Pride & Honor

World War II veterans get their overdue thank you

By Terry Jacoby
The Chelsea Standard

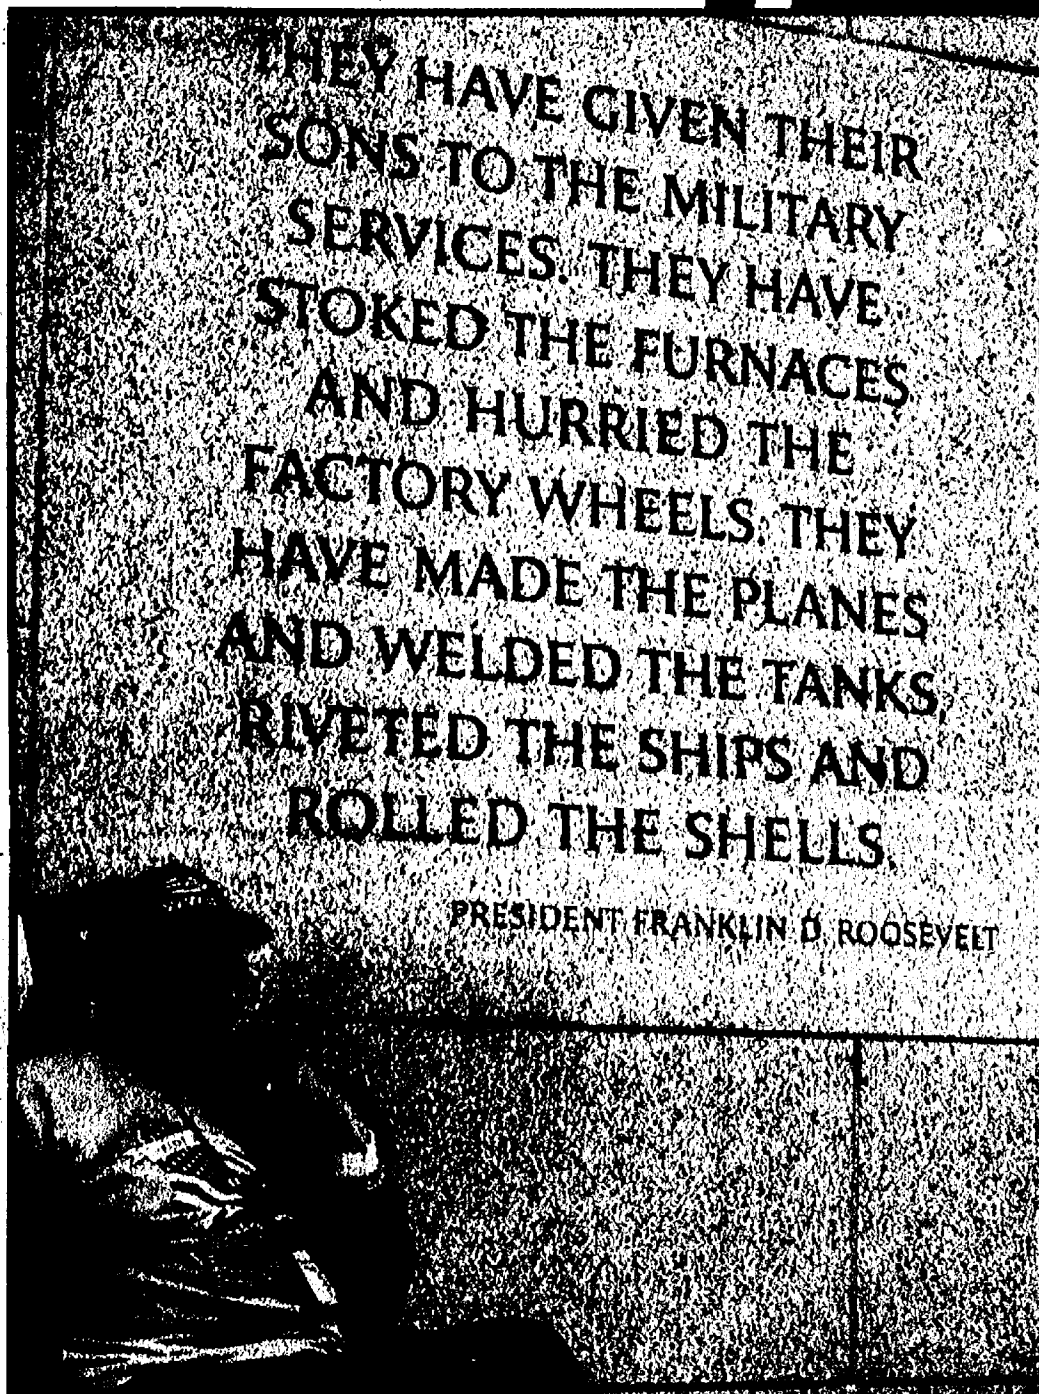

Louis Gill of Livonia stopped for a moment to consider the question. What emotion was he feeling as he looked around the World War II Memorial?

"It's not depressing," he said. "It's actually very uplifting. The other memorials here are a little sad and depressing. But this one has a different feeling. It's wonderful and I'm so glad I got the chance to see it."

His answer was repeated throughout the day on May 5 as 33 veterans from Michigan made their way around Washington D.C. courtesy of the Pride and Honor Flights of Dexter.

Gill made the trip with his granddaughter, Rachel Baker. "It was my mom's idea that I come here with him," she said. "It's something I will never forget."

Opened on May 29, 2004, the World War II Memorial in Washington D.C. "celebrates a generation of Americans who emerged from the Depression to fight and win the most devastating war in world history." In case visitors don't fully appreciate their sacrifices, there are 4,000 gold stars on the Memorial's Freedom Wall commemorating the more than 400,000 Americans who gave their lives. The memorial may have taken 60 years to build, but for the men on this trip it was worth the wait.

Harry Bates, who has lived in Dexter his whole life except for his time in the service, felt the memorial was an ideal tribute to the men and women who served with him in World War II.

"The trip was very good and very instructional," said Bates, who was stationed in the Pacific during World War II and also served in the Korean War. "I was very impressed with the World War II Memorial. It was set up with arches for the Atlantic and the Pacific battle and each state had a monument for their veterans. It was a neat deal and very well done."

After the war, Bates was a tool-maker and tool designer, and worked as an engineer for Ann Arbor Machine Co. while raising his family in Dexter. He never flew Tax hike on the horizon?

Council proposes to raise tax rates for general fund

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

The Chelsea City Council on Tuesday set a date for public hearings on the proposed 2007-08 city budget, including a sizeable increase in the tax rate for the general operating fund.

The proposed increase of 1.25 mills, or more than 10 percent, will bring the operating fund to 12.4994 mills.

Kim Garland, the city's Director of Administrative Services, explained the reasons for the revenue enhancements.

"The increase was necessary because of the consistent decrease in state revenue-sharing funds over the past several years," she said.

"Also, our defined-benefit pension plan is underfunded and it will take a significant amount to catch that up; related to that is an increase in our retiree health-care expense."

Normally reticent Councilman Kent Martinez-Kratz made no secret of his intention to vote against the increase when it eventually comes before the council.

"The general fund has gone from about $3 million two years ago to about $4 million now," he said.

"Our 'salary' has gone up 33 percent, in essence; we should be able to pay all our bills."

Kratz said his constituents have told him they could understand and absorb a small increase, given the rising costs of fuel and insurance.

"In our budget work sessions the city administration was making an argument for a 1-mill increase, but council members wanted to be in a more secure position," he said. "If we had no millage increase, we'd still have a million dollars more than two years ago."

Also being proposed is a 0.10-mill increase in the debt service fund, bringing that rate to 0.6 mills.

No increases were proposed in the funds for municipal streets, solid waste and

Tour for disabled veterans heads to Chelsea

By Terry Jacoby
The Chelsea Standard

Sgt. First Class Harvey C. Schirmacher is making a pit stop in Chelsea at 5 p.m. on May 31 at the Chelsea Standard Bank.

Schirmacher also will be spending some time with his mother, Virginia Boyer, who lives in Chelsea.

Since May 14 Schirmacher has been on the road, cruising the United States on his motorcycle in an effort to raise both money and awareness for disabled veterans across the country. He is spending 36 days on the road to coincide with his 36 years serving his country as a U.S. Army reservist.

Also working with him on his 9,000 mile trip is the Disabled American Veterans (DAV) and the Homes for Our Troops (HFOT).

The trip began in May and so far the response has been "tremendous."

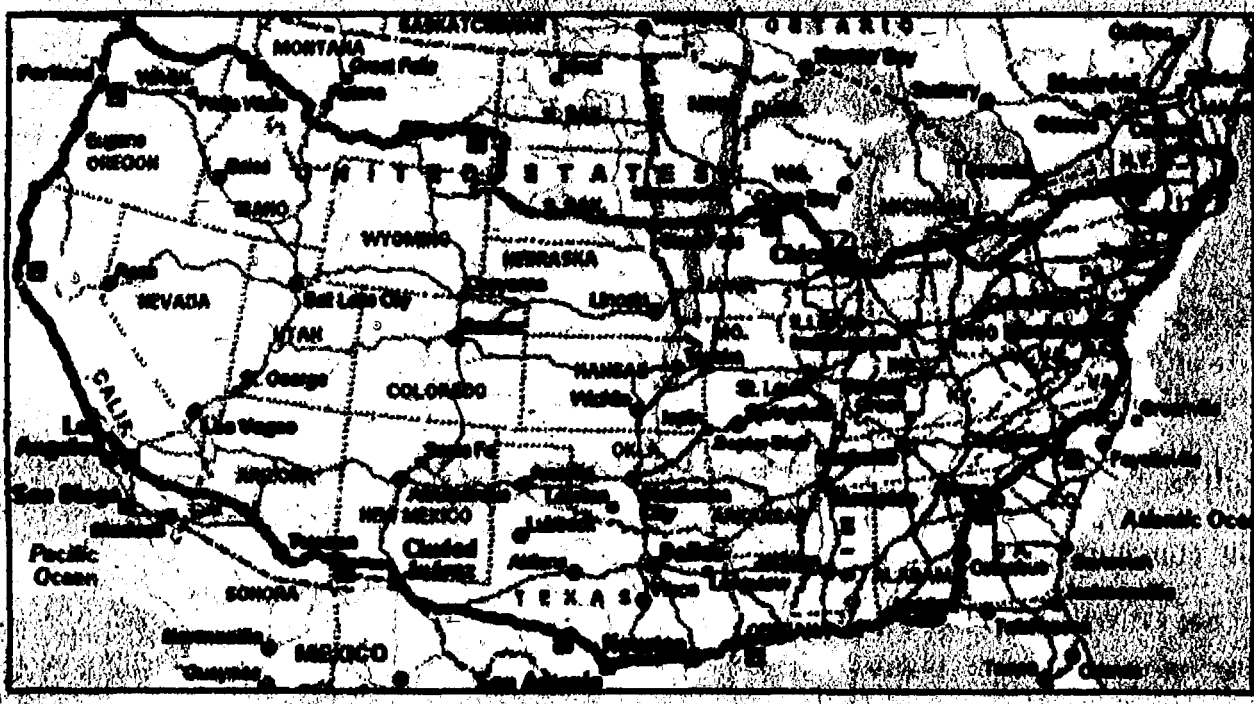

"People have been very receptive, asking to donate, talking with me and just honking their horn and waving," said Schirmacher during a brief stop Monday night outside Phoenix. "I did have to stop for a few hours when I was hit with a hail storm. The weather has been good, sometimes it gets really hot though."

Schirmacher is retiring from the service after 24 years of active duty and 12 years as a reserve. He has been a recruiter, a counselor and a trainer — just to name a few of his duties. The trip was his way of going out by giving back.

"I have worked closely with disabled veterans and wanted to do something for them," he said. "This seemed like a fun thing to do and for a great cause. I am really enjoying being out here helping disabled veterans."

To find out more about Schirmacher's trip or how you can donate, log onto www.cruisingvets.com. Or come see him on May 31 in Chelsea.

State Budget update

Byrnes: 'There are a number of answers'

By Sean Dalton
Staff Writer

Area legislators have responded to the ongoing budget crisis, after deficit figures released last week were worse than anticipated.

"We need to have a resolution by June 1 to avoid a government shutdown," Sen. Liz Brater, D-Dist. 18, said Tuesday, "and to avoid further degradation of our bond rating in New York."

State lawmakers and Gov. Jennifer Granholm's office have two deadlines on the table before which a solution for the $800 million 2006-07 budget deficit must be found — a June 1, "last-call" deadline and the end of the fiscal year on Oct. 1. Last week, officials involved in the bipartisan House-Senate Revenue Estimating Conferences added nearly $400 million to the projected 2006-07 budget deficit, bringing the total to $800 million.

That's on top of next year's deficit, which already is projected to be $1.4 billion to $1.8 billion, depending on whom you ask.

The increase to this fiscal year's deficit was largely attributed to sagging tax revenues and increased welfare and prison system costs, according to state officials.

A major part of the problem stems from the decision to repeal the Single Business Tax without having a plan to replace that revenue, according to Brater.

The repeal will not take effect until Dec. 31, but its influence on the state's bottom line already is being felt, she said.

"(Wall Street is) looking at the fact that that tax was repealed with no replacement," she said. "That is one of the factors that are reducing our bond rating. It's also deterring businesses from moving to Michigan, because of the uncertainty of the tax structure in Michigan."

Another issue up in the air is Senate Bill 220, which would reduce the budget deficit by about $330 million, but that legislation is currently in a House-Senate conference committee to iron out differences.

The Republican Senate majority passed the bill 20-17 on March 22 after numerous amendments.

House Democrats rejected the Senate version and passed their own version, with more fund shifts and fewer spending cuts, on April 17.

Seven days later the Senate unanimously rejected the House version and it went to the conference committee.

In the meantime, Democrats are considering fixes on the revenue end.

"There are a number of answers," state Rep. Pam Byrnes, D-Dist. 52, said Monday during a coffee-hour meeting with the community in Scio Township.

"There's a services tax, also known as an excise tax, on things like haircuts," she said. "There's also a luxuries tax or amenities tax (on things like entertainment and golf)."

The 6 percent general sales tax could be extended to those items without a public referendum vote, officials said.

Byrnes said that she doesn't see services being taxed, but did discuss income tax increases, either a 0.5 percent increase to the state's

Timber Town built for safety

By Amy Mitchell
Guest Writer

As the Friends of Timber Town gear up for this weekend's hardware restoration event, the community is buzzing about all of the new play apparatuses that will be installed on Timber Town. Further, Friends of Timber Town has received several questions regarding the overall safety of a structure such as Timber Town.

The safety of children using Leathers' and Associates playgrounds is of paramount importance to the City of Chelsea and the Friends of Timber Town. All of the materials used on Timber Town comply with current American Society for Testing and Materials Standards (ASTM), Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPS) guidelines and in the spirit of the Americans with Disabilities Act Accessibility Guidelines (ADAAG).

The largest portion of the restoration on Timber Town

How you can help
There are several ways to help restore Timber Town in Chelsea. Here are a few: Buy a T-shirt or tote bag at the hardware project. Attend the Grand Re-opening of Timber Town at 5 p.m. on June 10.

this year will focus on bringing the play features back into compliance with the new regulations set forward by ADAAG, CPSC and ASTM. Many of the guidelines that exist today did not exist 10 years ago. The Friends of Timber Town have worked diligently to find economical and practical solutions for the various play apparatuses that currently are not in compliance.

DarQuest Industries, of Rockford, Mich. is a supplier of premium hardware for the wood and composite wood construction industry. They have been selected by Leathers' and Associates as a pre-approved vendor, and will be providing the Soft Climber, Spider Climber and Cargo Net play nets on Timber Town. Many may remember the existing chain and hose apparatuses, which children climb on from the lower to upper deck features. The chain and hose will be replaced by a state of the art, cable, material. The new material will be used to replicate the pattern used in the various climbers and children will still be able to traverse the climbers. This new material will eliminate the need for the City of Chelsea to replace the broken or worn hose on Timber Town each year and will eliminate the finger pinching potential for children.

The openings at the top decks of these play features will also be rebuilt to accommodate the new 16-inch opening requirements. Many of the openings on the various decks are too wide and must be rebuilt to code.

In addition to the climber replacement, the swing seat straps, swing connectors and chains will all be replaced at Timber Town. Each swing strap today is either cracked or chipped and in need of replacement. The new swings will look very similar although they will have a rubberized coating on the chain, adding to the overall safety and comfort for children.

This rubberized coating is very popular on newer swings and adds years of maintenance free swinging to Timber Town.

The inclusive swing is also being replaced after 10 years of play. The inclusive swing will be available for all children to use, however it does meet ADAAG specifications. The largest area of improvement noted on the swings will actually be below your feet.

The Friends of Timber Town have invested heavily in

Longtime community education director is new superintendent for Genesee schools

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

A fixture in the Chelsea School District is fulfilling a longtime ambition by being named superintendent of a district near Flint.

Community Education Director Jeff Rohrer will be leaving at the end of the school year to lead the Genesee School District in Genesee County.

"One of my career goals was to lead a school district, and during the interview process I got a good feeling of connection between the board and myself," Rohrer said. "I was offered the job in March, and officially start July 1."

Rohrer has been with Chelsea schools for 15 years, and had 12 years of educational experience prior to that in Gaylord, Swartz Creek and Carson City-Crystal Schools.

The Genesee district's budget is $7.7 million, roughly eight times larger than the Chelsea Community Education annual budget, but Rohrer doesn't see that as an obstacle.

"The numbers are just bigger; I don't think it will be a difficult transition," he said.

"The big challenge is the one that every superintendent is the state is facing, and that's the uncertainty of funding from the state."

When Rohrer and his wife, Pat, came to Chelsea 15 years ago, they knew they had found a community they could be comfortable with.

"One of the things my wife and I didn't want to do was move our kids around while they were in school," he said. "(Chelsea) is a great place to raise kids."

Now that son Josh and daughter Jessie are adults,

Jeff Rohrer, Chelsea Schools' community education director, will be leaving at the end of the school year to take the position of superintendent of the Genesee School District.

Rohrer felt the time was right to make a move.

Genesee is a comparatively small district with 930 students, located in a rural village of the same name.

"It's a combination bedroom/farming community; it's the type of community I was looking to move to," Rohrer said. "I'm at a point in my career that it's time to make a change."

Pat Rohrer will continue teaching special education in Manchester Community Schools while her husband embarks on his new job.

"Pat is going to stay in Manchester for another year, and I have family friends I can stay with up there," Rohrer said.

Ann Valle, former

Community Education director who now teaches special education at Chelsea High School, said she will miss Rohrer's energy, optimism and talent for seeing a need and creating a program to address it.

"The purpose of maintaining community connections

Troopers collide on way to crash scene

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

A traffic crash involving two Michigan State Police troopers from the Sylvan Detachment and two civilian vehicles is being investigated by accident reconstruction experts.

"It's very unusual, but when it does it almost always happens when they are on an emergency run or a pursuit," said Sgt. Kevin Lucidi of the MSP Metro South Post in Taylor, who is investigating the Saturday morning crash. "Thank God it doesn't happen often."

Police said troopers Steven Temelko and Nicole Hiserote were responding to a motorcycle crash at Hadley and Bartell roads in northern Lyndon Township at about 10:10 a.m.

According to Lucidi, Hiserote stuck Temelko's patrol car broadside from behind as he made a right turn onto Werkner Road from northbound M-52.

The sequence of events is unclear, Lucidi said Tuesday, but at least one and possibly both police cars then struck two civilian vehicles at the stop sign at Werkner Road, and Hiserote's vehicle came to rest in a ditch.

The troopers were treated at Chelsea Community Hospital and released. Temelko aggravated a shoulder injury - he received in August, and Hiserote suffered knee and neck injuries.

The two civilian motorists at the scene refused medical treatment.

The heavily traveled intersection was closed for about two hours while the scene was investigated, causing major traffic delays.

Washtenaw County sheriff's deputies were dispatched to the original motorcycle crash, said Cmdr. Dave Egeler, sheriff's department public information officer.

Egeler said a 36-year-old Plymouth man was riding his Honda motorcycle northbound on Hadley Road north of Bartell, and lost control of the bike while entering a curve.

The man was transported to the University of Michigan Hospital with "serious but not life-threatening" injuries.

School board backs cost-sharing pledge

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

The Chelsea School Board on Monday gave its support to a resolution urging all county school districts to seek opportunities to consolidate costs wherever possible.

A draft of the "Resolution on Consolidation and Shared Public School Services" was presented to the board for approval before being returned to the Washtenaw Intermediate School District.

"It's a good move forward," Superintendent Dave Killips told the board, which held the meeting in the media center at Beach Middle School. "It won't hurt us a bit to pass this."

Trustee Sally DeVol offered a minor revision to the wording to reflect the Chelsea district's ongoing efforts to reduce its costs.

"I think you've already been doing that," she said to Killips.

"We've had these discussions for weeks and months, and I think that needs to be recognized."

The "friendly amendment" altered the wording to (changes are in brackets):

"Therefore, be it resolved that the [Chelsea School District] Board of Education affirm efforts to [continue to] collaborate with other school districts in Washtenaw County by encouraging the exploration of opportunities for consolidating services and by supporting all viable options."

The board then approved the resolution as amended.

"This is just saying we'll continue to look into ways to share costs; things like bulk fuel purchasing, combining payroll services and so on," Killips said.

"I think districts want to have all the independence they can, but you reach a point where you have to consider some of these things."

Killips added that most schools in the county have been looking into various options for cost savings, short of actually consolidating entire districts.

"There's a number of things we have to look at and be open-minded about," he said.

Killips also reported to the board on the status of the sinking fund being used to pay for repairs and capital improvements.

"We set aside $100,000 out of the fund until we make a determination on other projects," Killips said.

He listed projects such as repairing the asphalt and painting the entryway at Pierce Lake Elementary School, and repairing heating valves and storm drains at North Creek Elementary.

"Anything over the bid limit will be put out for bid and brought back to the board," Killips said.

One big-ticket item Killips mentioned is going to take some time to coordinate.

"We want to install a generator on the roof of the high school to keep computers running in a power outage and to help with communication throughout the district," he explained.

That project could cost between $50,000 and $100,000, and will definitely go through the regular bid process, he said.

Cabaret's successful journey

With approximately 1,500 people showing up last weekend, the Chelsea High School's Cabaret was a record-breaking big success. The Company C and Show Choir performed a "Sentimental Journey" theme program. All World War II veterans got into the show free. The show was an original work written and arranged by Chelsea's Lisa Hinz-Johnson and directed by her husband, Steve Hinz.

Stadium brick drive is coming to an end

The Chelsea Stadium Drive brick campaign is in its final weeks as the chance to order inscribed bricks ends June 10. The brick drive was launched this winter as part of the Chelsea Stadium Drive fund raising efforts for a new synthetic field turf for the 2007 season. The overall goal of the initiative is to raise $650,000 through private donations and sales from commemorative bricks.

So far more than $625,000 has been raised.

Commemorative brick sales have accounted for over $45,000 of total funds collected so far.

"Once again, Chelsea has proven to be a very generous community," said Committee Chairperson John Mann. "After two years of planning, research and solicitation, we are almost at our goal and hope to reach it just as they start work on the field in June."

There are three levels of personalized bricks available. They include: Bulldog Brick for $100; Bandstand Brick for $250; and Kickoff Brick for $500. All bricks will be personally inscribed and permanently placed near the main entrance at the stadium. Bricks may be purchased by check, cash or credit card and brick forms are available at Chelsea State Bank.

PRIDE & HONOR FLIGHTS: VETERANS VISIT WORLD WAR II MEMORIAL

MEMORIAL

again after the war. But his son, Hobey, who retired after 24 years in the Air Force, now flies for Spirit Airlines. He also lives in Dexter.

Bates said that he wouldn't have been able to see the memorial without the help of Pride and Honor Flights of Dexter. "They did a wonderful job and I wouldn't have been able to go if they hadn't," he said. "I would highly recommend this to other World War II veterans. They really should go see (the memorial)."

Michael Vencil, also of Dexter, enjoyed the trip.

"I liked it. It was a bit tiring, but a lot of fun," said Vencil, who was a field radio operator with the Marines. "It was well organized and everything really fell into place nicely. We had a very good time."

This was Vencil's first trip to the memorial.

"It was great," he said. "Very impressive. I was in awe at the size of the place. I liked the way they had both the Pacific and the European theaters recognized. It was a very nice tribute."

Like many of the veterans on the trip, Vencil wasn't bothered by the fact that it took so long to build a memorial honoring their service to their country.

"It didn't affect me one way or the other," he said. "I have the Iwo Jima Memorial."

After the war Vencil went to electronics school and went to work for a TV repair shop. He also worked 10 years with the Sheriff's Department but retired as an electronic technician with the University of Michigan. He has lived in Dexter since 1955.

Bill Clogg of South Lyon enjoyed the entire experience.

"Our trip to Washington was a reminder of many of those days and I want to thank all the people that made this possible," he said. "Thank you to Faye and Jack Wisely and all of their helpers. They did a great job setting this up for us."

Arvid Nelson of Willis Township said all World War II veterans should see the memorial.

"It is unbelievable," said Nelson, who made the trip accompanied by his grandson Jason Patterson of Ypsilanti. "People should try to get here and see it because it really lets them know what people are doing for each other. I had no idea it was like this and really didn't even think about coming here to see it. But I am so glad I did. I was really impressed."

Faye Wisely provided the inspiration and hard work required to bring Pride and Honor Flights to Dexter.

"I saw a show on TV about this same kind of group and fell in love with doing the same thing for our Michigan veterans," Wisely said. "When I told my friends about it they wanted to help too, and they have been the backbone of this group."

Wisely admits that before getting involved with Pride and Honor Flights she was not fully aware of the great sacrifices these heroes made for their country.

"When I approach some organizations about taking the veterans to see the memorial that they waited 60 years for, so many of them wanted to know where the veterans were going to come from and if I would take local veterans with the money that was donated," she said.

"Of course I would take the local veterans, but also other veterans would be invited to join us. I don't think the veterans were picky about who was going to receive the peace in this country when their neck was on the line or their plane was going down."

Wisely and her group spend hours organizing the trip and raising money to make it happen. The veterans go for free; so finding money to pay for airfare, bus travel and food is almost a full-time job.

So what does Wisely get out of this?

"I don't know about the rest of the team, but here is a note I received from a Chelsea veteran who went with us on the May 5th flight: 'The organization for this event was outstanding. With this being my first trip to Washington D.C. and then being part of a wonderful group, it's a day I will never forget and an experience that will stay with me for a lifetime. Could you please send a heartfelt thank you to the wonderful women who accompanied me throughout the day.'"

"This is what I get out of this."

Wisely gets plenty of help from her dedicated team.

Her husband Jack is the president and treasurer. He handles all the phone calls that come in and is on the phone most of the day, reassuring veterans that they do get to go for free.

Richard and Mary Jo Ulrich help with all of the fundraisers, spending countless hours trying to raise money from businesses and organizations. Nola Snider does all the data processing for all the applications that come in and calls several veterans to let them know what flights they will be on. Carol Gaal is an assistant to the director and goes on the trips to help organize and care for the veterans. John Conklin also works hard to help Pride and Honor Flights get off the ground.

How to help

Pride and Honor Flights of Dexter continues to organize trips for veterans to see the World War II Memorial. Approximately 1,000 World War II veterans die each day so time is running out. There are several ways people can help send a veteran to Washington D.C. Since the group receives no government or corporate funding, donations are greatly appreciated - and tax deductible. It costs about $200 to send a veteran to see the Memorial. Pride and Honor Flights also is looking for veterans from World War II who wish to go on the trip as well as guardians to assist them. For more information, call 1-734-428-5931.

The long day began at 4 a.m. as people began gathering at Detroit Metro Airport for the early morning flight to Ronald Reagan National Airport. Each veteran had at least one person accompanying them as a volunteer guardian. Many of these guardians are family members who pay their own way. After arriving at Ronald Reagan the group boards a luxury bus for the short ride to the World War II Memorial.

Dexter's Vencil salutes Iwo Jima Memorial

On the morning of Feb. 19, 1945, the 4th and 5th Marine Divisions invaded Iwo Jima after a somewhat ineffective bombardment lasting 72 hours. The 28th Regiment, 5th Division, was ordered to capture Mount Suribachi. They reached the base of the mountain on the afternoon of Feb. 21, and by nightfall the next day had almost completely surrounded it.

On the morning of Feb. 22, Marines of Company E, 2nd Battalion, started the tortuous climb up the rough terrain to the top. At about 10:30 a.m., men all over the island were thrilled by the sight of a small American flag flying from atop Mount Suribachi. That afternoon, when the slopes were clear of enemy resistance, a second, larger flag was raised by five Marines and a Navy hospital corpsman: Sgt. Michael Strank, Cpl. Harold H. Block, Pfc. Franklin R. Sousley, Pfc. Rene A. Gagnon, Pfc. Ira Hayes, and Pfc. John H. Bradley, USN.

Michael Vencil (left) of Dexter "almost" saw what became the historic flag raising. "I was busy at the time directing mortar and the mountain was behind us," he said. "We were going in the opposite direction. And somebody said, 'hey, someone is putting a flag up there.' As soon as I could I would look. But by the time I looked it was already up. Didn't think much of it at the time when I saw it. It was just one more item in the excitement of the day. I didn't really pay that much attention to it."

Vencil said the flag was raised on the fifth day and the campaign would last 35 days.

"We had a long way to go after that," he said. "That was the 28th Marines from the fifth division and when we went ashore we separated. They went to the left to take the mountain and we went to the right to cover the rest of the island."

Family reunion

World War II veteran Walter Jarvis (center) was happy that his son Wally joined him on the trip to see the Memorial. Both received a special surprise when Walter's other son, Marc, showed up to share the experience. "I work in the fitness center for the U.S. Army in Fort Jackson, S.C.," Marc said. "I knew they were coming here and knew the schedule so I jumped on my motorcycle and decided to come up and surprised them." Walter was thrilled to see Marc. "I was really surprised," Walter said. "They both understand the meaning of this trip so it's wonderful to have them here to experience it with me."

PRIDE & HONOR FLIGHTS: VETERANS VISIT WORLD WAR II MEMORIAL

Stories they can tell

The following are stories told by the men and women who served during World War II. Many of the stories told here are from servicemen who recently visited the World War II Memorial in Washington D.C. through the help of Pride and Honor Flights of Dexter. Carl Heldt, Barbara Springborn and John Woodward were special guests of the McKune Memorial Library in Chelsea during a program Saturday honoring their military service. Heritage Newspapers would like to thank the following veterans for sharing their stories with us.

Harry Bates

Dexter

"I volunteered for the Air Force in 1942 and was in several outfits. I started out flying in B-40s. I was transferred to an observation squadron and we went upstate to B-24 photo recon aircraft in which we flew out in the islands in the Pacific. We were stationed at Eniwetok for a period of duty. After I flew in B-24s I flew in C-154s and went out into the Pacific again down to Guam, Iwo Jima and down to Japan and back to Manila and down to Biak and then I got out. I was a pilot of photo recon aircraft (that would go out and take pictures and scout enemy aircraft and locations). We were shot at once that I could recall but didn't get hit. I was in California when the war ended. I was still in the reserves when the Korean War broke out so I was recalled for that."

Bill Clogg

South Lyon

"I served in the US Navy, from Oct. 13, 1942 and was discharged Nov. 24, 1945. The first two years were in ships company at Great Lakes Naval Station working in the clothing department. This was where all recruits received their clothes and bedding, also the warehouse where we stored all the clothing materials as they arrived by train. Because I was married before going in the Navy I was able to live in town with my wife who worked at Abbott Pharmaceutical Labs in Chicago. Our first child was born in February 1944 and I received orders to be transferred to the Pacific area in November 1944. I brought my family back to Detroit and boarded a train to California on Dec. 14, 1944. A short stop at Treasure Island for further orders and then on to Pearl Harbor."

"The Pacific was rough and cold and a lot of sea sickness seemed the order of the day. When we arrived at Pearl we were sent to another waiting area for further orders. I volunteered daily for jobs of any kind to make the time go faster. This and writing letters back home were the daily routine. Orders then came for 13 storekeepers to be sent to Guam. We became passengers on a submarine maintenance ship. We arrived on Guam the end of January 1945. We became part of a group known as FRRU, for freight receiving and redistribution unit. This was the first of its kind and was a very interesting assignment. We were in charge of all kinds of material arriving by ship and the correct distribution of same. I was working in our warehouse in June and had my left ankle crushed. This put me in Base Hospital 18 until the armistice was signed. More volunteering here and doing craft work made the time go by."

"We shipped home on a beautiful hospital ship, arriving in San Francisco in 13 days, then on a train back to Great Lakes Hospital for more rehab and volunteering and discharge in November 1945. I was a very lucky man to return as many of my friends did not."

Carl Heldt

Chelsea

Heldt served in Okinawa and was wounded serving his country.

"I didn't like the calisthenics (during basic training). It was eight weeks of constant drilling and marching. I served on Okinawa and went in the day after the invasion. I was in an outfit called field hospital and it was just like what you saw on M*A*S*H on TV. The only difference was that we didn't have any women. One of the things I remember very vividly was the day that President Roosevelt died. We were on the island at that time and all of the servicemen in the field hospital were quite solemn. ... I was sitting in the hospital in Okinawa talking to some of the other guys when all of a sudden 'boom,' and I was hit with shrapnel in my arm. It severed the nerves in my arm and wrist. The doctors tried to reconnect the ends. Now they can do that, but they couldn't back then. They tried during several surgeries including that last one at the University of Chicago. They couldn't do it either so they sent me home."

Walter Jarvis

Ann Arbor

"I was in Italy when the war ended, but I was in Naples when Japan surrendered. We were given points for time in service, time overseas, air medals, campaign ribbons and points for this and points for that. I happened to have few points because I had suffered a ruptured appendix and I spent months in a hospital. Two of us went on sick call at the same time and our flight surgeon happened to be a pediatrician. And when two guys showed up with bad cramps he diagnosed us as having bad wine. He might have had bad wine but I didn't drink. So he gave us both a laxative and sent us back to our tents and we both got violently ill. We were rushed to a field hospital where they have all kinds of war casualties. My appendix ruptured during the surgery. Some Colonel came through one morning passing out Purple Hearts and gave me one. So I had one for awhile until they caught on. When I was healthy enough they sent me back to my unit and then the war in Europe ended. So those of us with few points were formed into a new squadron and we were sent to Naples. I had few points because I wasn't flying because I was in the hospital for so long."

Barbara Springborn

Chelsea

Springborn served for 18 months in the Women Accepted for Volunteer Emergency Services (WAVES), a division of the U.S. Navy.

"One of the things that was difficult to learn was making the beds. I always made beds. But (in the service) you had to have the top sheet or blanket so tight that when the officers dropped a coin on the bed it would bounce and if it didn't you had to tear it apart and start over again. Not only that, but underneath the bunk had to be just as neat as it was on top. Our clothes in the closet had to have all the buttons buttoned and the shoes had to be tied. When you wanted to get dressed it took a long time to unbutton everything. But these were things you just had to learn."

Michael Vencil

Dexter

"I joined the Marines in 1943. I turned 18 in September and was with the Marines in October. Our home base was in Maui and from there I went to Guam, then Iwo Jima and then to Northern China. We went to Northern China right after the end of the war in late 1945 and early 1946. I was a field radio operator and a prime target. I carried a pack radio on my back and it weighed around 43 pounds. It was my job to keep in contact with the other units. I got shot at many times. Everyone in our unit was getting shot at because we were right up there on the front. I was 19-years old at the time. We had a five-man tent and out of us five only two of us came back. It was hard. ... I saw the (historic Iwo Jima) flag raising, well I almost saw it. I was busy at the time directing mortar fire and the mountain was behind us. We were going in the opposite direction. And somebody said, 'hey, someone is putting a flag up there.' As soon as I could I would look. But by the time I looked it was already up. Didn't think much of it at the time when I saw it. It was just one more item in the excitement of the day. I didn't really pay that much attention to it."

"That flag was raised on the fifth day and the campaign lasted 35 days. We had a long way to go after that. That was the 28th Marines from the fifth division and when we went ashore we separated. They went to the left to take the mountain and we went to the right to cover the rest of the island."

John Woodward

Chelsea

Woodward served in the U.S. Army Signal Corps and saw action in the Philippines and New Guinea.

"I was a little older when I was drafted. I was 21. I did my basic training outside of St. Louis. The highlight was one Saturday morning marching in front of President Roosevelt. The only thing was that he was about two hours late. He showed up in a convertible with his dog. Under that hot Missouri sun the soldiers were falling over and somebody had to grab their feet and pull them to the back. Basic training was about six weeks and it was different than college life. After basic I went into the ASTP (Army Specialized Training Program). I was in there about a year. They had all these troops that they didn't know what to do with so they sent us to colleges all over the country. I ended up in Rapid City, South Dakota. Then they disbanded it. I was then sent to San Francisco and put on a ship. You had six bunks stacked up on one side and if you had a heavy person (above) you, you had a little trouble rolling over. And we were right next to the boiler room so when we got down around the tropics it got pretty hot. So we would go up on the steel deck (and try to sleep) and then it usually started raining. But it was better then being down on your bunk. We went to New Guinea and we were there a couple of months. Waiting to go up to the Philippines we were on a troop ship in the harbor and a Japanese mini-sub, a two-man sub came in and almost got us. I was down below about six o'clock in the morning and heard a big bang. There was an oil freighter next to us and it missed both of us."

Arvid Nelson

Willis Township

"I was in ordinance. We would repair equipment that would break down. We would put a motor in a jeep in 45 minutes. I was in the service two years, three months and 27 days. I must have timed it right when I quit my job and went in because I was only over there eight months. You could hear all the firing going on so we were close enough. There was only 115 of us in our outfit and we were working, repairing some equipment in one of these old buildings and every night they would find soldiers with a wire around their neck dead. The battalion officer said you had to have two guards from now on. Our captain says that we are a small outfit and we can't afford to do that because we don't have the manpower. Well, that night I had to pull guard duty and patrol the area and make sure that everything was going good. Well that night was raining and it was a bad night. All of a sudden someone starts shooting at me. I could hear the bullets flying by me and hitting the building. And I was hearing noises inside the building. I tried to be real brave. Finally, I said the heck with it and I went in the building. I came to find out what all that noise was. The bombing was very heavy around there. And all these buildings had slate roofs and the slate was loose and the rain hitting it would wiggle enough to where it would slide down and drop off right behind me. You can't just shine a light to see what the noise is."

"Another time I was ordered to go and escort some German prisoners so I figured there would be about three or four of them. But when I got there it was about 300 prisoners and they all had buckets. The fella who released them to me said not to worry because they were going to fill the buckets with food for themselves and the other prisoners. It didn't sound good to me. It was getting dark and we had almost a mile to walk and then it started to rain. It really poured. And those guys took off on a run and I just said go, you guys just go. I get back up to the camp and every single one of them is standing there at attention. I couldn't believe it."

PRIDE & HONOR FLIGHTS: VETERANS VISIT WORLD WAR II MEMORIAL

Trip puts things in perspective

I take a seat on a stone wall between the Washington Monument and the World War II Memorial. The smiles of the World War II veterans as they experienced their memorial for the first time are fresh in my mind. The pride they were feeling was infectious and it was difficult not to get caught up in the patriotism of the moment — so forgive me if I start bleeding red, white and blue.

Here was a group of men and women who made incredible sacrifices to protect and defend their country. They put their lives on the line to protect what they believed in. And you can be sure that none of these brave men making this trip with Pride and Honor Flights of Dexter take freedom and democracy for granted.

But that can't be said for everyone these days. And that's sad. Hopefully, this memorial will serve as a reminder that what we have is special and worth fighting for.

As I sit on this wall staring at the World War II Memorial and behind it, the Lincoln Memorial, I ask myself a simple question. Why do some Americans take such pleasure in blaming Americans for everything that is wrong in the world today? Why do some Americans stand up and point the finger at themselves and say "it's our fault" without even considering that maybe it's not all our fault.

Maybe terrorism isn't all America's fault. Maybe global warming isn't all America's fault. Maybe disease and poverty isn't all America's fault. There are even some Americans who believe what happened on Sept. 11 wasn't only America's fault, but orchestrated by America. This is an example of not only lunacy, but hate.

As I sit here the American flags that circle the World War II Memorial are basking in the breeze and sunlight of the day. The sun beams down on the Lincoln Memorial off in the distance. Groups of school children, swarm around the Washington Monument, the locals toss Frisbees, play soccer and jog while their guests take in all the history, all the meaning and all the purpose of the memorials built so future generations can remember.

But a few folks may have already forgotten. And those are the ones who hate.

Now understand that there is a difference between people who want to see America reach greater potential and become stronger and bigger — not in reach, but in influence — and those who simply hate this country for being just that — great and strong.

While most Americans still believe this is the greatest country in the world and feel fortunate to be called Americans, others are ashamed and embarrassed for what America has become.

You can be both — proud and ashamed. You can do what you can to try and change what you believe is wrong — that's one of the rights so many have fought to protect.

And there is a difference between people who hate and people who care. You can tell them apart not by the way they talk, but by the way they listen. Because

HOME FRONT

Memorial Day should involve learning curve

My uncle Lee fought in Vietnam. That's all I know about that. I don't know the unit he fought with, where he was stationed, or anything about what he did or saw. I don't know what he thought or felt about his service.

BRIAN COX

It's a mystery to me.

Uncle Lee, who wasn't much of a talker to begin with, didn't talk about Vietnam as far as I know, and his nephews didn't ask, though we were curious.

There was an uncomfortable, forbidden quality to the subject.

No one, of course, ever directly warned us, "Don't ask your Uncle Lee about Vietnam." It just seemed taboo, like asking Aunt Harriet about the large mole high on her right cheek.

No one ever said, "Don't say anything about your Aunt Harriet's mole." We just knew it wouldn't be proper etiquette to ask. You might stare at it, you might wonder how it could ever have gotten that big, you might even ask among yourselves if it itched, but you knew it wasn't something to ever bring up with Aunt Harriet.

So we never asked our uncle about Vietnam.

Uncle Lee died a few years back of a stroke and now what I didn't know of his service I will never know.

His time in the military is not the only mystery.

Both my grandfathers fought in Europe during World War II. My maternal grandfather did something with artillery. My dad's dad ran communication wires across enemy lines.

That's all I know about that.

Like my Uncle Lee, my grandfathers weren't big talkers. And they certainly didn't talk about their combat service with their grandchildren. I recall seeing only one picture of my maternal grandfather in uniform. It was rumored he had a Luger and the sword of a German officer tucked away in a closet somewhere, and while some of my cousins claimed in whispers to have seen the weapons, it was never independently verified.

My grandfathers are both dead now, too, and what I didn't know about their service I will never know.

That's a shame.

I wish now I had drummed up the nerve to inquire about my uncle's and grandfathers' wartime experiences, to learn more about what they went through, what they thought and felt about their roles in history, about duty to country, about what they sacrificed and maybe gained.

I wish we had talked more.

It's true, of course, that they may not have wanted to talk about war, and that is understandable. I expect they preferred to talk with other veterans, others who shared their experiences, who wouldn't ask inane questions, who could fill in the meaning behind inadequate and inexact words.

But I should not have been too intimidated by social mores to give them the chance. I should have overcome the reluctance to bring it up, to open the door with a simple question, which so often can be the hardest ones to ask.

Who knows? Maybe they would have told me a thing or two. Maybe I would have learned something to remember.

Instead, I didn't ask and they didn't venture, and now all I'm left with is the knowledge that my uncle fought in Vietnam and my grandfathers fought in World War II.

And that's all I know about that.

On Memorial Day, Americans will spend time in their backyards barbecuing with family and friends. Many may stand alongside streets to watch a parade. Others may lay flags at the graves of veterans passed.

It occurs to me that Memorial Day would perhaps be well spent by not only remembering and honoring those who have served our country, but also by hearing what they have to say.

Maybe, like my uncle and grandfathers, they are not inclined to say much, but we should not be afraid to proffer the invitation.

Guest column: By Virginia Bally

CHS graduate supports education for everyone

In November 2006, the state of Michigan passed the Michigan Civil Rights Initiative, or Proposal 2, by a 58 percent majority of votes. Passage of this proposal amended Article 1 - Section 26 of the State Constitution to include language forbidding "preferential treatment" in addition to the existing ban on discrimination based on race, gender, color, ethnicity, or national origin, in public employment, education or contracting arrangements.

Schools in Michigan, as well as the state's concerned citizens, have heavily considered the proposal's ramifications for minority races, females and students from underprivileged backgrounds.

Less attention, however, has been given to the question of 'national origin,' or more specifically, access to education for immigrants to the United States. This oversight is regrettable; to omit immigrants from the dialogue on education access is to deny millions of Americans the resources for success. The time has come to address this issue.

This June, the National Forum on Higher Education for the Public Good will hold an open conference, entitled "Challenges and Opportunities: Conversations about Immigration and Higher Education." The three day event hopes to bring together educators, community leaders, state higher education officers, legislators, students; researchers, educational administrators, policy makers and others in a ground breaking discussion on immigration and education access.

The director of the National Forum, Dr. John C. Burkhardt, remains committed to including individuals at all levels of the local community and education infrastructure. Currently, John Quinones of ABC Primetime News and Charles Reed, the Chancellor of California State University, have confirmed participation. Still missing from the participant list, however, are the affected citizens—

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor: Just wondering when is all the litter going to be cleaned up in our town?

Fran Hawkins

To the Editor: The Chelsea Senior Center is still flying high after our first, of what will become annual, "Chelsea Unlimited." We wish to thank the entire community for coming out to support this amazing event. It is estimated that 1,000 people came to enjoy a free pancake brunch, hear a variety of interesting speakers, visit over 80 exhibitors and take home goodie bags stuffed with information and giveaways.

We had music, massage, non-profits, local and state politicians, Chelsea businesses and so much more.

We heard over and over "I never knew we had this in Chelsea" as newcomers and long time residents alike discovered that Chelsea truly does offer everything. We thank our volunteers, generous underwriters and supporters, the Chelsea Standard, and everyone who came out to make this day a memorable one.

Tina Patterson, Director

To the Editor: "If a man can preach a better sermon, write a better book, or make a better mouse trap than his neighbor, though he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door." — Emerson

These words so inspired Dr. William Mayo that they are on a plaque in the Mayo Clinic Museum in Rochester, Minn. It is time for the residents of Michigan to take some inspiration from Emerson's words and demand that our legislators from both parties wake up and make the much needed reforms required to make our state the place where businesses beat a path to come and start new businesses, build plants, hire workers and add to our economic base.

Yes, we are competing with the whole world, but we are also losing out to our neighbors, other states where the regulatory burden is much easier to bear and government bureaucrats are much more cordial to business and do not make unreasonable demands.

One area the legislature needs to address is regulatory reform concerning the Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ). This department has an

Asking for help

To the Editor: Normally, when people see stuff sitting along the side of the road, they assume the items have been abandoned and that they are welcome to take what they want. But when it's a whole household of furniture, clothes, and toys, it's pretty obvious there has been an eviction and that the items are not abandoned.

On May 15, my ex-daughter-in-law was evicted from her house in the 8200 block of Huron River Drive. She had been ill during the past few months and was told the rent was paid. At the time of the eviction, she was out of town and was not informed the eviction was going to occur. Tragically, the person who was informed did not tell her nor anyone else in the family.

By the time a good samaritan called to inform my son, all the furniture and valuables were gone. We were able to find most of my grandkids' clothes and photographs. Some people stopped by to ask what was going on, and when they found out about the eviction, they brought back items they had picked up. Others called and arranged for the return of items.

All the furniture, TVs, computers, file cabinets, heirlooms, china, bikes, Christmas ornaments, video games, and jewelry are still missing. We only found 10 of about 200 beanie babies. One of the missing ones is a black bear that my grandson gave his 18-year-old uncle to hold while he took his last breath. Many of the beanie babies have special significance associated with them. They were not part of a "collection" but were well loved and played with.

So I'm asking that you consider returning items you picked up not knowing they were someone else's treasures. Anonymous drop offs can be arranged. Call 1-734-476-2455 important role to play in protecting the environment and our lakes and streams and wetlands. However, the legislature has left the powers of this department so unchecked that lower level staffers can and have tried to expand their authority into areas the legislature never intended for their oversight. Many of these staffers feel that they have oversight of every pot hole and ditch in the state and act with total lack of common sense making unreasonable demands on businesses and farmers.

I spoke with one of these staffers a few months ago who gave me her definition of a stream as "any ditch that gets rain water in it even once a year" as she tried

What is the 4-H Club in Chelsea and what do the four H's stand for?

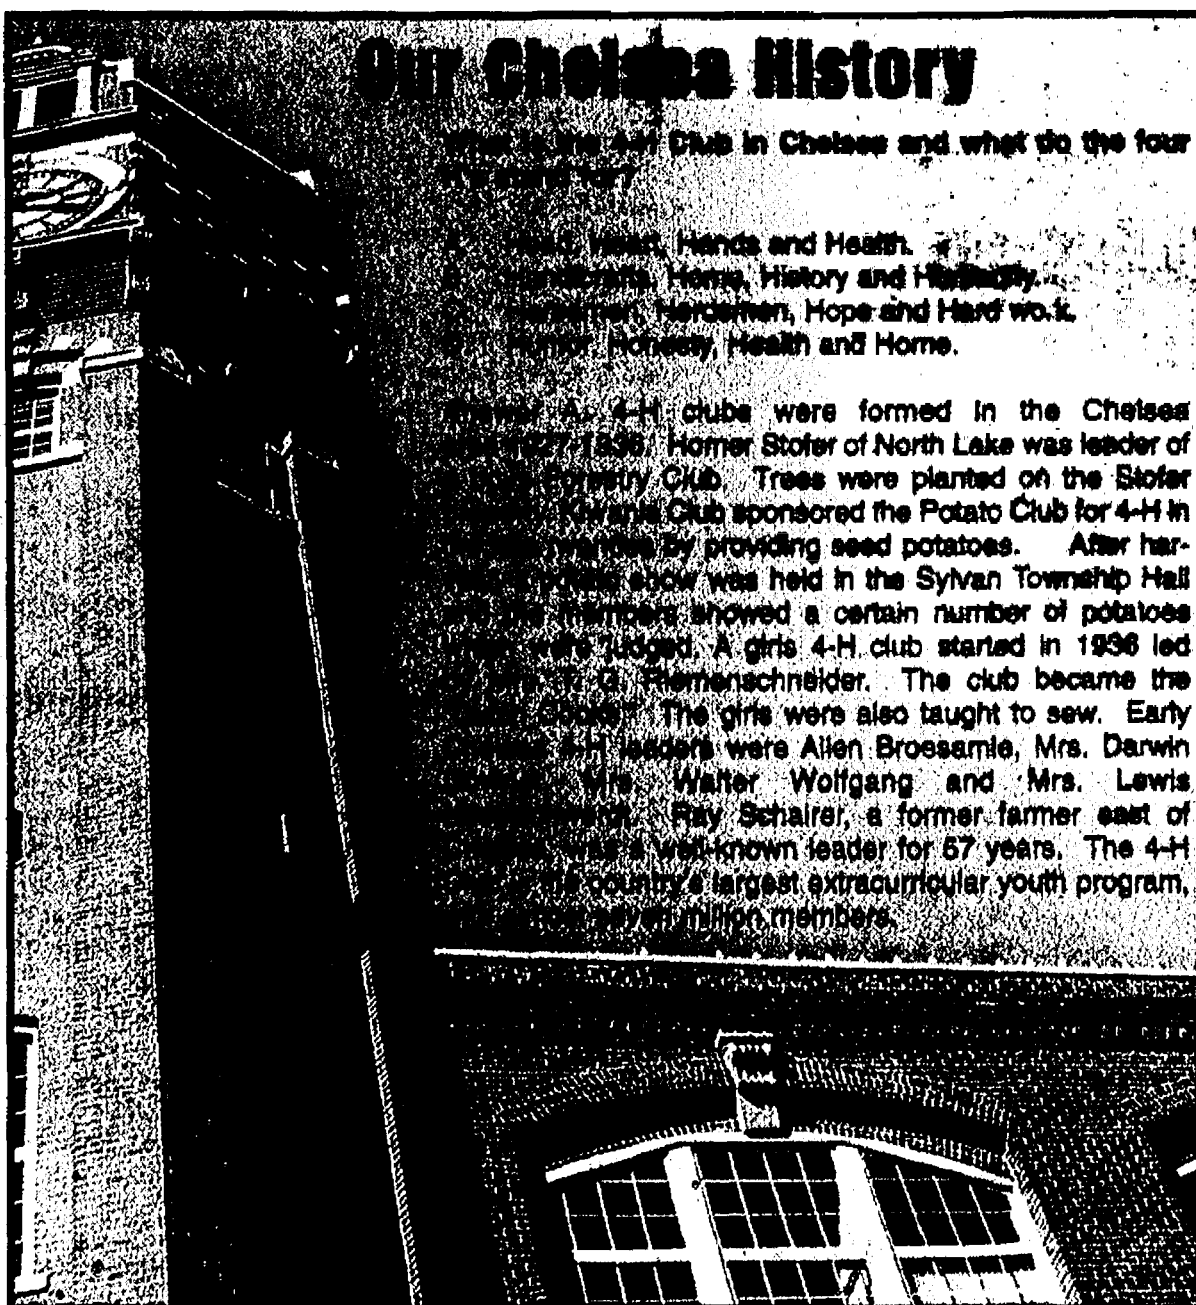

Head, Heart, Hands and Health.
Horticulture, Home, History and Happiness.
Honesty, Hardwork, Hope and Hard Work.
Honor, Honesty, Health and Home.

Chelsea's 4-H clubs were formed in the Chelsea Community Center. Homer Stofor of North Lake was leader of the Chelsea 4-H Club. Trees were planted on the Stofor property. The Chelsea Club sponsored the Potato Club for 4-H in Chelsea. The Chelsea Club provided seed potatoes.

After harvest, a show was held in the Sylvan Township Hall. The members showed a certain number of potatoes. The Chelsea 4-H club started in 1936 led by Homer Stofor.

The girls were also taught to sew. Early leaders were Allen Broesamie, Mrs. Darwin Stofor, Walter Wolfgang and Mrs. Lewis Stofor.

Ray Schaefer, a former farmer east of Chelsea, was a well-known leader for 67 years. The 4-H Club was the largest extracurricular youth program, with over 100 members.

The group had more than two hours to explore and experience the memorial built in their honor. The group from Michigan quickly mixed with others at the memorial. The veterans shared stories of their experiences and smiles and handshakes were prevalent from one end of the memorial to the other.

Visitors to the memorial, both young and old, go out of their way to say thank you to the "greatest generation." Many of the Michigan veterans first walk around the entire site and then sit on the white stone benches that surround the memorial and take it all in - their satisfaction and pride evident with each smile and each story they share with others.

Other stops on the daylong tour of Washington include the Vietnam Memorial, Korean Memorial, Roosevelt Memorial and Lincoln Memorial.

A quick trip over to Virginia gives the veterans a chance to see the Marine Corps War Memorial located near the Arlington National Cemetery. The memorial is dedicated to all United States Marine Corps personnel who have died in the defense of their country since 1775.

But it's the World War II Memorial that is the highlight of the day for these brave men. It's a trip, made possible by the Pride and Honor Flights of Dexter, to say thank you. A trip to honor this generation that never asked for anything in return for their service to their country.

They never asked, but the smiles show how much it's appreciated.

they simply don't listen. It's too difficult to listen and debate and discuss and learn. It's a lot easier to point fingers, call names and ignore. And, of course, don't let facts get in the way.

Meanwhile, you can send your kids off to school knowing that they are safe. You can close your eyes at night knowing that you are protected. So while you may not agree with what's going on at the moment you can take great pride in knowing that America is still special.

You can do both - disagree and defend.

But some can't. They are just filled with hate. It's so easy to hate. Maybe it gives people a deeper sense that they matter. I will leave that diagnosis to the professionals.

And hate certainly exists on both sides of the political aisle and is usually more prevalent on the side not in power at the time.

Unfortunately, there are too many examples from both sides to share in this limited space. There also are plenty of examples of all the good this country has done - and continues to do - around the world. Sometimes that gets lost in all the rhetoric.

During our Michigan veterans time at their memorial, the sun sneaks behind a cloud, leaving Washington in a gray shadow. A few moments later the sun peeks out of the clouds again, but this time shining only on the World War II Memorial. It was Mother Nature's salute to our heroes.

So on this Memorial Day weekend, let us put our differences aside and all agree that we still live in a great country and remember those who made it all possible. They are the ones who fought to protect our right to protest and disagree and vote for change.

Let's just say thanks because we shouldn't take what we have for granted.

Plant sale a big hit flat income tax, from 3.9 percent to 4.4 percent, or a graduated or progressive income tax similar to the federal income tax structure that increases tax liability as income levels rise.

Revenue reforms are important, Byrnes added, because Michigan's economic fortunes aren't projected to turn around until 2009.

She also expressed concern over the size of Michigan government, stating that the number of state workers is lower than it's been in decades.

"We're at 1972 staffing levels right now," Byrnes said. She expressed concern with the level of services offered by the state, as well as operations in a faster and more demanding point in the state's history.

"Are people willing to invest in our state?" she asked. "We have good schools, colleges and natural attractions. People move here for the quality of life."

Byrnes is on the appropriations committee, which is headed by Rep. George Cushingberry Jr., D-Dist. 8. He is a proponent of the half-percent flat income tax increase, which would bring in $900 million per year, according to Brater. Others have called for a 0.7 percent increase.

"It's a moving target, since there are ongoing negotiations on the table," Brater said. "We are going to have a solution, because we are required by law to have a solution on the table."

"The question is, what kind of state Michigan wants to be?" Brater added. "Do we want to be a state with excellence in education, maintain public safety and quality of life issues that attract business to the state?"

Manchester Superintendent The Manchester School District is one of a pool of 24 school superintendents in the Manchester Community School District. Superintendent David Ossema is retiring at the end of the school year in June. The Manchester school board retained a consultant from the Michigan Leadership Institute to conduct a candidate search. The other finalist is James Craig, executive director of curriculum and instruction at Niles Community Schools in Niles.

Celebrate scouting Troop 478 of Chelsea is celebrating its 50th anniversary this summer. There will be a celebration event at 7:30 p.m. June 4 at Pierce Park in Chelsea.

The event is an open invitation for the public, including previous members of the troop and anyone interested in the Boy Scouts.

is the essence of Community Education, and this is what Jeff does best," she said.

"He knew the issues, the fiscal information and the people that you needed to talk to if you wanted to get involved."

Rohrer said he is proud of many of the accomplishments made by the department during his tenure, but stopped short of taking credit for them.

"I don't do anything myself; I work with whomever it takes to make things happen," he said.

"And we always found a way to make sure kids were not excluded because they couldn't afford something," he added. "We didn't turn away anybody."

Superintendent Dave Killips said Rohrer was an important part of a team that worked well together.

"This is the top administrative team I've ever worked with. Obviously Jeff was a main cog in that and we'll miss him," Killips said.

He wished Rohrer well as he steps into the fraternity of school superintendents. "We'll do everything we can to help him be successful," Killips said.

"He always kept children in the forefront of his mind, and I'm sure he'll continue to do that for Genesee."

Rohrer was thankful for the opportunity to work with his colleagues for so long.

"Chelsea has been a great place to work, the community is wonderful and the Community Ed staff has been some of the most dedicated people I've ever worked with," he said.

"I'm going to miss this place."

Downtown Development Authority.

According to Garland, 1 mill equals about $228,000 in revenue for the city.

If the increase is approved, the total tax rate would become 18.7480 for taxpayers within the DDA district and 15.0609 for others.

The council set June 12 as the date for a public hearing on the tax rates, as well as a public hearing on the entire proposed budget.

It will also be the date for a second reading of the adoption of a new, improved and revised code of ordinances. "This includes all the revisions that reflect the change from village to city," said Interim City Manager John Hansen.

"It's also about half the size of the old book, with all the stuff that's been updated and removed," he added.

"We will have paper copies of the book available for the public, but the entire ordinance book will also be made available online."

"We have had a great response for the brick campaign," Mann said. "Our donors have come up with some very creative inscriptions. Some in memory of loved ones, some in memory of their own playing days or times playing in the school band. We have also had groups and former teams come together to buy an honorary brick or series of bricks."

Many parents are buying bricks for their kids in the band with their class year and instrument, or kids on the football team with their position or number. Many former teachers have purchased bricks, as well as football alumni, cheerleaders and graduates.

"The bottom line is we are very near completion, but we still need your help," Mann said. "Your generous contributions are much needed and will be greatly appreciated."

Last fall's horrible weather conditions plagued Chelsea's football field with similar problems as in years past, severely limiting the use of the field once again. Home playoff games were hampered by heavy rains, standing water and ankle-deep mud.

"Anyone who came to that first football playoff game last year experienced why we need a new multiuse field," said Athletic Director

Wayne Welton. "One that can be used 200 or 300 times a year instead of the dozen or so times it's used now. We won't have those problems anymore."

Marching band events and competitions, and community recreation activities are already being scheduled for next season on the new surface. The CHS marching band and the high school football team will be able to practice on the field every day for the first time.

The committee is still accepting personal and corporate donations, and pledges for major gifts. Donors of $1,000 or more will be recognized on permanent plaques at the Stadium.

TIMBER

10 Dyna-Mattes. Each weighs about 200 pounds and covers an area four feet by six feet. Each mat will be installed under the swing foot path for each swing on Timber Town. With normal day-to-day play children's feet sweep away the safety surfacing creating a ditch under each swing. When this happens, virtually all fall protection under each swing is eliminated. The Dyna-Mattes will be installed under the mulch safety surfacing and will act as another fall barrier in the absence of the safety surfacing.

Have you ever jumped on the ground at Timber Town? Try it sometime. The mulch surfacing under your feet is buoyant. That's because the material is Fibar engineered wood safety surfacing. In order to comply with current standards, each piece of mulch cannot exceed a certain size, must be double ground to reduce splintering and must compact to allow for wheelchair accessibility. Fibar, which is currently used on Timber Town and will continue to be used, meets ASTM standards for impact attenuation (ASTM F1292) and accessibility (ASTM F1951).

To bring Timber Town back up to regulation levels of mulch, the volunteer work crews on June 9 and 10 will be hauling out 350 yards of mulch and installing roughly 450 yards. All excess mulch will be moved into a newly excavated perimeter around the landscape timbers at Timber Town. The Friends of Timber Town investigated the replacement of all 650 yards of existing Fibar mulch with a recycled rubber material. The cost in replacing the mulch with the rubber material was over $80,000.

One of the best safety related benefits of Timber Town is the fact that Timber Town is made entirely of arsenic free lumber. Ten years ago, Timber Town was built with an arsenic-free pressure-treated lumber made of a special Georgian pine wood. This specialty wood was trucked in from Georgia, specifically for the City of Chelsea and the Timber Town project. At that time, arsenic free lumber was not readily available to the public and normally not sold through regular lumber companies.

The original architects of Timber Town, Leather's and Associates in Ithaca, N.Y., demanded that each of their structures be built from this specialty "arsenic-free" lumber. Given Leather's progressive attitudes towards the safety of these playgrounds, we have been offering the community of Chelsea an extremely safe play environment in Timber Town for over 10 years.

With all of the special precautions taken at Timber Town, it's no wonder that children and parent's alike flock to the site Spring through Fall in Chelsea. It truly is a children's dream playground. Parents can rest easy knowing that their children have an incredibly safe environment to test their own physical limits and have fun while doing so.

to make the case for being able to dictate how a farmer maintains his agricultural drainage ditch. Such activities are exempt from requiring a permit as stated in the Michigan Wetlands Statute, so she has to make the case for the ditch being a stream. My business friend was not surprised when I described how the DEQ was defining such terms and simply indicated that business gets treated much worse.

Surely it's not too much to ask our highly paid legislators, second only to California, to address the regulatory reforms necessary to make our state more competitive.

Reforms have been proposed. Petty politics should be set aside, and the reforms should be adopted. We need to be known as the Common Sense State. Our legislators are sitting around debating on how to increase the tax burden on those of us who have so far decided to stay. Their time would be better spent on regulatory reform. Those Jeff Daniels advertisements urging businesses to come to Michigan would be much more effective if the state's reputation was that of a common sense regulatory environment.

I urge all Michigan citizens to contact their legislators and urge them to begin building that Common Sense Michigan Environment and quickly. Build it and they (the businesses) will come. That should be our field of dreams rather than this nightmare. It is time for action. Ring their phones. Send them letters. Send them e-mails. Apathy is the enemy. Encourage everyone you come into contact with to get active. If you do nothing, they will simply sit around and debate how to raise taxes and fees on everybody.

students, teachers, immigrant families, and community leaders—who can contribute personal experiences and concerns to this discussion.

Failure to support education access for non-nationals is symptomatic of a change in American attitudes; the United States is no longer the welcoming refuge it once was. Instead of jobs, homes and apple pie, prospective citizens are offered a bureaucratic run-around, an indefinite stay in a detention facility, or a warm reception from armed civilian minutemen guarding the southern border. In the last several decades, Americans have exhibited an aversion to immigration, both legal and otherwise.

American nationalism is now grounded in the idea that opportunities for immigrants occur at the expense of opportunities for Americans. While the United States was once the land of infinite possibilities, opportunity is now a zero-sum game. In this vain, we reject efforts to increase access to higher education for immigrants, out of fear that opportunities for others will limit admissions or funding for ourselves. Such self-interest is the basis of Proposal 2.

Denying certain peoples access to higher education, whether actively or passively, will still incur a cost for American students. Universities will suffer a loss of the richness and diversity they once enjoyed. The value of education rests in exposure to new ideas, to new challenges, and to new people. Education is meaningful because it demands that students step outside of their comfort zones and learn to function as a member of a greater, diverse society. To this end, colleges and universities in Michigan have been committed to building communities where creative and dynamic energies can collide.

This vision is only realized, however, when those energies are different. Such differences include race, gender, sex, religion, political thought, and also national origin. The exclusion of any perspective is a discriminatory act which breeds biased understandings. A complete and meaningful education demand the inclusion of all peoples. To this end, all Americans have a citizenry duty to participate in the education system and to defend the rights of others to participate as well.

In a Nov. 8 address to the University of Michigan community, President Mary Sue Coleman affirmed the need for diversity in education, saying "Diversity makes us strong, and it is too critical to our mission, too critical to our excellence, and too critical to our future to simply abandon. This applies to our state as much as our University. Michigan's public universities and our public bodies must be more determined than ever to provide opportunities for women and minorities, who make up the majority of our citizenry."

Let us not forget that immigrants are significant members of our citizenry and contributors to our society and must also be offered access and opportunities.

Market Faire kicks off Smithsonian food exhibit

By Sheila Pursglove

Special Writer

Residents from all over can enjoy a taste of history – and a taste of great food – at a daylong Market Faire May 26 at McKune Memorial Library in Chelsea.

The event kicks off the six-week visit to Chelsea of the Smithsonian Institution exhibit, "Key Ingredients: America by Food" and "Michigan Foodways," a Michigan State University exhibit exploring the Wolverine state's food story, rich agriculture, diverse ethnic cuisines, special culinary traditions, and behaviors and ideas related to preparation, serving, and consumption. "Chelsea Foodways," the library's own local exhibit, focuses on the Chelsea Fair, Chelsea Milling and Jiffy Mix, and on The Common Grill restaurant.

"We're so excited about hosting the first stop on the Michigan tour of Key Ingredients," said Library Director Cathy Russ. "It's an incredible honor to have been selected and we've been planning some wonderful programming for the entire community to enjoy."

Market Faire, co-sponsored by the Michigan Humanities Council, will run until 3 p.m., and will feature live entertainment, a Chef's Tent with demonstrations, and a Taste of Michigan tent with eight Michigan food vendors and restaurants. Children will have their own special tent for arts and crafts and feature a Baby Animal Park.

Costumed re-enactors from the Waterloo Farm Museum will provide a peek into the culinary past. Jennifer Kaiser, a re-enactor who will be leading an open-fire cooking course at the Farm Museum this summer, will give a cooking demonstration over an open fire with a tripod, assisted by museum volunteers April Gasparre and Arlene Kaiser.

In addition to historic cast iron cookware, cooking tools and utensils, visitors will also find a facsimile of two recipes hand-written by Sophia Realy, the last woman of the farmstead that later became the Waterloo Farm Museum. She contributed her recipes for Johnny Cake and Red Devils Food Cake to a recipe book for a Waterloo family that lost everything in a fire. Dorothy Walbrook, daughter of that family, donated the page to the Waterloo Farm Museum where it is framed and displayed in the farmhouse pantry.

"The history of this worn, yellow page is a testament to the way people cherish their food traditions, and I think a great tie-in to the themes of the Exhibition," Gasparre said.

The farm museum volunteers will offer their cookbook, "More Country Living," for sale, as well as the Waterloo Bean Soup mix.

Market Faire also is the inaugural use of the new library's amphitheatre and library grounds. Bill Harmer, the library's head of Adult Services, has teamed

34th annual Chelsea Painters Art Fair is June 2-3 at Chelsea Community Hospital

The Chelsea Painters 34th annual Art Fair will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., June 2-3 on the grounds of Chelsea Community Hospital. Twenty-five award-winning artists will display and sell original fine art and cards in a variety of media: watercolor, acrylic, oil, pastel, encaustic, monotype, and collage. The event is free and open to the public and will be held rain or shine. Folk musician Sharon Driesen McKnight will perform June 2 and jazz group Bitter Sweet Trio will play June 3. And the Chelsea Center for the Arts will offer free hands-on art activities for children.

A percentage of proceeds will be donated to the Chelsea Center for the Arts and the Chelsea Community Hospital Auxiliary Scholarship Fund.

Inspiration colors the canvas

Local artist draws from her experiences growing up on the family farm

By Sheila Pursglove

Special Writer

Local artist Sandy Knapp found artistic inspiration early in life on a farm in Brethren, near Manistee.

"The most important person in my world lived there, my grandmother," Knapp says. "She was a hopeful artist and mostly a farmwoman. She would paint in between baling hay, milking cows, feeding pigs and chickens. She painted on extra boards that she had around the farm with oil paint."

"When I was very small, she would let me paint birdhouses. She would mix up flour and water and my sister and I would get busy cutting out IC Penny catalog pages and start collaging with the homemade paste."

Today, collage is an important element in Knapp's artwork – although she says it took her years to realize this passion dated back to her early childhood years.

For the past three years, Knapp has served as president of Chelsea Painters, a group of 25 artists that meets weekly in Chelsea. On June 2 and 3 members will hold their 34th annual Art Fair on the grounds of Chelsea Community Hospital. A portion of the proceeds will support the hospital's Auxiliary Scholarship Fund, and the Chelsea Center for the Arts.

When Knapp joined Chelsea Painters 28 years ago, it was not as an established artist – in fact, she had not pursued art since grade school.

"It was quite the journey, starting out at square one," she says. "The women of Chelsea Painters took me under their wings and nurtured the artist within me. They were painting in watercolor, so that's just what I did."

As the years went on, the emerging past came into play and she began adding papers to the watercolors. They still sometimes did not satisfy her.

About 15 years ago, Knapp discovered fluid acrylic painting, collage, and a whole new world opened up to her.

"I'm the kind of person who loves to develop a painting with absolutely no idea in mind and let the painting evolve," she says. "It's called an intuitive style with no point of departure like a photograph or an image of some kind. As I paint, eventually, I zero in on a creative concept."

"I think of my paintings as going on an archeological dig to find out what's underneath, what's brewing under the surface of my psyche."

The way of painting becomes very personal, she explains. The layering process builds a history on the page to express her beliefs, thoughts, dreams and ideas.

Knapp calls her artwork "Fragments, Glimpses and Whispers."

A painting may be a glimpse of the past or whisper of something I desire in the future," she says. "My paintings talk more about emotional content or a meditative thought. They are very seldom about the color unless that color is symbolic to me. They are not about the play of light as in a landscape."

Knapp and her husband John are partners in art as well as in life. John, who retired from Chrysler Proving Grounds 10 years ago, always had a desire to work with wood, and started realizing some of his dreams, making tables, hand mirrors, round wall mirrors, and Shaker baskets.

"Woodworking has been a lifelong passion for him that got postponed for many years. So many times in our lives, we are busy making a living and leaving our passions behind in the dust," Knapp says.

She asked her husband to make frames for her art – and a new marriage began right then and there, she says.

"His frames are part of the signature look of many of my paintings. He makes a variety of frames for me such as cherry, maple, wenge, purple heart, red heart, bubinga and Brazilian cherry frames. They are the perfect complement to my work."

"We love working together on our art endeavors and other projects in our home."

The Knapps also have become a team in the art world, displaying their work in Lansing's Banyan Gallery, and in the Gary and Doris Galvin's Chelsea Gallery in Chelsea. John has created jewelry boxes and hand mirrors along with art frames for his wife's artwork.

Knapp has a strong desire to give back to others. Last year, she painted onsite during Chelsea's "Sounds & Sights on Thursday Nights" program, and she created two doors for "Opening... Doors: A Community Celebration of McKune Memorial Library," a joint community art project of the Chelsea Center for the Arts and the Chelsea District Library. Knapp, who has taught art classes and workshops at CCA, was honored by CCA at last October's Autumn Jubilee.

She also has taught a teen class on dealing with grief.

"The day before this class, the space shuttle, Columbia crashed. I did a painting in that class that took first place at Ann Arbor Women Painters," she says.

"I've found much healing through my artwork with personal encounters with grief," she says. A member of the Society of Layerists of Multi-Media and the International Society of Experimental Artists, Knapp also teaches classes for the Mid-Michigan Artist Guild and will be teaching a 3-day workshop in Lansing this summer. She does small workshops in her Sharon Township studio, and gives demonstrations to Jackson Civic Arts and at various galleries. "The hands-on approach is always a personal touch and engages the viewer," she says.

Knapp has helped fill the Wolverine state with art, with displays at the University of Michigan, Washtenaw Community College, and in Okemos, Manistee, and Lansing. Her work also was featured in "In Drought Times," a local art and book of poetry and art. Knapp can't imagine her world with-

"It has definitely become a way of life. The joy is definitely in the journey, not the destination," she says. "I love so much about the arts is that it embraces the young and old, the inexperienced and the experienced. It is all embracing and inclusive. We need artists, who carry the soul of the country and the viewer who sees with their own eyes and interpretations. It is always a team activity in the long run.

"Art has no end, the imagination continues and learning new ways of seeing takes a lifetime."

with Krystn Stevens of Slow Food Huron Valley to put on a four-week "Food & Film Fest" starting June 5, with special food pairings — such as chocolate and organic pizza — for each movie.

First up is "Big Night," about two brothers who gamble on one big night in order to save their restaurant. The other three movies are "Babette's Feast," "Like Water for Chocolate," and "Chocolat."

"It's exciting because this will be the first time we show a movie outdoors," said Shawn Personke, the library's community relations and development coordinator.

"We've got a great set up and we've been waiting for the spring and summer to arrive so we could use it."

Personke has worked on the Key Ingredients project since writing the application in the fall of 2005. The library received a grant from the Michigan Humanities Council, and also has many community partners.

"The Chelsea Community Hospital Health and Wellness Center, the Farmers Market, Chelsea Milling are just a few," Personke said. "The way Chelsea businesses and organizations contribute — both with time and money — is wonderful. It's probably one of my favorite parts of planning this type of event."

"It's very exciting, probably the most comprehensive program the library's has offered. We're very excited to have been selected to host, and to serve as opening for the entire tour of Michigan."

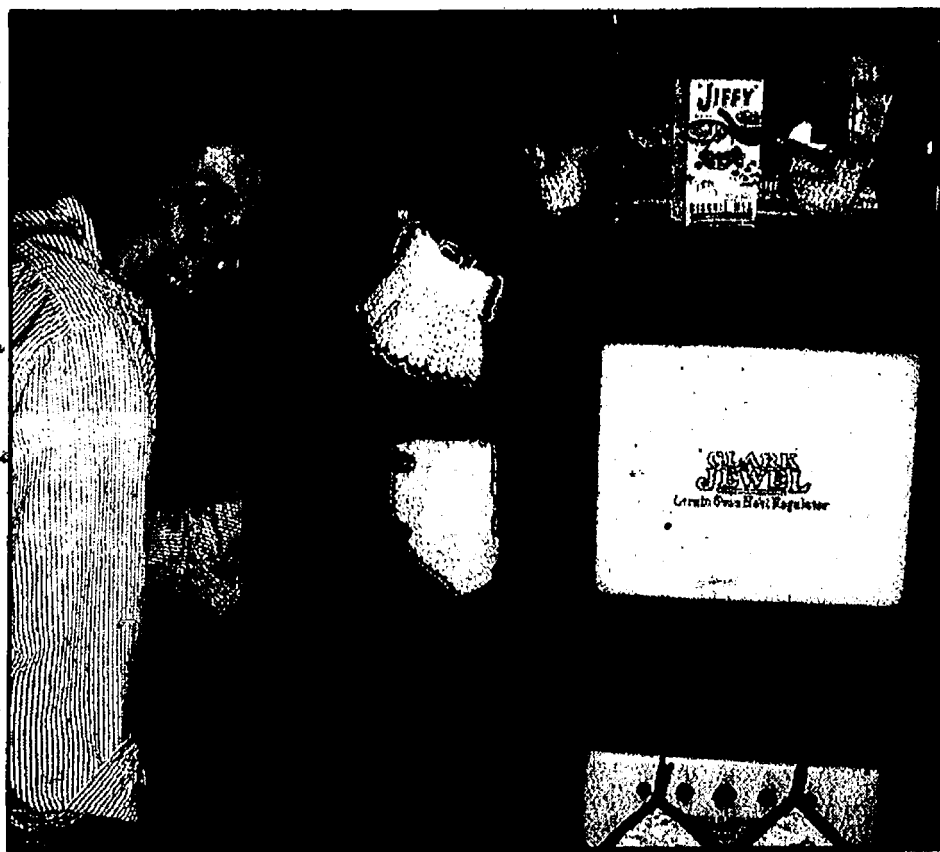

Donations are still rolling in for the local exhibit.

Personke recently received a couple of vintage Chelsea cookbooks — a 1981 Chelsea Community Hospital Auxiliary "Food: Glorious Food!" and a 1973 Modern Mothers' "Recipes you always wanted...but were afraid to ask for."

In addition to Market Faire and the exhibits, there are several other components to the program, including a Chelsea-area farm photo essay focusing on generational farms; potluck dinner; photography event; chocolate tasting, coffee cupping, Wild Wednesdays, and more.

A summer reading program, "Summer's Cookin'," offers events, programs and contests for all ages. The first 200 children to sign up for the reading program will receive a free goodie bag. The Summer Reading Program kicks off noon to 3 p.m. June 8, with Edible Fairy Tales, followed by Ring of Steel with pirate fun.

For information and a listing of events, call 475-8732, visit the library, or go online to www.chelsea.lib.mi.us.

Library volunteer and local photographer Jane Wilhelm sets up "Chelsea Foodways," the local counterpart of the Smithsonian Institution exhibit, "Key Ingredients: America by Food," in anticipation of the national and state exhibits that will open at 10 a.m. on Saturday during Market Faire. An all day festival on the library grounds, Market Faire will feature live entertainment, chef's demonstrations, a baby animal petting park, a Taste of Michigan tent, and a Children's Activity Tent.

LOVING HOMES NEEDED

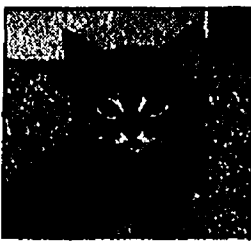

LINUS — Linus is a big, lovable dog at heart. He is 3 years old and weighs 67 pounds. He has a sweet, affectionate disposition and loves attention. He is already housetrained, neutered and micro-chipped so stop out and give this deserving boy his happily ever after.

WALLY — Wally is a very sweet boy. He knows how to sit and shake and he is very well mannered. He would love to go for walks and then snuggle with you on the couch. So please come and take a look at him.

BEANY — Here's Beany, a seven week old kitten that has spent the last three weeks in foster care with his brother and two foster brothers. Beany has already become a real "lap cat" and enjoys being snuggled. He would do well being adopted with his litter mate Cecil. Chelsea wins league championship

By Don Richter

Chelsea baseball split a doubleheader with visiting Tecumseh last Saturday winning 12-8 and losing 10-9.

The Bulldogs (22-7-1, 11-3 Southeastern Conference) captured their eighth consecutive SEC White Division championship with last Saturday's Game 1 victory.

"It's quite an accomplishment," said Chelsea coach Wayne Welton. "This (SEC) is an outstanding league. We're very proud of the guys."

"This team has great chemistry. It's a very unselfish team. We have a good senior class. It's a special group of guys."

Dexter finished second in the league with an 8-6 record. Tecumseh was third with a 7-7 mark, while Ypsilanti Lincoln was fourth with a 3-11 record.

In the SEC Red Division, Temperance Bedford finished first with a 9-5 mark. It's the Mules' SEC first title ever in baseball. Ann Arbor Pioneer and Saline tied for second with 8-6 records, while Adrian was fourth with a 4-10 mark.

Against the Indians, Dan Rhodes (6-1) chalked up the win for Chelsea.

The turning point for the Bulldogs occurred in the sixth inning when they scored six runs to take an 11-8 lead. Chad Nielsen had the key hit with a three-run RBI double. Jeff Adams and Dan Augustine each also had a RBI single, while Ben Bradburn and Adam Connell each had a single in the inning for Chelsea. Augustine finished with three hits to lead the Bulldogs. Travis Amburgey added a two-run RBI single and Nielsen had four RBIs.

In the second game, Chelsea emptied its bench. "We were able to play 21 guys in the doubleheader," Welton said.

Sparking the Bulldog attack was Taylor Hopkins with a double, Scott Rhodes with a RBI single, Donny Riedel with a RBI single,

Bulldogs capture regional crown

By Don Richter

Chelsea's boys' tennis team captured its fifth consecutive Division III regional championship last Thursday.

The host Bulldogs won all eight flights scoring 32 points for the title.

"The guys played so well," said Chelsea coach Rahn Rosentreter. "Only once did we have to play a third set."

Trenton placed second with 22 points, while Dearborn Divine Child was third with 17 points.

Ten teams participated in the regional.

In singles play, Chelsea junior Josh Stiles captured a regional title defeating Jon Groszek of Dearborn Divine Child 6-0, 6-0. Stiles dominated the field losing only two games the entire tournament.

At No. 2 singles, Bulldog senior Reece Hammer defeated Carleton-Airport's Danny Varga 6-1, 6-2 to win the regional crown.

At No. 3 singles, Chelsea senior Chris Tapping beat Trenton's Evan Smith 6-0, 6-4 for the regional title.

Bulldog senior Kin Tsang defeated Trenton's Kody Polin 6-3, 6-4 at No. 4 singles for the regional championship.

In doubles, the Chelsea No. 1 duo of seniors Steve Tapping and Eric Dudek defeated Trenton's Erik Scharboneau and Groeme Sprague in three sets 4-6, 6-0, 6-0 for the regional title.

At No. 2 doubles, the Bulldog combo of senior George Merkel and junior Chris LaDuke beat Trenton's Jeff Smith and Kirk Heuer 6-2, 6-1 for the championship.

At No. 3 doubles, the Chelsea twosome of seniors Sean Dzobel and Dolan Personke defended their title defeating Trenton's Evan Plassman and Neil Dwornick 6-1, 6-1 for the regional crown. The pair has a 15-3 record this season.

Bulldog senior Nate Ripberger and junior Wesley Fritzemeier defeated Trenton's Nick Scharboneau and Dylan Vandenberg 6-3, 6-3 for the regional title. Ripberger and Fritzemeier have a 15-3 record this year.

Also last week, Chelsea defeated county rival Dexter 8-0 and Jackson County Parma Western 8-0.

"It has been a great season with losses only to (Ann Arbor) Pioneer and (Ann Arbor) Greenhills," Rosentreter said. "Both are ranked No. 1 (in the state) in their division."

The Bulldogs next travel to Jenison to compete in the Division III state match June 1 through 2.

Chelsea competes in St. Joe tourney

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea softball traveled west to participate in the ultra-competitive St. Joseph Invitational last Saturday.

The Bulldogs finished the tournament 1-2 overall.

To open the invite, Chelsea defeated Coloma 3-2.

Earning the win from the circle was junior pitcher Karah Schanz who scattered five hits, striking out 10 and walking none.

At the plate, senior Hannah Guenther had a single and one RBI, while junior Nellie Daniels had a double for the Bulldogs.

In Game 2, Chelsea lost to traditional state power Stevensville-Lakeshore 6-0.

Schanz absorbed the loss from the rubber.

Senior Katie Lynn ended up with two singles, while freshman Shelby Platt had a double for the Bulldogs.

In its third game, Chelsea lost to the host Bears 3-2 in nine innings.

Senior pitcher Chelsea Strickland suffered the loss for the Bulldogs.

Guenther finished 2-for-3 with two doubles for Chelsea.

Junior Annie Hollandsworth was 1-for-3 with a double, while junior Brogan Darwin had a double and Platt was 1-for-3 with a triple for the Bulldogs.

Despite dropping two games, Chelsea assistant coach Jennie Diesing remained positive.

"We had a much better weekend against a tough St. Joe tournament," she said. "The girls had a lot of energy which helped carry them through the day. We had a tough loss to St. Joe in the bottom of the ninth inning to end the day.

"We came together as a team much better at this tournament which gave us confidence going into the last leg of our season and with districts rapidly approaching."

On May 15, Chelsea lost to Tecumseh 10-2 in the first game of a scheduled double-header. The second game was cancelled because of inclement weather.

"We faced a very strong Tecumseh offense," Diesing said. "They took control at the plate from the start of the game and never let up. We fought hard against Tecumseh, but we were unsuccessful from the plate in making key hits and scoring runs."

Schanz recorded the loss from the circle, allowing 14 hits, striking out three and walking two.

Guenther continued her hitting tear finishing 2-for-3 with a double and one RBI, while Strickland was 1-for-3 with a home run.

Chelsea next hosts its own tournament Friday at 4 p.m. Besides the Bulldogs, other teams participating in the tourney include Eaton Rapids, Walled Lake Western and Ypsilanti.

On June 2, the Bulldogs begin Division II state district play taking on Jackson Lumen Christi at Jackson Northwest.

Hardcastle places first at regional match

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea's girls' golf team placed fifth at last week's Division II state regional match at the Marshall Country Club Golf Course.

The Bulldogs ended up with a score of 377. Thirteen squads competed in the regional.

Winning the regional championship was Dexter with a score of 350. Placing second was East Lansing with a 350. The Dreadnaughts captured the title beating the Trojans in a one-hole playoff.

Okemos finished third with a 353. The top three teams qualified for the Division II state final June 1 through 2 at Michigan State University's Forest Akers East Golf Course.

"Fifth place is definitely a disappointment for our team," said Chelsea coach Andrea Bareis. "We had very high hopes of making the top three and advancing to the state finals as a team. However, we are in the toughest regional in Division II hands down."

"To think we could have shot a team score of 354 and not made it to the state finals, that tells you just how tough our regional was. Yet, had we scored better, we would have put ourselves in a better position to grab one of those three spots, but we didn't."

Individually for Chelsea, senior Emily Hardcastle finished first overall in the regional shooting a three over par 77.

Runner-up was Dexter's Katelin Davis with a 78.

"I can't begin to tell you incredibly fabulous it is that Emily was match medalist at Chelsea sophomore Stephanie Everard carded a 107 at last week's Division II state regional match in Marshall. As a team, the Bulldogs placed fifth overall with a score of 377.

this regional," Bareis said. "With more than three of the best teams in the state for Division II present at this regional, Emily taking match medalist is a strong testament to her ability, commitment and competitiveness."

"I've said all along that Emily is one of the best golfers in the state, and there is definitely no question now. Three over par is extremely tough to shoot anywhere and to shoot it at the regional level is amazing. I'm so proud that she will be representing Chelsea at the state finals in East Lansing."

Sophomore Krystin Schwarze ended up with an 89 for the Bulldogs.

"Krystin shot a terrific round," Bareis said. "Unfortunately, she was one stroke shy of participating in a playoff to determine the third individual qualifier for the state finals."

The top three individuals not on state qualifying teams advance to the state finals.

"It was tough for all of us to see that Krystin was only one shot out (of finals)," Bareis said. "So many things go through your head. I know she was thinking of many shots that she could have saved.

"However, I know this is going to motivate her tremendously and I have no doubt that she will be at the state finals next season. No doubt whatsoever."

Rounding out Chelsea's scoring were senior Emma Chervinsky with a 104, sophomore Stephanie Everard with a 107 and sophomore Hannah Harwood with a 113.

On May 14, the visiting Bulldogs defeated Ann Arbor Huron 183-216 in a dual match at Huron Hills Golf Course.

Schwarze led Chelsea shooting a 39. Hardcastle finished with a 40, while senior Chrissy Burman and Chervinsky each had a 52, Harwood a 54 and sophomore Sarah Shroobree a 55.

"Krystin is the first sophomore for the girls' golf team to ever break into the 30s in a nine-hole match," Bareis said. "Her round included one birdie and four pars."

"She is positioning herself to be the one to watch this coming fall with the switch in seasons taking place."

Bareis said it was nice seeing seniors Burman and Chervinsky perform well with each carding a 52.

"They are nearing the end of their senior seasons and it's nice that they are providing scoring for the team," she said.

Sports Editor Don Richter can be reached at 475-1371 or at drichter@heritage.com.

Track and field

Chelsea fourth at meet

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea's boys' track and field team finished fourth overall in the Division II regional meet at Linden last Saturday.

The Bulldogs recorded 73 points. Fourteen squads competed in the regional.

Winning the regional crown was Dexter with 110 points.

Placing second was Flint Southwestern with 92 points, while Fenton was third with 77 points.

"We competed well in many events," said Chelsea coach Eric Swager. "I told the team that to score more than 50 points in this tough regional would be solid. Our 73 points is quite an accomplishment."

"Milan and Flint Southwestern are among the best sprint teams in the state, while Dexter and Fenton are probably the top two distance teams in the state. This makes it tough to score a lot of points."

In spite of the high-level talent at the meet, Chelsea athletes still managed to stand out.

Evan Carpenter finished first in the 110-meter hurdles with a time of 14.59. He also was first in the 300-meter hurdles in 40.19.

"He (Carpenter) is ranked in the top six in each event going into the state finals," Swager said.

Justin McGrath was fifth in the 110-meter hurdles in 15.61. He was sixth in the 300-meter hurdles in 41.83 for the Bulldogs.

Brendan Smith was a regional champion in the 800-meter run besting the field with a time of 1:59.9. He also qualified for the Division II state meet in the 1,600-meter run placing fourth in 4:25.8.

Danny Ngo crossed the line fourth in the 200 meters with a clocking of 23.27.

Jason Ratliff finished fourth in the 100 meters in 11.26. Nick Hill was sixth in 11.48 for Chelsea.

A freshman, Hill drew praise from Swager for his performance.

"Just to make the finals against this competition is amazing," he said. "I am proud of his efforts."

Tyler Ball placed sixth in the shot put with a throw of 44-feet, seven inches.

Antwan McClendon finished seventh in the long jump with a leap of 20-1/2.

The Bulldog foursome of Ratliff, Smith, McClendon and Carpenter finished second in the 1,600-meter relay with a time of 3:30.

Saline ties Chelsea on late, fluke goal

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea's girls' soccer team tied visiting Saline 1-1 last Saturday.

The Bulldogs (12-2-1, 5-2-1 Southeastern Conference), ranked No. 6 in the state in Division II, gave up a fluke goal late in the game for the day's final margin.

"This was a tie that felt like a loss," said Chelsea coach Chris Orlandi. "We felt like we dominated the game and had the better scoring chances. We just couldn't close the deal."

The scoreless first half was a tightly played defensive match. Chelsea's however, out-shot the Hornets 6-3 in the opening 40 minutes.

"Our defense did a phenomenal job to not just keep Saline scoreless for so long, but to really not allow quality chances," Orlandi said.

Though not scoring, the Bulldogs did threaten in the first half.

Freshman Cara Johnson blasted a direct kick off the goal post, which junior Ellen Stewart rebounded and kicked toward the goal, but right into the waiting hands of the Saline keeper.

In the second half, both teams continued to battle.

With 15:32 left in the game, senior Mackenzie Lake fired a missile into the top right corner of the goal giving Chelsea a 1-0 lead. Assisting on the play was Stewart.

With the lead, the Bulldogs started to reign in their play.

"I think we panicked a little at that point," Orlandi said.

"We got a bit too conservative and started booting the ball up the field as opposed to playing for quality possession and closing out the game."

"I, as coach, need to do a better job of preparing my team for this situation. This was a game we should have won, but we gave up a late one (goal). And it wasn't without controversy."

With one minute remaining and the Bulldogs still clinging to a 1-0 lead, Saline hit a long ball that lofted toward the Chelsea net. Bulldog senior keeper and Eastern Michigan University recruit Maggie Manville made a leap for the ball but it sailed over her head. The ball landed inside the box where a scramble for possession took place.

With arms, legs and bodies crashing together in pursuit of the elusive kick, the Hornets somehow kicked the ball into the Chelsea's goal hitting the back support railing.

"The ball shot out of the goal so it appeared to many players that the ball never went in the goal," Orlandi said.

After a discussion, the referees signaled a goal had been scored tying the game at 1-1.

"To be truthful, I never saw it go in," Orlandi said. "But more than a few players and two officials said it did, so I'm going to have to take their word for it."

While Saline celebrated the tie, the Bulldogs left the field deflated.

"It was a depressing finish to an otherwise excellent game played by the Chelsea side," Orlandi said. "I just left the field feeling like we deserved better."

The Bulldogs out-shot the Hornets 9-5 for the contest.

Last Thursday, the visiting Bulldogs defeated Tecumseh 5-0.

"It was a great relief to get on the board so early, but we lost our intensity for some reason after that," Orlandi said. "A one-goal lead is always a tense situation, so it was a relief when we took over the game in the second half."

"The defense was excellent throughout."

In the first half, senior Leah Morrison scored off a pass from senior Sarah Reinhardt three minutes into the game for a 1-0 Bulldog advantage.

In the second half, senior Amanda McKenzie scored at the 44-minute mark for a 2-0 lead. Lake assisted on the play for Chelsea.

Bulldog junior Ellen Stewart had one assist in Chelsea's 1-1 tie against Saline last Saturday.

Manville scored on a penalty kick upping the Bulldog lead to 3-0.

At the 67-minute mark, Morrison scored her second goal of the game for the day's final margin. Sophomore Brooke Ehman picked up an assist on the play for the Bulldogs.

The Bulldogs out-shot the Indians 15-3 for the contest.

Chelsea closes out the regular season traveling to county rival and No. 3-ranked Dexter (12-2-2, 5-1-1 SEC) for a game Thursday at 7 p.m. Because of the rivalry and an expected larger crowd, the contest has been moved from the Dreadnaught soccer complex to the football stadium at Al Ritt Field. "We'll have to beat Dexter to force a tie for the league crown," Orlandi said. "The girls are hungry, so I'm sure they'll come to play."

The Bulldogs begin their quest for a soccer state title traveling to Tecumseh to face the Indians in a Division II first round state district match-up Tuesday at 5 p.m.

If successful against Tecumseh, Chelsea would square off against Jackson Northwest 5 p.m. May 31 at Dexter. The Dreadnaughts are hosting the district.

The district championship is 2 p.m. June 2 at Dexter.

Other teams competing in the district include Jackson County, Parma, Western, Adrian, Ypsilanti and Dexter.

JV Soccer

Chelsea's JV girls' soccer team defeated host Tecumseh 8-0 last Thursday in a game shortened because of the mercy rule.

Leading the Bulldogs was Kelli Fountain with three goals for a hat trick.

Also scoring for Chelsea were Megan Dunn, Lauren Johnson, Alexa Petosky, Alex LeBeau and Cayla Redmond.

Picking up assists for the Bulldogs were Kendra Beeman, Ashley Bell, Rachel Bell, Grace Biller, Luisa Cantu, Johnson and Redmond.

"We played our most complete game of the season," said Chelsea coach Matt Pedlow. "We controlled the ball on both offense and defense and didn't allow Tecumseh one shot on goal." Chelsea concludes its season traveling to rival Dexter for a game Thursday at 4:30 p.m.

Freshman Soccer Chelsea's freshman girls' soccer team tied host East Lansing 0-0 last Thursday.

"This is the best game we have played thus far," said Bulldog coach Kirsten Smart. "We lost to East Lansing earlier in the season 2-0. All of the girls played strong. We put pressure on every player."

Chelsea junior keeper Jenna Jarvis has combined with senior net minder Maggie Manville to lead the Bulldogs to a No. 6-state ranking in Division II this year.

It was an awesome game to watch. The girls were really working together and made some beautiful passes. We had more shots on goal than East Lansing. Our defense couldn't be beat."

Smart praised the play of midfielder Nikki Laeder and forward Taylor Murphy.

"Nikki played her heart out and really controlled the middle of the field," she said. "Taylor Murphy really stepped up and beat the defense to every ball."

Smart, however, was pleased with her entire team's effort.

"I am so proud of the team for how they played," she said.

Last Friday, host Chelsea defeated Jackson 3-0.

"We outplayed Jackson by 100 percent," Smart said.

"The girls played so well together. I am so proud of the way they worked the ball around the field. We took control of the game right off the bat by keeping possession and making great passes. The ball was in Jackson's half for most of the game."

Leading the Bulldogs was Julianna Ameel with two goals. Also scoring for Chelsea was Abby Crowder.

Playing a strong, all around game for the Bulldogs was Hannah Boshoven.

"She (Boshoven) kept the pressure on the Jackson defense and had beautiful crosses," Smart said.

Anchoring the Chelsea defense was Chelsea Vincent, Sarah Bingel, Diana Bach and Hailey Preston.

"The last few days have been very exciting for Chelsea freshman soccer,"

Smart said. "It's obvious to me that we have come a long way since the beginning of the season."

Last Monday, the visiting Bulldogs tied Ann Arbor Huron 0-0.

"We definitely could have won, but the girls were playing on their heels," Smart said.

The game was previously suspended because of darkness with the score deadlocked at 5-5.

Todd Elliott (4-2) earned the win from the rubber for the Bulldogs.

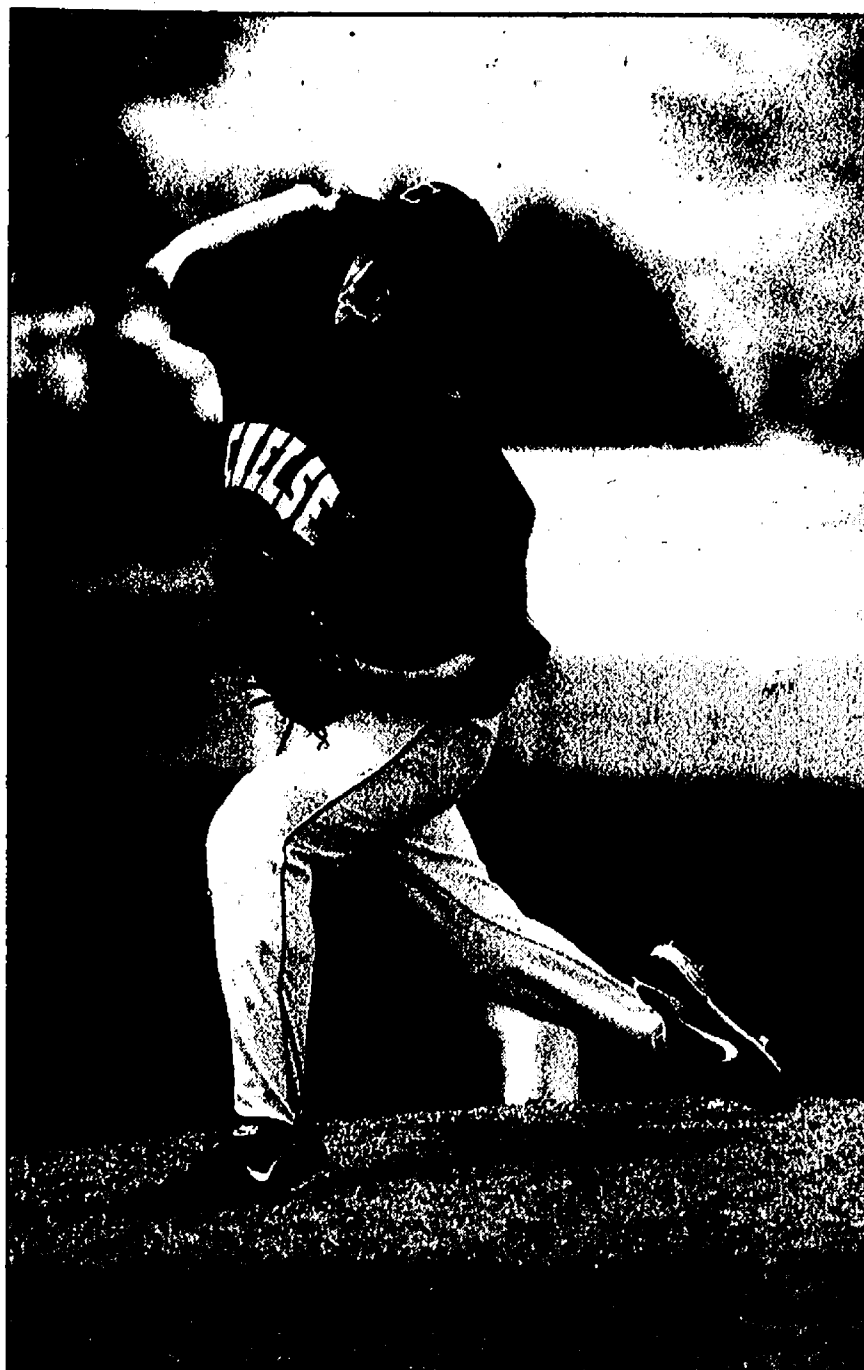

Zach Leszczynski singled to begin the bottom of the eighth inning. Back-to-back error brought him home for the winning run.

Dan Rhodes led Chelsea with two home runs and three RBIs.

"It took 15 minutes and we were done," said Welton of the one-inning make-up game.

On May 15, the host Bulldogs defeated Tecumseh 5-0 in the first game of a scheduled doubleheader. The second contest was rained out.

Track and field

DeTroyer, McKenzie pace Chelsea

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea's girls' track and field team finished fourth at last Saturday's Division II state regional meet in Linden.

The Bulldogs ended up with 65.6 points.

Winning the regional crown was Ypsilanti with 113 points. Placing second was Tecumseh with 106 points, while Dexter was third with 71.6 points and Flint Southwestern fifth with 55 points.

Fourteen squads competed in the meet.

"We ran very well today," said Chelsea coach Pat Clarke. "The coaching staff is very proud of this group of young women and their accomplishments and progress this season."

Leading Chelsea was freshman sensation Olivia DeTroyer who finished first in the 400-meter run with a Linden track record time of 57.67. Her clocking was three seconds faster than her previous best time and a new Bulldog freshman record shattering the old mark by two seconds.

"It (400 time) was the second fastest time ever by a Chelsea girl," Clarke said.

In the 200 meters, DeTroyer placed third in 28.1.

Also capturing a regional championship was senior Amanda McKenzie who finished first in the 1,600-meter run in a personal best 5:17.2.

"Amanda's time was the third fastest in school history," Clarke said.

McKenzie also placed seventh in the 800-meter run in 2:31.2.

In the 3,200-meter run, Nicole Bougher finished sixth in 12:08.2 for Chelsea.

Though not placing, freshman Katrina Williams clocked personal best times in the 100-meter hurdles in 17.6 and the 300-meter hurdles in 52.7.

In the shot put, Jillian Fischer placed second with a heave of 33-feet, 10 7/8 inches. Kelly Anderson was third with a throw of 33-7 7/8.

Anderson was second in the discus with a toss of 104-0 for the Bulldogs. Fischer was seventh in 96-10.

In the high jump, Katie Martin was sixth with a height of 4-7.

The Chelsea 800-meter relay quartet of Christina Coffman, Kimmi Zimmerman, Victoria Kingsinger and DeTroyer finished fourth in 1:51.2.

The Bulldog group of Julie Beaumont, Cassie Coffman, Katy Martin and Bougher crossed the line sixth in a personal best 10:19.3.

Cassie Coffman, DeTroyer, Zimmerman and Kingsinger placed seventh in the 1,600-meter relay in 4:21.5.

Qualifying for the Division II state meet in Zeeland June 2 are DeTroyer in the 400-meter run, McKenzie in the 1,600-meter run, Anderson in the discus and Fischer in the shot put.

"We showed some great improvement in this meet," Clarke said. "The fourth-place finish in the regional was quite an accomplishment for this team as banged up as we are with injuries. We were without our top sprinter, sophomore Erin Benjamin, who is out for the season with a knee injury."

The 400-meter relay group of Ngo, Hill, McClendon and Ratliff placed fourth in 44.0.

Both relays qualified for the Division II state meet.

"That's a fine accomplishment for those young men,"

Swager said.

The Division II state meet is June 2 in Zeeland.

"It will be nice to take another large contingent to the state finals," Swager said. "We hope to get a couple of medals and perform to our best."

When it comes to a career in golf,
Chelsea's Mike Mignano has already scored a ...

Hole in 1

By Terry Jacoby
Chelsea Standard

Mike Mignano has always been interested in sports, but not for the same reason most young kids get involved in playing games.

"I played all kinds of sports growing up and loved being outside with friends," said Mignano, who was born in Ann Arbor and raised in the Chelsea area. "If it was light outside I was most likely playing some type of sport or building something outside. I'm not a particularly competitive person, but I think I liked the camaraderie of sports in general and being able to meet many new people."

Mignano still enjoys being outside, playing sports and meeting people. Now 22 years old, Mignano has found the perfect job that combines all of the above. He is standing on the first tee of his adult life with a long and winding fairway awaiting his first shot. And what a view he has from where he now stands.

After graduating first in his class from the Professional Golf Management program at Ferris State University, Mignano earned his Class A PGA Member card in January. Then, he headed west—as far west as one could go without losing your ball in Pacific Ocean.

Landing on the green at Torrey Pines Golf Course in San Diego is as good as it gets in professional golf. To do it right out of a small college in Michigan, is even more amazing. For those who don't know Torrey Pines, think Oakland Hills. Or Pebble Beach. Or Augusta National.

For those who don't know Mike Mignano, think very talented. Highly motivated. Exceptionally nice.

"My title is assistant professional at Torrey Pines and I work five days a week in the golf shop, which is over 4,000 square feet and extremely busy with the US Open approaching next year," Mignano said. "I also am an instructor to golfers of all levels and I'm very involved with the junior program. It's a great place to go to every day and my 'office' is overlooking the Pacific Ocean."

At the age of 22, Mike Mignano has already worked at Oakland Hills and Torrey Pines.

Mignano realizes he has landed in a special place, especially so early in his career. "Torrey Pines to me was the mecca of golf watching on TV, and seeing the hang gliders and beaches and beautiful golf course," he said. "I can truly say that I am living a dream."

While golf is an individual sport, it was a team of people that helped Mignano realize that dream.

"I come from a pretty big family and went through the Chelsea schools and was very involved with school activities both in high school and college," he said. "I started to get interested in golf when I was 12-years old and was instantly hooked. I had a natural athletic swing from playing other sports, and I saw the sport as more challenging and addictive than the others."

The first golf event Mignano watched on TV was the 1997 Masters where Tiger Woods shot an amazing 21-under par to win easily. Like most young kids watching golf that weekend in April, Tiger became a role model. He instantly became that target to shoot for—even though it was a tough target.

Figuring he was too small at 5-feet, 5-inches to play football in the fall, Mignano turned his attention to golf in high school.

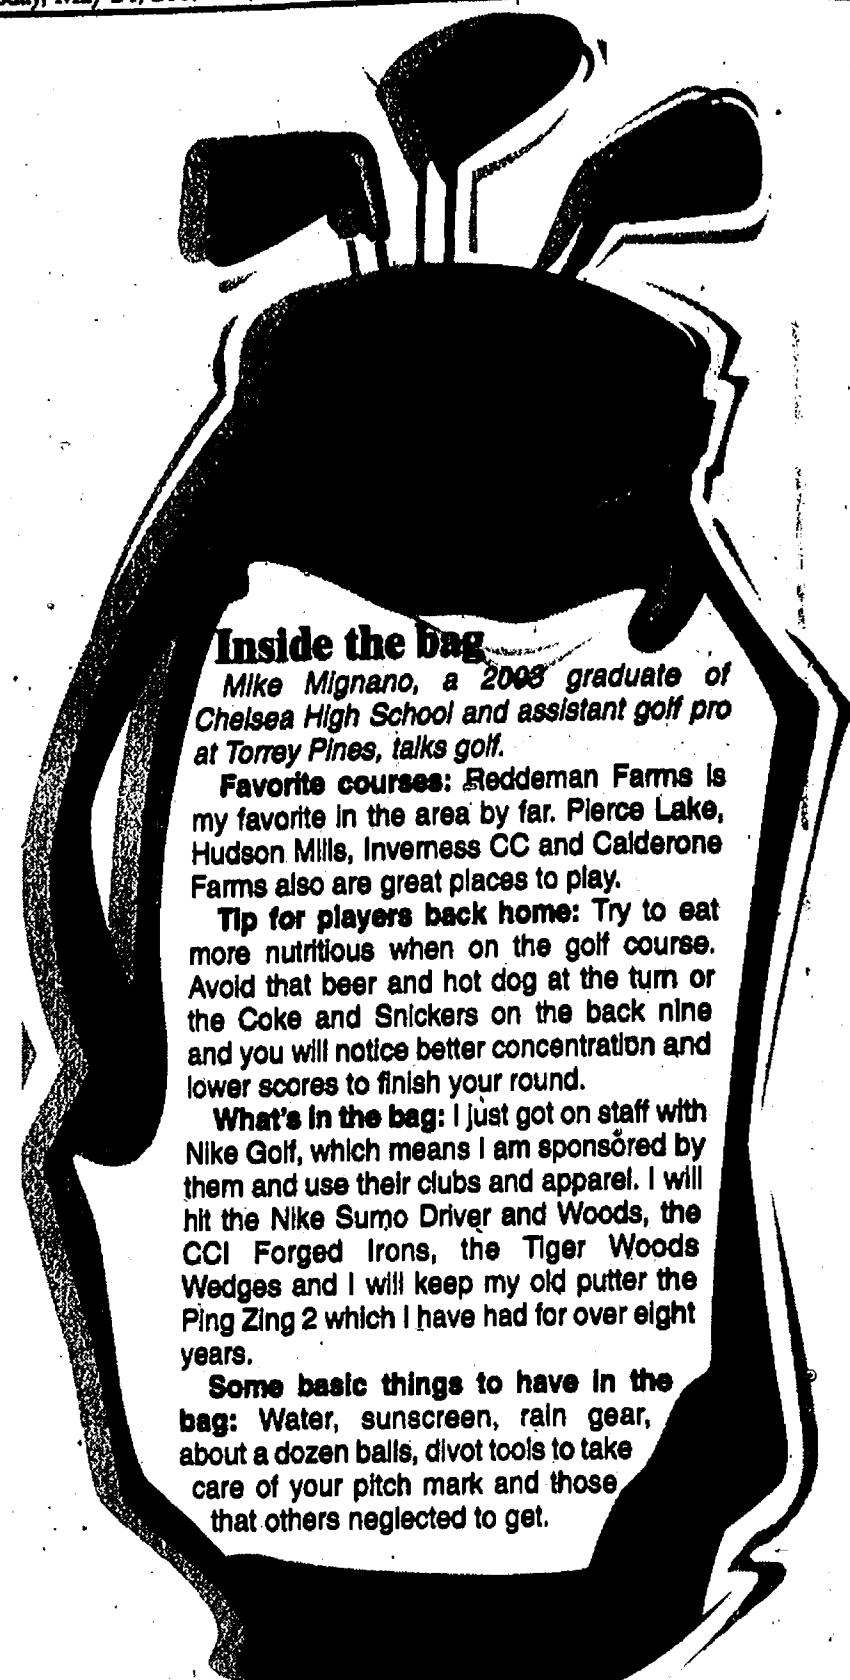

"None of my close friends played golf, but four or five of my very best friends today were met on the golf course," Mignano said. "I was very fortunate to get a job at Reddeman Farms Golf Club in Chelsea working in the kitchen part time. This was a great opportunity to play free golf and learn the industry."

While at Reddeman Farms, Mignano met Patty McCarthy and Frank Garzia.

"They gave me that chance," he said. "I would definitely not be here today without their help."

Inside the bag

Mike Mignano, a 2006 graduate of Chelsea High School and assistant golf pro at Torrey Pines, talks golf.

Favorite courses: Reddeman Farms is my favorite in the area by far. Pierce Lake, Hudson Mills, Inverness CC and Calderone Farms also are great places to play.

Tip for players back home: Try to eat more nutritious when on the golf course. Avoid that beer and hot dog at the turn or the Coke and Snickers on the back nine and you will notice better concentration and lower scores to finish your round.

What's in the bag: I just got on staff with Nike Golf, which means I am sponsored by them and use their clubs and apparel. I will hit the Nike Sumo Driver and Woods, the CCI Forged Irons, the Tiger Woods Wedges and I will keep my old putter the Ping Zing 2 which I have had for over eight years.

Some basic things to have in the bag: Water, sunscreen, rain gear, about a dozen balls, divot tools to take care of your pitch mark and those that others neglected to get.

Martial-arts master alters plan to teach new style

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

For more than 20 years, Mike Poxson has taken hundreds of people on a journey to discover the power within themselves.

Poxson has been the owner of Chelsea Tae Kwon Do for several years, and with a shift to a new style, called aikido ninjutsu, came a new name: Chelsea Martial Arts.

"I've got about 42 students currently, and they love this new art," said Poxson, who holds the title of "master" as a sixth-degree black belt in tae kwon do and second-degree black belt in aikido ninjutsu.

The two styles are similar but there are intriguing differences, Poxson said.

"All the martial-arts philosophies are pretty much the same: it's about harmonizing with yourself, and not being afraid of your surroundings," he said.

"Tae kwon do is primarily a kicking art, 80 percent feet and 20 percent hands; aikido ninjutsu is a close-in combination of aikido and ninjutsu where you learn how to use the other person's energy to defeat your aggressor.

"The cool thing is, when you use this properly you're not using any energy or muscle," he added. "If you're using muscle it's wrong."

One of most basic mistakes a person can make in taking a martial arts class, Poxson said, is to try to hurt other people. "There's a lot of people who think they are going to take one class and become Bruce Lee," he said. "A lot of people think they're going to learn how to beat people up, and that's not what the martial arts is all about."

Rick Hartman, a student

See video of the students in action at www.chelseastandard.com who just received his black belt, said Poxson teaches people to have enough confidence in themselves that they can avoid dangerous situations and overcome almost any obstacle.

"You learn that your biggest roadblock is you," said Hartman, whose wife Janine and two sons also train with Poxson at the Washington Street Education Center.

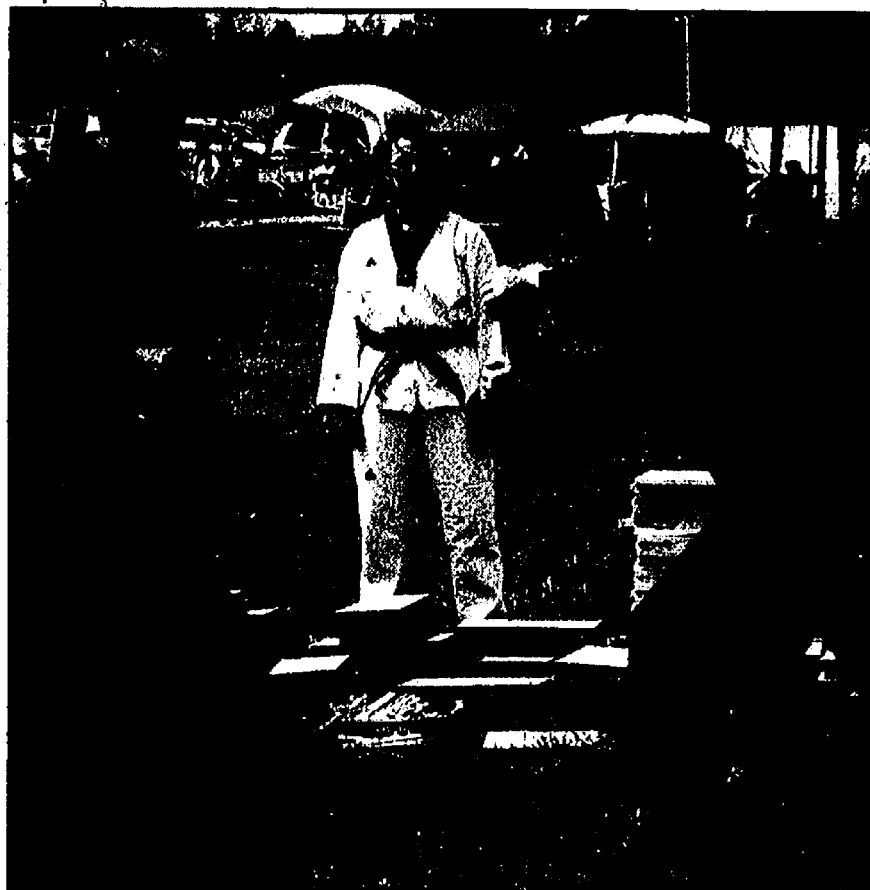

"You're not training for Master Poxson or the other students; your accomplishments are your own."

It is clear that Poxson loves what he is doing, Hartman added. "It's not a commercial venture for him," he said. "He teaches traditional values of martial arts and the meaning of it, it's nothing like what you see on TV."

It does seem to be more than a fun activity for Poxson, who works full-time at the Chrysler Proving Grounds and is a reserve officer with the Chelsea Police Department.

Lisa Preston said her son began training with Poxson several years ago when he was 8, and it transformed his personality. "I've seen how it has changed him; you can see Poxson doing that with every student, whether they're a child or an adult," Preston said, adding that young boys learn valuable lessons from Poxson.

Poxson said it is important to be open-minded and not to come in with any preconceived notions when beginning martial-arts training.

"It really is getting rid of the 'I can't' attitude; we try to teach them they can," he said. "The only reason you say you can't is you don't want to try; with a little bit of effort you find you can. Have confidence in yourself. It doesn't matter how tough something looks - if you decide you want it, you can get it."

WORKING LUNCH: DOUG MARRIN, OWNER OF THE FOGGY BOTTOM

By Sean Dalton
Staff Writer

Welcome to "Working Lunch." Have a sit and stay awhile for some (very) lighthearted Q&A with interesting folks in our community. Our first subject (victim) is Doug Marrin, owner of Foggy Bottom Coffee House in Dexter.

I have to ask this question right off the bat: Where did you get the name "Foggy Bottom"? People have a lot of fun trying to guess where I got the name from. If you had to guess, would you guess that it comes from coffee?

Well, I notice your coffee steams quite a bit, so once I found out you were a coffee house I would guess that.

That's really good. I haven't heard the steam aspect yet. We get a lot of people who guess that it's the fog down in a valley in a mountain range.

Of all things, I was reading a crime novel by James Patterson. They spoke about going out to Foggy Bottom, it's a Metro stop in the Washington DC subway (in the book). And out of the blue it struck me it would be a great name.

Sorry for spoiling the mystery. So are your coffees really from the locales in the names? I think my first cup of coffee here had Ethiopia in the name.

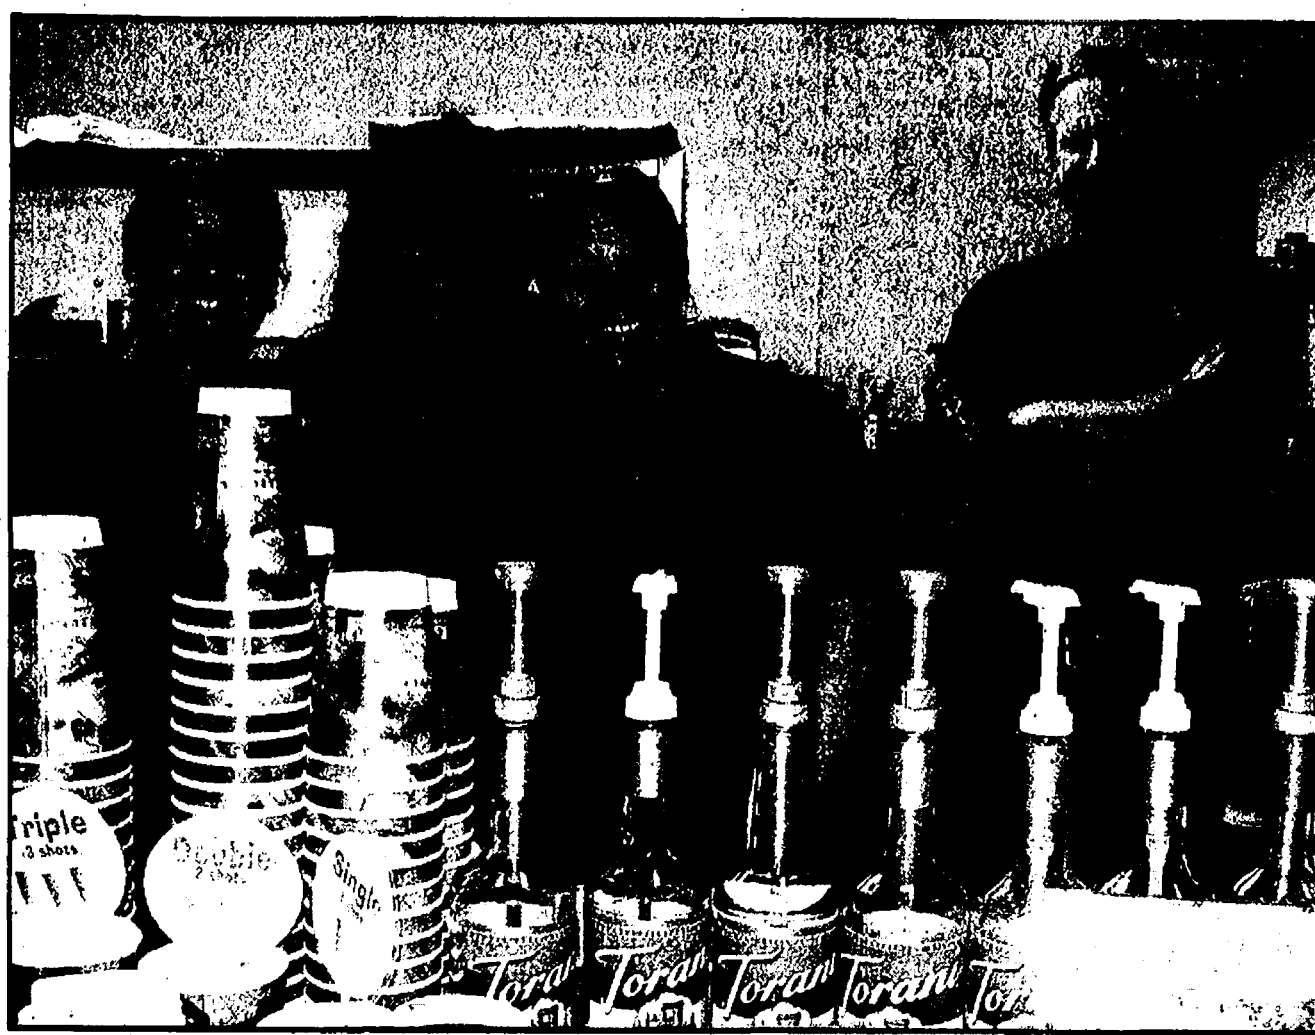

When you see a name on there — Ethiopian, Costa Rican, Tanzanian — that's actually the country it's from. All of our Tanzanian coffee comes from Tanzania, the Ethiopian comes from Ethiopia.

Then the idea is to take the countries and blend them, in kind of a United Nations, world-peace kind of idea, where we blend them all into one harmonious cup, so maybe the rest of the political world can kind of take a clue from the simplicity of blending that coffee together.

It sounds like some world leaders could take some notes from you.

That could be our next cause. World peace coffee blended from Ethiopian, Costa Rican, Columbian, Brazil and different Middle Eastern lands. This could be the start of it right here.

It wasn't my intention to start a movement here. I must say that it's good to hear that a product name actually means something. We buy lots of products that say things on them that are exaggerated or just untrue.

The Foggy Bottom staff enjoys the creative license and freedom that they are given.

For example, I have a friend who works for an out-of-state bottling company and, let's just say that the spring water you're drinking didn't come from a spring in the French Alps. It's more than likely closer to coming out of the Detroit River.

That's great. I wish you had mentioned that before I started drinking it.

You looked thirsty, so I didn't want to ruin it for you. How about to make amends, you plug some of your fine coffee-related products at no charge in response to this portion of the interview?

We just began a new line of all-natural smoothies. We're trying to be healthy and fresh. We're trying to cut down on the non-natural foods that we ingest, and people are responding very well to our "naked smoothies."

We have a lot of fun with our sandwiches, too. The cool thing is our sandwich line is really invented by the crew. They get to construct their own sandwiches after work.

Sometimes they'll give me suggestions and the next time we redo the menu, we'll put the crew person's sandwich on there if it seems like a good fit, and more times than not, it is.

That's good to hear. In a lot of workplaces you don't have any input or feedback. You're kind of stuck doing a lot of rote tasks. You seem to share the creative license with employees — give them ownership.

It's cool in a way, because I don't have to figure everything out. I've got a lot of really intelligent, sharp people behind the counter, who are just waiting for the chance to offer a constructive suggestion that somebody will listen to.

I've been told by my own kids, as I get a little older and a little more preoccupied, that it's always good to have people around you who are quick and can pick things up and put things mentally together, and that's what I have here in the shop.

I understand you came up in the fast-food industry. I think it's safe to say that you came away from that with a lot of lessons.

Fast food is everything that it's cracked up to be in the public's eye. It is absolutely brutal. I describe it as just a lot of good people in a very difficult industry.

The fast food company that I was working with — and this is typical, from what I understand — just micromanages every move you make.

You can't just pick the fries up in the basket, dump them and salt them. We have to pick them up, let them sit for three seconds, shake them for another five seconds, then you have to dump them in a certain motion into the bin, move them to a certain part of the bin and when you salt them, there's a certain way to salt them.

In the fast-food business they have operations manuals that are as thick and detailed as the Bible, only the manuals cover flipping burgers, not human existence on Earth and beyond.

Talk about "(over)cooking the books." I don't think I've ever put that much thought into the application of salt.

You wouldn't think that we have to spend all this time on salting in the fast-food industry, but apparently to the people who run it, this is a very important thing. If you don't do it their way, then you're doing it wrong.

It's very difficult to work in the fast-food industry. A lot of times when you go into a fast-food restaurant and you ask for an unusual request and you get this blank stare from the employee, it's not because the employee is ignorant or stupid.

As they stare at you, they are frantically trying to remember the rule, because everything is a rule and it's just really difficult and in a lot of ways it's a trap for people who work there.

Here, I try to set guidelines and I constantly tell the people who work here, you have to work for yourself. I want you to think for yourself, because I can't make a rule about everything.

Just looking at your staff tells me your side of the story. They're genuinely happy and laughing.

I've worked in the fast-food industry and I've worked here. Two different styles; this is much better. The crew really lights up, they really respond, and when you let them make the decision and you train them how to think and what it is you're after, they'll make the right decision.

Deep down, people don't want to be told what to do constantly. They want to be told directions and think for themselves.

What's the story behind these chess pieces? I don't think they're big enough. I mean someone with a duffle bag could make off with your king while you're not looking, and that, my friend, is checkmate.

We designed them with several things in mind. First of all, it was economical to use plastic instead of wood. Another thing is, it won't hurt if it falls on your big toe; you won't go limping out the door or seek legal compensation for the damage to your toenail.

That'll come in handy if you ever have a game get combative and someone takes a bishop to the head.

The last thing we want is full combat chess here and if things do degenerate into a chess melee we don't want the pieces doing too much damage.

You said earlier that you lean more towards checkers than chess. As someone who routinely overestimates his own intelligence, I can relate to that.

I think everyone likes to think of themselves as a chess player.

Speaking of strategy, how do you feel about yourself in a market of big-box retailers and bookstore chains with their own built-in cafes?

When you start thinking about those things, for a little guy like me it gets really scary. I'm just one little fish trying to survive in a huge ocean of predators and competition.

Everyone in that coffee market is doing the same style of coffee that's been around for 30 years and developed on the West Coast.

When we opened our shop, we weren't going to do that. We wanted to do our own thing and serve a quality cup of coffee. We just didn't know any better than to buy the best beans directly from the importer and to roast it ourselves, instead of getting it from a commercial roaster.

You'll see a sign in everybody's coffee shop saying that they have the best coffee, and yet they all buy it from the same roaster.

We roast our own, so we are creating our own product. It's like the difference between canned peaches and a peach right off the tree.

Good luck to you, little fish, and thank you for participating in our first Working Lunch.

If you know someone who would make a good candidate for Working Lunch, contact Sean Dalton at sdalton@heritagene.com or 475-1374.

Doug Marrin gets to enjoy a rare game of chess.

Michigan History

Today, we call it Memorial Day.

However, in the days immediately following the Civil War, the annual May remembrance of the soldiers who died saving the Union and ending slavery, was known as Decoration Day. Not surprisingly, one of the most-recognized annual ceremonies to honor these valiant dead occurs at Arlington National Cemetery on the Potomac River across from the nation's capital. On May 30, 1872, the day's festivities included a poem from Michiganian Will Carleton—destined to become one of the nation's leading poets.

Born on Oct. 21, 1845, in rural Lenawee County, Carleton was the fifth child and third son of John Hancock and Celeste (Smith) Carleton. Carleton graduated from Hillsdale College in 1869. A writer of poetry since his youth, Carleton received national recognition in 1872 with his "Over the Hill to the Poor House." The poem he authored for Arlington was a 55-verse dialogue between the living and the dead, entitled,

"Converse With the Slain."

Carleton won flattering reviews for his poem.

One newspaper account called the Michigan poet "the celebrated poet and farm balladist, whose charming productions have carried sunshine into nearly every household in America."

At Arlington, Carleton was interrupted by applause several times during the reading, and when he finished, there was the "wildest enthusiasm." One Michiganian who witnessed the day's events, observed: "I have no recollection of the day when I felt so proud of my country and especially of my native State, Michigan, as I do at this hour."

Carleton's Decoration Day triumph covered him with more than laurels. According to Carleton's biographer, "Arlington was clearly an epiphany—there would be no turning his back on his career as a poet and a lecturer." The Michigan poet spent the rest of his life doing what he could do best—writing, delivering and selling some of the most popular literary works in the English language.

In 1919, the Michigan legislature recognized Carleton's influence on the American public by declaring his birthday (Oct. 21) Will Carleton Day.

For more on Will Carleton, including his entire 55-verse "Converse With the Slain," pick up a copy of the May/June 2007 issue Michigan History magazine at your local bookstore or subscribe by visiting www.michiganhistorymagazine.com or calling 1-800-388-3703.

Here are reasons why I baptize babies

Although I was brought up in a church body that practices infant baptism, there was a period of several years when I questioned this practice. I was concerned because I could not find a Bible passage which explicitly said, "Thou shalt baptize babies." But then, a thorough examination of the Bible made me realize that babies should indeed be baptized.

Jesus instituted baptism when He said in Matthew 28:19, "Go and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit." He set no age limit, but simply used the all-inclusive term "all nations."

A probable explanation for why the Bible does not explicitly deal with the topic of infant baptism is found in Colossians 2:11-12, where

MINISTERIAL Message

By Pastor Mark Porinsky
Faith Lutheran Church

St. Paul speaks of baptism as a replacement for the Old Testament sacrament of circumcision. After Jesus' time the Christian Church spread initially among Jewish believers. These Jewish believers had already been circumcising their baby boys at the age of eight days. When they heard that baptism was a replacement for the Old Testament rite of circumcision - not only for boys, but for girls as well - they correctly assumed that their babies should be baptized.

Undoubtedly the reason the Bible doesn't make a big deal about it is because there was no controversy; it was a non-issue. So we read in two or three instances that entire households were baptized (Acts 16:15 and 33; also Acts 10:47-48); quite possibly this included little children. Historically, the Christian Church has practiced infant baptism ever since.

Jesus clearly stated that everyone is conceived and born sinful, and cannot enter the kingdom of God unless he is born anew, "of water and the Spirit" (John 3:3, 5, 6). He made no exceptions for age. But thank God, He did give us this sacrament of baptism, which the Bible calls the "washing of and rebirth renewal by the Holy Spirit" (Titus 3:5). And just as a baby does not cooperate in its physical birth, this spiritual rebirth through faith in Jesus Christ also takes place without our cooperation, whether it occurs in infancy or later in life.

The Bible says that baptism saves us by giving us "the pledge of a good conscience toward God" (1 Peter 3:21). In other words, baptism is a means by which God gives us the blessing of forgiveness that Jesus won for us on the cross. That's why St. Paul could write, "All of you who were baptized into Christ have clothed yourselves with Christ" (Galatians 3:27). Baptism is not an act of obedience we perform to testify to our faith in Christ; rather, it is a gift our God gives to us.

Is baptism a magic ritual that automatically saves a person? Of course not. Is infant baptism ever abused? Yes, people can deceive themselves by having their children baptized and then failing to keep them in contact with God's Word. Will a baby end up in hell if it dies without baptism? We could never say that: God can also bring a person to faith simply through His Word, as He did in the case of at least one baby even before birth (Luke 1:44). Is there a Bible passage which specifically says, "Thou shalt baptize babies?" No. Jesus simply said to baptize "all nations." That includes all age groups.

It would be a terrible thing to deny baptism to a baby, and to deprive an infant of this blessing from God. Anyone who would withhold baptism from a baby should first produce a Bible passage which says, "Thou shalt not baptize babies." There is no such passage.

GOLF

Along with his parents and friends, McCarthy and Garzia helped form that "gallery" of support Mignano would need to get him to that first tee overlooking the Pacific Ocean.

Playing golf for Chelsea High School provided Mignano with some of his greatest moments growing up.

"I wasn't the star of the team or anything like that and I had some great rounds along with some pretty awful rounds, but I always allowed my strong work ethic to get me through the bad times and get me to the next level," he said. "Coach Jim Tallman had a big influence on my game and always believed in me no matter what. He was a great coach and a tremendous asset to the Chelsea athletic program."

The "gallery" was now growing - and so was Mignano's confidence.

"During high school I was never exactly sure what I wanted to be when I grew up," he said. "It seemed like such a daunting task to choose at the age of 18 what I will do when I'm 30 or 40 years old. So I took a hard look at my strengths and passions and golf was the clear answer."

Mignano had heard about the Professional Golf Management program at Ferris State, but first took a shot at Michigan State University. Let's just say that shot went out of bounds.

"I knew it was not where I was supposed to be," he said. "I stuck it out for a semester before transferring to Ferris to pursue my dream job."

The program at Ferris consists of three internships. Mignano did his first one at Oakland Hills Country Club in 2004, the year they hosted the Ryder Cup. "That was an incredible experience and a great look at private golf at its best," he said.

But for his second internship, Mignano wanted to go south and "experience something new."

"After Jim Tallman retired from coaching golf at Ferris, Joe Ewald took over the position," Mignano said. "I didn't really know much about him except that he is a really good golfer. I met him at a graduation party and we talked about my internships and what I had planned. He mentioned that one of his best friends was the head professional at Torrey Pines. I thought 'wow, what a great opportunity.'"

The next fall Ewald asked Mignano to be his assistant coach and help with practice and tournaments before heading out to Torrey Pines to be an assistant pro.

"Joe and I instantly clicked, and I can honestly say without a doubt I would not be at Torrey Pines without Joe Ewald," Mignano said. "He has been a tremendous mentor to me in the way he coaches, how he treats others and the amazing family man he is."

That "gallery of support" was now growing beyond the ropes.

After Mignano completed an internship at Torrey Pines, he returned to Ferris to finish his final two semesters before graduating Magna Cum Laude from the PGM program. That September he took a job as assistant pro at Torrey Pines.

One of the highlights of being an assistant golf pro at Torrey Pines is working the Buick Invitational.

"It has become one of the more recognizable events on Tour," Mignano said. "Tiger just won for the third time in a row and really everybody wins when he wins."

"During the tournament I was in the golf shop where we get thousands of customers during the course of the week. Our staff also operates the merchandise tent for the event. Overall, it is a great experience and most of the players, caddies and PGA Tour officials are extremely courteous and grateful. It is awesome to be in the middle of everything and see in person all of the great golfers I admired growing up."

Where does Mignano want to be when he "grows up?"

"I'm not sure exactly where I will be 10 years from now," he said. "I'm going to apply to the Sports Management MBA program at San Diego State this fall and hope to get in. Ultimately, I would like to either travel with the PGA Tour, be a general manager at a high profile facility or coach Division 1 golf for a school such as Michigan, MSU or Eastern Michigan."

As for his "game" on the golf course, Mignano says he's always striving to get better.

"I have a pretty solid game, but I'm not a great player by any means and there is definitely a lot of room for improvement," he said. "But I continue to work at it."

Mignano says that eventually he will make his way back to Michigan to spend more time with family and raise a family of his own. But for now, he's quite happy with his office by the sea. "Torrey Pines is probably one of the most public golf courses in the country," he said. "I enjoy working there because anyone can play the course; it is the most democratic form of golf on the planet."

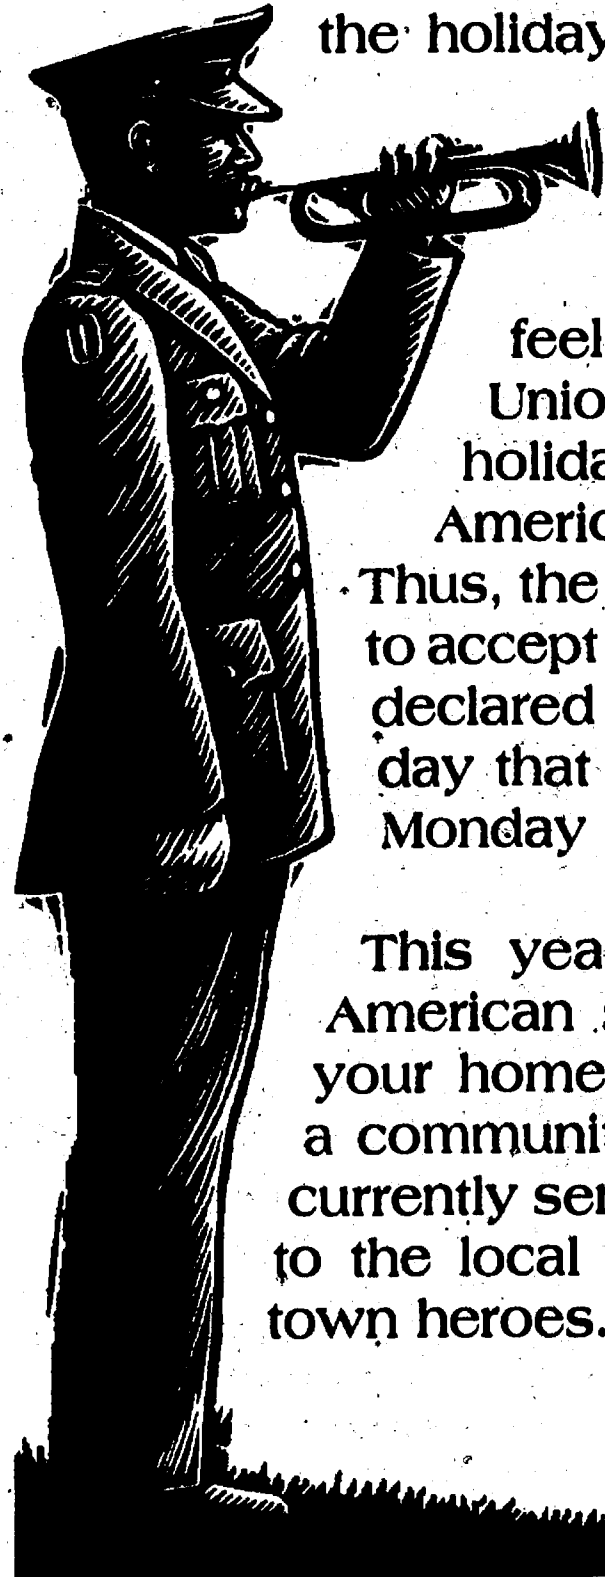

The story of how the assistant pro got there also is an interesting one. A story helped along by a young man's determination and a "gallery of support."

Find the True Meaning of Memorial Day

To some, Memorial Day is the unofficial first day of summer. It's a long weekend that is spent barbecuing on the deck, sunning at the beach or getting the pool ready for the season.

But, relaxation isn't the true meaning behind the holiday. Originally, Memorial Day was set aside to honor those who were killed during the Civil War. Southern states refused to acknowledge the holiday, feeling it honored only the northern Union soldiers. After World War I, the holiday was expanded to recognize Americans who fought in any war. Thus, the southern states were persuaded to accept it as a holiday. In 1971, Congress declared Memorial Day a national holiday that was to be observed on the last Monday in May.

This year, take time out to remember American soldiers. Display a flag outside your home or car, attend or participate in a community parade, write letters to those currently serving in the military or pay a visit to the local cemetery to honor your hometown heroes.

On each side of the memorial's ceremonial entrance, located on 17th Street, 12 bas-relief sculptures (top photos) recall scenes of America at war. The group poses for a "team" photo outside the Roosevelt Memorial. Members of the military (above) stopped by to say thanks to those who came before them. Chelsea's Larry Fulcher (above, white hat) was smiling for most of the day.

Meeting new friends was one of the highlights during the May 5 visit to the World War II Memorial in Washington D.C.

Chelsea comes to life in the summertime

While there's never a bad time to visit Chelsea, the summertime is when the popular Michigan city comes to life.

Through the summer residents and visitors can enjoy Sounds and Sights on Thursday Nights, an eclectic mix of downtown entertainment including music, jugglers, fire-eaters, art and food. The program runs June 21 through Aug. 30.

The highlight of summer is the Chelsea Summer Fest July 27 and 28. Sidewalk sales take over the downtown area, as merchants, entertainers, artists, classic cars and performers come out to celebrate the summer. Shuttle service is available throughout town, and children can enjoy a special play area.

In August, the Chelsea Community Fair brings summer to a close. But before the children go back to school, they can enjoy four days of animal showing, midway rides, truck and tractor pulls, and demolition derby at the fairgrounds. Scheduled for Aug. 21 through 25, the fair's final day features a fair parade from downtown to the grounds, and the crowning of a Chelsea Fair queen.

Here are some local events to circle on your calendar for the summer months.

DEXTER

Village offers up array of summer fun

The Dexter area continues to grow while maintaining that hometown feeling. Summertime is when the community really shines, with a number of special events that people look forward to all year.

The pinnacle is the aptly named Dexter Daze, held every August in Monument Park. What separates this event apart from other local festivals is that Dexter Daze is all about Dexter.

And don't miss the parade.

Here are some events coming up in Dexter to circle on your calendar.

Memorial Day Parade, May 28

The annual parade is hosted by the Dexter American Legion Post 557 and this year's festivities starts at 10 a.m.

Ice Cream Social, June 2

You know that spring is officially here when the Dexter Area Chamber of Commerce's Ice Cream Social hits Monument Park. This year's event will be from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. This event is a great favorite with Dexter families. As in past years, the park will be filled with games the kids can play, ice cream, pizza and soda pop, face painting, clowns, petting farm, pony rides, wagon rides through downtown, and craft booths.

Summer Gathering, June 20

Join other chamber members, their families and guests for our spring gathering. In the past we have had a fish fry and pig roast. This year we will meet on the grounds of Gordon Hall. Details to be announced at a later date.

Golf Outing, July 27

The 15th annual Dexter Area Chamber of Commerce Golf Outing promises to be the best golf outing yet with magnificent hole-in-one prizes. Team or individual golf spots ($100 per golfer) are still available, as well as the opportunity for your business to become a golf hole sponsor ($100), Beverage Cart Sponsor ($200 — limit 2), or a golf cart sponsor ($500 — limit 2). Donated prizes are welcome for door prizes and raffle prizes ($100 or greater value).

Aug. 10 and 11

Dexter Daze

An annual event that draws visitors from all over the area, Dexter Daze includes numerous craft booths, two days of entertainment for kids and adults, children's rides and tons of food. Dexter Daze would not be complete without a fully packed entertainment schedule, and this year is no exception. Dexter Daze offers entertainment for the whole family.

Fairlane Ford

Julie Turla, president, takes dealership in a new direction

BY MIKE SCHAFER

THE NEWS-HERALD

DEARBORN — Fairlane Ford is conveniently located in the shadow of Ford Motor Co.'s world headquarters at 14585 Michigan Ave. and has a rich history as one of the oldest continually operating Ford dealerships in the nation.

The family owned dealership, however, continues to reinvent itself and keep pace with times by keeping its facilities modern and its many customers happy with unique services and programs.

Perhaps the biggest change at the dealership is the recent promotion of Julie Turla to company president. Turla, who started working at the dealership in 1987, is now one of the few female dealership owners in the state and her leadership has made an immediate impact.

"Julie recently has taken over running the whole operation here from sales, service, used cars, the body shop, you name it," said sales manager Paul Marra. "It's been a real positive move for the dealership the past few months."

Turla's first order of business was to redesign the dealership's service facilities. The new, contemporary design, which features convenient drive-through service lanes indoors, opened to the public last week.

"We have completely redesigned our service operation to provide our customers an easy, efficient and cost-effective process for repair or maintenance," Turla said. "We moved our quick service oil change bays into the service department to make room for the drive-through write-up area."

"Before, people had to physically walk in and talk to a service adviser. It was inconvenient for our customers because maybe they had a child in a car seat or it was raining or snowing. Now, they can pull right into our service bay and talk to our service writeup team."

The new process allows a complete inspection of the vehicle while the customer and service writer are together, thus reducing waiting times significantly, according to Turla.

"Our entire staff is dedicated to the concept of fix it right the first time," she said. "Oil changes and minor repairs are quickly handled and we provide one of metro Detroit's fastest oil changes."

A special program that the dealership's service department offers is a free oil change and a free four-tire rotation after four paid services.

Another customer service feature Fairlane Ford is proud of is its Buyers Loyalty Program, where customer purchases are totaled and 2 percent of every purchase or the price of service is put into an individual loyalty account for future redemption.

Customers can check their loyalty balance with Fairlane Ford online at www.buyerloyalty.com.

"We are focusing on the needs of our immediate Dearborn community," Turla said. "One thing I think people should know about is our collision and paint center. Even though we share the same parking lot, a lot of our customers don't realize we have a full-service collision and paint center right here where we can work on all makes and models, not just Fords."

Fairlane Ford's Collision and Paint Center features state-of-the-art paint booths and frame racks and a staff of technicians that are fully state and I-Car certified and each have a minimum of 10 years' experience in collision repair. The facility provides Hertz rental cars at discounted rates for all customers and is conveniently located on Michigan Avenue to provide local pick-up and delivery shuttle service to customers' home or work.

In addition to participating in Heritage Newspapers' $10,000 Cash For A Car Giveaway, Fairlane Ford is also offering a free gas promotion by drawing a monthly winner for a $250 gas card and $1,000 in free gas winner at the end of the year. Entry forms are available at the dealership, and photos of the monthly winners are posted online at www.fairlaneford.com.

Fairlane Ford employs 80 people, including 14 new vehicles sales representatives. Meanwhile, four used car sales representatives offer over 100 pre-owned and safety inspected Ford and other brand vehicles.

Marra said those new car sales representatives have been plenty busy lately as Ford has introduced a special lease pull-ahead program.

"Anybody with a leased Ford vehicle can now take advantage of our new 'Early Bird' program, which is a three-month lease pull-ahead program, from now until July 2," Marra said. "That is something Ford hasn't done before and we're seeing a lot of our customers come in and take advantage of this program and get behind the wheel of a new Ford."
