After watching her 10-year-old son pass away, Carol Knox says . . .

'We're doing OK'

On Thursday Chelsea's Carol Knox and her husband Tom watched their 10-year-old son Andrew pass away surrounded by family. Andrew's four-and-a-half year battle with Acute Myeloid Leukemia was over. On Sunday, Carol logged onto Andrew's web site and shared her feelings about her son's strength, the final moments in his life and how he will live forever through the memories he provided people fortunate enough to know him. The Chelsea Standard would like to thank Carol for sharing her story with our readers.

We wanted you all to know that we're doing OK. Those of you who have followed Andrew's journey from the beginning know that he had many rough times over the last few years. We had several experiences where we watched Andrew fight at death's door and didn't know whether he would win or not.

We watched him have terrible pain, hunger and thirst. We watched as he overcame these, but we did not forget that we had watched and been at some level incapable of easing his pain. These experiences taught us much about his strength and our own.

It also taught us to respect drugs that could ease those pains for him or for ourselves. In his last weeks of life he had some pain too, but we were blessed with a wonderful medical team who helped us manage his pain so that it was only a minor inconvenience and not the heartrending struggle it had been at times in the past. It's seems odd, but he had been much sicker in the past and in much, much greater pain.

In a strange way this was better and so much easier. It's interesting and sad and comforting too to know that he died with ease and without pain. The evening before he died he entertained his teacher, Mrs. Gillingham, Kris, Tom, Melissa and me in our bed. We talked about his art and other things. He was drowsy from the drugs, but not sad or in obvious pain. By the next morning it was obvious that his body was making a change, but he wasn't in much, if any, discomfort. We had enough medicine to make him sleep easily and pass without any major scary things happening.

He enjoyed himself and ruled our house these last weeks. His whims were acceded to and his wishes were fulfilled as best we could. He played video games with the big boys next door and his dad and Melissa and even me. He

Time is running out

Local group sending WW II veterans to see their Memorial

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

It's not too late to say thank you. But time is running out.

And that's the message Faye Wiseley wants to get across as she begins to organize her first Pride and Honor flight to Washington, D.C. There is urgency in her voice and enthusiasm and pride in her heart.

Wiseley first heard about Honor Flight while watching television.

"I was watching a show on a fellow in Ohio who started flying a hand full of World War II veterans to Washington D.C. to see the new World War II Memorial," Wiseley said. "I knew right away that I wanted to get involved. And I just didn't want to go on a trip. I wanted to organize a group right here in our community."

Honor Flight has now grown to about 10 different charters, including one in Dexter – thanks to Wiseley.

"Most of us are working with local legions and nonprofit groups," she said. "We are all raising funds for this. My group is out of Dexter and the first flight is May 5."

Wiseley is seeking contributions because she doesn't want the veterans to have to pay for any of this trip. She feels it's the least she can do.

"The veterans we have signed up are very excited," Wiseley said. "If you sit and talk with these folks you can see how they are still paying for what they went through. We can't do enough for them and I think this is such a special way to say thank you."

World War II veterans are dying at 1,200 to 1,500 each day.

She contacted the American Legion Hall in Dexter and they were willing to help out in any way they could. They will host a fundraiser for Wiseley's organization, which she called Pride and Honor Flights, on Feb. 24. The event will feature Johnny Walker and his Spare Parts Band along with other activities with all the money going to Pride and Honor Flights.

Wiseley said it costs $200 to send a veteran to see the World War II Memorial.

"It's a full day that includes four to five hours in the nation's capital," Wiseley said. "They get to stop and see a few of the

Education Foundation continues to pay dividends

By Terry Jacoby
The Chelsea Standard

The "perfect storm is arriving" for the Chelsea School District, according to Owen Ballow, president of the Chelsea Education Foundation. But don't think Ballow and his foundation are jumping ship.

The Chelsea Education Foundation is planning to do even more to help Chelsea schools deal with the ever-growing financial crisis facing many districts in the state. Money shouldn't be an obstacle when it comes to a first-rate education.

Former Chelsea School District Superintendent Joe Piasecki began the foundation 16 years ago in an effort to enhance the educational opportunities available to members of the Chelsea Community. "We are a nonprofit, all-volunteer organization that raises funds to impact the Chelsea School District and community," said Ballow, who is serving a three-year term as the foundation's president.

Ballow says the foundation provides help in three areas.

"The first is to provide grants to the school district for guest speakers, field trips and special projects that they just don't have the resources to pay for but are important to our students education," he said. "The second is to provide scholarships for our students going on to college. Last year we had 66 applicants apply for scholarships and were able to award $37,000 to 49 students. And most of the students who didn't get assistance had applied for just one scholarship that we only award to one person."

Washtenaw County

High Point School is part of the Washtenaw Intermediate School District.

High Point is all about teaching, education

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

High Point School is no different than any other school when it comes to the main objective: teaching and educating our children. But High Point is different in other ways because the students require special needs.

High Point is part of the Washtenaw Intermediate School District's (WISD) program for students with severe or multiple impairments and also is home to students from Gretchen's House/WISD child care program and Honey Creek Community School.

"And all are given the opportunity to interact as a school community," says Gerri Allen, Communication Services for the Washtenaw Intermediate School District.

With the passage of Public Act 198 in 1973, Michigan became the first state in the nation to mandate special education services in public schools. In 1975 President Ford signed into law PL94-142 (Education for all Handicapped Children Act), which mandated nationally a free, appropriate public education for all students in the least restrictive environment," an Individualized Educational Plan (IEP) for each student with a disability with appropriate related services, parental participation and due process procedures.

In 1974, in between the passage of these two landmark laws, construction for High Point School began. The building opened in 1975.

"High Point has touched the lives of many hundreds of families by offering educational programming for students with severe mental impairments and severe multiple impairments," Allen said. "It is a unique educational environment dedicated to serving students who experience mental, physical and emotional challenges. Individual student goals give direction and inspiration to the classroom staff, support staff and parents as they design a variety of educational programs to meet the evolving needs of each student.

Allen said that through a team-oriented approach, students are encouraged to reach their fullest potential within the school, the home and the community.

"The staff accepts the responsibility for providing a safe, positive learning environment which fosters enthusiasm as they see the students live, learn and grow," Allen said.

If the student is determined to be eligible for a High Point program, placement is based on student needs. Determination of placement is made by the Individualized Educational Planning Committee (IEPC).

"Specifically, High Point offers student-centered programming that helps students develop greater independence in self-care skills, daily-living activities, community and occupational training, personal and social integration," Allen said. "We teach students functional academics, communication and sensory-motor development that helps students develop skills for living and functioning in the community."

High Point also offers Occupational Therapy Services, Physical Therapy Services, Speech/Communication Services, School Psychological Services, School Social Work Services, Adaptive Aquatics, staff consultations with medical specialists, services from registered nurses, teachers, and Washtenaw Intermediate School District's (WISD) special education consultants for hearing and/or visual impairments.

For more information, log onto www.wash.k12.mi.us.

Enrollment requirements

To be enrolled in a High Point program a student must be:

1. A resident of any of WISD's local school districts: Ann Arbor, Chelsea, Dexter, Lincoln, Manchester, Milan, Saline, Whitmore Lake, Willow Run or Ypsilanti.
2. Referred by a parent, a physician, an agency or a local school person. (All referrals are channeled through the appropriate local school district special education office).
3. Screened and observed by the student's current and prospective teacher.

Chelsea News In Brief

Open house

The Chelsea Senior Center, which has proudly served the community for 25 years, is offering a unique opportunity to showcase its services and products to the community.

The special open house will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on May 3 at the center, located at the Washington Street Education Center, 512 E. Washington Street, and include four hours of exhibits, breakout groups, demonstrations, entertainment and more.

There is currently indoor and outdoor exhibit space available for a modest exhibitor's fee (non-profits exhibit for free). There is no admission charge for the public.

There also will be a pancake brunch donated by Chelsea Milling.

The event is supported by Chelsea organizations such as the Chelsea Community Hospital, the Chelsea District Library, Chelsea Chamber of Commerce, and the Chelsea Center for the Arts, and Chelsea Community Education.

Presentation topics will include long-term care, insurance depression, Alzheimer's disease, reverse mortgages, housing options for an aging population and exercise for health.

For more information or to participate in this event contact the Chelsea Senior Center at 734-475-9242.

Guest speaker

Kathleen Griffiths, CEO of the Chelsea Community Hospital, will speak before the Chelsea Area AARP at 2 p.m. on Thursday, March 15 at the Washington Street Education Center. AARP is open to all people over the age of 50 and meets monthly in the Chelsea Senior Center offices.

Griffiths will speak about the growth of the hospital and her vision for the future. For more information, call 475-9242.

Night magic

The 4th annual Chelsea School District Staff and Friends show, "A Little Night Magic," will take the stage at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 23 in the Chelsea High School Auditorium. The cabaret style show features vocal and instrumental music acts, as well as a rock band, a storyteller and even some comedic entertainment. Several of Chelsea's own teachers, administrators, secretaries and custodians will perform.

Students and their families attending the show in the past have enjoyed seeing a different side to their teachers as they display talents they don't often get the chance to showcase during school hours.

Tickets for the show are $8 for adults and $5 for students. They are available at Chelsea Pharmacy and at the door.

Scholarships for our students

CHELSEA: CEF spreads wealth

The majority of the scholarships offered are divided into categories including culinary arts, automotive technology, science, engineering and nursing. Students can apply for scholarships depending on what field they plan to study in college and each scholarship has specific requirements for eligibility.

"The third area is to provide grants for other activities such as preschool programs and at the senior center," Ballow said. "In the past year, we have invested more than $50,000 of our contributors' money in these worthy endeavors."

Members of the working board of volunteer trustees are each rooted in the Chelsea community. "We include members of the business community, Board of Education, school administration and staff and area residents." Ballow said. "We're each committed to making sure that Chelsea remains a fertile ground for learning for everyone in our community."

To help achieve this goal the foundation is hosting its annual gala on Feb. 24 at Reddeman Farms Golf and Country Club. This one event raises more than half of the foundation's charitable funds. This year's gala will include a silent and live auction, drawings, strolling dinner and cocktails followed by music and dancing.

"We are overwhelmed by the generosity of those who have faithfully supported us in the past," Ballow said. "We hope that this year is no exception and that we can continue to provide excellent educational opportunities to the Chelsea community through the Chelsea Education Foundation."

For information on the Chelsea Education Foundation and the gala, log onto www.chelseaeducationfoundation.org.

Just the facts

Who: The Chelsea Education Foundation.

What they do: The foundation provides funding for a number of educational activities to benefit the residents of Chelsea. The non-profit, tax-exempt organization began in 1990 as a link between school, business and community to help strengthen Chelsea's future. Contributions to CEF are given back to the Chelsea community through scholarships for college students, grants to teachers and sponsorship of community forums on important topics.

Last year's grants: $23,000 scholarships; 49 scholarships were awarded out of 66 applicants totaling $37,000.

This year's goal: $25,000 in grants and $40,000 in scholarships.

By the numbers: Since 2001, 345 students have applied for scholarships, 237 scholarships have been awarded for a total of $205,775. Hundreds of grants have been awarded to preschool, elementary, junior high, high school and community based teachers and organizations.

The gala: The Education Foundation is hosting its annual fundraising gala at 6 p.m. on Feb. 24 at Reddeman Farms Golf and Country Club. The group raises the majority of its funds at the gala, which includes a silent and live auction, drawings, strolling dinner and cocktails followed by music and dancing. The money is used to fund school projects, community learning programs and college scholarships. Tickets are on sale for the gala through the web site at www.chelseaeducationfoundation.org. Tickets are $100 apiece.

New policy for photos online

By Terry Jacoby
The Chelsea Standard

School officials have been cautioned on publicizing student photos, accompanied by their name, on the internet because of all the predatory approaches that have taken place throughout the country.

"The caution has come from our attorney, our policy advisors and the various law enforcement agencies," said School Superintendent David Killips.

School officials recently hosted a public forum on internet safety where this information was shared with all middle school students and a night meeting was held for parents from grades 5 through 12.

"Although we did not have great attendance, information was provided that opened the eyes of the parents that did attend," Killips said. "One of the county detectives shared with us on how predators worked and were able to extract information from the internet."

Killips said the Board of Education has been working towards student safety as one of its goals in the district.

"This new approach, along with single entry points for all buildings, identification badges for everyone in the building, and security cameras at the high school, middle school and Washington Street Education Center has all improved the safety for our students," he said.

Tax abatements OK'd

The Chelsea City Council at its Jan. 23 meeting convened a public hearing on two Industrial Facilities Tax abatements for Sheridan Books on $11.6 million in property and equipment.

Jeff Cohen, Sheridan's vice president of finance, was the only one to speak at the hearing.

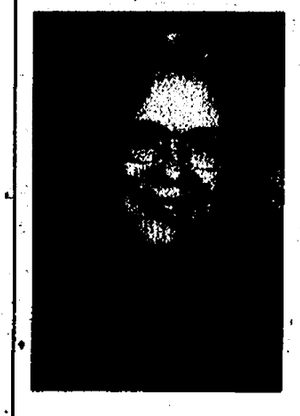

Cohen said the company had recently completed a 25,000-square foot expansion of its warehouse at 613 E. Industrial Drive in anticipation of purchasing a new color press, bindery equipment and a baler for recycling waste paper.

There would be no real net gain in employment due to the expansion, he said, because some equipment will create jobs while others would eliminate them.

"We will remain at about 250 to 260 people, but we will try to keep them within the facility," Cohen told the council.

The first 12-year abatement to be voted on was for real property worth $1,695,000 million (the building expansion); the second was on new equipment worth $9,670,731. Both measures passed on unanimous votes. "The city stands to lose about $400,000 to $500,000 in total taxes over the 12 years but the company should end up making that up through the increase of business the equipment will make possible," said Chelsea City Manager Mike Steklac.

Special volunteers

Faith in Action honors women for helping out

By Rita Fischer
Special Writer

A few weeks ago, Faith In Action was closed because of bad weather. That has always been their policy, for the safety of the volunteers. While they stay open for essential services, they want their volunteers to stay off the bad roads and be safe.

Nancy Paul, the director of Faith in Action, reflects on a day without volunteers.

"So I made my way into town to be available in case of major problems, without people coming in to shop or drop off donations," she said. "But the day ended up difficult and chaotic with the phone ringing, donors ignoring our closed signs and shoppers doing the same. By the end of the day, I was once again reminded that it simply doesn't work without our volunteers."

Faith In Action does many things for the community, with the main activity happening in the clothing room, which is entirely staffed by volunteers. Around 200 families access the "store" each month and more than 500 people make donations.

The food pantry also has been needed this winter, with income-eligible families getting a three to five day supply of non-perishable food in case of emergency.

Faith in Action helped an average of 42 families each month last year. Notably, there has been a sharp increase in the number of people who have asked for emergency food in the past two years.

"We have been very grateful for the support of so many schools, church groups and individuals in keeping our pantry stocked to meet this need, and grateful to our volunteers who organize all the food and fill food orders," Paul said.

Once a year all the volunteers that work out of the FIA building, including the Meals on Wheels drivers, clothing closet helpers, food pantry organizers, office helpers, etc., get together for a dinner at the Chelsea Hospital Dining Room. It's here where they present a Volunteer of the Year Award in each of the main programs in the FIA building.

"We know at the same time that there are a countless number of people around Dexter and Chelsea who donate time, food, Christmas presents, backpacks, medical equipment and funds to help with the work of Faith In Action," Paul said. "Indeed, the level of generosity is humbling and a true blessing."

Sharon Hoffman was named Volunteer of the Year for her many years of service in the clothing room.

"Not only is she an organizer extraordinaire, but her calmness and caring manner are very reassuring to people who come in for service," Paul said.

Hoffman, who was honored to get the award, has volunteered for about five years after retiring from the Chelsea School District as the transportation secretary. Most of her grandkids now go to Chelsea schools and Hoffman loves what she does.

"I was absolutely shocked," she said. "I like being able to help people and give them some relief when they come in. It is nice knowing that we can do something for them and they walk out with that smile. I also like volunteering with the people that I volunteer with."

Mary Beth Koeze was named the Meals on Wheels Volunteer of the Year for her many years of service.

"She brings energy and a sense of humor to the job that we know makes her a favorite among meal recipients," Paul said. "I know she gets attached to the people she serves."

Koeze, like Hoffman, had no idea she was getting the award.

"I was totally surprised," said Koeze, who has been helping for nearly 20 years. Every other week Koeze shows up in the back of the Faith in Action building to start her route, which is mostly in town.

"I just pick up the meals and deliver them to the door of the person assigned," she said. "If someone does not answer I let Mary Erskine know right away in case there is something wrong. I am a firm believer that people need help out there. People out there are in need and most of them are appreciative.

"I used to take my stepson to let him know that this is a role you have in life and it is important to give. It is not a big deal to help for an hour every other week."

AN EAGLE EYE VIEW

Women's rowing team ready to make hard work pay off

By Brad Holdren
EMU women's rowing coach
Paid Advertisement

Brad Holdren

Athletes on the Eastern Michigan University rowing team work harder before dawn than most people will work all day. When asked why they work so hard, if not for riches or fame, most will answer that they do it for the joy of the sport.

Outsiders, however, question their enjoyment because to them, it is ridiculous that an athlete would train up to 20 hours a week to race less than two hours in a season in front of a crowd often totaling less than 50. It is, however, this joy of the sport, joy of feeling the boat glide over the water, of watching the sunrise on a daily basis that keeps these athletes pushing beyond their limits and into the spring racing season.

EMU rowing, in its sixth year as a varsity sport, has big goals for its upcoming season. Led by a core group of seniors, the team is aiming for success on both a local and national level. During the school's winter recess the team will travel for a week of intense training in South Carolina. That trip will culminate in a spring kickoff race against ACC powerhouse Clemson University. The team hopes to close the gap on Clemson's early speed and perform better than last year.

The big test of speed will come in April when the team travels to New York to race Mid-American Conference rival Buffalo. Last year the Bulls beat EMU taking claim to both the MAC championship and the Harvey Cup. This year however, the Eagles have their sights on taking back the titles and leaving their mark as a team with speed and commitment.

The end of the season will wrap up with two days of racing at the South Central Regional Championship in Oak Ridge, Tenn. The Eagles, who have not raced in the regionals since 2004, will be matched up against national powerhouses like crosstown rival University of Michigan, the University of Virginia and the University of Wisconsin. The team is hoping to best its previous performances by finishing among the top 15 teams, which will hopefully place EMU among the top 30 varsity teams in the country.

With the support of local rowing fans, family and fellow teammates the EMU rowing team is looking forward to the spring thaw and the start of racing.

EDITORIAL

Letters to the Editor
Letters may be sent to editor@chelseastandard.com or to Chelsea Standard/Dexter Leader, 20750 Old US-12, Chelsea, MI 48118

Our policy
It is our policy to run all local letters to the editor that deal with local issues and are not personal attacks.

A quote you saw this week that you liked?

Will Rogers once said, "We can't all be heroes. Some of us have to stand on the curb and clap as they go by."

How about another one?

From comedian Dennis Miller: "Racial dialogue in this country has little to do with the color of our skin and everything to do with the thickness of it."

What made you laugh this week?

At the health & fitness club...

Are you a member of this club?

Yes, anyway, at the club...

Do you actually go or do you just show off the membership card to people?

I actually go. Anyway . . .

Is this the story about the underwear?

No. My wife said that wouldn't be appropriate for this column. Can I finish?

Sure, go ahead. But I like the underwear story.

I'm glad for you. Anyway, while I was trying to find a parking spot, a woman was sitting (and blocking traffic) waiting for someone to pull out near the front so she wouldn't have to walk too far. I mean, I assume the woman is there to work out, but she doesn't want to walk a few extra steps to get into the club.

The underwear story would have been much better.

Sorry, no can do.

There was a big youth basketball tournament in Chelsea this week. How did that go over?

First of all, the tournament brings in money to the Chelsea area and shows off the community for a few days. Because it's a two-day event a lot of the teams stay here. Second, some very good young basketball talent gets to show off their skills. So it's a win-win.

How do you know this, you didn't go?

No, but I wanted to. And I usually don't want to do anything.

One thing parents should remember about attending youth sporting events.

Don't cheer when a kid from the other team makes a mistake. If a player on the other team travels or the ball knocks off his knee, don't cheer. The "player" is just a kid learning the game.

What about at a high school event?

Oh, you let him have it. In high school we are building character and preparing them for the real world. So if they become a writer and make a mistake and someone "boos" they won't get so upset. In high school you jeer and boo, especially if they are from Ann Arbor.

What do you have against folks from Ann Arbor?

I think you answered your own question.

Read anything good on-line this week?

From Phil Mushnick of the New York Post: "A reader recently purchased a third-deck, back-of-the-house ticket to a concert at Radio City Music Hall. And that triggered a string of extra charges reminiscent of the ice cream man/tout sheet salesman scene from the Marx Brothers' movie, A Day At The Races. The face value of the ticket is $49.50. Then there's the Ticketmaster 'convenience charge' of $10.10. And the 'facility fee' of $4.50. And the $3.10 'order processing charge.' Total cost: $67.20. Getta you tootsie frootsie!"

Read any good books this week?

Books? Who's got the time.

You spoke to the Dexter Rotary Club this week. How did that go over?

Let's just say I'm glad I went to high school and prepared for the real world.

They booed you?

Not exactly. But I wasn't asked to become a member. And I really wanted to be asked.

Would you say yes?

I think you answered your own question again.

Our take: Nonsensical lawsuits hurt all

The same day that drug manufacturer Pfizer announced it was closing two facilities in Michigan, an AIDS organization in Los Angeles filed a lawsuit against the company, claiming its advertising for Viagra helps spread sexually transmitted diseases.

The drug giant recently said it will close its research and development facility in Ann Arbor. More than 2,100 people work at the operation, which company officials said will close by the end of 2008.

The company also will leave its Kalamazoo research site by the end of 2008. Overall, company officials said, Pfizer will cut 10,000 jobs as it seeks to cut $2 billion in costs as it faces competition from generic drugs.

That same day, the AIDS Healthcare Foundation filed a lawsuit in California. The foundation said it filed the lawsuit because studies have found that some methamphetamine abusers couple their illicit drug illegally with Viagra to achieve erections.

Meth use, it seems, decreases the chances of attaining an erection. The meth users then spread STDs and HIV through casual sex, the foundation claimed.

Somehow, the foundation has come to the conclusion that Pfizer is responsible for the actions of illegal drug users.

Here's a novel idea: How about having the meth users quit using meth and stop their illegal use of Viagra? Or how about the foundation filing lawsuits against the individuals who endanger the public and their sex partners by getting doped up and engaging in unprotected sex?

It's so much easier to blame a big company than it is to require individuals to take responsibility for their own actions, illegal as they may be. The next time we complain about the high cost of prescription drugs — legal prescription drugs — keep in mind that companies, besides the extensive research and development they undertake, also must defend themselves from nonsensical lawsuits such as the one recently filed.

Every lawsuit against a company, seeking gain due to the lack of common sense, costs more jobs. Every such lawsuit provides a reason for companies to curtail research and development that could lead to saving or improving lives.

Pfizer is in the position of developing and manufacturing legal drugs for legitimate health reasons. The company is not responsible for every buffoon intent on mixing illegal drug cocktails for a recreational high accompanied by unprotected sex.

Pfizer makes Viagra, but it certainly does not force anyone to purchase or ingest it, least of all illegal meth users. If illicit drug users abuse Viagra to increase their sense of pleasure, Pfizer is not to blame. This lawsuit is the equivalent of suing a member of the Big Three because a bank robber used one of its vehicles during a getaway.

At some point, Americans and their organizations have to stop aspiring to become the world capital of victimhood. Otherwise, we will continue to sue each other, our companies and our livelihoods out of existence.

Michigan History: Fighting for Equality

During the mid-nineteenth century, Michigan's African American population was quite small in number. In 1860, about 7,000 blacks lived in Michigan-less than 1 percent of the state's population. Although white Michiganians supported the destruction of slavery that came with the end of the Civil War, most were unenthusiastic about giving blacks equal rights. Three years after the war had ended, Michigan voters rejected the idea of giving blacks the right to vote by an overwhelming margin: (Black males received the right to vote a few years later with the adoption of the Fifteenth Amendment.) Despite being relegated to second-class citizens, Fannie Richards and William Ferguson, among other African Americans, fought for equal rights.

Ferguson

Richards

Born in Virginia about 1840, Fannie M. Richards moved to Detroit with her family in the 1850s. She received her early education in the Detroit public schools before going to Toronto, Ontario, Canada, where she studied English, history and drawing. Returning to Detroit, Richards opened a private school for African Americans in 1863. Two years later, she was appointed to teach in Detroit's segregated Colored School No. 2.

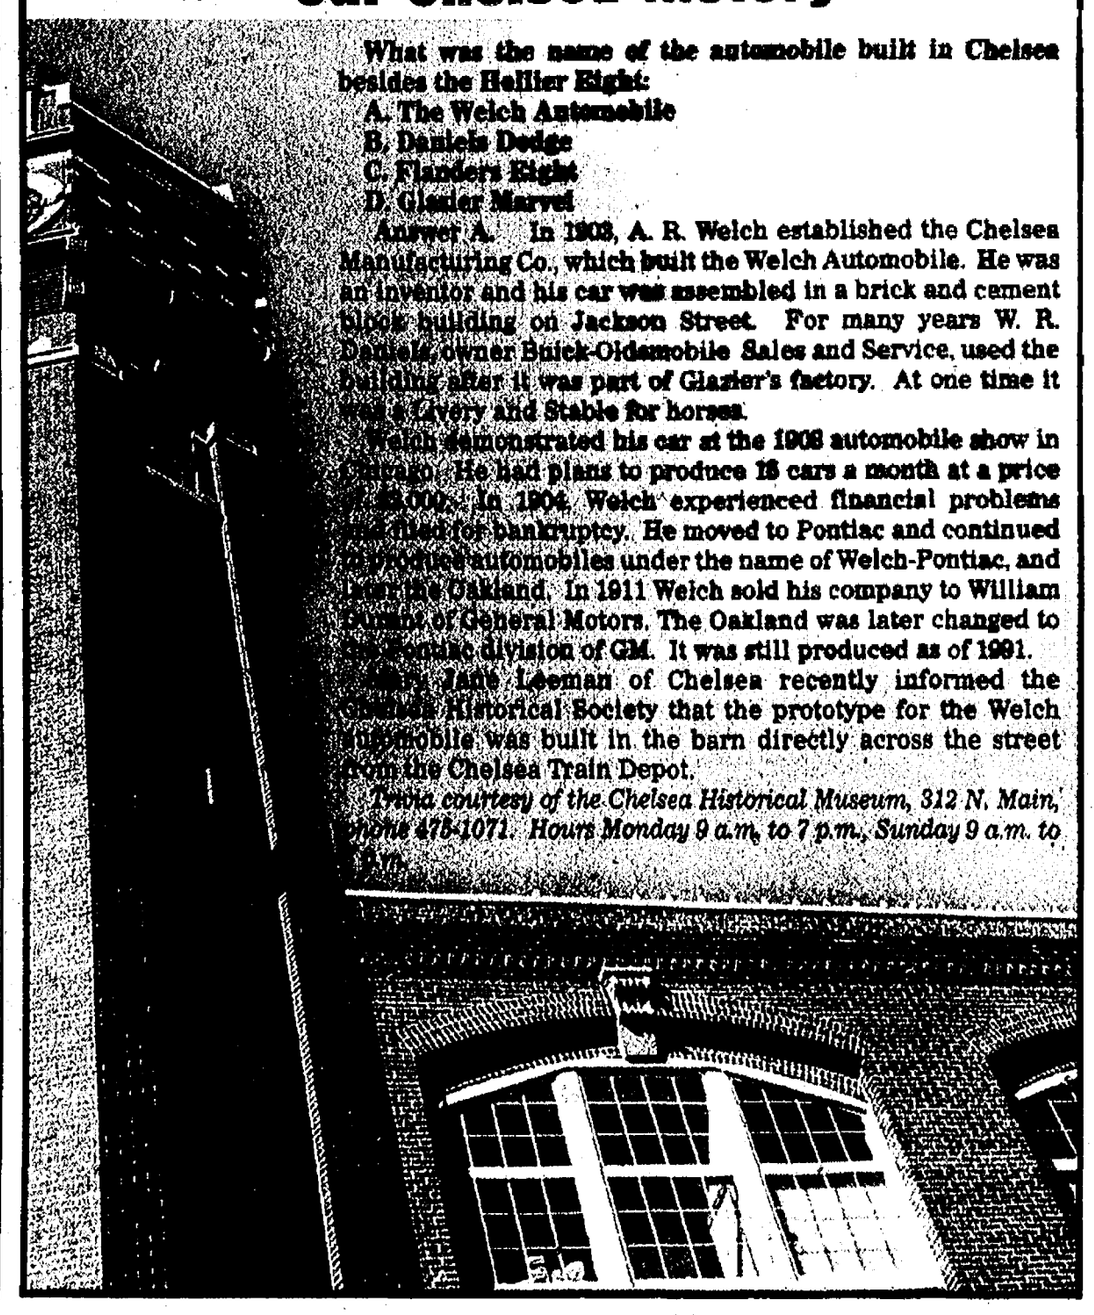

In 1869, Richards and others, including future Republican governor John Bagley, filed suit with the Michigan Supreme Court, arguing that segregated public schools were unconstitutional. The court agreed, and in 1871 Richards became the first African American teacher in Detroit's newly integrated school system.

Born in 1857 and the son of one of Detroit's earliest African American doctors, William Ferguson attended Detroit public schools and successfully pursued careers in printing, real estate and law. After being kicked out of a Detroit restaurant for refusing to sit in the "colored" section, Ferguson filed a discrimination suit. He lost, but appealed to the Michigan Supreme Court. In 1890 the court ruled segregation by race in public facilities was illegal.

A few years later, Ferguson won election to the Michigan House of Representatives-the first African American to serve in the Michigan legislature.

Our Chelsea History

What was the name of the automobile built in Chelsea besides the Hollier Eight:

A. The Welch Automobile
B. Daniels Dodge
C. Flanders Eight
D. Glazier Marvel

Answer A. In 1903, A. R. Welch established the Chelsea Manufacturing Co., which built the Welch Automobile. He was an inventor and his car was assembled in a brick and cement block building on Jackson Street. For many years W. R. Daniels, owner Buick-Oldsmobile Sales and Service, used the building after it was part of Glazier's factory. At one time it was a livery and stable for horses.

Welch demonstrated his car at the 1903 automobile show in Chicago. He had plans to produce 15 cars a month at a price of $2,000. In 1904, Welch experienced financial problems and filed for bankruptcy. He moved to Pontiac and continued to produce automobiles under the name of Welch-Pontiac, and later in Oakland. In 1911 Welch sold his company to William Durant of General Motors. The Oakland was later changed to the Pontiac division of GM. It was still produced as of 1991.

Mary Jane Leeman of Chelsea recently informed the Chelsea Historical Society that the prototype for the Welch automobile was built in the barn directly across the street from the Chelsea Train Depot.

Walberg on the record

Timothy Walberg is currently in his first term in the U.S. House of Representatives, serving Michigan's Seventh District (Branch, Eaton, Hillsdale, Jackson and Lenawee counties and parts of Calhoun and Washtenaw counties, including Chelsea and Dexter). Rep. Walberg recently participated in a question and answer with Heritage Newspapers Editor Terry Jacoby. Below is Part I of a series that will run throughout the first few months of Rep. Walberg's first term. If anyone would like to include any questions for Rep. Walberg, e-mail them to tjacoby@heritage.com.

Do you have a general philosophy you live or work by?

My mission is to live and work in such a way that I serve the people around me, and hopefully in doing so, serve my God as well.

Let's begin with some political philosophy. How do you define the role of the federal government in its simplest terms?

The federal government has two primary roles. First, the government must protect our nation from foreign enemies. Second, the government must preserve the rights and freedoms in the founding documents so people can use their abilities, ingenuity and hard work to assist their families, community and nation.

Government seems to be getting bigger and bigger on all levels, from the township board to the Congress. How can you make government less intrusive in people's lives?

We must reduce the government's resources and cut its spending powers. I will work to stop wasteful pork-barrel spending, reduce the tax burden and limit the size of government. Along with a coalition of elected officials committed to limited government and more freedom, I will work every day to return resources directly to the people and to the governments closest to the people.

Some people would like to see the Supreme Court consider other countries legal history and decisions when making laws in this country instead of solely basing how they rule on the Constitution. What are your thoughts on that?

The United States Supreme Court is obligated to follow the United States Constitution.

What should the average person in your district expect from you as their representative?

I will listen to, serve and represent the people of Michigan's 7th District. I will listen to ideas and concerns of constituents, serve through constituent relations and assisting with federal government agencies and represent the values and principles of south central Michigan. We believe in hard work, integrity and a sense of working together as a community, and I will carry those values to Congress.

One growing problem in this country is the disconnect between the people and their so-called elected representatives. How can that be improved?

When I served in the Michigan legislature, I strongly pushed for a part-time legislature. I believe the people making the laws should work side by side with the people who live under the laws. The position of a Congressman is a full-time job that requires time working in Washington D.C. and time listening to constituents in Michigan. The current calendar requiring members to spend five days per week in D.C. does not connect citizens with their representatives. Congress certainly should get its work done in Washington, but members of Congress also should be spending plenty of time in the communities they serve.

What are your thought's on President Bush's recent decision on Iraq to increase troops and set a timetable?

We cannot win the War on Terror without winning the war in Iraq. Mistakes clearly have been made, but I believe that the War on Terror is the calling of our time and as an elected official my foremost obligation is to work to protect, defend and ensure the safety of the American people.

If we run from the terrorists in the Middle East, they will follow us back to American soil. Our troops must have the resources to complete the mission and come home safe in a timely manner. We need a stable Iraq that is not hostile to America and not funding terrorist attacks. Immediate withdrawal will only embolden the terrorists. America has not been struck by a terrorist attack since 9/11, so despite mistakes, America must be doing something right.

There is a peace movement group in Chelsea (much like there is in probably every community) that demonstrates every week for peace in Iraq. If you were asked to deliver a speech to this group, what points would you make?

1) I applaud them for their passion for peace.

2) I would point out that all peaceful countries, including the United States, either protect themselves or are protected by countries willing to defend their citizens from terrorist attacks.

3) If we run from the terrorists in the Middle East,

DREAM BIG
Home Equity Line of Credit

Your Home Has Got the Power
Our low rates mean now is the time to take on the remodeling project you've been thinking about, go on that vacation you've been dreaming of, or finally get your debt under control. Don't wait on your dream any longer. A Republic Bank Home Equity Line of Credit makes it happen.

REPUBLIC BANK

For more information, call 1-800-968-4425

Introductory rate is valid on new lines with an 80% loan-to-value and effective for a minimum of 90 days after the loan date. After that time, the applicable interest rate will vary dependent upon your credit qualification. Your rate may be higher. The variable rate will range as low as the Wall Street Journal Prime (8.25% APR as of 1/01/07) minus 0.50% (currently 7.75% APR) to Prime + 2.25% (currently 10.50% APR) on line amounts of $25,000 or greater. On line amounts less than $25,000, Prime + .50% (currently 8.75% APR) to Prime + 3.25% (currently 11.50% APR) will apply. Rates assume automatic payment from a checking account with us. An increase in your APR may increase the amount of your regular payment. Maximum APR is 18%. An annual fee of $50 will be charged starting on the first anniversary date of the account opening. If your account is closed within the first 12 months of opening, you will be subject to a fee of 1% of the line amount with a minimum charge of $250. The amount you save on a debt consolidation may vary by loan. Since a home equity loan may have a longer term than some of the bills you may be consolidating, you may not realize savings over the entire term of your new loan. In addition, your loan may require you to incur premiums for property and, if applicable, flood insurance, which would affect your monthly payment. Offer subject to normal credit criteria. This offer is valid for owner-occupied single family residences only. Offer not available for home purchase transactions or manufactured homes. Offer expires 3/31/07.

sites, with the main one of course being the new World War II Memorial. Right now we are looking at a two-year program with about 10 flights per year that will require $200,000. I am taking this $1 at a time."

But time is not on Wiseley's side.

There is one statistic that Wiseley thinks of constantly. It helps keep pushing her to do more. And to work harder.

"World War II veterans are dying at 1,200 to 1,500 each day," she says. "We need to raise money quickly and take as many of these veterans as we can to see their memorial. We owe them more than that, but at least it's a nice way to say thanks."

Guardians also are needed. They too pay $200 for the trip but they must pay for their own expenses.

"It's $200 you will never forget," Wiseley said. "It's a very emotional day for everyone. You will be amazed at how many people will walk up to them and shake their hands and say thank you for what you did for us. I get emotional just thinking about it.

"This is their last hurrah and we need to shine the spotlight on as many of them as we can."

Strangers often come up to veterans at the Memorial and shake their hands.

ANDREW

had his Gameboy DS constantly at his side with Advance Wars Dual Strike warmed up and ready to go. His favorite beverages (milk, ice water, and Bug Juice) were always within reach. He had a pallet in his War Room, full command of the big leather chair in the living room and his bed and ours to choose from. He kept us hopping.

He developed an art project that consumed him up to his last day. I'll share more about that soon so maybe you can use it as we have to share and express some of him and yourself. We found it very therapeutic.

We wanted you to know that we're doing OK. That this was horrible and terrible, but we knew it was coming and have been able to move on as we need to. We have moments where we miss him so that it's breathtaking, but mostly we're glad he doesn't have to fight anymore. We have gone to dinner with friends and had close friends in to laugh and reminisce in our own version of a wake. Kid stories of Andrew are funny without being sad. I think we're doing well.

I'm sure there will be moments for the rest of our lives that are poignant because we miss Andrew's wit or thoughtfulness. He gave us so much and we will not forget, but he would not want us to be sad all the time. He was ultimately a happy kid with a rare talent for humor. We will honor that with our smiles, in our hearts and by living as he did as much as possible.

Read more about Andrew at "AndrewsUpdates," at www.carepages.com.

they will follow us back to American soil.

4) America cannot sit back and wait for another attack. We must be proactive.

Do you think the American public is getting the full picture of what is happening in Iraq from the American media?

No, absolutely not. As I've met with returning military personnel from our district, I continue to hear of great successes being achieved in Iraq. There are still hotbeds of terrorist occupation in Iraq, but the men and women serving overseas truly believe this war will be won if we stay committed to the mission.

Recently, my wife Sue visited wounded soldiers at Walter Reed Medical Center in Washington, D.C. These men and women exuded a confidence that what they are doing is the right thing and believe their mission was vital to our national security and desired the resources to complete the job.

Why don't you think our so-called allies see the big picture in Iraq and understand what it would mean to help (and I stress the word help) create a peaceful and lasting democracy of freedom in the Middle East?

Many of our allies have not experienced the extent of world leadership the United States has. We are the strongest country in the world, and the Middle East is critical in the war on terror. America must do what is right to protect our citizens, including using diplomatic and military tools.

NOTICE OF U.S. MINT RELEASE

PUBLIC SERVICE ANNOUNCEMENT:

The U.S. Mint® has announced the release of the first Presidential Golden Dollar for 2007. To insure equal nationwide coverage, you can receive an uncirculated George Washington Presidential Golden Dollar FREE from the private United States Commemorative Gallery.

These valued-condition coins have never entered the hands of the American public and have never circulated in pocket change. In fact, with this condition, the coins' luster produced by the U.S. Mint remains, making these treasures even more extraordinary and allowing them to stand out far above the rest.

It has been said that this new coin program will be much more popular than the Statehood Quarter Dollar Program™.

And since the current market price of Uncirculated State Quarters has dramatically increased in value up to 600%, we are strongly recommending that those Americans who want these Presidential Golden Dollars respond to this bulletin no later than next Tuesday.

You cannot find these dollars in your change. That is why this FREE distribution is being made to the General Public.

"It is amazing how quickly everyone is getting excited about the new Presidential Dollars. Unlike the State Quarters, where you might only be interested in a few of your favorite states, everyone has interest in our American Presidents. It spans all State borders and all ages," said Michael J. Bradshaw, U.S. Director of the private United States Commemorative Gallery.

You do not have to pay for the FREE Uncirculated Dollar. With participation in this special release program you will receive the brilliant Uncirculated Washington Golden Dollar FREE in exchange for three Loose First Class Stamps to cover the Special Gallery Display Case and return shipment to you.

Release is now authorized: Simply return the Authorized Delivery Release form. All requests must be postmarked by next Tuesday or you will forfeit your FREE Washington Golden Dollar. To ensure equal distribution of the FREE Washington Golden Dollar in your area, only one FREE Dollar per household. Sorry, no exceptions will be granted. ■

Setting the stage

Plays require dedicated, talented people

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

A packed house is smiling and at times even laughing as the cast goes through the paces before a live audience Sunday afternoon at the Purple Rose Theatre. Then, with one outburst punctuated by a racial slur, the mood darkens, not only on stage but throughout the theatre. The smiles in the audience are replaced by wide-eyed shock as the suddenly intense scene takes Frank Gilroy's "The Subject Was Roses" to one of several dramatic peaks.

Afterwards, Artistic Director Guy Sanville is asked about that moment during a question and answer period with the audience.

"We had some Jewish folks in the house yesterday and that sparked quite a spirited debate," Sanville said, sitting in the middle of the stage next to the play's director Quintessa Gallinat. "One woman was very upset and she felt it was too long between the time he said the racial slur and the time he sort of apologized for it. Another woman said she felt it was very realistic."

Sanville

Sanville then asks the crowd if they felt the performances and story were realistic. He's greeted with an overwhelming and enthusiastic "yes."

"I grew up in a house just like that," one woman said. "That's the way it was at that time," another said.

This interaction between the directors and the audience occurs during what is called a Preview show, where the cast and crew perform the play before a live audience.

"We learn a lot watching the show with the audience during these performances, but we also try and learn things from what they think," said Sanville, who is in his 11th year as artistic director and has directed more than 20 productions for the Purple Rose Theatre Co. "We like to find out things they liked, but we're also interested in things they didn't like."

For "The Subject was Roses," which runs through March 17, several comments from audience members center around items on the stage and whether they were true to the time period. Other than that, the audience seemed to enjoy the story and described the three actors as "excellent."

This final phase of preparation is just one example of the road a play takes before hitting the stage at the Purple Rose. It's a road that's never the same and often includes a few unexpected bumps and turns along the way.

The Beginning

Founded in 1991 by acclaimed actor and Chelsea native Jeff Daniels, The Purple Rose Theatre Co. is "a place for emerging talent and seasoned professionals to learn more about and to practice their craft; a place for patrons of the arts to laugh, cry and even learn something new."

The building was once a used car and bus garage owned by Daniels' grandfather. Many of the wood pillars that supported that old garage, and the weight of many cars, still help hold up the building. But they are now supporting something heavier than cars – hard-working people's passions and dreams.

A lot has changed since Daniels first opened his "Garage Theatre." A $2.1 million renovation that finished in 2001 changed not only the number of seats (from 119 to 168) and the appearance of the theatre, but raised the stakes as well. Everyone involved knew that a first-rate facility in a first-rate town deserved first-rate performances.

The dressing rooms and eating area downstairs are "cozy." There is a laundry room, offices and a good-sized scenery shop where most of the stage and sets are built. Upstairs is a sound effects and photo library and a script room as well as a conference room.

The staff roster is smaller than you think, considering they're in charge of running the operations of such a highly acclaimed and popular theatre company.

"We have nine full-time employees, three part-time employees and eight apprentices," says Alan Ribant, who has been with the Purple Rose since the beginning and serves as the managing director. "This doesn't include the actors."

These are the people that run the show at the Purple Rose. From the folks taking the tickets, to the ushers, to the production team, it's all one big family with one big goal: to put on the best show they can and live up to the high standards associated with the name Purple Rose.

Strike Day

It's Saturday night, Jan. 20, and the cast and crew at the Purple Rose are celebrating the final curtain call on "Escanaba In Love," Daniels' 11th new play and the prequel to his smash hit "Escanaba In Da Moonlight." There is, of course, a celebration for a job well done. And why not? The play is praised for its humor, warmth and "tick-tock perfect pacing."

But a few hours later the pace revs up to full speed. It's time to tear down Escanaba and build the Bronx. "We come in at 8 a.m. the next day after the final show for what is called 'Strike Day,' " Ribant explains. "We have generally two staff members and all eight apprentices come in and work a 14-hour day tearing apart the old set."

Ribant says the crew tries to keep what they can, but it's more of a back the dumpster up and toss everything in than it is picking through the scraps seeing what can be salvaged.

"We don't have a lot of storage room here so most of it goes," he said.

The very next day the new stage begins to take shape.

The Purple Rose hosts approximately 275 shows a year that run over 44 weeks. That leaves usually around two weeks in between shows to prepare for the next production.

Step 1

In a brightly lit conference room a few steps behind the director's booth, Sanville takes a break from his busy day – which is now his busy night. Every day, especially between shows, is a busy day for Sanville, who has received the Detroit Free Press Excellence in Theatre Award for Best Director four times.

Set Designer Bart Bauer works with the director of the show for the design ideas and color choices before creating his set model. Bauer not only works at the Purple Rose but also is a full-time employee of Chelsea Lumber. Technical Director Dennis Crawley, another Chelsea resident, is responsible for the actual construction of the scenery of the set which is handled by the staff.

ROSE

While actors and crew continue to go through the paces of preparing "The Subject Was Roses" across the hall, Sanville talks about the necessary paces a play takes before ever taking that first step on stage.

"We are deciding right now on our lineup for next year; we should know around March 1," Sanville says. "The process begins by picking out a few plays that we have in development and then giving them to Jeff and we decide based on a lot of different things."

The Purple Rose lineup features mostly new plays, so it's especially important to be very thorough in the selection process. The play following "The Subject Was Roses" is called "When The Lights Come On," about the high-stress coaching world of college football and the things these driven men do to the women in their lives.

"We have been working on this play for almost two years," Sanville says. "We've had two workshops (called a greenhouse) where we've hired actors and have had table readings where we just get actors together and sit around a table and read the play out loud. You really have to hear a play to know for sure. Reading is one experience, hearing is another, then producing is another."

Sanville says there are some economic considerations as well that go into the selection process.

"One of the reasons we are a successful theatre is because people come and see our stuff," Sanville says. "We get 40,000 people a year through here and doing new plays is risky business. When you do "Street Car Named Desire" and "The Odd Couple," people know what they're getting. The gutsiest thing you can do, especially in this economy, is a new play."

The Purple Rose had three new plays in the 2006-07 season and will most likely raise the curtain on three more new ones next season.

"It's risky business, but we are proud of that," Sanville says.

The Writing

"Playwriting is always about rewriting," says Sanville, who also has appeared in seven plays at the Purple Rose. "By the time we go into rehearsals there will be seven or eight drafts of a play."

For "When The Lights Come On," writer Brian

Letscher has already gone through in upwards of 20 versions of his play – and they haven't even started rehearsals. And it will certainly change even more when it hits the stage.

"We will cut some things, move things around," Sanville says. "Even Lanford Wilson (whose 1979 play "Talley's Folly" won the Pulitzer Prize for drama) is still tinkering with plays he wrote 30 years ago. It's just part of the deal. You never stop trying to make it better."

Most playwrights understand the process and even embrace it because they know it will only make their work better.

"They just want to get it right and that's what we do here," Sanville says. "We serve the writer. Even with Jeff. By the time we open one of his plays, he will have seven or eight drafts. And he really works at it and he's getting really good at it."

But what changes all depends on the play.

"We have a play that we are probably going to open the next season with and that play is ready to go right now," Sanville says. "But once we get it up on its feet, we may have to cut a little here or there. But it's already been workshopped and when (the writer) sent it to me it was ready to go."

The Details

It's late on a Wednesday evening in Chelsea. The streets are empty except for a few late-night diners making their way out of the Common Grill. Traffic has thinned out and the stores that line Main Street are dark. But the lights are on inside the Purple Rose Theatre.

Actors Grant Krause, Michelle Mountain and Patrick Michael Kenney are still hard at work. The clock is ticking and every second counts if they are to get "The Subject Was Roses" up to the high standards set by the previous show.

An assistant stage manager sits in the front row going through the script line by line as the actors read their parts. When a part is forgotten, the assistant yells out the missed line. But the actors don't miss a line very often and when they do, they don't miss a beat working on the scene.

During the rehearsal, the three understudies, plus several backstage crew members (apprentices) sit close by, paying close attention. The stage manager, two assistant stage managers, a costume designer, lighting designer and the props designer also fill the seats in the theatre.

Discussions during rehearsal range from how much water should be in the bottle on stage, to which direction the actor should make his entrance into the room, to how soon the son should sit back down after a confrontation with his father.

But much of the talk on this night centers around the violent nature of a few of the scenes. At considerable expense, The Purple Rose has brought in David Woolley, a director from Chicago who is considered an expert in how to perform a fight scene on stage. Not only do they want the scenes to look real, but they want to protect the actors as well.

"I don't want my leading lady to get a broken nose," Sanville says.

The preview performances is another step in avoiding that broken nose. Purple Rose hosted five preview shows for "The Subject Was Roses" and this is done with every play that walks through the door.

"We always do seven previews before we have our official Press Opening Night," Ribant said.

"During the first week of previews we have five previews (Thursday through Sunday) where we have talkback sessions."

They do not hold the talkbacks after the final two previews before Opening Night.

"We want to know when they got bored, when they lost interest, what can we do better, could you follow the logic," Sanville says. "You learn a lot of what you need to know watching the play with them. The audience is the last element of the production and you learn a lot watching with them. But we also like to hear what they have to say."

Sanville says there is usually one or two things that come out of this process that is very useful.

"There is usually someone who will get offended by almost anything," Sanville says. "But if 90 percent of the audience tells you the same thing for three nights in a row, you listen."

It all comes back to getting it right.

The Work

"This is a very competitive business we are in and if I don't do my job well, Jeff Daniels will find 50 other people that will come in here and take my job," Sanville says.

That's why the effort is so important.

The production values, the performances, the way the shows are presented, the work ethic and the principals they use to guide them in their work have proven to be successful.

"All of these things are world class here," Sanville says. "You won't find them any better on Broadway."

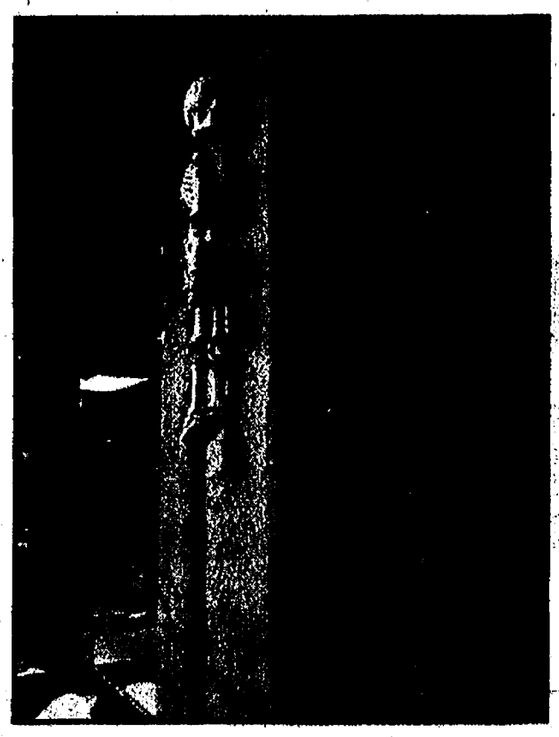

The work ethic has to be there because the work never stops.

"Our year is 68 weeks," says Sanville, who lives in Chelsea within walking distance of the theatre. "Right now we are in production for two shows. The last time I had a full day off was I don't remember.

"Those 24 weeks or so when we are in rehearsals and getting the show up in front of the public are huge weeks for us. When we aren't in rehearsals we are running the shows, maintaining the shows, selling the shows. We have our own box office here and our own marketing. We do everything in-house. We do everything from clean the bathrooms to directing shows."

There is no denying that working at the Purple Rose is a 24/7 job. But you can't work those hours if you consider what you do a job.

Says Sanville: "We all have families and we are either here or we're home and we like being at both places very much."

One of the traditions at the Purple Rose is that the actors sign the post inside the dressing room on the show's final night.

Fascinating 'Our Body' exhibit is PG-13

By Klint Lowry
The News-Herald

The New Detroit Science Center always has provided exhibits and displays meant to give visitors a better understanding of the world they live in and even into the depths of space. The latest traveling exhibit to come to the center is aiming in the opposite direction, inward, to what lies under our own skins.

"Our Body: the Universe Within" uses actual human specimens, from individual parts to entire bodies, to provide a rare glimpse at ourselves in a way only a small percentage of us usually get to see. Through the various displays, guests can see what the human skeletal, circulatory and nervous systems really look like. They can see how muscles and organs are configured and get a better understanding of why we are built the way we are.

"It's an incredible exhibit, but it's a very different one for us in a number of ways," said Todd Slisher, vice president of science programs at the New Detroit Science Center.

For one thing, the center is giving this exhibit an unofficial "PG-13" rating. Parents should know that these are complete bodies, genitalia included.

"If you're under the age of 13, we don't recommend the exhibit," Slisher said. "But if there is a parent or guardian who wants a younger child to see the exhibit, we are not going to stop them. It's just they should know our recommendation is 13 and up for this one."

There is also the reality of the exhibit to consider, for visitors of any age.

"Of course, people will react to this exhibit many different ways," Slisher said. "And some people are a little sensitive to the fact that these are real human bodies, and they can have different reactions."

Those who come with a sense of curiosity and desire to learn about the human body will get their money's worth.

From that first moment in our cribs that we notice our fingers and toes wiggling around, people go through life with an awareness of their bodies, these complex machines of living tissues in which we live our lives. As we get older, most of us get a rough idea where all the parts of the machine are and what they do without ever actually seeing the inner workings.

After all, the human body is not a car, where you pop open the hood for routine maintenance.

The look inside the body usually reserved for doctors and scientists is possible thanks to a process popularly referred to as plastination, in which all the moisture and fat is gradually replaced with a polymer, down to the cellular level.

The process takes up to 1,500 hours to complete. When it's done, the plasticized body parts are completely dry, odorless and immune to decay.

In the early stages of this process, the bodies are flexible. In some cases, the bodies have been posed in "action," as though running, bicycling, playing soccer, etc. The poses are not to amuse or entertain, but to best illustrate a particular anatomical aspect.

With the "running" man, for example, the muscles are semidetached so they can be seen separately.

Most of the displays are in cases and pertain to a specific part of the body. In several cases there are examples of healthy and diseased organs displayed side by side. Some of the larger displays are in the open so they can be seen closely and from all angles. Guests are reminded that this exhibit differs from other science center attractions in that there is no touching allowed.

The overall exhibit is divided into galleries, each focused on a particular system. The galleries flow from one to the next, with one exception dealing with gestation that is partitioned off from the rest. With examples of fetuses at various stages of development, visitors are cautioned the visceral reaction they might experience in this area could be stronger than in the rest of the exhibit.

This consideration is in keeping with the overall tone of the exhibit, which is presented in a subdued, museumlike atmosphere.

Each display includes educational panels, and there are more educational panels on the walls for each section of the exhibit. Acoustic guides are available that provide even more information at practically every station. Anyone who comes hoping to learn something about human anatomy could spend hours trying to absorb it all.

Two floors down from the rest of the exhibit is an annex that, along with more bodies on display, is a gallery devoted to the human anatomy at the cellular level. A series of stations shows images of healthy and unhealthy cells from various parts of the body. Throughout the exhibit's stay, there will be presentations and activities to enhance the visual displays.

"We're trying to add a little more science to help people enjoy the exhibit a little bit more," said Rebecca Nielsen, the science center's senior manager of education programs.

"We are going to have an educator at each floor. We will probably switch up every few weeks with programs on the cells, their composition and what the various kinds do for the body."

There are other human body exhibits on tour, all with similar names. In literature provided for this tour, there is a disclaimer that firmly disassociates "Our Body: The Universe Within" from the other exhibits with which it might be confused.

Slightly more ambiguous is the explanation that the specimens were obtained by a Chinese foundation "in a manner consistent with the laws of China." No one associated with the exhibit was at the press preview event to elaborate on that point. The written material goes on to say the specimens were donated through medical schools and other research facilities for research and educational purposes.

Individuals will have to weigh that possible moral dilemma for themselves as they also measure their own degrees of intellectual interest and simple curiosity in deciding for themselves if this exhibit is for them, and especially if it is for their children.

"We went through that a little bit when we were deciding to bring in this exhibit," Slisher said.

"But we think this exhibit has so much scientific value and so much educational value that it's worthwhile for us to bring it in for the people of southeast Michigan, even if it's not appropriate for our youngest visitors."

Tickets for "Our Body: The Universe Within" are $24.95 for adults, $22.95 for seniors and $19.95 for children, which includes general admission to the center. Children ages 12 and younger must be accompanied by an adult.

During the exhibit's run through late May, the center's IMAX Dome Theatre will be showing the film "The Human Body," which can be seen for an additional $3 for adults and $2 for children and seniors with the purchase of a ticket to "Our Body: The Universe Within." Advance tickets are available at www.detroitsciencecenter.org.

Actual human specimens preserved with a plasticizing process are used to show the inner aspects of our anatomy in "Our Body: The Universe Within." In this case, the muscles are highlighted on a "running" figure.

Andrew Garver Knox
Chelsea

Andrew Garver Knox, age 10, ended his four-and-a-half year battle with Acute Myeloid Leukemia on Feb. 8, 2007. He was born in Ann Arbor on Nov. 27, 1996. He attended Chelsea elementary schools and was proud to be a member of Mrs. Quilter's first grade and Mrs. Gillingham's 3rd/4th grade class. He was a voracious reader especially of World War II history, a fanatical Lego builder, and a self-described "gamer" who enjoyed all types of video and computer games. He wanted to be a farmer and a soldier when he grew up. He was witty and funny and bright and wise, and will be missed by all who knew him.

Andrew passed away at home, surrounded by his family, and is remembered by his sister, Melissa, and by his parents Thomas and Carol Knox of Chelsea. Maternal grandparents are Phil and Jane Franke of Jerseyville, Ill. Paternal grandparents are Dennis and Peggy Knox of Stillwater, Okla. No services are planned at this time, but the family intends to hold a celebration for all of Andrew's friends at one of Andrew's favorite local parks this summer. Information will be made available on Andrew's website, "AndrewsUpdates" at www.carepages.com. Please feel free to visit there and share your memories or thoughts with the family. The family asks that you make a gift to honor Andrew and Melissa's choices as follows:

Donations in Andrew's name can be made to Doctors without Borders (1-888-392-0392 Doctors Without Borders USA, P.O. Box 5030, Hagerstown, MD 21741-5030).

Andrew was concerned about children with illnesses in countries where there weren't enough doctors or medicines to help them. Donations in Melissa's name can be made to the Friends of Camp-Mak-A-Dream (248-539-9970, 31555 Fourteen Mile Road, Suite 111, Farmington Hills, Mich. 48334), a wonderful camp in Montana for kids with cancer and their siblings. Melissa has attended every year for the past three years and will be welcome to attend until she is 17 at which time she can be a camp counselor. Arrangements completed by the Nie Family Funeral Home.

Elizabeth J. "Betty" Thiel
Dexter

Elizabeth J. "Betty" Thiel passed away on Feb. 7, 2007 after an extended illness. She was 92.

She died at her home at Hillside Terrace where she received loving, excellent care.

She was born in Detroit on Feb. 3, 1915 to late Arthur and Emily McKenzie. She married Leonard W. Thiel on Nov. 28, 1936 in Detroit. She was a resident of Ann Arbor and Dexter. She was a homemaker, Cub Scout Den Mother and member of St. Joseph Catholic Church. She raised three sons, Leonard W. Jr. (Elaine) of Hermitage, Pa., James A. of Southfield and Bruce W. (Linda) of Dexter, and was rewarded with 5 granddaughters, Dawn (Richard) Jones of Sharpsville, Pa., Rachel (Ronald) Anderson of Fairport, N.Y., Kimberly (Ronald) Fisher of Hermitage, Pa., Julia (Michael) Barton of Ypsilanti, and Angela Thiel of Dexter and three grandsons, Eric (Carol) Theil of New Wilmington, Pa., Kirk (Teresa) Thiel of Butler, Pa. and Jeffery Thiel of Calumet, Mich., 14 great grandchildren and 1 great great grandchild. Her daughter-in-laws Elaine, Carolyn and Linda all held a very special place in her heart; she was a very caring, loving person who especially enjoyed being with family and friends. Celebrating holidays with family was very special to her. She has been a very special part of Linda's family, celebrating holidays and all special occasions. She loved Sunday rides in the country, long walks and a hot fudge Sundae at the Dairy Queen. Also surviving brother, Arthur (Thelma) McKenzie, of Roseville (Thelma was also a sister to Betty's husband Leonard), Emily McKenzie of Lenox, Mich. and Geraldine (John) Pafford of St. Clair Shores and several nieces and nephews, brothers- in-law, Walter (Frances) Thiel of Sterling Heights, and Ralph (Bernadine) of Ore Valley, Ariz. Preceding her in death her husband Leonard, who died April 25, 1980, her parents, mother and father-in-law Augusta & Walter Thiel and a very special sister-in-law and her husband, Gladys (Walter) Zatorski. A special thank you to Arbor Hospice and Arbor unit of Heartland Health Care Center. Funeral Mass was Feb. 12 at St. Joseph Catholic Church in Dexter. Burial in St. Joseph Cemetery. Contributions may go to Maya Indian Mission (P.O. Box 8195 Toledo, OH 43605)

Betty A. Freeman
Chelsea

Betty A. Freeman of Chelsea passed away Friday, Feb. 9, 2007 at Chelsea Retirement Community, Towsley Village. She was 80.

She was born in Keego Harbor , Michigan on July 25, 1926 the daughter of Rolla S. and Bessie R. (Eubank) Pierce. On Dec. 5, 1942 she married William W. Freeman in Detroit. He preceded her in death in 1985. She had lived in the area since 1953. She was a member of the First United Methodist Church of Chelsea and was active in the Deborah Women's Circle. She was a volunteer for the Chelsea Hospital Auxiliary for several years. She enjoyed needlepoint and crewel work and loved being a homemaker.

She is survived by her children, Rebecca Freeman of Pinckney, Ruth Freeman of Chelsea, and William N. Freeman of Green Bay , Wisc.; grandchildren David and Rachel Stone, Emily and Rebecca Freeman; one great-grandchild, Piper Stone; one brother, William Pierce, of Chelsea, and one sister, Maxine Burris, of Newton, Iowa.

Funeral services were from the Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home on Feb. 12, 2007 with Rev. Beth Foster and Rev. Joy Barrett officiating. Interment followed at Oak Grove East Cemetery.

Warming up

Jacob's wife (Amanda Forrester), Joseph (Joel Snider) and the narrator (Tally Chomic) admire his coat, while the brothers and their wives scheme in the background. The Dexter High School drama club's latest production of Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" won't debut until Feb. 22 through 25, but the club decided to provide some previews to other Dexter schools. Some 20 cast members performed at some scenes Monday for students at Bates Elementary, Cornerstone Elementary, Creekside Intermediate and Wylie Elementary. Showtimes are Feb. 22 to 24 at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 25 at 2 p.m. Ticket prices are $10 for adults, $8 for students/senior citizens and can be purchased at the Dexter Area Chamber of Commerce, Dexter District Library, Busch's and the Country Market. For more information contact (734) 449-8042 or visit www.dexterdrama.org.

Builders Home Show

The Home Builders Association of Washtenaw County will host the 17th annual Builders Home & Improvement Show March 16-18 at the Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds, 5055 Ann Arbor-Saline Road in Saline.

Nearly 200 exhibitors, including kitchen and bath experts, window and door suppliers, custom builders, remodelers, landscape architects, handyman services and more will be present at the 2007 Show. The Builders Home & Improvement Show will be open Friday, March 16 from 3 to 9 p.m.; Saturday, March 17 from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sunday, March 18 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tickets for this event are $5 for adults and are available at the door, children 3-12 and under are free.

Water testing

Free water quality risk assessments and nitrate screenings are offered to residents of Washtenaw County through the Michigan Groundwater Stewardship Program. Many homes in this area rely on groundwater to supply their drinking water, and although groundwater is often deep underground, actions above ground still can impact it.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency recommends that well-supplied drinking water should be tested once a year for nitrates, nitrites and bacteria. Nitrates and phosphates from fertilizers, fuels from storage tanks, septic waste, and pesticide chemicals all can contaminate groundwater. Many contaminants that are found in drinking water supplies are colorless and odorless and therefore are not detectable without testing.

For a free water quality risk assessment and nitrate screening, call Aistis Tumas at the Washtenaw Conservation District at (734) 761-6721, ext. 101.

Buzzer-beater keeps Dawgs perfect

Sports Editor

The magical season continues for Chelsea's boys' basketball team.

Last Friday night, the Bulldogs (14-0, 9-0 Southeastern Conference), ranked No. 2 in the Associated Press Class B state poll and No. 7 in the Detroit News' Super 10, pulled out a thrilling 62-61 overtime victory over visiting Ann Arbor Pioneer.

Junior forward Greg Rebudela scored on a short jumper as the buzzer sounded giving Chelsea the exhilarating victory.

"It was a game neither team deserved to lose," said Chelsea coach Robin Raymond. "The biggest compliment I can pay our team is we held our poise. They never had a look in their eye that they were going to lose this game. This team plays with a lot of confidence. There was no nervousness on the bench. They had confidence they were going to get it done."

Pioneer (11-3), whose only losses have come to Chelsea (twice) and to state-ranked Birmingham Detroit Country Day, entered last Friday's game with revenge on their collective minds.

Ann Arbor jumped out to a 13-8 first quarter lead.

"We knew they'd be fired up and ready to play," Raymond said. "We wanted to weather the storm and stay close until their adrenaline high wore off."

At halftime, the Bulldogs fought back to tie the game at 24-24.

"We did a good job of running our offense in the second quarter," Raymond said. "At that point, both teams knew it was going to be a one-possession game. I told the kids at the half it would be a dogfight until the end."

Entering the fourth quarter, Chelsea held a slim 39-38 lead.

"Pioneer is very athletic," Raymond said. "They have kids that have played a lot of basketball. The difference between our two teams is very slim."

In the fourth quarter, the Pioneers outscored the Bulldogs 15-14 forcing overtime.

Chelsea had a chance to win the game in regulation.

After calling a timeout with 10 seconds left, the Bulldogs had an open shot, but senior forward Mike Sauers' jumper rattled in and out of the rim as time expired.

"The kids executed well, the ball just didn't fall," Raymond said. "It was a good shot."

In the four-minute extra session, the Bulldogs opened up a six-point lead.

Ann Arbor, however, refused to quit, battling back to take a 61-60 lead with 20 seconds remaining as Pioneer standout guard J.T. Knight drilled a three-pointer from the top of the key.

After the Bulldogs lost possession, Pioneer had the ball with 11 seconds left on the clock. It appeared Chelsea's unbeaten season would come to a close. After Ann Arbor inbounded the ball, guard Matt Johnson was fouled with nine seconds left. He missed the front end of a 1-and-1 free throw attempt. The miss was rebounded by Sauers.

Chelsea hits stride against Lincoln

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

With last week's 10-1 mercy-rule victory over visiting Ypsilanti Lincoln, Chelsea hockey appears to have overcome its mid-season struggles.

With their win over the Railsplitters Feb. 7, the Bulldogs (12-7-2) are unbeaten in three out of their last four games. Prior to its recent turnaround, Chelsea had been in a mid-season funk, going winless in three straight contests. With two games remaining in the regular season, the Bulldogs appear ready for a strong postseason run.

"I think we've been playing well," said Chelsea coach Don Wright. "With the exception of the Davison game (6-1 loss, Jan. 26), we've outplayed and out-shot everyone we've been playing. We're limiting their chances and taking the play to the other team."

A prime example of that topflight play came against Lincoln. The Bulldogs dominated from the opening drop of the puck, until the final seconds ticked off in the second period. With an eight-goal differential, the contest was stopped because of the mercy-rule at the end of the second period.

To begin the game, Chelsea senior forward Schyler Williams scored at 3:15 of the first period off an assist from freshman forward Drew Brown and junior forward Matt Heinen.

At 7:22 of the first period, Williams scored his second goal of the night giving the Bulldogs a 2-0 advantage. Picking up an assist on the play for Chelsea was senior forward David Maveal.

Senior forward Mike Bazydlo increased the Bulldogs' lead to 3-0 scoring at 8:55 off an assist from senior forward Howdy Holmes and senior defenseman Jake Vaughan.

At 13:25, junior defenseman Andrew Korc scored his first goal of the year increasing Chelsea's lead to 4-0. Holmes recorded an assist on the play for the Bulldogs.

One minute later, junior forward Garrett Nickels scored off an assist from senior forward Shawn Scott and sophomore forward Riley Feeney.

In the first period, Chelsea out-shot Lincoln 21-5.

In the second period, the Bulldogs continued their onslaught, as Bazydlo scored his second goal of the game shorthanded at 1:03 of the frame for a 6-0 Chelsea advantage.

At 3:39 of the second period, Johnny Craddick scored for the Rails cutting the Bulldog lead to 6-1.

Chelsea answered one minute later, as Williams scored his third goal of the contest for a hat trick on a power play. Junior forward James Cogswell and Heinen recorded an assist on the goal for the Bulldogs.

Twelve seconds later, senior defenseman Travis Amburgey scored increasing Chelsea's lead to 8-1. Maveal assisted on the play for the Bulldogs.

Forty-six seconds later, Maveal scored on a power play for a 9-1 Chelsea advantage. Junior forward Kyle George and Holmes picked up as assist on the goal for the Bulldogs.

At 8:30 of the second period, Brown scored an unassisted shorthanded goal for the night's final margin.

For the game, Chelsea outshot the Railsplitters 41-10.

Earning the win between the pipes for the Bulldogs was senior goaltender Zach Leszczynski.

Chelsea takes on rival Dexter

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea's boys' swimming and diving team lost to visiting county rival Dexter 108-78 in a dual meet last Friday.

"Dexter was somewhat of a let down," said Chelsea assistant coach Brian Thomas. "Friday was not one of our best meets by any standard. Dexter was ripe for the picking and we just couldn't get it going.

"We just didn't seem to get into the rivalry as much as Dexter and that is really frustrating."

To open the meet, the Bulldog foursome of senior Jake Policht, junior Michael Kozma, sophomore Dominic Conybeare and freshman Viran Rana placed third in the 200 medley relay with a time of 1:58.99. Senior Mark Bowdish, senior Doug Lance, senior Deric Prieskorn and sophomore Todd Kruse finished fifth in 2:06.82.

In the 200 freestyle, Chelsea senior Rick Kinsey placed first in 1:50.88. Senior Nick Armstrong was second in 1:53.00, while sophomore Ryan Wrathall was sixth in 2:05.37 for the Bulldogs.

Conybeare was Chelsea's top finisher placing fourth in the 200 individual medley with a clocking of 2:21.20. Sophomore Nick Dyerly was fifth in 2:26.60 and Rana sixth in 2:30.63 for the Bulldogs.

Senior Brett Kruse was third in the 50 freestyle in 24.63 to pace Chelsea. Policht was fourth in 24.67, while freshman Evan Phillips was sixth in 25.07.

Freshman Michael Heydlauff placed second in the one-meter diving competition with a personal best 190.55 points. Sophomore Peter Wilke was third with a personal best 167.20 points, while freshman Pete Kinsey was fifth with 92.90 points for the Bulldogs.

"Our divers dove really well, including new diver Pete Kinsey," Thomas said.

Armstrong touched second in the 100 butterfly in 58.90. Rana was fifth in 1:06.82, while Dyerly was sixth in 1:07.70.

Senior Jordan Skidmore bested the field in the 100 freestyle finishing first in a state-qualifying time of 51.54. Brett Kruse was fifth in 55.14, while Phillips was sixth in 55.86.

Rick Kinsey placed first in the 500 freestyle with a clocking of 5:12.50. Senior James Bassett was fifth in 5:30.05, while junior Patrick Shaughnessy was sixth in 6:58.12 for Chelsea.

In the 200 freestyle relay, Dyerly, Phillips, Policht and Wrathall placed third in 1:39.66. Sophomore Jared Gentz, Bowdish, Prieskorn and Wilke finished sixth in 1:58.64.

Skidmore ended up second in the 100 backstroke with a time of 1:02.18. Conybeare was third in 1:02.31, while Todd Kruse was fifth in 1:05.87.

Kozma placed fourth in the 100 breaststroke in 1:15.24. Policht was fifth in 1:17.21, while Lance was sixth in 1:17.55.

In the 400 freestyle relay, the Bulldog group of Rick Kinsey, Brett Kruse, Skidmore and Armstrong finished first in 3:35.84. Dyerly, Wrathall, Phillips and Conybeare ended up third in 3:45.78. Sophomore Michael Palluzzi, junior Jessy Taylor, Gentz and Wilke placed sixth in 5:18.18.

On Feb. 6, host Chelsea defeated Brighton 94-92 in a dual meet.

"That was a thriller," Thomas said. "After starting off slow, in the second half of the meet we really took off. By splitting our 400 freestyle relays we were able to win the meet by two points.

"We had 31 personal best times against Brighton and most of the team shared in the effort to win the meet."

The group of Skidmore, Policht, Rana and Dyerly finished third in the 200 medley relay in 1:55.80 to begin the meet. Todd Kruse, Kozma, Bowdish and Prieskorn placed fourth in 2:05.74.

Bulldogs face No. 7 ranked Churchill

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea volleyball participated in the highly competitive Temperance Bedford Invitational last Saturday.

The Bulldogs ended their tournament run losing to Class A No. 7-ranked Livonia Churchill in two games.

"We had a lot of momentum in the first game, but our serve percentage was not high enough to keep pressure on them," said Chelsea coach Laura Cleveland.

In tournament pool play, Chelsea defeated Ida, Livonia Stevenson and Ann Arbor Pioneer. The Bulldogs lost to the host Mules.

"I was very happy with the flow of our team both on offense and defense throughout the tourney," Cleveland said. "We have really improved in both areas with improved digging. Our digging gives us the ability to transition attack and score more points in our rallies."

Leading the Bulldogs defensively at the Bedford invite was senior Paige Denison, senior Hannah Osbeck and sophomore Carolyn Olsen.

Cleveland said she was pleased with her team's offensive performance.

"Offensively, our outside hitters hit over .250 for the first time all season which shows a great improvement in that area for our team," she said.

Leading the Bulldog attack was senior outside hitter Ann Kendzicky (5-foot-11) with 73 kills. Kendzicky's kill total set a school tournament record.

Last Thursday, host Chelsea defeated county rival Dexter in five games.

The Bulldogs are 5-1 in the Southeastern Conference and 3-0 in the SEC White Division.

Chelsea next travels to SEC foe Ann Arbor Pioneer for a match Thursday at 7 p.m. On Feb. 22, the Bulldogs will participate in the SEC Tournament at Ypsilanti Lincoln at 3 p.m.

Manville signs with Eastern Michigan

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

If you met Maggie Manville on the street, you would thinks she's a nice, friendly young lady.

But lace on a pair of cleats and face the Chelsea senior on the soccer field, and she'd be your worst nightmare.

Last week, Manville, 17, signed to continue her soccer career at Eastern Michigan University. The All-State goalie is only the second Bulldog girls' soccer player to sign with a Division I college. Leslee Parker (1998 graduate), also a keeper, who suited up for Butler University, is the other Chelsea player.

"I'm really happy with my choice," said Manville, who started playing goalie in the fourth-grade. "I honestly didn't think I would be playing college soccer. But I love soccer and I don't know what I'd do without it."

Manville (5-foot-8), who also considered the University of North Carolina at Asheville, said her older sister Sarah, a former Bulldog All-State goalie herself, who played at Florida Southern, encouraged her to pursue her college soccer dreams.

"It was then I decided to go big," said Manville, who carries a 3.4 grade point average. "I wanted to play Division I soccer. My sister told me to try for Division I because she felt I could play at that level. In Division I, I'll be able to push myself. I've never had anyone push me."

Manville, a two-time Chelsea captain, has been virtually unbeatable as Bulldog keeper. Last year, she posted 15 wins in 19 games, making 65 saves out of 79 shots on goal for a save percentage of 82. Her goals allowed per game was a school single-season record 0.74. She also had 11 shutouts tying a school single-season record.

"Maggie has terrific athleticism and excellent hands," said Chelsea coach Chris Orlandi, describing Manville's strengths as a keeper. "She loves our varsity team. No one has been more devoted to the program than Maggie."

Manville, who said good hands and quick feet were keys to being a top goalie, said simply being a part of the Chelsea soccer program has been special.

"The team bonding and the love that everyone has for the game has been most memorable," she said. "My teammates have helped me develop my skills."

Also special has been the moments Manville's spent with her older sister Sarah.

"She's definitely motivated me," she said. "I didn't have that drive that she did. I'm trying to get that from her. She definitely pushes me in conditioning.

"Growing up, we would shoot on each other. We still practice together. We'll go to the high school and take shots at each other."

It's those practices with her sister that have helped make Manville one of the state's top keepers.

"Maggie's passion for the program and her teammates is special," Orlandi said. "On the field, Maggie makes huge plays time and time again. There are games that we wouldn't have an opportunity to compete in if she weren't in back making saves and keeping us close."

Chelsea's Maggie Manville signed to continue her soccer career at Eastern Michigan University last week. The senior keeper tied a school single-season record with 11 shutouts last season. Standing behind Manville is Chelsea assistant soccer coach Dave Pieske (left), Bulldog head soccer coach Chris Orlandi and Chelsea Athletic Director Wayne Welton.

Orlandi said he'd never forget a game against Temperance Bedford two years ago when Manville was a sophomore.

"We were winning 1-0 with seconds remaining," he said. "Bedford was awarded a penalty kick. Their best player hit her shot toward the corner to Maggie's right. Maggie sprawled that way, got her fingertips on it and clung to the ball to preserve the victory.

"I haven't seen a more dramatic finish in my coaching career."

Manville said she'd like to finish her career on top.

"I want to push myself harder this year," she said of her final senior season this spring. "Our team has been together since fourth grade. We're like a big family. We've known since middle school that we could do great things. We want to accomplish our dreams. We want to play in the state final. Winning states has been a dream."

Manville said the bigger the game, the better she likes it.

"I love the adrenaline," she said, of playing keeper. "When we're playing the big teams, the game is on the line and I stop the ball, it's a rush."

When asked to describe his standout keeper, Orlandi used two words.

"Determined and passionate," he said succinctly.

Manville said she's looking forward to her upcoming collegiate career.

"It'll be like living a dream playing Division I soccer," she said.

Or a nightmare for her opponents.

Bulldogs eighth at meet

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea wrestling took it on the chin at last Saturday's Southeastern Conference meet at Saline, finishing eighth overall with 80 points. The Bulldogs ended up fourth in the SEC White Division.

Chelsea, a relatively young and developing team that has battled injuries all season, struggled against the deeper squads of the always-tough SEC.

Winning the conference title was perennial state power Temperance Bedford with 314 points.

Placing second was state-ranked Tecumseh with 241 points.

The host Hornets were third with 160.5 points, while Dexter was fourth with 151 points.

Individually for the Bulldogs, two grapplers placed.

Finishing third in the league at 119 pounds was sophomore Jamin Breslin.

Also placing third in the SEC was senior Danny Ngo at the 130-pound weight class.

Junior James Connelly, who competed in the 171-pound weight division, received the SEC Sportsmanship Award for Chelsea.

The Bulldogs next travel to Adrian to participate in the state Division II individual district Saturday.

Chelsea competed in team districts after press deadline. If successful in the district, the Bulldogs would travel to Carleton Airport for the regional meet Wednesday.

The Division II state final is March 2 through 3 at Battle Creek's Kellogg Arena.

LINCOLN

Wright said he was pleased with his squad's performance despite playing an outmanned Lincoln team.

"I thought, earlier in the year when we played them we were flat, winning by only a couple of goals," he said, of Chelsea's 4-2 win over the Rails Dec. 13. "We're playing well now. I liked that we played the game (last week) at our level. Sometimes you can have a tendency to play at their (opponents) level. We didn't do that this time."

The Bulldogs next host Ann Arbor Huron Wednesday at 6:30 p.m.

On Feb. 24, Chelsea concludes its regular season hosting Lansing Catholic Central at 7 p.m. The Bulldogs will celebrate Senior Night.

with 6.8 seconds remaining on the clock.

"We wanted to get the ball in Nate's (Schwarze) hands," Raymond said of the Bulldogs' star point guard. "We still had to go two-thirds of the court (to score)."

Off the timeout, the Bulldogs were able to get the ball into Schwarze's hands. With time winding down, Schwarze was double-teamed once he reached the top of the key. Before he could get completely boxed in, however, the 5-foot-11 senior found a wide-open Rebudela on the left baseline near the basket.

"Nate threw a nice pass to Greg," Raymond said. "He (Rebudela) caught it in midair, turned and shot the ball as the buzzer sounded."

The ball swished through the net giving Chelsea the win and preserving its perfect season.

Schwarze led the Bulldogs with 25 points, including five three-pointers, six rebounds, five steals and seven assists.

Senior guard Adam Connell added 11 points and five steals, while senior forward Micah Hudson (6-2) and Rebudela each had 10 points and five boards.

Sauers finished with six points, six rebounds, three steals and three assists for Chelsea.

The Bulldogs ended up 23-of-52 from the field for 44 percent. Pioneer was 25-of-48 for 52 percent.

At the foul line, Chelsea was 10-of-17 for 59 percent. Ann Arbor was 5-of-8 for 63 percent.

Pioneer out-rebounded the Bulldogs 28-25.

Chelsea forced 21 turnovers and had 17 steals. The Bulldogs had 15 turnovers.

On Feb. 6, the visiting Bulldogs defeated Saline 53-41.

"Any game on the road is hard," Raymond said. "Saline is always tough. We're excited with the win.

"Defensively I thought we played well. Our goal is always to hold a team under 50 points. We played well, but not great."

Chelsea led 11-9 after one quarter.

At the break, the Bulldogs opened up a 26-16 advantage.

Heading into the fourth quarter, Chelsea continued leading 41-32.

In the fourth frame, the Bulldogs outscored the Hornets 12-9 for the night's final margin.

Schwarze paced Chelsea with 22 points, seven assists and five steals.

Hudson added a double-double of 18 points and 12 boards, while Connell had six points and Sauers five points for the Dawgs.

Junior guard Elliot Marshall had two points for Chelsea.

The Bulldogs finished 19-of-41 from the field for 46 percent. Saline was 13-of-37 from the floor for 35 percent.

At the line, Chelsea was 10-of-17 for 59 percent, while the Hornets were 8-of-11 for 73 percent.

Saline out-rebounded the Bulldogs 22-21.

Chelsea forced 19 turnovers and had 13 steals. The Bulldogs turned the ball over 11 times.

Chelsea next hosts Ann Arbor Huron Thursday at 7 p.m.

On Tuesday, the Bulldogs travel to Temperance Bedford for a game at 7 p.m.

On Feb. 23, Chelsea visits Tecumseh for a match up at 7 p.m.

JV Basketball

Chelsea's JV boys' basketball team lost to host Saline 45-35 Feb. 6.

Mike Roberts led the Bulldogs (6-7) with 16 points. Jake Mantel added 15 points.

On Feb. 2, host Chelsea defeated rival Dexter 57-53.

Chris Morgan paced the Bulldogs with 17 points.

Roberts and Mantel each netted 16 points for Chelsea.

On Jan. 30, the visiting Bulldogs topped Ypsilanti Lincoln 50-46.

Morgan led the way with 14 points. Roberts added 12 points, while Mantel had seven points for Chelsea.

"We have been playing well the last four games," said Chelsea coach Mark Scheese. "Brett Everding, Mike Lenneman, Tyler Fischhaber and Alex Keely have been contributing a lot to the success we have been having."

The Bulldogs next host Ann Arbor Huron Thursday at 5:30 p.m.

On Tuesday, Chelsea travels to Temperance Bedford for a game at 5:30 p.m.

On Feb. 23, the Bulldogs visit Tecumseh for a contest at 5:30 p.m.

Icers earn academic honors

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea hockey is not only talented on the ice, but the Bulldogs also excel in the classroom.

Last week, Chelsea earned Michigan High School Hockey Coaches Association Academic All-State recognition.

The Bulldogs carry a 3.18 cumulative team grade point average.

"It's one of the goals we set as a team at the beginning of each year," said Chelsea coach Don Wright. "We're very proud to receive the award every year. We take a lot of pride in it."

Chelsea has received Academic All-State honors for the fourth year in a row and for the fifth time in the last seven years.

"It (earned award) says a lot about our young men," Wright said. "They're able to balance being on the ice six days a week and continue to get good grades."

To receive Academic All-State status, a squad must have a combined 3.0 GPA. All grades are based on a 4.0 scale.

Tops among Chelsea in the classroom include senior forward Michael Bazydlo who carries a 3.87 GPA, senior defenseman Jake Vaughan with a 3.72 GPA and sophomore forward Riley Feeney with a 3.83 GPA.

Other academic leaders for the Bulldogs include junior forward Garrett Nickels with a 3.44 GPA, senior defenseman Nick Mattson with a 3.55 GPA, senior defenseman Travis Amburgey with a 3.53 GPA, junior forward Kyle George with a 3.33 GPA, senior forward Howdy Holmes with a 3.53 GPA and freshman forward Drew Brown with a 3.38 GPA.

Genetic testing sheds light on degenerative eye disease

ANN ARBOR – Genetic testing for eye disease is providing vital information about complex retinal diseases, especially when used to confirm a clinician's diagnosis.

In a newly published review of such tests that were conducted over a five-year period at the University of Michigan Kellogg Eye Center, scientists were able to confirm a clinician's diagnosis in half of the cases. The testing took place in the laboratory of Radha Ayyagari, Ph.D., director of Kellogg's Ophthalmic Molecular Diagnostic Laboratory.

In the February issue of Archives of Ophthalmology, Ayyagari and her colleagues report on 350 genetic tests conducted since 1999, when the U-M Ophthalmic Molecular Diagnostic Laboratory became one of the first laboratories in the nation to receive government approval for ophthalmic testing under the Clinical Laboratory Improvement Amendment (CLIA).

For each test described in the current study, scientists analyzed one or more of eight genes known to cause diseases of the retina.

Of the 350 tests, 266 were performed to confirm a clinician's diagnosis, by far the most common use of genetic testing for eye disease. Another 75 tests sought to determine whether an individual was a "carrier" of a disease, and nine tests were used to predict the likelihood that an individual with a family history of a given eye disease would go on to develop it.

Ayyagari's team was able to determine the molecular basis of the disease in half of 266 tests conducted to confirm a diagnosis. These results are significant because many retinal diseases present similar symptoms, and it is sometimes difficult for even the most skilled specialist to distinguish one from the other. By comparing a patient's DNA to known disease-causing genes, scientists deliver information needed to confirm or rule out a diagnosis. To date, scientists have identified over 130 genes associated with retinal disease, such as retinitis pigmentosa and macular degeneration.

The authors observe that genetic testing for eye disease is a relatively new and evolving practice. Says Ayyagari, "Molecular diagnostics does not replace the necessary expertise of the ophthalmologist; rather, it adds a new tool to the ophthalmologist's diagnostic arsenal."

The report describes one case in which parents with no family history of retinal degeneration requested genetic testing in hopes of revealing the specific nature of their son's eye disease. They also wanted to know whether the younger son, who was experiencing more subtle symptoms, had the same disease or a milder vision problem due to a different disease. Testing revealed that both boys had two gene mutations linked to Stargardt's macular degeneration, a blinding disease that begins in childhood.

Genetic counseling is a crucial part of the genetic testing process, particularly when the patient may face the possibility of blindness, says Ayyagari.

The study also reported that a diagnosis could not be confirmed in 133 cases, or half the tests conducted to confirm a diagnosis. "It is very difficult for patients to understand that the test may not be definitive," says Ayyagari. "Genetic testing may not always yield the firm facts we receive in other kinds of testing, such as blood tests for cholesterol levels."

BUSINESS

The Chelsea Standard THE DEXTER LEADER February 15, 2007

Money WISE

Steve Kolasinski

Prepare, plan before you start a business

Are you thinking of striking out on your own and joining the growing ranks of the self-employed? It's an exciting prospect - and possibly a little scary. But you can remove some of the fear by doing whatever you can to prepare yourself financially for life as an entrepreneur.

What steps can you take? Here are a few to consider:

* Save as much as you can. Ideally, you would want to have a couple of years worth of living expenses saved before you go solo. But that's a pretty tall order for most people. And if you have a spouse earning a good income, you may have less need to put away a large sum. Nonetheless, it's almost always a good idea to save as much as you possibly can before becoming your own boss.

* Think twice before cashing out retirement plan. If you're leaving a job that provided you with a 401(k), 403(b) or 457(b) plan, you might be tempted to cash out your account to help pay for the transition to the world of self-employment. However, try to avoid this move. By liquidating your employer-sponsored plan, you will face early withdrawal penalties if you are younger than 59-1/2, and income taxes, too. Just as importantly, you will be depleting a valuable resource for your retirement. If at all possible, try to find other sources of income. For example, you may want to consider a home equity loan; interest rates on these loans are usually competitive, and your interest payments may be tax deductible. Be aware, though, that you will be using your house as collateral, so make sure you can afford the payments.

* Consider opening a new retirement plan. Once you make the jump to self-employment, start thinking of what type of retirement plan you might want to choose. Fortunately, you have some attractive options that offer both tax advantages and a wide range of investment choices. If your business has no employees except yourself and possibly your spouse, you may be able to establish a SEP-IRA or an "Owner-Only" 401(k). If you will have employees, you might want to consider a SIMPLE IRA or a "Safe Harbor" 401(k). Your tax adviser and investment professional can help you choose an appropriate plan.

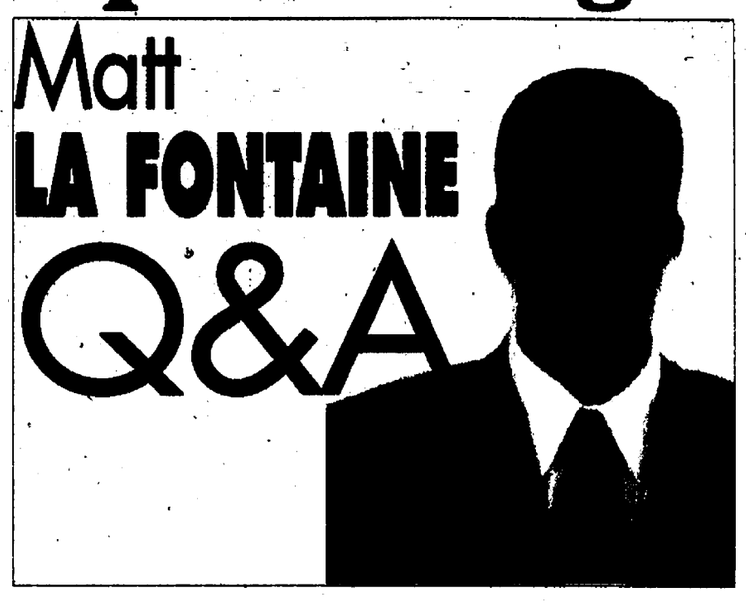

* Pay yourself a regular "salary." Depending on what type of business you are opening, you may well experience an uneven flow of income - which could, at times, force you to dip into your long-term investments to help you meet your daily and monthly expenses. To avoid this potential problem, consider paying yourself a regular "salary" out of your business' earnings. It's crucial that you live on a pre-agreed amount - even if the only person you have to agree with is yourself. Too often, entrepreneurs use up one month's "paycheck" and then have nothing left in the next "down" month. But if you have the discipline to stay within the income you've allotted yourself, and your business succeeds, you should eventually build up a cash cushion that can be used for emergencies or investments.

Your career as an entrepreneur can be rewarding in many ways - and you'll enjoy it even more if you make the right financial moves.

Chamber president goes on the record

Matt La Fontaine is president of the Chamber Area Commerce Association and the general manager at La Fontaine Chevrolet. He recently participated in a question and answer with The Dexter Leader.

What is the state of the Dexter Chamber?

Excellent. Our membership this year should top 260 for the first time ever. We have expanded the scope of what it means to be a member, so that anybody that loves Dexter and cares about its future can join and have a place at the table. We have a special push this year to develop our individual and home-based business memberships. These are two critical, but overlooked elements in any local economy. By networking and promoting them, we help to keep more money in Dexter, which in turn helps the local economy.

Our annual dinner was the best-attended ever. We celebrated the success of our Dexter High School athletics. There was an unprecedented representation from local governments, the schools, the community band and orchestra and service clubs.

There is a very positive "buzz" around town about the exciting things happening in our Chamber. The spirit of collaboration is strong in Dexter today, and I believe that our vision to grow our community and help others is part of that positive energy.

And finally – this year we added a marketing director – Gordon Darr.

Is the Chamber still an important part of a community?

Without question, now more than ever. We cut across municipal boundaries, embracing the entire Dexter community. This puts us in the position of being the engine that drives economic development. Especially in states like Michigan, with the township form of local government, only a group like the Chamber of Commerce can create and articulate a strategy for an entire community.

We are here to serve our members: businesses, local government, service clubs, individuals, and the schools, by bringing the power of numbers together so that we can achieve our common goals.

As local, state and federal expenditures decrease, it is up to communities to cooperate and find new ways to finance important programs at the local level. We hope that we can be an integral part in helping the Dexter area attain this independent stance.

What are some of the advantages of being a chamber member?

By definition, a Chamber member is a local "booster." They are committed to the development of our community, both economically and from a total quality-of-life perspective, by joining the Chamber. Our most active members, the ones who can demonstrate the benefits of membership, will tell you that the rewards of feeling like you are helping, are the greatest advantage. The Chamber promotes its members, we serve as the hub of our local network, we make business happen. We support our athletes, musicians, artists, actors, scholars, and technologists in our schools. We support their teachers.

When you join the Chamber you help others in the community. That makes our community more vital, which builds our local economy, which in turn helps everybody. Our role is to keep everyone "plugged in." We are facing many issues and there are many people that want to be a part of this dynamic community, what we provide is a common environment which everyone can be a part of. Communication is the key.

What are some chamber events people can look forward to?

Our signature events include Dexter Daze, the Ice Cream Social, Apple Daze and Victorian Christmas. Dexter Days is an event that has been in our town for 25 years, and will conservatively attract 20,000 people over the weekend. This year's event is Aug. 10-11. We are also planning our Summer Concert Series which was a big success last year to be held downtown.

Our community has a strong desire to increase "family style events" downtown. We are looking into a possible art fair as an addition and our Farmers Market is taking shape nicely. We are also very fortunate to have hosted last year's "Le Tour de Dexter" a Tour de France style bike race. It was a huge success and has events for all ages. The course is set up around the downtown area. And for the next three years the Dexter race will be the State Championship race. We are expecting over 400 participants.

What about day trips?

A big part of Dexter is of course its "charm," and just walking about the downtown area and Monument Park is for most a satisfying enjoyable event. The friendly atmosphere and shops offer residents and visitors a chance to walk around and get their shopping done as well as visit restaurants and coffee shops. We are very excited about our new library coming, this will only enhance the Dexter Experience. We are also looking forward to Gordon Hall and all that it will have to offer; with not only its beauty, but as a destination for gatherings such as tours and weddings. The property will also in the future include a winery with wine tasting.

Can't you just picture a horse-drawn carriage taking people through our beautiful downtown and up to Gordon Hall....ever been to Central Park?

Technology

Working at home easier

Ever wish that you could put in a day's work without going to the office? These days, it's easy for just about anyone to work remotely or telework - either from home or while traveling. You now have the ability to safely access your computer files, programs, e-mails and even your corporate network just as if you were at your office PC. Working remotely is particularly advantageous for many people (including employers), since employees can stay productive from virtually anywhere. Here's how:

Working mothers: Women perhaps reap the biggest rewards from teleworking when they are trying to balance work and family. Working remotely can keep you productive during periods such as maternity leave and even all the way through to your kids' high school graduation. During maternity leave, you can access company networks, files and e-mail on your office PC, all without having to physically be in the office.

This can come in especially handy during the later months of your pregnancy term when traveling becomes difficult. As the children age and school appointments, sports functions and illnesses start to crop up, which would normally require you to take time off of work or rush to find a sitter, you can get your work done simply by accessing your office computer while also attending to your children's needs. In addition, you don't necessarily have to maintain the "9 to 5" schedule of a traditional job. You can simply access your work PC and put in hours when it isconvenient to you, whether early in the morning or late into the evening.

On the road again: While working on the go has become much easier since the advent of the laptop computer, sometimes you may prefer to travel light and leave the laptop at home. Plus, there still may be occasions where you didn't have time to sync up your laptop with your latest files, which are stored on your office PC. Imagine being able to connect to the Internet from an airport lobby or at your hotel room and access those files even though they are located hundreds of miles away. Should you be delayed out of town, you can still keep in touch and be productive.

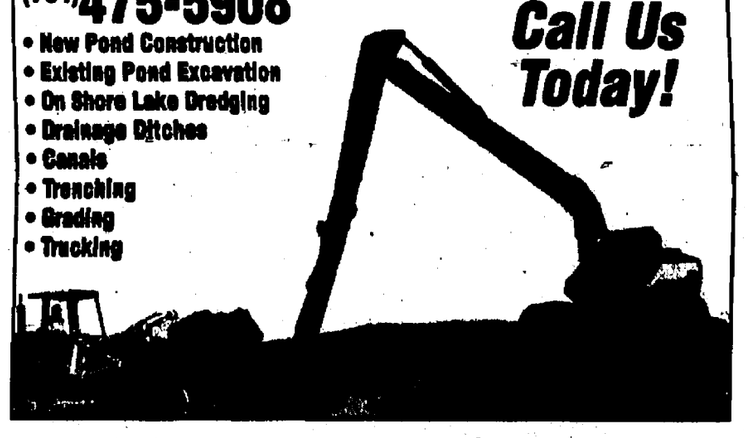

When Mother Nature steps in: Who hasn't been stranded or inconvenienced by a snowstorm, flooding or other weather conditions where staying at home would be the best option. Or there may be times when you cannot safely get to your place of work because of road closures or downed power lines. Being able to work from home by accessing your files eliminates the need to take a personal day. This way you don't have to be concerned about driving in hazardous or inclement conditions.

Perhaps you're wondering how you can integrate teleworking into your job position. There are many services available, including GoToMyPC at www.gotomypc.com, a service that allows you to access and work on your PC "on-the-fly" from any location connected to the Internet.

GoToMyPC ensures subscribers that all data is protected with AES encryption using 128-bit keys. Dual passwords and end-to-end user authentication are also employed. What this boils down to is a maximum security connection to protect your files from hackers; your data is continually encrypted from the moment it leaves your office PC to when it reaches your remote location desktop.

People disappoint; God does not

MINISTERIAL Message

By Pastor Mark Porinsky
Faith Lutheran Church

What do Abraham Lincoln, Floyd Landis, and Mel Gibson have in common? Of course - They all turned out to be sources of great disappointment last year. Floyd Landis, the American winner of this past year's Tour de France, who comes from a very religious Mennonite family, came under suspicion due to an unsatisfactory drug test.

Mel Gibson, after his successful religious film, "The Passion of the Christ," was arrested for drunk driving, and spewed out abusive, not so 'religious' anti-Semitic remarks, as recorded in the police report.

And Abraham Lincoln? What could he possibly have done wrong? Many of us know him as the great President who freed the slaves in our country. Well, he did in 1863, but last year a letter of his from 1861 was found in a museum in Pennsylvania, imploring the governor of Florida to rally political support for a constitutional amendment that would have made slavery permanently legal in the United States Constitution.

Yes, people do disappoint: Athletes, entertainment industry leaders, political leaders, even church leaders. Closer to home, husbands and wives and other family members and friends can be a never-ending source of disappointment.

Perhaps it's no accident that the very middle verses of the Bible state, "It is better to take refuge in the Lord than to trust in man. It is better to take refuge in the Lord than to trust in princes" (Psalm 118:8-9).

Oh, yes, many people are disappointed in the Lord, but it is not due to any fault in Him, but due to faulty expectations they have of Him. He might not come through in the time frame and the way we want, but He always will come through when and where we need. And in eternity, He will fulfill every expectation and hope anyone could ever have.

If ever you visit our church, we hope we will do our best not to disappoint you. More importantly, we will try to help you grow closer to Someone who won't. As the Bible says, "Anyone who trusts in Him will never be put to shame" (Romans 10:11).

Turning a garage into a home

Dexter couple reinvents building

By Sandi Kasha
Staff Writer

Aleksis and Bonni Lahti are partial to an easy living.

And buying an empty garage on Grand Street alley that's been on the market for over two years seemed to contradict their easy living aphorism.

But Aleksis Lahti is artistic and had a vision to create a New York-style loft minus an industrial building and city noise.

He and Bonni purchased the garage in April and Aleksis began building and designing the interior and exterior. By September the couple, who have been married for 42 years, moved in from Webster Township.

"This is the third house we've built and we knew what we were looking for," Bonni said.

And the Lahtis wanted a home that was open and relaxed.

"We have a lot of stuff and we didn't want the place to be cluttered," he said. "I wanted this home to be contemporary and simple."

"We like things open and pretty sparse," Bonni added. "It's even wheelchair accessible."

Aleksis said that he feels that the state lacks barrier-free homes.

The 1,800-square-foot, ranch-style home is Aleksis' labor of love.

"It's all mine and even though I had the cabinetry built for me, they were my designs," he said. "I especially love the 10-foot ceiling and the lack of walls. It's like a breath of fresh air."

Items like paintings hung throughout the house add sentimental value since some of them belong to his parents.

Other touches like towels, mirrors and the kitchen tile are vintage gems found at flea markets.

"We keep things to a bare minimum," said Bonni pointing to the only room in the home, the master bedroom.

"We didn't want carpets, either," Aleksis said of the cement floors. "It's easy to live in and easy to clean."

The Lahtis expect their yard to be as effortless. Bonni said that they opted to omit grass and surround their home with crushed limestone.

"I don't want to bother with mowing the lawn anymore," Aleksis said. "We're both at that point to where we want to enjoy life and our home."

Home is important to Aleksis since that's where he's been doing most of his work for over 30 years.

Aside from designing furniture and painting, he's worked as a freelance architect, who's worked on commercial buildings in Detroit and Ann Arbor.

Aleksis said that both his parents were artistic and nurtured his creativity.

The Ann Arbor native said that he graduated from the University of Michigan with a degree in industrial design and painting.

"He's always been creative and he pays such attention to detail," Bonni said.

McKune Memorial

Events & Programs

Hello Dolly...the Library Dog, that is!

Now well into its second year, the McKune Memorial Library's Read to the Library Dog program has been duplicated all over the county. The secret to its success: the friendly, lovable dogs who just love to sit patiently on their doggie pillow listening to kids read aloud.

Studies have shown that kids, particularly those who are having difficulty reading, will experience a marked improvement in their reading levels after reading aloud to trained therapy dogs because the animals provide a safe, non-judgmental atmosphere.

The program was started at the library in November 2003 by Chelsea resident Michelle McCarthy and Karen Persello, head of youth and teen services at McKune. McCarthy's black lab, Leo, was the inspiration for the program.

Dolly, a Newfoundland, will be in the KidSpot for young readers tomorrow. Readers can sign up for 10-minute time slots from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Kids can bring their own book or choose one from Leo's Book Box. Kids reading to Leo two times will receive a free book on their third visit.

Hometown Cabaret

Chelsea's own hit the stage to raise money for music programs

The 4th annual Chelsea School District Staff and Friends show, "A Little Night Magic," will take the stage at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 23 in the Chelsea High School Auditorium.

The cabaret style show features vocal and instrumental music acts, as well as a rock band, a storyteller and even some comedic entertainment. Several of Chelsea's own teachers, administrators, secretaries and custodians will perform. Students and their families attending the show in the past have enjoyed seeing a different side to their teachers as they display talents they don't often get the chance to showcase during school hours.

The annual extravaganza is produced and sponsored by the Chelsea Music Boosters. All proceeds will directly support the Chelsea music programs and help the directors continue to provide a superior musical education for all students.

Funds are used to sponsor guest artists and visiting clinicians to work with the students, purchase new instruments and music literature and fund camp scholarships. Music Boosters also helps finance special programs and some band, choir and orchestra travel costs.

Tickets for the show are $8 for adults and $5 for students. They are available at Chelsea Pharmacy and at the door.

Jazz is for kids!

By Karen A. Persello

"There is music kind of jazz for every body. And kids are no different – they love fun music, happy music, music for dancing and singing and music that tells a story. Jazz is all of these things... and more.

It's important that children know about jazz because it was the first popular American music that the rest of the world accepted. It is the center of American music. Music tells us who we are as a people. Jazz borrows from many different cultures and traditions, just like American society. We Americans are bit of this and that, and so is jazz!

Jazz is in danger of being forgotten these days. Most music that kids listen to is pop or rock or rap. But jazz is everywhere—in restaurants and clubs, as background music in movies and even in cartoons. We need to bring it to the forefront and celebrate this very hip music called jazz!

Turning your children onto jazz is great not only because they might become the jazz listeners or musicians of tomorrow, but because an appreciation of music has been shown to be an important factor in a child's success in school. People play Mozart to their babies, why not try Monk or Ellington?

How do you get your kids to "get" jazz?

Listen to some fun jazz. "Nicky's Jazz for Kids" is a music CD that is an engaging introduction to jazz with rhyming, fun-filled, sing-along songs that they will never tire of. Songs such as "Jeepers, Creepers," "Three Blind Mice," and "Chew Chew Chew (Your Bubblegum)" are sung by celebrated jazz legends Louis Armstrong, Count Basie and Tony Bennett.

You also can talk about the music in terms that kids understand. Say that a song or solo is like a story and the trumpet or sax player is the storyteller. The pianist tells the mood of the story: is it happy or sad? The bass player tells us where the story takes place: is it in a house? Is it outside? The drummer tells us how fast the story takes place. And when there are solos, the story changes.

McKune Memorial Library is a great first stop. There has been a real publishing boom in children's jazz books in the last 10 years and the library owns many of them. These books range from stories about famous jazz musicians to stories that imitate the sound of jazz music in words.

There are a few novels about jazz for children, such as the Newbery Honor Book, "The Jazz Man" by Mary Hays Weik and "Sky: a novel in 3 Sets and an Encore" by Rod Townley about a runaway boy in 1959 New York City and how he speaks through his jazz piano music.

The Chelsea Reads Together book, "Bud, Not Buddy" by Christopher Paul Curtis is a particularly good one for ages 9-14. This Newbery Award-winning book by a Michigan author is about one boy's search during the Great Depression for the man he believes to be his father, a renowned jazz musician from Grand Rapids. The library is sponsoring a Family Book Group Discussion (and pizza!) about this novel on March 5 at 6 p.m. Families may register for the program and pick up a free copy of the book at the McKune Memorial Library.

The library also owns jazz CDs for kids, such as "Jazz for Kids: Everybody's Boppin'" and "A Boy Named Charlie Brown."

The library also offers the Chelsea Reads Together Sunday Afternoon Jazz Series—bring your kids! This is a great opportunity to introduce jazz to your children and help keep this important American music alive.

Karen A. Persello is the head of Youth and Teen Services at McKune Memorial Library. She can be reached at kpersello@chelsea.lib.mi.us

AM I PREPARED?

Many women will end up managing their finances alone at some point in their lives. Unfortunately, the first time many women become involved with some financial matters is during a crisis, such as a spouse's death or divorce.

We've prepared a list of thought-provoking questions. It will be time well spent if you review the list, determine what you have already done, and talk with your financial advisor about the issues that specifically affect you and/or your family.

Asset Management
- Do I have a clear picture of where my assets are located?
- Will my retirement assets provide a comfortable and secure retirement for my life expectancy?
- Do I have a well-diversified portfolio?
- Are my investments appropriate in today's economy?
- Are my assets titled properly?
- Do I have an emergency fund?
- Am I taking advantage of techniques to reduce my taxes?

Estate Planning
- Do I have a will?
- Is my will current?
- Have I determined what I will owe in estate taxes?
- Have I funded my estate-tax liability?
- Have I explored and taken advantage of wealth-transfer techniques?
- Do I wish to provide for charitable giving?
- Are my power of attorney and my living will up to date?

Debt Management
- Do I know my credit rating?
- Could I get a loan if I applied?

Medical/Disability Planning
- Do I have enough insurance coverage?
- Cover medical expenses?
- Provide for disability/long-term care?
- Provide for family members' security?
- Fund estate-tax liability?

And...
- Have I coordinated my advisors' (attorney, CPA, banker) activities?
- What changes in my life are likely to occur within the next three years?
- Do I know the status of my parents' financial situation and the implications for my financial well-being?
- Would I be prepared for a family emergency if it happened tomorrow?

Passion for design

Since her home is her showroom, Pat Allegra didn't think twice about running her interior decorating business, Stylish Solutions, from her home.

"I decorated it and was involved from the fabric to the paint to the colors," she said. "Decorating is a very broad field. You have to find your niche."

The Webster Township resident has been in business for about four years and seems to have found her niche.

Pat Allegra runs her business Stylish Solutions from home.

"It's something that comes natural to me," Allegra said about her work. "I'm pretty artistic and love working with fabrics and color. I don't feel like this is work. I really enjoy what I do."

It's her passion for design that has clients seeking her advice and assistance.

"A lot of my clients just don't know where to begin," she explained. "They aren't really sure how to mix and match fabrics. They are confused regarding paint colors. I'm there to suggest and offer helpful hints."

Allegra has noticed that many of her clients aren't necessarily looking for a decorator to take total control.

"Most people don't want to have someone do all the work for them," she said. "Lots of times they're just looking for ideas like color selection. They just need to know where to start."

Allegra doesn't mind helping clients get started.

"I like to get to know clients to see what their tastes are and what their style is," Allegra said. "I pay close attention when I go to homes because I look for those little touches around the home that lets me know what they like."

She said that she advises clients to be realistic and establish a budget.

"What are your limits and how much are you willing to spend?" said Allegra, who charges $50 for a consultation visit and $40 an hour following the initial visit.

"I understand that the economy isn't great and I can work with people," she said.

Following the first consultation where budgets and expectations are discussed, Allegra said she gets down to business.

"Once a budget has been set then we can talk about what they'd like to see," she explained.

"I ask them to get me pages from magazines of home furnishings or designs they like.

"It really boils down to a person's tastes. Is it retro or are you a minimalist? In the end, the person seeking my services is the one living in the home so they need to really know what it is they're comfortable with."

Once Allegra and her clients establish a rapport, she shops for home furnishings and the decorating begins.

"It's not always high-end stuff," Allegra said. "I'm a big bargain hunter and I love vintage and antiques. I love to mix and match because I feel it adds character to the home and tells a story. Everybody's unique."

A trend that Allegra has been noticing is that many people aren't drastically making over their entire home, but they're upgrading.

"It's usually with empty nesters who want to spruce up a room," Allegra said. "Or when children get older and want something different."

Most of those clients are people Allegra has worked with before.

She has been building a steady list of clients from a word-of-mouth basis.

"Many of my clients are repeats," she said. "And I've formed good relationships with many of them. They trust me and my decorating. They should. I'm a pro at moving and decorating.

Allegra and Bill, her husband of 31 years, have lived in some 14 homes around the country.

"I've made my own mistakes in my first few homes and then I learned," she said. "I know what works and what I'm trying to convey."

Aside from running her home-based business, Allegra is president of the Chelsea-Dexter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association.

"It's been more of a learning experience," she said. "I listen to tips from other women entrepreneurs and I get good advice."

But Allegra said that the best advice she has received regarding entrepreneurship skills is from her father.

"My father was a business owner and he advised me to grow slow and steady," she said. "I took it one step at a time and I'm still watching it grow."

3 COMPONENTS TO FITNESS

Fitness is subtle. You can't wake up one morning, slap yourself in the head and declare, "I'm fit!

I'm excited to design this column for the Chelsea Standard and Dexter Leader to make fitness simple, so when you do realize you are fit, you won't get bruised hitting yourself in the head. I'm a professional, been studying this stuff for 10 years – and still hit my head in confusion.

Little by little, let's debunk some crazy myths and simplify terms. All it takes is good old common sense, and a few tools to help you along the way.

We all know how to eat. Agreed? Fruits, vegetables, whole grains, lean proteins, low-fat dairy, plenty of water. We can learn to eat less. It's not what we eat; it's how much we eat. Wait till you hear my approach.

We all know how to sweat. There are different degrees of sweat, but working up a good sweat from a cardio routine will help both heart and fat burning. I'll show you how to compute your target heart rate.

We all know muscle soreness. But it's temporary, a good sign of a job well done. I could cripple you in one session, but that defeats the purpose.

These are the three components of fitness. Think of a triangle, nutrition on top, cardio on one end, strength training the other. Without the proper nutrition, your body will have no energy for the continuous motion of large muscle groups required for a cardio workout. And without proper nutrition, those sore muscles won't heal to build more muscle.

Making goals is an art unto itself. We know we want it all – now. So, don't make goals. A goal can be self-defeating, impossible to attain, or just plain silly. Or be a great motivator, it's up to you. The bathroom scale can be your enemy or friend, but how you feel is the real indicator of how hard you worked.

If possible, join a gym. The gym needs you; it draws off your energy. The other gym members need you, they love company. At first it's spooky, you're the new one. Keep going, soon you'll nod to each other, talk about the weather, and next thing you know you're best of buds. The tools of fitness are all gathered there.

If possible, hire a trainer. No book or video will help you recognize the full range of motion on a particular muscle the way a trainer does. Trainers also count our reps and sets and scream and motivate.

There isn't "a one program fits all" out there. How's your knees, hips, back, shoulders, guts? Where your problems are is where your program comes from. We start beginners on machines that most basic exercises come from. Once the basics are built, there are free weights, stability balls, cables, core stabilizing, or make some up. We address programs for special groups, older adults, disabilities, cancer survivors, pregnancy, or teens. I am named Million Dollar Body because there are a million ways to design a program.

Hey, this is your fitness. We can give you all the tools on target heart rates, proper strength training techniques, diets and supplement advice, but the results are up to you. Keep on reading our column, send us questions or frustrations and perhaps someday we'll meet up at Anytime Fitness.

In honor of the origins of "chocolatl," a warm bitter beverage used by Aztecs that was sweetened and spiced by the Spaniards, try this steamy treat after sledding with the family.

Valentine's Hot Cocoa
by Paula Herzog
Serves four
3 cups milk
2 T sugar
1 t vanilla
HEAT UNTIL STEAMY, not boiled
Whisk in:
2 T unsweetened cocoa powder
1/2 t cinnamon
1/2 t nutmeg
Top off with grated semisweet chocolate

America's favorite flavor DOES fit into a healthful diet. Chocolate is reported to be the most craved flavor of 98 percent of women. Yet, it need not be a guilty pleasure. Here are some facts to defend your indulgence:

♥ Chocolate contains flavinoids, the cardiovascular disease inhibitor found in red wine and green tea.

♥ Chocolate contains oleic acid, another heart protecting mono-saturated fat.

♥ It is a moderate source of zinc, an essential trace mineral.

♥ Chocolate is a phytochemical-rich source of anti-oxidants.

♥ Chocolate reduced galanin which makes one desire fatty foods.

♥ It mildly increases serotonin to help one relax.

♥ It contains a chemical, phenylethelamine, to reduce blood pressure.

♥ It only has as much caffeine as decaffeinated coffee, but the theobromin in it is mildly stimulating.

Is it any wonder we are drawn to the many chocolaty confections available in candies, drinks, pastries and sauces? Does it sound too good to be true? Well, let's balance the good news with a few more facts. Pure semi-sweet chocolate is 130 calories per ounce. A real good chocolate brownie can be 300 calories or more. Chocolate milk is about 180 calories a serving. So, like all the best nutrition advice...moderation is going to allow for a lifetime of chocolaty pleasure.

To indulge when you are watching the calories try these ideas: Chocolate Covered Strawberries and Dried Fruits from Chelsea's Gourmet Chocolate Café, a Hot Cocoa at ZouZou's, share a Zingerman's Magic Brownie from the Chelsea Market, or a fair-trade chocolate bar from Mission Marketplace.

Artisan handcrafted glass beads are emerging as this spring's hottest jewelry trend. At the forefront is local artist Anita Pepper, who treats every bead of glass "like its own tiny work of art," creating an array of dazzling glass beads speckled with an exotic patina of colors and shapes.

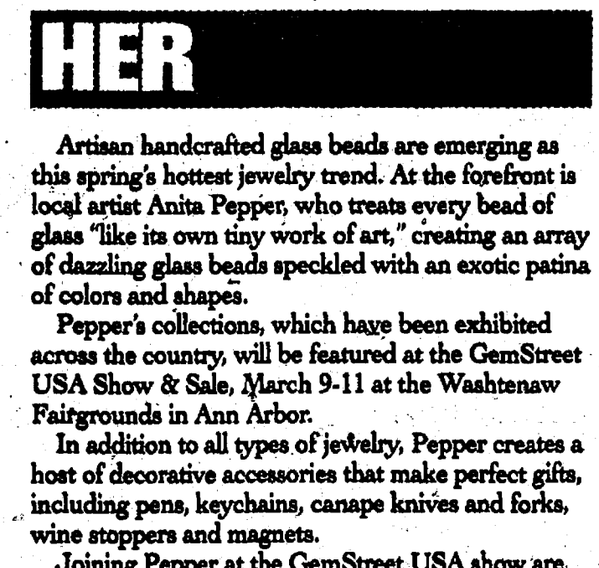

Pepper's collections, which have been exhibited across the country, will be featured at the GemStreet USA Show & Sale, March 9-11 at the Washtenaw Fairgrounds in Ann Arbor.

In addition to all types of jewelry, Pepper creates a host of decorative accessories that make perfect gifts, including pens, keychains, canape knives and forks, wine stoppers and magnets.

Joining Pepper at the GemStreet USA show are equally unique artists from around the world showcasing their one-of-a-kind jewelry, fine gems and intricate beadwork. Those attending the show can also shop from aisles of gemstones, gold, silver, pearls, diamonds, cabochons, and jewelry using beadwork techniques, wire wrapping and sculpting.

Show hours are Friday 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Saturday 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and Sunday 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tickets are $6 general admission, $4 for seniors and students, and free for children under 12. The ticket is good all weekend and parking is free.

The Washtenaw Fairgrounds is located at 5055 Ann Arbor-Saline Road, Ann Arbor.

THE FAMILY OF Christopher "Kale" Kemner, Dave & Eloise, Brad & Hollie, John & Colleen, Matthew & Maddison Kemner, wish to express our deepest gratitude for all the kindness extended to us after the sudden death of our son, brother, nephew and cousin on January 4, 2007. The huge amounts of genuine love from friends, neighbors, relatives and colleagues we received for our loss has been overwhelming. Many, many people sent food to sustain us at home and for the funeral luncheon. Continuing expressions of sympathy in cards, letters, telephone calls, emails, flowers, plants, memorials, visits, mass and prayers will comfort us during our time of sorrow. Thanks to all who came to the visitation to pay your respect, especially to those who stood outside and waited in the cold that night, down the steps and along the sidewalk. The massive number of people in attendance at Chris' funeral service was very heartwarming for us. We'll cherish this memory forever. We give special thanks to Rev. Gary Kwiatek, Jennifer Blackwell, Bill & Sharman Pfaus, Cheryl Hanselman, youth group friends, and pall bearers Joseph Brooks, Terrence Coleman, Devin Golka, Derek Hanselman, Michael Heskett, Jason Sell, Jeremy Smith and Scott Stockwell for your contribution towards the touching tribute and celebration of Chris' life. We send out a heartfelt Hawaiian Mahalo to everyone in memory of our Christopher. Please remember him for his energy, bear hugs, kind ways, fun personality, unconditional love, wonderful smile, big Hawaiian heart, generosity and love of God.

Geography Night fun for all

By Rita Fischer
Special Writer

The third annual Parent-Teacher Organization district-wide Geography Night was held Jan. 26 at the Washington Street Education Center. And the evening had plenty to do with learning.

Drums pounding, bagpipes playing, people dressed up in clothing of days gone by, rooms transformed into different countries, samplings of treats from around the world – all in just a few hours.

This free event was developed for Kindergarten through sixth grade students and their families. Geography Night was generously supported by the Chelsea Education Foundation, the PTOs of North Creek, Pierce Lake and South Meadows elementary schools, many faculty and staff members of the Chelsea School District and more than 100 creative volunteers.

Audrey Bloom was named an explorer and played an Australian instrument called a didgeridoo – which was like a giant flute. So big, it was taller than Bloom.

"I liked learning about each country and seeing the people dressed up and telling a story," Bloom said.

Connor Dailey visited each room. "I like trying all the different kinds of food and the bagpipes were really cool," Dailey said.

The goal of Geography Night is to help children develop a broader awareness of their world, develop an interest in geography and have some fun while they're at it. The theme for this year was World Explorers: Around the World in 180 Minutes!

Upon entering WSEC, families received a passport prompting them to tour the world, visiting continents housed in classrooms, meeting famous historical explorers, playing international games, tasting international food, enjoying international entertainment and much more.

Shipra Singh represented her country India.

"I have never seen such a huge variety of things from around the world in a town as small as Chelsea," she said. "This was a great time."

Maya Gonzalez took time to make many of the crafts.

"I liked all the fun stuff to see and do and I really like looking at things from other countries," said Gonzalez.

Some of the highlights of the evening included live performances from Tree of Life Drum and Dance; an Asian Lion Dance; Reg Pettibone Authentic Native American Song and Story; activities provided by Chelsea Center for the Arts and Mission Marketplace; performances by Chelsea Tae Kwon Do, Chelsea Highland Dance, and Habitat al Fen; an Ancient History Museum created by the sixth-grade students of Ms. Toni Kinsey and Mr. Jim Ticknor; a varied display of student projects; and a raffle with prizes from Cranesbill Books, Chinese Tonight and National Geographic.

A crowd of more than 1,000 braved the cold to enjoy a fun and educational evening in Chelsea.

Annual kick off event

Relay for Life rolls a strike

Relay For. Life of Western Washtenaw County/Chelsea held its kick off event for the 2007 relay season at Chelsea Lanes on Sunday.

Relay for Life is the American Cancer Society's signature fundraising event to help raise money and awareness for cancer research.

The event's chairperson Jamie Seyfried said approximately 150 community members attended including Chelsea Mayor Ann Feeney and State Rep. Pam Byrnes.

Attendees ranged in age from 4 to 80.

"This was the largest turnout for Kick-off they can remember," Seyfried said. "Our guest speaker was survivor, Barb Tobias and her husband Jim. They both spoke from the survivor and caregiver aspects."

The program portion of the afternoon included several other speakers talking about Relay itself and the American Cancer Society and its' many programs available to cancer patients and their families.

Tami Rummel, area executive director of the Huron Valley Division of the American Cancer Society, did the closing and "call to action" with great passion and conviction, Seyfried said.

The second half of the event included a bowling competition between teams of six bowlers. Rather than points, teams collected coins for gutters, spares and strikes.

The Thomson Shore Bookworms were the winners in the amateur category. The CHS varsity girls' and boys' teams both made their own large donations and came out in force to support Relay for Life.

"The event raised approximately $400 in donations, but more importantly it raised awareness about Relay for Life and the many virtues of the American Cancer Society and its' many contributions to our community," Seyfried said.

"The Relay for Life Planning Committee would like to thank the GreenLeaf family of Chelsea Lanes, Karen Fosdick of Chelsea Cottage Inn and Maggie Sweet for their contributions to this year's Kick-Off."

If you would like information about the Western Washtenaw County/Chelsea Relay for Life, to be held May 19 and 20, contact Seyfried at (734) 475-2002 or Laura Seyfried at (734) 971-4300.

Finding the right reception hall for your big day

Far more than pulling on fancy clothes, strolling down the aisle and saying, "I do," a successful wedding is a testament to a couple's ability to plan and juggle multiple tasks.

One of the biggest tasks a couple must handle is choosing a reception hall. Since most couples choose a religious facility based on where they attend services or where they attended growing up, that decision is often easier than choosing where the couple and their guests will go to let loose once the ceremony's over. Couples facing the dilemma of where to host their post-wedding party should ask the following questions when on the hunt for a reception hall.

Couples face a host of difficult decisions when it comes to planning a wedding, not the least of which is choosing the right reception hall.

When is the hall available?

If you've already chosen a wedding date, this is obviously the most important question to ask. If you haven't pinned down a date yet, perhaps a favorite hall's availability can help you determine when to walk down the aisle. Just remember that many houses of worship frown on picking a date and booking with a reception hall without securing the ceremony first.

How much?

Different places charge different prices, and with the escalating costs of weddings these days, this should be the question you ask immediately after learning of the hall's availability. It's also good to have a number in mind with respect to how much you can spend on the reception.

It's also wise to ask what's included in the fee. Some halls, believe it or not, charge extra for tables, chairs and linens. Be sure to state your preference of round tables or banquet tables as well.

What is the capacity?

This can often be researched via the Internet. If your wedding party is going to be large, there's no sense in driving to a locale that can't accommodate larger crowds. Some reception halls feature rooms for smaller crowds and rooms for larger parties.

What about the catering?

Some reception halls insist customers use their kitchen staff, while others allow outside caterers to come in. Oftentimes, halls that require onsite staff do the cooking also require a minimum number of guests. In addition, those that permit private caterers might charge extra to allow kitchen usage to outside vendors.

What service styles are available?

Food and drinks can be served cocktail style, formal, or buffet style. Couples should determine what they want, but should also keep in mind that buffet style serving is often less expensive.

How can drinks be served?

The bar service can range from a full open bar (often the most expensive) to only certain drinks offered at the open bar (i.e., beer is open bar, mixed drinks cost guests per drink) to individuals paying for their own drinks all night, called a cash bar.

How late is the reception hall open?

Most reception halls will stay open until around midnight before informing guests it's closing time. Some halls, however, might close earlier. Make sure the party hours are spelled out in your contract.

What is the refund policy?

This can be an important question to ask in the unfortunate case an emergency arises and the wedding is moved or the couple calls off the wedding.

Helpful tips on creating a unique reception

When it comes to wedding receptions, couples are always looking for ways to give a unique, personal flair to their celebration, says Beverly Clark, wedding book author, and designer of the Beverly Clark Collection.

"More and more brides and grooms want to express their own style, and they don't want to have a cookie-cutter wedding," she says. "So they are branching out to more elaborate and unique receptions, locations and themes."

For example, Clark says that, most recently, her number-one selling wedding collection has been her beach-themed Seashore Collection, with many couples opting to get married on the beach and then tie in sand and seashell décor with their reception.

How can you add some personal touches to your wedding?

Slideshows

During the reception, present a slideshow set to music with photos of you and your spouse from birth to present.

Themes

Incorporate you and your spouse's heritage into the décor and food. Some possible wedding themes may also stem from your favorite hobby, a season, a historical period (such as the Roaring '20s or Renaissance eras), or a fairytale theme complete with a castle-shaped wedding cake.

Creative table numbers

Instead of using numbers to identify tables, name your tables after phrases or words that have special meaning to you as a couple, such as your favorite travel spots.

Monograms

Make your name part of the day. For example, wedding planner Tracie Morris had a client whose new last name started with an "M," so the couple put the letter "M" on top of their wedding cake and on their cocktail napkins. They also used a video projector to project an "M" onto the dance floor during the couple's first dance as husband and wife.

Poetry

Write letters or poems to one another and read it during the reception.

Say 'I do' to new, creative gift ideas

Here comes the bride! That means it's time to shower the newlyweds with gifts.

However, with many couples getting married later in life – nearly five years later on average today than in 1970 according to the United States Census Bureau – they have accumulated many of the common wedding gifts, such as dishes and linens, leaving guests with the challenge of finding the perfect gift.

Luckily, there are a vast number of unique gifts for those who have it all.

Shower them with gifts

Shower the new couple with luxury. Help turn the every day task of showering into a relaxing and luxurious experience with a new showerhead.

Products such as Moen's new 7-inch rainshower with InvigoRain spray ($56-$68) provide a superior, invigorating rainshower experience that provides full coverage and envelops the entire body in high performance water sprays. Or for those who prefer different spray options from their showerhead, Moen's Inspire 3-function showerhead, available in both handheld and fixed versions ($24-$34), will allow the newlyweds to choose the distinct spray setting that suits their mood — "Relaxing" wide spray, "Invigorating" concentrated spray and "Refreshing" combination spray. Both showerheads are available at Lowe's.

Wine not?

What better way to help the newlyweds toast their new life together and commemorate their special day than with an assortment of personalized wine? Offered from many local wineries or online at vendors such as www.winelabels.com, you can select an assortment of the couple's favorite wines and then create custom labels featuring the newlyweds' names, wedding date, photo or other messages to help remember their special day.

Create-a-gift

It's most likely not in your budget to send the new couple on an exotic vacation or put a down payment on their new home. However, many newlyweds in search of high-ticket items may "create-a-gift" on the popular wedding registry site, www.theknot.com, allowing you to contribute to these items. For instance, if the couple would like to "honeymoon in Hawaii" or "enjoy dinner for two," you can purchase American Express Gift Cheques, a fancy — and more polite — way to give cash to help the couple obtain their grandest wishes.

Nurture the newlyweds

After the hustle and bustle of wedding planning, most newlyweds need to relax and unwind. A great gift to rejuvenate their spirits is a spa gift certificate for a couples massage. And to make it easier, services such as SpaFinder (www.spafinder.com) allow you to purchase gift cards redeemable at a variety of spas throughout the country, allowing the couple to choose exactly where and when they'd like to enjoy their day of pampering.

Capture life's many moments

As they begin their new life together, couples will capture many wonderful moments in photos. But rather than displaying only small glimpses of their lives in still framed photographs, allow the newlyweds to present a full assortment of photos with a digital photo frame. These attractive frames feature an LCD screen to display a running slideshow of photos to keep their many happy memories alive. So the next time you receive a wedding invitation don't fret. There are a variety of new wedding gift ideas to help them enjoy their new life together.

Helpful hints for buying modern, practical gifts

Remember Grandma's cherished wedding china that only came out of the cabinet for holidays or other special occasions? Or the silverware that made an appearance only when it needed to be polished?

Maybe because so many of us have similar memories of underutilized heirloom pieces, modern brides are now opting for beautiful and practical when creating their bridal registries.

"Crystal and fine china will always be registry staples, but when I was gathering ideas for my registry, I saw a real trend toward items that combine elegance and utility," says Kristen Beenen, a recent newlywed.

More casual items – from flatware to stemware – are gaining popularity on bridal registries. Also in favor are items that offer heirloom-quality beauty and everyday durability. "I think brides like me are now looking for pieces that they will be able to regularly use and enjoy before passing them on as heirlooms to our children," Beenen says.

Now, brightly colored dishes of durable materials from wood to ceramic are appearing on registries beside traditional fine china or porcelain. Silver serving platters are being supplemented by practical aluminum serving pieces. And crystal vases are being joined by everyday counterparts in high-polish, high-endurance metals.

"Today's bride is less likely to be guided by a consultant or her mother when putting together her registry," says Matt Hullfish of Arthur Court Designs.

"With the push toward casual, many are skipping the fine china altogether and registering for two casual patterns of dinner ware instead. They are also

Seven tips for great wedding-day hair

Now that you've chosen a wedding date, it's time to start the countdown that is wedding planning.

Many brides-to-be give reception sites and details top priority but forget to devote the same consideration to bridal hair styles.

Between scheduling, fittings and samplings, it can be easy to forget about hair care and wedding day preparation. To remind brides of the importance of this wedding day accessory, ISO, creators of Innovative Styling Options for hair texture, offers these easy hair-care pointers:

•Apart from being blessed with great hair genes, beautiful hair can also be the result of the masterful hands of a good stylist. If you do not have a winning relationship with your stylist, now is the time to seek out a new one. When you are comfortable with your stylist talk early on about what you envision for wedding day hair and schedule a practice run-through.

•Don't skip haircuts because you want long hair for your wedding. Regular cuts are essential to eliminating dead ends that can look dull and flyaway. Trims can also refresh the shape of your hair and make it easier to manipulate into your preferred wedding style. Plus, hair just looks and feels healthier with regular trims.

•You don't want to try drastic cuts or color options too close to the wedding, where you may not be able to fix a faux pas if the look isn't to your liking.

Rather, experiment with color or texture a few months in advance of the wedding so you'll have time to tweak the look toward your desired finished product. To maintain color, remember to protect hair from harmful sunrays.

•Many brides-to-be desire soft, free-flowing waves, or pulled-up looks with a few escaping curly tendrils.

But not everyone is blessed with a head of curls.

These are not the perms and body waves of your youth - there are no side effects of frizz or poodle curls involved. These innovative texturizers consistently deliver damage-free, predictable results, regardless of individual hair type and condition, including fine, previously permed, highlighted or bleached hair.

•Wedding hair may involve intricate up-dos, hair extensions or pulled-back locks. But too much tension on the hair follicle for a prolonged period of time with tight braids or extensions can actually pull hair out by the roots.

•Honeymoons often involve escapes to tropical paradises. Hot, humid temperatures can cause even the best-behaved hair to frizz.

Practice easy, casual pulled-back looks that will help tame hair. Don't forget to rinse hair thoroughly with cool water if you've been swimming in a chlorinated pool or the salty ocean and can't shower immediately after. Otherwise, you may end up with a head of frizzy, sticky hair.

•Always be prepared for the unexpected, which may include a few errant locks that occur on your wedding day. Pack an "emergency kit" stocked with a brush or comb, hairspray, bobby pins or barrettes, anti-frizz or shine serum and any other necessities you can think of.

Don't forget that hair is one of the most important wedding day accessories. Help it look its best.

Look picture perfect on your wedding day

You finally chose the dress, decided on the location, booked the florist, music, and caterer and agreed on the guest list.

Before you breathe a sigh of relief that all of the details are tended to, think again.

The most important, and often overlooked, detail of achieving wedding day perfection is the bride's complexion. Dull, blotchy skin, unsightly blemishes and dark under-eye circles are enough to make any girl cry, et alone a bride-to-be.

Since your wedding album will last forever, it's equally important to look beautiful in person and have camera-ready skin. Follow these simple steps for a radiant, glowing complexion:

Get glowing.

Every bride wants radiant skin but can't always afford costly facial treatments.

Achieve similar results with an at-home product like Vita-K Solution At Home Microdermabrasion Kit. It includes a Resurfacing Cream containing the powerful Vitamin K and C Complex that works together with the Derma Brush to gently resurface the skin. Replenish lost collagen while infusing essential vitamins and nutrients to moisturize, soothe and protect.

The result is firmer, smoother, younger-looking skin.

Protection is mandatory

The most important thing any bride can do for her skin is to apply a broad-spectrum UVA/UVB sunscreen every-day, rain or shine.

When preparing for the big day, the last thing any bride needs is a sun-

Enjoy beautiful wedding-day skin by following these simple tips burn, uneven skin tone, or dull, dehydrated skin caused by the damaging effects of the sun.

Fight Back

If you're prone to blotchy skin you can actually treat the problem rather than cover it up.

Reach for an effective remedy that will eliminate the appearance of blotchy uneven skin tone, acne marks

A pearl primer for soon-to-be brides

Pearls are perfect any time, but they seem especially appropriate for weddings.

Known by some as the "Queen of Gems," the classic elegance of pearls transcends centuries and style fads.

Nothing looks more beautiful with a bridal gown than a single strand of flawless pearls.

But pearls are not only for the bride – they're the perfect accessory for the bridesmaids as well. Today, hopeful brides can find pearls in shades ranging from the traditional white all the way through the color spectrum, including pink, green and even black, so they will coordinate with the wedding party's dresses.

If you're confused by the different types of pearls on the market, you're not alone.

An elegant strand of pearls can just the right touch to a wedding-day ensemble.

"Pearls are classified according to their origin and their shape," explains Natalie Parman, vice president of merchandising at Jewelry TV.

"Because of the wide variety of pearls available, you can choose a look and a price that is right for you."

Pearls are formed when a foreign object enters the shell of a mollusk and triggers the release of nacre, which builds layer upon layer until a pearl is formed.

Most of the pearls you see today are cultured pearls. They are less expensive than natural pearls, because they are mass produced with the aid of technology. Instead of waiting for nature to take its course, pearl farmers insert an irritant and a nucleus (often a mother of pearl bead) into an oyster to speed up the process.

Cultured pearls come in a variety of shapes and sizes, and many are dyed, which means you can find a wide range of colors.

Akoya cultured pearls are produced by the Akoya oyster found in the waters surrounding Japan and are almost perfectly round and are well known for their high luster and rich color, which can range from white to cream, pink, green, silver and gold. These pearls can vary in size from between 2 millimeters to 10 millimeters.

"Cultured Akoya pearls are the quintessential 'Breakfast at Tiffany's' strand in a creamy white color," Parman says. "Multiple strands or choker styles are hot wedding trends." Because they are affordable, cultured Akoya pearls also make great bridesmaids gifts.

South Sea cultured pearls are larger in size than Akoyas, usually more than 10 millimeters. Produced in the warm waters of the South Seas, they come mainly from Australia, Indonesia and the Philippines. These pearls are usually white, yellow or gold. Due to their size and rarity, expensive. Golden South Sea pearls in particular have gained particular popularity in the United States in recent years.

"If you're choosing a special strand of pearls for your wedding, this can be a good jewelry investment," Parman says.

Tahitian pearls are produced in Tahiti, the Cook Islands and Mexico. They range in color from black, to aubergine, pistachio and many other colors, often with overtones of blue, pink or green. These pearls range between 8 and 15 millimeters and are highly valued because of their rarity, since the culturing process dictates a smaller volume output. "Wear Tahitian pearls to your rehearsal dinner, or pack them as part of your honeymoon wardrobe," says Parman.

When choosing pearls, look for nacre thickness and quality. Nacre quality determines how long the pearl will last as well as how light reflects through the pearls. Check for any cracks or peeling in the nacre. Also, look for how the pearls on a strand are matched. Pearl matching affects the value of the piece, as mismatched pearls are not as aesthetically pleasing. Finally, look for pearls that are individually knotted between each pearl instead of just strung one after the other — that's a sign of quality.

Whatever your jewelry wish for your wedding day, visit www.jtv.com for a great selection of pearl necklaces, bracelets and earrings.

Tips for wedding photos

A wedding photo album is something that most couples cannot do without.

After all, photos in addition to a wedding video are the only ways to capture the exact moments and emotions of the day. As a result, you want quality photos from your photographer so that you'll have wonderful images that will last a lifetime.

There are several steps you can take to ensure you receive beautiful photos. Naturally, the key is finding a reputable photographer who can offer the types of shots you desire. Here are some pointers to keep in mind when selecting a photographer and arranging wedding photos.

•When interviewing photographers, ask to see photos from a complete wedding.

Any photographer, even a poor one, can piece together a portfolio of his best work. By viewing all the photos from a particular wedding, or even better, the proofs, you can get an idea if the photographer knows his stuff.

Your best bet is to go with a referral. If you loved your cousin's photographer, book with him.

•Set aside enough time for photos. Don't book your ceremony and reception back to back, otherwise the photographer might feel rushed, and it will be evident in your photos.

•Clearly spell out the types of photos you'd like in your contract.

If you want photos with all your family members, a shot with your prized pooch or any other particular photos, be sure to speak up.

•Get all extras and special services in writing. Black-and-white photography, digital enhancements and extra prints may cost more. Don't be caught off guard when the bill arrives.

•Confirm all details a few days before. Provide directions to and from your home, church and reception site. No one wants a photographer who is missing in action.

Creating the perfect soundtrack for your wedding

If you've figured out by now that music is the key to a great wedding, you're right: it's the secret ingredient of every great wedding.

The right song at the right time can evoke strong feelings and help solidify memories of the day long after the last dance.

Unfortunately, many couples don't focus as much attention on their musical program as they do on picking out a reception hall, or florist.

Too often, they leave crucial music decisions to their DJ or band. This can be a huge mistake, according to wedding music experts Gloria Sklerov and Barbara Rothstein, professional songwriters who set romance to music for films and TV and are creators of www.weddingmusiccentral.com

"While flowers, clothes and décor may make a wedding look beautiful, it's well-planned music that makes a wedding feel beautiful" says Sklerov, who has won multiple Emmys for wedding songs featured on daytime TV and has written songs for Sinatra, Cher and other top artists.

Think about weddings you've attended. How did you measure their success? Probably by whether you had a good time.or not.

Top wedding coordinators know that music is the "good-time-factor" of a wedding. People have a good time when they can participate, and feel connected to it all.

It's a good sign when guests get up to dance frequently and when they're sharing in the emotions of sentimental moments like father/daughter, mother/son dances, etc. When the music is dull or constantly intrusive, and there's little involvement and interaction among the guests, chances are they're waiting for the right time to say goodbye.

Sklerov and Rothstein realized that couples have no way of knowing what they don't know and really do need expert music planning guidance and information to plan a successful wedding program.

Thanks to them, brides and grooms everywhere have access to expert know-how and a step-by-step planning system with their book, "How To Set Your Wedding To Music," the complete wedding music guide and planner. Here are some of their tips for a memorable event:

Ceremony and Reception

Create a Plan: Visualize your wedding as a film, and think about the songs that would coordinate best with the scenes that unfold. For example, imagine the processional, the unity candle ceremony, the father/daughter dance, the mother/son dance, or even a special tribute to an important person in your life as you listen to sound clips of songs written especially for those moments.

Stay Organized: Keep a notebook and jot down songs you've heard or ideas you've gathered. Then, when you finalize your choices and discuss them in detail with your band or DJ you can consider their suggestions without feeling pressured.

Book Your DJ or Band: Once you know your date, book as soon as possible. DJs and bands have distinct advantages and disadvantages. DJs are usually less expensive, take up less space and offer playback of original songs by original artists. Bands can provide live sound and make any occasion seem elegant. Generally however, they are costly and your songs will be interpreted by the band, not necessarily performed with the 'feel' you like or are used to.

Go Beyond the Boring and Basic: Happily for the thousands of brides and grooms who've discovered weddingmusiccentral.com, there's no reason for wedding music to be dull or ineffectual. The Web site offers an exclusive line of music CDs created especially for weddings by Grammy and Emmy-winning writers, artists and producers, plus in-depth expert planning articles.

The CDs feature exciting contemporary arrangements of classical ceremony favorites and pop standards, fresh new wedding songs for Fathers and Daughters, Mothers and Sons, and other special relationships including stepparents, and families of second marriages.

"When writing for film and TV," Rothstein says, "we had to master the art of enhancing each scene with the right touch of emotion ... adding to the significance of important moments."

Their unique special songs such as "My Little Girl," "The Man You've Become" and "Yours, Mine and Ours" for fathers and daughters, mothers and sons and other relationships have gone on to become popular favorites for weddings.

Keep Your Guests in Mind: Consider the tastes of your guests. Make sure singles and older guests can enjoy the music as well. Include timeless standards and music of different eras that all guests will enjoy.

Unique Touches

In addition to the music that is played on your special day, songs and sentiments can be sent in advance of your wedding and afterward as well. You can 'send more than a card . you can send a song' with the unique musical ideas that Sklerov and Rothstein offer with their Personalized CD Singles line:

"Save the Date" CDs - featuring the classic "Chapel of Love" and your save-the-date information imprinted directly on the CD. Send them to your guests in lieu of the standard save-the-date card.

Personalized Gift CD Singles - a selection of songs for mom, dad or even bridesmaids and maids of honor. You can express personal sentiments for your parents and friends with a special song they'll love.

CD Thank You 'Notes' - The wedding thank you song, "Thank You For Your Gift Of Love" with your names imprinted on each CD is an original 'musical' way to say 'thank you' instead of sending an ordinary thank you card.

For more great tips on wedding music or to order any of the unique musical items visit the Web site www.weddingmusiccentral.com.

Finding the right florist

One of the more aesthetically appealing and, as a result, noticeable parts of a wedding are the floral arrangements.

The right choice of flowers can add that much more to an already special day, while the wrong choice can become an irritating distraction from the bride and groom. To make sure your arrangements are a perfect addition, instead of an eyesore, consider the following tips:

Ask around

Recently married friends who live nearby should be able to recommend a good florist or at least keep you from making the same mistakes they made. Ask about particular arrangements and what styles they chose. If you attended their wedding try and remember the type of event it was, be it a formal party or a more casual gathering. Often times, the nature of the wedding can dictate what arrangement might be most appropriate.

If none of your friends in the area have recently walked down the aisle, ask the staff at the reception hall or where the ceremony itself will be taking place. Chances are, they've been exposed to numerous arrangements and seen them in action, so they could prove to be a valuable resource.

The right florist can bring to life your vision of wedding day perfection

View a portfolio

If a florist is worth hiring, he or she should have a portfolio of past weddings he or she has worked on. This can be your best way to gauge how the image in your head might match up with what the florist will provide come the big day. Some florists can also put together a sample bouquet. If a florist has no portfolio, seriously consider going elsewhere.

Go prepared

When going to visit or interview a florist, bring as much as information as possible.

If you can bring along a picture of both the bride's dress and at least the color of the bridesmaids' gowns, this

Tips for having a great wedding on a limited budget

From ice sculptures to fancy stretch limos to a wedding dress that costs more than your mortgage payment - with all these wedding temptations, how can you possibly stay on budget and still have the wedding of your dreams?

Wedding experts offer the following tips to keep your budget in-check:

Borrow what you can

Know a friend, neighbor or family member who recently got married? Ask to borrow their cake server, wedding slip, veil, headpiece, centerpiece items or even wedding dress.

Become centerpiece savvy

Use candles to spice up centerpieces, such as using votives on top of a mirror with small accents of flowers or balloons.

Have bridesmaids use their bouquets as reception centerpieces, and your wedding ceremony flowers can pull double-duty, too. Or pile nicely wrapped favors in a bowl or basket at the center of each table.

Factor in the season, day and time

Avoid the busy summer wedding months or the holidays, when prices can be 10 percent higher.

Winter weddings - January through March - tend to provide the best deals. Consider planning your wedding on a day other than Saturday to save money, too: Fridays evenings and Sunday afternoons are popular alternatives.

Receptions earlier in the day tend to be cheaper than a dinner buffet or a five-course sit-down dinner, so consider an afternoon tea, cocktail reception, lunch or brunch.

Shop the bargains

Many Web sites, such as eBay, offer discounted new and used party favors, ring-bearer pillows, guestbooks, etc. Attend bridal shows to collect special savings coupons for bargains on wedding vendors and rentals. Some stores may offer discounts for multiple purchases - such as discounts on your bridesmaid dresses, veil and shoes when you buy your wedding dress there, also.

Look to cheaper alternatives for invitations

Thermography typeset is less expensive than engraved invitations. Also be sure to watch the weight of your invitations - from the size of the paper to all of your enclosures - so you don't have to double up on stamps.

Consider designing and printing invitations and programs yourself to cut costs.

You might opt for cheaper, plain-style wedding invitations and then embellish them by adding ribbon, lace or silk, or dried flowers, say experts.

Get gown savvy. Watch the sales, and buy off the rack. Scout sample sales where you can nab dresses for 25 to 95 percent off regular prices.

Affordable photography

Find a photographer who will let you keep your negatives. That way you can avoid paying high prices for reprints or enlargements. Hire a capable photography college student, but evaluate the quality of the student's work first.

Fancying food. Instead of serving lobster and shrimp, make less expensive foods fancier. Ask the caterer what other affairs' menus they are preparing on the same day and if you can serve the same items. Caterers might be able to order and charge for the food at discounted bulk rates.

HINTS

looking for serving pieces that they can use on a daily basis. Functional serveware is what Arthur Court is best known for. It is the strength and core of our line."

Many brides are choosing more practical versions of classic registry gifts, such as serving platters, vases and dinnerware. Instead of high-maintenance silver platters, brides can select decorative aluminum platters, available in a number of designs that complement virtually any tableware. Or, for something really unusual yet strong enough for every day use, they can opt for trays, platters or cheese servers made of bamboo and trimmed with bright, decorative aluminum touches.

Alternatives to items traditionally made of crystal are also popular registry items. Vases, pitchers, picture frames and stemware are showing up in a myriad of other easier-to-care-for materials, such as aluminum.

Designs range from very contemporary to traditional and classic, like Arthur Court's Grape Pitcher, an interpretation of classic grape vine motif rendered in high-polish, long-lived aluminum.

"I wanted my bridal registries to really reflect how we would live day-to-day, rather than an ideal of life for special occasions," Beenen says. "Modern brides are choosing gift items that we can use to enhance our lives every day, rather than just once or twice a year."

PERFECT

and facial discoloration.

Plan ahead for radiant eyes

If you're one of the many women who suffer from serious under-eye dark circles and/or chronic under-eye puffiness, start a regimen at least one month before the big day.

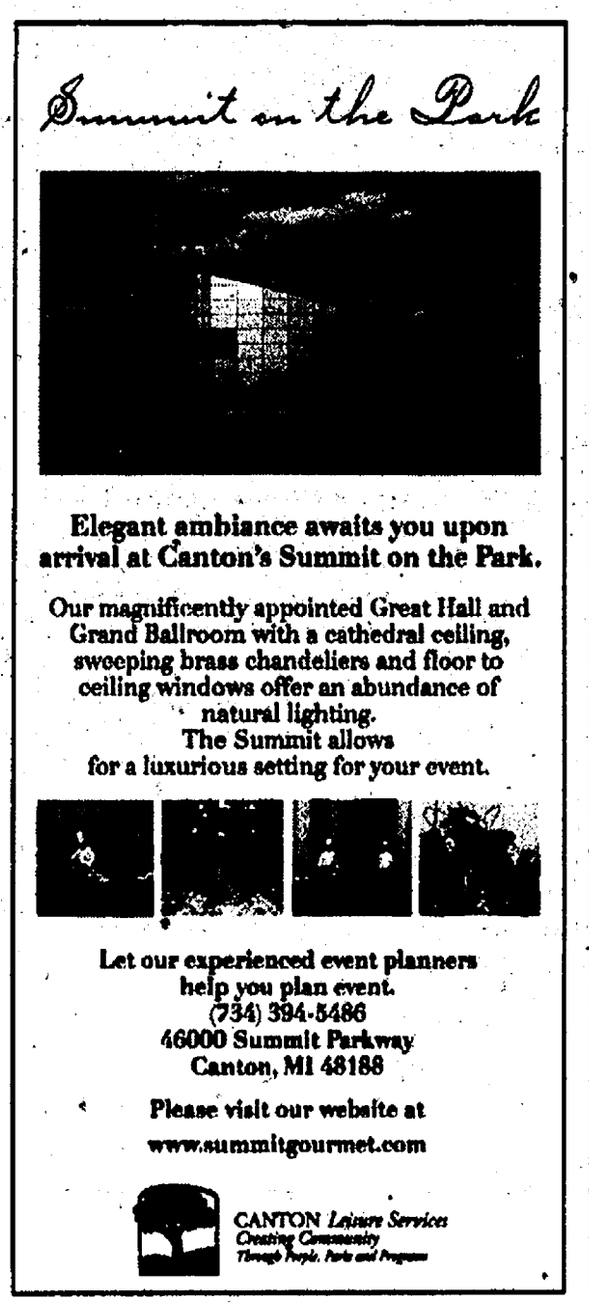

Look for an effective, yet affordable and you will begin to see a reduction in the appearance of dark circles and puffiness within two weeks of first application. Optimum results usually occur in one month so make sure to time it before your wedding day.

Take a Deep Breath

Brides are notorious for suffering from anxiety. Make sure you tend to all the details for the big day, but don't forget to take care of yourself - or it will show through your skin. Drink eight to 10 glasses of water a day; cut back on fatty and salty foods; get as much sleep as possible; and engage in a stress-relieving activity at least once a day. If you take care of your body and your mind, your skin will benefit.

Explore unique food options for your reception

The culmination of most weddings is the reception.

At this party, guests typically dance, mingle and eat.

Depending upon the scale of the wedding reception, the food service can be a spectacle in itself - beginning with an elaborate cocktail hour and ending with a decadent display of desserts.

When planning your wedding, your preferences and budget will dictate the type of food service and beverages you offer. However, part of deciding on what to select involves understanding the types of courses and foods involved. To make things easier, here is a brief rundown of food service typical for wedding receptions so you can make an informed decision.

Common services

• Open-bar service: Most couples choose to have an open bar at their wedding reception.

This typically runs the duration of the reception or terminates an hour prior to the end of the evening. A premium bar service will include top-shelf liquors, frozen drinks, and cream-based drinks, in addition to nonalcoholic soft drinks.

You can also choose to scale down bar service to only include wine, beer and soda.

• Cocktail hour: During the cocktail hour, guests are treated to a display that appeals to all of the senses.

This is where the reception hall really gets to shine in its food presentation. The cocktail hour may have a variety of food service options.

They are typically offered buffet-style, or guests can visit stations to self-serve or be served by staff.

Cold deli platters, breads, butler-passed hors d'oeuvres - appetizers carried on trays by staff members - as well as hot chafing dishes filled with pastas or other delights may also be available.

The cocktail hour may take place in a room separate from the main reception area or in the room itself. It will usually last an hour.

The bride and groom, as well as the wedding party, may be absent from the cocktail hour - enjoying their own snacks in a private bridal room. This helps create an aura of mystery and will allow them to make a grand entrance at the end of the cocktail hour.

• Main dinner service: With buffet-style, chafing dishes will be presented where guests choose from among menu items offered.

A sit-down dinner service will allow guests to pick among two or three main courses offered - typically a fish, poultry or beef dish. Salad, soup or some small appetizer, like sliced fresh fruit, may also be served.

The cake is just one course among the many food options available at today's wedding receptions.

A palate refresher - a lemon sorbet, or something similar - might also be served.

This is used to break up the courses and cleanse the tongue of rich flavors so that the next food item will be presented in full flavor.

• Cake service: After the cake-cutting tradition (if the couple opts to do so), a slice of wedding cake will be served to each of the guests. At this time, tea or coffee can also be served.

Extra touches

Some couples like to go above and beyond at their wedding reception. After all, this is a once-in-a-lifetime event for many. Here are some other services that may be offered to make the wedding extra special.

• Gourmet coffee and cordial bar, espresso, cappuccino and hot chocolate as well as cordials can be offered. Flambé - A spectacle in presentation, this dessert is set ablaze and served warm to guests. Viennese Hour (Dessert Bar) - A collection of gourmet cakes, pastries, cookies, ice cream, and other treats are offered for guests to indulge.

• Gourmet Salads/ Top-Notch Cocktails - Some sites will offer the opportunity to serve more elaborate (and expensive) options at the cocktail hour. This could include seafood, like lobster, calamari and oysters, in addition to other gourmet culinary choices.

• Ice Sculpture -- While not a food per se, some sites also give couples the option of having an ice sculpture adorn their cocktail service table to add flair and drama to the day.

When planning your wedding, be sure to discuss your meal preferences with your reception-site coordinator. If you have any dietary wishes (i.e. vegetarian meals, kosher preparation, ethnic requirements), make sure you can be accommodated.

Remember to have all of your options in writing and the costs spelled out clearly. This is likely to be the most expensive portion of your wedding, so be aware of what you're getting. Then, and most importantly, enjoy the day.

FLORIST

can be a big help in making sure you select flowers that coordinate.

Also, know exactly what you'll be needing, such as how many arrangements, bouquets, boutonnieres and corsages, and ask for an itemized estimate. This will ensure that you won't be surprised when it comes time to pay the bill and can pick only those items that fit within your budget.

Ask about using flowers that are in-season

This can be a good way to save money. Using out-of-season flowers will cost more, while in-season flowers and those specific to your region of the country can considerably lessen the blow on your budget. Filler material, such as leaves and berries, can also save money but be pleasing to the eye.

Get delivery service information before signing on the dotted line

Make sure you know if the florist moves the arrangements between locations and rearranges at the reception or wherever you go once the ceremony is over.

No couple wants to worry about moving the flowers, so make sure this is listed in the final agreement.

The heirloom tomato, "Big Rainbow", has been a secret among Amish Farmers for years. Saving seed from one generation to the next, it was little known outside Amish communities UNTIL WE DISCOVERED IT AT AN AMISH FARM STAND. What's more, "Big Rainbow" has to be seen to be believed because the large, meaty fruits are not only gigantic, they are multi-colored. Most are a glowing golden yellow color with a red blush, like a peach, but some fruits can also be all-red, all-yellow or all-orange, presenting a rainbow of FOUR colors on a single plant.

"Big Rainbow" is a favorite among Amish families because the fruits grow to be as large as grapefruits. Some can grow to 3 lbs. each, as big as small cantaloupes. Neighbors and friends will be astonished at the pillar of huge multicolored fruits, but that's nothing compared to the delightful surprise they will experience when you offer them a slice, for no other tomato we have tasted can compare with it for superior flavor.

No matter how you compare—for size, flavor or appearance—"Big Rainbow" is sure to become your favorite tomato. You'll never want to be without it in your garden.

or call 1-800-711-9814 Invitation #CZB

12¢ per gallon savings calculation based on earning 5% Cashback Bonus on gas purchases at $2.50 per gallon. Savings may vary based on average gas prices.

*Earn unlimited cash rewards on all purchases. Earn a full 5% Cashback Bonus on your first $1,200 in annual gas and auto maintenance purchases. In addition, earn a full 1% on all other purchases after your total annual purchases (including gas and auto maintenance) exceed $3,000; other purchases that are part of your first $1,500 earn .25% and other purchases that are part of your second $1,500 earn .50%. Combined gas and auto maintenance purchases in excess of $1,200 earn Cashback Bonus at the same rate as other purchases. Gas and auto maintenance purchases are those made at merchants we classify as gas stations and at stores that primarily sell automotive parts and services, such as auto dealerships, auto repair shops, tire stores and car washes. Purchases made at select warehouse clubs, discount stores and their affiliates earn .25%. Rewards are redeemable in $20 increments. Full terms and conditions will be sent with your Card.

Purchase and Balance Transfer APRs are 0% until the last day of the billing period ending during March 2008. Standard purchase APR: variable 13.99%. Cash APR: 20.99% or 22.99%. Default APR: variable between 18.99% and 28.99%, based on payment history. Min. fin. chg.: $.50. Cash transaction fee: 3%, min. $5 and no max. Balance transfer fee: 3%, min. $5, max. $29. Rates as of December 1, 2006.

THE ANTIOXIDANT POWER OF POM TEA™
[ POWERED BY POM$_x$ ]

Power Sip.

Every sip of all-natural POM Tea is an investment in you. It's made from the finest hand-picked, whole-leaf tea and it's gently brewed for a delicious taste with only 4mg of caffeine. But the real power in choosing POM Tea is POM$_x$ – a highly concentrated blend of polyphenol antioxidants made from the same California pomegranates we use in POM Wonderful 100% Pomegranate Juice. Grab a straw, and take your health, and your thirst, into your own hands.

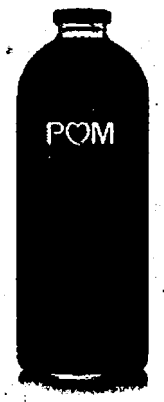

Enjoy the tea. Keep the glass. Reap the benefits. | pomtea.com | In produce

Roof High Vine or Lovely Fence —Foolproof To Grow

These plants thrive even in poor soil, sun or shade. It will climb on its own, covering walls, arbors, and fences in no time at all.

LOADED WITH NECTAR. No other flowering plant you can grow will attract hummingbirds faster than the fabulous trumpet vine! In the very first year of planting the beautiful, hardy vines will climb skyward, grasping any kind of support. Man-high within months... roof-high by end of summer...becoming a pillar of flaming red trumpet flowers. Each blossom is so loaded with nectar that hummingbirds find them irresistible and return year after year to thrill you and your family.

NO RISK GUARANTEE

Order without risk. Your satisfaction is guaranteed. If not completely happy, just write us for a refund (less postage and handling), replacement or credit on next order whichever you prefer.

FREE SEMINAR

Free Presentation on Estate Planning: Learn the Latest Facts about Wills, Trusts, Powers of Attorney, & Medicaid Planning!

Find Out How to Protect Your Assets and Quickly Transfer Your Estate to Your Family

You may have heard of Estate Planning but may think it does not apply to you, or you may not have created an estate plan for your family yet. The phrase "estate planning" applies to tools from a simple will to a complex trust, depending on your particular situation. Before you decide what estate plan is right for you, you must have professional advice and the education to make a good, sound decision for you and your family.

Attend our FREE SEMINAR to learn about...

- The advantages and disadvantages of certain trusts and wills.
- How to avoid losing your assets to nursing home costs.
- How to provide for your spouse, and your children's education, health, and support.
- How to manage your affairs if mentally or physically impaired
- How to provide for special needs children and grandchildren.
- How to plan your estate to make sure it passes on to your family most efficiently.
- How to protect assets inherited by your heirs from lawsuits, divorces, and other claims.
- How to plan your estate to minimize federal estate taxes.
