Jane Diesing said she was surprised and humbled after being named Chelsea Citizen of the Year Monday.

It may have been a surprise to her, but not to everyone. Many of Diesing's acquaintances said Monday that she was well deserving of the award.

The nomination committee who decided on Diesing included Kay Heller, interim director of the Chelsea Senior Center; Chelsea Mayor Ann Feeney; Chelsea Standard Editor Michelle Rogers; Jack Merkel, last year's Chelsea Citizen of the Year recipient; former Chelsea Village President Richard Steele; Edith Behringer; Nancy Paul, director of Faith In Action; Jennifer Kundak, a volunteer with Chelsea District Library; Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Bob Pierce; and George Palmer of Palmer Family Ford-Mercury.

Heller and Chelsea District Library Director Metta Lansdale nominated Diesing for the award, which, for the first year, was presented in partnership by the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce and The Chelsea Standard.

Cyclist killed in accident

Police to seek charge of negligent homicide against local teen

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

What started as a routine weekend ride between biking buddies Charlotte Marlotte and Jan Moore ended in sudden tragedy last Saturday as Marlotte, 65, of Ann Arbor, was struck and killed by a car driven by a 16-year-old Chelsea resident.

The accident occurred at approximately 8:30 a.m. on Cavanaugh Lake Road, just west of Chelsea's city limits.

According to a press release from the Michigan State Police, the eastbound car crossed a centerline and struck Marlotte, who was traveling westbound.

Troopers, local police and the Chelsea Fire Authority responded to the accident site, where Marlotte was pronounced dead.

State Police Detective Sgt. Patrick Moore said Monday that police would seek negligent homicide charges against the teenage driver. He said alcohol was not involved in the mishap.

Jan Moore, who was riding in front of Marlotte on a straightaway, said the car veered toward the cyclists, who had little time to react. The car barely missed Moore, struck Marlotte and stopped in a ditch.

Moore said the driver got out of the car, apologized and said he had lost his glasses inside the car, and was bending over to pick them up.

"I heard him say, 'I can't see without my glasses,'" Moore said. "He was very shook up and upset."

Moore said Marlotte did not suffer.

"I knew immediately when I picked myself up off the ground that she was gone," she said.

Charlotte Marlotte

Moore thanked a man who stopped at the scene shortly after the accident and called 911 with his cellular phone, as well as Chelsea police and emergency medical technicians for how they responded.

Linda Collins, a friend of Marlotte, said Marlotte would frequently take 28-mile rides starting in Dexter and passing through Chelsea.

Collins described Marlotte as an "extremely active person," who biked here and in Europe, cross-country skied, hiked, kayaked, enjoyed yoga and was a tango dancer.

Marlotte, a member of the Ann Arbor Bicycle Touring Society, also participated in book clubs, cooked, enjoyed crafts and frequently traveled to foreign countries.

"She was about the most useful and active person you could ever see for her age."

Summer Fest a success

"Articipation" and Motorcycles on Main well-attended events

By Rita Fischer
Special Writer

Perfect weather last weekend brought smiles to many faces at the 33rd annual Chelsea Summer Fest.

The family atmosphere and the opportunity to hear live music and have fun are what bring people back every year, organizers said.

Constance Eder and Judy Hein, co-chairs of the festival, were pleased with the turnout. Eder said there was overwhelming support from the community and local businesses.

"We had a good turnout of people who enjoyed the food and it was always packed, from the time we opened to the time we shut down," Eder said.

Hein said the "Articipation" area and the Motorcycles on Main added to the festivities.

"One of the big parts of it was that the Articipation was held in a much nicer space," she said. "The artists could spread out more and not be in the streets."

Scott Tanner, who organized the motorcycles event, said Summer Fest likely met its goal of attracting 1,000 motorcyclists to Chelsea. There were contests and games for the participants, as well as merchants.

City officials shut water off last Friday to Victory Lane Car Wash after owner Derrick Oxander failed to pay a fine for releasing silt into a sanitary sewer line.

Victory Lane briefly shut down

Owner was delinquent in paying fine for releasing silt in sewer

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

Victory Lane Car Wash, 910 S. Main St. in Chelsea, temporarily shut down last Friday after its owner failed to pay a city fine for releasing silt into a sanitary sewer line.

The business closed for about two hours last Friday morning when the city shut off its water supply.

The morning of the shutdown, owner Derrick Oxander paid his fine to the city and his water supply was restored.

The car wash uses a drainage system that traps water and silt.

The drainage system is designed to close when accumulated silt reaches a certain level, at which time the business is required to drain the silt.

At Victory Lane, the silt spilled over a tube and entered the city's sanitary sewer system, violating the city's industrial pretreatment program.

Oxander stated in a letter to the city that either one of his employees or a contractor tampered with the drainage system to allow the silt to overflow without his knowledge.

Chelsea City Manager Mike Steklac said last Friday, however, that Oxander is ultimately responsible for the violation.

"Our position is regardless of who tampered with it, it's still his responsibility," Steklac said. "If he believes his contractor did it, then he needs to seek restitution with his contractor. It doesn't absolve him of responsibility."

Steklac said Oxander has three silt violations.

With his first two violations, the business removed silt from the tank and dumped it in a nearby ditch, a violation of city ordinance, Steklac said.

The city gave Oxander verbal warnings to clean up the silt.

Oxander's third violation could have cost him up to $25,000, but Steklac said the city decided to fine him $5,000, the cost of a second offense.

After Oxander appealed the fine, the city tried several times to arrange a meeting between Oxander and the city's wastewater treatment plant appeals board.

Oxander said he could not attend two scheduled meetings and failed to appear for a mutually agreed meeting July 13, Steklac said.

Although Oxander said he was out of town and was not aware of that meeting, Steklac said Oxander signed a certified letter confirming the meeting but still did not appear.

The city held the meeting in his absence, and charged Oxander the $5,000 in addition to $550 to cover the city's response and cleanup efforts.

Steklac said the city informed Oxander of the decision by fax, certified mail and regular mail, advising him he had until July 28 to pay the fine and costs.

When city officials got no reply, a message was left on Oxander's voicemail last Friday telling him his water would be shut off, Steklac said.

When the silt overflowed, it nearly reached the top of a sewer line, which could have blocked the line, Steklac said.

The city's ordinance is required by the state, and if it was not enforced the city could have lost its permit to discharge sewage from the wastewater treatment plant.

The Michigan Department of Environmental Quality also could have fined the city, Steklac said.

Oxander fixed the drainage tank when the city discovered the problem, Steklac said.

"We hope there are no more problems," Steklac said. "Part of the escalating fines is that the business owner has to understand we're serious about enforcing this."

In 2003, the city also fined $24,150 to Oxander's Victory Lane Quick Oil Change, 920 S. Main St., for discharging waste oil and oily wastewater into the city's sanitary sewer system.

Oxander paid that total, in $2,500 installments, by Aug. 9, 2004.

Oxander did not respond to a telephone call from The Chelsea Standard this week regarding the incidents.

SUMMER FEST

A historic 1912 Flanders 4 motorcycle, which was produced in Chelsea nearly 100 years ago, was displayed at the River Gallery. John Freschel brought bike from Wisconsin to display at the gallery. It was just one of the highlights geared toward motorcycle enthusiasts.

"We had contest winners and wonderful participation from all of the businesses," Tanner said. "Having the motorcycles right in the center of the festival was great."

Gourmet Chocolate Café owner Tom Diab received a $100 award for having the best biker-friendly attitude. Diab made roadkill chocolates with nuts and chocolate pieces. In the center of the chocolate was a tire print.

"Many of the business had added 'Welcome Bikers' on their signs," Tanner said. "I am pleased that we got the number of people in that we had hoped for."

Chelsea City Manager Mike Steklac was involved in all aspects of Summer Fest, serving as operations director for the festivities.

"It was very successful," he said. "It was more than we anticipated. What stood out to me was the overwhelming success of the car show ... They lost count at 275 cars."

Steklac said next year that the city needs to look logistically at how to handle so many cars.

"The cars took up most of East Middle and a good portion of East Street," he said.

In addition, Steklac said merchants reported robust sales.

"A number of merchants were happy with the way sales went and the Kiwanis said they broke records for sale of food at the Summer Fest," he said.

This year's entertainment line-up was a hit, as well.

"Everybody was impressed with the music that John Johnson chose," Steklac said of the entertainment chairman. "He always outdoes himself."

Pam Radcliffe, assistant director of the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce, was pleased with this year's attendance. She volunteered both Friday and Saturday.

"It was nice to go and hear music and shop, and have food at each place that you went," she said. "I liked to see everyone dancing when the music was playing."

Families seemed to enjoy the Kid Zone, with its rock-climbing wall, children's entertainers, bike safety, face painting and crafts. Megan Torrance of Chelsea came with her daughter, Emily.

"We have been coming to the Summer Fest for the past nine years," Torrance said. "I like the new organization of the vendors, and I love being able to get arts and crafts from local artisans."

Karen Fahle of Chelsea also enjoyed the Kid Zone area.

"We like running into all of our old friends and making new ones at the summer festival," she said.

Chelsea Farmers' Supply hosted the second annual pet parade. Manager Ben Sieg helped with the parade.

"I think the pet parade went very well," he said. "We had a lot of people take part, with over 60 pets."

DIESING

the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce, said Monday that there were four nominations this year, down from prior years that saw as many as eight nominations.

Next year, organizers plan to send forms directly to local service clubs, Radcliffe said, adding that there is discussion of awarding both a lifetime achievement award for Chelsea residents with many years of service to the community, as well as the Citizen of the Year for current contributions.

Merkel praised Diesing for her community involvement Monday.

"I've known Jane all my life, and there may be someone — but they don't come immediately to mind — who put more of themselves into the community than she has," Merkel said.

"She saw the community through a very difficult time and I can't think of a person more deserving than she.

"I like her brightness, her coolness, her friendliness and her wit."

Diesing's participation in the Chelsea community is extensive.

She was president of the Chelsea Board of Education during the 1993 murder of former Chelsea School District Superintendent Joseph Piasecki by former teacher Stephen Leith, the difficult time Merkel was referring to when talking about Diesing.

Diesing, who served on the school board for 12 years, also was treasurer and vice president of the school board.

She currently serves on the Chelsea Senior Center Board of Directors, has been a Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce board member for five years, was president of the Washtenaw Association of School Boards and was co-chair of the Chelsea District Library Building Committee. She also served as chair of the library's capital campaign, which helped pass a bond in May 2004 to expand the McKune Memorial Library.

Diesing co-owns The Village Shoppe with Lynne Faist and is married to Dave Diesing, co-owner of the Faist-Diesing car dealership in Chelsea.

She has three children. Sons Jeff and James live in Chelsea and work at Faist-Diesing, while daughter Jenny attends Michigan State University.

Diesing grew up in Chelsea, moved away for a period and returned with her husband in 1986.

She has a medical technology degree and worked as a medical technologist for eight years at Sparrow Hospital in Lansing.

Diesing said Monday that she was proud that the new Chelsea High School and Pierce Lake Elementary School were built while she served on the school board.

"I was president of the school board when (Piasecki) was shot and I think I was able to keep the district on a steady course during some very trying times with a lot of turmoil," she said.

Diesing also said she is proud to have participated in the successful library bond campaign.

She said Chelsea is a good community in which to build relationships.

"I love the small-town atmosphere and the fact that you can get to know a lot of people and see them on a regular basis, and the way everyone pulls together to make things happen," Diesing said.

In future efforts, Diesing said she would concentrate on keeping Chelsea's downtown viable by working toward a successful merchant area.

Lansdale praised Diesing Monday for her involvement with schools and the library.

"She's been thoroughly dedicated to making Chelsea a better place, both through her work on the school board and most recently through her work on the library building committee," Lansdale said.

"She has a grand intelligence. She's a very dignified lady and she's brilliant, but not in your face about it. She's as nice as can be and it has been immensely helpful for me getting to know her and a part of the community I didn't know before I knew her.

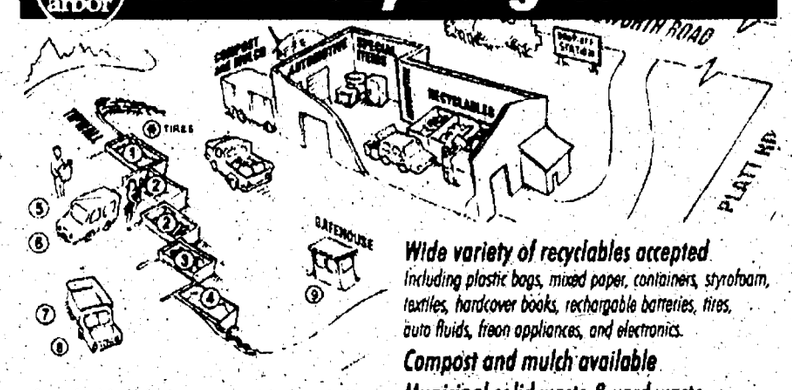

"Her strength, character and confidence have been a wonderful support to us."

Incumbents to vie for Chelsea City Council

Former Village President Richard Steele opts out of council bid

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

Chelsea Mayor Ann Feeney and Chelsea City Council trustees Cheri Albertson and Frank Hammer have turned in petitions to run again for seats on the City Council Nov. 8.

Chelsea City Clerk Terri Burtch said no one else had turned in petitions by the 4 p.m. deadline Tuesday.

Chelsea City Council Trustee Jim Myles, who took out a petition, did not turn it in by deadline, Burtch said. Myles, however, said he would run as a write-in.

The candidates will run for four-year terms.

Myles, owner of the Chelsea House Victorian Inn, said last week that he would seek another City Council term despite his plans to sell the business and move out of the state.

"It's a real soft market out there. If we don't sell it by the end of the summer, we'll take it off the market and try to sell it in the spring," he said.

Hammer said Monday that a main focus in his next term would be fixing Chelsea's water and sewer system problems.

"We need to get the infrastructure in Chelsea up to snuff," Hammer said, adding that capacity at the city's water and sewer plants needs to be expanded.

"There's stuff that's got to get done and I feel a commitment to that."

When Chelsea's new city charter was adopted in March 2004, it stipulated that the mayor's seat — as well as City Council seats of the three lowest vote-winners elected to office — would be up for election after a two-year term.

Albertson, Hammer and Myles were the three lowest vote-winners in the March 2004 City Council election.

Seats for the remaining City Council trustees — Jamie Bollinger, Joe Merkel and Jason Lindauer — will be up for election in November 2007 after four-year terms.

Former Chelsea Village President Richard Steele, who served on the Village Council from 1990 to 2004, recently circulated a petition for a City Council trustee seat, but ultimately decided not to run.

"I thought very seriously about getting back into it, but after considerable thought and discussion with good friends, I decided I would pass this time," Steele said Monday.

"I think the issues they're addressing now are all important decisions and, I think, if I would have gone ahead with it, that my experience would have helped."

Steele said he is considering running in the 2007 election.

Anyone without petitions could have run for the City Council seats by paying $100. Write-in candidates may file to run in the election by 4 p.m. Nov. 4. Names of write-in candidates will not appear on ballots.

Mayor introduces prospective candidate for commission post

Joel Abramson senior vice president of The Washtenaw Group

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

Chelsea Mayor Ann Feeney introduced Joel Abramson, whom she plans to appoint to the Chelsea Planning Commission as soon as he moves to town, to members of the Chelsea City Council July 26.

Feeney's move elicited criticism from City Council Trustee Jamie Bollinger, who said he would have appreciated notification of Feeney's decision before the meeting.

Abramson, a 36-year-old Ann Arbor resident, is senior vice president of The Washtenaw Group Inc., an Ann Arbor financial services holding company.

Abramson, his wife and 1-year-old son will move to Chelsea in the near future. The family is awaiting completion of construction of their new house.

Abramson will fill a three-year seat on the nine-member Planning Commission vacated by Ann Dilcher, who recently moved to Ann Arbor.

Dilcher finished the three-year term of Kim Soule, who resigned from the board in March 2004.

Abramson told the City Council that he is moving to Chelsea for its small-town charms.

Chelsea Mayor Ann Feeney told members of the Chelsea City Council during a meeting last week that she will nominate Joel Abramson to the Chelsea Planning Commission as soon as Abramson moves to Chelsea from Ann Arbor.

"I thought Chelsea would be an ideal place to raise my son," he said. "Chelsea has a Mayberry feel, and I was getting the feeling that Ann Arbor was too impersonal."

Abramson, who grew up in Bloomfield and graduated from Michigan State University, said a change in his job duties has allowed him to dedicate more free time to community service.

"I want to make the community a better place and be a role model for my son," he said.

Abramson said while he doesn't have city planning experience, he does have experience "making important decisions that impact people's lives."

After the City Council meeting, Abramson said he aims to balance growth with preserving Chelsea's small-town character.

Feeney said last Friday that Abramson is a good choice.

"He has experience with property and I think he'll be a good addition," she said.

Bollinger said last week that he knew nothing of Abramson before the meeting.

"I was surprised that we were introduced to a new person for the vacant Planning Commission seat at the meeting and had no prior knowledge of it," Bollinger said.

"Maybe if I had more information, I could have prepared to ask questions if I had any."

POLICE BLOTTER

Dexter Village

Property Damage

A garage light in Huron Commons condominiums was reported broken July 21. Since January, about 15 lights have been broken.

A video camera recorded two boys, one carrying a skateboard. One of the boys threw a rock, and the sound of glass breaking could be heard on the tape.

Home Invasion

Electronics valued at $1,000 were reported stolen from an apartment in the 2000 block of Baker Road between July 14 and 23.

Property Damage

A manager at Level 3 Communications reported damage to a fence July 22. The damage was the third recent incident. The manager said children may have done the damage because he found evidence of marshmallow roasting inside the building at the time of the previous incident.

Dexter Township

Brandishing a Firearm

A Grass Lake man told sheriff's deputies July 21 that a Chelsea man pulled out a handgun during a dispute about a broken car window.

The Grass Lake man said the other man had broken the window and refused to pay for the damage. When the victim approached the Chelsea man's vehicle, the suspect allegedly pulled out a gun, according to a police report.

Chelsea

Larceny

Lug nuts and a full-size spare tire were stolen between July 7 and 11 from a Jeep Liberty at Village Motor Sales, 1185 S. Main St. The property is valued at $650.

Suspicious Incident

A woman living in the 300 block of Madison Street told police that a child from Grass Lake kicked in her garage door while playing with her grandson May 29.

The woman said the minor confessed and his father agreed to fix it, but hasn't yet.

The woman's grandson was apparently locked out of her house at the time of the incident. A police officer said he would contact the boy's family to arrange for repairs.

A 90-year-old Chelsea woman told police someone called her and said she was eligible for a medicine plan that would allow her to get her medicine for less money.

The caller asked for the woman's checking account number and routing number.

The woman said she gave the caller her number and then began to doubt the call. She said she attempted to call him back, but wasn't able to reach him.

Forgery and Counterfeiting

A Chelsea woman told police July 26 that her bank advised her that five forged checks, totaling $978.75, were written on her account.

She told police that she didn't give permission to anyone to use her account and that someone had forged her checks before.

An employee at the woman's bank told police the matter has been turned over to bank security.

Property Damage

Someone damaged a lock on a car parked at a home in the 100 block of Grant Street between July 12 and 13. The owner of the car said he found nothing missing from the vehicle.

Someone broke windows at the Chelsea High School football field press box and deployed two fire extinguishers from inside the press box between July 16 and 17.

The fire extinguishers were used to break the windows. A door to the press box was unlocked, according to a police report. Damage totaled approximately $1,500.

Someone broke a window and entered the Washington Street Education Center, 500 Washington St., between July 22 and 23. Nothing was reported stolen from the building. Damage to the window totaled $250.

Someone smashed the driver's side front window of a Chelsea man's car parked in the 100 block of Jackson Street July 19. Nothing was stolen from the car.

Wires Down

A Maumee, Ohio, truck driver accidentally pulled down an electrical line and utility pole at the corner of Grant and Pierce streets July 15.

The driver was not injured and remained in his truck until electric department crews made sure the lines were dead.

Involuntary Mental Committal

Chelsea police used a Taser gun to subdue a 20-year-old Ypsilanti woman who fled the Chelsea Community Hospital emergency room after she was given a psychotropic injection.

Police officers obtained an involuntary mental petition from the woman's mother, but the woman fled police after they told her she would be placed in protective custody.

Police applied a Taser to the woman's back after she repeatedly resisted physical compliance with officers.

After the Taser was withdrawn, the woman cooperated with police and she was returned to the hospital.

Non-Aggravated Assault

A physical altercation took place between a husband and wife at their home July 20. The couple was in the process of a divorce at the time of the incident.

The woman told police the man grabbed her arm and twisted her wrist. She said she bit her husband on his back to stop him from hurting her.

The man told police he did not grab the woman and said she bit him during a struggle over a duffel bag containing business papers.

Based on the woman's initial statement to police, the man was arrested for domestic assault. He was taken to the Washtenaw County Jail pending review of the case.

A Chelsea woman told police that her boyfriend, a Grass Lake man, assaulted her at her apartment July 22.

The woman told police she and her boyfriend were intoxicated and that her boyfriend accused her of cheating after she received a phone call.

She said the man threw her to the ground and choked her, and that she freed herself after kicking him in the groin. She then jumped out of a second-story window to escape, injuring herself when she landed.

The man had fled the scene when police arrived and the woman was taken to Chelsea Community Hospital.

She declined to release her medical records to police and said she did not want to pursue the matter any further.

Police advised her that the Washtenaw County prosecutor would review the case.

A 19-year-old Grass Lake man told police that a 54-year-old Jackson man, an employee at Amoco, 1630 S. Main St., assaulted him at the gas station July 24.

The complainant said the employee made comments about his body when he got gas at the station July 2 and invited him to come over to the his house.

The complainant told police that when he bought more gas at the station July 24, the employee complained that he did not come to his house.

As he walked back to his car, the Grass Lake man said the employee followed him and asked him to take his shirt off, telling him he was making him "hot just by looking at him."

The employee allegedly pulled up his shirt after the man refused to take off his shirt.

The Grass Lake man told police he tried to punch the employee and that the employee injured his arm when he deflected the punch by grabbing him.

The employee told police he had written a note to the Grass Lake man July 2 and said he told the younger man he "looked thin" at the gas station July 24.

The employee also told police he poked the man in the stomach and lifted his shirt to see his stomach. He told police he never grabbed the man's arm.

A Howell boy received injuries after getting into a fight with a player on an opposing team July 23 at Arctic Coliseum, 501 Coliseum Drive.

The minor told police a referee grabbed him by his helmet and yanked it back, cutting his gums and injuring his eye.

A coach for the injured boy's team said the referee violated guidelines in breaking up the fight, while a coach for the other team said the referee tried to stop the fight verbally before grabbing the minor.

The referee told police that the injured boy was assaulting the other player and repeatedly refused to stop fighting when told to "break."

The referee apologized to the boy got hurt and said he did not intend to hurt him. He added that if anyone should charged with assault, it should be the injured player.

The family of the injured boy declined to press charges.

Retail Fraud

An employee at Country Market, 1101 S. Main St., told police a man stole nine cases of baby formula from the store July 21.

The employee said he saw the man dump the goods in the store's parking lot before he fled the scene.

he fled the scene.

Police recovered the merchandise, totaling $627.

Driving Violations

A 24-year-old Chelsea man was pulled over for speeding near the corner of Sibley and Werkner roads July 21.

After police questioned him, a passenger in the car, a 19-year-old Chelsea man, told police the driver bought alcohol for him earlier in the day.

The driver was ticketed for speeding and a report of furnishing alcohol to a minor was forwarded to the Washtenaw County prosecutor's office.

The passenger was ticketed as a minor in possession of alcohol.

Delinquent Minors

Chelsea police responded June 21 to a report of loud and possibly intoxicated juveniles walking down Grant and Chandler streets.

A police officer saw a 20-year-old man walking on Chandler Street and the man fled after the officer approached him. The officer chased the man, but ended the pursuit after falling down.

At the scene, a woman identified the man who fled. The officer went to the man's home and saw him inside, but the suspect refused to open the door.

The man later went to the Chelsea Police Department and confessed that he was involved. He admitted to drinking at the time of the incident and told police he ran because he had six citations as a minor in possession of alcohol and did not want to be cited again.

Drunken Driving

A 41-year-old Highland woman was arrested for drunken driving July 21 after police responded to a citizen's complaint about the woman driving slowly southbound on Main Street.

When the woman took a sobriety test and the officer noticed that her pants were wet and the zipper was down.

She failed field sobriety tests and refused a Breathalyzer test. The woman was initially taken to Chelsea Community Hospital for a blood draw, but told police she was allergic to iodine. Police then took her to the Ann Arbor Police Department for a breath test. Her blood-alcohol content was measured at 0.17 percent and the woman was booked at Washtenaw County Jail. A blood-alcohol content of 0.08 is legally drunk in Michigan.

In her car, police found five empty beer bottles and one nearly full beer bottle.

General Assistance

A Gregory woman told Chelsea police July 27 that her 14-year-old daughter had run away and that she suspected her daughter was at an apartment on Middle Street.

Police found the woman's daughter at the apartment and returned her.

State cleaning up spill

Broad and Grand street area evacuated afer spill discovered

By Gary Anglebrandt
Staff Writer

The spill of a 10-gallon drum of chemical solvent July 25 is a felony, and the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality wants information on who did it.

The county had to evacuate and clean an area at Broad and Grand streets in Dexter after the spill was discovered — and smelled — near a garbage bin in a parking lot.

The cleanup could cost thousands of dollars once the invoices for last week's cleanup are totaled, said John Hanifan, assistant village manager.

Whoever left the chemical there possibly could be held liable for the expense to taxpayers, Hanifan said.

Anyone with information about the spill can call Sgt. Angela Brown, a criminal investigator for the MDEQ, at 1-517-780-7403.

Help keep Chelsea's economy thriving

ROY SCHMIDT

One day during that last spell of hot weather, I walked up Main Street. Chelsea Office Supply was empty. Someone was sweeping the decades of dust and memories out onto the steps and into a dustpan to be thrown away.

I don't know that we could have saved that business, but we can save the others, if we want.

We should make it a point to do our shopping in downtown Chelsea.

A lot of people are putting a lot of effort into revitalizing downtown Chelsea. It's time for all of us, if we honestly want to protect small-town values, to act to make sure those efforts are not wasted.

Chelsea's charm leapt out at my wife and me the first day we strolled down Main Street one summer in the mid-1990s. We met Sam in the hardware store, tiptoed through the McKune House and poked our heads into the quaint office supply shop. The smell, the toys and the creaky wooden floor brought me back to the downtown stores of my childhood in the 1960s, when the shopkeepers gave kids lollipops and knew our parents by name.

You can walk up and down Chelsea's streets and find as many signs of good, old American values as you want. There are the classic brick buildings and Victorian architecture, clean downtown sidewalks, flowers in a window basket and the friendly little firehouse.

There are also barbershops, a post office, a corner grocery, a candy store, florists, gift shops and cafes, as well as two respected jewelers, a renowned bookstore, a nationally renowned theater and a five-star restaurant.

There are places to buy dress shoes, clothing, school supplies and a pair of cowboy boots. Let's not forget the farmers' supply store that's a lot more fun than Tractor Supply or Lowe's, and overstuffed with dog food, fertilizer, cucumber seeds, grain, bird feeders and baby ducklings.

Our world is changing. Clinging to these Norman Rockwell images can feel futile. But it can also motivate us to work to retain our small-town charm.

What do we need to do?

For starters, we can't be free riders. We can't expect Chelsea to provide its charm to us without us giving back.

Like a church, or a club, or a school, Chelsea is us. We keep our own values alive by living them every day. We keep our town alive by living these values every day.

You don't join a rowing crew to take part in the camaraderie, the discipline, and the thrill of gliding across still water, but not the rowing. You have to become a contributing part of that team.

Small towns are failing, largely because we thoughtlessly pursue short-term self-interest. We make poor day-to-day choices. We can drive all the way out to Wal-Mart, Sam's or Meijer and save a few dollars. But when we do, we drive another hole in the hull of our small town, all the while chatting about how we would like to see Chelsea stay afloat.

Some of our shops, like Chelsea Market, prosper by providing products and services that the mega-marts can't provide. For example, large grocers create niches for the smaller shops because they can't provide local, top-quality meats, prime deli services or fine choices of wine and the expertise to go with it.

Others, like Vogel's and Foster's, thrive by offering quality clothing and great service such as special orders and attentive, friendly salespeople who know their stuff.

On the other hand, Chelsea Office Supply was doomed with the advent of Staples and Office Depot. Office supplies are now commodities, and the big stores with online capabilities will win the battle both on selection and price.

As for the chance to make it up with customer services, gone are the days when you might be able to bring a piece of office equipment back to the store if there were problems. Nowadays you send it to the manufacturer.

We also lost A Gathering Basket. But we should have been able to keep that shop alive. We just needed to make a pointed effort to explore and shop in Chelsea.

The local stores continue to be enterprising – just drop downtown on a Thursday night for Sounds and Sights on Thursday Nights. While they could do a better job communicating to us all that they offer, they do continue to produce value in the form of great service, great quality and, most important to me, friendly, welcoming atmosphere.

In return, it's up to us to patronize the downtown shops. We must think downtown first. And don't assume it means going out of your way. Collectively, downtown Chelsea is like a mini-mall.

Start this week. Set aside one day and explore Chelsea. Have brunch at a café. Do some shopping and some exploring. You'll be surprised at all you will find, from Shoe

Ego keeps Brandon, Miller in the game

TIM SKUBICK

Every politician loves to play the HOSG and if he or she says they don't, step back because their nose is going to grow.

What's HOSG?

The Higher Office Speculation Game.

Michigan governors have always been participants. The capitol press corps has constantly speculated about them running for vice president or for some federal cabinet post. The current governor even enjoyed some early speculation that she was presidential timber.

So much for that idea.

Governors not withstanding, the outright winner of this game is the always flamboyant and masterful media manipulator Geoffrey Fieger. He has run for mayor of Detroit and governor so many times that everyone has lost count.

The media, of course, is a co-conspirator when it comes to Fieger.

Everyone with an ounce of brains knows when he says he may take on Jennifer Granholm it's pure and unadulterated clap-trap, but we print it nonetheless.

But beware, Geoff. You're getting some stiff competition from two Republicans who are proving they can play the game, too.

Say hello to Macomb County U.S. Rep. Candice Miller and the pride and joy of the University of Michigan: pizza baron David Brandon.

Miller is no slouch. Earlier this year her office did nothing to discourage speculation that she was the White House favorite to run for the U.S. Senate.

Never mind that the big shots in the White House never said that, but Miller did nothing to debunk the idea.

In, fact when President Bush flew into Miller's hometown, she was invited to ride on Air Force One. And then when he mentioned her name in his speech, the media fell all over itself reporting that Miller was the anointed candidate.

Pure baloney.

Miller decided to stay out of that race.

Ah, but not to worry. Now she says she may run for governor.

Didn't she say that four years ago?

Yep.

And she did not run, right?

Right.

But now she is back telling capitol correspondents, who

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mark Ouimet is a good public servant

I recently had a conversation with County Commissioner Mark Ouimet that I feel compelled to relay to other Washtenaw County residents.

Mark shared with me his experiences from the National Association of County Commissioners conference that he attended recently in Hawaii. The first thing that impressed me is that he arrived a day early to attend a seminar on effective budgeting of public funds.

Now, I can think of a lot of reasons to arrive a day early in Hawaii. A budget conference is not one of them. But I appreciate Mark's dedication.

Next, Mark listed the meetings that he attended during the conference: criminal justice system best practices and reform, drug use in schoolage children, community development and the use of grant programs, and methods for dealing with state and federal unfunded mandates.

Anyone who follows local politics knows the current impact of each of these issues on Washtenaw County.

Mark went on to describe how he plans to apply the lessons he learned in each of these lectures to meet the needs of Washtenaw County.

Did I mention that he paid the cost of attending this conference himself? A quick check on airfares and hotel costs for Hawaii shows that Mark spent about $5,000 out-of-pocket to attend this conference.

I would like to thank Commissioner Ouimet for protecting the interests of the county and for being such a good steward of our public funds. I am interested in hearing how the rest of the commissioners who attended the conference on the county's tab spent their time.

could ever see for her age," Collins said.

"I'll probably miss her vitality the most. She just really liked other people and was good to them, and she was very smart and curious about the world."

Until her death, Marlotte worked as a supervisor for student teachers at Eastern Michigan University. She formerly taught third grade at Spencer Elementary in Brighton Area Schools.

Marlotte has three sons, living in Spain, Ann Arbor and New Jersey, as well as a granddaughter and two sisters.

Alice Rawson, another friend of Marlotte, described her as "very pleasant and very active," and said Marlotte was an avid cyclist.

"She went on bike trips to Ireland and Spain," Rawson said. "She rode in Ireland frequently."

Collins said Marlotte had biked for about 20 years and recently returned form biking with German friends in Alsace-Lorraine in France.

"She was an extremely vital person who did lots of things," Moore said. "Biking was just one of them."

should know better, that she has amazingly left the door open to a possible run for governor next year. And everyone in this town is excited over the prospects of the Divine Ms. M. challenging West Michigan "friend" Dick DeVos for that nomination.

Is she nuts?

Nope.

But we are for printing that.

And to add even more fuel to this ridiculous story, how about the notion that Miller is keeping her name in the mix because she could be the running mate for DeVos.

After all, she is from vote-rich Southeast Michigan, where he has no toehold. She is a proven statewide vote-getter and she's female to boot.

Which brings us to Brandon. Four years ago, his name was also mentioned for governor but, after apparently getting tired of seeing his name in print, he graciously declared that it was not his turn.

Starting last year, he teased the media again by re-resurrecting the governor thing, suggesting that perhaps his turn was now.

When reporters got tired of writing that, Brandon let it be known he was then interested in running for the U.S. Senate. The beat goes on and on and on.

Come on guys.

It's time for Miller and Brandon to end all this stuff.

But, in all honesty, if your ego was being stroked, would you get out of the game?

Decision to remove reps disappointing

The decision by council to remove Earl Heller and Ken Unterbrink from advisory positions on the committee to advise on water problems was a surprise and disappointment to me.

It is not a decision-making committee; it's an effort to use all area knowledge and experience to solve a difficult problem.

Lima and Sylvan townships are our neighbors. We need their good will and collaboration. The decision appears to lack understanding, vision and the value of inclusiveness and communication.

ORGANIZE THIS

BONNIE EVERDEEN

Staying organized on a busy schedule

One frustrating thing about getting organized is staying organized.

There are dozens of books, magazines, TV shows and products to help you organize, but for some reason, the system seems to fall apart after few weeks.

One of the top reasons as to why is that people don't take the time to maintain the system. Remember my first rule: If it's out, then put it away. A 15-minute nightly cleanup is all it takes. But you must be disciplined about it.

We live in such a fast-paced world today that people breeze in and out of their homes at warp speed. You're not home long enough to put anything away. You have to put home maintenance back into your schedule. Counters, tables and floors must be cleared of items that really belong somewhere else. The cluttered look appears when counters and other surfaces have items other than decorative pieces on them.

Another component of feeling unorganized is unfinished jobs around the house. You know the look — the bathroom that is missing trim or the bedroom with only two walls painted. Because the job isn't finished, you leave all the materials out hoping that the sight of them will inspire you to finish the job. But you're wrong. That doesn't work. It only adds to the frustration and guilt of one more unfinished project.

My advice is to devote a day to your home and be diligent about putting things away and finishing unfinished projects. I guarantee it will go a long way toward creating a peaceful and calm feeling in your house.

Camp provides students a week to experience nature

By Gary Anglebrandt
Staff Writer

The Detroit Public Schools system is running an operation a long way from the city.

That's precisely the point at Camp Burt Shurly. Tucked back on North Lake in Lyndon Township, the camp gives Detroit students ages 7 to 12 a chance to experience the countryside.

While parents often say they moved to the Dexter and Chelsea area for the good schools and the rural atmosphere, many Detroit students are lucky to ever see lakes and large amounts of green space.

"A far majority of them have never been this far out of Detroit," said the camp's director, Steven Snead, who began working at the camp 10 years ago at the age of 16.

Snead is now an English teacher in Southfield. He also happens to be the nephew of David Snead, superintendent of Detroit Public Schools during the 1990s, and husband to Detroit mayoral candidate Sharon McPhail.

Detroit schools are rough and get pretty harsh treatment among Detroit media, but the camp, at least, stands out as a positive, Snead said. Yet most parents hear about it through other parents, and no Detroit media outlet has ever covered it, he said. Many teachers don't even know about it, he said.

The camp, begun in 1992, holds up to 120 children, and all of them must come from families with annual incomes of less than $20,000 per year, Snead said. The camp is paid with federal Title I funds and is named after the man who sold the campgrounds, cabins and all, to the school system for $1.

Schoolteachers often select participants as a reward for improving in school. The students stay at the camp for a week. They study math and reading because it's still part of going to school, but they also learn how to swim, canoe, climb ropes, shoot arrows and sing campfire songs.

Kumbier aspires to teach

Dexter High School graduate to attend U of M in the fall

Eric Kumbier, a Dexter High School graduate, plans to pursue a career in teaching. He will attend the University of Michigan in the fall.

While growing up in Dexter, Eric Kumbier was surrounded by role models in the schools. Now, he aspires to become one.

The 2005 Dexter High School graduate dreams of becoming a high school teacher and coaching, possibly in his hometown.

Kumbier, 18, graduated this past spring from Dexter High School with many achievements under his belt. He was a captain of the swimming and diving team, as well as the water polo team, during his senior year.

As a member of the National Honor Society, Kumbier chaired the senior food auction in which students raised funds for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation and Muscular Dystrophy Association. He also achieved the Eagle Scout rank in the Boy Scouts by building a lakeside nature trail in Loch Alpine subdivision.

A passion for government and politics fuels Kumbier's interest in teaching social studies. Last summer, he participated in Boys State, a program that has young men travel to Lansing to study government.

"I really enjoyed my time there," Kumbier said. "I'm really interested in politics and I spent a week submerged in politics there."

Kumbier will start studies in the honors program in political science at the University of Michigan this fall. He comes from a long line of teachers in his family, including his late grandfather, whom Kumbier was close to.

The teen has had a lifelong interest in social studies, says his mother, Mary.

"He had that passion right from the start," she said.

Coaching a sports team may be in Kumbier's future, as well. He currently serves as an assistant manager at the Ann Arbor Country Club, where he is a lifeguard and teaches swimming lessons to children, and would like to continue building on the career.

Kumbier placed 10th in the 100-yard breaststroke during a Division II state meet as a member of the high school team. He also was an offensive standout on the team. Serving on the team is one of his best high school memories, Kumbier said.

"You form a lot of really close friends that way. There's a lot of camaraderie on the team," he said.

Some of the greatest influences on his life have been the teachers in Dexter schools.

"I think Dexter's got a lot of really great teachers," he said.

Kumbier honored Dexter High School teacher Richard Grannis this past spring as an outstanding educator.

"I just liked his outlook on teaching," Kumbier said. "He made it enjoyable, he made it fun. He helped me realize education is important and to try and enjoy the education we're getting from him."

But Kumbier's parents receive the most credit for keeping him on track and preventing him from hitting any roadblocks along the way, he said.

"I think that can be credited to my parents. They wanted me to succeed and they were there to help me if I had any trouble," he said.

Local residents earn scholarships

Two local residents have been recognized for superior academic achievement with scholarships and awards from Albion College.

More than 85 percent of Albion's entering first-year students have earned a merit-based scholarship.

"Our growth over the last three years is due to what we call 'systems thinkers,' students who excel in more than one academic area and have a complementary skill, talent or special gift that balances out their personality and professional goals," David Hawsey, vice president of enrollment, said in a press release.

"These students naturally earn more merit-based, performing and visual arts and academic departmental scholarships," he said.

Eilis Seide of Dexter was awarded an Albion College Webster Scholarship worth $11,000. The award is reserved for students who earn a minimum ACT score of 25 (SAT 1140) or a minimum grade point average of 3.5.

Seide is the daughter of James and Cynthia Seide of Dexter, and a graduate of Dexter High School.

Alexandra Goss was awarded an Albion College Presidential Scholarship valued at $12,500. The award is reserved for students who earn a minimum ACT score of 27 (SAT 1220) or a minimum grade point average of 3.7 on a 4.0 scale.

Recipients also must demonstrate substantial involvement in both academic and extracurricular activities during high school.

Goss is the daughter of Steven and Karen Goss of Dexter, and a graduate of Dexter High School.

A group of students took a break in their cabin at Camp Burt Shurly during the afternoon of July 25. In the back row are Daniel Cukowski (left), Dezmond Davis, Darius Glenn and Cortez Lewis; center, Darryl Byrd (left), Deandre Blackman, Justin Stubblefield and Kemonte Leach; and front, Tommy Hammonds (left), D'uonte Relford and Trex Avier.

"We try to teach them to respect themselves and others. Don't treat anybody different because they're not from the same place," said Dominique Hackett, a counselor who attends the University of Michigan.

The students enjoy seeing raccoon and the occasional deer, and are shocked at the amount of bugs, Hackett said.

Snead said the camp's counselors and management also provide plenty of caring adults, another thing many of the children don't get at home, he said.

"Being a positive influence on young children is my catalyst; it's what moves me each day," said Eboni Wells, a counselor.

The children come from homes with parents who, in a good situation, have to work many hours, and, in a bad one, have drug or alcohol problems too severe to always be there. About 20 percent of the children come from homes with "really great parents," Snead said.

One mother who once sent her child to the camp worked 14 hours a day at Detroit Metro Airport, which required a two-hour bus ride to get back and forth to work. Another mother once showed up at the camp drunk.

Though many of the children July 25 said they were homesick, by the end of the week, they have gained new friends from other parts of the city and enjoyed a week of fresh air.

"Some of them break down in tears and don't want to leave," Snead said.

In the city during the summer, children don't have much to do except play video games or worse, Snead said.

"You're going to see a lot of kids hanging around and doing nothing," Snead said. "Idle hands are the devil's play toys."

When asked what they want to do for a living, a group of boys in one cabin said jobs ranging from police officer to rapper.

De'naro Erby, the boys' counselor, said he wants the boys to learn patience.

"I'm trying to teach them there's more to life than being in the city, in gangs, watching TV or playing the radio," Erby said.

The boys were quiet and polite and ready to be quoted in the newspaper. One boy, Deandre Blackman, took on an earnest air and sounded as if he had prepared to speak to the media all his life.

"I have a lot of fun. My counselors are great to me," he said. "They make me very joyful."

Many of the boys in one group said they were learning to have fun without electronics and that they enjoyed swimming, something many of them hadn't learned before.

Mike Getsoian lives in Hamburg Township, but works as a teacher in Detroit. He also teaches swimming at Camp Burt Shurly.

"It's a great opportunity for the kids," he said. "They're surprised to see the fish."

Justin Stubblefield said he learned to swim and appreciated the chance to go somewhere.

"I was surprised I was able to get here. I usually don't get to go anywhere," Stubblefield said.

One boy, Daniel Cukowski was attending for the second year and said he didn't know snakes could swim until he saw one at the camp. He got homesick last year, but students get over it, he said.

When a group of 11 boys were asked if they were homesick, all of them said yes. They had just arrived the previous day.

"I've never been this far away without family," said Darius Glenn. "I miss my mother and my brother."

Blueprint for Aging launches new Web site

How is a diverse group of community members in Washtenaw County planning an elder-friendly community?

Those interested can find out by visiting www.BlueprintForAging.org.

The new Web site provides a comprehensive look into the Blueprint for Aging, a diverse coalition of community members and representatives from more than 40 public, private and nonprofit organizations.

The Web site provides information about the history and mission of the Blueprint, follows the progress of each of its five workgroups as they develop strategies, links to "Rethink Aging" the Blueprint's online newsletter, and provides the public with ways to become involved.

The Blueprint for Aging will use the Web site as one of several ways to communicate its strategic plan for Washtenaw County to the community.

"Easy access to information that is meaningful to older adults is vitally important to older adults. Through the Blueprint for Aging Web site, seniors will not only be able to gather information on the project but follow the development of the strategic plan for Washtenaw County's older adults," Donna Lee Hornyak said in a press release.

The Blueprint for Aging is working to help Washtenaw County in becoming more responsive to its older residents by engaging the county in a strategic planning process that will carry the county through the next several years.

The Blueprint's vision for Washtenaw County is a community with people invested in the care of older people and engaged and outspoken in supporting their health, wellness and independence.

The Blueprint for Aging is part of Community Partnerships for Older Adults, a national program of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, one of 11 projects nationwide selected from a field of 486 applicants to receive a planning grant in 2004.

The Blueprint for Aging is also endorsed by the Washtenaw County Human Services Community and has received major support from the Ann Arbor Area Community Foundation.

For more information about the Blueprint for Aging, contact Dana Bright, project manager, at 712-3625 or dbright@csswashtenaw.org.

BABY TALK

Save a dog's or cat's life

JENNIFER SINKWITTS

Did you hear about the dog that rescued the abandoned baby girl in a forest in Kenya last May? Apparently, the dog found her wrapped inside a plastic bag, carried her across a busy street, through a barbed wire fence, to its litter of puppies near the Ngong Forest in Nairobi.

Local boys discovered the baby among the dog's litter after they heard her crying.

What a story this child will someday tell.

I wonder what she would say about the millions of caged animals awaiting their fate at local humane societies and dog pounds. I wonder what she would say about the millions of animals that are euthanized, each and every year because there are not enough homes to go around.

It will be years until we hear from her. It will be years until she understands that the dog that saved her life could have been included in the statistic above, leaving her wrapped in a plastic bag, gasping for her last breath.

Through the efforts of Katherine Simon, organizer of the Friends For Life Pet Adoption, which will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at Lane Animal Hospital in Chelsea, 108 local animals were adopted and saved last year.

Some 50 healthy, vaccinated and neutered dogs and cats will be on the grounds that day.

"We want the adoption to be a happy match for both the animal and the person," Simon said.

If the adoption doesn't work out, we want the animal back, she said.

Most of the animals returned are given back because of behavioral problems. Simon encourages obedience training. With proper training, behaviors can be modified.

Like our children, animals must be taught. If you don't potty train your child he, too, would leave a puddle on the floor.

The animals seeking adoption were either slated to be sold for research prior to being rescued or are from the Greater Hillsdale County Humane Society. Close to 10 million animals are killed each year because they don't have a home, Simon said.

Simon urges people to microchip their animals, a procedure that is no more painful than a vaccination and protects against homelessness. A tiny capsule is injected in the skin on the back of a dog's neck. Veterinarians and shelters are provided with a scanner that reads the digital number on the chip inside the capsule. If your pet runs away and is lost, he can easily be identified.

Imagine the millions of people who lose their pet and the thousands of lost animals contained in cages at shelters and dog pounds. Imagine the faces of the unclaimed animals that are sold to research facilities. The pets that are microchipped are returned to the owners. The pets that are not microchipped are kept.

Animals are members of our families. Our children are fascinated with them. They love us. They protect us. They make us healthy. Many studies have proved that children who live with dogs and cats have higher self-esteem, miss less school, are more social and have stronger immune systems.

Researchers at Warwick University in Coventry found that exposing children to pets caused more infections early in life, but boosted their immune systems. And, according to the August 2003 Pediatrics Synopsis Book, for a newborn coming home from the hospital the early exposure to a dog or multiple pets appear to decrease the risk of allergies, eczema, and perhaps even asthma.

After learning these statistics, guilt flooded my heart. I have taken Cooper, my 3-year-old Brittany Spaniel, for granted since the birth of my 1-year-old son, Nolan. Before Nolan, Cooper was my all-star child. He ran a five-minute mile, was a swift ball player and had the senses of a superhero. Now, at 10 pounds overweight, I outrun him.

I try to give Cooper undivided attention, but Nolan smells better, laughs louder and is generally more interesting. I wonder if Cooper realizes his stiff competition.

I wonder what Cooper thinks when he sees Nolan cuddling in my bed, a place that used to be reserved for him. Does he ever wonder why he was demoted?

Despite his demotion, he is the first to acknowledge Nolan's cries. He will find me, usually sitting at the computer and, with his whiny voice, say "Listen, lady, your baby is crying."

He races ahead of me, up the stairs, directing me to the waking being that stole his position in the family. And, even though he is often left behind, he continues to assume the role of family protector and is quick to give sloppy kisses after being locked up in his kennel while we are working outside the home.

More than once, I found Cooper in Nolan's room watching him sleep or listening to his repetitive baby talk, "da da da da."

So, tonight after Nolan goes to sleep and my husband returns from work, I'll take Cooper on a walk to rebuild the friendship from our past.

And, for those of you who don't have a Cooper, please visit the Friends For Life Pet Adoption Saturday and save a life.

Students awarded scholarships

Two local residents have been recognized for superior academic achievement with scholarships and awards from the Albion College.

More than 85 percent of Albion's entering first-year students have earned a merit-based scholarship.

"Our growth over the last three years is due to what we call 'systems thinkers,' students who excel in more than one academic area and have a complementary skill, talent or special gift that balances out their personality and professional goals," David Hawsey, vice president for enrollment, said in a press release.

"These students naturally earn more merit-based, performing and visual arts, and academic departmental scholarships. I'm pleased to invest more of Albion's resources in these students because of the contributions they will make in the years ahead."

Brynna Darwin was awarded an Albion College Briton Award worth $10,000. The award is reserved for students who earn a minimum ACT score of 22 (SAT 1020) or a minimum grade point average of 3.2.

Darwin is the daughter of Brian and Brenda Darwin of Chelsea, and a graduate of Chelsea High School.

Christopher Moyle and John Dunn also were awarded the Briton Award. Moyle is the son of Chris and Tracy Moyle of Chelsea, and Dunn is the son of John Dunn and Anna Dunn of Chelsea. Both are graduates of Chelsea High School.

Andrew Adams was awarded an Albion College Presidential Scholarship worth $11,000. The award is reserved for students who earn a minimum ACT score of 27 (SAT 1220) or a minimum grade point average of 3.7.

Recipients also must demonstrate substantial involvement in both academic and extracurricular activities during high school.

Adams is the son of Douglas and Chryle Adams of Chelsea and a graduate of Chelsea High School.

Ty Mitchell was awarded an Albion College Webster Scholarship worth $11,000. The award is reserved for students who earn a minimum ACT score of 25 (SAT 1140) or a minimum grade point average of 3.5.

Mitchell is the son of Ann Sweet of Chelsea. He is a graduate of Chelsea High School.

Michelle Alber was awarded an Albion College Trustee Scholarship worth $14,000. The award is reserved for students who earn a minimum ACT score of 29 (SAT 1300) or a minimum grade point average of 3.8. Recipients also must demonstrate leadership and/or service activities during high school.

Chelsea football officially begins the 2005 season Monday with its first practice of the year. The Bulldogs, like every team throughout the state, are hoping for a successful season filled with thrilling victories, a league championship and a berth in the state playoffs. This season's state final will be held at Ford Field in Detroit. The two-day, eight-class championship is moving from the Pontiac Silverdome, where it was held for the past 29 years.

State finals and big shoulder pads

ON THE SIDELINE

DON RICHTER

As Hank Williams Jr. might say: "Are you ready for some football?"

Though the mercury is reaching the low 90s and the leaves are still a brilliant green, Monday is the official start of high school football practice.

Yes, football.

You know, the game that brought us the Ice Bowl, the Fearsome Foursome, the frozen tundra and, now, flip-flops and sunscreen?

I'll never get used to the early summer start to the prep football season.

Not that I'm complaining, mind you.

I'm already getting my football fix watching Canadian Football League action. Is there a better pro football team name than the Edmonton Eskimos?

With practice beginning Monday and the first game Aug. 26, it isn't too early to start thinking about the state playoffs.

Well, at least it's not for me.

The state playoffs begin Oct. 28. The state finals are Nov. 25 and 26 at Ford Field in Detroit. It will be the first time the downtown stadium will host the prep championship.

For the past 29 years, the finals were held at the Pontiac Silverdome, which is better known as, simply, the 'Dome.

In 1975, the Michigan High School Athletic Association held its inaugural state gridiron playoffs with a total of 16 teams in four classes participating. The two-week playoff culminated with state championship games at Western Michigan University's Waldo Stadium for Classes A and D, and at Central Michigan University's Perry Shorts (now Kelly/Shorts) Stadium for Classes C and B.

In 1976, the finals were moved to the Silverdome, where they stayed for 29 seasons, until 2004.

Today, 256 teams participate in the four-week state football playoffs in eight divisions.

I first was introduced to the state football finals excitement as an 11-year-old fifth-grader. It was 1977, and I was in my second season of playing youth football for the Westland Jets. I had survived my first season on the freshman football squad the year before, and now I was a grizzled veteran up on the JV team.

I was cool.

I was happening.

I was a 100-pound offensive tackle/defensive end in a helmet big enough for two of my heads and shoulder pads, I swear, made for a 6-foot-5, 260-pound grown man.

My coach that year was a bona fide legend, or at least that's what I thought. His name was Todd Mapes and he was a football god. Two years prior, he was a starting defensive back for Livonia Franklin's 1975 state championship football team. The Patriots beat Traverse City 21-7 in the state's first Class A final.

Looking back, he was only a 20-year-old kid who drove a beat-up Mustang and wore cheap sunglasses. But to me, and all the other guys on my team, he was Vince Lombardi and Joe Namath rolled into one.

Even though we only won one game that year — on a Hail Mary prayer my best friend at the time, Craig Pudas, threw to my second best friend, Gary Janus, for a touchdown (which, of course, was talked about the rest of our growing up years), and we ended the season with just 13 players — Coach Mapes was still a football hero.

Ever since that time, I've been enamored with the Chelsea's Tom Kennedy helped construct this 50-foot catamaran. Along with a colleague, Kennedy has been building the vessel for the past seven years.

BOATING

Chelsea man builds 50-foot catamaran

What is it with the Chelsea-Dexter area and the recent surge of boat building?

Recently, Chelsea resident John Foster built a 44-foot vessel in his home and last month transported it on its maiden voyage to Lake Michigan.

Now, Chelsea resident Tom Kennedy and friend Ed Wheatley of Ann Arbor have constructed a 50-foot catamaran offshore racing boat in a small shop on Huron River Drive in Dexter.

The duo began building the craft in 1998 in Ann Arbor.

It's a bit unusual for boat building of this magnitude to occur in the Chelsea-Dexter area, as opposed to near a major marina.

But, with two boats more than 40 feet long constructed in the area recently, maybe a new business is growing in the land of Jiffy Mix.

The boat is arguably one of the largest offshore racing boats ever constructed in Southeastern Michigan, let alone the Chelsea-Dexter area.

The vessel is Australian designed by Crowther Multihulls, and made out of a carbon fiber composite.

The craft made its nautical debut last month in Lake St. Clair.

BASKETBALL

Bulldog hoopsters to hold tryouts

Chelsea girls' basketball will hold tryouts Aug. 15 at the high school gymnasium.

The varsity tryouts will be at 9 a.m. The JV hoopsters will hit the court at 11 a.m., while the freshmen cagers should report at 5 p.m.

All those trying out must have a current athletic physical to participate.

For more information, call varsity coach Todd Blomquist at 1-734-645-8629. JV coach Jenni Driscoll at 1-517-403-4296 or freshman coach John Ruhlig at 1-734-395-1968.

Dexter football officially begins the 2005 season Monday with its first practice. The Dreadnaughts, along with other teams throughout Michigan, hope to capture a league title and qualify for the state playoffs. Throughout the years, there have been many memorable performances at the state football finals. The state playoffs began in 1975 and included 16 teams in four classes. Today, there are 256 squads in eight divisions that qualify for the postseason.

— CHELSEA GOLFER —

Chelsea's Brett Common finished third with a score of 72, at the PowerBilt Junior Golf tournament at Barton Hills Country Club last month. A 2005 graduate of Chelsea High School, Common will attend Mississippi State University in the fall, enrolling in the professional golf management program.

BASEBALL

Paulun leads team to title

The A. Green Financial Group Baseball Club captured the American Amateur Baseball Congress Connie Mack district championship in Flint July 23, posting a 4-2 win over the Ontario Blue Jays.

The Ypsilanti-based team went 5-0 in the double-elimination tournament, including an 8-0 victory over the Grosse Pointe Red Birds.

A. Green pitcher Andy Paulun of Dexter went 6 and two-thirds innings for the win in the final game over the Toronto-based Jays. A. Green also defeated the Jays 4-3 earlier in the tournament.

Paulun threw a two-hitter, with six walks and seven strikeouts, while the two runs were unearned in the top of the seventh inning. Central Michigan University's Jeff Richard pitched to one batter to get the final out and a save.

Offensively, Jon Castine of Orchard Lake St. Mary's cranked a two-run home run in the sixth inning, giving the Eagles a 4-0 lead. Castine was 3-for-3 with a run scored and two RBIs, while Joey Henry and DJ LeMahieu, both of Birmingham Brother Rice, batted in a run each.

Eric Simcox of Detroit Catholic Central and Drew Churchward of Ann Arbor Pioneer were both 2-for-3.

In the win over the Red Birds, pitcher Derek Mosher of Ann Arbor Pioneer scattered five hits, walked one batter and struck out four in the five-inning mercy-rule shortened game.

Simcox led the way at the plate with three singles in four at bats with two RBIs and a run scored. Chad Pierce of Fond Du Lac, Wis., was 2-for-3 with two RBIs and two runs scored.

Devan Kline of Battle Creek Lakeview was the winning pitcher over the Jays.

With the bat, Simcox stroked a two-out two RBI game-winning double in the bottom of the seventh inning, scoring Jeff Whitlow of Birmingham Detroit Country Day and Henry.

A. Green also defeated Palacios Tailors, 10-0, with Jeff Tervo of Clinton High School picking up the victory from the mound, and the Michigan Monarchs 12-4, with Pierce earning the win.

The squad now moves onto the AABC Connie Mack North Central Regional in Battle Creek. The winner of that tournament will become one of eight teams to play in the Connie Mack World Series in Farmington, N.M., Aug. 6 through 12.

Stan Eldridge, Bob Riker, Jonny Ichesco and Dann Goodson coach the club.

The team's roster also includes Scott Beals of Brother Rice, Wes Munson of Fond Du Lac, Wis., Clayton Pack of Livonia Stevenson and John Rochow of Birmingham Detroit Country Day.

Avalanche capture tourney

The Dexter Avalanche, a travel baseball team comprised of youths 10 years old and younger, concluded its inaugural season last weekend by winning the 10th annual Diamondback Classic at Island Park in Adrian.

The locals defeated Carleton's Varsity Athletic, 16-6, in the championship game last Sunday night. It was their fourth victory in five contests during the two-day event and improved their season record to 25-8.

The toughest chore for the Avalanche may have been getting out of their pool, which included two talented teams — the Southgate Storm and Ypsilanti American. Dexter, Southgate and Ypsilanti finished 2-1 in pool play, but Dexter was awarded the playoff berth because it allowed the fewest runs.

In the playoffs, the Avalanche survived a difficult semifinal against the Frenchtown All-Stars before cruising in the title game.

"It was a tremendous way to end our first season," Dexter coach Matt Seidl said. "These boys deserve a lot of credit. They lost a few big games this season because they didn't hit well, but, as a team, they changed their approach at the plate and it paid off."

In the finals, the Avalanche recorded 16 hits, many of the line-drive variety. They tallied four runs in the first inning, four in the third and six in the fourth.

Jonathan Haley and Derek Seidl led the locals with three safeties each, while Nick King, Jordan Sharp and Justin Juback all had two hits. Sharp's double and Juback's triple highlighted Dexter's fourth-inning rally.

Southpaw Grant Bentley, a workhorse throughout the tournament, pitched four innings of relief to nab the victory. He scattered five hits and allowed three runs while striking out three.

"Our defense played a role as well," Seidl said. "For example, it saved us in our big win over Southgate on Saturday. We were especially pleased with Brett Garwood's versatility. He's normally our catcher, but he also did a great job at third base and second base."

Other Avalanche players included MacKay Little, Joey Barlett, Andy McWilliams, Brennan Maisch and Gregory Goffee.

Here's a recap of Dexter's other Diamondback Classic games:

Dexter Avalanche, 16
Detroit Diablos, 1

Seidl and Bentley combined to pitch a no-hitter in this five-inning affair. Seidl struck out seven in three innings, while Bentley fanned three during his relief stint.

Offensively, Juback led the winners' 18-hit attack with three singles and a double. Haley and Seidl both went 3-for-4, while King, Sharp, Little and McWilliams collected two safeties each.

Sharp's two-run homer highlighted an eight-run second inning for the Avalanche.

Dexter Avalanche, 8
Southgate Storm, 4

Juback's two-run single in the top of the sixth inning snapped a 4-4 deadlock and enabled Dexter to regain the momentum.

The Avalanche, who squandered a three-run lead in the bottom of the fifth, started the decisive rally after their first two batters were retired in the sixth. Singles by King and Sharp preceded Juback's liner to right field, and Barlett and Little followed with RBI infield singles.

Sharp, Barlett and Little all went 2-for-3 to lead Dexter's 10-hit attack. Little's two-run double opened the scoring in the second inning, which also included two-out run-scoring hits from Bentley and McWilliams.

King started on the mound for the Avalanche and allowed just one run and three hits in three and two-thirds innings. Barlett picked up the win, hurling one and two-thirds innings of scoreless relief.

Ypsilanti American, 7
Dexter Avalanche, 3

The locals managed only four hits off Ypsilanti's hard-throwing pitcher.

Sharp and Barlett had RBI singles, while Haley and McWilliams both singled and scored a run.

Goffee turned in a solid pitching performance for the Avalanche, allowing two unearned runs and two hits in three innings. He also fanned four.

Dexter Avalanche, 11
Frenchtown All-Stars, 2

An eight-run fifth inning blew open a nail-biter and propelled Dexter into the championship game.

Goffee paced the Avalanche with three hits, including a RBI triple in the fifth frame. He also pitched four scoreless innings, surrendering just one hit while striking out three.

Bentley collected two hits for the winners, while Sharp blasted a triple.

Champion hosts summer activities

Though the competitive season is over, summertime at Washtenaw County-based Champion Gymnastics is still full of activity.

The summer months are a time for exercising, tumbling, jumping and gymnastics at Champion.

The local club conducts regular gymnastics classes, field trips, birthday parties and camps during the summer.

Running the summertime activities is Staci Washington.

"Everyone has had a terrific summer in spite of this year's extra hot days," Washington said.

Champion is gearing up for this fall's competitive schedule. New this fall to the club will be a boys' gymnastics program, a high school training course, a prep optional class for previous gymnasts and additional classes at all levels.

In youth gymnastics, the highest standard an athlete can achieve is Level 10.

"Fall registration is now under way and we are excited about another record year," Washington said.

Lucy Fuller (left), Cady Paquin, Addison Syrkowski and MacKenna Anderson see the world from a different angle during summertime activities at Champion Gymnastics last week.

For more information, call Champion at 426-3289.

Champion is at 253 Dino Drive, just west of the Baker and Jackson Road intersection.

FINALS

prep football finals.

I started personally attending the state championships in 1987, while a college student. I haven't missed one since.

The greatest player I've ever seen in the finals was Tyrone Wheatley. He's the best player I've ever seen period.

At 6-2, 225, with Olympic-caliber sprinter's speed and thighs the size of the proverbial tree trunk, he led Dearborn Heights Robichaud to its only state title, with a 21-7 victory over Upper Peninsula power Kingsford in the 1990 Class B final.

I watched Robichaud throughout that entire season. Its offense was pretty basic. If Wheatley was playing tailback, it was pitch the ball to Tyrone and get out of the way. If he was lining up at quarterback, it was hike the ball to Tyrone and, you guessed it, get out of the way.

Simple, but highly effective. No team was ever able to stop the Bulldogs.

While Wheatley was the best player I've ever seen, his Robichaud teammate, Alex White, at 6-11, 370, was the biggest player I've ever laid eyes on in a football uniform. Picture Shaquille O'Neal in shoulder pads.

Other top players I've witnessed hoist the state championship trophy were quarterback Mill "The Thrill" Coleman, who led Farmington Hills Harrison to Class B state crowns in 1988 and '89, and wide receiver Charles Rogers, whose Saginaw team beat Birmingham Brother Rice 14-7 for the Division 2 title in 1999.

The best team I've ever seen at the finals?

Take your pick from the numerous Harrison squads throughout the decades. The Coleman-led team of 1988 (44-9 win over St. Joseph in final), the 1991 Roy Granger-led squad (34-7 win over Cheboygan) or the 2000 Drew Stanton-led team (42-0 over East Lansing) all were outstanding clubs.

A team I never saw in person, but I'm sure would have given those Harrison squads a run for its money, was the 1983 Class A state champion Birmingham Brother Rice club. That team featured future NFL pros defensive tackle Mike Lodish (UCLA), offensive guard Bob Kula (MSU), running back Mel Farr Jr. (UCLA) and wide receiver Mike Farr (UCLA), along with Notre Dame recruit Matt Dingens, a 6-6, 235-pound linebacker.

Are you ready for some football?

I know I am.

But can we skip the flip-flops and sunscreen?

Sevde attends seminar

Chelsea resident Jan Sevde was among 46 sales associates of the Charles Reinhart Co. Realtors, who, along with agents from The Danberry Co. in Toledo, Ohio, attended a two-day training program presented by Floyd Wickman.

Wickman is widely recognized as the top results-producing trainer in the real estate industry, and has been named by Realtor Magazine as one of the 25 Most Influential People in Real Estate.

Sevde is based in Reinhart's Chelsea office.

Wickman's SMART program enhances an agent's skills in helping buyers and sellers to make sound real estate decisions.

Although many of the Wickman sessions are led by members of his team, Reinhart was offered the opportunity to attend a program presented by Wickman himself. Reinhart and Danberry were the only brokers in this region to receive the special invitation.

The Charles Reinhart Co. was founded in Ann Arbor in 1971. With more than 160 sales associates in eight offices, the company closed $637 million in residential and commercial transactions in 2004.

Darr earns sales award

What first started as an opportunity to have a little fun has turned into so much more for Jennifer Darr of Chelsea, an independent sales representative for Silpada Designs.

Within a year of starting her own independent sterling silver home-party business, Darr has won national recognition, including three awards July 16 at Silpada Designs' seventh annual National Conference Awards Ceremony in Overland Park, Kansas.

Silpada Designs is a multi-million dollar business and one of the fastest growing direct-selling companies in the United States, with more than 9,000 independent sales representatives, according to a press release from Darr.

As one of Silpada's top representatives, Darr walked away from the 2005 National Conference as the Nov. 1 Rookie New Business Developer, No. 1 Rookie Recruiter and No. 2 Recruiter of the Year.

In less than one year, she has personally generated retail sales of more than $73,900 and recruited more than 25 sales people.

WASHTENAW COUNTY

Many turn out for 4-H fair

Animals, crafts and old-fashioned games among the highlights

By Rita Fischer
Special Writer

Youngsters from across Washtenaw County, including the Chelsea-Dexter area, wrapped up another successful 4-H Youth Show July 30 at the Farm Council Grounds near Saline.

Horses, chickens, rabbits, homemade crafts and jumping llamas brought plenty of laughter. Sunny skies and cooler temperatures probably helped.

Nancy Thelen, Washtenaw County MSU Extension director, was pleased with this year's turnout, which was up. More than 7,000 visitors came out for the events, despite construction and road closures along Ann Arbor-Saline Road.

Thelen said she enjoyed watching the display of teamwork as kids pitched in to help one another.

"I like it when we all work together," she said. "I feel we had wonderful cooperation from the families and leaders, and that makes the week more fun for everyone."

The fair featured two new events — a rooster-crowing contest and tree-survival contest in which participants who were given seedlings last fall were asked to return the trees dead or alive.

Youngsters also witnessed a llama-leaping contest and participated in llama story time.

Jessica Zalucha of Webster Township is a member of the Ann Arbor Llama Lovers Club. She has been involved in 4-H for 11 years, working with llamas for the past five years. She was pleased with the crowd's enthusiasm for the llama limbo and stories.

"Some llamas can be trained to limbo very well, and they wiggle or crawl under," she said. "It was a lot of fun. Because it was on the schedule, it was more exciting to watch and have the people cheering as our llamas did their tricks."

Betty Burns of Ann Arbor served as superintendent of the llama barn. She said llama story time was a hit.

"Kids really liked hearing the stories and looking at the llama books," she said.

Danielle Ruhlig of Lima Township attends 4-H with her sister, Janelle. They are members of Silver Leaves Club.

"I really like 4-H," she said. "You get to experience different things and see how other people do stuff and what they like."

Sue Zalucha of Webster Township has four children

COUNTY

Webcast meetings to be aired

Live broadcasts of county meetings will reach wider audience

By Nathan Bomey
Heritage Newspapers

The Washtenaw County Board of Commissioners is now open to the world.

In a technological step forward, the board will start offering live Webcasts of its meetings online. The board's regular meetings, work sessions and Ways and Means Committee meetings will be available in a streaming feed at http://wctv.ewashtenaw.org/boc.

Dale Vanderford, the county's technical operations manager, said the decision to broadcast the meetings online came from a desire to broaden the board's audience.

"The current board we have is very concerned about getting their message out to the constituents," Vanderford said. "And it's sometimes difficult to get down to Ann Arbor" to attend the meetings.

The first Webcast was scheduled for 6:30 p.m. July 27.

The board's regular meetings are held at 6:45 p.m. the first and third Wednesdays of every month. The Ways and Means Committee meets for 15 minutes prior to every regular meeting. The board's working sessions take place at 6:30 p.m. the first and third Thursdays of every month.

The decision to broadcast the meetings to the world via the Internet will give the public a first-hand look at the ongoing debates over several hot topics at the county level.

Commissioners soon must decide whether to continue to offer road patrol services to contracting municipalities after 2007.

Wes Prater, the chairman of the Washtenaw County Board of Commissioners, said Webcasting is a good opportunity to invite more people to the meetings.

"Public participation is the hallmark of local democracy, so I'm extremely pleased that we will be able to reach more individual citizens by offering the board's meetings on the Internet," he said in a press release. "And we can do it without additional costs with the county's present capacity."

Archived footage of meetings will not be available right away, Vanderford said. But he said the county is hop-

PUBLIC COMMENT & OTHER ISSUES

There was no additional public comment.

Trustee Wojno expressed concern that the Board spent too much time on matters that could easily and effectively be approved by office staff.

Trustee Howard inquired if the grub control and parking lot repair had been scheduled. Per Supervisor Kelly, no.

Treasurer Knight informed the Board that the annual audit is in progress. She also distributed the 2005 summer tax roll and informed the Board that the Township will accept credit card payments for the summer taxes.

The meeting was adjourned at 11:02 PM.

DEATHS

JOANNE MARIE BOBO
Gregory
Formerly of Dexter

Joanne Marie (Rosentreter) Bobo, 52, of Gregory, formerly of Dexter, died July 26, 2005, at the University of Michigan Hospital. She was born April 3, 1953, in Ann Arbor.

Mrs. Bobo graduated from Dexter High School in 1971. She started a family of two children. She enjoyed attending all of her children's activities, never missing a school field trip, wrestling meet or horse show.

Mrs. Bobo was a Girl Scout leader and a Sunday school teacher. She had just started wool rug making, and quickly became an extremely talented artist.

She loved spending time outdoors, which was apparent at the new home she built in Gregory. When constructing her home in the woods, she made sure that the builder saved every tree possible. She also enjoyed spending time outdoors on a pontoon boat on Portage Lake with the Klave family.

Mrs. Bobo was very well known for her baking abilities, especially her cut-out sugar cookies. They were a frequent request from all of her friends. Most of all, she loved spending time with her two [illegible] Sparky and Waldo.

Survivors include her two children, Andrew (Nicole) Bobo and Tracey Bobo; her sister, Cheryl Eaton; and her mother, Marilyn Rosentreter.

A memorial service was held on Tuesday at St. Andrew's United Church of Christ in Dexter. A luncheon followed the service.

Memorial contributions may be made to Paws with a Cause, 2660 Auburn Road, Suite 700, Auburn Hills, MI 48326.

Funeral arrangements were by Hosmer-Muehlig Funeral Chapel in Dexter.

VIVIAN I. MORCOM
Dexter

Vivian I. Morcom, 79, of Dexter died July 28, 2005, at her home with her family by her side. She was born July 17, 1926, in Elkton, the daughter of John Wesley and Carrie (Gauscho) Cox. She lived in Dexter for more than 38 years.

On June 12, 1946, she married Clarence Morcom in Detroit, and he preceded her in death Jan. 24, 2004.

Survivors include two sons, Tom of Washington and Ronald of [illegible] children, Crystal Miller, Scott Morcom, Angela Naillon, Megan and Melissa Morcom; two great-grandchildren, Emily and Jacob Miller; and one sister, Thelma (Ronald) Garber of Gladwin.

She was preceded in death by a son, Larry Morcom, in 1999.

According to her wishes, cremation has taken place and there will be no services. Burial will be at Oak Grove East in Chelsea.

Memorial contributions may be made to Arbor Hospice, 2366 Oak Valley Drive, Ann Arbor, MI 48103.

Arrangements were by Cole Funeral Chapel in Chelsea.

Tobacco smoke may pose greater health risk for overweight teens

Teens, particularly overweight teens, who are exposed to tobacco smoke are at an increased risk of the metabolic syndrome, according to a study published in Circulation: Journal of the American Heart Association.

The study is the first to discover a link between tobacco exposure and the metabolic syndrome in this age group.

The metabolic syndrome is a cluster of conditions that increase cardiovascular risk. The syndrome often develops in childhood and is associated with insulin resistance, a metabolic disorder in which the body can't use insulin efficiently.

"Tobacco and obesity are the two leading causes of preventable death in the United States, so our findings may have profound implications for the future health of the public," lead author Dr. Michael Weitzman, executive director of the American Academy of Pediatrics Center for Child Health Research and professor and associate chair at the University of Rochester School of Medicine and Dentistry, both in Rochester, N.Y., said in a press release.

In teens, the metabolic syndrome primarily strikes those who are overweight or at-risk for overweight, a group that has tripled in size during the last two decades. This makes "a growing segment of the nation's youth uniquely vulnerable to the development of this syndrome and to subsequent premature cardiovascular disease and type II diabetes," the researchers said.

As a result of a lack of a universally accepted definition for the metabolic syndrome in adolescents, the study defined it as having at least three of these conditions: waist circumference at least in the 90th percentile for age and sex; blood pressure at or above the 90th percentile for age, sex and height; hypertriglyceridemia; low high-density lipoprotein (HDL or "good" cholesterol); and elevated fasting glucose.

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control uses body mass index, a ratio of height to weight, for classifying weight. At-risk for overweight is defined as at least the 85th percentile for age and gender. Overweight is a BMI of at least the 95th percentile.

The researchers studied 2,273 adolescents ages 12 to 19 using data from the CDC's National Health and Nutrition Examination Survey III from 1988 to 1994. The teens and their parents were asked whether they or anyone in the household smoked, and the teens received physical exams with laboratory blood and urine testing.

This is the first study in any age group to use self-reported tobacco exposure along with measurements of cotinine, a biomarker of nicotine breakdown in the liver. Two-thirds of the teens who abstained from smoking had cotinine levels between .05 and 15 nanograms per milliliter, indicating exposure to secondhand smoke.

The researchers found:

•Overall, 5.6 percent of all adolescents had the metabolic syndrome;

•1.2 percent of those unexposed to smoke had the metabolic syndrome;

•5.4 percent of those with cotinine levels indicating smoke exposure had the disorder; and

•8.7 percent of those who actively smoked had the metabolic syndrome.

"All things equal, you are almost five times more likely to develop the metabolic syndrome if you are exposed to secondhand smoke," Weitzman said. "Active smoking increases the risk to at least six times that of a non-exposed individual."

The strength of the dose-response relationship was a surprise, Weitzman said.

"We were expecting to find something, but in terms of epidemiologic phenomena, those are huge differences," he said.

An even more dramatic effect was found in overweight and at-risk for overweight teens:

•5.6 percent of non-exposed individuals had the metabolic syndrome;

•19.6 percent of exposed teens had the metabolic syndrome; and

•23.6 percent of the active smokers had the metabolic syndrome.

Other subgroups associated with higher risk of the metabolic syndrome included:

•8.1 percent of males had the disorder compared to 2.9 percent of females.

•6.7 percent of Mexican Americans and 6.5 percent of whites had the disorder compared to 3.1 percent of blacks.

Weitzman said the research group will replicate the study when sufficient data has been collected from the most recent NHANES survey. However, he said there is no reason to believe the implications will be any less important since the obesity epidemic continues.

About 16 percent of all children and teens in the United States are overweight, according to the American Heart Association.

"This is a group in which it is profoundly important to reduce secondhand smoke exposure and active smoking," Weitzman said.

who participate in 4-H.

"4-H gives them a sense of responsibility," she said. "It teaches them avenues in which they learn time management skills and make decisions on what projects they want to do and makes them come out of their comfort zones."

Elaine Feldkamp, the program assistant for Washtenaw County, was pleased with the mitten project at this year's fair.

"The mitten project went over beautifully," she said. "We made about 40 pairs of mittens, completed in nearly six hours with several more pairs cut out."

Children who wandered through the barns had the chance to learn an old-fashioned game or two as well.

"The kids looked for pennies in sawdust, and they got a reward," Feldkamp said. "Some of the kids have never played jacks before. I think parents should bring the old games back. It was a lot of fun."

Debrah Cohn helped youngsters with hands-on activities as part of the TLC 4-H metal crafting club.

"Kids got to make necklaces and take them home. We found that having the hands-on activities gave the kids something else to do," she said.

Grant to help recruit nurses

Efforts to recruit and retain nurses in the University of Michigan Health System have received support from two federal grants that will fund professional development, individualized career planning and a program that involves more nurses in decision making.

One grant, called Nursing Connections: Strategies to Enhance Nurse Retention, is designed to reduce nurse turnover and vacancy rates by 5 percent a year for each of the five years of the grant and to improve the patient experience with the hospital's more than 3,000 nurses.

In partnership with the Stephen M. Ross School of Business' Center for Positive Organizational Scholarship, UMHS' Nursing Services will offer focused education to nurses through workshops and other unit-based sessions on improving communication and collaboration as a means of reaching the goals.

The five-year, $811,500 grant is from the Health Resources and Services Administration of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

The second grant will fund a new Center for Professional Development and Mentoring, which will provide career planning, mentoring and specialized education for UMHS nurses.

The partnership with the U of M School of Nursing — called "A Framework for Professional Nurse Development: The Power of One" — is funded for three years through a $704,000 grant from HRSA.

"The ultimate goal of both grants is to improve patient outcomes by supporting nurse recruitment and retention through continually improving the practice environment for our nurses and developing expertise," Margaret Calarco, senior associate director and chief of nursing services at U of M and principal investigator on both grants, said in a press release.

"We believe that the most sustainable way to recruit and retain talented nurses is to provide diverse and innovative opportunities to develop their professional careers and impact the care they provide to patients and families through creating empowered practice environments."

The Nursing Connections grant is targeted at creating cultural changes in which nurses are actively involved in what Calarco describes as "a more empowered culture" by being active participants in clinical and administrative decisions.

Many U of M nurse managers have already participated in the Center for Positive Organizational Scholarship workshops. The grant allows the effort to be extended to clinical care supervisors, more nurse managers, and unit staff.

Workshops will be offered in the theory and process of positive organizational scholarship, an emerging discipline in organizational studies that focuses on ways in which organizations and their members flourish by developing environments that focus on appreciation, collaboration, vitality and fulfillment.

The Framework for Professional Nurse Development grant supports an increase in the number of nursing personnel at U of M who will advance their education and careers by receiving specialized training and education. Nurses will receive a customized strategic career plan for professional development, as well as the support of a mentor.

They also will have opportunities for career advancement and cross-training. Included will be an on-site nursing degree program at U of M Hospital, offered by UMHS Nursing Services and the U of M School of Nursing.

"The on-site (bachelor's degree in nursing) program will allow a convenient and flexible option for nurses who want to further their education. This partnership with the School of Nursing provides excellent opportunities for our nurses," Calarco said.

In an effort to increase the diversity of the workforce, 10-week summer internships will be offered to students from racial and ethnic minority groups. The goal is to build a workforce of skilled and committed nurses who have the talent and ability to care for an ever-increasing diverse population.

The new center also will strengthen nurses' competence in caring for a diverse population with training provided by the School of Nursing's Office of Multicultural Affairs.

DEXTER SCHOOLS

Educational foundation funds programs

About 25 teachers receive grants for special projects

By Heather Connor
Staff Writer

The Educational Foundation of Dexter recently awarded $22,000 in grants to fund programs in Dexter schools.

The foundation awards grants twice a year to teachers who apply for them. The foundation's goal is to provide funding for innovative and creative educational projects that are beyond the funding provided by the school district.

"The foundation hopes to spark ideas and increase enthusiasm throughout the school community and promote the continuing success of Dexter Community Schools and its students," said Caroline Altomare, a foundation volunteer.

The grants were awarded this past spring to about 25 teachers, and the second round of bi-annual grants will be awarded in the fall.

Roger Moore, principal at Bates Elementary School, has used grants from the foundation for the school art department and media center. He has begun a central resource library of leveled reading books sorted by reading levels as opposed to grade level, Altomare said. Teachers will now be able to share a large pool of reading material.

Moore received a grant this past spring to purchase science books for the resource library. He also received a grant to fund murals painted on the walls of the media center by high school art students.

Debora Marsh, a teacher at Dexter High School, was awarded two grants. One was for the debate and forensics programs.

"The grants help to defer the costs of running the programs by giving us money for registration fees at invitational tournaments and judges for those same tournaments," Marsh said.

Marsh's second grant was for Jargon, a literary magazine comprised of art, photography, stories and poems written by Dexter High School students and staff. The first edition was printed this past school year, and Marsh hopes to print two editions next year.

"It's really not bad for our first attempt," Marsh said of Jargon.

The science department at Dexter High School has made extensive use of grant funds, Altomare said. Department Head Cheryl Wells said the program was able to purchase bones for use in anatomy classes this year, thanks to the Educational Foundation of Dexter.

Teachers at Wylie Elementary School also took advantage of grant funds. Third-graders in Lisa Suomala's class now use technology that allows for interactive teaching between teachers, students and the Internet. The students use a Polyvision interactive white board that runs on Webster software that makes the interaction possible.

"The foundation hopes to spark ideas and increase enthusiasm throughout the school community and promote the continuing success of Dexter Community Schools and its students."
Caroline Altomare
Educational Foundaiton of Dexter

The equipment and program were purchased with a foundation grant.

Other teachers at Wylie used grant funds for many other purposes, including a visit from "The Critter Guy" who brings live animals into classrooms for pupils to learn about science in a hands-on manner, Altomare said.

The Educational Foundation of Dexter is a nonprofit corporation formed under the laws of the state of Michigan. The foundation is governed by a volunteer board of trustees, which includes parents, teachers and community and business leaders.

The board is independent of the Dexter Board of Education and the Dexter Education Association. Trustees are responsible for raising funds, soliciting and approving grant requests and trusteeship of the endowment fund. The majority of fundraising is done through an auction, which is held annually in March.

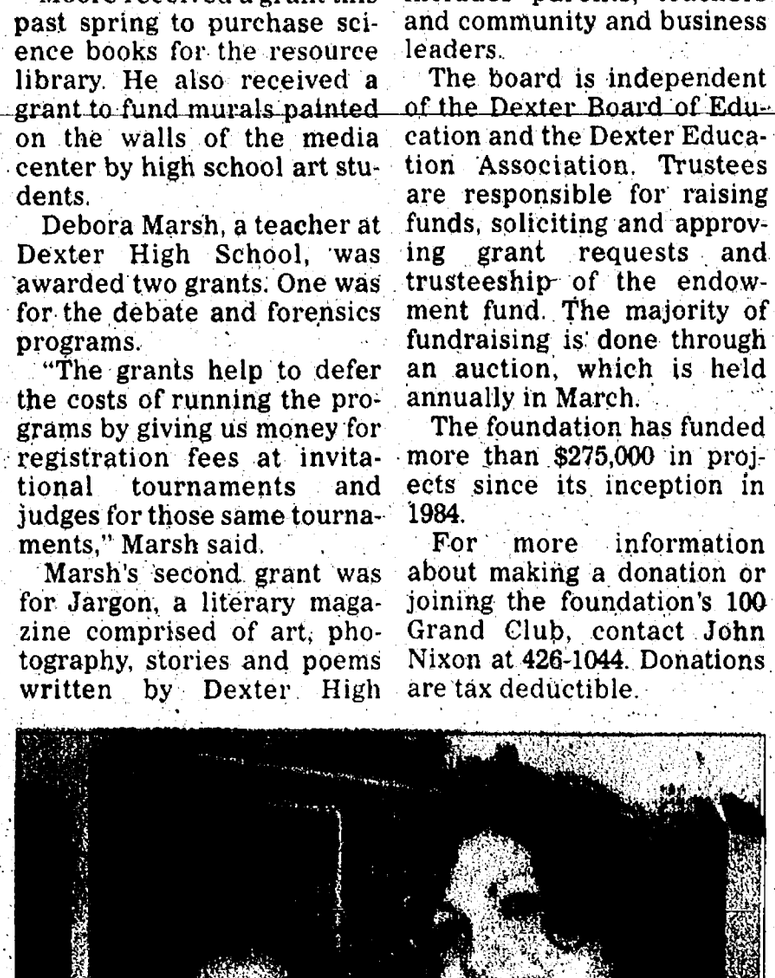

The foundation has funded more than $275,000 in projects since its inception in 1984.

For more information about making a donation or joining the foundation's 100 Grand Club, contact John Nixon at 426-1044. Donations are tax deductible.

Dexter Daze to return with old favorites

Colors the Clown, Big Pinky, parade, sidewalk sales back

By Jameel Naqvi
Special Writer

Visitors to this year's Dexter Daze will find a few new faces among many familiar ones.

Two new bands will help round out the eclectic musical lineup designed to cater to a wide range of tastes.

"We want as many different sorts of folks to come down as possible," Dexter Daze Chairman Arden Schaffer said.

Dexter Daze, which got its start more than two decades ago, draws thousands from Washtenaw County, especially those who live within the boundaries of the Dexter School District.

This year's number of visitors is expected to exceed last year's turnout as the event continues to grow within the confines of Monument Park.

The schedule of events features acts for children in the afternoon and adults during the rest of the day that should entertain the whole family.

Festivities kick off 11 a.m. Aug. 12 with Julie Austin, who will perform children's songs. Perennial kids' favorite Zeemo, a yo-yo artist and juggler, will follow with a performance from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m.

Next comes children's musician Kevin Devine, who performs from 2 to 3 p.m.

Manchester resident Colors the Clown returns to entertain children from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Friday. At the same time Colors is performing, older patrons of Dexter Daze can feed their nostalgia for Glen Miller with a concert by The II-V-I Orchestra.

Fans of a later era of American music will enjoy the '50s rock 'n' roll of Big Pinky from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Another group new to Dexter Daze, The Martindales, will finish up the night with a three-hour set of blues and rock from 8 to 11 p.m.

Dexter Daze will resume on Saturday with an encore performance by Colors at 11:30 a.m. Magician Jeff Wawrzaszek will keep the kids entertained with his illusions from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m.

Next, Devine will treat visitors to more family-friendly music from 2 to 3 p.m. The jazz group The Harold Gordon Small Band, the bluegrass band The RFD Boys and the blues rockers George Bedard and the Kingpins will perform from 3:30 to 11 p.m.

While patrons are listening to the live music or watching the performers, they can visit 110 exhibitor booths in the park and throughout downtown.

Most of the booths will be manned by artists and artisans selling jewelry, pottery, blown glass and various handmade products, including the popular pickled beets.

In addition to booths operated by local businesses, the village and the Dexter Historical Society, there will be a baby-changing station, a moonwalk and food vendors.

Even businesses that do not participate in Dexter Daze can reap the benefits of the large number of visitors the event attracts.

"I've been told by a number of merchants that Dexter Daze is their busiest weekend of the year," Schaffer said.

From the start, local businesses have been instrumental in the success of Dexter Daze. Business owners first supported the event with sidewalk sales and now defray the cost of the entertainment, which is free as a result of their contributions.

This year's event was made possible with the support of 63 business donors in addition to the major sponsors, LaFontaine Chevrolet, Palmer Insurance, Money Source, Clark on the Go, Dexter Kiwanis, Koch & White, Victory Lanes, Dexter Area Firefighters, Thomson-Shore Inc., Dexter United Methodist Men, Dexter Rotary Club, DAPCO Industries, Dexter Lions Club and The Ann Arbor News.

Additional funding for the event will be raised from stall fees and Dexter Daze T-shirts that will be on sale for $10.

The annual Dexter Daze Parade begins 10 a.m. Saturday at Wylie Elementary School and continues down Dexter-Ann Arbor Road through town.

The one-hour parade will feature the Celtic Pipe and Drum Corps, the

Mix of musical entertainment on tap

Annual festival to feature performances for patrons of all ages

By Jameel Naqvi
Special Writer

Visitors to the gazebo in Monument Park during Dexter Daze will be treated to a mix of musical entertainment for children and adults with jazz, bluegrass, rock and blues.

Festival organizers have brought back many crowd favorites that visitors enjoy listening to every year and added two new groups: blues rockers The Martindales and the big-band musicians The II-V-I Orchestra. All of the groups are from the Ann Arbor area.

Each performance is sponsored by a different Dexter merchant.

Kevin Devine, a five-year veteran of Dexter Daze, is returning this year to entertain children with his fusion of music, comedy and audience participation. Devine says kids respond better to performers who enlist them as active participants in the music rather than consigning them to the role of passive observer.

"I'm not as much the performer as the facilitator," Devine said.

In Devine's shows, participation can include singing along, dancing, clapping, jumping or anything else Devine feels compelled to ask of his audience.

To add to the spontaneity of Devine's performances, he does not have set lists for his shows, allowing him to pick from a vast repertoire of original compositions and children's standards, including animal songs, story songs and songs in several different languages, to match the tastes of each particular audience.

A few of these tunes are familiar songs such as "B-I-N-G-O" and "The Wheels on the Bus," but Devine also has written hundreds of songs in different genres of music, including music for the TV shows "Judging Amy," "JAG," "General Hospital" and "Barney & Friends." He recently wrote songs for an up-and-coming girl group called The Ladybugs.

Though Devine has been on the children's music scene for more than 15 years, he says he never envisioned that he would one day be playing the accordion for kids with a giant shoe on his head. Devine, a University of Michigan graduate originally from Birmingham, was living with his wife in a Boston suburb when he made the decision that changed his life.

Devine had served as the director of a senior citizens' choir for 12 years when the group performed for preschool children. After the performance, the teacher asked Devine if he would return alone to entertain the kids. After a few weeks of playing for the preschoolers, Devine had found his calling and quit his job as a stringer for The New York Times to become a full-time children's entertainer.

Devine said his co-workers were not the only ones who were surprised by his choice. He remembers thinking, "Wow, I just burned a really major bridge that I spent a lot of time cultivating."

But Devine has never looked back, and since then he has played hundreds of gigs at schools, preschools, malls, museums, libraries and festivals around the country. Devine had to sharply curtail his performance schedule when he became a father with children of his own.

Drawing on his background in journalism, Devine now serves as director of student media at Eastern Michigan University, managing the day-to-day business operations of the student paper, The Eastern Echo. But he still finds time to pursue his passion, playing around two shows a month.

Of those shows, Devine said Dexter Daze is exceptional for its safe, family-friendly atmosphere and organizers who respect children's entertainers and understand the audience.

"I'm flattered to keep being asked back," he said, while admitting it is challenging to play for an audience constantly in flux. The people coming and going force Devine to work to continually maintain his connection with the crowd.

Devine will perform from 2 to 3 p.m. on both days of Dexter Daze.

Kevin Devine will perform from 2 to 3 p.m. Aug. 12 and 13 in the gazebo in Dexter's Monument Park.

Parade expected to be big this year

Frances Hoey to serve as parade marshal Saturday

By Jameel Jaqvi
Special Writer

Dexter Daze Parade co-chair Brian Diskin said he expects this year's parade to be the largest yet, with more floats, marchers and community involvement than ever before.

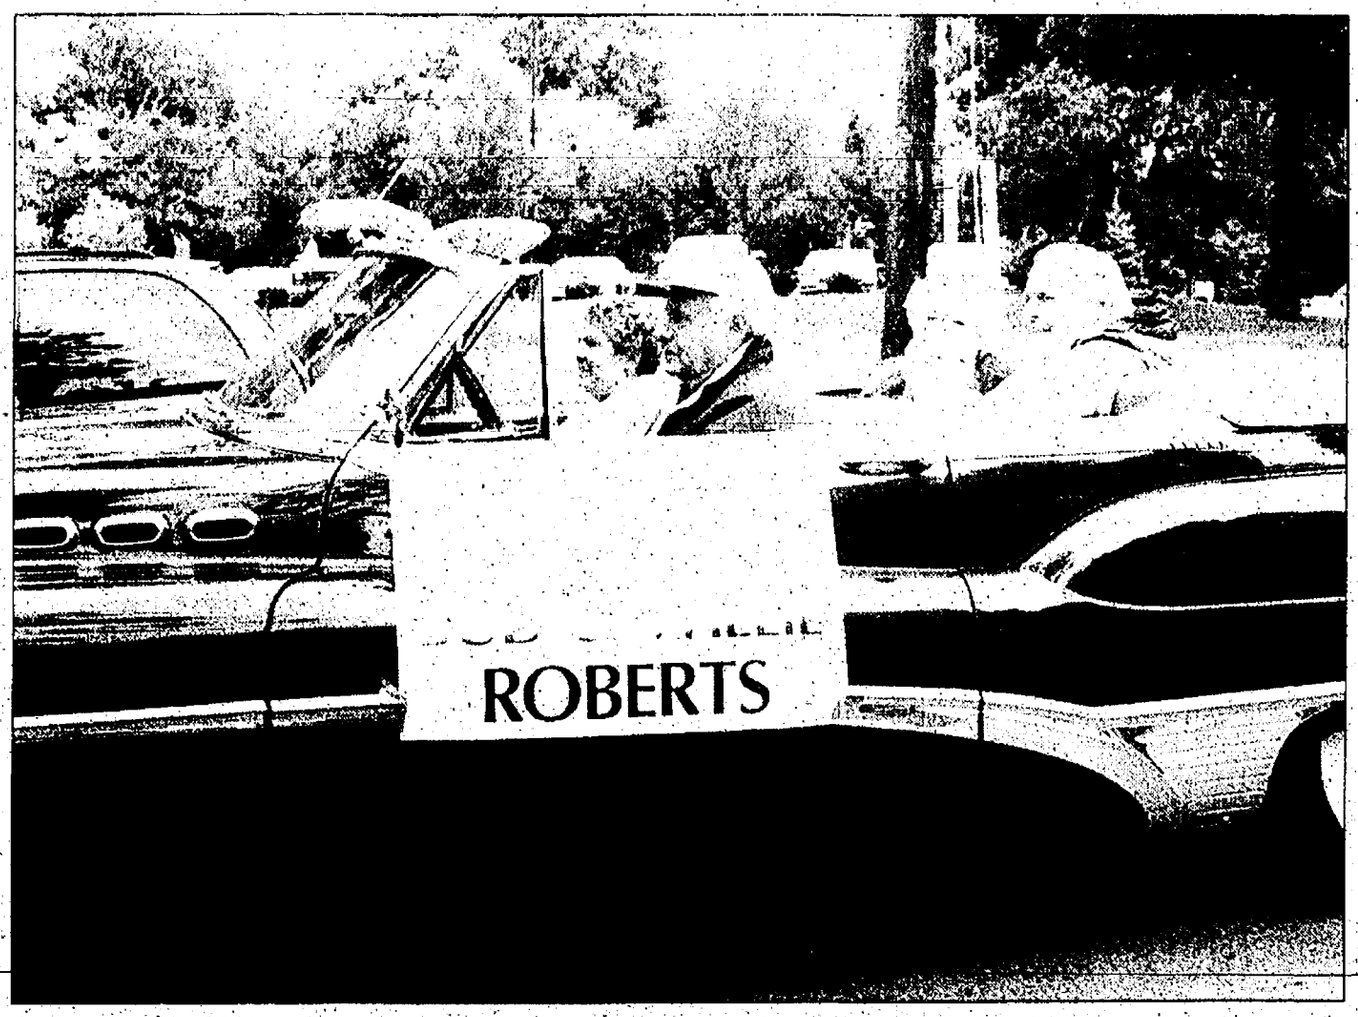

This year's parade honors 102-year-old Frances Hoey, who lives at the Hoey farm and who will serve as the grand marshal of the event. In the past, Hoey was active in local politics and the Dexter Area Chamber of Commerce.

As in previous years, the Celtic Pipe and Drum Corps from Whitelake will be the main attraction with bagpipe music from across the pond. Onlookers who miss the group on the parade route can catch a short performance at the Monument Park gazebo at which the group will perform "Amazing Grace" by special request of Dexter Daze Chairman Arden Schaffer.

Diskin said that as in the past, the Dexter High School Marching Band, under the direction of Gerald Woolfolk, will be a "central feature of the Dexter Daze Parade."

The parade also will feature many local organizations, including the Rotary Club, the chamber of commerce and the American Legion, as well as classic cars and fire trucks. Sheriff Dan Minzey is also expected to participate.

Each year, the Rotary Club models a playhouse after a historical building in Dexter. This year's playhouse is modeled after the building that currently houses the Cookie Momster, formerly the home of the Sheriff's Department. The club will display the playhouse during the parade, after which it will be auctioned off.

Bud and Willie Roberts were the 1999 Dexter Daze Parade marshals. This year, Frances Hoey will take the honor. The parade kicks off at 10 a.m. along Ann Arbor and Main streets.

Another unique float – made to look like a giant fishing lure – will be paraded by the Golden Drake Fly Shop in Pinckney.

Miss Washtenaw County and Junior Miss Washtenaw County will wave to onlookers along the parade route.

Youths from Champion Gymnastics and the Dexter School of Dance, Music and the Performing Arts will perform routines to music during the parade. Other local kids' groups, including Generations

Together and Morning Star Child Care, also will have spots in the parade.

Diskin said the Dexter Daze Committee is keeping the door wide open to all who wish to participate in the parade.

"We've never turned anyone away," said Diskin, who has helped organize the event for the past eight years. Although there is an application interested groups can fill out — Diskin has sent out 200 to local organizations — groups are welcome to join as late as the day of the parade.

However, the committee is requesting that participants do not bring off-road vehicles, go-carts, mini-bikes or not-street-legal motorcycles to the parade for the safety of marchers and observers.

Setup begins 9 a.m. at Wylie Elementary School. The one-hour parade, sponsored this year by the chamber of commerce, begins at 10 a.m.

Colors the Clown among the entertainers

Two new piglets to join popular children's entertainer

By Jameel Naqvi
Special Writer

Children at next week's Dexter Daze will have the opportunity to welcome two new performing piglets to Colors the Clown's act.

Colors will not have her popular pig Petunia in tow. After 12 years of performing at the Summer Fest, the Chelsea Fair and Dexter Daze, Petunia succumbed to cancer during the winter.

Frankie and Angel, two 6-week-old piglets, will be making their Dexter Daze debut during Colors' Animal Magic Show from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Aug. 12. Their first public appearance was July 29 during the Chelsea Summer Fest.

"The little pigs are Colors' new sidekicks," the clown said. "They're my little partners."

Though the pigs are now healthy and energetic, they had a traumatic and tragic beginning. Angel and Frankie lost their mother and five siblings during the sow's Caesarean Section earlier this summer.

Colors the Clown will perform from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Aug. 12 and 11:30 a.m. Aug. 13. Performances are held near Monument Park and Central Street.

The toddling hogs must be bottle fed every two hours and throughout the night, just like human infants. They were recently introduced to feed and are already litter-trained for the house.

The pigs have started to learn some of the tricks that made Petunia such a popular attraction.

"Everything's a big game for the pigs," Colors said. "You can't put food in a bowl without them trying to tip it."

While she described Angel as the more responsive pig and Frankie as the more pig-headed sibling, Colors said both enjoy being around children.

Colors said the piglets will probably become permanent fixtures in her act, which includes many animals that can be found on her Manchester petting farm.

The Dexter Daze veteran averages four or five shows each week year-round, including 28 at the Monroe County Fair alone.

"I have so many great animals," she said. "(I) might as well share them with the world."

Petunia will not join Colors the Clown this year. Unfortunately, the pig died of cancer last winter. Two new piglets will join the popular children's entertainer 3:30 p.m. Aug, 12 and 11:30 a.m. Aug. 13.

On Parade

The Dexter Daze Parade will kick off 10 a.m. Aug. 13 and make its way from Wylie Elementary School, down Ann Arbor Street and along Main Street.

FAVORITES

Dexter High School Marching Band, classic cars, area dance and gymnastics groups, the Sheriff's Department, Colors the Clown and local politicians.

There will be no Miss Dexter Daze pageant this year. In an effort to make the event more inclusive, the Dexter Daze Committee started a scholarship competition open to young men and women, but will not be awarding the prize because no one entered the contest.

Several events that are not organized by the committee will be held in conjunction with the event:

- The Knights of Columbus will operate a bingo tent in the park on Friday and Saturday.
- Friday night, the local chapter of the American Legion will hold a Swiss Steak Dinner.
- The Dexter District Library is holding a book sale from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.
- Katie's on Baker Road is hosting a horseshoe tossing tournament Saturday at 1 p.m.
- The Dexter High School Marching Band will hold a car wash at Bates Elementary from noon to 3:30 p.m. Saturday.
- St. James' Episcopal Church hosts a chicken barbecue on Saturday.

The Dexter Daze Committee will take time out of Friday's festivities to dedicate a bench to the late Carol Model, who chaired the entertainment committee for many years.

In addition to all of the scheduled events, several exhibitors will provide activities in the park.

Dexter Daze is providing a free shuttle service that will take visitors from Creekside Intermediate School and Dexter Crossings to Monument Park. The service runs from 11:30 a.m. to 11:30 p.m. on Friday and Saturday.

In this and the previous year, space constraints have limited the number of exhibitors that have been able to participate in Dexter Daze.

Dexter Daze 2004 was the first time the committee had a waitlist, and this year's was longer than last year's. Organizers hoped to hold the event along Main Street this year but did not obtain the necessary permission in time.

Schaffer said Main Street could become a reality next year. The move would allow the event to accommodate more kids' activities without losing revenue from reducing the number of vendors.

Though Dexter Daze is financed by local businesses, it is staffed entirely by community volunteers.

"It just amazes me how this all comes together year after year," Schaffer said.

The parade will kick off 10 a.m. August 13th
