WASHTENAW COUNTY

Police plan clears hurdle

Proposal could nix funding for patrols

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

A county plan to reduce and eventually phase out subsidies for sheriff's road patrols took a big step toward realization Aug. 30 as the Washtenaw County Board of Commissioners voted 10-1 in favor of the plan, forwarding it to a final board vote next month.

The plan, drawn up by County Administrator Bob Guenzel, was formed in reaction to overwhelming defeat of a $314 million public safety millage last February to fund expansion of the Washtenaw County Jail and courthouse, as well as increasing mental health and rehabilitation services.

Guenzel's controversial plan, which has been vetted before township officials and county residents in a series of public forums, calls for phasing out subsidies to the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Office by 2008 to free up money for a new jail and courthouse.

At last Wednesday's County Board meeting, Dexter Township Supervisor Pat Kelly presented a compromise proposal to commissioners, signed by 10 township supervisors and two village managers in the county.

The Board of Commissioners incorporated portions of the proposal into the new plan, which calls for local municipalities to pay 6 percent annual increases for sheriff's patrols until 2007, when the local governments would pay overtime costs.

> "If we want to have the county increase opportunities to work with townships, villages and cities ... this is a different path to walk down if we don't support road patrols."
> Mark Ouimet
> Commissioner

Under the plan, the county would continue to subsidize the majority of per-deputy costs for contracting municipalities.

In 2008, local governments would use incremental cost formulas to pay the full costs of each deputy hired.

County Commissioner Mark Ouimet, who represents the Dexter-Chelsea area, cast the sole dissenting vote.

"If we want to have the county increase opportunities to work with townships, villages and cities ... this is a different path to walk down if we don't support road patrols," Ouimet said.

Fair in McCalla's memory

Show will go on with heavy hearts, appreciation for leader

By Jameel Naqvi
Special Writer

As hundreds of local children amble across the Chelsea fairgrounds this month, lining up for thrill rides and scarfing down elephant ears and cotton candy, one figure will be conspicuously absent — longtime Fair Board President Ken McCalla, who was killed in a snowmobile accident last January.

McCalla, who served as president of the Chelsea Community Fair Board from 1990 until his death, was instrumental in upgrading the fairgrounds. McCalla spearheaded the installation of two aluminum grandstands in the main arena of the fairgrounds. During his tenure, a new horse barn was built, and toilet facilities were put in place.

McCalla never hesitated to help install the improvements.

"How many presidents do you see getting down there and pushing with their people?" Fair Board Vice President Earl Heller said.

The board is continuing McCalla's legacy with a series of capital improvements this year and next year, when it plans to replace the bleachers in the Main Arena. The sizable memorial con-

Board denies appeal

Review committee to evaluate library complaints about charges

By Heather Connor
Staff Writer

A city appeals board denied a Chelsea District Library appeal Aug. 3 for a $173,754 charge for water and sewer connections involved with the renovation to the McKune Library.

But all hope for the library may not be lost.

The board voted to recommend to the Chelsea City Council that it appoint a review committee to examine whether a new classification for libraries should be developed for the residential equivalency unit, or REU, conversion ratios for new developments.

Water use is estimated using REUs. The city has determined the new library would use approximately 4,700 gallons of water per day, or 22 REUs.

The committee also would examine the ordinance's unit and unit factor for the use of libraries to ensure they are comparable to other communities.

REU ratios are determined by a building's occupational use, units and unit factors. The library has been deemed a public institution by the city and is being charged 0.75 REUs

Meeting client's objectives is their job

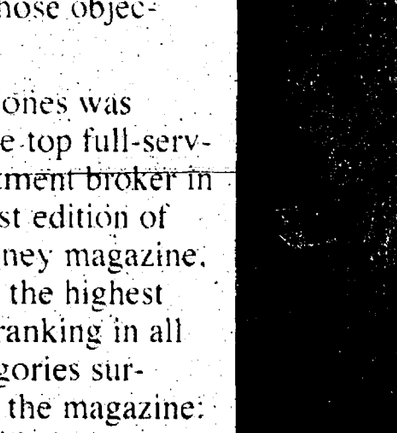

Jerry Mangona, Les Heddle, Anthony Cornish and Steve Manchester have one thing in common: as Edward Jones representatives, they are dedicated to serving their clients.

"Planning is what we do," says Mangona. "We help our clients become clear on what they want and where they want to be financially. We provide them with the financial tools to meet those objectives."

Edward Jones was named the top full-service investment broker in the August edition of SmartMoney magazine, receiving the highest possible ranking in all four categories surveyed by the magazine: stock-picking, customer satisfaction, trust survey and customer statements.

According to the SmartMoney editors, "Thousands of one-man offices welcome accounts of all sizes and win high marks for customer satisfaction. Conservative stock picking helped during the downturn."

It's a gold star that the Ypsilanti Edward Jones representatives are proud to sport.

Edward Jones also ranked first in the J.D. Power and Associates annual survey of customer satisfaction among full-service investment companies. The ranking, which was released as the 2005 Full-Service Investor Satisfaction Study, placed Edward Jones ahead of 19 other firms. Edward Jones, which is one of the only major financial services firms that gives advice to individual investors exclusively, has more than 6 million clients, and offers a variety of investment services, namely certificates of deposit, taxable and non-taxable bonds, stocks and mutual funds.

"I'm thrilled about our placement on the J.D. Power and Associates ranking," said Douglas E. Hill, managing partner of Edward Jones. "We are committed to providing the highest level of service to our clients. Everything we do is focused on building and maintaining strong relationships."

The survey conducted by J.D. Power and Associates in January and February, was based on responses from more than 6,600 investors who primarily invest with one of the 20 firms in the study. Six key factors were considered: integrity of the brokerage firm, information resources, account management, cost, investment representative/advisor, and customer service. Edward Jones earned industry-leading scores in information resources, account management, and investment representative/advisor categories.

There are more than 9,000 offices in the U.S. and through its affiliates, in the U.K. and Canada.

"More than any other time in history, our level of wealth offers us an overwhelming number of choices," Cornish says. "Helping navigate this maze -- that's what we do for our clients."

In the Ypsilanti area, "we have added three new offices in the last two years," Heddle comments. That trend is expected to continue, according to Manchester.

"We see a lot of retired clients coming to us for help to increase their retirement income," he says.

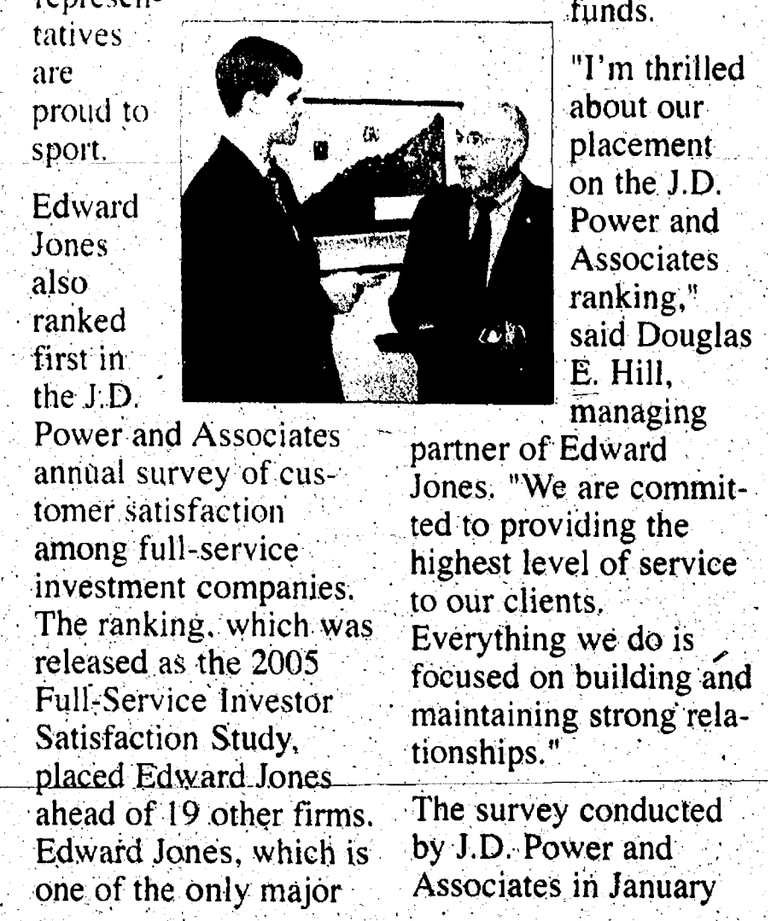

Adds Mangona:

"People are afraid of outliving their savings. People are afraid of having to work forever. We provide the financial tools to make sure that doesn't happen."

The four Ypsilanti Edward Jones representatives are proud sponsors of the 2005 Ypsilanti Heritage Festival.

Bearclaw Coffee takes off

Chelsea-based company expanding rapidly in Michigan

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

Bearclaw Coffee Co. started with a mid-career change, spurred by a life-altering event.

Owned by Chelsea residents Deb and Doug Scroggins, the coffee franchise opened its first drive-through store — at the corner of North Territorial and Dexter-Pinckney roads in Dexter Township — in 2002.

Currently, there are five Bearclaw Coffee stores — in Dexter Village, Dexter Township, Ypsilanti, Irish Hills and South Haven.

Four more stores are slated to open this year in Chelsea, Brooklyn, Dearborn and Detroit, Deb Scroggins said.

Deb and Doug Scroggins' worlds were turned upside-down in February 1999, when 17-year-old Brett Poupard, a former Chelsea High School hockey standout, died in a car accident.

Poupard was Deb's biological son and Doug's stepson.

At the time, both Deb and Doug were 20-year employees at Northwest Airlines. Deb was a customer service supervisor and Doug was a ramp service worker.

"If you treat your employees the way you want to be treated, it comes back to you."

Deb Scroggins

Bearclaw Coffee Co.

Brett's death redirected the Scroggins' priorities.

"After he was killed, it changed my whole outlook on life," Deb said.

"Within a year, we took early retirements. We took our grief and turned it into something positive. It was good therapy for Doug and me."

Although Deb has suffered through any parent's worst nightmare, she projects a vivacious and positive attitude.

"(Brett) really gave me a gift when he died — not to worry about the little things," Deb said. "I worry about the big things instead."

Brett inspired the business' logo, a bear's head flanked by wings. The wings symbolize that Deb "learned to fly," in a figurative sense, after Brett's death, she said.

At the time of their early retirements, Deb, now 47, and Doug, now 44, had plenty of working years left, and still had enough youthful energy to build a new business from the ground up.

The Scroggins, who would frequently visit family on the West Coast, noticed an abundance of espresso bars in the region.

"We came back to Michigan and said, 'Oh my God, this is it,'" Deb said. "We took early retirement and put every dime into this."

They approached their endeavor with focus.

"We really did our homework," Deb said. "We spent the money on consultants and the best franchise attorneys. We've spared no expense to build this busi-

City water bond possible

Long-term bond could avert spikes in water fees, city officials said

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

The City Council adopted a resolution July 26 authorizing the local government to issue and sell a long-term bond not to exceed $1.5 million. The money would fund anticipated water projects.

One possible project would involve building water lines to discharge the city's reverse-osmosis water softening concentrate into Letts Creek, provided the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality allows it.

Chelsea City Manager Mike Steklac said the new bond could cover some projects that were not completed because of cost overruns before the city's water treatment plant was built in 2002.

The city identified construction of a number of water lines as "critical needs," Steklac said, but ran out of funds to build them.

"The state came back and said we could not simply cut those water lines out. They expected us to build those lines," he said.

Most of the lines at issue would feed into city subdivisions.

Steklac said a future bond also might be needed to pay for expansion of both the city's water and wastewater treatment plants.

The city has been channeling fees for residential equivalency units into water operations and capital expenses.

Steklac said he would prefer to channel residential equivalency units into paying off bonds for the plant expansions.

The bond issue also could be used to add water wells in the city or pay for costs of linking the Chelsea and Sylvan Township water systems.

The city still has about $9 million in outstanding bonds for paying off its water treatment plant and other water projects.

Steklac said a new bond probably would have a softer impact on water fees than paying for water expenses with a cash fund balance.

"(The bond) would allow us to spread out water fees."

McCALLA

tributions donated to the fair in McCalla's honor will go toward a project in his memory for next year. The board is consulting with McCalla's family to determine how to spend the donations.

This year's fair has been dedicated to McCalla to honor his memory.

"The grounds have really improved and grown under his term," said fairground manager Ron Stoffer, who worked alongside McCalla at McCalla Feed Service.

McCalla bought the livestock feed and mulch business from his father, a former fair board member, shortly before his own father's death.

McCalla's job at the feed store made him accessible to fair board members, many of whom had ties to agriculture and needed to make frequent trips to McCalla Feed. His line of work also made him available to local kids trying to raise a champion goat, cow, hog or sheep for the fair.

Stoffer recalled that McCalla was always supportive of local youths who participated in the livestock auction, offering advice when they stopped in his feed store and buying their animals at the fair. McCalla was certainly a qualified mentor, having been a five-time champion in the swine category in the late 1960s and having worked at the feed store since he graduated from Chelsea High School.

McCalla also was dedicated to the upkeep of the fairgrounds. Friends say he spent countless hours on the grounds mowing the lawn, trimming plants and cleaning up trash.

"He was always doing the nuts-and-bolts-type things that make the (fair) run," Heller said.

One of these tasks was the coordination of all the volunteers and community organizations that help organize and run the fair. As president, McCalla met with the police department and fire authority to ensure the safety of fairgoers. He also involved the athletic boosters and other Chelsea groups in staffing the fair.

McCalla's longtime friend, Tom Edman, who served as the fair board's vice president under McCalla, is the new president.

"I don't think anybody will ever fill (McCalla's) shoes," Edman said.

But Heller said he was confident in Edman's leadership.

"Tom has grabbed the bull by the horns," he said.

In addition to his involvement with the fair board, on which he served for 20 years, McCalla was active in 4-H and the Chelsea Rod and Gun Club. He also supported local youths as an athletic booster for the high school. But McCalla will be remembered mostly for presiding over the largest community fair in Michigan.

"I think he took pride in putting on such a big event for the community," Stoffer said.

Though the fair's organizers, struggling with McCalla's absence, were unable to make significant changes to this year's fair, they have continued to improve the fairgrounds and have maintained all the events and attractions the community has grown to love.

"The fair will go on," Stoffer said. "It's just not the same without (McCalla)."

The fair returns to Chelsea Aug. 23, when the carnival rides will open at 5 p.m. and run through Saturday.

Tuesday has many activities for local children. Thrill seekers will enjoy themselves at the ever-popular demolition derbies, which run Tuesday through Thursday.

Tractor-pulling contests will be held in the arenas on the fairgrounds Thursday through Saturday.

The annual Chelsea Fair Parade takes place Saturday.

The fair culminates with the selection of the 2005 Chelsea Fair Queen Saturday evening.

APPEAL

per thousand square feet.

City Manager Mike Steklac said the Administration Appeals Board did not have the power to change the REU rate schedule. It could only determine if the zoning administrator, Jim Drolett, was correct in classifying the library as a public institution according to the current ordinance.

City Council Trustee Joe Merkel, who also sits on the appeals board, was absent from the meeting because of illness, Steklac said. This left voting members Steklac and City Engineer Chris Linfield present.

Executive Secretary Georgia Beeman was also at the meeting, but she is not a voting member of the board.

The library's engineer, Jim Mumby of Fanning/Howey Associates, failed to provide the appeals board with their rationale for a proposed 1.45 REU rate for the library. The board had asked library officials at the last meeting of the board July 20 to have the engineer provide the information.

Mumby's proposal included using a 2-inch water meter as opposed to a 3-inch meter. The proposal, if approved, would save the library $159,823.

Library Director Metta Lansdale said she would have Mumby provide the information within one week.

"I'm sorry to say we didn't have the information from the library engineers," Steklac said. "That would have had an impact on our discussion."

Both Steklac and Linfield were hesitant to recommend to the City Council that they vary or split one of the classifications in the ordinance to include the library. The appeals board, however, could not add a classification to the ordinance.

"We can't just add a classification," Linfield said. "That is a legislative issue."

Steklac said he was worried of the precedent the action would set in the community. The city's current classification is in the ballpark with how other municipalities classify a library, he said.

"I would not support doing a hybrid or split of uses," Steklac said.

Steklac said the City Council needs to consider if the public institution classification is too broad. They would need to determine if the classification for a city hall, a fire hall or a Department of Public Works building is comparable to a library.

"I'm not sure we have the full information to make a decision at this point," Steklac said.

Lansdale said she was not sure why Mumby did not provide the data requested.

"I can't explain why he didn't have it," she said. "We're very disappointed."

Lansdale said Monday that she would ask Steklac to provide information about Michigan municipalities the city studied to justify assigning the library a public institution classification.

Construction of the library is going forward because the library paid an REU fee to the city, part of which could be refunded.

A tentative opening date for the new library is scheduled for September 2006.

Chelsea resident and Friends of the Library member Megan McCall said she was disappointed with the board's decision.

"I hope they can come up with something so that all the money the public invested in this won't have to go into water hookups," McCall said. "I think the public would rather invest in some nice books."

Staff Writer Steve Ricci contributed to this report.

POLICE

"If we pass (the new plan), we should listen carefully to what Pat Kelly read tonight."

Guenzel said his revised plan would create better accountability for overtime and uses a new, incremental cost structure in lieu of a police service unit model.

"We've had a lot of discussion with Oakland County, which people in Washtenaw County (found acceptable)," Guenzel said, referring to the new funding model.

County commissioners Rolland Sizemore Jr. and Stephen Solowczuk qualified their "yes" votes with caveats.

"I won't approve anything until all my questions are answered," Sizemore said.

Added Solowczuk: "This isn't settled tonight; it's settled in September. We need to keep working with the townships."

Commissioner Barbara Bergman indicated she already has made up her mind.

"You can't have safety and not spend some money," she said, referring to her support of building a new county jail.

"If we don't take control of this, we will be controlled."

BOND

Steklac said. "Otherwise, we might have to look at dramatic increases in fees to pay off some of these things up front."

Steklac said the city has more work to do in determining costs and contingencies before coming up with a specific bond amount.

Payment of the bond would come from water system revenue.

Mayor names new committee appointees

Trustees level more criticism, saying experience needed

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

Chelsea Mayor Ann Feeney announced July 26 the appointments of four new members to a citizens advisory committee studying water and sewer problems in the city.

Her most recent appointments met with more criticism from City Council trustees Jamie Bollinger and Joe Merkel in another sign of discord about the controversial committee.

Against previous complaints from Bollinger and Merkel, who argued for a committee made of City Council members, Feeney selected a six-member committee excluding City Council members in July.

Feeney's original committee included Lima Township Supervisor Ken Unterbrink and Earl Heller, a former Sylvan Township Board trustee. Unterbrink and Heller both live outside the city.

Appointment of those two members did not sit well with a majority of City Council members, who argued that, for reasons ranging from potential conflicts of interest to compromised objectivity, the committee should be comprised entirely of city residents.

With a 4-2 vote July 12, the City Council removed Heller and Unterbrink from the committee. Bollinger, Merkel and City Council trustees Jim Myles and Cheri Albertson voted to remove Heller and Unterbrink, while Feeney and City Council Trustee Jason Lindauer voted against the motion.

After the removals, Feeney appointed Brian Cashman, Brian Gunderson, Anne Merkel and Kristen VanReesema to the advisory committee, which now has eight members.

"I don't understand why council members can't ask about members (Feeney) appointed to the committee without being belittled for asking the question."

Jamie Bollinger
City Council Trustee

At the July 26 meeting, Bollinger and Merkel peppered Feeney with more questions about the committee.

Bollinger said the subject matter the committee would deal with might be too technical for people without prior experience with the city's water troubles.

City Council Trustee Frank Hammer supported Feeney at the meeting.

Hammer, who has a doctorate in organic chemistry, alluded to a book by James Surowiecki titled "The Wisdom of Crowds."

Surowiecki's main idea in the book is that large groups of people are smarter than a small group of experts, no matter how smart those experts are.

Following the meeting, Hammer said there are competent and knowledgeable people on the committee.

"I think what Jamie and Joe didn't understand was that we have a professor of engineering in (advisory committee member) Steve Wright.

"I think now they're both satisfied."

Hammer, a staff scientist at Underwriters Laboratories, Inc., said he was the only member of the former Chelsea Village Council who voted against implementation of the city's reverse osmosis water softening system, one of the first of its kind used by a Michigan municipality.

"I didn't think it was going to work," Hammer said. "I had experience in testing chemicals at actual reverse-osmosis plants around the country."

Hammer noted that most of those plants ran pilot studies before going on line. Chelsea's system did not undergo a pilot study.

Feeney took exception to Bollinger's and Merkel's comments at the July 26 meeting.

"Let's give (the advisory committee) a little credit and give them some time," Feeney said. "I'm almost insulted, honestly, about the criticisms of this committee."

After the meeting, Bollinger said he wasn't comfortable with Feeney's reaction.

"I feel insulted that, as a council member, I can't ask about who's on that committee," Bollinger said.

"I don't understand why council members can't ask about members (Feeney) appointed to the committee without being belittled for asking the question. It has been her solely appointing people to the committee and we didn't know who they were."

Bollinger said he's confident the committee can do a good job. His objection was with the way committee members were presented.

"I just want to know who they are, and (Feeney) named some people I didn't know."

Feeney continued to defend the committee when contacted following the July 26 meeting.

"If you get enough smart people together, they make their own darn decisions," she said.

"If it turns out we don't want to use the reverse osmosis system, and we just came down with that ruling from above, I think the citizens would find it hard to take, so I think the citizens decisions would be far more tolerable."

ness model to succeed, they had to spend a good chunk of change on their employees.

"We spend a lot of money on a staff training program and we have a full operations manual," Deb said. "We stress 'train, train, train.'"

Deb said she pays her employees, many of them college-age, especially well — better than many other jobs typically held by people that age.

"If you treat employees the way you want to be treated, it comes back to you," she said.

"The hallmark of our business — and our success — has been our fabulous staff. They're so good with customers. They recognize their customers and they always have something nice to say. We're always careful with who we hire."

Likewise, Deb, who said she gained valuable customer service skills at Northwest Airlines, said she is selective when choosing franchisees.

Bearclaw Coffee cafes serve a variety of coffee and other hot and cold drink concoctions, including smoothies and frozen lattés, as well as muffins and pastries.

The muffins are often linked to location. For example, more blueberry muffins are sold at the South Haven location, which is near a number of West Michigan blueberry farms.

The Scroggins, who run the business from a Chelsea home office, own the Dexter Township and South Haven stores and have franchisees at their three other open locations.

The Dexter Village store opened last month in what was formerly Clock Works Coffee House on Main Street.

The downtown Detroit café will be located on Woodward Avenue, near the Fox Theatre and Compuware Corp. headquarters.

The Dearborn store will be at the site of a 1920s gas station at Military and Cherry Hill roads.

The Chelsea store, also to be a drive-through, will be built at the corner of Old US-12 and Freer Road. It's expected to open in October.

Heather Tanner, a Central Michigan University student who is interning with Bearclaw Coffee while working toward a degree in entrepreneurship, said business at the Dexter Township store is heavy weekdays between 6 a.m. and noon, when two people work both windows.

With a large volume of morning commuters traversing an area undergoing explosive growth, it's a well-positioned store.

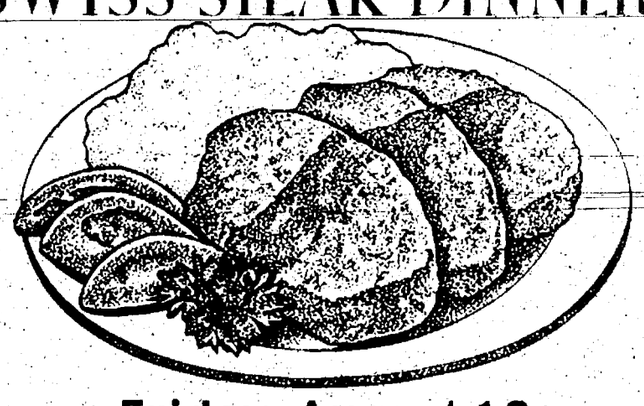

"The girls that work in the morning know everyone's drinks," Tanner said.

Deb Scroggins said Bearclaw Coffee could grow even more.

Although the Scroggins are currently focusing on Michigan, Deb said potential Bearclaw Coffee franchisees in Chicago and New York have expressed interest.

POLICE BLOTTER

Scio Township

Larceny

A laptop computer, computer case, Sony Walkman, wireless notebook network card and a camera were stolen from an automobile in the 600 block of Jackson Road between July 24 and July 27.

The cost of the stolen items was $1,652.96. Police have no suspects.

A leather briefcase and personal digital assistant were stolen between 9:15 p.m. July 24 and 6:20 a.m. July 25 from a car parked outside a home on Joyce Lane. A rock was thrown into the passenger-side window to obtain the items. Fingerprints were left at the scene, but police have no suspects.

The damage to the car is estimated at $100. The value of the stolen items is $750.

Missing Property Recovered

A stolen horse trailer was recovered July 20. It was stolen from a horse farm off Wagner Road earlier in the month. While driving down Scio Church Road, a woman who had borrowed the trailer saw it parked in a wooded lot that was being cleared for development on the north side of the road, west of Wagner Road. After confirming the trailer was stolen, police stood by as it was recovered.

Attempted Retail Fraud

A man tried to steal a number of DVDs July 19 from the Meijer store on Jackson Road. A store security employee received a call from a co-worker at the Meijer store on Ann Arbor-Saline Road earlier that day warning her to be on the lookout for a man who tried to steal DVDs by placing them in a gray shopping basket and then placing the basket near the fence in the garden center.

The Jackson Road employee then received a call from another store employee who caught the suspect in the act.

Property Damage

A man reported his vehicle was broken into between 8:30 p.m. and midnight July 25 while it was parked in the Quality 16 movie theater parking lot on Jackson Road. The rear driver's side window was broken out and the glove compartment and center console were left open. No items were stolen. Damage to the vehicle is estimated at $75.

Dexter Township

House Fire

Police were dispatched to 539 N. Wagner Road July 23 to a reported fire. The homeowner said he had just filled the fuel tank of his lawnmower and when he went to start it, it caught fire.

The garage sustained smoke and fire damage. The fire did not extend to the attic or house. The homeowner was treated at Saline hospital for smoke inhalation.

Lima Township

Drunken Driving

A Chelsea man was stopped by a state police officer at 1:41 a.m. July 31 in Lima Township after swerving off the roadway. The incident happened in front of the officer's car while both were driving down Jackson Road as the driver turned off Fletcher Road. The driver told police that he was drinking at a local bar earlier in the evening.

After failing sobriety and preliminary breath tests, the man was arrested and taken to the Washtenaw County Jail. According to a police report, he registered a blood-alcohol content of 0.14 and 0.15 percent on the Breathalyzer test. A level of 0.08 percent or higher is considered legally drunk under state law.

Property Damage

A woman in the 2000 block of Wylie Road told police that someone knocked over the stone pillars of her mailbox between 10 p.m. July 30 and 9 a.m. July 31. She told police a vehicle likely was used because the pillars are heavy.

Damage is estimated at $300. The case is closed pending investigative leads.

Lyndon Township

Minor in Possession of Alcohol

State police responded to a complaint of a bonfire near a vacant home in the 1500 block of Huron Road July 30. After questioning the group of people present and discovering that two men in attendance had just moved into the home, police noticed a 16-year-old girl in the group had been drinking.

After registering a 0.10 percent blood-alcohol level on a preliminary breath test, the girl was taken home and turned over to her father. The case is considered closed.

Chelsea

Property Damage

A Maybee man driving a tractor-trailer towing a large piece of farm equipment, called a "big ripper," hit two cars July 28 parked along M-52 near Palmer Ford, 1445 S. Main St.

Police located the driver. No alcohol was involved and the truck driver was cooperative, according to a police report.

Damage to a driver's side bumper and rear door panels was reported.

Someone punctured right front tires on eight cars between 6 p.m. July 29 and 8 a.m. July 30 at Palmer Family Ford, 222 S. Main St.

Larceny

A homeowner in the 500 block of East Street told police July 30 that a paper peace sign was missing from his backyard and that a large purple bulb was also missing from his property.

The man said neighbors in the 200 block of Washington Street had a party the night before the items were taken.

Police found pieces of the bulb in the neighbor's driveway, as well as the peace sign in a garbage can.

The neighbor told police he did not know of the stolen items and said he was asleep while the party took place.

The neighbor said his brother and his brother's friends were at the party.

Police told the man to contact his brother and make restitution to the homeowner or face charges because the party was at his residence.

The man, who has a prior charge of operating under the influence of alcohol on his driving record, said he would comply.

Civil Dispute

Chelsea police responded to a 911 call from a home in the 100 block of Grant Street July 30. A woman at the house said her daughter and her daughter's boyfriend, both minors, had an argument and that the boyfriend left the house on foot.

Police determined the identity of the boyfriend and confirmed with the woman that no physical assault took place.

Suspicious Incident

A resident in the 400 block of Wellington Street told Chelsea police July 30 that someone was burning garbage in the neighborhood.

The complainant said garbage also was burned on other occasions. Police officers checked the neighborhood but found no evidence of burning.

No recreational burning permits had been issued that night, according to a police report.

State's term limits impacting decisions

TIM SKUBICK

Sometime before these three folks leave office, it would be nice if at least one of them summoned up enough political fortitude to take the lead on a very unpopular issue and drag the other two along into battle.

If leadership is all about tackling issues and not worrying about losing your own re-election, here's a great chance for Gov. Jennifer Granholm, Senate GOP Leader Ken Sikkema and GOP House Speaker Craig DeRoche to prove they are, in fact, leaders.

They can start by pushing hard for a change in the term-limits law by creating a 12-year term in the House and Senate. This would take courage because the vast majority of voters think that's a bad idea.

While the trio is at it, they should also embrace one term of six years for the governor, secretary of state and attorney general. Currently, those three offices have one term lasting four years and, if re-elected, they can serve four more years.

By creating a six-year term in office, the term-limit law could finally deliver on one of the promises voters were given but have never seen. Do you recall that the term-limit mob told everyone term limits would eliminate the desire to win re-election and politicians would be freed to vote their conscience?

Insert laugh track here.

What a joke. If anything, term limits have cranked up the desire to get re-elected and the paranoia in this town about offending voters back home is off the charts.

A six-year term for the governor on down would allow them to take their eyes off the polls and expunge all those fears about offending voters. They could do what they thought was right.

Here are the benefits for you. It's a good bet that Granholm, Secretary Terri Lynn Land and Attorney General Mike Cox spend too much time trying to separate money from supporters.

One U.S. senator recently confessed that he spent 50 percent of his time pulling the arm on anyone he could grab. Fifty percent! That's time he could be spending doing what you are paying him to do, which is look out for your neck, not his.

Obviously, the constitution cannot be changed in time to affect the current office holders, but for the good of the state, they could nudge this reform along.

A future governor, for example, might actually declare the need for more revenue. Another secretary of state might aggressively pursue politicians who blatantly violate campaign finance laws and another attorney general might issue opinions based on the law, leaving the "politics" of a decision out.

And here's another goodie for you: You would be exposed to those gawd-awful TV campaign spots every six years, not every four.

Granholm has expressed first blush interest in the proposal. Cox says he would entertain the notion for his office and secretary of state, but not for governor. Land was asked to opine, but did not.

It's true that a six-year governor would start out as a lame duck. But if he or she did not have to worry about re-election, that person might have the courage to lead from the heart and not the ballot box. That would make the limp almost invisible.

Yankee Air Museum preserves part of history

KLINT LOWRY

Just as Pearl Harbor was about the most disheartening way imaginable to enter World War II, the future of the Yankee Air Museum appeared just as bleak Oct. 9, 2004, when fire obliterated the hangar in which the indoor portion of the museum was housed.

I couldn't help but think of the ironic parallel as I milled among the thousands of people who came to Willow Run Airport Saturday and Sunday to see one of the best air shows of vintage war birds in the country.

Though not exclusively dedicated to World War II, The Yankee Air Museum has a special affinity to aircraft from that era. That's not surprising, seeing as how Willow Run was home to one of the big guns in the Arsenal of Democracy, the Ford Bomber Plant, which was turning out B-25 heavy bombers at a rate of one an hour at the peak of production during the war.

I don't know if anyone affiliated with the museum drew any conscious parallels at the time, but their response during and after the fire seemed to emulate the way America responded to Pearl Harbor.

Yes, they lost a lot of their inventory, and their base of operations was in shambles. But before the ashes cooled, the directive went out, not only would the 25-year-old museum continue, but the air show would be bigger and better than ever before.

There was more at stake than just putting on a good show. This had to be a show that made a statement that the Yankee Air Museum was alive and well.

Mission accomplished. For the men and women of the Yankee Air Museum, their seventh annual "Thunder Over Michigan" show could go down in the books as "VF Day," as in "victory over fire."

By the numbers, this was the most impressive congregation of World War II aircraft ever brought together for one show.

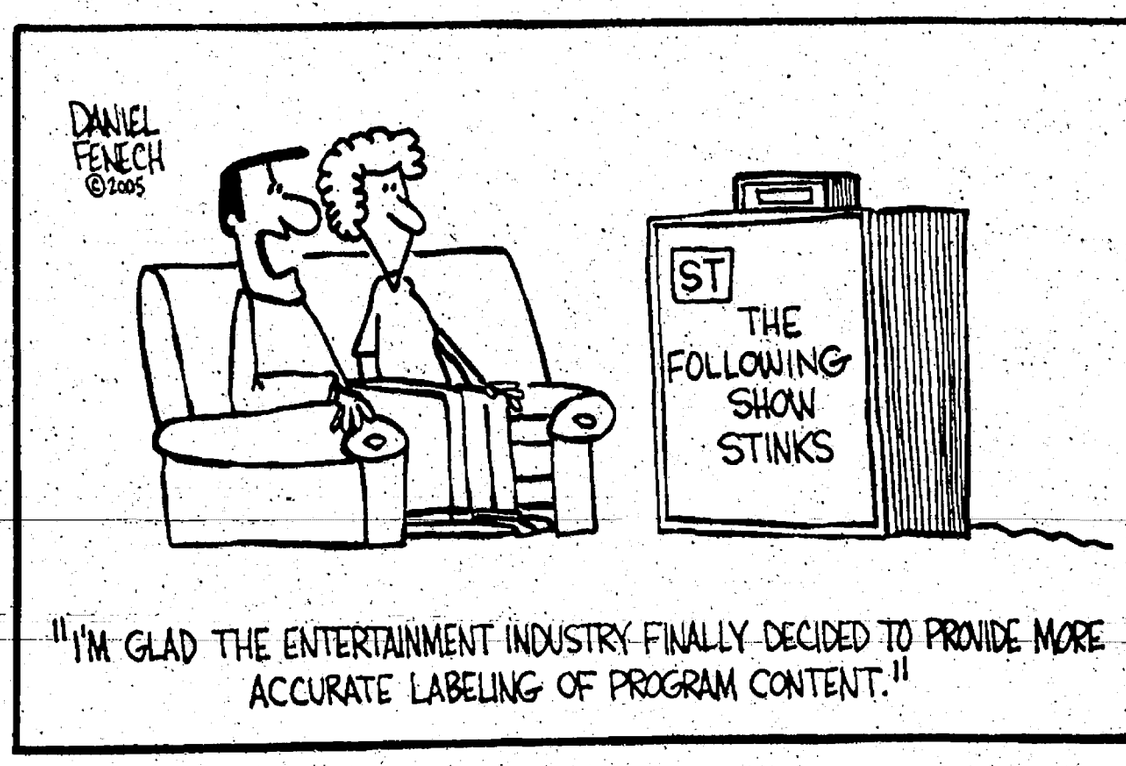

There are only 11 B-17s left in the United States that still can fly, and only nine that still do. Had it not been for some heroics the day of the fire, that number would have dropped by one. This weekend, the Yankee Air Museum's Yankee Lady stood proudly alongside seven of her surviving cousins, the largest gathering of B-17s ever at an air show.

There are only two B-24s still flying, and they were both here for the party, as were five B-25s.

Every year, the day before the show opens, the Yankee Air Museum offers flights to the media outlets through which they put out their promotional ads.

As a features writer for the paper, I was offered one of Heritage Newspapers' seats,

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Guest column was right on the mark

A big thanks for the article "Help keep Chelsea's economy thriving" in the Aug. 4 Chelsea Standard by Roy Schmidt.

Roy articulated very well and convincingly how important it is to support our local businesses. One of the most important ways to retain Chelsea's charm and keep a vibrant and progressive Chelsea is by supporting our local shopping district.

Considering the price of gas, is money really saved by driving out of town to shop? And, if we want a better selection, patronizing local stores makes it possible for them to grow their selection.

Many people in Chelsea, including the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce, are working very hard and spending financial and human resources to bring more business to our community.

We should also say a big thank you to our local merchants for hanging in there and making it possible for us to have places to shop.

Young driver should get a second chance

I am writing in reference to the tragic death of Charlotte Marcotte July 30 and the charges that will be leveled at the teenage driver who caused the accident.

The state police officer said that charges of negligent homicide would be leveled against the young man. I am wondering at the wisdom of such charges.

When seeking justice in a wrongdoing, I believe that all sides of the case must be considered. In this case, the 16-year-old clearly was at fault, even he admits that. His actions resulted in the death of another human being. This also is not in question. What is in question is the future of this young man.

The event that he was involved in, while tragic, was clearly an accident, and act of fate, or people who hold deep religious beliefs, an act of God.

For the young man involved, it will be a life-changing event. He will forever carry with him the knowledge that his actions caused the death of a woman who was a wonderful and vital person.

My question is this: What possible purpose could a felony charge of negligent homicide serve in this instance? Will it bring back Charlotte? Will it send a message to people who reach down for their glasses so they can see? The answer is no.

The only possible outcome of this charge would be to further ruin the life of a 16-year-old boy, already scarred forever by this event.

To the family and friends of Charlotte Marcotte, and to the prosecutor: I beg mercy for this young man. This tragic event will live with him for the rest of his life. Let us not give him a felony conviction that also will haunt and hamper him throughout life.

HISTORY

along with photographer Dave Chapman, not as a matter of advertising, per se, but to share what it's like to go up in one of these historical machines.

I'm of an age group that slipped between wars — too young for Vietnam, too old for Iraq, Afghanistan or any of the smaller skirmishes of the last decade or so.

For people my age, interest in military matters, like service itself, has always been voluntary. For most of the guys I've known who get into military stuff, they do it like they would baseball or cars or other hobbies, memorizing names and numbers and measuring their expertise by that.

The prospect of experiencing one of these planes with my own senses was the kind of adventure that makes this job worthwhile. Never mind that there didn't seem to be another person within a mile of the airport who knew less about B-17s than me. That could be an advantage, I hoped — no lifelong fantasies coming true to skew what my senses were taking in.

On the other hand, no one else seemed as bothered about climbing inside and entrusting my life to a 60-year-old machine.

I brought that up with roundabout bravado to one of the Yankee Air Museum guys. Actually, he mentioned, the plane was built in 1944, which makes it 61 years old.

And there are only nine left that still work, you say?

Everyone involved with the actual flying of the planes was taking the excursion with utmost seriousness, although they also found time for a little gallows humor.

An older fellow stopped as he passed the media check-in table as though he was just struck with a thought.

"I guess we should have told you all to eat bananas," he said straight-faced. "They taste the same coming up as they do going down."

As someone who has to think twice about going on the Tilt-a-Whirl, I had already thought of that, and it concerned me only a little less than engine failure.

They call these planes "flying fortresses," and that gives the impression that they are big, imposing aircraft, like the B-52 that's part of the museum's collection.

On the contrary; everything about the B-17 was surprisingly small. The cliche is people weren't as big back then, but that didn't account for how tight the cabin was. I had to duck to get in the main door, and stayed ducked once I was inside.

All of my previous flying experience had been in planes that were equipped with beverage carts. Though I wasn't expecting to be offered a pillow and a magazine, I was still taken by just how stark everything was.

These things were built strictly for function; the human beings inside were there to serve the machine. There was no protection or even the illusion of it. The framework was exposed, as were the cables that led to the rudder and flaps. The inside wall was also the outside wall. There was nothing to camouflage the fragile intricacy of the technology.

A foot-wide gangway crossed over the bomb bay. We were told if we dropped anything here off our belts, don't try to retrieve it, because the bomb doors wouldn't hold a man's weight and you could find yourself instantly reclassified from passenger to payload, with 1,800 feet to think about the price of a new beeper.

The engines cranked up one at a time, shaking the cabin and filling it with exhaust fumes and noise. Every sense was constantly reminded these planes were built to get a job done, period.

A few minutes after takeoff, we were all allowed to move about. Like everyone else, I wobbled from window to window, having to see the view from every angle. For Dave and me, it was as much a matter of work as play, but it was a blast moving from place to place, holding onto whatever would help keep my balance.

Crawling into the nose of the plane had to be the highlight. Surrounded on three sides by nothing but window while in flight is something I will never forget.

While some of the other half-dozen people on board continued to go back and forth like kids on a jungle gym, I sat for most of the second half of the flight.

Big mistake, I found out later, because that's when I started getting green around the gills.

The nausea came and went. I was trying to stay as still as I could, and it gave me time to reflect on where I was. I thought about the men who went aboard these planes 60 some-odd years ago, not for a joyride but on life-or-death missions.

They smelled the exhaust of the engines that could barely be yelled above, hunched over, watching their steps. But they also had to do it knowing they were carrying high explosives, and that there were many men trying very hard to blow them from the sky.

As I looked out the window, spotting the suburban malls and the Silverdome, I tried to imagine being in this plane under the conditions for which it was built, how many men spent their last moments or came close to spending their last moments in these surroundings like these.

On Sunday, I came back to watch the crowds watch the planes.

They staged mock field battles this year, something new to the show, with tanks and fighter planes and everything.

I stood among the crowd as they watched, sipping their bottled water. Somehow I couldn't get into the entertainment. Sure, it was interesting, and I understood the intention, but I couldn't help but think of those who lived it for real, who are living it for real right now.

There's something contradictory about an air show. For most people, it's entertainment, not much different than a car show or a really good art fair, except it's louder and the things on display are bigger and less common.

The "oohs" and "aahs" are a little more reflexive and honest.

I think like a lot of people, particularly of my age group, I will never be able to truly relate to the older guys you always find at these shows, the ones who always seem to have this grim cloud of solemnity around them at events like these.

They understand what these planes are about in a way the rest of us never will.

That's the value of the Yankee Air Museum. They not only preserve the machines, but a sense of the history of which the machines were a part, so that they are more than big antiques.

The Yankee Air Museum offers rides in its B-17, the Yankee Lady for $400. For those who are into military history, it's worth the price to bring physical reality to your perspective you will never get in a book or film.

The museum is indeed still going strong. Much of their collection survived the fire, and they are raising the money to build a new home for them.

Contributions can be sent online at www.michiganaerospace.org, or mailed to Michigan Aerospace Foundation; Yankee Air Museum Recovery Fund; P.O. Box 8282; Ann Arbor, MI 48107-8282.

One World One Family offers sensitivity training

We at One World One Family applaud the recent editorial in The Chelsea Standard ("Heritage Newspapers committed to excellence" July 7) promising better judgment from Heritage Newspapers regarding racial stereotyping.

We had been upset to see the distasteful cartoon denigrating legal immigrants that appeared in The Standard June 19. Such obvious negative racial stereotypes have no place in today's world.

Prejudices of one kind or another — racial, economic, gender, religious and more — exist in all of us, despite our desire to believe otherwise. Recognizing statements and actions that are biased is the first step to overcoming our prejudices.

One World One Family has offered programs for several years now to help individuals and organizations overcome prejudice. We have resources that we can suggest for anti-discrimination/diversity workshops for individuals and employers.

We are a community organization dedicated to encouraging diversity and dismantling prejudice. We invite anyone interested in these resources or contacts to e-mail us via our Web site at www.owof.org.

WASHTENAW COUNTY

4-H collecting vegetables for Food Gatherers

Project to bridge gap between 4-H, Master Gardener programs

By Rita Fischer
Special Writer

While children showcased their talents at the annual 4-H Youth Show last month at the Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds near Saline, local 4-H leaders were brainstorming ways to bridge the gap between the Washtenaw County Master Gardener programs and 4-H.

They came up with the idea of asking local residents to donate vegetables to Food Gatherers of Washtenaw County.

Organizers say it's an opportunity for local gardeners to make good use of the extra fruit and vegetables that they've grown, while also allowing 4-H'ers to work with master gardeners and learn how to inspect produce.

"I really do not have any goal in mind," said Cindy Fischer, program coordinator for 4-H and the Master Gardener programs offered through the Michigan State University Extension Office. "I have no idea what to expect. Something like this has never been done before."

4-H will collect produce Aug. 18 at the MSU Extension Office, 705 N. Zeeb Road, in Scio Township. Drop-off times are from 7:30 to 9:30 a.m., 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and 4:30 to 6:30 p.m.

After hearing friends and neighbors say many times that they have too much in their gardens to eat, Fischer came up with the plan to benefit Food Gatherers.

Food Gatherers is an organization that helps feed the needy through St. Andrew's Breakfast program, Dawn Farms, the Salvation Army SOS Community Services and Hope Clinic. It provides enough food for more than 4,500 meals a day.

Fischer recently took on the new position as program coordinator of the two programs and has wanted to organize a project that ties the Master Gardeners and Junior Master Gardeners together.

"The Master Gardeners have so much knowledge that they want to share," Fischer said.

"I think that it's a nice way to teach the youth to give back to the community."

Residents from across the county, including Dexter, Chelsea, Saline, Manchester and Ann Arbor, are encouraged to bring in as much produce as they can.

Fischer is also recruiting volunteers to help sort and pack the vegetables.

Healthy produce and insect- and disease-free vegetables are encouraged.

For information or to participate, call Fischer at 222-3948.

DEXTER VILLAGE

Health lecture set Aug. 22

Chelsea Community Hospital and the Dexter Area Chamber of Commerce will hold the second annual HealthWISE lecture.

The talk will feature David Cavell, business office director at Chelsea Community Hospital and a faculty member at Siena Heights University and Jackson Community College. The topic will be "A Major Impact to Healthcare: Healthcare Savings Accounts."

He will speak from 11:45 a.m. to 1 p.m. Aug. 22 at Dexter's Pub, 8114 Main St.

The fee, which includes lunch, is $5 for chamber members and non-members.

Chelsea Community Hospital and Dexter Area Chamber of Commerce have teamed up to jointly offer HealthWISE business health series in Dexter for area business owners and executives.

HealthWISE consists of business health lectures and tips aimed at health interventions and strategies that can help business leaders with their bottom line. The lecture topics have been designed specifically for business leaders by their peers in the Dexter area.

The fall lecture will feature Emily Nease, who will speak on "Eating for Optimum Energy" Oct. 17.

For more information, and to register, call the Dexter Area Chamber of Commerce at 426-0887.

Kids explore nature, ecology

By Rita Fischer
Special Writer

Students from across western Washtenaw County recently had an opportunity to experience the great outdoors at the Waterloo Recreation Area Project, which is better known as WRAP Camp.

The camp, based at the Gerald Eddy Discovery Center in the Waterloo Recreation Area near Chelsea, is highly regarded and known for its ecology program. Run by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, it offers age-appropriate activities related to nature and ecology for pupils in first through sixth grades.

Launched more than a decade ago as a one-week program sponsored by the Chelsea Education Foundation, Chelsea Community Education took the program over in 1994.

The late Joseph Piasecki, former superintendent of Chelsea schools, came up with the name as he helped envision a program to teach kids about ecology and the environment through hands-on learning.

The program became self-supporting in 1998. A second week was added, allowing Dexter, Stockbridge and Manchester schools to participate. The fees students pay sustain the program financially.

The Gerald Eddy Geology Center's main exhibit room has a large, interactive map of the Waterloo area and features exhibits of the prominent habitats found within easy walking distance of the center, including the beech-maple forest, hardwood swamp and bog.

A display case holds a large collection of fluted spear points used by the Paleo-Indian hunters. Other cultural artifacts, including a dugout canoe, are on display, as well.

Fifteen miles of hiking trails lead out from the discovery center. The trails all offer something different, from shrubs, wetlands and boardwalks to bogs, flora, forests and spectacular views.

Niki Leidner, a Chelsea High School graduate, has been helping with the program for the past five years

"I just love it," she said. "The kids show up to have fun, and that's what we do. We get to hike together and learn about nature. We get to know the kids and have a great time learning together."

ENCOURAGING Young Readers

Stone Carignan and Katie Korinek spend some one-on-one time reading.

Students start summer reading program

By Heather Connor
Staff Writer

Youth from a local church recently shared their love of reading with younger children in the community.

A handful of Dexter High School students and one Pioneer High School student who attend Peace Lutheran Church in Dexter hosted a six-week Summer Read Program at the Dexter District Library. Kindergarteners, first- and second-graders enjoyed word study, reading, literacy games and group read-aloud programs.

The group met on Wednesday evenings at the library. The last meeting was Aug. 3.

"These youth are very invested in promoting literacy in young children," said church outreach chairwoman Cassy Korinek. "More importantly, they want to provide an environment of encouragement and friendship for young minds to thrive."

The older kids in the church youth program were each given $50 earlier this year to donate to a project that would help the community. Korinek's daughter, Meaghan, decided that she wanted to give her money to a project where she would see the results herself instead of giving it to a charity that she was not involved with.

Cassy Korinek, who is an elementary school teacher in the Dexter School District, told Meaghan about a reading program in the district that had lost its grant funds and was no longer operating. Meaghan decided to form a program similar to it and got other youth at the church involved.

Cassy Korinek said she told her daughter that the program "would fill a void."

The high school students worked one-on-one with each child in the program for one hour each week, essentially becoming their reading teacher. Korinek said the experience was rewarding for all involved.

"The end result was smiles, eagerness, readers, teachers and friendships," Korinek said.

Korinek said individuals in the Dexter Community Schools helped the church find 13 pupils to participate in the program. The kids were hand-picked by teachers and social workers at Bates and Cornerstone elementary schools to participate.

The youth group received approval from Dexter Schools Superintendent Evelynn Shirk to coordinate the program. The children also earned community service credit for the project.

Cassy Korinek said she was most impressed by the students' dedication and commitment to the program. They were eager to see the individual children they were paired with improve in their reading skills, she said.

"I'm so proud of their desire to reach out into the community and their accomplishment," Cassy Korinek said.

Dexter grad's legacy continues through foundation

Foundation's mission is to eliminate pediatric cancers as life-threatening diseases

By Sheila Pursglove
Special Writer

Carrie Sloan's family and friends should have been celebrating her 26th birthday Aug. 22. Instead, they are raising funds to fight the cancer that claimed the 1997 Dexter High School graduate's life in June 2004.

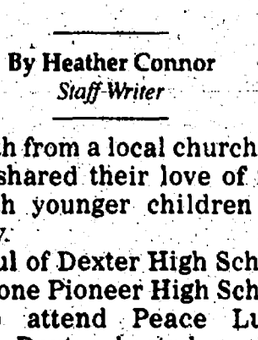

Last year, they created the Berry Patch Foundation Inc., a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization, in memory of Carrie to continue her path of helping others in need, said her mother, Janet Sloan.

"Additional research and education may have led to an earlier diagnosis, resulting in valuable time to fight this deadly disease," Janet said.

The foundation's mission is to eliminate pediatric cancers as life-threatening diseases by advancing, research, education and treatment.

The group has been raising money by making lanyards to sell at the University of Michigan Dental School, and also collecting used ink toner cartridges and used cell phones to recycle. The group participated in the Ann Arbor Art Fairs and plans to be at Dexter Daze Aug. 12 and 13.

"Carrie had many friends and a close family who cared about her," said her aunt, Sharon Uren. "We would like others to know about how she has inspired many to come together and work toward these goals established by the foundation."

Carrie Sloan

Carrie was a healthy, active child and young adult who was on the Dexter High School swim team, played clarinet in the marching band, marched as a flag girl, was active in high school plays, and enjoyed dancing, singing, reading, traveling and spending time with family and friends.

In December 2000, Carrie graduated from the University of Michigan, where she was on the flag squad with the University of Michigan Marching Band.

After majoring in organizational studies with a minor in Spanish, Carrie moved to Tempe, Ariz., for a career as a bi-lingual domestic violence caseworker.

"She helped battered women find respect for themselves and help them start a new life," Uren said.

Sadly, Carrie's exciting new life and career were cut short.

In February 2002, at the age of 22, she began experiencing discomfort in her right shoulder blade, and was diagnosed with bursitis. When pain medication proved ineffective, tests in July, including a MRI, revealed a mass of 4 inches on her right shoulder blade, and a further biopsy concluded she had Ewing's Sarcoma, a pediatric cancer, with 50 percent of its victims between 10 and 20 years old. After moving back home to Michigan, Carrie started treatment at the University of Michigan Cancer Center.

Carrie devoted her life to helping others. She volunteered at a domestic violence shelter, a local soup kitchen, Safe House in Ann Arbor, participated in alternative spring break and donated her hair to Locks of Love.

During her time at U of M, she spent a semester at sea, visiting Cuba, Brazil, South Africa, Kenya, India, Malaysia, Vietnam and China.

"She was a very giving young lady," her mother said.

Throughout her treatment, Carrie maintained a positive, hopeful and cheerful attitude. She received 20 cycles of chemotherapy, 56 radiation treatments, physical therapy and had two surgeries.

"Even with the debilitating effects of the chemotherapy over an extended period of time, Carrie

WEDDINGS & ENGAGEMENTS

Lettinga, House exchange vows

Ashley Lettinga of Wayland, daughter of Kevin and Debbie Lettinga of Wayland, and Christopher House of Chelsea, son of Don and Becky House of Chelsea, were married May 6 at Friendship Christian Reformed Church in Byron Center.

The maid of honor was Aubrey Lettinga of Wayland, sister of the bride.

The bridesmaids were Alexa Lettinga of Wayland, sister of the bride, Anna House and Leah House, both of Chelsea, sisters of the groom.

Craig St. Clair and Tod Schlegelmilch, both of Chelsea, friends of the groom, were the best men.

The groomsman was Austin Lettinga of Wayland, brother of bride. Josh VanLaan of Grand Rapids, a friend of bride, was the usher.

Emily Sleight of Okemos, cousin of groom, was the flower girl and Skylar Stora of Wayland, cousin of bride, was the ring bearer.

A reception was held at Brann's Wedding and Conference Center in Grand Rapids. The couple honeymooned in Riviera Maya, Mexico. They reside in Hudsonville.

The bride is a graduate of South Christian High School in Grand Rapids, and a graduate of Grand Valley State University in Allendale. She is starting her own photography business.

The groom is a graduate of Chelsea High School and a graduate of GVSU. He is employed as a senior network analyst at Metropolitan Hospital in Grand Rapids.

Couple to marry

Joshua Krull Grossfeld and Angela Stanton are engaged and planning to marry next January in Maryland.

The future groom, a 1997 graduate of Dobson High School in Arizona, is the son of Teri and Robert Grossfeld of Mesa, Ariz., and the grandson of the late Midge and Jake Krull of Dexter. The future bride, a 1998 graduate of Damacus High School in Maryland, is the daughter of Maria and Joseph Stanton of Gaithersburg, Md.

The future bride graduated in 2002 from the University of Maryland College Park with a bachelor's degree in journalism. She works in advertising as a senior account executive at Porter Novelli, where she manages the creative development and production for several corporate and nonprofit clients.

The future groom is a 2001 graduate of the University of Arizona, where he studied communications and Spanish. He is employed as a senior account executive at MammenPritchard, where he consults political candidates and runs direct mail campaigns.

WRAP

Patty Phillips of Lyndon Township has made WRAP Camp a tradition for her family. Her son, Hunter, has been attending for four years.

"It's a real nice program, down to earth and good for the kids," she said. "They play games that require their imagination. It's real interactive and the counselors are wonderful."

Samantha Labadie of Dexter attended the camp this summer for the first time.

"I liked the games that we played — Red Rover — the geology center, hiking in the woods and seeing the frogs that we were not supposed to pet," she said.

Erica Vanneste of Lima Township marked her fifth year at WRAP Camp this summer.

"I like to go back, she said. "I like the bog walk, making new friends. I like to see the same teacher come back every year, and singing some of the songs from years before."

In one room, kids discover that geology is interesting and exciting. Visitors may enter a model ice cave and view each other standing next to a giant beaver.

Youngsters also may conduct experiments in the Mad Scientist Lab. The Fossil Graveyard features models of fossilized bones and teeth. Touch-screen computer games test geology knowledge and display large collection of rocks and minerals from across the state.

The center's auditorium has a multi-image program about the Waterloo area. While stepping into the atrium, kids get to see an active honeybee colony.

Visitors also may take advantage of a sheltered picnic area with a grill. On the west side of the building, an observation deck offers a pleasant view of Mill Lake, and a telescope is provided for viewing waterfowl and other wildlife.

The center is located at 17030 Bush Road, between Pierce and McClure roads, near Chelsea. To get there, take I-94 to exit 157 and go north to Bush Road. Take Bush Road west to the center.

The center is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday. For information, call 475-3170.

On June 26, 2004, after a long and brave fight that included traditional Western medicine and alternative therapies such as acupuncture, Reiki, massage therapy and a vegan diet, the struggle ended.

"We will forever be grateful to have had her touch our lives," Janet said. "She will be in our hearts and minds inspiring us to be our best."

The foundation created in her memory has an interesting story behind its name.

"When she was a little girl, we would often refer to her as Carrie berry," Janet said.

"When family and friends gathered on Carrie's 25th birthday in 2004 to decide on a name for the foundation created in her memory, it was decided she would have felt the cause more important than having her name on the foundation.

"We settled on the Berry Patch Foundation, which we felt was fitting for a child's foundation and had a recognizable connection for Carrie's family and friends."

To help support the cause, call Janet at 222-5088, e-mail berrypatchfoundation@comcast.net or write to 3905 Bridle Pass, Ann Arbor MI 48108.

PROGRAM

The youth who coordinated the program were Amy Binder, a student at Pioneer High School, and Meghan Korinek, Katie Korinek, Emma McCrea, Alex Santoro, Scott Santoro, Hailey Schebor, Gina Steffey, John Stone and Josh VonTom, all students at Dexter High School.

Adult coordinators of the program were Cassy Korinek, Sara McCrea, Nick Santoro and Maxine Santoro.

The group celebrated its investment in literature through a read-aloud and a craft at its last meeting. The children took home their craft projects as a reminder of the experience.

"We finished the program this evening, and I think we were all a little teary as the children left," Korinek said. "We all had such a great time together and it was wonderful to keep children invested in reading."

WEDDINGS & ENGAGEMENTS

Lettinga, House exchange vows

Ashley Lettinga of Wayland, daughter of Kevin and Debbie Lettinga of Wayland, and Christopher House of Chelsea, son of Don and Becky House of Chelsea, were married May 6 at Friendship Christian Reformed Church in Byron Center.

The maid of honor was Aubrey Lettinga of Wayland, sister of the bride.

The bridesmaids were Alexa Lettinga of Wayland, sister of the bride, Anna House and Leah House, both of Chelsea, sisters of the groom.

Craig St. Clair and Tod Schlegelmilch, both of Chelsea, friends of the groom, were the best men.

The groomsman was Austin Lettinga of Wayland, brother of bride. Josh VanLaan of Grand Rapids, a friend of bride, was the usher.

Emily Sleight of Okemos, cousin of groom, was the flower girl and Skylar Stora of Wayland, cousin of bride, was the ring bearer.

A reception was held at Brann's Wedding and Conference Center in Grand Rapids. The couple honeymooned in Riviera Maya, Mexico. They reside in Hudsonville.

The bride is a graduate of South Christian High School in Grand Rapids, and a graduate of Grand Valley State University in Allendale. She is starting her own photography business.

The groom is a graduate of Chelsea High School and a graduate of GVSU. He is employed as a senior network analyst at Metropolitan Hospital in Grand Rapids.

Couple to marry

Joshua Krull Grossfeld and Angela Stanton are engaged and planning to marry next January in Maryland.

The future groom, a 1997 graduate of Dobson High School in Arizona, is the son of Teri and Robert Grossfeld of Mesa, Ariz., and the grandson of the late Midge and Jake Krull of Dexter. The future bride, a 1998 graduate of Damacus High School in Maryland, is the daughter of Maria and Joseph Stanton of Gaithersburg, Md.

The future bride graduated in 2002 from the University of Maryland College Park with a bachelor's degree in journalism. She works in advertising as a senior account executive at Porter Novelli, where she manages the creative development and production for several corporate and nonprofit clients.

The future groom is a 2001 graduate of the University of Arizona, where he studied communications and Spanish. He is employed as a senior account executive at MammenPritchard, where he consults political candidates and runs direct mail campaigns.

Patty Phillips of Lyndon Township has made WRAP Camp a tradition for her family. Her son, Hunter, has been attending for four years.

"It's a real nice program, down to earth and good for the kids," she said. "They play games that require their imagination. It's real interactive and the counselors are wonderful."

Samantha Labadie of Dexter attended the camp this summer for the first time.

"I liked the games that we played — Red Rover — the geology center, hiking in the woods and seeing the frogs that we were not supposed to pet," she said.

Erica Vanneste of Lima Township marked her fifth year at WRAP Camp this summer.

"I like to go back, she said. "I like the bog walk, making new friends. I like to see the same teacher come back every year, and singing some of the songs from years before."

In one room, kids discover that geology is interesting and exciting. Visitors may enter a model ice cave and view each other standing next to a giant beaver.

Youngsters also may conduct experiments in the Mad Scientist Lab. The Fossil Graveyard features models of fossilized bones and teeth. Touch-screen computer games test geology knowledge and display large collection of rocks and minerals from across the state.

The center's auditorium has a multi-image program about the Waterloo area. While stepping into the atrium, kids get to see an active honeybee colony.

Visitors also may take advantage of a sheltered picnic area with a grill. On the west side of the building, an observation deck offers a pleasant view of Mill Lake, and a telescope is provided for viewing waterfowl and other wildlife.

The center is located at 17030 Bush Road, between Pierce and McClure roads, near Chelsea. To get there, take I-94 to exit 157 and go north to Bush Road. Take Bush Road west to the center.

The center is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday. For information, call 475-3170.

WESTERN WASHTENAW COUNTY

Smith succeeds Shaneyfelt at FIA

Former book store owner serves as assistant to the director

By Rita Fischer
Special Writer

There is a new face at one of Washtenaw County's largest human-service agencies.

Doug Smith, the former owner of Little Professor book store, now Cranesbill Books, in Chelsea has been named assistant to the director of Faith In Action. He succeeds Nadine Shaneyfelt, who retired after 18 years with the agency.

FIA uses the resources of community volunteers to extend a helping hand to those in need, providing clothing, food and help with utility bills.

Shaneyfelt began her career at FIA as a VISTA volunteer. So, it felt like things had come full circle when Smith, also a former VISTA volunteer, was hired to take her place in May, she said.

Smith began work at the agency in June and is getting to know all the volunteers and the work involved at FIA.

A 13-year Chelsea resident, Smith has two children, 13-year-old Geoffrey and 10-year-old Rose. They attend Chelsea Public Schools.

While he's mainly known in Chelsea as the former owner of Little Professor book store and has written a novel since he sold the business, Smith has a long work history of helping in the area of housing. He also has been involved with social and economic justice issues.

A former community organizer in Detroit for a decade, Smith has worked as a transitional housing coordinator and executive director at SOS Crisis Center and Interfaith Hospitality Network. He has a master's degree in social work from the University of Michigan.

"I am very excited about being back into the work I feel best at and to be working with such great volunteers and a director like Nancy Paul," he said. "I look forward to implementing new and innovative programs which will support or help create more affordable housing for low-income folks."

Now retired, Shaneyfelt is spending more time vacationing, fishing and helping her husband, Dick, the former director of FIA, with plumbing inspections. She said she is very happy with her new life.

"My wish for FIA is that it will continue to grow, to prosper and to be the blessing it has been since it began," she said. "With the Lord's help, it will be."

Doug Smith succeeds Nadine Shaneyfelt at Faith In Action, where she retired last June as assistant to the director. Smith is the former owner of Little Professor book store, now Cranesbill Books, in Chelsea.

FIA Director Nancy Paul says the transition has gone smoothly.

"We are extremely fortunate to have Doug here to take over the work Nadine has done," she said. "His knowledge of the service network is proving invaluable to the work we do.

"We all know we'll miss Nadine's wit and depth of knowledge of the community, but she's still in town and promises to be a resource for us.

"We're enthusiastic about the future of FIA," she said.

Classical music returns to radio

Hey, Beethoven buffs, have you heard? There's something new on the airwaves that will have more than Handel fans shouting "Hallelujah."

Classical music is back on Detroit radio.

As of Aug. 1, WRCJ-FM 90.9 switched to a classical and jazz music format, marking the return of a locally operated classical music service to Detroit airwaves for the first time since WQRS-FM sounded its final note in 1997.

"Classical music is back in the Detroit market, and it has sorely been missed, said Robert Scott, station manager for WRCJ.

Scott was formerly vice president of programming and education for WTVS-TV, Detroit Public Television, which recently earned a contract to operate the nonprofit educational radio station that remains licensed to Detroit Public Schools.

Detroit Public Television assumed operation of WRCJ on July 1, as part of its mission to educate, entertain and inspire, in partnership with the community.

For Scott, the new venture is a marriage of professional advancement and personal interest.

"My first love has always been music," Scott said, recalling that ever since he was a boy listening to his grandfather's records, which prompted him to become a musician, he had been into classical and jazz.

Like countless Detroit-area music lovers, he has been acutely aware of the major gap in Detroit's radio market.

Along with the lack of classical music programming, a format change at WJZZ-FM cut deeply into listening options for jazz aficionados

"Both of those audiences were left high and dry," Scott said. "This new station will serve the community by responding to its needs."

The station's format follows a successful template established at WRTI-FM, owned by Temple University in Philadelphia.

WRCJ plays classical music from 5 a.m. to 7 p.m. and traditional jazz from 7 p.m. to 5 a.m. weekdays. Weekend programming will eventually be a mix of classical, jazz, gospel and community affairs.

The station was Michigan's first educational FM radio station when it began broadcasting in January 1948 as WDTR. The call letters were changed in 2004.

The station's license remains the property of Detroit Public Schools. Once technical facilities are completed, the station will be located in the Detroit School of Arts, a Detroit public high school located in Detroit's Cultural Center. Students will gain hands-on radio production experience at the radio station as part of their communications curriculum.

Initially, WRCJ programming will originate from three public radio satellite services, Classical 24, JazzWorks and Jazz Satellite Network, as well as from other sources, but eventually, the station will offer locally based programming throughout the day.

Scott said the station is talking to several former on-air personalities from both the former WQRS and WJZZ, as well as other area media talent.

Youngsters from all across Washtenaw County came to the annual 4-H Youth Show July 24 through 30 at the Washtenaw County Farm Council Grounds. Youngsters were encouraged to show still exhibits, or handmade crafts, that they made or grew, as well as animals or come for the educational benefits.

Nearly 1,000 children participated in the event, many earning prizes and cash for their crafts and animals they showed.

Youngsters were judged on their ability to make hobbies and handle animals. Ribbons were awarded based on each individual's ability.

For information about 4-H, call 222-3990 or e-mail washtenaw@msue.msu.edu.

DAY-TRIP DESTINATION

HAPPENING Howell

Photos by Patricia Majher

The Livingston County Courthouse, built in 1889, was restored by the community of Howell in 1978.

City combines history with hip factor

By Patricia Majher
Special Writer

You may have to get off the main road — specifically Interstate 96 — to experience Howell. But it's well worth the trip to see how this vibrant community manages to be both hip and historic at the same time.

The history of Howell is most evident in its architecture. Anchoring the downtown are two of its most impressive structures — a 1889 courthouse and a 1903 Carnegie library — but that's just the beginning. North and south of Grand River Avenue are dozens of Victorian-era homes that give Howell a certain turn-of-the-century charm.

Another building that reinforces this feeling is the Italianate-influenced train depot. Located at the corner of Wetmore and Walnut streets, the depot is the site of a local history museum. It's also the jumping-off point for train trips that take passengers over the tracks of the old Tuscola and Saginaw Bay Railway. Check out www.lakecentralrailtours.com for complete details on fall color tours, a Santa express and more.

Another step-back-in-time experience in downtown Howell is a traditional afternoon tea. The Blue Willow Tea Room on Michigan Avenue keeps a hot pot brewing and serves sandwiches, scones and delectable desserts Tuesdays through Saturdays.

On select afternoons, special programs are presented covering such topics as the history of hats, Victorian "unmentionables" and the mourning customs of the 19th century.

The intersection of Michigan Avenue and Grand River is the center of a thriving business district that includes more than its fair share of hip, happening retail stores. Eclectic Twyst is a prime example of this. It's a gallery, a gift shop and a great place to hang out.

Cookies by Design can whip up a bouquet of baked goods for almost any event. And Aria Booksellers could be entertaining an author or hosting a book club when you stop in.

One downtown store even defines itself as "upscale resale:" Le Boutique.

If bargain hunting is your thing, travel west of Howell to the I-96/M-59 interchange. There you'll find Tanger Outlet Center, with more than 80 brand-name stores. Are you a 'tique geek? Just down the road is the Livingston Antique Outlet, where 120 dealers await your arrival.

After all that shopping, you might work up a bit of a hunger. That can be satisfied at nearby Tomato Brothers, a family-oriented Italian restaurant with breadsticks that melt in your mouth. Back downtown, you can indulge in Mexican or Chinese food, as well as tavern, deli and coffee shop fare.

Looking for fresh food to purchase and prepare later? Check out State Street, adjacent to the courthouse. That's where the Howell Farmers' Market is held from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sundays May through October.

June is the time for a key event in the Howell area: the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest. On the last weekend of that month, thousands of people converge at Howell High School to watch hot-air balloon competitions, skydiving shows and stunt kite demos. Supporting these events is a solid slate of entertainment, including musical acts, an arts festival, a car show and parade, even a medieval village.

The Rock-N-Roll K-9s, a team of trained dogs that perform in agility contests, are a definite draw at the Balloonfest. But if you want to see wild animals in their natural surroundings, venture south on Michigan Avenue and Pinckney Road toward the Howell Conference and Nature Center. The facility, established in 1962 as a church camp, has evolved into a premier place for wildlife rehabilitation and environmental education.

More than 30 species of birds and mammals live on site, including an impressive array of raptors, both big and small. A bald eagle exhibit occupies the highest point at the center and includes a manmade babbling brook. A $2 donation is suggested to walk the grounds.

For information about upcoming events to be held at the Nature Center or any other events mentioned in this article, contact the Livingston County Convention and Visitors Bureau at 800-686-8474 or visit www.lccvb.org.

Patricia Majher is a freelance writer. She can be reached via e-mail at PMajher@aol.com.

With a whoosh of air, color fills the air during the annual Michigan Challenge Balloonfest in June.

An injured snowy egret has found sanctuary at the Howell Conference and Nature Center.

Howell's train depot, once a stop on the Ann Arbor Railroad, now serves as a starting point for train trips traveling as far north as Cadillac.

Celebrity Servers Coming Today

Randi Weddon of Chelsea serves pie at the Big Boy restaurant in Chelsea to Alice Rawson of Dexter and Barbara Torrice of Sylvan Township. The restaurant will host The Celebrity Server program, featuring local community leaders as food servers, from 4 to 8 p.m. today as part of a fund-raising partnership between the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce and the Chelsea Senior Center. Big Boy will return to local organizations 10 percent of all the sales during the four-hour period, and the celebrity servers will give up their tips as part of the program. In addition, there will be several pie auctions held throughout the evening.

DEXTER VILLAGE

Movie Under the Stars to be shown Wednesday

Proceeds from water, popcorn sales to benefit senior center

By Rita Fischer
Special Writer

Not everyone appreciates the summer heat, but leaders in Dexter and volunteers at Peace Lutheran Church are taking advantage of it.

Alison Bishop, community development manager for the village of Dexter, is excited about a new creative endeavor to bring more people into town.

Movie Under the Stars will be held for the first time 8 p.m. Wednesday in Monument Park. It will feature face painting, a magic act and Twist and Shout, followed by the showing of "Willie Wonka and the Chocolate Factory."

"This is great for downtown," Bishop said. "It's a great outreach for the community, as well. If this goes well, maybe it can be something we could do on a monthly basis."

Not only is the event an opportunity for friends, family and neighbors to gather in the heart of town, but also a chance to raise money for the Dexter Senior Center. Proceeds raised will benefit the local senior citizens organization.

Valerie Klopocinski, director of the Dexter Senior Center, was pleasantly surprised to hear about the event.

"We did not know anything about it," she said. "It's so nice that they took the initiative and surprised us with it. We hope to put the money in the general fund to help pay utilities at the center or use it to fund other programs."

The Rev. Larry Courson of Peace Lutheran Church said that the church has been involved with many activities in Dexter, but this is the first time members of the congregation have been able to reach a large number of people through their efforts.

Courson is looking forward to the movie night. During the church's own family film nights, refreshments were sold and the money raised was used to benefit U.S. soldiers in the Middle East.

"The church started to have (its) own family film nights, but for this we wanted to take it into the community," he said.

As outreach chairwoman at Peace Lutheran Church, Cassy Korinek introduced the idea after attending a similar event while living in Virginia.

"The Bible, it tells us to serve and this is what we do — go out and serve," she said of the movie night. "It's so much fun. When you serve, you feel other people's enthusiasm. Everyone feels good."

Those attending are encouraged to bring their own picnic dinner to spread out on the lawn in Monument Park.

Bottled water and popcorn will be sold during the show, with proceeds benefiting the senior center.

A rain date of Aug. 19 has been set.

YOUR DECORATING DOLLAR

Mix it up once in awhile

Do you look around your home and like what you see but you're bored by the décor?

If so, then it's time to mix things up.

This is an easy, no-cost way to redecorate. The idea is to switch out accessories, pillows, throws, area rugs and small pieces of furniture from one room to another. Very often the styles and colors in one room can be used successfully in a different room. Artwork can be interchanged for a new look, mirrors relocated and decorative items placed in new places.

If you always have the same decorative candle on the kitchen island, perhaps that can go in a bathroom or bedroom. Replace it with that great vase you keep in the china cabinet and treat yourself to a fresh bouquet each week.

I make some simple changes when I get bored. Recently, I removed all the pillows from the window seat for a nice clean look for the season. I also lowered some blinds half way that I normally keep wide open. Simple changes can give your home a new look.

Switch things around on coffee tables, side tables and bookcases. Better yet, switch the coffee table in the living room for the one in the family room. Remove the curio cabinet to another room and in its place put a large plant. Use your imagination.

Re-mixing is fun, creative and a no-cost solution to your decorating doldrums.

Taste of Home Cafe is back in business

Food service at the Chelsea Senior Center is open to everyone

By Crystallee Crain
Special Writer

Approaching its second year of existence, the Taste of Home Cafe is back in business and making lunches available to the entire community after a two-week shutdown in July.

The cafe, located at the Chelsea Senior Center, is open to anyone in the community, from local senior citizens to young professionals looking for a home-cooked meal for lunch. It closed temporarily in July because of a lack of participation, said Interim Director Kay Heller.

Starting this month, the Chelsea Senior Center has opened the café's doors to the community at large in hopes of getting a better response. The offerings include meat loaf and gravy, pork loin, stuffed cabbage and Swedish meatballs, among other dishes. A full menu can be found on the Chelsea School District's Web site at www.chelsea.k12.mi

The lunches are being served in the center's new facility, which is called the Taste of Home Cafe. The cafe is part of the Washtenaw County Senior Nutrition Program and is located at the Washington Street Education Center, 500 E. Washington St. It's open from noon to 1 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday.

The center charges $5 for a meal at the cafe. People 60 years and older have the option to register with the Washtenaw County Senior Nutrition program and receive lunch for a $2.50 donation.

The nutrition program is funded through a grant from the local Area Agency On Aging.

The center requires reservations 24 hours in advance to prep for the next day's meals.

"We would love to have 40 to 50 (people) per day," Heller said.

As part of the center's efforts to reach out to the community, Heller said the facility offers flexible hours.

The Chelsea Senior Center is open during the summer from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. In September, the center plans to return to a five-day-a-week schedule.

For more information about the center or the nutrition program, call 475-9242.

Holdsworth named to new post

Fred Holdsworth of Chelsea has been promoted to vice president of finance, for Comcast's Midwest Division.

In addition to Holdsworth's current financial reporting and accounting responsibilities, his new role has expanded to include oversight of the Midwest's Human Resources Department.

"In Fred's relatively short time with Comcast, he has built solid partnerships with Comcast Cable's finance and accounting departments, as well as Spotlight's corporate finance team," Kevin Cuddihy, vice president and divisional managing director of Comcast Spotlight, said in a press release.

"His quick assimilation of the ad sales business and understanding of industry's financial nuances make him a valuable asset to the company."

Holdsworth joined Comcast in 2003. He previously served as senior director of finance. Before joining Comcast, Holdsworth was the director of Ernst & Young Entrepreneurial Services Group, with more than 18 years of experience in providing consistent value to privately and publicly-held companies in a variety of industries.

Holdsworth holds a bachelor's degree in business administration, with a major in finance and accounting from the University of Michigan.

SYLVAN TOWNSHIP

Gaunt family has deep roots

Floral wholesaler started in 1931

By Crystallee Crain
Special Writer

From the ground up, the Gaunt family of Sylvan Township has been growing gladiolus as well as businessmen.

In 1931, Chelsea gave root to what is now the largest floral wholesaler in Michigan with a 43,000-square-foot warehouse in Romulus. The business, Southview Gladiolus Farms, started out with 4,500 square feet and expanded three times before moving into new digs a year ago.

The business, launched 74 years ago by Edwin Gaunt, a former postal carrier, on farmland off Werkner Road near Chelsea, is a remarkable part of Chelsea's history and an example of a successful family-owned business.

Jim Gaunt, Edwin's son and the family's patriarch at 78, now serves as chairman of Southview Inc. in Romulus, where his three sons, 42-year-old Tom, 48-year-old Richard "Ric" and 51-year-old Daniel run the family business.

"My sons are very bright and very hard-working," Jim said.

Throughout the 1930s, Jim's father ran the farm. After Jim graduated from the University of Michigan, he joined his father in the family business, a trend he would carry on with his three sons.

"My dad was a wonderful teacher," Jim said. "He loved working with young people."

One of Edwin's grandsons can attest to his teaching ability, as well.

"A lot of my earliest memories that I have were working with my grandfather," said

20 UNDER 40

On Sept. 15, Heritage Newspapers-West plans to honor the top young professionals from the greater Washtenaw County area through a first-time feature called 20 Under 40.

We'll pick 20 movers and shakers who live and/or work in any of the communities served by the Heritage Newspapers-West region, which is comprised of Belleville, Chelsea, Dexter, Manchester, Milan, Saline and Ypsilanti. The nominees must be younger than 40 as of Sept. 15.

Among the fields are business, religion, education, the arts, community service, health care, emergency services and government.

Each nomination must include the following information for consideration:

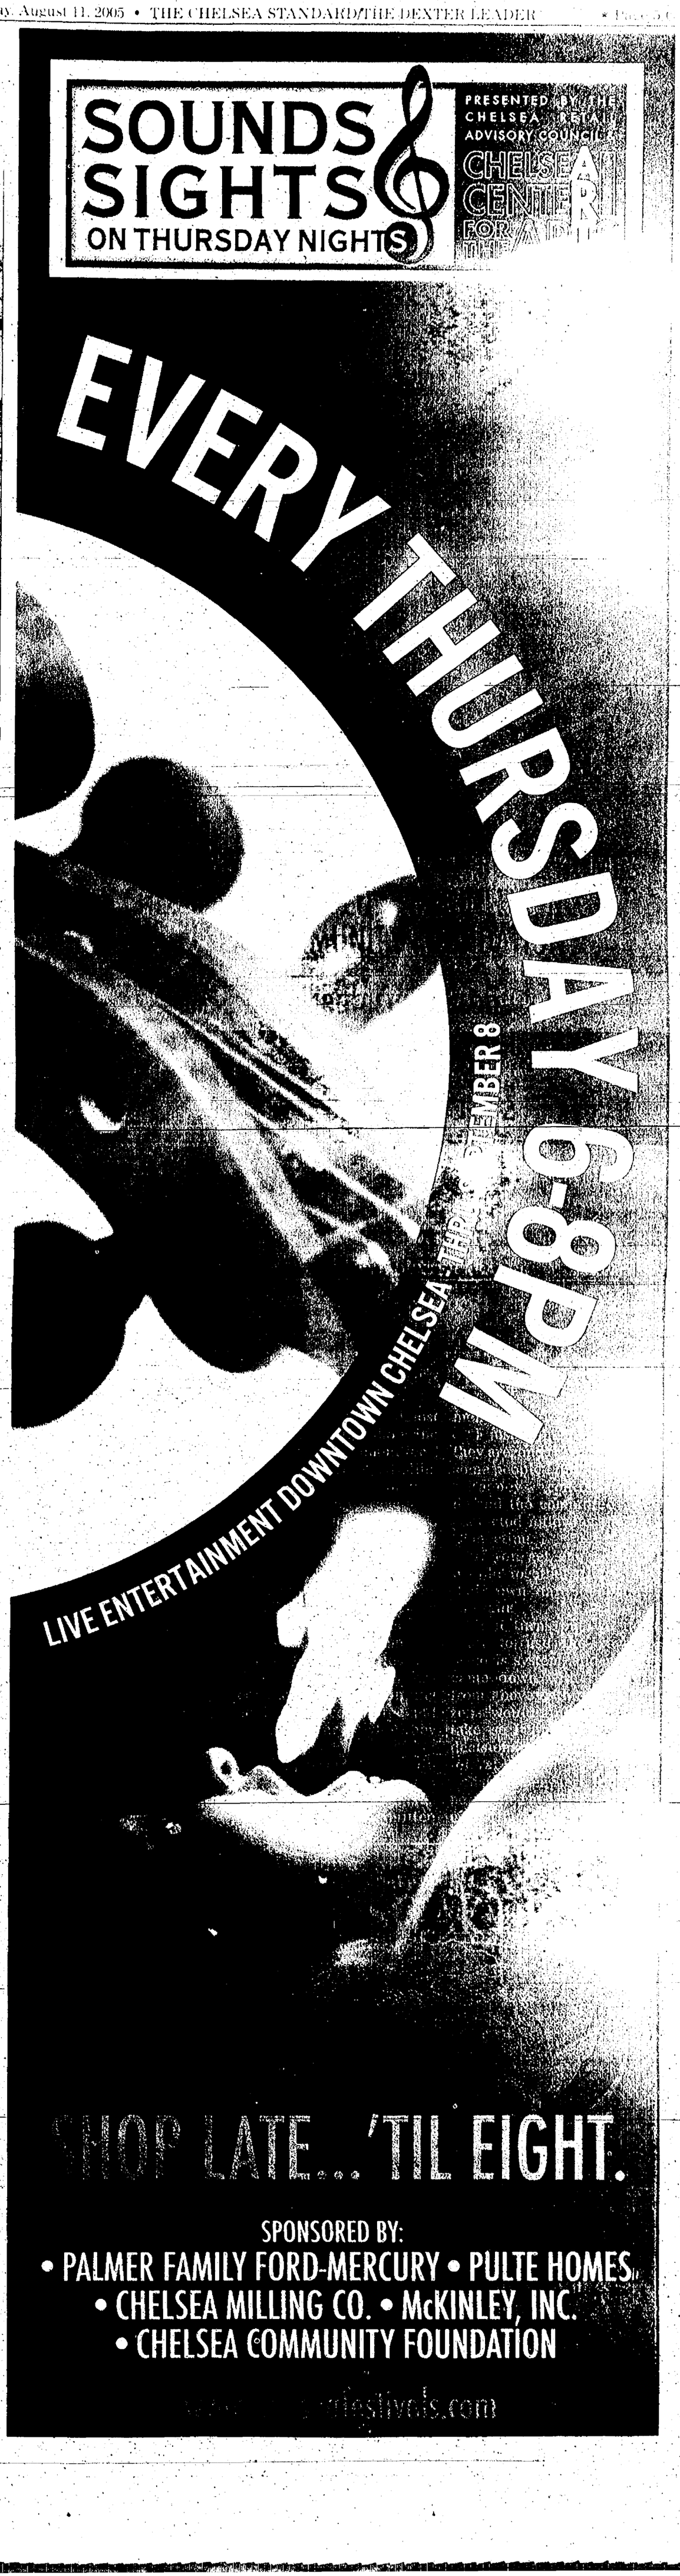

- The nominee's name, occupation, organization, birth date (with year) and contact information, including daytime telephone number and/or e-mail.
- The nominator's name and contact information, including daytime telephone number and/or e-mail. Also include in what capacity you deal with the nominee.
- The reason for nominating this person, in 50 words or less.

The submission deadline will be 5 p.m. Aug. 25.

A panel of Heritage Newspapers staff members will make the selections, and the honorees will be notified.

Who will be the nominees to this prestigious group? You decide!

Written nominations may be submitted in several ways:
By mail to Editor Michelle Rogers,
The Chelsea Standard/The Dexter Leader,
20750 Old US-12, Chelsea, MI 48118.
By e-mail to mrogers@heritage.com.
By fax to 1-734-475-1413.
In person at The Chelsea Standard/The Dexter Leader.
Nominations will not be taken by telephone.

Motorcycles on Main a hit at festival

Motorcycles on Main Street, one of the offerings during the Chelsea Summer Fest July 29 and 30, featured about 1,000 motorcycles, with 59 bikers participating in four contests.

Cash-prize winners in the Cleanest Classic contest were Jon Anderson of Tecumseh, who won first place with a 1955 Harley Davidson FLH Custom; Craig Wykoff of Jackson, who captured second place with a 1947 Indian Chief; and Arnie Cohl of Wixom, who took third with a 1966 Harley Davidson FLH.

Winning the Prettiest Paint contest were Daniel Lewis of Willis, Jim Foster of Clinton and Ed Halcomb of Portage, taking first through third place, respectively. The first-place winner was a 2001 Harley Davidson Sportster; a custom 2004 BBC Venom was the second choice and a 2003 Harley Road King took third.

Albert Hafley of Chelsea edged neighbors Art Farley and Dave Wolf to top the Rattiest Ride contest with a well-worn and proud 1978 Kawasaki KZ1000 over Farley and Wolf's Harleys.

The Poker Run drew more than 200 bikes for a 65-mile run through the local countryside. The prize for the largest group doing the run was awarded to the Crossroads HOG Chapter in Brighton, which narrowly beat out Motor City HOG of Farmington Hills.

Plaques also were awarded to the top three best poker hands drawn by riders and passengers qualifying by completing the course. Oldest and youngest riders also received awards.

Motorcycles were allowed to park the full length of both sides of Main Street to create a display downtown.

The top prize for the downtown merchant who best exemplified the spirit of the day went to Tom Diab of Gourmet Chocolate Café for his "road kill" chocolate. La Jolla jewelry and the Chelsea Gallery were runners up.

Motorcycles on Main Street featured about 1,000 motorcycles, with 59 bikers participating in four contests. Cash prizes were awarded.

WASHTENAW COUNTY

Volunteers sought for reading project

Washtenaw Community College is looking for people who enjoy reading and want to pass on that pleasure.

The college's reading department is looking for volunteer reading coaches for its Project Genesis program, which provides one-on-one coaching for students who can read but struggle with comprehension, phonics and vocabulary.

"There are many students who have recently graduated from high school only to find that they do not have the necessary skills for college-level classes," Barbara Kenyon of the Washtenaw Community College Adult Basic Education Department said in a press release. "Project Genesis coaches help students with vocabulary and comprehension checks, and provides invaluable background knowledge through their discussion of the stories.

"By improving their reading skills, students have a greater opportunity of reaching their college goals, obtaining better jobs and finding a love of reading."

In the program, students read out loud to volunteers who follow along in an identical book, offering encouragement.

Project Genesis has become so successful in bringing students up to college-level reading that a new level has been added this fall. Staff members have found that many who become good readers advance two or more reading levels at the end of only one semester.

Sessions are a minimum of one hour and day and evening times are available. The program resumes Sept. 6.

Volunteers are encouraged to sign up before classes begin Aug. 26. Coaches must be 18 years or older.

For more information, call Nicola Geyer at 477-8722 or e-mail ngeyer@wccnet.edu

Library to host photo essay display

The exhibit, part of a greater exhibit titled "50 Year Farmers of Southern Michigan," documents a disappearing way of life and features Chelsea-area farmers whose names and families have a long history in western Washtenaw County.

Each of the subjects has lived as farmers for 50 or more years, and in many cases, has lived on the homestead or on the property that has been in their family for three or four generations. Guregian said the project is "meant as a means to stop, look, and listen to the people of this special time in history."

Families featured include Bill and Dottie Van Riper; Alton Grau; Nathan and Ann Alber; Luke and Barbara Schaible; Dorothy and Loren Koengeter; and Norman and Betty Hinderer.

Each photograph is accompanied by a vignette written by the subject and all speak to the hardships and pleasures of farming life, the changes in rural life in their lifetimes, and the affects of technology — from tractors to computers — on farming.

Guregian, a retired public school teacher who grew up on a farm north of Gregory, began her exploration of Michigan farm life in 2000 with a photo essay called "Vanishing Farm Architecture." This led to a Michigan Humanities Council grant that helped fund the current project.

For more information, call 475-8732 or visit the library's Web site at www.chelsea.lib.mi.us.

The library is located at 500 Washington St. in the Washington Street Education Center.

Daniel Gaunt Jim's oldest son.

Daniel started out as a delivery route driver when he was 16 years old.

"My father had a lot of confidence in me," he said.

But the farm's impact on Chelsea went beyond the family, as the Gaunts employed many local youth during the growing season. In fact, while growing up, many of Jim's friends worked on the farm, gaining valuable work experience.

While Jim was coming up in the business, he was involved in many aspects including driving the sales route to Detroit, Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti and the surrounding suburbs. Later, he helped groom his own sons on the ins and outs of operating the business.

In 1938, the family wanted to expand the business, so they arranged for flowers to be shipped in from Florida in the wintertime to keep the floral business open year-round.

"We started using other flowers than gladiolus in the mid-1950s," Jim said.

The Gaunts have brought in flowers from California, Canada and Florida, among other places.

As the years went on, Jim took over the business and his sons joined him. When his sons finished college, they came to work with their father full time, continuing the family legacy and taking the business to another level.

A young Jim Gaunt stands in the fields off Werkner Road with his father, Edwin, in 1938. The gladiolus farm got its start in Sylvan Township. The family-run business now operates out of Romulus.

Since the majority of the farm's clients were in the Detroit area, the family decided in 1981 to relocate to Romulus. In 1987, they added design concept showrooms and a supply division.

"Being close to our customers made it easy to handle our product," Jim said.

Although the family business has relocated, Jim and his wife, Donna, still live on the farm.

"We have nothing but great respect for business people and the schools in Chelsea," Jim said. "There are very few cities the size of Chelsea that have so much to offer."

Southview Inc. still delivers to Chelsea on a daily basis and the Gaunt name remains closely associated with the floriculture industry.

DEXTER VILLAGE

Proceeds from neck coolers support 4-H project

Leaders of the Pack will sell product at Dexter Daze

By Rita Fischer
Special Writer

What do you do to beat the heat during the hot and sticky dog days of summer?

The Leaders of the Pack 4-H Club in Dexter knows.

Wrap a neck cooler around yourself.

Group members have created the neck coolers as a way to raise money to purchase portable horse stalls to use at the Washtenaw County 4-H Youth Show.

The coolers are about the size of a necktie and filled with a special polymer. They are soaked in water for 45 minutes. When you re-soak them, they stay cool for a couple of hours.

People wear them for gardening, mowing the lawn and sports. They feel dry to the touch, but stay cool for hours.

The club hopes to sell the neck coolers this weekend at Dexter Daze and possibly the Chelsea Community Fair Aug. 23 through 27.

Jean Hergott, who has been a club leader for many years, is proud of the hardworking youngsters in her group.

"The kids have been sewing the neck coolers and I am amazed that these 10-year-olds are so good with a (sewing) machine," she said.

"They get to see the beginning-to-end product and see their work sell to make something happen with the money."

Three years ago, Hergott and Cricket Killen, both 4-H leaders involved in Leaders of the Pack, volunteered to chair a committee to raise money to replace the aging stalls used for the 4-H Youth Show at the Washtenaw County Farm Council Grounds near Saline.

The stalls are assembled each year by 4-H members and their parents the week before the fair. There are 84 portable stalls that 4-H'ers put up, and those stalls are more than 20 years old and in need of repair, Hergott said.

As a group of 4-H members and others met to decide what was needed, how much it would cost and how they could raise the funds, someone saw another person wearing a neck cooler and decided it would be a fun thing to create, market and sell. Their goal is to raise approximately $48,000.

In the past three years, the club has raised more than $27,000 toward that goal through the sale of 4-H T-shirts, 4-H bracelets, pop can collections, sales of pizza cards, bagel coupons, popcorn and donations. For the past two years, they've had a booth in the nonprofit section of the Ann Arbor Art Fairs, taking in $2,000 this past July.

Sam Ketzner is one of the club's best salespeople.

"He is a great help to our club. Even though he is too young to be a member, he supports us," said Alexandra Goss, co-president of the club. "He raised nearly $200 during 4-H week alone."

For more information about the horse stall fund, call Hergott at 717-0620.

Sam Ketzner is one of the best salespeople for Leaders of the Pack 4-H Club. He raised nearly $200 during 4-H week selling neck coolers. Profits from the sale will be used to purchase portable horse stalls.

CHELSEA SCHOOLS

Volunteers sought for school committees

Local volunteers are needed to serve on several school committees.

The school district has a number of committees, including the District School Improvement Team, District Curriculum Council, the Reproductive Health Advisory Committee and various task forces.

The District School Improvement Team reviews district and building goals and works to coordinate professional development and other school improvement strategies across the district. Members review the district's annual report and provide input on strategies for district goals.

The District Curriculum Council coordinates the review and alignment of district curriculum with state and national standards.

The Reproductive Health Advisory Committee oversees district curriculum and instruction in the area of reproductive health.

The school district has a task force to address specific needs. When established, such committees have a defined focus and timeline for reporting.

"New members are needed for various committees this school year," Shawn Lewis-Lakin, executive director of student performance for Chelsea schools, said in a press release.

People interested in learning more about the opportunities in Chelsea schools may contact Lewis-Lakin at 433-2208, ext. 6084.

DEATHS

SUZANNE PATRICIA VALENCIA
Battle Creek
Formerly of Dexter

Suzanne Patricia Valencia, 59, of Battle Creek, formerly of Dexter and Whitmore Lake, died Aug. 2, 2005, at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital after a brief illness.

Surviving are two daughters, Sarah A. Gunderson McGibbon of Whitmore Lake and Patricia M. (Lance) Gunderson Johnson of Battle Creek; a son, Daniel C. MacDonald of Ann Arbor; four grandchildren; and a brother, James (Carol) Nuttle of Mecosta.

Memorial services will be held at a later date.

Memorial contributions may be made to the family in care of the funeral home. Personal messages for the family may be placed at www.farleyestesdowdle.com.

Arrangements were made by Farley-Estes & Dowdle Funeral Home.

MICHAEL DAVID MOSES
Hamburg

Michael David Moses, 47, of Hamburg, formerly of Ann Arbor, died Aug. 4, 2005, at the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor. He was born July 26, 1958, in Detroit, the son of Michael and JoAnn (Woosley) Moses.

On Oct. 18, 1986, he married Patricia Lynn Luck at St. Paul Lutheran Church in Hamburg.

Mr. Moses enjoyed boating, reading, music, spending time at the family's cottage up north, and he was an avid history buff. He worked as a financial manager at the Department of Security at the University Hospitals for 26 years.

Mr. Moses was the beloved husband of Patricia L. Moses of Ann Arbor; dear son of Mike and JoAnn Moses of Brighton; fond brother of Jacquline Luttermoser of Brighton; nephew of Sarah Versali; son-in-law of Janet Luck of Chelsea; and brother-in-law of Robert Luck, Dan Luck and Julie Lazarz.

Several nieces, nephews and cousins also survive.

A funeral was held Monday at St. Paul Lutheran Church in Hamburg. Burial was at Fairview Cemetery in Brighton.

Memorial contributions may be to the Hemophilia [illegible] of Michigan, 1921 W. Michigan Ave., Ypsilanti, MI 48197.

Funeral arrangements were handled by Keehn Funeral Home in Brighton.

RICHARD BAYLIS
North Hollywood, Calif.
Formerly of Webster Township

Richard "Dick" Kenny Baylis, 84, of North Hollywood, Calif., died July 29, 2005. He was born Oct. 20, 1920, in Webster Township.

Mr. Baylis attended the University of Michigan and lived in Greenville for a number of years. During World War II, he served in the Belding National Guard's medical unit, including 2 1/2 years in New Guinea with the 32nd Red Arrow Division. He had his own business in North Hollywood.

Mr. Baylis was preceded in death by his father and mother, F. Ray and Jessie (Kenny) Baylis, and sisters, Kay Sorensen and Jean McDonald.

He is survived by two brothers and one sister, Ross (Shirley) Baylis of Traverse City, Nancy (Curt) Bradley of Greenville and Joe (Shirley) Baylis of Menlo Park, Calif., and a number of nieces and nephews.

A family memorial service is planned for later this year. His cremated remains will be buried in the Webster Church Cemetery.

WASHTENAW COUNTY

New adopt-a-road program seeks volunteers

The Washtenaw County Road Commission put in place Aug. 1 an adopt-a-road program that allows local residents to help keep local roadways clean.

The program was approved in May after Jim Harmon, assistant director of engineering for the Road Commission, presented a proposal to the board when a Scio Township resident approached the board with a request to establish a program in Washtenaw County.

Nancy Hedberg of Scio Township said several Jackson Road business owners had expressed an interest in participating in an organized clean-up program and wanted to help keep the boulevard free of litter and trash.

The board directed Road Commission staff to look into similar programs being offered by other road agencies and develop a program for Washtenaw County.

The Road Commission's program is modeled after the Michigan Department of Transportation Adopt-A-Highway program, said Harmon, who presented the board with sample materials, such as a permit application, informational brochures and sign-up forms.

The Road Commission's program is a litter-reduction campaign designed to remove trash and debris from county roadsides, and improve the quality of the environment, while providing an opportunity for individuals and groups to be involved in a positive community activity, according to a press release from the Road Commission.

The new program is aimed at establishing a partnership between volunteers and the Washtenaw County Road Commission, and is open to individuals, service organizations, businesses and families.

The state program, which was established in 1990 to improve the beauty of Michigan's highway roads with community help, celebrated 15 years this spring. According to the Michigan Department of Transportation, the state agency that oversees the Adopt-A-Highway program, more than 570,000 volunteers have participated in the cleanups since the program's inception 15 years ago.

The Washtenaw County program, like the MDOT program, requires seasonal trash pickup for a two-year period. The group will be permitted to request no more than two specific roads on their application, which the Road Commission will assign, on a first-come first-serve basis. Groups will "adopt" a minimum two-mile section of paved primary roads.

Groups must consist of at least seven people who are 18 years or older and commit to conducting a trash cleanup three times per year on designated weekends in the spring, summer and fall.

Each group is required to identify a contact person who will be the group coordinator responsible for obtaining a permit and for scheduling the group to view a safety video and attend the required safety training conducted by the Adopt-A-County-Road coordinator. The group also is responsible for picking up additional trash bags as needed.

"As with our own road workers, our primary concern will be for the safety of the Adopt-A-County Road volunteers," said Steve Puuri, managing director of the Washtenaw County Road Commission. "That is why we will require each volunteer to participate in a safety training session."

Motorists are asked to be aware of these volunteers beginning in May 2006. To ensure their safety, drivers should pay particular attention when they see groups out conducting a weekend cleanup.

"The best way that the motoring public can show their appreciation to these unselfish volunteers who are donating their time and hard work to keep our roadways beautiful is to slow down and use extra caution when you see the fluorescent-vested Adopt-A-County-Road workers in our road rights-of-way," Puuri said.

No permit fee is required and no initial costs are incurred by the program participants; however, each group must provide their own transportation to their adoption site.

The Road Commission will provide bags for litter and pick up the filled bags. In addition, the commission will provide a one-time supply of safety vests and gloves for each member upon their acceptance into the program. Road warning signs will be issued to the group leader.

Trash bags, vests, gloves and safety informational materials may be obtained at the Road Commission office, 555 N. Zeeb Road, in Scio Township.

For more information on the program, contact the Washtenaw County Road Commission at 761-1500 or visit the Web site www.wcroads.org.

Applications are being accepted now in time for the spring 2006 cleanup dates.

FRIEDA D. SCHMITZ-NEILLY
Chelsea

Frieda D. Schmitz-Neilly, 87, of Chelsea died Aug. 4, 2005, at the Stockbridge Country Manor. She was born Aug. 31, 1917, in Chelsea, the daughter of George and Ruth (Burgess) Hafley.

Mrs. Schmitz-Neilly loved to play cards, dance and listen to country music. All of her grandchildren received a handmade afghan made with love.

She was a wonderful mother and will be missed by all, her family said.

Surviving are three daughters, Loretta (Paul) Beal of Stockbridge, Delores (Alva) Fouty of Chelsea and Nancy (Robert) Guenther of Bridgewater; her stepchildren, Virginia (Phillip) Horn of Knoxville, Tenn., Mary Jane Neilly of Ann Arbor, Diane (Spiros) Mourikis of Greece, Margie Stewart of Ann Arbor, Robert Neilly of Pennsylvania and David Neilly of New York; two sisters, Hazel DeLong of Florida, Genevieve (James) Owens Sr. of Grand Blanc; and one sister-in-law, Dolores Hafley of Chelsea.

She is also survived by eight grandchildren, Mark (Theresa) Beal, Tim (Sandy) Beal, Marcia (Jim) Bisonet, Denise (James) Estle, Robin (Philip) Bowerman, Sue (Matt) Brus, Jacqueline (Brian) Lanz and Matthew Guenther; 15 great-grandchildren; several nieces and nephews; step-grandchildren; and step-great-grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Stockbridge Country Manor or Great Lakes Hospice.

ILA V. PHILLIPS
Chelsea
Formerly of Romeo

Ila V. Phillips, 94, of Chelsea died Aug. 3, 2005, at the Chelsea Retirement Community. She was born July 28, 1911, in Romeo, the daughter of James Arthur Parker and Nellie A. Remington.

Mrs. Phillips graduated from Romeo High School in 1929, and married William Phillips in 1933. They remained lifelong residents of Romeo and were members of the First Methodist Church. They were married for 72 years.

Mrs. Phillips was an avid participant in Romeo community activities, leading school, Scouting, church, and community groups over the years.

She traveled widely with her husband in the United States, Canada, Mexico, and Central America, as well as Thailand and China, and the countries of Western Europe.

Mrs. Phillips is survived by three children, Merlin J. (Guadalupe) of Debary, Fla., Arlene P. (John) Shy of Ann Arbor and James F. (Naomi) of Hastings-on-Hudson, N.Y.; three grandchildren, Laura A. Daniel, Kathleen K. Phillips and Jonathan B. Phillips; and one great-granddaughter, Angela A. Daniel.

A memorial service was held Saturday at the Roth-Muir Funeral Home in Romeo. Interment followed in Bruce Cemetery.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Chelsea Retirement Community.

Superintendent's Corner

David K. Killups, Superintendent

Here we go again! The start of a new school year is just around the corner. Students will begin classes on Monday, August 29.

Bond Projects

This summer has been an extremely busy one for the District, with a variety of construction projects taking place. The Charles Cameron Pool has been completely refurbished and up and running since the middle of June. Locker rooms and the filtration also were improved. To top it off, a new entryway, which includes new bathrooms and a concession stand, was added, which greatly increase accessibility for the public. In addition, improvements to the parking lots and bus transfer areas at Beach Middle School are underway and should be completed prior to the start of the school year.

At South Meadows School, windows and doors are being replaced, bathrooms remodeled, and the heating and cooling systems upgraded. This was a tremendous undertaking for a summer project, and the vast majority of the work should be completed prior to the start of the school year. As with any major renovation project, surprises come up that were not expected; we are dealing with them as they occur. The west parking lot at South Meadows was completely reconstructed. In addition, the District partnered with the City of Chelsea to reconstruction Pierce Street, which will improve the safety for students utilizing our transportation system.

The largest renovation project for the summer was at North Creek Elementary School. Even though much of the work mirrored South Meadows, it was on a larger scale. Once again, we anticipate that the majority of work will be completed prior to the opening of school; some details will need to have follow-up throughout the fall.

Other work completed includes:

- A new parking lot and fencing at the transportation center;
- Roof work at the Washington Street Educational Center, North Creek, South Meadows and Beach Middle School;
- New service utilities at the WSEC site;
- Small renovations to one classroom at the high school

Overall, the refurbished buildings and upgraded services will greatly improve our ability to continue to serve the children of the District and the community for years to come.

As we continue to tie up the loose ends of this construction project, we still anticipate being under budget for Phase I, even though we completed more work than originally planned. Phases II and III will begin during the 2005-06 school year, while Phases IV and Phase V will follow. We will provide information on the upcoming phases as they begin to take shape.

All of these improvements were made possible because of the generosity of our community and the understanding of the importance of providing the best education we possibly can for our children.

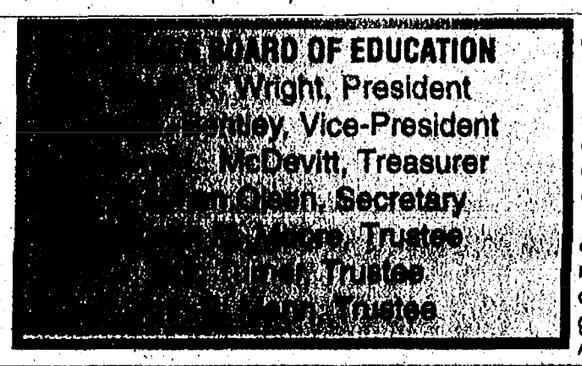

Board Goals

Over the summer, the Board of Education set goals for the 2005-06 school year. Several of the goals are a continuation of previous goals; we believe we have good reason to continue to pursue them. This year's goals are:

- Increase Individual Student Achievement.
- Maintain Fiscal Responsibility.
- Maintain Interactions Between School District and the Community.
- Maintain a Safe and Positive School Climate.

We will pursue these goals, as we keep our mission of "achieving educational goals one student at a time" in the forefront of our minds. We are committed to providing educational excellence in all of our programs.

As always, please do not hesitate to contact us at any time with questions, concerns, or compliments. Our entire staff looks forward to the opening of an exciting new school year and greeting both students and parents on Monday, August 29.

Chelsea Schools Value Community Support

Parent and community members are vital to the success of students in the Chelsea Public Schools. At the building level, parents and community members are valued as classroom volunteers, office volunteers, PTO officers and board members, PTO event volunteers, parent support group participants, field trip chaperones, music booster, and athletic boosters. Parents and community members interested in volunteering in a school building may do so by contacting PTO officers, classroom teachers or building principals.

In addition to building-level opportunities, the Chelsea Public Schools has several district-wide committees on which parent and community members play a vital role. These committees include the following:

- The District School Improvement Team: reviews building improvement goals and works to coordinate professional development and other improvement strategies across the district.
- The District Curriculum Council: coordinates the review and alignment of district curriculum with state and national standards.
- The Reproductive Health Advisory Committee: oversees district curriculum and instruction in the area of reproductive health.
- Task Forces: the district, to address specific needs, may establish task forces. When established, such committees have a defined focus and timeline for reporting.

On a district level, there is also a need for volunteer district office assistants to perform light clerical and receptionist duties. Shawn Lewis-Lakin, Director of Student Performance for the Chelsea Public Schools, maintains a file of parents and community members interested in serving as volunteers for these district-level opportunities with the goal of having volunteers identified to fill positions as openings develop. Persons interested in learning more about these opportunities may contact Shawn Lewis-Lakin at 433-2208 ext. 6084.

New Student Registration Information

If you are the parent of a new student in the Chelsea School District and have not yet registered your child for school, now is the time to do so. Register your child(ren) during the hours of 9:00 a.m. 3:00 p.m. at the Administration Office, 500 Washington Street, Chelsea, MI.: (734) 433-2208 (ext. 6071)

Chelsea Schools – a Safe Place to Be

One of the school board goals for the 2005-2006 school year is to maintain a safe and positive climate. Several steps are being introduced this fall to improve security. These changes will impact parents and community members who visit our schools during the school day.

All school staff members, volunteers and visitors in our schools during the regular school day (from the beginning of the school day until it ends) will be required to wear identification badges at all times.

During the school day each school will have only one entrance open; an employee will monitor this entrance. All visitors will be required to check in at the office, sign in and receive a visitor badge. Each school will identify this entrance at a later date.

Observation cameras are being installed in several locations inside and outside the high school. Beach Middle School will also have camera locations inside and outside the school. The Washington Street Education Center will have surveillance cameras installed at a later date.

Emergency procedure information was updated last school year. This information is located in most rooms and offices throughout the school district. Public safety officials worked with school district staff to practice responding to public disasters during last November.

The cooperation of the students, parents, staff and community members will be appreciated as these new procedures are implemented for the safety of our young people.

Early Childhood and Preschool Fall Openings

There are still limited openings available in the Chelsea Preschool Program, including our three and four-year-old programs. Classes begin on September 12. Our Parents-As-Teachers program for newborn to 30 months also begins in September. Call Community Education at 433-2206, ext. 6001 or 6002 to register.

Community Education Fall Programs

Community Education catalogs outlining programs offered this fall will be sent out to homes the middle of August 2005. Information regarding registration for programs will be available in the catalogs.

Adult Education Classes Offered

Adult high school completion and GED preparation classes will be offered through the Chelsea School District again this fall. Anyone 18 or older, desiring to work toward a high school diploma, or take a GED test should contact Jeff Rohrer at the Community Education Office, 433-2206, ext. 6005 or Todd Marlatt, extension 6012.

Food Service Information

The cost of a hot lunch will be $2.25 for North Creek and Pierce Lake. Hot lunch for South Meadows, Beach Middle and Chelsea High School will cost $2.50. The cost for milk for all schools is 50¢. In addition to the hot lunch offerings, the elementary and middle schools offer a build-your-own lunch program and snack bar. Deluxe meals will be offered at North Creek and South Meadows, $2.75 and $3.00. The high school features a food court offering a variety of lunch choices. A concession stand in the Commons is also available for light meals and snacks before school, during lunch, and after school. Menus are posted on the District Web site. Students will be issued a debit card to make food purchases and have an account where funds can be deposited.

Transportation Department Ready

The school buses will begin transporting our children again on Monday, August 29, 2005 for the 2005 – 2006 school year.

Some school starting times are different this year; therefore some bus routes will be picking up students in the morning five minutes later than last year.

- Between 7:35 and 7:45am a student can ride a bus from any school and travel to North, Pierce, South, Beach, or Chelsea High School. Each bus will have a sign that indicates to which school the bus will travel.
- After school a student can ride a grade level bus to the Beach transfer where the student can either ride his/her home bus or ride a bus to another school for drop-off.
- Supervision will be provided at each school from 7:30am until school begins and at the end of the day until the buses arrive from the transfer between 3:20-3:25pm.
- Pick up routes and schedules for rural students can be found on the website.
- Parents are reminded that from 7:20-8:20am and 2:30-3:30pm the circle drive around Beach school is closed to all vehicles. This is a bus/student area only. Parents are to use the pool lot or the band/staff lot for drop-off and pick-up.

Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act Annual Notification of Rights and Designation of

Directory Information

Each year the Chelsea School District, Washtenaw and Jackson Counties, Michigan, is required to give notice of the various rights accorded to parents or students pursuant to the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA). Parents and eligible students have a right to be notified and informed. In accordance with FERPA, you are notified of the following:

Right to Inspect: You have the right to inspect and review substantially all of your education records maintained by or at the Chelsea School District. This right extends to the parent of a student under 18 years of age and to any student age 18 or older.

Right To Request Amendment: You have the right to seek to have corrected any parts of an education record which you believe to be inaccurate, misleading, or otherwise in violation of your rights. This right includes the right to a hearing to present evidence that the record should be changed if a designated official of the Chelsea School District decides not to alter the education records according to your request. If no change is made to the education record after the hearing, you have a right to place a written rebuttal in the record.

Right to Prevent Disclosures: You have the right to prevent disclosure of education records to third parties with certain limited exceptions. It is the intent of the Board of Education to limit the disclosure of information contained in your education records to those instances when prior written consent has been given to the disclosure, as an item of directory information of which you have not refused to permit disclosure, or under the provisions of FERPA which allow disclosure without prior written consent.

Right to Complain: You have the right to file a complaint with the United States Department of Education concerning the alleged failure of the Chelsea School District to comply with FERPA. Your complaint should be directed to: Family Policy Compliance Office, U.S. Department of Education, 600 Independence Avenue, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20202-4605.

Right to Obtain Policy: You have the right to obtain a copy of the policy adopted by the Board of Education in compliance with FERPA. A copy may be obtained in person or by mail from the Office of the Superintendent, Chelsea School District, 500 Washington Street, Chelsea, Michigan 48118.

Right to Object to Release of Directory Information: Generally, school officials must have written permission from the parent of a student or an eligible student before releasing any information from a student's record. However, FERPA allows school districts to disclose, without consent, "directory" type information. The Board of Education of the Chelsea School District, Washtenaw and Jackson Counties, Michigan has designated the following personally identifiable information contained in a student's education record as "directory information": a student's name; address; date and place of birth; photograph; major field of study; participation in officially recognized activities and sports; height and weight, if a member of an athletic team; dates of attendance; date of graduation; awards received; or any other information which would not generally be considered harmful or an invasion of privacy, if disclosed.

Unless you advise the district that you do not want any or all of this information released, school officials may release personally identifiable information, which it has designated as directory information. Upon such objection, this information will not be released without the prior consent of the parent or eligible student.

You have two weeks from the receipt of this notice to advise the district in writing of any or all of those types of information about the student which you refuse to permit the district to designate as directory information. Your objections should be addressed to the Office of the Superintendent, Chelsea School District, 500 Washington Street, Chelsea, Michigan 48118.

Pesticide Advisory

As a part of the Chelsea School District's pest management program, pesticides are occasionally applied. You have the right to be informed prior to any pesticide application made to the school grounds and buildings. In certain emergencies, pesticides may be applied without prior notice, but you will be provided notice following any such application. Notification request slips are sent or mailed home with each student at the beginning of each school year. If you do not receive a notification request form or need additional information, please contact Ron Livengood, Director of Operations, Chelsea School District, 14138 East Old US 12, Chelsea, Michigan 48118, (734) 433-2276, to request a notification form.

Asbestos Law

In accordance with the Asbestos Hazard Emergency Response Act (AHERA), the intent of this letter is to meet the annual notification requirements of the law. During the past twelve months, trained in-house maintenance staff of Chelsea School District has performed routine, small-scale removals of thermal insulation to allow for the repair and replacement of heating system valve pipes, and Vinyl Asbestos Tile (VAT) to allow for minor floor repairs. Nova Environmental of Ann Arbor, Michigan serves as the Chelsea School District's consultant and inspections service on any large scale projects.

Chelsea School District employee training is continuing on an annual basis. The in-house staff will perform periodic surveillance of all asbestos-containing material as mandated by the AHERA Act. This inspection will occur every six months and allows the District to maintain and manage its asbestos program.

Assurance of Non-Discrimination

Applicants for admission and employment, students, parents, employees, volunteers, contractors, sources of referral of applicants for admission and employment, and all unions or professional organizations holding collective bargaining or professional agreements with the Chelsea School District are notified that the Chelsea School District does not discriminate on the basis of race, national origin, sex, age, religion, disability, pregnancy, marital status, veteran status, height, or weight in admission, access, treatment, or employment for any of its programs, activities, or policies.

Opening Remarks

School district sees improvements

It's hard to believe I am beginning my fourth year as superintendent of Chelsea schools.

This summer, we will see the completion of bond construction work at Beach Middle School with a new entrance, renovated pool, and drop-off drive; new windows, doors, bathrooms, etc., at North Creek and South Meadows elementary schools; and roofing at the Washington Street Education Center and Beach Middle School.

Work will begin at the Washington Street Educational site and continue at Beach Middle School during the 2005-06 school year. Anticipated projects include renovations of the athletic complex, new doors and windows, roof replacements, parking improvements, as well as heating and cooling upgrades. Bids for construction have been favorable and have allowed us to accomplish even more than we expected.

I hope you take the opportunity to notice the new construction and improvements throughout the school district. Continuing to keep our buildings and grounds in good shape is an investment in the future of our school district and our community, and the thanks go out to a very supportive school district.

We take our responsibility to educate your children seriously and ask you to join in our commitment to create the best learning environment possible for our students.

Thank you, again, for your gifts of time and resources to the Chelsea School District. We welcome your questions or comments at any time.

David Killips

North Creek Elementary School pupils will receive individualized attention when a reading specialist joins the North Creek educational staff this year.

The specialist will support classroom teachers in improving pupils' reading and writing skills.

"Collectively, the staff has worked very hard to achieve those (goals)," Principal Marcus Kaemming said.

Teacher collaboration has been facilitated by the recent restructuring of the elementary schools, which allows all teachers of a particular grade to teach in the same building.

Teachers can now consult their colleagues without having to coordinate lesson plans among staff from three buildings.

Kaemming said that by isolating two or three grades, the current distribution of pupils has lessened bullying of younger ones.

The strong performance on the Michigan Educational Assessment Program test of fifth- and sixth-graders, Kaemming said, reflects the success of North Creek in educating its pupils.

As part of a revamped language arts curriculum, new spelling and writing programs have been put in place at Pierce Lake Elementary School. Teachers have received training throughout the year to better assist pupils in improving their language skills, including comprehension of fiction and nonfiction.

The school provides several unique educational experiences to tailor to individual pupils' needs, including team teaching — two teachers leading a larger class — and two multi-age classrooms, which students commit to for both years they study at Pierce Lake.

In addition, classrooms are grouped into teams in which a different teacher instructs all pupils in the team in social studies and science. Third-graders go to one of three teachers on the team to learn math and reading at an appropriate difficulty level. The recent restructuring of the elementaries has allowed teachers to work closely with each other on curriculum and has enabled students to develop strong bonds within their grades.

It also allows students to take advantage of the educational approach that is most compatible with their individual learning styles.

Teachers at Pierce Lake are facing the challenge of finding class time to test pupils on their overall comprehension of the subject matter. They are also trying to align curriculum more closely with state guidelines.

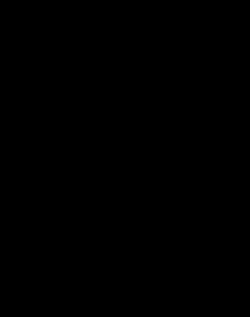

For budding scholars, Pierce Lake also has lunchtime enrichment activities such as Odyssey of the Mind, Junior Great Works, chess club and Shakespeare.

The Parent-Teacher Organization at Pierce Lake has supported the school by fund raising for assemblies, equipment and family activities that are held at the school.

Enrollment: Approximately 425

A new language arts curriculum at South Meadows Elementary School this year will allow each student to learn at his or her level.

Under the new guidelines, pupils will read books appropriate to their reading ability and write responses to the readings.

Sixth-graders also will benefit from a program that provides laptops to all pupils to complement the curriculum and teach computer skills.

The school has many programs to cater to the diverse interests of fifth- and sixth-graders, including outdoor education, the Science Fair and Field Day.

Pupils may pursue their interests in extracurricular activities such as Euchre Club, Science Olympiad, Chess Club and the Stock Market Club. The clubs meet during the school day to allow the greatest number of children to participate.

Pupils also may engage in philanthropic activities, usually organized by the student council. This year, fifth- and sixth-graders raised money for breast cancer research and victims of last year's tsunami in Asia. The school also holds annual food drives.

South Meadows offers enrichment groups for pupils who outperform their peers in core subjects such as math and science.

Principal Lisa Nickel said the school is still trying to find its niche, allowing pupils at South to enjoy their childhood without designing activities too young for them.

Nickel said children have received educational dividends from the restructuring of the elementary schools two years ago.

"The biggest benefit ... has been that we can keep them young," she said.

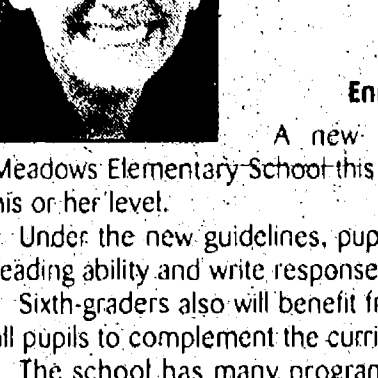

The recent change allows Chelsea pupils to spend one extra year in elementary school.

Nickel said the new system has allowed fifth- and sixth-grade teachers to plan lessons together. It also has permitted educators to target the needs of specific age groups and offer a wide range of teaching styles, instead of the limited options available when grades were divided between three buildings.

In the coming school year, the school is aiming to increase reading and comprehension of nonfiction, improve writing skills and address peer pressure and bullying.

Pupils at Beach Middle School have a wide range of electives to choose from – art, life management, foreign language, computer applications and technology.

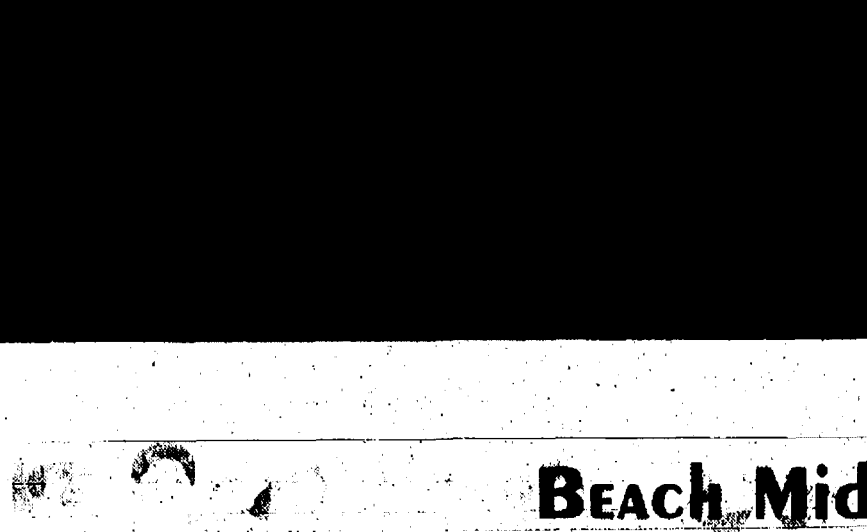

Middle schoolers also may take advantage of extracurricular options such as yearbook, student council, recycling club and digital video workshops.

The middle school is the first opportunity for Chelsea students to participate in school sports, including football, basketball, volleyball and track and field.

Eighth-graders take a trip to the nation's capital each year to learn about American history.

Beach educators aim to improve pupils' ability to convey information, ideas and emotions through writing. The school also is focusing on boosting pupils' understanding of expository and literary texts. Cultivating problem-solving skills is another goal of the school.

Beach is facing the challenge of raising student performance in core subjects while maintaining the current range of options for students.

Chelsea High School is undergoing changes in its English curriculum.

Tenth-graders used to receive one semester of writing and one semester of speech, but this year they will develop reading, writing, listening and speaking skills in a yearlong class.

Sophomores also may build their foundation in language arts with a new workshop that focuses on basic reading and writing skills.

Advanced Placement statistics is another recent addition to high school course offerings. Other AP classes at the high school include English literature and composition, calculus and physics. Students have even more options available to them through online coursework at the school.

In addition to AP courses, the high school also provides honors classes in English, mathematics, science and social studies.

The high school has no shortage of electives for students to explore their interests.

In addition to successful band, orchestra and choir programs, the high school also offers two TV production classes. The journalism class produces a newspaper, The Bleu Print, which regularly receives national recognition for the quality of its reporting and design.

The high school is focusing on reading, critical thinking and career awareness. At the same time, the school has had to cope with a smaller budget, which has led to larger class sizes and fewer school supplies.

Though Chelsea High School is the smallest school in the Southeastern Conference, it performs well in many sports, especially football and softball.

The high school typically graduates three or four National Merit Finalists each year. The school's average ACT score is about 24.

Students in search of a smaller learning environment where they can interact more closely with teachers and peers will find what they are looking for at Chelsea Alternative High School.

Chelsea High School students in ninth through 12th grades must apply to transfer in to the voluntary program, which houses about 50 students and three instructors at the Washington Street Education Center.

While students at Alternative High School must fulfill the same requirements as their Chelsea High School peers to graduate, instructional methods are tailored to the majority of students who plan to move directly into the workforce after graduation.

To help these students acquire the skills they need in the workforce, the Alternative High School offers a work-to-school program that allows participants to earn school credit for work experience.

The school employs block scheduling – integrating two curricula into one class – to reduce the number of individual classes students must take.

Perks of attending Alternative High School include smaller classes that average 12 to 15 students, access to laptop computers that are issued to every student and the ability to participate in community service projects several times throughout the year.

One of the challenges the school faces is providing the same educational variety that is available at Chelsea High School.

To fulfill their elective requirements, Alternative High School pupils can take online learning classes, pursue independent study, take classes offered at the school – including physical education and computers – or go to Chelsea High School to take electives such as music and art that are not offered at Alternative High School.

Alternative High School students also can participate in athletics and extracurricular activities at Chelsea High School.

School district cultivates musical skills in students

Musical skills are cultivated in Chelsea students from an early age. But the music program has suffered from cuts that threaten to reduce the options and instructional time available to students.

General music classes are required for students in kindergarten through fourth grade. Elementary school pupils learn vocal and instrumental music, as well as movement, focusing on American folk music.

Pupils meet once a week for 30 minutes in kindergarten and 40 minutes in first through fourth grades. Andrea Miller, one of two music teachers who instruct youngsters in kindergarten through fourth grades, said this is not enough exposure. Many districts, she said, offer elementary pupils music instruction twice weekly.

Children's first exposure to band and orchestra comes at South Meadows Elementary School, where they may elect one of the two instrumental ensembles or choir. The orchestra only includes string instruments, though the ensemble occasionally combines with the band to form a full orchestra in eighth grade and high school. The South Meadows ensembles rehearse about 11 times each month.

To help pupils decide which group to join, a music aptitude test is administered to all fourth-graders. Students are exposed to all three ensembles at the beginning of fifth grade, after which they must choose one.

At South Meadows and at Beach Middle School, where music classes may be elected, students learn traditional music from around the world. Middle-schoolers, who rehearse every day, can expand their musical horizons by joining jazz band, show choir or fiddle club. Eighth-graders learn about the history of music and important composers.

Extracurricular music opportunities for high-schoolers, who also rehearse every day, include jazz band, show choir, pep band, the Chelsea House Orchestra and musical.

The Chelsea House Orchestra is a group of fiddlers that performs Celtic and bluegrass music at local Irish and Scottish festivals, as well as at the Edinboro Scottish Festival in Pennsylvania. This year, the group also performed at the National Convention of American String Teachers Association.

"It's a tremendous vehicle to get kids fired up about music," Director Jed Fritzemeier said.

There are many performance opportunities for music students. In addition to performing regularly for parents, students at Beach and the high school participate in orchestra, band and choir festivals, where they consistently receive high ratings.

Many students also choose to participate in solo and ensemble festivals, where they are judged on their performance of prepared music.

At the district's Concerto Concert in April, soloists from all three ensembles can perform with the full high school orchestra. Fritzemeier, orchestra director for South Meadows and Chelsea High School, called the concert "the peak of our artistry level in Chelsea schools."

The number of music instructors across the district has dropped in the past two years. The remaining teachers have had to manage a demanding work schedule to make up for the loss. Miller said students have paid the price because their teachers are exhausted and have less time to plan quality lessons.

In this year's schedule, minutes of the school day spent on music have been cut back to devote more time to core subjects to improve the district's MEAP performance.

"We're constantly defending our program against cuts," said Jim Otto, who leads the band program at the middle school. He added that music is an essential part of a well-rounded education.

"The electives are ... the other half of the brain."

Otto says musical instruments improve eye-hand coordination; the diverse repertoire increases students' global awareness and performing in an ensemble teaches students to work as a team. Music also improves spatial reasoning and math and language skills, he said.

Miller said her students learn self-discipline, self-control and responsibility and that music fosters creativity.

Art programs enchance curriculum in Chelsea

Art teachers in Chelsea schools expose their students to a wide variety of media, styles and traditions. They are introduced to great art from several cultures, including American Indian, Australian Aboriginal and African.

Student options could expand when the new art curriculum, which will align the district's classes with state standards, is implemented in the 2006-07 school year.

To give students a well-rounded art education, teachers offer instruction in ceramics, jewelry, sculpture, photography, drawing and painting, among other media. This wide range helps budding artists discover their strengths.

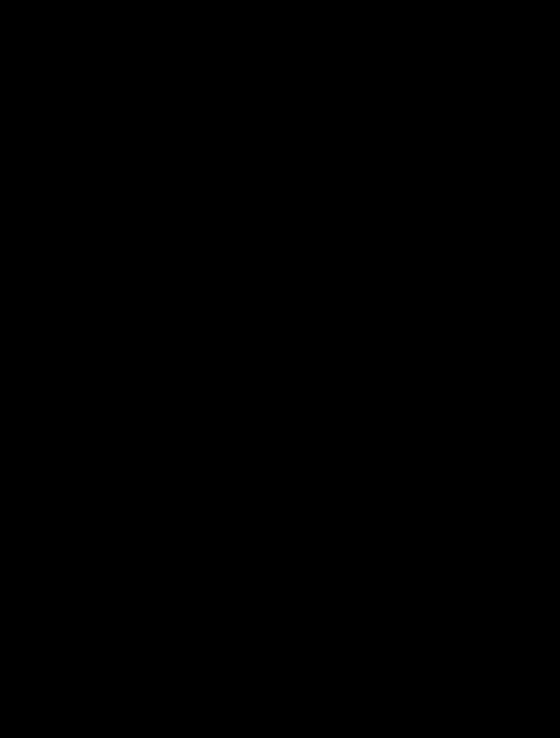

Art classes are mandatory for elementary school pupils. Fifth- and sixth-graders at South Meadows Elementary School get about one hour of art instruction from teacher Janet Alford each week for the entire school year.

Alford says that aside from cultivating problem-solving skills and self-expression, art projects relate to subjects pupils are studying in their other classes. Recently, her pupils drew pictures of endangered species to use as visual aids for presentations on the animals.

At Beach Middle School, pupils can elect one semester of art each year. Middle-school art pupils study materials, techniques, art history and terminology.

Art teacher Bev Yelsik aims to develop seventh-graders' drawing skills – their ability to accurately reproduce an image. They also learn color theory, printmaking and how to construct ceramic vessels. In the eighth grade, the emphasis is on creativity and self-expression. Watercolors and pen and ink are explored.

Art teachers in Chelsea schools provide many opportunities for their pupils to exhibit their work. A districtwide exhibition of student artwork is displayed in May at the River Gallery. Student art is also on display in government buildings in Lansing and throughout the district.

Chelsea High School art teachers help aspiring artists build a portfolio that encompasses work in a range of media from their freshman through senior years. The portfolios help students demonstrate their development as artists when applying to art schools.

The Art Club was re-started last year at the high school. Members explore their interests in art by discussing favorite artists and touring local galleries.

Food and Nutrition

Food service department offers healthy alternatives

Chelsea schools' food service department provides nutritionally balanced school lunches for more than 1,300 people a day.

The department is under the direction of Karen Carty, who supports some 20 staff members. Each kitchen is led by a head cook, certified by the health department, who prepares meals according to the nutrition guidelines set forth by the National School Lunch Program.

Chelsea schools belong to Team Nutrition, a network of Michigan schools committed to encouraging healthier lifestyles through the promotion of healthy eating and exercise.

The department offers a debit card program in which students can deposit money and withdraw it as needed for school lunches. The department has a link on the school district Web site so families can view the daily lunch offerings at each school.

Applications for free or reduced-price lunches are available in the back-to-school packets distributed by each school. They are also available at the school offices or the main food service office at Chelsea High School.

The department adheres to strict confidentiality guidelines with regard to the school district's students. The use of debit cards assures that each student's status is virtually unidentified as they buy school lunches.

The department also offers a full-service catering program that provides a range of offerings, from punch and cookies to custom designed wedding menus. Proceeds from catering events support a variety of school district programs and activities.

Chelsea School Libraries

Chelsea School District libraries have much to offer

To supplement instructional classroom material, Chelsea students can access a wealth of educational resources at their school media center.

Students can check out books, videocassettes, DVDs and CDs with library cards that are issued to all students. High-schoolers can borrow items from the library using their school identification cards.

In addition, students can consult a wide range of reference materials in print and online. Online resources – including ProQuest and Grolier Online – can be accessed at home using log-in names and passwords available to students.

The media centers make streaming video available to teachers for use in the classroom.

Every library also contains computers to aid in students' research.

Each school in the district has a budget that is used to augment its media holdings every year. New materials are selected on the basis of their relation to curriculum, age appropriateness and independent reviews.

Students in kindergarten through fourth grade visit the media center weekly. Older students' visits are organized by teachers to reinforce concepts learned in the classroom.

In addition, students participate in special activities during March Is Reading Month, which has a different theme to motivate students each year.

The media centers are staffed by three certified media specialists, paraprofessionals and community volunteers. Individuals interested in volunteering at Chelsea school libraries should contact the building where they would like to provide assistance.

MEAP

MEAP reading scores up in Chelsea School District

Reading scores for the Michigan Educational Assessment Program tests are up across the state, but writing scores are what concern Chelsea school officials.

"The scores present us a mixed picture," Shawn Lewis-Lakin, director of student performance for Chelsea schools, said of the winter 2005 MEAP scores that were made public May 6.

Fourth- and seventh-graders across the district were tested in math, reading, writing and English language arts in February. Fifth- and eighth-graders were tested in science and social studies. Eighth-graders were also tested in mathematics.

More than 63 percent of Chelsea fourth-graders met Michigan standards in reading. More than 24 percent exceeded the standards, while about 9 percent scored at the basic level and 2.4 percent scored at the "apprentice," or lowest, level.

More than 43 percent of Chelsea eighth-graders met the state reading standards, while more than 38 percent exceeded them. More than 8 percent scored at or below the basic level.

Writing scores proved disappointing to school officials. More than 38 percent of fourth-graders met state standards on the MEAP test, while 47.3 percent scored at the basic level. About 7 percent of pupils either exceeded the state standards or scored at the apprentice level, respectively.

Almost 54 percent of seventh-graders met the state standards in writing, while about 41 percent scored at the basic level. About 3 percent, respectively, either exceeded state standards or scored at the apprentice level.

Lewis-Lakin said the writing scores are cause for concern. They are based on a test that evaluates a single response to a single prompt, he said.

"A single-item test is not reliable or accurate," he said. "The state recognizes this, which is why they are abandoning this testing format and instituting a new format beginning next year."

Starting this fall, the MEAP test will be given each year in third through ninth grades. High school juniors will be tested in all of the subjects.

The publicized writing scores are inconsistent with the first set of scores the district received from the state earlier this year, Lewis-Lakin said. Initial scores showed higher performances relative to the state average before the state adjusted its scoring.

The district has asked the state to examine sample student responses to investigate the inconsistent test results with the district's own internal testing measures, Lewis-Lakin said.

The scores in English language arts are also under suspicion as they are based on a combination of writing and reading scores, Lewis-Lakin said. More than 66 percent of fourth-graders met state standards in English language arts. About 60 percent of eighth-graders also met the standards.

Chelsea schools seeing upgrades to buildings

Needed upgrades to Chelsea schools are ahead of schedule and "substantially under budget," said Chelsea School District Director of Operations Ron Livengood.

The improvements, which make mechanical and structural updates on 30-year-old facilities, are being financed by a bond approved by Chelsea voters in June 2004.

"This bond issue has certainly allowed us to do all the things that were necessary," Livengood said.

The first phase of renovations, which address the Charles Cameron Pool at Beach Middle School and both elementary schools, is scheduled for completion by the end of the summer.

Updates on the pool began in April and were completed in mid-June. Contractors installed new lighting, bleachers, spectator restrooms, a sound system and a concession stand and applied new finishes.

Bleachers, restrooms and concessions are now located across the pool from the locker rooms. The new layout will improve traffic flow by segregating participants from spectators and will help prevent slippage, Livengood said.

Locker room equipment — lights, benches, showers and other amenities — also been replaced, as has the outdated mechanical filtration system for the pool. Digital controls for heating and ventilation were installed.

Also at Beach, the bus loop that circles the school will be replaced.

Throughout the next month, the district will be collecting and scoring writing samples. Teachers will receive training in the summer to create consistency in how writing is taught in the K-8 curriculum, Lewis-Lakin said.

"We are committed to upgrading the instruction our students receive, and writing is an area of instruction that will be significantly improved in our district," he said.

District fifth-graders scored high in science, but not in social studies. More than 93 percent of pupils met or exceeded state standards in science, while only 40 percent met the standards in social studies. This compares to 26 percent of students statewide who met the standards on the test.

Eighth-graders didn't fare much better. While more than 85 percent of eighth-graders met or exceeded state mandates in science, about 48 percent met the social studies standards, compared with 30 percent statewide. In contrast, 79 percent of eighth graders exceeded state standards in mathematics.

Lewis-Lakin said fewer than a dozen students can cause variances in scores of 5 percent since the sample size for each test at each grade is between 210 and 240 test-takers. This results in the need to view MEAP scores cautiously, he said.

"Long-term trends, not year-to-year scores, are significant," he said.

Using the MEAP tests over the years as an analysis of specific curriculum elements has helped the district make significant changes to the middle school math and science programs.

"While it's too soon to draw any conclusions, it is encouraging to see positive, initial indicators in these two areas at the middle school level," he said.

School Drug Survey

Fewer students drinking alchohol, smoking cigarettes

The 2005 Michigan Alcohol and Other Drugs School Survey, which tracks drug use among teens, revealed that while rates of marijuana use in Chelsea schools have risen somewhat since 2002, substantially fewer students are consuming alcohol and smoking cigarettes, compared with nine years ago.

The survey, conducted every three years among eighth-, 10th- and 12th-graders, also charts changes in student attitudes toward drugs. School social worker Margaret Spaly presented the findings last May to the Board of Education.

One of the trends revealed in the study was an across-the-board increase in the percentage of students who reported they had used marijuana. The survey showed a notable rise in the percentage of eighth-graders who said they had used the drug.

But while the survey showed a moderate increase in pot use among 10th-graders since 2002, the past nine years have seen an overall decrease in pot use in this age group. Marijuana use among high school seniors has remained at a relatively constant level, with about half using the drug.

Daily use of marijuana was low, although 8 percent of seniors said they used the drug every day. The survey revealed a cross-cohort downward trend in the perception that regular marijuana use is dangerous.

The survey revealed a dramatic decrease in cigarette use among students since 1996.

"Our numbers have really dropped substantially," Spaly said.

There has been a significant increase in the perceived risk from frequent cigarette use among eighth and 10th graders in the past nine years. The survey also showed frequent cigarette use has become highly socially unacceptable among students.

The survey showed a similar decline in alcohol use over the same period. Surprisingly, almost one-third of 12th-graders reported never having used alcohol, which is well above the national average of 23 percent.

Spaly and Board of Education trustee Rob Turner expressed concern over student attitudes toward alcohol use. Both cited the fact that only 18 percent of 10th-graders said there was a great risk from consuming one to two drinks nearly every day as a contributing factor in the rates of alcohol use.

Spaly took aim at the media, a popular scapegoat for drug use among minors.

"That reflects a lot of what kids are seeing in the movies and on TV," she said.

But their concern over this particular statistic may have been misplaced. The survey did not reveal a clear downward trend in the perceived risk from moderate alcohol consumption since 1996. Medical research has revealed an established relationship between moderate alcohol consumption and a decreased risk for heart disease, accord-

The Chelsea School District believes that through the concept of community education it can maximize the use of all the resources available in the community to provide the best educational opportunities possible for students and residents in the school district.

The Chelsea Community Education office develops and implements many programs to meet the needs of all school district residents. There were more than 3,100 enrolls in programs last year.

The Chelsea Community Education brochure is published in the fall, and winter and has a spring/summer edition. The brochure consists of service providers and agencies that are dedicated to community programming.

The Community Education office is located at the Washington Street Education Center. Fall hours are 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Together with the school districts of Ann Arbor, Chelsea, Dexter, Lincoln, Manchester, Milan, Saline, Whitmore Lake, Willow Run and Ypsilanti, as well as public school academies, Washtenaw Intermediate School District coordinates and delivers programs and services to support the continuous improvement of student achievement in Washtenaw County.

WISD provides several services to the school districts, including school improvement consultation, assessment services and seminars and classes for teachers and administrators. Learning and teaching services are also offered, such as distance learning, First Steps Washtenaw, Early On, General Educational Development testing, programs that include students with disabilities in general education and talent development support services.

WISD has adopted a guide, Washtenaw County Expectations for Student Learning, which defines what the goals are for each student in the district. The goals are split into eight categories:

- Literacy: Students know how to read and write strategically for different purposes.
- Mathematical Knowledge and Application: Students know how to apply their mathematical knowledge strategically for different purposes.
- Identifying and Accessing Resources: Students know how to identify and locate information or resources for a range of purposes, from a variety of sources and using diverse technological tools.
- Content Knowledge: Students possess, appreciate and use, beyond simple recall, knowledge of important concepts, terms, vocabulary, modes of inquiry, etc.
- Complex Thinking: Students apply creative and complex planning, thinking, reasoning, and/or problem-solving skills to authentic issues, problems or systems across the disciplines.
- Communication: Students communicate information, knowledge, strategies and personal opinions or expressions to a variety of audiences for a range of purposes and occasions.
- Personal and Interpersonal Skills: Students work well independently and collaboratively in a variety of authentic settings, with people of diverse backgrounds, in a range of roles.
- Habits of Mind: Students see themselves as continual learners and show personal investment and pride in their work.

THE FACTS

- WISD has nearly 200 employees.
- WISD reaches 10 public school districts, six public school academies and 30 non-public schools with some 47,000 students.
- WISD reaches 1,560 adult education students.
- WISD offers training to 4,800 public school employees.
- WISD includes 70 school board members.

BUILDING

Renovations on the elementary schools, which began June 13, will replace roofs, entry doors and windows. Contractors also will add air conditioning and digital temperature controls, remodel restrooms and rebuild the west parking lot at South Meadows Elementary School.

Many upgrades were made to Chelsea schools in 1997, but could not be completed because of budgetary constraints.

"This comes back and addresses all those areas that were not addressed in '97," Livengood said.

While most necessary upkeep was done on South Meadows in 1997, most of the work on North Creek was yet to be done.

Also during Phase I, new water mains will be installed at the Washington Street Education Center, and the bus parking lot at the transportation building will be expanded.

Phase II updates the football stadium at the Washington Street Education Center. Stadium upgrades include new grandstands, track resurfacing, a new building that will contain the ticket booth, entryway and restrooms, and potential remodeling of the existing concession stand and restrooms.

Adjacent drives and the Washington Street parking lot also will be rebuilt. A new driveway will be built leading to the center as a way to improve traffic flow.

The bid process for Phase II renovations will take place in the summer, with work scheduled to begin in December and end in August of next year.

Phase III makes extensive building upgrades at the Washington Street Education Center and Beach.

"It's by far our largest construction phase," Livengood said.

Buildings addressed in this phase will receive new heating and cooling systems.

"Anything that hasn't been replaced within the past five years will be replaced," Livengood said.

During Phase III, about 90 percent of the lighting in the Washington Street buildings will be upgraded, the kitchen and serving area at Beach will be overhauled and new exterior doors and windows will be installed at five of seven of the Education Center's buildings. Livengood said there is a possibility the two other buildings could receive new doors and windows.

Phase III is scheduled to begin in January of next year and end in August.

Phase IV consists of minor building and site updates at Chelsea High School, especially in the life skills and technology areas, to address curricular changes. The upgrades are set to take place during the summer of 2006.

Phase V, which will not take place until 2007-08, replaces floor covering and repaints school interiors throughout the district.

Livengood said the building upgrades will help the district reduce operating costs. Contractors have estimated that the lighting upgrades will pay for themselves because of reduced energy consumption. Utility bills should also shrink with the installation of insulated windows.

The 2004 bond also will cover the cost of bus replacement and technology upgrades, which include new computers, printers, data projectors and wireless Internet for every district school.

SURVEY

ing to the Harvard School of Public Health. And while they may view alcohol as safe, an overwhelming majority of eighth- and 10th-graders said their peers disapprove of moderate drinking and weekend binge drinking, rates that have risen substantially since 1996.

Rates of binge drinking were somewhat higher than in 2002, with 9 percent of eighth-graders reporting they had consumed five or more drinks in a row in the past two weeks and more than one-third of 12th-graders reporting the same.

"We have too many kids who have done binge drinking the past two weeks," Spaly said.

Consistent with high rate of binge drinking among seniors, there has been a sharp decline in the percentage of seniors who view weekend binge drinking as dangerous. Encouragingly, the perceived risk from infrequent and daily binge drinking among eighth-graders has increased since 1996.

But fewer 10th-graders than in 2002 said daily binging was dangerous and fewer than half of seniors surveyed said they perceived a great risk from daily binge drinking.

Spaly also expressed strong concern over student use of inhalants.

"That's a really dangerous drug for them to be using," she said.

But the past nine years have seen an overall decrease in inhalant use among all three age groups surveyed, with the sharpest decline recorded among eighth-graders. Again, small increases were recorded in two age groups from 2002 to 2005.

By far the most popular place for students to use drugs and alcohol was at a friend's home. More high school seniors said they are drinking and using drugs in their own homes. These trends suggest that effective strategies for stemming drug use monitor students at home rather than at school, where, not surprisingly, few respondents said they had used drugs or alcohol, although 8 percent of seniors reported using pot or other drugs at school in the past month.

Juniors and seniors at Chelsea High School may supplement their core curriculum with instruction in technical fields and career training at the South and West Washtenaw Consortium.

The SWWC aims to provide its 500 to 600 students who take time out from the school day for career technical education with the skills they need to prosper in a technology driven economy.

Students who fulfill competencies in particular subject areas may receive advanced-placement credit at Washtenaw Community and Baker colleges, as well as at Ferris State University.

Seniors may participate in cooperative education, which enables them to gain school credit and hands-on experience while working at a paid job in their field of study.

Instructors at the SWWC are certified teachers and experienced professionals in the areas they teach.

Course are offered in agriscience, automotive technology, building trades, child care services, cosmetology, electronics, computer-aided design, computer repair, network technology, graphics technology, health sciences, hospitality, culinary arts, landscaping, turf management, machine-tool technology, marketing, metal processing, welding and visual imaging.

Third- and fourth-graders meet Mondays and Wednesdays for coach-quarterbacked games. Students in fifth and sixth grades meet Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Participants are required to wear mouth guards for their safety, and it is recommended that they also wear cleats.

Youth soccer

The fall youth soccer schedule runs from Sept. 12 to Oct. 22.

Co-ed preschoolers, co-ed kindergartners and boys' and girls' first- to second-grade soccer divisions practice and play games at Pierce Field.

The boys' and girls' third- through fifth-grade divisions meet at Papo Field.

The fee for co-ed pre-K and co-ed K divisions is $42. Participants in all other divisions must pay $47 to register.

Girls' seventh through 12th grade volleyball

Instructional volleyball for girls in grades seventh through 12th meets 6 to 7:30 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays from Oct. 3 to Nov. 23 in the Beach Middle School gymnasium. Registration costs $52.

Youth basketball

Fall youth basketball runs from Oct. 17 to Dec. 10 for boys and girls in first through sixth grades.

After a week-and-a-half of practice, teams meet Saturday mornings at Beach or the Washington Street Education Center for six weeks of games.

Practice is held one evening each week for one hour between 6 and 8 p.m. Registration cost $47 for all divisions.

Winter floor hockey

Floor hockey for students in preschool through sixth grade meets Saturdays from Jan. 7 to Feb. 11 in the Beach Middle School gymnasium. Eleven-member teams practice for 45 minutes prior to the games. The cost to participate is $47.

Sticks and goggles will be provided to all players. Mouth guards are mandatory, and shin guards are recommended.
