Sandwich-board sign ordinance turned down

City votes to allow downtown businesses to utilize signs anyway

By Jennifer McArdle
Staff Writer

Downtown businesses in Chelsea can put sandwich-board signs out in front of their businesses, even though the city decided not to approve an ordinance addressing the issue.

After considering the ordinance allowing the use of sandwich boards in the public right-of-way in downtown Chelsea June 13, the Chelsea City Council opted to take a different route. Instead of approving Ordinance 146, which was introduced to the City Council May 23, the council voted to temporarily suspend the enforcement of a portion of the city's existing zoning ordinance that prohibits the use of sandwich boards.

The motion, made by Council Trustee

Silver Maples in Chelsea plans to add 28 new independent living apartments in the coming year to meet a growing need for senior residences. Jerry Wilczynski (left), executive director of Silver Maples, and Tammie McCarron, marketing manager at Silver Maples, look at plans for the 56,000 square foot addition. The Chelsea Planning Commission has approved the preliminary site plan and final site plans have been submitted for review. Construction is expected to begin in September 2006 with an expected completion date in late summer or early fall 2007.

CAFA to ask residents for operating millage

Millage to provide an alternative method of funding fire protection

By Jennifer McArdle
Staff Writer

A proposed millage to pay for operations of the Chelsea Area Fire Authority is expected to provide a fairer means of funding fire protection services in the area, says organizers of the ballot request.

On Aug. 8, voters in the Chelsea Area Fire Authority's district will be asked to decide on a request of up to 2 mills for the next five years.

If approved, funding of the fire department will no longer be on the backs of the city of Chelsea and the townships of Sylvan, Lyndon, Lima, and Dexter, fire officials said.

Each municipality currently pays the Fire Authority a percentage of the operating costs based on the amount of fire service utilized in each municipality. Based on a five-year average, if a township has a number of large fires, its cost for fire service would go up compared to a period of time with fewer fires.

That method of funding has made it difficult for the city and townships to plan their budgets each year, as the amount each municipality contributes changes from year to year.

For the fiscal year 2006-07, the city of Chelsea is expected to contribute 34.71 percent of the Fire Authority's operating budget, approximately $345,000, which is paid for by residents through the city's millage.

Sylvan Township has the second highest contribution at 24.7 percent, or $245,559.13, and contributes that amount out of its general fund.

The third largest contributor is Lyndon Township at 17.18 percent, or $170,816.15, which is paid for by residents through a special assessment for fire service.

Lima Township is expected to contribute 15.76 percent this year, or $156,709.49, and Dexter Township will pay 7.64 percent, or $75,921.30. Both Lima and Dexter townships have been paying for fire service out of their general funds. Lima Township, however, recently implemented a special assessment for fire services, as well.

The proposed millage would shift the burden of paying for fire service from the municipalities to resi-

Senior home to expand

Silver Maples to add 28 new independent living apartments

By Jennifer McArdle
Staff Writer

As more and more seniors retire in the Chelsea area, one local retirement home is expanding its facilities.

Silver Maples in Chelsea plans to add 28 new independent-living apartments in the coming year to meet a growing need for senior residences.

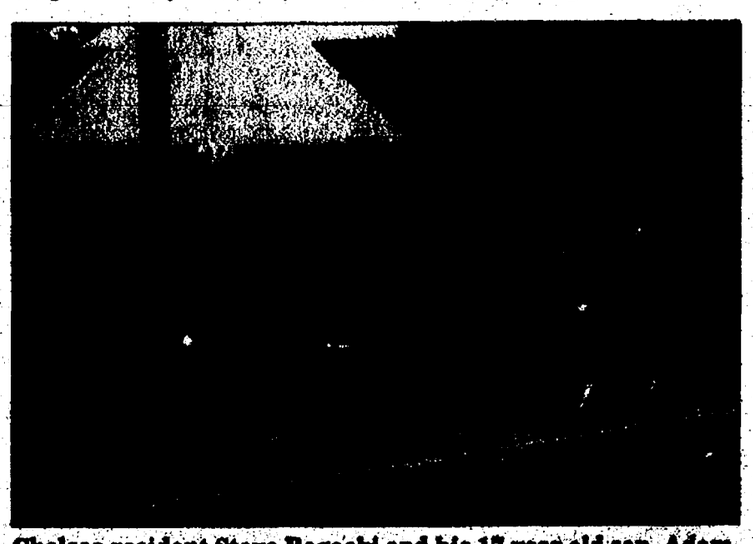

"We have a pretty healthy waitlist for two-bedroom apartments," said Jerry Wilczynski, executive director of Silver Maples. "Everybody seems to want more space."

To satisfy those needs, the facility is adding two-bedroom units that are larger in size than the 49 existing independent-living apartments, 26 of which are two-bedroom apartments ranging in size up to 1,040 square feet. With the expansion, the new apartments will range in size from 1,040 square feet to 1,300 square feet, with five different layout plans.

"We have a tremendous waitlist for two-bedroom apartments. Some of the folks have been on there so long I started losing them. So, we really need two-bedroom apartments," said Tammie McCarron, marketing manager at Silver Maples.

Approximately 56,000 square feet of space will be added to the existing facilities at Silver Maples, which has served the Chelsea area since 1997.

Bike tour to make a stop in Chelsea

Local residents among the 700 bicyclists touring Michigan

By Jennifer McArdle
Staff Writer

Approximately 700 bicyclists are expected to make the approximately 270-mile ride from South Haven to Luna Pier in the 25th annual Pedal Across Lower Michigan (PALM) bicycle tour starting this weekend.

Chelsea resident Steve Rogacki and his 17-year-old son, Adam, will be among those leaving the shores of Lake Michigan and making their way along the scenic route toward Lake Erie.

Nightly stops are planned in Plainwell, Battle Creek, Leslie, Chelsea, and Dundee during the six-day ride ending June 30.

Riders should be arriving in Chelsea Wednesday, where they are expected to camp overnight on the grounds of Chelsea High School.

For the elder Rogacki, PALM rides have become a tradition. He started riding in the bicycle tour more than a dozen years ago and has eight or nine rides under his belt. He only has one way of knowing for sure how many years he has ridden in the tour.

"Usually I just look at how many shirts I have in the closet," he said, referring to the T-shirts that all participants receive.

The PALM ride takes its name from Michigan's Lower Peninsula and focuses on promoting healthy lifestyles and increasing awareness of the fun of bicycling. Its slow, relaxed pace makes it ideal for families.

But Rogacki didn't know that his first year, when he rode alone because he wasn't sure how competitive or experienced the other riders would be.

"I had no idea what it would be like," he said. "I was amazed at how many eld-

Great Lakes Institute of Manual Therapy

"Providing Hands-On Physical Therapy"

A hands-on approach to physical therapy is what sets Great Lakes Institute of Manual Therapy apart from the rest.

Manual Therapy, a hands-on approach to assessment and treatment of physical conditions that affect muscles, joints, nerves and fascia, includes specific techniques such as joint mobilization, myofascial release and stretching.

The Institute is experiencing a huge growth spurt. Starting with one office on State Street just a year and a half ago, the business mushroomed in May 2005 to include a Clark Road office near St. Joseph Mercy Hospital. They will soon open a third office on the west side of Ann Arbor.

"We will encompass the entire Ann Arbor area, with a central location, an east and a west side office," said Jeff Garbacz, who will run the new Scio Township location at 203 S. Zeeb Road. "We're really excited about this brand-new building; we'll be just the third occupant of the building."

Garbacz, a master level clinician and Certified Integrated Manual Therapist who also holds a doctorate in Physical Therapy from the University of Michigan, will be the only staff member at the new office until the clientele grows — which, if present trends are any indication, will not be long.

That could be because Great Lakes Institute's unique approach includes "outrageous" customer service in a spa-like atmosphere.

"The environment of our clinics is important," Garbacz says. "Often, the patient arrives with a certain degree of pain and possibly apprehension about their visit. So we're shooting for the spa feeling in our décor, because we believe that helps their mental state and influences their physical state."

Garbacz, who previously ran a clinic in Livonia before joining Great Lakes Institute at its inception in January 2005, says his DPT degree is more advanced than most physical therapists have, although it is becoming more of the norm. In addition to his clinical work, he also teaches continuing education courses across the United States and is currently the primary instructor for courses in Comprehensive treatment of the knee and shoulder.

Great Lakes Institute's unique approach includes "outrageous" customer service in a spa-like atmosphere

"Most of our patients have spinal dysfunction," he says. "I treat a lot of back and neck patients, but my specialties are shoulders and knees; that's the niche I'll bring to our newest facility."

Garbacz considers himself a knee and shoulder expert and his heavy focus on manual techniques will be the specialty at the new Scio Township facility. His three years of teaching experience with Great Lakes Seminars gives him an opportunity to share his techniques with other therapists, reaching as many as 1,000 students in 15-16 seminars each year all over the US.

Each patient at Great Lakes Institute is thoroughly evaluated by a highly trained Manual Physical Therapist who then designs a specific treatment program consisting of hands-on treatment and exercise that is designed to meet their individual needs, focusing on fixing problems rather than merely treating symptoms. The company's mission statement is to "set the standard of Physical Therapy excellence through unparalleled patient care and customer service."

"We're different from run of the mill physical therapy," Garbacz says. "We set ourselves apart by the high quality of care we provide. We really take one-on-one time with our patients. They get a good 30-45 minutes, giving us plenty of time for the hands-on treatment.

"A lot of providers pay lip service to manual therapy, but most do not do it to the degree that we do."

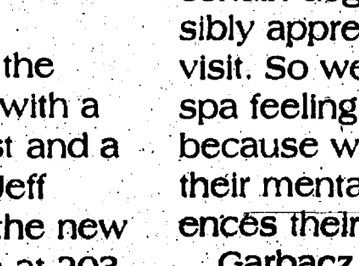

Garbacz, who received his B.A. in sports science from Albion College, has worked with athletes at the collegiate and professional level, and has found his holistic treatment approach to be very effective in helping his patients return to a more functional way of life. He is married with one son named Bryce Alexander, and the couple is expecting the birth of their second child in early July.

The Zeeb Road clinic is expected to open at 203 S. Zeeb Road, Suite 205 in mid-July and will continue to accept physician referrals from doctors throughout the Ann Arbor area with the addition of Dexter and Chelsea-based physicians as well.

Twelve students graduated June 7 from Chelsea Alternative High School, marking the end for the school, which has closed its doors.

A farewell party was held at the Comfort Inn Conference Center in Chelsea.

"This program has helped kids make it to graduation. It has been more suitable to their learning styles," said Alternative High School Director Patrick Little, who also serves as an assistant principal at Chelsea High School.

Alumnus Andrew Herrst served as the emcee at the graduation banquet.

Allyson Boyd, Gareth Courtney, Amber Marriott, Tera McCormick, Stephen Miller, Samantha Morseau, Tara Murillo, Victoria Overpeck, Rebecca Russell, Kayla Schlanderer, Nataya Steers and Robert Tompkins received their diplomas.

Overpeck and Schlanderer gave a joint senior address, sharing the laughter of trial, error and growth that each student achieved. They described the school as a big family, and shared quirks that each student had and what made each of them different.

Schlanderer said she is thrilled to have graduated.

"I feel so awesome," she said. "I am so happy that I got to graduate with a lot of people that I grew up with. I am really disappointed that this program will not continue. I would not have graduated without it."

Schlanderer said the school gave students who learn differently a future and all of them will get better jobs as a result. She will continue her studies online through Vincent University and hopes to be a wildlife or an exotic animal rehabilitation specialist.

"It's sad. What will happen to the kids that don't have the extra help?" she said. "What will happen to their future?

"The teachers found a way to help me so I could graduate. There was a smaller teacher-to-kid ratio and it was a more relaxed environment, where kids did not have to work under so much pressure."

Karen Schlanderer is extremely proud of her daughter. She appreciated the smaller class sizes, and the closeness each student felt toward one another.

"She would not have achieved her goals in the normal school system," Karen Schlanderer said of her daughter. "She has some learning disabilities. It's tremendously upsetting that the school will not be around. I have another child who would have excelled in the environment, and now he won't get the opportunity."

Friends and family members shared memories of each graduate before handing out plaques and diplomas.

Steers received a scholarship from the Chelsea Rotary Club. She will use it to pursue a nursing career.

Murillo received the Strive Award for raising her grade point average.

McCormick was presented her diploma, which was awarded by her grandmother, Margie Miller. In addition, Miller read a letter from McCormick's brother, who could not attend: "I'm Cpl. Shawn McCormick. I'm her big brother, serving in Iraq. I'm proud of what she has done, and I salute the staff and teachers that made it possible for her to graduate."

The last student to accept a diploma was Robert Tompkins, who was proud to have finished the program.

"It feels good to graduate," he said. "I will go on to Washtenaw Community College and take the basic classes. I hope to go into computers or science."

Little said the evening went well.

"Everyone who came here tonight said goodbye and bid them off into the rest of their lives," he said. "There was a lot of love and laughter here tonight."

High school hosts educational day

Chelsea High School hosted Reproductive Health Day May 31.

"The goal of the day was to provide students with a dynamic set of speakers that would present a variety of information so students could make better, healthy choices. All 10th grade students spent the morning rotating between four speakers," said Pat Little, assistant principal at Chelsea High School.

Several students were instrumental in coordinating the event.

"They were the impetus behind the day, and really shaped the experience for their peers," Little said.

He noted that Sara Myers, Cassie Coffman and Kara Cremer also wrote a letter in support of the Reproductive Health Day that helped secure a grant from the Chelsea Community Foundation.

The Reproductive Health Day was also underwritten by the Chelsea Kiwanis Club, which was the primary sponsor of the event.

Chelsea High School's student council also supported the day by providing a snack break in the morning.

Leading one seminar was Mary Lou Hanns Setta, youth director at St. Mary Catholic Church, who facilitated an activity called "Dating is relating not mating." Following the seminar, a survey of students showed that it was the most popular activity of the morning, Little said.

"Mary Lou took them though 'speed dating' as a way to promote health, safe dating ideas that students can do here in Chelsea," he said.

Another speaker during Reproductive Health Day was Dr. Scott Moore, a local pediatrician. Dr. Moore spoke about a variety of topics including Human papillomavirus (HPV). He also spent significant time with the students covering nutritional information to add to their thoughts on making healthy choices.

The third speaker was local attorney Pat Conlin, who spoke on family law issues including teen pregnancy, child support and custody. Additionally, he discussed age of consent issues and sexual misconduct laws.

"Many students enjoyed this seminar because Mr. Conlin used case studies to explain the laws. They really got into some of his scenarios," Little said.

The fourth speaker was Nicole Mathews-Creech from LACASA, a women's shelter, in Howell. She spoke to students about healthy relationship habit and how to recognize unhealthy patterns in relationships. She also discussed how a the role that a women's shelter plays in protecting people from physical or emotional abuse.

In the afternoon, all sophomores and juniors attended an hour-long assembly with Pam Stenzal. She spoke on the topic of healthy choices when it comes to sexuality, offering statistics about sexually transmitted diseases. Stenzal also told some gripping stories about people she has known and how their choice to have sex has damaged their lives.

Frank Hammer and supported by Trustee Jamie Bollinger, passed 6-1, with Trustee Joe Merkel opposed.

It's the same route the City Council took last summer in an effort to help out downtown businesses that are struggling to draw customers into their storefronts.

By this summer, the council was hoping to have a new ordinance in place addressing the issue. A subcommittee of the Retail Advisory Council had been meeting for several months regarding sandwich-board signs downtown and in other commercial areas throughout Chelsea. Some members of the City Council feel the committee dropped the ball last fall and winter, as progress toward creating the ordinance slowed.

Bollinger is hoping the committee, along with the City Planning Commission, will resolve issues in the proposed sandwich-board ordinance and present it again next spring.

"I would hope that this would give enough time between now and next spring that this could be finalized," he said.

Several concerns addressed by city staff regarding the proposed ordinance included whether allowing the signs in the public right-of-way was even possible.

The proposed ordinance was drafted to allow the signs in the public right-of-way to keep the signs out of the domain of the city's zoning ordinance, which places restrictions on private properties.

Planning and Zoning Administrator Jim Drolett sought comments on the issue of sandwich-board signs in the right-of-way from the Michigan Department of Transportation and the Washtenaw County Road Commission. He reported to the City Council last week that MDOT does not permit any advertising signs in the right-of-way.

Businesses could also run into problems with the County Road Commission by placing the signs in the right-of-way on roads that are maintained by the county, he said.

Both Drolett and Chelsea City Manager Michael Steklac have noted that allowing the signs to be used in public common areas in shopping malls, as suggested in the proposed ordinance, would subject the sign to the zoning ordinance, as those areas are located on private property.

While some business owners have been eagerly awaiting the chance to put the signs on the sidewalks, there may be mixed feelings about the sandwich boards among business owners.

Merkel said he polled several businesses on his own and found that five of six downtown business owners that he spoke to were not in favor or sandwich-board signs.

"The older businesses, maybe they're more established, but they did not want to see the sandwich-board signs," Merkel said.

The business owners he polled preferred the use of perpendicular signs, he said.

Chris Rode, chairman of the Chelsea Planning Commission, told the City Council last week that it is a bad idea to suspend enforcement of the portion of the zoning ordinance that prohibits the use of sandwich boards.

"I just think it's bad practice to just stop enforcing an ordinance," he said.

The issue of creating an ordinance allowing sandwich boards is expected to go to the Planning Commission for further review.

Silver Maples retained A3C Collaborative Architecture to design the new facility. Silver Maples staff and a resident project advisory committee have been working with the architecture firm on the design, providing practical, functional and aesthetic design recommendations to be incorporated into the final plans.

Essentially, the existing entrance to Silver Maples' independent-living apartments will be extended to include a new entry and lobby, with two new three-story wings on either side.

The new apartments, which also feature two baths, are being designed with solid surface countertops, upgraded cabinetry, and energy-efficient appliances. Many of the apartments will also have fireplaces and each will have a patio or deck for outdoor access.

Also included in the plans is a new multi-purpose room in one of the wings. Currently, Silver Maples uses a dining room for a number of special events and gatherings, but the multi-purpose room, which is twice the size of the dining room, will offer a dedicated space for such events.

"We're trying to be more efficient and present more appropriate space for events," Wilczynski said.

Other features planned include extensions of residents' common spaces. The library will be doubled in size and the exercise room will be moved into one of the new wings, offering a more spacious area for residents to get in shape.

"We started out by surveying our residents to find out what features they feel Silver Maples lacks. Some of the things that they said were a game room, that we didn't have a space like that," Wilczynski said.

Those concerns were taken into consideration during the design of the addition, and several recreational areas are planned including a wood working shop inside the facility, along with a game room, a new private dining room and a casual café.

The Chelsea Planning Commission has approved the preliminary site plan and final site plans have been submitted for review.

Construction is expected to begin in September 2006, with an expected completion date in late summer or early fall 2007.

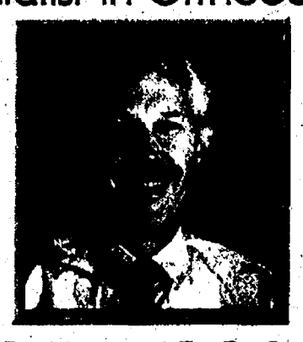

The Christman Co. is serving as the project's construction manager.

Benchmark of Great Lakes

"Making your dreams a reality"

Cash in on Benchmark's Owner/Builder Sale and Save $10,000 on your new Benchmark home with this article!

"Simply a Better Way to Build for Under $90 per Square Foot"

There's "simply a better way to build" when it comes to building your dream home and Benchmark of the Great Lakes is the answer!

Benchmark has been in the Industrialized Housing business since 1969, and was one of the first companies to build system-built homes in the Midwest.

As a manufacturer who has exclusively built system-built homes for nearly 35 years, we know what it takes to create a successful partnership with builders and developers, who want the advantages of speed and simplicity, but require higher curb appeal and the ability to market in subdivisions.

This Ohio-based company has built more than 30,000 single-family dwellings in the Midwest and has developed 15 multi-family communities.

Builders can utilize Benchmark's building system to compete with site-built housing in a subdivision as well as scattered lots.

The company's cutting edge technology in construction, exterior design, interior finishes and curb appeal make Benchmark homes indistinguishable from traditionally "stick-built" homes.

All Benchmark homes are constructed in a 90,000 square foot production facility in Brookville, Ohio where it has been in business since 1946.

The facility, workforce and product design is state-of-art. The factory has the capacity of producing up to 400 homes per year.

It is equipped with such improvements as overhead bridge cranes, air and electrical systems, scaffolds and a track system to build homes on an efficient and automated manner.

Benchmark also builds all its roof and floor trusses in house, which provides higher quality and a lower cost.

The company has been building two-story homes for more than 35 years and has mastered the design and execution of these products in the factory and the field. There are more than 50 plans to choose from.

Benchmark's traditional single-family series of ranch and two-story homes range in size from 1400 to 3600 sq. ft. These homes are designed for subdivision lots with front-loading garages or scattered lots with side loading garages.

New homeowners can rest assure their new abode meets inspection, since every Benchmark home receives state-certified inspection before ever leaving the factory.

Each home includes a panelized garage and porch. All of the internal mechanical systems are installed in the factory and reconnected in the field including forced air heating, reducing field time and cost.

The products offer many upscale features including open entries, 9-foot ceilings, laminate and ceramic flooring, 42-inch cabinets, wide profile trim, and attractive elevations with multiple gables.

Standard features include granite counter tops in kitchen and baths, fireplace, hard wood floors, custom cabinetry, floor trusses, lever hardware, designer trim, designer shingles, 90+ furnace and air conditioning, French doors, 9 ft. walls (1900+sq. ft.), bigger energy-efficient windows, and Kohler and Moen brand products.

Most of Benchmark's homes are custom built and the price is determined by the specifications and the work to be done on site. From start to finish, your dream home can be constructed in just 12 weeks!

Benchmark products can be delivered from the construction facility and have 90 percent of its construction complete in three days on site.

The company offers a turn key operation for your entire job, or you can be your own general contractor.

Some homeowners opt to do the later because the home is 85 to 90 percent complete once Benchmark's craftsmen leave the site.

All Benchmark homes are built to the Energy Star Standard, which has been certified to provide economic benefits.

Energy Star Homes qualify for Energy Efficient Mortgage loans. Which means savings from lower energy costs allows homeowners to purchase a larger dream home or add more options.

Besides lower maintenance costs and higher resale and equity potential, Energy Star qualified homes are independently verified to be at LEAST 30 percent more energy efficient than your standard "stick-built" on-site homes. These savings are based on heating, cooling, and hot water energy use.

Energy Star comfort benefits mean no drafts around windows, doors and electrical receptacles, warm walls and floors, balanced room temperatures and less noise from outside.

The advantage to owning a Benchmark home is a factory completed product instead of a time-consuming building service.

Best of all, Benchmark will work with you to determine the services that will best suit your needs, then offer a quotation accordingly, as well as a great financing package.

Mortgage lending institutions treat a Benchmark home the same way they treat a traditional site-built home and offer the same mortgage options.

With fast and easy setup, you'll bask in the benefits of owning your new Benchmark home faster than you ever dreamed possible.

Why not take a look for yourself and see what's fresh from the factory!

MILLAGE

dents in the Fire Authority service area, leveling out the financial burden.

"If the millage passes, it will change the way it's funded starting next March 1 because the fiscal year is from March 1, 2007, through Feb. 28, 2008," said Gary Adams, a former Fire Authority board member who recently stepped down from the position and is now actively promoting the millage request.

"Essentially, each person is going to be paying on the taxable value (of their property)," Mary Ann Noah, Lyndon Township supervisor and Fire Authority board member, said. "Once we have a millage in place for operations, then the units of government have no financial responsibility whatsoever to CAFA."

Residents who currently pay a special assessment for fire services in their townships don't have to worry about paying for it twice. Once the millage passes, Noah said, special assessments in the township's will cease.

In Chelsea, the city's millage would be reduced, as well. The city currently passes the roughly $345,000 cost of fire service along to residents as part of the city's overall millage levy, but if the millage is approved, the city would no longer have that expense.

"That number is coming out of their budget, so effectively their millage is going down by a comparable amount to what our millage will go up," Adams said.

A resident who owns a home with a taxable value of $100,000 could expect to pay up to $200 a year for fire service under the proposed millage.

But the actual amount of the proposed millage will not be known until later this summer, when final figures are known regarding the taxable value of properties within the CAFA service area. The amount of the millage needs to be submitted to Washtenaw County by the end of September.

"At the very latest, it would be toward the end of September, but we intend to get that done sooner," Noah said.

A portion of the millage will go to the Downtown Development Authority, which by law collects the tax increment for parcels located in the DDA area.

Adams said that amount totals about 1.4 percent of the tax that would be collected in the entire fire service area. For example, if the full 2 mills were levied with an estimated $1.43 million collected, the amount going to the DDA would be approximately $18,000, Adams said.

"It's a small amount compared to the whole budget," he said, adding that the Fire Authority is working with the DDA to see if there is any way of recapturing that amount.

"It's possible that there's a project they might help us out on," he said.

With the new millage, Fire Chief James Payeur said, residents who live within the Fire Authority's service area will not be charged for fire, emergency or medical runs.

Currently, the municipalities have the option to pass the cost of fire and emergency runs, such as auto crashes, along to those who received the service. Payeur said residents who get in a car crash and receive emergency response from the fire department will not be charged for the run once the millage is passed because the residents will have already paid for that service under the tax levy.

For more information about the millage, contact Gary Adams at 475-1891.

erly people were riding it."

The 49-year-old electrical engineer rode his bicycle to work in Ann Arbor last week to prepare himself for the ride, but the reality is that with riders traveling between 30 and 60 miles per day, it's not as challenging as it may sound.

"It's not that hard because you have all day to do it," he said. "Usually there's a point in the middle of the ride when you say, 'Why am I doing this?' but it's worth it."

After getting his first taste of what the ride is like, Rogacki decided on future rides to include his son, who was around 5 years old at the time and had to be pulled behind the bicycle in a buggy.

As his son got too big for the buggy, Rogacki stopped riding in the PALM tour for several years because the boy was still too young to ride on his own. Later, the pair started riding tandem and for the last few years his son has ridden the tour on his own.

"It's a sense of accomplishment, especially for a kid. It's also something that we can do together," Rogacki said.

The tour has also become an annual history and geography lesson, taking riders through interesting cities and small towns they might otherwise never visit. Each year the tour follows a new route, taking participants through different cities along the way. The tour follows primarily along rural, paved, backroads, avoiding most urban areas.

Shawn Lewis-Lakin and his daughters, 15-year-old Abby and 13-year-old Kate, rode in the PALM tour last year, along with his father, Donald Lakin. The eldest family member had back surgery earlier this month and won't be riding this year but is already looking forward to next year's ride.

For Lewis-Lakin, bicycling is definitely a family affair.

"My sister, and various combinations of her family, did the Michigander Bicycle tour with my father for many years. Two years ago, Abby and I joined my sister and father for a portion of the Michigander. That was the same year that the PALM rode through Chelsea, which inspired me to get more information about the PALM," Lewis-Lakin said. "Last summer, my sister's children had summer jobs and other commitments, so someone needed to do a bicycle tour with grandpa. Abby, Kate, and I picked up the family tradition, and rode in the PALM with him."

Shawn, Abby and Kate will be joined on the ride this year by Shawn's sister, Candy Lakin of Cadillac.

The three local residents have been training for the ride since May.

"We have a favorite ride — from town out around Cavanaugh Lake — that we do two or three times a week," Lewis-Lakin said. "We are looking forward to the ride. There is a great sense of community among participants on the ride. We also very much enjoy exploring and experiencing the towns and villages that we ride through on the tour."

They are looking forward to stopping in Chelsea mid-way through the ride, maybe because it will give them a chance to sleep in their own beds for the night instead of in a tent — or maybe because they'll be able to play host to the hundreds of other riders in the bicycle tour.

The Chelsea House Orchestra will be entertaining PALM participants on Wednesday evening following the bicyclists' arrival in Chelsea.

"It will be fun for us all to be both PALM participants and host town citizens. We are proud of Chelsea, our schools, and CHO, and are excited about showcasing them to the nearly 1,000 persons with whom we are pedaling across lower Michigan," Lewis-Lakin said.

While many riders participate as a family, bringing children as young as 2 years old, more experienced riders can opt to bicycle longer, more challenging routes during the weeklong tour.

Township panics over misleading sign

Advertisement on township corner results in concern

By Sandi Kasha
Staff Writer

Residents have a right to be concerned over a sign advertising a strip mall to be built at the southwest corner of North Territorial and Dexter-Pinckney roads, says Dexter Township Supervisor Pat Kelly.

The sign reads "New Retail Plaza Coming Soon."

But Kelly wants to assure residents they shouldn't worry just yet. No official plans have been submitted to the township for a strip mall at the corner, which is known to many as the "Four Corners."

"I can understand their concern," Kelly said. "The sign has been approved, but that's it. There are no plans for a strip mall."

Kelly said the township can't control the sign's content, but has a say in what's built at the corner, which is zoned for commercial use.

Two years ago, the township won a court appeal involving landowner and developer Nabil Salamey, who wanted to turn the 12 acres into a gas station, Kelly said.

The gas station is a sore subject for many local residents after it turned into a four-year court battle, with the township paying $65,000 in court fees. At the time, residents were concerned a gas station and car wash wouldn't be environmentally safe in the neighborhood.

Kelly said the developer seemed to have disappeared after the court battle, but recently reappeared seeking a sign permit. The township authorized the permit, but has some issues related to its placement.

"The sign is in the wrong spot," Kelly said. "It's too close to the road and needs to be moved back. We are working to correct that."

Kelly said an ideal development for that location would blend retail and residential structures.

"The township has passed a planned unit development ordinance, which allows us the flexibility to allow mixed uses," she said. "We want to make sure that any future structure would blend with the landscape and fit into the township's character."

Town hall meeting a success

Additional meetings to be held to promote open communications

By Jennifer McArdle
Staff Writer

With the intent to open communications between the city and its residents, the Chelsea City Council hosted a town hall meeting June 8, the first of a series of town hall meetings to be held throughout the year.

The meetings, held at the Washington Street Education Center, offer a forum for city residents to address the council on a variety of items in an informal setting.

"It gives residents a chance to ask questions and get answers," said Ann Feeney, Mayor of Chelsea.

"I've been trying to get them arranged for a while — since I became mayor," she said. "I just think town hall meetings as a general rule, and not just for Chelsea, are a good way to keep communications open."

At the first meeting, the city council gave a presentation on zoning and planning procedures in the city. But only five residents attended the one-and-a-half-hour-long meeting, Feeney said.

In spite of the low attendance, Chelsea City Manager Michael Steklac said the meeting included a good exchange of information.

"I think it went pretty well for our first meeting," he said.

Feeney is hoping more residents will take advantage of the opportunity to learn more about issues in the city by attending future town hall meetings. The next meeting is expected to be held later this summer.

Manufacturing in the U.S. too expensive

In response to a letter to the editor last week ("Teddy Bears should be made in the USA") about the Chelsea Teddy Bear Co., please let me explain what we do in Chelsea.

There is only one company that we know of that still manufactures teddy bears in the United States, and they sell for about $70, or closer to $100 with an outfit. Unfortunately, that is more than most people can afford to pay for a teddy bear, and that's why we have our bears cut and sewn at offshore facilities.

We invite readers to come by for a factory tour 11 a.m., 1 p.m. or 3 p.m. any Saturday to see all the other fun stuff that does take place at our Chelsea facility.

What you'll be able to see is the warehousing, picking, decoration, assembly and shipping areas of our production process. All of our teddy bears are designed in Chelsea, and all of our teddy bears are sold wearing little custom decorated outfits.

The U.S. Navy is our biggest customer, and we ship teddy bears dressed in little military outfits to military bases around the world. We also sell bears to about 1,800 college bookstores across the United States wearing little outfits with college names imprinted on them.

At any given time, we'll have approximately 100,000 teddy bears and 300,000 outfits in stock. After we decorate the outfit with a college or military name, it goes to our assembly department, where we employ several people just to dress teddy bears all day.

After the bear is dressed, it begins a journey around the world two more times. We'll ship that bear from Chelsea to a military base somewhere like Germany or Kuwait, where a soldier will buy it in the military base store, and ship it back around the world again to a child in Alabama or Mississippi. Our bears are well traveled.

Governor Granholm may be losing support

TIM SKUBICK

This will curdle the cream in the coffee at the executive residence.

Challenger Dick DeVos, Republican candidate for governor, may be sitting down with the Michigan Education Association, which is the state's largest teachers' union, and is slated to meet with former Gov. Bill Milliken, a well-known moderate Republican.

The MEA, of course, was the first major labor union to embrace then-candidate for governor Jennifer Granholm three years ago, and ex-governor Milliken has been a fan of Granholm ever since she took office.

So what are these two pro-Granholm entities doing playing footsie with her challenger?

The teachers' union has sent out feelers to the DeVos campaign to set up a face-to-face with the union's new president.

No date has been set, but after getting over its initial "political concerns" that maybe this was a setup, the DeVos camp reportedly has sent signals that it's willing to meet. However, the chances of an MEA endorsement are far-fetched.

DeVos knows there are some serious differences between his campaign and the union, but he'll pledge not to cut school funding and promise not to revisit school vouchers or state aid to private schools, which the union opposes. He's eager to find some common ground.

"DeVos knows there are some serious differences between his campaign and the union, but he'll pledge not to cut school funding and promise not to revisit school vouchers or state aid to private schools, which the union opposes. He's eager to find some common ground."
Tim Skubick
Host of "Off the Record"

An MEA source contends overtures to DeVos are not "a slap at the governor." But in a town where appearances are everything, it may not be a slap, but it's no smack on the lips either.

The Granholm-MEA relationship has had its moments. The giant union had to lean hard on the governor to address 12,000 teacher- demonstrators demanding a guaranteed funding stream for schools.

The governor did appear at the Lansing rally, but didn't bother to tell the group she opposed their demands.

There also have been some words over the new high school curriculum; the failure of the governor to sign a repeal of the Single Business Tax, which the union urged; and her inner political circle until recently had turned a deaf ear on union strategists trying to help her send DeVos back to Grand Rapids.

In fact, it was so bad that when the MEA went to its education support personnel to sign Granholm nominating petitions, they balked big-time.

Having said that, the MEA endorsement folks huddled with the governor recently, and she was slated to attend a $500-a-couple fund-raiser at the home of the former union president.

But the union still sees some benefit in talking with DeVos.

What happens if he wins? The union will have to work with him. One-third of the union membership is Republican. So it's Practical Politics 101 for both sides — at the governor's expense.

Now to former Gov. Milliken, who confirms he will meet with DeVos in a few weeks. Milliken says he doesn't know what DeVos stands for, but he's hankering to find out.

Milliken wants to hear reassuring statements from DeVos on the environment, public education and helping the beleaguered folks in Detroit.

During a statewide public TV interview slated for yesterday, Milliken said he was undecided in the governor's contest and may decide to sit it out. But for now, he wants specifics from both contenders on how they would replace $2 billion if the Single Business Tax is scuttled.

He'd better not hold his breath.

Don't legislate healthy eating

The food police are on patrol once more, this time trying to convince restaurants to spend even more money to force Americans to eat healthier.

Dr. Arthur Hoyte, a retired physician from Maryland, and the Center for Science in the Public Interest, have asked a judge to order Kentucky Fried Chicken to stop using trans-fats in food preparation, or to ensure customers know about the trans-fat content of its products.

The doctor and the center are asking the courts to allow Hoyte to represent anyone who ate at a Washington, D.C., KFC in a class action lawsuit against the chain. They want $78,000 in damages for every person who ate at the restaurant in 2004 and 2005.

Hoyte told the Associated Press he is suing KFC "for my son and others' kids, so they may have a healthier, happier, trans-fat free future."

Presumably, the doctor is an educated man. Did he really think he was buying healthy food for his son at a restaurant named Kentucky Fried Chicken?

The food police also struck with a new report this week encouraging restaurants to shift the emphasis of marketing campaigns to low-calorie menu items and reduce portion sizes. Providing more information about calorie and nutrition content, the FDA-funded report claims, will help Americans eat healthier.

The report notes that the cost to calculate calorie content is about $100 per food item. That could cost a small business another $11,500 to $46,000 per year to analyze an entire menu. And menus can change fairly frequently, sometimes daily.

At this point, the government and the FDA are not talking about forcing businesses to incur such expenses. But even if posting such information became mandatory, it just doesn't work.

Plenty of restaurants and fast-food chains have made nutritional information available to consumers for years. And Americans continue to indulge. The FDA report notes that 64 percent of Americans are overweight, including the 30 percent considered obese.

American fast-food mainstay McDonald's has been pushing salads and other so-called healthier alternatives. Yet burgers and fries continue to outsell the mixed greens.

ties on the Mississippi Gulf Coast. The operation costs about $5,000 to $7,000 per day in donated food and supplies. All workers are volunteers and there are no salaries or any administrative fees. All donations go directly to the families in need.

We currently support nearly 500 families per week. The distribution center not only helps those who cannot help themselves, but also acts as a means to bring in and identify those that truly need help.

The need for food is a symptom, not the problem. Through the interview process and casework managers, we are able to assess each family's unmet needs and help them get their life back on track. The casework is an integral part of the operation to ensure that we do not enable families to remain dependent on our services.

About 40,000 families, more than 25 percent of the Mississippi coast's population, live in Federal Emergency Management trailers. As of a month ago, nearly 80,000 residents, which is one-third of our coast population, remain off the coast, as there is no place for them to live.

Economic activity has stagnated, 25 percent of our retail businesses did not survive the storm, tax revenues are unpredictable and unemployment is at 14 percent. That represents a lot of people. The recovery on the Mississippi Gulf Coast is going to take a long time.

In early March, we were told by Lutheran Disaster Response to anticipate the demand for food and supplies to continue for several years. However, the delivery of supplies did not support such a venture, so we began the appeal for help. Since then, we have been blessed with promises of trucks from Georgia, Illinois, Iowa, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, New Jersey, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Virginia and Wisconsin.

Some have already arrived, some are in advanced stages of completion, others are just beginning the process and some are still trying to figure out the whole process.

With your help, and others who will surely volunteer, I am cautiously optimistic that we will successfully meet our needs over the year.

What's so bad about sandwich-board signs?

Have we heard enough about the sandwich-board signs and the downtown merchants?

Why shouldn't they be allowed to use them? Any method to stimulate sales in the area should be utilized.

It's not a safety factor and it's not an aesthetic factor. It's just a simple way of advertising.

If adopting a sandwich-board ordinance is in conflict with the city's zoning ordinance, then we have a problem. Maybe one answer is to keep the Downtown Development Authority out of it. The city should be writing ordinances that are user-friendly and help to grow the area, not hinder it.

I can see the summer shopping season long gone before all this lack of decision making comes to an end.

If sandwich boards aren't allowed for businesses, then why are these types of signs allowed to be used by Realtors, churches or even the farmers' market?

If the City Council or the DDA was so worried about safety and aesthetics, why doesn't City Council get all the cluttered mess of signs that are usually stuck in the ground on the corner of Old US-12 and M-52, where signs overwhelm the area?

Talk about a safety hazard and ugly mess! You can see everything from garage sales to home improvement, to get your diploma, to get new windows, and hoards of other topics. Now there is a real mess.

Or members of the City Council can do what they usually do when they don't feel like making a decision, hire a consulting firm and pay them $8,000 to do their job for them.

As a side note, one way to help downtown get more traffic is if all the retail businesses would get more consistent hours. At any given time, you really don't know who is open or closed on what days.

Good coaching can do great things for athletes

This spring, I had the privilege to follow the Chelsea varsity baseball team as a photographer. The opportunity was enjoyable for me as a photographer, and it was also a great deal of fun for me as a sports fan.

The team had an excellent season, finishing 28-11 and advancing to the state semifinals in Battle Creek. And as much fun as it was to watch the deep playoff run, it was also worthwhile to be able to watch the players and coaches.

The many hours I spent photographing the games, usually from the dugout, let me see the extraordinary experience high school athletics can provide. A bad coaching staff can ruin the experience; my time in the dugout let me see what a good coaching staff can do for high school athletes. Wayne Welton and his staff do their utmost to develop the character of the athletes they coach while they are developing their athletic talent. More than once, Welton spoke to his players of being proud of the jersey and of representing the jersey and the city well. What I saw this year makes me confident in saying that we here in Chelsea have coaches and players of whom we can be proud.

And while the final defeat may hurt for a while, ultimately, I believe the coaches and players should be proud of their season, too. They put themselves in the top four in the state, and that is a significant accomplishment.

Thanks for the ride, guys.

The West Washtenaw Business Association was the first group to participate in the Road Commission's new Adopt-A-County-Road Program. Members who participated in the clean up of a two-mile stretch on Jackson Road in Scio Township on Earth Day were Scott Hedberg (left) of Hedberg Associates, Nancy Hedberg of Hedberg Associates, Susan Moore of McKinley Commercial Brokerage Services, massage therapist DeLynn Carter, Rick Stites of Stites Financial, Joyce Kercher of Chase Bank and Patti Hanks of Habitat for Humanity of Huron Valley.

Police Blotter

Scio Township

Suspicious Incident

A 37-year-old Scio Township woman told police she saw an unknown man walking down the street toward her residence in 6000 block of Jackson Road June 10. She said the man was on his cellphone crying. The man said that he shot his dog and his boy. This prompted the woman to contact the police. Police have yet to identify the man.

Felony Arrest

A 31-year-old Howell man was arrested while working at Creative Solutions Corp. June 22. The man was known to have a felony warrant for his arrest on one count of operating while intoxicated and two counts of driving with a suspended license, according to police records.

Drunken Driving

A 44-year-old Florida man was stopped while traveling in his 2002 Ford truck northbound on Zeeb Road June 15. The vehicle was swerving in between the centerline and the fog line. The driver didn't pull over immediately, prompting police to activate the audible siren. The driver stopped and police noticed his eyes were bloodshot and watery. The officer smelled alcohol, as well.

The driver denied he had any alcohol and was given a series of sobriety tests and failed. The portable Breathalyzer test indicated his blood-alcohol level at 0.18 percent. A level of 0.08 or higher is considered drunk under state law. The man was arrested.

Reckless Driving

Police were called to a car crash on Huron River Drive, east of North Delhi Road, June 8. The 51-year-old Pinckney man was standing outside of his 2006 Dodge truck, which had struck trees and was severely damaged. The man wasn't injured and police smelled alcohol.

The driver admitted to consuming beers and mixed drinks earlier in the day, and blamed his excessive speeding for the crash. His blood-alcohol level was tested at 0.02. A level of 0.08 percent or higher is considered legally drunk under state law. He was taken to his brother's home in Dexter Village.

Larceny from a Vehicle

Police received a complaint from a 37-year-old Scio Township man June 14 whose 2004 Jeep Cherokee was broken into. The man's car was parked in his driveway in the 5000 block of Cedar Ridge Drive. Items that were stolen included a laptop computer, a golf club set and golf shoes. Items stolen totaled $4,665.

Chelsea

Stolen Vehicle

Chelsea Police Department helped in recovering a stolen vehicle June 18 after a 62-year-old Chelsea woman reported that her grandson, a 17-year-old Chelsea boy, had been at her Glazier Road home with a Ford F-150 that she believed to be stolen.

The suspect, who had been receiving treatment for alcohol and drug abuse, apparently checked himself out of a rehabilitation center in Frankenmuth June 14. Three days later, he accompanied his mother to northern Michigan, and then left that same evening after getting in an argument, according to the police report. He turned up at his grandmother's home around 12:30 a.m. June 18 with the truck.

The suspect turned himself in to police around 2 p.m. that day. During an interview with police, the suspect reportedly admitted to stealing the vehicle, which belongs to a Clare man.

Warrant Arrest

While on patrol in the vicinity of Jackson Street and East Street at about 12:15 p.m. June 13, officers from the Chelsea Police Department saw a vehicle with a license plate that appeared to be expired.

During the traffic stop, police discovered the driver, a 24-year-old Canton man, was wanted on two bench warrants.

Larceny

Around 10 p.m. June 14 officers from the Chelsea Police Department were dispatched to the Arctic Coliseum in Chelsea, where a 22-year-old Grass Lake man reported a larceny from one of the locker rooms. The man told police he had seen two suspicious men in the building and provided descriptions of the individuals.

It is believed that the larceny may have occurred between 9 p.m. and 9:15 p.m. while the locker was unlocked.

Among the items stolen from the locker room were three wallets containing credit cards and cash.

Approximately $45 was stolen from Twisters in Chelsea after a customer apparently tricked a cashier out of the money.

At 7:19 p.m. June 16, the suspect purchased a drink at the Main Street business and then started to leave the counter, according to the police report. The man then returned with two $5 bills, two $10 bills and a $20 bill, and asked the cashier to give a $50 bill in exchange. The cashier honored the request and the man started to walk away before turning around again, stating that the cashier had only given him a $5 bill. The cashier took the $5 bill and gave the suspect a $50 bill.

Following the transaction, the cashier and the manager saw a blue sports car leaving the parking lot.

Lima Township

Suspicious Vehicle

A 71-year-old Lima Township man reported a suspicious vehicle near his residence in the 5000 block of Parker Road June 7. The man told Michigan State Police troopers at the Ypsilanti Post that he saw a dark pick-up truck turning around in his driveway and observed a newer looking sign on the side of the truck that said "Detroit Edison."

He described the driver of the vehicle as a blond woman and told police he was concerned the driver may have been casing his home.

Lyndon Township

Stolen Property

A 40-year-old Lyndon Township man reported June 11 that a Waste Management trashcan had been stolen from in front of his residence in the 1300 block of McKinley Road. The 96-gallon

In fact, in 2005, the top three foods consumed by Americans who dined out continued to be hamburgers, french fries and pizza.

Americans are armed with plenty of knowledge about healthful eating habits. The information has been available for decades. And, yet, the nation continues to see increases in obesity, and larger numbers of Americans continue to eat snacks and fast foods they know aren't good for them.

The federal government and the self-appointed food police cannot legislate the eating practices of the American public. Businesses that want to sell their food products, as long as they aren't hiding anything, have every right to cater to the public's demand, free from costly interference by the government.

Businesses that want to take advantage of Americans seeking healthier products can boost sales by promoting the fact that their food doesn't contain such ingredients as trans-fats.

The public will still get the information it needs but without the heavy hand and expense of government mandates.

Sounds and Sights set to begin

The sidewalks in downtown Chelsea are expected to be jam packed again this summer with the return of the Sound and Sights on Thursday Nights free concert series.

Every Thursday night June 29 through Sept. 7, a line up of 10 to 12 music acts, children's entertainers and other attractions will perform at separate staged areas simultaneously in the downtown.

The series is the combined effort of the Sounds and Sights Committee and Chelsea Retail Advisory Council, downtown merchants, Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce and the Chelsea Center for the Arts.

In addition to music performances, there will be a variety of children's attractions and activities, including face painters, jugglers, fire-eaters, magicians and more. Also, guided horse-drawn carriage rides will be offered.

Downtown merchants will extend their hours to accommodate visitors and shoppers. An added feature this year is the new juried, open-air Art Market in the south end Clock Tower Complex parking lot on Main Street.

"We expanded the series last year by adding up to 10 more acts each night, and had a phenomenal response," co-organizer Craig Common, owner of the Common Grill, said in a press statement. "There were big crowds, lots of great music and a great atmosphere.

"This year, we've added an art market and additional performers, including more kids related entertainment. It's a very enjoyable evening for families, couples or folks who just want to hang out."

The musical line up features a broad spectrum of music genre from Celtic, folk, blue grass, jazz, classical and other free forms.

Musicians were selected from a group of more than 75 who auditioned. Several Chelsea-based groups and individuals will perform to give the series local representation.

Some of the more well-known performers include local radio host and performer Matt Watroba, along with a few local favorites such as the Chelsea House Orchestra, and the Royal Garden Trio and their jazz swing ensemble.

"The arts are a big priority in Chelsea," Jennifer Goulet, director of the Chelsea Center for the Arts and one of the series organizers, said. "This will be a wonderful draw for our community with a festival-type atmosphere for the artists to perform in. And, with the addition of the Art Market, we will have visual artists every week displaying and selling their art."

Stage locations will be placed throughout the downtown and on select side street locations. Covered stage areas will be located at key spots on both Main Street and Middle Street.

Kids activities will fill in between the entertainers. The open-air carriage rides will depart from Cranesbill Books on East Middle Street. Local resident and Civil War historian George Till, offers a historical narrative during the ride.

Well-known folk singer, songwriter and radio personality Matt Watroba will make two appearances at this year's Sounds and Sights on Thursday Nights in Chelsea.

"We could have more entertainers performing each night than those we've scheduled," Common said. "We expect that other local performers will show up each week and play for tips, just to be a part of the action. It truly is a festival-type atmosphere."

In case of inclement weather, the performers will move inside to the merchant nearest their performing area. Downtown retail businesses will accommodate the expected additional foot traffic and have committed to stay open late through the extent of the summer series.

"This is a great collaborative effort of our merchants who all volunteer to put this event on each week," said Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce Director and co-organizer Bob Pierce. "The strong support for local music is the inspiration behind this series, and with the efforts of the CCA and local businesses, we're able to show off the talent that's around this area. This will be a wonderful draw for our community and further establishes Chelsea as a center for the arts."

Church to burn mortgage

Two festive worship services, a potluck dinner and an afternoon celebration are planned Sunday as part of a mortgage burning by the First United Methodist Church of Chelsea.

Worship services are set for 8:30 a.m. and 10 a.m., followed by a potluck dinner. The featured speaker at both worship services will be the Rev. Thomas Macaulay, district superintendent of the Ann Arbor District of the First United Methodist Church.

Choral and instrumental music, and a special reprise appearance by the cast of "Godspell" will be part of the program for the gala occasion celebrating the short-term fund-raising effort to pay off the more than $650,000 mortgage.

The "Burn the Mortgage" effort, as it came to be known, was born at the same time the congregation considered cutting $80,000 from the 2006 budget, laying off staff and defaulting on apportionment payments to the Conference of the United Methodist Church.

First presented at the church's town hall meeting Jan. 29 to consider options for meeting the budget deficit, the idea to completely pay off the mortgage caught fire among the 800-member congregation. The mortgage was almost 10 years old.

In less than 12 weeks, a core committee of volunteers formulated and implemented an effort resulting in more than $600,000 pledged, and by June 1, more than $600,000 paid on the outstanding mortgage note.

"The idea seemed to have a momentum of its own and people throughout the church family all contributed in a variety of really special ways. It was a total team effort," said Tom Hubbard, chairman of the Administrative Council.

Anonymous contributions, key supporters and a staging of the musical "Godspell" in the church in May were integral parts of the continuing effort.

The Rev. Joy Barrett, pastor at the church, said the community is welcome to join the celebration.

"The Chelsea community is invited to be a part of this special day of celebration, she said. "We are part of Chelsea and we're asking Chelsea to celebrate with us."

Young honored with award

Sydney Young, a 2006 Chelsea High School graduate, has been selected for the prestigious and highly competitive Exemplary Achievement Award by Westminster College.

The Westminster Scholarship Committee selected nine students to receive the $15,000-per-year scholarship based on exceptional achievement during high school.

The Exemplary Achievement Award recognizes students' achievement in all areas, including community service, leadership, the arts, civic participation, athletics, the sciences and writing.

Young, who intends to major in communications at Westminster College, developed a love for horses and a strong drive to succeed early in her life. She worked for a neighbor in exchange for riding lessons, and purchased her first horse at the age of 10, paying for half of it herself and working with her neighbor to board the animal.

Young was forced to deal with tragedy at a young age, facing the deaths of most of her immediate family by the age of 16. She took on many adult responsibilities, including the care of her diabetic father in the last years of his life.

Despite the hardships, she has had to face, the teen has managed to excel in every aspect of her life. She has worked as an assistant camp counselor and an assistant at an animal hospital. She also has been recognized each year for her academic achievement at the Chelsea High School Teacher Appreciation Luncheon.

Young has been a member of her school's Archery League, the Ski and Snowboard Club, the Spanish Club and the National Honor Society, and has held several seats in the student council, including senior class vice president.

"With all that she has faced, Sydney is stronger and more mature than perhaps any other senior I have ever known, but at the same time she is just a normal American teenager who is looking forward to going off to college," Chelsea High School Principal Ronald Mead said in a prepared statement.

Joel Bauman, vice president of enrollment at Westminster College, said, "It was a privilege to read Sydney's file and to be able to formally recognize such an exceptional student.

"In rewarding exceptional achievement or overcoming adversity, the college seeks to honor students who embody the high value we place on excellence. It was difficult for the committee to choose among so many highly qualified applicants, however I know the students we selected will enrich our community of learners and add vibrancy to our classrooms."

Westminster College, founded in 1875, is a private liberal arts college.

WSU, Oakwood team up

Wayne State University and Oakwood Healthcare Inc. signed an affiliation agreement on June 5 to create an academic and clinical care partnership of national renown. It will encompass new programs in graduate medical education, research and clinical care.

The agreement, which includes the School of Medicine's affiliated faculty physicians, the Wayne State University Physician Group, creates a long-term partnership between both institutions that will result over time in the creation of programs that support enhanced, medical education, research and clinical care.

"This affiliation provides an opportunity for us to expand our educational commitment to our students," said Wayne State University President Irvin Reid. "We are first and foremost an educational institution, and this partnership will help us to broaden training opportunities for the medical professionals of tomorrow.

"It also will enhance our ability to conduct research that will assist in bringing the benefits of nationally significant academic medicine to the clinical needs of the community. Our partnership strengthens the delivery of education, research and patient care which are critical to the future of health care in our region and beyond."

The community will benefit from the enhanced array of specialized medical and surgical services provided by OHI hospitals, its network of physicians and outpatient facilities.

"Both of our institutions have a long history of working with one another to create strong academic partnerships that have improved the quality of health care in southeast Michigan," said Gerald Fitzgerald, president and chief executive officer of OHI. "With this new collaborative effort, our organizations will build the future of health care in this community by creating new models for care delivery, shared resources and joint ventures.

"The result of these efforts will be a teaching, research and clinical care model of national renown that will attract and retain the best and brightest clinical talent to provide our patients and the various communities we serve with the highest level of quality care."

In addition, OHI and its patient base will bring new depth to WSU's research programs, and the affiliation will enable WSU to expand the scope of clinical translational and community-based research that is directly relevant to the care of southeast Michigan's diverse populations, including African-Americans, Arab-Americans and Hispanic Americans.

The affiliation will be administered by a joint operating committee that will be co-chaired by Dr. Robert Mentzer Jr., dean of the WSU School of Medicine, and Dr. Michael Geheb, division president, Oakwood Hospital and Medical Center and Oakwood Heritage Hospital. Each institution will appoint three additional members to the committee.

"Together we will identify and develop programs that have the potential to achieve national prominence," said Mentzer. "Joint programs will be framed by education and research, with a goal of improving clinical outcomes."

"Through our partnership, we will create new clinical care, teaching and research opportunities that will build upon the already exceptional clinical quality of our medical staff," said Geheb, a WSU School of Medicine graduate.

The agreement is nonexclusive. Oakwood can accept students from other universities into its clinical programs and affiliate with other universities. WSU has the right to enter into affiliation agreements with other healthcare providers or medical centers.

Chelsea family welcomes addition

Kause family travels to China to adopt a 10-month-old baby

By Sheila Pursglove
Special Writer

There is an old Chinese proverb that states, "When a child is born there are invisible red threads that connect the child to all who are destined to be in their life. It may stretch or tangle but it will never break."

Last November — during National Adoption Month — a Chelsea family of three followed destiny's thread to China to become a family of four.

Dianna and Jeff Kause and their son Vince flew to Chongqing, China, to adopt a 10-month-old baby girl.

It was the culmination of a decision made 13 months earlier, following a series of happy coincidences.

Dianna, a lifelong Chelsea resident who runs a hair-styling business from home, heard about the plight of baby girls in China from one of her clients, and about a neighbor who was in the process of adopting a child from China.

The following day, Dianna and a close friend were enjoying lunch together, when they saw a baby being pushed in a stroller.

"My friend asked me if we ever considered adopting and then she told me the story of her cousin who had recently adopted a baby from China," Dianna says. "I was astonished by the coincidence."

Fate seemed to lend a further hand when Dianna got a phone call later that day. Her brother, Mike, who travels the world for his work, had just returned to his home in Australia from a trip to China.

"He told me of staying at the beautiful White Swan hotel in Guangzhou, and seeing a lot of American families who were there to adopt Chinese children," Dianna says. "He said that for some unexplained reason he thought of us and felt compelled to call and share this information.

"That night, when Jeff and I talked about these revelations, a moment of clarity melted over us. We knew we were being led to our daughter."

Jeff and Dianna, members of the United Methodist Church of Chelsea, chose the Great Wall China Adoption Agency out of Texas, and the process was extremely easy, Dianna says. "Yes, there is a lot of paperwork but it is only required to protect all involved.

"There are documentation and authentication procedures to endure but all are in place to assure a positive outcome of the adoption process."

After the long flight to Chongqing, the family settled into their hotel, and filled out more paperwork. By 4 p.m., the trio was waiting in a room with six other families and seven babies waiting for their "forever families" to claim them.

The Kauses were first to receive their new daughter.

"In shock and excitement, after all the waiting, we finally held our precious Julia," Dianna says. "The feeling was one of overwhelming joy and love, comparable only to the birth of our son 11 years earlier."

China does not have adoption policies established the way the United States has domestic adoption laws, she says. Children who cannot be cared for by their birth parents must be orphaned before they can be legally adopted.

According to Dianna, the child is placed in an orphanage and entered into the system while an investigation is performed and a newspaper ad is placed in the paper with hopes of locating birth parents. After six months passes, the child can be adopted.

"China has a one child per family policy in some areas, and because it is a communist country, they dictate this decision that we, in the USA, are free to make on our own," she says.

"Also, China doesn't have social security to care for the elderly so aging parents rely on a son to take care of them when they can no longer work."

In China, a son and his wife stay with his parents and family property, whereas a daughter will go off with a husband, Dianna explains.

"This is why there are so many girls who are in need of homes. If the people can only have one child, they want a son.

"It's difficult for us to understand the culture and customs that they deeply respect when we are able to make individual decisions in this country. For many people in China, it is just their tradition," Dianna says. "Recently though, China is making great efforts to change these outdated ideas."

The Kauses found the Chinese people to be very warm and friendly. The family traveled with a guide who explained the adoption to those who did not understand English.

"The people always thanked us for adopting Julia and those that did speak English exclaimed, 'She is an American girl, now,'" Dianna says.

The Kause family flew to China to adopt a 10-month-old baby girl. The family includes Jeff, Dianna, Vince and Julia.

The family stayed at the White Swan hotel, as U.S. Consulate office is located in Guangzhou and it is the last stop for adoption finalization.

"It's a beautiful city where we felt completely at home surrounded by the many similar families," Dianna says. "Staying at the

TALKING ABOUT ADOPTION

Adoptive Families magazine and its website, www.adoptivefamilies.com, offers tips on talking about adoption. Here are a few pointers:

Refer to birth or biological parents as such, rather than asking where or who are the "real" parents.

Biological children should be referred to as just that. Adoptive parents prefer not to differentiate between biological and adoptive children.

Adoption costs are a private family matter. If you're curious about costs, call an agency or research on the internet.

Stories of adoptions gone wrong are unnecessary, since people in the adoption process know all the negative possibilities, and would appreciate positive comments.

Likewise, stories of couples that began an adoption process only because they could not become pregnant with "their own" child are unnecessary. Adoption is a choice, not a last chance. The best way to show support is to congratulate the family and help celebrate.

White Swan brought our extraordinary journey full circle."

The family has been blessed with an enormous amount of support from family, friends, and strangers, Dianna says.

"It's wonderful to have Julia so freely accepted as our daughter. We have watched in awe as she started crawling, saying Mama, Dada, and Brother. We were terrified when she was sick with pneumonia and RSV. We've seen her adjust to part-time daycare, feed the dog Cheerios, and laugh hysterically at Vince's antics.

"We love her fiercely and feel so fortunate to be her family."

Dianne says the family will always respect Julia's birth country and give her every opportunity to learn about China.

"However, she is a Chinese-American girl growing up a citizen of the United States of America and living the typical midwest life," Dianna says. "We wish nothing more than for her to be treated as every other child, and to be accepted without explanation – the same hope and prayer all parents make for their children."

Little Julia has settled in well to her new life in Chelsea, Dianna says. And in addition to chasing her toddler around, Dianna is now helping other families that have adopted children from China, by starting a local playgroup earlier this year.

"There is an FCC — Families with Children from China — group in Ann Arbor that has many activities for these kids, and we would like this playgroup to evolve into an offshoot of the FCC, which is available to families across the country," she says.

Sometimes people are not sure what to say to families touched by adoption, Dianna says, and she recommends Adoptive Families magazine as a resource, or the website at www.adoptivefamilies.com.

Marathon ends season

The Chelsea Community Hospital Bridge Marathon ended its 2005-2006 season June 8 with a bridge party at the Woodland Rooms at the hospital.

The hospital provided the group with dessert and beverages. Prizes were awarded, and after a very short program, the group played bridge.

Winners for the season were Laurie Gravelyn and Joan Schmidt. This is the third year the team has won.

The marathon, which is managed by Daphne Hodder, consists of 12 teams who meet for nine months and play a computer-generated team. The group is currently at full strength with 12 teams, but anyone interested in being on a waiting list, may call Hodder at 475-7238.

Last year, the group contributed $480 to the Chelsea hospital as each participant pays $20 a year in dues.

Camp announces openings

Huron Valley Ambulance will hold a free two-day camp called Camp 9-1-1.

HVA will host the day camp from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. June 28 and 29. Campers will meet at the Chelsea Fire Department, where space has been donated.

Touring an ambulance, learning CPR and taking a tour of a local emergency room are a few of the activities that children will experience as part of the camp.

HVA paramedics and emergency medical technicians serve as camp counselors, teaching campers about safety at home and at play, how to perform lifesaving skills on injured victims, and emergency services careers.

In addition to HVA, this year's Camp 9-1-1 local sponsors include Arctic Coliseum Ice Arena, Chelsea Area Fire Authority and Chelsea Milling Co.

For a registration form or more information, call Jason Trojan, Camp 9-1-1 coordinator, at 734-477-6782.

HVA is a nationally accredited, nonprofit community ambulance service.

Roy Schmidt climbs highest peak in North America

By Jennifer McArdle
Staff Writer

Roy Schmidt has been to the top of the world, at least by North American standards.

The Sylvan Township resident recently returned from a climb to the top of Mount McKinley, also known as Denali.

His quest to conquer the tallest peak in North America started out with his desire to find the state high points.

"I used to travel a lot and did training on the East Coast, primarily. There was a point for me 15 years ago when I decided I didn't want to go back to the motel after the training. I wanted to do something," Schmidt said. "The only thing I could think of to occupy my time was to go find the state high points.

"Eventually, I racked up 30 state high points. A lot of people do it as a formal quest and I've been doing it nonchalantly.

"Then I sort of realized that I had so many (state high points) and eventually I was going to have to climb Denali in Alaska."

An experienced climber, Schmidt spent eight years in Washington and Oregon, where he made many climbs in the Cascade mountain range. He has climbed Mount Ranier at 14,400 feet, as well as Mount Hood, Mount Saint Helens and Mount Adams.

"This would be a natural progression from that," he said.

"It was a little bigger than I was banking on, but I knew that going into it. I knew it was going to be a big challenge. A three- or four-week climb is a lot to do for someone who doesn't really have aspirations for going to Everest."

Schmidt knew he'd have to be able to pull sleds on the climb, so to train for it he packed his two sons into a sled and pulled them around the field behind his house last winter. He also filled his 60-pound pack with 10 milk jugs full of water to get accustomed to carrying the heavy weight on his back.

The hard work wasn't over when Schmidt reached the top of Denali. Climbers still had to make their descent.

Climbers have to be prepared to pull sleds on the climb, so to train for it Roy Schmidt packed his two sons into a sled and pulled them around the field behind his house last winter. He also filled his 60-pound pack with 10 milk jugs full of water to get accustomed to carrying the heavy weight on his back.

Weight lifting and running, combined with climbing the steps at Michigan Stadium and the hill at Glazier Way in Ann Arbor, rounded out his training, which Schmidt said was still not enough.

"I didn't train near enough, just a little bit here and there," he said.

Ready or not, Schmidt arrived in Anchorage May 8 and took a bus to the town of Talkeetna.

"It's a unique little town. It's a touristy place. There are lots of gift shops, then there are a lot of climbers running around and there are some really unique local people. So, it's a cool mix," he said.

Upon arriving in Talkeetna, climbers spend about a day getting their gear ready, which is about 150 pounds. The day after arriving in the small town, Schmidt and others making the ascent flew out May 11 to base camp, located at the base of Mount McKinley at about 7,200 feet.

"It's about an hour flight to base camp, so you get a lot of great views of the glaciers and peaks," Schmidt said.

"Some people spend the night. What we did is we just got our gear ready and within about two hours we were hiking.

"You'd go down to about 6,000 feet and then you'd start climbing up from there."

Schmidt's group hiked about three or four miles and set up their first camp at 8,000 feet — the first of a series of camps on their way to the summit.

The group ran into their first problem at 14,000 feet, when their guide got sick.

"We weren't really happy with the guide service because what they basically said is, 'You're out of luck. You just got to sit for a week and wait for the next team to come up.' It was frustrating to sit there and watch all these other teams from other countries and other guide services as they went up, summitted, came down and went home," he said.

Meanwhile, Schmidt and the other climbers in his group waited six days until a new guide arrived to take them to the top.

"On the bright side, we built up a lot of strength being there for a week — we climatized and we were real strong by the time we started again," he said.

Schmidt did experience some warmer weather during that time when the temperatures reached 30 or 40 degrees. He passed the time meeting other climbers who were on their way to the top.

"I walked around during the days that we were waiting and I took about 60 portraits of climbers," he said.

Their group of five climbers was eventually joined by a second group of seven — nine climbers and three guides.

At 17,000 feet, they encountered 100 mile per hour winds, according to reports by the National Park Service.

"It actually broke three of our tent poles, so we were pretty scared for a while because it's a pretty small area. You're right near the cliffs and stuff," Schmidt said. "That was the toughest point. It was so cold, so windy, snowing hard, just like a sandblaster.

They spent a night and a day in that weather before it improved a bit the following day.

When they finally reached the summit, they were able to take in the view for about 20 minutes.

"The weather wasn't so good for us. We were the last party of the day and the

LOVING HOMES NEEDED

BAILEY is a lovely 4 year old German Shepherd weighing 80 pounds. He came to us as a stray and he has a warm heart that pleads for affection. Bailey is a shy but sweet natured dog who would enjoy a fenced yard to run and play ball along with lots of hugs and fur stroking. He is already house trained and would do well in a family with children over the age of 10 years.

TIPPY was homeless. He's about 2 years old and neutered, so apparently he'd been abandoned. He surely deserves a second chance. Tippy is a bit scruffy right now, but he's a really sweet boy.

HURLEY is a well-mannered 6-year-old beagle weighing 29 pounds. He is easy to walk on a leash, understands the command SIT, and simply loves to stroll around the yard and follow the scents. Hurley also likes to lie on his back and roll around on the lawn. He really would enjoy a fenced-in-yard. Hurley has a calm nature and loves to sit by your side on the lawn, bench, or whatever is handy. He appears to get along well with other dogs and also has a microchip. He would be ideal for a family with children.

SCHMIDT

weather just broke on the summit, so we were the only team that day to actually get a view," he said.

"It was a neat feeling. We were so frustrated by the long wait that we really, really wanted to summit and when we did, it sort of made it worthwhile.

"At the same time, when you get to the summit you can't get too excited because you have so much work left to do."

The descent is where Schmidt's group ran into more trouble.

"There was one girl who, I think once she hit the summit, emotionally she was done. She made it, she was happy, and then the rest of the way down she was having an awfully hard time. She was too weak to carry her pack," Schmidt said.

Ultimately, she slipped when descending on the fixed ropes at 14,000 feet, broke her leg, and had to be lifted off the mountain by helicopter.

After 20 days on the mountain, whose highest point is 20,320 feet, Schmidt made it back to base camp June 1 and returned home June 3.

The challenge and his success in reaching the top is enough for Schmidt for now.

"When I went into it, I knew that it was more challenging than I really wanted. And I always say to spend three weeks with someone's sweaty, dirty, stinky, wet socks hanging over your head is not a lot of fun," he said.

"In coming back, I said my next challenge is going to be miniature golf."

Schmidt said he isn't planning any more big climbs. Instead he wants to focus on teaching his sons, 11-year-old Adam and 8-year-old Roy, to climb.

"The next climb for me is going to be all new. It's going to be like starting over," he said.

SHARON TOWNSHIP

Local therapeutic facility to hold grand opening

Horse riding a holistic approach to therapy and rehabilitation

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Heritage Newspapers

Combining the documented philosophies of True Horsemanship with a dedication to therapeutic riding — a holistic approach to therapy, rehabilitation and recreation — is the goal of Heart to Heart in Sharon Township, just outside of Chelsea.

With a new facility just completed in May, owners Kimmy and Steve Sowers and Terri Simpson are excited to be able to share their cause with the rest of the community.

"We use horse-oriented activities to affect the well-being of individuals with a variety of abilities," Kimmy Sowers said.

A personal trainer and physical therapist for 25 years, Sowers is thrilled to be able to combine her love of horses with her background and education in therapy.

"My job has always been to help people," she said. "Terri also has an extensive background of working with handicapped children and adults."

The Sowerses have lived on their Sylvan Road farm for 10 years and have worked in the therapeutic riding field for several years, bringing their "Whispering Horsemanship" approach to rented arenas. Most recently, the couple worked with Liz Sang of Great Strides in Chelsea.

Now, they have their own brand-new facility with a huge arena, and will be sharing their joy with their clients and the community in an open house set from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

"We are thrilled to have our own place to conduct our seminars and be able to extend our services," Sowers said.

In addition to therapeutic riding, the Sowers' seminars are dedicated to training horses by "lightness and softness," hence the term "whispering" in their philosophy of horsemanship.

Sowers' husband, a master horseman, has actually rescued horses that others believed couldn't be trained.

"We don't use bits, only halters," Sowers said. "We offer more skills than just horse training — we teach people how to use softness to work with their horses ... to bond with their horse and make it their friend."

According to the tenets of True Horsemanship as espoused by expert horseman Bill Dorrance, feel is the language of horses. He advocates noticing subtle things about the ways that horses and humans interact to reach a deeper level of insight into horses and humans.

The Sowers take that idea one step further to emphasize the lightness and softness of touch that is so important in their belief in "Whispering Horsemanship," which teaches horsemanship from the ground up, beginning with ground training before a child or adult ever gets on a horse.

In their clinics, they often train "backyard" horses that have never been ridden or have long been left to graze in a pasture without any training, and interact with them to make some amazing transformations.

"Children of all ages and abilities are absolutely safe on our horses," Sowers said. "We train them not to be timid."

To prove it, 4-year-old Isabella Sowers demonstrates her skills with "Baby Girl," one of five horses that will be used in the Heart to Heart therapeutic riding program. She rides with no saddle or bit, only a blanket and a bridle; and can even ride with "no hands."

"Isabella is our helper as we train the horses," Sowers said. "She desensitizes them for us. She's a real trouper."

While Sowers and Simpson co-teach the therapeutic riding classes, combining their decades of experience, young riders are accompanied by volunteers flanking them as they ride.

"It's exciting to see kids develop social skills and bring out their inner self through the therapeutic riding programs," Steve Sowers said. "Using horses can really make a difference."

Kimmy Sowers shares stories of hospitalized children who actually regained a will to improve their health through the incentive of being able to learn to ride, or ride once again.

Simpson, drawing on her background in occupational therapy, points to the improved coordination and muscular development that occurs when disabled kids — or adults — are allowed to ride.

"It's truly amazing," she said. "The healing power that animals have over people ... I've seen incredible things happen."

A variety of different programs will be offered for the wide range of abilities that the facility hopes to attract, whether it's learning to bond with a horse as a buddy or creating yet another miraculous transformation in a handicapped child's abilities.

Parents are encouraged to interact with their children's lessons in horsemanship at Heart to Heart, but volunteers are truly the "heart" of the programs they offer. Prospective volunteers will be completely trained before they work with the horses and clients.

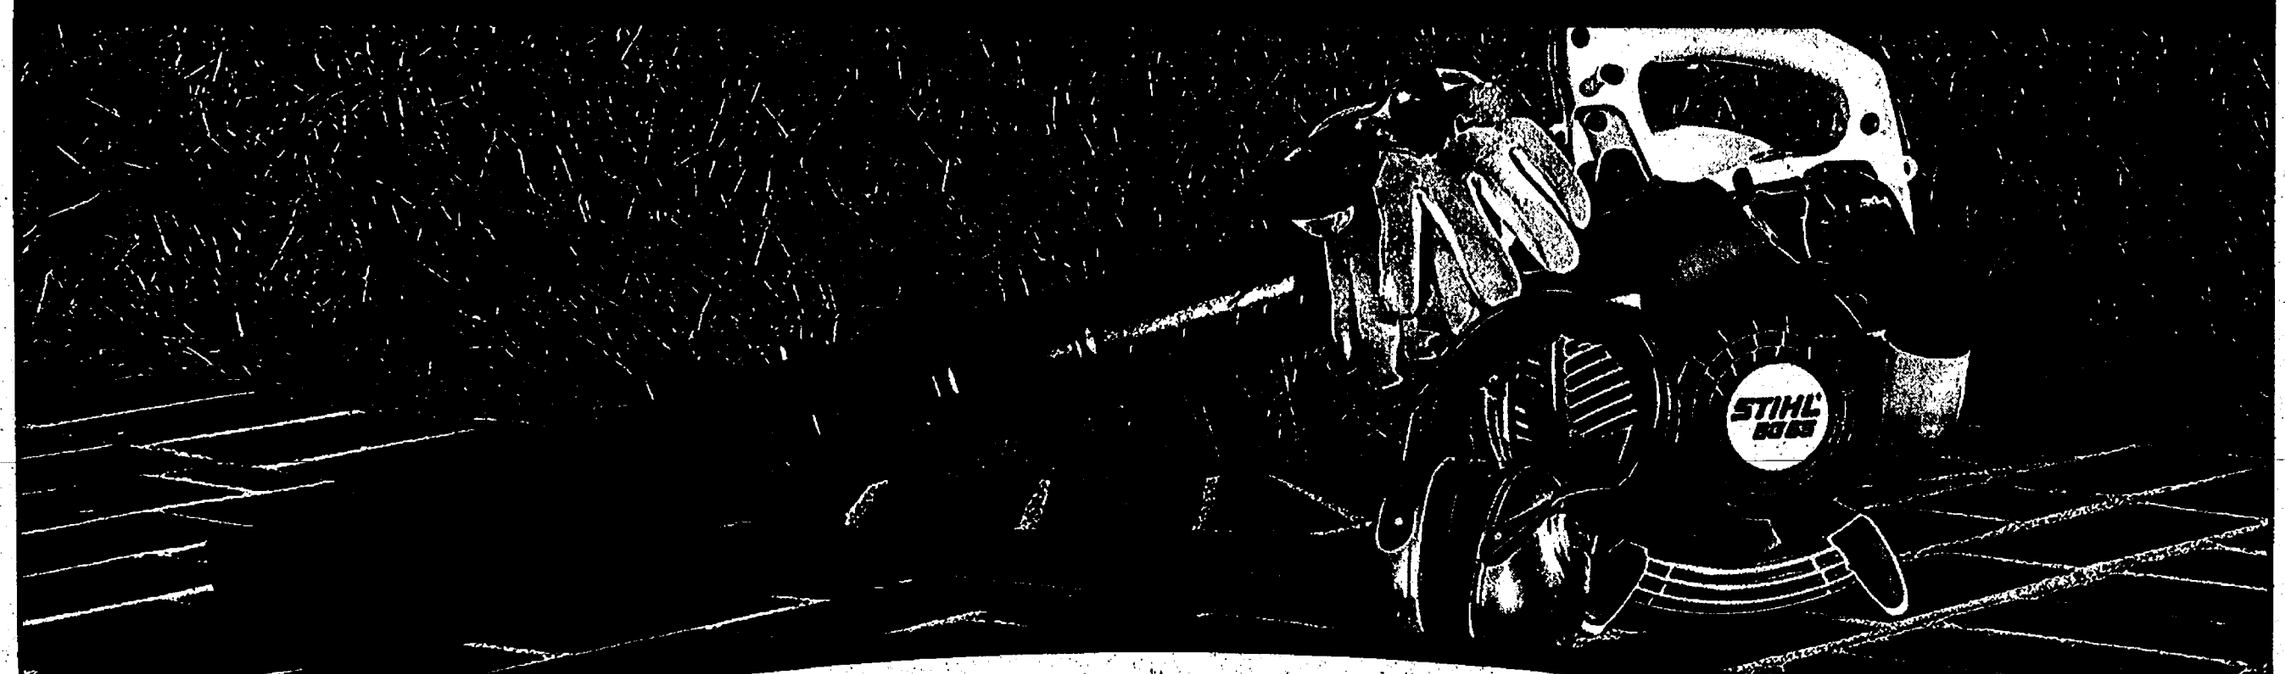

A full day of education and fun will be offered at the farm, located on Sylvan Road just north of Pleasant Lake Road in Sharon Township. Tack vendors and demonstrators will be on hand, along with raffles and a silent auction. Dinner will be a free-will donation with proceeds from the event being used to purchase tack and equipment for the program.

WASHTENAW COUNTY

Free service recovers money

County program helps track down people who write bad checks

By Brian Gougherty
Heritage Newspapers

Washtenaw County is now offering a free service to help track down people who write bad checks.

The Bad Check Restitution Program, now partnered with BounceBack Inc., are an alternative to obtaining owed money from bounced checks without going through the cumbersome police and court process.

The way it works is simple.

First, the business part,- which can include anyone accepting a check, registers with the program either by mail or online. The complainant is then assigned a merchant— identification number.

When a bad check is received, the victim sends out a five-day notification to the check writer, giving the person a chance to correct any earnest mistake that was made. If there is no response to the notice, it's considered evidence that the check was written with the intent of fraud.

In such a case, the merchant would normally notify the proper authorities to begin a criminal investigation. The Bad Check Restitution Program, however, requires only that the victim fill out a form and send it to BounceBack Inc., along with the check and proof that the five-day notice was given.

The case is eligible to be pursued by BounceBack pending three criteria:

- It's the first time BounceBack has received a complaint with that person.
- The check is less than $5,000.
- The case is prosecutable.

Assuming the above is in order, BounceBack will contact the suspect and give the person an option to pay the money back in full and complete an at-home course on financial responsibility, a fee for which funds the BounceBack service. When the money is paid and the course completed, the case is retired without any criminal investigation.

If the suspect refuses to comply with payment and won't take the course, BounceBack will issue two more warnings before forwarding the case for the standard criminal investigation.

That, however, is not the desired result. It's hoped that the program will save most cases from criminal investigation and the following prosecution in court, a process which is notorious for being long and drawn out.

Washtenaw County Deputy Chief Assistant Prosecutor Steven Hiller said some businesses won't deal with the hassle of trying to get money back for a bounced check.

"There are many big-box retail stores that just write-off bad checks," Hiller said.

However, Hiller said that for smaller businesses, writing off a loss is not so easy.

"For merchants, a single bad check can have a significant impact on how a business does that day, week or month."

Hiller says that the Bad Check Restitution Program provides a valuable alternative that can get merchants their money faster, and spare the resources of the courts and police investigation time. He calls it, "resolution without using government resources."

The county has run a similar program for the past three years, but with a company other than BounceBack. But Hiller said the first company was not consistent with forwarding cases of non-compliance to the proper authorities.

It was only after 15 referrals from counties using BounceBack across the country that Washtenaw signed up with them.

"We think they have a better plan to get the word out and get service to the merchants," Hiller said.

He stressed that not only is this program free, but completely voluntary. Merchants may sign up at any time at the Web site www.hotchecks.net/Washtenaw or by calling 1-800-745-3744.

WASHTENAW COUNTY

Youths sought for mapping project

For eight weeks starting July 10, area youth with the Community YouthMapping Project will be canvassing Washtenaw County looking for safe places, opportunities and resources available to young people.

Community YouthMapping is a youth development program in which young people and adults work together. Young people ages 14 to 18 undergo professional development training through the Academy for Educational Development to serve as "youthmappers."

Conflict resolution, communication skills and data entry are just some of the marketable skills the training will equip them with as they prepare for the professional world and learn to exercise their voice as young people in the community.

The overall goal of the 2-year project is to provide a youth development/youth voice opportunity for our young people and to identify 750 safe places/safe spaces in Washtenaw County. The goal is to recruit 70 youths to collect data during the summer.

The selection process is happening now, and applications are still being accepted. Anyone interested may contact Angelina Hamilton Broderick or Debi Samuels at 1-734-487-6570 or Chana Hawkins at 1-734-222-3936.

The project is a collaborative effort between Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti Youth Empowered to Act, Volunteers Incorporating Service Into Our Neighborhood, Academic Service-Learning, Washtenaw County MSU Extension 4-H Youth Development and the Judson Center.

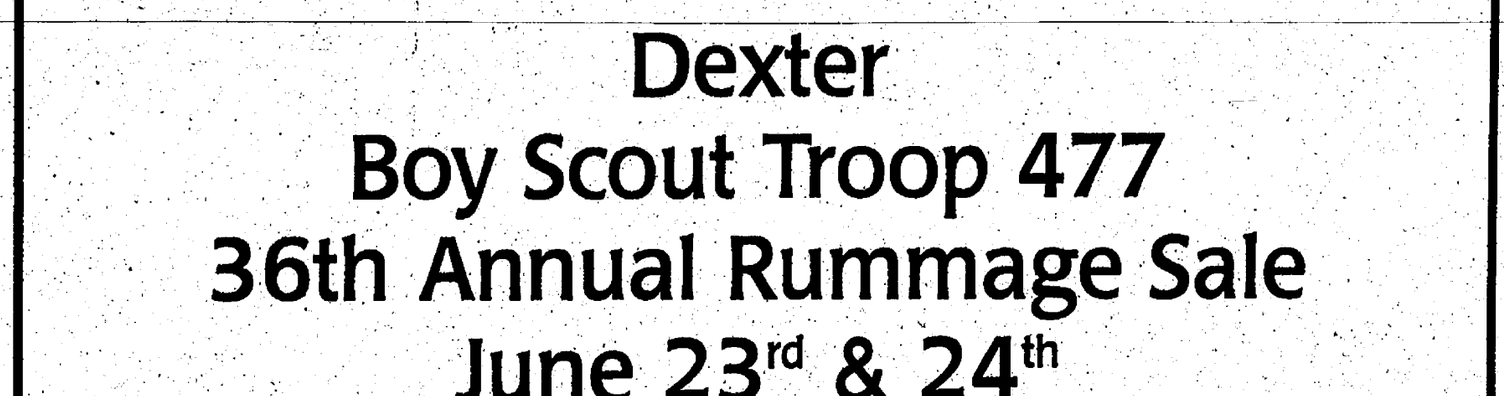

A total of $70,000 is funded by Washtenaw County Children's Well-Being and another $5,000 is funded by the Rosebud Foundation.

Other in-kind support of goods, material and money is also needed, as the actual costs of the project are greater than $75,000.

Grants and additional support will fund the training, collection of data through canvassing and the creation of a database for easy access to resources available to youth within Washtenaw County.

"Woman in Wheelchair Saves Lives"

Copyright © 2006

Karri Stokely (Lakeland, FL) says, "I feel better now than I have felt in my entire adult life thanks to Louella Harris." Karri suffered from migraine headaches and a lowered immune system disorder. "I would be in bed for days, getting up only to vomit," says Karri, an emergency medical technician whose life had completely stopped. Then she met Louella.

James Tomasi (Oklahoma City, OK) is adamant. "I would be dead today if it were not for Louella Harris." James suffered from what is considered to be the most painful disease known to man – Trigeminal Neuralgia. With a gun ready, James was 3 days away from committing suicide when his wife heard Louella on the radio.

Barbara Ellington (Boston, MA) tells everyone, "I'm back to work because of a woman in a wheelchair." Barbara, an artist, had loss the use of her hands and arms due to pain. Her career was over. She was devastated and fighting depression when she happened to see Louella on television.

Louella Harris, a masters degreed rehabilitation counselor who contracted polio at age 3, is saving lives by spreading the word about a little known procedure that is bringing substantial pain relief to thousands.

Thirteen years ago, Harris suddenly became confined to bed due to a combination of fibromyalgia and post-polio syndrome. The pain grew so intense that any sort of movement at all was agony. Her husband, Richard, had to dress, feed her and help with all her personal needs. Louella couldn't even sit up to watch television or hold a book.

"Like so many of my clients," Harris recalls, "none of the medical treatments were helping. I was told to learn to live with it."

Then a friend told Louella about a little-known, non-surgical procedure practiced by only 2000 chiropractors worldwide. Harris says, "I couldn't get past that word 'chiropractor'. I was extremely skeptical of chiropractic, having no idea that chiropractic as a whole has advanced so far that now there are many different types of chiropractic. I had never heard of Upper Cervical chiropractic, a very specific type that meticulously corrects the atlas, the top bone of the spine at the base of the skull. But from the moment my Upper Cervical doctor corrected this 2 ounce bone, it was like someone turned on a switch. I felt all the pain rush out of me, while it seemed all the electrical and blood flow exploded into me. To this day, it never ceases to amaze me how these doctors can do this."

After 3 months of being under this care, Louella was out of bed, back to work, able to get pregnant, and forming a national non-profit consumer awareness organization, The National Awareness Campaign for Upper Cervical Care (The NACUCC) to inform the public about this phenomenal answer to pain. "This procedure is so little known and had such an impact on our lives, Richard and I felt compelled to educated the public on a large scale about it."

According to Louella Harris, many people with chronic, debilitating ailments like Trigeminal Neuralgia, Fibromyalgia, headaches of all kinds, neck, back, shoulder and hip pain, as well as Carpal Tunnel Syndrome can be helped significantly, without drugs or surgery. People may get differing results from this procedure, but many will have their lives restored to them. In an interview on CBS said, "This technology was available all the time I suffered. I just didn't know about it. The sad part, neither did my doctor. It's one thing to hurt because nothing can be done – but suffering because of ignorance is tragic."

Louella tours the country spreading her message of hope for chronic pain sufferers. Her staff researches areas all over the country and Canada to locate chiropractors who have received the intensive training required to perform this very unusual technique. She says, "Most communities are completely unaware that one of these types of chiropractors is among them. As a result, people are suffering day and night and, yet, may be right next door to their answer: an Upper Cervical doctor."

"We have found an outstanding Upper Cervical doctor right in this area", says Harris. "Dr. Lisa Olszewski. What is amazing about this doctor is that she adamantly refuses to take credit for the miracles that walk out of her clinic. Instead she explains, "All I do is reposition the atlas, the top vertebrae of the spine that is closest to the brainstem. When that happens, the body's own ability to self-repair is restored. That is why so many different painful conditions respond to this care. I'm not doing the healing. The body is."

Dr. Olszewski says she does not cure anything, but a number of her patients with whiplash, fibromyalgia, asthma, allergies, attention deficit disorders, digestive problems, tendonitis and arthritis have responded well to the procedure. "The list of conditions is very diversified because the procedure restores proper nerve flow to all parts of the body. That makes a huge difference in the body's ability to overcome a number of issues," says Olszewski. "Most people come to me as a last resort when nothing else has worked."

Louella has experienced her body being able to heal when nothing else worked and a national non-profit consume awareness organization has been the result. James Tomasi is out telling everyone with Trigeminal Neuralgia. Karri has not had one migraine since the first time her atlas was put back into place. Barbara is painting her pictures with joy. These are only a few of thousands of others who are discovering this little-known healthcare technology.

"It is amazing to me that, as a masters degreed rehabilitation counselor on the cutting edge of so much of the latest medical technology, I was completely ignorant of the significant role a 2 ounce bone at the base of our skulls plays in our overall health."

Jim Burleson, Public Relations director for the NACUCC, says, "Louella's mission is to raise public awareness of this safe and natural health technology available now for children as well as adults. Thousands of people are getting their lives back as a result of our TV and radio interviews and local community talks. Louella has a triumphant, emotion-packed story that changes lives. Anyone with any kind of physical problems needs to listen to what she has to say."

The event begins in Chelsea Wednesday and ends July 4.

The free merchandise includes 16,000 lapel pins, 400 lanyards, 1,200 wrist bands, 600 pens, 144 ceramic coffee mugs, 2,000 decals, 700 acrylic key tags and 225 insulated auto mugs. All items are decorated with the American flag.

People can receive a free flag gift just for stopping in to the Chelsea Teddy Bear Co. or a supporting business on any of The 10,000 Flags Celebration days.

"Our biggest customer for teddy bears is the U.S. military. We are very proud of that," said Bob Turner, president of the Chelsea Teddy Bear Co. "This Fourth of July, we want to celebrate our freedom and independence, and those that put their life on the line to protect that freedom, and we wanted to do it in a big way. What better way than by giving away 10,000 flags."

The Chelsea Teddy Bear Co. also plans to unveil the world's largest teddy bear flag during the event July 1. World record keeper Guinness has been contacted to verify the claim. The American flag is made from more than 365 red, white and blue teddy bears, and will be officially unveiled and measured for the world record in a ceremony at 2 p.m. that day.

In addition to the free flag merchandise, there are other things to see during the event, such as:

- "Founding Fathers Bears" — a display of rare artist bears created to look like George Washington and Thomas Jefferson.
- Soldier and sailor bears will be on display and available for purchase.
- Behind-the-scenes factory tours of the Chelsea Teddy Bear Co.'s new 30,000-square-foot production facility and warehouse.
- A 10-foot tall teddy bear and a 7-foot tall smiling grizzly bear are also on display and dressed for the occasion.

Bulldog kickers set five team records in memorable season

By Don Richter

Chelsea's girls' soccer team capped one of its most successful seasons ever, with its end-of-season banquet earlier this month.

The Bulldogs finished the year with an overall record of 15-4-0 and a Southeastern Conference White Division mark of 7-2-0. Chelsea placed second in the SEC White behind Division II No. 3-ranked Dexter. The squad's four losses this year came by a combined seven goals.

The Bulldogs concluded their season in a double-overtime district semifinal thriller against the Dreadnaughts, losing 1-0 to their county rivals. Dexter advanced to the state semifinals before losing 2-0 to Bloomfield Hills Lahser.

This season, Chelsea set team records for goals scored per game (3.74), fewest goals allowed (14), fewest goals allowed per game (0.74), consecutive wins and shutouts (six) and consecutive shutout minutes (493).

The Bulldogs tied team records for shutouts (11), wins (15), fewest league losses (two) and league finish (second).

Also this past year, Chelsea recorded its 100th program win, with a 4-0 victory over Temperance Bedford April 25.

The season was one to remember for all those involved with Bulldog soccer.

"It was an absolutely terrific ride," said Chelsea coach Chris Orlandi. "These girls truly loved each other and that is so much more important than winning. They had a great experience overall. The six seniors on this team (Jaime Franks, Kellyn Pagliarini, Ariel Schepers, Angela Koich, Shannon Olinyk and Jenny Carty) will remember this season for sure. The (underclassmen) will certainly have to work very hard to match the success of the team of (2006)."

Named Chelsea's MVP was keeper Maggie Manville. The junior finished the year with a save percentage of 82 and a goals against average of 0.74. She received All-SEC and All-District first team accolades.

Earning the team's Most Improved Player Award was defender Melissa Perry. The junior ended the year with one assist.

Selected the Offensive Player of the Year for the Bulldogs was Sarah Reinhardt. The junior midfielder finished the season with a single season Chelsea record of 16 goals and 40 points. She also had eight assists. Reinhardt was also named first team All-SEC and All-District.

The Bulldogs' Defensive Player of the Year was Ariel Schepers. She moved from the center midfield position to the central defensive line this season. Schepers was named first team All-SEC and All-District this past season.

Also named first team All-SEC and All-District this year for Chelsea was junior midfielder Kaitlin Ehman.

Named first team All-District for the Bulldogs were junior midfielder Amanda McKenzie and sophomore midfielder Eleanor Stewart.

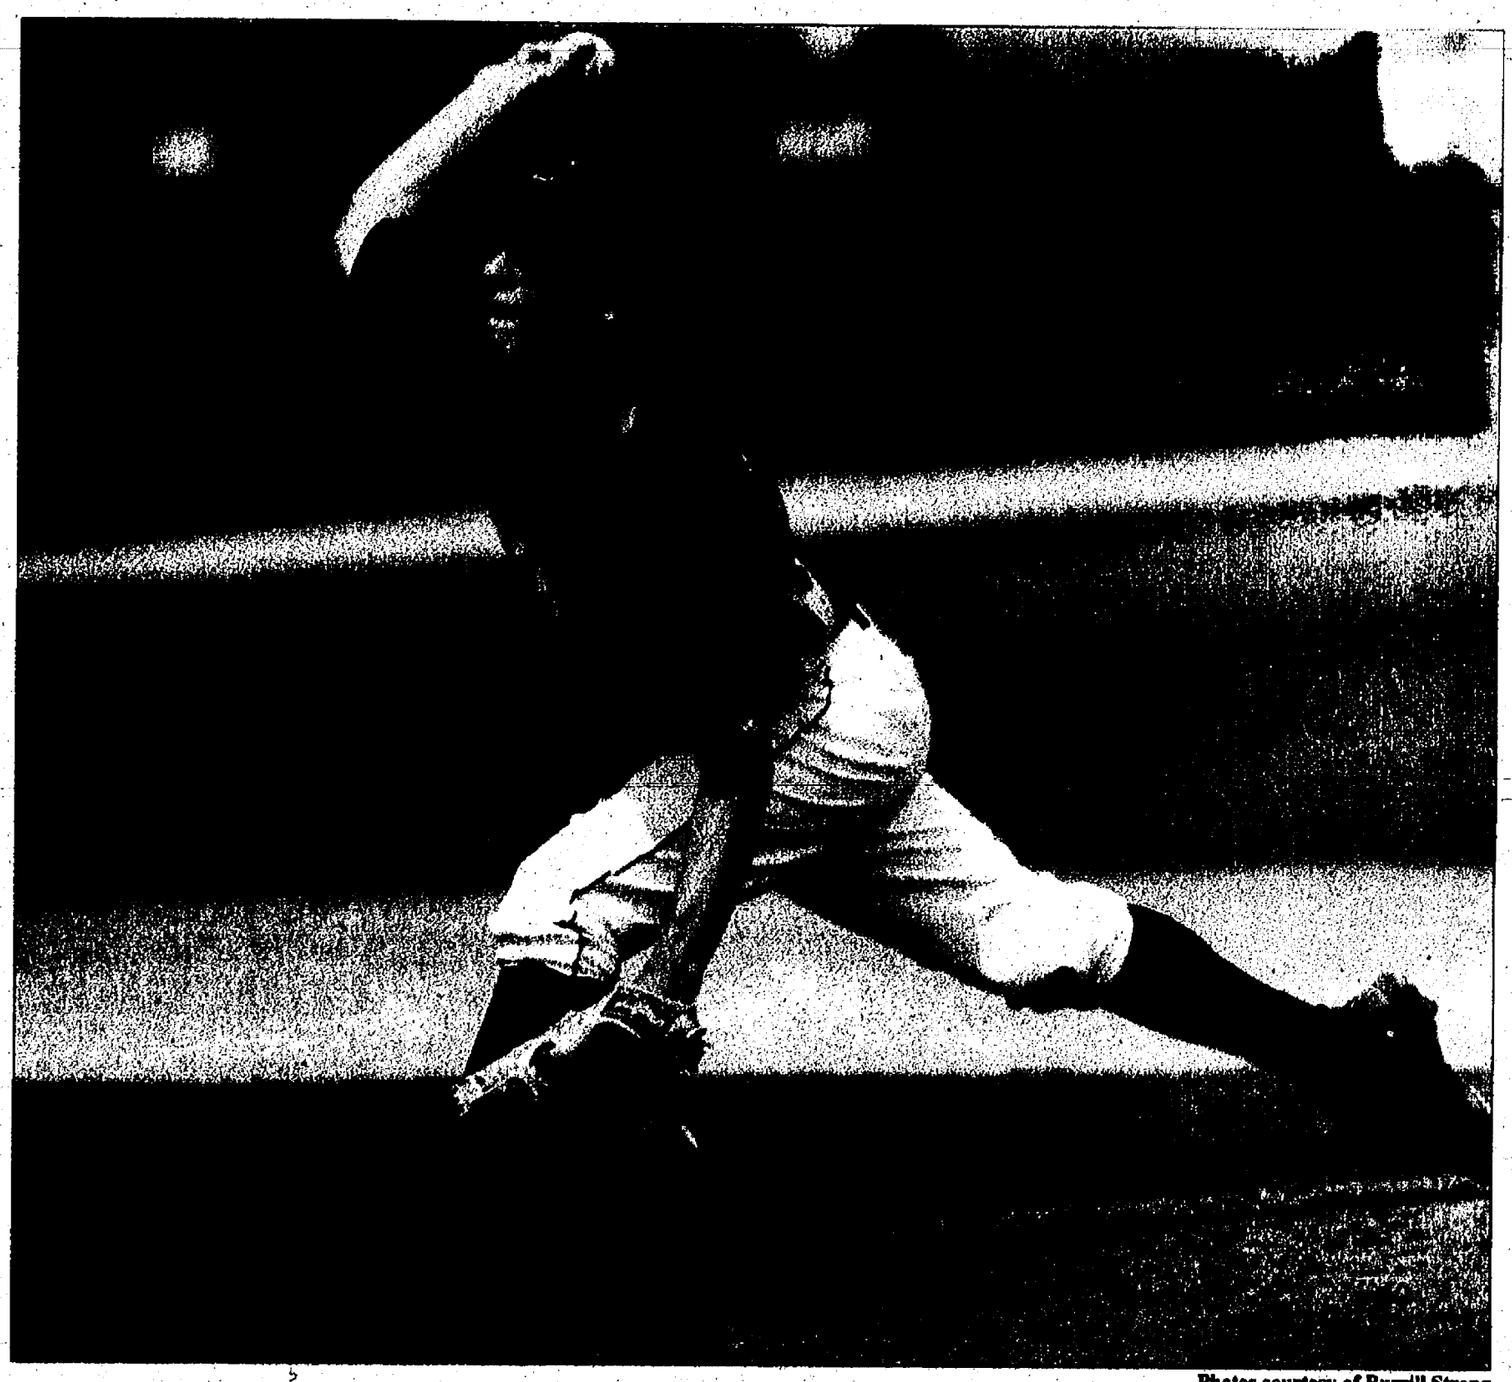

Receiving All-SEC honorable mention accolades for Chelsea were McKenzie, Stewart and Koich.

Named All-District honorable mention for the Bulldogs were junior forward Leah Morrison, sophomore defender Colleen Cottrell and Koich.

Earning the SEC Sportsmanship Award was Franks. The high-scoring midfielder missed the majority of the season with an injury. Despite missing most of her senior season, Franks still ended her high school career as Chelsea's third-best goal scorer ever, with 36 and fourth in all-time points, with 84.

Besides Reinhardt's 16 goals, others scoring for the Bulldogs this season included Morrison (11 goals), Stewart (eight), junior Mackenzie Lake (seven), senior Kellyn Pagliarini (five) and McKenzie, Gunden and Franks (all with four goals). Junior Ayla DeTroyer ended the year with two goals, while

What a run!

Chelsea reaches state semifinal before falling

Bulldogs battle undefeated Upper Peninsula power

What a run.

What an effort.

What a season.

Despite playing arguably the toughest stretch of games of any squad in the Division II playoffs, Chelsea overcame the obstacles to advance to the state semifinals, before falling 11-5 to Escanaba (26-0) last Friday in Battle Creek.

Along the way, the Bulldogs (28-11) defeated four schools that had previously won state championships, snatched victory from the jaws of defeat in late inning rallies, and ended the high school career of a University of Michigan recruit who throws in the mid-90s.

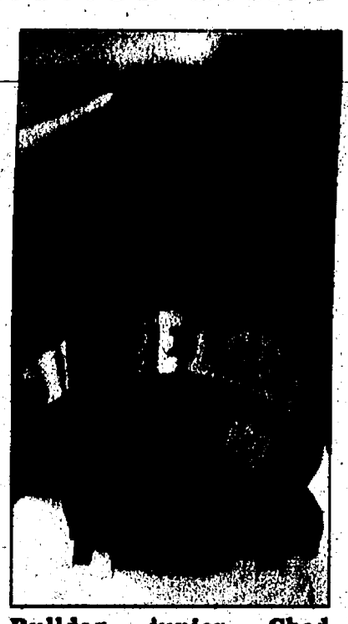

What a run.

"It was a lot of fun," said Chelsea coach Wayne Welton, who led the Bulldogs to a state title in 1991. "We competed (in tournament) like there was no tomorrow. It was really one of the great finishes we've had around here in a while."

Last Friday, Chelsea ran into a buzzsaw called Escanaba. The Eskymos, from the Upper Peninsula, caught the Bulldogs at the right time.

"We didn't play our best game," Welton said. "We weren't as sharp as we'd been all tournament. If we could play them 10 times, I think we'd get our fair share of wins. But give Escanaba credit, they were clearly the better team that day."

Chelsea committed four errors on the day, contributing to its defeat.

Bulldog junior Chad Nielsen shows his disappointment, after Chelsea lost to Escanaba 11-5 in the Division II state semifinals last Friday in Battle Creek.

Chelsea baseball gathers together after capturing a Division II state regional title, with a 7-6 victory over two-time defending state champion Dearborn Divine Child June 10.

"We hit the ball hard the last four innings," Welton said. "But we hit it right at them. Escanaba played well. They had some great at-bats against us. They were able to find the holes. They swung the bats very well. We have nothing to be ashamed of. We had as tough of a run to get there (state semifinals) as anybody."

After spotting the Eskymos a one-run first inning lead, Chelsea responded with a run of its own in the opening stanza. Junior shortstop Adam Connell led off with a single. After senior outfielder Joe Welton, who'll play at Aquinas College next season, sacrificed him to second base, the speedy Connell stole third base and came home on a wild throw by the Escanaba catcher, tying the game at 1-1.

The Eskymos, however, answered with three runs in the second inning, regaining the lead at 4-1. In the third inning, Escanaba increased its advantage to 5-1.

In the bottom of the third inning, the Bulldogs, as they had all tournament, battled back scoring two runs, as senior third baseman and Bowling Green State University recruit Robbie Moffett connected for a two-run home run, cutting the Escanaba lead to 5-3.

The Eskymos, however, proved their unbeaten record was no fluke, withstanding Chelsea's rally and scoring five runs in the top of the fourth inning, taking a commanding 10-3 lead.

Escanaba made it 11-3, with a run in the fifth inning.

The Bulldogs scored single runs in the sixth and seventh innings, for the contest's final margin. Getting hits for Chelsea in the last two innings were senior David Fishburn, with a double, senior C.J. Boyer and junior Dan Rhodes, each with RBI singles and junior Dan Augustine, with a double.

Augustine (6-foot-5, 215 pounds) absorbed the loss from the mound for Chelsea, allowing four earned runs, on seven hits.

Escanaba ended up losing 9-2 to Battle Creek Lakeview in the Division II state championship.

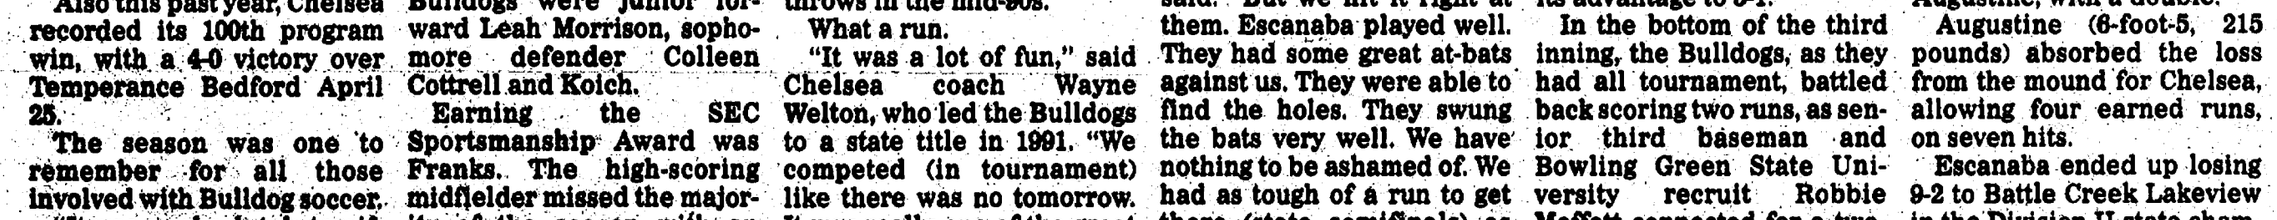

On June 13, in the Division II state quarterfinals at Troy Athens, the Bulldogs defeated Orchard Lake St. Mary's 5-0. The Eaglets, who won a state championship in 2003, entered the contest on a 13-game win streak.

Chelsea took control of the game early, scoring five runs in the first inning.

"We took the wind out of their sails early," Welton said.

In the first inning, Connell led off with a single. After Welton was hit by a pitch,

Chelsea standouts end prep careers in Midwest Meet of Champions

By Don Richter

Chelsea's Ian Girard finished second in the 3,200-meter run, with a school record time of 9:17.05, at the Midwest Meet of Champions in Jackson June 10.

Bulldog Rachel Severin placed third in the 3,200-meter run, with a lifetime best clocking of 11:05, at the Midwest Meet of Champions.

Chelsea was well-represented at the prestigious Midwest Meet of Champions June 10 at Withington Stadium in Jackson.

The elite event brings together the top track and field athletes from Indiana, Ohio and Michigan.

Normally set in Ohio, the meet was moved to Michigan for the first time this year.

In the boys' meet, Ohio nipped Michigan for the team title 164.50-161. Indiana was third, with 149.50 points.

Competing in the meet for Chelsea was Ian Girard. The senior standout, who'll run next season at Michigan State University, placed second in the 3,200-meter run, with a school record and lifetime best time of 9:17.05. He was the top Michigan runner in the event.

"He broke the (school) record held by Mark Brosnan in 1982 by 10 seconds," Chelsea coach Eric Swager said.

Winning the event was Ohio's Chad Balyo, in a stadium record 9:04.04.

"This was the first time all year that Ian was able to run a 3,200 event fresh, without having other events before it," Swager said. "He ran our plan, going through the mile in 4:40, and then accelerating. His last mile of 4:37 was strong enough to drop the pack of seven other runners, and his finishing kick brought him home well under the school record.

"It's a great way to finish off a successful season and career. He leaves Chelsea as arguably the most successful distance runner ever."

In the girls' meet, Bulldog senior Rachel Severin, who'll run at the University of Michigan next season, placed third in the 3,200-meter run, in a lifetime best 11:05. Michigan swept the top three places in the race, with Saline's Eileen Creutz winning, in 10:43.50 and Jackson's Kristina Olsen in second, with a clocking of 11:03.13.

"Rachel was selected, and although coming in seeded ninth, finished with a lifetime best (time) and a third-place finish," Swager said. "Rachel also ran according to our plan, running nearly perfectly even splits, and moving up through the field as the race went on."

Michigan won the girls' meet, with 207 points. Ohio was a distant second, with 164 points, followed by Indiana, with 104 points.

Michigan won the overall combined (boys and girls) team title.

Bulldogs' ninth-place finish at state match highest in decades

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea tennis concluded one its most successful seasons in memory earlier this month, placing ninth in the Division III state final in Kalamazoo. The ninth-place finish is the highest in the last 35 years.

"We had over 50 kids playing, handing out over 35 letters," said Chelsea coach Rahn Rosentreter. "The team played in seven different tournaments, winning two and placing second in four. A lot of the credit needs to be passed out to many. Shawn Hayes (assistant coach) did a great job. And our parents are fantastic. Everything from driving from matches, bringing food, to even helping at practice."

The Bulldogs finished the year with a 3-3-3 overall recording. Chelsea captured the Southeastern Conference White Division championship, winning seven of eight flights.

Individually, Mike Deis and Kyrt Olejniczak received the Coaches Award.

"Mike showed great leadership and Kyrt displayed a strong (attitude) that we all could learn from," Rosentreter said.

Wesley Fritzemeier was named Most Improved for the Bulldogs.

In singles play, Josh Stiles finished 19-6 overall at the No. 1 flight. He was SEC and regional champion.

At No. 2 singles, Reece Hammer ended up 16-9. He was SEC and regional champion.

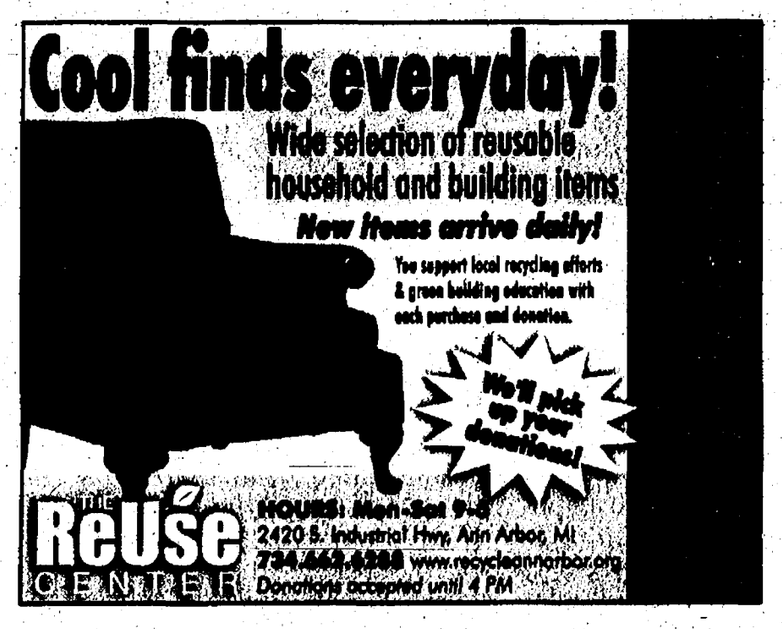

Chris Tapping was 17-9 overall at No. 3 singles. He

Bulldogs celebrate end of season

Chelsea wins conference, places eighth in state

By Don Richter

Chelsea's boys' track and field team held its end-of-season banquet earlier this month.

The Bulldogs captured a Southeastern Conference White Division title, and finished tied for eighth at the Division II state meet, with 22 points.

"Our squad improved throughout the year in many areas," said Chelsea coach Eric Swager. "The new coaching arrangement appeared to gel towards the climax of the season. We operated with an eclectic amalgam of youth and experience, and the blend produced a solid track team across the board."

Leading the Bulldogs this season was Ian Girard. The senior standout finished third in the 800-meter run and third in the 1,600-meter run at this year's Division II state meet.

Girard was also part of Chelsea's state championship 3,200-meter relay foursome. Joining Girard on the state-title relay were senior Al Stewart, junior Brendan Smith and freshman Riley Feeney.

Earning Academic All-State recognition for the Bulldogs were Smith (3.81 grade point average), Girard (3.88) and Stewart (3.55).

Receiving All-Region accolades for Chelsea were senior Austin Rodgers in the discus, Girard in the 1,600-meter run and 800-meter run. Feeney, Smith, Girard and Stewart also earned All-Region honors for the 3,200-meter relay.

Earning All-Southeastern Conference recognition for the Bulldogs were junior Danny Ngo (long jump), junior Antwan McClendon (long jump), sophomore Evan Carpenter (hurdles), senior Drew Wint (hurdles), sophomore Justin McGrath (hurdles) and sophomore Brad Ratliff (hurdles).

Others receiving All-SEC honors for Chelsea were sophomore Tyler Ball (shot put), freshman Kevin Rosentreter (1,600-meter relay), Rodgers (shot put and discus), Girard (1,600- and 3,200-meter run), Smith (800-meter run) and Stewart (800-meter run).

Chelsea finished 2-1 in dual meets this past season.

Swager said his squad couldn't rest on its laurels.

"As always, the amount of work we produce in the off-season is the best predictor for next year's success," he said. "I hope that the returning athletes head into the summer with a sense of excitement and optimism about next year's squad.

"I would like to thank all the other coaches, the parents, the community and the Lord for yet another successful season of Chelsea track."

Voicechovski selects Siena Heights

All-Southeastern Conference keeper to suit up for Saints

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea's Nikolai Voicechovski committed to play soccer for Siena Heights University. Standing behind Voicechovski are Chelsea head soccer coach Chad Scaling and assistant coach Dennis Hayes.

Chelsea senior Nikolai Voicechovski will continue his soccer career at Siena Heights University in Adrian next season.

"I liked the small campus and the personal attention you get from the staff," said Voicechovski, a 5-foot-9, 170-pound All-Southeastern Conference keeper. "They have a great chemistry program and soccer team."

Last year, the Saints, who play in the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference, finished 10-10 overall, advancing to the league semi-finals before falling.

Voicechovski, who is part of a 10-player signing class for Siena Heights, a NAIA school, said he was sold on suiting up for the Saints from the beginning.

"Siena Heights was the only school that I looked at to play soccer," he said. "From the first visit, I knew it was the school I could be happy at."

Voicechovski, who started playing soccer in kindergarten as a youth in New Jersey, said he loves the sport because of the rush he receives playing goaltender.

"I love the excitement of a great save and always knowing that mistake could cost you the game, but if you play great you can win," he said.

Voicechovski, who moved to Chelsea in 2002, said he would never forget this year's district game against Tecumseh.

"We won with nine seconds left," he said. "It was the most gratifying soccer experience I have ever had. We had a great team this year. They (team) never gave up and played with a lot of heart."

With a 3.3 grade point average, Voicechovski, who's also an Eagle Scout, said he plans to major in chemistry, with a possible minor in criminal justice, at Siena Heights.

"My career plans are to be a forensic scientist," he said.

Voicechovski said Chelsea assistant coach Shawn Hayes has been an inspiration.

"Shawn worked with me almost exclusively on the varsity team," he said. "He helped me become a better goalie. He's a real hard worker and a great role model."

RUN

Moffett laced an RBI single scoring Connell, giving the Bulldogs a 1-0 lead before the St. Mary's fans even found their seats. Augustine followed with an RBI ground out. Senior catcher Cam Hawkins then had an RBI single, followed by Boyer's mammoth two-run home run over the right field fence, increasing Chelsea's lead to 5-0.

Earning the victory from the mound was Chad Nielsen. The crafty junior tossed a three-hitter, with 10 strikeouts.

"That's as good as he's been all year," Welton said. "He actually became stronger as the game went along, against a team that was on fire. He struck out five of the last six batters. He pitched really well."

On June 10, the Bulldogs captured a Division II state regional championship defeating two-time defending state champion Dearborn Divine Child 7-6 in the final.

Chelsea scored three runs in the bottom of the seventh inning off Falcons ace and University of Michigan recruit Alan Oaks (6-3, 225). Oaks' fastball has been clocked in the mid-90s.

To begin the game, Oaks was dominant, mowing down the Bulldog batters one by one. Rhodes, however, was just as tough for Chelsea.

Trailing 1-0 entering the bottom of the fourth inning, the Bulldogs took the lead, as Nielsen stroked a two-run single, giving Chelsea a 2-1 lead.

"The second time through the line-up, we started hitting him (Oaks)," Welton said.

Divine Child tied the game in the fifth inning at 2-2. In the sixth stanza, the Falcons scored twice, taking a 4-2 advantage. With their horse Oaks on the mound, Divine Child's lead appeared safe.

The Bulldogs, however, had other plans.

In the bottom of the sixth inning, Chelsea tied the game at 4-4, as junior Travis Amburgey and Nielsen had RBI hits for the Bulldogs.

Like a classic heavyweight boxing match, the Falcons struck back in the top of the seventh inning, hitting four consecutive ground balls in the hole between shortstop and third base, regaining the lead at 6-4.

With Oaks and his 90-plus mile-per-hour fastball staring Chelsea down in the bottom of the seventh inning, the Bulldogs dug in at the plate – their season on the line.

Connell began the frame drawing a walk. Welton then ripped a double. With men on second and third base, Augustine hit an RBI ground ball scoring Connell, and trimming the Falcons' lead to 6-5. After Hawkins was hit by a pitch loading the bases, Boyer strode to the plate, with one out.

An All-State offensive lineman, Boyer (6-3, 265), who'll play at Saginaw Valley State University this fall, was not intimidated by the hard-throwing Oaks. In a battle of two titans, Oaks appeared to have the upper hand early, getting Boyer in a 0-2 hole. After taking a ball, Boyer fought and fouled off two straight pitches. With Oaks tiring, he threw an off-speed breaking ball, which Boyer ate up, cranking the pitch off the left field fence, scoring the game-winning and regional championship-clinching runs.

"That was an incredible game," Welton said. "It was two storied programs going at it. It was a special game. We battled hard all game long. It was as good of a high school baseball game as you'll ever see. It was well-played and tense. It was a great team victory for us. Everybody contributed."

When describing Boyer's game-winning at-bat, Welton was impressed.

"That was truly a great high school at-bat for Boyer," he said.

Nielsen, who relieved Rhodes in the seventh inning, picked up the win for Chelsea.

To begin the regional, the Bulldogs defeated host Carleton Airport (27-8) 6-2. The Jets, who won a state title in 1972, were Huron League champions this past season.

Chelsea scored four runs in the first inning to seize control of the contest early.

Connell led the way from the plate, with three hits, including a double and a home run.

Welton had an RBI double.

Augustine chalked up the win from the rubber.

On June 8, the Bulldogs beat Ann Arbor Huron 5-4 in a regular season make-up game.

Todd Elliott (4-1) earned the win from the hill.

In the district competition, Chelsea defeated county rival Dexter 5-4 in the final.

"That was a great game," Welton said. "Dexter has a really good team."

Down 2-0, the Bulldogs scored three runs in their half of the first inning as Augustine had a two-run RBI double and Amburgey an RBI single.

Welton added an RBI single in the second inning, while Nielsen had a sacrifice fly in the fifth inning increasing Chelsea's lead to 5-2.

The Dreadnaughts scored single runs in the fifth and sixth stanza for the contest's ending tally.

Rhodes picked up the win from the mound for Chelsea.

The district crown was the Bulldogs' first since 2002.

To begin the state playoffs, Chelsea beat a tough Jackson Lumen Christi (22-8) squad 4-1.

Augustine recorded the win for the Bulldogs, throwing a four-hitter and fanning nine.

"He pitched outstanding," Welton said.

Chelsea scored four runs in the fourth inning. Welton scored the game's first run, stealing second and third base, after connecting for a single. He scored on a wild throw from the Titans' catcher. Also getting key hits in the inning were Hawkins, Nielsen, Amburgey and Rhodes.

Connell and Augustine each finished with two hits to lead Chelsea.

Candy Band rocks children's world

Stay-at-home moms bring popular children's songs to a new level

By Andrea Blum
Heritage Newspapers

Move over, Veggie Tales. Get out of the way, Wiggles.

When it comes to rockin' the world of children's music, break off a piece of the Candy Band.

The quartet, comprised of four stay-at-home moms from Pleasant Ridge and Royal Oak, recently rocked the Wyandotte Children's Expo with their punk rock twist on ditties for little bitty ones.

"The kids' expo was awesome for us, and they had a blast," singer Daniela Burckhardt said.

Guitarist Paula Messner said: "A wide variety of people were there and we do such a wide variety of songs. I saw older people and younger people getting into it."

The band's hard-rocking versions of "Itsy Bitsy Spider" and "The Wheels on the Bus" are breaking the mold of mundane children's melodies.

"Basically, it's music that we love to listen to, and it's the perfect job because we can take our kids along," Burckhardt said.

The four members — vocalist Daniela "Skittles" Burckhardt; Paula "Almond Joy" Messner on guitar; Anita "Kit Kat" Kelly on bass; and Tammy "Starburst" Ristau" on drums — aren't your run-of-the-mill mothers.

Ranging in age from 32 to 42, the musical mamas have nine children among them but don't spend their days baking cookies and vacuuming their houses while wearing pearls.

Instead, they sport spiky hair, dark eyeliner and have a penchant for black clothing and funky jewelry.

"I've been in rock bands my whole life, and when I had kids, I didn't want to do the bar thing anymore and play late," Messner said.

"I thought, 'Why not combine all this and do a band of rock-and-roll kids' music.'"

The band formed in 2003 after Messner, a veteran of bands such as the Motor Dolls, decided an alternative was needed to the standard whiny children's music.

"I come from a background of Led Zeppelin, the Ramones and Iggy Pop," Messner, 42, said.

"We all pretty much like garage music, and I love heavy metal."

She rounded up three friends with varying musical backgrounds from the local YWCA.

Ristau's husband was a drummer in a band so he taught his wife how to pound the skins.

Kelly, who'd played flute in high school, found an old bass in her basement and taught herself to groove.

Burckhardt — who dubbed herself "one of those people who always sings in the shower and in the car" — lent her pipes to the ensemble.

The name came from Messner's daughter, who, when asked what children like, responded, "candy."

The four women renamed themselves after their favorite sweet treats and a band was born.

The group played its first gig at Ristau's son's birthday party and was pleasantly surprised at the response.

"We realized there was a market for this," Burckhardt said. "Kids knew the songs and the parents thought it was really funny.

"We went into the studio really quick and did three demo songs."

Their first three CDs, "Candy Band," "More Candy" and "Lollipunk" have garnered them a devoted following.

"Kids love loud and fast, so they're perfect for punk rock," Burckhardt said. "But we'll run across the occasional kid or parent that it's too loud for."

Besides providing entertainment, the band also introduces some children to a new form of music.

"For some of the kids, it's the first real rock-and-roll concert they've gone to with the electric guitars and drums," Burckhardt said.

"They love it and we get a lot of 'thank yous' from the parents, too.

"They say there's finally something they like to listen to, too."

A mix of children's tunes and original songs fill the recordings, and Messner said the band is writing more of its own tunes every day.

"'Rock, Paper, Scissors' is our biggest hit," she said. "'Time Out' is about bad kids, and 'Ken Lost His Head' is about Ken and Barbie."

The mod moms have performed all over the Detroit area, including the Vans Warped Tour and shows with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

They've appeared on "The Today Show" and CBS' "Early Show" and hung out with the likes of Billy Idol and Perry Farrell while performing at Lollapalooza in Chicago.

Wal-Mart stores began selling their CDs a few weeks ago.

"We're still evolving," Burckhardt said. "We're just getting better and better and doing more complicated songs. And we still have fun absolutely every time we play."

Messner added: "We've created something that parents really dig, kids love and older people can appreciate."

Library summer programs kick off

Carnival of the Animals draws hundreds of children, adults

By Jennifer McArdle
Staff Writer

A warm, sunny day helped kick off the Chelsea District Library's summer program "Paws, Claws, Scales and Tales."

Children crowded the lawn of the library Friday for the program's kick off celebration with the Carnival of the Animals, featuring a moon walk, crafts, food, and a free goodie bag for kids registering for the summer reading program. Later in the afternoon, youth were treated to Old McDonald's Farm puppet show with Rick Morse's farmyard marionettes.

Shawn Personke, community relations and development coordinator at Chelsea District Library, said the library registered approximately 250 children and adults for summer programs during Friday's kickoff event, which drew nearly 400 people who took part in games and other fun activities.

A full line up of special programs is scheduled for all ages throughout the summer, including Wild Wednesdays, which kicked off June 21 and offers a variety of activities for youths including a Pig Party June 28 and hands-on science fun July 5.

Alex Ratinaud (left), 2, and Katherine Moise, 7, both of Chelsea, had some fun drawing on the sidewalk by the library.

Movie Mondays feature kids' movies on a big screen with popcorn and snacks from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Mondays at the library.

Teen events will get started with a Friday Night Lock-in from 6 to 9 p.m. June 23.

"Paws, Claws, Scales and Tales" runs through July 26. Closing events will include the Carnival of the Animals II from noon to 3:30 p.m. July 26, featuring a Plush Pet Parade, where kids can bring their favorite stuffed animals and win prizes.

Complete event information, summer reading guidelines, and the reading log are available online or at the library. All events take place at 500 Washington St. in Chelsea.

CHELSEA AREA

Busy schedule of events planned

The Waterloo Area Historical Society (WAHS) has planned an ambitious slate of events for its annual Education Weekend to be held on the grounds of the organization's Farm Museum. Visitors can learn about the century-long evolution of the Colt Revolver, observe blacksmiths demonstrating their trade, tour the Log Cabin, or have their heads examined by the itinerant Phrenologist. Marie Papciak's portrayals of Civil War soldier Sarah Emma Edmonds and civil rights educator Laura Smith Haviland will be featured on Sunday at 2 p.m.

Marie Papciak has been portraying women in history for over 28 years, beginning with mini-assemblies at Lansing area schools, where she was an elementary library-media specialist. Over the years, she has performed for women's service and professional groups, schools at all levels, and historical societies throughout Michigan. The WAHS is thrilled to host performances of two of her characters from the "Women Who Changed America Series."

During her one-hour presentation, Papciak will first portray Sarah Emma Edmonds, a uniformed Civil War soldier and spy from the Flint area, then subtly don a dress and bonnet to become Laura Smith Haviland, an Abolitionist from Adrian. The complementary characters will bring this important period of U.S. history to life through two of its lesser-known Michigan contemporaries.

Education Weekend holds a special place in the WAHS's calendar, as it honors the organization's mission "to foster an understanding and appreciation in children and adults of the pioneer farmers of Michigan, their family life and their children's schooling."

The schedule begins at 10 a.m. on Saturday with the organization's traditional Blacksmith Festival. Area blacksmiths will demonstrate their craft in the Farm Museum's workshop, the place where pioneer farmers created and repaired their hand tools and implements. Some wrought items will be available for purchase.

Itinerant Phrenologist Matthew Nikkari will be on hand in the Farm Museum's parlor on Saturday as well. He'll explain and demonstrate Phrenology, the 19th century "science" of how the shape and formation of the head influenced an individual's character, personality traits, and mental condition.

Area gun collector Johnny Bassett will present his "100 Years of the Colt Revolver" exhibition throughout the entire weekend. He will be on hand to describe the firearms and answer visitors' questions.

On Sunday, the WAHS will join the rest of Michigan for the 20th Anniversary celebration of Log Cabin Day. The log house will be open that day from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. for guided tours.

The WAHS's 10-room farmhouse will be open as well for tours during this event. Admission is $3 for adults, $2.50 for seniors age 62+, and $1 ages 5-16. Members enjoy free admission. Refreshments will be available for purchase at the Hannewald Barn.

The Dexter Township Planning Commission will hold a public hearing on June 27, 2006 at 7:00 p.m. for the purpose of receiving public comment on the proposed Hartman Farms Site Condominium Open Space Community and proposed special land use for a community sewer system to serve the development. VILLAGE OF DEXTER
WATER QUALITY REPORT FOR 2005

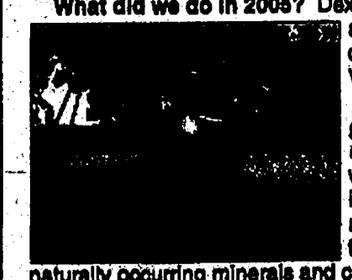

The Village of Dexter strives to produce the best quality drinking water possible. The purpose of this report is to provide you with information about your drinking water as required by the Untied States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ).

Dexter's water comes from three wells in behind LaFontaine Chevrolet off of Ryan Drive. These wells are 200 feet deep in a confined aquifer. Water from each of the wells is pumped to the Village's iron removal plant on Central Street. Air is introduced to the water to oxidize the iron in the water so that it can be filtered. Air also strips out hydrogen sulfide, a naturally occurring contaminant that has a foul odor. After air stripping, the water passes through a series of sand filters to remove iron and any suspended solids in the water. The water is then disinfected to kill harmful bacteria. The water is pumped to the water tower in the industrial park and is ready to be used by the public.

The State did a study in 2003 to determine the susceptibility or relative potential of contamination of our wells. The aquifer was classed as 'not vulnerable' based on tritium testing. It is important to realize that the potential for contamination in a 'not vulnerable' area does exist. Dexter has a wellhead protection program to help protect the source of our water.

What did we do in 2005? Dexter put in service a fourth well. Dexter is also conducting a flow capacity study to determine how much extra capacity the Village has for service.

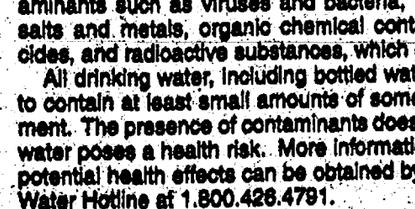

The following is the official USEPA language on contaminants that may be in untreated water: The sources of drinking water, both tap water and bottled water, include; rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs and wells. As water travels through the ground, it dissolves naturally occurring minerals and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity. These include microbial contaminants such as viruses and bacteria, inorganic contaminants such as salts and metals, organic chemical contaminants, pesticides and herbicides, and radioactive substances, which can be naturally occurring.

All drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants, even after treatment. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that the water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and their potential health effects can be obtained by calling the EPA's Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 1.800.426.4791.

In order to ensure that tap water is safe, the EPA prescribes regulations which limit the amount of certain contaminants provided by public water systems.

The following is official EPA language on low resistance to infection: Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of the infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbial contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 1.800.426.4791.

Frequently Asked Questions

Q: Does Dexter add fluoride to the water?

A: No. The Village has naturally occurring fluoride in its groundwater.

Q: Why is the water sometimes discolored?

A: Although discolored water may be aesthetically displeasing, contact with discolored water is not normally a health risk. Discolored water should be reported to the Dexter Utilities Department so that it may be investigated. There are three main causes of discoloration in drinking water.

Some of Dexter's water flows through cast iron mains. These mains can rust, making the water yellow or orange. Normally, the water is used up quickly, and the rust flushes out of the system. Rusty water is most often observed first thing in the morning after the water has experienced the slowest flow of conditioned overnight.

There are tiny amounts of sediment suspended in the water as it leaves treatment, amounts so small that it is difficult to measure. However, after millions of gallons of water flow through a water main, the sediment accumulates to visible levels. The sediment sticks to the walls of water mains and stays there until a fire hydrant is opened, or valves are operated for construction or maintenance, or when a water main breaks. This problem is solved by flushing the water gently, (usually from a fire hydrant), until the sediment is gone.

When the water is milky white, there is too much air in the water. After water is drawn from the tap, the water is no longer under pressure and extra dissolved air is free to escape. This clears up quickly, and the "color" clears from the bottom up, the air leaves as tiny bubbles. This is normal.

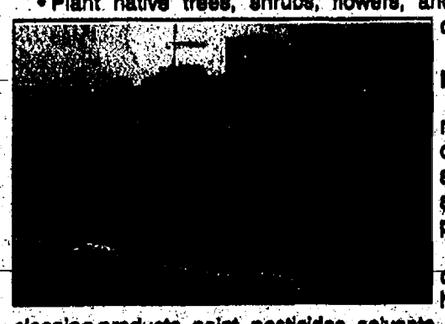

Q: How can I lower my water bill?

A: Inside the house you can:

- Check toilets and faucets for leaks and repair.
- Take shorter showers.
- Turn off water while shaving or brushing your teeth.
- Only run your dishwasher when it is full.
- Install water-saving showerheads and low flush toilets.

Outside the house try these steps:

- Don't hose off your sidewalk or driveway.
- Only water your lawn when needed, use soakers rather than sprinklers.
- Water in early morning or late evening.
- Allow the grass to grow to a greater length.
- Plant native trees, shrubs, flowers, and grasses which are more drought-tolerant.

Q: What can I do to help protect the watershed?

A: The Village of Dexter needs your help to protect our drinking water and its source. Here are tips on actions you can take to help protect the watershed:

- Recycle, recycle, recycle! Properly dispose of household toxics such as cleaning products, paint, pesticides, solvents, and used motor oil. Recycle grass clippings or mulch them.
- Remember that all storm drains lead to the Huron River. Don't dump into the street storm drains.
- Scoop the poop, pickup after your pets.
- Minimize water runoff from your property. Be sure your house gutters and downspouts go to your lawn, not to paved surfaces.
- Avoid erosion, seed exposed dirt and restore bare patches on your lawn.
- Lawn care – do not overuse fertilizer or pesticides, test your soil first to see what it really needs. Don't fertilize before rainstorms. Rain washes any excess into the storm sewer, and the Huron River.
- Lawn watering – heyt That was just mentioned in the last question of lowering by bill! Guess what – it protects the watershed too.
- Abandoned wells – these should be properly plugged and removed from service. An old well is a direct connection to the groundwater.
- Report all spills or suspicious activities in the watershed to the police by dialing 911.

Public participation is welcome. The Wellhead protection committee is open to any private citizen who is interested. Call the Dexter Community Development Office at 734.426.8303 ext. #15.

IF YOU HAVE ADDITIONAL QUESTIONS concerning this report, please call the Village of Dexter WWater Utilities Department at 734.426.4572, 7 am to 3:30 pm weekdays, or the MDEQ at 517.780.7875.

FOR AFTER HOURS EMERGENCIES, DIAL 734.368.5212 In the event of emergencies such as water main breaks, emergency water turn-offs and sanitary sewer back-ups, call this number. The appropriate personnel will be dispatched.

THE VILLAGE OF DEXTER IS ON LINE at www.villageofdexter.org.

If you would like more information about your water, or copies of this report, please call the Dexter Water Utilities Department.

WATER QUALITY TEST RESULTS

Each year, the Village tests the drinking water for various contaminants. The contaminants that were found are listed in the table below.

MCLG, Maximum Contaminant Level Goal: The level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected health risk, allowing for a margin of safety.

MRDL, Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level: The highest level of a disinfectant used to control microbial contaminants allowed in drinking water.

MRDLG, Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level Goal: The level of a drinking water disinfectant below which there is no known or expected risk to health.

Rainbow house holds fundraiser event

Rainbow House, a Habitat for Humanity project, is hosting a Texas Hold 'Em tournament 6:30 p.m. July 15 at the Glencoe Hills Club House, 2201 Glencoe Hills Drive in Ann Arbor.

A maximum of 100 players will be competing for a top prize of $500. Tickets may be purchased for $50 each from www.rainbowhouseproject.org.

The ticket price includes a snack and beverage with additional snacks available for purchase. All proceeds will benefit the Rainbow House build, which begins in summer of 2006.

The Rainbow House project is the first build in Michigan sponsored by persons in the LGBT community and only the second in the nation.

"This tournament will be fun for first-time players, as well as seasoned gamblers. Everyone will walk away a winner because they are supporting a great cause, and some will even walk away with prize money," Jeanne Alderson, co-chairperson for Rainbow House Project said in a prepared statement.

Approximately 5.1 million families in the United States pay more than half their income for housing, endure overcrowded conditions, and/or live in houses with severe physical deficiencies. The high cost of housing leaves low-income families little money for other basic necessities like food, clothing, or health care. Substandard housing can endanger the health and safety of its occupants, erode their hope and feeling of self-worth, and impair their children's ability to succeed in school. Habitat for Humanity homeowners each contribute at least 300 hours of labor on their homes, and then pay Habitat back on a 25-year, interest-free mortgage. The mortgage payments allow another Habitat house to be built, enabling two families to become homeowners as a result of this project.

To learn more about Rainbow House Project, other events and volunteering, visit the website at www.rainbowhouseproject.org.
