City hires firm for master plan

Development pressure calls for updating policy document

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

The Chelsea City Council last week unanimously approved a $38,100 contract with consulting firm LSL Planning Inc. to help update the city's master plan.

The firm helped the city in the last master plan update in May 2000. Work on that update began in 1998.

The Chelsea Planning Commission voted Oct. 18 to recommend the contract at the Nov. 8 City Council meeting.

Planning Commission members believe the master plan document needs updating for numerous reasons, according to an Oct. 25 memo. Planning Commission Chairman Chris Rode wrote to the City Council.

Rode noted that significant changes have occurred in the seven years since the most recent plan was revised. Some of the changes Rode cited are as follows:

- Chelsea has changed from a general-law village into an incorporated city.

- Virtually all significant land parcels in the city have been developed, or are in the process of being developed. Numerous industrial sites near the downtown have

Firefighters from the Chelsea Area Fire Authority, Unadilla Township Fire Department and the Stockbridge Township Fire Department responded to fire last Sunday afternoon in the 20000 block of North Territorial Road in Lyndon Township. The fire, which Fire Lt. Boritzki said was probably started by a power line downed by high winds, destroyed about 1.5 acres. After firefighters arrived at the scene at 3:45 p.m., they worked for about two hours to extinguish the blaze. Huron Valley Ambulance treated one firefighter at the scene for dehydration. ## Cub Scouts' request raises questions about building

Trustee Jim Myles expresses concern about black mold

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

Amid liability issues and allegations of black mold, the Chelsea City Council last week postponed a decision whether to allow a local Boy Scouts troop to hold an event at the former BookCrafters Building.

The city currently uses portions of the abandoned building, located at 140 Buchanan St., for storage of municipal equipment.

The building will be demolished at a future date, which has not been set, possibly to make way for a new municipal office complex.

Boy Scouts Venture Crew 412 recently used a section of the building to replace burned-out bulbs on city Christmas wreaths stored at the site.

During the project, the Scouts found office chairs inside, and wrote a letter read at a Nov. 8 City Council meeting requesting permission to hold a "chair Olympics" race at the building.

At the meeting, City Council Trustee Jim Myles said he was concerned about the possibility of black mold in the building.

Black mold, its scientific name stachybotrys chartarum, is sometimes found in damp or flooded buildings, and requires constant moisture to grow.

The mold has been linked to "sick building syndrome," a malady that sometimes strikes people sensitive to molds, according to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Some exposed to the mold develop eye irritation, wheezing or skin irritation. More serious cases can involve fever, shortness of breath and increased chances of fungal lung infections in people with suppressed immune systems, according to the organization.

"My concern is black mold contamination for people who already use the building, so do you close down a portion of the building or

City, Sylvan Township officials clarifying positions related to water interconnect

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

Negotiations are continuing between Chelsea and Sylvan Township for establishment of an emergency interconnection between the two municipalities' water systems.

At a Nov. 1 Sylvan Township Board meeting, Township Supervisor Michael Williams said positions on the issue must be clarified.

"We're in the process of negotiating the contract, and chewing up what we mean by the position of both (governing) boards in an emergency interconnect," he said.

Williams added that an agreement for an emergency interconnection, from Sylvan Township's standpoint, would not be intended as a general aid for Chelsea's water system.

City staff from Chelsea approached Sylvan officials requesting an emergency interconnection.

The city is pursuing the possibility as one of several efforts to lift a moratorium on new housing construction in the city.

The development halt stemmed from a

150-plus experience 'The Naylor Difference'

'The Naylor Difference' includes dinner, chocolate, coffee, celebrities, Thanksgiving turkeys, test drives and more

A valet parks your vehicle; you enter through glass doors and are greeted by smiling faces, a welcoming handshake and the sweet sounds of a classy upright piano. The cuisine includes grilled chicken strips, broccoli salad, pounds and pounds of shrimp; desserts and premium coffees. You can submerge an array of fruits and other delicacies into a chocolate fountain. There are guest appearances by a well known radio celebrity and the newly crowned Miss Washtenaw County.

Have you just entered the grand ballroom at a luxury hotel? No, this scene was played out recently at Naylor Motor Sales on Stadium Boulevard in Ann Arbor at their Ladies' Night Out event.

Dinner was provided, along with test drives of the all-new 2006 Jeep Commander and the rest of the 2006 Chrysler-Jeep lineup. Everyone who test-drove a new vehicle also received a certificate for their Thanksgiving turkey. More than anything else, it was a great party with many guests meeting old acquaintances, said John Nabozny, general sales manager at Naylor.

Lucy Ann Lance of WAAM 1600 was the guest radio personality who emceed the whole party, along with Dean Erskine, a long-time radio host and general manager of WAAM. At one point Erskine handed over the microphone to Rick Wresche, a long-time Naylor employee. Wresche told the story of selling a car to pregnant woman in 1986 and went on to say that the daughter, with whom she was pregnant 19 years ago, was present that evening to test-drive a new vehicle. Other guests who attended also shared stories of their car-buying experiences at Naylor Motors.

The piano was donated by Jim King of King's Keyboard House. The premium coffees were from Meg Grammatico at Lulu's Café; the chicken strips and broccoli salad were delicately prepared by Phil and Mary Naylor; turkey gift certificates were from Doreen Frost at Busch's Valu-Land. Miss Washtenaw County, Ashlee Baracy, surprised everyone with her appearance.

The turnout for the event was staggering, with more than 150 people attending. One attendee asked Nabozny how many vehicles were sold that evening.

"Car sales?" Nabozny asked. "This is a party, not a sales event. We are here because we wanted to have an evening of fun and give our valued customers a chance to see us as the fun-loving people that we are.

"The idea wasn't mine," he continued. "It was the work of Mary Gulliver, one of the managers at Naylor. Jim Neldert, general manager of operations, was the man behind the chocolate fountain ... his secret recipe is known for delivering the smoothest blend of chocolate."

Naylor Motor Sales started more than 56 years ago when Don L. Naylor, a local farmer, started out as a DeSoto dealer. The business became well known for providing fast, friendly, quality service to customers. Phil V. Naylor, now owner and president, and his son Rick Naylor, vice president, are carrying on the family tradition by providing top notch sales and service to their valued customers.

Saturdays are special at Naylor. Naylor's service department is open for full service from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturdays as is the new and used sales department. Doughnuts, bagels and fruit are served starting at 8 a.m., followed by an afternoon barbecue when the weather permits.

Come in and see the Naylor difference.

SYLVAN TOWNSHIP

Plans move forward for wireless Internet service

Township could seek bids from high-speed Internet providers

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

High-speed Internet service could be on the horizon for Sylvan Township residents.

The Sylvan Township Board voted unanimously Nov. 1 to accept a draft version of a request for proposals document that could seek bids for a wireless provider to offer high-speed Internet service to township residents.

The next steps for township officials would set a schedule for finding a provider, adjust more language in the request for proposals and change a wireless ordinance with the Sylvan Township Planning Commission.

With the exception of one individual who uses a T1 line for Internet service, township residents living south of Interstate 94 have no access to high-speed Internet service.

A T1 line denotes an Internet connection that runs at a rate of 1.544 megabits per second.

In contrast, dial-up connections have a maximum theoretical speed of 56 kilobits per second.

Cable Internet and digital subscriber line providers are not likely to offer service to the area south of the highway any time soon, because it's sparsely populated and would not justify infrastructure outlays for the companies.

Sylvan Township offices, as well as a Michigan State Police post at 18027 Old US-12, currently use dialup Internet service.

"We need to upgrade (Internet) service at the township hall," Township Supervisor Michael Williams said at the Nov. 1 meeting, adding the Luann Koch, the township clerk, recently could not view an Adobe Acrobat file because the dial-up connection was too slow to accommodate Web-based software updates.

Williams emphasized that should the city award a bid to a wireless Internet provider, subscribers would pay the company and not the township, which would make no revenue from the service.

Sylvan Township Board Trustee Dave Solo said finding a high-speed Internet provider would not only benefit township employees and residents.

"We also want to incentivize the state police to stay here forever," Solo said, "and they need (high-speed Internet) and they want it."

If bids go out, the township would ask an Internet provider to place an omnidirectional wireless transmitter atop the water tower adjacent to the township's water treatment plant.

Costs for such a service would not be known until after bids are sent. The project would be entirely unrelated to a proposed Wireless Washtenaw initiative, which could provide a low-level, free Internet service or a paid high-performing service to county residents.

Planning in that effort was slowed earlier this month when the Michigan Legislature passed a bill prohibiting municipalities from offering government-provided Internet service.

Solo said last week that the Sylvan Township proposal got started by a request from a resident on Scio Church Road.

The resident, a professional photographer with a home studio, must leave his home to do his Internet work.

"He's looked into getting a T1 line of his own, and it's prohibitively expensive. He's looked into getting a DSL, but it's too far away from the node," Solo said.

Townships with high-speed Internet hookups can provide more services, such as online tax and land valuation software, to residents.

Solo said a Michigan State Police trooper told him high-speed Internet service would aid in crime investigations.

If a company broadcasts a signal from the water tower, it might require equipment at the edge of its signal range to amplify the signal.

Solo said, adding that recipients of the signal would need compatible equipment to receive it.

Such a company would not be an Internet service provider, Solo said.

Instead, users of the service would be analogous to people with telephone lines using an Internet service provider via a dialup connection provided by a telephone company.

Solo stressed that the wireless Internet proposal is not his pet project.

Members of an ad-hoc township technology committee have provided help in drawing up a request for proposals template through the Michigan Townships Association and through contacts with the Ann Arbor Downtown Development Authority, Solo said.

If the township issues requests for proposals, Solo said he is optimistic that the municipality could find a suitable wireless provider.

"The vendors will have to tell us at what point they can cover the entire township," he said. "We would want to prioritize the portion of the township that doesn't have (high-speed Internet access)."

Solo said that, as a "total guess," requests for proposals could go out as early as late November or early December.

"I think we could go from the point at which we advertise it to selecting a vendor maybe in 60 days," he said.

Rosentreter's court date postponed

Preliminary exam set for Dec. 8 in child pornography case

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

A Nov. 10 preliminary examination in 14-1 District Court for Daniel Rosentreter, Chelsea's former water superintendent, has been postponed to 1 p.m. Dec. 8.

Washtenaw County Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Steve Hiller said Monday that he did not know the reason for the postponement.

Rosentreter's defense attorney, Michael Vincent of Ypsilanti-based The Vincent Law Firm, was unavailable for comment Monday.

Rosentreter, 49, is charged with 20 felony counts for possessing child pornography on his city computer.

Ten of the counts, each carrying penalties of four years in jail and/or $10,000 fines, are for possession of child sexually abusive material.

The other 10 counts, which carry penalties of seven years in jail and/or $5,000 in fines, are for using a computer to commit a crime.

The 10 counts of possession are based on 10 images or videos containing child pornography.

Rosentreter, a former Chelsea employee for more than 29 years, resigned from his position with the city March 16, 2004, after an investigation was launched for alleged misconduct in his use of the city computer.

The city and the Michigan State Police originally investigated the allegations against Rosentreter.

It took more than 18 months before an arrest warrant was issued for Rosentreter following those investigations.

Vincent told The Chelsea Standard last month that the year-and-a-half delay between when original allegations surfaced and when an arrest warrant was issued compromised Rosentreter's right to due process.

He questioned whether there was a problem with the case evidence or if the evidence had been mishandled during the long investigation.

Vincent said Rosentreter would plead not guilty to the charges.

been, or are being planned for redevelopment with other uses.

- Several municipal buildings will likely be relocated.
- Municipal services are under strain and need improvements, including the water and wastewater treatment plants and infrastructure for vehicular traffic.
- Areas surrounding city boundaries are under intense development pressure, which presents further burden to the city's infrastructure.

Rode said a new master plan could benefit from new planning tools, such as Public Act 425 agreements. Under the act, municipalities can collaborate for regional planning. Cities and townships can enter into contracts providing for conditional transfer of land for development projects.

The land can be transferred into a city for a period of time, while the project receives city services and shares property tax revenue with the township. A city also could annex the land.

"These options should be articulated through our main policy documents and through cooperative efforts with our immediate neighbors," Rode said.

Two housing developments are proposed in Lima Township, just outside of city boundaries.

They include a possible 700-home development by Troy-based Biltmore Homes Corp. on 100 acres at 13742 Dexter-Chelsea Road, and a potential housing development, by Plymouth-based R. Cook Properties on property at 13215 Dexter-Chelsea Road.

Rode said using LSL Planning again would lessen the cost of a consultant contract because the firm has past experience with Chelsea's planning issues.

Additionally, by agreeing to take on some of the work, the Planning Commission eliminated 10 percent of the contract's total cost, Rode said, adding that the total cost is justified.

"While this is a large expense, the funds are well-spent in easing the stresses of continued growth and redevelopment in and around Chelsea," Rode said.

"In order for Chelsea to continue as an urban center, with a healthy commercial and industrial base, and as a healthy place to live and play, we must plan for this growth."

Chelsea City Manager Mike Steklac wrote in a Nov. 8 memo that although he believes the master plan should be updated, the contract amounts to "a large unbudgeted expense that should have been proposed when the 2005-2006 fiscal-year budget was being prepared."

If the request was presented earlier, Steklac said, the city budget may not have included some expenditures for the city's planning and zoning department, or in other general fund departments.

Steklac said most of the funding for the contract will have to come from the city's general fund balance, and that cuts to the planning and zoning department budget might be made.

At the Nov. 8 City Council meeting, Rode said master plans should be updated every five to 10 years.

Prior to the 2000 update, Rode said Chelsea's master plan was last updated in 1976.

Rode emphasized that the city needs another master plan update now.

"Over the past five years, the Planning Commission has really struggled with aspects that aren't in the general plan, which acts as the sole source of policy statement," he said.

City Council Trustee Frank Hammer said some officials in neighboring townships are concerned that some areas of Chelsea's master plan incorporate areas within those townships.

Hammer asked that a caveat be inserted into the new master plan, stating that the city will cooperate with neighboring townships in the planning process.

Rode said the Planning Commission is not attempting to exclude anyone.

"There's absolutely no predatory impulse on the Planning Commission," he said. "It's not only accepted, but strongly recommended that a municipality plans outside of its immediate boundaries."

"One of our plans is to work at better communications with our neighbors."

Steklac said a Public Act 425 agreement could be used to form joint planning commissions between Chelsea and Lima Township for possible developments along Dexter-Chelsea Road and Old US-12.

Staff Writer Steve Ricci can be reached at 475-1371 or sricci@heritage.com.

close it all," Myles said.

Trustee Jamie Bollinger said the building should be kept off limits because the city abandoned it.

Trustee Joe Merkel suggested the Cub Scouts approach the Chelsea Community Fair Board, and that some fairground buildings could be better venues for chair races.

Myles said after the meeting that he has been told there is black mold in the BookCrafters building, although he added he never saw a report proving its existence.

"We should be real clear on if there is a problem or the extent of the problem, and if it's safe to use the building," he said.

"If it exists in the building, then why are we allowing city employees in the building?"

Chelsea City Manager Mike Steklac said Monday that he first heard of the black mold rumor at the Nov. 8 meeting.

A roof is leaking in a front office area of the building, which might be enabling mold and mildew to grow, he said.

In terms of city liability, Steklac said, a bigger concern for a chair race would be Cub Scouts running into the numerous exposed beams that support the building.

Although the city has liability insurance coverage for the building, Steklac said he would not recommend the building for the Scouts' event.

"The first level of risk management is avoidance, so the best way is just not to get into the situation to begin with," he said.

If the City Council grants the request, however, Steklac said the Cub Scouts could provide their own primary liability insurance, through Mutual of Omaha Insurance Co., and that the city could take safety precautions for a chair race, such as clearing the floor of debris and requiring racers to wear helmets.

Steklac said city staff does not plan to check for black mold at the building.

"It's something that would have to be taken care of if we had long-term use of the building, but we don't think the Scouts, or any of our employees, were in danger," he said, adding that city employees spend little time inside the building.

"As far as a sick building syndrome, I'm sure we don't have that there. Why should we spend money to look for something that may not be there, in a building we're going to tear down?"

Steklac said city staff would consult the city's insurance company for a risk assessment, and that a report of the findings would be presented to the City Council at a future meeting.

Staff Writer Steve Ricci can be reached at 475-1371 or sricci@heritage.com.

DETAILS

Michigan Department of Environmental Quality imposed freeze last June on issuing new water permits in Chelsea.

The city also has imposed a moratorium on issuing new sewer permits because its wastewater treatment plant cannot accommodate more sewage.

The MDEQ will not allow the city to issue new water permits until Chelsea can increase its water system's firm capacity, a measure of city's ability to supply a historical maximum daily demand level if the city's largest well malfunctions.

If the city were to lose its largest well, it could supply about 1.15 million gallons of water per day to its customers, short of the peak historical level of 1.3 million gallons per day.

The proposed emergency water interconnection is one part of a three-pronged city effort to lift the moratorium.

The city is also pursuing building two new water wells, and expanding its water treatment plant to boost water capacity.

Chelsea City Manager Mike Steklac said Monday that one of the big issues in the interconnection negotiation, which is currently before city attorneys, is the definition of an emergency circumstance in which one municipality using the other's water would be called for.

For example, the duration of a water emergency, defined in hours or days, needs to be clarified, he said.

"It's a new thing for (Sylvan Township) and a new thing for us, and when you're putting things down in writing you want to be protected," Steklac said. "That's what the attorneys get paid for — to come up with the language."

Steklac said city officials, who are offering to pay construction costs for the interconnection, do not want to install a metering system at the juncture of a 12-inch water line because doing so would add significant costs to the project.

"We're the ones initiating the process and we're offering to pay for this, but if we looked at a meter, we would probably look to cost sharing," Steklac said.

If no metering system were installed, the city would probably pay for construction costs, as well as half of the costs for maintaining the interconnection.

Sylvan Township would pay the other half of the maintenance costs.

Steklac said all three city efforts would go forward simultaneously.

"Whatever we achieve first to lift the moratorium would be great, but we still need to do several things to address the firm capacity issue," he said.

To minimize the threat of a water emergency, the city has also imposed watering restrictions during times of peak historical water use in the city, typically during mornings in summer months.

A Chelsea citizens' advisory committee charged with evaluating and offering solutions for Chelsea's water problems is currently focusing on problems with the city's wastewater treatment system.

While the committee has already issued a report to the city recommending solutions for expanding water capacity, it has yet to issue another report offering suggestions for sewer issues.

Steklac said Brad Roberts, the city's wastewater superintendent, is preparing requests for proposals from various engineering firms to expand the city's wastewater treatment plant, which is operating near capacity and cannot accommodate more housing development.

Much of the planning for an expanded sewage plant will hinge on whether the city can reach planning agreements with Lima Township for proposed housing developments along Dexter-Chelsea Road.

Policy addresses homebound students

District previously had no policy for those unable to attend school

By Erin Ryder
Special Writer

The Chelsea Board of Education is considering a policy on the education of homebound students, defining the reasons for and standards under which the district would provide in-home education.

The policy was presented for first reading at Monday's board meeting.

The homebound instruction policy is new to the district, which previously had no set guidelines in place for the continuing education of students unable to attend classes because of either physical or emotional disability.

Also under consideration is a proposed change to high school course offerings. Social studies, computers, business, art and English language arts classes could be modified as early as next year.

Civics, a required class under the new framework, would cover the high school government requirement, as well as economics as required by the state. Students would take this class during their freshman or sophomore year.

Students also would be required to take "Senior Seminar" in their final year. The seminar would address job market skills such as resume writing, as well as focusing on current events and civic involvement through state and local government.

High school students have been required to have at least a half credit of computers in the past; however, with new technology offered in lower grades, the requirement will be eliminated and replaced with two more advanced offerings.

Other elective classes with low enrollment numbers also may be replaced or synthesized into more popular course offerings.

The board will be considering these changes for a Jan. 1 deadline to include them in next year's course offerings.

In other meeting news, several fifth-graders showed a presentation completed during their fourth-grade year.

The "Fourth Grade Memories" PowerPoint presentation is a yearlong project conducted by pupils in Karen Henry and Crystal Heydlauff's team classroom. The kids make slides throughout the year to commemorate special events, class projects and outings.

In addition to teaching the pupils computer skills, the final presentation serves as a digital scrapbook of the year's achievements and memorable occasions.

As the year progresses, the slides become more advanced, including video, sound effects and animation.

Upcoming district events include bidding on Phase 3 of the ongoing bond project. Beach Middle School will be the next building to see improvement. Also at Beach, a parent forum will be held at 6:30 p.m. tonight for proposed changes to the school's class schedule.

Reconfiguration eases transition

Administrators say changes at South school are successful

By Erin Ryder
Special Writer

Three years into Chelsea's school reconfiguration, parents, pupils and administrators at South Meadows agree that the change, while difficult at first, has been a success.

Originally a school for kindergarten through fifth grade, South Meadows now focuses on pupils in fifth and sixth grades. Sixth-graders were transitioned down from Beach Middle School, and fifth-graders condensed into one building from the three elementary schools.

South Meadows Principal Lisa Nickels served five years as a K-5 administrator at South before the switch, but feels the transition has been beneficial.

"Obviously, we have had some growing pains as we try and find our way," she said.

"We really want to be able to develop an environment that embraces the middle grades."

Part of Nickels' effort to support middle grades is a set of rules that help keep the sixth-graders from growing up too fast. Those rules include no makeup, and no boyfriends or girlfriends.

In an atmosphere more tame than middle school, sixth-graders can still be seen on playground equipment at recess.

South Meadows parent Nancy Steinhauer has seen her sons educated in both the former system and the current, and says the changes are for the better.

"I really like it — the fifth- and sixth-graders really are at the same maturity level. They get the opportunity to learn the responsibility of being independent without being thrown into it,"

Steinhauer said.

Pupils at South are also transitioned into middle school life more gently than in the past. South's pupils commute to Beach twice a week for music and physical education, and Nickels and Beach Middle School Principal Andrew Ingall are working out a system to visit each other's schools at lunch once a week.

As part of the district's reconfiguration, all children in each grade level are now combined in one school, whereas in the past they were split, only to be merged suddenly when entering middle school.

"I think a large part of the clique element has been eliminated at the middle school," Steinhauer said.

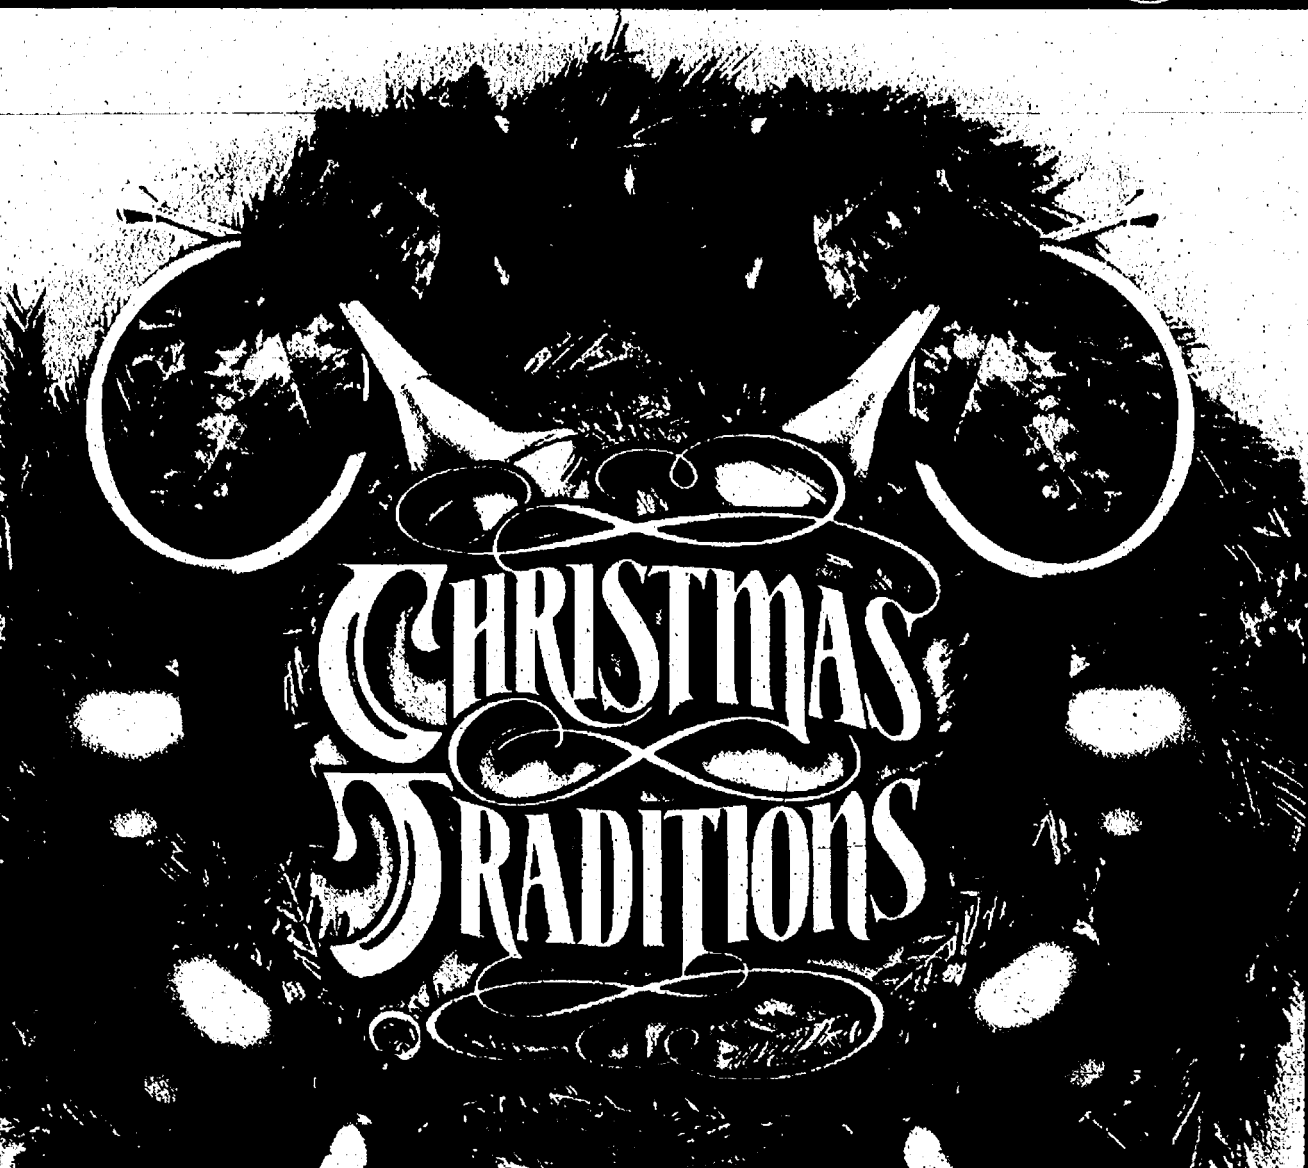

And while most agree that the overall experience in the intermediate grades has improved, some still miss elements of the old system.

Parents with several children have had to adjust to making the rounds between more buildings, transitioning to new systems every two years.

South Meadows PTO President Penny Hollandsworth says she misses the shared history experienced when children were with the same small group of friends and teachers for six years.

"I think two years is a short time to get to know a person," she said. "But is my child scarred from it? No. They're doing a fabulous job to make it work."

POLICE BLOTTER

Chelsea Medical Assist

An officer helped a woman Nov. 8 in the 100 block of West Middle Street who had fallen and injured her shoulder.

Suspicious Incident

Police responded Nov. 8 to a complaint in the 300 block of W. Summit Street. A man and his girlfriend, both Chelsea residents, were arguing. Police separated the couple and both said they were arguing about who should walk their dog.

Both told police the argument was only verbal. The man agreed to walk the dog to end the argument, and police told the couple to keep the noise down.

Driving Law Violations

Police cited a man Nov. 5 for driving without required identification. He was initially stopped for speeding at the intersection of North and Haze streets. When asked for identification, he told police he had left his wallet at work.

Police issued citations for driving without carrying an operator's license and a civil infraction for not carrying proof of insurance.

Police monitoring a traffic signal Nov. 9 at the intersection of Main Street and North Maple Court stopped a van for driving through a red light northbound through the intersection.

A Munith woman, who was driving the van, was driving with a suspended driver's license. She was taken to the Chelsea Police Department and her van was parked on the roadside.

Police fingerprinted the woman and confiscated her license plate.

The case has been forwarded to the Washtenaw County Prosecuting Attorney's Office.

Larceny

An East Leroy man told police someone broke into his car between Nov. 3 and 5 while it was parked at a park-and-ride lot at the intersection of Interstate 94 and M-52.

Someone stole a radio and compact disc changer, as well as a set of wrenches, from the vehicle. The stolen audio system is valued at $300.

Someone stole items between 8 a.m. Nov. 2 and 5:30 p.m. Nov. 6 from a truck parked in the southeast corner of a park-and-ride lot at the intersection of I-94 and M-52.

The owner of the truck, a Jackson man, returned to find his driver's-side passenger window was broken.

Stolen from the truck's cab was $20 in small bills and change, 30 compact discs held in a carrier and a box set of tools.

A fishing pole, reel, spotlight and two tackle boxes were stolen from the bed of the truck.

The value of the fishing equipment was unknown at the time of the report. The toolbox was valued at $100.

Someone pumped gas without paying for it Nov. 6 at Chelsea Sunoco, 1630 S. Main St. An attendant told police a man in his mid-40s, who was driving a Dodge Durango truck, pumped $42.68 worth of gasoline and drove off, turning south from the gas station's driveway.

Someone stole a flag from a man's residence on South Main Street between 10 p.m. Nov. 7 and 3:25 p.m. Nov. 8.

The man said the flag had a rainbow design, symbolic of a gay lifestyle, and that the flagpole was also stolen.

The man also told police he recently found nails in his driveway. He said he did not know who might have committed the acts and that he didn't know of anyone who was angry with him.

He also said he spoke with his partner and that he didn't believe his partner was being targeted.

Police advised the man to install motion detector lighting in front of his house.

The stolen items were valued at $50.

A Chelsea woman reported Nov. 9 that her son's bicycle

POLICE

was stolen from their apartment in the 200 block of Harrison Street. The woman said she suspected other boys living in the complex may have stolen the bike.

Someone stole two bicycles Nov. 6 from the garage of a house in the 60 block of Chestnut Street. A man and a woman's mountain bike, each valued at $300, were stolen.

Property Damage

An employee reported Nov. 4 that someone attempted to burglarize an automated teller machine at Chelsea State Bank, 305 S. Main St.

Police found large marks on the inside of the ATM's lock, although the perpetrator was unable to open the ATM or steal any cash.

Lyndon Township

Property Damage

A woman on Farnsworth Road reported Oct. 30 that her mailbox had been smashed. Police have no leads.

A resident reported Oct. 30 that his vehicle was struck with apples and eggs in the area of Waterloo and Bush roads. Police have no leads.

A parking lot light was apparently shot out Nov. 1 at Lyndon Township Hall. Employees said they thought the light had been burned out earlier in the week, but discovered the damage when the light was replaced.

Breaking and Entering

State troopers responded Oct. 30 to a report of a breaking and entering to a beer cooler at the North Lake Country Store, located at the corner of North Territorial and Stofer roads. Troopers have identified a group of Chelsea High School students who confessed to the crime.

Lima Township

Property Damage

A resident in the 8000 block of Liberty Road was awakened at 11:30 p.m. Nov. 3 by the sound of a mailbox being smashed. A neighbor found the mailbox next to a car that was parked by the road. The windows of the car were also smashed.

Arrests

State troopers stopped a 48-year-old Detroit man at about 7:50 a.m. Nov. 5 on I-94 near Freer Road for having an improper license plate. The man was arrested for driving with a suspended license. A passenger in the car also was arrested for outstanding traffic warrants.

A search of the vehicle turned up an open bottle of whiskey and a leather briefcase containing tools commonly used for breaking and entering.

The man was arraigned Nov. 6 for possession of burglary tools, a 10-year felony.

Sylvan Township

Breaking and Entering

A series of break-ins and the destruction of a fence occurred in the late evening and early morning hours of Nov. 8 and 9 on Lingane Road and Tory Lane.

Two garages were broken into and items were taken from both. A white picket fence along Lingane Road was also damaged.

State troopers have identified some juveniles from the Chelsea area as suspects in the cases. Anyone with information should call 475-7207.

Compiled by Staff Writers Steve Ricci and Heather Connor based on reports filed with Chelsea Police and Michigan State Police.

Forget all of the excuses, give blood

I hate needles. Wait, I used to hate needles. Now I'm a whole lot better at getting poked and not passing out, thanks to the Red Cross. It's one of the benefits of giving blood.

For a long time, I never considered donating blood. To me it was something that other people did, like diving, watching soccer, doing cartwheels, taking a sauna, gambling online or watching Scottish Highland dancers.

Then I realized it would present a compelling challenge: I could find out whether I had the guts to go get poked for no good reason. And if I had the guts, then I might just overcome my needle anxiety.

After a half gallon of blood, I can truly say it has been a good idea. I can watch "Grey's Anatomy" on television without covering my eyes when the needles are pulled out. I can bandage my own cuts, even the deep ones. Heck, if I were diabetic, I could probably even give myself my own insulin injections.

Meanwhile, I have learned a few other things. Donating blood is easy. It doesn't cost me anything. In fact, my last boss used to give me paid time off to go. And there's free food. The cookies and juice flow non-stop wherever you donate.

You should donate blood, and you should do it every two months.

Donations drop over the holidays. People get busy. I don't know about you, but my warm, lazy autumn is quickly turning into a chaos of bow hunting, Christmas shopping, leaf raking, late season fence mending, Thanksgiving cooking (OK, eating and football watching), and holiday planning and travel. Forget the everyday stuff like work, exercise and family time.

As I get busier, I find I have less time to give of myself to others. That is, I start taking time from others to give to myself. After this year's natural disasters, you've probably given a lot of yourself — and your cash — to the Red Cross and other charities. You probably feel a little tapped out right now. The good news is that giving blood is free. It costs us nothing except a little time.

ROY SCHMIDT

During the winter holidays, our national blood supply literally runs short, down to something like one day. This is blood that's used by trauma victims, babies, soldiers, your relatives, neighbors and friends.

Your blood is needed for heart surgeries (my dad), organ transplants (daughter of a co-worker), complications during childbirth (my wife), leukemia (my son's friend) and cancer patients (my friend's daughter) as well as newborns and premature babies (all my kids).

Can you imagine your single pint of blood being used to save the life of one premature baby, or to honor to thank or heal one soldier? What about to bring a kid with cancer one step closer to coming home from C.S. Mott Children's Hospital and going back to school?

According to the Red Cross, the main reason donors give blood is because they want to help others. The top two reasons people say they don't give blood are that they have "never thought about it" and they "don't like needles."

Well, now you've thought about it. You've been invited, even urged, to do it.

You'll get used to the needles, I did.

As a matter of fact, I can barely wait until my 56 days are up so I can go get poked again. I don't even need to bring my teddy bear with me anymore.

Parties clash over cuts

You thought you had a lousy job? Just think about the poor folks in the Michigan Senate who were subjected to one indignity after another recently.

First they were locked in with armed guards to make sure they couldn't get out. And then, adding insult to injury, they were forced to listen to almost every single word of an 11-bill package to cut business taxes.

What's so bad about that? Isn't that part of their job?

Nope.

Under normal circumstances, none of the bills are read from head to toe, but this time around the Senate Democratic leader was so upset with his opponents in the Republican party that he invoked a rarely used parliamentary procedure, forcing the reading of each bill from stem to stern.

Sen. Robert Emerson, D-Flint, accused the GOP of "jamming" through the single business-tax-cuts-without-giving-Democrats-time-to-review-them. It was an odd criticism because Emerson's boss, Gov. Jennifer Granholm, has been browbeating the GOP-controlled Legislature for not moving fast enough on the plan.

In retaliation to Emerson's move and under the heading of "boys will be boys," Senate GOP leader Ken Sikkema invoked a "Call of the Senate."

TIM SKUBICK

That meant the sergeant at arms rounded up all the senators and locked all the doors.

Then, everyone sat there like schoolchildren listening as the secretary read half of all those bills before Emerson backed off his demand.

Eventually Sikkema and company got their bills passed. However, right about that time, Granholm called the plan "dead on arrival."

Then came Jim Barrett, who runs the Michigan Chamber of Commerce. The media just loves it when Republicans battle Republicans.

He said the Senate tax cuts did not go far enough and deep enough. And he had problems with one of the lynch pins of the Sikkema scheme.

Sikkema correctly believes when the state has the money to fund the cuts, the cuts would be "triggered" in. No money coming in means no cuts going into effect.

Barrett demurs.

"Let's provide tax reductions now," he argued.

Sikkema could dismiss Barrett's comments. After all, the chamber has a spotty record when it comes to automatically embracing GOP proposals. However, the next critic could not be shoved aside.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Don't be politically correct at Christmas

With Christmas just around the corner, the war being waged on Christmas and Christianity is heating up again.

The controversy about Christmas gets more intense each year as Christians and their beliefs on which this country was founded are attacked.

Christianity and its traditions are continuously trampled on unlike any other religion in this country, even though various polls around the country show that 82 percent of Americans are Christians.

We have allowed a small group of individuals to attack a religion that is in the majority because they are offended by their traditions. We have not stood up for our faith; we have sat silently and let them chip away at our beliefs and our traditions.

This year, I said enough is enough. I am not going to mold my religious beliefs around political correctness. Since when does anyone have the right to take someone's religious beliefs and change their traditions because it might offend others?

In this diverse country, no matter what your religion, you're bound to offend someone, even though it wasn't what you intended. A Christmas tree is just that, not a holiday tree. It has been a Christmas tree for many decades. What right does anyone have to change its name?

If I say "Merry Christmas" and not "Happy Holidays," don't be offended. Take it in the spirit that it was intended, wishing you hope, love, health and happiness. I am not pushing my religion on you. I am just wishing you all the best.

Retailers should stop being so hypocritical, while filling your tills on the back of Jesus. They have taken down anything that says "Merry Christmas" and replaced it with "Happy Holidays."

Christmas is one of their biggest moneymakers, and the majority who are buying is Christian. I guess as long as you are only offending a Christian, then it is accepted.

Trampling on Christian beliefs and traditions has become the norm these days.

A day doesn't go by that another tradition is being changed so as not to offend someone.

We bend over backward showing respect for other religions and their traditions, yet where is the respect shown to ours? Can you imagine any other religion being attacked in this matter?

The story would be in all the headlines around the globe, yet Christianity has been attacked consistently every year with hardly a mention. Sure there have been a few reports, but trying to be politically correct has put Christianity on the chopping block.

Christians should take a real good look around them and see what's happening to their faith. It's about time to take a stand lest before long just being a Christian will become offensive and politically incorrect.

Work starts on storm sewer

New sewer line aims to eliminate flooding on East North Street

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

City crews last week began constructing a new storm sewer extending from East North Street to M-52.

The project was initiated to eliminate flooding on East North Street during heavy rains.

The Chelsea City Council approved a $132,115 contract with E.T. MacKenzie Co. of Ann Arbor Oct. 25 for the project.

The money will come out of the city's storm water and major street budgets.

The project aims to rectify the flooding problem by installing a new, 24-inch storm sewer pipe spanning the two streets.

The old sewer line collected runoff water from downtown Chelsea's east side and across the Clocktower Complex before connecting to a storm sewer on Main Street north of the complex, which eventually drains into Letts Creek.

According to an Oct. 25 memo by Chelsea City Manager Mike Steklac, the old storm sewer was undersized, was not set at a proper slope and was constructed of clay material that was rapidly deteriorating.

The old pipe's small diameter, as well as its improper vertical alignment, was causing flooding on East North Street during heavy rains, Steklac said.

At an Oct. 25 Chelsea City Council meeting, City

Contractor E.T. MacKenzie Co. began a reconstruction project replacing an old sewer line last week at the Clocktower Complex. Installation of the new storm sewer, running from East North Street to a storm sewer line on M-52, should mitigate flooding on East North Street during heavy rains.

Council Trustee Joe Merkel expressed concern that soil contamination could be found during the project.

Merkel said he was told portions of land the pipe spans were used in the past as landfills, and he noted that the land also lay under sites of former factories.

He said the city should be wary of potential problems, especially in light of the Chelsea District Library's recent discovery of gasoline contamination in portions of the soil used for construction of a new McKune Memorial Library.

Steklac said last week that the city aims to complete the storm sewer improvements before a project by McKinley Properties Inc., slated before the end of November, to pave new parking lots above the sewer line.

DeRoche wants is a nasty public confrontation with his Senate counterpart. But the media could give two hoots about that, so DeRoche was cornered and asked to expand on his original and tepid news release in which he daintily tipped-toed around his differences with Sikkema.

It turned out that DeRoche is not a big fan of Sikkema's "triggers" either; he also wants a bigger business tax now, not later.

With an outdated Ford Motor Co. assembly line plant in his own Wixom backyard, DeRoche can't wait around for tax cuts.

"We need to go as far as we can (on cuts) before there are triggers," he said.

Sikkema was asked to jump into the fray, but begged off, not wanting to add more fuel to the fire.

Shucks.

But he did glibly add that if

Barrett and the governor were against the GOP proposal, "It must be a good one."

I wonder what he thinks about his pal DeRoche's remarks?

SYLVAN TOWNSHIP

Laws may go online

Partnership with U of M could provide low-cost labor

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

At an undetermined date, Sylvan Township residents might have the option of logging onto the Internet to view township regulations, instead of visiting the township office during business hours for the information.

At a Nov. 1 Sylvan Township Board meeting, Trustee David Solo said a partnership with the University of Michigan School of Information could result in an indexing and publishing of portions, or all, of the township ordinance book on its municipal Web site at www.twp-sylvan.org.

A contact at the school has offered to provide graduate students to work on the task, at a low cost, during the fall 2006 semester.

Solo did not say the project would indeed take place, indicating that discussions with the school are ongoing.

Solo said the task could satisfy a public service requirement students need to satisfy to graduate the school.

"They could get a small stipend and a letter of recommendation," Solo said of the students.

"We could get about $20,000 of work done for maybe $1,000."

Solo said the existing ordinance book comprises mimeographed pages dating back to 1954.

Scanning all of the pages onto a computer would be a "big task," and would take hundreds of hours, he said.

Chelsea sophomore center Brogan Darwin goes up for two points during the Bulldogs' county hardwood tussle against rival Dexter last Thursday. The Bulldogs bested the Dreadnaughts 41-38. With the victory, Chelsea concluded its regular season with a 12-8 overall record and an 8-2 mark in the Southeastern Conference.

Chelsea battles rival Dexter on court in regular season finale

By Don Richter

In front of one of its largest crowds of the season, the Chelsea girls' basketball team played a spirited game against its cross-county foe Dexter, winning a hard-fought 41-38 decision last Thursday.

As one would expect, the heated rivalry brought out the best in both clubs. Though the host Bulldogs (12-8, 8-2) led for most of the contest, the pesky Dreadnaughts refused to go away, battling back throughout the night, chipping away at Chelsea's advantage until tying the game at 38-38 with 3:00 left on the clock.

With 1:17 remaining, Chelsea junior forward Rachel Fitzsimmons canned two free throws, giving the Bulldogs a 38-38 lead. Two free throws by junior guard Leah Morrison and one freebie by senior swing player Emily Woodruff sealed the victory for Chelsea.

Rivals generally bring out the best in each other, and last Thursday was no exception, as the Bulldogs, champions of the Southeastern Conference White Division, shot a season-high 63 percent from the floor in disposing of Dexter in both clubs' regular season finale.

Last Thursday was also the final home game for Woodruff. Fittingly, the 5-foot-9 do-everything-player for Chelsea finished her last home contest, leading the Bulldogs with 12 points, including the game's final free throw to secure the win.

Chelsea coach Todd Blomquist said Woodruff, the team's lone senior, would be hard to replace.

"Emily has had a fantastic career," he said. "This night was really special for her and her teammates. She came in a winner, and went

Besides her 12 points, Woodruff had three rebounds and a team-high

For Chelsea sisters Jessica and Nicole Lodewyk, whose chosen sport is swimming, times are crucial — the faster, the better.

Outside of the pool, times are also important to the two Bulldog standouts, but for a different reason.

This reason concerns family bragging rights.

"I'm older by one minute," said Jessica. "A full 60 seconds."

Nicole jokingly rues the day her sister was born before her.

"That was the worst minute of my life," she said.

Though technically the younger sister, Nicole said her "older" sibling doesn't dwell on it too much.

"Every now and then she'll bring it up, but it's not that big of a deal," she said.

Both sisters will conclude their prep careers in the pool this weekend at the Division II state meet at Oakland University in Rochester. Competition begins at noon both days.

"My goal is to do the best I can and get the best times," Jessica said. "I've been working real hard this season. My 200 free and 500 free are looking pretty good."

Nicole said her senior season has prepared her for the state final.

"I feel ready this year," she said. "I want to do really well. This year has been such a great year. I'd like to come back on the second day in the 100 fly (butterfly final)."

Chelsea coach Dave Jolly said both swimmers have meant a lot to the Bulldog program.

"Jessica has such a great work ethic," he said. "She's by far the best trainer I've worked with. She gives 100 percent every day. I've coached kids over the years more talented, but never close to Jessica's quality over the years."

"She's a talented all-around swimmer. She's qualified for every single event in her career (at state meet). That's amazing."

Jolly said Nicole has improved tremendously over the years.

"Before this season, she was second or third on the team, hoping to make a state cut-type of kid," he said. "This year, she's been a go-to person. She finally realized her potential. She's reached high heights this year. She's qualified for three events at state."

While both sisters are a lot alike, they're also different.

"I like swimming because of the early mornings," said Nicole, who looks at studying physical therapy at either Grand Valley State University or the University of Evansville. "It wakes you up for school more than anything else. It's also a challenge. Once you get out of the water, you can say you accomplished something."

Jessica, who plans on majoring in science at either Emory University or Washington University in St. Louis, likes the pool for a completely different reason.

"I'm a big fan of the

Chelsea's Milliken signs with Saginaw Valley

A gym rat is a term used to describe a player who eats, sleeps and drinks basketball.

In the case of Chelsea's Kelly Jo Milliken, she's a gym rat of a different sort. Her "gym" is a pitching circle and a batting cage. And her passion is softball.

Last week, Milliken signed a national letter-of-intent to play softball for Saginaw Valley State University. A three-year varsity player for the Bulldogs, she hit .400, with two home runs and 24 RBIs as a pitcher/shortstop last season.

In the circle, Milliken finished 12-10 last season for Chelsea.

Milliken, who was also recruited by Olivet College and Alma College, said she chose SVSU because she felt comfortable there.

"It had everything that I wanted and everything that I need," she said. "The girls on the team were really nice to me, and they were very supportive. They seemed like an all-around good team. They seemed like they helped each other a lot."

Through an inner drive and a love of the game, Milliken has made herself a college-level softball player.

"I've known her since she's been in the eighth grade," said former Chelsea coach Kim Reichard, who stepped down from her post after last season. "She was our manager. She made varsity as a sophomore. What made her progress has been her hard work and dedication."

"I remember her coming out to the field, even as a manager in eighth grade, working on her pitching any chance she could."

Reichard said Milliken is a strong, all-around player.

"She's quick on the bases, and she's a great hitter," she said. "She's also a great fielder at shortstop."

Milliken, who started playing softball in Chelsea's recreation leagues as a youth, said softball has always been fun for her.

"I got started in it because of my brothers," she said. "My older brother was a pitcher, so I started there. Then I went off to shortstop because I really liked it. I

Bulldog defensive corps school's best ever

By Don Richter

The Chelsea boys' soccer team was a balanced club this season.

Defensively, the Bulldogs were a stingy bunch, allowing a school record low 21 goals this year.

In contrast, Chelsea was no slouch offensively, scoring 52 goals this season.

The spear point of the Bulldogs' attack this year was senior Ausable Schwiebert, who finished his career as Chelsea's all-time leading goal scorer with 40. He also was second in school history with 95 offensive points. He ended up in the school's top five in career assists, goals in a season and points in a season.

The Bulldogs finished the year with an overall record of 14-6-3 and 6-2-2 in the Southeastern Conference. Chelsea captured a SEC White Division championship. The Bulldogs were ranked as high as No. 12 in the state this season. The team advanced to the Division II state regional before losing 3-2 in overtime to South Haven.

Individually, Schwiebert led the squad with 19 goals, including six game-winning kicks, six assists and 44 points. He was a unanimous first team All-SEC and All-District pick. He also was named All-Region and All-State this year.

Junior Mike Sauers had nine goals and five assists for 23 points, while junior Steve Tapping recorded six goals and seven assists for 19 points for Chelsea.

Senior Bill Hayes added three goals and nine assists for 15 points, while senior Jamie Laeder had four goals and two assists for 10 points and senior Kolton Niesen four goals and one assist for nine points for the Bulldogs.

Senior Alex Stewart had one goal and four assists for six points, while junior Sean Dzobel had two goals and one assist for five points. Junior Robbie Pagliarini ended up with one goal and one assist for three points, while sophomore Nathan Vleck had one goal for two points.

Senior Sam Boyce and junior Reese Hammer each had two assists, while senior Cam Wilson and juniors Brett Kruse, Eric Dudek and Robert Guysky each had one assist for Chelsea.

In net, keeper Nikolai Voicechovski was a standout for the Bulldogs. The senior had a goals against average of 0.92, along with nine shutouts and a save percentage of .875. He allowed 22 goals, while making 155 saves this year.

Receiving MVP honors this season for Chelsea was Schwiebert. He also was named the team's offensive MVP.

Guysky was selected Most Improved, while Wilson earned the Coaches Award and the team's defensive MVP.

Besides Schwiebert, also receiving All-SEC first team accolades were Sauers, Hayes and Voicechovski. Hammer, Boyce, Laeder, Wilson and Stewart were named All-SEC honorable mention.

Niesen earned the SEC Sportsmanship Award.

Sauers, Wilson and Voicechovski all were named first team All-District, along with Schwiebert. Hayes, Boyce and Laeder gained All-District honorable mention acclaim.

Sauers and Voicechovski were selected All-Region, with Schwiebert, Sauer and Voicechovski also earned All-State honorable mention recognition.

chlorine," she said. "I love those chemicals."

All joking aside, Jessica said she enjoys swimming for the effort and dedication it takes to succeed.

"I like that you can see the results and the improvements," she said.

Outside of the pool, the sisters are different, as well.

"School-wise, I'm more of a science and math person, while she's (Nicole) more of a history and English person," Jessica said. "She really likes working with people, and I'm more of an individual worker."

Both sisters said they help drive each other to succeed.

"She's one of the most positive people I know," Jessica said of Nicole. "She's happy all the time, and I like that about her."

"Everyone has their moments when they're feeling down, and it's great to have someone who can lift you up. It's nice because she can tell when I need that extra encouragement. She also can tell me when I need to pick it up."

"My parents (Mark and Audrey), coaches and teammates also inspire me."

Nicole said she admires Jessica's determination and sense of humor.

"She works so hard and pushes herself," she said. "Every time I see her working hard, it makes me want to go fast. She always gives me something to aim for."

"She makes me laugh. She knows when I'm feeling down and can make me feel better. She's always there for me. She's always positive. She's my greatest motivator."

And she's also her older sister - by one minute.

CROSS COUNTRY

Girard named Dawg MVP

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

The Chelsea boys' cross country team held its end-of-season banquet Nov. 8.

Receiving MVP honors was senior Ian Girard. At this year's Division II state meet, Girard placed fifth individually with a season best time of 15:38. His mark was one second off the school record.

Girard was selected All-Southeastern Conference, All-Region and All-State. With his time at the Division II final, he was also named to the state's Dream Team, signifying his position as one of the state's top seven runners, regardless of division.

Sophomore Teddy Eyster was named Most Improved for the Bulldogs. He finished 190th with a clocking of 17:42.30 at this season's state meet.

Receiving the team's Sportsmanship Award was Mike Harkerd.

As a squad, Chelsea earned Academic All-State recognition with a combined 3.871 grade point average.

Individually, junior Brendan Smith and Girard each received Academic All-State accolades.

"I am very proud of how hard we worked this year," said Chelsea coach Eric Swagger. "We overcame adversity to advance to the state finals, once again. It shows what you can do with effort."

Chelsea finished 16th overall in the state.

"Also, my assistant coach Mike Holik has been rock solid in showing a great example to all the runners," Swagger said. "I am very lucky to have him around.

"In addition, the parents and volunteers this year were outstanding. They help make cross country a very special experience for our community."

Beach cagers open season

Chelsea's Beach Middle School eighth-grade Blue boys' basketball team opened its season with two losses last week.

Last Thursday, the visiting Bulldogs (0-2) lost to rival Dexter 32-17.

Shawn Schrottenboer led Beach with seven points.

Nigel Schuh added four points, while Colton Waterbury had three points, Nick Hill two points and Ryan Smallwood one point for the Bulldogs.

"We battled Dexter evenly throughout the first half, but our defensive effort failed us during the third quarter as Dexter outscored us 12-2," said Chelsea coach Jim Tallman. "(Dexter) built a lead that we were unable to overcome from there on out."

On Nov. 8, Chelsea lost to visiting Saline 28-20.

Waterbury paced the Bulldogs with 12 points.

Joe Gunden chipped in four points, while Luke Dehning and Schuh each had two points for Beach.

"Our defensive effort was sound in this game, however, our offense needs to find ways to score more points if we are to compete with our taller opponents," Tallman said.

Beach's eighth-grade Gold boys' basketball squad lost to Temperance Bedford 51-4 last Thursday.

Jeff Minzey and Tyler Salgat each scored two points for the Bulldogs.

On Nov. 7, Chelsea lost to Adrian 48-17.

"We played a much better second half at both ends of the court," said Chelsea coach Mike Bareis.

Nate Branham led Beach with seven points.

Josh Moffat, Brett Caid, Ben Sauters and Salgat each netted two points for the Bulldogs (0-2).

Seventh Grade
Beach's seventh-grade Gold boys' basketball team lost to Temperance Bedford 54-16 last Thursday.

Josh Simpson had six points to lead Chelsea.

Patrick Roberts added four points for the Dawgs.

On Nov. 7, Beach defeated Adrian 25-22.

Simpson paced Chelsea with eight points.

HOW TO PLAY

Select a winner from each of the week's games, listed below. Select in descending order of your CONFIDENCE in your choices. Win points at left for each correct selection toward possible total of 136 points. See complete rules below. You must be at least 8 (eight) years old to enter. To enter, clip along dotted line, then place game entry in POWER POINTS container at cosponsor's retail outlet(s). Entrants must list name, address and phone number below.

LIMIT: You may enter the contest only once per week.

DEADLINE: 2 P.M. WEDNESDAY

TIEBREAKER 1 ☐ Total points scored (both teams) in CHIEFS game.

TIEBREAKER 2 ☐ Total offensive yards (both teams) in this game.

THIS WEEK'S GAMES

Atlanta at Detroit	New Orleans at NY Jets
Denver at Dallas	Carolina at Buffalo
Baltimore at Cincinnati	Cleveland at Minnesota
Chicago at Tampa Bay	San Diego at Washington
New England at Kansas City	St. Louis at Houston
San Francisco at Tennessee	Miami at Oakland
Jacksonville at Arizona	NY Giants at Seattle
Green Bay at Philadelphia	Nebraska at Colorado

... POWER POINTS OFFICIAL RULES ...

1. Object of the game is to amass as many of the 136 possible points as you can. Simply review the week's schedule of games, listed on entry form, and decide which game you are SUREST of picking a winner in. Write the name of your projected winner on the 16-point line, and so on down to the 1-point line, which game you figure to be a toss-up. Next, fill in Tiebreaker 1, the total points scored by both teams in the week's designated game. If this step fails to produce a winner, the judges will apply Tiebreaker 2, total offensive yardage from scrimmage in this game. If a winner still doesn't emerge, a drawing will be held among those contestants still tied. Decisions of the judges are final. The weekly Midwest regional winner will receive $1000.
2. Any entry form that does not contain a legible name, address, etc., will be disqualified.
3. Entries that fail to forecast a winner from each and every game will be disqualified, as will entries that fail to distinguish between the Jets, and Giants of New York and other similar teams.
4. No points are awarded on tie games or in case any game is not played for any reason during its scheduled week.
5. Entering POWER POINTS constitutes permission by contestant for his or her name and photograph to be used for news and reasonable promotional purposes at no charge.
6. Employees of this newspaper, and their immediate families are ineligible to participate.
7. Any inquiry about a protest of weekly results must be made by noon on the Friday following the announcement of winners.
8. No purchase necessary. Facsimile game entry forms will be accepted. Enter contest by dropping entry form into POWER POINTS container at participating co-sponsors.
9. Weekly deadline for entry will be 2 p.m. Thursdays except when noted otherwise on weekly entry form.
10. Neither this newspaper nor any co-sponsor will be responsible for illegible entry forms or those lost, stolen or damaged in any way.
11. Limit one entry per person per week. Each entry must represent the original work of an entrant; group entries, systems or other attempt to enter multiple entries will be disqualified. Filing out extra forms and putting your friends' and relatives' names on them violates this rule. Any such entries are destroyed prior to grading.
12. Contestants must have reached the age of eight (8) years by the Sunday of any week's play.

Ball diamond needs lawn tractor

There's an old saying, "All I want for Christmas is my two front teeth." Well, for Ron Flowers and the Dexter seventh- and eighth-grade baseball teams, missing teeth are the least of their problems.

What the middle school baseball program wants for Christmas, or by Thanksgiving for that matter, is an old lawn tractor. With the baseball stadium at the new high school complete and in full use, the old varsity field near Creekside Intermediate School was available for the seventh- and eighth-grade baseball squads.

The problem with using the former varsity diamond, is the field is not configured to accommodate the smaller dimensions needed for middle school play.

"We are looking at how the field can be adjusted to the smaller dimensions, with the infield grass cut for a high school size diamond," said Flowers, a longtime supporter and coach for the middle school-level baseball program.

"At the very least, the field will be set up so that the diamond can be used for seventh- and eighth-grade practices."

Earlier this fall, groups of Dexter parents thatched, aerated, seeded and fertilized the infield grass at the former varsity field. The pitching mound and home plate areas were dug up and both areas rebuilt from scratch said Flowers.

Flowers also said the infield area and warning track were tilled up, raked and that all weeds on the infield skin and warning track removed. New top dressing was added to the infield, which was then drug and rolled.

The Dexter parent group also repaired the water fixture at the field, and cut down the weeds and grass along the fencing, dugouts and under the bleachers.

"Unfortunately, the tractor and Bobcat that were used to do much of the diamond work are much larger than what is needed for the routine dragging and infield maintenance that is required to keep a field in top playing condition," Flowers said.

"What we are looking for is a lawn tractor, 15 to 20 horsepower, capable of pulling a screen, small drag, or small roller around the field."

"We would need the tractor for at least the duration of the season, March through July, as dragging the diamond is almost a daily task."

Flowers said while it would be nice if the mower attachment worked, it wouldn't be necessary.

"I suppose even an old golf cart would work," he said.

While a lawn tractor would help maintain the field, the diamond is far from complete.

Flowers said future improvements include edging the grass, painting the dugouts, repairing the bleacher seats and installing a batting cage at the field.

"Hopefully, the renovation of this field will complement all the hard work the JV and varsity baseball boosters, along with head coach Al Snider, have done on the diamond adjacent to the new high school," Flowers said.

In addition to Flowers, those helping renovate the

SWIMMING AND DIVING

Divers have big year for Bulldogs

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

It's fortunate Jillian Drow has a gymnastics background. With all the high-flying acrobatics the Chelsea junior performs today, it's beneficial having the body control years of tumbling provides.

As one of the state's best divers, Drow enters this weekend's Division II final as a favorite to place in the top five. The state meet is tomorrow and Saturday at Oakland University in Rochester. Competition begins at noon both days.

"Jillian really gets off the board well," said Chelsea diving coach Eric Burris. "She spins well and she makes a good entry. She's definitely one of the best divers in the state."

Drow, who placed eighth at last year's final, said her goals are pretty simple heading into this season's state meet.

"I want to have 11 consecutive dives," she said. "And I want to place in the top eight, again."

Drow said diving comes naturally for her.

"It's a really fun sport for me," she said. "Not many people do it."

Drow said flexibility is the key to being a good diver. Her favorite dive demands body control.

"I love doing a one and a half pike," she said. "I'm still a little scared of it, but it's fun to do because it's really fast. I have to have my back to the water."

Drow said she became interested in diving after watching her older sister Anna participate in the sport.

"About five years ago, I started watching my sister dive when she was in high school," she said. "I started getting into it then. I thought it was really interesting."

Drow said her inspiration in the sport is her first coach Cokey Hoffman and current coach Burris.

"Anna has helped, too," she said of her sister, who is now at Michigan State University. "She keeps me relaxed."

While Drow has garnered most of the headlines this season for the Bulldogs, a second diver has also had a season to remember for Chelsea.

Senior Lisa Broberg was unable to qualify for the diving state final, but, as an exchange student from Sweden, she had an interesting season nonetheless.

"I still don't know what I like best about America," she said. "I kind of like the food, but it's a little cheesy. I'm not too fond of cheese."

Besides the food, Broberg said things in America aren't much different than in her native country.

"The people here are really nice and friendly," she said. "Everything looks pretty much the same. We have harder (school) tests and more homework in Sweden than in America."

Broberg, who will spend a year in Chelsea, said she misses her family and her school.

"But, I'm glad I came over here," she said. "I go back to Sweden after graduation."

Normally a platform diver, Broberg said she started in the sport as a 12-year-old.

"I dove for two years, then took a break, before starting again this season," she said. "I like the heights (in diving)."

Chelsea's Jillian Drow is one of the state's top divers. The junior is preparing for the Division II final tomorrow and Saturday at Oakland University. Last season, Drow finished eighth overall in the state.

ing. And I like spinning."

Burris said Broberg had a great season.

"She's real strong," he said. "If she had another year over here, she would be performing hard dives, too. But she had to get used to getting back on the board. It had been some time since she had been on the board coming from Sweden."

Though only competing this season for Chelsea, Burris said it was a pleasure coaching Broberg.

"She was a nice gift," he said. "She's a great person and a hard worker. She did a great job for us."

Broberg said she's looking forward to seeing her mother and friend, Kattis, when she gets back to Sweden.

"My mom always helps me and supports me," she said. "And Kattis is my best friend. She's my role model."

Broberg said when she returns to Sweden she would continue her schooling.

"I will probably study to become a doctor or architect," she said.

Chelsea's Emily Woodruff played her final game at home last Thursday against rival Dexter. The senior swing player led the Bulldogs to a win, scoring a team-high 12 points. Woodruff is Chelsea's fifth leading scorer in school history.

four steals on the night.

Morrison added 10 points, while Fitzsimmons had seven points and junior guard Bridget Lynn five points and four assists for the Bulldogs.

Junior guard Hannah Guenther finished with three points, while junior post player Paige Denison and sophomore center Brogan Darwin each had two points and three boards.

For Dexter, senior guard Jenny Cowen, coming off a 27-point effort two games ago, was held to 13 points by the swarming Chelsea defense.

Junior guard Chantel Jennings chipped in nine points, while senior forward Bailey Wandyg had seven points for the Dreadnaughts.

The game started out looking like a potential rout for Dexter, as the Dreads raced out to an early 7-0 advantage.

The Bulldogs didn't score until Morrison hit a free throw with 4:21 left in the first quarter.

After the free throw, Chelsea went on a 5-0 run, cutting Dexter's lead to 7-6. Morrison scored all five points during the rally, nailing a triple and a short jumper.

The Bulldogs ended the first quarter outscoring the Dreadnaughts 5-1 and taking an 11-8 lead into the second stanza.

Chelsea continued playing well in the second quarter, opening up a 15-8 margin on a Woodruff jumper and two free throws.

After Dexter trimmed the lead to 17-14 on two Cowen free throws, the Bulldogs responded with a 7-2 run, including a jumper at the buzzer by Woodruff, closing out the half with a 24-16 advantage.

Early in the third quarter, Chelsea opened up a 28-20 lead on a Fitzsimmons basket.

The Dreadnaughts battled back, closing the gap to 30-29 on a Cowen three-pointer with 2:15 left in the quarter.

The Bulldogs ended the frame, outscoring Dexter 3-2, as Lynn buried a triple. With the score, Chelsea led 33-31 entering the fourth quarter.

In the last frame, the Dreadnaughts tied the game at 36-36 on Wandyg's free throw.

The Bulldogs then closed out the win by draining five free throws of their own for the night's final margin.

If successful against the Dearborn Heights Robichaud-Riverview winner in the Class B district semifinal played Wednesday after press deadline, Chelsea would advance to the final 7 p.m. tomorrow. Ypsilanti Willow Run is hosting the district.

STATE

Bank survey shows few saving for rainy day

Fifty-five percent of a thousand people recently surveyed by KeyCorp say they consider themselves to be disciplined savers. However, 80 percent report saving less than 5 percent of their income, 42 percent report saving less than 2 percent of their income and 24 percent say they don't save anything at all.

"It's clearly a case of people believing they're doing a better job of saving than they actually are," Rick Robertson, president of KeyBank in Michigan, said in a press release. "The best intentions are not resulting in the best behavior."

According to the survey, insufficient income, debt and spending habits are the main culprits that prevent people from saving as much as they would like. And rising gas prices have caused more than two-thirds of people to become more serious about saving money.

The survey also found that 49 percent consider cable/satellite television essential to their lifestyle. Other "essentials" include:

- Cell phone, 46 percent.
- High-speed Internet access, 44 percent.
- Entertainment, 32 percent.
- Tied for last on the list of essentials were gym membership and a big-screen television at 6 percent.

"What struck me about the survey," said Robertson, "is that you have more than two-thirds of the people saying they would like to save 10 percent or more of their income. Almost 90 percent say they can't save what they want because they don't make enough or are too far in debt."

"And yet, when you look at what people consider essential to their lifestyle - well, it leads us to believe there's some untapped potential for people to reach their savings goals. That may be the silver lining in this survey."

When asked which items people would give up first to save more money, gym membership and big-screen television topped the list (79 and 74 percent, respectively). Other choices included:

- Sixty-two percent would skip taking a yearly vacation.
- Fifty-nine percent would give up owning or leasing a late-model or new car.

Scooples Gourmet Ice Cream plans to stay open year round

Scooples Gourmet Ice Cream has plans to become a year-round restaurant in Chelsea.

Owners Benny Benhart and Bob Roberts bought the store, located at 114 N. Main St. in the Sylvan Building, about a year ago and opened it April 1 of this year, offering ice cream, specialty hot dogs, wrap sandwiches and salads.

The business has been a success, so the owners decided to keep it open year round, according to a press release.

Book signing set Saturday

Cranesbill Books in downtown Chelsea will host the author-illustrator team of Darrin Brege and Karen Bell-Brege Saturday for the launch of their new children's mystery chapter book series called "Mick Morris, Myth Solver."

The couple will sign copies of the series' first book, "All Isn't Well in Roswell!" from 2 to 4 p.m. at Cranesbill.

In addition, they will sign copies of their previous release, "The Chill Art Sketchbook," and Chiller Book series illustrator Darrin Brege will present a demonstration on drawing the characters from both books.

The "Mick Morris Myth Solver" series allows the reader to decide how the book ends, selecting from five different endings.

"We wanted something totally different than other mystery chapter books," author Karen Bell-Brege said in a press release. "The kids can pick the ending they want. It can be scary, funny and so on. We think the kids will enjoy the adventure and the ending choices."

The "Mick Morris Myth Solver" book was printed by Sheridan Books in Chelsea.

- Fifty-eight percent would give up cable or satellite television.
- Fifty-two percent were willing to give up entertainment.

Another finding was that about 70 percent of the people surveyed think saving money is harder than losing weight, finding love or a good job, raising children, eating healthy, and maintaining a work-life balance.

About half said it was even harder than getting along with their families.

"One thing I want to stress is that saving money doesn't have to be so painful, and that there's much to gain," Robertson said. "More people have saved their way to becoming millionaires than have earned their way."

"Also, setting some money aside is the single best thing you can do to inoculate yourself against the potential negative effects of life-changing events such as job loss or unforeseen medical expenses."

For those who want to save more money for the future but feel they can't or lack the discipline to do so, Robertson offers the following tips:

- Automate your savings. Many companies allow you to automatically transfer a portion of your paycheck straight to a savings account (similar to how you may be making your 401k deduction). If not, you easily can have a portion of your paycheck automatically transfer from your checking account into a savings account.

- Trimming the fat from your spending is the quickest way to save. Chances are, you're paying for things that you can either cut back on or do without. Start with something simple, such as making one less nonessential purchase a month and putting the money into savings instead. Most importantly: never allow your spending to exceed what your income can support.

- Prioritize your savings. Build your short-term, emergency fund first, followed by your intermediate funds and then funds for your retirement. You can and should save for more than one goal at a time, but putting the cushion first increases your ability to weather financial storms and helps protect your long-term investments by lessening the chance you'll have to dip into long-term savings when an unexpected event arises.

New business is offering customers health remedies

A new business has opened in Chelsea, offering alternatives to those striving to maintain good health.

Nature's Remedies, located at 1119 S. Main St. in the Village Plaza, is operated by Denise Acton of Chelsea. She has more than 12 years in the medical field, including pharmaceutical sales and a master's degree in health, and additional studies in iridology, herbs and nutrition.

A grand opening will be held from 4 to 7 p.m. Dec. 16.

The store offers all-natural remedies. Products include herbs, vitamins and minerals under the Nature's Sunshine brand, which has been around for more than 32 years.

The store also includes organic lotions, shampoos and conditioners, essential oils, soaps, organic teas and natural healing modalities.

Another feature includes several companies representing homeopathic medicines to strengthen the body's immune system. Homeopathic medicines use naturally occurring substances of plant, mineral or animal origin, which, when taken in very small doses, stimulates a person's natural defenses or innate healing powers that seeks to return the person to health balance or homeostasis.

MichCon warns higher gas bills to come

MichCon customers, like natural gas users across the country, have been caught in a pinch between high demand and flat or declining natural gas production. Here are the facts provided by DTE Energy.

- Wholesale natural gas prices have risen from $2 per unit in the 1990s to more than $12 today, mainly because underground reserves that have produced natural gas for years are declining. Many areas with proven natural gas reserves are off limits to gas production.

- The sweltering heat wave this past summer increased the demand for natural gas-fired generation to meet larger-than-anticipated air conditioning demand.

- Hurricanes Katrina and Rita aggravated the gas supply situation by disrupting natural gas production in the Gulf of Mexico.

- As a result, a typical residential customer's total winter MichCon bill will increase 40 to 70 percent compared to last winter, depending on the weather, market prices, the condition of their home and heating system and their personal living habits.

- Most of the recent increases in customer bills are attributable to the price of gas itself, which appears as the Gas Cost Recovery item and is the largest component of the gas bill. MichCon's GCR factor is passed on to customers without any markup or profit to MichCon.

- The best way to reduce prices is to increase supply. Recent passage of the national Energy Policy Act will help ease supply constraints in the future, but relief in the form of lower prices is years away.

What's MichCon Doing to Help?

- MichCon purchases and stores large quantities of natural gas in the summer. This enables the company to take advantage of seasonal pricing, when possible, and acquire gas when demand is lower.

- The company encourages its customers to enroll in its Budget Wise billing plan, which allows qualifying customers to spread gas payments equally over the entire year. MichCon will contact low-income customers to encourage them to apply for energy assistance.

What Can You Do to Help?

- Contact your state representative and urge him or her to support passage of Senate Bill 334, which will establish a statewide fund for low-income customers to help them pay their utility bills.

- Support production of natural gas from proven reserves throughout the United States.

- Encourage low-income residents to call our customer service department 1-800-477-4747 to apply for any available assistance.

- Encourage residents to use energy wisely and practice energy conservation.

Childproof your home

My son was a late walker. In fact, he finally started walking at 15 months old.

His random steps have teased us for the last few months. One step, here. One step, there. But he didn't connect the dots until recently.

He was an efficient crawler. So, why walk, right? On all fours, he was like Mario Andretti, speeding around tight corners and missing the collisions that trailed behind him.

If I didn't keep a watchful eye, he could have sped down the street and around the corner within minutes. He was fast.

Now, he tears through the living room like a miniature Frankenstein. If his feet could talk, they would be tongue-tied. He wobbles around, falls down and springs back up to try again.

He looks like he discovered a new game. Little does he know he reached a major milestone and his days of crawling will be left to the family dog.

His dimpled smile steals my heart as he wobbles toward me expecting praise and recognition for a job well done.

Now, he doesn't stop. He is like a wind-up toy that keeps going and going and going. After breakfast, he begins his wobble around the kitchen island.

I wash the dishes. I fold some laundry. I talk to my mother on the phone for 30 minutes. Nolan continues to walk around the island.

I put away the laundry. I vacuum the floor. Nolan walks. He giggles and cheers as he rounds the corner and starts all over again. No wonder he falls. He must be dizzy, by now.

His little feet dance on the hardwood floor and my big feet stomp after him, rescuing him from falls and preventing his curiosity from exploring non-child-friendly activities.

Now that he has joined the walking, I notice some hazards in my home that could cause injury to my child if not addressed.

Of course, I childproofed the house prior to him beginning to crawl, but walking gives toddlers more opportunity and more height to get in harm's way.

So, listed below are 12 ways to childproof your home. Don't let your toddler be one of the 2.5 million children who are injured or killed by hazards in the home.

Many incidents can be prevented by using some safety devices that are available on the market today.

- Use safety latches and locks for cabinets and drawers in kitchens, bathrooms, and other areas to help prevent poisonings and other injuries.

- Use safety gates to help prevent falls down stairs and to keep children away from dangerous areas.

- Door knob covers and door locks are available to prevent children from entering rooms and other areas.

- Use anti-scald devices for faucets and shower heads and set your water heater temperature to 120 degrees Fahrenheit to prevent burns from hot water.

- Smoke detectors should

Escaping Alcatraz

John Pearce, a part-time North Lake resident, holds his daughter, Emily, at the San Francisco Bay Sept. 10 after he swam 1.5 miles from Alcatraz Island to the San Francisco shoreline. Pearce participated in the Alcatraz 100 Swim of Centurions, placing 95th out of 300 swimmers.

Pearce participates in Swim of Centurions

By Steve Ricci
Staff Writer

Part-time North Lake resident John Pearce did what most Alcatraz Federal Penitentiary prisoners failed to do Sept. 10, when he swam 1.5 miles across the San Francisco Bay, from Alcatraz Island to the shoreline of San Francisco.

Pearce, who, along with his wife, Kathy, and daughter Emily, spends summers at the family's home on North Lake and winters at a home in Mill Valley, Calif., participated in the third annual Alcatraz 100 Swim of the Centurions.

The race, named after Pedro Ordenes and Gary Emich, the first people to complete the swim 100 times, is becoming increasingly popular.

This year, 300 people swam in the race. Fifty-one-year-old Pearce, with a time of 43 minutes and 13 seconds, finished the race in 95th place.

The race's first-place swimmer, 27-year-old San Clemente, Calif., resident Peter Culp, finished with a time of 33 minutes and 35 seconds.

While Alcatraz Island was a federal prison between 1934 and 1963, dozens of inmates attempted to escape by swimming across the frigid bay.

Only three inmates, brothers Clarence and John Anglin, and Frank Lee Morris, portrayed by Clint Eastwood in the 1979 movie "Escape from Alcatraz," were unaccounted for after attempting to escape the prison.

Paddles, as well as parts of a raft made from raincoats, were found on nearby Angel Island after the men attempted to escape, although their bodies were never found, leading some to believe they survived their escape.

Only one Alcatraz prisoner is confirmed to have swum across the bay.

In 1962, police arrested inmate John Paul Scott after he washed up on the San Francisco shoreline, incapacitated from hypothermic shock.

Cold water temperatures, a strong current and the threat of sharks are obstacles in the race.

A Great White shark breeding area exists north of the San Francisco Bay, although the Great White sharks are not known to swim in the bay itself.

Other sharks do swim in the bay, but they are typically not man-eaters.

Pearce founded and was the chief executive officer for MediaMap Inc., a public relations research and software company, before he sold the firm.

Today, he runs an Internet-based marketing and communications business.

Prior to the 2004 presidential election, Pearce helped create the Web site RalphDontRun.net, which encouraged progressive voters to vote for Sen. John Kerry instead of Ralph Nader in that election.

Pearce recently described himself as a lifelong swimmer, although he said he is no fitness nut.

Living on North Lake during the summers, he saw an opportunity to train for the race and take on the challenge.

Pearce registered for the race last March, and said he "swam his tail off" last summer.

He became a predictable sight on North Lake as he swam miles across the lake most days, with Kathy and Emily either swimming alongside or paddling nearby in a kayak.

Pearce said his main focus during training was improving his endurance.

Also, he learned to swim with "bilateral breathing," meaning he trained himself to turn his head for air on both his right and left sides, because the waves on the bay can come from any direction.

At North Lake, Pearce swam in the relatively warm waters without equipment, although he wore a wetsuit for the first time the day of the race, as he entered San Francisco Bay's chilly waters, which average between 50 and 55 degrees Fahrenheit.

"I was pretty nervous about the thing, but once I got going, I saw the beauty of the bay, and it was really fun," Pearce said.

"The biggest danger was getting hit by boats while I was training on North Lake."

As he began the race, Pearce quickly found that the wetsuit made him more buoyant, which allayed more of his fears.

Pearce said the swimmers spaced out from each other quickly after the race started, and that people in kayaks monitored the swimmers to make sure they moved in the right direction.

The threat of a shark attack stayed in his mind, he said.

"Just outside of the Golden Gate Bridge is a great concentration of Great White sharks."

Exchange student finds second home in Dexter

Marcel Trevisan of Brazil to experience his first snowy winter at his new home with the Kumbiers

By Heather Connor
Staff Writer

A Michigan autumn is a new experience for Marcel Trevisan.

In Trevisan's home country of Brazil, the leaves do not change colors and fall to the ground.

And it doesn't snow there, either.

Trevisan, 16, is a senior exchange student at Dexter High School this year, staying with Tim and Mary Kumbier of Dexter.

Trevisan comes from a small island, located off the east coast of Brazil, called Florianopolis. It has a population of 300,000. The warm beaches are a stark contrast to fall temperatures in Michigan, but he looks forward to seeing snow for the first time and playing snow sports.

"Fall weather here is winter there (in Brazil)," Trevisan said.

Since he arrived in the United States in August, Trevisan has enjoyed playing water polo and participating in Homecoming activities at Dexter High School. He has visited Cedar Point Amusement Park in Sandusky, Ohio, and has developed a taste for Mongolian Barbeque.

His host mother, Mary Kumbier, said Trevisan looks forward to joining the Dexter High School swimming team and has worked diligently to improve his English. She said Trevisan told her he placed second in his competition class in the 50-meter freestyle, swimming a 25:27.

Kumbier said she often finds him up late writing papers for school using a dictionary because he needs to look up many words.

"He is an excellent student," Kumbier said. "I thought he was very brave to come to American with that little English."

Trevisan was taking private English lessons in Brazil for three years before coming to the United States. He is also enrolled in a speech class at the high school, which is a good idea for foreign exchange students during their first semester, Kumbier said.

Trevisan wanted to learn as much as English he could right away. It was tough at first, but he's getting better in the class, he said.

Let's look at gun control laws

A question currently plaguing today's world is whether or not we need stronger gun control laws to save lives. I feel that gun control laws are important; however, I don't think that stronger laws would save lives. The fact is that guns do not kill people, people kill people.

In a perfect world, if stronger gun control laws were put into effect, it would be much more difficult for many people interested in buying guns (ex-fugitives, for example) to buy them.

However, we do not live in a perfect world, and just because it would be harder, doesn't mean that they couldn't obtain one. As of right now, it's quite easy to purchase a firearm on the black market, no matter how many strikes to your record there are. If stronger laws on gun control were used, it might be just as easy to acquire a gun as it is currently.

Many people feel that having stronger gun control laws would save lives. Quite frankly, I think that if someone is cold-hearted enough to have the intent of killing another person, they will find a way to do it. If they can't get a gun, they will find a way, even if that way is stealing or using the black market.

People who are wicked enough to kill would have no problem with lying or cheating until they get their way. The matter of obtaining a gun isn't what's killing people; the fact that people in today's world have enough anger to take another's life is what's killing people.

One of the amendments in the Constitution of the United States is that every man has the right to own a firearm. Personally, I don't think that everyone needs to own a gun. It's simply unnecessary and has led to children bringing guns to school or shooting someone in their family.

If stronger laws on gun control were made to keep safety locks on guns, then I think it would make a difference in the lives lost. Little kids would be less likely to figure out how to use a gun and shoot someone in their school if it had the safety on or, better yet, if there wasn't a gun in the house at all.

I wish that saving lives were as simple as making another set of laws. Unfortunately, a lot more needs to be done to save lives. The coldness of our society is what needs to be changed; not gun control laws. Hopefully, one day we can find whatever it is that's making people kill and change it.

Sleeping while my mind is racing. Dreaming of yesterday. Touching air that once was solid, hoping that my dreams will stay. Understanding now that I

Pool of Emotions

Melanie Burchett

I want someone to understand my emotions. I wish I knew what they meant.

I try to sort through them, but it makes me more confused.

I laugh when I feel awkward, I cry when I can't find a reason to. I fight against the flow. I speak when I should listen. I wonder when I should know.

I pretend I'm fine, even though

I don't feel it. I imagine I'm fine, even though I wonder if I'll ever be.

I question myself, my dreams, my future, my life. I am spinning, lost in the maze of a dream of emotions.

I fall through them, touching, feeling and seeing every emotion I do not have a place for.

I hope I don't forget the pain I have felt because of this.

I emerge from the trap of sleepy dizziness I was in and make my way back to reality.

My problems haven't gone away because I have to do that myself.

I want to understand, and I think I finally do.

Thunderstorm

The smell of rain
Fills my nose
When I open the window
To the gray sky
It begins to drizzle
Little water drops hit the pavement
With a tink
The little drops slowly get larger
As the storm advances
The sky turns
Pitch black
From my position in the window
I cannot see the grass below
Then, suddenly, bam

Thunder cracks the silence
And the sky is cut by lightning
The whole yard is lit up
I see the swings in the backyard
Moving vigorously back and forth
The rain pours down in sheets
Thunder and lightning continue
To pound down on the earth
I watch for hours
Fascinated by the storm
Then the thunder gets farther apart
The lightning more scarce
The rain begins to thin
And the sky turns back to gray

The whole city is drenched
And quiet
The air smells damp
The sun begins to peek out
From behind the clouds
And the city begins to stir again
After the storm

Things I Like

Duncan Harris

These things I like:
Climbing pine trees in the wind.
The smell of books unused.
Biking down a hill too fast.
Eyes watering so you can't see.
Running around yelling when I was small.
The air before a storm.

WEDDINGS

Miller, Scott exchange vows

Catherine Scott and David Miller, both of Dexter, were married Sept. 17 at Matthaei Botanical Gardens in Ann Arbor.

The bridesmaids were Beverly Lobach of Gregory and Heather Lobach of Ypsilanti, both sisters of the bride.

The groomsmen were Jerry Seitz, brother-in-law of the groom, and Tim Miller, brother of the groom, both of Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Junior groomsmen were Jordan and Jared Scott of Dexter, sons of the bride.

The ring bearer was Evan Wright of Ft. Wayne, Ind., great-nephew of the groom.

A reception was held at Kensington Court Hotel in Ann Arbor. The couple honeymooned in Cancun, Mexico, and currently resides in Dexter.

The bride attended the University of Michigan and is employed at Sencore as a laboratory manager.

The groom also attended the U of M, and is employed at Applied Biosystems as a sales manager.

Torbet, Partier wed

Meghan Torbet of Chelsea and Charles Partier of Sydney, Australia, were married Sept. 29.

The bride is the daughter of Christopher and Deborah Torbet and the groom is the son of Henry and Maria Partier.

The couple met while working together at the St. Regis Hotel in Aspen, Colo. They are both employed by Starwood Hotel and Resorts.

The bride is a 2001 Chelsea High School graduate and the groom graduated from Dover Heights High School in Sydney, Australia, in 1994.

They reside in Scottsdale, Ariz.

Furda takes vow

Dexter resident Susan Furda recently celebrated her commitment as an associate with the Sisters, Servants of the Immaculate Heart of Mary.

Furda participated in the Rite of Christian Initiation for Adults in 1994. She learned more about her adopted faith through the Millennium course offerings in her diocese.

Furda later received an advanced certification in theological studies from Siena Heights University. She is a commissioned ecclesial lay minister for the Diocese of Lansing.

The commitment ceremony took place at St. Joseph Catholic Church in Dexter. The theme was "The long and winding road — a journey with no end." Paraclete Schneckel of the Immaculate Heart of Mary served as Furda's vowed companion along her journey of preparation for becoming an Immaculate Heart of Mary associate.

Introducing Sudoku

Sudoku is a placement puzzle and is also known as number place.

The aim of the puzzle is to enter a number from 1 through 9 in each cell of a grid, starting with various "given" numbers in some cells. Each row, column and region must contain only one instance of each number.

Completing the puzzle requires patience and modest logical ability (although some puzzles can be very difficult).

First published in the United States, Sudoku initially became popular in Japan and attained international popularity in 2005.

The numerals in Sudoku puzzles are used for convenience; arithmetic relationships between numerals are not important.

Rules and guidelines:

The puzzle is most frequently a 9x9 grid made up of 3x3 "regions." Some cells already contain numbers, known as "givens."

The goal is to fill in the empty cells, placing one number in each, so that each column, row, and region contains the numbers 1 through 9 exactly once.

Each number in the solution therefore occurs only once in each of three directions.

The attraction of the puzzle is that the completion rules are simple, yet the line of reasoning required for completion may be difficult.

Published puzzles often are ranked in terms of difficulty. This also may be expressed by giving an estimated solution time.

While the greater the number of givens, the easier the solution, and the opposite is not necessarily true. The true difficulty of the puzzle depends upon how easy it is to logically determine subsequent numbers.

STUDENT

For the first month he was staying with the Kumbiers. Trevisan would not call or write home to force himself to use English. His native tongue is Portuguese, but he also understands Spanish.

A big difference between Brazilian and American schools is the choice of classes, he said. Brazilian students cannot choose their subjects, while Americans can.

Another difference is the amount of subjects. At home, Trevisan took 13 classes a week. In addition to speech, Trevisan is taking math, chemistry, environmental studies, International affairs and assisting as a teacher's aide in a Spanish class.

Differences in how classes are taught also exist, Trevisan said. In a Brazilian classroom, chemistry is not taught by conducting experiments. "Schools are not better or worse, just different," he said.

Trevisan's older brothers, Andrei, 22, and Mluis, 20, both were foreign exchange students and inspired him to do the same. One brother was in Texas and the other in West Virginia.

Trevisan's mother is a teacher and his father works as an engineer.

Trevisan said his other hobbies include playing guitar, visiting museums, camping, hiking, computers, listening to music, soccer, and watching movies. His favorite American movie is "Lord of the Rings," but he is most passionate about swimming.

Kumbier said Trevisan often entertains her family with his guitar as he sings songs in Portuguese. "He gets along with everyone well," Kumbier said. "Other parents are getting to know him and they appreciate the cultural exchange he brings."

Having a foreign exchange student in the family has been a great experience so far, Kumbier said. With her oldest son, Eric, at college this year, the family felt it was a good time to host.

With her two other sons, Kirk and Karl, she said Trevisan was a good fit for the family.

"It's something I welcomed and embraced easily," Kumbier said. "Dexter has not offered the guys many opportunities to experience ethnic diversity. With all the common interests, including his parents' occupations and the fact he's a third child, I felt it was a perfect match."

Pumpkin Investigators

Mitch Ryer and Robert Wittenberg, pupils in teachers Tammy Reich's and Lisa Glover's sixth-grade classes, joined their classmates in participating in a cross-curricular "Pumpkin Investigation" unit. The week before Halloween, the pupils at Creekside Intermediate School wrote descriptive paragraphs, and weighed, measured, graphed data and carved pumpkins as part of the lesson.

be installed on every level of your home and near bedrooms to alert you of fires.

- Use window guards and safety nettings to prevent falls from windows, balconies, decks and landings.

- Corners and edge bumpers should be used to prevent injuries from falls against sharp edges of furniture and fireplaces.

- Use outlet covers and outlet plates to prevent electrocution.

- A carbon monoxide detector should be installed outside bedrooms to prevent carbon monoxide poisoning.

- Cut window blind cords and use safety tassels and inner cord stops to prevent children from strangulation. Call 1-800-506-4636 to obtain window blind safety information and free tassels.

- Use door stops and door holders to prevent fingers and hands from being pinched or crushed in doors and door hinges.

- Use a cordless phone to make it easier to watch young children.

Safety devices are easy to find. They can be found at hardware stores, baby equipment stores, grocery stores, drug stores, home and linen stores and through mail-order catalogs.

Be ready as your child develops the skills to crawl, walk, pull, tug, push, open and close all the items in your home.

Embrace their development and continue to chase after them as safety devices are not completely child-proof and could be disabled by your child.

Remember to have fun as they learn to walk and run because the day will come when they turn around and say, "See you later alligator."

And, by the time you reply they will be too far away to hear you say,

"After awhile crocodile." Jennifer Sinkwitz is a freelance writer. She can be reached via e-mail at jsinkwitz@aol.com.

Pearce said. "They attack surfers just five miles up the coast, but for some reason, they don't go into the bay."

"We counted on history to inspire us, and to help the intellectual mind overcome the gut reaction."

As it turned out, the only aquatic animal Pearce saw was a sea lion, and the weather was pleasant.

"It was a gorgeous day, and I could see the Golden Gate Bridge, the (San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge), Alcatraz and the San Francisco skyline," he said.

Pearce said he was pleased with his performance.

"I was happy to be 95th, he said. I just wanted to finish, so I was definitely happy with that."

Pearce plans to swim across the bay in the future, and hopes to improve his finishing time.

"I will do it again," he said. "It was way too much fun."

FIA seeks help

Faith In Action is accepting requests for help during the holiday season and is looking for donations.

For 25 years, the group has helped provide Thanksgiving meals for the needy and run its Adopt-A-Family program at Christmas.

"Interestingly, we always have some adopters who have at one time been adopted," Nancy Paul, director of Faith In Action, said in a press release.

"For whatever reason, be it a layoff or unexpected medical bills, it may be hard to fit Christmas into the budget. Once you've been helped, it makes it especially rewarding to be the helper."

The Palmer Ford dealership in Chelsea is accepting donations for the Toys for Tots and Teens program at its showroom. The toys are brought to Faith In Action and used for the program.

Knights hold dedication ceremony, honor own

Chelsea Knights of Columbus Council 3092 dedicates memorials to recently deceased Knights members Nov. 5 during services at St. Mary Catholic Church. Pictured are Joseph Yekulis (left), Ken Unterbrink, the Rev. Bill Turner, the Rev. Nino Minetti, the Rev. Enzo Addari, the Rev. Battista Omodei and the Rev. Piero Lippoli.

At a special dedication ceremony held Nov. 5 at St. Mary Catholic Church in Chelsea, the Chelsea Knights of Columbus dedicated the name of its council to the Rev. Louis Guanella.

The organization also added six engraved bricks to the Memorial Walk to remember other Knights who have died during the past three years.

Concelebrants for the 4:30 p.m. Mass were the Rev. William Turner at St. Mary's and the Rev. Nino Minetti of Rome, Italy, the superior general of the Servants of Charity Order.

Also presiding at the Mass were the Rev. Piero Lippoli, general secretary of the Servants of Charity, the Rev. Battista Omodei, provincial of the Immaculate Conception Province, and the Rev. Enzo Addari of the St. Louis Center.

Locally, Kenneth Unterbrink, Knights State Church activities director, and Joseph Yekulis, past-grand Knight of council 3092, were the presiding officers for the Chelsea

THAT DIDN'T HAPPEN.

When Lewis & Clark and the Corps of Discovery set out 200 years ago to find an all-water route across North America, they were indeed members of a military expedition. But what distinguished them wasn't just their bravery or their skills as explorers. It was their ability to get along with almost everyone they encountered. Travelling 8000 miles across an unknown continent is amazing. But relying on hand signals and interpreters to avoid conflict and coexist with more than 100 nations of American Indians is miraculous. In fact, during Lewis & Clark's first winter in the Mandan villages, Indians from hundreds of miles away came to see them. They set aside presumptions and prejudices and, for the most part, embraced each other. They were fascinated by each other's differences rather than intimidated by them. These people are persecuted because they look different. In 1804, that's precisely why Lewis & Clark have survived. So what did Lewis & Clark do so well that others, later, would not do half as well? What can we learn today from a 200-year-old story? This Lewis & Clark 200.org not only is a great resource. # Relief effort opens local family's eyes

Palmer Ford allows volunteers to use F-150 pick-up truck for trip

By Brian Cox
Herald Newspapers

Twelve-year-old Jake Enos had seen footage on television of the destruction caused by Hurricane Katrina, but it was only when he traveled with his father, John, down to the Gulf Coast of Alabama, as part of a relief convoy, that he realized the full scope of the disaster.

"It was much worse than what was shown on TV," Jake said. "There's so much destruction. It's just hard to imagine. It was kind of unnerving."

The young relief worker spent a week in Bayou LaBatre, Ala., with his father and five other members of Keystone Community Church in Saline helping to distribute pallets of food, water and other supplies to hurricane victims through World Hope International.

The Enoses drove down with supplies collected by church members in a Ford F-150 truck donated by Palmer Ford in Chelsea.

"I asked if we could borrow a truck and (Palmer Ford) didn't even have to think twice about it," John said.

The father and son knew they were approaching areas affected by the hurricane when they noticed the roadside billboards were just frames. The ads had been blown out.

"As we were driving down to Alabama, I felt very nervous," Jake wrote in a class essay about his experience. "I didn't know what to expect or what I was going to see."

John Enos (left) and his son, Jake, pose for a picture during their trip to Alabama to help with hurricane relief efforts.

Bayou LaBatre, a major commercial fishing and shrimping community nestled along the shores, suffered extensive hurricane damage.

"It looked like a bombed-out war zone," said John, the son of Loretta and Ed Enos of Chelsea. "It was surreal. You could look around and there was no normal life."

Instead of the hubbub of a vibrant port city, stray dogs wandered the streets, picking through mounds of garbage. National Guardsmen patrolled the roads.

Messages such as "Katie is OK" were spray-painted on sides of collapsed buildings and on plywood outside of splintered homes. With the exception of the grind and whir of backhoes picking up garbage and rubble, the city was eerily quiet.

"Citizens had a glazed look in their eyes," John said. "Not only did these people lose their homes, they lost their work. Everything they knew and everything they were comfortable with was gone."

The Enoses were struck by the diversity of the city, which is home to large populations of Vietnamese, Laotians and Cambodians who work in the fishing industry.

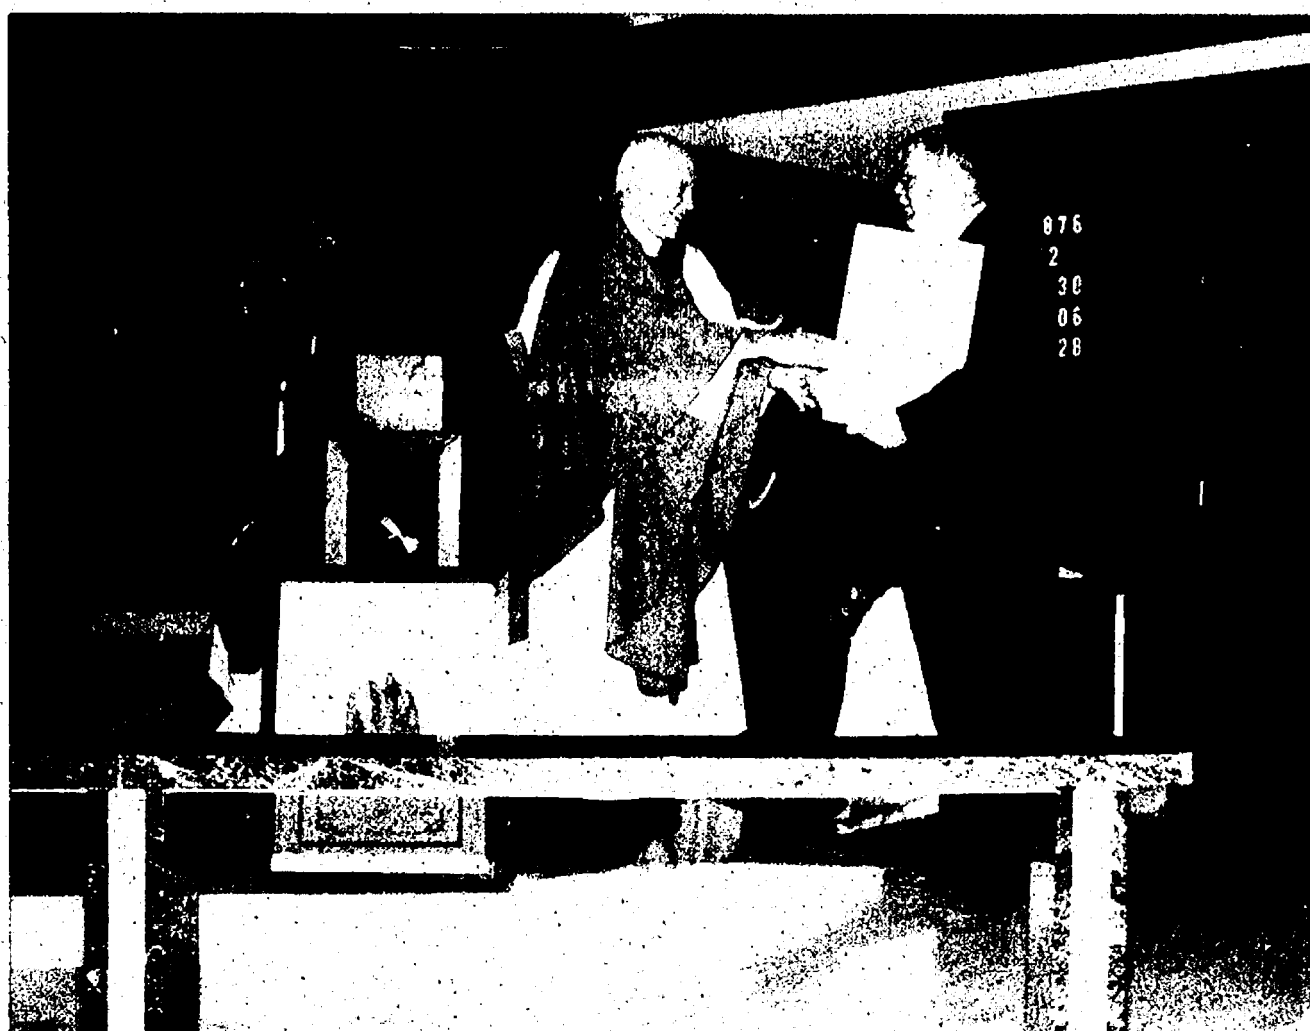

The father and son spent their days unloading semi-trucks in 95-degree weather, packing supply kits, and driving to homes to deliver boxed cereal, canned soup and other supplies.

It was hard work, 12 to 14 hours a day. At night, they curled up in sleeping bags on the sanctuary floor of a church. They woke at 6 a.m. to start work all over again.

"It was tiring and depressing," Jake said. "I felt disconnected from reality."

But the boy carried his load and more.

The 4th Degree O'Hara of Cardinal O'Hara Assembly 0489 also were in attendance to add color, pageantry and dignity to the event, according to a press release from the organization.

During the past fraternal year, Chelsea's Knights membership decided to dedicate the name of their council to Guanella, who was born in northern Italy and lived from 1842 to 1915. He founded the congregation of priests known as the Servants of Charity in 1895, and dedicated his life to caring for the "poorest of the poor," including orphans, disabled children and the disabled elderly.

There are currently 10 Servants of Charity priests from all over the world on the membership roster of the Chelsea Knights of Columbus.

"Our local members felt that it would be a wonderful tribute to name our council after the founder of the Servants of Charity," said Grand Knight Gary Kistka.

Once the council made the decision, approval for the name change was obtained from the state and supreme councils of the Knights of Columbus before the council could move forward with a dedication service.

The council's ceremonies took place last weekend because of another series of events occurring at the same time that brought Minetti and members of the Immaculate Conception Province to Chelsea for an assembly meeting at the St. Louis Center in Sylvan Township.

Thirteen priests from the order have gathered from around the world in Chelsea to assess their past six years of work and plan for the future of their missions in the United States and the Philippines.

The Mass began with a procession of Knights and priests in attendance. Following Turner's homily, Minetti presented Unterbrink with a special papal blessing from Pope Benedict VI.

At the end of services, Unterbrink presented Minetti with an engraved plaque honoring the work of the Servants of Charity throughout the world, and Minetti presented the council with a framed portrait of Guanella.

The Color Corp then led the Knights and their families outside to the Knights of Columbus Memorial Walk, where six of their members were remembered by Turner. Yekulis and Unterbrink.

The Knights who were honored included Gerald Gondek, William Mende and Ellery Rouster, who died in 2003; John Steele Sr. and Robert Pagliarini, who died in 2004; and Herman Koenn, who died in September 2005.

Kids' events set at festival

The annual Chelsea Hometown Holiday has a number of activities lined up for children.

This year, children can eat breakfast with Santa Claus at the Chelsea Comfort Inn and Village Conference Center. The free event will be held from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. Dec. 3.

Pancakes and cereal will be served to children, and coffee and doughnuts will be offered to parents. Santa will pose for photographs and give each child a candy cane.

In addition, Santa will skate with youngsters from 2:45 p.m. to 4:45 p.m. Dec. 3 at the Arctic Coliseum. Open skate is free to the public, but there is a fee for skate rental.

A new event this year will be the Gingerbread House Workshop, which is designed for families with novice builders. The free workshop will be held from noon to 1:30 p.m. Dec. 3 at 320 N. Main St., part of the Chelsea Clocktower Complex of buildings. Space is limited. Reservations may be made by calling the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce at 475-1145.

In addition, a movie will be shown from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. at the Clocktower Complex, 218 N. Main St. Free popcorn will be available.

For more information and a complete schedule of events, call the chamber or check out the Web site www.chelseafestivals.com.

DEXTER TOWNSHIP

Landmark to be recognized

A local landmark will be recognized 1 p.m. Saturday when the Washtenaw County Historic District Commission places a historical marker at Park Lawn Beach in Dexter Township.

The ceremony will take place in front of the Inverness Country Club, 13893 North Territorial Road.

An article published last week incorrectly stated the event was to be held last Saturday.

Recognizing the contributions of early settlers, the Park Lawn Beach marker will commemorate the establishment of North Territorial Road—to direct settlers through the Michigan Territory, John Glenn's arrival in 1833, the organization and building of the First Methodist church, and Mary White's creation of the trading post that eventually became the Inverness Inn.

In addition, Douglas Fraser's arrival in 1918 is noted, along with his development of Park Lawn Beach, the cottages, golf course and country club.

North Lake Cemetery is also recognized as the burial ground for many of the settlers and their families.

The purpose of the county's historical marker program is to designate sites, buildings, structures and objects that are of particular historical, architectural, archeological or cultural significance to residents of Michigan.

The Park Lawn Beach site will house the 53rd marker placed in the county since the program's inception.

Also at the dedication ceremony, longtime North Lake resident Sylvia Gilbert will be recognized for her diligence in highlighting the history of her community and the placement of the marker.

The public is welcome to participate in the celebration.

RELIEF

"I'm so proud of the way he worked," John said of his son. "I was a little nervous to take him down there because there was some concern about looting and disease and other things, but on the other hand it presented an opportunity to really help people out."

As a result of the experience, John said, his son is "a little more mature now and his responsibility level has increased."

"It's not as hard to do as much work around the house now," Jake said.

He said he also realized that "what seems like a little thing to us is a necessity to them."

The boy remembers one man who was ecstatic when they gave him a rake.

Jake is not alone in coming home with a changed perspective.

"I saw how fragile the world we build around us is," John said. "Everything can be blown away in a night."

VILLAGE OF DEXTER PLANNING COMMISSION NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Notice is hereby given that the Dexter Village Planning Commission will hold a public hearing at 7:30 p.m., Monday, December 5, 2005 at the Village of Dexter Senior Center, 7720 Ann Arbor Street, Dexter, Michigan, for the purpose of hearing public comment regarding the following:

The Village of Dexter Planning Commission's review of the 2006-2012 Capital Improvements Plan, a program that projects and coordinates public expenditures for improvements to the transportation and utility systems, municipal facilities, and other improvements over a five-year period.

Information regarding the plan is available for public inspection at the Village Offices, 8123 Main Street, Dexter, weekdays between 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.; or by phone at (734) 428-8303, Ext. 15. Written comments regarding this plan should be submitted to the Village Clerk, and must be received no later than 5:00 p.m., Tuesday, November 29, 2005. Sign language interpreter, or other assistance, is provided upon request to the Clerk, at least 72 hours in advance of the meeting. Minutes of all meetings are available at Village Hall.

Movie to be shown

The Chelsea Film Society will show "Polar Express" 3:30 p.m. Dec. 3 as part of Chelsea's Hometown Holiday celebration.

The Matinee Movie Party will be hosted by McKinley Inc. at the Clocktower Complex, 310 N. Main St.

A holiday classic cartoon will be shown before the featured movie. There will be free popcorn available, and hot dogs and soft drinks will be offered for sale.

McKinley is one of the major sponsors of Hometown Holiday. The company has created a special theater, complete with projection screen, for the event.

"We wanted to do something special for the kids this year and the movie seemed like the perfect idea," McKinley Regional Property Manager John Wyeth said in a press release.
