse at Bois Blanc is now privately owned. The lighthouse was built in 1829, but collapsed nine years later.

Turning southeast brings Poe Reef lighthouse into view. Starting back in 1893, four lightships took turns marking this dangerous reef until the light that remains today was built in 1929. It's black and white, an easily identifiable day mark, Moehl said.

Turning west, passengers get to see Fourteen Shoal Light Station, which marks the entrance to Cheboygan Harbor. The lighthouse was built in 1930, but was never manned. It was originally radio-controlled operated, one of the earliest attempts at off-site operation from Poe Reef Light Station.

Many lighthouses today have been automated and are run by solar power.

In particular, Moehl is proud of all the hard work put into the St. Helena Light Station, which is now owned by the Great Lakes Lighthouse Keepers Association.

"Because of the hard work of many, our maritime heritage is being preserved," he said. "It does something special for kids. It gives them ownership when they work on it.

"I hope that someday they will return and pass the history to their children and keep coming back."

The cruises for the Straits of Mackinac run through September.

TREE

ture planted trees on what was considered "wasteland" in 1966. Today that wasteland is the Thurston Nature Center, a forest including 98 species of trees that provide habitat for 70 species of birds.

So, plant a tree. On a personal level, your tree will help to moderate summer temperatures. A large tree cools the air as much as would six room-sized air conditioners. It also increase the value of your property from 6 to 15 percent, according to many real estate studies. Beyond the boundaries of your property, trees help regulate river water levels and provide food and housing for a variety of birds and other animals.

Imagine climbing a tree where you live and seeing a variety of trees in all directions, enriching the world.

Emerick said she can see herself doing medicine research in the future, possibly in Germany, or working in a lab or hospital.

"I think I'm just overwhelmed right now with all the possibilities," she said. "I feel really compassionate for those that can't help themselves.

"I'd like to be part of the cure for cancer that's out there. It just takes time and people to do this."

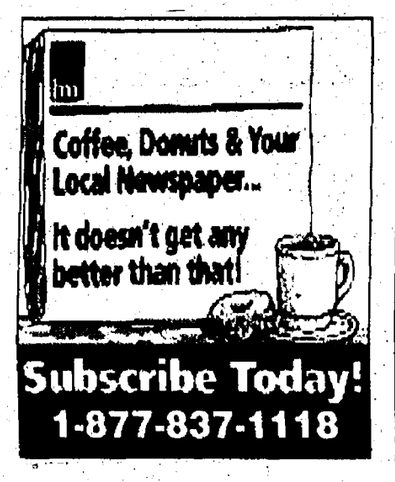

It's her mother, Barbara, who has inspired her the most, she said, by providing encouragement.

"Whenever I've been hard or down on myself, my mom has always been there for me," she said. "She will tell me I'll do fine and that my best is good enough. I'm really glad she's been there for me."

Town hall meeting set

Families and communities in Michigan will face enormous pressure in the next few decades as the number of residents 65 and older skyrockets.

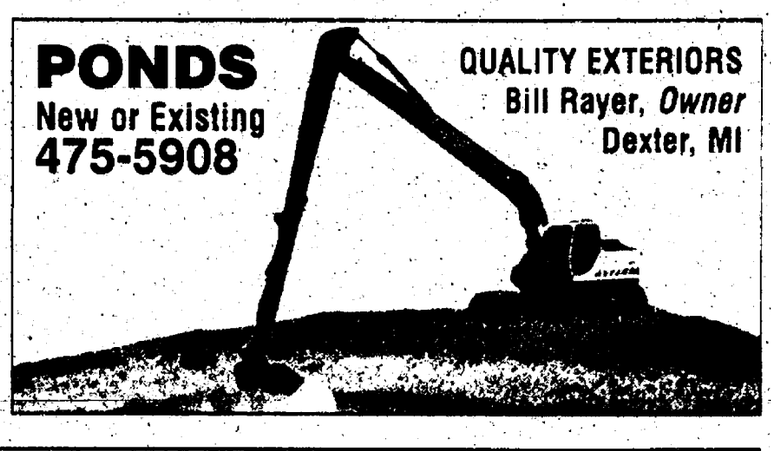

In response, The Blueprint for Aging, a group of consumers and Washtenaw County human service providers and governmental agencies, will host a town hall meeting to discuss plans and strategies to meet the demands of Washtenaw County's rapidly growing older-adult population. The meeting will be held from 10 a.m. to noon June 22 at Pierce Lake Elementary School in Chelsea.

Open to the public, the event will include a keynote address by Bill Healy, president and CEO of United Methodist Retirement Communities. Refreshments will be provided. Registration is not required.

The Blueprint for Aging is developing strategies that will produce accessible programs and services for older adults and their caregivers, such as "programs on wheels" and a 24-hour helpline for caregivers.

The organization's mission is to build community with healthy, independent, and honored seniors, according to a press release from the agency.

Through a collaborative planning process, the group, comprised of more than 40 organizations, will continue to host events like the town hall meeting throughout the next year.

The Chelsea boys' track and field team finished 14th at last Saturday's Division II state meet in Caledonia.

The Bulldogs ended up with 14 points.

Capturing the state championship was Lansing Sexton with 70 points. Ypsilanti was second with 49 points. Dexter was third with 37 points.

Leading Chelsea was the 3,200-meter relay foursome of senior Dan Lewis, junior Ian Girard, junior Alex Stewart and sophomore Brendan Smith, who finished first with a state record time of 7:55.42. The foursome shattered the former state mark of 7:57.59 set in 2003 by Wyoming Park.

"All four runners had very good races," said Chelsea coach Eric Swager. "Brendan Smith and Al Stewart had lifetime best splits. I am very proud of the hard work they have put in this season. And this is the reward."

Placing second in the 3,200-meter relay was Grand Rapids Forest Hills Northern in 7:55.79. Williamston ended up third in 7:57.16.

In the 1,600-meter run, Lewis crossed the line fifth with a lifetime best clocking of 4:22.06.

"Dan Lewis followed it (3,200-meter relay) with a great effort in the mile, running another lifetime best and earning a second trip to the podium," Swager said.

Vicksburg junior Dan Roberts finished first in a state record 4:09.45, outleaning Dexter senior Lex Williams, who recorded a 4:09.98.

Also competing at the state meet was Bulldog Justin Esch. The senior placed ninth in the 200 meters with a time of 22.56.

"Justin's 200 time in the semis would have earned him fifth in the finals," Swager said. "But he, unfortunately, was caught in the fast heat and he did not qualify."

In the 400-meter run, Esch stopped the clock in 50.5. He also was a member of two relay teams.

"Once again, he ran four competitive races and went out with a bang," Swager said.

In the 400-meter relay, senior Alex Rabbitt, junior Zach Gregory, sophomore Jason Ratliff and Esch finished with a time of 45.1.

In the 1,600-meter relay, junior Drew Wint, Smith, Ratliff and Esch crossed the line in 3:32.4.

"Although the other two relays did not place, it's a great honor just to qualify to be at the finals," Swager said. "It was a good experience for all the athletes."

Selby Classic

On May 31, Chelsea participated in the Selby Classic Honor Roll meet in Jackson.

The meet hosts the top nine performers in each event from the Jackson area.

The 3,200-meter relay group of Lewis, Smith, Stewart and Girard cruised to a second-place finish in 7:59.3.

Lewis broke the tape first in the 3,200-meter run with a clocking of 9:57.

The 1,600-meter relay quartet of Ratliff, Girard, Smith and Esch placed second in 3:30.

Esch was third in the 200 meters in 23.0.

The 400-meter relay of Gregory, Esch, Rabbitt and Ratliff ended up third in 45.2.

The Chelsea girls' golf team participated in the Division II state final last Friday and Saturday at Michigan State University's Forest Akers West Golf Course.

The Bulldogs ended up with a total score of 416. With its tally, Chelsea was unable to advance to the tournament's second day.

Winning the state title was county rival Dexter, with a two-day score of 666 (329-337). For the Dreadnaughts, it was their second consecutive state championship.

Leading the Bulldogs individually was Courtney Aili, who finished fourth overall in the state. The senior standout concluded her stellar prep career, shooting a two-day total of 156 (78-78), four strokes away from placing first.

Capturing the overall individual title was Jackson Northwest's Shanna Page, with a 152 (79-73).

Dexter's Meghan Hunter was fifth with a 158 (77-81), while teammate Brittany Keller was 10th, carding a 164 (80-84).

Rounding out Chelsea's scoring was sophomore Emily Hardcastle, with a one-day total of 94.

Fellow classmate Kate Trinkle added a 119.

Sophomores Danielle Steiger finished with a 125, while Erin Hoeflinger had a 135.

Rounding out the top five team-wise was Birmingham Seaholm with a score of 680 (333-347) in second place, while East Lansing was third with a tally of 721 (352-369).

Ending up fourth was Caledonia with a score of 723 (361-362), while Livonia Ladywood was fifth with a 731 (364-367).

Individually, East Lansing's Camille Gardner and Flint Kearsley's Audra Walter tied for state runner-up honors, each shooting a 154. Gardner ended up with a two-day score of 75-79, while Walter had a mark of 81-73.

Chelsea baseball lost to county rival Dexter 4-0 last Saturday in a Division II first-round state district playoff game.

With the loss, the host Bulldogs (26-9) concluded their season.

"We're disappointed," said Chelsea coach Wayne Welton. "We weren't able to get the big hit when we needed it."

Dreadnaught pitcher Andy Paulun, a Spring Arbor University signee, held Chelsea's offense in check the entire game. The senior lefthander tossed a four-hitter, going the distance, striking out eight and walking one.

"Andy Paulun pitched well," Welton said. "When the situation got tighter and tougher, so did he. My hat's off to him.

"We had base runners on five of the seven innings. But the bottom line is, you have to give Andy credit."

Last Saturday, Paulun was able to accomplish a feat not many before him have achieved. For only the second time since 1997, the Bulldogs were shutout.

"He was in command the entire day," said Dexter coach Al Snider. "When he needed an out, he got it."

The Dreadnaughts scored two runs in the third inning and two in the fifth frame for the day's ending margin.

Sophomore Chad Nielsen (10-1) started and absorbed his first loss of the season.

At the plate, junior Cam Hawkins, junior Joe Welton, sophomore Adam Connell and sophomore Dan Augustine each singled for the Bulldogs.

Despite the earlier-than-expected exit from the state playoffs, Welton remained positive.

"If somebody would have told me at the beginning of the season that we would be 26-9, I'd have been pleased,"

SOCCER

Chelsea falls to Mason

District loss to state-ranked team ends postseason play

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

The Chelsea girls' soccer team lost to Division II No. 2-ranked Mason 3-0 in a district first-round game May 31.

Host Mason (18-0) scored with six minutes left in the first half, taking a 1-0 lead into the break.

Early in the second half, Mason increased its advantage to 2-0, hitting the back of the net at the 33:57 mark of the stanza.

The highly ranked Mason team concluded the scoring with a goal six minutes later for the day's final margin.

Mason outshot Chelsea (9-6-4) 13-5 for the game.

"Like Dexter (unbeaten Southeastern Conference White Division champions), the bottom line is that Mason is a great team," said Chelsea coach Chris Orlandi.

"This game followed the same pattern as the Dexter affair. We played very well in the first half. Mason certainly dominated play, but our defensive effort was very good. We never gave them any quality chances until a foul was called against us late in the (first) half deep in our end."

The penalty led to Mason's opening goal.

"Their restart found one of their midfielders who hit a nice half-volley past (Chelsea keeper Maggie) Manville," Orlandi said. "Maggie got a hand on it, but it wasn't enough to steer it away."

Orlandi said the Bulldogs responded after Mason's goal, putting pressure on its defense.

"We had a few offensive pushes that helped us think at halftime that we might score on them in the second half to even things up," he said. "We talked about shifting our formation at halftime to apply more pressure to Mason, but the complexion of the game changed just six minutes into the half."

The state-ranked Mason kickers used their speed to score early in the second half.

"One of their All-State players (Kristi Evans) broke past our defense on a great individual effort and blasted a shot to the far post," Orlandi said. "Manville never had a chance.

"Our defensive goal was to shut Evans down, and we didn't do it. That was frustrating."

Orlandi said the district-opening loss was a tough pill to swallow.

"We wanted to go out playing better than this," he said. "Still, having to close against two undefeated teams (like) Dexter and Mason is a pretty tough road to travel.

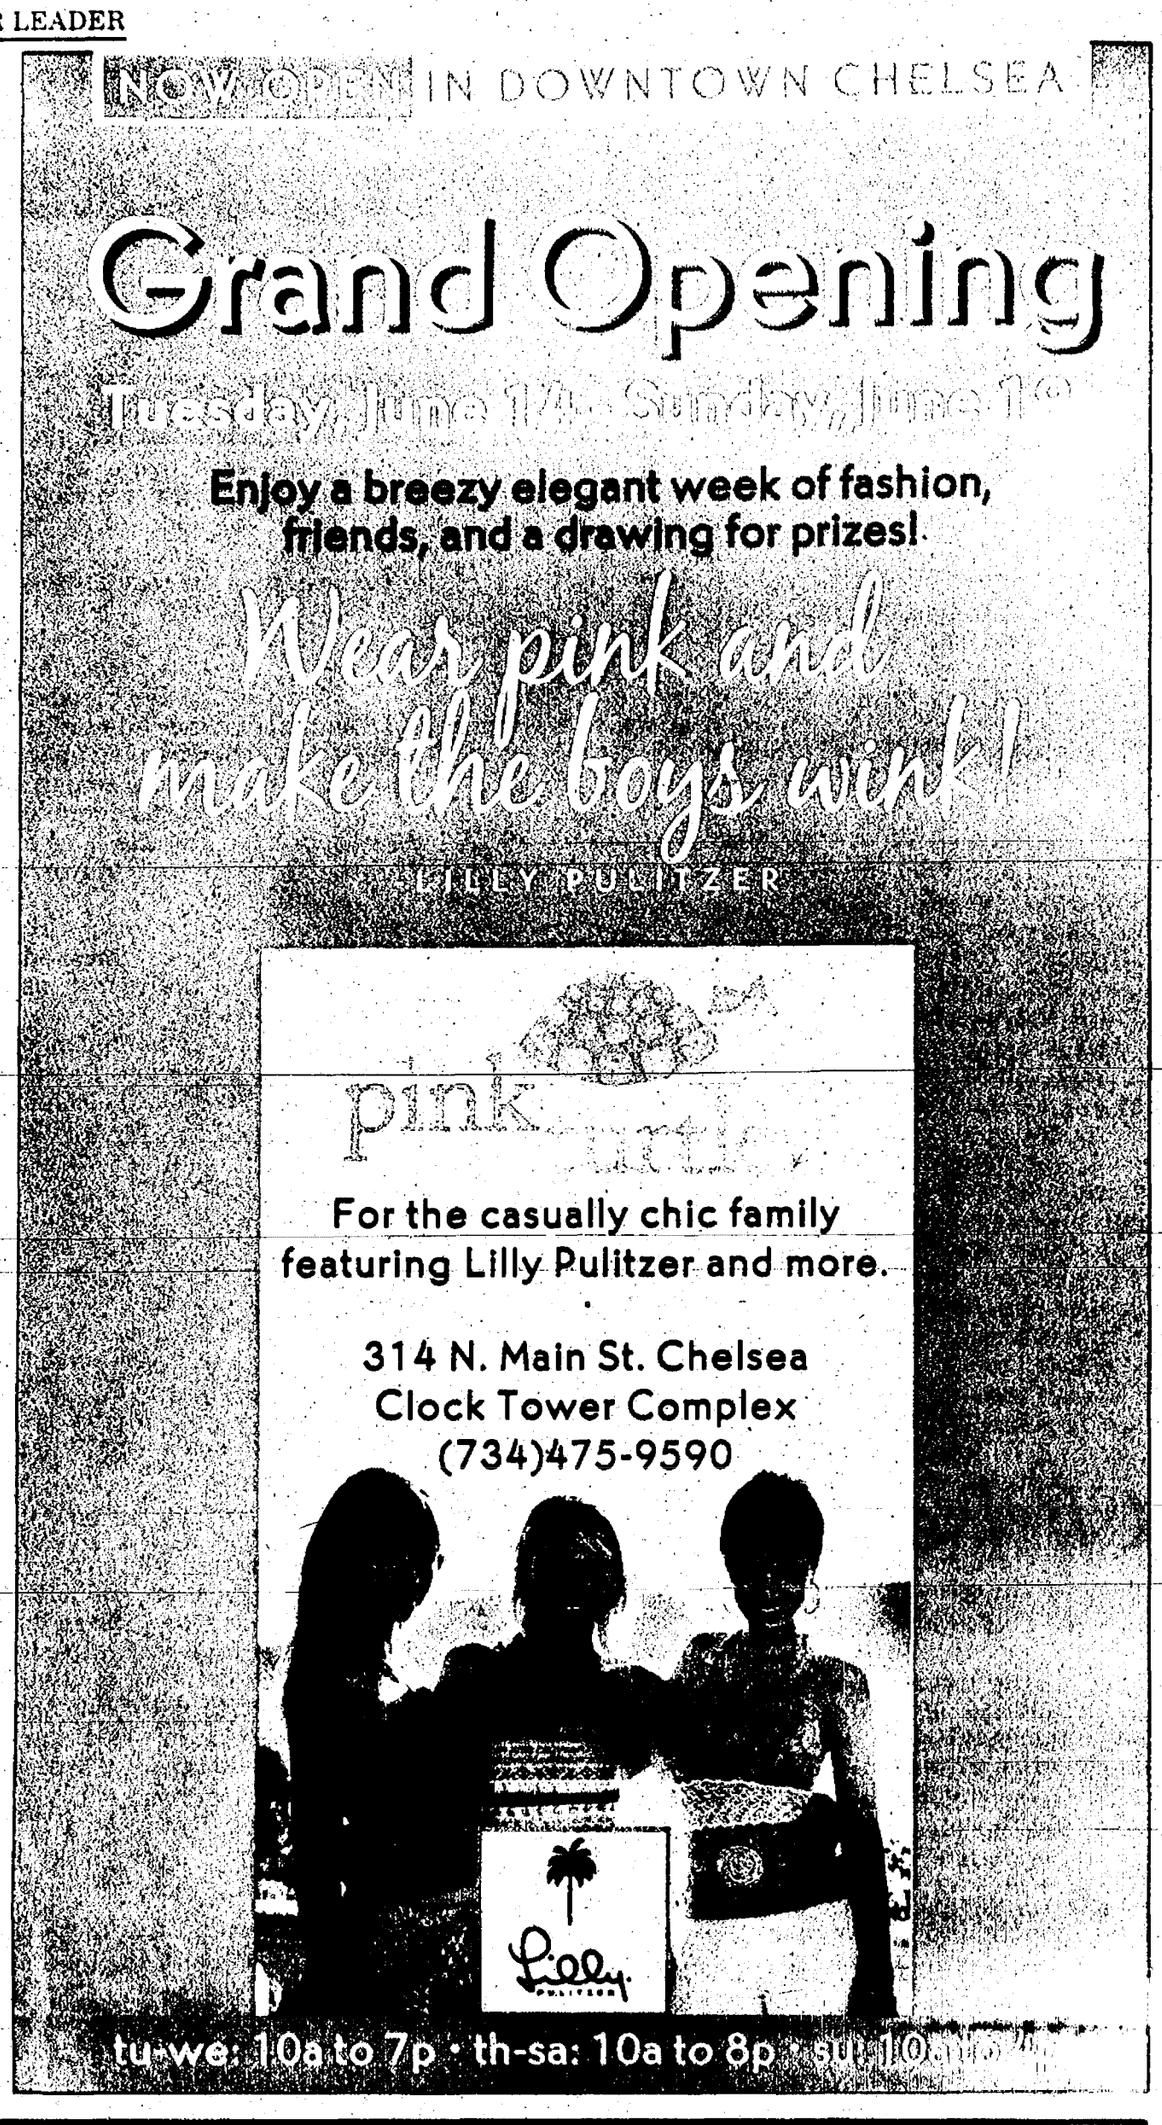

"But we have nothing to be ashamed of."

SOFTBALL

Seniors bid farewell after successful prep career

Setta, Guertin, Toon, Darwin leave program as winners

By Jake Lloyd
Special Writer

Losing is never easy.

Especially when you've been spoiled by an abundance of W's for three straight years, including two state championships.

Especially when you are facing the end of your high school softball career.

Especially when it's also your coach's last season in the dugout.

That's what Chelsea High School's four seniors had to face this season as the Bulldogs finished 19-17, losing to Tecumseh in the Division II softball district final last weekend.

Brynna Darwin, Mary Kate Setta, Annie Guertin and Christyna Toon experienced a roller coaster, as Guertin put it, while playing for the Bulldogs.

Two seasons ago, Darwin was in the field and the others cheered from the dugout as Chelsea won its second consecutive state title. Last year, all four saw playing time as the Bulldogs came within two wins of a third state title.

Then, heading into this year, Chelsea lost eight contributing seniors, including five starters. Before the season began, it was clear to these four seniors, that their final year would not be as successful as the senior years of the previous two classes.

"When you lose your (top) batter, pitcher and catcher going into a season, that's really tough," said Chelsea coach Kim Reichard, who also will be leaving the Chelsea program after this season.

"It's just hard because it's your last year and you're so used to being spoiled and getting everything," Darwin said.

But at the same time, the rebuilding season (there were three freshmen on this year's squad, a high for Reichard-coached teams) brought the quartet of seniors together as they prepare to go in different directions in the fall.

Setta, Guertin and Toon have known each other since middle school, where they started playing sports together. Darwin lived in Ann Arbor, until she transferred to Chelsea as a sophomore.

The girls got along fine, but didn't become a close-knit group until this season.

Last week, they talked and joked before practice as if they had been best friends for a decade.

"This year, it really came together," Darwin said of the teammates' relationship.

While winning is often said to bring teammates together, in this case, adversity helped the girls to bond and become the leaders of Chelsea's inexperienced team.

"They have really had to step up and lead the way because of having so much youth on the team," Reichard said.

What's impressive about the quartet coming together to lead the Bulldogs is that each girl is different.

Darwin, who was Chelsea's first baseman after playing in the outfield and at third base the last two years, was the fiercely competitive leader. She was the captain of the team and was tough on her teammates, especially her sister, Brogan, the Bulldogs' freshman starting catcher.

"It honestly has been really fun," Darwin said of playing with her sister.

During the regular season Darwin hit a team-high .426, knocking in 22 runs.

Setta, who was Chelsea's centerfielder, was the joker of the group. When things get a little uptight, she could be counted on to lighten the mood. She batted .318 her senior season and also had 22 RBIs.

Toon, the Bulldogs' shortstop, was the cheerleader, the encourager. When the team needed a boost, when things were looking dreary, she could be counted on to energize her teammates. She also finished the regular season with 22 RBIs.

Guertin, Chelsea's speedy leftfielder, was described by Reichard as the silent leader of the group. She didn't play as a junior, but stepped up to play a large role as a senior.

"She has made a complete makeover of who she is as a person and a player," Reichard said.

These four seniors, with many differences, meshed this season, their last as teammates.

"I think we kind of balance each other out," Darwin said.

On the down slope of that roller coaster, they were able to keep the team in positive spirits, despite the number of losses Chelsea suffered.

"In the beginning, we weren't really good at it, keeping everyone positive, but I think now it has started to come together," Guertin said.

Although she admits it's tough experiencing that down slope as a senior, Guertin expressed hope that the coaster is on its way up. The seniors' influence on the younger players may have something to do with that.

The seniors aren't leaving the program with their heads down, either. They had many memories and laughs to share regarding the past four years.

Chelsea seniors Mary Kate Setta (left), Annie Guertin, Christyna Toon and Brynna Darwin ended their high school careers last Saturday, as the Bulldogs lost to Tecumseh 2-1 in the district final. Though their prep careers are finished, the foursome has experienced tremendous success over the past few years.

Darwin vividly remembers her RBI in the state title game two years ago that knotted the score at 1-1 and ignited Chelsea's offense on the Bulldogs' way to victory.

"It was like the greatest feeling ever," Darwin said.

The four girls are disappointed that their final season in Chelsea uniforms didn't go how they had hoped. But as they finish their high school careers and move on — Darwin and Setta will continue their softball careers at Albion College and Madonna University, respectively, while Guertin will attend Michigan State University and Toon either Lansing Community College or Washtenaw Community College — they do so with smiles.

Because even the dip in the roller coaster can be a fun experience.

he said. "With our depth on the mound, if we could have gotten by Dexter, I think we could have made a run in the playoffs."

The Dreadnaughts (12-17) captured the district title, beating Jackson Lumen Christi 10-7 in eight innings.

Chelsea vs. Brighton

Last Thursday, Chelsea split a doubleheader with Brighton, losing 6-2 and winning 8-1. The twinbill was played at the University of Michigan's Ray Fisher Stadium.

"It was a thrill for the guys to play at a college stadium," Welton said. "It was a great opportunity for our guys."

In the opener, the Bulldogs led 2-0 early before Brighton responded, scoring six unanswered runs for the win. Five of the Bulldogs' runs were unearned.

Augustine (5-1) recorded the loss for Chelsea.

"He pitched very well," Welton said. "He only gave up one earned run."

Junior C.J. Boyer paced the Bulldogs' attack, belting a double.

In the second game, Boyer (3-0) chalked up the win from the hill, going the distance.

Senior A.J. Bach had an impressive outing for Chelsea, collecting two hits and playing a strong, all-around contest.

"He made some nice plays in the outfield," Welton said. "And he showed heads up base running."

TRACK AND FIELD

Korc, Severin lead Chelsea at state meet

Senior pole-vaulter sets school record to place second overall

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

The Chelsea girls' track and field team finished 16th in the state at last Saturday's Division II final in Caledonia. The Bulldogs scored 13 points.

Winning the state title was Detroit Renaissance with 80 points. Ypsilanti was second with 82 points, while Cadillac was third with 32 points.

Leading the Bulldogs was senior Megan Korc, who placed second in the pole vault with a school-record height of 10 feet, 9 inches.

Finishing first was Sparta's Lisa Krupp, clearing 11-3. Dexter junior Bailey Wandyg placed third with a 10-6, while teammate Jenny Heldt was fourth, also with a 10-6.

"This was a great day for Megan," said Chelsea coach Bill Bainton. "She was vaulting real well and had no misses until 10-6. When she made 10-6 a jump ahead of the rest, we knew she had a good chance for the top two."

Korc earned All-State and Academic All-State honors this season.

"This was what she was shooting for this season," Bainton said. "It's a great way for her to wrap up her high school career."

Bulldog freshman Lindsay Keyes also competed in the pole vault, ending with a mark of 9-6. With her height, Keyes set a Chelsea freshman record. The height is also third best in school history, regardless of class.

"Having both vaulters in the state meet and to do so well, there is a credit to vault coach Shane Rodriguez and the coaching job he has done with them this year," Bainton said.

Chelsea junior Rachel Severin finished sixth in the 1,600-meter run with a time of 5:08.62. She also crossed the line seventh in the 3,200-meter run in 11:34.28.

Jessica Armstong of Wayland Union was first in the 1,600-meter run with a clocking of 5:02.68. She also placed first in the 3,200-meter run in 11:08.62.

"Rachel's time of 5:08.62 (in the 1,600-meter run), in addition to being a personal best, moves her to second on Chelsea's all-time list," Bainton said. "Rachel ran well in both races. It was a very strong field in the 1,600 with all eight placers under 5:10. Rachel ran a smart race in the 1,600 and cut nine seconds off of her qualifying time, which was her previous best."

Bulldog junior Emily Woodruff participated in the 400-meter run, but did not place.

"Emily had a foot injury flare up last week," Bainton said. "She was determined to run, and it was a pretty gutsy effort on her part, but it obviously hindered her performance. We were really proud of her effort."

On May 31, Chelsea competed in the Selby Classic Honor Roll meet in Jackson. The Bulldogs earned seven medals.

To be selected to participate in the meet, an athlete must be in the top nine performances in the Jackson area.

Korc paced Chelsea, winning the pole vault for the second straight year with a height of 10-0. Keyes was third with a 9-0.

The 800-meter relay foursome of Laura Oberholtzer, Elise Dunn, Kimmi Zimmerman and Woodruff placed third in 1:52.9.

Katy Martin tied for fourth in the high jump with a 4-6. Severin crossed the line fourth in the 800-meter run with a season best clocking of 2:26.5.

The group of Kelly Catalina, Laura Oberholtzer, Zimmerman and Martin placed fourth in the 1,600-meter relay.

Kelly Anderson finished fifth in the discus with a toss of 103-5 for Chelsea. In the 400-meter run, Woodruff was fifth in 1:01.6.

Andria Fitch ended up eighth in the long jump for the Bulldogs, while Jillian Fischer was seventh in the discus.

Nicole Bougher placed seventh in the 1,600-meter run and eighth in the 3,200-meter run for Chelsea. Zimmerman was ninth in the 400-meter run.

The Bulldog quartet of Nikki Oberholtzer, Dunn, Korc and Fitch finished sixth with a season best time of 54.4 in the 400-meter relay.

Chelsea's Megan Korc (second from left) finished second in the pole vault, clearing a school record with a height of 10 feet, 9 inches at last Saturday's Division II state meet at Caledonia. As a team, the Bulldogs placed 16th overall with 13 points.

In doubles play, the No. 1 Bulldog twosome of George Merkel and Mike Deis drew a first-round bye. The twosome lost in the second round to eventual state runner-up Grand Rapids Forest Hills Central's Nick Groos and Andrew Lockrow 6-1, 6-3.

At No. 2 doubles, Chelsea's Chris Tapping and Sean Dzubel lost to North Farmington's Todd Jaffe and Paul Fudym 6-1, 6-0 in a first-round match up.

Bulldogs Eric Dudek and Dolan Personke lost to North Farmington's Lee Bibicoff and Jeff Prueter 6-0, 6-1 in a first-round No. 3 doubles contest.

At No. 4 doubles, Chelsea's Billy Hayes and Chris LaDuke drew a first-round bye. In the second round, the combo lost to Rochester Adams' Collin Dickey and Mitch Solverson 6-1, 6-2.

"It was a good year," said Chelsea coach Rahn Rosentreter. "We reached most of our goals. We won the regional, won the SEC (Southeastern Conference) tourney. We missed out on the league, however."

The future looks bright for Chelsea tennis. The team's top two singles players are freshmen.

"The ninth-graders played very well," Rosentreter said. "Stiles and Pagano had very good years. Stiles was the player of the year."

BOOSTERS

Boosters hold golf outing

The Chelsea Athletic Boosters are holding their annual golf outing June 17 at Reddeman Farms Golf Course.

The booster club is a parent-volunteer run not-for-profit organization that raises and contributes more than $40,000 a year to help support Chelsea athletic teams. In addition, the group awards 10 $500 scholarships for student-athletes each year.

The boosters are looking to local businesses for support by sponsoring a hole with a $100 donation or by donating goods and/or services worth at least $20 to be given out as raffle prizes. For more information, call Alicia Lixey at 475-5793.

Foursomes are needed to participate in the 18-hole scramble tournament. The cost is $380 per foursome or $95 per person.

Registration starts at 8 a.m.

The winning team earns $400 plus trophies. Additional prizes will also be handed out during the tournament.

Doughnuts and coffee will be available in the morning. Lunch will be served afterward. A beverage cart will be available throughout the tournament.

SOFTBALL

Bulldogs show heart, desire in district final

Chelsea battles Tecumseh in hard fought title contest

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea softball displayed the heart and tenacity befitting the Bulldog uniform last Saturday, dropping a hard-fought 2-1 Division II district final to Tecumseh.

The host Bulldogs (19-17) gave the state-ranked Indians all they could handle, and then some, despite falling.

"We played with the most heart I've seen all season," said Chelsea coach Kim Reichard. "We didn't give up. We should have won. We had a lot of opportunities to win."

The Bulldogs went down swinging, threatening Tecumseh until the very last out.

"We had runners on first and second base in the seventh inning," Reichard said. "That was a positive sign."

The Indians scored one run in the second inning, taking an early 1-0 lead.

Chelsea answered in the bottom of the second frame, tying the game on junior Tawny McSweeney's RBI single. Coming around to score was senior Annie Guertin, who had singled earlier in the inning.

Reichard said McSweeney's hit was a surprise since the pitcher rarely batted this season.

"Out of all people, I never expected her to get an RBI single," she said. "She has worked hard."

McSweeney, who started the game in the circle, jammed her hand as she was trying to stretch her base hit into a double. Her injury forced her to leave the game.

"It was really unfortunate," Reichard said of the injury. "But she earned her respect that day."

McSweeney left the contest after tossing two innings, allowing two hits, striking out one and walking none.

"That was the best two innings she's ever pitched," Reichard said.

Junior Kelly Jo Milliken replaced McSweeney on the rubber. She pitched well in relief, giving up two hits, fanning one and walking two in five innings of work.

The Indians won the game in the fifth inning, when mistakes cost the Bulldogs.

Tecumseh's No. 9 hitter reached base on a walk. The Indians' lead off batter then doubled to bring the run across on an error.

"Both of Tecumseh's runs were unearned," Reichard said. "We shot ourselves in the foot. We also had a few base running errors."

The Bulldogs out-hit the Indians 5-4.

Sophomore Hannah Guenther led the way for Chelsea with two hits.

Senior Mary Kate Setta, Guertin and McSweeney each singled for the Bulldogs.

In the district opener last Saturday, Chelsea beat crosstown rival Dexter 11-1 in a five-inning mercy-rule contest.

Milliken picked up the win, going the distance, yielding five hits, striking out four and walking none.

The Bulldogs scored two runs in the first inning, two runs in the second stanza and seven runs in the fifth inning.

The big hit in the seven-run fifth frame was senior Brynna Darwin's three-run RBI double.

For the game, Darwin had three doubles and five RBIs to spark Chelsea.

Junior Hannah Myers added two hits, while freshman Lizzy Bentley had a single and two RBIs.

Freshman Annie Hollandsworth and Setta each connected for RBI doubles.

Despite ending their season against Tecumseh, Reichard, who is stepping down after this year for personal reasons, said she was proud of her team.

"We made some mental mistakes, but as far as heart and effort, we gave everything we had," she said.

New clothing store to open

Denise Campbell and Ruth Mayday have opened The Pink Turtle in Chelsea, one of the only Lilly Pulitzer specialty stores in Michigan.

The new, 15,000-square-foot store is located at 314 Main St. It features the vividly patterned resort wear that made Florida's Lilly Pulitzer fashion famous. The store also carries Lilly shoes and accessories. Lilly home merchandise, including comforters and sheets, as well as bath and beach towels, will be available.

In the early 1960s, First Lady Jackie Kennedy visited her friend, Pulitzer, in Palm Beach and fell in love with the unique and distinctive prints of her friend's new clothing line. Later she wore the fashion in a now-famous LIFE magazine photo shoot.

Today, the clothing line has become a fashion staple for such Hollywood trendsetters as Gwyneth Paltrow and Andie McDowell, according to a press release from the local store.

Hospital to offer new program

Chelsea Community Hospital is pleased to announce a comprehensive new physical therapy program designed to help patients with lymphedema, including cancer patients who may acquire the condition from chemotherapy or radiation.

"We're so pleased to offer this program to help patients manage the effects of lymphedema," Jane Shrosbree, director of therapy services at Chelsea Community Hospital, said in a press release. "Patients will work with a therapist who has a lymphedema certification and specific education in treating this complex condition."

Patients who may benefit from the program include those with primary or secondary lymphedema, those who have had a mastectomy or a breast reduction and those who are undergoing or have recently received chemotherapy or radiation.

Lymphedema, which affects 250 million people worldwide, is an abnormal swelling that can occur in an arm, leg or other part of the body because of impaired flow through the lymph vessels. It's common among breast cancer patients and also can be present at birth or from other conditions.

It cannot be cured, but can be managed and treated through specialized therapy techniques.

Some of the therapies to be used in Chelsea's program include manual lymphatic drainage, compression bandaging and patient education in proper exercise and skin care.

In addition, the Pink Turtle, an upscale clothing merchant in Chelsea, set for grand opening June 16, will donate 10 percent of its sales that evening to the program.

Edward Jones ranks No. 1 in new survey

The financial-services firm Edward Jones has been ranked first in J.D. Power and Associates' annual survey of customer satisfaction among full-service investors, according to a press release from the Chelsea and Dexter Edward Jones offices.

The survey results, released as the 2005 Full-Service Investor Satisfaction Study, ranked Edward Jones ahead of 19 other firms.

"I'm thrilled about our placement on the J.D. Power and Associates ranking," Douglas Hill, managing partner of Edward Jones said in the statement. "We are committed to providing the highest level of service to our clients. Everything we do is focused on building and maintaining strong relationships."

The 2005 Full-Service Investor Satisfaction Study, conducted in January and February, was based on responses from more than 6,600 investors who primarily invest with one of the 20 firms in the study.

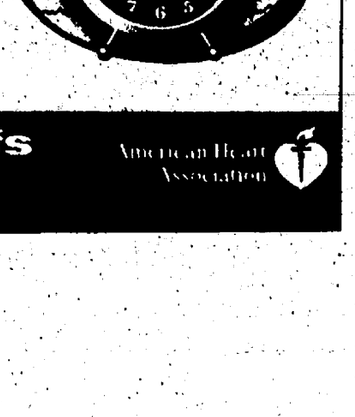

Key factors considered were integrity of the brokerage firm, information resources, account management, cost, investment representative/adviser and customer service. Edward Jones earned industry-leading scores in the information resources, account management and investment representative/adviser categories.

In 2002, the first year the study was conducted, the firm ranked No. 1 in a tie.

Headquartered in Westlake Village, Calif., J.D. Power and Associates is a global marketing information services firm operating in key business sectors, including market research, forecasting, consulting, training and customer satisfaction.

The firms' quality and satisfaction measurements are based on responses from millions of consumers annually. J.D. Power and Associates is a business unit of The McGraw-Hill Companies.

Edward Jones currently serves more than 6 million clients. The Chelsea and Dexter investment representatives are Deb Bauer, Diane Kieliszewski, David Robinson and Matt Rolfes.

Two Scouts earn Gold Award

In an auditorium filled with parents, leaders, volunteers and dignitaries from surrounding communities, Girl Scouts of the Huron Valley Council presented 11 girls, including two from Dexter, with the Gold Award, the highest honor a Girl Scout can earn.

Leanna Delhey

Elizabeth Parker

The ceremony was held in May at the Lydia Mendelssohn Theater on the University of Michigan Campus.

Only 3 percent of Girl Scouts, ages 14 through 17, across the country each year earn the award. The Gold Award project calls on the Scout to draw on what she has learned and experienced through Scouting. It encourages a girl to reflect on her accomplishments, goals, resources and obstacles, and gives her the responsibility of planning and implementing her own leadership or community service project.

Leanna Delhey of Dexter, daughter of Lori and James Delhey, was among the honorees who earned the award. She created a peer-mentor program for the hearing impaired at Dexter schools.

Delhey, who is hearing-impaired, began the project by becoming a mentor to two students. She coordinated a plan with another hearing-impaired student to continue the mentoring program for the next three years.

Elizabeth Parker of Dexter, daughter of Mary Lynn and John Parker, was also among the honorees to earn the award. For her Gold Award,

BABY TALK

Program means a lot to new parents

JENNIFER SINKWITTS

I shuffle around my son's room waiting for him to wake up from a nap. I pick up his toys. I put his clothes away. I even clean his window. While standing over his crib, I watch him, waiting for him to stir, and I battle with the decision whether to wake him.

In one ear, I hear my mother's voice say, "You never wake a sleeping baby" and in my other ear I hear my voice say, "Wake him up because it may be the last play group facilitated by the First Steps-Chelsea Parents As Teachers class you will attend before staff positions are eliminated or reorganized."

I sit in Nolan's rocking chair and wonder what Sara Champion, the Chelsea chapter's founder and parent coordinator, or Kris Miller, parent educator, would do.

While pregnant, I read many books covering such topics as breastfeeding, child development and discipline. At 40-weeks pregnant, I was ready to put my knowledge to the test. I knew how to manage my baby's schedule based on the principles outlined in the book, "On Becoming Baby Wise" by Gary Ezzo and Dr. Robert Bucknam. I also had read "Dr. Spock's Baby and Child Care" by Dr. Benjamin Spock. These books were informational, but they did not provide the full gamut of resources I needed.

Prior to joining the Parents As Teachers program, I was singing Lenny Kravitz's "Lady" to Nolan.

"I'm crazy for this little baby (I replace the word lady with baby);

"I'm freaking for my little baby;

"'Cause he makes me feel good;

"He's so fine..."

I know how to administer CPR, but I couldn't think of lullaby to sing my baby.

Joining the Parents As Teachers program got us on track. In no time at all, we were singing "The Wheels on the Bus."

A staff of certified nurses and childcare educators manage the program by conducting home visits, implementing supervised playgroups and hosting a variety of parenting classes. The program's staff spends time getting to know the family. They are passionate, and they love our children.

Once enrolled in the program, each family is assigned a parent educator. Kris Miller was assigned to our family. It was a great fit since she leads the baby group we attend and also instructs the infant massage class we loved.

Kris became our mentor. She spends time with us one-on-one, at our home, observing Nolan's development in his own surroundings. Through her efforts, my friend's child was diagnosed with epilepsy, when several visits to the pediatrician and specialists failed to recognize his disability. This demonstrates the value of Chelsea's program.

Kris always comes with a bag of treats. She knows my childcare questions in advance. She enters my home, leaving her shoes at the door. She gets on the floor. She plays with Nolan. She is aware of his torticollis and knows he sees a physical therapist. She knows he struggles with "tummy time" because of his underdeveloped neck muscles.

The staff works harder than most people realize. I didn't ask Kris to research infant nutrition. She did it on her own initiative.

Sara set the standard eight years ago when she designed and implemented the program. Families have grown to expect quality service. Without the designer in tact, how can the program offer Gucci-like services?

In the end, I am afraid we will have no more than a cheap knock-off, with frayed ends and a broken strap.

So, the question remains: Would Sara or Kris wake a sleeping infant? Unfortunately, we may never know.

As a new mom in Chelsea, Jennifer Sinkwitts wants to connect with other moms who may be experiencing the same joys, transitions and struggles of raising a family in the decade of the Super Mom. As part of this new column, she welcomes input. E-mail her at jsinkwitts@aol.com.

Parker's project focused on blood donation in the Dexter community.

She organized and put on a blood drive, also raising awareness about the need for blood donations. The blood drive collected 80 pints of blood, which is enough to help save 240 lives.

"For many girls, the leadership skills, organizational skills, and sense of community and commitment that come from 'going for the gold' cement the foundation for a lifetime of active citizenship," Gail Scott, CEO of the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council, said in a press release. "We congratulate every girl for their achievement and are excited for their future."

Girl Scout Gold Award projects take one to two years to plan and execute. The project must promote community service, personal and spiritual growth, positive values and leadership, as well as have an ongoing effect on the community.

Paul Bantle and Anne Elder, managers of the Community Farm of Ann Arbor, opened the Lima Township farm to visitors May 12 as part of the Washtenaw Land Trust's Farmland Preservation Tour.

WESTERN WASHTENAW COUNTY

Farm tour comes through Lima Twp.

Paul Bantle and Anne Elder, managers of the Community Farm of Ann Arbor, were happy to share the story of how they have found a permanent home for their farm when visitors stopped by May 12 as part of the Washtenaw Land Trust's Farmland Preservation Tour.

Located off of Fletcher Road in Lima Township, the farm played host to visitors who took a bus ride through the western part of Washtenaw County to learn about farmland preservation options and to visit two protected farms.

In addition to the Community Farm, the event included a tour of Peter DeLoof and Sara Bassett's farm in Freedom Township.

Bantle and Elder worked with Lima Township landowner Isabelle Yingling and with the Washtenaw Land Trust to reach a long-term conservation agreement for 10 acres of organic, bio-dynamic farmland.

The Community Farm of Ann Arbor is a member-owned farm that grows fruits and vegetables for their members. The members, in turn, finance the farm system, providing economic stability each year. Two full-time farmers and several apprentices do the primary farm work, growing the crops and raising the farm's cows, goats, chickens, and bees.

"It's up to us to decide what land will be available for our children's children to grow their food upon," Elder said.

A wide variety of tools are available to preserve land such as the Community Farm. The farmland tour highlighted a few of these tools, including conservation agreements, purchase of development rights programs and the federal Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program.

The land that is farmed by the Community Farm is protected through a conservation agreement between Yingling and the Washtenaw Land Trust. The agreement protects the land's agricultural and natural features.

Yingling, who lives in the farmhouse on the property, explained that with the conservation agreement, she was "just following through on what (she) had wanted to do for years," according to a press release from the land trust.

David Rhoads Wayne Clements

Clements Addition

AN ADDITION TO TRADITION

When Wayne Clements decided to add a family room and wrap-around deck to his 140-year-old Saline-area farmhouse, he wanted to be sure the modern touches fit naturally with his home's traditional design.

Getting the job done right was important to Wayne. "I was born in this house, and I've lived here off and on for over 70 years. I wanted to work with people who care just as much about my home as I do."

Wayne called David Rhoads at HSA. "I conveyed my general ideas to Dave, and his team created an addition that blends in beautifully—not only with my home, but also with the landscape. There are windows and light all around. It's now my favorite room in the house."

Wayne especially appreciated HSA's superb workmanship and attentive follow-up. "When Dave's people make a promise, they deliver. I haven't had a problem with my addition since the last nail was pounded in."

Since founding HSA in 1985, David Rhoads has overseen more than 600 successful remodeling projects. He also owns First Design Cabinetry, specializing in kitchens, baths and home offices.

David is president of the Home Builders Association of Washtenaw County and a director of the state HBA. He is also certified by "Aging in Place" to adapt homes for easier living by senior citizens. In 2004, David was selected as Saline's Citizen of the Year in recognition of his community involvement.
