Budget cuts, layoffs, increasing class sizes, struggling test scores. Why would anyone want to become a teacher these days? The answer, according to some Chelsea School District teachers, is in the intangibles. In recognition of National Teacher Appreciation Week, the Chelsea Standard spoke with teachers in each of our local schools to discuss the people who made an impact on their own lives and the rewards of being a teacher.

Phil Jones began teaching in the fall of 1971 for a salary of $6,700 a year. Thirty six years later he is making 10 times that amount — right around $67,000.

Money isn't the only thing that has changed for teachers over the last 36 years. In fact, teaching is constantly changing — and not always for the better. "One of the biggest changes to the profession has been the attitudes from parents," Jones said. "Parents seem to be second-guessing teachers constantly on everything from materials taught to discipline issues. Teachers are expected to be sensitive to every student's needs while trying to teach a class full of media-crazed adolescents."

Jones says that an endless cycle of "better ideas" has left schools with different philosophies of what works best "that it seems we are going in circles trying to

Dexter's Hanifan named Chelsea's new city manager

By Ed Freundl
The Chelsea Standard

The Chelsea City Council conducted a national search to find a new city manager, but the candidate they chose was found right in their backyard.

On Tuesday the council officially offered a contract to John Hanifan, who has been Dexter's assistant village manager for the past three years.

"I've been in some form of municipal management for 10 years, and this was a natural, logical progression in my career," Hanifan said.

Interim City Manager John Hansen said the council voted unanimously to designate Hanifan as the "lead candidate."

The other candidates interviewed were Richard Downey, city administrator in Rock Falls, Ill.; Richard Dunnell, manager of Bridgeport Township near Saginaw; and Anthony Nowicki, Wixom's assistant city manager.

"(Hanifan) earned the nomination in the presence of others," Hansen said.

"He has the potential to provide very good, very long-term service to the city of Chelsea."

His contract calls for a starting salary of $75,074, and a previously approved 2.5 percent increase for all department heads that goes Hanifan said Chelsea and Dexter are more alike than different, which will make his job easier.

"There are a lot of similarities between the two communities; they're facing the same growth and development issues. But they are different enough," he said. "This is a humbling and tremendous opportunity."

Chelsea Mayor Ann Feeney said Hanifan's understanding of Chelsea would be a bonus.

Event showcases services for seniors

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

The organizations, products and services available to local seniors are seemingly unlimited, judging by the overwhelming response to "Chelsea Unlimited."

Last Thursday's free event, coordinated and hosted by the Chelsea Senior Center, drew an estimated several hundred to 1,000 visitors during its scheduled hours from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

It showcased nearly 80 local exhibitors from the private, public and nonprofit sectors, and almost a dozen presentations of Senior Center classes and programs.

"This is the first one we've done; we're very excited about it," said Senior Center Director Tina Patterson.

"We're focusing on businesses and nonprofits, and focusing on the wonderful community we have."

Booths were set up throughout the Washington Street Education Center: in the hallways, outside the cafeteria, in classrooms, and even in the parking lot.

Exhibitors ranged from health care, pet care, churches, city and county government, public safety, recreation and entertainment, arts and education, insurance and financial services, service clubs and more.

Those attending the expo expressed appreciation for the mountains of information that was provided, and called for the event to be repeated annually.

"I think it's wonderful; this should be done every year," said Sandy Zeeb, a longtime Chelsea resident whose husband Walter passed away in January. "You can learn so much from things like this — I learned that there are many people out there to help you."

Keith Bloomensaat and Dan Nutt, representing the Chelsea Lions Club, said they took it as a good sign when they found the center "already packed" when they arrived before 10 a.m.

"This is great — every organization in town should participate," said Bloomensaat. "This is fun, and we get to meet a lot of people."

With census figures showing that nearly a quarter of Chelsea residents are over 65, and with about four out of five of them living alone, the expo was reaching out to a large target audience.

"This is a display of opportunities for seniors to live fulfilling lives," said Chelsea Mayor Ann Feeney, who is herself a dynamic representative of that demographic.

"The new senior is not a helpless, needy person; it's someone who wants to live a fulfilling life, and live it on their own."

The event was underwritten by Chelsea Retirement Community, Silver Maples of Chelsea and Chelsea Milling.

Volunteers played a major role in the event, from filling hundreds of "goodie bags" for visitors to cooking and serving a free pancake brunch from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Doris and Robert Butler were among about 400 people to take advantage of the brunch while taking a break from the expo.

"I thought this was very well organized, very informative," Doris Butler said. The couple, who said they had lived in Chelsea most of their lives, recently returned here after moving away in 1992.

"This is very similar to what we've seen before, with the long-term care and so on, but there's a good variety of stuff here today," Robert Butler said.

"The pancakes are pretty good, too."

Bud Freysinger of Grass Lake was born here, but left in 1950.

"My roots are still in Chelsea, and we play euchre with friends here every week," he said.

"I think this is nice," he added. "Getting the businesses together shows what the community can do, in a concerted effort to let the community know what's going on."

As the event wound down, Patterson said she was extremely pleased with the response from the community and the exhibitors.

"This far exceeded anything we could have hoped to do ... I think it's a good way to connect with seniors and others," she said.

"One thing I heard over and over was, 'I didn't know we had that in Chelsea.'"

A free pancake brunch, with food supplied by Jiffy Mix, McDonald's and Bob Evans and served by Chelsea Senior Center volunteers, provided a nice break for hundreds of visitors to "Chelsea Unlimited," a free event May 3 at the Washington Street Education Center.

Timber Town fundraiser is on the menu

St. Mary Catholic Church will open its doors tomorrow night for a spaghetti dinner fundraiser benefiting Timber Town and hosted by Chelsea Boy Scout troops 425, 476 and the Knights of Columbus.

The team is hoping to raise over $5,000 to cover the costs of a new fire engine and police car that will be built and installed at Timber Town. The two play items are being added to Timber Town in honor of Chelsea's fallen heroes Matt Tuttle and Scott Sumner.

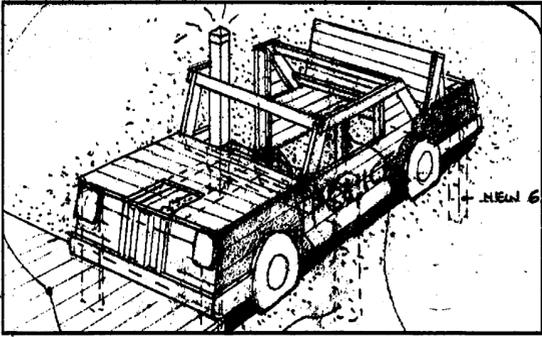

Once completed, the fire engine will be prominently located in the front of Timber Town, on the east side of the play structure, closest to the parking lot. Work will be done by Knight's Excavating to bump out the existing landscape timber perimeter approximately five feet to accommodate the new fire engine.

The fire engine also will include a mister station, with the hopes of keeping children cooled off during summer months. The fresh water will be re-directed from the drinking faucet and will be clean filtered water for the children to play in. Friends of Timber Town would like to thank the City of Chelsea for their work in accessing the water hook up for the mister station.

The police car also will be a wonderful addition to the Tot Lot section of Timber Town. Because of safety issues, the bucking bronco tire feature will be removed. In its place, a tot sized police car will be installed. The police car will include a real steering wheel and tunnel feature through the back end of the car. Both the fire engine and police car will be fabricated from pressure treated lumber and Trex composite materials.

All materials used on the new features adhere to all playground safety codes and conditions. Further, the materials will maintain the integrity of the Timber Town feel.

Under the leadership of Chelsea resident Jack Long, the Boy Scout troops will begin construction of the police car and fire engine in the coming weeks off site. During the May 26 hardware restoration event the crew will be installing the new units at Timber Town.

Tickets are available at GiGi's Flowers, Crainesbill Books, the Tree House and Mission Market place. The tickets for the dinner are $10 for adults, $8 for students and seniors, children 4 and under eat free. The benefit dinner hours are 4:30 to 8:30p.m.

neighbors, and his familiarity with Chelsea will be a real advantage," Feeney said.

"We're very excited about John coming here. He has demonstrated his skills on many projects."

That project-management skill will be missed in Dexter, according to Village Manager Donna Dettling.

"I'm going to miss him, but this was a great opportunity for him and I can understand," she said.

"He moved a lot of important projects along. He's a team player, which will be key for the city of Chelsea."

Hanifan will take over from Hansen, who was brought on board after previous City Manager Mike Steklac resigned in February.

"He'll be here full-time no later than June 11, and it may well be he and I do some dovetailing, in a gradual transition," Hansen said.

"He's very loyal to jobs he wants to finish in Dexter, and the city council is very tolerant of that."

Hanifan said he has been married to his "college sweetheart," Dana, for 10 years, and they have three children: Chloe, 7; Ryan, 5; and Lucas, 2.

The family lives in Pinckney, but Hanifan said he intends to move to Chelsea at some point.

"Chelsea is a wonderful community," he said. "It's the kind of community I want to raise my family in."

Trustee Ottoman

faces new court date

Dexter Township Trustee Marcia Ottoman is scheduled to appear May 14 in federal court in Detroit on one count of falsely assuming or pretending to be an assistant U.S. attorney.

She was arraigned on that charge on April 10 and released on a $10,000 unsecured bond.

According to Gina Balaya, spokeswoman for the U.S. Attorney's office in Detroit, an "unsecured bond" means no cash was posted.

"No money is actually involved," Balaya said. "It's more like she promises to show up in court, and if she doesn't we can come after her."

Court documents allege that Ottoman used the name of Assistant U.S. Attorney Christopher Varner of the Detroit office late last year in letters and e-mail messages in an attempt to have tenants evicted from her in-laws' home.

Her preliminary exam was originally slated for April 30, but was moved to May 14.

If convicted on the charge, Balaya said, Ottoman faces three years in federal prison, and/or a $250,000 fine.

Painting workshop

The Chelsea Center for the Arts welcomes watercolor artist Donna Zagotta for a workshop June 15 through 17.

Zagotta will demonstrate and discuss methods that will help turn ordinary subjects into creative and imaginative paintings. The focus will be on composition, finding creative new color and the elements and principals of design.

All artistic levels are welcome and may use any media. Oil paints must be water-based.

The workshop cost is $240, and will take place from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. each day at the Chelsea Center for the Arts, 400 Congdon St.

For more information or to register, call the CCA at 433-2787. For information about the center and other programs, visit www.chelseacenterforthearts.org.

Brian's Song

Concert premieres work composed by Chelsea musician

Professional musician and composer Brian Brill (top left) is seen in his studio in his Chelsea home. Chelsea High School trumpet player Margy Brill (above left), a senior and the daughter of Brian, rehearses her father's music with the wind symphony.

It's not often a high school band can brag about a direct connection to the composer of the music it plays.

But that's exactly the case with Chelsea High School's windy symphony and local resident Brian Brill.

Brill has written "The Clocktower Suite," which will be among many works on the playbill for a free concert set for 7:30 p.m. May 14.

"The opportunity of having a composer create a work for our own band is very unique," said CHS Director of Bands Rick Catherman.

"Having Mr. Brill in our community has made it even more unique in that he has been able to visit our classroom and share his creative as well as design processes with our students as an 'artist in residence.'"

Brill has another good reason to compose for the high school band: his daughter Margy, a trumpet player, is a senior this year.

"I spoke to him three or four years ago about doing a band piece, and mentioned it to him a couple times a year," Catherman said.

"Last year he finally agreed; we sketched out some ideas and talked about the creative ideas he had," he added. "He really tailored the piece to our group, as far as how high and how low they could play."

During a rehearsal last week, Margy Brill described what it was like to perform her father's music.

"It's been really nice growing up in that atmosphere," she said. "When he was writing, he'd ask me, 'Does this sound OK?' I think he likes the idea."

Margy said the band began rehearsing the four movements of "The Clocktower Suite" as her father completed it.

"We got the music at different times as he would finish it," she said. "We got the first movement right before spring break in March, and just got the fourth movement a couple of weeks ago."

Brill's music is not alone on the program, however. A couple of works by renowned composer John Moss will be featured, including "Brookfield Fair," which Moss wrote in tribute to Brian Brill's father, himself a longtime band director.

When a composer writes music for a specific orchestra or event, it usually involves a commission, or direct payment.

"I asked him to do this as if it was a commission, but he wouldn't take any financial remuneration from us," Catherman said. "He said, 'No, I'd really just like to do this for the band program.'"

Brill has been making a living as a professional musician and composer for more than 25 years.

He graduated from Western Michigan University in 1981, followed by six years of playing throughout the Midwest in a jazz quartet and as a studio musician and music composer/arranger.

Since 1989 Brill has written and arranged music for documentaries and advertising jingles.

"We really enjoy the quality of life in Chelsea," he said. "It has been a great place for my daughter to grow up."

Technology has allowed him to succeed in a traditionally East Coast- or West Coast-based career while maintaining a home and raising a family here in Chelsea.

"It's easier than you might think, especially with the advent of high-speed Internet," Brill said.

"During the 1990s I commuted a lot to Detroit and Chicago, but most of my work now is done from my home studio," he said. "Just today (Saturday) I sent music for two TV commercials to a studio in New York via the Internet."

TEACHER APPRECIATION WEEK

TEACHING

"My math teacher at Troy Athens was very excited about math and wanted each student to try their absolute best."

"There are a lot of thankless jobs out there, but the teaching profession is not one of them. Former students continuously stop by and thank me for getting them ready for college and beyond. Parents are very grateful as well."

"Each year, the top students pick their most influential educator. There are times when I am picked and didn't even know I had that much influence on the particular student. It is a very humbling experience and I will never forget them. Each one of those students affects me."

"If you do not absolutely love the profession, then you need to get out. Some teachers who don't love their job stay on, when they should have gotten out and moved on to another profession. Don't think of it as a job just to earn a paycheck. You need to truly love and respect the profession."

Marta Learman, Chelsea High School
Learman has been a teacher for 14 years, spending her entire career with Chelsea Schools in addition to her student teaching. Her subjects are primarily 11th- and 12th-grade Elective Studies and U.S. History.

"Mike Smith of Saline High School was very dynamic. All the kids liked him, and I think that was because he didn't favor any particular person or group. He definitely had an influence; I've tried to model the way I treat kids after the way he did things."

"I get kids interested in history; I'm preparing life-long learners. I love it when kids start a sentence with, 'I was watching the History Channel and...'"

"There was a student who graduated about five years ago who pushed me to do more for others in need, and we started the group Interact. He got me into volunteering, and I realized how addictive it is and how good it makes you feel."

"My advice? Do it! (Teaching) is the best job out there. It's rewarding and keeps you young."

Dennis Strazyewski, Beach Middle School

Strazyewski is in a unique position in his second year as a part-time teacher and part-time counselor, which gives him a slightly different perspective to both jobs.

"As a teacher you focus on curriculum; as a counselor you form a more personal connection with the kids, and become an advocate for students who need extra help," he said.

He has been a teacher for 12 years, spending nine of those in Chelsea. He currently teaches eighth-grade English, and also has taught seventh- and eighth-grade Social Studies.

"Mrs. Mayville, my second-grade teacher in Manistee, made all of us feel successful and important. Other educators and coaches influenced my decision to become a teacher. My chemistry teacher made it seem like a real rewarding job."

"(The reward is) the feeling that you're doing something for the betterment of others, and seeing kids change. My favorite thing is to see them five years later and see what they've become. Another thing is, middle school kids make me laugh every day."

"Some students have so impressed as people, they seem to have developed the ability to lead and organize; they seem to have 'gotten it' a lot earlier than others. It makes you want to become a better person. At the same time, there are some kids you know are really struggling, and you do take that home with you. You want every kid to know you care."

"Teaching is a tremendously rewarding profession, as long as the economy allows us to have jobs for new teachers. You get out of it what you put into it. It can be dreary or it can be great. You have to remember it's not your whole life; don't let it consume you."

Amy Doma, South Meadows Elementary School
Doma, a sixth-grade teacher, is a Chelsea native, and has been with Chelsea Schools for six years.

"Mrs. Schlupe in second grade was my favorite teacher, because she made reading fun. She gave us apples and caramels while we were reading, and what's not to love about that? I think I knew I wanted to be a teacher by the fifth grade."

"I have a job that's fun, and I look forward to coming to work every day. It changes by the day, so it keeps it interesting."

"During my first year I had a student who was very challenging, mostly because I didn't know how to deal with his home issues. I realized for the first time that students have a life outside of school, and we only see them for a very small part of that. You've got to take what you get and try to help them."

"Don't be afraid to admit when you've made a mistake, and try to have a sense of humor about everything."

Tracy Heydlauff, Pierce Lake Elementary School
Heydlauff teaches the grade 3-4 multiage classroom. She also grew up here, and has spent her entire 16-year career with Chelsea Schools.

"Paul Terpstra, my CHS English teacher, was very challenging because he had high expectations and high standards. I really learned critical and analytical thinking skills from him. He made an impact on my life, and I wanted to do the same for other children."

"We are so results-oriented and assessment-oriented, that if they do well on their test scores you feel rewarded. In my classroom I love it when I hear the kids talk to each other about what they're learning; and when they walk in with a smile on their face, that's rewarding too."

"I had a student in fourth grade a few years ago whose father was critically injured in a car crash; he called me on his own to let me know meet the special needs student's accommodations while challenging the average or gifted student."

Deborah Marsh, a teacher at Dexter High School, has seen some disturbing changes in the students during her career.

"Kids aren't as polite and/or respectful of their teachers and other adults in the building," says Marsh. "I think we've lost a lot of our basic manners in this new high tech world."

Increasing class sizes is another concern for many teachers.

"My classes are huge," Marsh said. "The best class size is around 20-24, any bigger and the kids get antsy and the teachers get overworked. Most of my classes are in the 30s and that's a lot of kids every day."

Marsh said she is at school from 7:15 a.m. to 5:15 p.m. everyday.

Marsh's first teaching experience, was when she was a junior in college, tutoring a Spanish speaking fourth-grader.

"Before my experiences working with him I thought I was going to be a translator, work in the business world and use my love of foreign languages, or be a lawyer," she said. "Instead I realized that no matter what else I did, I would always be a teacher."

And despite her concerns, Marsh still enjoys taking her place in front of the class.

"Every once in a while I lose hope for the future when a kid does something that is totally in appropriate or rude or mean, but luckily that doesn't happen too often," she says. "I wonder what I'll do in my next profession, but I don't see that starting anytime soon. I used to think I wanted to be a principal, but they don't get to interact with the kids and that's my favorite part of teaching."

Marianne Zubryckj, a German teacher and chair of world languages at Dexter High School, had an interesting beginning to her teaching career.

"I went to an all girls' Catholic high school, and when one of the nuns was absent, there was no substitute teacher," she said. "I was asked a couple of times in my junior and senior years to teach some math and science classes, serving, in essence, as a substitute teacher for younger students and for my own classmates. I felt great when the students in the biology class where I taught a lesson on DNA said, 'We understand it!' I think that experience planted the seed that led to my teaching career."

It's a career that is drastically different because of technology and how that technology is used in the classroom.

"The biggest change has to be the technological tools that are available to us," she said. "Students and parents get ongoing feedback on performance through our web-based grading program. We have more and better communication with colleagues, parents and students."

"Also, we have a wealth of information and activities from the internet to supplement textbooks. We can provide varied instruction by using all the multi-media tools at our disposal."

Sandy Inman began teaching science at Chelsea High School in 1977. She has seen both positive and negative changes in the students but says her job as gotten easier because of both technology and cooperation.

"We all have our own teaching styles and can still use that but there is a lot more coordination of efforts among teachers," she said.

Inman says today's classroom is much more interactive.

"Teachers are more guides now," she said. "Students have taken on more responsibility for their own learning. We used to just lecture and kids would take notes. Now there is more emphasis on getting the students involved and it creates a more effective way of learning. And the resources students have today compared to 30 years ago is amazing."

Zubryckj, who says many of her colleagues classes are "overloaded," agrees that teaching has become more first started.

"I wouldn't say that the profession has changed for the worse, but I would say the job has become much more difficult," she said. "Ironically, the technology that makes the teaching more exciting and varied also creates more work. Teachers must now research topics online, read and write dozens of e-mails every day, etc."

"My only complaint is that the teaching profession has become much more complex over the 30 years I've been here in Dexter. Much more is expected of us teachers, and the extra pressure and extra time necessary take away from one's personal life."

But once a teacher, always a teacher.

"I still enjoy my relationships with students most of all," Zubryckj said. "I am fortunate in that I sometimes have the same students for two, three or even four years. So I get to know many of them quite well. It is interesting to watch them grow emotionally and intellectually."

Cheryl Wells, a teacher at Dexter High School, remembers going to school with her grandmother and mixing paints and working on her paramecium science fair project with her grandfather.

"I would also play school in my basement with the neighbor kids and keep attendance," she said. "I detoured for a few years after college and worked for the Wayne State Medical school in laboratory animal research. After a while I realized that I loved the biology and chem in research, but wanted to be with students and not mice."

Wells has seen improvements over the years in both equipment and facilities.

"My longevity as a science teacher was extended when we moved into this new building," she said. "Better lab facilities and having all the science rooms in one wing has offered a greater collegial atmosphere."

An advisor for the National Honor Society for 28 years, Wells has kept busy with plenty of after-school activities and says she still enjoys teaching.

"I like being with the stu-

Duties continue to increase for teachers

The following are some of the added responsibilities teachers have had to deal with over the years. The list is compiled by Janie Vollmer, a former businesswoman and attorney who now works to help strengthen community support for public schools and build professional pride among America's educators. Vollmer points out that in most states we have not added a single minute to the school calendar in five decades.

In the 1980's schools added

- keyboarding and computer education
- global education
- ethnic education
- multicultural/non-sexist education
- English-as-a-second-language, and bilingual education
- early childhood education
- Jump Start, Early Start, Even Start, and Prime Start
- full day kindergarten
- pre-school programs for children at risk
- after school programs for children of working parents
- alternative education in all its forms
- stranger/danger education
- anti-smoking education
- sexual-abuse prevention education
- health and psychological services are expanded, and
- child-abuse monitoring becomes a legal requirement

In the 1990's schools added

- HIV/AIDS education
- death education
- expanded computer and Internet education
- inclusion
- Tech Prep and School to work programs
- gang education (in urban centers)
- bus safety education
- bicycle safety education, and
- gun safety education

dents," she said. "I enjoy teaching science and advising the science clubs. I will continue to keep teaching as long as it is fun and at the same time productive learning time for the students."

Joe Romeo began his career as a substitute teacher when "computers needed a big room with air conditioning to hold them."

Romeo would like to see teachers given more freedom to do what they do best, teach. "The state keeps telling us what to teach, then takes away the funding to do it," he said. "They have set standards that kids have to meet to get a diploma, which they could not meet themselves. And we have had less money most years."

Romeo, who says he works about 60 hours a week and has seen class sizes increase over the past three years, still feels comfortable in front of a group of students.

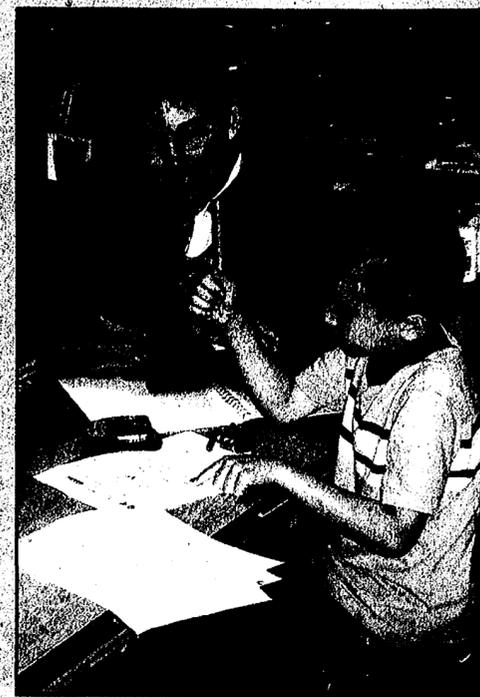

"Kids are funny still," he said. "And some of my students are children of former students of mine, so that connection to parents makes it more interesting."

Most teachers would agree that some change is good and some not so good. But teaching is still the greatest job in the world.

"We get to teach a lot more interesting and authentic stuff now," Marsh said. "Making assignments link to the kids is what is fun. When I was in school and when I first started teaching there was still a lot of diagramming sentences and formulaic writing. Kids get to do some really interesting assignments these days."

Said Jones: "For me, the thing that keeps me pumped up to remain teaching is the friendship relationships that kids seem to be more open to these days. Not that they want to 'hang out' with teachers, but are looking for a smile and a hello as they come into the classroom. Most kids are seeking to have a personal interaction with teachers, not content to merely be another in the sea of faces in a classroom."

Marcia Quilter, first-grade teacher at North Creek Elementary School in Chelsea, spends some extra time one-on-one with Dacio Romero on an assignment.

Mission Marketplace thinking globally

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer
"Shop locally. Help globally."

That is the abiding attitude behind The Mission Marketplace, a store that is dedicated to the principles of fair trade.

Executive Director Kevin Frahm describes it as "treating people with respect, and assures that the people who make our items receive a living wage, and are using environmentally friendly practices."

Unlike most retail establishments, the Mission Marketplace is a 501 (c)(3) nonprofit organization, which Frahm said replaces the profit motive with a desire "to work toward a more equitable and just world."

"We're an independent, nonprofit, and volunteer-supported fair trade store, with a board of directors who takes no compensation," Frahm said. The store, located at 117 S. Main St., across from the Common Grill restaurant, is celebrating World Fair Trade Day from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday.

Among the activities and items planned are a bubble machine, children doing African drumming, treats from around the world, Peruvian gourd art, and clothing and jewelry from Nepal.

For more information, call the store at 1-734-475-7804 or visit www.thermis-mission-marketplace.org.

The aim of Saturday's global observance, according to the International Fair Trade Association, is to promote a stronger global awareness of fair trade principles and campaign for justice in trade.

"We've been warmly received in Chelsea," Frahm said. "We're most excited about the opportunities for educating people about fair trade and social investing."

Fair trade products, including Frahm's best-sellers of chocolate, coffee and tea, clothing, jewelry and handcrafts, come from marginalized communities throughout the developing world.

"We have had items in here from 49 different countries, including the United States," Frahm said. "You don't have to go outside our country to find people in need."

The principles of fair trade are really the principles for living a better life, Frahm noted.

"As a father, the love I feel for my children is special but not unique," he said. "All (the people who make our products) want is a better life for their kids. How dare I not at least try to lift them up so they are able to have a better life."

Kevin Frahm, executive director of The Mission Marketplace, 117 S. Main St., shows a children's book to Gerane Weinreich of Chelsea. The Mission Marketplace is a fair trade store, and will be celebrating World Fair Trade Day on Saturday.

Julie Porter and Jackie Day of Brooklyn and Helena Frost of New York browse the selection of international items available at The Mission Marketplace, a fair trade store located at 117 S. Main St. in Chelsea.

Letters to the Editor

Letters may be sent to editor@chelseastandard.com or to Chelsea Standard/Dexter Leader, 20750 Old US-12, Chelsea, MI 48118

Our policy

It is our policy to run all local letters to the editor that deal with local issues and are not personal attacks.

The Chelsea Standard

May 10, 2007

Heard you have a serious topic to talk about. Sometimes that gets you into trouble.

I know. It seems some people only support freedom of speech when you agree with them.

Is that the serious topic?

No. But I will say that I get complaints when readers feel the paper isn't local enough. They want local news, local features, local everything. However, many of the letters to the editor I receive have nothing to do with Chelsea and Dexter. I will just leave it at that.

That would be a first.

I will say that people should never base, support or justify a position on a poll. Who is taking the poll? Where are they taking the poll? When are they taking the poll? How are they asking the question? A recent poll was quoted in this newspaper saying that one out of every four Iraqis want the Americans out of Iraq.

Well, how was the question asked? "After stability returns to your country do you want Americans to withdraw its troops from Iraq" is a lot different than "do you want American troops out of Iraq right now?"

Are you polling Kurds or a Sunni or a Shiite? Something tells me that might make a difference. Are you asking the people behind the violence? Something tells me they might not want the U.S. around.

Didn't you get a letter blasting you for quoting a poll in the N.Y. Post?

Yes, I did. Which brings me back to my freedom of speech point. If the poll doesn't support what they believe, then the poll is corrupt. I guess the folks at CNN and the NY Times have never been accused of having a political bias. Meanwhile, polls by the N.Y. Post and Fox News can't be trusted.

Frankly, I don't trust any national poll because there are so many variables to take into account.

Does this bring you back to your serious topic?

Yes, it does. And this is somewhat local.

Finally.

Had a nice lunch last week with an admitted and proud liberal. He made an interesting point about not being bothered with paying higher taxes if he knows how it's being spent. He used the example of every student in Chelsea getting a laptop as a benefit to paying higher taxes.

But that really made me stop and think about the laptop program. Is it really necessary that every sixth-grade student get a laptop for a full year? And then none of them get one the following year in seventh grade.

First of all, I would guess that at least half of the students in the sixth grade in Chelsea have a computer in their home. And that's a "liberal" estimate. A laptop is a computer. They probably go home and put the laptop on the computer desk, right next to the family's home computer and not far from where the family keeps its own laptop.

What about the other half?

Laptops can be kept in the classroom and shared among students - the same way students share beakers and volleyballs. There can be a sign-up sheet for the weekend for students to take them home - if they need to.

The point is, students can learn how to use a computer without owning one. I learned how to drive without the school giving me a car. I learned how to type without the school giving me a typewriter. I learned how to kiss without the school....never mind.

Everyone talks about our education system falling behind places such as Japan and China. I wonder if each sixth-grader in Japan gets a laptop. I wonder if our "falling behind" doesn't have more to do with the breakdown of the family structure and parents requiring less and less from our kids.

Does the teenager in Japan rush home from school, grab a two-liter bottle of root beer and a bag of Doritos and park his mind in front of X-Box 360, Playstation or GameCube. Does the teenager in

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor: Mrs. Jackson and I extend our thanks and admiration to the fire crews who extinguished a brush fire that got out of hand (Sunday) and threatened Stinchfield Woods. The Dexter Fire Department responded rapidly to my call for assistance, and soon was joined by equipment from the Chelsea, Scio and Putnam Township departments.

The event provided considerable excitement on our generally quiet little road. A common comment from our neighbors was that although our real estate taxes seem high, we can clearly appreciate the value of having outstanding emergency services ready and able to respond whenever needed.

So, our sincere thanks to all those emergency service workers, many of whom were volunteers, who came quickly, acted professionally, and did a great job. We and our neighbors are most grateful!

To the Editor: In the past, when I heard of someone receiving the diagnosis of cancer, my first reaction was always, why can't "they" find a cure? Since I've become involved in Relay for Life, I've learned that the "they" is actually "we" and the "we" is everyone surrounding me at this awesome event.

The "we" is also anyone else interested in finding a cure and better treatments for this disease through their donations of time, money and medical know-how. "WE" have to help ourselves and Relay is about people helping people.

Not only does my involvement in Relay mean my efforts may help someone in the future, but it also rekindles my belief in the human spirit. Look anywhere in the media and your impression of mankind can be dampened. Attend an American Cancer Society Relay for Life and see hundreds of people working toward a common goal that will benefit hundreds of thousands of people, mostly strangers they will never meet. These Relayers give up time, money and often times, their integrity while they stroll the track in some hideous costume or take a pie to the face, all while having fun and knowing they would rather be nowhere else.

Please plan to join myself and the hundreds of other phenomenal participants on May 19 and 20 for the Western Washtenaw County Relay for Life of Chelsea at the Chelsea Community Fairgrounds. Having known many cancer survivors throughout my life, all will tell you that one of the most beneficial parts of their treatment is knowing that others are there to support and care for them in their time of need. Consider Relay a huge support network and bring your family, your neighbors, your co-workers and anyone else you can to this life-changing event. I promise you that your time and donations will be spent wisely and the fight against cancer will be eventually won by all of us working together.

Our Take

State needs to ratify lake compact

Michigan markets itself as the Great Lakes State.

The lakes surround the state, carving out the unique mitten shape for the Lower Peninsula, and offering year-round recreational opportunities, as well as an economic engine worth tens of millions of tourism dollars annually.

So, Michiganians must wonder why it is that Minnesota, rather than the Great Lakes State, appears to be the first on the fast track to approving the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence River Basin Water Resources Compact to protect the precious resource.

The goal of the compact is fairly simple, despite its mouthful of a title. It seeks to protect the valuable water resources of the Great Lakes, and combat future efforts to siphon off that water by states or agencies outside the immediate region.

The Minnesota House approved a bill adopting the compact in early April, and after preliminary action April 30, the Senate was expected to do so. If the Senate approves the compact, Minnesota will become the first state to take this important step. No other compact member state, including Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, New York, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Ohio, has passed bills adopting the compact in both houses. Two Canadian provinces are also signatories to the compact.

The state legislatures have to ratify the compact before it can go to the U.S.

Congress for adoption consideration.

The Great Lakes are already victims of invasive foreign species like the zebra mussel and the goby. An Asian carp species is held at bay only by an electric barrier in southern Lake Michigan.

In recent years, we have seen water levels in the Great Lakes drop precipitously, wreaking economic havoc on the boating and recreation industries. Scientists and climatologists can debate the cyclical nature of those fluctuations, but the value of the Lakes to the state and the region is indisputable.

Michigan has lost a seat in Congress, and if population trends hold we stand to lose another in a few years. Simultaneously, populations and congressional representation in water-hungry states such as Arizona and Nevada continue to grow. The compact is essential because we may face a time when states in the Southwest seek diversion of Great Lakes water for drinking water or irrigation.

Only about 7 percent of Minnesota's land mass lies within the Lake Superior watershed. But 100 percent of Michigan's land mass lies within the Great Lakes watershed. If any state stands to lose the most from water diversion, it is Michigan. The state should be at the forefront of this effort, yet the Legislature let a bill adopting the compact die in 2006.

Prescribed burning effective in restoring amazing habitats

A crackling sound resonates as high flames slither across the field. Small trees and bushes are quickly engulfed, providing more fuel for the fire.

Nearby a small group of highly trained fire officers with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources are moving with the fire in protective clothing, hard hats and firefighting equipment.

This is not a wild fire; it is a prescribed burn, which has been deliberately ignited to restore a natural ecosystem.

Prescribed fire is increasingly being used by the DNR and other public-land managers and private landowners to manage vegetation. If implemented when conditions are just right and in an appropriate environment, prescribed fire is a valuable, safe, critical tool for restoring and maintaining important wildlife habitats such as prairies and savannas, oak barrens, jack pine forests and wetlands.

"Prescribed fire is a misunderstood management technique," said Mark Sargent, Private Lands coordinator in the DNR's Wildlife Division. "We understand that it can appear frightening to have a fire racing across a landscape, but we do not light them unless conditions are perfect. Prescribed burns are very effective in restoring some amazing habitats."

Michigan often is thought of as a state historically dominated by its forests. However, when the Europeans first settled here, a significant component of the landscape consisted of more open communities such as prairies and barrens. Most of these grassland sites occurred where trees and shrubs had difficulty growing because of the droughty and infertile soils.

Frequent wildfires (often set by Native Americans or lightning) kept these areas open by killing or stunting shrubs and trees. Wildfires occurred irregularly across the landscape. Fire frequency varied greatly depending on vegetation type, fuel load and flammability, soil moisture, weather and topography.

It is estimated that of the 11 million to 13 million acres of savanna found in the Midwest in the early 1800s, less than 0.02 percent remain. In addition, invasive species, such as spotted knapweed, autumn olive and common buckthorn, are crowding out and killing the little bits of remaining prairie and savannas that exist.

Modern-day fire suppression has transformed prairies and savannas into brush land and young forests because grasses and flowers that cannot grow in shade are unable to thrive under the tall shrubs and trees.

"Since we can no longer allow wildfires to do their job naturally, the DNR uses prescribed burns to mimic those effects because fire is extremely beneficial to a variety of plants and animals," Sargent said. "Without the use of fire, we may lose biological diversity."

So, this spring or fall, if you see or hear a familiar crackling or see contained flames in the distance, a crew of natural resource professionals may be restoring lost habitat.

The DNR recommends returning to that same area next year to see the beautiful grasses and wildflower that may reappear.

TAKE

and Paula Zelenko, D-Burton, introduced a bill last year to have Michigan adopt the compact. That bill was referred to the House Committee on Natural Resources, Great Lakes, Land Use and Environment, where it died quietly at the conclusion of last year's legislative session.

It is crucial for the state that Bieda re-introduce the legislation, and Washtenaw County's contingent — both Democrat and Republican — get firmly behind its passage.

The state relies upon the Great Lakes. The recreational opportunities offered by Lake St. Clair and the others bring millions of dollars and support thousands of jobs. Any potential damage to the Great Lakes will strike a blow to our economy.

At some future point, the state may decide that it wants to sell water to other states and regions. For the resource to remain plentiful, and a potential future viable commodity, Michigan needs to ratify the compact this year.

Throwing money at the problem is not always the answer. If there is a problem with the education of our children, giving them all laptops will not make our kids better students.

So, get rid of the laptops?

Of course not. Technology is just as important these days as math and science. Kids need to know how to use computers — so they can at least teach their parents. Bringing the latest technology into the schools and having students prepared for the future is essential. We are fortunate to be a part of two school systems that understand this and do an excellent job getting our kids ready for the challenges they will face down the road.

But the reason Chelsea and Dexter have outstanding schools has more to do with dedicated teachers, administrative support and sound family values and structures than it does with every kid owning a laptop. If we are going to pay higher taxes, let's use the money for more teachers instead of more laptops.

"Just enjoy where you are and not where you want to be."

the series

This is the second in a series of articles that will run throughout the year on the Purple Rose Theatre Co. The first feature, "Setting the Stage," appeared Feb. 13 and focused on the process of how a play goes from the drawing board to the stage. The second feature, "Writing and Acting," is a look at Brian Letscher, a Michigan native who wrote and stars in "When the Lights Come On," now playing at the Purple Rose. The play is Letscher's first as a writer and is based on his highly personal experiences as a high school football coach trying to decide exactly what his priorities are in life.

Michigan actor finds a place to stand

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

There are motivational sayings written on the walls surrounding the set of "When the Lights Come On," the latest play to hit the stage at Chelsea's Purple Rose Theatre. Many of the sayings were taken right off the walls from the University of Michigan, while others are more well known, such as "no retreat, no surrender."

There is one quote that is a little more meaningful for Brian Letscher, who not only stars in "When the Lights Come On," but also wrote it. That saying, "give me a place to stand," is as much about Brian Letscher as it is about Tommy Leonard, the character Brian plays.

"It means I don't have to play quarterback, I don't have to be the running back, I just want to be on the team so just give me a place to stand and tell me what to do," Brian says. "It's about being part of something bigger than yourself."

There isn't much of a difference between Brian and Tommy. Brian decided to use this opportunity to write his first play on a subject he knew very well - and we aren't talking about football. We are talking about Brian.

"When I was younger I wanted it to be true, but it was more about me and I just didn't know that," he says. "But as I get older being a part of something is much more how I feel about things. I am much happier to be a part of something."

His play is a testament to that belief. "It took more than 30 people to make this play happen," he says. "I am just happy to be a part of it."

Many actors and playwrights and people who dream never get to experience that feeling of teamwork and fulfillment and satisfaction. But Brian's road from Grosse Pointe to Chelsea wasn't exactly a straight shot down I-94.

Sipowicz and Speedos

Brian's occasional acting jobs landed him on a few soap operas, including All My Children, where he played "Dennis the security guard" on several episodes in 2006. He also played an ad executive on Kate & Leopold (2001), Slippery Slope (2006), Law & Order (2006) and Law & Order: Special Victims Unit (2003, 2005).

But his most "revealing" appearance came on the Emmy-Award winning series NYPD Blue. Brian played "Wally" in an episode in 2003 during the show's 11th season and also starred Mark-Paul Gosselaar. But it was the show's biggest star, Dennis Franz, who got to see Brian up close and personal.

"I played this guy who was swimming around in the Hudson River training for this swim and I found a dead body," Brian explains. "So (the detectives) come down to the seaport to interview me and all I am wearing is a Speedo and goggles on my head."

Detective Sipowicz (played by the popular wisecracking Dennis Franz) attempts to get some information from the thin suited Wally.

"I tell him how I found the body, but at the end of the scene I drop my keys and bend over to pick them up (in full view of

"But while we were shooting the scene, tour buses would come by and all these tourists are shooting pictures of me standing there in a Speedo. To this day my dad still never mentions that show."

The episode certainly helped give Brian plenty of exposure - just not the kind he was looking for.

Remember who you are

On a trip to New York City, Purple Rose Artistic Director Guy Sanville saw Brian in an off-Broadway play ("Burning Blue") and offered him the part of Bo Decker in "Bus Stop," a play Sanville would earn best director for and the show would earn best play from the Detroit Free Press.

"Burning Blue" was a play about four Navy fighter pilots and two pilots that fall in love.

"I auditioned for every one of the four roles," Brian said. "I went in for the lead guy, then they brought me in for the next guy and brought me in again and again. At the end of it all my agent calls and said you didn't get any of the parts but they want to offer you the understudy for all four leads. My agent said I should do it so I did."

Brian had to learn all four parts and show up each day of the performance prepared to do any of them in front of a live audience.

"About two weeks into the show one of the guys ends up getting fired and I got his job," he said. "I never even got a rehearsal. This guy that got fired had an incident the night before at the show and they fired him the next morning. They called me at about 11:30 in the morning and said I was going on and that I had to be there by 4 o'clock. They couldn't get the cast together so all I got was a walk-through with some cast members and I went on that night."

While Brian knew Sanville before he offered him the role in "Bus Stop," he was about to get to know him a lot better.

"I knew him a little through my brother Matt and I had taken an acting class that he taught so I knew him a little," Brian said. "He was in New York for something else and I asked him to come down and see the play. Afterwards, he said he was looking for a Bo Decker for "Bus Stop" and offered it to me."

See more of Terry Jacoby's interview with Brian Letscher at www.chelseastandard.com

What are you willing to do to win

While Brian was playing Bo Decker a story more along the lines of another Bo was starting to form in his mind.

"We were talking football and Guy said he would love to do a football play and I told him I was putting together something based on my football experiences and he said well then write it," said Brian, still shaking his head at how easily and innocently it all started.

But there was nothing easy or innocent about the process. Then again, it never is.

"We could not be more delighted to present Brian Letscher's first play," Sanville said. "Brian is a wonderful actor and writer who knows the life of a coach first-hand."

"When the Lights Come On" is a funny and moving new play about major college coaches and the women in their lives, focusing on loyalty, commitment and the escalating price of winning at all costs."

Brian summed up Sanville in one word, "amazing."

And while Brian knew football, Sanville knew how to put together a play that not only tells a story, but also entertains an audience. There wasn't always perfect harmony between writer and director, but give and take is always part of the process. It's all part of moving the ball down the field.

"The first draft was 148 pages," Brian said. "But a lot of what's in the play was in that first draft. We had two workshops of it and we rewrote after those workshops."

Since it was Brian's first time through the process, he doesn't have anyone to compare Sanville with, but ... "Guy is just a master at getting to the heart of the play," he says. "So all the stuff around it that I liked that I thought was interesting and built characters he would just get rid of. He would cut, cut and cut. The first workshop we went from 148 pages to 120 in about two hours. He was just crossing off entire pages and I was like 'what are you doing?'"

Built from the ground up

In the beginning, Brian gave ground and let Sanville do his thing. After all, he was the veteran and Brian was the rookie.

"I always had a sense that I knew what he was doing was right," Brian said. "He was a very easy guy to put your trust in. And even though it's my name next to writer, about 20 people helped write this."

After the first workshop and the cutting and rewriting, Brian thought they were close. But as it turned out they were nowhere near the end zone.

"For the next three weeks it was rewriting and shuffling around," Brian says. "Then I went in and said to Guy that we have to move this scene up 30 pages. He looked at me and said that's brilliant. We're done."

"But it was constant changing. But it was beautiful."

The end result was a play that will leave many looking back at some of the choices they made playing in their own "game." Work, whether it's coaching football, writing software, teaching children or building bridges, can be demanding. What are your priorities? And are they the right priorities?

Family, trust, respect

Born and raised in Grosse Pointe, Brian was a three-sport athlete in high school - and still looks like he could play three sports. After spending a semester at Miami of Ohio, where he was just starting to impress the football coaches after practicing with the varsity as a walk-on, Brian transferred to the University of Michigan.

"I would love to say it had everything to do with football, but there was a girl involved also," he says. "But a lot of it was football. I was doing well at Miami but I always had my heart set on Michigan."

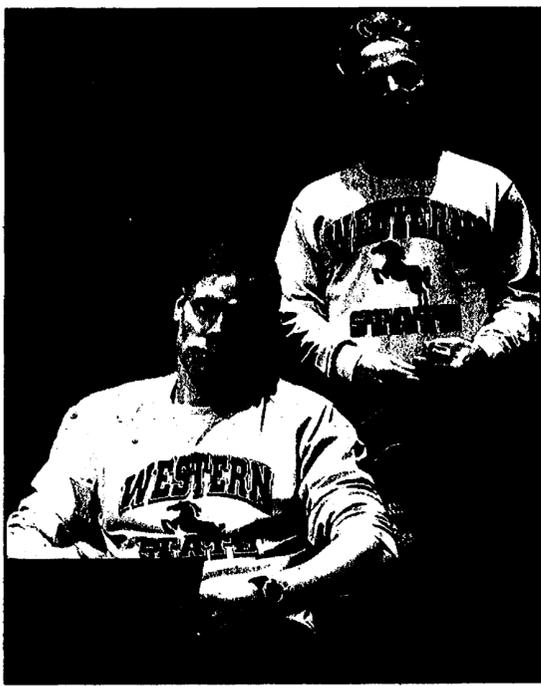

So Brian followed his heart.

His playing career never resulted in any playing time for the Wolverines but he certainly discovered a new love along the way.

"After I graduated I went and worked for my dad's manufacturing company for two months but I found out pretty quickly that that wasn't for me," he said. "I really missed football. I called Coach (Lloyd) Carr and told him I really wanted to be a football coach and he helped get me a job at Wayne State."

Brian began a very quick climb up the coaching ladder.

After Wayne State came Eastern Michigan (graduate assistant), then Indiana (graduate assistant) followed by a return to Ypsilanti where he was named recruiting coordinator and tight ends coach at Coaches Tommy Leonard and Frank Harley try to help Western State land a prized recruit in "When the Lights Come On," now playing at the Purple Rose.

Eastern Michigan.

"It was probably too fast," Brian says. "Coach (Cam) Cameron at Indiana tried to talk me out of the EMU job because he thought it was too much too soon. He wanted me to stay at Indiana."

But Brian again followed his heart - a full-time paying job as a college football coach. It was all he ever wanted. And he was just 24 years old.

After three years at EMU, the entire staff was let go and Brian was left to ponder his future. In those three years he got enough of a taste of college football to learn just how demanding the job is. It's relentless. It's cut-throat. It's pressure. It's 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

It's also not for everyone. "I got a call from Canisius College (in Buffalo, N.Y.) interested in interviewing me for their head-coaching job and I told them that I appreciated the call but I didn't want to coach anymore," Brian said. "And that was all I had worked for up to that point. But I knew that moment that I was never going to coach again."

Blame no one

So now what? While Brian had eliminated coaching from his list of interests, he wasn't sure what he wanted to do next. That list wasn't very long, but acting was certainly on it - even if it wasn't at the top.

"In college I decided to audition for a sketch comedy show and to this day I have no idea why," he says, letting out a boisterous laugh that fills up the room. "I ended up getting cast and did the show my final semester at Michigan. I really enjoyed it and ended up taking three acting classes at U-M."

"Sure the acting bug was still there, but it wasn't like I quit coaching to become an actor," he said.

It was 1999 and Brian, now 27, had been married for a year. With coaching behind him and acting still hanging around, Brian took a job in New York City selling advertising for an internet company. While living in Brooklyn, Brian was still taking acting classes and getting small parts - just enough to keep his toe in the water - when he was offered a part alongside Kathie-Lee Gifford in a play called "Thumbs."

"This was a full-time job, it wasn't something I could just do in the evenings so I had to quit my job," he said. "I was awful in it and I think they tried to get rid of me but I hung around until the end."

After "Thumbs" went thumbs down, Brian spent the next five years doing what most actors in New York do. "I was working a bunch of different jobs and making money at acting here and there. My acting income went up steadily each year but never enough to make a living at."

Touchdown

Brian surrounds himself with a simply spectacular cast. Jim Porterfield (Rolly Jones) and Purple Rose regular Wayne David Parker (Frank Harley) grab your attention from the first whistle and never let go. They play their parts as If they've been playing them their whole life.

Rhiannon R. Ragland, a newcomer to the Purple Rose, is as spectacular as she is beautiful. If the program didn't say it, no one would believe she was making her professional acting debut.

The concept of the opening scene is brilliant - as is the execution. It's a difficult scene to pull off and even a bit risky, but this cast performs it flawlessly. The scene alone is worth the price of admission.

"When the Lights Come On" is a play about choices, priorities, family and love more than it is about running, passing and converting on third down. The subject might be football, but the message isn't about winning and losing. It's about the cost of winning and losing. It's about deciding not only what you want to do with your life, but how you want to live that life.

And it's about what kind of person you want to truly be.

"Entertainment is very important, but if people don't walk out of here thinking a little bit then we didn't do our job," Brian says. "We have this singular obsession in this country with winning. And sometimes that gets in our way more than it helps us."

There is a line in the play that really sums up Brian at this stage of his life: "Just enjoy where you are and not where you want to be."

In the end, Tommy is where he wants to be. And so is Brian.

Celebrate Teacher Appreciation Week

This is a wonderful opportunity to recognize and thank teachers for the role they play in the lives of children. Each teacher is an important part of our nation's educational system.

The origins of National Teacher Day are murky. Around 1944 Kansas teacher Mattye Whyte Woodridge began corresponding with political and education leaders about the need for a national day to honor teachers. Woodridge wrote to Eleanor Roosevelt, who in 1953 persuaded the 81st Congress to proclaim National Teacher Day.

Along with its origins in Kansas and Indiana state legislatures and the Dodge County (Kan.) Local, lobbying led Congress to create a national day celebration for teachers. Congress passed March 7, 1980, designating National Teacher Day that year only.

Over the years and its affiliates continued to observe National Teacher Day on the first Tuesday of March until 1985, when the National Education Association established Teacher Appreciation Week as the first full week of May. The House of Representatives then voted to make the Tuesday of that week National Teacher Day.

Chelsea linksters second at quad

By Don Richter

Chelsea's girls' golf team finished second at the Ypsilanti Lincoln quad at Pine View Golf Course May 2. The Bulldogs ended up with a score of 185.

Winning the match was Division II No. 2-ranked Dexter with a 175. Tecumseh was third with a 198, while the host Raispliters were fourth with a 228.

"This was another good team score for our ladies," said Chelsea coach Andrea Bareis. "I still know that we are capable of shooting lower, but this is still a great showing. We're only 10 strokes behind Dexter who is one of the best teams in the state right now, so that's encouraging."

"And we scored this well without our No. 3 golfer Stephanie Everard today. It's great when we can fill the gaps as needed."

Individually for Chelsea, Emily Hardcastle led the Bulldogs shooting a 41.

Krystin Schwarze ended up with a 45, while Hannah Harwood had a 48, Emma Chervinsky a 51 and Chrissy Burman and Sarah Shrosbree each had a 55 for the Bulldogs.

On May 1, Chelsea placed 11th at the 20-team Ann Arbor Pioneer Invitational at the University of Michigan Golf Course.

The Bulldogs recorded a team score of 387.

Capturing the tournament title was Grand Blanc with a score of 347. Traverse City West and Brighton tied for second each with a 356.

Hardcastle led Chelsea placing sixth overall with a score of 82.

"Emily's 82 is just an outstanding round of golf especially at U-M," Bareis said. "The match medalist shot a 77."

Schwarze finished 24th with a 92.

"Krystin played a fabulous round of golf today," Bareis said. "She was consistent."

Bulldogs blanked by Pioneers

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea's girls' soccer team lost to host Ann Arbor Pioneer 3-0 last Thursday.

"The first 20 minutes of the game was played fairly evenly," said Chelsea coach Chris Orlandi. "Both teams had good chances. Late in the first half, the wheels came off."

With 5:28 left in the first half, Pioneer scored off of a free kick, for a 1-0 lead.

"It would have been really big for us to get out of the half without surrendering that goal," Orlandi said.

In the second half, the Bulldogs (8-2, 2-2 Southeastern Conference) came out somewhat flat.

Ann Arbor took advantage of Chelsea's sluggishness scoring two goals in the first 10 minutes of the second half for the game's final margin.

"We had some miscommunication in our back line and a Pioneer forward just out-worked us to flip a ball over (Chelsea keeper) Maggie (Manville) before she could get to it," Orlandi said. "The third goal looked much like the first. Maggie made an outstanding save to steer a tough shot into the crossbar. Pioneer was just in the right place to get the rebound."

"They were very aggressive on offense and we were not anticipating things. This is a really discouraging result, but we're still in the thick of the SEC race with Dexter losing to Saline. It should be an exciting race for the title."

Pioneer out-shot the Bulldogs 13-8.

On May 1, host Chelsea defeated Adrian 8-0. The mercy rule was invoked at halftime.

Amanda McKenzie opened the scoring for the Bulldogs converting a pass from Leah Morrison for a 1-0 Chelsea lead five minutes into the contest.

Sarah Reinhardt made it 2-0 one minute later off a pass from Eleanor Stewart.

Morrison increased the Bulldog lead to 3-0 scoring at the 12-minute mark off a pass from Reinhardt.

One minute later, Stewart scored for a 4-0 lead. Brooke Ehman assisted on the play for Chelsea.

Mackenzie Lake scored off a pass from Morrison at the 19-minute mark.

Lake made it 6-0 Bulldogs scoring at the 28-minute mark of the first half. Ehman recorded an assist on the goal for Chelsea.

Reinhardt scored at the 31-minute mark for a 7-0 advantage. Cara Johnson picked up an assist on the play for the Bulldogs.

Reinhardt scored her third goal of the game for a hat trick five minutes later for the day's final margin. Morrison assisted on the play for Chelsea. For the game, Morrison dished out a team-high three assists.

The Bulldogs out-shot the Maples 13-0.

Earning the shutout in net for Chelsea was keeper Jenna Jarvis.

The Bulldogs next travel to Adrian for a game at 5:30 p.m.

On Saturday, Chelsea hosts Pinckney at 12:30 p.m. Also during the contest against the Pirates, the Bulldogs will be hosting a "Bulldog Soccer in the Past, Present and Future" celebration. All Chelsea girls' soccer alums and any girl players in the Chelsea Soccer Club are invited to attend the match. Girls who wear their club jerseys will get in for free.

Teachers who coach a special breed

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

They yell.
They inspire.
They strategize.
They plan.
And that's just in the classroom.

Teachers, who also double as coaches, are special individuals, indeed.

They spend most of their time at school, in their classrooms and either on the field, at the rink or in the gym. They have dedicated a large portion of their lives to their students.

And they wouldn't have it any other way.

"Coaching and teaching are very demanding professions, much more than most people can imagine, that require great commitment of time and energy, but the opportunity to help young people develop as students, athletes and people can be a great reward," said Dexter's Randy Swoverland, who's doubled as a math teacher and boys' basketball coach for the past 31 years. "I have always enjoyed athletics and coaching/teaching allows me to remain in that arena."

Chelsea teacher and cross country and track and field coach Eric Swager said doing double-duty for most of his 15 years on the job has been a pleasure.

"My favorite part is just interacting with the kids and watching them improve," he said. "The competence of the assistant coaches and volunteers makes my job much easier. Also, the support of my wife is wonderful."

"My theory is if I am to ask the kids to work hard in pursuit of excellence, I must be willing to work as hard or harder as their coach. It all starts with attitude and just plain making it happen."

Chris Orlandi has been juggling the dual duties of math teacher and girls' varsity soccer coach for all of his 13 years at Chelsea.

"I love coaching," he said. "I love the thrill of competition. I love working with kids both inside and outside of the school setting. Anyone who says they can handle everything without it getting crazy is a miracle worker. I feel like I'm scrambling to survive all of the time. Dealing with teaching, coaching, church responsibilities, family responsibilities is so challenging."

Orlandi said being a teacher and a coach are both quite similar.

"Coaching is similar to teaching in that organization and leadership are vital to the group's success," he said. "The major difference between the responsibilities is that the kids I coach are motivated to be out there with me so I have a more captive audience."

Jaime Dudash has been a Dexter teacher and Dreadnaught boys' cross country coach since 1998.

"It can be a challenge to effectively balance both assignments," he said. "It is important to remember that the primary commitment is to the students in your classroom. But for so many students it is the extra curricu-

Sauers chooses Grace College

Chelsea's Mike Sauers has committed to play soccer at Grace College next season.

"It is a good Christian college where I can strengthen my faith in God, further my education and have fun," said Sauers, who also was a starting forward on the Bulldogs' state-ranked basketball team this past winter.

Sauers, a midfielder, was a four-year varsity player for Chelsea. A three-year first-team All-Southeastern Conference selection, Sauers earned third-team All-State honors this past season.

A co-captain, Sauers was Chelsea offensive MVP last year. For his career, the quick and athletic 6-foot-2 scoring whiz, finished his Bulldog career with 25 goals and 24 assists.

Also a standout in the classroom, Sauers earned Magna Cum Laude recognition and is a member of the National Honor Society.

"I hope to do my best and get a good education," said Sauers.

On the field, Sauers has two goals as he begins his collegiate soccer career.

"I want to have fun and use my abilities to help the Grace soccer team succeed," he said.

Grace College coach Roy Danielson said he was pleased with Sauers' decision.

"We are very happy at Grace that Michael has chosen to attend and play for us," he said. "He is a good fit for the college and our soccer program. We are looking forward to having Michael become a strong field player and spiritual leader for this team."

Coaching Sauers for three of his four years in high school former Chelsea coach Chad Scaling said Sauers' natural athletic ability, work ethic, dedication have enabled him to become an outstanding soccer player.

"He has great passion and understanding of the game of soccer," he said. "What is truly exceptional about Mike is his personality, character and faith. I feel fortunate to have had the opportunity to not only coach Mike, but to watch him succeed in both athletics and academics. Mike will not only be an outstanding addition to the athletic program at Grace College, but to its entire community."

Carpenter breaks school record

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea's boys' track and field team participated in the Golden Triangle meet in Ypsilanti last Saturday.

Leading the Bulldogs was junior Evan Carpenter who finished first in the 110-meter hurdles with a school record time of 14.38.

"That was the highlight of the meet," said Chelsea coach Eric Swager. "He broke Dave McLaughlin's 42-year-old school record with his sizzling 14.38 clocking. He (Carpenter) has natural hurdling ability, but his work ethic has improved his form and fitness. He will only improve as he gets stronger."

Placing third in the 110-meter hurdles for Chelsea was junior Justin McGrath in a lifetime best 15.28.

In the pole vault, Peter Wilke finished third with a sophomore class record of 11-feet, six inches.

Junior Sam Dyer placed third in the shot put with a heave of 42-11, while junior Tyler Ball was fifth with a 42-3. Ball was also fifth in the discus with a throw of 125-2.

Senior Danny Ngo finished first in the long jump with a distance of 19-8. He also was second in the 100 meters in 11.4 for the Bulldogs.

Senior Brendan Smith broke the tape first in the 800-meter run with a time of 2:00.3.

On May 1, visiting Chelsea defeated Tecumseh 91-41 in a dual meet.

With the win, the Bulldogs finished the season unbeaten in dual meets.

"We were able to run the table in dual meets this year," Swager said. "We are in great position as we head towards the SEC (Southeastern Conference) Jamboree and SEC White championships to repeat as SEC champs."

Against the Indians, Swager said Chelsea was a little banged up health-wise. "We were missing five of our top scorers due to various reasons," he said. "Still, when we competed, we competed hard. It was enough to handle Tecumseh."

In field events, Ball placed second in the shot put with a throw of 44-10.

In discus, senior Mark Bowdish was second with a lifetime best toss of 123-9.

In the long jump, Ngo finished first with a 19-2 mark. Aantwan McClendon was second with an 18-11, while senior Troy Holdreith was third with a lifetime best distance of 17-11 for the Bulldogs.

Wilke placed first in the pole vault for Chelsea clearing 10-0. Sophomore Noah Herman was second also with a lifetime best mark of 10-0.

McClendon was first in the high jump with a height of 5-10. Carpenter was second recording a 5-8.

Carpenter was first in the 110-meter hurdles in 14.9. He also was first in the 300-meter hurdles in a lifetime best 40.7. McGrath was second in the 110-meter hurdles in 15.8. He also was second in the 300-meter hurdles in 43.5.

Freshman Nick Hill finished first in the 100 meters with a clocking of 11.6. McClendon was second in 11.8.

Ngo crossed the line first in the 400-meter run with a lifetime best time of 52.2. Brendan Smith was a blink of an eye lash behind in second with a 52.5.

Junior Ryan Patrick placed second in the 800-meter run in a lifetime best 2:17 for the Bulldogs.

In the 1,600-meter run, Brendan Smith bested the field finishing first in 4:59. Sophomore Mark Smith was third in 5:05.

Sophomore Nick Hewitt was first in the 3,200-meter run with a time of 10:47. Junior Teddy Eyster was sec-

Chelsea baseball continued its outstanding season sweeping Saline and Ypsilanti Lincoln in doubleheaders.

Against the visiting Hornets, the Bulldogs (18-3) won 9-6, 2-1 last Monday.

In the opener, Karah Schanz picked up the win allowing two hits, striking out six and walking four.

Offensively, Brogan Darwin finished 2-for-2, with a double, while Hannah Guenther was 2-for-4 with a double, a three-run home run and four RBIs.

"Saline was one of the toughest teams in our league to beat," said Chelsea assistant coach Jennie Diesing. "The girls came out strong and ready to play. Hannah Guenther led our offense with her three-run home run to tie the game up in the bottom of the third inning. Karah Schanz threw a great game from the mound. I'm really proud of the way she has stepped up this year and led-our Bulldog squad."

In the second game, Schanz recorded the win from the circle yielding five hits, fanning four and walking five.

Darwin and Guenther each connected for a double, while Chelsea Strickland had a double and one RBI for the Bulldogs.

"Karah Schanz threw another great game from the mound and held a strong Saline offense to only one run," Diesing said. "As a team, we are feeling great about our success, however, we know we still have some tough challenges to face yet this season."

"We are approaching the season one game at a time and taking nothing for granted."

Last Thursday, visiting Chelsea swept Ypsilanti Lincoln winning 11-3, 8-3.

In Game 1, Schanz recorded the win from the rubber allowing three hits, fanning two and walking none.

Kelly Whitley earned the save giving up four hits, striking out five and walking none.

The Bulldogs had their hitting shoes on against the Railsplitters.

Annie Hollandsworth finished 1-for-3 with a double and one RBI, while Rachel Voicechovski was 2-for-5, Katie Lynn 2-for-4, Casey Keszler 3-for-5 and Casey Keilman 2-for-4 with a double and two RBIs. Darwin ended up 3-for-4 with a stolen base, while Guenther was 2-for-4 with a double and two RBIs.

In the nightcap, Strickland picked up the win allowing no hits, fanning five and walking one.

Chelsea's girls' track and field team lost to host Tecumseh 89-47 May 1.

"We ran into a very experienced and talented Tecumseh team that beat us easily," said Chelsea coach Pat Clarke. "Our youth and inexperience also hurt us for the first time this year. The girls' team will learn from this loss and it will make them tougher as the season progresses."

In field events, senior Kelly Anderson finished first in the shot put with a heave of 32-feet, five inches. She also was first in the discus with a season-best toss of 107-1. Jillian Fischer was second in the shot put with a mark of 30-1 and second in the discus with a throw of 103-9.

Jenny Squires was first in the high jump with a season-best height of 4-6. Sara Myers and Katie Martin tied for third each clearing 4-4.

Cassie Coffman placed first in the pole vault with a mark of 8-0.

In the long jump, Christina Coffman was third with a distance of 14-1.

Katrina Williams was third in the 110-meter hurdles with a time of 18.0. She was fourth in the 300-meter hurdles in 54.9.

Martin placed third in the 300-meter hurdles in 54.5 to lead the Bulldogs.

Erih Benjamin broke the tape first in the 100 meters with a clocking of 13.0. She placed second in the 200 meters in 27.0.

Bulldogs face Hornets in twinbill

Chelsea baseball hosted Saline in a doubleheader last Monday losing the opener 5-1 and tying 5-5 in the nightcap. The second game was stopped because of darkness. It is still undetermined when the contest will be made up.

In Game 1, the Bulldogs (14-1) wasted a strong outing by pitcher Chad Nielsen who went the distance striking out 11 and walking two.

"We could not come up with timely hits," said Chelsea coach Wayne Welton. "We had guys on base almost every inning. Saline, on the other hand, was able to get a lot of two out hits."

Chelsea scored its lone run in the sixth inning on Travis Amburgey's RBI double plating Adam Connell. Amburgey led the Bulldogs with two hits.

In the second game, the Chelsea bats came alive. Down 5-0, the Bulldogs rallied late.

In the fourth inning, Dan Rhodes blasted a solo home run.

In the fifth inning, Rhodes connected for his second dinger, this one a two-run shot, trimming Saline's lead to 5-3.

In the seventh inning, Chris Schmelz singled with one out. Rhodes followed with a single. With two outs, Dan Augustine ripped a two-run RBI double up the gap tying the contest at 5-5.

Last Thursday, visiting Chelsea split a doubleheader against Ypsilanti Lincoln winning the opener 7-1 and losing the second game 1-0.

In Game 1, Rhodes picked up the win from the mound throwing a complete game five-hitter with seven strikeouts and no walks.

"He had a big day," Welton said. "He pitched outstanding."

In the fifth inning, the Bulldogs broke open the game scoring three runs. Augustine began the frame with a single. Amburgey followed with a two-run home run. Rhodes' doubled and later scored on an error.

In the sixth inning, Chelsea put the game away with three additional runs. Jeff Adams led off with a double. He was brought home by a Nielsen RBI double. Augustine and Rhodes also had RBI doubles in the inning for the Bulldogs.

In the nightcap, Todd Elliott pitched well for Chelsea allowing one hit, striking out four and walking two.

"He's a competitor," Welton said. "He did a fantastic job. He pitched outstanding baseball. In his four starts this year, he's given up only one earned run."

The Railsplitters scored on a misplayed fly ball in the third inning for the game-winner.

"We had six hits and four walks, but we could not get the big hit to put us over the hump," Welton said. "We had numerous chances. It was a frustrating day."

Chelsea next hosts county rival Dexter Thursday at 4 p.m.

On Saturday, the Bulldogs host Pinckney at 10 a.m.

On Monday, Chelsea travels to Ann Arbor Pioneer for a match-up at 4 p.m.

On Tuesday, the Bulldogs host Tecumseh at 4 p.m.

JV Baseball Chelsea's JV baseball team defeated visiting Ypsilanti Lincoln 10-9 in 11 innings last Friday.

"It was a very good JV baseball game," said Chelsea coach Jim Ticknor. "We kept battling back."

Mike Lenneman singled in the winning run in the bottom of the 11th inning for the Bulldogs (4-7).

Donny Riedel finished with four strikeouts and four walks in five innings for Chelsea.

At the plate, Andrew Sensoli ended up 2-for-5 with two RBIs, while Brett Everding was 3-for-6 with one RBI and Lenneman 3-for-6 with one RBI for the Bulldogs.

On April 30, visiting Chelsea lost to Adrian 13-2.

"We made costly mistakes early and never recovered," Ticknor said.

Recording RBIs in the game for the Bulldogs were Steve O'Keefe and Sensoli.

Sensoli absorbed the loss from the hill for Chelsea tossing five innings, fanning four and walking seven.

On April 27, the visiting Bulldogs swept a doubleheader from Tecumseh winning 7-2, 11-5.

In the opener, Lenneman picked up the win from the rubber throwing all seven innings, striking out 11 and walking four.

Jake Powell finished 2-for-2 with one RBI, while Mike Goedert was 1-for-4 with one RBI, Zach Munce 2-for-3 and Jamin Breslin 1-for-3 with one RBI.

Sensoli ended up 2-for-4 with one RBI, while Everding was 2-for-4.

"It was a great pitching performance by Lenneman," Ticknor said. "We had some timely hitting, also."

In the nightcap, Everding tossed three innings, fanning five and walking three for the win. Sensoli finished up throwing two innings with one strikeout and one walk.

"Brett Everding and Andrew Sensoli gave us some good innings pitched," Ticknor said.

Munce finished 1-for-2 with two RBIs, while Sensoli was 1-for-3 with two RBIs.

Chelsea next travels to Dexter for a game Friday at 4 p.m.

On Saturday, the Bulldogs will visit Pinckney for a contest at 10 a.m.

confident and she came through with a great score. To shoot a 92 at U-M as a sophomore is just outstanding. It will be exciting to see how she does in the next few years."

Everard had a 101, Chervinsky a 112 and Shrobbree a 115 for the Bulldogs.

"This was a very good showing for us today at such a difficult course," Bareis said. "We had a lot to prove to ourselves after having a very poor team performance here last year."

On April 30, Chelsea defeated Saline 184-201 in a dual match at Reddeman Farms Golf Course.

"This was a nice win at home for us," Bareis said. "We had just lost to Saline by a few strokes at the Bedford Invitational this past Friday, so this was a nice way to bounce back from that loss."

Hardcastle and Schwarze both finished as first-place medalist each shooting a 44.

Everard added a 47, while Chervinsky had a 49.

"I was impressed by the way Krystin, Stephanie and Emma played today, especially when Emily didn't score as well as she normally does. I've been telling the girls all season that we need four scores in the 40s to be competitive and we finally got there today. It seems we usually have only three, so to have four there today was great."

Sarah Hoffman and Bethany French led Saline each with a 46.

Chelsea next travels to Ann Arbor Huron to participate in its invitational Monday at 3:30 p.m.

TEACHERS

lars in life that can be the motivating factors to keep them excited about academics."

Dudash, who's led Dexter to five straight Division II boys' cross country state championships, said the key to being a successful teacher and coach is balance and perspective.

"I try to do as many things as I can that matter," he said. "And I've tried to learn how to leave some of the things that won't matter out. What I find the more I teach is that you actually become a better educator when you learn to balance the two."

Dexter Athletic Director John Robinson said having teachers in the building that also coach is a benefit to his program.

"Absolutely," he said. "As a teacher you're better equipped to coach. They already know how to work with kids. Just because you were a good athlete, doesn't mean you can always teach someone. Also, the teacher/coach is more adept working with and communicating with parents."

"It's a benefit having the coach in the (school) building. They're able to see the athlete every day. Academic and discipline issues get addressed better. It's also much easier to communicate with a coach who's in the building."

Chelsea Athletic Director Wayne Welton said over 80 percent of Bulldog coaches are also teachers.

"Our percentage of teacher/coaches is uniquely high in the state," he said. "I think that helps with our success. The coach sees the athlete in the hallways and in class. The athlete also knows the coach."

Dudash summed up the teacher/coach reward best.

"When that lightbulb goes on and a student begins to make that conscious decision to do well in school and give their best, or the athlete that presses through one threshold of pain to breakthrough and compete at the next level, it's tremendously rewarding," he said. "Few professions offer the opportunity to be a part of these magical moments in a young person's life."

MOTHERS DAY SPECIAL

Irene Kranic

What makes my Mother so special?

By Michele-Kranick

My Mom, Irene Kranick, has had the most influence on my life. It amazes me at what a completely selfless person she is and has always been. She has sacrificed so much of herself throughout her life for her children (Debbie, Michele, Mark) and her grandchildren (Ashley, Shawn, Leigh-Anne, Nicole). My Mother's fun-loving spirit and giving nature came from her Mom (Lillian Sagan) and I can only hope that the traits have been passed on to me. My Mother has overcome many obstacles in her life and she has faced some extremely difficult situations involving her children, but she continues to be there for us. She deserves a Mother of the Year Award for the past 40+ years! I love my Mom very much and cannot imagine life without her. She is my best friend, my traveling companion, my mentor.

By Jennifer Sinkwitts

As my Mother's daughter I cannot remember our first meeting, when it all began.

She has watched me grow!
From a seedling in her belly soon grew a rambunctious, sticky-fingered with dirty knees, two-year-old little girl.

She watched me grow!
She walked me to school when I was in Kindergarten. She made all my school clothes. She prepared my lunches; chicken noodle soup was my favorite.

She watched me grow!
She cradled me in her arms, even when I was eight-years-old, to read the books we loved: Treasure Island, Little Women or Black Beauty. She was the real classic.

She tutored me in school when subjects seemed too tough. She consoled me when friends were too rough. She held my hand even when I pushed it away. She never turned her back on me even though it would have been easier that one day.

My Magnificent Mother

She watched me grow!
She listened to my complaints. She watched all my mistakes.
And, still, she loved me the next day.

She loved me as a brunette, as a red-head and as a blonde.
She loved me when I turned blonder, and even when my hair frizzed from all the bleach, dye and irons.

She loved me when I slept-in until noon. She loved me when I wouldn't vacuum my room.

She shed a few tears through my wild years. Her beauty is deeper as age has become her.

She watched me grow!
She Hoorayed me when I graduated from college. Then, she sent me off to explore my new options.

She watched me grow!
She opened the front door on my very first date. She sat by my side as I wondered my fate.

She watched me fall in love. She watched me move away.

She dressed me in white, sat down with delight, as I walked down the aisle on my special day.

She watched me grow!
Her hair has turned grayer and her eyes have more to say. I have watched her grow.

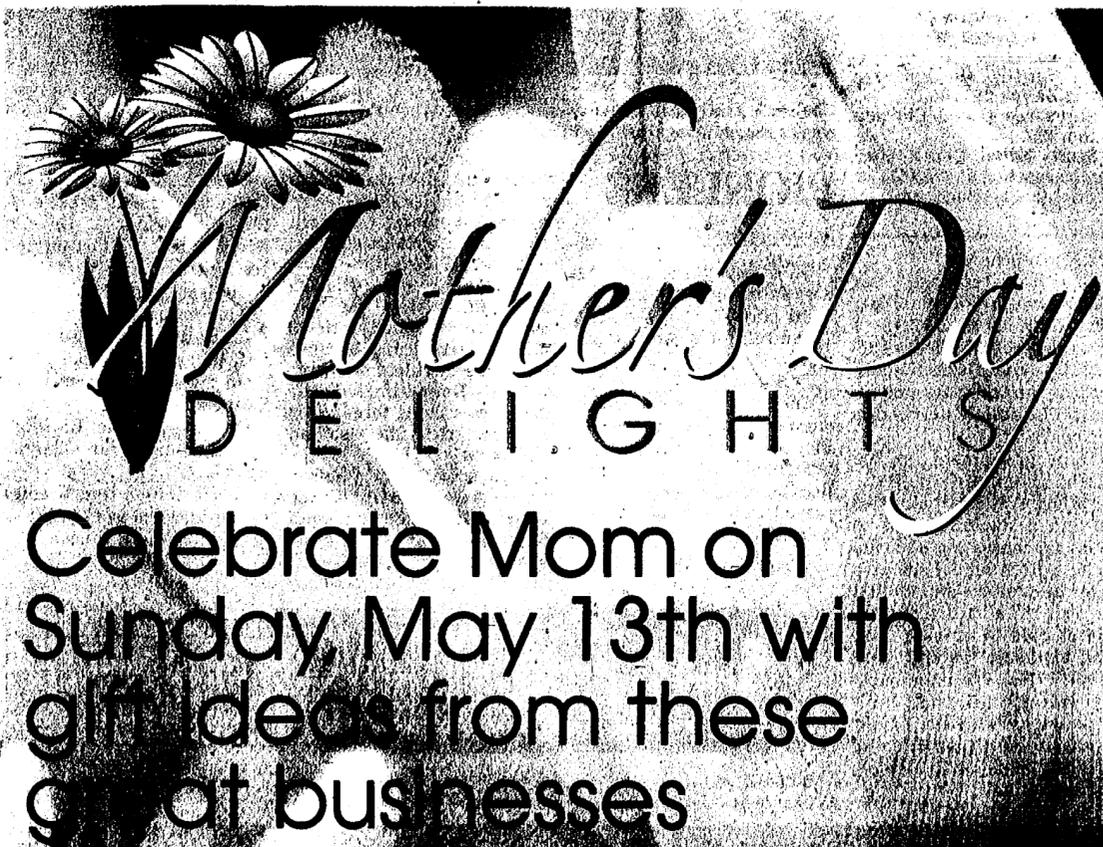

It was a black and white picture that, again, stole her heart.
Caught by ultrasound, was the size of a grain of rice.

A remarkable new life.
My belly grew. My ankles swelled. My hormones raged.

My baby outgrew its cage.
She watched me grow.
She was there in a moment of need.

No need to ask, no need to plead.
My Mother's magnificent love will bless my new baby, her new granddaughter,

Her new love.
We will watch her grow!
Happy Mothers Day.

MOTHERS DAY SPECIAL

Why moms are so special!

By Laina Stebbins

My mom is special in many ways. For Mother's Day, I hope every kid on earth realizes this and gives their mom a big hug! Of course, many of us already do this every day. My mom is generous, kind, nice, caring, loving, sweet and everything else in-between. Even if she is having a whole lot of fun doing something, she will gladly give up her position just to make me happy. She also loves to give me presents out of the blue just to surprise me and make me happier. Moms cheer you up when you're down, too. My mom has a funny way of doing that: making me laugh as hard as I can! She is the funniest mom ever! She also supports me when I'm having hard times, like a medical emergency or bad grades at school. My mom helped me through both of these times, and we got through it very easily. Moms are also special because of what they make you eat. My family eats healthy all of the time because my mom wants us to be healthy. Everyone should absolutely celebrate their mom for this coming Mother's Day! Moms are the best and no one should forget that! I know my mom is very special.

With love and gratitude on Mothers Day

By Kathy Goedert

My dog, Charlie, and I walk every day on our neighbor Evelyn Policht's land behind our house (after stopping at her house for his "cookie") Each day I am grateful for its rolling beauty. Last week the air was buzzing with bees around her blossoming apple trees down near the hollow. We walked down the side of a hill scattered with old farm machinery and then up again to the wooded ridge. The recently plowed land on the right showed curving tire treads in the dirt where the tractor turned at the end of each row. The grass is already deepening at the top of the ridge. We reach a small wooded area with a deer blind, not used for many years except by squirrels. I try, sometimes successfully, to pull Charlie away from it and then we head down the hill, skidding in my sneakers or mud boots, whatever the day requires. I follow my own dried tracks in the mud, traveling in my own footprints on my way home. I hear my son mowing Evelyn's back yard, taking the place of the other mowing boys who came before. This land, though not mine, feels like home and Evelyn is part of home to me. With love and gratitude on Mothers Day.

Can you benefit from Municipal Bonds?

You've made it through another tax season. If you got a refund, you might be pretty satisfied with how things turned out. But if you'd like to see a somewhat different outcome in 2008, you may want to review all areas of your tax return, including your investment-related taxes.

As you may know, some investments are more "tax-friendly" than others are - and municipal bonds might be some of the friendliest ones of all. If you aren't that familiar with municipal bonds, here are the basics: Municipal bonds, or "munis," are issued in two main categories: general obligation bonds and revenue bonds. General obligation bonds finance the activities of state and local governments, while revenue bonds pay for specific projects, such as airports, hospitals and other civic institutions.

So, when you purchase a muni, you're supporting a project or service, possibly in your state or community. And you will be rewarded for your civic-mindedness - through tax breaks. Specifically, your interest payments will be free from federal taxes; if the municipality that issues the bond is in your state, your interest payments also may be exempt from state and local taxes.

Municipal bond interest is free from federal taxes, but some munis - particularly airport and housing bonds - might be subject to the alternative minimum tax (AMT). If you think you may have to pay the AMT - and a lot more people are subject to this tax now than in years past - you might want to avoid these types of bonds.

Conversely, if you know you won't be assessed the AMT even if you bought some AMT-subject munis, you might be especially interested in these bonds, because their yields are typically higher than the yields on regular municipal bonds.

In any case, municipal bonds offer some benefits beyond tax-free interest. For one thing, munis can help you diversify a portfolio heavily weighted with stocks.

Municipal bonds may not be affected by many of the factors - such as poor corporate earnings reports - that cause volatility in the price of stocks. So, municipal bond prices generally do not

Changing hands

New owner taking over Atkinson Chiropractic

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

After almost 30 years in business, a local chiropractic practice is in the process of changing hands.

Dr. Marc Kramer said he is working on the transition with Letha Atkinson, office manager of the practice and wife of original owner, Dr. Warren Atkinson, who passed away in 1998.

"I think Letha is ready to see this practice be doctor-owned again," Kramer said, noting that the Atkinsons opened the clinic in 1978.

Like most new owners, Kramer sees a few things he wants to change, and some he won't.

"One of my roles is to get this office more up to date, and I'm in the process of setting up a Web site," he said, "but I'm going to keep the Atkinson name."

The typical session costs $45 to $85, and the clinic accepts Medicare, Medicaid and most private health insurance plans.

Originally from Des Plaines, Ill., Kramer worked as a mental health professional and as a personal trainer before deciding on a career in chiropractic.

"As a trainer I met a lot of clients who saw chiropractors, and became curious about what they did," he said, and after four years of classes was licensed in December 2004.

He moved to Michigan last year with his wife and 2-year-old daughter, and was licensed to practice in the state in January.

"My wife, Melia, is from Novi, and we came to Michigan to be closer to her family," Kramer said.

"When we heard of this opportunity in Chelsea my wife was very excited."

Kramer said mistaken ideas persist about the differences between chiropractors and medical doctors.

"Chiropractors have more anatomy training than M.D.s, and M.D.s have more pharmacology due to prescriptions," he said.

"One of the criticisms is that chiropractors aren't 'real doctors,' but we are licensed as doctors in all 50 states."

Kramer said he takes a "conservative approach" because everyone's medical condition is different, and there are times when intervention, medication or even surgery are necessary.

"The ones who come to see us don't want to go on medication, or they're already on it and want to get off them," he said.

"If I don't have to adjust an area, I won't."

Hope Clinic launches Web site

Hope Clinic, a free medical, dental and social service organization in Ypsilanti, launched a new Web site last week.

In collaboration with the Nonprofit Enterprise at Work Center, Hope has been developing the site since the fall 2006.

The Web site, designed by Suiyitn Lee, is both informative and easy to maneuver, according to a news release from Hope. Greta Buck, vice president of Hope Clinic's board of directors, served as the liaison between Hope and the NEW Center.

"We are excited to have a professional and user-friendly Web site that communicates the work that Hope Clinic is doing in our community," Buck said.

Founded in 1982 to provide free medical care to the uninsured, Hope has grown substantially in the last 25 years in both the number of people it serves and the services available.

In addition to medical care, Hope offers free dental care, a food bank, weekend hot meals, a free laundry facility, limited emergency financial assistance and other basic social services.

Hope relies on the help of over 250 volunteers a month to meet the needs of those it serves.

"The new Web site will be a wonderful resource for our clients, our volunteers and our donors," Beck said.

In addition to information on services, Hope clients can now go online to find hours of operation, forms for clinic visits, maps to Hope locations, and links to important medical and dental health tips.

Volunteers can fill out the volunteer form online and receive specific information on how they can help. Visit Hope's new Web site at www.thehopeclinic.org to learn more about this service-oriented organization.

Veterans on the record

McKune Library welcomes World War II heroes to share their stories forever

By Sheila Pursglove
Special Writer

World War II history will be in focus next month, when Chelsea's McKune Memorial Library and the Chelsea Senior Center team up for an oral history project featuring three local residents.

"World War II: As Recalled by Local Heroes" is set for 2 p.m. May 19 in the McKune Room at the library, 221 S. Main St. in Chelsea.

"I've heard that we lose about 1,700 World War II veterans every day in this country. Each veteran that passes away is one less story that we have to pass along to future generations," said Bill Harmer, the library's head of adult services. "The project that we came up with will help us document the memories, stories and experiences of our local heroes. Our secret agenda is to film their discussion and preserve it in DVD format that we can then keep on the shelves at the library."

"I want to ensure that their future relatives, and the residents of Chelsea will have the benefit of seeing and listening to their stories so they understand the sacrifices they made for each and every one of us."

The program will feature three Chelsea veterans of the U.S. armed forces - Barbara Springborn, John Woodward and Carl Heldt.

The trio also will be guests of honor at a May 16 luncheon sponsored by the Chelsea Senior Center. All local veterans are invited to join them; veterans in uniform will enjoy the prime rib luncheon free of charge.

"I have a great deal of respect for Tina Patterson, my partner in crime at the CSC, and all of the other staff members and hard-working volunteers at the Center," Harmer said. "Without their support and dedication, we wouldn't be able to give our best back to the community as much as we can."

Springborn saw World War II service in the Women Accepted for Volunteer Emergency Services, spending about 18 months in the service. The WAVES, a World War II-era division of the U.S. Navy, began in August 1942 when Mildred H. McAfee was sworn in as a Naval Reserve Lieutenant Commander, the first female commissioned officer in U.S. Navy history, and the first director of the WAVES.

Within a year the WAVES were 27,000 strong. Many served in clerical positions while others took positions in the aviation community, Judge Advocate General's Corps, medical professions, communications, intelligence, storekeeper, science and technology.

Springborn, the daughter of a sea captain who served in the First World War, joined the WAVES at the age of 20, after the death of her mother. After signing up in Detroit, she and 15 other young women were sent to New York City, then to Washington, D.C., where she lived in a barracks near the American University.

Barbara Springborn joined the WAVES, a World War II-era division of the U.S. Navy, at the age of 20, after the death of her mother.

After getting trained in tele-typing, she was sent to the Philadelphia Navy Yard. On her first day, her lieutenant noticed on Springborn's resume that she had worked as a telephone operator for Southern Bell in Florida. She was then put to work as an operator in the Navy telephone exchange.

"I had a fantastic break," she said. "I had excellent hours, Monday through Friday, 8 to 5, whereas tele-type workers had to work night shifts and split shifts."

"Everyone did their part in those days. Everyone was pitching in. It was great. I was very proud that I was a WAVE. It was a very good experience for me."

In some respects, Springborn's time with the WAVES feels like yesterday, she said. The experience made a huge difference in her life.

"I enjoyed the Navy," she said. "The GI Bill was frosting on the cake. I was able to graduate from Michigan State University in 1949 with a degree in Institutional Administration."

Springborn will be joined by Carl Heldt who served in Okinawa, and by John Woodward, shuttle bus driver for Chelsea Community Hospital, who served in the U.S. Army Signal Corps during World War II and saw action in the Philippines and New Guinea. Woodward also is a veteran of the Korean War.

These veterans were chosen for the unique contribution each made to the war effort, said Patterson, director of the Chelsea Senior Center.

"They are all articulate and have powerful stories to tell," she said. "We have veterans from World War II, Korea, as well as Vietnam as members of the Senior Center, and while some enjoy reminiscing about those days others prefer not to remember their war experiences."

Patterson's own father is a World War II veteran. On Easter Sunday, the two were enjoying brunch at the Chelsea Grill, when a man noticed Patterson's father was wearing a World War II veteran's cap.

"He came up and asked if he could shake my dad's hand and said it was an honor to meet him, and how much he appreciated what my dad had done to make the world safe," she said.

"My dad was just overwhelmed and said he was proud to be part of the greatest generation, and that he and three of his brothers all served in the war. I think it's amazing that people don't know that whole families of sons were at war, at the same time."

"It truly made my dad's day, and I hope people come out on May 19 and thank these vets for their sacrifices."

McKune Memorial Library

Popular children's authors stop by

By Sheila Pursglove
Special Writer

Chelsea children are in for a literary treat this month when the McKune Memorial Library hosts visits from two well-known children's authors.

First up is Sue Stauffacher, author of two Michigan Notable books - "Harry Sue" in 2006, and "Donutheart" in 2007. "Donutheart" also was selected as Border's Original Voices pick for November 2006, and "Harry Sue" won the 2006 Judy Lopez Memorial Award for Children's Literature from the Women's National Book Association.

Stauffacher's visit is set for 7 p.m. May 22 in the McKune Room of the library, located at 221 S. Main St. in Chelsea.

Stauffacher, a Pontiac native who now calls Grand Rapids home, will read from her book, take questions, and sign books. Books will be available for purchase.

Stauffacher's books show both the humor and the dread that accompany a day in the life of a middle-schooler, said Karen Persello, the library's head of Youth and Teen

Sue Stauffacher

Steven Kellogg

Services.

In "Harry Sue," a young adult story set in the fictional Michigan community of Marshfield, Harriet Susan Clotkin plans to become a criminal to be reunited with her incarcerated mother. But her heart moves her in a different direction, and with the help of friends and teachers, she learns to embrace the world around her.

In "Donutheart," a sequel to "Donuthead" and set in fictional central and west Michigan, Franklin Delano Donuthead continues his journey through middle school, and he and his friend Sarah learn to make their own decisions and deal with a puzzling grownup world.

"Kids and young teens get a kick out of Franklin Delano Donuthead's trials and travails," Persello said. "They see themselves, they see their friends."

The second library visitor is author and illustrator Steven Kellogg, whose planned visit last November as part of Children's Book Week celebrations had to be canceled due to bad weather canceling his flight from the East Coast.

This time Kellogg's visit is planned for 7 p.m. May 30 on the library lawn.

"We've chatted, several times on the phone and he's so excited to come to Michigan," said Shawn Personke, the library's community relations and development coordinator. "He said that he's been very busy working on a new PBS series and new books."

"When my kids were young, we watched Reading Rainbow all the time. So we are big fans of Steven Kellogg."

Kellogg, illustrator of "The Day Jimmy's Boa ate the Wash," a PBS Reading Rainbow selection, will draw, talk about his inspirations, and how he came to love reading, writing, and drawing.

For over 30 years, Kellogg has entertained children with his stories of Pinkerton the Great Dane, and best sellers such as "Island of the Skog," and "Johnny Appleseed." He's even made math fun with such books as "Millions to Measure."

Many of his titles will be available for purchase and Kellogg will autograph and chat with fans after the program.

"Steven Kellogg illustrations show his great sense of humor and imagination," Persello said. "He will be drawing during his visit to the library - we'll be watching him create something unique right before our eyes."

Stop looking for excuses to get lazy

Tips to sticking with a fitness plan

You start every year the same way - gung ho about a new fitness plan that will make you slim, trim and toned. But in just a few months, your enthusiasm fizzles and you're back to your old, inactive self.

It's common to "fall off the wagon" when you're trying to make a major change like getting active, quitting cigarettes or eating healthier. That's because it's easier and more comfortable to go back to the old, familiar way of doing things. But sticking with a healthy change is well worth the effort.

Tips for sticking with it

Face yourself. If you go at it full guns, you'll burn out. Or you'll hurt yourself, get discouraged and quit. Prepare yourself for the long haul, start out gradually and build up by adding small challenges as you go along.

Be flexible. If your busy schedule means you can't manage a half-hour walk, break your workout into three, 10-minute walks. You'll be more likely to keep it up if you feel less pressured.

Track our progress. You can see how far you've come and motivate yourself to keep going by recording your progress with a log, chart or journal.

Don't make excuses. Make physical activity part of your regular routine, just like going to work or brushing your teeth. Set aside time to do it. If it's raining, have a routine you can do inside - walk at the mall or work out to an exercise video. On your business trip, do calisthenics and stretching exercises in your hotel room or take walks between meetings.

Spice it up. Make your routine more interesting by adding some lively music or a book on tape.

Find daily opportunities for fitness. Use your legs more and the elevator and car less. Rake your leaves, wash your car, walk your dog. Doing these things yourself will add small spurts of activity to your day but also keep being active front and center in your mind.

Make a lifetime commitment. Get married to fitness. Don't approach your routine as something you'll do until you lose 20 pounds or flatten your stomach. Tell yourself that fitness is now a permanent part of your life. Quitting isn't an option.

Remind yourself of the benefits of being fit. Make a list and review it every time you start to lose your motivation.

Remember that to stay fit, you have to stick with it. You don't want to lose the benefits you've gained. And it doesn't take long. Within four weeks of stopping exercise, highly trained athletes are likely to suffer a quick decline in aerobic endurance. This decline, though more moderate, also occurs in the average exerciser, according to Richard Cotton, chief exercise physiologist at the American Council on Exercise. And muscle size will begin to decrease within less than four weeks of inactivity.

BONDS

move together with stock prices.

Furthermore, municipal bonds are among the most secure investments you can own. The default rate on munis - especially general obligation bonds - is typically quite low.

Which types of municipal bonds are right for you? Your choice depends, to a great extent, on your goals and investment personality. For example, longer-term munis - those bonds that mature in 10 years or more - will generally pay a higher interest rate than shorter-term bonds. Yet, prices of the longer-term offerings also may fluctuate more.

You may want to consider owning a variety of short-, intermediate- and long-term munis. This type of portfolio - known as a bond "ladder" - can help you in all types of interest-rate environments. When market rates are down, you'll benefit by owning long-term bonds, which generally pay higher rates than short-term bonds. But if market rates are up, you can use the proceeds of your maturing short-term bonds to reinvest in issues with higher rates.

Finally, when you're shopping for municipal bonds, look for quality - those bonds that are rated "A" or higher by the major rating agencies.

Municipal bonds occupy their own special niche in the investment world - and it's a niche that you may want to explore further.

Book reviews

Latest releases aimed at keeping kids active

By Terry Jacoby

The Chelsea Standard and Dexter Leader will once a month introduce new titles from Sleeping Bear Press. The publishing company, located in Chelsea, publishes books for children. Since its first success with "The Legend of Sleeping Bear" (official Children's Book of Michigan) in 1998, Sleeping Bear Press has impressed young readers, parents, teachers and booksellers with high-quality, beautifully illustrated picture books. For more information on the company as well as its growing catalog, log onto www.sleepingbearpress.com.

"Lazy Days of Summer" By Judy Young Illustration by Kathy O'Malley

Parents will be instantly taken back to their childhood and kids will discover new ways to have fun with Judy Young's "Lazy Days of Summer." You can almost hear the laughter and screams of joy as you turn the pages from jumping rope to hopscotch to tag to marbles to kick the can and so on. Parents can find great comfort in knowing that none of the games in the book have anything to do with Playstation or Nintendo or Game Cube. These games are about having fun and challenging oneself and allowing parents to share with their children many of the games and activities they grew up on. And there are plenty of games to choose from (maybe capture the flag and Marco Polo will make the second volume) that even parents can join in on. Each game begins with the same catchy rhyme. And even though the rhyme is in cursive type and not easy for young kids to read, they catch on pretty quickly and will have it memorized by the third or fourth game.

Each game includes information on things such as the history, the rules and variations of how the game is played. It will make kids want to run right outside and start playing.

The chapters are designed in a similar way and include wonderful drawings of youngsters showing how it's done. The cliché of "a picture is worth a thousand words" couldn't be more true in "Lazy Days of Summer."

"S is for S'mores: A Camping Alphabet" By Helen Foster James Illustrated by Lita Judge

"S is for S'mores: A Camping Alphabet" is the perfect book for parents to snuggle up on the couch (or by the campfire) with their young children. It's an enjoyable hike through camping using the alphabet as a guide to adventure, beauty and knowledge.

Like all Sleeping Bear publications, the illustrations are striking and are sure to leave a lasting impression on readers both young and old. The color and uniqueness to detail found in each picture helps create a feeling of innocence, companionship and nature.

Sleeping Bear has created a template for these style of books in which the reader begins and ends with the pictures. It's hard not to be captured by the pictures as soon as you turn the page. The illustrations alone would make a special book.

In "S is for S'mores: A Camping Alphabet," Helen Foster James provides some simple text that goes perfectly with each picture. For "W," she writes, "W is for camping in Winter for those who are willing to go and follow a path through the forest on snowshoes or skis over snow." For "F" she writes, "F is for Foliage with changing looks in every season (spring and summer, fall and winter). Would you like to know the reason?"

But Foster James, herself a veteran camper, doesn't stop there. Next to each picture is additional information that parents certainly will enjoy. Why limit the learning process to just the children?

"P" is for parks and Foster James goes into more detail on the subject. For example, readers will learn that "Acadia National Park was the first national park established east of the Mississippi River. Banff National Park was Canada's first and the world's third national park. The United States has over 50 national parks."

Sleeping Bear Press

Readers also learn information on campsites located in many of the national parks. And for the letter "S," Foster James provides a recipe for S'mores.

Other popular titles from Sleeping Bear Press

"My Momma Likes to Say," written by Denise Brennan-Nelson, is a story about how a child interprets statements said by his mother. From the author of "Buzzy the Bumblebee" comes a child's hilarious visual interpretation of such parental idioms and witticisms as "Hold your horses," "Money doesn't grow on trees" and "I have eyes in the back of my head."

Here is an example: "Cat got your toungue?" My momma likes to say. I'm not sure what she means but I like it anyway.

"Black Beauty's Early Days in the Meadow," by Jane Monroe Donovan, is one of the most popular animal stories of all time; Anna Sewall's "Black Beauty" was first published in 1877. Drawn from the original text and intended for even the youngest of horse lovers, "Black Beauty's Early Days in the Meadow" depicts the first few months of the horse's life as a foal frolicking in the meadow.

Monroe Donovan renders the classic story in lush oil paintings that convey a pastoral world of green fields and shady trees, while tenderly capturing the special love between mare and foal.

Plant sale

Area garden club members are busy repotting, thinning and planting seeds so they will have hundreds of plants to sell at their 8th annual Plant Sale, 8:30 a.m. to noon on Saturday, May 19 in the Park Street parking lot adjacent to the McKune Memorial Library in downtown Chelsea. Among the plants on sale will be melon, tomato, pepper, squash and fennel grown from seeds starting in late March by avid organic gardener Kathy Kersten who is also plant sale chairman this year. Kathy and her husband Don purchased the property and designed their home so that she could have room to garden, an activity she has enjoyed since she was a child helping her parents with a Victory Garden in Dearborn during World War II.

The couple became organic gardeners following some health problems many years ago and find that their diet rich in vegetables, fruits, and herbs makes them feel vigorous and healthy.

Organic gardening isn't difficult. Instead of using the garbage disposal she has a container in her kitchen and dumps everything on a compost pile, where it decom-

es. She adds manure from a local horse training facility and mixes well.

Garden Walk

From 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. on Saturday, June 23, visitors are invited on a Garden Walk through Chelsea's historic downtown area and newer homes in the Freer Road area.

Homes on Orchard Street, E. Middle Street along with the McKune Memorial Library and Clocktower Commons on Main Street will showcase seasonal flowers, trees and shrubs all within easy walking distance of downtown.

Then a short walk or drive east will take visitors to see the gardens of homes on Madison Street, Mayer Drive and N. Freer Road.

The Garden Walk is sponsored by the Chelsea Area Garden Club and The Garden Mill to benefit the Chelsea Senior Center and McKune Memorial Library.

Tickets, priced at $7 for adults, children under 12-years-old free, will be available at The Garden Mill, Chelsea Pharmacy and Gournet Chocolate Café beginning June 1.

Architectural walking tour shows Chelsea's historical side

By Kathy Clark / Special Writer

Guest teacher Grace Shackman brought her adult education class to Chelsea on April 23 for an architectural walking tour. The seven-week Washtenaw Community College course taught the "History of Washtenaw County." Classes convened in the main Gordon Hall parlor of former Judge Samuel Dexter, who was Dexter's founder and Washtenaw County's first judge.

Starting out in the Chelsea Train Depot, Grace's class learned about the Clock Tower, Glazier's Stove factory, Farmer Supply, Longworth Plating and Chelsea Milling. A walk down Main Street revealed many examples of commercial Italianate, Victorian and Romanesque brick buildings.

Grace, with input from local Chelsea architectural expert John Frank, pointed out brick buildings possessing elements like Chicago windows, dentils, corbelled arches, parapets and soldiered bricks.

Stopping at the Post Office erected in 1936, a WPA-funded standard government issue of the period, most went inside to find the symbolic "The Way of Life" mural. A few from Dexter saw the mural for the first time. Walking past Palmer Ford, Michigan's oldest car dealership, they stopped to look east on M-52 at a good example of a two-story Bungalow with Tudor exterior.

Turning onto Summit Street, a Dutch Colonial, once the home of dentist A. L. Steger, was seen. The roof has two bends for more head space. Across the street Fred Hoffman waved the group in to see an original 1913 interior and learn about early owners Dr. Woods and Ferd Merkel. Hoffman in turn found out his home was a Colonial Revival with the triangle roof designs and Greek influenced pillars on the front porch.

Walking west to the Center for the Arts, which was once Chelsea's St. Mary's Catholic School, Grace pointed out, "It was unusual for Catholics to have a school in a town the size of Chelsea."

The nuns convent and the priest rectory are now private dwellings. Local people remember the tall steeple dominating the landscape until the church burned. A few Victorian homes were noticed on Congdon Street, exteriors laden with gingerbread, ornamental towers and lath-turned porch railings.

Lately the buzz around town has been, "Have you seen what they are doing to the Glazier house?"

Grace's class walked up South Street to observe the Glazier mansion under final renovation. It was found by contractors that two Queen Anne houses were moved together to make one grand mansion. The wraparound front porch, corner turrets and deeply shadowed entrances are features of a Queen Anne.

A few houses past the Glazier home, at the corner of South and Main streets, is Frank Glazier's 1902 memorial bank for his father, George. The Beaux Arts Classical is now the 14th District Courthouse. After looking closely at the cut rock-faced exterior with limestone pillars and terra cotta roof, students were able to walk inside to admire the domed ceiling and other wood and marble features in the court rooms.

In the first block of E. Middle Street, local professionals built large homes in the late 1800s. Dr. Avery's home near the Congregational Church is "eclectic" with 18 porch columns. Senator Frank Gorman's Queen Anne house is now "Chelsea House" bed and breakfast. A "twin" to Gorman's built by Dr. Palmer is just three doors down.

Another twin set in the same block are Greek Revivals on opposite sides of the street.

Viewed from the side yard of John Frank's "Palmer House" are the last vestiges of life with wells and no sewer system - a windmill and an outhouse which may be the last ones left within the City of Chelsea. The closed in windmill tower served as an attached Summer "sleeping porch" according to the Frank's neighbors.

Around the corner on East Street is a Claire Allen 1907 Arts and Crafts home. Frank explained its streamlined diversity from the Victorian era.

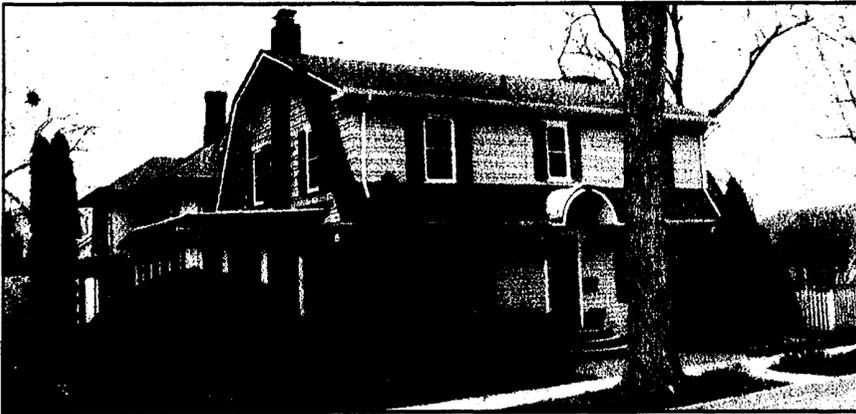

"It is set back from the road," he said.

Grace Shackman points out another landmark to her adult education class during a tour of Chelsea.

The class walked up South Street to observe the Glazier mansion under final renovation.

This Dutch Colonial on Summit Street once was the home of dentist A. L. Steger.

The closed in windmill tower served as an attached Summer "sleeping porch."

"There is no front porch and no front door. Main entrance is on the side porch, another porch is built on the back."

Two doors down is a fine example of a Sears Catalog Home with a rock-faced concrete block exterior. All the materials were shipped for customer assembly first by railroad, then by truck.

The tour ended admiring the Romanesque structure of the Methodist Church with its cut rock, stepped parapets and recent matching additions. Grace talked about the old Princess and Sylvan theaters and the Boyd Hotel. It was a short walk back to the depot.

Is there a Sea in your life?

The Bible uses the word "sea" in a number of contexts.

In the vast majority of cases it is used in its literal sense, referring to a great body of water. In Luke 21:25 Jesus predicts that the roaring and tossing of the sea will throw nations into turmoil in the last days. Revelation 13:1-2 refers to the sea as the origin of anti-Christian forces.

One interesting reference is in Revelation 21:1, the first verse of the second last chapter in the Bible, where St. John begins his description of eternity. One thing John notices in his vision is, "There was no longer any sea."

This undoubtedly had special significance for John and his readers. St. John, when he received his Revelation, had been exiled on the small, lonely island of Patmos off the coast of what is now Turkey. He was separated from those he loved - his friends and his fellow Christians. Although the island wasn't far from the coast, the sea served as an effective barrier. It's quite likely that he and his beloved readers found great comfort in knowing that there would come a time, in the next life, when there would be no more separation, no more parting.

"There was no longer any sea."

The sea is still a great obstacle. My wife and I have been, to Europe twice, and hope to make that three times soon, since, as of this month, we have a son living there. The trip would be so much more pleasant, though, if we didn't have that horribly long flight. I can't even imagine what it was like before the age of air travel.

Here in this life, though, the literal sea is not the only barrier.

There have been trips to visit our daughters in Illinois and our families in Wisconsin and Minnesota, when the drive over land, especially through Chicago, seemed equally unbearable. Furthermore, here in this sinful world there can be a sea of separation between people even when they're standing or sitting right next to each other.

Here in this life, also, the literal sea is not the only source of unrest and conflict. This life is full of conflict and upset.

Thank God, through our Savior Jesus another life has been prepared, where there will be no upsets, where everything will be peaceful and safe. And even in this life we have a God who can keep us afloat, even if He doesn't always make the waters of our life smooth.

And thank God, there will be a day when there will be no separation between loved ones. Through faith in Jesus Christ, and only through faith in Jesus Christ, we can look forward to an eternity when we will never have to say goodbye.

And even in this life, there is no longer any separation between us and our God, because Jesus has removed the sea of our sin, which had caused that separation.

Mark Porinsky is the pastor at Faith Lutheran Church, 9575 North Territorial Road in Dexter.

Superior Ford

Dealership's loyal customer base, new products keep sales healthy

By Mike Schaffer

THE NEWS-HERALD
FLAT ROCK — Many dealerships promise great customer service, but Superior Ford lives up to its name every day with superior service, according to General Manager Dan Miller.

"Everybody promises the golden rule, everybody says it and everybody quotes it, but if you really want to experience it, come to Superior Ford," Miller said. "We treat everybody like family, and as a result we have as many friends as we do customers."

"Everything about this operation is straight forward. We cater to our customers on a personal level. We're large enough to have all the state-of-the-art equipment to service your car, but small enough to give our customers personal service."

The dealership, which opened in 1994, is conveniently located just off I-75 at 22675 Gibraltar Road, just south of the AutoAlliance International plant.

That proximity to the home of the Ford Mustang certainly helps, but it's the dealership's loyal customer base that has helped it thrive in a tough economic climate, according to Miller.

"We sold cars to customers from 80 different cities last year, and 99 percent of those sales were from referrals, because I don't advertise in 80 different cities," Miller said. "Our success is due to the fact that we have one of the largest, loyal customer bases around."

Miller said that, according to industry reports, most dealerships have a customer loyalty base of about 40 percent. However, he said Superior Ford's loyalty base is almost 70 percent.

"I think that is a result of having very little turnover amongst our employees, which I think is an indication that this is a pretty good place to work," Miller said. "So we must have pretty good people, and the fact that customers are coming back again and again must be an indication of how well they are being treated. We've been holding our own here thanks to those returning customers, so we must be doing something right."

Superior Ford, which is situated on nine acres, typically has 400 to 500 new vehicles in stock and about 50 used cars. The dealership employs 50 people, including 10 sales representatives, eight of whom have been with Superior Ford since it opened in 1994.

"The key to our success is our customer base keeps coming back and we get a tremendous amount of referral business," Miller said. "To have somebody recommend you to their friends and family, you have to treat them pretty well and you have to have some familiar faces in your sales department."

Three key ingredients to Superior Ford's winning recipe are price, product and service, according to Miller.

"To make a sale, you have to have a great price, you have to have a great product and you have to provide great service and we have all of those things here at Superior Ford," Miller said. "Face it, if you don't have in the last two or three years. In other words, the Fusion is not just selling to Ford owners, but we're seeing people trade in other brands to get a Fusion, and that's exciting."

Miller also is excited about the local economy showing signs of a turnaround, which translates into more customers looking for new cars.

"With all of the different possible layoffs, rumors of plant closings, buyouts, retirement packages, there were a lot of people that did not know where they were going to be in the future and they pulled in their spending," Miller added. "Now that everybody knows where their future is going to be and where they are going to be working, there definitely is a stronger feel that those people are coming back into the marketplace."

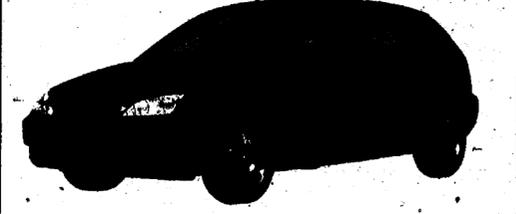

"There's been a little more traffic and more people buying cars. I think it's an indication that things are turning around."

GUARANTEED Or 100% Of Your Money Back ON THE SPOT!

We can hypnotize anyone who is willing to cooperate and follow our instructions. Our hypnosis treatment is very safe and effective. You will not lose control at any time like you see with stage hypnosis. You absolutely have nothing to lose but a bad smoking habit.

- Regardless of how many times that you have tried to quit smoking in the past, Our hypnosis treatment is designed to overcome all your past failures.
- You will stop smoking by seminar's end. We personally guarantee it!
- At least 95% of all smokers throw their tobacco products into garbage cans as they walk out the door. This shows how effective our hypnosis treatment is.
- All smokers can attend the weight loss treatment free, it's your choice.
- For an extra bonus: You will receive a Lifetime Membership Card. If you even think about smoking in the future you can come back for reinforcement at no cost.

About National Hypnosis Group...

Donald A. Kahl, a former school teacher and basketball coach from the state of Indiana, became trained in the art of hypnosis in 1962 and has been hypnotizing individuals ever since. He taught hypnosis at Indiana University and has hypnotized famous celebrities, entertainers & professional hypnotists. National Hypnosis Group is the largest Stop Smoking & Weight Loss Seminar Group in the entire United States and has been in business for over 40 years!

- The first hour we will demonstrate how anyone can be hypnotized. We will also do some amazing demonstrations by taking volunteers out of the audience.
- The next 30 minutes is for anyone who wants to lose weight. If any smoker does not want to lose weight, you can take a 30 minute break at this time. Weight Loss Session is absolutely free for smokers.
- The last 30 minutes of hypnosis treatment is for smokers only.

Healthy smile or hidden damage?

Your teeth can look healthy.

But a dentist using a dental light may reveal acid wear.

Images adjusted to illustrate clinical situation

DAILY ANTI-CAVITY FLUORIDE TOOTHPASTE FOR SENSITIVE TEETH

USE WHENEVER YOU NORMALLY BRUSH

- Hardens enamel ✓
- Protects against the effects of acid wear ✓
- Has fluoride for cavity protection ✓
- Relieves painful sensitivity within 2 weeks ✓
- Helps protect the youthful appearance of teeth ✓

For additional information and to request your free sample size tube of ProNamel, visit us at www.pronamel.com.

*Protects your teeth from sensitivity and the effects of acid wear. Everyday foods such as fruit, sodas, orange juice and wine contain acids that soften the enamel surface which is then more easily worn away by brushing. As the enamel layer becomes thinner, teeth can become visibly less white and older looking.

hey Ma? MOM!
Mama!

Mother...

Did you know the word "mother" appears in the Bible over 235 times? Most mothers I know hear it at least that many times a day!

Listen to your father, who gave you life, and do not despise your mother when she is old. PRV 23:22
